Garner Points for the Sun

Thirty Years Have Been Spent in Gaining His Present Position.

(This is the first of a series of personality sketches of John Nance Garner of Uvalde, Tex., the Democratic vice presidential nominee and speaker of the national house. It was written by Fred Dye, who for five years has been chief of the Associated Press service in Garner's home state. The second and third will follow on successive days.)

By FRED DYE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

DALLAS, Tex., July 5 (AP) — It took his elevation to the speakership in succession to such outstanding national figures as the venerable Joe Cannon of Illinois, and the popular Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, to bring home to Texans that in John Nance Garner of Uvalde they had a man who for 30 years quietly, possibly too quietly, had been building for himself a place in the sun.

Texans in the fifteenth congressional district knew him well enough. For 15 consecutive terms they have sent him to Washington. That district is about as large as New York state and is tucked down in the southwestern part of Texas.

Home District

In more than one sense is the fifteenth Garner's home district. As a member of the Texas legislature he carved it out for himself. Characteristic of the strict honesty and candor which have become known as the hall-mark of Garner in these later years was his frank openness in that contest back in 1902. He made no attempt to deceive his colleagues but told them plainly why he wished to re-district. Having won he set about winning the congressional seat with characteristic energy and promptness.

Garner was tutored in politics by the late James B. Wells, for many years the political boss of the Rio Grande county. It was Wells who nicknamed Garner "Chapparral Jack." During the speaker's early political campaigning friends often told him he was the ugliest man in the border country. "You remind me of a chapparral cack," Jim Wells once told him. From then on his district knew him as "Chapparral Jack."

No Serious Opposition

At home he has not had serious opposition and it is believed that one is the sum total of speeches he has made in his own district in the decades, and that was not a political address.

In working for his district Garner has obtained from the federal government virtually everything for which it has asked, but he has refrained from asking for "pork."

"Get recommendations for what you want through the proper channels and I will get it for you," he consistently has told his constituents. Not always has it been necessary to go to him for improvements, however. Only recently, while a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, he found time to write to Secretary of War Hurley asking that the war department place markers on the historic battlefields of the Mexican war near Brownsville.

Where others have scored failures or successes in congressional floor fights and in sharp campaigns in their home districts, Garner has proceeded quietly to surround himself with such a vast army of friends that it is said of them that he can do more towards obtaining legislation in Washington by using the telephone than other congressmen could by introducing a score of bills.

It was notable that in the recent Chicago convention the majority of seconding speeches for Garner were made by his colleagues in congress. Had he not released the California and Texas delegations it was to the representatives in congress among the delegates from other states that his leaders expected to look for the influence to align numerous state delegations in his support.

It is a far cry from the speaker's present place in the sun to the mud-chinked log-cabin at Blisson Prairie, Texas, where he first saw the light of day. Adversity and hardship marked his rise from such obscurity, abundantly schooling him in greater effort and determination and to leave nothing to chance.

Issue Military Bulletin

A bulletin describing the military courses of the university is being prepared by Lieut. Col. Converse R. Lewis. It will be released soon and will be given a wide distribution, he said.

President Emeritus of Iowa Expected to Arrive Here Today

Thomas H. Macbride of Seattle, Wash., president emeritus of the University of Iowa, is expected to arrive in Iowa City today for a short visit.

Mr. Macbride was president of the university from 1914 to 1916, and previous to that time had served 34 years with the botany department, first as a professor and then as its head. Since 1916 he has held the rank of president emeritus.

30,000 Attend Celebration at Park Monday

Exact Figures Not Yet Available on Amount of Proceeds

Swarming in on foot and riding in cars from nearly every state in the country and every county of Iowa, approximately 30,000 persons flooded the city park Monday to attend the Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Starting at 9 a. m. the crowds passed through the park gates in an almost continuous stream until midnight. During the entire day the line of automobiles stretched from the south gate of the park across the park bridge, and in the afternoon the line extended to the top of N. Dubuque street hill.

Slight Rain at 9:30 p. m.

The largest number of visitors gathered in the evening to witness the fireworks display. Thousands of persons, standing along the hillside north of the pavilion or sitting in their automobiles, watched the display until a slight rain began to fall about 9:30 p. m.

Automobiles were packed on the hill west of the pavilion and on all streets near the park. The crowd, according to David W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was the largest gathering seen in Iowa City since the dedication of the airport several years ago.

Enthusiastic Over Result

Although exact figures as to the amount of money taken in were unavailable last night, Thomas Wilkinson, chairman of the finance committee, was enthusiastic over the result of the celebration.

The money, above the expenditures of approximately $1,200, will go to the American Legion Unemployment Relief association for the hiring of Iowa City men now unemployed. A number of unemployed men patrolled the park Monday, aiding local police, and more will be employed to restore the grounds to order.

Games, Fireworks Fill

All games and exhibitions, the fireworks display, the platform program, and the concerts by the Iowa City municipal band were free, income being received only from the dancing, the tag sales, the carnival concessions, and the refreshment stands.

The day's program started at 9:30 a. m. with a diamondball tournament between local teams. Following this there were swimming races, feature races, and a cavalry race by members of Troop 1, 113th cavalry.

City May Get Appraisal of Water Works

Council Takes Action After $200,000 Offer Rejected

Members of the water committee, the city solicitor, and the city engineer were instructed by the city council last night to recommend two men to act as appraisers for the city in determining the value of the Iowa City water works.

The motion was made by C. Rollin Sherck upon the advice of Will J. Hayek, city solicitor, so that the city could carry out its obligation to place a definite price of the water works before the citizens, who will vote on the question of municipal ownership in November.

Cost About $5,000

According to Edward Sybil, chairman of the water committee, the cost of an appraisal would be about $5,000. If the city appoints two appraisers, the water company must do likewise, and the four men thus chosen will appoint a fifth, and will decide upon the value of the plant.

The action last night was taken as a result of a definite refusal by the company officials of the council's offer of $200,000, made at the last meeting. No reason for the refusal was given by the company.

Hour Discussion

After more than an hour of discussion by residents and property owners concerned in the question of widening Dill street, the council empowered the city street commissioner to do whatever he deems necessary for the improvement of the street.

A petition by the school board, asking that the order of the council demanding the installation of stokers at the Iowa City high school for the elimination of the smoke nuisance be revoked, was rejected, and the board was ordered to complete such improvements.

The city solicitor, the chief of police, and the ordinance committee were instructed to offer an ordinance at the next meeting of the council changing parking rules to allow for the length of the new fire truck.

Accept Fire Truck

The fire truck, following a report of the underwriters, was unanimously accepted, and the council expressed complete satisfaction with the new machine. The city clerk was ordered to issue a $7,500 warrant for first payment on the Seagrave engine. The $7,500 is the amount given by the university toward the purchase of the truck.

Will J. Hayek, city solicitor, was asked to demand of the C. R. I. & P. railroad that a flagman be placed at the Dubuque street crossing at night.

Allow Storage Tank

Permission to install a 24,000 gallon storage tank near the intersection of Clinton and Benton streets was granted the Iowa City Marketing company. A cigar permit was granted to Virgil Bogs and Merner Huck, 131 S. Dubuque street.

Costs of lots in the Graceland and Prospect hill additions to the cemetery were read. They ranged from $.80 to $1.25 per square foot. A motion to announce the prices and allow advance payments for lots on the installment plan was passed.

The finance committee report advised the issue of $10,000 in bonds to take up the refused sewer warrants, and recommended lower city expenditures.

Thieves Rob Five Places

Hoodlums after petty loot broke into five business establishments in Iowa City over the week end and took a total of $6.65 and 5,000 cigars.

The Co-Ed Beauty Shoppe, 128 1-2 E. Washington street, was broken into sometime early Monday morning. The thieves took $3.65 in cash.

Charles O. Demery reported that someone broke into his Midway inn and took 5,000 cigars.

Intruders used a glass cutter to get into the north window of the Myers oil station at Riverside and Benton streets Sunday morning. The loss, if any, was not known.

The Home Oil company, Dodge street and Iowa Ave., lost $3 when thieves pried open the rear window of the station Sunday morning.

State Board of Education Meets Here

Elects Officers, Accepts Gifts to University Yesterday

Official acceptance of gifts to the University of Iowa and election of officers were highlights of yesterday's meeting of the state board of education in Old Capitol. The meeting was the first of the new fiscal year. All board members were present.

A $5,000 renewal of a grant to Prof. Emil Witschl of the zoology department from the medical division of the National Research council was among the gifts accepted by the board. This is the sixth year that the council has made the grant, which makes a total of $30,000 received.

Donated for Research

It is donated for the purpose of conducting original research in the field of biology of sex, carried on at the university under the direction of Professor Witschl.

Another gift of $300, the original installment of a gift from the American Council on Education, for research in a cooperative art test service, was also accepted.

A collection of 150 volumes of law books from the library of the late Samuel Hayes of Iowa City, was accepted by the board from Mrs. Hayes. Mr. Hayes was formerly a professor in the college of law, having taught from 1881 to 1910.

Baker President

In the election of officers, George T. Baker of Davenport, was unanimously re-elected president on the motion of Joseph H. Anderson of Thompson, Mrs. Pauline L. Devitt of Oskaloosa, was again chosen vice president.

Anna B. Lawther of Dubuque, was named chairman of the faculty committee, while to Edward P. Schoentgen of Council Bluffs, went the chairmanship of the building committee.

The board meets again today for its final sessions, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning.

Iowa R.O.T.C. Men Reply to Questionnaire

The tabulated replies to a questionnaire sent out last January to 865 members of the University of Iowa Alumni Organized Reserve Officers association, show Iowa graduates living in 33 states and six foreign countries. About half of the 513 who replied are residents of Iowa.

Forty-eight reside in Illinois, 23 in Michigan, 9 in Ohio, 7 in New York, and in California, In Alaska, Germany, Hawaii, Nicaragua, India, and the Philippine Islands are other members of the organization.

"The surprising thing," said Lieut. Col. Converse R. Lewis, professor of military science and tactics, "is that there is so great a spread in so small a number of Iowa graduates."

The military department, through its alumni organization, keeps in touch with its graduates, trying to retain their interest in the university. Each year a questionnaire is sent out. Last year the reappointments of 63, who had allowed their commissions as reserve officers to drop, were obtained.

The records show that 18 graduates are in active military duty with the regular army, navy, quarter master corps, marine corps, and in the Hawaiian islands.

City Accepts Fire Truck

Iowa Underwriter Board Passes Seagrave Machine

Passed by the Iowa board of fire underwriters and accepted by the city council last night, the new Seagrave four way fire truck will enter active service this morning as the mainstay of the local fire department.

In addition to the underwriters' test, the new truck was demonstrated yesterday to the state board of education, President Walter A. Jessup of the University of Iowa, five fire chiefs, and more than 30 firemen from other Iowa cities.

Underwriter's Test

To pass the underwriters' test, which was conducted by Harry Corcoran of Des Moines, the truck was required to pump 750 gallons per minute at 120 pounds pressure, 375 gallons at 200 pounds, and 200 gallons at 250 pounds. It delivered the 750 gallons at the low pressure satisfactorily and exceeded the requirements in both of the other divisions by 100 gallons.

E. C. Ferris, salesman for the Seagrave company, was in Iowa City all day yesterday to conduct the demonstrations. Hal Davis, company technician, drove the truck.

Visiting Firemen

The underwriters' test was held at the quarry north of the Iowa avenue bridge on the west side of the river, the demonstration for visiting firemen at Madison street and Iowa avenue, and the exhibition for the board of education in front of the Nagle Lumber company, on Burlington street.

Visiting fire chiefs who were here to see the new equipment, are E. P. Kohout of Cedar Rapids, C. C. Piskman of Marshalltown, J. C. Dobson of Keokuk, F. J. Ostrach of Burlington and Chief Brown of West Branch.

Children's Hospital Inmates Celebrate Noiseless Fourth

Twenty-five children celebrated a quiet Fourth of July on the east lawn of children's hospital. They were on crutches, in wheel chairs, or flat on their backs in bed.

Little noise, not even the bursting of a firecracker, made it seem much like the Fourth. For their celebration, they had only pinwheels, roman candles, sky rockets, and balloons—things that went off soundlessly, but which stirred the imaginations of every watcher.

But they enjoyed themselves. One could tell that by the wide open eyes, though the cries of merriment were missing.

They probably enjoyed the weeks of anticipation as much as the night itself, for most of them were ready to go in when it was time. Only one little tow-head found courage to object, and that was because he was the first to be taken inside.

Iowa City Rotarians followed their yearly custom of buying the fireworks for this celebration. The largest percentage of inmates for many years was able to attend, said Robert E. Neff, university hospitals administrator.

Harbor Grace Marks Second Leg of Flight

Will Attempt to Break Record Set by Post, Gatty

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., July 5 (AP) — Captain Bennett Griffin and James Mattern were over the broad Atlantic tonight, headed for Europe on the second leg of their projected round-the-world flight against time and the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

The two American flyers, who left New York early today and reached Harbor Grace after being lost in fog banks that left them three hours behind the record holders at this point, had refreshments, refueled and in approximately two hours were headed east with one thought predominant: "We want to get there, that's all."

Perfect Weather

At their departure from New York, the flyers said, the weather was perfect. As they neared Nova Scotia they encountered the fog. They tried to climb over it and then to get under it, but finally were forced to fly blindly for an hour and a half.

Flyers' Log

By The Associated Press
Time is central standard, Tuesday:

1:38 p. m.—Arrived Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.
3:59 p. m.—Left Harbor Grace for Ireland.
Flying time: 10 hours, 37 minutes.
Elapsed time: 12 hours, 57 minutes.
Distance: 1,132 miles.
Average speed: About 107 M. P.H.

Post and Gatty, establishing their round-the-world record, of 8 days, 15 hours, 51 minutes, flew the same leg in 6 hours, 52 minutes and consumed an elapsed time of 10 hours, 32 minutes before hopping for England.

They sighted no land after becoming fog-bound until they reached Newtown in Bonavista Bay. They were forced to drop a note near Cape Frels to ascertain the direction to Harbor Grace and then overflew their destination by more than 100 miles before they turned around and finally landed here.

Good Tailwind

They said they had a good tailwind throughout and made about 150 miles an hour. The weariness of their trip was soon dispelled and they got down to business of refueling their plane which had only 50 gallons of fuel when they landed.

The weather at Harbor Grace was bad, worse, in fact, than any other day an ocean plane came here.

The flyers got away at 4:59 p. m., eastern standard time. They said they hoped to make Berlin or some other European port in 15 hours although they took on sufficient gasoline for 25 hours flying.

Poor Weather Over Atlantic

Before their departure from Harbor Grace reports were received that bad weather extended half across the ocean but that the remainder of the way was experiencing fair weather.

Their food supply included sandwiches, chocolate, oranges and water. Both flyers appeared fearless of the bad weather reports, and were impatient to get away. Unlike other transatlantic flyers who have headed

Delay Action on Relief Bill Compromise

Hoover Warns of Veto of Measure Unless Altered

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Congressional leaders agreed tonight at a hurriedly called White House conference to withhold action on the $2,100,000,000 unemployment relief bill in an effort to reach a compromise tomorrow with President Hoover.

Cutting legislative corners to save time, the president called party leaders from both house and senate and warned them that he would veto the compromise relief bill in its present form.

After a conference of more than two hours which lasted through the usual dinner hour, house leaders agreed to withhold action on the relief bill conference report and to confer with President Hoover and senate leaders at the White House in the morning in an effort to work out a bill that President Hoover would accept.

Hungry and weary legislators rushed out of the White House long after 8 o'clock with the word that no agreement had been reached tonight. A few minutes later a White House statement said there was a "general disposition" to reach a compromise acceptable to all.

Chief Objections
Conferees said President Hoover's chief objections to the present form of the relief bill were features providing for loans to individuals; the allotment of relief funds on the basis of population, and the provision for public works.

Chief stress was laid by the president on the liberal wording of the bill authorizing loans to individuals for any purpose dealing with commerce, industry, agriculture or employment.

"President Hoover absolutely would not stand for that," one of the group said.

This was one of the provisions of the Garner bill which passed the house but had not been stressed by the president in his former attacks on the measure.

Repeal Drive Starts Debate in Congress

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—As an aftermath of the Chicago national conventions, a drive was begun in both houses of congress today for legislation to carry out platform pledges for repeal or modification of the prohibition laws.

Developments in Washington were many as both sides in the prohibition argument aligned their forces and maneuvered for position.

Drys Plan Strategy
Organized drys decided to plan their presidential campaign strategy at a meeting here next week.

Taking the offensive, anti-prohibitionists on Capitol Hill began move for repeal of the eighteenth amendment as well as for legalization of beer.

Asks Unanimous Consent
Senator Barbour, Republican, New Jersey, asked unanimous consent for consideration of a motion to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of his repeal resolution, but Senator Shepard, Democrat, Texas, co-author of the eighteenth amendment, promptly objected.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, to direct the judiciary committee to draw up two proposed constitutional amendments based on the Republican and the Democratic prohibition planks.

"Duty of Congress"
"It will soon become the duty of congress," said the resolution, "to consider the question of submitting one or the other of such proposed amendments to the people of the several states for ratification or rejection."

It went over for action at a later day.

Early Vote on Proposal
Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, planned to seek an early vote—perhaps tomorrow—on his beer proposal advanced as a "rider" on the senate's pending business, the home loan bank bill.

Indications were that the vote on the issue would come on a motion, planned by the Democratic leadership, to consign the beer amendment to a committee.

"Not Home Brew Bill"
The Republican leadership likewise was opposed to the rider. "This is a home loan bill, not a home brew bill," remarked Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, to newspapermen.

Anti-prohibitionist senators meanwhile were optimistic that the Bingham proposal would produce the largest vote for beer since national prohibition.

4 Per Cent Beer
In the house, a beer bill identical with Bingham's—calling for a brew of 3.2 per cent by weight or 4 per cent by volume—was introduced by Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, and the Republican wet bloc was called into session for tomorrow to consider a program.

Britten estimated it would produce $300,000,000 annual revenue. "We are taking this action," he said, "because of the failure of Speaker Garner and the Democratic house to follow up the policies laid down on the Volstead act by the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago."

Killed by Train
GRAND JUNCTION (AP)—Laura Miller, 21, and Robert Johnson, 25, both of Jefferson, were killed when a Northwestern passenger train struck their auto two miles east of here. The auto was demolished.

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—An exploding oil can injured William Puleka, Jr., as he was cutting it with a blow torch which ignited fumes within the can. His head and arms were cut.

Funeral for Veteran
DES MOINES (AP)—Final rites will be held Wednesday for James K. McAfee, 87, Civil war veteran, who died Sunday.

Transfer Prohibition Agent
DAVENPORT (AP)—Transfer of Tom Avery, federal prohibition agent stationed here for a number of years, to Ottumwa was announced Tuesday. W. H. Plasters, stationed at Des Moines, has been assigned here.

French Head Looks to U.S. in Debt Issue

Germany Still Maintains Inability to Pay

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, July 5 (AP)—Premier Edouard Herriot of France declared tonight that either the United States must revise war debts to fit the reparations agreement that is being negotiated at the Lausanne conference or Germany must continue paying under the Young plan.

This declaration climaxed a day of negotiation which led nowhere. Germany came to the conference June 16 saying she no longer could meet the Young plan payments. She still sticks to that contention.

Premier's Statement
The French premier's statement was made to the press by way of explanation of the necessity to France of a safeguarding clause in any agreement reached here. Such a clause would protect the French government in the event that German reparations were materially reduced in the hope that the United States would reduce war debts and that he had proved unfounded.

Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany today suggested that his government pay a flat sum of 2,600,000,000 marks (approximately $600,000,000) and that in return the creditor governments annul the judgment of war guilt against Germany and permit her equality of armaments. Herriot refused to discuss political conditions.

British Plan
The British advanced a scheme, formulated by Sir Walter Layton, under which 2,500,000,000 marks in bonds, guaranteed by the Reichsbank, would be issued immediately in two slices, the first at 90 and the second at 95. The Germans were reported willing to accept this plan.

The impression was growing stronger tonight that Chancellor von Papen attached the greatest importance to wiping out the "war guilt" clause from the treaty of Versailles, and that he looked upon the total that might be set for Germany to pay as a secondary consideration.

Injured in Collision
Raymond Lindholm, 22, of Davenport, was slightly injured Sunday afternoon when a car he was driving smashed into the rear of a parked automobile in front of the Log Cabin service station on Muscatine avenue. His left ear was badly cut.

Demos Move to Consolidate for Roosevelt

May Nominate Smith for Governor of New York

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Swift gestures of harmony began consolidating the nation's democracy behind Franklin D. Roosevelt today and raising the possibility of a Roosevelt-Smith ticket in New York.

A Tammany movement to nominate Alfred E. Smith for a fifth term as governor was described by the Evening Post. All of Tammany's spokesmen were absent and Smith still maintained his silence at the home of a son.

Announces Yacht Trip

Governor Roosevelt spent a busy day announcing a vacation yacht trip, expressing pleasure at the complimentary statement of the Independent Republican, Senator Johnson of California, and planning to come here this week end.

There was immediate speculation as to whether a conference would be held between Smith and Roosevelt. In Boston, Mayor James Curley, ardent Roosevelt supporter, tendered the olive branch to Gov. Joseph E. Ely, staunch Smith partisan. Curley said not only would he support Ely for re-election, but he regarded it as "clearly the duty" of Ely to run again.

Treat for Peace

The powerful O'Connell brothers, Ed and Dan, of Albany, who swung their forces behind Smith at Chicago, treated for peace by arranging an official welcome to be held there Thursday for Roosevelt.

Mayor John Boyd Thacher, who voted for Smith on all four of the convention ballots, will be the principal speaker.

A possible bar to the fifth term for Smith in the governor's chair was seen in the general understanding that Roosevelt desired Lieut. Governor Herbert Lehman to succeed him. Lehman, however, has been friendly both to Smith and Roosevelt and a sacrifice on his part should party harmony be benefitted was not regarded as improbable.

May Not Retrace Steps

A more likely barrier would be Smith's reluctance to retrace his steps and again run for governor after aspiring to the presidency.

A brief period of rest and relaxation was in prospect for Democracy's key men before the campaign swings into its full stride.

Next Monday Governor Roosevelt and his four sons will put out from Long Island in a 40-foot yawl for a short coastal cruise with Portsmouth, New Hampshire as their destination.

However, should Mayor Walker's answer to the removal charges pending against him be ready by then, the governor asserted he would study it aboard the vacation craft.

While Democratic campaign details hinged upon conversations among Roosevelt, Speaker Garner and Chairman James A. Farley, the Republicans made ready to open their main headquarters tomorrow in Chicago.

geometry, algebraic and function theory methods, and constructing a geometry.

Education and Politics

"CULTURAL attainments and polite amenities are as useless in this emergency as nursery rhymes and fairy tales," Gov. Joseph P. Ely of Massachusetts speaking, eloquently, in behalf of Alfred E. Smith and—presumably—in opposition to cultured Franklin D. Roosevelt.

If by polite amenities Governor Ely meant social graces, they are not essential but only helpful and it is easy to agree with him.

Cultural attainments, however, are another matter altogether.
Now that a man of intellectual accomplishment has been chosen as their standard bearer, faithful Democrats can be expected to oppose Governor Ely's proposition. But they will not be alone in their opposition.

Keynoteur Barkley of Kentucky informed the Democrats in their first session that economists by the hundreds expressed objections to the Smoot-Hawley tariff, which Herbert Hoover nevertheless signed. And economists, it must be added, go further than the newly restrained Democrats.

Every politician seems to have his own ideas of how to get out of depression, from prohibition to pork barrel and charity projects. And scarcely any seem to have bothered about consulting experts in economic matters.

Even the academic student can be wrong, it must be admitted, particularly when he gets on subjects where the helpful perspective of history's subsequent happenings. But he is a specialist whose advice can at least be given consideration.

In the case of Governor Roosevelt there is a happy blend of delving and doing. He is a student of public matters, and puts his knowledge to use in practice. His speeches on these subjects demonstrate an informed application.

It is rare, of course, that a man whose main business is getting elected to office and functioning in office has made a genuinely dispassionate study of the subjects with which he has to deal in his daily duties. Yet there are in congress men of special expertness like Senator Carter Glass of Virginia whose particular training can be utilized by less informed legislators.

Unfortunately, this is not the rule, and the learned man is too little heeded by governments which lag commonly decades behind thought development. Occasionally there is rumor that one, like an unnamed professor at Harvard said to be a factor in Governor Roosevelt's public wisdom, exercises influence.

Yet while the political pot calls the kettle black it must be conceded that, if politicians do not often enough heed academic counsel, neither do educators often enough concern themselves about vital contemporary problems that so need their attention.

"Bread, Not Beer"

IN CHICAGO, a bum accosted a pedestrian for a nickel.

"Down the street," he admitted in response to an inquiry about public facilities for helping the out-of-work, "I can get cigars and beer; I want something to eat."

Maybe the beggar was exaggerating. He would not have been had he been referring to the efforts of a majority of the politicians assembled at either of the two conventions in Chicago last month. They were, as Will Rogers so pointedly remarked, concerned about supplying voters with the legal right to have beer without making it possible for them to get it or anything else.

And, as Frank R. Kent said in the Baltimore Sun, prohibition seems likely to be the 1932 issue—whether anybody likes it or not.

But the good sense of the leader of the Business Men's Association for Prohibition stands out above the reactions of fellow dross or opposing wets. He declares that his organization proposes to fight out the battle when the referendum or the amendment constitutions come round.

Increasingly public opinion, wet or dry, is swinging around to the position of accepting the eighteenth amendment as a failure. But its repeal will not be a major factor in alleviating the depression and its repeal cannot come through this fall's congressional elections before the new session beginning March 4, 1933.

For the sake of the liquor question's future, it is to be hoped that the time for decision on it will come when the depression fallacy has been disentangled. And for the sake of the more important problems confronting the nation it is to be hoped that a square thinking public opinion will disentangle prohibition from the more fundamental issues of politics in the balloting this fall.

Correction, Not Punishment

(From The Daily Illini)
Despite the fact that, in the aggregate, $52,786, 202.94 was the cost of federal criminal justice of 1930, the criminal still remains an enigma to our criminologists.

Many have failed to grasp distinguishing realities, because of the multitudinous phases involved in the problem. They can not comprehend the peculiar life in which the criminal lives; he is segregated, and he builds his own thoughts and emotions peculiar to his type. He is considered aggressive, but he believes himself to be on the defensive. His admiration is reserved for those who are able to prey with success upon the enemy—society.

The realization has arrived that the criminal must be studied individually, in order to learn why he can't live a harmonious and lawful life among his fellows. We have learned the mistake of forcing one beyond the pale where one may find company only among the vicious, the incorrigible, and the mentally deficient.

Correction, not punishment, is the solution.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Before the Democratic convention, I wrote approvingly of Franklin Delano Roosevelt as probably the best man for the future of his party.

That opinion of two weeks ago was based on several presumptions. If they fall, it does not hold valid. In terms of them a great responsibility rests with Governor Roosevelt, much more than with the ordinary nominee of either party.

The opportunity no one will deny. Probabilities are that the Democratic party can, for the third time since the Civil war, break through what did seem an impenetrable Republican control of national government.

When Grover Cleveland came into office two full decades after G.O.P. seizure of political monopoly, it seemed that his party had become a strong second party.

But Cleveland's hold was shaken by the interim of Benjamin Harrison. Then the depression of 1893, coming while his party was in power, helped check William Jennings Bryan as a candidate in 1896. Concentration on free silver instead of on the broad program which Democracy had absorbed from Populism may have done its bit. The fact that this was the party of agricultural dissatisfaction and that grain prices rose that summer may have caused the swerve to Republicanism of several farm states, including Bryan's own Nebraska.

The subconscious idea that the Civil war was a quarrel between Republicans and Democrats was then much stronger, too.

The allegiance of western agriculture to eastern manufacturing has continued to overpower southern agriculture, with the country's growth more and more industrial. That election of 1896 is sometimes called the last stand of agriculture.

Woodrow Wilson was a political accident through the famed Republican-Progressive split of 1912.

Wilson might have capitalized on his position but for the World war. Where the Civil war had enabled the weakling party of a minority candidate to become dominant, the World war disrupted Democracy's national policy and war passion wrecked its international policy. The election of 1920 was a return to safe and sane Republicanism.

Came the depression. In the upsetting of traditions brought about by the World war the old party politics idea was weakened. It stuck during prosperous times only to be shattered by hard times—maybe. Roosevelt hasn't won yet, and the country may fool prophets in November by voting conservatively, against too much change.

It seems more likely, however, that Democrats will win. Talk of Republican market manipulation to produce a temporary prosperity—there is rumor that this was done in 1896—seems weak by the side of world causes for the difficulties and of President Hoover's optimistic prophecies now and then that did not come true.

A Democratic party newly controlled by its progressives should put into office its best presidential candidate since Wilson against the Republican's best in a similar period.

Will victory kill the progressivism? Will "outs" become smugly content with conservatism and the status quo that includes their title to power once they are "ins"? The caliber of their leader seems such that the party can survive victory. If his political debts are not too great he is the party leader ("boss," if you are a Republican). He exercises control over four years of administration and patronage, possibly eight years.

Persistent rumor credits W. G. McAdoo with an attempt to spike the World court plank in the Roosevelt platform, in compliance with the wishes of John Nance Garner's Hearst backing. At least, the plank did not come out, Hearst or no Hearst, and the platform is a decisive one.

All in all, prospects are good for success in re-establishing a true two-party system, for a return to more consistent alignment between Jeffersonians and Hamiltonians. This does not have to mean perpetual control by Democrats. It cannot mean politics changed as rapidly or as fundamentally as would be the case if Socialists or Communists were to achieve a surprise victory. But it will represent a genuine political revolution putting new life into deadened national elections.

As we turn into Hook Street, Willy in his excitement bumps into a chap and sends him head over heels. "You great rhinoceros!" the man on the ground shouts at him.

"Just as well for you!" says Willy. "You haven't the right build to be insulting."

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

STUDIO GOSSIP

By HARRISON CARROLL

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—If R-K-O scenarists can make a suitable adaptation, Richard Dix will be starred in a French play called "The Ace." In pursuance of its new policy the studio has bought an option on this melodrama by Yvan Noe, Blanche Alex and Charles Toideau.

One of the star's most popular pictures was "The Lost Squadron" and R-K-O is anxious for him to follow up in another air story.

Before this, however, he must do "The Conqueror," which will be an other early American epic on the order of "Cimarron." Co-starring in this picture will be Ann Harding—that is, if she can be persuaded to play the part. I say persuaded, though, of course, R-K-O has the right to make her do it if it wants to. Ann's contract does not give her the choice of her stories.

Out here they are ready to admit the futility of trying to talk back to Groucho Marx. As Max Felix puts it: "All you have to do is to open your mouth and Groucho says it." BOULEVARD TALK The career of Mae Clark as a Universal star is finished. It for several months, Mae's contract has not been taken up by the Carl Laemmle organization. Joe E. Brown's physicians have advised him not to take that trip to Honolulu. His back has not mended as rapidly as had been expected. Chances are the comedian will not go back to work for some time yet.

Charlie Chaplin hasn't been to his studio since his return from his world tour. For the moment, the comedian is busy on the 50,000 word account of his travels he is writing for a national magazine.

The object of Douglas Fairbanks' trip to New Mexico and Arizona is to purchase an old bar from one of the historical saloons in the cattle country. He wants to match it up with his Remington and Charles Russell paintings.

The Mr. Lubin, who has been in Hollywood as a representative of this department, will be that surprised if he tries to repeat the trick. Hollywood is inclined to discount reports that Ruth Chatterton is seeking a divorce to marry George Brent. The gentleman in question seems to be more attentive to Loretta Young.

Paul Muni has given up his vacation to work on the story of "I Am a Fugitive," his first picture at Warners.

The Olympic committee has appointed Mary Pickford sponsor for the woman athletes at the coming games here.

Members of the Australian athletic team were entertained at a luncheon yesterday by Ruth Selwyn.

When Greta Garbo finished her last picture at M. G. M. she gave presents to all members of the technical crew.

In gratitude they got up a scroll with all their names signed to it. One of the men was assigned to deliver it to the star. The only hitch was they neglected to warn Greta. When the man arrived he found the gate locked, and when he jumped over the hedge a dog chased him out. He had to be content with leaving the scroll. 'EMBERS OF LOVE'

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lily Lou Lansing, young and pretty telephone operator, gives up her opportunity for an operatic career to marry wealthy Ken Sargent. Ken's parents had hoped their son would marry the socially prominent Peggy Sage and threaten to have the marriage annulled. The young couple go housekeeping and are ideally happy. Then Ken loses his position and, one night, Lily Lou hears him sobbing. Next day, Ken's father calls on Lily Lou. He stuns her with the news that her marriage has been annulled, and gives her $500 and a railroad ticket to New York. Feeling that Ken no longer cares, Lily Lou leaves. She arrives in New York and takes a furnished room. Lily Lou is just about desperate searching for work when Maxine Rochon, another lodger, offers her a position playing the piano for a dancing teacher. She and Maxine go to live with the wealthy Mrs. Paula Manchester, whose hobby is befriending young artists and boarding them reasonably in her sumptuous home. Lily Lou receives a paper from home with the society section marked in black pencil.

"Step, slide, step, slide, step... All right, Lansing, start again! One, two, three two—"

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Lily Lou read the announcement of Miss Peggy Alexandria Sage's engagement to Kentfield Carey Sargent, Thrid.

Ken... engaged to the Sage girl, just as if he wasn't... as if they hadn't been married...

She sat down on the arm of a chair, suddenly conscious that her heart was thudding painfully. She thought, "He might have written me... it would have been... the gracious thing..."

Not that it mattered, of course. Their marriage was annulled. She was nothing to Ken. He was nothing to her. Naturally Peggy got him on the rebound... well, maybe they'd all be satisfied now. Ken's mother. His red-faced father. All of them.

The room was very warm. She got up and opened the window, standing close to it, glad of the cool, autumn air.

It occurred to her that the hills would be green again in California. The new grass would be forcing its way up through the golden stubble of summer. Like spring, out there.

A new stirring of life. Thrifty things freshening in the first rains. And here, autumn. Death... frost touching flowers and blasting them...

... chill settling... "Dinner's ready, Miss Lily Lou," Sadie called in her soft, southern voice.

"Thank you, Sadie, I'll be right out," she answered automatically.

"I hope they'll be happy," she thought, closing the window, powdering her nose as automatically as she had answered. "There's no reason why they shouldn't. I don't wish them any hard luck."

It seemed to her that she was making it very bravely—like the sort of girl she always pretended to be to Ken... and really wasn't. She felt almost happy for a moment, and then she realized that it didn't matter how she took it. She hadn't anything to say. She was cast out, forgotten. They hadn't asked her opinion or approval. It was just as it was the first time. No choice. She'd never really given him up...

"Lily Lou! Dinner's waiting, dear."

Mrs. Manchester's voice. "Coming!"

She looked at herself in the mirror. She looked quite as usual. Quite as if nothing had happened.

During dinner she was preoccupied, planning the sort of letter she would write to May. She would have to say something. May would expect her to say something.

She was startled to see that her plate was empty.

Funny how you can eat, and sleep, and go on living, and your heart all dead.

Days passed. A week. Two weeks. Lily Lou was so gray that Mrs. Manchester was a little alarmed. It didn't suit her. Why couldn't she be her type, and leave the other sort of thing to Maxine? Now if she was going to turn out giddy and silly, instead of attending to her music and making it worth your while to look after her...

Some hint of Mrs. Manchester's displeasure came to Lily Lou, finally. She didn't know what she had done, or left undone, to displease her. "The dickens with her!" she thought, trying to be care-free and independent like Maxine. That was the way to get through life—Maxine's way—just laugh, and don't think...

Yes, and that was the trouble. When she wanted to think she couldn't. She couldn't practice. No use having her voice tried while she felt like this. Wait... just a little longer. Don't let yourself get panicky. Don't give in to it... Don't get scared, or you're lost. Stop worrying, put your mind on Wanda's bookkeeping...

That bookkeeping was terrible. She worked on it every morning, but it was so hard to make head or tail of Wanda's figures, and she flew into such a temper when you asked her questions.

"The Hawleys haven't paid for two months, Miss Pillsbury. Hadn't I better send them a statement?"

"The Hawleys! You're crazy, Lansing. Alice always brings the cash on the first. Mark it paid."

"There's no record of it—"

"Well, mark it paid, anyway."

"Yes, but if you—"

"Who's running this class? It's my money, isn't it? Don't get me all upset now. I've got a full afternoon ahead. Look and see if I paid the Marshall Ormsby people for those sandals, will you? You can't find it! Ye gods, Lansing, what kind of a bookkeeper are you? Well, never mind, I think I did and I forgot to make a stub in the check book. Mark it paid, and if I didn't pay it they'll send a collector or something. Honey child, could you just leave that bookkeeping, and walk to bed."

"The children are all right. So am I. Now don't have hysterics. You aren't going to faint on me, are you? Get out in the hall and get some air. I'll use the records for a few minutes. Come on, girls, the gypsy dance, all together. Ta, ta, ta—ta, ta, ta!"

Low Spirits Feature Day in Stock Mart

Prices Sag Sharply in First Period of Trade

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Stocks returned from their holiday in rather depressed spirits today.

Prices sagged sharply during early transactions, but hardened after about an hour of sluggish selling. Recoveries, however, were painfully slow and although the market closed above the bottom there was a liberal representation of fractional to two point net declines. Turnover amounted to 612,870 shares, or around the average for recent sessions.

Favor Dollars
European currencies favored dollars, presumably because foreigners found their American balances too short for comfort and were rebuilding them.

Utilities displayed group weakness. Because this was the first market since the Democratic convention it was probably inevitable that some brokers should have associated the sag with the previously expressed views of Governor Roosevelt on electric power.

3 Points Down
American Telephone gawped down more than 3 points to the old low, 75 1/2, on news of an adverse rate decision in Wisconsin, but rallied more than a point from the minimum. Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, North American, American Water Works and Detroit Edison were off 1 to 2 1/2 at the worst. Among industrials, U. S. Steel common and preferred, American Can, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Procter and Gamble, Coca Cola and National Biscuit offered rather poor leadership before selling slackened. Eastman Kodak was a prominent loser, reaching a record low.

Rails Steady
Rails, on the other hand, were fairly steady, with the exception of Union Pacific which made a new minimum. Also, there was some buying of metal stocks, particularly the gold shares.

Trade news was meager. Many plants, in addition to those making steel products, were closed for the week end, and Wall Street had to make the most of prospects for not only a quiet week but also a dull summer. Several reviews mentioned recent improvement in certain commodity prices, expressing the hope that these advances had a real meaning. Meanwhile, the freight loadings report, heretofore to be published on Saturday's, was showing a drop of 8,610 cars from the previous week in which larger quantities of merchandise had been moved against the higher excise taxes.

FROM OSHKOSH—B'GOSH!—TO NORWAY

All the way from Oshkosh, Wis., to Bergen Norway, with only two intermediary stops in New Jersey and Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, is the program mapped out for this Stinson monoplane. Clyde Lee, 24 year old pilot of Oshkosh (shown in inset), plans to take off from his home town in the near future on the daring transatlantic attempt. He will be accompanied by 9 year old Julius Robertson of Negaunee, Mich., joint owner of the plane. If successful, they will be the youngest transatlantic flyers on record.

N. Y. Commission to Allow Only Fight Critics to Broadcast

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—As an outgrowth of controversy arising from Jack Sharkey's defeat of Max Schmeling for the heavyweight championship, the New York state athletic commission today barred any but "boxing experts" from broadcasting descriptions of future matches here.

The commission defined as boxing experts, "sports writers, referees or judges."

The radio description broadcast by Charles Francis Coe, novelist, and Graham McNamee, announcer, indicated Schmeling had a wide margin of points over Sharkey. Although a majority of the critics at the ringside also gave Schmeling an edge in the battling, and the vote of two judges and Referee Gunboat Smith was not unanimous, the decision was favorably received by many spectators, and approved by the boxing commission.

Ray Moss, who hunted for New Orleans 12 years ago and who since has played with Brooklyn, has been added to the New Orleans team again.

Georgetown Hurdler Bests Olympic Mark in 400 Meters Race

BERKELEY, Cal., July 5 (AP)—Victor Burke, Georgetown university hurdler star, won his 400 meter heat in the post I.C. 4A Olympic tryouts in Edwards stadium here today in 53.2 seconds, clipping two-tenths of a second off the Olympic games record of 53 2/5 seconds, set in 1928 by Lord Burghley, British star.

The world record is held by the American, F. Morgan Taylor, at 52 seconds flat.

Burke, holder of the national A.A.

Marchioness Triumphs in Trotting Race

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 5 (AP)—Although forced to the limit in an extra heat race, the Marchioness, owned by Mrs. Will F. Caton of Syracuse, N. Y., and driven by Will Caton, out-ran the field in the third and extra heat at North Randall today to win the $12,500 stallion stake for three year old trotters, feature of today's grand circuit racing.

The race was the fastest four heats ever run by a field of three year olds. The fastest trotting mile of the season was established in the second heat when Hollyrood Dennis, driven by Will Crozier, trotted the mile in 2:02 and a new stake record.

The daughter of Peter Volo finished fifth in the first heat behind Brevere, winner of the Matron stake, and second in the second heat behind the record setting Hollyrood Dennis. She came back in the third and fourth heats to outpace and out-trot the field for the winning heats.

The fastest mile in a grand circuit race for the current season was paced in the $1,200 Randall free-for-all pace by Cold Cash, going the mile in 2:01 in the second heat and gaining a straight heat victory.

U. 400 hurdle title, by virtue of his performance becomes eligible for the final American trials at Palo Alto July 15 and 16.

Second best time was made by Joe Healey of New York university. Healey won the second heat in 54.2 seconds.

Daniel Dean, Pennsylvania, won the 5,000 meter run in 15:21.1. He outspurred John Kearns of Massachusetts Tech in the last 100 yards and finished five yards ahead.

Law College Man Talks to Kiwanis Club

Addresses Group on Russia Under New Regime

There is no more personal liberty in Russia today under the present system of criminal law than there was under the Czar, said Prof. Rollin Perkins of the college of law, speaking on Soviet justice at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club in the Jefferson hotel yesterday.

Russia's system of government, he said, is a representative form carried to the Nth degree. Each town, county, district, and republic has its own legislative body. Each of the seven republics sends representatives to the union legislature. This group, however, meets only once every two years, so its powers are vested in a central commission.

There are four divisions in the Soviet judicial system, he explained. The first, or lower, court is the people's court and compares roughly with our county tribunals. Above them are the circuit and regional courts. As in our system, the final resort is the supreme court of the republic. However, it acts only in an advisory capacity for the central commission.

Unlike our system, the Russians do not have jury trial. Each court has three judges, the permanent judge elected for one year, and two so-called people's judges, who are usually laymen.

Either the prosecution or the defendant may appeal a case to the supreme court. But, instead of having to show error in the decision of the lower court, the plaintiff merely has to ask that the case be reviewed by the higher court.

The Russian claim that there are no technicalities in their law is disproven, Professor Perkins said, by the law itself. Witnesses, he said, are not sworn in as they are here and the defendant is always allowed to have the last word. So hidebound is this rule, he explained, that cases have been reversed simply because the defendant had not been the last to speak.

Guests at the luncheon were O. W. Kolberg, Lead, S. D.; Robert O. Bickel, Cedar Rapids; Don C. White, Storm Lake; and Paul Green, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Grain Values Slide to New Season Lows

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP)—Almost every kind of grain outdid the season's low price record today, with the volume of dealings the puniest known in a long while.

Dwindling constantly since the imposition of 400 per cent increased taxes on future delivery dealings, the open interest in wheat was shown by official figures to be down to 101,000,000 bushels, a minimum not registered heretofore since last fall. Stoppage of wheat harvesting in many sections by soaking rains of the last three days failed to inject spirit into the market, and most of the time prices dragged irregularly down.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-4 to 3-4 under Friday's finish, corn 1-8 to 1-2 down, oats unchanged to 1-4 lower, and provisions at 15 to 25 cents advance.

Apparently, the wet harvest conditions in domestic winter wheat territory were outbalanced by good prospects for spring wheat both in the American and Canadian northwest. Contributing to the weakness of the market were Liverpool reports of cheap offerings of new wheat from Russia.

Russian offers of new wheat at Liverpool were stated to be on a basis equal to 51 3-4 to 52 3-4 cents a bushel including cost, insurance and freight to Great Britain.

Corn, oats and rye gave way with wheat and as a result of favorable growing conditions.

Provisions reflected upturns in value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: wheat—July 46 3-4, 47 1-2; Sept. 49 1-2 to 5-8, 50 3-8; Dec. 52 3-4 to 7-8, 53 1-2. Corn—Sept. 30 3-4, 30 7-8; Dec. 31 3-4 to 7-8, 31 7-8.

DIXIE DUGAN—

Billygoat Remains Billygoat Despite Magic of Scientists

BERLIN—"Backward turn backward, O Time in your flight!" is a chant that one usually associates with grandpas who sigh futilely for the days before the elasticity departed from their limbs and the brightness from their eyes. But to accuse Fair Science of wanting to go backwards is something approaching sacrilege.

Yet, science recently took a flyer back to the days of black magic, of spells, incantations and witches' brews, when Harry Price, psychic expert of London, made a vain attempt to change a billygoat into a man.

The eerie ceremony was performed amid the clammy fog on the peak of The Brocken, highest of the Hartz mountain peaks, near Wernigerode, Germany, a setting made famous in Goethe's opera, "Faust."

Headed by Magician Price, the party of German and British psychic experts wended its way up the bleak mountain side, leading the billygoat, which they hoped to metamorphose into a prince, and armed with an ancient witches' formula, borrowed from the archives of the national laboratory of physical research in London.

One of the principal members of the party was Miss Gloria Gordon, a pretty wavy-haired blonde, who has since confessed that her real name is Urta Bohn, daughter of a Breslau attorney. The reason for her alias was that "dad did not desire any publicity."

Miss Gordon's function at the rites was to supply the need of a maiden "pure of heart" and the young lady said she guessed she was as well qualified as any girl nowadays for the part she was to play.

When the mountain top was reached and the moon, stars and spell-makers were in their proper places, the ceremony was solemnly begun. The goat was anointed with a concoction, consisting of blood, honey, the scrapings of church bells and many other weird and wonderful ingredients. The proper brand of pine torch was used to light the inevitable fire and the circle of proper diameter was described, as the magicians intoned the Latin incantations stipulated in the formula.

The goat was then led inside the circle by a silver cord and covered by a white sheet while Magician Price chanted another flock of spells. Then came the moment for the metamorphosis of the malodorous goat into an aromatic prince.

Price took his place in the circle, beside Miss Gordon—and, of course, the goat—and in the manner of a referee at a prize fight boomed out the count of 10.

The word "ten" was the cue for the appearance of the magic prince and the assembled spectators held their breaths as Miss Gordon grasped the white sheet that covered the goat and jerked it away.

But no Prince Charming, debonaire and smiling, was there to greet the magicians. Instead there was the same billygoat, shivering with cold and doubtless wondering—if goats have that faculty—what it was all about.

The experiment had failed and, if the truth must be told, the majority of those present seemed rather relieved—that is, if one can take the resultant applause as an expression of relief.

However, Magician Price asserted that he will try again when he has revised the recipe. Evidently there was a slip up somewhere, either in the mixture of the magic brew, the incantations or the conditions at the time of the rites.

However, Mr. Price can console himself with the reflection that, even though he failed to make a prince out of a goat, he made goats of the crowd of gullibles who climbed a mountain to watch him strut his stuff.

Sioux Falls Seeks Recall of Official by Election in August

SIoux FALLS, S. Dak., July 5 (AP)—The city commission today set Tuesday, Aug. 9, as the date for the recall election against Commissioner Joseph S. Nelson. This action followed the granting of a temporary injunction by Judge L. L. Fleeger against the calling of an election to vote on the recall of Mayor George W. Burnside.

Walter Layse, city auditor, certified to the city commission this afternoon that 2,363 names on the recall petition against Commissioner Nelson were contained in 43 separate petitions bound together and that the petitions contained more than the required 15 per cent of the votes cast at the last city election.

Bandits Rob Man in Car DES MOINES (AP)—Emil R. Byoune, grocer, reported to police that two bandits had forced their way into his auto as he attempted to park it and go to his bank. After driving to Grand View park, the men took $17 in cash and fled in another car, he said.

Formal Arraignment of Slayer Postponed

GRUNDY CENTER, July 5 (AP)—Because attorneys in the case were unable to appear today, formal arraignment of Cressy R. Whaylen, 38, of Waterloo, for the slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Florence Mae Whaylen, 52, was postponed until tomorrow.

W. L. Beecher, defense counsel, said Whaylen would waive preliminary hearing and plead not guilty.

Illinois Man Wounded Fatally in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, July 5 (AP)—G. D. Wilson, 49, Oak Park, Ill., was shot fatally on a downtown street today by an unidentified assailant who seized his car and fled. Police believe the man sought to hold up Wilson.

Wilson and his wife, in St. Paul visiting a daughter, Mrs. D. W. Thompson, arrived there last week from Oak Park. He was a representative of the American Record concerns, Mrs. Thompson said.

Abduct Owner of Roadhouse

Taken by Men Posing as Prohibition Agents LANCASTER, Wis., July 5, (AP)—Tim Kelly, proprietor of a roadhouse on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi river, apparently was abducted this afternoon by three men who posed as prohibition agents.

The men had no connection with the prohibition department, Sheriff Joe Greer said. Kelly, the officer asserted, apparently is a victim of an extortion attempt.

The men drew up to the roadhouse at 2:15 p.m., in a sedan. Kelly was ordered to accompany them. At the door Kelly met a friend to whom he said the men had identified themselves as federal agents and that they demanded he accompany them to Lancaster. The friend, after departure of the car, became suspicious and communicated with the sheriff's office here.

Sheriff Greer learned that the automobile had crossed the interstate bridge into Iowa and had gone into Dubuque. The attendant at the bridge recognized Kelly and said Kelly paid the toll charge.

The men tallied in description with three men who, pretending they were federal agents, took $300 from Ben Doscher, Plattville saloon proprietor last week.

Gives Speech at City Park

Gallagher Pays Tribute to Washington in July 4 Address

United States is not the only country to honor George Washington. Dresden, Germany, and Budapest, Hungary, have erected memorials to the first president of this country, said John P. Gallagher, of Williamsburg, who gave the memorial address of the bi-centennial anniversary at the city park, Monday morning.

"July 4, the day the American people celebrate as Independence day, is a fitting day to commemorate the birth of one who worked so hard for American independence," the speaker said. "His name is one to inspire loyalty and patriotism in the hearts of all Americans."

Mr. Gallagher said although the United States is a very young country in comparison with European nations, it is nevertheless a marvel of the century because of its progress in many lines of endeavor. Europe turns to the United States for guidance.

The celebration at Iowa City in memory of George Washington is only one of the hundreds that have been held all over the country this year, Mr. Gallagher said. The federal government has officially recognized this year to pay homage to the father of our country.

Mr. Gallagher was introduced by Harold D. Evans, judge of the eighth district court.
