$10,000 in Prizes for Nine Best "Believe It or Not" in Nationwide Competition

List Ten Local Awards; Contest Starts Next Tuesday

Believe it or Not! Here's a contest that is a contest. The Daily Iowan and Robert L. Ripley, famous creator of "Believe It or Not" cartoons which appear every day on the editorial page of this newspaper, have arranged to award prizes valued at more than $10,000 to those who submit the most amazing "Believe It or Not."

Get busy at once preparing your "Believe It or Not." The contest starts Tuesday, May 3, and continues for two weeks.

The final judge will be Ripley himself who has traveled all over the world searching for his famous oddities.

In addition to the national prizes, The Daily Iowan will award 10 copies of Ripley's "Believe It or Not" book at the termination of the contest to the 10 best entries that are submitted locally. The local winners as well as all local entries will have a chance at the group of $10,000 worth of national prizes.

RULES
Turn to page eight for complete rules of the contest—what to do—how to do it—when to do it. Pictures of the group of $10,000 prizes are also shown on the same page.

Things that are familiar to you in your home, at your work, at your school, or even your pet hobbies, may astound others. Everyone knows at least one Believe It or Not.

Twelve million persons recently missed a splendid Believe It or Not. Right before their eyes was the world's greatest viewpoint. From Eagle Rock, N. J., it is possible to see the homes of 12,000,000 people. Yet only one person recognized this fact. There may be similar situations that you know of and that same fact might make a prize winning entry.

Recently a man wrote to Ripley that: "The Graf Zeppelin is the only dirigible ever to execute an outside loop."

At the time it seemed unbelievable that the great dirigible ever executed the feat. Believe it or not—it was true—the Graf had made one, a big one. It had sailed around the world.

If you know of one or more than one fact or happening that is a good Believe It or Not, send it in. It may win either one of the national or local prizes or one of each.

French Voters Will Name 615 New Deputies

PARIS, April 30 (AP)—The French voters will go to the polls tomorrow to elect members of the new chamber of deputies to which the government must look for its support during important negotiations this summer on the momentous issues of reparations, war debts, and disarmament.

A total of 11,500,000 men—and no women—are qualified to vote. For the 615 seats in the chamber, there are 3,617 candidates.

Political experts expect 80 to 85 per cent of the voters to go to the polls. Indications are that only 200 to 250 definite results will be known by Monday, in the other contests, run offs are likely.

Despite the coincidence of tomorrow's balloting and the revolutionary May day holiday. The authorities look for no disturbances.

No Retrial for Huckins
ANAMOSA (AP)—A defense motion asking immediate retrial of George E. Huckins on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses with specific intent to defraud was denied by Judge H. C. Ring. Huckins has been tried twice previously. The next jury does not meet until September.

WEATHER
IOWA: Fair and moderately cool Sunday; Monday fair and somewhat warmer.

Boycott Under Way Against Massie Jury

Honolulu Tense While Opponents Gird for Further Battle

HONOLULU, April 30 (AP)—A boycott against places employing members of the jury which convicted the four defendants in the Joseph Kahahawai lynching trial was organized by a group of women today. They drew the racial line in their movement by inviting only white women to participate.

The organizing was done quietly by the group of women telephoning their friends and asking cooperation. The wives of navy men were participating, but not taking a leading part.

Business Affected
If the boycott assumes large proportions, which its proponents say it will, some of the largest business enterprises in the city will be affected.

HONOLULU, April 30 (AP)—An outwardly quiet but tense city looked on today while opposing sides girded for further battle over the Joseph Kahahawai lynching case. The manslaughter conviction of the four accused persons failed to settle its far-flung ramifications.

Radio patrol cars equipped with machine guns and manned by police rolled through the city as the apparent tranquility was interpreted as ominous.

Police, Guards Alert
Both police and national guard authorities were on the alert for any sign of an outbreak of feeling over the conviction of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue and the two navy enlisted men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord.

Beaten in one of the greatest court battles of his long career, Clarence Darrow, aged defense leader, and his associates set wearily about fighting the conviction through the higher courts.

Asks Judge's Impeachment

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The impeachment of an Hawaiian judge and abolishment of the territorial government were demanded on Capitol Hill today as an aftermath to the conviction of the four defendants in the Massie case.

Senator McKellar (D. Tenn.) said in a statement the judge who presided over the grand jury which indicted the four Americans should be removed from office. He added he did not believe they "got a fair trial."

Placing Hawaii under direct federal control "until white women are secure from such brutal attacks as that made upon Mrs. Massie" was advocated in a statement by Representative Rankin (D. Miss.).

Proponents of Bonus Plan Final, Powerful Blow to Force Issue

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—Sponsors of a cash bonus payment today planned resort to their last and most powerful weapon for forcing a house vote on the $2,000,000,000 new-money outlay—the drastic committee discharge petition.

Almost certain their plan, bitterly denounced by administration spokesmen, will be rejected by the ways and means committee, advocates confidently claimed half a hundred more than the 145 signatures necessary to force a ballot.

"We could get 218 signatures, or a clear majority of the house, if we had to," Representative Patman (D. Tex.) said. "The bill is certain to pass the house."

Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, said the revenue committee expects to close hearings next Wednesday.

C. R. Brookins Sues Athletic Control Body

Asks $1,843 Damages; Asserts Removal Unjust

Charles R. Brookins, former assistant track coach at the University of Iowa, filed suit yesterday morning for $1,843.35 damages against the Iowa board in control of athletics, E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, Clement C. Williams, Rudolph Kuever, Howard Bye, Chester Phillips, Henning Larsen, Rolling Perkins, Ralph Fenton, Frederick Higbee, Rush Butler, and Earl Hall, as members of the board in control of athletics.

Brookins declares in his petition that on Sept. 1, 1930, he entered into a verbal contract with Lauer, acting on behalf of the athletic board, for employment as assistant track coach for a period from Sept. 1, 1930, to Aug. 31, 1931. He was to receive a salary of $2,400 a year, payable in monthly installments of $200.

Brookins charges that on Nov. 15 he was removed as assistant track coach without just or legal cause. He then went to work for T. D. Kelley, Iowa City, for $100 a month. From there he went to work for the Iowa Dress club of Oskaloosa, at a commission averaging $80 a month.

He adds in his petition that he was authorized by George Bresnahan, track coach, and Lauer, to make several trips to interview athletes. He relates that these trips cost him $502.35, which was to have been paid by the board but was not.

The dismissal of Brookins from the university staff followed the filing of bigamy charges against him by the state on Nov. 7, 1930.

He was married to Mrs. Ethel Held secretly at Alamo, Ill., on Sept. 4, 1930. On Oct. 31, 1930, he was married to Dorothy Covey of Oskaloosa at Valparaiso, Ind. At that time he said that he did not know Mrs. Held had not obtained a divorce as he believed. Mrs. Held divorced him on Nevada Nov. 10, 1930, and on that date he remarried Miss Covey at Canton, Mo.

Brookins was tried on the bigamy charges in District court here but was acquitted.

He still holds the world record for the 220 yard high hurdles with a time of 23 seconds.

Leads Hawks to Victory in Shuttle Relay

Brocksmith, Metcalfe, Wilson Top Field of Tracksters

By BILL RUTLEDGE (Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan)
DES MOINES, April 30—George Saling whizzed up into the front ranks of the prospects for the United States Olympic team along with three others in the Drake relays here this afternoon.

The spindly University of Iowa track captain bounded over the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.4 seconds to trim the Drake meet mark and equal the recognized world time. A knocked down hurdle disqualified him from becoming co-holder of the world record.

The only other Hawkeye first place winner was the shuttle relay team, which Saling anchored, taking the baton from Everett Handorf in second place and flying to the tape ahead of all. The time of 1:01.6 replaced the former Drake mark.

Tops Nation's Hurdlers
Saling's performances yesterday stamped him as the premier college hurdler in the country. His victories regained for Iowa the hurdle supremacy it has held through the careers of Charley Brookins and Frank "Babs" Cuhel in previous Olympic years.

IOWA PLACE WINNERS
120 yard high hurdles—Won by Capt. George Saling. Time—14.4 seconds. (New Drake relay record; former record, 14.6, by Saling in preliminaries. Ties recognized world record.)

480 yard shuttle hurdle relay—Won by Iowa (Thurston, Jackson, Handorf, Saling). Time—1:01.6. (New Drake relay record; former mark 1:01.9 by Illinois in 1930.)

Hammer throw—Cornog, third, 141.72 feet; Barker, fourth, 139.60 feet.

Pole vault—Okerlin, fourth. Complete summary of events of Drake relays will be found on page seven.)

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university's sophomore sprinter, schiltladed in three events. In the 100 yard dash for the American championship he sped down the straightaway in 9.5 seconds to equal the Drake and world records. Behind him all the way were Oliver of Texas Christian university and Joe Klexer of Kansas in second and third places respectively. Jack Burnett, bronzed Olympic threat from Mississippi university, finished a disappointing fourth.

Marquette the half mile relay when Metcalfe took the baton from a teammate in the field and sprang around the last turn to a first place. He did the same thing in the university quarter mile relay except that he was inches behind the University of Illinois runner in second.

Brocksmith Shines
The 7,000 spectators left the meet convinced that Henry Brocksmith, Indiana university's great distance runner, was one of the best in the country. The bespectacled Hoosier ran three miles in the meet—spragging the entire field in the individual two mile run to knock a 9.5 seconds dent into the Drake mark and establish a new American intercollegiate record of 9:13.6.

The mechanical Big Ten mile and two mile champ anchored Indiana's winning four mile relay quartet.

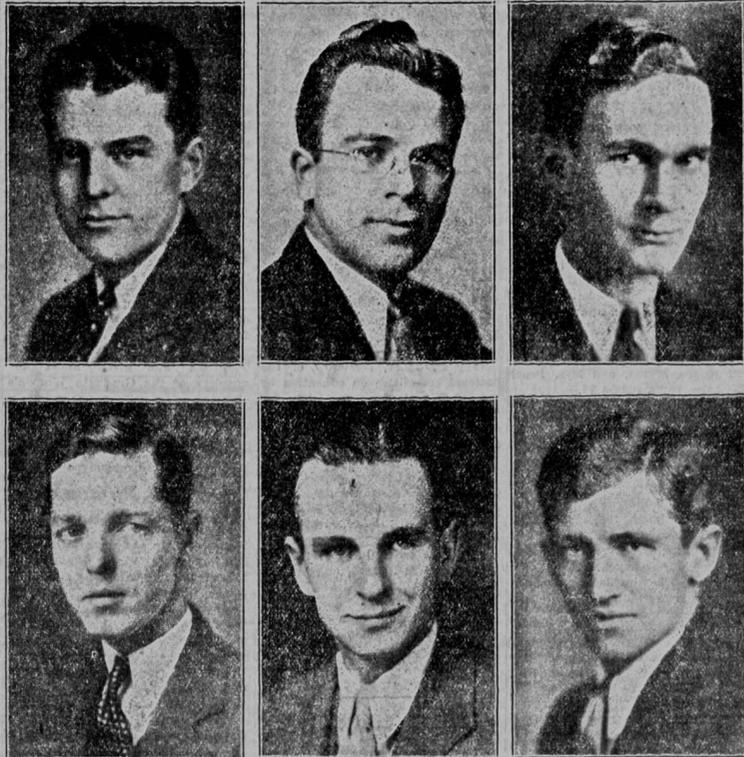

Now for Alex Wilson, Notre Dame's brilliant quarter miler and a member of the Canadian Olympic team in 1928. In the two mile relay the Irish were more than 20 yards in arrears of Iowa State as Wilson took up the baton and dashed past the Cyclone runner to a new meet record of 7:48.8.

Irish Win Mile
Notre Dame annexed the prized mile relay crown only because Wilson cut loose in the last lap to beat back the challenges of Michigan and Grinnell. The Hawkeyes finished last when Gordon Lagerquist tripped and fell midway in the first lap. Before he got to his feet the other runners were so far ahead that the Iowans could not catch up with them.

Two places in the hammer throw went to Iowa representatives—a third to Cornog and fourth to Barker. Okerlin won fourth in the pole vault.

Abilene Christian college of Texas edged out Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg, Kan., team in the mile and sprint medley college relay.

REPRESENTATIVE ENGINEERS OF IOWA

Urge Vote by State Groups on Prohibition

Minnesota Republican Instructions Come as Surprise

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 30 (AP)—Minnesota Republicans today instructed their 25 delegates to the national Republican convention to support President Hoover after adopting a resolution urging re-submission of the eighteenth amendment.

Proposal Unexpected
Strong support of the president's administration came as no surprise but the success of the re-submission proposal was unexpected and came after outspoken dries waged a vigorous battle to defeat it. It was adopted by a vote of 447 to 373.

Without advocating repeal, the resolution proposes that the amendment be re-submitted "to the people through the medium of state conventions elected for that purpose as provided for in article five of the constitution of the United States."

Boo Dry Speaker
Boos greeted Arthur E. Nelson, former St. Paul mayor, when he opposed the re-submission plank with the assertion that "we shouldn't take a stand on the question because it will alienate thousands of loyal friends of the party who are dry." He urged the matter be left to the national convention.

"The Republican party has been alienating thousands of friends who are disgusted with its pussyfooting on prohibition," Dan Richter of Minneapolis, replied.

Harold Cassill Wins First Place in 1933 Hawkeye Sales Contest

First prize of $100 in the spring Hawkeye sales contest which closed last night at midnight was awarded to Harold Cassill, who led a field of 17 contestants.

Ten sales behind Cassill was Harriet James, winner of the $50 second prize. John Rolleston, winning third place, was awarded $25 plus commission on sales, while Ed Kelly and Lucy Marsh tied for the fourth prize of $10 plus sales commissions.

Other places were: Charlotte Kanealy, sixth; Hunter Gehlbach, seventh; Brydon Myers, eighth; Kenneth Kohler, ninth; and Edith Erickson, tenth.

Attorney General Says Ousted Auditor Will Still Receive Salary

DES MOINES, April 30 (AP)—J. W. Long, suspended state auditor, will continue to be paid a salary by the state, amounting to $5,000 annually, until his successor is elected or the legislature reinstates him.

This Attorney General John Fletcher decided today, his opinion being given at the request of C. Fred Porter, acting auditor since Long was suspended on charges of "padding" expense accounts.

The opinion held that the state auditor is one of the officers who cannot be removed permanently except by impeachment, and that the suspension deprives Long of the duties but not the salary of the office.

Hope Climax Near at Hand in Baby Hunt

NORFOLK, Va., April 30 (AP)—The oft-hoped-for climax, screened behind a curtain of secrecy, and with the sea again serving as the probable scene, was believed to be near tonight in the efforts of three Norfolk men to restore the Lindbergh baby to its parents.

The feeling of hopefulness, repeatedly recurring with the coming and going of the intern diaries during the long weeks of their negotiations, reached another high peak with the absence of John Hughes Curtis, presumably seeking another contact with supposed kidnapers off the Virginia coast.

Although his movements were guarded with utmost secrecy, the Norfolk boat builder was reported to have engaged upon his new mission aboard the yacht Marcon shortly after returning from a trip by plane.

G. O. P. in Tennessee Splits on Candidates

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 30 (AP)—Amid confusion Republican conventions of the first and second Tennessee districts split today, with factions of each endorsing different candidates for congress but all pledging support of President Hoover.

Police Mass for May Day

Look for Big Time in Russia, Trouble in Other Lands.

(By The Associated Press)
Precautions against May day disorders were taken today by municipalities and national governments in many parts of the world—but in Russia, where the holiday is a festival for the government instead of against it, everybody got ready to have a big time.

Clash in Philadelphia
As a prelude to the international labor holiday, police and demonstrators clashed yesterday in Philadelphia, several organizations attempted to march on the Philadelphia city hall, when the disorders were over, a detective, four policemen and 16 of the paraders were treated at hospitals. Several persons were arrested.

New York police, 18,000 strong, received orders to remain on duty continuously from Saturday morning until Monday morning. Sunday parades were banned.

Foreign Countries
May day preparations in foreign countries included the following: Paris—All outdoor meetings and parades were forbidden. Summary orders were issued to escort to the national border any foreigner found raising trouble. The Republican guard in Paris and the mobile gendarmerie in the provinces were held in readiness.

Tie-up in Spain
Madrid—The government marshalled police and civil guards while Spain prepared to observe May day with a virtually complete tie-up of industrial, commercial and recreational activity. Workers' celebrations meant shutdowns for newspapers, stores, cafes and amusement places as well as an end of service on street cars, subways and many trains. Parades and political meetings were forbidden in many cities.

Arrest 700 in Poland
Warsaw—To forestall disturbances throughout Poland the authorities arrested 700 persons. Police paid special attention to trains from Russia in which they said bolshevik agents have been carrying on propaganda.

Santiago, Chile—The government mobilized 18,000 men to stop possible disorders. A general strike, called for Monday by communist leaders, was ordered abandoned by the authorities.

81 Foot Photographs
Moscow—Two gigantic photographs of Nikolai Lenin and Joseph Stalin, measuring 81 feet high and 26 feet wide, were displayed while the proletariat prepared for a festive day.

Economy Bill Suffers Blow in House Vote

Expected Saving From 25 to 100 Millions by Consolidation

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—The weakened omnibus economy bill was knocked staggering today in the house by a terrific blow that eliminated one of its major proposals—the consolidation of the army and navy under a department of national defense.

Aided by Democratic insurgents the proposition 153 to 155 after a two hour battle of debate in which its proponents said savings would run from $25,000,000 to $100,000,000 and more.

Army Man Starts Action
Action came on a motion by Representative Martin, Democrat, Oregon, retired major general and former assistant chief of staff of the army, who previously had blocked house consideration of the proposal as an independent measure.

A yell went up from the Republican side as Representative Warren, Democrat, North Carolina, presiding, announced the decision. It was the second victory of the day for the administration.

Approve Public Works
Earlier the Democratic and Republican leaders overrode insurgents and secured approval of the creation of a public works administration by defeating 91 to 20 a move by Representative Johnson, Democrat, Texas, to strike the section from the controversial bill.

The senate, meanwhile, sent back to the house the second departmental supply bill trimmed to 10 per cent. Carrying $112,000,000 for the state, justice, commerce, and labor departments as it left the senate, the bill provided for a $1,000,000 slash in prohibition enforcement costs.

Previously the senate had reduced the interior department bill 10 per cent. This was accepted by the house and signed by President Hoover.

Democrats for Consolidation
Democratic leaders had hung many of their hopes on the army and navy consolidation proposal, to which President Hoover has voiced opposition on numerous occasions.

Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, delivered nearly his entire force, excepting Representative La Guardia of New York, an independent, and several other Republicans from northwestern states, to defeat the proposal.

Vinson Against Provision
Chairman Vinson of the naval committee, a Georgia Democrat, threw his support against the provision along with Tammany Hall Democrats from New York. La Guardia spoke for the consolidation.

Although Chairman McDuffie of the economy committee said the army and navy consolidation's estimated savings were not included in the $200,000,000 estimated, it brought to about $10,000,000 the amount that has been eliminated from the measure.

When consideration of the measure was begun today $87,000,000 had been eliminated and $42,000,000 in savings approved. There was no estimated saving through the creation of the public works bureau.

Polar Flyer Stops in City Over Night

Bernt Balchen, Commander Byrd's pilot on the south pole dash and world famous flyer, spent the night in Iowa City Friday while enroute to New York on a transcontinental flight from San Francisco.

The veteran pilot said that he is touring the United States for the purpose of making a survey of airway facilities. He left in a United Airways plane yesterday morning.

Recover Body in River

DES MOINES (AP)—The body of Ray Rhoades, 20, suspected prohibition law violator was recovered from the river. He jumped into the water last week in an attempt to escape officials who had raided a still on the river bank.

Committee Approves Loans

DES MOINES (AP)—The Iowa Loan committee of the Reconstruction Finance corporation said that loans totaling $19,519,300 have been approved for Iowa banks and other financing institutions.

Wylie Urges All to Study Constellations

Tells Parents to Teach Children Star Lore in Club Talk

Astronomy can be a recreation for the whole family, and it is a game which is not only fascinating, but instructive, Prof. C. C. Wylie of the astronomy department told members of the Child Study club at its monthly meeting yesterday. His talk, "The story of the constellations," followed a luncheon at 12:15 p.m. on the sunporch of Iowa Union.

"Teach the names of the constellations to your children," urged Professor Wylie. "Show them how to tell time by the stars. Let them see eclipses and meteor showers. When you are out riding in the evening, point out Venus and the Big Dipper."

A discussion on the subject of reference books suitable for children of various ages, and of possible visits by local children to the university observatory, followed his talk.

A report on work that is being accomplished by a committee for the betterment of local moving picture showings was given by Mrs. E. T. Hubbard, chairman. Investigation is being made into possibility of breaking up the so-called "block system" in which theater managers must present shows sent to them by a head office, she announced. "The monthly moving picture shows presented at Longfellow school provide an opportunity for the whole family to get wholesome entertainment at nominal cost," she suggested.

A brief announcement was made by Lulu Palmer of the child welfare department, regarding the establishment of a nursery school in Iowa City. She stressed the importance of early training and habit formation as a foundation to personality of later life.

Announcement was made of cabinet members for next year, as chosen by President-Elect Mrs. R. R. Whipple, and Mrs. F. B. Knight, vice president of the organization. Those named were: Mrs. H. Dabney Kerr, secretary; Mrs. George Kosok, treasurer; Mrs. William Morgan, Mrs. Dean Lierle, and Mrs. Norman C. Meier, program committee.

Plans were discussed for the final meeting of the year, May 14, at the home of Mrs. Ernest Horn, 832 Kirkwood avenue. This will take the place of the annual picnic, and if weather conditions permit, the affair will take the form of a garden party. At this time, yearly reports are to be given by the treasurer and historian of the organization. The luncheon is to be at 12:15 p.m.

Chic Simplicity

Pattern 2334

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

The loveliest of all warm weather frocks are those fashioned of serviceable fabrics that can be laundered as often as you wish without fear of wear. Perhaps the most popular this season are shantung, pique, broadcloth, linen, lawn and seersucker. In print, in plain color or in white they make up beautifully in simple styles like the one sketched today. It's easy to make and very smart.

Pattern 2334 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 36-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED. SEND FOR OUR CURRENT FASHION CATALOG. This beautiful, colorful book offers 32 pages of chic, authentic Anne Adams styles for adults and children. The newest frocks for afternoon, evening and sports wear, exquisite lingerie, attractive house dresses and adorable kiddie models are featured—all personally chosen by Anne Adams and all fashionable, practical and easy and inexpensive to make. ## Be kind to that face of yours-- install automatic hot water service

The new Autohot Special is designed to meet the hot water requirements of the entire family, automatically, at nominal cost. In appearance it is smart and colorful. As a convenience it is needed in every home. Tank is replaceable. Radiation loss is prevented by thick insulation. Snap acting thermostat permits gas to burn only in proportion to your need for hot water. Available in a variety of sizes priced to fit your budget.

A GOOD razor helps. So does a good soap. But it's the water that actually determines the results.

If it's cold you are in for a disagreeable, whisker pulling, chin scrape.

If it's gloriously hot and furnished automatically, you get a smooth, clean shave in record time.

As a beauty aid for the housewife and an all around convenience for the rest of the family it is equally valuable.

Yet the cost of this service amounts to but a few cents per person per day.

Why not come in tomorrow? See the new, more economical, Autohots. Have one installed in your home.

Hawkeye Nine Falls Before Michigan State Rally, 4 to 3, in 10 Innings

Winners Get Run in Ninth to Tie Score

Victory Gave Series Sweep to Spartan Aggregation

EAST LANSING, Mich., April 30 (AP)—Michigan State made a clean sweep of its two-game baseball series with the University of Iowa, winning the final game today, 4-3, in 10 innings.

The Spartans spotted their opponents a three run lead and then came from behind to tie the score in the ninth and win out in an extra frame. Alto Kircher, first man up for State in the tenth, tripled and was brought in by Madonna's single.

Iowa nicked McCaslin, State pitcher, for four hits and three runs in the second inning, but he held the Hawkeyes the rest of the way.

Sportively Speaking

By Bill Rutledge

DES MOINES, April 30—There is a slight possibility that Capt. George Saling will get official credit for equalling the world's high hurdle record of 14.4 seconds at the Drake relays here today. The bar to acceptance of the mark is the knocked down hurdle. A few of the meet officials claim that Saling did not kick over the barrier; but that a Wisconsin university hurdler was responsible.

A mild debate has arisen over the matter. World marks are so rigid that it is extremely difficult to bend them under most any circumstances. If the debate over the hurdle that was knocked over in his lane was won for Saling, an argument would come up over the wind or something else. At all events, Saling looked like a world beater to the relays throng.

The Chicago Cubs are so well fixed in first place in the National league that it appears that they will stay there for a while. Burleigh Grimes, the veteran spitalier obtained from the St. Louis Cardinals last winter, hasn't pitched a game. When he gets going to supplement the work of those now winning for the Bruins—well, the Cubs will move up that much further ahead.

Babe Ruth is earning that $75,000 he is drawing for this season from the Yankees management. His homer yesterday enabled the New Yorkers to turn back the meek Boston Red Sox.

Old Jack Quinn, who lost a game for Brooklyn in the thirteenth inning with the Phillies, is reputed to be more than 50 years of age. He's listed as 43, but it has been figured out that he is past that. The Athletics lost another game. They couldn't win with Lefty Grove. What's wrong? . . . Something, surely.

Indians Trip Sox in Loose Tilt 10-7

CLEVELAND, April 30 (AP)—Despite five errors, the Cleveland Indians had enough punch at bat to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 7, today for their seventh straight victory.

Morgan's double off Al Thomas in the eighth with the bases full gave the Indians the edge after the Sox had tied the score in their half of the inning when the Indian defense cracked. The Tribe batted out six runs off Vic Frasier in the second after spotting the visitors to a five run lead.

Tigers Even Series With Browns by 4-3

ST. LOUIS, April 30 (AP)—The Detroit Americans evened the series count today by defeating the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3, with the aid of Gehring's home run with one on base.

The Tigers made all run-producing hits off Sam Gray, who went five innings for the Browns, while Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw, allowed St. Louis only seven safeties.

Losers Find Crowder for Only 5 Hits

Nats Get to Lefty Grove in Eighth for 2 Markers

WASHINGTON, April 30 (AP)—A resounding wallop by Moe Berg to deep left field for a two-bagger drove Reynolds home with the winning run today to give the Washington Senators their sixth consecutive victory over the Philadelphia Athletics and end a pitching duel between Robert Moses Grove and Alvin Crowder by a score of 2 to 1.

Philadelphia collected five hits off Crowder in the nine innings. The Senators garnered nine off Grove in their eight sessions at bat.

Going into the eighth inning a run behind the Athletics, Cronin connected for a two-bagger. Berg drove out a long two-bagger into deep left field, pushing across the winning run.

Philadelphia's scoring was done in the seventh by Cochrane. The Athletic catcher smacked out a double, scoring on Fox's single.

Ruth Clouts Sixth to Give Yanks Win

NEW YORK, April 30 (AP)—Hod Lisenbee held the slugging Yankees to eight hits today but he made the mistake of throwing home run balls to Babe Ruth, Bill Dickey, and Earl Combs, and the league leaders took their third straight from the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 3.

Ruth's, his sixth of the young season, came in the eighth inning, with Sammy Byrd on base and the score tied. Combs' blow, which followed, wasn't needed. Earl Webb hit a four bagger for the Sox in the first of the eighth to tie the count.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Boston . . . . . 000 101 010—3 7 2

Shuttle Mark Lowered

Ohio State galloped off with three major relay championships for the best showing of any college squad and topped it off by breaking the carnival record in the 480 yard shuttle hurdle relay. In this spectacular event the Buckeyees, Black and Keller, came like a pair of greyhounds from behind to beat Dartmouth and lower the mark to 1 minute, 2.5 seconds.

The remaining three carnival records to fall came tumbling in the field events. George Williams of Hampton institute, Virginia, broke his own mark by hurling the javelin 205 feet 2 2-8 inches. Jones of New York university pushed the shotput mark out to an even 50 feet, and two mid-westerners, Beecher of Indiana, and Wonsowitz of Ohio State, shared the new pole vault record at a height of 13 feet 6 inches.

Seventh Win in Row; Hold League Lead

Bill Herman Stars at Bat; Three Homers Mark Game

CHICAGO, April 30 (AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals cracked 23 year old Lonnie Warneke for a pair of home runs today, but the Cubs collected eight hits in groups off Flint Rhem to win their second straight victory of the series, 5 to 3.

Today's triumph was the Cubs' seventh straight and their tenth in 11 games, and kept them at the top of the National league.

A high wind helped the batsmen and Jimmy Collins and George Watkins got home runs, accounting for all the Cardinal runs. Charlie Grimm, Chicago first baseman, also hit for the circuit.

Pi K. A. Net Team Wins From Triangle

The Pi Kappa Alpha intramuralists split a doubleheader of sports yesterday afternoon, the tennis doubles team taking the Triangle duo into camp, 6-3, 4-6, and 6-2, and the horseshoe pitchers losing to Delta Sigma Delta.

Parker Bennett and Howard Wickley wielded the rackets for Pi Kappa Alpha in the tennis triumph. The winning horseshoe team for Delta Sigma Delta was made up of Canby and Hamilton. They opposed Day and Wickley for the losers.

Pennsylvania Mile Quartet Wins at Penn

Shatters Carnival Mark With Fast Time of 3:15.4

By ALAN GOULD

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, April 30 (AP)—As the climax to six record-smashing performances, the University of Pennsylvania's flashy one mile relay team today blasted loose its own meet record by whirling through the dust in 3 minutes, 15.4 seconds in the outstanding feature of the Penn relay carnival.

Before a crowd of 25,000 spectators who turned out for the final days' events, the Quaker flyers—Steel, Edwards, Healey and Carr wiped out their own former carnival mark of 3:18.

It was the fastest mile relay ever run on eastern tracks and less than three seconds short of the unofficial world mark of 3:12.6, credited to Stanford's great quartet.

Four Canadian school boys running for Hamilton Collegiate institute accounted for the only world record of the carnival when they romped off with the interscholastic two mile championship in the starting time of 8 minutes 10.1 seconds, this bettered by more than six seconds the previous record, set in 1930 by the Lakewood (Ohio) high school.

In the first inning Watkins walked and Collins poked one into the stands, putting St. Louis in front. Rogers Hornsby's club failed to score until the fourth, but piled up all its runs in four consecutive innings. Bill Herman, Grimm and Hack counted.

The final Cubs run came in the seventh when Hack slammed out a triple and was driven in by Herman's third hit of the day. Herman was the Cub batting star, driving in two runs and scoring one.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30 (AP)—After trailing 3-7 at the end of the fourth inning, the Phillies came back today to win a 13 inning slug-ging duel from the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 7.

Jack Quinn's wild pitch in the thirteenth with Pinkey Witney on third, two out and two strikes on Pinch Hitter Scarritt sent the Phillies' captain across with the winning run.

MAY COAL PRICES

Not in years has the retail coal dealer been able to offer coal for summer fills at prices like these. They are for the month of May only and may be the same, or higher, in June. We will guarantee there will be no decrease.

Heat is something we all have to have each winter. Insure your heat cost being low by filling your bin NOW, while coal is being sold at less than cost of production and handling.

You have our guarantee that each coal is of our usual high quality and that the lower price is possible only because of lowered mine and handling costs.

Complete Plans for Brookhart Reception, Dinner, Speeches

Will Give Two Talks Tuesday; Guest at Kiwanis Club

United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart will be in Iowa City Tuesday to deliver two addresses. It will be the second day of his campaign tour.

Kiwanis Guest

He will be guest and speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon at the Jefferson hotel at noon. From 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. he will receive friends in the Jefferson hotel lobby.

A round table discussion and reception will be held by Senator Brookhart at the American Legion Community building from 3:30 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. Students and the general public are expected to attend the discussion.

A "Brookhart" dinner will be held Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Legion building, to which all persons are invited. Reservations for the dinner should be made with any of the following before Tuesday noon: R. L. Lee, V. R. Miller, Horrabin Contracting company, Kenneth Dunlop, F. F. Rodgers, Bowman Electric company, or Krueger's Shoe store.

Address at Legion

At 8 p.m. the main address of the day will be delivered by Senator Brookhart at the ball room at the Legion building. Delegates from surrounding cities as far as Grinnell are expected to attend.

Germany ranks third, after the United States and England, in the production and consumption of gas.

A University of California extension course has been opened to the public in the study of birds.

5 Day Law Hits Cupid's Average in Johnson County

been issued by the Johnson county clerk's office since that time. The year preceding the law, 298 licenses were issued, so if Dan Cupid doesn't get pretty busy these last two months his Johnson county stock is going to crash way below its previous rating.

No longer are there any "marring squires" in Iowa City for the justices of the peace have performed only eight marriage ceremonies since last July. In previous years over 90 couples in each twelve-month pronounced the marriage vows. Couples now go to neighboring states if they don't want to wait the five days, for Iowa's Dan Cupid has his arrows stacked against him.

Court Adjourned

The February term of district court was adjourned by Judge Harold D. Evans. The May term will open tomorrow.

Charged for Overloads

Three hundred and ninety seven dollars were collected from L. E. Pitman by the auto license department as a charge for overloads hauled by Pitman's material trucks.

Trustee of $110,000 Mortgage

Hearing on the application of Joseph A. and Alberta F. O'Leary and Theodore and Anna M. Stark for the appointment of a trustee of a $110,000 trust deed on the Iowa apartments to succeed the Farmers Loan and Trust company, was set for May 16 at 9 a.m. The application suggests the Peoples Savings bank or the Merchants National bank of Cedar Rapids as possible trustees.

Drivers' Licenses

Applications for drivers' licenses were filed with Sheriff Don McComas by Mary L. Hain, Brookline Carson, Edwin Shain, Mrs. Herbert Wonicke, Reed Diltz, T. J. Wilkin-

Value of Speculation

A LARGE SHARE of senatorial activity in investigating the stock market operations that led to deflation is centering around "speculation," and a concerted effort is being made to show the public that speculators have been to blame for most of the unemployment, low wages, and low prices that have characterized the last two years.

And with a fine gesture of vengeance the senatorial investigating committee recently published the names of "short sellers" those pernicious operators who, any investor of the last few years will assure one, have bled the small investor by causing deflation in the stock market.

The senate committee has the right idea, but it becomes more and more apparent that it is not discriminating properly between speculation and manipulation in its efforts to curb short selling.

Speculation, whether it be in a rising or falling market is highly desirable. The action of the speculator in predicting a rise or fall, and his buying or selling in advance of that action, prevents the market from hitting the lows they might have plumed had not the speculator been active.

Selling short is absolutely necessary to many manufacturers who must hedge when buying raw materials in order to protect themselves against market fluctuations.

If congress should lose its balance so far as to restrict short selling, commodity prices would have to remain high enough at all times to absorb the risk of the manufacturer in his purchase of raw materials.

Homecoming Badge Contest: HOME COMING seems rather remote to a campus that is filled with activity in preparation for final examinations and graduation.

The committee in charge of selecting a badge design reports a discouraging number of entrants in the contest. And the success of any contest depends largely upon the number of entries, the spirit of competition.

The New Philosopher's Stone: THE ANNOUNCEMENT that hitherto unknown deposits of radium have been discovered in Canada has resulted in a "radium rush," as thousands of prospectors have hurried to the scene of the discovery, hoping to share in the possible profits.

trate thin sheets of metal and leave their mark on a photographic plate, and that this amazing penetrating power gave radium its name.

That in spite of the law of physics which teaches that no energy is ever created or destroyed, radium constantly throws off such quantities of energy in the form of heat, light, and electricity, with such a slow loss of weight, that the discovery of radium upset previous conceptions of physical energy?

That radium is procured from uranium, in the ratio of one part of radium to 3,200,000 parts of uranium, and that because of the difficulties of producing it, it is worth about $18,000,000 a pound?

That it is as white as silver, and a vacuum, retains its brilliant luster, but if exposed to the air, it tarnishes rapidly?

That a heat of 1,292 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary to melt pure radium?

That diamonds exposed to radium over long periods of time have changed in color, and even after the lapse of years have shown some of the powers of radium itself?

That the carnotite fields of Colorado and Utah, notably in Paradox Valley, have hitherto been the richest radium bearing areas in the world? It is still a question whether the reported discovery in Canada will prove to be a richer source.

Apparently a modern philosopher's stone, to be up to the minute, would have to have the power to transmute the baser metals, including gold and silver, into radium.

There is a great woman behind every successful man, announces a women's magazine. Quite a distance behind, remarks the office cynic.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Although 11,500,000 Frenchmen are expected to go to the polls today to select a new chamber of deputies, the government's policies are not expected to change. Germany will still be treated with "firmness and conciliation" and the domestic platform to cut unemployment through national works will be continued.

That can be done in France where coalitions may assure the government that its program will be supported even in a conglomerate lower chamber. Yet Premier Andre Tardieu is wondering whether he can get the support that he will seek this summer on reparations, war debts, and disarmament.

The failure of the "Big Five" conference at Geneva last week is seen in French circles as a lucky break for Premier Tardieu who failed to appear at the meeting with Secretary of State Stimson, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, and Prime Minister Ramsay Mac Donald because of an attack of laryngitis.

Stimson, charged in French newspapers as a meddler, was characterized as having been sent by Washington to "gather a diplomatic laurel wreath," since he came to Geneva with no plenary powers from his government to commit the U. S. to a stand on disarmament, war debts, or reparations.

Tardieu's illness, a "diplomatic" one to the French, is given as the real reason for the collapse of the conference. But Tardieu's friends say he will return to Geneva when he recovers and startle the world with a speech on secret armaments of Germany. By that time, however, the other four leaders will probably be safe at home.

While the reactionaries in the United States are looking to the Democrats for a revival of better times, Republican hopes are mounting on the basis of continued disagreement and disorganization in the Democratic party. With the real issues being consistently evaded by all candidates, Governor Roosevelt is still far from obtaining the 770 delegates necessary to nominate, while former Governor Smith is coming more and more in the open with his attacks on his successor.

The naming of two more potential nominees, Owen D. Young and John W. Davis via capitol hill gossip, while not complicating matters much, indicates that nobody will have the convention clinched until he is nominated. And for that matter, neither party seems to be able to predict the presidency until sometime after Nov. 7.

Far from signalling the end of the Massie case controversy, the manslaughter verdict brought in the other day was only the starting point for a new series of disturbances and outbreaks of race hatred in the Hawaiian islands. First result noted was announcement of a boycott on all establishments employing members of the Massie jury by a group of white women.

If nothing else, the Honolulu case proved almost conclusively that the famous criminal lawyer, Clarence Darrow, has reached the turning point in his long and brilliant career. Jurors agreed that Darrow talked to them as if they were a "lot of farmers" instead of rather well-educated men. "That stuff may go over big in the middle west," one of them said, "but not here."

With May Day celebrations closely watched by police in the larger cities of the world, today's international labor holiday is expected to result in bloodshed and riot before the end of the day, if precautions are any criteria. In New York city, 18,000 policemen received orders to remain on duty from Saturday until Monday morning, while in Santiago, Chile, 1,800 men have been mobilized to stop possible disorders.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON: The greatest kidnaper of modern times: Czar Nicholas I (1796-1855) stained his reign by acts of unspeakable cruelty against his Russian subjects. On March 9, 1832, "His Majesty" deigned to issue an order to transport 100,000 children to distant parts of Russia. With heartrending disregard of any human sentiment, the Russian authorities proceeded to tear over 100,000 infants, aged from one to eight years, from the arms of their Catholic or Jewish parents. The kidnapped children were fastened by twos and dragged in the dead of winter into the heart of Russia. "The Russian roads presently were strewn with the little bodies dying of fatigue. Those who survived were farmed out to ignorant peasants, who brought them up in the Orthodox faith. Upon reaching military age the "cantonists" were incorporated in the Russian army for a period of 25 years. None of them ever saw homes again. The "cantonists" are an ineffaceable blot on the history of Russia in the nineteenth century. Land-level is 10,000 feet below sea level; Sea-level is not level, due to the many movements to which the ocean is subjected and because of the attraction of elevated masses of land upon the waves. Scientific efforts have resulted in determining that the mean level of the whole land surface lies along a line 10,000 feet below present "sea-level." The abyssal area below this line is of equal extent with the area above it. Fahrenheit's work: Fahrenheit, who first made a mercury thermometer, took as his zero the lowest temperature then obtainable (a mixture of salt and ice.) Taking the temperature of the human body as a standard, he established it at 98 degrees. Others then discovered that the boiling point of water was a more easily determinable standard and the Fahrenheit thermometer was changed, through fixing of the boiling point at 212 degrees and of the temperature of the human body at 98.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

WARNERS report Glenda Farrell is on her way here by plane to repeat her stage role in the screen version of "Life Begins." Now that its plan has received so much publicity, the studio has decided to retain the original title of the maternity hospital melodrama. For a while it was called "Woman's Day." This picture will have an all stage trained cast, with the exception of Loretta Young. Of interest is the fact that it will mark the screen debut of Reginald Mason, who came out here with Grace George in "The First Mrs. Fraser." Two directors, James Flood and Elliott Nugent, will take on the difficult assignment. AND SO TO GOSSIP: James Duffin is back on the Fox lot. If his injured ribs continue to improve, he'll return to work soon. Continuing his row with the censors over "Scarface" Howard Hughes left his yacht at Mazatlan and flew into Los Angeles for conferences with his attorneys on the proposed suits against the New York scissor-wielders. # "THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

SYNOPSIS

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, becomes engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy sports promoter, who is much older. Later, Mary meets young Steve Moore, Landers' ward. They are attracted to one another immediately. Landers asks Steve to entertain Mary while he is out of town. The bond between the young couple grows but thoughts of Landers form a barrier. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers. One evening Steve takes Mary in his arms. Then, conscience stricken, he tells her they must not see each other again. Next day, Landers' former sweetheart calls on Mary and threatens her. Mary longs for Steve but days pass with no word from him. Finally he comes to say he is going west. She persuades him to stay. They spend the evening together at Landers' hotel. Just as they exchange fervid love vows, Landers walks in.

CHAPTER XVIII

"I'll give you back your ring, Mr. Landers—" Mary said eagerly. "But you mustn't feel as if Steve was a criminal—" "I thought I might depend on you for gratitude—if nothing else!" the older man threw at her. "What you don't seem to understand is that you belong to me. I found you and you can't give me the air as easy as all this. You'll come back into line all right. I see, though, you can't be given a loose rein."

Once more he turned to Steve. His voice was rigid: "Are you willing to drop all this right now?" "I am not!" Landers threw the dead stump of his cigar out the window. "All right—you've set the pace. You double-crossed me—the best friend you ever had. I offered you a chance to straighten up and you refused. Everything looks hotsy-totsy to you now but you're dumb. You're going up against a better man than you ever met in your life. You can't get away with this. I got a dozen ways of stopping you, whenever I want. Now get this. You'd better lay off Mary, or something pretty bad is going to happen to you. Something that will make you as gentle and easy to handle as a kitten. You're in a big, tough town now and it's nothing like college. I'm telling you—I'm warning you. You're not going to have a chance to enjoy Mary. Better men than you have been framed and, by heaven, they will be again!"

Mary's pulse was beating wildly; she saw that Steve's face had turned pale. Landers was like ice, absolutely sure of himself. He was as authoritative as a judge pronouncing sentence upon a criminal. A wild terror surged in her heart. . . this was danger, danger! He was going to do something dreadful to Steve, he was going to hurt him. . . to kill him. . . "Please! Listen!" She took a few steps towards Landers. "You're upset, Mr. Landers. We haven't harmed you, nothing of us. Steve has practically worshipped you. You ground you've walked on. He still does."

"A lot he shows it," Landers retorted. "A lucky thing for him I got tipped off you two were in this room. And lucky for you I'm not going to get rough with you for disorderly conduct. I could slap you both in jail. What do you think of that?" Mary dropped on the sofa, buried her face into her hands. Landers left Steve and Mary in the room. He simply strode out, and closed the door behind him. Alone, they faced each other, shaken and disturbed. Humiliation, a tingling sense of shame, burned in Mary's face. Steve was white, his nerves taut.

So far as Mary was concerned, all her connections with Buck Landers were ended—even her position as secretary to the manager of the hotel. But that was not even a minor worry. She could always find employment. Her heart went out to Steve, though. His future with Landers was blasted; he had thrown it away gladly for her. What gripped her heart with a cold terror, was the bloodless threat Landers had made against the youth she loved. Not yet could her mind absorb the deadly menace, but deeper than thought, was an instinct of fear for the safety of the loved one. It was precisely as though an actual chill centered in her breast, and was pumping a cold current through her veins.

"We must get out of here," she said suddenly. "Yes, we're through here," he responded grimly.

Something caught at her heart with an infinite pain of tenderness. She wanted to hold him with his head on her breast as though he were a child—her child, that had been hurt.

"It isn't your fault—not a bit of it," she told him valiantly. "He acted horribly. And about the money and all—don't you worry for a minute about that, Steve. We don't need anybody's money."

He squeezed her hand. "I'm not worried about that. I got you into a dirty mess, Mary—it was a rotten thing to do. Come on, we'll get out of here."

They went down on the elevator, their spirits tarnished. She wondered if he realized that Buck Landers was a dangerous man. Those threats. . . "Steve, I'm afraid."

His gray eyes were steady. "No, you're not afraid, Mary." He smiled. "What is it they say on Broadway? 'Smile and keep the show on.'"

She was not calm, but tried to seem so. "Well, he's not going to panic us, thank heaven," she declared, giving him a little hand squeeze.

If anything happened to Steve she would want to die. It was curious, too, how all of the bewildering thrills of physical love-making had scattered and disappeared. There were only surface things. Something deep and perfect—as pure as gold—was in her heart for Steve—it had nothing to do with kissing.

"Steve, you've got to get out of town."

"Don't be foolish, Mary!" "You don't realize how serious this is." They drew aside from the revolving door and lingered momentarily near the entrance of the lounge, off the lobby. "I don't think you realize how tough these people are—people like Mr. Landers. He has men around him that actually are thugs. Gamblers and bad men. Another thing, he said he'd hurt you. When he talks that way I think he means it. You know the papers are always filled up with these gang murders and—"

"Oh, that's nonsense! Buck wouldn't go that far—" "I tell you, you don't realize—" she began; and then, looking at him with desperate entreaty, "Won't you please listen to my advice, Steve? You're just a little boy—" It was a mistake to try to influence him this way. He seemed to lean backward slightly; his face darkened with a kind of resolute stubbornness.

"We'll never get anywhere if we try to govern our conduct by your fears," he told her firmly. "I'm not used to this rough talk of Landers' and neither are you—that's why it seems so dangerous. He's not going to stand between us—remember that. I don't think there will be any trouble. He was angry and we were the cause of it. But nobody is going to hurt us, or run us out of town." Nevertheless, a sudden genuine worry crossed his expression. "The only thing is—but no, nothing can harm you. As long as you're all right, I can look out for myself."

"But if you would only get out of the hotel, Steve."

He nodded. "That's right. I'm through letting Buck pay my bills. It's early yet, and I think I'll go up and pack my stuff right now. You wait here and I'll be down presently, and I have a bell boy check the stuff until I decide where to go."

"But don't be long, dear." "I'll take about twenty minutes."

She found a chair in a shaded corner and, while she waited, her mind went back over their affection since the first meeting—her first impression of him had been that he was lively and humorous—the odd things he said—and the amusing turns of his speech. She could almost remember every word he had uttered to her; but more vivid than conversation, she saw that they had been touched, from the beginning, with some strange, glowing haze that had grown steadily brighter.

And now it was love. But it was dangerous love—there was more to Buck Landers' threat than empty words. No man of his powerful will and cold-blooded pride was going to swallow humiliation from a strapping like Steve. Maybe Landers didn't love her—but he wanted her. . . "If you don't mind," said an unexpected voice, "I got some more things to say to you, Mary."

She looked up. Landers, sullen but collected, was staring down at her. "I'm terribly disappointed in you, Mary," he went on, seating himself. "You didn't give me a square break, and that puts our whole relationship on a difficult basis. Still, if that's the way you play the game, I'm going to play right along with you. Maybe I had too high an opinion of you—that's why I don't blame you as much as I might. You're not a fool, Mary—and I think you're going to listen to reason. You seem to be stuck on Steve right now. I'm sure you wouldn't want something awful to happen to him, would you?"

She stood up abruptly, beginning to tremble all over. "If anything happens to Steve it would kill me," she cried desperately.

He looked at her with hard, remorseless eyes. "As bad as that, eh? Well, it's up to you, my girl. Come on up with me to my apartment, and we'll talk this thing out to the end. We'll put all the cards on the table. Don't think this affair is settled just because you and Steve want it to be. I haven't said the last word yet, and if you value Steve, you'll listen to me. If you don't—well, you can blame yourself for whatever happens."

Her heart almost stopped beating.

CARDS PITCHER SLOW TO START

Paul Derringer, leading pitcher in the National league last season with the St. Louis Cards, is still trying for his first victory on the mound. Yesterday he was knocked out of the box in the seventh inning of the Red Birds game with the Pirates yesterday.

Eastman Again Runs Quarter Under Time of Meredith's Mark

LOS ANGELES, April 30 (AP)—University of Southern California's track team defeated Stanford in their annual dual meet today 81-14 to 491 in a contest in which Ben Eastman of Stanford again broke the recognized world's record for 440-yards. His time was 47.1 seconds.

The existing 440 record of 47.4 seconds was set by Ted Meredith in 1916. Eastman recently ran it in 46.4.

Besides bettering Meredith's record the gangling, spectacled Ben won the half mile in 1 minute 53.8 seconds and then ran anchor on the Indian relay team which won in 3 minutes 17.4 seconds.

Eastman's time in the mile relay was 46.7 seconds, from a running start.

Fresh Baseball Nine Whips Reserves 10-0

Aided by numerous errors, the freshman baseball team pounded its way to a 10 to 0 victory over the varsity reserves yesterday. The fresh clearly outplayed their rivals in every phase of the game, fielding with few errors and batting hard. A wintry breeze blowing off the river did not help any, numbing the players arms.

Sugar beet production increased in California in 1931 over 1930 by 300,000 tons with an acreage increase of 25,000.

Believe It Or Not-- The Fame of Country Club Extends Back Beyond Pony Express Days!

THE PONY EXPRESS

By Col. John D. McNeely

In 1829, Joseph Robidoux, a French fur trader, started a trading post on the Missouri River in the northwestern part of Missouri. Gradually, a village grew up around the post and became known as "Robidoux's Landing" or the "Black Hills Settlement".

In 1849, when the California Gold Rush began, the village had become a small town called "St. Joseph", after the patron saint of Robidoux, its founder, and a most important outfitting point for wagon trains.

In the late "Fifties", a railroad had been extended westward from Hannibal, on the Mississippi, to St. Joseph, and an overland stage westward from there. But the problem of a reasonably expeditious mail system to California, for which there was a growing demand, remained unsolved. It took nearly three months for a letter to go by boat or overland by stage.

Early in 1860 the Central Overland California and Pike's Peak Express Company per-

In other words, the creed smells of the academic hot-house, and is part of the explanation of what is the matter with college today.

Just now humanism seems only a retreat within the academic shell and a way of excusing oneself from trying to understand or deal with the complex world we live in.

JACOB ZEITLIN: I am not at all certain that there is any sharp dividing line between the present system and the followers of Norman Foerster. It sometimes looks as if it were only a conflict between Utopian fancy and sad-eyed reality. The cultural background Professor Foerster assumes in the student, preparatory to his entrance in graduate work, is not assumed in terms of experience but rather of unfulfilled desire. He has but three years in which to train them for a doctorate, and that much time is barely adequate for learning the more essential facts of literary history. . .

It is granted that the function of the college teacher of literature is to present his subject in terms of cultural value. Now it is the nature of the investigator to beget other investigators. Hence the vicious circle in which we are at present revolving. I believe that the proposals of Professor Foerster offer us some hope of escape from this vicious circle.

By the generalization of study and devoting more time to study of ideas . . . , we can broad-lieve in exact and truth-seeking standards in the pursuit of scholarly as well as of scientific investigations. There has been a suspicion in some quarters that those who were exalting the new humanism were really endeavoring to bring into disrepute this painstaking effort to discover the solid basis of fact which should be the object of literary study. If Professor Foerster recognizes the necessity of scientific accuracy and the need of patient investigation, then I do not see how any one will take issue with him. Nor, for that matter, do I see that he has established any new principle for the guidance of American scholars.

ALFRED DASHIELL: I welcome the humanist controversy, because I am glad to see people get excited about ideas again. This seems to me to mean that humanism teaches in effect "trust in God and cultivate your own virtues."

"The student needs culture, the cultivation of all his faculties . . ." said Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, whose name is synonymous with humanism on this campus and throughout the country.

A good doctrine, perhaps, but one which belongs to an aristocratic leisure class and college professors who can live apart from this world. This country has committed itself to democracy, and whatever leisure class we have has become so because its members or their ancestors have failed to exercise "the will to refrain."

In such a society somebody has to howl. I would support the humanists heartily if they could convert some of our legislators and up-lifters of the virtue of "the will to refrain." I could even join in a program against "psuedo-scientists" and "emotional romantics." But if all these were purged from the world there would still be more than just humanists left.

I don't believe in doctrines much, and the humanists have seemed too convinced that they alone possess the secret. In other words, the creed smells of the academic hot-house, and is part of the explanation of what is the matter with college today.

Just now humanism seems only a retreat within the academic shell and a way of excusing oneself from trying to understand or deal with the complex world we live in.

The cultural background Professor Foerster assumes in the student, preparatory to his entrance in graduate work, is not assumed in terms of experience but rather of unfulfilled desire. He has but three years in which to train them for a doctorate, and that much time is barely adequate for learning the more essential facts of literary history. . .

It is granted that the function of the college teacher of literature is to present his subject in terms of cultural value. Now it is the nature of the investigator to beget other investigators. Hence the vicious circle in which we are at present revolving. I believe that the proposals of Professor Foerster offer us some hope of escape from this vicious circle.

By the generalization of study and devoting more time to study of ideas . . . , we can broaden the intellectual base of our graduate students. Without other departments, which are an integral part of his own subject, literature is a mutilated, vacuous thing.

Our universities already provide an adequate range of offerings; it is for the literary departments of the graduate schools to liberalize and make more flexible their conception of their functions, and particularly to recognize their responsibility for the training of those who are to teach their subject to undergraduates. There are signs that the more liberal attitude is gaining ground.

free from distrust, rapacity, greed, and selfishness. There isn't such a world today, so we need not be surprised at the failure of disarmament conferences of the League, which attack the very foundation of our modern international policies. If we put financial interests first, if we would have the greatest foreign market possible, if there is a race for more colonies and territories even in an age when the frigid poles are threatened with colonization, we must have battleships and armies.

It would be a tribute to American idealism if she bestow on a conquered nation a freedom secured through peace and diplomacy. Praise is due to the Filipinos for insisting upon expression of a natural and civilized desire despite the many things that lure them to remain in bondage.

The question of Philippine independence is a moral one. Before the real issue, such arguments as "economic independence first," "fitness for self-government," become the emptiest prattle. Philippine independence will prove beneficial not only to the islands but to the world at large. Freedom for the Philippines would mark a long stride toward right attitudes and understanding among men.

CONUNDRUM: How is a professor at the University of Berlin like a college freshman who is about to join a Greek organization? Answer: they are both "rushes." A six-week "rushing" period is allotted at Berlin, in which instructors are on their good behavior and students have the opportunity to analyze and finally select the ones under whom they wish to take courses.

"TUXEDOES for all evening functions—even movies," decree Beau Brummels at the University of Arizona. Maybe they like the feel of rigid collars jabbing their chins, but critics maintain they will probably be mistaken for the theater ushers.

THE original specimen of the missing link has been found, it is reported, by Prof. William Patten of Dartmouth college, who uncovered the 5-inch skeleton in the rocks of the Baltic sea. This is probably the eight hundred eighty-eighth original specimen that has been discovered in recent years.

CELOPHANE may not keep library books at the University of Illinois, "moist and sweet," nevertheless, it is used to cover and protect old newspapers and other documents, including a highly prized copy of the Magna Charta. If it could stop wisecrackers from writing their would-be witticisms in the margins, we would suggest that every page of the library books be wrapped in celophane.

Independence or Mere Words?

Why We Should Fulfill our Promise to the Philippines—By Pascual Capiz

THIS seems to be an inauspicious time to talk, much less to advocate, Philippine independence, when there is enough trouble, not only in the far east but also all over the world in its throes of destruction and construction to adjust itself in the changing time. But, since even the house of representatives deemed it proper to deal with the Philippine question at such a critical period, why should I hesitate to speak out frankly?

I am aware that people all over the country are trying to find light on the situation, trying to ascertain whether to give independence or not, or what is likely to happen after it is granted. Like many of my people, I have despaired of hope of the islands ever getting their freedom, at least for the present, with our structure of civilization and national and international idealism. Many of us have lost hope that America will ever redeem her promise. When the house recently passed the Hare bill promising the Filipinos their freedom in eight years, the ever-burning hopes of 13,000,000 souls was aflamed anew. We still have our doubts, but they have taken a new twist.

IT IS AN obvious truth that the Filipinos as any other people have the intrinsic right to wish to be free. Whether circumstances and alien forces should prevent this wish is another question. Since the advent of the western people, the Filipinos have resented their subjection. The first signal expression of this resentment was the death of Magellan at the hands of native warriors. All through the Spanish occupation the Filipinos made overtures of discontent until the end of the last century when they practically wrested the reigns of power from the Spaniards only to have another, more powerful western nation snatch this power away.

They are still fighting, if not with certainty, certainly with persistency and tenaciousness. Why are these "little brown men" dissatisfied? "All fairly normal men," says James Bryce, "have like passions and desires. They are stirred by like motives, they think upon similar lines." Is there a nation or a people under foreign control that did not or do not wish to be free? In the neighborhood of China and Japan, distinct in many ways from the American people but inspired by the same ideals that resulted in the Declaration of Independence, there is a country which wants to sit among the free nations of the earth.

The capacity of the Filipinos to govern themselves has often been questioned. I think this is an empty question for whether or not they are capable, it is true that they are practically autonomous. Any civilized group of people can maintain law and order in some way and to demand more is unfair, since in some great civilized countries there are crimes and lawlessness.

There is a formidable argument in the Japanese menace. Responsible Japanese, however, have time and again expressed the opinion that Japan is willing to respect our independence. Another objection is that we are not economically independent. Economic independence, some say, we must have before we have political independence. If economic independence means enforcement of our economic interest at the sword's point, as in the case of Japan, if it to maintain concession in some other country and suck her wealth in the guise of trade under the surveillance of powerful army and navy, then England, Japan, the United States or France can well be economically independent. It would be impossible for the Philippines to maintain a large army and navy. The objection strikes me as ridiculous since all independent nations have to be economically independent in some way.

Any of these objects acquire meaning only under great consideration. The great question is whether or not the United States is morally obliged to give the Philippines their independence.

TO A POST-VICTORIAN

When I telephone
I stand appalled
To hear you end with
"I'm glad you called."

Don't say again
(Or I'll think you dumb)
That trite refrain
"So good of you to come."

Do you have to state
(I'd rather you would not After EVERY date!)
"I've enjoyed myself a lot"?

In business letters one must be
Ever so polite;
But it's different, don't you see—
To whom you write.

I can be a gentleman best
To those I fear;
But manners aren't the final test
When you are near.

So—greet the world with powdered nose
And rouge and lipstick put on straight;
But don't retain that perfect pose
When you've a rendezvous with fate.

—ROLAND A. WHITE.

The United States has promised independence to the Philippines and is therefore morally bound to fulfill her promise. Shall this abominable slavery of one nation to another be perpetrated forever. Someday conditions will be such that no nation will be considered good enough to rule another. The question is of freedom or slavery, right or might. What right has one country to rule another except the right of might? The United States is a good conqueror and does not exploit nor enslave the Philippines, but the principle is the same; it is national bondage.

Under the stimulation of good will and friendship and the promise that the United States would do everything for our interest, we have been peacefully and anxiously trying to fulfill our obligation to achieve our inspiration. That is why we have progressed so much. This is why there was peace, because there is nothing to complain of from the more subtle and more diplomatic method of colonization. But, nevertheless, right is still the arbiter. It is still the United States who decides whether or not we shall be free. The question is, will our patience and good intentions be abused? Will our idealism ever become empty dreams based upon vain words?

I REALIZE that it would mean a tremendous revolution in the policy of western nations toward the Orient. It affects the white man's position in the east. If it is a change for the better, why try to prevent the inevitable. Because they are becoming conscious of their inalienable right to freedom from outside control, 800,000,000 (not my idea) persons are seething with hatred towards the white race. Japan's invasion of China is manifestation of this growing power of the east.

Feeling the strength of modern machinery, Japan has confidently tried it on China. Will she turn around someday and try the might on her tutors? What is the war between China and Japan but a belated Hundred years or Thirty years war of Europe, a sign of growing nationalism and modern machine civilization? Surely the policy of the western powers toward the weaker nations must be revised.

International intercourse, economic, social, and political, must be based on bonds of good will, friendship and equality, for it cannot perpetuate under the shadow of force and might. Philippine independence would be an initiation of the revision of this policy. Why should the United States hesitate to lead again in this real humanitarian work? Honor to her if she can set aside her incidental business interests and follow the same great principles upon which her own national existence has been reared.

The presence of the United States in the Philippines is perhaps a continued source of irritation to Japan. That is why she would rather see the Philippines independent than to have the Philippines indefinitely under the United States, and in the words of former Governor General F. B. Harrison, it is like removing one dagger pointed at Japan. In the editorial columns of The Daily Iowan three weeks ago, it was admitted, rather vaguely, that the only justification and an incorrect justification at that, for the United States to prolong her stay in the Philippines is her need for a naval base. At last we are speaking frankly.

THE United States can do three things with the Philippines: cede them to another power, retain them permanently and grant them independence. The first would be an insult to both nations. The second is monstrous, for America can never get the Filipinos free consent to remain under her flag. The only course left is independence.

Philippine independence can exist in a world

Is Humanism What We Need?

A Symposium Conducted by the University of North Carolina Daily Tar Heel

A SYMPOSIUM on humanism and the new scholasticism, of which Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters of the University of Iowa, is a leading exponent, was recently conducted by the Daily Tar Heel, University of North Carolina publication. Articles were contributed by Professor Foerster; Carleton Brown, secretary of the Modern Language association of America; Alfred Dashiell, managing editor of Scribner's, and Prof. Jacob Zeitlin of the University of Illinois.

Extracts from this symposium are reprinted through the courtesy of the Daily Tar Heel, which has evinced considerable interest in Professor Foerster's work here as he was on the faculty of the North Carolina university before coming to Iowa.

PROFESSOR FOERSTER: Many of the best students in the English department of the university are in revolt. And with good reason. Most of the undergraduate work and all the graduate work has been geared, to use an appropriate figure, for the production of "contributions to the sum of knowledge." Our objectives in the study of literature have been borrowed from science. It is not only that we have aped the method and spirit of science, we have even succumbed to the ideal that science has proclaimed, the ideal of progress through service. We take the young lover of literature and gradually put him through the mill in order to shape him as a researcher capable of rendering some pitiful service in the endless progress of knowledge.

Advocates of the prevailing system will perhaps deny that they disregard the student's interests for the glory of science. I can only answer that the facts are against them. The student needs more than good will, but he is not getting it.

He needs culture, the cultivation of all his facilities, since all of them are relevant in literary study. What does this mean, specifically, in the case of the literary student? It means, it seems to me, the development of the whole set of powers that should be active in the study of literature. What is needed is encouragement of all these powers, along with recognition of the special aptitude of each student. In terms of subject matter, literary culture demands that we give attention to history, philosophy, religion, the fine arts, and foreign literature, especially Greek and Latin. Our doctors of philosophy today do not know even the Bible, although they may know Anglo-Saxon, Old French, Old Norse, and heaven knows what else. They have been thoroughly trained but not educated.

"Thorough" is another word to conjure with. Thoroughness cannot be divorced from breadth, for you can be thorough only when you cover a subject along with other subjects with which it is related. Thoroughness, again, demands proficiency in all of the powers which enter into literary study. A scholar weak in aesthetic responsiveness, for instance, unable to find his way sympathetically into a work of art because this faculty has been atrophied by his one-sided factualness, is simply not thorough.

The research mill grinds. It is high time that we begin thinking, not of "products" of the graduate school, but of human beings. This would lead to genuine progress in research.

CARLETON BROWN: "I am somewhat non-plussed that Professor Foerster should include my name among the defenders of the 'present system' as opposed to the 'broader ideals and more flexible system' which he himself represents.

None of us, I imagine believes in 'dry-dust' scholarship, and if this what Professor Foerster means by 'literae inhumaniores' then we will enthusiastically support his crusade.

On the other hand, we do, some of us, still believe in exact and truth-seeking standards in the pursuit of scholarly as well as of scientific investigations. There has been a suspicion in some quarters that those who were exalting the new humanism were really endeavoring to bring into disrepute this painstaking effort to discover the solid basis of fact which should be the object of literary study. If Professor Foerster recognizes the necessity of scientific accuracy and the need of patient investigation, then I do not see how any one will take issue with him. Nor, for that matter, do I see that he has established any new principle for the guidance of American scholars.

ALFRED DASHIELL: I welcome the humanist controversy, because I am glad to see people get excited about ideas again. This seems to me to mean that humanism teaches in effect "trust in God and cultivate your own virtues."

"The student needs culture, the cultivation of all his facilities..." said Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, whose name is synonymous with humanism on this campus and throughout the country.

A good doctrine, perhaps, but one which belongs to an aristocratic leisure class and college professors who can live apart from this world. This country has committed itself to democracy, and whatever leisure class we have has become so because its members or their ancestors have failed to exercise "the will to refrain."

In such a society somebody has to howl. I would support the humanists heartily if they could convert some of our legislators and up-lifters of the virtue of "the will to refrain." I could even join in a program against "pseudoscientists" and "emotional romantics." But if all these were purged from the world there would still be more than just humanists left.

I don't believe in doctrines much, and the humanists have seemed too convinced that they alone possess the secret. In other words, the creed smells of the academic hot-house, and is part of the explanation of what is the matter with college today.

Just now humanism seems only a retreat within the academic shell and a way of excusing oneself from trying to understand or deal with the complex world we live in.

JACOB ZEITLIN: I am not at all certain that there is any sharp dividing line between the present system and the followers of Norman Foerster. It sometimes looks as if it were only a conflict between Utopian fancy and sad-eyed reality. The cultural background Professor Foerster assumes in the student, preparatory to his entrance in graduate work, is not assumed in terms of experience but rather of unfulfilled desire. He has but three years in which to train them for a doctorate, and that much time is barely adequate for learning the more essential facts of literary history.

It is granted that the function of the college teacher of literature is to present his subject in terms of cultural value. Now it is the nature of the investigator to beget other investigators. Hence the vicious circle in which we are at present revolving. I believe that the proposals of Professor Foerster offer us some hope of escape from this vicious circle.
