Hawkeyes Clash With Boilermakers at Lafayette

Iowans May Use Revised Lineup Today

Purdue Ruled Upon to Repeat Victory of Last Fall

Probable Starting Lineups

IOWA	PURDUE
Cleaman	LE LE
J. Foster	LT LT
Akin	LG LG
Case	C C
Samuelson	RG RG
Loufek	RT RT
Laws	RE RE
Hickman	QB QB
Moffitt	LH LH
Kriz	RH RH
Sansen	FB FB
	Yunevich

Average weight of teams: Iowa 182; Purdue 182 1-2.
Average weight of linemen: Iowa 186; Purdue 185.
Average weight of backs: Iowa 175; Purdue 177 3-4.
Officials: Referee — James Masker (Northwestern).
Umpire — John Schommer (Chicago). Field Judge — Lee Daniels (Loyola). Head Linesman — Perry Graves (Illinois).
Time and place: 2 p.m. at Ross-Ade stadium.

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 13—Uncertainty as to the Hawkeyes' starting lineup in their battle here tomorrow against Purdue had not cleared up as the visiting Iowans tapered off in a light drizzle at the Ross-Ade stadium field this afternoon.
Whether three regulars on the Old Gold roster would be able to start was doubtful. Nelson Tompkins, first team guard who suffered a wrenching shoulder in the George Washington encounter at Iowa City, is not expected to start although he is sure to get into the game.
Jerry Kriz has been handicapped by a sprained back, but has been pronounced fit to start. Lyman Case may be used at center in place of Ed Dolly, whose ankle was injured against Nebraska.

Fast Running Attacks
Both contestants have fast running attacks, and the Boilermakers' Homecoming day crowd looks forward to seeing a bitterly fought struggle.
If the field is fast and dry, Coach Burton Ingwersen may place his offense in the hands of a "pony" backfield developed in practices this week. The members of this new combination are Phil Thurlite at quarterback, Bill Rule and Elmo Nelson at the halves, and Jack Greedy at fullback.
Coach Noble Kiger has seven ball carrying stars to call on. He will probably start Paul Pardoner, brilliant soph quarterback, Ed Risk and Purvis, sturdy veterans, at the halves, and Alex Yunevich at fullback.

Purdue Favored
Risk and Yunevich starred for the Boilermakers in their 20 to 0 victory over the Hawkeyes last year, and will be relied upon by the Purdue mentor to lead the attack in this season's clash.
With excellent chances of finishing in a second place tie in the Big Ten, Purdue ranks a strong favorite. The only loss on its record is the 20 to 14 mar to Wisconsin Oct. 17.

New Ends to Start
The new ends, Cleaman and Loufek, will start for Iowa, and Stutman will replace the veteran Hantelmann at right guard. It is likely that Leo Samuelson, who has been retarded by a bad shoulder for weeks, will play more of the game at right tackle than does Della Vedova.
The Hawkeyes have planned a crashing line attack, hoping to feel out the reputed weak spots in the Purdue line. Captain Sansen and Hickman probably will do most of the carrying, but Kriz is ready to desert the blocker's job for quick sprints on reverses. Howard Moffitt, the sophomore sub who ranks second to the captain in total yardage this season, will be used in Hickman's place at strategic moments.
Purdue in the past has won only three games from Iowa, but one of the victories was scored in the title march of 1929 at the Boilermaker Homecoming and the other resulted from long sprints to the goal last year. Iowa has six victories, the last back in 1923.

Tri-Motor Sets Record
CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—A new speed record for tri-motored passenger planes was claimed today by officials of the United air lines after one of their liners completed a 433-mile flight from Omaha to Chicago in 2 hours and 45 minutes, carrying eight passengers and mail. Jack Munson and John Briggs were the pilots.

Broadcaster Calls Harvard's Players Names; Gets Gate

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13 (AP)—Ted Husing, radio announcer, who termed the play of Barry Wood "puerile" in his broadcast of the Harvard-Dartmouth football game last Saturday, was barred by Harvard today from further broadcasts at the stadium.
Numerous complaints were received at Harvard regarding the broadcast of the game. The complaints were that Husing had been too critical of the general play of the Harvard team and had been especially critical of the work of Jack Crickard and Wood. No official cognizance of the complaints were taken until today when William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, announced the official action of the university.

Prison Gates Shut on Eight Communists

Lists of 5,000 Others Given to Province Authorities

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (AP)—Thousands of Canadian communists faced arrest as eight of their leaders were sentenced to prison today and authorization was issued for the confiscation of all the party's property in Canada.
Seven of the defendants were given five year and two year sentences, to run concurrently. The court recommended they be deported after the expiration of their terms.
The eighth defendant was given a one year and a two year sentence, also to run concurrently.

One of Longest Investigations
The trial and conviction of the eight for belonging to an unlawful organization and for conspiring against the government followed one of the longest and most intensive investigations ever conducted by the Canadian Royal Mounted police.
One of the investigators, Sergeant John Leopold, put aside his scarlet uniform, donned shabby clothing, changed his name, joined the communists ranks and sat for seven years at the party's council tables while he sought to "get his men."
May Arrests 5,000 More
When the jury ruled the defendants were members of an unauthorized organization, it paved the way for the arrest of about 5,000 communists whose names appear on party rolls confiscated by Sergeant Leopold during his inside investigation.
The attorney general of Ontario said he would turn over these lists and other evidence collected by the mounted police to attorney generals of other provinces, so they could round up the entire membership.

Bandits Get $18,000 Loot From Bank

RAHWAY, N. J., Nov. 13 (AP)—The Citizens National bank today handed over $18,000 in payroll money to five men who made their demands behind loaded guns.
The money had arrived in an armored car just a few minutes before the robbery. Thirteen persons, some of them paymasters for local firms, others employees of the bank, were held at bay while the robbers scooped the loot into a waste basket. The robbers jumped into an auto and escaped.
August Holdreid, 19, was arrested later at Elizabeth, N. J. He told the police the robbers had jumped from their own car at Lincoln, N. J., and commandeered his, forcing him to drive to Newark. He said there were six men, and he dropped all except two off before he got to Newark where the pair entered a house, leaving behind $100 and a revolver.

Governor Set Election Date
AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 13 (AP)—Governor Sterling late today set November 24 as the date to hold an election in the fourth Texas congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin.

Cedar Rapids Woman Dies
CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Nov. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, who died today in Paris, was Miss Elma Dows, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Dows, Cedar Rapids pioneer. She was a sister of the late Colonel W. G. Dows and an aunt of Sutherland Dows, vice president of the Iowa Railway and Light corporation. Mrs. Thaw was married here Jan. 28, 1886.

Illinois Entry Wins National Husking Meet

Orville Welch Jerks 31 Bushels in 80 Minutes to Win

By H. B. HOOK
(News Editor, The Daily Iowan)
GRUNDY CENTER, Nov. 13—Husking steadily, while a crowd estimated at more than 50,000 people was striving to get a glimpse of championship cornhusking, Orville Welch of Monticello, Ill., clinched the national rubber crown here today.
The 26 year old farmer jerked a net load of 2,196.4 pounds of corn in 80 minutes, or 31 bushels and 37 pounds.

Welch eliminated his closest competitor of the 15 entrants by an advantage of 57.4 pounds. The runner up was Theodore Balko of Minnesota. Lee Carey, Iowa champion, was third with 2,111.1 pounds. The only left-handed shucker, Carl Sellen of Illinois, took fourth laurels with a net of 2,075.5 pounds, while Omer Little, Kansas, title holder, rated fifth with a net poumage of 2,021.8.

Champion Husks Clean
The new champion demonstrated that he could husk clean as well as fast, losing only a trifle more than seven pounds on corn left in the field, and 6.6 ounces for husks. Deductions were figured on the basis of three pounds for every pound left in the rows or thrown outside the husking area.
Welch snatched a total load of 2,255 pounds for the highest gross total.

His victory gave Illinois the fourth national championship and divided honors for the eight years of such competition evenly between that state and Iowa. The winner worked with a pain hook and did his work with a precision true to championship form as he jogged hastily up and down the 80-rod lengths.

Hendricks Leads Field
The Grundy county spectators were entertaining increased confidence in their home entrant E. H. Hendricks runner up in the Iowa contest whose wagon took the lead from the beginning of the contest, and who needed more than the allotted 240 rows of corn before the final gun. His deduction on husks and ears left in the field, however, were high for the day and put him in sixth place.

Most popular entrant from the standpoint of following was Carey, Iowa champion from Marshall county. Working in faded blue overalls and short-sleeved shirt, he showed signs of fatigue after the first hour of racing and slackened in speed. His wife was one of the followers watching him work.

Winner Receives $100
The new champion received the $100 awarded by farm papers of the eight states promoting the contest. The runner up gets $50, and the next three place winners amounts proportionally lower.
The meet was spirited promptly at noon with a blast of powder ignited by Governor Dan Turner. The firing of a shot gun in mid-field at 1:20 p.m. finished the contest.
Attendance at the national meet broke all previous records, according to officials. Illinois will be host to the state winners next year. The eight corn belt states take the meet in rotation.

Secret Income of Slain Veterinarian Sought by Sheriff

MONTICELLO, Wis., Nov. 13 (AP)—A supposed secret source of income of Fred Lutzy, 55 year old bachelor veterinarian found slain in his home Thursday, was sought tonight by Sheriff West following revelations that he had banked $20,000 in the last 10 months and bought a considerable amount of securities.
Lutzy, Sheriff West said, was popularly believed to have been a man of moderate means, living only on what he earned from his practice and horse trading. Deposit slips issued by Monticello and New Glarus, Wis., banks within the last 10 months and totalling $20,000 were seized in the lining of the slain man's clothing the officers revealed.
Further evidence that Lutzy was amassing in his home was indicated. West said, by another bullet found imbedded in a wall two rooms away from where his body was discovered.

Commission to Hear Protests
DES MOINES (AP)—The railroad commissioners fixed Dec. 15 and 16 for hearing applications for a revision of intrastate freight rates on corn, wheat, flax and similar products and car lot shipments of livestock.

Ottumwa Doctor Dies
OTTUMWA (AP)—Dr. E. T. Edgerly of Ottumwa, well known physician in southern Iowa, died at a hospital in Rochester, Minn., where he had been taking treatments. During the World war he became chief of the medical staff at Camp Dodge with the rank of major.

Des Moines County Cow Testing Ends

1.8 Per Cent Found to React; Lee County Herds Injected

BURLINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Des Moines county cow testing ended tonight with observation of the final 298 head. Total figures for the county follow:
Clean herds, 1,667; clean cattle, 18,184; infected herds, 160; infected cattle, 4,000; total herds, 1,827; total cattle, 22,184; reactors, 406.
Lee County Herds Injected
Approximately 1.8 per cent of all cattle in the county reacted. Dr. Peter Malcolm, chairman of the state board of animal husbandry and director of the tests, said.
Six herds were injected in Lee county today to be ready for test readings Monday. The veterinarian force was reduced by Dr. Malcolm tonight to 12, and indications were this number may be cut early next week.

Sunday Visitors Day
General Park A. Findley, in command of national guard troops stationed at Camp Holstein for enforcement of the bovine tuberculosis test, said he expected to send some of the military to Jefferson county about Tuesday and discharge the others.
Sunday will be visitors day at Camp Holstein again, the general announced.

Work Started in October
Testing started here Oct. 24 when a hundred troops were sent into Des Moines county from Mount Pleasant, accompanied by veterinarians.
Two days later when a crowd of 2,000 farmers gathered at the Jake Eversman farm north of here and threatened resistance to tests, Gov. Eversman ordered 1,900 more guardsmen here. There were sent home 10 days later when no resistance was offered.

Hold Mass Meeting
A mass meeting was held at the City hall tonight and many city people attended. Eversman was the principal speaker and urged opposition to the state test law. Dr. Malcolm was asked to attend the meeting, but declined.
No action was expected at the session as apparently the meeting was not planned long ahead.

Lee W. Cochran to Make Investigation

Lee W. Cochran, of the visual education service, extension division, was selected last night as a member of a state committee to investigate conditions of visual education in Iowa.
Margaret Brick of Des Moines, and H. L. Koozer of Ames were the other members selected. The group was named at a meeting held in conjunction with the Iowa State Teacher's meeting.

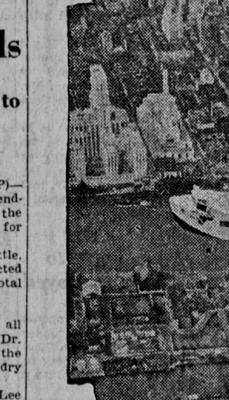

Open Pastures Converted Into Crowded Midways as 60,000 See National Husking Contest

By H. B. HOOK
It was 10:30 a.m. on the grounds of the national cornhusking contest near Grundy Center yesterday, and a crowd of more than 60,000 people were casting anxious eyes for the first appearance of the parade.
From as far as where the sky met the horizon could be seen the black network of cars carrying young and old from all sections of the state, to witness the greatest event in agricultural sportedom.

Concessions, Stands
A lively cattle pasture yesterday had changed almost overnight into a midway of concession stands and machinery exhibits. The 20 coffee and sandwich concessions were mostly operated by women of different churches in the neighborhood, and one could almost distinguish the Lutherans from the Congregationalists, or the Methodists from the Presbyterians by observing the various huddles around the stands.
In contrast to the emotions of a football crowd, there was no cheering or ringing of cowbells. The steady undertone of a 60-acre crowd was broken only by the overhead drone of some half-dozen airplanes.

Band Approaches
Suddenly the strains of approaching band could be heard toward the east. The Coe college musicians were leading the procession of 21 wagons over the hill as the 21 teams of Grundy county's choice horses seem to keep in step to the tune of the Iowa corn song. On to the grounds they slowly filed while a force of Legion men fought to split the throngs.
Twenty-one brand new wagons with as many brand new boxes. Twenty-one teams of matched roan horses decked with as many sets of brand new harness. Leading the

LINDY TO FLY BIG SHIP ON MAIDEN TRIP

Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh will be the distinguished pilot of the giant "American Clipper," world's largest amphibian plane, when it takes off from Miami, Fla., on its maiden trip connecting North and South America. The huge flying boat, which carries 45 passengers and a crew of five, will be started in regular service for the Pan-American Air Lines from Miami to Jamaica to Colombia on the world's longest over-water airline for mail and passengers when Lindy takes the controls for the inaugural flight. The ship is seen over New York. Inset is Colonel Lindbergh.

Japan Ready to Withstand China's Drive

TOKYO, Nov. 13 (AP)—As the late of the critical league meeting drew nearer, the various departments of the Japanese government appeared today to be joining hands in support of the general staff's plans and the foreign office's firm stand toward China.
It was recognized at the outbreak of the trouble in Manchuria that considerable difference of opinion existed between the foreign office and the war department, and between the war department and the general staff, as to how far Japan should go in her occupation measures.
When China placed her case in the hands of the league, however, and when the league called on Japan to evacuate by Nov. 15 the breaches seemed to have healed overnight and the government now presents a united front in backing up the five demands laid down by Foreign Minister Shidehara.

Mahatma Gandhi Abandons Hope for India's Independence

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi repudiated the communal agreement between Moslems and smaller Indian minorities today and announced that on Thursday he intends to leave London because he has abandoned all hope of obtaining independence for India.
At a meeting of the minorities committee of the round-table conference Mr. Gandhi told questioners that only a drastic change in the government's attitude toward the nationalists could avert a return of chaos and tragedy in India and utter prostration of British trade. The government has until Thursday for a change of heart, he said.

Stuart Chase to Talk Here November 20

Stuart Chase, economist and author, will attempt to formulate answers to these questions as he speaks before a University of Iowa audience on "Men and Machines," Friday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. The lecture will be given in the natural science auditorium, and is the fourth of the university lecture series, presented under the auspices of the senate board on university lectures.

Economist Will Present Results of Own Research

Where is the present age leading us? We have achieved a mechanical mastery of the world; all the modern wonders of science are at the service of man. Or are they? Do the mechanical contrivances, the inventions, the machines, work for us, or do we work for them?
Stuart Chase, economist and author, will attempt to formulate answers to these questions as he speaks before a University of Iowa audience on "Men and Machines," Friday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m. The lecture will be given in the natural science auditorium, and is the fourth of the university lecture series, presented under the auspices of the senate board on university lectures.

Iowan Held as Suspect in Shooting

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 13 (AP)—Two men, said by officers to have been with Louis F. Brown, 45, Maysville merchant, on a drinking party at which shooting occurred, were held tonight for investigation following discovery early today of Brown's body five miles northwest of St. Joseph with a bullet wound in his head.
Officers also were informed that $35, carried by Brown, was unaccounted for.
The men, Al Mueller, owner of a roadside, and W. D. Bennet, of Davis City, Ia., were named in an account which officers said was given them by D. Owens, Maysville oil company employe.
Officers reported finding bloodstains on Bennet's automobile and inside Mueller's roadside. Both Mueller and Bennet denied knowledge of any foul play.
Brown's body was found near Kleinbrodt's inn. St. Joseph police and Buchanan and De Kalb county authorities tonight were at work on the case.
The body of Leonard Greer, 15, farm boy, also was found near the inn but Coroner D. W. Tadlock said the youth apparently had shot himself accidentally while hunting.

Iowa Woman Wills $500 to Aid Hospital

A bequest of $500 to the university hospital, to be used for the aid of crippled and otherwise afflicted children, was included in the will of Mrs. Clara W. Wilson Hale of Marion, who died Oct. 23 in Chillicothe, Mo. The will was admitted to probate in Cedar Rapids yesterday.
One-third of the estate is bequeathed to the Watch Tower Bible and Tract society of Brooklyn, N. Y., and an equal share goes to the husband. Other bequests include the Marion Red Cross chapter, the Marion Community club, and relatives. The value of the estate was not revealed.

Discount Bank Plans to Start Home Loans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Hoover announced tonight he will ask congress to establish a system of home loan discount banks to relieve institutions dealing in the securities and to open the way for a revival of home building.
By this move, he expects a new attack to be made on unemployment which he considers is due in "a considerable part to stagnation in residential construction."
Government to Aid if Needed
An initial capitalization of $150,000,000 for the new banking system was suggested by Mr. Hoover. With this base he is confident that more than $1,800,000,000 for home building could be financed.
The capital would be raised by subscriptions from the institutions to participate. If this did not produce sufficient funds, the president would have the government appropriate the remainder, to be repaid later.

Both Cities and Farms He Emphasized

He emphasized "there is no element of inflation in the plan but simply a better organization of credit for these purposes."
The home loan system would deal in both city and farm properties and would be established on the lines of the federal land banks—one institution in each of the 12 federal reserve districts.

Building Held in Check

"The immediate credit situation," Mr. Hoover said in his announcement, "had for the time being in many parts of the country restricted severely the activities of building area loan associations, deposit banks including county banks, and savings departments, savings banks and farm loan companies in such a fashion that they are not only unable to extend credit through mortgages to home and farm owners, but are only too often unable to renew mortgages or given consideration to those in difficulty with resultant great hardships to borrowers and a definite depreciation of real estate values in the areas where such pressures exist."

Consults Representatives

The president worked out the plan after lengthy conferences with representatives of the various groups involved in home building credit operations. He also consulted some congressional leaders on it.
Senator Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, one of those consulted by the president, offered no comment on the plan tonight except to assure a willingness to give it thorough consideration.

Defense Asks Death Penalty for J. D. Lee

ATLANTA, Nov. 13 (AP)—A jury tonight considered the case of J. D. Lee, charged with the murder of Ben Lichtenstein, after hearing state's attorney ask for a verdict carrying the death penalty and the defense demand acquittal. Lee claims to be a Minnesota resident.
Assistant Solicitor General Stephens told the jury the state had proved Lee was a holdup man, that he went to the wealthy grocer's apartment to rob him and shot and beat him to death when Lichtenstein resisted.
Defense attorneys said the state had proved only that Lee was in the neighborhood of the Lichtenstein apartment and had not proved anything else to warrant a conviction.
In a statement to the jury today Lee denied he killed Lichtenstein and said his real name was Sumner Hiram Compton and that he was a native of Minnesota.

Boston Considers Lord for Library

Milton E. Lord, director of University of Iowa libraries, is considered as a candidate for the librarianship of the Boston Municipal Library, according to information received from Louis E. Kerwin, president of the board of the institution.
No decision is expected before next month. Director Lord came to the University of Iowa in September, 1930. He had been at the American academy in Rome, where he was one of a committee of five chosen to recatalog the Vatican library.

Group Plans World Party

December 11 Set as Date for Xmas Festival

It may be 41 days till Christmas, but plans are already being made for the "World Party," the all-university Christmas festival, to be given in the main lounge of Iowa Union Dec. 11, under the auspices of the Inter-church council.

The theme of the program and decorations will be "Christmas customs of many lands." A program is being planned by program chairmen of the various church student groups, headed by John H. Scott, G of Iowa City. Roland A. White, G of Marengo, heads the publicity committee.

Reception, decoration, and refreshment committees will be organized at a special meeting of the council tomorrow at 4 p. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

M. B. Buhle, A3 of Moline, Ill., was recently elected treasurer of the council, and Dick Roberts, A4 of Iowa Falls, press reporter. Elma Fullerton, A2 of Iowa City, is secretary.

The council meets the first Sunday of every month at 2 p. m.

Bond Trade Offer Fails

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 13 (AP)—The offer of August "Gus" Winkler, identified by Nebraska officers as a lieutenant of "Scarface Al" Capone, to exchange $600,000 worth of bonds taken in the $2,500,000 Lincoln National bank holdup for his release from a bank robbery charge was rejected today by County Attorney Max G. Towle.

"I would never have consented to any compromise with crime or any exchange of freedom for stolen property," he said.

The prosecutor said he hoped the Chicago "secret six" would continue to assist him in the case. He then prepared to leave tonight for Chicago and Buffalo, N. Y., to investigate an alibi offered by Winkler who is under $100,000 bond pending trial for the robbery Sept. 17, 1930.

Winkler offered to spend $75,000 of his money and that of unnamed friends to obtain the stolen securities. He did not reveal who has the bonds. He said he was in a Buffalo hotel the day of the robbery and that his "double," Tom Slattery, who was killed in Maryland was the man who robbed the bank.

Should the alibi be established Towle said, he would dismiss the charge, bonds or no bonds.

Charged With Embezzlement NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Evelyn M. Albus, 29, former deputy clerk of Jefferson county, Kentucky, was arrested today on charges of participating in the misappropriation of $60,000 of public funds.

Laing Explains New Plan to Iowa College Presidents

DES MOINES, Nov. 13 (AP)—The new university sans grades, credits, compulsory classes and rigid discipline has made a good start and students are "taking to it," Dr. J. Gordon Laing, dean of the graduate school of the University of Chicago, reported to Iowa college presidents at their semi-annual meeting held in conjunction with the state teachers convention today.

The new plan went into effect at Chicago university Oct. 1 when the largest freshman class in the history of the school was admitted. Few exceptions were made to the rule that those admitted were supposed to come from the upper half of the graduating classes of regular accredited high schools, the dean said.

"The students don't need to attend lectures but we can't keep them away from them," the dean said, laughing. He attributed interest to the habit of having to attend classes and actual serious interest.

The dean admitted there were students in the university this year who were there because it was "proper" to go to college and not because they wanted to study. But he believes these students will do no harm in the university.

The Iowa college presidents voted to hold their spring meeting at Iowa City late in March or early in April. Suggested plans for legislation which would allow colleges in gaining exemption from taxation will be presented at this meeting.

Woman Will Enter Senate

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Hattie Caraway was appointed by Governor Parnell today as the temporary successor of her husband, the late Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, who died here last week, and by virtue of that, she will become the second woman in history to sit at a member of the senate.

She will occupy the seat until a successor for the unexpired term is chosen at a special election Jan. 12. The governor said he also would seek her election for the remainder of the term, which ends March, 1933.

Delays Statement Informed of her appointment at her home at Jonesboro, Mrs. Caraway, who is 54, said she would make a statement later.

She will take her seat when congress convenes Dec. 7 and thus, even if she is not elected for the remainder of the term, she will serve more than a month.

First Woman Senator Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton of Georgia was the first woman senator, but her appointment was solely complimentary. She merely took the oath and retired in favor of Senator Walter F. George. Therefore, Mrs. Caraway will be the first woman to actually serve in the senate.

Mrs. Caraway's appointment again creating a tie between Democrats and Republicans at 47 each, and restored Democratic hopes for organizing the senate.

Japan

Japan's existence is unavoidably interwoven with its economic power in Manchuria.

The latest reports to military authorities indicated that the situation in the beleaguered territory has become increasingly grave and fear was expressed that General Honjo might have to act quickly in order to forestall a Chinese attack which might overwhelm him by force of numbers.

Two Bridges Rebuilt Minister of War Minami reported to the cabinet that two of the three bridges over the Nonni river had been repaired by Japanese engineers and that the troops would be withdrawn from that area as soon as the third was fixed, providing General Mah guaranteed the bridges' safety. The newspaper Nichi said that the Japanese consulate at Tientsin had been seized by General Mah's forces and the consul and his staff arrested.

thousands of people until the only spots on the field that appeared to be free from pedestrians, were the 10-foot areas around each husker.

When the final gun sounded at the end of an hour and twenty minutes of competition, Hendricks, Grundy county man who was runner-up in the state contest, was leading the field as far as distance was concerned. "I hope he wins," said Miss Snygard, apparently anxious to share another member of the county share national honors with her.

It was far past the hour for the noon meal when the crowds emerged from the field, their shoes bearing the traces of mud. Here and there a farmer and his family were seeking an open spot where they could be free to get a few bites of their homemade lunch, as they awaited the time a few hours hence when the winner for the day would be declared.

Survivors Recover Quickly The rest of the castaways, wearing uniforms of the United States, may give to them by their rescuers hoarded on the deck, smoking sailors' cigarettes and chatting among themselves, apparently well over their frightful experience.

The castaways were picked up yesterday by the Swan. Their vessel foundered off the Columbian coast Monday.

Before the rescue was effected the castaways had the unpleasant experience of sighting the mast of the Swan and of seeing it slowly disappear on the horizon. It was a sight that made them give up all hope.

Swan Changes Course Lieutenant Evans, commanding the Swan, changed his course to the position of the raft and came upon the lifeboat with the survivors.

As the mistsweeper drew near, the castaways forgot their exhaustion and hunger and rowed madly toward the ship. Flying from their mast was a white undershirt.

"As the boat drew alongside," Lieutenant Evans said, "all who were able scrambled aboard and then got down on their knees on the forward gangway and thanked God for their deliverance."

Ritchie Talks at Academy's Annual Meet

Proposes Remedies for World's Sickness; Swope Speaks

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—More "love, forbearance and neighborliness," instead of so many experts and so much "talk" was the economic prescription Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland wrote tonight for America.

"If we could all once get our feet on the ground, see things whole and recover our morale, this crisis would be over the sooner," the academy of political science was told by the man who frequently has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Perhaps we have too many doctors at the bedside," he continued. "Too many plans and experts. Too much diagnosis and prognosis. Too much talk and too little action."

The governor spoke at the evening session of the academy's annual meeting. The principal speaker at the afternoon session was Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, who defended the plan he outlined two months ago for stabilizing of industry. The plan calls for control of wages and production, standardization of products, and supervision of trade practices through trade associations under governmental supervision. It also provides that employers and employees share equally in paying for unemployment insurance.

Mr. Swope today suggested the modification of the Sherman anti-trust law to remove the "criminal aspects of the law and to allow companies to make agreements which would be filed with the department of justice."

He also suggested corporations might be allowed to deduct from their federal taxes the sums which they might contribute to employment insurance fund.

Critics who had said the plan would put the government in business were told by Mr. Swope the government would act only as a referee, while the trade associations took all the initiative.

Governor Ritchie expressed great faith in the ability of the country to get over its "sickness."

He is considered by many as a likely candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His speech contained no reference to party politics, prohibition or other controversial subjects upon which the governor has taken a firm stand.

Victims Lose Cash, Result of Depression

See Economic Stress, Unemployment as Racket Cause

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—And now comes the saddest of all rackets—the depression racket.

It has resulted, Chicago's anti-racket campaigners said tonight, from unemployment and economic stress. There are dozens of forms, they said, but the net result always is the same, the victim pays in cash and never gets his money back.

The term "depression racket" was explained by Donald Thompson of the state's attorney's racket investigating bureau as a description of strictly unethical business in which the victim usually is unemployed or in poor financial condition.

Offer to Get Jobs

"Stay around places unemployed men frequent," Thompson said, "and sooner or later some one will offer to get you a job for $5, or maybe $3, paid in advance. He's probably a depression racketeer. Give him your money and you'll never see him again."

"Then there's the man who always was going to start a bus line. The closest he ever got to it was hiring dozens of bus drivers, each of whom made a deposit of $500, more or less, on the promise of a $150 a month job. The organizer of that racket made $20,000 in about three months."

Racketeering has grown by leaps and bounds since the depression started, Thompson said, chiefly because money is more scarce, and people more anxious than ever to turn a big profit.

The ultimate in racketeering has been reached in a scheme by which the racketeers racketeer off each other, bureau officials said. This takes place, they said, when a racketeer opens a fake anti-racket bureau, collects fees on promises to obtain damages for victims of rackets, and then blackmails the original racketeer with threats of prosecution.

CAST IN FATAL LOVE FEUD

Accusing him of having "murder in his heart," Rose Allen (upper left), 18 year old debutante, has sped her brother, Edward H. B. Allen (right), 23, toward the electric chair for the slaying of Francis A. Donaldson, 3rd (lower left), 25, her suitor. The fatal shooting occurred in a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia, and followed a quarrel between Allen, his father, Horace Allen, Donaldson and a friend of his. The Allens strenuously objected to Donaldson's suit for Rose's hand. Both families are prominent socially.

Grandi's Wife With Husband on U. S. Trip

To Take Active Part in Social Life; Keen to See America

S. S. CONTE GRANDE, Nov. 13 (AP)—When Dino Grandi was in the United States in 1926 he threw a penny into the Potomac river because somebody told him that would assure his return.

When he got home he imparted a great deal of his enthusiasm for America to Signora Grandi, but now that she is on this ship half way across the ocean on the way to Washington she is of two minds about the experiences which will be hers.

Combines Old and New

She is keen to see the country which excited her husband's voluble admiration, but she reads the publicity which she has been told will be unavoidable.

This is no doubt because Donna Antonietta Grandi is herself a combination of the old and new, a woman in whom there is blended the conservatism of the old-fashioned mother and the inquiring mind of the modern fascist.

"Good Mother"

Her trunks are filled with gowns of the newest mode and it is altogether likely that she will participate in the social life of Washington more than she does in the social life of Rome.

At home she lives simply, almost obscurely, entirely out of the public eye and is the personification of the Italian "good mother."

Children Stay at Home

Thirty-three years old now, she is described as slender and graceful, typical of Italian beauty with the classic Roman profile. She never bobbed her hair.

She was married to Dino Grandi in 1924 and they have a 4 year old daughter and a 6 year old son, both of whom remained at home.

Demo Leaders See "Stop-Roosevelt" Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Some Democratic leaders see a "stop Roosevelt" movement in the New York conferences of Governor Ritchie of Maryland, chairman Rasbok of the national committee and Axel E. Smith.

The view, openly expressed by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, is shared by some other members of the party on capital hill.

Wheeler is an advocate of Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York for the Democratic presidential nomination. He grants the right of all members of the party to run for president but believes unless Roosevelt "or some other Liberal" is nominated a third party is inevitable.

Senator Wheeler asserted that the Ritchie conferences in New York were "a part of the stop Roosevelt movement." He did not think Ritchie would be a strong candidate in the west.

Citizen's Pleas Fail to Win Freedom for High School Senior

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13 (AP)—Pleas of influential citizens, including Mayor Mackey, failed today to win freedom for Mary Maximilian, 13 year old high school senior, who has served nine days of a six month sentence as a result of an automobile accident in which two men were injured.

The girl was convicted of assault and battery by automobile. The commonwealth charged she drove between 40 and 60 miles an hour, steered to avoid hitting a truck and crashed into the window of a drug store. John Hirsch and John Cipriotti were injured by flying glass.

Informed that a delegation had called on the mayor, asking him to intervene, Judge Crane said today: "I will not consider the girl's case before Thanksgiving eve under any consideration."

Senator Moses Says League Attempts to "Dump Mess" at U. S.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 13 (AP)—Senator Moses, Republican, tonight asserted the League of Nations was "attempting to dump the whole Manchurian mess into the lap of America, thus making us the goat."

In an address to the Woonancet club the senator devoted considerable time to the Manchurian situation.

"There is plenty of evidence," he asserted, "that the League of Nations would like to dump the whole Manchurian mess into the lap of America, thus making us the goat. The policy of the administration has prevented this."

Japanese in Manchuria, he said, had attempted colonization but had been unsuccessful because of the inability to compete with Chinese.

Officials Hold, Rail Meeting in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—The railways of the country today wrote a couple of new chapters in the history of their relations with the public and labor.

Leading officials of the most important lines held an informal "railway presidents' conference" in New York at which it was voted to appoint a committee which will accept an invitation for a meeting with representatives of the railway brotherhoods.

And, just prior to the presidents' meeting, a formal session, with practically the same officials present, voted approval in principle of the interstate commerce commission's scheme to pool increased freight rates for the benefit of the weaker carrier systems.

The two meetings continued practically all day, with representatives of 106 lines present.

In the matter of meeting the union heads, there was some divergence of opinion among the rail officials, some of them believing that the conferences with labor should be regional and decisions rest with the individual roads. It was finally decided, however, to appoint a single committee, to meet with the brotherhoods' representatives at a date and

Roosevelt Declares Decentralization of Population Needed

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 13 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt tonight offered decentralization of population as an answer to the nation's economic problem. Industry and agriculture, the New York executive said in a radio address, have gone out of economic balance mainly because the farmer produces heavily, but the city worker, far removed from the source of food supply, is unable to buy cheaply and easily.

"It is pointed out," the governor said, "that our farmers now produce more crops than they can sell to advantage, that is true enough, but it is equally true that the same thing can be said for many forms of manufacturing. Manufacturers are frequently unable to sell their labor and their skill, which are their only products, for any price at all."

To induce this shift to population, the governor said that a plan must be worked out by which industry itself would seek to move certain of its forms out of the congested centers.

place to be fixed soon.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, who was chairman of the presidents' conference, was also named chairman of the committee which will meet the union officials. Willard issued the following statement:

"Following adjournment of the meeting of the Railway Executives' association, there was an informal meeting held of railway presidents at which a small committee was appointed from the eastern, western and southern regions to meet with Mr. (D. B.) Robertson (president of the Railway Executive association) and his associates at a meeting to be arranged in the near future."

While those who attended the meetings of both the Executives' association and the presidents' conference declined to discuss in detail what took place at either session, it was understood that both were decidedly amicable notwithstanding the fact that there were objectors and objections as to the interstate commission's rate pooling plan and also to the proposed meeting with the labor union heads.

Walker Whiteside in "Surf" Affords Iowa City Another Glimpse of Legitimate Stage

By JOHN HENDERSON

Once in a too great while professional legitimate drama peeps in on Iowa City as a reminder of the glamorous days when the talking picture was unknown, when living characters laughed and wept with living audiences. A reminder poignant with memories to the oldsters; an emotional curiosity, revered and respected for talkie-bred youth.

Last night one of the greatest oldsters of them all, Walker Whiteside, cast away his 62 years and became the insolent, swaggering lighthouse mate who is the whole show in "Surf" presented at the Englert theater.

Has Place Unity

"Surf" had the quality of appealing to any audience because of its place unity (all action takes place in the living room of a New Zealand lighthouse) its time unity (a day and a half) and its singleness of purpose (depiction of sundry passions, a thwarted wife, a weakling criminal, a trusting husband, and a roistering lighthouse hand confined whether or no within the same isolated light house.)

But, doubtless, the supreme appeal of the play was its unity of character appeal, presented simply, artistically by Mr. Whiteside, while his supporting cast, with perhaps equal possibilities in their own parts, behaved for the most part with a lack of color which provided excellent contrast for Mr. Whiteside's performance.

Desmond in Single Role

William Desmond, who owes part of his ability to the screen, succeeded in being a blustering, middle-aged husband, largely due to the simplicity of the task which confronted him. Fairly good sound effects had their part in keeping the theme of the play away from the commonplace, and served as an intriguing element for Mr. Whiteside's imitable subtleties. Pounding surf, the continual clanging of a warning bell, rather carefully given impressions of distant shouts became real enough as the play progressed.

Star Carries Play

Interest of the audience rose proportionately throughout the play with the increased frequency of Mr. Whiteside's appearance as Harry Cass, strong arm lover of the lighthouse skipper's wife. As he became more active and voluble, so the play became dramatically intense, so that the third act carried with it the necessary punch to make the production a success.

Although the climax of the plot was reached somewhat earlier, Mr. Whiteside brought on the real climax of the drama by the simple expression "For cripes sake!" deftly summing up his status in the whole affair, and providing a fitting accompaniment for the final curtain.

Commission Houses Form Consolidation

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Fortunes rooted in Louisiana and Ohio are to be welded to create one of the largest security and commodity commission houses in the United States.

Negotiations for the consolidation of the New York and New Orleans firms of Fenner & Beane and the New York and Cleveland house of Samuel Unterleider & Co. have been completed, it was announced today, and

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—

The Rev. Robert Shuler was ordered off the air today when the radio commission denied the application of station KGEF of Los Angeles for renewal of license. Shuler broadcast three hours a week over the station, which was licensed to the Trinity Methodist church, South. The commission's action upholds protests that Shuler's broadcasts were unduly critical.

Like Father, Like Son

THE THOUSANDS who attended the Iowa-George Washington game here a few weeks ago got a genuine thrill out of the sight of 5,000 Boy Scouts sweeping down onto the playing field. Youth is always inspiring — so much youth, heads up, hearts happy — was an unusual spectacle. The nation has long recognized the work being accomplished by the Boy Scout movement — a new Boy Scout accomplishment is starting in Iowa City.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

H. L. Mencken's American Mercury ought to reprint a resolution adopted by 6,500 Iowa public school teachers at Des Moines Thursday.

As "Americana" it would add another item to the list of "Bible belt" eccentricities. And it would be one more manifestation of the Puritanism hang-over which still infests rural states like Iowa and much of the south.

One among several resolutions on the subject of cigar advertisements urged the exclusion of publications including them from the public schools. Maybe not all cigar advertisements would be considered "pernicious and misleading" but few or no exceptions appear likely.

In the first place, publications should be chosen essentially on their merit rather than on any basis of prejudice. Adherence to this recommendation would mean the dropping of newsmagazine Time in the many schools where it has replaced the antiquated Literary Digest because it has proved more effective in stimulating student interest in current events. And all for a couple of cigar ads!

In the second place, the alleged ostrich habit of hiding the head in the sand is an obsolete method of building of morals or character. In town and on the highway outside of school, in publications at home, the student is very likely to encounter the very advertisements moral censorship would strive to prevent his knowing anything about.

It has often been said with some justice that the chief reason for juvenile smoking, the chief zest for culling "snipes" or "butts" or "stubs" of cigars from the gutter, is not the taste of the tobacco but the glamor of doing something that's risky, something that's reserved for grownups and not permitted mere boys.

Our opinion is that morals should be kept out of the picture almost altogether. Maybe there are some bad associations that go with cigar smoking, and maybe it does stunt the growth — but let a youth's acquaintance with objections to smoking be on strictly practical, moralless grounds. He is more likely to accept them as common sense restrictions if they are.

Let him consider smoking as foolish rather than as a sin. He's a lot more likely to let cigars alone if he does.

In physiology, if it is not overdone or made a moral issue, the smoking of cigars can be treated as harmful and injurious. So should overeating, late hours, and the like. There is strong evidence to believe that faulty diet habits are far more harmful physically than smoking, and it is getting to be the verdict of athletic coaches that late hours are more injurious to their men than smoking.

There is no substitute for an environment of reality. Shielding a youth from smoking advertisements does not strengthen his resistance to them. We prefer the old-fashioned father's method of waiting until Willie began smoking and then presenting him with a pipe full of strong tobacco with the ultimatum that he smoke it all if he really wanted to take up the habit.

Mars, A Paradox

WHEN BUSINESS was bad among the Romans, they would send out a naval expedition or two, a few legions into the colonies and it was not usually long before business picked up. "Why not Another War?" is the title of a satirical view of man's tendency to pugnacity, by G. Peyton Wertonbaker, as published in the North American Review of November.

In the article he asserts that war is after all the readiest and most ancient solution to all international complications and situations. He refers to the solution of the problem of over population, over production, depression in business and the petty bickerings of peace.

War brutally decreases over population, the producer leaves the field to become cannon fodder, petty differences are forgotten in national patriotism and the boredom of peace ceases. Investment in armaments finally brings returns. New inventions dedicated to the god, Mars must be used.

The next war will probably be an air war fought by two individuals to a plane with no man's land or enemies' lines to pass through. It will provide a different thrill for those who fight and for those who read about it.

Most wars have been followed by business inflation and pseudo prosperity which end in a period of depression. War is the ancient and ready stimulant which finally drugs its victim into a false sleep or a wild delirium from which awakening and recovery are slow. The victim finds the original disease still there. New and more dangerous symptoms are added because of the ravaging character of the stimulant.

War is the ancient and ready but temporary solution to problems political and economic. When some master physician finds a course of therapeutic treatment for the ills of mankind, war will no longer be a ready stimulant and narcotic.

Science hasn't done much yet. When it can transplant whiskers from the face to a bald head and make them grow there it will be entitled to a piece in the paper.

If things get much worse down there it won't be long before tourists will be taken on slumming tours through Wall street.

Collections are coming harder all the time for the man who glings to the fallacy that the world owes him a living.

"To hoard money," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "may leave you like the neighbor who feared hunger so much that he denied himself food until he starved."

It is significant that the Boy Scout organization, which has accomplished so much for the boys of the world, should now start a program which will help both men and boys. It is safe to surmise that a father who has taken a training course like the one now being offered in Iowa City would never have to admit that his son was beyond his understanding. Perhaps if all of the older generation could take a course in the psychology of youth leadership, the problem of modern youth would disappear.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—A story that calls to mind the classic "To Be or Not to Be" has just been purchased by Warner Brothers for Dick Barthelme. It is "The Cabin in the Cotton," a novel by Harry Harrison Croll, dealing with life in a white-trash community of Mississippi. I don't know that the story has any further resemblance to "To Be or Not to Be," but I thought of the earlier picture as soon as I learned the news. Dick will film the Croll novel after he completes, "Alias the Doctor." Of course, it will reach the screen under a different title.

GIVE THIS BOY A HAND

An owner of a Hollywood miniature golf course has kept his sense of humor through it all. He has posted a sign: "Anyone caught playing on this course will be fined 10 cents."

SOME NEW GOSSIP

Gary Cooper is heading an archaeological expedition down the Nile. Members of the party include Colonel White, said to be a well known Egyptologist, and Woolworth Donovan, young socialite. Justice of the Peace Williams of Yuma has married more stars than any other civil officer or preacher in the last few months. Dorothy Mackall and Nell Miller were the latest and before them were Winifred Coe and Richard Dix. Justice Williams also married Loretta Young and Grant Withers.

Dorothy and her singer-husband have moved into one of the less expensive apartments at the Chateau Elysee. She says they delayed their marriage until Nell could be set in a job, because she didn't want him to be known as Mr. Mackall. They haven't any servant. Dorothy goes into the kitchen like any ordinary wife. Young Miller pays the bills. When Wallace Beery landed his plane in Kansas City, a telegram informed him that his Beverly Hills home had been gutted by fire. He shrugged off the news and continued his flight east. Alexander Kirkland will replace Ralph Bellamy in the cast of "Salomy Jane."

SITUATION DESPERATE

To hear Bill O'Connell stars were so scarce at a recent Hollywood premiere that the autograph hunters were getting each other's signatures.

MAYFAIR PARTY

A slight worth seeing was 500 film people doing a college snakedance to U. S. C. and Stanford songs at the first Mayfair party of the season. This was the club's largest gathering to date—about 350 couples. It took place at the Biltmore hotel on the night after the Stanford-U. S. C. football game. All the recent newbies were there: Arline Judge and Wesley Ruggles, Dorothy Mackall and Nell Miller, Winifred Coe and Richard Dix, Carole Lombard and Bill Powell. Some other couples were Ona Munson and Ernest Tubbs, Buddy Rogers and blonde Dorothy Hall, Pola Negri and Edmund Goulding, Carmen Pantares and Johnny Con-sidine, Ginger Rogers and Mervin

Leroy and Dorothy Lee and Marshall Duffield.

You'll be glad to hear Bob Daniels has dark hair again. Entertainment was by Jane Knight and Jack Holland, dancing sensations of the town. There was plenty of well-mannered whoopee.

HOLLYWOOD ARTER DARK

Talk of the town right now is the dance team of June Knight and Jack Holland, who are appearing in the Coast production of "Girl Crazy." The two young performers also scored a big hit the other night with Jimmy Grier's new orchestra at the Ambassador Hotel's Coconut Grove. Grier is the sponsor to Gus Arnheim at this popular dancing place.

History of Mines of Spain Told in Latest Palimpsest

The history of Mines of Spain, which are located in northwestern Illinois, southwestern Wisconsin, and eastern Iowa, is told by William J. Petersen of the State Historical society in the November issue of the "Palimpsest."

The story is developed by telling the part different men played in the history of the mines. The four parts are, "Perrot's Mines," "Jean Marie Cardinal," "Julien Dubuque," and "Choutau v. Malony."

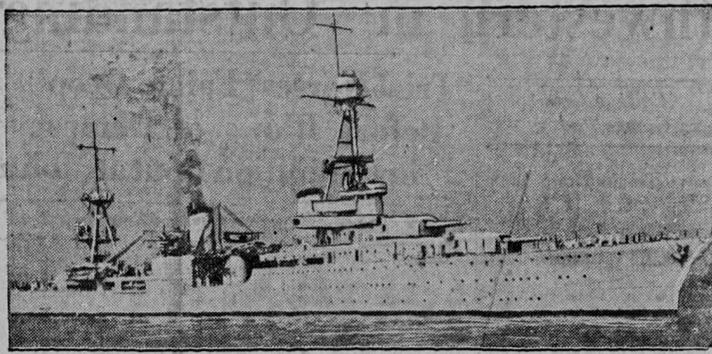

Describes Methods
Mr. Petersen describes the early mining methods used, especially by the Indians. The earliest digging was done by the squaws with buck horns, hoes, and old gun-barrels. The melting was done in crude furnaces built of logs. The methods of mining continued to improve but modern blasting was unheard of. The pickaxe, crowbar, shovel and hoe were quite satisfactory. Smelting was improved later and transportation developed.

Peaceful relations with the Indians around the mines aided the early miners. The first miner, Perrot, had been invited by the Indians to establish a fur trading post near their village so friendly relations developed. This same friendliness with the Indians was cultivated by Cardinal and Dubuque. The dealings of the white men with the Indians is told with the history of the mines. Dubuque was idolized by the red men who called him Little Night. They were loyal to him and even wanted to protect his interest after his death.

Historic Influence
The influence of the history of the territory is developed in connection with the mines. Biographical work of the men connected with the lead mining makes the story complete.

Prof. John E. Briggs, editor of the "Palimpsest," outlines the importance of lead mining in this territory in the early days. He compares it with the less important occupation of trapping and fur trading, and shows how navigation depended upon the mining. He gives a brief account of how the mines acquired the name of Mines of Spain.

Seventeen Pledged to Pershing Rifles; Raises Total to 100

Seventeen men pledged yesterday and last Friday brought the Pershing Rifle roll to 100 men. Working in sections, the men are beginning training for spring competitions.

Those cadets pledged last Friday are: J. Emmitt Wilkinson, A1 of Iowa City; Charles O'Donnell, A1 of Manchester; John Kay, A1 of Monticello; Richard Work, A1 of Des Moines; Henry Krob, P1 of Cedar Rapids; and Byron Bury, A1 of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Athletic Club Plans Work at Convention

Marjorie Camp, of the physical education department, attended the meeting of the state committee of the National Amateur Athletic federation, women's division, in Des Moines Thursday. Miss Camp is a member of the committee.

The program outlined for this year includes an effort to acquaint a greater number of persons with the work of the division. Some of the methods suggested have been writing articles for the "Midland Schools" and local newspapers in cooperation with state parent teacher associations.

Speech Department Photographs Voice of Famous Player

The speech department, yesterday, through the efforts of Miss Gladys Lynch and Prof. H. Tiffin, had the distinction of photographing the voice of an actor of long experience, in the person of William Desmond, formerly a featured actor in western moving pictures.

Mr. Desmond, in Iowa City with the Walker-Whiteside troupe, has recently given up motion pictures for the stage. The company last night presented "The Surf" at the Engert theater.

The recording, photographed in a special sound recording studio located in the laboratories of the speech and psychology departments in East hall, is to be used in conjunction with a thesis being written by Miss Lynch, under the direction of Professor Tiffin. Mr. Desmond read three passages, used by the clinic in all photographic tests, and then read one of his own composition.

S.U.I. Astronomy Group Gets Glimpse of Leonid Meteors

Meteors seen by members of the astronomy department early Friday morning were described by Prof. Charles C. Wylie of the astronomy department as "scattered forerunners of the Leonid meteors."

Besides Professor Wylie, the observers were, Warner Kirlin, graduate assistant in astronomy, and Irvin Keeler, research assistant in astronomy. The best display, if it is to come this year, is expected before Monday night.

Unfavorable Weather
Owing to unfavorable weather conditions, the observations from Amama, Tipton, and Mt. Vernon were not attempted last night.

Professor Wylie said, "The earth will be in the meteor stream about a week, and from the appearance of the sky and the wind direction at 4 p.m. it appeared the chances were against the sky being clear enough to see anything tonight."

"If the sky clears the meteors will be watched tonight from Iowa City, Dubuque and Muscatine; but the plotting from three stations will not be attempted. It is postponed to the first clear night."

Special interest is being shown in the display this year in view of the fact that easterners did not see the display in 1930. Cloudy conditions prevented them from view.

Engineers Receive New Refrigerator Using Gas Flame

A gas-fired refrigerating display unit has just been received by the mechanical engineering department for use in the new mechanical engineering laboratory. This unit has been provided through the courtesy of the Midwest Gas association.

The unit will be used for demonstration and student testing. It will be set up in the heating and ventilating laboratory in the new building.

"The new machine is of late design and will prove valuable in our work in heating and ventilating," was the comment of Prof. Huber O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department.

The refrigeration in the machine is provided by the action of a gas flame on liquid ammonia. Several new features are found in the cycle that the ammonia passes through in absorbing heat from coils in providing the cooling effect.

New Type of Des Telephone Received by Iowa Engineers

A new type of desk telephone has been received by Prof. Ralph M. Barnes of the mechanical engineering department.

Two big display boards showing each part of the telephone in detail were also received. The telephone is cut showing a cross-section view. It was sent through the courtesy of H. S. Brown, an alumnus, who is now chief of the cost division of the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company in Chicago.

Each one of the steps in the manufacture of each part is shown on one of the display boards. The time that it takes to manufacture each part is also noted.

Several booklets showing in detail the methods following in the manufacture of the product were sent through the courtesy of John T. Kane of the same company.

The material will be used in the course in industrial plant design and equipment which Professor Barnes teaches.

Indiana Hopes to Upset Northwestern in Outstanding Conference Game

Second Place Battle on Tap at Wisconsin

Ohio State Slated to Down Badgers in Close Tilt

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—The last recognized obstacle between Northwestern's Wildcats and their first undisputed football championship of the Western conference takes the field of battle in a "Jack the Giant Killer" role at Dyche stadium, Evanston, tomorrow.

Indiana's fighting Hoosiers who turn up with one big upset a year, and who conquered Northwestern three seasons in a row from 1927 to 1929, will attempt to turn the trick tomorrow, but not even the most enthusiastic Hoosier freshman, gives them anything but a bare outside chance. If Northwestern triumphs tomorrow, only Iowa, to be played a week hence, remains to be conquered to give Northwestern five Big Ten victories and the championship.

Battle for Runnerup

The pitched battle for second place honors between Ohio State and Wisconsin at Madison, divides interest with Northwestern's mad rush on this week end's schedule of games. Ohio State appears to be the better team and ranked as favorite, although the Badgers are tough enough at times to upset things when least expected.

There isn't much optimism in Madison, however, tonight for a Wisconsin victory. The chief cause for the low spirits is the fact that Wisconsin had a hard time winning from the weak Illinois team 7 to 0, and the Badgers fear Ohio State's running attack, which has proven particularly fatal against a team with weak wingmen. Carl Cramer, Ohio State's sensational young quarterback is the principal cog in the Buckeye's running attack and he figures to do places and do things against the Badgers.

Civil War

Michigan and Michigan State will engage in a civil war at Ann Arbor tomorrow. Michigan State, after holding the Wolverines to a scoreless tie a year ago, is all keyed up to register a triumph, but the Wolverines appear to have too much strength and polish.

Minnesota should have an easy afternoon in conquering the Cornell college (Iowa) crew at Minneapolis. The Gophers, who played marvelous football against Northwestern during the first half of their game last Saturday, probably will show their entire squad in the warm up against Cornell in preparation for their wind-up against Michigan a week later.

Iowa State Makes 1932 Grid Schedule

AMES, Nov. 13 (AP)—Five Big Six teams and Drake university will be on the Iowa State college football schedule next year.

- Oct. 3—Nebraska at Lincoln.
- Oct. 15—Kansas at Ames.
- Oct. 22—Missouri at Columbia.
- Nov. 5—Kansas State at Manhattan.
- Nov. 12—Oklahoma at Ames.
- Nov. 19—Drake at Ames.

2 Won, 2 Lost, 2 Tied—1931 Grid Record of U. Hi

By RON TALLMAN
From a squad of some 30 boys, of which only six were returning lettermen, was molded the 1931 edition of the University high school football team. It has been a team which, belying its lack of heavy and experienced men, twice rose up to stave off highly rated opponents and fight through to scoreless draws, which twice swept weightier elevens before it with the fury of its attack to triumph, and which twice, but only after the most grueling of struggles, bowed its head in defeat.

Spectacular, even though mediocre, has been the first Blue and White aggregation developed by Coach Joy Kistler. Hindered in his work all season by injuries to the few experienced men, Kistler turned out a team that has been feared for its open style of offensive.

The With Anamosa

After a short week and a half of practice, the team was called upon to face last year's eastern Iowa Little Seven conference champions—Anamosa. Primed to play a defensive game, the U. Hi boys also held their own on the offense, the game ending without a score.

On the next Friday they were given an even chance to win for the first and only time of the season. But they became a slashing offensive team and outplayed St. Pat's, their city rivals, to chalk up a 12 to 0 victory.

Then following a week's lay-off from actual combat, they engaged their second conference opponent, Monticello, on Iowa field. The visitors scored early and held off the spirited advances of the Kistlermen throughout the rest of the game.

In the next contest, the Blue and White checked their tactics. From a wide running aggregation they turned into a line smashing team, outplunging the heavy Williamsburg outfit to annex a 7 to 0 triumph.

Another 0-0 Affair

Came time for another Little Seven tilt, this occasion with the highly touted West Branch eleven. Only the tough breaks, which have always been known to crop out in football games, kept them from whipping their former town rivals. The score once again ended 0 to 0. A driving rain made a quagmire out of Iowa field for the final game of the season, the Armistice day en-

Sportively Speaking

By Matt Melchiorre

Only two outside games are to be played by Big Ten teams today. Minnesota is host to Cornell, and Michigan State travels to Ann Arbor for its annual contest with Michigan. Other games: Iowa at Purdue, Indiana and Northwestern, Ohio State at Wisconsin, Chicago at Champaign.

Purdue should take the Hawkeyes. After a poor start the Bollermakers appear to have found their stride in last week's contest with Centenary. It was a complete rout, Purdue scoring seven touchdowns and all the tries after touchdown.

The Hawkeyes will go into the game with radical changes in the lineup. The backfield will have some changes also. The chances are the smallest backfield to represent Iowa Big Ten victories and the championship.

Northwestern will be returned a victor over Indiana. By comparing the showing each eleven made against Notre Dame, the Wildcats should paw the Hoosiers with ease.

Ohio State vs. Wisconsin. The Buckeyes are our choice to win. The lines of these two elevens are evenly matched. The difference between the two is in the backfield. The Buckeyes have more drive there. Another factor which should help Ohio State to the victory is that more and better reserves are available to the Buckeye coach.

The battle of Illinois. Stagg's Maroons versus Zuppke's Illini. Chicago has much the better record. It held Michigan to a 13 to 7 victory while Michigan ran wild against Illinois scoring a 35 to 0 triumph. Against Purdue Chicago scored once while Purdue scored twice.

Illinois turned in a surprise against Purdue and held it to one score, but it was held scoreless. We pick Chicago. Minnesota should breeze in an easy victory over Cornell.

St. Mary's Hoopsters in Long Workout on Court Fundamentals

Drill on the fundamentals of floor work and ball handling followed by a scrimmage period occupied by the time of Coach Francis Suplee's St. Mary's high school basketball team in their session last night on St. Mary's court.

Showing remarkably clever floor work and a real eye for the basket the Supleemen appear once more to be handicapped only by lack of height.

The entire squad was given a chance during the scrimmage, four complete ten-minute periods. The squad is pointing now for the first game of the season with St. Mary's of Riverside on Wednesday, Nov. 25.

Football Results

Omaha U. 33; Buena Vista 6. Michigan Normal 32; Iowa State Teachers 0. Hillsdale 10; Albion 0. Wyoming 18; Brigham Young 7. Emporia 18; Washburn 4. Ogleshorpe 37; Wake Forest 6. Upper Iowa 18; Iowa Wesleyan 14.

Ohlmacher Throws Passes

Another of Kistler's backs made a mark for himself with his long runs and accurate passes. Bill Ohlmacher, left halfback, was this person. He also shared the kicking duties with Wyjack. It was he and his captain who scored all the points this fall.

The smallest man on the squad, but nevertheless the best blocker. That was the distinguishing feature of Bob McCloy's play. He took over the fullback duties when Joe Cannon was injured in the Anamosa game. Both Cannon and he have played in their last high school games.

Bob Schmoebelen and Fred Dever, both having further competition remaining, played steady games at all times. Schmoebelen should become a good ball carrier. Next fall Coach Kistler will be faced with the problem of developing ends to fill in where Bob Choate and Bill Cameron have left off. These two men have been bulwarks on the defense all along.

Tackles Heaviest

Darrell Means, senior, and Lawrence Fuhrmeister, sophomore, the two largest men on the squad, played through the entire season at the tackle posts. Means was a power in the line and Fuhrmeister, handicapped by injuries, was not to be outshone by his more experienced mate.

Ray Anclaux, regular guard, will be lost by graduation, but Arnold Barick, perhaps the scrappiest man on the squad, will be back to take his old post. And last, but far from least, Homer Dill, big center, has been noted all season for his accurate passing on defense, and strength at backing up the line.

Grid Spotlight Swings South on Major Tilt

Georgia, Tulane Meet, Hope to Protect Records

ATLANTA, Nov. 13 (AP)—Following the swift moving drama of one of football's most spectacular seasons, the spotlight of national attention tomorrow swings from the big towns to the red clay hills, where the powerful, undefeated teams of Georgia and Tulane stake their southern and national championship aspirations in Dixie's big game of the year.

Not since Georgia's famous "dream and wonder team" of 1927 galloped unbeaten into Atlanta, only to go slithering down to defeat in the mud before Georgia Tech, has any all-southern battle so keenly stirred the gridiron pulses of this sector as the affair at Athens, or, for that matter, involved such far-reaching importance.

This week's football slate nearly everywhere is packed with engagements of sectional or traditional importance. Up in New England, the unbeaten records of Cornell and Harvard are jeopardized by the threats of Dartmouth and Holy Cross. Notre Dame's juggernaut menaces the Navy. The Army marches on against Pittsburgh and Northwestern aims to keep up its fast pace against Indiana.

Here in the south, Tennessee's undefeated array, another contender for national honors, faces the challenge of Vanderbilt's strong outfit at Knoxville, but for the day, at least, the outcome of Tulane's charge against Georgia's scrappy array will be watched with keen interest from here to Pasadena.

The east has three unbeaten combinations to keep its eyes on. In fact probably 150,000 pairs of eyes will observe the fortunes of Cornell's juggernaut against Dartmouth at Hanover, Harvard's defense against the drive of Holy Cross at Cambridge and Notre Dame's efforts to overpower the Navy at Baltimore.

Ames-Drake Renew Feud of 30 Years

DES MOINES, Nov. 14 (AP)—Two clashes with Big Six elevens will feature tomorrow's games of Missouri Valley conference teams.

The outstanding engagement will be the renewal of a 30 year old rivalry between Drake and Iowa State college, potential champions of their respective circuits, at Ames. The Cyclones, with victories over three Big Six rivals, are given a slight edge over the Bulldogs, who lost to the other Big Six foe.

The other interconference struggle will bring together Kansas university and Washington university at St. Louis. Both elevens are virtual fallowens in their respective circuits, but the Jayhawkers appear to have the upper hand.

The only conference battle will feature Grinnell and Creighton at Omaha tomorrow. The Pioneers won their only conference game to date, with Washington, and appear to be too strong for the Bluejays. The Oklahoma Aggies will engage a home state rival, Tulsa university, at Tulsa.

Military Schools Meet

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP)—St. Johns military academy of Delafield, Wis., and Culver Military academy of Culver, Ind., will meet at Soldier field tomorrow before an expected crowd of 50,000 for the military school football championship of the midwest west. Profits realized will go to charity.

Varsity Cage Squad Holds Stiff Session

Little improvement in the ragged form which it has displayed in early practices was noticeable yesterday afternoon as the varsity basketball squad went through a stiff drill under the direction of Coach "Pops" Harrison.

Inaccurate passing and lack of headwork in floor play continued to bother the Hawkeye cagers. Even the usually effective combinations failed to click and once more it was only the cool play of Ed Break, sophomore guard, which saved the squad's reputation.

With the first game, that with Bradley, only three weeks away Coach Harrison continued experiments on possible combinations. Brecher, forward candidate, was used at center for awhile during the workout.

Break is also being used occasionally in this position which is a source of considerable worry at present, due to the ineligibility of Bud Bennett and the absence of Al Rogers from early practices.

"Trial Horses" Fail to Drop Before Blows of Dempsey in Exhibition Bout at Moline

By BILL RUTLEDGE (Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan)

MOLINE, Ill., Nov. 13—Jack Dempsey appeared to be a mere shell of his former self tonight as he pawed around four rounds with a couple of heavyweight trial horses before a crowd of 5,000 at the Moline field house.

The encroachments of age have levelled the once marvelous Minassa Mauler to the ranks of an ordinary pugilist. The sting was gone from his jabs, the knockout punch was missing from his long range blows. Dempsey could still take it on the chin. George Neron and Pete Wistort were given the opportunity of laming his cement-like chin. But Dempsey couldn't deliver wallop like the Dempsey of past years.

Wary Warrior

He fought like a wary warrior—prematurely old at 36 years of age—leaning on bygone glory. He was the same Dempsey in appearance—characteristic scowl, dark visage, and glaring eyes.

The announcer belittled the introduction "The world's greatest fighter, Jack Dempsey of Reno, Nev." It caused a mild stir in the audience. Dempsey tried hard. He was the aggressor every minute. His gloved fists were dug into his opponents without a lisp but with slight affect on either his adversary or the crowd. Neron split open a small rash over the Mauler's brow, and won a popular verdict. Wistort had little difficulty in lasting two rounds.

Boos From Crowd

Boos overwhelmed the few cheers as Jack stepped out of the ring. Boxing diagnosticians shook their heads with disappointment over Dempsey's showing.

The former heavyweight champion has been trading the comeback trail since early this fall, and has found it a tread mill. In his first comeback effort he battered down Jack Sharkey and earned a return bout with Gene Tunney, only to lose the decision in the "14 count" battle—but Dempsey's second comeback is getting him nowhere.

"The Thrills of the Elks" benefit show came in large quantities from the preliminary matches. After being floored twice in the opening round and staggering throughout the second, Lefty Martler of Moline rallied to win the judges' decision over Ray Bittner of Burlington in eight rounds.

Davey Day, a stringy 126 pounder from Chicago, all but knocked out Bert Visconi of East Moline in a four round pummeling. Young Powell of Rock Island went down for the count of nine early in the second round against Cliff Beckman of Davenport only to come up to get a complete kayo.

New Old Gold

A clever quarterback and a speedy ground gainer is Wilbur Wallace, colored backfield candidate, who comes to Iowa from Washington, D. C.

During his prep school days Wallace was for four years a member of the Armstrong high school squad, captaining the team during his last year. Twice he was named quarterback on the inter-state teams, selected from players in Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

One of the most versatile of Iowa's freshman athletes, Wallace is also a capable performer in swimming, basketball and baseball, and if he has time he will report for all three of these sports here.

For three years he was a member of the Armstrong swimming team, serving as captain during one year. Four years of high school basketball and three years of high school baseball complete the list of his athletic activities to date.

Wallace is another of the members of Iowa athletic teams who will major in physical education, with his eye on a coaching job when the four years are completed.

Ben Boswell and Johnny Vaught, Texas Christian university tackle and guard, are being touted for "all" teams.

Sectional Olympic Tryouts at Iowa? Coaches Hope So

Will Iowa be the site of 1932 sectional Olympic trials?

Coaches George Bresnahan and Dave Armbruster left yesterday for Kansas City, Mo., to attend the American Athletic union convention where the location of trials will be made.

Hawkeye mentors will make bids for sectional meets in track and swimming. If they are successful, athletes from the mid-west will gather at Iowa City the fore part of next year to compete for the right to go to the district meets.

Coach Armbruster will urge that the A.A.U. swimming meet scheduled for the Iowa tank Jan. 15 and 16 be made the sectional Olympic tryouts.

Coach Bresnahan will have precedence in his favor in asking for the track trials next spring as the tryouts in 1924 and 1925 were held here.

Varsity, Freshman Harriers to Meet in Second Time Trial

Varsity and freshman cross country squads meet this morning at 11 o'clock in the second of a series of time trials. Today's run will be over the four mile Pinkline course.

The results of the jaunt, while not decisive, will be used by the coaching staff in the naming of the varsity squad to represent Iowa in the Western conference meet to be held here a week from today.

An optional workout was ordered for last night. The squad is being handled by Assistant Coach Ted Swenson in the absence of Coach

For Big Ten Cellar-Illini vs. Maroons

Stagg Men After First Win Over Illinois in 9 Years

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 13—Fired by the hope of defeating an ancient adversary for the first time in nine years, Stagg's University of Chicago Maroons promise to be dangerous opponents when they face the Illini here Saturday.

That the 36th meet of these old-time rivals will be close and thrilling seems to be certain. Unquestionably the Maroons will be keyed to their highest pitch for the season while the Illini are determined to break their losing streak.

None of the pageantry that has made such an entertaining setting for Illinois games will be missing, as the Illinois band will be reinforced by the Chicago band, which will head the Maroon supporters.

Bob Zuppke's lineup is uncertain, depending upon whether "Shotgun" Schultz will be able to return to full back. Schultz, a casualty in the Purdue game, may be able to play part of the game but the best guess seems to be Eddie Schalk at full back.

Clark Root, pony halfback from Urbana, who has gone well against the Maroons the past two years, is a possibility for halfback. Root was late in reporting but has been getting into shape, playing with the reserves at Madison last week.

George Bresnahan who has left to attend the Olympic games committee meeting in Kansas City.

FISH PREFERRED

By P. G. Wadehouse

Synopsis of preceding installments: Ronnie Fish, nephew of Lord Emsworth of Blandings Castle, is in love with Sue Brown, a chorus girl. Lady Constance Keeble, sister of Lord Emsworth, wants Ronnie to marry his cousin, Millicent. But Millicent is in love with Hugo Carmody, his lordship's secretary. Ronnie, needing money, steals and hides his uncle's prize pig, planning to produce it and be rewarded. Hugo, sent to London to engage a detective, goes to P. Forbisher Pilbeam, but Pilbeam refuses to take the case of the stolen pig. In Pilbeam's office, Hugo phones Sue to ask her to dinner. Pilbeam, who has been vainly trying to make Sue's acquaintance, listens to the conversation with interest. Meanwhile, Ronnie has decided to follow Hugo into town. That evening, in the restaurant, when Hugo is called to the phone, Pilbeam suddenly appears and boldly seats himself at Sue's table. At the same moment, Ronnie appears in the doorway.

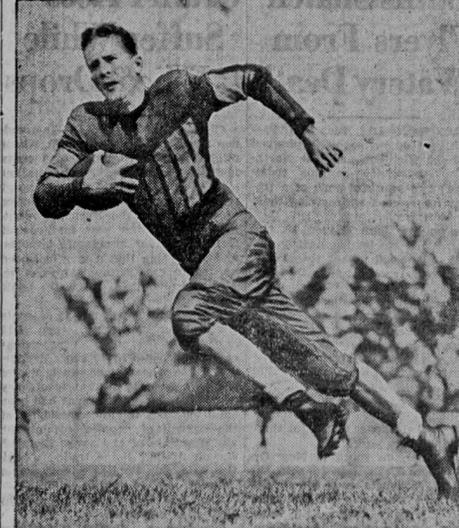

however, would find ample accommodation in the balcony. Ronnie did not speak. And it would have been better if Sue had not done so. For at this crisis some subconscious instinct, of the kind which is always waiting to undo us at critical moments, suggested to her dazed mind that when two men who do not know each other are standing side by side in a restaurant one ought to introduce them. "Mr. Fish, Mr. Pilbeam," murmured Sue. Only the ringing of the bell that heralds the first course of a heavy weight championship fight could have produced more instant and violent results. Through Ronnie's flannel-clad body a sort of galvanic shock seemed to pass. Pilbeam! He had come expecting Hugo, and Hugo would have been bad enough. But Pilbeam! The man she had said she didn't even know. The man she hadn't met. The man whose gifts of flowers she had professed to resent. In person! In the flesh! Hobbnobbing with her in a restaurant! His fists clenched. Eton was forgotten. Cambridge not even a memory. He inhaled so sharply that a man at the next table who was eating a moussé of chicken stabbed himself in the chin with his fork. He turned on Pilbeam with a hungry look. And at this moment the waiter, raising his voice a little, for he was beginning to think that Ronnie's hearing was slightly affected, mentioned as an interesting piece of information that the management of Mario's preferred to reserve the dancing floor exclusively for clients in evening dress. But there was a bright side. Gentlemen in flannel suits could be accommodated in the balcony. It was the waiter who saved Percy Pilbeam. Just as a mosquito may divert for an instant a hunter who is about to spring at and bite in the neck a tiger of the jungle, so did this inopportune waiter divert Ronnie Fish. What it was all about he was too overwrought to ascertain, but he knew that the man was annoying him, pestering him, trying to chat with him when he had business elsewhere. With all the force of a generous nature surely tired, he plunged the waiter in the stomach with his elbow. There was a crash, which even Leopold's band could not drown. The man who had stabbed himself with the fork had his meal still further spoiled by the fact that it suddenly began to rain glass. And, as regards the other occupants of the restaurant, the word "sensational" about sums the situation up. Ronnie, and the management of Mario's now formed two sharply contrasted schools of thought. To Ronnie the only thing that seemed to matter was this Pilbeam—this creeping, slinking, cuckoo-in-the-nest Pilbeam, the Lothario who had lowered all speed records in underhand villainy by breaking up his home before he had got one. He concentrated all his faculties to the task of getting round the table, to the other side of which the object of his dislike had prudently withdrawn. He was showing him in no uncertain manner where he got off. To the management, on the other hand, the vital issue was all this broken glassware. The waiter had risen from the floor, but the glasses were still there, and scarcely one of them was in a condition ever to be used again for the refreshment of Mario's customers. The head waiter, swooping down on the fray like some god in the liad descending from a cloud, was endeavoring to place this point of view before Ronnie. As Ronnie's hand with word and gesture were two inferior waiters—Waiter A and Waiter B. Ronnie was in no mood for abstract debate. He hit the head waiter in the abdomen. Waiter A in the ribs, and was just about to dispose of Waiter B when his activities were hampered by the sudden arrival of reinforcements. From all parts of the room other waiters had assembled—to name but a few, Waiters C, D, E, F, G, and H—and he found himself hand pressed. It seemed to him that he had dropped into a waiters' convention. As far as the eye could reach the arena was crammed with waiters, and more coming. Pilbeam had disappeared altogether, and so busy was Ronnie now that he did not even miss him. He had reached

Fred Hecker (above), of Houston, Tex., a sophomore, is recalling to Purdue football fans the feats of another Texan, "Pest" Welch, as he threatens to take much of the play away from Purdue's quartet of veteran backs. Hecker has shone in every start thus far.

Twelfth Installment

Ronnie Fish's estimate of the time necessary for reaching London from Blandings Castle in a sports model two-seater had been thrown out of gear by two mishaps. He was driving the drive the car had developed some mysterious engine trouble, which had necessitated taking it back to the stables and having it overhauled by Lord Emsworth's chauffeur. It was not until nearly an hour later that he had been able to resume his journey, and a blow out near Oxford had delayed him still further. He arrived at Sue's flat just as Sue and Hugo were entering Mario's.

Ringing Sue's front door bell produced no result. Ronnie regretted that in the stress of all the other matters that occupied his mind he had forgotten to send her a telegram. He was about to creep away and have a bite of dinner at the Drones club when, descending the stairs into the hall, he came upon Bashford, the porter. Bashford, who knew Ronnie well, said, "Hallo, Mr. Fish," and Ronnie said, "Hallo, Bashford," and Bashford said the weather seemed to keep up, and Ronnie said, Yes, that's right, it did, and it was at this point that the porter uttered these memorable and, as events proved, epoch-making words: "If you're looking for Miss Brown, Mr. Fish, I've an idea she's gone to a place called Mario's."

He poured further details into Ronnie's throbbing ear. Mr. Carmody had rung up on the phone, might have been "ar-parse four," and he, Bashford, not listening but happening to hear, had thought he had caught something said about this place Mario's. "Mario's?" said Ronnie. "Thanks, Bashford, Mario's, eh? Right?" The porter, for Eton and Cambridge train their songs well, found nothing in the way Mr. Fish spoke to cause a thrill. Totally unaware that he had been conversing with Othello's younger brother, he went back to his den in the basement and sat down with a good appetite to steak and chips. And Ronnie, quivering from head to foot, started the car and drove off. Jealousy, said Shakespeare, and he was about right, is a green-eyed monster which doth mock the meat he feeds on. By the time Ronald Overbury Fish pushed through the swinging door the garage well, he was at Mario's from the gaze of the passer-by, he was, like the Othello he so much resembled, perplexed in the extreme. He felt hot all over, then cold all over, then hot again, and the waiter who stopped him on the threshold of the dining room to inform him that evening dress was indispensable on the dancing floor and that flannel suits must go up to the balcony, was running a risk which would have caused his insurance company to pursue its lip and shake its head. Fortunately for him Ronnie did not hear him, scanning the crowd before him in an effort to find Sue. "Plenty of room in the balcony, sir," urged the waiter, continuing to play with fire. This time Ronnie did become dimly aware that somebody was addressing him, and he was about to turn and give the man one look when halfway down a grove of black coats and gaily colored frocks he suddenly saw what he was searching for. The next moment he was pushing a path through the throng, treading on the toes of brave men and causing fair women to murmur bitterly at the sort of thing ought to be prevented by the management. Five yards from Sue's table Ronnie Fish would have said that his cup was full and could not possibly be made any fuller. But when he had covered another two and pushed aside a fat man who was standing in the doorway he realized his mistake. It was not Hugo who was Sue's companion, but a reptilian-looking squint with narrow eyes and his hair done in ridges. And as he saw him something seemed to go off in Ronnie's brain like a released spring. A waiter, pushing with a tray of glasses, pointed out to him that on the dancing floor evening dress was indispensable. Gentlemen in flannel suits, he added, could be accommodated in the balcony. "Plenty of room in the balcony, sir," said the waiter. Ronnie reached the table. Pilbeam at the moment was saying that he had wanted for a long time to meet Sue. He hoped she had got his flowers all right. It was perhaps a natural desire to look at anything but this odious and thrusting individual who had forced his society upon her that caused Sue to raise her eyes. Raising them, she met Ronnie's. And as she saw him her conscience, which she had supposed lulled for the night, sprang to life more vociferous than ever. It had but been crumpling, the better to spring. "Ronnie!" She started up. Pilbeam also rose. The waiter with the glasses pressed the edge of his tray against Ronnie's elbow in a firm but respectful manner and told him that on the dancing floor evening dress was indispensable. Gentlemen in flannel suits,
