Late Rally by Bradley Spills Iowa 24-19 in Opener See Frequent Deadlocks in '32 Program

Tech Center High Scorer With 6 Goals

Kotlow, Acting Captain, Leads Scoring for Hawkeyes

By BILL RUTLEDGE
The Bradley jinx, which has pursued the University of Iowa basketball team for two years, bobbed up in the last four minutes of the season's opener at the field house last night to smite the Hawkeyes 24 to 19.

After battling along nip and tuck with the Tech invaders throughout most of the game, the Old Gold quintet saw its frail lead whittled down and disappear with Dale Davis, elongated Bradley center, flipping in three goals and Sanderson, substitute guard, one.

Davis' damage to Iowa's hopes was not confined to the final four minutes. His goals in the first half kept Bradley on Iowa's heels. His evening's total of six baskets and two free throws accounted for all but 10 of the Peorians' score.

Kotlow Iowa Star
Jack Kotlow, jumped into the game who was appointed by Coach Rollie Williams as captain for the game, played prominently in the short pass attack and in the scoring with three baskets and a pair of gratis points.

Ineligibility, which has consistently patronized the University of Iowa during the last two years, called again and removed Ed Break, brilliant sophomore guard prospect, from the basketball squad yesterday morning.

Break was barred by action of the Big Ten committee in Chicago. Counted out to be the bulwark of the Hawkeyes quintet this season, he was ruled ineligible on a technical minor or infraction of the conference eligibility rule for playing with a Knights of Columbus team two years ago.

Tieling and untiring of the score went on with the starting five of Kotlow and Harold Eshelman at the forwards, Paul Brecher at center, Harold Swaney and Douglas Filkins at the guards.

They were replaced in the first half with the score 7 to 6 in the Hawkeyes' favor and in the second half with Bradley behind 17 to 16.

Midway in the contest, Kotlow owned a one point lead 13 to 12.

A crowd of 2,600 watched the Old Gold start out as if intent on smothering the persistent jinx. Brecher counted a gift marker. Davis tossed in the first of his six goals and added a free throw after a basket by Mason for Techmen.

Moffitt Scores Twice
Kotlow's two gift points and goal put the Hawkeyes back into the lead. Davis picked the ball off the backboard for a goal. Kotlow retaliated with a basket for Iowa.

Of the three substitutes — Alex Rogers at center, Howard Moffitt and Lester Glick at the forwards — Moffitt scored the brightest. Capt. Frank Mace pushed a stray Bradley Tech guard. Moffitt sank a close-in shot and then knocked the ball out of a rival guard's hands to dash down the floor to score unassisted.

Glick picked up a stray Bradley pass and on a double pass to Swaney dropped in a goal that gave Iowa a three point advantage 13 to 10. Mace counted a basket before the period ended.

Knots Score
The tabulation was evened at the outset of the latter half on Mace's free throw. Kotlow's basket sent the Hawkeyes back into the lead. Davis knotted the score again by heaving in a short shot.

The Old Gold guards recaptured the lead on Filkins' goal. A Bradley five went in for Iowa, whereupon the visitors proceeded to pile up a five point margin 24 to 17. Phil Thurlie's basket in the waning seconds brought the Hawkeye score up to 19.

Steel Money at Parsons
FAIRFIELD (AP)—Authorities were investigating the theft of $120 and two wrist watches from the lockers at Parsons college gymnasium.

Find Body of Lawrence Larson
MT. PLEASANT (AP)—The body of Lawrence Larson, 50, well known faculty member at Swedesburg, was found in a corn field. He had shot himself to death.

Bishop Hughes was ordained a Methodist minister in 1892. In 1903, he became president of DePaul university, over which he presided for five years. Since then he has been filling the pastorate of the Chicago area of the Methodist church.

Bishop Hughes is a member of Delta Tau Delta, social fraternity, and is a Phi Beta Kappa. He is also a member of Collegiate club and Union League club. He is the author of several books, among them being "Thanksgiving Sermons," "A Boy's Religion," "The Bible and Life," and "God's Family."

Local Police Nab Forgery Suspect

Walter Brown, 20, wanted in Kahoka, Mo., on a charge of forgery, was arrested here yesterday morning by Traffic Officer Wesley Sedvec. The arrest was made when Sedvec recognized Brown as answering a description of the forger wired here Nov. 18, by Sheriff G. W. Smith of Kahoka.

Sheriff Smith immediately notified of the arrest by Chief of Police Frank M. Smith, started for Iowa City yesterday to take the prisoner to Kahoka. The wire sent here stated that Brown was driving a model "T" Ford. When arrested he said that the Ford had been disposed of.

Bank Closes at Hillsboro
HILLSBORO (AP)—The Farmers and Traders Savings bank of Hillsboro, with deposits of $115,066, was closed today.

Husk O'Hare Plays for Oakdale Patients

Husk O'Hare and his band, in Iowa City for the Sophomore Cotillion, took their musical cue to the patients of the Oakdale sanatorium yesterday afternoon, entertaining with a program of nearly an hour's length.

The trip was made in the special Greyhound bus used by the band in all their travel. The program at the sanatorium was broadcast over the institution's speech amplifier system to all wards, in addition to being presented to a group of patients who were in attendance.

Children Will Get Accounts Paid in Full

Closed Banks to Pay School Savings on Order

By WENDELL GIBSON
School savings accounts in the Johnson County Savings bank and the Citizen's Savings bank will be paid in full to the children of Iowa City, according to an enrolled order signed yesterday by Judge Harold D. Evans of the eighth judicial district of Iowa. The order authorizes Ben S. Summerwill, examiner in charge, to proceed with the payment of the individual accounts.

Mr. Summerwill stated last night that a date will be set in the near future at which time the payments will be made. No accounts will be paid before this time. He hopes to work out a plan whereby the teachers will bring their classes separately to the bank and thus avoid confusion in the withdrawing. Some time will be needed to make the necessary arrangements for the payments.

Will Pay Cash
Payment of the accounts will be in cash across the counters of the Johnson County Savings bank. No payments will be made at the Citizen's Savings bank. These will also be made at the Johnson County bank. Mr. Summerwill said that the use of checks would prove an added expense and a confusion both to the bank and the children. Most of the cash is now on hand and the rest is available.

At the time of payment each child will sign a receipt for the account. The payment will be made to 2,613 school children for an amount of $17,498.58. Of this amount $13,705.13 is in the Johnson County Savings bank to the credit of 2,030 depositors and $3,793.45 is in the Citizen's Savings bank to the credit of 523 depositors. The accounts range from one cent upwards.

Instills Faith
Mr. Summerwill believes that this is the first time that this action has been taken in Iowa or any other state. He stressed the moral value of the action in the instilling of faith in banking institutions and thrift. He said that it would also avoid the difficulty in administering and classification of the accounts.

The enrolled order states that the accounts must be withdrawn on or before Feb. 5, 1932. Thereafter they will be treated as ordinary deposit claims against the banks and will be paid on the dividend basis. When the receiver has completed with the orders of the court, he will be released and discharged of all claim or liability whatsoever in reference to the school savings.

Judge Evans Approves
Judge Evans was heartily in favor of the proposal and stated that he was proud of the opportunity to do service to the children of Iowa City. He said that "the move will do much to bring confidence in our banking institutions and to commend Mr. Summerwill and the attorneys for the receivership for working out the proposal." No objections to the application, which was filed on Nov. 25 by the receiver, were made.

The report and application for orders stated that an agreement was followed as to the school savings prior to the closing of the banks and that the accounts were kept and maintained separately for each child who had contributed. It further shows that questions had arisen as to whether the school savings were a preferred claim against the receivership and that the questions could only be determined by court proceedings without extended litigation and expense both to the receivership and the school funds.

Handling Expense
Further it is shown that the expense of handling the individual accounts would be excessive as it would involve extra clerical help, postage and incidentals and that this could be avoided to the best interests of all concerned. Also it is shown that an order has been entered in court fixing the time for the filing of claims in the receivership on or before Dec. 9 and that there may be delays in the classifying of such claims and possible delay in the payments to school children.

Will Benefit Children
The application also points out that as a matter of right and public policy for the benefit of the children, both collectively and individually, and in the furtherance of the plan and purpose of training and encouraging school children in thrift and savings, and for the avoidance of litigation and a saving of expense in the receivership that the school savings should be paid in full to each child. The application was brought by L. A. Andrew, superintendent of banking of the state of Iowa and receiver for the closed banks.

Sabatini Will Lecture Here Tomorrow

Fiction in Fact, Theme of Novelist's Talk on History

The fifth of the 1931-32 series, a university lecture brings Rafael Sabatini, British-Italian novelist, to the University of Iowa. He will speak at 4:10 p.m. tomorrow in the natural science auditorium, with his theme based on "Fiction in history and history in fiction."

Arrives Tomorrow Morning
Sabatini will arrive in Iowa City about 8:30 a.m. tomorrow, and plans to leave in the early evening. His plans necessitated the departure from the usual evening hour for university lectures.

His lecture will be both informative and explanatory in nature. As suggested by its title, it will explain the combinations of fact and fiction that have become through long repetition accepted parts of historical data commonly taken as complete truth.

"Historians Erred"
That historians of years before erred considerably, in some cases knowingly, in some cases without knowledge of their mistakes, is Sabatini's contention. Prompted by legend which had stood for centuries in some instances, they accepted as truth events which never occurred, and lives of persons who were never born.

In other cases, defence to a political faction carried deliberate misstatement of fact by the writers of history in the past.

One of the examples which Sabatini will use in explaining the influence of legend on historians is the tale of William Tell, hero of the Swiss nation, who has a complete biography, a coat of arms, and even a church dedicated to his memory. Tell never lived, Sabatini explains. His origin is purely mythical, and originated in a Scandinavian legend which traveled through years and nations by word of mouth until it was adopted by the Swiss nation.

Chinese Delegate Seeks United States' View on Occupation
PARIS, Dec. 5 (AP)—China will not evacuate Chinchow, but will "fight and die there if necessary," Dr. Alfred Soe, Chinese delegate to the council of the League of Nations, told council leaders today.

After he had made this statement Dr. Soe conferred with Ambassador Dawes for the purpose of determining "what attitude the United States government would take if Japan occupied Chinchow. What Mr. Dawes told him was not made public.

Third Party Intervention
Meanwhile Nobumi Ito, legal expert of Japan's League delegation, informed the council's drafting committee that Tokyo was unalterably opposed to intervention by a third party, either through a commission of inquiry or through neutral observers, in the Manchurian conflict.

The upshot of these interchanges was that the deadlock over the Far Eastern quarrel seemed tighter than ever.

No Hope From Council
Dr. Soe, it was understood, received no hope from members of the council that China would be assisted in retaining Chinchow.

Mr. Ito was reported to have told the council's committee that Japan would not be satisfied until the Chinese army, and perhaps even the Chinese civil government, were removed from Chinchow and established behind the great wall.

Three Day Selling Pronounced Success by City Merchants

Although unfavorable weather marred the closing day of the three day sale held here under the auspices of the Retail Merchant's bureau, local business men stated that they were well pleased with the results obtained.

J. J. McNamara, president of the Retail Merchant's bureau, said that the sale had accomplished the purpose for which it was intended as well as could be expected under the present economic conditions.

Mr. McNamara further said that the major purpose of the sale had been to attract the attention of people to Iowa City business houses. Plans for a similar sale next year have not been definitely decided upon.

16 SHOPPING DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS
I HOPE I'M NOT A FUR COAT BY CHRISTMAS!

'32 Program Prosperity Issues, Tax Revisions Aims of Legislators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—A new congress, divided against itself and encircled by uncertainties, will begin its sessions Monday under a tension keyed to the restlessness of these troubled times.

A program of prosperity, with tax revision and bank reforms at its head, and the goal of legislative effort. Politics and prohibition will provide the effervescence for unceasing oratory. Hair-breadth party majorities will make every forward step a tedious process of deadlock and compromise.

Demos Organize House
Unless countervailing fortunes intervene, the Democrats will organize the house and the Republicans the senate, but by margins so delicate as to preclude real control in either chamber. The choice of John N. Garner of Texas as the first Democratic speaker since Champ Clark still was dependent tonight on the almost unanimous turnout of his party strength.

In the senate, re-election of George H. Moses of New Hampshire as president pro tempore hinged on an effort to placate the rebellious western insurgents whom he once called "sons of the wild jackass."

House Must Decide
The house must make its decision at once, for it cannot function without a speaker. A final roundup tonight gave promise that every one of the 213 Democrats will be present Monday. At least one of the 214 Republicans, whose candidate is Bertrand Snell of New York, is certain to be absent. J. Will Taylor, III, in Tennessee, has been forbidden by his doctors to come to Washington.

Into power with Garner will go a full slate of Democratic officials, agreed upon unanimously today at a cheering party caucus. Henry F. Rainey of Illinois, survivor of a field of a half dozen original aspirants, will become floor leader, and after a dozen years of Republican control that branch of congress which originates the laws controlling treasury purse-strings will pass over to the opposition.

Hoover's Message Ready
The president's annual message to congress was in printed form tonight but with figurative blue pencil marks through sections dealing with specific aid for railroads.

Word was passed through authoritative quarters that the chief executive has decided to withhold recommendations for helping the carriers, at least until the effect of relief measures already in progress can be measured.

Flyer Misses Record Time in Cuba Trip

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 5 (AP)—Lou Reichers, who set a speed mark on his southbound trip Wednesday to Havana, returned here today in a faster flight that failed by a few minutes to eclipse the comparative northbound record of Captain Frank M. Hawks.

Reichers set his plane down at 4:43 p.m. his elapsed time from Havana was 7 hours and 34 minutes and his flying time 6 hours and 17 minutes. He had left Havana at 9:09 a.m., and made one stop at Miami.

His northbound performance compared with the flight from Havana to New York last July in which the flying time of Captain Hawks was 6 hours and 53 minutes and his elapsed time 7 hours and 38 minutes.

Fire Fighters' Work Earns Appreciation

Definitely stating his appreciation of the efficiency shown by Iowa City firemen when fighting a fire at his home a week ago, Dr. W. F. Bolter, 1016 E. College street, presented Fire Chief Herman Amish with a $20 bill yesterday morning, saying: "Buy yourself and the men cigars or anything else you may want or need."

Instead of following Dr. Bolter's suggestion, Chief Amish said last night that the money would be placed in the firemen's pension fund. "This is the largest sum that has been given the firemen for many weeks," stated the chief.

Fire Damages Elevator

ARTHUR (AP)—Fire damaged the elevator and shelling plant of the Crackerjack Popcorn company, entangling a loss estimated at $50,000. The local fire department aided by the Osceola department succeeded in saving a car containing several thousands of bushels of popcorn on the cob.

WEATHER

Strolling Through Fashion Lane

By CELIA GOLDBERG
Society Editor, The Daily Iowan

Those most faithful of fashion partners, Black and White, have been seen going to dinner lately in some of the queerest and yet the most interesting designs ever evolved.

The house-wife's bungalow apron, the chaps of the cowboy's trousers, and the haymaker's overalls have all contributed their bit in designs of these contrasting shades.

Her Majesty, Queen Fashion, has done her share toward raising the prestige of the American dollar sign. Frocks are being shown with tiny gilded dollar signs instead of buttons to fasten the jackets of jaunty sports suits.

The newest night-time mouchoir is a 36 inch square of pastel tinted chiffon tipped at the corners in cream colored lace. Milady carries it in a color matching her evening gown.

New winter frocks for La Dame Americaine are being designed of new loose-woven wool with a mesh as wide as fine tulle. This fabric was designed for the U. S. particularly by manufacturers who realized that American women living in steam heated houses can not be comfortable in the heavy wool frock which is such a favorite with the Parisienne.

New handbags are designed in two tones reflecting the dual colors of winter ensembles. For instance, a dark blue envelope bag has a band of dark red leather down the center, and a black antelope bag has a mounting and monogram of dull gold.

Sleeveless dresses are quite out for afternoons. A capelet or equestre serves as a sleeve and is sufficient to pass muster. One sees more dinner dresses with sleeves than tea dresses without them.

At the very beginning of the season, when all sorts of silhouette disturbances threatened, the bustle silhouette was taken with one's tongue in one's cheek. Even though it seemed absurd to think it would be taken seriously, did you notice the quota of so-called "bustle gowns" at the Cotillion the other night?

Women who have none of the bustle are wearing lovely long gowns molded to the figure and flaring only below the knees. The wide shoulder line is achieved in endless ways, but never at the expense of the bare back. Evening dresses, higher than usual in front, are very daring when viewed from the rear.

Beaded collars matched to bracelets will be welcome gifts for you-know-when. Even when not matched to bracelets, a beaded collar seems the ideal thing for the woman who realizes that designers are "saying it with beads" again.

Speaker Tells Study Club of Child Growth

Infancy, Preschool Age Mean Adolescence, Anderson Says

"Adolescence, then, to the extent that it means a period of growth," said Harold H. Anderson, professor of child welfare, in a talk to the Child Study club yesterday noon at Iowa Union, "should, from the evidence now at hand, have been assigned to the period of infancy or to that of preschool age."

Professor Anderson gave evidence that both physical and character growth in children of the so-called adolescent age are less than during infancy. He showed the probable reason for change in this period lies in the change in the parent-child relationship which becomes intolerable to many children at that age.

Trouble in Attitudes
According to the speaker, the chief source of trouble between the adolescent and his parents lies in the attitudes of the latter. "The child often finds a wide discrepancy between the standards of value of his parents, those of the parents of his school mates, and often the values of his teachers," Professor Anderson pointed out.

Adolescent children see through the adult prejudices, pride, and confusions that are thrust upon them and wish to form their own. The speaker said, but adults force theirs upon them and when they resist, attempt sentiment or coercion. He stated that religion and morals are dynamic factors not settled, and that youth should be allowed to form its own ideas on those things.

Discusses Religion, Sex
Professor Anderson concluded with a discussion of religious and sex education. He showed that the main reasons for difficulty in educating along these lines were due to the confusion and prejudices in the minds of parents.

In a discussion following the talk, Professor Anderson was asked whether the attitude of the adolescent was social or selfish, and what the adolescent's decision about drink would be if left to himself. The speaker replied that it is impossible to say which actions are social and which are selfish. The decision on drink, he said, might be in imitation of the parents, or it might be a protest against coercion. Professor Anderson gave three steps as a process to prevent the adolescent from reading books supposedly unsuitable for his age. The first is a balanced attitude toward the situation by the parent. The second is the establishment of new confidence, and the third, treating the situation itself.

Wheat Gains With Increase in Stocks Sale

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—Aggressive buying that resulted largely from stock market recoveries gave decided stimulus to wheat values late today and brought about material gains. Indications of augmented export demand for wheat from North America were an additional strengthening influence, with estimates that new purchasing for shipment overseas totaled 1,000,000 bushels. There was no direct evidence, however, that this included any United States grain.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-4 to 1-3-4 cents higher than yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 3-8 up, oats unchanged to 1-8 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

From the day's bottom level, the market scored an exhilarating quick upward flight of 2 cents a bushel, and finished with most of the gain unimpaired.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Primary receipts of corn were less than half those of a year ago.

Provisions tended upward, responsive to moderate buying. Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 58, offers; March 55 1-2, bids; 57 to 57 1-8, 60 3-8 to 60 1-2; July 56 1-4, 59 3-8 to 59 1-2. Corn—Dec. 35 1-4, 37 5-8 to 37 3-4; March 40 1-2, offers; May 40 5-8 to 40 3-4, 42 1-2; July 42 5-8, 44 3-8 to 44 1-2.

Another University Sing

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that during a time of national stress that has found its way even into academic circles, that it has been the student himself who has most earnestly sought to keep the group morale on the Iowa campus at the same high pitch that has held every worthwhile project of the student body.

Some attempts have scarcely been successful. But where unusual measures are needed, considerable experimentation is always necessary. Students on this campus have been seeking the right combination, blindly, sometimes without knowing what they are seeking, or even that they are engaged in search, but nevertheless with admirable persistence for the most part.

Recently a university sing was held at Iowa Union in connection with a Dad's day program. Novel as the idea was, it had had little time to be popularized in the minds of the university community, and was not particularly well attended.

But many who did go to the affair were able to see the tremendous potentialities of community singing for unifying spirit, raising morale, and generally pepping up those of gloomier tendencies.

From this revival of the community sing idea has come considerable agitation for more affairs of similar nature. Suggestions have been made that they be held between halves of basketball games and other times when large crowds are assembled.

As a start toward carrying out such a program another of these sings will be held at Iowa Union next Sunday afternoon.

Because of the season, Christmas carols will predominate on the program, but as a kind of farewell assurance of common good fellowship it should transcend observance of the holidays.

With the right kind of cooperation from the students the community sing spirit will form a kind of bond that will carry through vacation and provide freshness of spirit for a renewal of study at the new year.

Divorce on the Farm

IN RECENT years the farmers of the United States have complained of low prices on grains and stock, of high taxation, of low returns as compared with the labor done and investment made. The farmers have believed eastern capital and Washington politicians have made them the "goat" of all legislative measures.

In spite of these economic problems that worry the rural citizen, Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson of Albia, Iowa finds happiness in the fact that the social problems causing such a commotion in the city are not present in farming communities.

Mrs. Richardson, the only woman to have received the distinguished service medal of the American Farm Bureau federation, believes that city wives could well afford to take lessons from the farm wife on how to hold a husband, how to keep away from divorce courts and how to make a house a home.

"The rural woman does not keep her husband by weekly trips to the beauty parlor," says Mrs. Richardson, "but by woman's greatest beauty — wholesomeness, cleanliness, and health."

The beliefs of this Iowa woman seem well founded in view of the fact that divorce court figures show only one per cent among farmers. Mrs. Richardson finds the secret of such success based upon the united interest of each member of the family. She believes that until the city wife realizes the importance of cooperation and singleness of purpose within the home group, the rural woman will remain queen home-maker of the land.

Economic problems fade into insignificance when compared with social difficulties. In accepting Mrs. Richardson's statements the farmer is raised from a position of national underdog to the highest pinnacle of the social empire.

Installment Plan Homes

THE OTHER day some 3,000 persons, representing every state in the union at the conference on Home Building and Home Ownership, were addressed by the president of the United States, Mr. Hoover assailed the present home building financing as inadequate and the weakest link in the nation's credit chain. He suggested that a plan should be developed for buying homes on the installment plan on the same basis as motor cars and radios — with down payments as low as 20 per cent. "This aspiration," he pointed out, "penetrates the heart of our national well being. A democracy of home owners is never in danger."

The real advantage in owning one's own home cannot be expressed in dollars and cents. The ownership of a home makes thrift more worthwhile. It stimulates the habit of saving, and a home owner is usually a better saver than a renter. The entire family becomes willing to cooperate in paying off a home mortgage so they can soon call it their own. A person's step is always more lively when he has a definite goal to reach. He would be far less likely to show the same interest in putting his money in a savings account.

Ownership of a home makes the members of a family closer to each other. Husbands and wives are less likely to quarrel seriously when they become irritated and dissatisfied. This home to them represents years of hard work and sacrifice on the part of both of them. A house is not always a home. The atmosphere is what makes it a home.

When one owns his own home it brings greater satisfaction and pride to him than owning any other form of property. And the fact that he has had to sacrifice dearly in order to get it, makes it all the more valuable to him. A bank book with a row of five figures cannot give the same thrill on a cold or rainy night that a comfortable and cozy home one can call his own.

Best wishes for the success of Mr. Hoover's plan. Even though it may entail mortgaging the future, a practice many economists have had occasion to deplore recently, the social benefits resulting would certainly compensate for the economic weakness of the scheme.

The New United West

AS THE LAST powerful stroke of a sledge drove home the symbolic golden spike on the newly completed tracks within a lonely California "cow town," a scene was enacted destined to open a new chapter in railway history of the far west.

Recently, at Bieber, the scene of the ceremony, rail officials from all parts of the United States mingled with silent, picture-quely clad Indians, celebrating the completion of a 203-mile extension linking the Great Northern and Western Pacific railroads. This new rail line between Keddue, Cal., and Klamath Falls, Ore., built in 15 months at a cost of $15,000,000, established a new through competitive Pacific coast rail route traversing California, Oregon, and Washington and linking together a huge railway network comprising 13,000 miles of right-of-way.

The data compiled beforehand on the outgrowth of the west is of nationwide interest. Most important perhaps of these is the fact that California and the interior of the Pacific northwest have at last been brought closer by many hours. This alone will be a boon to the shipping industries. New markets will open giving tremendous commercial advantages never before considered important.

The local territory opened comprising some 400,000 acres will be made available for extensive agricultural development, not to mention the millions of feet of virgin lumber yet untouched. Undoubtedly it has brought about the dawn of a new era in business and industry; a deciding asset to the future of the west.

The Walla Walla Daily Bulletin asserts that, "more than anything started in recent years this railroad symbolizes faith of the nation's honest financiers in the future of the United States and particularly the Pacific slope."

The Great Northern and Western Pacific combine swept aside the last obstacle before them by the winning of a permit in a battle before the interstate commerce commission in June 1930, giving them authority to construct the extension.

To President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern railway credit is due for having carried on the fight after it was being lost by James J. Hill to E. H. Harriman, master builder of the Union Pacific, Central Pacific, and Southern Pacific lines. The victory came after the extension had brought into camp practically all the Pacific coast opponents from Mexico to Canada, the principal of which was the Southern Pacific, because of its lines being entrenched in the territory involved.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

A reader of Today's Topics who agreed with what we had to say about the use of English a week or so ago submits an opinion on the merits and faults of Rafael Sabatini, university lecturer tomorrow, in his style. He writes:

"Many authors rated as among the best in literary circles could go to school to writers like Rafael Sabatini when it comes to getting their meaning across to the readers. His use of short, crisp sentences is in great contrast to their frequently involved, cumbersome, or complex sentences. Some of them are so good that they must be worshipped in awe rather than understood by a majority of readers."

"But he also admirably illustrates a fault in style. It seems unfortunate that an author whose style is otherwise so well suited to his task should invariably use many words better left in the dictionary."

"The conscientious reader finds his unabridged edition becoming heavy after a dozen or more trips to look up such words as leucorhea, mellebrity, myopic, harridan, capucinades, atrabilious, homunculus, Rhadamanthine, rhomb, raisonneur, intransigent, simulacrum, minatory, and dosster."

"The argument that such words build the reader's vocabulary strikes me as akin to contention that his handling of the dictionary—if any—develops his arm muscles."

One thing leads to another. After looking up all those words we found a lot of other interesting things in the new unabridged. A 20 page section in the front of the volume contains new words, classified, among other things, according to which country's language they have been appropriated.

The female of airman, airwoman, is now accepted, and it is perfectly correct to say flubdubbery, which is synonymous with balderdash. And if there's anything about the fourth dimension you're not sure of, just turn to page XCIV and there you have it. (Adv.)

The Striped Church of Romania: Hermansstadt in Transylvania was formerly part of the Kingdom of Hungary which was compelled to cede the town to Roumania after the conclusion of the World War. The Hungarian name of the town was Nagy Szeben, while the Roumanians renamed it Sibiu. Hermansstadt shelters many different faiths within its precincts. The striped Greek Cathedral was erected in 1908 has been so decorated because of the still-unsettled claim of two different religious denominations to worship within its portals. Behind the Scenes in Hollywood By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD - Out at Fox, they're going right on casting pictures despite a thriving crop of rumors. James Dunn, whose popularity is mounting, will play opposite Janet Clayton in "Face a Heart," the Buddy De Sylva musical romance. Production of this picture will start on Janet's return from Europe. David Butler will direct. According to letters received in Hollywood, Janet and her husband and mother will spend Christmas in Paris and New Year's in Rome. They will sail for home shortly after the first of the year.

Save Dolores Del Rio at Edmund Goulding's wedding reception. She hears Paramount may plan to have her do "The Broken Wing," but she isn't sold on the idea. What with "The Dove" and now "The Bird of Paradise," she thinks she has had her chosen for an important part. Director Marion this time will be Al Santell.

LOYD'S PLANS
With Playwright Vincent Lawrence called in to help dialogue Harold Lloyd's Hollywood story, it looks as if the comedian will not get under way until after the first of the year. Lawrence has suggested several changes in the script, one of which will call for a more sophisticated heroine. This means a new search for an actress to play the part. Incidentally, it is said to be a much stronger role than usually falls to Harold's leading woman. In the meanwhile, Harold moves his family back in their Beverly Hills home today. They have spent the summer and fall at the beach.

IN THE NEWS
Latest move of David Selznick at RKO is to hire Merian C. Cooper as an associate producer. Cooper formerly was teamed with Ernest B. Schoedsack in the filming of "Grass" and "Chang." He left Paramount to become a director of an airplane company. Now he is a director in 5 of them, and plans to retain these connections in his new job. It is Selznick's idea to place Cooper in charge of a series of adventure pictures. In case you've wondered, RKO proposed films about the prehistoric animals seems to be off schedule. Harry Hoyt, who was to furnish the animals, has quit the company.

Far-Reaching Intersectional Cards Mark 1932 Grid Schedules in Big Ten

Boilermakers, Wildcats Book Toughest Tilts

Iowa Arranges for Only Seven Baseball Games

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—Big Ten football teams will get scouting for plenty of opposition outside their own conference back yards next fall.

The 1932 line-up, ratified today by the Big Ten chiefs, listed 11 intersectional and non-conference games against powerhouse eleven from Stanford in the far west to Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania and New York university in the east.

Northwestern and Purdue appeared in for the real "suicide schedules" of the Big Ten group. The two teams which tied with Michigan for the 1931 championship, scheduled eight straight games without a rest offered on the card. The Wildcats had Missouri for an opener at Evanston with Stanford its second foe at Palo Alto, followed by hard conference duels and one with Notre Dame at South Bend. Purdue had intersectional games scheduled with the Kansas Aggies and New York university.

The high spots of the intersectional and non-conference card are:

Northwestern—Missouri, Stanford and Notre Dame.

Purdue—Kansas Aggies and New York university.

Chicago—Yale at New Haven in a return date.

Ohio State—Pennsylvania.

Michigan—Princeton at Ann Arbor in a return date.

Iowa—George Washington at Washington, D. C. in a return date.

Minnesota—Nebraska and Mississippi.

Iowa was the only member to trim its conference baseball schedule sharply, the Hawkeyes listing only seven games. Doubleheaders, in the interest of economy, were scheduled in unprecedented numbers. Minnesota, the most out of the way member, listed five bargain bills, while Iowa and Ohio State will play three each. Only Illinois failed to schedule at least one doubleheader.

After meeting with the athletic directors today, the faculty committee on athletics reported "only routine discussions."

Iowa's Big Ten Baseball Card

April 15-16—Northwestern at Iowa.
May 6—Michigan at Iowa.
May 13-14—Iowa at Wisconsin.
May 27-28—Minnesota at Iowa.

Tulane Mentor to Coach at Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 5 (AP)—Minnesota's future campaigns for Western conference football championships were placed under the guardianship of E. W. (Bernie) Bierman today.

Bierman, returning to the institution whose last Big Ten title team he captained in 1915, has been head coach of Tulane university's strong squads since 1927.

His appointment here, with faculty ranking of professor, is effective Jan. 1. He said at New Orleans today that he would remain in the south after that date if his team is invited to play in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's day.

As head coach here he succeeds H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, who has handled football and the athletic directorship as well. Crisler will continue as athletic director.

From 1913 to 1915 Bierman had a brilliant football career as Minnesota halfback, and participated in basketball, baseball and track also.

Wild Rally Wins for Huskers by 20 to 7

DENVER, Dec. 5 (AP)—Outplayed for three periods, the University of Nebraska's Cornhuskers put on a stirring final quarter finish today to beat the Colorado Aggies in a post-season football game for the unemployed. The score was 20 to 7.

A crowd of 15,000 witnessed the furious finish that swept a 7 to 0 Colorado lead out of the way in a parade of three Nebraska touchdowns.

Tulsa Downs Haskell

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 5 (AP)—Ishmael Pilkington, playing his last football game for Tulsa university, pounded across the Haskell institute goal line for the lone score of the 14th annual game between the two schools here today, and Tulsa won, 6 to 0.

Sportively Speaking

By Matt Melchiorre

The man who could have brought victory last night was watching the Iowa-Baylor cage game from a seat in the upper stands. It was not his fault that he was not in an Old Gold uniform with his teammates.

Ed Break was barred from Big Ten competition on a charge that has been brought against hoopers from other conference schools, but the men were given clean bills of health. It is hoped that the Big Ten moguls will stand by their former decision in Break's case and reinstate the Iowa cager.

The kind of game Rollie Williams follows needs a center to feed the ball under the opponent's basket. And Break was the center who could fill in here nicely. On the whole the Iowa team made a good showing last night.

The sophomores fitted in nicely with Jack Koflow and for a while we expected a victory. The veteran forward showed plenty of speed and a fairly accurate eye to lead the Iowa scorers.

After one or two more games are played the sophs should settle down and hang up some victories. The men were a little shaky in their how to varsity competition, but then this was expected, especially after the "spark plug," as Rollie Williams called Break, of the team was abruptly taken away.

Well at last the football situation is going to be clarified, and it will be an easy matter to pick the 1931 national football champion after Tulane plays Southern California in the Rose Bowl game.

Tulane readily accepted the invitation to play New Year's day, and unless a tie game is the outcome, the winner will wear the crown worn by Notre Dame the past two years.

The Triangle team brought their advantage up to 500 by downing the Phi Delt 25 to 15. Maire played a nice game to lead the winners.

The lineups: Triangle: Gordon and Masher, forwards; Maire, center; Ewald and Anderson, guards. Phi Delt: Lambert and Worthington, forwards; Graeber, center; Rohoff and Sellergren, guards.

The Beta Theta Pi-Alpha Chi Sigma game was one of those "let-me-shoot-it-kind" with all the boys taking a try at the basket from any angle. The Betas won 18 to 14. McCaffrie, Beta, and Gantz, Alpha Chi Sigma, each made 6 points.

The lineups: Beta: Day and Keck, forwards; Story, center; McCaffrie and Hantelmann, guards. Alpha Chi Sigma: Seegars and Gantz, forwards; Mathews, center; Jebers and Hazlet, guards.

The rangy S.A.E. quintet was too much for the Phi Gams in winning the encounter 29 to 14. Washburn, tall S.A.E. center, sank 7 field goals and a free toss.

The lineups: S.A.E.: Carson and Osborne, forwards; Washburn, center; Bennison and Shuff, guards. Phi Gam: Miller and Rinard, forwards; Hannes, center; Johnson and Crookham, guards.

A.T.O. and Delta Sigma Pi seemed to be playing for the title of "scoreless wonders," for neither team accounted for a goal in the first period and a half, and the game ended with the small score of 9 to 6 in favor of the A.T.O.'s.

The lineups: A.T.O.: Evans and Peterson, forwards; Barber, center; Rube and Martinson, guards. Delta Sigma Pi: Davis and Wells, forwards; Boldt, center; Willer and Davidson, guards.

The Delta Upsilon men seemed to have declared a moratorium on goal shooting. They failed to register a field goal during the entire game while their opponents, the Sig Eps, managed to ring up 20 points and walk away with the victory 20-1.

The lineups: Sigma Phi Epsilon: Batty and Green, forwards; Handorf, center; Hickman and Crabtree, guards. Delta Upsilon: Meyer and Hitz, forwards; Boot, center; Merkle and Oblinger, guards.

A Delt team has finally been beaten. The Phi Delt freshman turned back the Tau Delt, 21 to 8. The game was fast and rough with both teams trying hard. Gerber,

Tennessee in 13-0 Win Over N. Y. U.; Keeps Record Intact

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—Striking twice with dazzling swiftness in much the same spot, Tennessee's volunteers came up from Dixie today to sweep New York university's rugged football forces off their feet and romp away with a 13-0 triumph in the first big game of the post-season metropolitan charity program.

Tennessee's victory kept the team's unbeaten record intact for 1931 and marked the conclusion of the career of Gene McEver, famous fullback, with the distinction of never having tasted defeat in a varsity game. At the same time it was New York's third set-back at the hands of an intersectional rival.

Yale Wins in Four Team Tournament

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 5 (AP)—Yale won a judge's decision over Brown, something unique in the history of eastern football, to win the final game and chief honors today in the round robin football festival for the benefit of the unemployed.

Held scores by the Browns after defeating Holy Cross 6 to 0 in the first two qualifying matches to determine the tourney finalists, a committee of judges decided Yale had outplayed Brown just enough to win the second decision ever awarded in this manner after a football game in the east.

The first award of that kind came after the second qualifying match when Brown gained the final by catching the eyes of the arbitrating board after a scoreless contest with Dartmouth.

All three games were restricted to two periods of 12 minutes each.

The Yale running attack that functioned so well against Holy Cross failed until the last few minutes against Brown in the final game. Brown had several scoring opportunities. Its most serious threat was Bob Chase's attempt at a field goal from placement from Yale's 30 yard line in the first period of the final. The boot was short, however, and the Brown backs were able to gain successively only on passes around mid-field thereafter.

shifty guard, played well for the Phi Delt.

The lineups: Phi Delt: Corcoran and Johnson, forwards; Shamnell, center; Gerber and Nye, guards. Delta Tau: Parker and Thomas, forwards; Cook, center; Kelly and Work, guards.

Pi Kappa Alpha had little trouble in turning back the men of Phi Epsilon Pi, 18 to 7. Terpites, forward, and Reuber, center, for the victors displayed the same brand of ball that brought them their first victory.

The lineups: Pi Kappa Alpha: Terpites and Miller, forwards; Reuber, center; McCurdy and Olson, guards. Phi Epsilon Pi: Losensky and Alberts, forwards; Gordon, center; Reider and Hurwitz, guards.

S.A.E. frosh made it a perfect day for their house by defeating the Sigma Chi's, 11-8.

The lineups: S.A.E.: Carson and Williams, forwards; Mason, center; Moriarity and Simon, guards. Sigma Chi: Avenill and Winnery, forwards; Byornstad, center; Taylor and Walker, guards.

Cost Guard Eleven Wins

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—A fighting coast guard eleven ended a three-year quest for the President's Cup today by setting back the Quantic Marines 13 to 6. Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Secretary of Navy Adams were among the distinguished crowd at the game.

St. Mary's Meet Central of Ft. Madison; Irish Open

Ramblers Seek Third Win; Play Veteran Quintet

With two victories already to their credit, St. Mary's hoopers engage the veteran Central high of Ft. Madison quintet at the Iowa City high gym tomorrow night at 7:30.

Coming here with four senior veterans and a sophomore of such caliber that he has transplanted a senior as a regular, the Ft. Madison team is expected to be one of the stiffest the Ramblers will meet this season.

Chief of visitors is Brockman, all-tournament guard last year and one of the best players in this part of the state. In addition to him on the first team are Davidson and Bartlett, senior forwards; Hundt, rangy senior center; and Williams, the brilliant sophomore guard.

Coach Francis Suplee has a youthful, and on the average, small-sized group of men to pit against the Central outfit. The St. Mary's team employs a fast passing game and a man for man defense. The visitors are noted for their strong zone defense.

Coach Suplee expects to start Gaulocher, stellar senior, and ether R. Lumsden or Belger at forwards; Maher at center; and Bradley and either Pooler or Vogt at the guard posts.

Pass in Last Period Brings 6-0 Navy Win

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5 (AP)—Navy's surprising Midshipmen, after enduring rough treatment the greater part of the season, rose up in newfound power before 65,000 spectators today to administer a 6 to 0 beating to a vastly favored University of Pennsylvania eleven.

The Middlers, who have a very important engagement with Army next Saturday at New York, fought back the "akers" best efforts for three quarters, and then, with only six minutes remaining to play, striking once and decisively through the air to score their first victory of the year over a major opponent.

It was none other than "Bullet Lou" Kirm, himself, fiery halfback, who fired the shot that sank the Red and Blue Penn machine.

Kirm, faking an end run, turned instead and faked far back. When he did fake about, it was to cut loose with the longest pass he had in his system. Tschirgi, fleet Middle half back, and two Penn defenders took out after it. At the last possible instant Tschirgi leaped and snared the ball on his finger tips. The two Penn men obligingly bumped into one another at the right moment, and the Navy back easily sprinted the last 30 yards for a touchdown. Elliott missed the try for point.

Tulane Green Wave Downs Cougars 28-14

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5 (AP)—Dr. Wilbur C. Smith, athletic director of Tulane university, said tonight he had accepted an invitation for Tulane to play Southern California in the Rose Bowl tournament New Year's day.

Tulane's Green Wave jerked its football banner to the top of the mast and stepped on national championship soil today by defeating the Washington State Cougars, 28 to 14.

But the crowd of 25,000 Tulane rooters got the fright of their lives when the visitors drove over a touchdown three minutes after the start of the game and showed a form of winning caliber.

The score was squared soon, however, after Captain Jerry Dalrymple, had left the side lines bench and took his post at right end. He rallied his team and five minutes later Tulane went over the goal line, making the score 7-7.

In the second quarter, the Green Wave hit its stride and rane up two more touchdowns, but in the third quarter Washington State scored again, making he score 21 to 14.

In the last period Captain Dalrymple made his team safe by catching Zimmerman's pass from the 25 yard line as he stood behind Washington State's goal line, giving his team a lead of two touchdowns which it held to the end.

Gaels Topple Mustangs by 7 to 2 Score

Internal Strife—Quad Cagers to Clash in Round Robin Frays

ST. FRANCISCO, Dec. 5 (AP)—St. Mary's Gaels scored a brilliant 7-2 victory over Southern Methodist today to hand the Southwest conference champions their first defeat of the season.

Just after they turned in the final quarter, Eldon Mason, brilliant Mustang halfback and the spark plug of his team fumbled on his own 33 yard line. Morgensen, St. Mary's left tackle, recovered. An end around play, with Valvadi carrying, netted 14 yards.

Bud Toscani, St. Mary's ball carrying ace, smacked into the line for a yard. Beasley, halfback, whipped an eight yard toss to Toscani and the latter raced 10 yards to score. Herb Fletcher, quarterback, added the extra points with a place kick.

The Texans scored two points on a safety in the third period.

Kansas Aggies Win 20-6

Wichita, Kan., Dec. 5 (AP)—Re-purged in the first period, the Kansas Aggies settled down to straight hard driving tactics to score a 20 to 6 charity football victory over Wichita university here today.

Stocks Rally as Week End Trade Closes

Repurchases by Shorts Constitute Portion of Day's Buying

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Financial markets assumed a much more cheerful appearance in the week end trading today.

Evaporation of rumors predicting dire developments in Germany was quickly reflected in firmer security prices. German bonds rallied strongly and many railroad issues made substantial recovery. An advance in stocks was checked around the end of the first hour, only to be resumed in the second, with the result that net gains of 1 to 3 points were numerous. Repurchases by shorts probably constituted a fairly large proportion of the buying.

Hoover to Wait
Washington intimation that President Hoover would not make specific recommendations for helping the railroads until steps already under way had moved to a conclusion, presumably the wage negotiations and the freight rate case, found Wall street willing to await the course of events. Railroad stocks were among the strongest of the session.

The market gave only passing attention to estimates that steel operations in the Youngstown district would be off 4 points starting next week, bringing the average down to 28 per cent.

Expect Early Announcement
An early announcement is expected on the government's plans for the Dec. 15 financing. Maturities on that date approximate a billion dollars, but it is expected the treasury will borrow more than that amount needed for those retirements inasmuch as receipts from taxes have dwindled.

The turnover in stocks, totaling $73,400 shares, indicated short covering had been in moderate volume. Santa Fe ran up 4 1-2 points. Finishing at the top. New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Baltimore & Ohio gained 1 1-2 to 3. American Telephone, Western Union, Air Reduction, American Can, Case, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Electric Auto-Lite, Loew's, Consolidated Gas and the Public Service of New Jersey were up 2 to more than 3 and gains in the neighborhood of a point were frequent.

Rail Injunction Halts Building of River Dam

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 5 (AP)—Federal Judge F. A. Gieger, Milwaukee, late today made permanent a temporary injunction obtained by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad to restrain the government from building a dam across the Mississippi river at Alma, Wis., as a part of the nine-foot channel project. Assistant U. S. Attorney Harold Hanson said the decision would be appealed.

The temporary injunction will be in force, the court said, until the conclusion of the hearing. Introduction of testimony was expected to start this afternoon.

Harold E. Hanson, assistant United States district attorney, submitted evidence this morning intending to show that congress, in making appropriations for the dam, left to engineers the question of its height, so long as it was compatible with the plan to produce a nine-foot channel at low water. He said the minimum height was set at 665 feet and the maximum at 673.

Attorneys for the railroad said that if the dam planned by engineers at 670 feet were completed, part of the road's tracks would be covered by the water pool above the dam.

Hanson admitted that at some points the railroad tracks "would possibly be on the water level" but said provision had been made to reimburse owners for property damage.

Mayor Walker Finds California Sun Cure for Cold Successful

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 5 (AP)—Tanned by two days sitting in the sun and apparently the winner in a battle with a severe cold, Mayor James J. Walker of New York, today was almost back to par in health.

He has not made final plans for the long journey to New York but it was believed he would start home soon.

The New York mayor contracted a heavy cold on his way to California and during his stay in San Francisco to plead for a pardon for Tom Mooney, and was unable to shake it off.

He had no comment to make on the Mooney case.

States to Ask Federal Help in Insect War

Entomologists Plan for Summer Influx of Grasshoppers

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 5 (AP)—Federal aid will be asked next year to fight grasshoppers that entomologists today predicted might visit parts of eight states in numbers even larger than those of last summer.

Side by side with the memories the entomologists meeting here today have of the onslaught six months ago when the locusts striped bare large areas in the middlewest were plans—colored by none too hopeful a forecast for the future—for combating the return of the plague.

Hoppers Will Return
For the grasshoppers will return. The entomologists discussed surveys they have made of the presence of grasshopper eggs, and concluded from them that in west central Iowa, south central South Dakota, northeastern North Dakota, southwestern Colorado, northeastern Nebraska, northwestern Minnesota, and sections of Montana and Wyoming, the hoppers will return in 1932 to darken skies in their flight, eat corn stalks almost to the ground, and flatten fields of smaller grain.

How to meet this impending scourge was the main topic at the session, attended by governmental representatives and entomologists from Nebraska, South Dakota, and Nebraska.

Effective Methods
The means used late last summer against the invading hordes—that of spreading poison bran mash along fields, waste lands, and infested areas—was the most effective. They discouraged the use of a fungus disease for fighting the hoppers.

Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado, Nebraska, and Minnesota will ask federal aid. Entomologists from those states had advised the men present today they approved the move.

Canada, Corn Belt Lead in Stock Show

Canadian Again Wheat King; Attendance Totals 400,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—The corn belt and Canada topped the rest of America in all high events at the International Livestock show.

The exposition, agriculture's hall of fame, ended today. Approximately $150,000 was distributed to exhibitors during the week. In addition, blue ribbons enhanced by thousands of dollars more the breeding value of the livestock.

Hawkeye State Leads
Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, led the pack in competition for livestock honors, with the Hawkeye state leading in all numbers of grand champions.

New York, however grabbed off the supreme honor of the exposition—the grand champion steer—first time for an eastern state. The international has ever been a fat stock show—and here the fat of the land reigned supreme. The grand championship in swine and burrows went to Indiana. To Indiana also went the corn king.

Canada Wheat King
To Canada, once more, the wheat king's title went. It was the third time for Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta. His actual winnings, in other prizes too, totalled only $150—but the worth of them he estimated at many thousands.

Improves Each Year
Barney Held, manager of the exposition, said each year, livestock of better breeding quality came to the show.

Iowa Scores With Cattle
In first-ribbon livestock awards, Illinois led with 163; Indiana had 94; Iowa 103; Canada 63. Iowa's tremendous scoring was in the cattle classes—J. D. Moeller of Schleswig, among others, exhibiting the grand champion carlot—Herefords.

Twenty eight states had blue ribbon entrants—the most widespread distribution in the international's history.

Contest at Graceland College Reveals Gandhi as Gangster

LAMONI, Dec. 6 (AP)—Three students in Graceland college do not know who Al Capone is. A number of others, however, believe that Mahatma Gandhi is a gangster.

In a contest conducted with a view to familiarizing students with the names of prominent men and women of the day, it was found that that of Chicago's "number one" is the best known.

Al Smith ranks next to Graceland students' memories, followed by Bobby Jones, Einstein, Helen Wills Moody, Lionel Barrymore, Jimmy Walker, Knute Rockne, and Gandhi.

There were 50 names on the list. No one knew them all. The highest score—the number properly identified—was 47; the lowest, 3. The average was 28.13.

Typical of the kind of sport that is being emphasized in physical and social recreation everywhere, deck tennis is popular because many people play it. On steamers it is a favorite amusement, and hence it has spread over the world, according to physical education authorities.

It is useful, because it may be played by two or four persons. It requires grace, dexterity, and light exercise, a court takes but a small amount of space, and equipment is inexpensive.

FISH PREFERRED

By P. G. Wodehouse

Synopsis of Prolonged Installments: Ronald Fish, nephew of Lord Emsworth of Blandings Castle, is in love with Sue Brown, a chorus girl. His cousin Millicent is secretly engaged to his lordship's secretary, Hugo Carmody.

"Yes, Lord Emsworth." "You've found the Empress?" "Yes, Lord Emsworth." "In that feller Baxter's caravan?" "Well, I'll be hanged!" "Yes, Lord Emsworth."

The first effect of a young man of sensibility and gentle upbringing of the discovery that an unfriendly detective has seen him placing stolen pigs in caravans is to induce a stunned condition of mind, a sort of mental coma. The face lengthens. The limbs grow rigid.

It is perhaps as well, therefore, not to waste valuable time watching Hugo Carmody in the process of digesting Percy Pilbeam's sensational announcement. For it would be like looking at a statue. If the reader will endeavor to picture Rodin's Thinker in a dinner jacket and in trousers with braid down the sides, he will get the general idea. Life has only just begun to return to the stiffened frame.

And with life comes the dawning of intelligence. This ghastly snail which had popped up in his path was too big, reflected Hugo, for any man to tackle. It called for a woman's keener wit. His first act on emerging from the depths, therefore, was to leave the drawing room and totter down the stairs to the phone. He got the number of Matchingham Hall and, establishing communication with Sir Gregory Parsloe-Parsloe's butler, urged him to summon Miss Threepwood from the dining table.

The butler said in rather a reproving way that Miss Threepwood was at the moment busy drinking soup. Hugo, with the first flash of spirit he had shown for a quarter of an hour, replied that he didn't care if she was bathing in it. "Fetch her," said Hugo, "and bring her to the receiver, and in a short while a sweet voice floated to him across the wire.

"Hugo?" "Millicent?" "Is that you?" "Yes, is that you?" "Anything in the nature of misunderstanding was cleared away. It was both of them. "What's up?" "Everything's up."

"How do you mean?" "I'll tell you," said Hugo, and did so. A few whispered words sufficed. "Oh, golly!" said Millicent. Silence followed. Hugo waited patiently. The outlook seemed to him black. He wondered if he had placed too much reliance in woman's wit. "That 'Golly' had not been hopeful.

"Hugo!" "Hullo?" "This is a bit thick." "Yes," agreed Hugo. "Well, there's only one thing to do."

A faint thrill passed through Hugo Carmody. Woman's wit was going to bring home his bacon after all. "Listen! The only thing to do is for me to go back to the dining room and tell Uncle Clarence you've found the Empress."

There was dead silence at the other end of the wire. It seemed as if this revelation of a good man's love had struck Lord Emsworth dumb. It was only some moments later, after he had said "Hullo!" six times and "I say, are you there?" twice that he was borne in upon Hugo that he had wasted two hours and forty minutes of the finest eloquence on empty space.

His natural chagrin was sensibly diminished by the sudden sound of Millicent's voice. "Hullo!" "Hullo!" "I say, Hugo, things are hotting up here properly! I sprung it on Uncle Clarence just now that I want to marry you!"

"So did I. Only he wasn't there." "I said, 'Uncle Clarence, aren't you grateful to Mr. Carmody for finding the Empress?' and he said, 'Yes, yes, yes, to be sure. And then Aunt Constance had a fit, and Uncle Gally said she was a kill-joy and ought to be ashamed of herself for throwing the gaff into love's young dream, and Uncle Clarence kept on saying 'Certainly, certainly! I don't know what old Parsloe thinks of it all. He's sitting in his chair looking at the ceiling. I'm going back to see how it's all coming out. Hold the line.'"

A man from whom happiness and misery are swaying in the scales three miles away, and whose only means of learning the result of the contest is a telephone wire, is not likely to ring off impatiently. Hugo sat tense and breathless. It was only when a cheery voice spoke at his elbow that he realized that his solitude had been invaded, and by Percy Pilbeam at that.

Percy Pilbeam was looking rosy and replete. He swayed slightly. "Hullo, Carmody," said Percy Pilbeam. "What ho, Carmody. So here you are, Carmody."

It came to Hugo that he had something to say to this man. "Here, you!" he cried. "Yes, Carmody?" "Do you want to be battered to a pulp?" "No, Carmody."

"You didn't see me put that pig in the caravan. Understand?" "But I did, Carmody." "You didn't—not if you want to go on living."

Percy Pilbeam appeared to be in a mood not only of keen intelligence but of the utmost amiability. "Say no more, Carmody," he said agreeably. "I take your point. You want me not to tell anybody I saw you put that caravan in the pig. Quite, Carmody, quite."

"Well, bear it in mind." "I will, Carmody. Oh, yes, Carmody, I will. I'm going for a stroll outside, Carmody." He tucked unsteadily to the door, aimed himself at it and passed through. And a moment later Millicent's voice spoke: "Oh, Hugo, darling, we've won. Uncle Clarence has said 'Certainly' 65 times, and he's just told Aunt Constance that if she thinks she can bully him she's very much mistaken. It's a walk-over. They're all coming back right away in the car. Uncle Clarence is an angel."

BOOSTING MOONEY PARDON PLEA Evidence of the tremendous interest aroused by the Mooney pardon hearing is contained in the above picture. Another parade that lined up outside the court where Mayor Walker made his plea was distinctly hostile to any attempt to free the alleged bomber.

beam. "What ho, Carmody. So here you are, Carmody." "I am," said Hugo. "Well, anyway, you precious old thing. I'm going to give them the slip and walk home along the road. Get out Ronnie's two-seater and come and pick me up, and we'll go for a drive together, miles and miles through the country. It's the most perfect evening."

"You bet it is!" said Hugo fervently. "What I call something like an evening. Give me two minutes to get the car out and five to make the trip and I'll be with you." "At-a-boy!" said Millicent. "At-a-hah!" said Hugo. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Hoover Wins in Test Case

Court Decides Senate Must Uphold Smith Appointment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—A court decided today the senate had no right to change its mind after confirming the nomination of George Otis Smith, of Maine, as chairman of the power commission.

In upholding Smith's right to the office, Justice Gordon in the District of Columbia supreme court gave President Hoover the victory in the first judicial test of the case.

The circumstances were as follows: Smith was appointed to the office by President Hoover.

mission reorganized the personnel of the old commission and dismissed several employees.

Walsh Asks for Reconsideration Senator Walsh asked for a reconsideration of the nominations on the grounds that the senate had such a right under a rule allowing reconsideration on the next legal day of the senate meeting.

The next legal day was the first day after the holidays and upon Walsh's motion the senate asked President Hoover to send back the nominations.

er had issued Smith's commission. He refused to return it or those of the other members under fire.

The senate reconsidered the nominations anyway and reconfirmed all but Smith's.

City Officials Urge Caution in Decorating

C. A. Kutcher, city electrical inspector, and Fire Chief Herman Amish, in an announcement made yesterday, urged merchants planning to use electric lights or appliances for decorative purposes in Christmas displays to communicate with them before using such devices. Advice will be furnished and a certificate of approval will be issued for installation which are found to comply with regulations. Installation of temporary lighting systems by unskilled workmen and without supervision by the electrical inspector is an unsafe practice, the two men pointed out.

"Merchants should keep in mind that the prime consideration during the Christmas shopping season, when stores are crowded, is safety," state Chief Amish in conversing with Mr. Kutcher.

A Singing Professor

By Una Wallace

IN THE last quarter of the nineteenth century, a small boy grew up watching horse traders, well diggers, cowboys, farmers, fiddlers, women with rough hands and kind eyes, all the characters of a pioneer country, later laughed at by some, wept over by others. Little did they realize that this boy who took an interest in every detail of ordinary life would one day write of their struggles in epic deserving of their strength and sincerity.

This boy was Edwin Ford Piper. He absorbed the spirit of the range country along with its natural beauties, and those qualities of pioneer peoples, not beautiful, but fundamental to strength of character. He came at a moving time when such scenes as he has portrayed could have been lost as effectively as if they had never existed, had there not been an artist there to add its color to the canvas of American literature.

"As I see it, in poetry, an author's subject must possess him intellectually and emotionally; he must know facts and background forgotten by everyone else, organic relations with the regional history—land—a thousand details—and then leave out all but the quintessence; he must be soaked through with the spirit originating in his subject; and his creative powers must body forth the creature and bring it to life." This thought of Mr. Piper's explains thoroughly his attitude during those days history was being made and most folks were too busy in the making to stop and look at the beauty of the picture.

EDWIN FORD PIPER, born in 1871 in Nebraska a few miles west of the Missouri river, grew with the country. His family moved west from the blue stem to the buffalo grass country, to the plateau of western Nebraska when the grazing land narrowed as the farmers came in. Of this Mr. Piper tells us in "Barbed Wire" the real drama of a country transformed overnight from the free range land of the cowboys to that of the farmer who settled to stay.

"The prairie cleft by skirmish lines of fence—
High-headed longhorns bound for pastures new—
Torn denim fluttering and profane dispraise—
The sod house and the ranks of silk-
ing corn,
But, oh, the crippled horses at the plough!"

"Come on, old Slowfoot, sift along,
We got to make Mud River tonight.
Your ribs is lank and your hair is long,
But a month on the range'll put you right.

"Good-bye, good-bye to the Frenchman Fork,
To the sandbar mush they call the Platte;
We'll make our home in the sagebrush hills
Till the devil puts a fence on that'."

A Canadian Evening

*Between two mountain tops at sunset time
There hangs a golden bowl of gleaming light;
Pale, amber-tinted clouds drift overhead
Mingling with others of the purest white.*

*The Plough, which oft is seen on English nights,
Shines just as brightly as in Adam's day—
After the sun has gone to his own place
These stars come out to join in friendly play.*

*The crescent moon is white against the arch
Of the expanse of space we call the sky;—
Moving so slowly through the star-way
To the appointed spot where moons all die.*

*Out of the quietude of nights like these
There comes to troubled souls a word of peace,
Saying: "These stars, eternal as the hills,
Will run their course, though we ourselves may cease.*

—ALFRED GOODMAN

AS A boy, he loved the outdoors; he learned something from every traveller who came that way; he wandered in the scrub oak bluffs, hazel thickets, and hickory groves; he rode with the cowboys, listening to their songs. Songs he had always been interested in, those of the hired man, of tramps camped along the stage-road, of fiddlers at county fairs. All these he has added to a collection which numbers many hundreds of songs and bits of folklore, and sixty or more rhymed calls for quadrilles. People no longer play as they did then, all care thrown to the wind when,

"Zing—goes the fiddle string,
Zoom goes the viol;
Boys they laugh
And the girls they smile.
The caller calls with a right good will
To form the couples for the next quadrille:
"Lead your lady out on the floor
I called you once, and I call no more;
Draw your furrow and draw it deep,
God help a feller if I catch him asleep."

He read in his home library from Mark Twain, Scott, Dickens, Eliot, Hugo and Don Quixote in translation, besides history and travel. Life was not dull nor monotonous.

Early formal schooling came at irregular intervals, but high school was finished in two years, and after teaching in country school, he entered the University of Nebraska in 1893. There his driving desire to know found a great treasure house in the library.

HE FOUND time to write stories and verse although he earned his living and was at the same time a good student. In 1897, the college year book, the Sombbrero, offered a prize for the best poem; Landbound, on the solitude of the plains country, received the prize, being the first published poem by Piper. He has never deserted this theme which is a part of his life. He says: "My aim in writing has remained as constant as my subject. I have tried to tell the significant truth about settlement days in Nebraska."

His companionships with Hartley Alexander, teacher and poet of achievement, and Keene Abbott, a fellow student, were important in his life. After teaching a while at his alma mater, he came to Iowa university some twenty years ago. Mr. Piper has published three books of poems, "Barbed Wire," 1917, "Barbed Wire and Wayfarers," 1924, and "Paintrock Road," 1927. He married Janet Pressle, also a Nebraska poet, the same year "Paintrock Road" went into print. They have one son, Edwin Ford II.

As a professor, he teaches courses in Chaucer and contemporary poetry, and is now working with seven students who are writing poems and fiction for theses in creative writing. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Poetry society of America, the American Folk Lore society, and vice president of the Midland authors. To see him is to get a glimpse of the old pioneer spirit, as real and unaffected as his poems. His manner and bearing are those of the strength and sincerity of the plains country. His relationships with students are those of a companion who suggests rather than advises.

The spiritual purpose of the machine, if such a phrase can be used, is to liberate human beings so they may devote their efforts to something above the physical. If it fails to accomplish this purpose, if it deprives men and women of honest labor only to let them deteriorate from idleness, the Machine Age may well mark the close of our present civilization.

—Ralph Aiken.

A state composed exclusively of such workers and peasants as make up the bulk of modern nations would be an utterly barbarous state. Every liberal tradition would perish in it, and the rational and historic essence of patriotism itself would be lost.

—George Santayana.

I believe that the time given to refutation in philosophy is usually time lost. Of the many attacks directed by the many thinkers against each other, what now remains? Nothing, or assuredly very little.

—Henri Bergson.

Campus Jogs

"CONTRASTS in Collegiana," used over two features in the magazine section last Sunday has been suggested as a permanent title for this column. Contrasts are what make college life so interesting—one complaint that critics may never make of American colleges is that they are becoming standardized. To illustrate, one college in the northwest is giving a course on "How to be a perfect wife," while at Cedar Crest, a woman's school in Pennsylvania, the authorities, in order to send the Lehigh university men home, turned out the lights. This journalist's father had a policy in direct contrast—he turned them on—and then turned the men out.

A PROFESSOR at the New River State college finally solved the mystery of why so many people go to football games. "One half go to see the game, while the other half go to see the band. The boys go to see the girls, and the girls go to see what the other girls are wearing," he explained.

AND next they will be telling us that college students don't study all the time. Anyway, the president of the University of Michigan recently made the startling statement that college life is too much of a grind for three out of four students.

ALTHOUGH "On, Wisconsin," the famous football song of the University of Wisconsin, has paid to its Milwaukee publishers more than $50,000, its composer, William T. Purdy, whose children are attending Wisconsin this year, and its author, Carl Beck, '10, never received more than $15 in royalties on the song. Purdy wrote the song for the University of Minnesota, but Beck persuaded him to convert it to a Cardinal pep tune.

THERE was a difference of more than 40 years in the ages of the youngest and oldest students to enter Ohio State university this fall, exclusive of the graduate school. The five youngest students were each 15 years old, while the oldest was a man, 58, who was admitted to the college of education.

AN AUDIENCE which hisses or laughs derisively is far better than the audience which is absolutely unexpressive, Dr. Trumbauer, director of the college theater at the University of Alabama, said recently. He suggested that students there might as well "throw off their irksome cloak of pretended super-sophistication and condescending but restrained ennui, and really let loose."

MEN at Park college, at Parksville, Mo., prefer girls who have been to college—and thereby destroy an old campus superstition at Park which persisted in linking up older men with freshman girls by inviting mostly sophomore, junior and senior girls to a recent dormitory dance.

A PRIZE was awarded to the happiest couple on the floor at the annual sophomore dance in honor of the freshmen at the University of Montana. But the young lady who shared in the prize wouldn't win the approval of Ronald A. Laird, professor of psychology at Colgate college, who advised men never to marry the girl who is the life of the party if he wants a wife of a "lively personality."

EDDIE CANTOR, George Gershwin, Guy Lombardo—looks like a super-stellar vaudeville act, doesn't it? But these were just a few of the famous names on the guest list of the commerce sophomore smoker given recently at New York university.

About Books

SCARAMOUCHE THE KING MAKER by RAFAEL SABATINI; Houghton Mifflin, $2.50. Reviewed by ROLAND A. WHITE.

Never in 22 historical novels has Rafael Sabatini produced any particularly bad reading or noticeably good literature. Except for The Carolinian, this is his only novel in the decade since The Sea Hawk, Scaramouche, and Captain Blood worth passing notice by anybody whose reading must be selective.

Like Captain Blood Returns, also published on the eve of a visit to an important American public, Scaramouche the King Maker seems an attempt to regain lost fire and dash by a return to their sources of kindling. As such it is reasonably successful. Although no swords flash from their scabbards and the unbelievable eleventh hour rescues seem likewise unexciting, this sequel will appeal to Sabatini fans who thrilled over Scaramouche.

From French revolutionist Scaramouche has turned king maker, pitting his audacious wit and calm nerve against a despotic mobocracy in sly intrigues. On the brink of success, he burns priceless documents, making restoration of a Bourbon king impossible.

To turn the course of history for love of a historical novel's heroine is far fetched. But no matter. Events that never happened outside a novelist's imagination can carry readers along with their action when narrated by a Sabatini with little hesitation and some breathlessness.

There is, too, that polished, witty dialog suggesting sophisticated "gag" lines in the stage dramas its author has also written.

Even the history is as near the real article as this peddler of its trinket wares has achieved, enough so to handicap the narrative with a more than usually heavy burden of history for a Sabatini story.

Casual readers will not know that even Scaramouche, the author's nearest approach to a flesh and blood hero, is little more than a bundle of qualities, and that the historical characters are but historical descriptions made animate like the other puppets of the story's plot.

A change of costume, a few physical alterations—and, presto! Scaramouche would be transformed into Captain Blood or the Sea Hawk. Whether in Renaissance Italy, seventeenth century England, or France other Sabatini heroes are virtually pale copies from the same original. And their loves are virginal, milk white Alines that appeal to readers chiefly because it is made plain their role is that of heroine.

But not even discerning readers read Sabatini for characters. Everybody reads him for his story telling. This book is disappointing because, although it escapes melodrama for the most part, it also is largely free from the dramatic touches that its playwright-novelist author gave his best books.

The jacket blurb writer wrote that "Before your eyes Marie Antoinette is guillotined" of three serenely written paragraphs that aren't to get beneath surface details to deep passion worthy even of their author, who usually fails and profound emotion.

Sabatini's adjectives classify more than they describe. They seem more fitted for club parlor conversations than for literature striving to convey experiences to readers. They paint no picture for the eye to see, but present an analysis for the mind to grasp. There is not in this book any approach even to the galley slave, plank walking, and rapier duel incidents of his most vivid books.

But several million readers can't be altogether wrong. The main point in Sabatini's favor is that he does well the job he undertakes—and they also serve who merely entertain.

So They Say

WHAT is the power of this invisible bond that ties together the great army of alumni of the Old Gold? An alumnus may be in Shanghai, he may be in Winterset, he may be in Paris—sooner or later he will meet another alumnus—and a friendship is established with no more basis than love for the same university. Last week the editors of this magazine section wrote the Omaha, Neb., World Herald for information about a picture. The reply came within a day—from E. W. Edwanson, the World Herald's librarian. And at the end of his letter were the magic words "L. A. '16."

IN THE news room of the Ft. Dodge Messenger & Chronicle, where there are working graduates and former students of four colleges and universities, Iowa alone has two representatives: Mary Daniel, A '29, who is a proof-reader, and Catherine Vincent, a former student of the school of journalism, who is society editor. Beatrice Strom, a graduate of the school of journalism, is teaching journalism in Ft. Dodge high school, and is faculty adviser of the Little Dodger, high school paper.

ON THE 32nd wedding anniversary of her parents, Mildred Gorden of Centerville, A '31, was married to Raymond N. Weldy, who received his M.A. degree from the university. The wedding took place in Ottumwa on Nov. 8. The couple will make their home in Eldon, Mo. Mr. Weldy was a member of Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity, when in the university.

WILLIAM L. MOOTY, L '30, has opened a law office in Grundy Center. While in the university, he was a member of Phi Alpha Delta, legal fraternity, and Scabbard and Blade. Since graduation he has held a commission as lieutenant in the field artillery reserves.

ANOTHER recent graduate of the college of law who has opened his own office is Harry Druker, L '31, who is practicing in Marshalltown. Herbert Greenhaus, also of the class of '31, is practicing law in Waterloo.

LEONTINE NEIGER of Rock Island, was married on Nov. 28 to F. Roe Wiese of Davenport, a graduate of the university. Mr. Wiese completed the law course at George Washington university and is now connected with the Ottesen, Doerr and Wiese law firm in Davenport.

RUTH ANN HUNTING of Cedar Rapids, was married on Nov. 7 to Harry G. Williams of Davenport, a graduate of the University of Iowa. They will make their home in Davenport, where Mr. Williams is associated with Priestler, Quail & Cundy, Inc.

RUTH MARIE PATTISON of Schaller and Denniston D. Neal of Des Moines, were married in Schaller on Oct. 24. Mr. Neal, an alumnus of the university, is an artist in the advertising department of the Des Moines Register and Tribune. They will make their home in Des Moines.

LOIS TOMLINSON of Davenport, was married in November to Joseph B. Dickey of Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Dickey took his undergraduate work at the University of Florida, and received his Ph.D. at the University of Iowa. He is now associated with the synthetic organic division of the Eastman Kodak Research laboratory, and they will make their home in Rochester, N. Y.
