Roosevelt Will Mark Time Until Walker Case Settled

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—The Hoover-Curtis campaign will be the "old-fashioned kind," but efforts will be made to keep it from being an expensive one.

Everett Sanders, new Republican national chairman, spent today conferring with eastern party leaders over plans for the four-month vote-drive.

"We expect to put on an old-fashioned speaking campaign," he said, as newspaper men gathered at the end of his first conference.

"We do not expect radio to replace the contact which speakers get with their audiences by appearing before them in person."

Reduce Expenses
"Will the campaign expenditures be as great as in 1928?" he was asked. "I don't expect them to be," he replied.

Among the questions the campaign director waived aside were what part Calvin Coolidge will play in the campaign; what Republican reaction is to the decision that the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform will support Roosevelt; and what issues will be stressed by the Republicans.

Conference
Meantime, plans were being made for a conference Sunday between Governor Roosevelt and the kingpins of Democracy at the governor's Hyde park home, where the strategy to be followed during the campaign will be mapped.

In Albany it was disclosed that Roosevelt's personal campaign will mark time until he can dispose of the case against Mayor Walker, whose administration has been the object of a legislative investigation.

Will Study Walker's Reply
If Walker's reply to charges that he used his public office for private gain is received before the governor starts on his sailing trip next week, he will study them, while cruising along the New England coast. If the answer is completed during the week, the governor will have it sent to his floating headquarters.

At the mayor's office it was said it was still uncertain when the document would be completed.

Roosevelt managers smiled with satisfaction over the stand taken by the women's anti-prohibition organization, and the announcement of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, dry Republican, that he would vote for the New York governor.

Do Not Expect Borah's Support
They said they did not expect the support of Senator Borah, who announced recently to the senate that he could not back President Hoover on the Republican prohibition plank.

In Asbury park, N. J., J. L. Kinmouth, publisher, announced he had invited Roosevelt to speak there during the summer and the governor had said he would "bear in mind" the invitation.

Sanders and J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the national committee, spent the day conferring with State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy; George Keim of New Jersey, secretary of the national committee; and Jeremiah Milbank, who was eastern campaign treasurer in 1928.

Meet National Committeemen
They also had to meet J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut and Daniel E. Pomeroy of New Jersey, both national committeemen, before leaving for Washington tomorrow. Both may be named for eastern campaign parts.

"The purpose of our visit," Sanders said, "to make a general survey of the eastern situation."

He added finances were discussed "in a general way."

Rep. John Q. Tilson, he announced, would again head the speakers' bureau in the east and the eastern congressional headquarters. In the eastern headquarters will be the eastern offices of the speaker's bureau, and Secretary Keim's office.

Eastern headquarters will be opened in New York city in several weeks.

Will Hold Funeral
Funeral service for Clark Weeber, 44, 502 W. Benton street, who died at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Oathout funeral home. The pastor of the Welsh church, five miles southeast of Iowa city, will be in charge.

Employe of Cafe Suffers Oil Burns

James Adams, an employe of Hawks Nest cafe, was treated for painful burns about the head and neck last night at University hospital. He suffered the burns when he accidentally dropped a large vat of hot oil about 11:30 p. m.

Reports from the hospital early this morning said that although the burns were extremely painful they were not very serious.

Current, Tide Halt Efforts to Salvage Sub

Anticipate Arrival of Italian Ships to Aid Rescue

CHERBOURG, France, July 8 (AP)—Strong currents and a rising tide halted efforts to salvage the sunken French submarine Promethee today and small harbor craft, unequipped for their heavy task, sought shelter in the harbor.

Early tomorrow they will load chains and cables and steam out again to the spot, seven miles off Cape Levi, where the Promethee lies in 40 fathoms.

Sister Ship
It is hoped that some time in the forenoon the Italian salvage ship Artiglio II and her sister ship, the Rosto, will be there to help. Naval authorities asked for their assistance today and the Artiglio II started immediately from Brest. The Rosto headed for Cherbourg from Havre.

The location of the Promethee was clearly marked "the nature" and strength of the currents in the vicinity have been fully determined, and everything was ready to proceed with the work of rescue tomorrow, naval officials said.

Many Explanations
There were many unofficial explanations of the cause of the disaster. One of the seven survivors, a sailor who was on the deck when the Promethee went down, said there was a loud hissing noise which brought the captain up from below in a hurry.

As soon as he got on the hatch, the captain roared an order to all hands to go below and to close all the doors.

Door Jammed
The sailor said several doors were slammed shut but one of them jammed.

Then the Promethee slid out from under their feet and it seemed to him that there was nothing to stop the sea from pouring into the open door.

Lieutenant Du Mesnil was quoted as having said that perhaps one of his men had started the diving apparatus by mistake.

Congress in Battle Over Prohibition

Bingham's Amendment Blocked by Borah Proposal

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—The prohibition controversy swirled about both sides of the capitol today in extended debate but there was no final decision on proposals to repeal the eighteenth amendment and to legalize beer.

In the senate, a move by Bingham (R., Conn.) to obtain a vote on his bill to legalize beer was thwarted temporarily through a parliamentary maneuver by Borah (R., Idaho).

A little earlier, the senate debated vigorously but reached no agreement on a motion by Senator Barbour (R., N.J.) to bring up for consideration his legislation for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Motion Remains
The motion remained on the calendar, however, and that will permit a decision anytime before adjournment. Barbour said he would press for an early vote.

On the house side a petition signed by 77 Republicans asking for an opportunity to vote on the legalization of beer before adjournment was presented to Speaker Garner.

Attacks Drags
After Borah had displaced the Bingham proposal with other legislation, the Connecticut Republican charged that drags were attempting to save the "timid souls in the Democratic party" from having to vote on prohibition.

Borah, a prohibitionist, contended a currency expansion bill he introduced as a substitute for the beer "rider" on the home loan bank measure "is of more concern than either beer or red liquor."

Withdraws Proposal
The Borah proposal thus became the pending question before the senate and Bingham late in the day withdrew his beer amendment, but he said he intended to offer it again as soon as the currency expansion measure is out of the way.

The parliamentary maneuvering marked a hot prohibition struggle. Barbour led the fight for his motion with the assertion he could not understand "the hesitancy of the senate" to act on prohibition.

'City Slicker' Gets $18 Cash at Cigar Store

A regular "city slicker" walked into the Wiencke cigar store, 218 E. Washington street, yesterday morning and walked out richer by $18.

The stranger stood in the store for more than an hour, examining and ordering fishing tackle and camping equipment. At 10:30 a. m. he completed his purchases, saying that he had to meet his mother and was going to Minnesota for a vacation.

He asked for a large carton for the equipment, and Laura A. Wiencke and Harry A. Wiencke went to the back of the store to find one of the right size. They were unable to find one, so the customer said that he would go down the street to a grocery store and get one.

He failed to return, and with the next sale Miss Wiencke discovered that all of the bills had disappeared from the cash register. It is believed that he took the money while the proprietors were hunting for the carton in the rear of the store.

Miss Wiencke said that the man was young, well dressed and pleasant spoken.

McClelland's Son Not Guilty

William McClelland, son of Street Commissioner James McClelland, was vindicated yesterday by Mayor J. J. Carroll of charges made against him in an affidavit signed by Peter Rogers, who claimed that he was absent from work while on the city payroll.

Mayor Carroll took the matter under advisement after a hearing June 28 in which 12 persons testified. The time book, he said, revealed that McClelland was paid for only the time he was on the job.

RATIONS FOR THE B. E. F. BY AIR

Following his flight from Washington, D. C., Walter Waters, commander of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces, is shown as he supervised the loading of a plane with beef at Newark, N. J. The meat was flown to the capital for the hungry veterans. Conditions are said to be critical in the bonus camp in Washington, owing to lack of food or funds wherewith to purchase it.

Plane Crash Ends Hope for Record Flight

Mattern, Griffin Forced to Land 500 Miles East of Berlin

MOSCOW, July 8 (AP)—The globe circling adventure of James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, which started in New York with a blaze of speed, has come to an abrupt end in western Russia with only one-third of the flight behind them.

The American pair, cracked up their yacing monoplane just over the Polish-Russian border, 500 miles east of Berlin, yesterday morning. Word of the mishap was received today.

Neither was seriously injured in the forced landing near Borisov, Russia, 50 miles from Minsk.

Control Trouble
Their "Century of Progress" was believed to have developed control trouble. The pilots probably mistook the lights of Borisov for Moscow, and circled for an emergency landing.

The end came in a peat bog and the ship cracked up in the soft surface.

The plane was too badly damaged to proceed. The men spent last night in a hotel at Minsk.

Return to Borisov Today
They returned to Borisov today to find out if the ship could be repaired and flown out. If this can not be done, they will salvage as much as possible.

Mattern and Griffin were disappointed at their failure to beat the around-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes, set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty last year.

Finish Nearly One-Third
The flyers would have covered 5,000 miles of the 15,000 around the globe if they had reached the Soviet capital, but they fell more than 400 miles short of the one-third mark.

They left New York Tuesday at 4:01 a. m. (C.S.T.) and after a stop at Harbor Grace flew to Berlin in the elapsed time of about 31 1-2 hours. This was nearly three hours ahead of the Post and Gatty time to Berlin.

The Mattern-Griffin team nevertheless, established three records for other flyers to shoot at. They were the first to reach Berlin non-stop from America; they crossed the ocean in less than 11 hours, and they established a flight record from New York to Berlin.

Griffin's Wife Receives Cable

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8 (AP)—Mrs. Bennett Griffin, wife of the flyer attempting a round the world flight with Jimmy Mattern, rejoiced tonight at her first personal communication with her husband since his crack-up in Russia.

She said she had received a cablegram advising her they would continue their trip and fly the ship back to the United States.

St. Louis Man Gives Talk at Library Meet

Says Reader Interest Rising in Regard to Science

That the folk lore of the American people is the real source of individualistic national music and drama, was the theme of a lecture by Lamar Stringfield, visiting composer from the University of North Carolina, in natural science auditorium yesterday afternoon.

He is here assisting in the rehearsals of Paul Green's play, "Tread the Green Grass," for which he has written the music. Mr. Stringfield is the composer of many works based on the folk music of North Carolina and is a Pulitzer prize winner.

No American Music
"The American people are the only ones who pride themselves in saying they know nothing of music," he said, "and the reason is that there is no real American music."

Even most of the American jazz, believes Mr. Stringfield, comes from the works of foreign composers like Brahms and Beethoven, and its average life is only about six weeks because it touches no deep feeling of the people.

"Folk music is that formed out of the lives of people without any one person as its composer," defined Mr. Stringfield. "Art music comes from it, and jazz is based upon the great masterpieces."

Gives Illustration
How this development is brought about was illustrated by the visiting composer, who played the folk tunes as he heard them sung and then illustrated what could be made of them.

One example he gave was that of a folk tune, "Pretty Polly," he heard sung in the nasal tones of a mountain woman. He had used it in a composition for the cello called "After Midnight," written for the dignified occasion of a graduation ceremony.

One of the compositions for "Tread the Green Grass" was obtained in the same way. A ballad expressing the emotions of a girl forbidden to have beaus was used for one of the characters in the play. However, most of the inspiration for the music comes from the play itself, he said.

Ruzicka Files $2,134 Damage Suit in Court

As the result of an automobile accident on U. S. highway 161 two miles south of North Liberty May 21, Joe Ruzicka filed a petition in district court yesterday asking total judgment of $2,134 from Victor Kleppe.

Ruzicka claims that his brother, Frank Ruzicka, and four passengers in the car were injured in the accident and that damages to the car amounted to $114.60. Assignment of the claims was made by all five to Ruzicka for settlement.

The petition claims that Kleppe, who was going south, was driving recklessly and swerved over to the left side of the road into Ruzicka's car.

Injuries claimed to have been sustained are: Frank Ruzicka, $531; Betty Ros, $1,003; Lyle Holden, $500; Helen Tompkins, $500; and Charles Pavlik, $500. E. J. Dahms of Cedar Rapids is attorney for Ruzicka.

Flour Shipped to Red Cross in Iowa City
A carload of flour has been shipped from Chicago for distribution in Johnson county by the local Red Cross organization, it was announced yesterday. The shipment totals 43,120 pounds.

This is part of the wheat supply turned over to the national Red Cross by the government for distribution throughout the United States. The local shipment was ordered by F. A. Winfrey, manager of this district, at St. Louis, Mo.

Five pounds of flour are expected to last one person for two weeks, and it will be given out on that basis. According to figures in the local office the present shipment should last Johnson county for three months.

The far of flour was sent out from Chicago several days ago, and is expected to reach Iowa City sometime next week.

Wipe World War Slate Clean With Fraction of Amount Due

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, July 8 (AP)—The former allies agreed with Germany today to wipe the World War slate clean with German bonds to be valued at three billion gold reichsmarks. At present exchange this would amount to about $712,500,000 and with the mark back to normal it would mean $714,000,000.

The agreement moved toward the end of reparations, the greatest financial puzzle of history.

A new effort for peace in relations among nations is commenced, the document went on, on the basis of reciprocal confidence.

Will Reconsider
Shortly after the agreement was announced, there came a statement from Washington that the United States was ready to consider any proposals the European debtors may care to make for "reconsideration of war debts settlements."

The announcement created a profound impression on the heads of the delegations, when it was taken to them by the Associated Press, and there were expressions of joy.

Louis Germain-Martin of the French delegation said, "we are naturally happy to hear that; it bears out the policy France has followed."

"Good News"
Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister, hailed it as "good news." Speaking for central Europe, Stephen Osusky of Czechoslovakia declared it "the best news since the opening of the conference."

So when the final session of this conference is held, probably tomorrow, a resolution will be offered asking the United States to attend a world economic conference.

Sure of Adoption
This conference, in the view held here, would be expected to weave the Lausanne convention into a universal accord, under the resolution, which was believed sure of adoption.

Today's agreement, which will be initiated by Germany and the creditor nations tomorrow, indicated the German bonds would be a fund to be placed in a common cash box.

Powers other than the six represented here—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Germany—will not sign the agreement.

Will Pay if Necessary
It was explained this will not be done until after debt settlements with the United States, if ever. The former allies expect to use part of the funds to pay their American debts if Washington insists.

Holdup Pair Arrested Here

Apprehended Less Than Hour After Robbery at Cedar Rapids

Less than an hour after two men held up a gasoline station in Cedar Rapids yesterday afternoon and disappeared in a stolen car, two men who answered a brief telephoned description of the robbers were resting in the Iowa City jail.

The men gave their names as Ruben Kimball of Waterloo and Allen Newcomer of Palmyra, Pennsylvania. Although Cedar Rapids police said about $20 had been taken from the gasoline station, a search of the men and the car revealed only $1.60.

The car, an Oldsmobile coach, was registered in the name of S. W. Wilder, 2005 B avenue east, Cedar Rapids. It bore the license number, 57-8455, the number on the car reported stolen.

When police received news of the robbery shortly after 1 p. m., Officers Charles Boeck and Ben Hauber, who is substituting for Herbert Beranek, drove to Butler bridge. The Oldsmobile soon appeared. At sight of a sawed-off shotgun in the hands of Officer Boeck, the driver stopped and both men were brought to the police station.

Cedar Rapids police took the men in custody yesterday afternoon.

U. S. Reply Hailed as Best News Since Parley Opened

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—The United States stands ready to hear appeals from European powers for a reduction of the $11,000,000,000 they owe this country on loans during and immediately after the World war.

Since Europe has finally agreed at Lausanne to cut Germany's reparations down to $750,000,000, the state department said today the United States is willing to consider individual proposals for a revision of debts from the 15 nations which owe this country.

No Promise to Cancel
No promises to revise or cancel debts have been made by the United States. But this government has repeatedly stated recently that it would grant a rehearing to European debtors individually after they have agreed among themselves to settle reparations.

The United States has insisted it had no interest in reparations as it refused to take any from Germany.

Withhold Plans
Until the Lausanne conference works out its agreement in detail and the full text is available to the state department, Secretary Stimson and his assistants will not be able to arrange plans for hearing appeals of the debtors.

Any change in the amount of war debt payments would have to be approved by congress which is on record against further reduction or cancellation. Both the house and senate took this position in approving the Hoover one-year moratorium on intergovernmental debts.

Predict 90 Per Cent Cut
It remains to be seen how great a cut European powers will ask the United States to make in the war obligations. Some economists predict American debtors will suggest a reduction of 90 per cent, which is approximately the slash they have just made in German reparations.

On this basis the United States would be offered slightly more than a billion dollars.

Great Britain, France and Italy owe approximately 90 per cent of the war debts due this government, the remainder being obligations of Belgium, Greece, Austria and other central European and Baltic countries.

Approximately 160 seekers of advanced degrees are now engaged in preparation for their final examinations, which will be given during the next two weeks. Of this number, about 135 are working for their master's degrees, and nearly 25 for their doctor's degrees.

Degrees will be granted to successful candidates at the July convocation, which climaxes the first term of the 1932 summer session. The date set for the ceremonies is July 21.

Those working for their master's degrees have come to the University of Iowa campus from some 70 campuses in this state and in other states where they secured their bachelor's degrees.

Most popular among the majors of these students is education, with physical education ranking second. Zoology is third, and commerce, speech, and mathematics are tied for fourth.

Other majors named include history, political science, economics, English literature, Latin, sociology, home economics, journalism, French, graphic and plastic arts, music, psychology of art, preschool education, English, clinical psychology, character education, organic chemistry, biochemistry, botany, chemistry, metallurgy, inorganic chemistry, chemical engineering, morphology, and mineralogy-petrology.

Dates Set for Next Term Registration
The days of July 22 and 23, have been designated as the registration period for students in the second term of the University of Iowa's summer session.

Enrolling of the students begins the day following the convocation ceremonies which close the first term. All classes will get under way July 25 and continue for exactly a month.

Joy of Gold Salvagers Marred by Writ

COUNTING AND DRYING RUPEES DIVING FOR GOLD

PLYMOUTH, Eng. — After four years of heart-breaking effort, fighting mountainous seas and suffering the tortures of Tantalus, it is rather tough on the successful Egyptian treasure salvagers to have the reward of their labors snatched out of their grasp by the inexorable fingers of the law.

Since the liner Egypt went to the bottom off Point du Nez, near Brest, in 1922, with $5,000,000 in gold in her strongroom, many attempts have been made at salvaging the precious metal. But it was the Italian Sorima company which fortune finally smiled. It took the searchers three years to find the wreck on the ocean floor and three more to force a way into her strongroom.

Last fall, with the huge treasure almost within their grasp, the salvagers were compelled to give up the attempt to raise the gold, owing to the early winter tides, particularly vicious in that vicinity where the Egypt lies. But they were back on the job bright and early this spring.

Recently, when the salvage ship Artiglio brought the first load of gold from the sea bottom, the crew went delirious with joy, believing that at last all their troubles and disappointments were over. But on reaching Plymouth with the first cargo of the sunken liner's treasure, valued at $875,000, the spirits of the happy gold-seekers sank to zero when they found that their valuable find was under arrest.

It appears that a French fisheries company, that participated in one of the many attempts to locate the sunken Egypt in collaboration with the Artiglio, is claiming a share of the recovered gold on the ground that it was instrumental in the success of the salvage.

However, pending a legal decision on the case, the Artiglio may proceed with the work of salvaging the remainder of the Egypt's treasure, as the writ does not apply to the ship but to her valuable cargo.

The scene on board the Artiglio on reaching the goal towards which the salvagers had aimed for years was a strange one. The first of the treasure to be brought to the surface was a grab load composed of 72 gold bars and 3,564 English sovereigns, the total value of which was about $194,500.

Commander Quaglia, head of the salvage expedition, superintended the counting and stowing of the coins and gold bars. The intricate were carefully packed in sacks as they came aboard and the sovereigns were washed, counted and packed in neat packages.

One of the strangest sights was that of the Artiglio's crew counting and placing to dry thousands of Indian rupee notes, of the value of which no estimate is possible at present. However, with the arrival of the yellow metal, the notes were relegated to a place of minor importance.

On board the Artiglio, in addition to the crew of treasure-seekers, was Captain Oliver Beck, the representative of the insurance assessors, who are the real owners of the Egypt's cargo. However, the Sorima company, owners of the Artiglio, are entitled to 50 per cent of all recovered bullion.

This company undertook the salvage job on a "no results, no pay" basis and, as it has been dependent throughout the work on its own resources, the ultimate profits will not be as large as some people suppose. To date the treasure hunt has cost the owners of the Artiglio nearly $400,000, but the first three days' salvage will more than cover the total outlay—that is, if the French fisheries company fails to make good its claim.

Incidentally, the present Artiglio is not the same ship that first started the quest for the Egypt, the original ship having been blown up with the loss of 10 lives in 1930.

Wisconsin Man Develops New Tuberculosis Serum

MILWAUKEE, July 8 (AP)—The Milwaukee Sentinel in a copyright article from Madison, Wis., today says that Dr. William D. Frost, agricultural bacteriologist at the University of Wisconsin, has climaxed 29 years research by development of a vaccine proposed for partial control of tuberculosis.

In conversation with the Associated Press, Dr. Frost confirmed the Sentinel story but warned that his vaccine "is not proposed as a sure cure or even as a sure means of prevention." The vaccine has not yet reached the stage of being used on man.

The vaccine, tentatively named "Tubuvase," the Sentinel says, was developed from ultraviolet ray treatment of the single tubercle bacillus. The doctor found that by "killing" the single germ by the rays, the chemical makeup and toxins of the bacillus apparently were little changed, and the resulting vaccine retained sufficient power successfully to combat living tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Frost maintains, the paper says, that vaccines likely will prove most important in control of the dread disease and that his method of obtaining a vaccine renders the bacilli physically harmless.

Cites Other Works The scientist cited the work of Terpsichore, goddess of the dance, will rule over students enrolled in the university this term, at the second all-university social event, the annual summer session informal party, to be given at Iowa Union tonight. The affair will begin at 8:30.

The Iowa Cavaliers will furnish the music for dancing, in the main lounge, and tables will be arranged for bridge on the sunporch. Garden flowers will be used as decoration throughout the lounge and on the sunporch. Students may attend with or without escorts. Tickets may be obtained at the summer session office, room 117, University hall.

Killed in Accident CHARITON (AP)—Thomas Hooper, 18, was killed when his automobile overturned after a tire blew out.

Blowout Causes Death of Child; 5 Others in Hospital GRIMES, July 8 (AP)—A tire blowout resulted in the death of one child today and placed five others in a Des Moines hospital, two in a critical condition.

The dead child was Germaine Lowling, 6, daughter of Vincent Lowling of Grimes.

The most seriously injured were two Smith sisters, Anna May, 10, and Helen, 13. The other victims, all of whom are expected to recover, are Edward Smith, 11, driver of the car; his brother, Paul, 7, and Betty Lowling, 7.

The car careened into a concrete bridge near here after the blowout. The Smith children are sons and daughters of J. A. Smith of Grimes.

though he admitted that books should be morally good, true to style, and truthful in their subject matter.

The trouble with most scientific literature, he said, is that the scientist usually has neither the insight to recognize reader-interest nor the technique to present his material in an interesting style, while "most good novelists have little knowledge of science."

Morons Excepted "Everyone — except morons, perhaps — has some interest about which some person has written a book," he concluded, "and when one reads such a book, one is almost certain to find in it references to allied subjects, concerning which other books have been written. By following this method, one soon amasses a collection of knowledge gleaned from interesting literature."

At the afternoon session, Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department, extended the greetings of the University of Iowa, in the absence of President Walter A. Jessup, to more than 125 delegates gathered in the senate chamber of Old Capitol for the opening meeting of the conference.

"Best Sport in World" E. Joanna Hagey, librarian in the Cedar Rapids public library, termed reading as "the finest sport in the world," in a talk given during the afternoon session.

Reading, she believes, can be used to advantage either in place of a regular vacation or to augment other forms of vacation.

For Every Mood "In reading there is entertainment for any mood," she said, "and for any time of the day or night," giving examples of travel, biography, and fiction books. "One can 'see America first' from one's own armchair," she declared.

That modern novels should be longer and more painstakingly written was the opinion expressed by Prof. Sam B. Sloan of the university English department.

Reveals Testimony An official source revealed the testimony of the widowed bride, but denied permission to disclose his identity.

Three other witnesses were examined before adjournment until 9 a. m., tomorrow morning, but no statement was issued as to what they testified.

They were Albert Walker, a close friend of young Reynolds, who was at the home at the time of the tragedy; Dr. Fred Haines and Blanche Yurka, a New York actress, who was a guest in the home.

showed, by citing examples of humor from Aristophanes up to humorists of our present times, how tastes in humor are extremely individual.

She included in forms of humor of modern times, radio, moving pictures, cartoons, and animated cartoons, as well as literature.

Final Session At this morning's final session, speakers will be Professor Carpenter of the University of Iowa English department; Miss Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Chicago; and Miss Robinson, executive secretary of the Iowa State Library commission.

Leaving Out an Art He concluded with the statement that "the divine art of leaving out" sometimes becomes the diabolical art of leaving out.

"Don't let anyone analyze humor for you — if you do, you will likely have smiled your last smile," was the thought expressed by Nellie E. Parham, librarian of the Bloomington, Ill., public libraries, final speaker on the afternoon's program.

House Favors Inquiry of U.S. Bank System

Will Request Committee on Rules to Bring Out Resolution

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—A sweeping investigation of the treasury and federal reserve system impeded tonight after a house floor exchange during which Speaker Garner pledged his support for the inquiry.

"The rules committee meets tomorrow morning," Garner said in the midst of debate. "Speaking as I may for the majority, I will request them to bring out the resolution of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. McFadden, put it on passage and make this investigation."

Acting Floor Leader Representative Michener (R. Mich.) was acting as Republican floor leader in the absence of Representative Snell. Garner asked him if he would help to pass the resolution for the inquiry.

"Yes," replied Michener. "I think I will."

Garner told newspaper men that if an inquiry is ordered the resolution will be drafted to include the treasury, comptroller of the currency and federal reserve board.

The discussion was started by McFadden (R. Pa.), who in urging action on his resolution of inquiry, reminded Garner that the latter had said he favored an investigation.

The speaker was sitting on the Democratic side, listening to the debate. For the first time this session he interrupted another member.

Same Opinion "I still have the same opinion I expressed at that time," Garner said. "The reasons I have not pressed on the rules committee the investigation demanded by the gentleman from Pennsylvania are two.

"For the last six months the country has been very much disturbed in economic matters. I did not want to investigate the treasury department with a view to having the people of the country lose confidence in it. "Secondly, I thought if we undertook to do it at this time with an election immediately in front of us, it would be charged during the campaign that we attempted to use the investigation for partisan purposes. These are the two reasons why I did not ask for it to be done."

Luther to Remain College for Men Only, Board Says

DECORAH, July 8 (AP)—The Rev. J. C. K. Preus, member of the educational society of the Norwegian Lutheran church, reported today that under a decision of the board of education at its recent Minneapolis meeting Luther college will remain a college for men. It has been operated as such for a period of 71 years.

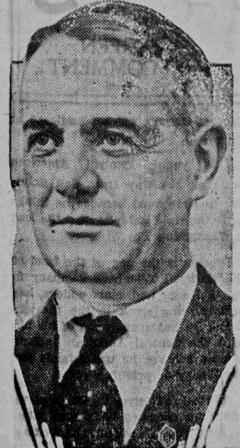

While the plan of admitting a limited number of girls to Luther, this fall, had received the sanction of the board of trustees, the educational board was not ready to approve the measure as a temporary action which was undertaken chiefly for financial reasons.

The board also was motivated in its decision because its program calls for a college for men and Luther is the only school of that character within the church.

It also was understood that while church appropriations have placed it in the preferred class, the introduction of co-education would remove the factor upon which its preference was chiefly based.

Elect City Treasurer HARLAN (AP)—Lauretta Hanson was elected city treasurer today to serve out the unexpired term of C. C. Weber, who died recently.

May be Governor

Boomed for the Republican nomination for governor of New York to succeed Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Colonel William J. Donovan (above) is said to be the favorite candidate of the Hoover administration. A native of Buffalo, N. Y., Colonel Donovan fought in the World war and served as assistant to the attorney general in the Coolidge administration.

Dubuque, McGregor, Guttenburg Offer Scenic Views of Mississippi; Visit Bellevue Hatchery

Along the Father of Waters

Tour Committee Warns Against Speed Traps

The campaign of the Tour Iowa Committee to increase motor travel in the state will be considerably handicapped if speed traps are allowed to flourish, in the opinion of R. E. Rhoades, A.A.A. motor club manager.

Motorists will be doing themselves as well as their fellow vacationists a big favor if they report any speed traps they know of to their motor club office, Mr. Rhoades believes. An investigation and appropriate action will follow, he said.

A "speed trap" has been defined as follows: (1) a town where speed cops hide from their prey; (2) where cops and justices are paid in proportion to the number of convictions; (3) where motorists from other counties and states are especial victims; (4) the locale of the arrest, although in the incorporated limits, is sparsely populated.

Efforts to promote tourist travel in Iowa will be partially in vain if speed traps are allowed to exist, the A.A.A. executive points out. The subsequent publicity in newspapers of other states, if not in Iowa, would be ruinous to Iowa's tourist trade, he contends. Retail merchants, hotels, restaurants, garages, oil stations and other types of business would be affected if the unfair enforcement practice becomes at all widespread.

The Automobile Club of St. Paul in a communication to the Motor club of Iowa has warned that if its members continue to be arrested for questionable speeding in the town of Hazelton, (population 499) 11

Three States Can Be Seen From Dubuque Park

The grandeur of the Mississippi river in the McGregor region has been unmarred by civilization since Marquette and Joliet first sighted the Father of Waters two and one half centuries ago.

The imposing bluffs, colored sandstone canyons and Indian effigy mounds are little changed since the two missionaries paddled down the Mississippi. Motorists of today may view this region, known as the "Switzerland of America," on paved highways in a tour suggested by the A.A.A. Motor Clubs of Iowa.

The dominant bluff of the area, which rises 540 feet above the river, is Pike's Peak, named after Lieut. Zebulon Pike who sighted it in 1805. Boat trips may be taken through the Pictured Rocks canyon colored by nature in brilliant hues of brown, red, yellow, and purple. Geologists contend that only one glacier visited this region in the early ages. The whole area is the campus for the Annual Wild Life School which will be held with the cooperation of the state conservation department from Aug. 1 to 13. Guttenberg between McGregor and Dubuque, with its stone houses, is a village marked by the old world atmosphere.

From Eagle Point park at Dubuque is one of the magnificent views of the Mississippi river. One can look into three states, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Illinois, from this point. In the city a steep narrow gauge railway carries passengers from one street level to another. Two of the first churches in Iowa were built at Dubuque, the Methodist in 1834 and the Catholic in 1835. One of the two Trappist monasteries in the country may be seen at New Mellary, southwest of Dubuque.

Bellevue state park on the Mississippi south of Dubuque is the scene of the historic Bellevue war in 1840 when the grip of thieves and desperadoes on the town was broken. The park is situated upon a beautiful plateau surrounded by an amphitheater of hills. A U. S. fish hatchery also may be seen there.

miles north of Independence on highway No. 11, the club will be forced to route all its south and east bound traffic through Wisconsin instead of Iowa.

W. A. Stevens, head of the state motor vehicle department, has assured the A.A.A. motor clubs of Iowa that if untoward instances of motorists' arrests are reported, his highway patrolmen will investigate the situation in any named town. The speed trap menace typically illustrates the need of legislation to create a state traffic patrol, Mr. Rhoades believes.

Abolish Submarines

THE LATEST submarine tragedy to attract the attention of the world to the use of that type of armament comes simultaneously with a new naval program of disarmament from Great Britain. Point number five in that program calls for abolition of submarines.

The danger in the use of submarines has been repeatedly pointed out to the nations employing them, twice to the United States, most recently to France.

All submarines, it is explained, give off an odorless gas, hydrogen, when charging batteries, and this gas, when mixed in even small quantities with air, forms an extremely powerful explosive mixture. This mixture might be ignited from a number of causes within the submarine and, in the case of the U. S. navy there have been two such cases of hydrogenic explosions, wrecking the boats and killing a large number of men.

Peacetime submarine casualties, to be sure, are the exception rather than the rule, but they represent a potential menace to their crews that discounts their usefulness in time of war. There are few peacetime marine needs that cannot be accomplished with surface craft and airships.

In time of war, of course, submarines are almost indispensable but of the same sort of indispensability as poison gas.

While at present there is little dispute among the nations represented at the Geneva arms conference over the use of submarines and poison gas, there is enough controversy over other matters pertaining to armaments to warrant a prediction that the parley will break up with little done. It might save itself from complete failure by taking immediate and decisive action on those points in which the delegates find themselves in accord; one of the important measures would restrict the use of undersea craft.

Practical Education

WITHOUT LOOKING in the back of the book for the answer, can you tell right off the number of feet or yards in a rod—and why you ever bothered to remember, if you can? So its 16 1/2 and 5 1/2, but you can't remember anything you ever measured by the rod!

Antedated as this is for most localities, it remains orthodox arithmetic, like the stunts Mr. X, Y, and Z are up to all the time. And the result often is bright youngsters who grade 98 at solving problems and couldn't help much at home in determining the amount of wallpaper necessary to do the interior decorating. Besides, the man at the drug store has a chart with all that figured out anyhow.

So the youngster who used to be first done in his class on figuring up the monetary value of a college education now utilizes his mathematical ability over in the college of commerce as official class computer of how many times the professor says "That is to say, uh—"

While this chap may dimly remember something about the rod, more fresh in his memory is the fact that 100 yards equal one century and 220 yards equal one furlong, even if this is an Olympic year.

And that really brings up something, if this editorial is ever to have any point: the metric system. Although the English speaking peoples, with their feet and yards and rods, make quite a bit of the world's territorial map their color, the athletic world as well as the scientific world thinks in terms of meters and divisions or multiples. Witness the Olympics, as per the tryouts here recently.

Anybody who remembers about meters from his arithmetic may shudder just a shade—translation of feet and yards into meters or pounds into kilograms was so hard that the metric system seemed complicated. Actually, the trouble was with the English system of distances and measures. The other is like the decimal system; everything goes by the number of digits.

How simple it would be if child intellects could learn to point off their problems in measurement and not bother about learning an unnecessarily complicated table of how much what equals so-and-so! Adoption of the simpler, more efficient system would free a good deal of mental effort for more important uses.

Yea, verily, in this case sparing the rod would not spoil the child.

Watch the Result

NEXT WEEK the first results of another summer course which has become a regular part of the university plan will be seen. The finished product will be in the form of a comedy drama, and the producers will be the members of the high school summer course in dramatics, the all-state high school players.

In past seasons, taking into account all the handicaps of the young men and women when forced to play a part calling for a person beyond their years, the performances have been unusually well done. They have compared favorably with the performances of the University theater.

The vehicle for this production will not impose too great a strain on the capabilities of the students. It is primarily a story of youth and the motion pictures, and it is nearly pure comedy. The students should find these factors to their advantage.

Opportunity, of course, will be directly given to compare the University theater production of the play "Once in a Lifetime," and the high school players' production, since the University theater produced the play during the last school year. The comparison ought to be flattering to the all-state players.

Preserving Assets

PRESERVATION OF natural scenic beauty in the state of Iowa is the good motive of rulings passed by the state board of conservation, banning the use of fireworks in state parks, and prohibiting the taking of natural fruits and nuts from them.

Iowa does not know the ruthless destruction of the forest fire to the same extent as heavily wooded districts such as those in the Pacific northwest or the north central districts. It has also been many years since the prairie fire, cutting through the land to deep bedrock, has ravaged the state.

The state, happily, does not have to see any more first hand examples of such damage to its preserves. It has done wisely in moving for their protection against fireworks and the potential damage which they might cause.

Good building for the future is also the best motive for the second ruling of the conservation board. It is difficult to imagine that anything natural needs maintenance, but there must be something for the future even in nature. If man takes away the fruits of the wise old mother, there is nothing left to produce more fruit.

Iowa has been blessed with natural beauty. Any asset should be preserved.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Humorists and wits have so far failed to make much of the two blind men who fought recently in Chicago for the love of a one-eyed woman, one ending up on a morgue's marble slab, the other behind the bars of a jail cell, charged with murder.

The woman, married to the first blind man, ran away with the second. One day, the deserted husband tapped his way to the lovers' apartment, demanded his wife's return. She refused and he left. A few days later he returned, left after a few minutes, his cane stained with blood.

The second blind man was found the next day lying unconscious in his room. He died soon after being found.

That's the story as told in the cryptic language of a news dispatch. Beyond the wires—or between the lines—lies the story of an unusual "eternal triangle," the loves and hates of three less fortunate members of society. Ruled by the same moving passions that afflict the rest of us, they acted as they "saw" fit and therefrom evolved a tragedy of the sightless.

To the two blind men, the one-eyed woman might have been beautiful—they fought and one died on her account. To the one that lives there remains the consolation of valor, fighting for his right in the face of one of nature's more serious handicaps. To the one-eyed woman, there is left only a memory of brief moments of happiness, to be overshadowed by a tragedy neither her husband nor her lover probably expected.

What the outcome will be before the bar of justice will make little difference to the two survivors. Should society take the life of the unfortunate one who killed another sightless being for what was his right? Should he be set free to live with the woman he loves but cannot see, the woman who was loved by another who could not see her? Well, they say that love is blind; let's see what visionary powers justice has.

From the seclusion of his Tarrytown (N. Y.) estate comes word from John D. Rockefeller—on the occasion of his ninety-third birthday—that "prosperity has always returned and will again."

"These are the days," he added, "when many are discouraged. In the 93 years of my life, depressions have come and gone. And now, on my birthday, I desire to reaffirm my belief in the fundamental principles upon which this country was founded—liberty, unselfish devotion to the common good, and belief in God."

Maybe it's an easy matter for a man like Rockefeller to make such a prediction but he probably wouldn't do it if he didn't think it would come true. His faith in the U. S. brought him his fortune, his renewed faith brings peace of mind.

Not that those who feel the depression most are people who have never had—or have lost—faith in the future of this nation—but because the few who live just for riches are prolonging the depression and adding to the unrest—that a statement from a man like Rockefeller is warranted. He does not belong to the latter class.

(From Puritanism as a Literary Force, by H. L. Mencken)

Poverty is a soft pedal upon all branches of human activity, not excepting the spiritual, and even the original Puritans, for all their fire, felt its throttling caress. I think it is Bill Nye who has humorously pictured their arduous life: how they had to dig clams all winter that they would have strength enough to plant corn, and how they had to hoe corn all summer that they would have strength enough to dig clams.

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

STUDIO GOSSIP

By HARRISON CARROLL

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 8—After several visits to "Whistling in the Dark" at a local theater, Harold Lloyd is showing great interest in the picture possibilities of this mystery-comedy; in fact he tells me he is about ready to assure Joe Schenck that he will do the story after all.

Heretofore, he has opposed it because it would force him to go to work immediately and because he doesn't approve of plays for screen vehicles. Audiences, he argues, know the demotivation in advance.

No decision can be made for several days, however, as Harold has gone to San Francisco to see the intercollegiate championship meet. Hollywood sent a large party to this event. Harold went with Douglas Fairbanks, Howard Hawks and Morley Drury, famous ex-quarterback for the University of Southern California.

after a separation of seven months (the longest since their marriage) Irene Dunne's husband, Dr. Francis Griffith, is due here any day for a three weeks' visit. The pair will go to Del Monte... one of Charlie Chaplin's few appearances in Hollywood-to-date was a visit to Marion Davies on her set at M.G.M.

The door to Adela Rogers Hyland's office at R-K-O has her name on it and beneath, "The Woman's Viewpoint"... reminds me of that famous sign Dorothy Parker left on her door at M.G.M.: "Gone to See Irving Thalberg, Back Next Week."

Caceres doesn't get an audience at Universal.

This young Central American came all the way from San Salvador to Hollywood because he thinks he is the right actor to play the lead in "Laughing Boy."

Caceres is the son of the head of the National Telephone company in San Salvador and, since college, has been playing stock in the theaters there. He has spent some of his life with the Central American Indians and he believes he understands the psychology of primitive races.

He read the Oliver La Farge novel and then came to Hollywood after he found out Universal was looking for a leading man.

Several film companies were bidding for Polan Banks' novel, "Brief Raptures," but it finally goes to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Though there is no official admission of the fact, I have an idea they intend it for Joan Crawford. To date, the studio has only one story, "Lost," definitely in preparation for Joan. She also has been mentioned as the lead in "The Education of a Princess."

Demos Fail to Compromise on Relief Bill

Garner Insists Upon Individual Loans; Veto Looms

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP) — A Democratic attempt to compromise on an unemployment relief bill that would receive President Hoover's signature collapsed today through Speaker Garner's insistence upon a provision for loans to individuals.

As a result of the failure of the negotiations, leaders predicted tonight that the $2,100,000,000 bill would be sent to the president probably tomorrow to receive an almost certain veto.

Refuses Compromise
Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, refused to compromise with senate Democrats, as he had previously declined to yield to President Hoover.

The new effort to seek a compromise from Garner was made by a committee of three Democratic senators appointed by a conference of the senate minority.

Support Speaker
Although there was considerable criticism in the conference of Garner's stand, there was a strong disposition to support the speaker if he insisted upon sending the bill to the president in its present form.

The committee appointed to talk the matter over with Garner was composed of Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, and Senators Wagner of New York and Bulkeley of Ohio.

Conference Decides
They conferred with the speaker for two hours, and it was finally decided not to revise the bill.

This decision will be reported to the minority conference tomorrow and the Democrats will then decide whether to support the measure.

Report Withheld
The conference report was scheduled to come before the senate today, but was withheld until the Democrats could decide upon their course.

Already approved by the house, if it is adopted by the senate it will be ready for the White House.

Desire Agreement
In their discussion the senate Democrats gave consideration to the question of a final adjournment of congress and expressed a desire to reach an agreement which would permit winding up the session as soon as possible.

Garner indicated he was not convinced that President Hoover would veto the bill in its present form.

Individual Loans
The issue for which Garner is standing is that the reconstruction corporation should be allowed to make loans to individuals who are able to furnish adequate security and cannot obtain funds elsewhere.

President Hoover has insisted upon the terms of the senate bill, which limits loans to self-liquidating projects of a public character.

Against Report
Senate Republican leaders decided late today to vote against the conference report in view of President Hoover's objections to it.

They were advised that President Hoover has already written his veto message and will send it back to congress as soon as the bill reaches him.

Modern Adam and Eve in Pacific Eden

SMOKING THEIR PANTY. SHOWING LOCATION OF ISLANDS. DR. KARL RITTER and FRAU KOERWIN.

NEW YORK — Though we have sighed at some time or other for the "good old days," none of us have ever gone so far as to long for the return of conditions that existed in the Garden of Eden before Eve went on an apple diet.

But Dr. Karl Ritter, who three years ago was a prominent physician in Berlin, Germany, not only longed for a return to the days of our first parents, but is actually living as they lived in an Eden of his own creation.

Dr. Ritter carved out his Garden of Paradise on Charles Island, a lonely little isle in the Galapagos group, and there he lives in utter contentment with Frau Dore Koerwin, a former patient in Berlin, his sole companion.

Three years ago this couple strangled themselves to their strange exile as a scientific-social experiment. They set out to prove that man could live comfortably and happily without any of the adjuncts of modern civilization which make life so complicated a matter for some people.

And today, according to Vincent Astor, millionaire sportsman, the last man to see the modern Adam and Eve, their experiment is a success. Astor, cruising in Pacific waters in his yacht Nourmahal, called on Dr. Ritter and Frau Koerwin late in February.

He was their first visitor in more than six months, but he found them completely self-sufficient, happy and not the least bit bored by their lonely existence. Except for their rather unkempt appearance, the experimenters might be just a couple of sightseers.

Keeping strictly to the letter of their original resolution to repudiate the machine age, Dr. Ritter and his Eve have only one piece of machinery on the island. That is a wheel barrow which Dr. Ritter fashioned himself from materials at hand. This barrow is used for transporting their food, bananas and vegetables to the shack where they live.

Two years ago when Astor called at the island he brought some packages of seeds to the couple. These seeds, according to Mr. Astor, have come along splendidly and have considerably varied the diet on the island Eden.

The only water on the island comes from a small spring, so the lives of Dr. Ritter and his companion depend on that little source. For should the spring dry up they would die of thirst, because the only vessel that calls at the island is an old schooner that makes the trip twice a year from Ecuador. This ship brings mail to used to accept 1,900,000,000 marks (currently about $450,000,000) as a final bonded settlement.

Chancellor von Papen rejected the allied suggestion for a series of bonds totalling 4,000,000,000 marks (currently about $1,000,000,000).

And there they were when the clouds broke.

Germany finally dropped her war guilt point, and it was understood agreed to submit the question to the League of Nations later.

Herriot Compromises
Then Premier Herriot of France met this gesture by announcing a willingness to scale down the final settlement bonds to a total of 3,000,000,000 gold marks, or $750,000,000.

This was a bargain.

The details of the bond issue were in brief that German bonds for the equivalent of $750,000,000 would be issued when Germany's credit would permit, and the price would be 90. The bond issue would be withheld, however, for at least three years.

The sinking fund requirement was fixed at one per cent and maturity in 37 years was agreed upon, but if the issue is not floated within 15 years it would automatically be cancelled.

Lakeside Laboratory Opens for Twenty-Fourth Session

LAKESIDE LABORATORY, Milford (Special To The Daily Iowan)—The Iowa Lakeside laboratory opened on June 20 for its twenty-fourth session with the following staff:

Prof. G. W. Martin, University of Iowa, director and mycologist; Prof. H. S. Conard, Grinnell college, botanist, and R. L. Risley, University of Iowa, zoologist.

As usual, field courses in botany and zoology are being offered and a number of students are conducting research in mycology, with particular attention to the slime-molds, the water molds, and the tremelaceous fungi. Catharine Mullin is continuing her work on leeches with special reference to regeneration.

Including the staff and collaborators there are 19 persons doing scientific work at the laboratory, of whom two are undergraduates. Including members of the families there are about 35 persons residing on the grounds.

Enrollment will be slightly smaller during the second term so that there will be room for new students in botany or zoology who can do some of their work at the laboratory this summer.

Recent visitors include President Emeritus T. H. Macbride of the University of Iowa, who is working on a revision of his book on myxomycetes, and Dr. Frank Thone, of Science Service.

The usual course of Wednesday evening lectures began July 6 with a lecture by Professor Conard on "The life of the bee."

What Do You Offer? India Gods on Sale at New Low Prices

Gods for sale! Prof. James C. Manry of the philosophy department, has been asked by a gentleman in India to turn a few gods into good American dollars.

Sanskrit manuscripts, Indian paintings and sculptures, and Persian carpets are among the articles which the gentleman wishes to dispose of to some American multimillionaire.

The Indian's identity can not be disclosed because he has informed Professor Manry that it is a very delicate situation. In other words his Indian neighbors are not very anxious to see their beloved gods sold into infidel hands on foreign shores.

At present, Professor Manry is corresponding with museums in Boston, New York, and elsewhere in an effort to dispose of the articles. The collection of paintings is endorsed by Abindra Nath Tagore, who is said to be the best painter in India. He is a cousin of the well known Indian poet, Rabindranath Tagore.

"Jawar Jivar Bhaskarutiki" and "Photaker Bhasha Vaidyak Sar Patar" are the titles of two of the approximately 280 Sanskrit volumes on medical science in the collection. Another volume which should furnish good reading is "Triyodas Sannipat Chikitsa." Some of the volumes deal with ancient and medieval Indian philosophy and drama.

Professor Manry has received photographs of 41 sculptures some of which are the Indian gods no longer needed.

Lausanne

1931, showed the United States had received something over $1,000,000,000 on account of debts totalling more than $11,000,000,000.

The agreement contained a preamble detailing the conference's efforts for peace and five resolutions.

The preamble concluded: "The powers that have signed this treaty do not claim that the accomplishment at Lausanne, which will completely put an end to reparations, can by itself assure that era of peace which all nations desire."

"But they do hope for an assurance that all these aims of such deep significance will be understood and appreciated by all pacific elements in Europe and in the world. They do hope that these accomplishments, so arduously attained, will be followed by French achievements."

Five Resolutions
The five resolutions were, briefly (1) an agreement regarding reparations between Germany and the former allies; (2) conditional measures extending a moratorium on intergovernmental debts; (3) an agreement to assist Austria and the Danubian states which are in financial difficulties; (4) creation of a committee to study the grain problem in the Danubian states which are embarrassed by a huge grain surplus; and (5) creation of the machinery for a world economic conference under the auspices of the League of Nations.

No "Gentlemen's Agreement"
There was nothing about a "gentlemen's agreement" linking reparations with war debts nor was there any reference to the "war guilt" clause of the Versailles treaty.

It was in the early morning today that the break occurred in a Franco-German deadlock over this nearly final chapter in post-war finance.

Germany had been insisting, through her new chancellor, Franz von Papen, that the war guilt clause, placing the stigma on Germany, must be eliminated.

Ripley Explanations EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The building moved by 18 men: On Oct. 14, 1930, officials of the Indiana Bell Telephone company and about 300 onlookers witnessed the start in the moving and turning of a 22,000,000 pound eight-story building in Indianapolis—a most unusual procedure for a structure of that size. It was moved a distance of 52 feet in one direction, and then given a 90 degree turn so it faced another street. And all this was accomplished without interrupting the phone, elevator, heat, water, or electric services, and the actual moving was done by only 18 men. These men operated the huge ratchet screw jacks working against the I-beams, rolling the building over a specially constructed platform of steel rails.

The building was permanently situated in its new location in about six weeks.

Defeated and elected at the same time: When Jack Lavior ran for election as a member of the board of freeholders of San Francisco in 1930 the returns in the office of the registrar of voters showed that on the unofficial count he was defeated, the vote being 30,308, but the official count elected him by a vote of 30,309—18 less than the count on which he was tentatively defeated.

Applications for New Dorm Quarters Open

Students who wish to live in one of the University of Iowa's two cooperative dormitories during the academic year of 1932-3 now may file application.

This was announced Friday as plans gained momentum to provide living quarters at low cost to 100 men and 100 women with meager finances.

Criteria for the selection of the students will be the individual needs of each, and scholarship qualifications. The men will live in quarters on the third floor of the field house, above the athletic department's offices, and the girls will reside in Eastland, a dormitory three blocks from Old Capitol.

Robert E. Rienow, dean of men, will act upon applications for field house residence, while Mrs. Adelaide L. Burge, dean of women, will handle the other division.

Cubs Defeat Phils 6-4 to Take Series

Bob Smith Outlasts 3 Phillies' Hurlers to Get Win

CHICAGO, July 8 (AP)—Bob Smith, making his first start in five weeks today, was hit safely in every inning, but the Cubs, with the aid of five Philadelphia errors, took the final game of the series 6 to 4.

Smith was punched for 11 hits, but was tight in the pinches while the five errors, all of which were made in the third inning, helped the Cubs to three runs, enough to win.

Brown Hurls Braves to Win Over Cards

ST. LOUIS, July 8 (AP)—Bob Brown allowed St. Louis only four hits today and was all set for a shutout when Wilson singled late in the ninth to drive in the only run for the Cards in a 6 to 1 contest.

Dizzy Dean, although recorded as the losing pitcher, did the best work of the day for the Cardinals. He pitched for seven innings and allowed only four hits. And during this time he contributed the only hit the Cards were able to get off Brown. Dizzy gave way to Derringer, who was made for four hits in his first inning on the mound. However, he completed the game, allowing two more safeties.

Art Shires drove in three, or half the runs made by the Braves.

Brown pitched no-hit ball for four innings and then Dean broke the spell by singling after two outs.

Vaughan's Hit Gives Pirates 8-7 Victory

PITTSBURGH, July 8 (AP)—The New York Giants came from behind a 7-6 deficit to tie the Pirates in the ninth inning today, but their work was wasted when the league leaders put across a run in the last of the ninth to win 8 to 7. The victory gave the Pirates four out of five for the series.

Floyd Vaughan's single off Mooney with the bases filled and none out, sent Pie Traynor in with the deciding score. The Pirates jumped on Hubbell for their big lead early in the game, Dick Grace leading the assault with a home run and a single.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
New York.....000 005 011—7 15 1

Dodgers Blast Out 15 Hits; Win 15-5

CINCINNATI, July 8 (AP)—Scoring seven runs in the first inning and continuing their assault on four Red pitchers, the Brooklyn Dodgers rolled up a 15 to 5 victory today to make it two out of three for the series.

Bill Clark went the route for the winners and the Reds scored all their runs off him in the second inning, four of them unearned. Five of the Reds' nine hits were crowded into the big inning. Manager Dan Howley and Pitcher Red Lucas were chased from the park by Umpire Barr.

Al Watrous Leads Field in Open Meet

OTTAWA, July 8 (AP)—Paced by Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., winner of the 1922 championship, the ranking golfers of the United States and Canada today qualified for the final 36-hole play in the Canadian open championship over the Ottawa Hunt and Golf club.

Shattering par by three strokes, Watrous went around in 70, which, coupled with his 72 yesterday, gave him a two-stroke lead over Light-horse Harry Cooper of Chicago. Cooper set the pace yesterday with a sub-par 69.

Trailing by only one stroke was Walter Hagen, the defending champion, who had a total of 145.

Flora Wallop Bees
BURLINGTON (AP)—George Mills held the Bees to five scattered hits while Rock Island was pounding Dankwardt, Burlington semi-pro hurler, for 14 blows to take the final game of the series tonight, 9 to 1.

Although not presently enjoying the berth at the top of the close National league baseball race which they held for more than a month, the Chicago Cubs have surprised most sports followers with their unpredicted strength. Iowa Supply Falls Before Daily Iowan Attack, 7 to 3

Sportively Speaking
By Gene Thorne

A shakeup in the Sippil Valley league, calling for a split season, which becomes effective today, and a plan for financial aid for Dubuque, is a measure taken by Valley officials to insure continuance of the circuit through a tough season.

Fred Leiser, former owner of the Tiger franchise, will take control of the club in place of the cooperative fans association which has owned the franchise since this year. The league treasury will aid the club by providing the $50 guarantee for teams visiting at the Dubuque park, relieving the Tigers of that financial toll.

In exchange, only $25 of the guarantee that would normally go to Dubuque will be paid over when the Tigers go visiting. The remainder will go to the league treasury chest to help meet the extra demand.

Yesterday's games were voted to stand as the final ones of the split season, which goes in effect at once. Rock Island will thus stand as the first-half winner.

Maybe it was love. At least there must have been some powerful influence in the case of Goyless Hill of Tulane university, national intercollegiate heavyweight boxing champion, who yesterday gave a pint of his blood to save the life of his sweetheart.

Peggy O'Neal, 21, whom the young fellow hopes to marry, was in a critical condition following a sunstroke suffered on a yachting party. The blood transfusion was attempted as a desperate measure to save her life.

Hill will leave tomorrow from New Orleans to go to Los Angeles in quest of an Olympic title. He may have forfeited his chance to get it, since he was too weak to work out after the transfusion. Tossing up a probable chance such as that is real devotion! Here's luck to him.

And eight United States golfers led the parade yesterday in the Canadian open championships at Ottawa, Ont., with par golf or better, and with Al Watrous at the top of the heap after shooting 142 for 36 holes. The final 36 hole play gets under way this morning.

Carmichael Twirls 5 Hit Ball for Win

Printers Bunch Blows; Regain 4th Place in League

By TOM EVANS

Ken Carmichael allowed the Iowa Supply only five well scattered hits last night at Iowa Field, and The Daily Iowan romped away with a 7 to 3 win and assumed undisputed possession of fourth place again.

While the above mentioned chucker was doing his effective mound work, his mates were pouncing on Dale Flitsch for eight honest to goodness base hits, and committing only one error. The newsmen were doing nothing offensively until the fourth inning, when they tallied three scores.

Olsen lived on Messner's bobble, and was scored on Coulter's triple to left center, Redman misplaying the ball. Potter knocked the other run in. Jones lived on an error, and Thorne singled.

Rally Ends

On a throw to third, Thorne was caught, but Jones tallied. Wilcox fled to Davidson for the end.

In the fifth and sixth frames, the pressmen attack continued. Moffitt was passed, and went to third on Johnston's single, Davidson's error allowing Moffitt to score, and Johnson to stop at third. Olson sacrificed "Shorty" home, and Coulter fled to Landrum to stop further action.

One inning later, Jones started with a single, after Potter had rolled to short. Thorne drew a pass, and Landrum made another miscue, to allow two runs to score, Moffitt reaching second. Carmichael celebrated his appearance at the plate by whiffing.

The bookstore lads' attack is written about in much less space than the above narrative. In the second they got one run by the following method. "Pinkie" Vestermark singled, but was forced on Landrum's infield hit.

Supply Scores One
Greene stepped up in the role of pinch hitter, and knocked a hard single between first and second, Landrum scoring. No more activity was shown by Sherm Greene's crew after that until the final stanza.

FT. CROOK, Neb., July 6 (Special)—Iowa's baseball team faces a real job if it is to successfully defend its R.O.T.C. championship for it must down both Wyoming and South Dakota to retain a tie.

But even a tie for the Hawkeys is based on Wyoming upsetting the powerful undefeated Nebraska crew and the most rabid Cowboy in camp holds little hope for such an occurrence.

Behind the masterful pitching of Frank Stempel, Iowa won 7 to 1 over Creighton. The big hurler gave but three hits and struck out 10 of the 15 men to face him in the four inning game.

But when the Iowans met the Cornhuskers it was a different story, a 16 to 1 defeat for the 1931 champions in six innings. Nebraska connected with the slants of Stempel and Harold Blair for only seven hits, but 15 Iowa errors coupled with a one hit pitching masterpiece by Smith, former Nebraska league hurler, made it easy for the winners.

FT. CROOK, Neb., July 6 (Special)—Broken glasses and a broken string failed to stop Ron Reddig, Iowa tennis captain, in his quest for the R.O.T.C. singles title here Tuesday night as he downed Manson of South Dakota, 6-3, 6-2, to enter the finals.

Although he was unable to see the ball clearly at times, Reddig had little difficulty with the Soda ace and

Lowers Rate to $2.50 Plus Federal Tax

Will Affect Minnesota, Nebraska, Purdue Games

A fifty-cent cut in the price of tickets for the University of Iowa's three major home football games of 1932 was announced yesterday by Edward H. Lauer, director of athletics.

Instead of $3, the reserved seat price which has been in effect for about 10 seasons, each ticket will sell for $2.50, plus the 10 per cent federal tax.

Three Big Games

Games for which the slash was made are Minnesota, Homecoming, Oct. 22; Nebraska, Nov. 5; and Purdue, Dad's day, Nov. 12, with all stadium seats reserved for each contest. No seats will be reserved for the season's opener with Bradley Tech, Oct. 1, general admission being $1.

Iowa therefore aligns itself with about half of the Western conference universities which have cut their top price of football tickets for next fall's games. Purdue, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Northwestern are among those which made reductions.

Former Hawk Eye Grigger Will Coach at West Virginia U.

Dennis E. Myers, former guard on University of Iowa football teams, has been appointed head line coach at the University of West Virginia, according to information received here yesterday.

The ex-Iowan, who formerly lived in Algona, played on the teams of 1927, 1928, and 1929. He was graduated from the university in July, 1930, with a bachelor of arts degree.

At the Mountaineer institution, Myers will serve as first assistant to "Greasy" Neale, veteran head coach. He will report for duty in September.

SYNOPSIS

Lily Lou Lansing, young and pretty telephone operator, gives up her opportunity for an operatic career to marry wealthy Ken Sargent. Ken's parents had hoped their son would marry the socially prominent Peggy Sage and threaten to have the marriage annulled. However, the young couple go house-keeping and are ideally happy. Then Ken loses his position and, one night, Lily Lou hears him sobbing. Next day, Ken's father calls and informs Lily Lou her marriage has been annulled. Feeling Ken no longer cares, Lily Lou accepts a railroad ticket and $500 from Mr. Sargent and goes to New York. She rents a furnished room and through Maxine Rochon, one of the boarders, secures a position playing the piano for a dancing teacher. Later, she and Maxine go to live with the wealthy Mrs. Paula Manchester, whose hobby is befriending young artists. Word comes that Ken is engaged to Peggy Sage and Lily Lou is depressed. Shortly after, Lily Lou is stunned with the realization she is to become a mother. She longs for Ken, thinking how proud he would have been, but refrains from writing him. She loses her position but tells Dwight Gwin, the noted vocal instructor, she disliked working in the dancing school as she is a singer.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

"A singer," he echoed softly. He studied her, his head on one side. "A singer. I didn't know."

She was aghast at what she had said. He'd think... he'd think she was trying to interest him. She laughed, a little weakly. "I shouldn't have said that. It was a job anyway—I hated to lose it!"

He came a little closer. "You're out of work?"

She edged toward the door. Nervous. Hating her own nervousness. "Didn't I say Miss Pillsbury fired me?"

His flexible voice was so tender, so full of gentle pity that she thought she couldn't bear it. Why in the world did she come back here, to lay herself open to that? She struggled for poise, for some laughing, cynical thing to say. And instead, to her horror, she began to cry.

It wasn't that she minded Gwin's arms around her. He wasn't the least bit personal or unpleasant about it. He just took her in his arms when she cried, as if it were the most natural and normal thing in the world to do. And it did help her to lean on... but it was so humiliating, to break down this way...

She struggled unhappily to hold back the tears, but they squeezed through her fingers, plopped onto the sofa, leaving small, pear-shaped stains.

"Now you just wait a moment, and then we'll go in search of lunch, have a pupil shortly after two."

It seemed very natural and nice to be having lunch with Dwight Gwin. He called a cab, and they drove across town to a small place called The Oyster Bar.

"Not up to New Orleans, of course," he said, "but surprisingly like it. We'll have roasted oysters, and a little chicken, and then if you are a very good child I might let you have some maple mousses!"

But when they were eating he said, "No, on second thought, you can't have any mousses. I wish I hadn't fed you at all. I want to try your voice when we get back. I should have done it before we ate, but you looked so pathetic I thought you needed the food."

Lily Lou's heart gave a bound. It was one thing to be friendly with Dwight Gwin, and even to have lunch with him. But to have him try her voice! Dwight Gwin, to whom big professionals came, to coach for new roles!

"Oh, but you wouldn't take me. Besides, I couldn't come—I mean, you'd be too expensive."

"Not at all. That is, not to you."

He smiled teasingly as he said it, and she echoed his smile, but weakly. She thought of her mother's worried warnings about strangers in a big city.

But what did all that matter now? People would soon be saying and thinking worse than that of her. She'd be a fool if she didn't seize the chance to study with Gwin, if he'd take her—

Once decided, her cheeks began to glow, and her eyes to sparkle with excitement. She had the voice, she knew she had it... If only she hadn't eaten the chicken... Oh, dear, to let a plate of chicken jeopardize your whole career!

She began to coax a little, to bolster up her courage. "I haven't had so much voice training, but mother used to say I could carry a tune before I could talk, and I have had a lot of piano and harmony. I thought I was going to be a pianist, at first—"

"Are you the only one in your family who is musical?"

"Oh, no! We all are. Mother plays the organ, and she used to give piano lessons when she was a girl. And my dad sings, and my brothers—all of us. They're not trained, you know. They just sing—"

"The singing throat, eh?"

"What?"

"We'll see, later."

The taxi was held up at every corner. Always the wrong signal, traffic jam after traffic jam. Even Gwin grew impatient. Lily Lou felt her throat tighten. "I won't be able to sing a note," she thought, clenching and unclenching her hands.

Gwin didn't ask her to sing. He sat down at the piano and began to play, from memory. Snatches of light opera. Some old songs, Gounod's Ave Maria, humming and singing softly as he played. "Come on, you too," he invited.

Very softly Lily Lou joined in, her voice a little tight at first, then easier, rounder.

"Clair de Lune—do you know that? Not so well. How about I know a Lovely Garden—no? Ah—this—you'll know this—Connais tu le Pays—"

She wasn't sure of the words and he made no move to find the music. Without waiting for her he began, singing almost under his breath. Almost as softly she joined him... The words came back to her, the joy of singing, the poignant beauty of the melody stirred her... She had it... She was in voice... It was going to be all right...

She waited, breathless, smiling a little.

"Your French is frightful," he said, glancing at his watch, and rising from the piano bench to look down at her with a rueful smile.

"I know. My languages—"

"You must study. My poor child, how you must study! And you are—how old. Twenty. And no languages. Is it possible?"

"But my voice. Surely that isn't hopeless? I can sing! I know I can. I can feel it—here!" She touched her heart, the first quick fear slipping from her. "Maybe I do everything wrong. Maybe my voice isn't placed right. But it's there! And the music is in me. I have perfect pitch—I can tell my note—"

His smile stretched to a thin, hard line that was almost a sneer, but she held her ground, dark eyes flashing, cheeks aflame.

"Yes, God gave you the voice. No credit to you. Sit down. Show me if you can read."

He flung an opera score on the piano, opened it at the second act of Barbier de Siviglia. "Now—the accompaniment only. No, no—go on—keep going—"

He stopped her finally. "Good. Howard Johnson will be here at two. You will accompany him. I engage you. I take you as a pupil. After that—we shall see."

"But your regular accompanist—"

"He's gone."

"You didn't let him go because I—because I wanted—"

"No, no. Leave all that to me. Ah, Johnson, how do you do? Come right in. Let us begin, Una voce poco fa... all right, Miss Lansing—"

Lily Lou played. Her fingers were stiff with nervousness at first, but it was not very difficult, she had always read easily and accurately. She got through it.

After the baritone there was a young Russian girl who was coaching Mimi. "That," said Gwin, when she had gone, "is French as it should be sung. But alas, she does not sing."

After that, another baritone with hopes of opera. Then a tenor—soloist at one of the big churches—who flatted his high notes.

"Not that it matters," Gwin said. "For his public likes him that way. Besides he has no ear—he's just as happy—"

It was confusing and exciting, and wearying, as Lily Lou realized when the day was over. But what heck! A chance to study with Gwin, and a job besides, and most of her mornings free for study—

Mrs. Manchester was out when Lily Lou got home. She rushed in to tell Sadie, in the kitchen. "I'm going to study with Gwin—Dwight Gwin, Sadie—you must have heard of him! I'm his accompanist, and he thinks I have a natural voice. Oh, Sadie, isn't it wonderful!"

"Just fine," Sadie said. "Seems like it's your lucky day, Miss Lily Lou!"

About six Maxine came in, and flung her sketchbook on the floor. "Gosh! I'm tired... My ears and whiskers, Lansing, what's happened—you'll know this—Connais tu le Pays—"

Lily Lou laughed delightedly.

"And what do you think of that?" she finished when Maxine had had every detail, even to the Russian soprano's clothes and Gwin's trick of running his fingers through his curly gray hair.

"I think it's grand. But how are you going to eat? Where are you going to get the twenty for board here?"

"Why, the same as before. I told you I'm going to be Gwin's accompanist. He's going to pay me the same as Wanda Pillsbury did. A hundred a month."

"And free lessons besides?"

"Yes. Why... Is it... Isn't it all right, Maxine? Don't they usually pay when they—"

Maxine picked up her sketchbook, and the hat she had flung on the floor. She was smiling slightly. "Anything's all right that you can get away with in this town," she said.

But what did all that matter now? People would soon be saying and thinking worse than that of her. She'd be a fool if she didn't seize the chance to study with Gwin, if he'd take her—

Once decided, her cheeks began to glow, and her eyes to sparkle with excitement. She had the voice, she knew she had it... If only she hadn't eaten the chicken... Oh, dear, to let a plate of chicken jeopardize your whole career!

She began to coax a little, to bolster up her courage. "I haven't had so much voice training, but mother used to say I could carry a tune before I could talk, and I have had a lot of piano and harmony. I thought I was going to be a pianist, at first—"

"Are you the only one in your family who is musical?"

"Oh, no! We all are. Mother plays the organ, and she used to give piano lessons when she was a girl. And my dad sings, and my brothers—all of us. They're not trained, you know. They just sing—"

"The singing throat, eh?"

"What?"

"We'll see, later."

The taxi was held up at every corner. Always the wrong signal, traffic jam after traffic jam. Even Gwin grew impatient. Lily Lou felt her throat tighten. "I won't be able to sing a note," she thought, clenching and unclenching her hands.

Gwin didn't ask her to sing. He sat down at the piano and began to play, from memory. Snatches of light opera. Some old songs, Gounod's Ave Maria, humming and singing softly as he played. "Come on, you too," he invited.

Very softly Lily Lou joined in, her voice a little tight at first, then easier, rounder.

"Clair de Lune—do you know that? Not so well. How about I know a Lovely Garden—no? Ah—this—you'll know this—Connais tu le Pays—"

She wasn't sure of the words and he made no move to find the music. Without waiting for her he began, singing almost under his breath. Almost as softly she joined him... The words came back to her, the joy of singing, the poignant beauty of the melody stirred her... She had it... She was in voice... It was going to be all right...

She waited, breathless, smiling a little.

"Your French is frightful," he said, glancing at his watch, and rising from the piano bench to look down at her with a rueful smile.

"I know. My languages—"

"You must study. My poor child, how you must study! And you are—how old. Twenty. And no languages. Is it possible?"

"But my voice. Surely that isn't hopeless? I can sing! I know I can. I can feel it—here!" She touched her heart, the first quick fear slipping from her. "Maybe I do everything wrong. Maybe my

Ruffing Bests Vic Sorrell in Twirling Duel

Combs Hits Home Run With Two Aboard for Victory

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—Earl Combs terminated the Yankees' losing streak suddenly and effectively today when he knocked one of Vic Sorrell's offerings into the bleachers with two mates aboard, the big punch being sufficient to give the leaders a 3 to 2 decision over Detroit.

Combs' blow, which came in the third inning, was about all the damage the Yanks could do to the Tiger star. He held them to two scattered hits the rest of the way and yielded only seven in all, but he couldn't match Charley Ruffing.

The Yankee right hander pitched brilliant ball all the way, striking out 10 Tigers and allowing only three hits until the ninth frame, when he granted three more.

The defeat sent the Tigers into third place, below the Athletics, who took a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Detroit.....000 000 101-2 6 0 New York.....003 000 006-3 7 1 Batteries—Sorrell and Hayworth; Ruffing and Jorgens.

Back in Game

When the Brooklyn Dodgers unconditionally released Waite Hoyt, the former "Boy Wonder" of the major league pitching, most experts predicted that he was through in the big time. But the Giants have acquired his services now and in his first appearance with them, turned back the Pirates Thursday in a relief role.

Ray Barrett of Nashville, Tenn., played 240 holes of golf consecutively trying for a hole-in-one.

45 Remain in Olympic Mat Finals

Fourth Round Struggles Scheduled to Last Far Into Night

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 8 (AP)—Forty-five contestants from an original field of 96 remained at the end of the third round tonight as amateur wrestlers from all parts of the United States squirmed on Ohio State University mats for the honor of representing Uncle Sam in the Olympics.

That number was expected to be sliced in half in fourth-round struggles scheduled to last far into the night.

Five men remained in the 191 and 158 pound classes; six in the 145 and 174 pound divisions and seven at 123 and 134 pounds. Nine still were in the grappling for heavyweight laurels.

From the big field, an alternate and a regular for the Olympic wrestling team are to be picked in each weight.

Only Edgar Nevin, 134 pounder from the University of California; Robert Hess, 174, Iowa State; Harry Fields, heavyweight, Harvard college; and Jack Van Bebbler, Los Angeles, A. C., retained spotless records.

Prohibition

Republicans entreated the Democrats, in the name of their new repeal and modification plank, to help them put through beer legislation.

After beckoning futilely for two days for united support from the Democratic side, Senator Bingham said hopes he had held that the Democratic prohibition plank meant that members of the party in the senate would join his move for beer was unfounded.

No Justification

The house beer revision was read by Representative La Guardia (R., N. Y.). It said with both parties now on record "for a change in the prohibition policy of the United States, there can be no honest justification" for delay.

During the senate debate, Barbour, questioned by Glass (D., Va.), said he personally does not favor the prohibition plank adopted by his party.

Not Favoring Wets

Then Senator Reed (R., Pa.) asked Glass whether he favors the plank of the Democratic party, and the Virginian replied in the negative.

Senator Sheppard (D., Tex.) co-author of the eighteenth amendment, said he intended to oppose any effort to change the dry laws unless instructed otherwise by the people of his state.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, denounced the prohibition discussion as a waste of time.

Iowa Swim Research in Tank Journal

Swimming research problems, carried forward at the University of Iowa by candidates for advanced degrees, will be given a prominent place in the new quarterly journal published by the American Swimming Coaches association.

Coch David A. Armbruster of the Hawkeye institution, as associate editor of the publication, now is editing the Iowa material which will appear in the first issue next September.

Results of scientific studies of proper respiration, temperature of water, and efficiency of various strokes will be described in the journal by university men, Coach Armbruster said.

Some of the nation's best known coaches will contribute articles for the initial issue. They include Matt Mann, coach of the University of Michigan's national intercollegiate championship teams; Ernest Brandt of Stanford, and Robert Kiphuth of Yale.

During the month of June the St. Louis Browns not only won two-thirds of their games but had a team batting mark of .324.

Two motorboats in a race at St. Louis collided, sending one into a nearby field and the other into another collision, without injuring anyone.

In the first 65 games of the 1932 season the St. Louis Browns bettered their 1931 percentage for the same period by 70 points.

Dubuque to Continue in Valley Loop

CEDAR RAPIDS, July 8 (AP)—The Mississippi Valley league today decided to split its playing season after voting to retain its present membership and making arrangements whereby Dubuque can continue as a member of the circuit.

Accepting the Dubuque franchise from a cooperative fans committee which has been sponsoring the team there since the first of the season, the league officials turned it over to Fred J. Leiser, former owner, after making financial arrangements designed to keep the team on a supporting basis.

Rock Island was declared the winner of the first half of the season. The second half will begin with Saturday's games and the winners of each half will meet in a playoff series at the end of the season to decide the championship.

Details of the financial arrangements made for Dubuque will be worked out by Leiser and the league. One item will be the payment from the league treasury of the $50 guarantee Dubuque must pay to visiting teams when playing on the Tiger field. When Dubuque is away from home the club will receive $35 of the $50 guarantee coming to it, the other $15 going to the league treasury to help offset funds paid in guarantees on the Dubuque home games.

A's Go to Second With Double Win

PHILADELPHIA, July 8 (AP)—Winning both ends of today's doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox, the Athletics leaped into second place over the Detroit Tigers, six and a half games behind the Yanks.

The scores of the Mack triumphs were 6 to 4 and 11 to 2.

Two runs in the sixth inning to break a 3 to 3 tie gave the Athletics the first contest. The Mackmen clinched the second game early, scoring four runs that finished Gaston in the first inning, and coming back with five more in the second.

Jimmy Fox hit his thirtieth home run of the season in the first game and Simmons cracked his seventeenth with two on base in the second contest. Cramer hit in both games to run his record of hitting in consecutive games to 22 in a row.

Nats Hit Ferrell, But Lose by 6-5

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Wesley Ferrell was hit hard today, but he outlasted two Washington pitchers as Cleveland took its third straight from the Nationals 6 to 5.

Vosmik drove in the winning run in the eighth with a single after Averill purposely had been passed, filling the bases.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Cleveland.....002 011 020-6 13 0 Washington.....201 000 020-5 12 2 Batteries—Ferrell and Myatt; Coffman, Burke and Spencer.

Browns Trim Red Sox by 8-4 Score

BOSTON, July 8 (AP)—A six run drive by the St. Louis Browns in the second inning was a big factor in their win over the Red Sox, 8 to 4 today.

Ed Gallagher, former Boston college star, started for the Sox and five of the six runs in the second were charged to him. He received poor support. Stewart yielded nine hits to the Sox, but the early lead was sufficient to give him an easy win.

Score by innings: R. H. E. St. Louis.....060 000 110-8 10 2 Boston.....010 000 012-4 9 1 Batteries—Stewart and Bengough; Gallagher, Michaels, Moore and Connally.

Fischer Claims Victory in Fight for Nomination

VINTON, July 8 (AP)—Karl W. Fischer, Republican candidate for state auditor, today claimed victory in the fight for the party nomination.

He said he had delegates from 24 counties instructed to vote for him at the state convention and claimed support in 46 other counties.

Other primary candidates whose names will be before the convention are J. W. Long of Ames, suspended state auditor; H. A. Darling of Glenwood, C. E. Kringel of Atlantic, and J. V. Lenley of Leon. Long obtained less than 100 votes more than Fischer in the primary but neither polled the necessary 35 per cent plurality.

George Sisler, who resigned as manager of Tyler in the Texas league, was receiving the highest salary in the circuit for leading a tail-end club.

Police Detain Three Golfers as Criminals

Identify Trio on Public Links as Convicts, Bank Robber

KANSAS CITY, July 8 (AP)—Three high living, knicker-clad golfers arrested on a public links here were identified today as notorious criminals sought in connection with half a dozen major crimes in the midwest, including bank robberies and the smuggling of firearms into Leavenworth federal prison.

Two of the trio, Thomas Holden, 33, and Francis L. Keating, 33, were returned late today to the Leavenworth penitentiary, from which they escaped with forged passes Feb. 23, 1930, to complete 25 year sentences for the $135,000 Evergreen Park, Ill., mail train robbery in 1925.

Holden and Keating, Chicago gangsters, were questioned about the Lindbergh kidnaping, the sensational Leavenworth prison break of last December, various bank robberies and a murder or two.

Federal agents, whose two-year search for the escaped convicts ended late yesterday, said the questioning about the Lindbergh kidnaping was routine.

Charged With Bank Robbery
While at large from Leavenworth, Keating and Holden are charged with having participated in the spectacular robbery of the Kraft State bank at Menomonee, Wis., in which James Kraft, son of the bank president, and two robbers died.

They are suspected of the $21,000 Yankton, S. D., bank robbery a year ago, Duluth officers hold a warrant charging Keating with robbing a bank messenger there of $8,500 in cash and $50,000 in bonds last October.

Max Towle, county attorney at Lincoln, Neb., said he would have the two men questioned about the $2,500,000 Lincoln National bank robbery Sept. 17, 1930.

Mrs. Holden, Mrs. Keating and Mary Crawford were held by police. They carried two automatic pistols.

2 Iowa City Men Leave for Annual Elks' Convention

Henry Louis, 319 S. Linn street, and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Russell, their daughter Kathleen, 427 S. Governor street, and Esther Thomann of Chicago, Ill., left this week end for a two weeks convention trip of the Elks lodge delegates from Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Mr. Louis, who is in charge of the Iowa delegates, left yesterday morning by automobile. The Russells left this morning on a pullman chartered by the Elks for the trip. Mr. Russell is the Iowa City lodge representative.

The journey includes a one day stop in Chattanooga, Tenn., and a four day stop in Birmingham, Ala., where the sixty-eight grand lodge reunion will be held. From there the delegates will go to Miami, Fla., and to Havana, Cuba. On the return trip they will visit Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., and Atlanta, Ga.

Adjustors Refuse Permit to Erect Gasoline Station

John Nash and Joe L. Cannon were denied a permit to build a gasoline station north of the Midway Inn on Riverside avenue by the Iowa City board of adjustment Friday morning.

Lack of sufficient signatures was given as the reason for the refusal. The university complained of the proposed station on the ground that it would violate the city zoning ordinance.

Members of the board of adjustment are Henry Neuge, Prof. F. G. Higbee, Charles Slavata, and Jules Kaspar.

Senators May Drop Action Against Schall

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Chairman Shortridge of the senate elections committee today told newspapermen after an informal gathering of the group that he felt it was "disposed to dismiss" the election contest brought by Einar Holdale against Senator Schall (R., Minn.).

Shortridge said the committee had not acted on the contest, however, because there were too few members present. It was referred to a subcommittee with instructions to report as early as possible.

Farley New Democratic Chief Had Early Start in Politics

JAMES A. FARLEY WITH MRS. FARLEY AND SON JIM JR. WITH ROOSEVELT AT THE CONVENTION

NEW YORK — Contrary to what is believed outside his home state, James A. Farley, new chairman of the Democratic national committee, the "New Yorker Warlock," is not the newcomer to politics. In fact, "Big Jim," as he is known to thousands, may well be regarded as a veteran in the game that guides a nation's destinies, having been a politician even before he came of voting age.

Farley was born in Grassy Point, Rockland county, N. Y., on May 30, 1888, and at the tender age of 12, when the game of aggie should have been his forte, was fascinated by the oratory extolling full dinner pads that was a feature of the McKinley-Bryan campaign. So enamored, indeed, was the young man with the art of swaying the public mind that he was made a town committeeman in the Democratic party long before he made his first mark on a ballot.

The first elective office ever held by "Big Jim" was that of town clerk of Stony Point, N. Y., from 1912 to 1919. From 1920 to 1923 he was supervisor of the town, and 1923 saw him elected assemblyman.

During this time he had climbed slowly, but surely, into the inner councils of the state Democratic party and in 1930, he was named chairman of the state committee. When one stops to consider that Farley did not devote all his time to politics, carrying on his business as dealer in builders' supplies on the side, his rapid rise to political importance is all the more remarkable.

The strategy which "Big Jim" displayed in managing the campaign of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, and which, incidentally, astounded many old warhorses of innumerable conventions, may be a product of his experience as chairman of the New York state boxing commission; for, after all, the successful politician is very similar to a successful boxer who has the faculty of getting an opponent where he wants him and then hitting hard and often.

For the last year, Farley has been indefatigable in his work of advancing the Roosevelt-for-President campaign. Without the aid of a large organization, he has journeyed north, south, east and west, visiting state and local leaders, familiarizing himself with men and conditions in all parts of the country and in general keeping his finger on the pulse of national sentiment.

His methods are those of the "regular fellow," the good mixer. Big— he stands six feet, two and a half inches tall and weighs about 215 pounds—jovial, diplomatic and exceedingly astute, Farley is credited with swinging the support of 19 states to the Roosevelt banner during one 20-day trip last summer, which feat earned him the title of America's fastest contractor.

Stocks Sink Despite Debt Agreement

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—Except for inevitable buoyancy in Reich bonds, today's security markets made a negative response to news that France and Germany had settled their reparations argument.

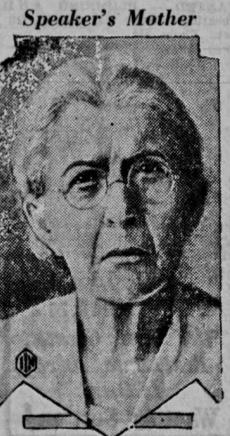

Stocks were mildly cheerful at the opening, by which time Lausanne dispatches had announced the settlement, but the smattering of gains was quickly dissipated. Thereafter weakness was selective, but the list generally refused to manifest enthusiasm over what had happened abroad and closing prices were irregularly lower. A few losses ranged from 2 to 6 points; in the main net changes were fractional. Sales totaled 720,288 shares.

Utilities had to take more or less selling all day. American Telephone worked well into the early seventies and was down 2 net. Peoples Gas lost four and Detroit Edison six.

Industrials were sluggish but reasonably steady. U. S. Steel, with an unfilled tonnage statement due at noon tomorrow, was off slightly at the close; so were Allied Chemical, Du Pont, International Shoe, Westinghouse, International Shoe, Westinghouse, Wrigley and Borden. General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Tobacco "B" were steady. General Motors, whose June sales were well under those of May, traded quietly. In rails, Union Pacific went to a new low, off 1 1/2 net.

STANDARD BEARER IN ORATORICAL ACTION

Made as the Democratic presidential nominee made his address of acceptance before the convention in Chicago, these six interesting candid camera studies show Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in a few characteristic poses. Scouts Spend Long, Happy Days in Scoutcraft, Handiwork, and Fun as Second Period Starts at Camp

"I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up this morning." This scoutcraft period continues until noon, when the scouts again turn to the John B. Snow cabin, this time for lunch. Immediately following lunch the councilors meet with small groups to give short talks on various branches of scout work.

The camp for the Iowa City Boy Scout district is reached by U. S. highway 6 and a dirt road that winds over hills for about a mile before coming to the entrance of the 23 acres which comprise the camp grounds. After more winding through the woods, the visitor climbs a steep hill and arrives directly in front of the John B. Snow memorial cabin.

Tents Under Trees
Under the trees which surround the cabin the tents for the boys are pitched. The kitchen and dining room are in the Snow cabin, while cots for the boys line the walls of the tents. The headquarters tent is just in front of the main cabin, and a bulletin board by the dining room door carries notices of the day.

The boys do not have much time to turn over for another wink of sleep after reveille blows at 6:45 a. m. each morning, because they must be ready to fall in line for the raising of the flag at 7 a. m. Then they make their beds and tidy up for breakfast, which comes at 7:30 a. m.

Foreday in Charge
Glen G. Fordyce, Iowa City Boy Scout executive, is in direct charge of the camp. Following breakfast all the boys turn out to clean up bits of rubbish and papers lying around on the grounds and in the tents. They also see that they themselves are clean and tidy, because the director makes his morning inspection at 9:10 a. m. each day.

Then the scouts begin their study period, which includes scoutcraft, archery, handicraft, and the other arts they are required to know for advancement from tenderfoot to second class scout and on to first class.

Weekly Court of Honor
Each Sunday night, the last night of camp of each period, a court of honor is held to examine the scouts for the various classes and merit badges and to award the pins and badges. Those who fulfill the proper requirements will be awarded Life, Star and Eagle ranks.

This scoutcraft period continues until noon, when the scouts again turn to the John B. Snow cabin, this time for lunch. Immediately following lunch the councilors meet with small groups to give short talks on various branches of scout work.

Reports From Lausanne Aid Grain Values

CHICAGO, July 8 (AP)—Grain values averaged higher today, influenced by favorable reports on economic prospects abroad as a result of an accord at Lausanne on Germany's war reparations.

Giving some stimulus to wheat buyers was a New York stock market afternoon rally which however flattened out later when wheat trading here had ended. There were also reports that parts of Kansas had received new rainfalls, 4 to 8 inches near Salina. Glasco and Niles, a circumstance emphasizing unusual curtailment of the domestic wheat movement, primary receipts today amounting to less than a third of the total a year ago.

Wheat closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 higher, corn unchanged to 5-8 up, oats unchanged to 1-8 off, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down. Wheat prices were at their highest in the last hour, but most of the gains disappeared in a reaction just before the finish. At no time, though did wheat reach more than a full cent advance.

It was persistently urged in various quarters that activity abroad in commercial channels should follow the reparations accord, and this was particularly the case as to wheat, with effects which should develop shortly.

Corn and oats limited the action of wheat. France and Ireland bought a few loads of white corn at seaboard. Profit-taking sales eased the provision market, although hog values were again higher.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 48, 49 1-8; September 50 7-8, 51 3-4—7-8; December 53 3-4—7-8, 54 7-8—55. Corn—July 29 7-8, offers; September 31 7-8, 32 3-8; December 31 7-8, 32 1-8—1-4.
