Face to Face With Gandhi

Reporter Tells About Following Mahatma for One Year

(Editor's note: This is the second of a series of articles on "the man Gandhi" written by James A. Mills, staff correspondent of The Associated Press, who has spent a year with Gandhi in India and accompanied him to and from the Indian round table conference in London. Mr. Mills was the first correspondent to interview Gandhi upon his release from prison last year.)

BOMBAY, India—Mahatma Gandhi, rebel extraordinary and mystic unique, has returned to the prison in Poona where he was held last year before he set me travelling over half the globe so that I might know what he was doing.

Released at night, he was re-arrested at night, and my last contact with him was a hearty slap on the back as the officers took him away.

Just Past 62

He is just past 62 now, and most of his life has been spent in turmoil. But somehow he has seemingly remained calm within himself.

Madeline Slade, his English disciple and attendant, and the others around the Mahatma, call him "Bapu" which means father. Gandhi, himself, christened Miss Slade "Mira Behn" or "Mira Bai" which means "Sister Mira," after a Hindu penitress of that name who gave her life to the poor.

Renouncing allegiance to her king, her British nationality and her religion, Miss Slade became a convert to Hinduism. She looks after Gandhi with the solitude and care of a mother nursing a frail infant. Os-tracized by the British community and disowned by her family, she appears indifferent to what others think about her. She considers herself Mahatma Gandhi's "daughter."

Weighs 93 Pounds

Gandhi weighs only 93 pounds, he reminds one of the ancient prints and casts of Buddha, when that great teacher was starving himself. Gandhi's body is painfully small and thin. But the leader of India's "Untouchables" possesses the energy, endurance and alertness of a superman.

At the Indian nationalist congress in Karachi, I saw him work 23 hours a day for a whole week. He attributed his stamina to his frugal diet, which consists of goat's milk, fruit and vegetables. The strongest drink he ever takes is lemon juice and bicarbonate of soda, with a little salt thrown in.

No Personal Organization

Although Gandhi is head of the only organized political party in India (the Indian nationalists or "congress" party), he has virtually no personal organization.

He transacts all official and private business on the floor while he is squatting down. He has two male secretaries, but these are more personal aides to him than executive assistants.

Gandhi writes all his letters laboriously in long hand. Although he directs the destinies of a political organization which, according to his own claim, represents 90 per cent of India's 360,000,000 souls, the Mahatma has not even a typewriter. Nor has he anything resembling a filing system, a library or even an office.

No Carbon Copies

Letters, incoming and outgoing, are usually torn up after Gandhi has read them. No carbon copies of papers are kept. All his secretaries have the greatest difficulty in tracing a previous letter, document, speech or other paper.

Similarly, Gandhi has no regular system of receiving visitors, however important they may be. Anybody, whether he has a real mission or not, can stay in on the Mahatma and consume his time. Gandhi is too good-natured and those around him which is disconcerting to the foreigner.

This is irritating to those who have a real object in seeing the nationalist leader. Often they cannot get to see him because he is surrounded by admirers, sycophants, and flatterers. Newspaper correspondents have complained bitterly on this score.

Hittor-Miss Fashion

Foreign visitors, who have observed this organization and lack of method and efficiency, have wondered how Gandhi expects to run his country if ever India gets home rule. There is a casual, haphazard, hit-or-miss way about him and those around him which is disconcerting to the foreigner.

He loves simple, primitive, patriarchal methods in everything. He accepts as servants and attendants all those who come forward as "volunteers" and work for nothing. These offer themselves, not because of training, for usually they have none, but because of their devotion to the Mahatma and their desire to move within the sacrosanct atmosphere of his presence.

Dwarfed Body

Gandhi's amazing physical appearance and dress alone would mark him in any age as an extraordinary

Old Capitol Stands Unharmed Despite Frantic Fire Call

A telephoned alarm to the Iowa City fire department, followed by an inspection which led from the attic of Old Capitol to the heat tunnels under the building brought as their only result last night a decision that the building was not in danger of being consumed by flames.

The alarm was turned in when passers-by noticed a large volume of "smoke" pouring from the chimney on the northwest corner of the building. Inspection of the building and tunnels showed no apparent opening into the chimney, and left the investigators at a loss to account for the appearance of the "smoke." It was assumed to be caused by the vaporization of warm air which was rising into the chimney. Extra watch was placed on the building during the night.

Utah Mentor Visits Board Here Today

Ike Armstrong Comes With High Record as Coach

Public interest will focus this morning on a new candidate for head football coach at the university when Ike Armstrong, University of Utah grid mentor, will make an appearance here.

Local opinion made a strong rush in favor of the western coach's candidacy last night in view of persistent rumors that Jim Crowley, Michigan State mentor, has lost a good deal of the interest that led him to interview Iowa officials about the job last week.

Salary Question

Although E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, said last night that he believed there had been no change in relations between Crowley and the Iowa athletic board, other officials hinted that the Michigan State tutor had determined to seek a better salary offer than Iowa would be able to make.

Support for Little

However, George Little, third of six on the athletic board's list of prospects, is receiving considerable support from within and without the university.

Names of the other three men on the candidate roll have not yet been made public by the board.

Despite the fact that these three "unknowns" have not yet put in appearance, it is possible that the board will make at least a tentative selection at its meeting Monday.

Defer Budget

Budgetary matters which are being deferred until the choices are made are causing the matter to be speeded to a conclusion as fast as possible.

Armstrong, who will arrive at 9:30 this morning, has won five championships in his seven years in Utah. His teams have garnered 43 victories, dropping but 5 contests and dividing honors with two opponents.

James Colbert Hurt in Auto Mishap Here

James Colbert, Burkley hotel, is in the Mercy hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull on the left side and cuts above the left eye, received in an auto accident yesterday.

Colbert was riding in a Pontiac coupe driven by Carl Bock, 330 E. Jefferson street, when it went into a ditch a half mile north of the Park bridge on U. S. highway 161. Bock received numerous bruises. He was released from the hospital last night.

The car, belonging to Irene Bock, sister of Carl Bock, was traveling at a high rate of speed towards Iowa City, according to wood cutters who witnessed the accident. It apparently got out of the driver's control, weaved back and forth across the road several times, and finally left the pavement on the right hand side of the road, plunging into a seven foot ditch and against a tree.

The accident occurred about 25 feet south of the house of Dr. Herman H. Jacobsen, 1730 N. Dubuque street, who was the first to reach the occupants. He found Colbert with head held underneath water in the ditch and pinned in that position by the weight of Bock's body.

Adding to the complexity of the inquiry was a statement by Otto Bartels, conductor of the South Shore interurban train on which Woolverton said he returned to South Bend last night. Bartels told a South Bend newspaper he did not remember any person corresponding to photographs of Woolverton having entered the car at Michigan City.

Senate O. K.'s Appointment of Directors

Three Men Will Direct Efforts to Enliven Business

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Out of the many words spoken on Capitol Hill today there came approval by the senate of three of the men who will direct the effort of the reconstruction corporation to enliven business.

The senate gave its approval to the appointment of Charles Gates Dawes of Chicago, Jesse H. Jones of Texas, and Harvey C. Couch of Arkansas, while the house was discussing a variety of subjects under the caption of "general debate on the interior supply bill."

The day saw separate agreements by Republicans and Democrats that they would unite in working out a non-partisan measure to balance the budget and that the tax increases it would carry would not be retroactive.

Supply Bills Action Completed

The house and the senate completed action on the first of the annual supply bills, the $126,250,000 deficiency appropriation measure, and sent it to the White House.

Final approval was given when the senate agreed to a house amendment striking out an appropriation of $100,000,000 for training reserve officer pilots of the army.

The senate also trimmed $90,000 more from the appropriation for the Geneva disarmament conference. It originally was $450,000 and now is $300,000. There were four separate tariff developments.

A senate committee reported unfavorably by a tie vote the Democratic house tariff measure to change the administrative sections of the present Hawley-Smoot act.

New Bill Introduced

Representative Hawley (D. Ore.) introduced a bill to adjust the duties on imports from countries that have abandoned the gold standard in such a way as to meet the president's record of state off his shoulders.

HOOVER IN JOYFUL MOOD

Relaxed, and in joyful mood, President Herbert Hoover (right) is shown with his secretary, Theodore Joslin, as they interestingly watched the ceremonies that marked the induction into office of the new president of the National Press club at Washington, D. C. Though this was the first time since he has been in office that the president visited the club, he apparently spent an enjoyable evening, flinging the cares of state off his shoulders.

Possibility of Saving Lives of Men Entombed in Sunken Sub "Almost Beyond Hope"

British Make Desperate Effort to Locate Submarine

(Copyright 1932, By The Associated Press)

PORLAND, Eng., Jan. 28 (AP)—

The sunken submarine M-2, holding three score men within her steel hull, still rolled at the bottom of the English channel tonight and the British admiralty announced the possibility of saving any lives was "almost beyond hope."

Desperate efforts were being made nevertheless, to reach an object 18

fathoms below the surface off Portsmouth which naval officers believed might be the ill fated craft.

Receive Signals

The battle against choppy seas and swirling tides was spurred on by the reception of "sub-surface signals" on the hydrophone of the destroyer Thruster and by a great patch of oil discovered by the destroyer Sabre.

Secretary Hurley contended before a house group that consolidation of the war and navy departments would add neither to efficiency nor economy.

House Committees Called Upon

Investigators continued. House committees were called upon to study silver and impeachment charges against Secretary Mellon. One committee asked army engineers to see if any changes were needed in the Jardine flood control plan. Another continued its inquiry into the safety of the airship Akron. A senate committee asked permission to study taxes assessed upon farm cooperative organizations.

Silver Conference Urged

An interparliamentary silver conference was urged before a group of powerful senators while virtual assurance came from the house a broad investigation into the white metal's problems would be made.

Pierre du Pasquier, French Financier

Representatives of the French parliament, proposed the world conference to seek an agreement on bimetallism or some other solution of the silver problem.

Composer Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Mortimer Wilson, 56, noted composer and teacher of music and a native of Charlton, Ia., died as the result of complications which followed an attack of pneumonia a month ago.

Glancing up from a platter of inch and a quarter T-bone steak, William J. Ried, producer of the William J. Burns detective story and other movies, chuckled, "sure I'm a producer, I produce the best pictures on the market. That is what I've been told many times, at least."

Ried waited several hours in Iowa City last night en route from New York city to Los Angeles to catch a train when the airplane in which he was traveling was held because of adverse weather conditions. He is en route to Hollywood to start production on two new stories, "The Last Mile," and "Silent Thunder."

"No News"

"I don't have any news about myself," he said, "but there is my pilot, Jack Knight. He has more flying hours than any pilot in the world. He's been in the air more than 13,000 hours."

Knight started flying at Scott field in 1916. During the World War he was

Cornell College Gets Paintings as Bequest of Former Student

MT. VERNON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Two valuable paintings have been received by Cornell college, bequests from Lady Margaret Waterlow, the former Margaret Hamilton in her school days here.

The pictures are an original portrait of James Russell Lowell by Prof. Hubert Herkomer and a portrait of Lady Waterlow painted by the famous Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema. The Lowell portrait was painted in 1882 while Lowell was acting ambassador to the Court of St. James.

William Hamilton, father of Lady Waterlow, was a wealthy Mt. Vernon citizen. The girl attended the Iowa Conference seminary, now Cornell college. The Hamilton home is now the home of President H. J. Burghstahler.

Sir Sidney Waterlow was the son of a government printing establishment in London.

Lady Waterlow was an intimate friend of Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria. She died last May at her villa, Monterey, in California, France.

Defense Questions Murder Count in Fortescue Case

HONOLULU, Jan. 28 (AP)—A second attack on the validity of the second degree murder indictment against Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men in the lynching of a Hawaiian charged with assaulting Mrs. Fortescue's daughter was made by defense forces today.

At the same time there remained in the offing the possibility that the accused navy men might be taken out of the jurisdiction of the civil courts and tried by court martial. Barry S. Ulrich, special prosecutor, said this had been considered but no definite move had been made.

The new attack was in the form of a supplementary motion to quash the indictment.

Two of the defendants, Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, are expected to stand trial at their arraignment in territorial court tomorrow. The other two, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, were said by attorneys to be without funds. They are enlisted men.

James Agnew, A2 of Independence, is visiting for several days at the home of his parents in Independence.

Kirkwood Parent Teacher Group to Give Play Soon

Plans for a home talent play, to be presented in the near future by members and friends of Kirkwood Parent-Teacher association, were made last night at a business meeting.

An entertainment committee for the next social meeting was also appointed, consisting of Mrs. Albert Meyer, Mrs. Louis J. Villhauer, and Mrs. J. A. Swisher.

Mrs. Edgar Vassar, vice president of the association, presided at the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Francis Lehman, president, who is recuperating from a recent operation.

Voluntary Reduction

That the proposal for a voluntary one year wage reduction would be treated with more than a mere acceptance or rejection was the word from official sources.

The labor headquarters refused to say what additional concessions would be asked of the carriers, but the indications were that the labor group had adopted the reservation publicly made by one of its most influential members.

"If our workers accept 10 per cent reductions for one year," said this group in effect, "they must be assured full pay the following year."

Added Demands

Many other "added demands" were rumored about the Palmer House but the Indian masses seem to have undiminished faith in him.

Women find in Gandhi's face a certain feminine softness. The idol of India's common people is, in fact, the object of adoration and worship more by women than by men.

Thousands of women flock to Gandhi as though he were a Messiah. They kiss his feet. They prostrate themselves before him.

They ask his blessing. They name their children after him.

This effeminate touch in Gandhi's face is accentuated by his receding chin and an inscrutable, Madonna-like smile. His ears are large and protruding. His long, pointed nose emphasizes his toothless mouth, which, when the Mahatma's face is in repose, seems almost Negroid in formation. But in spite of his physical appearance, Gandhi does have marked dignity and poise.

One Year Agreement

"Resolved, that the arrangement specifically provides that the railroads parties to these negotiations will not undertake to reduce wages for a period of one year after the termination of this agreement."

Neither A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen, nor David B. Robertson, spokesman for the entire labor group, would say whether all the labor organizations had adopted the trainmen's reservation on the trainmen had backed down on their demand.

Whitney said, however, that his organization had held no meeting since its resolution was passed.

Indicate Probable Action

The probable action of other labor organizations was indicated in the trainmen's resolution which authorizes its executives to "join in representing the other standard railway labor organizations dealing with the wage matter and undertake to make the best settlements possible."

The authorization was to "negotiate a settlement of the wage matter on the basis of a percentage deduction from each pay check (not to exceed 10 per cent) for a period of one year."

The trainmen then specified that the "arrangement" made between the roads and the employees must include the provision of full pay the year following the 10 per cent deduction.

Few Attend Service for Wrigley, Jr.

Friends Bow at Bier of Sportsman, Capitalist

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 28 (AP)—

In contrasting simplicity to the palatial setting of his late winter mansion, funeral rites were spoken at the bier of William Wrigley, Jr., today.

Only a few friends and members of the multi-millionaire sportsman and chewing gum manufacturer's family were present as the Rev. Leslie E. Learned of the All Saints Episcopal church, Pasadena, conducted the rites.

Others Stand Outside

But in the street in front of the expensive home hundreds of others stood shivering in the sharp wind while the 15 minute service lasted.

A pipe organ played softly from within as the Rev. Mr. Learned, quoting Lord Alfred Tennyson, asked that "there be no moaning at the bar when I put out to sea."

Flowers Overflow Home

Expensive floral offerings were massed along the four walls of the entrance front room of the home, overflowing into the rambling porch outside the open door.

Brief Personal Tribute

The Rev. Mr. Learned quoted from the Twenty-third Psalm, offered a short prayer and then paid brief personal tribute.

"This is not the end of a beautiful story," he said. "This is only the conclusion of the first chapter. The second is about to be unfolded." He then quoted from Tennyson, and concluded the service with the Lord's prayer.

Led by a motorcycle police corps, the small funeral cortège moved to a local mortuary where the body will rest until a mausoleum is erected on Mt. Ada, Catalina Island, near Wrigley's winter home there.

National Iowa Night

ONCE a year the alumni, students, and friends of the University of Iowa have a special opportunity to pay tribute to the Old Gold.

The insignia of the Hawkeye university is Old Capitol. The mention, sight, or picture of this building immediately brings to the mind of one interested in the university a host of thoughts.

The eighty-fifth annual Iowa Night Feb. 15 will convey varying significance to those who participate in it. To former students Iowa night will recall a long train of campus memories. To parents of Iowa students Iowa night will create pictures in their minds of, perhaps, times when they visited their sons and daughters on the occasion of Dad's day, Mother's day, or some other event. To professors in the university, Iowa night will bring a stream of memories of past days on the campus.

The significance of Iowa Night is not confined to those who have been so intimately affiliated with the university. Iowa Night will bring to the minds of men in the medical profession the many valuable discoveries in their field.

To men in all occupations Iowa Night will stand for advancement in science, education, literature, art, and a thousand cultural lines. Iowa Night will be a reminder that the true basis of civilization's advance yet remains in the schools and colleges, will signify another milestone in the history of a great educational center.

But the crowning significance of national Iowa Night lies in the fact that it will bind together for 1932 men and women in all parts of the nation who are interested in or who are receiving benefits from the University of Iowa.

Disarmament

THE UNITED STATES has been criticized, Germany has been criticized, Italy has been criticized, all by Monsieur Edouard Herriot of the French cabinet.

Suggestion that the United States was not cooperating closely enough in France's movements for peace followed a call "sound in the French parliament for a security pact with the United States," in exchange for which France might agree to reduce her armaments one fourth and be willing to participate in reduction of naval forces.

All of which is supposed to mean that the nations of the world are working hard to prepare themselves for peace.

Peace is a word designating the interval between wars; a period filled with shams of peace councils and "disarmament" conferences, in which the causes for the next war are determined.

A few years ago the battered and bleeding nations of Europe fell over one another to get a seat at any one and all possible conferences, parleys, and negotiations; pacts, treaties and alliances were the order of the day. Those same nations have now, a dozen years later, come to the point where it makes little difference to them whether or not the Geneva conference is held, or whether or not the League of Nations is working.

The world has had little less war than usual since the League and the Geneva conference have been operating, and it is doubtful if very many of the men who began the work had much faith in their possibility for success.

Some who see the futility of peaceful negotiations between nations as a preventive of war, hold that education is the only channel through which war may be averted. The subject matter of history texts has been changing from year to year, turning from exalting the glory in details of battles to a study of political phases of international relationships and to unearthing elementary causes of previous wars. This change is to be welcomed, but it seems that if history can teach humanity anything, it should have taught it long ago that the period after any and every great war sees the birth of numerous misdirected peace conferences, disarmament parleys, treaties, pacts, and the like. Then when these have had their day and have sunk into oblivion, the nations have again begun to grind their swords for the next combat.

Disarmament perhaps would be possible even though no surety for peace, if all nations would follow the suggestion of the Moscow delegation to the Geneva conference of a few years ago. The Russians proposed point blank to demolish all military and naval property, in their own country and elsewhere.

The other delegates were stunned; they didn't know what to answer, but it was clear that the plan was not acceptable. In any conference, and especially in a conference as delicate as one concerning disarmament, certain rules must be observed. Every nation wants to keep as big an army and navy as it can possibly support, while trying to limit the forces of other nations. That is understood, and on this "gentlemen's agreement" all can work, trying to outwit one another.

And therein lies the true reason why disarmament by treaty will never be a success in assuring peace. If ever the instinct to acquire private gain is destroyed, if ever the desire to resort to physical violence in case of necessity is eliminated, then the nations may go quietly about the business of banishing war from within. Banishment of domestic factors which are the causes of war, increase of international and even intra-national understanding, will mean that disarmament will take place of its own accord as the permanent abandonment of an atrophied political organism.

For a Better Festival

HERALDING THE approach of one of the most colorful events in Iowa City, the annual spring music festival, is the conference of band directors from all sections of the state here tomorrow.

Scores of baton wielders are expected to attend the first meeting of its type in Iowa to thrash out far enough in advance, some of the problems attendant upon the festival which attracts some 2,000 high school students to the Iowa campus each spring.

Such experts in the field of band leadership as the director of the Northwestern university band, and the leader of the Cedar Falls municipal band, which last summer captured the Chicago Musicland contest, will be here to give advice in the ways of developing high school bands for championship competition.

The conference of music chiefs here tomorrow is another forward step on the part of the university extension division which bids fair to become an annual session in advance of the spring contest. The results of such meetings should reflect in a greater and more successful festival in the spring. The annual affair which brings students from all over the state to Iowa City has already won high recognition, it must be kept up to the high standards of the past by continued care in preparation for the future.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

"A cessation of selling will do more to cure banking conditions than the creation of all the new credits which the government is laboring so hard to provide," writes Editor Phil S. Hanna in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Deplored our archaic banking laws and urging legislation to provide for the saving of millions in assets and good will, Hanna declares that if provisions were made for evaluating the intrinsic worth of closed bank assets, instead of liquidating assets in already overtaxed markets, banking in the United States would not be a problem.

Unwise liquidation, he adds, by receivers whose jobs are often political, is causing thousands of depositors to take losses that would not have occurred if the banking laws provided for recognizing securities, not at their worth in a panicky market, but at their intrinsic values in a normal market.

When the present legislation was passed, lawmakers never expected hundreds of banks to close at one time, nor did they contemplate the sinking of security markets all over the world at a single time. And so they made no provisions for an emergency. They did, however, provide that a receiver be appointed for a bank whose assets could not be liquidated fast enough to meet demands, without any foresight as to market conditions.

There is still time to save millions of dollars in depositors' money if immediate action is taken, according to Hanna, for, with enough pressure, congress could pass new legislation within a 24 hour period. Such a move, however, is unlikely, since the establishment of the reconstruction finance corporation.

But this is an excellent time for revision of banking laws to safeguard depositors' money from unscrupulous investments and mismanagement. While no one likes to countenance another economic period like that of 1929-31, it is not altogether impossible.

One who is pointed out as knowing his political science and having a wealth of general knowledge on international diplomacy, offers a new slant on the Manchurian situation.

Since it has been a matter of record that periods of depression follow regularly periods of prosperity and that periods of prosperity extend through and follow with amazingly regular periods of war, why doesn't the League of Nations or somebody arrange to have wars at regular intervals?

That would take care of everything, it seems, except the loser. For, certainly, someone has to lose a war if there is to be a winner, and somebody must win in order for the scheme to work out.

But the uncertainty of the whole thing moves us to put thumbs down on it because, if for nothing else, there would be such squabbles to decide who would be the winner of each war that there wouldn't be any time to enjoy the fruits and spoils.

So, it follows that history will just go right on repeating itself as if nothing had been said to the contrary.

And it does look as though history will go on repeating just as if nothing had been done, to judge from the flagrant violations of international agreements in the last few years.

School Band Directors to Attend Conference Jan. 30; Will Complete Meet Plans

University Professors to Give Addresses at Meeting

That tomorrow's conference of school band directors is attracting the increasing attention of men of other states was indicated yesterday by the receipt of a letter from Neil Kjos of Chicago, signifying his intentions of attending the conference.

Mr. Kjos is prominent in school music and band work in Illinois.

Receive Request

Prof. Charles B. Righter of the music department has also received requests from three national music publications for information concerning the nature of the conference, besides letters from a large number of band directors in Iowa to the effect that they will attend the meeting.

Heading the list of speakers at the conference will be Glenn C. Bainum, who is director of Northwestern university's band, as well as director of the Northwestern men's university glee club which was placed first in the national intercollegiate sing.

James Melchior, who will discuss the technique of the woodwind instruments, is director of the municipal band at Cedar Falls, which won the Chicagoland music festival contest last summer.

MASON CITY MAN TO SPEAK

The former director of the Mason City high school band that won the state contest three consecutive times, Gerald R. Prescott, who is now supervisor of music in Iowa City high schools, will be another of the speakers on the program.

L. F. Swartley of LeMars, who will preside at the afternoon session, is not only director of the LeMars high school orchestra and band, but is principal of the school as well.

Among those from the university who will address the conference is Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education, who, as director of the university summer sessions, has been largely responsible for the all-state high school music organizations which have rehearsed and given programs here for the last three summers.

In Connection With Conference

Members of the executive committee and district chairmen of the Iowa high school music association will hold their meeting in connection with the conference, and will complete the plans for the state music festival to be held here this spring.

The conference is a joint project of the extension division, the college of education, and the school of fine arts. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, and Professor Righter are in charge of the plans.

School Head Lauds Rise of Education

WOODBINE, Jan. 28 (AP) — Education has undergone a "remarkable development" in Iowa during the last 30 years, Agnes Samuelson, state superintendent of public instruction, said in a talk here Thursday evening.

She was a speaker on the dedication program for the new Woodbine school building.

Average daily school attendance now is one-fourth greater, she said, and the number of high school graduates has increased from 2,800 in 1900 to 21,011 in 1930. The number of four-year high schools in the state was said to be twice what it was 15 years ago.

She also recalled that the number of persons attending high school has increased an average of 18,000 per year between the years 1915 and 1925. The legal school term also was increased from six to eight months, curriculums have been expanded and many new services added, she said.

School Head Will Address Graduates

CEDAR FALLS, Jan. 28 (AP) — Prof. L. A. Moe, manager of the Luther college chorus, has announced plans for a tour of the chorus through Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa cities.

The organization will travel by bus, leaving here Feb. 28 and returning March 20. The chorus is directed by Prof. Theodore Nickle, a graduate of the Leipzig conservatory in Germany. Last year the chorus appeared at the convention of the International Luther league.

The director, manager and 52 singers will make the trip. They will appear in Decorah, Osage, Northwood, Lake Mills, and St. Olaf, Ia.; Albert

Mississippi Valley Region of Lutheran Student Association to Meet Here February 5, 6, 7

The annual conference of the Mississippi valley region of the Lutheran Student association of America will be held at Iowa Union, Feb. 5, 6, and 7.

The local committee is from the student associations of the First English and Zion Lutheran churches, and includes: Arthur Nelson, A. S. of Sioux City, chairman; Lillian Entz, A. S. of Waterloo, Fred Fehling, G. of Sheboygan, Wls., Theodore Kurtz, A. S. of Fontanelle, Harold Seashore, G. of Wahoo, Neb., and Mathilda Hansen, Milton Scarsteth, of the University of Wisconsin, regional president of the association, will preside.

The program will open with a banquet at Iowa Union, at which an address on "Sources of power" will be given by the Rev. O. J. Preus, president of Augustana college, Sioux Falls, S. D. A reception will be held in the liberal arts drawing room following the banquet.

Saturday, Feb. 5, the program will open with devotions, followed by an address by the Rev. Mr. Preus.

"Right choices." This will be followed by a discussion led by Carl Peterson, of Iowa State Teacher's college.

Group discussions will be held on the scriptures, led by Harold Seashore, and the sacraments, which will be led by Herbert Graening. A luncheon will be held at Iowa Union.

Committee reports and the election of officers will take place at the business meeting.

The afternoon a discussion of the L.S.A. will be led by Dr. Gould Wickley, Washington, D. C. secretary of the Lutheran board of education.

The Rev. Mr. Preus will make an address, "All together."

Dinner will be served at Iowa Union, after which the group will attend the basketball game between Iowa and Chicago.

Sunday, Feb. 7, a report of resolutions will be made, followed by the presentation of new officers. An address, "The high goal," given by the Rev. Mr. Preus, will conclude the meeting.

More than 100 delegates and visitors, from Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa, are expected to attend the conference.

Local Lutheran students may obtain tickets for the banquet at the main desk at Iowa Union.

University Chemists, Graduates Contribute Articles to Magazine

Appearing in the January issue of the Industrial and Engineering Chemistry magazine are two articles, one by three members of the chemistry department, the late Prof. Stephen Popoff; Louis Waldauer, associate in chemistry; and D. C. McCann, graduate assistant in chemistry, and K. C. Beeson, a graduate of Iowa in 1927, is a co-author of the other.

The article by the three members of the chemistry department is the first of a number of quantitative spectrographic studies of co-precipitation. It deals with magnesium calcium oxalate.

Beeson's article is titled, "Clitate—Insoluble phosphoric acid in di- and tricalcium phosphates." At the present time Beeson is connected with the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils at Washington D. C.

Shimek Cites Misnomers of Botanical Life

Books as Well as Plant Novices Responsible Says Professor

The rockrose is not a rose and neither does it grow on the rocks and the poison oak is not a member of the oak family.

Those are just two of a myriad of examples of misleading names applied to plants, according to Prof. Bohumil Shimek who has taught botany at the University of Iowa for more than 40 years.

Due to Carelessness

Carelessness and attempts by novices to express fancied resemblances are blamed by Professor Shimek for the misnomers which abound in the botanical realm.

There are many varieties of violet but the dog's-tooth violet is not among them, neither is the mountain ash a true ash, the blue beech a beech, nor the ground hemlock a relative of the hemlock family, he said.

Common Names

Another source of confusion is the widespread use of common names, with adjective modifiers, for species not closely related. As examples, Professor Shimek cited the "snake-root" and rattlesnake-grass" and "weed."

The mistakes are perpetuated by some of the reference manuals which list scientific names where employed erroneously as common names, the university botanist said.

Stringa, smilax, geranium, and nasturtium are among the common names which should be eliminated from the manuals. Even these publications are guilty of using the same common name for different species.

Record of Continuity, Regularity in Vesper Services at University of Iowa Unique Throughout Country

By ALVIN JORGENSEN

The University of Iowa has a unique record among state universities in regularity and continuity of the vespers service.

Started in 1914, largely through the conscientious and untiring effort of Prof. G. T. W. Patrick, formerly of the university philosophy department, coordinating with several other prominent university men, the service has gradually risen to its present position, being considered by many as an essential factor to university and community life here.

162 Monthly Services

Since 1914 a total of 162 monthly services have been held, of which 32 have been purely musical, conducted by the school of music at Easter and Christmas. Of the 142 addresses given, all but nine were sermons and, curiously enough, not one title is a duplicate. Typical titles, picked at random, have been: "The New Woman and the Old Adam"; "The School of Experience"; "What Happens to the Faith of College Students"; "Jesus and Poverty"; and "Religion as Power." Vesper services have been attended by students, faculty members, and town-folk, and have been heard by radio in every part of Iowa, together with many sections of the midwest.

106 Speakers

Since its start in September of 1914, the vespers service has drawn a total of 106 speakers, seven of whom were women. The majority of the speakers have, quite naturally, been clergymen, their number having reached 58. University men whose field was usually philosophy, applied Christianity, or the history of religion, have numbered 39, and the rest of the speakers have been listed as follows: seven social workers, three newspapermen, two judges, two business men, two authors, and one Y.M.C.A. man. Each of the three great religious divisions, Catholic, Hebrew, and Protestant, have been represented on the programs.

Last Minute Call Notifies Locals of Tilt

Tigers Take 27 to 19 Victory; Soph Fray Postponed

(Special to The Daily Iowan) CEDAR RAPIDS, Jan. 28.—After a hasty roundup of the City high school basketball players by Coach George Wells and a hurried trip here the Little Hawks took a 27 to 19 defeat from Washington high in a Mississippi Valley conference game.

Seven o'clock and the Coe gym is rapidly filling with fans. The Washington freshman-sophomore team is warming up for the curtain raiser with the City high freshman-sophomore team.

Where is City High?

But where is City high? A long distance call to Coach Wells brought to light the fact that City high was under the impression the game was to be played Friday night.

Through some undetermined manner the game had been brought up a day and City high had not been notified. When told of the crowd already in the gym the Little Hawks' coach got busy and rounded up his players and made the trip in near record time.

Cagers Eat Big Meals

The visitors had gone through a stiff scrimmage in the afternoon and then the players had indulged in hearty meals, but with all this City high put in a strong bid for victory.

The game was ragged with neither team appearing any too strong. Capt. Soucek of Iowa City opened the scoring with a field goal but Washington came back fast and took the lead from which it was never headed. The score at the end of the first period was 10 to 3. With the score at the second half at 15 to 10, City high scored three points to bring it to 15-13 but the visitors tired out and failed to hold on.

Schneider Leads Scoring

Capt. Schneider of Washington took scoring honors for the night with 14 points. Si Ersland and Dennis O'Brien were tied at six points each to lead the Little Hawks scoring.

The freshman-sophomore game between these schools which was postponed tonight because of lack of time will be played here Monday night.

Oxford Five Upsets Williamsburg Quintet 20-18 in Close Tilt

(Special to The Daily Iowan) OXFORD, Jan. 28.—The Oxford high school basketball team surprised the Williamsburg quintet in a close game here tonight to annex a close 20 to 18 victory.

At no time during the contest was either team able to gain a commanding lead. Oxford managing to hold onto its slim lead as the game waned.

In a preliminary to the first team game, the Williamsburg seconds downed the local 7 to 4 in a slow contest. Strong defenses held both teams to limited scoring.

The Oxford Independents are seeking contests with similar teams from surrounding towns.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP)— Jim Londos successfully defended his title here tonight by downing Dick Daviscourt of San Francisco, with an airplane spin in 32 minutes.

Tall Centers, Aggressive Guards Four Reasons for Success of Irish Hoopsters

Two tall centers and a pair of aggressive guards are just four more reasons for the success of the St. Patrick's high school cage squad this season.

Pinney, tall junior, who starred at the pivot position in the last Irish game with Immaculate Conception Tuesday, is playing his first year on the regular team. During the first part of the season, he played at forward, but was shifted to center when Scannell was forced out of the lineup by sickness. He is especially adept at shots under the basket.

Pinney was a regular midget cage star last year. In football, he was a regular end, and was used as a substitute end the year before.

Scannell, tall senior center, is playing his second year on the regular cage squad. He is fast and an accurate scorer, and adds speed, as well as punch to the Irish lineup. Last year he was used at center on the first team, and he was a midget star during his first two seasons in high school.

Scannell, like Pinney, was an end on the football squad last fall, but was forced out early in the season with a leg injury. His loss was regarded as a great detriment to the

Despite the heavy meals and the stiff scrimmage earlier in the afternoon, the Hawketts made a game fight of it last night in the last minute game with Washington. Hen Soucek found that the seven pancakes he had eaten did not help him any during the game. All the players were in the same straits.

Another prep school from this city travels to Cedar Rapids. The Ramblers will try to hand St. Pat's its first defeat of the season. The Cedar Rapids Irish have scored over the local Irish for one of their victories.

The only local game tonight will be played at the University high gym where the Blue and White plays Mt. Vernon. U. high has won only one game this far, and has been held without field goals in two of its games. A preliminary game finds the U. high juniors meeting the City high juniors.

Another football coaching candidate visits the campus today. Ike Armstrong of the University of Utah is expected to confer with the athletic board with a view of getting the job.

It seems without a doubt that Phil Wrigley will take over the ownership of the Chicago Cubs. It was known around the sports circles that the former owner wished his son to carry on where he left off in trying to bring a world's champion to Chicago.

While the elder Wrigley was at the helm of the club, the younger displayed interest and attended the games frequently at Wrigley field, but otherwise never had an active part in the operation of the Cubs.

Phil Wrigley's business wisdom was proven a few years after the war when he reported to his father that the $1,000,000 he had received as his twenty-first birthday present had grown to five times its size.

Ray Conger did not fare so well in his first race of the season. The former Iowa State track star had to be content with twelfth place in a 1,000 yard handicap race in New York city. Conger started from the scratch as did the winner—Frank Nordell.

Tanksters in Slight Drills During Week

Realizing that it had been a hard week full of examinations, Coach Armbruster gave his varsity swimmers only a light workout yesterday afternoon. Only about half of the squad turned out for their daily splashing, the remainder still studying for the final exam day.

Beginning next week, though, the tanksters will settle down to earnest drilling as a duel meet is scheduled with Wisconsin at Madison, Feb. 6. There will also be a water polo battle with the Badgers, so the men tossed the ball around quite a bit.

The first home meet is with Minnesota on Feb. 20. The eligibility list for next semester has not been announced yet, but Armbruster fears that he will lose some men due to grade delinquencies.

Coleman Injures Foe

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28 (AP)—Coleman, Los Angeles, won the feature match of a wrestling program here tonight by butting Charles Fischer, Butternut, Wis., into unconsciousness. Coleman weighed 203 pounds and Fischer 170. Fischer was reported suffering from concussion of the brain and was taken to a hospital.

Eligibility of 4 New Stars Undetermined

Coach Williams Will Know Definitely Tomorrow

Tomorrow evening Coach Rollie Williams will know what kind of a basketball team he will have for the second semester. He will then learn how his quartet of ineligibles stand in eligibility.

The status of Parker Bennett, lanky center; Guelph Krumbholz, star forward; Chuck Williamson, regular forward of last season; and Mike Riegert, regular guard of the 1930 quintet will have been determined by that time.

Riegert Not in Shape

Coach Williams will also be informed as to whether any of the present members of his squad failed in their mid-year examinations.

If eligible, Bennett and Krumbholz are certain to become regulars, replacing Alex Rogene and Jack Kotlow respectively. It is likely that Bennett and Rogers will be used alternately at center with the six foot five inch Estherville lad starting on the position.

Williamson's role is expected to be that of a forward reserve along with Kotlow. Harold Eshleman, and Lester Glick, Riegert is not in physical condition to see much action yet.

Swaney on First Team

Harold Swaney was returned to a first string post in practice yesterday afternoon after watching Roy Diwoy play at his guard position most of the week. However, Diwoy's aggressiveness makes it possible that he may start against Notre Dame in the game at South Bend Monday evening. Although his play is still faulty and his basket eye is unreliable, Douglas Filkins will probably continue to hold down his left guard position.

The Hawkeyes' next conference game will be at the field house Feb. 6 against the Chicago Maroons.

Olympic Win Certainty for Norse Skiers

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP)—A six inch fall of snow today in the valley of the Adirondack mountains gladdened the hearts of 200 winter athletes of 10 nations waiting for the opening of Olympic games Feb. 4.

Up to today, due to warm temperatures and puny snow falls the athletes have not had better than a couple of inches of snow on which to work out.

As a precautionary measure the start of the national bobslide championships, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, was set back a day and the bob riders of a dozen nations will not swing into action until Saturday.

Already the Norwegian ski jumpers, although they refuse to expand on the details, have fractured the record of 198 feet for the jump several times, one jump being measured at 205 feet, and there appears no prospect of competition from other nations that can prevent their sweeping clean every jumping event in the Olympics. Today every man on the Norwegian team sped down the slide, sailed far down the ice hill and landed calmly and cleanly at the bottom.

PROBABLY FAILED

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 28 (AP)—The probable failure of Wood to de-throne Kaye Don, British pilot, was brought out today by W. D. Edensburn, chairman of the racing committee of the Yachtmen's Association of America. Gar Wood, who averaged 110.785 miles an hour with his Miss America IX here yesterday, is proceeding with plans to show the speed mark still higher.

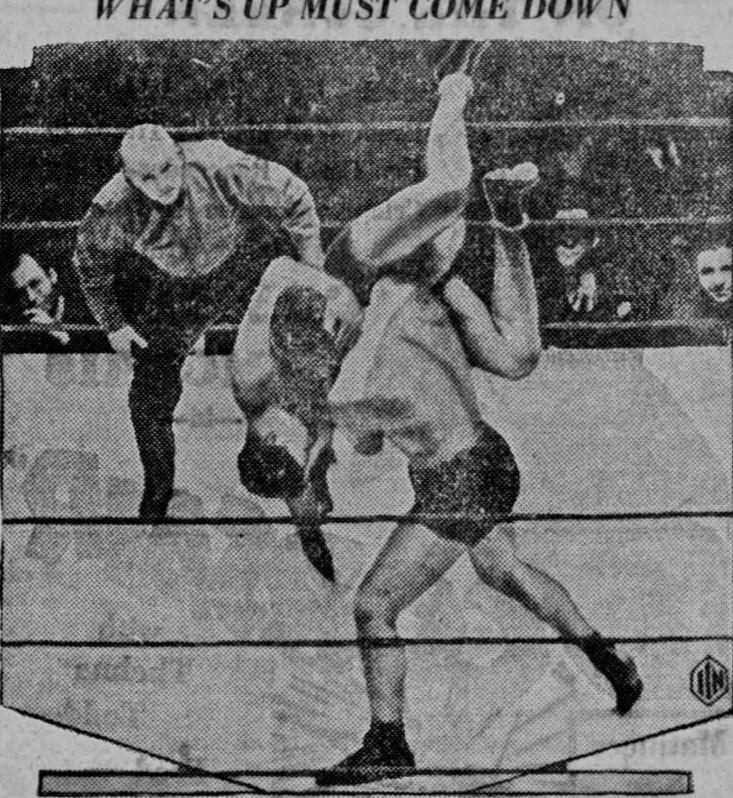

"Whether the rules committee accepts the speed made yesterday as a record is up to the rules committee," Wood said when told of the Edensburn statement. "If it's a record, all right; if it isn't, it's just the same. In either event, we are preparing to make another run in a few days."

Bierman Meets With Gophers; Plans Drill

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 28 (AP)—One hundred and ten men who aspire to play football at Minnesota under the Gophers' new head coach, Bernie Bierman, turned out to greet him today at Memorial stadium.

It was Bierman's first appearance before the squad of rookies and veterans. He told them to report next Monday for the winter's initial practice.

WHAT'S UP MUST COME DOWN

A breathless moment in the championship wrestling bout at Madison Square Garden, New York, between Champion Jim Lendos, the Greek Adonis, and Sammy Stein, who wanted the title. Lendos is shown as he picked Stein up for one of the famous body slams which distinguish his customary performances. After half an hour of grunting and puffing Stein tried a flying tackle, but the agile Mr. Lendos skipped aside and Stein landed on the sympathetic floor outside the ring, knocking himself out to the world. He was unable to continue, so Lendos is still champion.

Brains Fall Before Brown Quintet by 26 to 18 at U. High

Brown proved to be superior to brains at the University high gym yesterday afternoon when the Brain cagers fell by a score of 26 to 18.

Harold Beck led the winners with seven baskets and two free throws for 16 points. Cameron was the best bet for the losers.

This was the first of a series of games planned by Coach Joy Kistler for the purpose of creating an interest in basketball. The coach announced that he would need at least two more teams for his proposed league. Games will be played three nights a week after school if the plan meets with student approval.

Buckeyes Lose to Wolverines by 38-25 Score

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 28 (AP)—A smart defensive game that baffled their opponents enabled Michigan to defeat Ohio State, 33 to 25, in a Western conference basketball game to-night a crowd of 5,735, the largest here this season, witnessed by the Blue and White.

The locals have every reason for considering an upset victory tonight as a probability. Instead of victory number 11 for the big, rangy Parlor City crew, the tussle might just as well result in victory number nine for the local quintet.

In Top Condition

The triumph over the strong St. Joseph's of Rock Island team Monday added hope to the St. Mary's cause and the showings made by the team in drills this week have shown the team in top condition for the contest.

Outstanding for Cedar Rapids

Outstanding for the Cedar Rapids quintet are Malloy, tall center, and Captain Kitch, both outstanding offensive men. Spalth is a strong defensive man. Coach Suerpp's boys should give the favorites their hardest game of the year with Capt. Leo Gaulocher and Ralph Lumsden hitting the hop again, little Dick Lumsden showing strength in spite of his size, and Bradley, Poole, and Maher demonstrating good defensive ability.

Entire Squad Goes

In addition to Rev. Walter Boeckel, athletic director, and Joe Schlenk, student manager, Coach Suerpp is taking the entire squad on the trip with the exception of Belger, freshman forward who is out with the flu at the present. Squad members are: forwards—Captain Gaulocher, Dick Lumsden, Maher, and Consamus; guards—Bradley, Poole, Vogt, Stork, Russell, Gerlitz, and O'Brien.

Three Teams were Shy One Each

Three teams were shy one each and each four man team proceeded to lose all three games. Outside of three or four instances, as the scores show, there was everything but consistency on the alleys last night.

Doc' Snavely Tops Bowlers With 227, 623

CHICAGO, Jan. 28 (AP)—White funeral service for William Wrigley, Jr., was being held today at Pasadena, Cal., close friends in business and baseball gathered to pay tribute to the late capitalist and baseball magnate in Chicago.

A memorial service, attendance to which was restricted to close business and baseball associates, was held at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church. The Rev. John C. Evans delivered the eulogy.

The plants of the William Wrigley Jr., company, gum manufacturers, in Chicago, Frankfort-on-Main, New York, Canada, England and Australia, were ordered closed during the service held at All Saints' Episcopal church at Pasadena, Cal.

A nation wide tribute to Mr. Wrigley's memory will be arranged for some time next summer.

The law of averages, or the Einstein theory of "sumpin'," as Andy says, played queer tricks on the bowling teams in the Recreation league last night.

Three teams were shy one each and each four man team proceeded to lose all three games. Outside of three or four instances, as the scores show, there was everything but consistency on the alleys last night.

Doc' Snavely Wins 227, 623

CHICAGO, Jan. 28 (AP)—They say they never come back, but Jackie Fields proved this popular theory was all wrong tonight.

Fields, 26 year old Chicagoan, now holding his home in Los Angeles, regained the "world" welterweight championship he lost to young Jack Thompson two years ago by defeating Leon Brouillard, rugged Frenchman, in a savage 10 round battle in the Canadian youth of Worcester, Mass., Chicago stadium tonight.

Brouillard held the title just four months. He won it last October by blasting out a victory over young Jack Thompson, the Oakland, Calif., Negro who had conquered Fields for the championship.

The verdict of the two judges and the referee, Dave Miller, was unanimous.

Fields, trained to razor edge for the first time since he lost the championship 24 months ago, outboxed and outgenuined the rugged northbound titleholder to regain the "world" welterweight championship. Fields started to catch up with Brouillard in the fourth round and by the time the sixth had been finished he had passed the champion in a flurry of speed that bewildered the easterner.

Fields, punching sharply with both fists, was especially effective with right crosses to the chin and left hooks to the jaw and body. Brouillard relied chiefly upon his charging body attack but Fields soon absorbed his punches like a Spartan, meanwhile moving ahead by scoring at long range.

Police Chief Retires

OTTUMWA (AP)—Henry C. Richards, 75, chief of police, announced his retirement effective Feb. 1. Richards served as chief for three years and previously was sheriff of Wapello county. Charles Sell, former police commissioner, will be formally named as his successor Monday.

DICKERING FOR RETURN TITLE BOUT

The Gay Bandit of the Border

By TOM GILL Copyright 1931, by International Magazine Co., Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Ted Radcliffe is called to Verdi, a small village on the Mexican border, by Bob Harkness, his late father's friend. Radcliffe Senior had lost a fortune in Mexico years before. At a party given by Major Blount of the U. S. Army, Ted meets Paco Morales, ruling power of Mexico, and his beautiful niece, Adela. Morales tells how El Coyote, the mysterious bandit, killed a man about to reveal his hideaway. El Coyote steals from the rich, particularly Morales, and gives to the poor. Major Blount announces that the U. S. cavalry will join in the search for the bandit. A wounded Mexican, believed to be one of El Coyote's band, is captured. Later Bob tells Ted he has a message for him which will make him lose his trust in the world and strip him of everything he has.

CHAPTER IX

A Mexican servant dozed in a corner, and with a nod Don Bob dismissed them, then going to the fireplace threw sticks of fragrant mesquite on the embers. He pointed to a deep leather chair.

"Sit down, Ted. There are cigarettes and pipe tobacco."

For a time he busied himself with the glowing logs while Radcliffe watched him closely. "It's about father?" the younger man asked at last.

Bob slowly filled his pipe, then sat before the fire.

"Yes, part of it's about your father. But most of it is about you. Up until the time your father died, just how much did you know about his affairs?"

"Nothing except that they were perfectly sound. He always had the strongest kind of backing."

"He was a great gambler, remember. I mean in the big, adventurous sense."

"He loved to experiment and try what others never dared. He was always willing to back his judgment with his last penny. If that's what you mean, yes, he was a gambler. And why not? There was always his own fortune of a good many millions behind him."

"He loved to experiment and try what others never dared. He was always willing to back his judgment with his last penny. If that's what you mean, yes, he was a gambler. And why not? There was always his own fortune of a good many millions behind him."

"Ruined?" The whispered word seemed to linger in the quiet room.

"Ruined?" The whispered word seemed to linger in the quiet room.

scant thousand dollars, and these he turned over to his bankers. They were to put you through school and give you those two years abroad."

Radcliffe's grim face looked up. "And I thought it was just an alibi."

"It took every penny your father owned. Well, it was his wish that you should have those years unclouded. And now you've had them."

A silence, broken only by the crackling logs, while slowly the first realization of it all crept in upon him.

The world was tumbling about him. That great stalwart father of his, with all his power, the very symbol of power and success—the idol of his childhood, had ceased to exist.

Radcliffe shook his head, as if to rid himself of this nightmare. It couldn't be true—life wasn't like that.

Suddenly he found himself walking the length of the room. "It's not real," he said once. "I suppose, tomorrow, I'll accept it—I'll have to. But now it's as if it all were happening to someone else—while I stand by and watch." He whirled back toward the quietly seated figure. "But why did he send me out here to learn all this?"

"For two reasons. First, he wanted me rather than a stranger to tell you. And second, he wanted me to give you this." Don Bob walked to his desk and held up a long envelope. "His last word to you."

Radcliffe's fingers closed gently, almost reluctantly, on the envelope, and for an instant his eyes dimmed to see his own name written there in that careless heavy scrawl of his father's. It was like a voice out of the past grown suddenly articulate—a whispered word from the dead. Motionless he stood there, then felt Bob's hand laid on his shoulder, and while the firelight flickered on their steady faces those two men stood looking into each other's eyes. Behind them a clock chimed midnight. It had a quality, that moment, the quality of a bond between them, and in graver times they were both to think of it again. Very slowly he tore open the envelope.

Stock Prices See-Saw in Uncertainty

Net Losses Moderate on Average of 90 Issues

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Stocks sawed uncertainly today, trying to make the best of the inconclusive news that came to hand during trading hours.

Late selling of the rails unsettled the general list which had been steady after a dull sag around the noon hour. Sales amounted to 1,287,342 shares.

One Point Loss

Net losses were moderate, averaging just under a point for the 90 issues used in the averages. Some rails, notably New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific were down a point or more. American Telephone was still heavy, off 2 5/8 at the worst and 1 3/4 at the close.

Auburn sagged.

Attention was focused on Bethlehem steel because of its directors' meeting late in the day. This steel issue dropped to a new low, anticipating the dividend omission which was hardly a surprise to Wall street. The preferred lost 6 and then rallied a point from the bottom. General Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey also established new minimums, the former dipping under 20 although it finished unchanged at 20 1/2. U. S. Steel went half a point under Wednesday's low and closed with a major fractional loss. General Motors, whose board meets for dividend action soon, was soggy.

December Statements

December earnings statements indicated that numerous carriers were failing to cover fixed charges; nevertheless, there was little volume to the selling.

United States government bonds may have expected a cut in the New York reserve bank's rediscount rate, although no such action was taken.

The bank's weekly statement again suggested that there is to be no hurry over the easy money program. Currency circulation showed a drop of $24,000,000, which was encouraging.

The world was tumbling about him. That great stalwart father of his, with all his power, the very symbol of power and success—the idol of his childhood, had ceased to exist.

For a moment Radcliffe looked at Don Bob, then read on: "I want you to be happy as I have been happy. I want you to be true to yourself—there is no other success in life. My love to you always!"

The voice stopped abruptly. He folded the letter and after a long silence asked, "What does father mean about Morales?"

The older man mused over his cigarette. "Ted," he said at last, "if the real story of your father's downfall is ever told, we're going to find that Morales played some part in it. I know how the man works. I know, too, he was supposed to stand behind your father's development plans in Mexico with money and, what is more important, with his influence over the Mexican government. I believe the old Spaniard promised your father full support, and then, when the time came that he needed support, Morales withheld his money and turned the government against the work. That meant the end."

But father's plan was for irrigation.

WATERLOO (AP)—After robbing a filling station of $50, a bandit drove to a fire station and told firemen another place had been robbed. Police were summoned. Meanwhile the man escaped.

Surprising lack of heavy selling on downturns in wheat prices was also a feature.

Corn and oats were inclined to drag, notwithstanding cold weather prospects brought hopes of a more normal consumer demand for corn than has been the rule of late.

Provisions tended lower with hog values. Lard touched new low price records for the season.

Closing indemnities: wheat—May 57 1/2 to 58 1/2; July 57 8; July 57 8, 59-59 1/2; Sept. 59 1/4, 60 1/2; Corn—May 40-40 1/2; Oct. 1 to 57 1/2; July 41 7-8, 42 1-4 to 57 1/2.
