"UNKNOWN PARTY" SHOT REYNOLDS

Congress Prepares Substitute For Vetoed Relief Bill

Measure Will Do Away With Garner Plan

Hoover Aims Scorching Message Against Old Bill

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—A presidential veto having doomed the Garner project for Reconstruction corporation loans to individuals, congressional leaders made ready tonight to set a new relief bill on the road to the White House tomorrow. An attempt will be made to have this substitute measure authorize federal reserve banks to lend to those in need, when the federal reserve board approves. Senator Wagner (D. N. Y.) will sponsor this latest bill.

Another Message

Hopeful to have his way in the relief legislation after all the dispute it has caused, President Hoover followed up his scorching message vetoing the Garner-Wagner bill late in the day with another aimed to simplify the additional work being put upon the Reconstruction corporation.

Go at Problem

If at all possible, the plan is to have the senate go to the relief problem again tomorrow. Wagner has his bill ready.

Empowered to Lend

Any of the 12 federal reserve banks would be empowered to lend to individuals by permission of the reserve board, if the individuals could not obtain funds through the usual banking channels.

Aside from this major provision, the revised Wagner bill follows out in general the recommendations of the president in his message repudiating the bill passed last week.

Wagner got unanimous consent to make the $136,000,000 house loan bill.

High School Group to Give Play Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the University high school auditorium will be presented the opening night of "Once in a Lifetime," a play written by Hart and Kaufman and produced by members of the all-state high school dramatic group.

The play will be directed by Eugene C. Davis, who for three years has been a visiting director on the summer session staff of the university. Mr. Davis spent several years in Canadian schools of expression, later taking the regular course in the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York city. He also had worked under Barrett H. Clark of the Theater Guild in Chautauqua, N. Y., who is now dramatic critic for Samuel French of New York city.

In addition to having taught at East Technical high school in Cleveland, Ohio,

Mr. Davis has taught dramatics at Victoria high school, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. He has also acted in several plays, mainly in old men's parts. He has specialized in the study of makeup under Andrew Campbell, and under Helene Chambers of the American academy. Mr. Davis is teaching a class in dramatic art here as well as directing the annual summer play, the cast of which is composed almost entirely of high school students.

Mazurek Gets Ten Years of Hard Labor at State Reformatory

John Mazurek, 18, of Harvey, Ill., left for Anamosa yesterday afternoon in the company of Deputy Sheriff Preston Koser to begin serving a sentence of 10 years at hard labor in the men's reformatory. Mazurek arrived in Iowa City in a box car one week ago today. He and a 10 year old local boy whom he met in the railroad yards broke into the Wilber wholesale grocery, 401 S. Gilbert street, and took $14 in cash and an armload of merchandise. They hid the money near the railroad tracks.

Police laid a trap for the pair.

Mazurek was captured at 2 a.m. and the other boy was caught at 10 a.m. last Wednesday. Mazurek was sentenced by Judge Harold D. Evans yesterday.

Election Costs, Federal Loans Under Scrutiny

Senate Considers Probe of Reserve Board, Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Two new investigations were launched today by the senate while a searching inquiry into the conduct of the treasury and federal reserve board was discussed without reaching a conclusion by the rules committee of the house.

One of the new senate committees will keep an eye on the expenditures of presidential and senatorial candidates. The other is to make sure the loans of the Reconstruction Finance corporation are strictly in accord with law.

Adopted With Little Debate

Measures launching both inquiries were adopted with little debate and without record votes.

Without openly opposing, two administration financial spokesmen made it clear to the house rules committee that a congressional investigation of the treasury and federal reserve board is considered undesirable.

Two Witnesses

Under-secretary Ballantine of the treasury and Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, were the witnesses.

Ballantine said while the treasury had no objection to a congressional investigation he did believe an inquiry would hamper the department in the application of the recently enacted tax laws.

Meyer likewise said he had no objection to an investigation into the federal reserve but called the attention of the committee to the fact that the senate banking committee had just completed a two year study of the reserve system.

Appear to Urge Inquiry

Representatives McFadden (R. Pa.) and Patman (D. Texas) appeared to urge the inquiry.

Ogden L. Mills Opens G.O.P. Presidential Drive

Flays Demo Expressions on Economics

"No Man Living Has Qualifications of Hoover"

BOSTON, July 11 (AP)—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, tonight opened the Republican 1932 presidential campaign with the charge that the Democratic nominee, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, had no program to meet the economic situation.

Secretary Mills spoke before an assembly of Republicans in historic Faneuil hall and attacked the expressions on economic issues in the Democratic party's platform and Governor Roosevelt's speech of acceptance.

Summarizing his analysis of Governor Roosevelt's acceptance speech,

Secretary Mills said "It is apparent that insofar as relief is concerned the governor has no program at all."

Denies Responsibility

Secretary Mills denied that the Republican administration was responsible for the economic depression; attacked the "liberal" label as applied to Governor Roosevelt; charged the record of the Democratic majority in the national house under Speaker Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, with being in marked contrast with the "boldness" and "originality" of the administration program; and said that while Governor Roosevelt's acceptance speech was "appealing" to the casual listener, it could not stand up under the "acid test of careful analysis."

To meet the problems of the times,

Secretary Mills said, "No man living has the qualifications of President Hoover."

No Time to Ditch Veterans

"Is this the time," he asked, "at the very peak of the struggle, to order the veterans to the rear and to put raw recruits in charge? I think not."

The meeting was under the joint auspices of the Republican national committee and the Massachusetts state committee. Others on the speaking program were Secretary of the Navy Adams and former Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

Secretary Mills challenged Governor Roosevelt

"Instead of indulging in vague and unsupported attacks, to state specifically what the present administration has failed to do or has done in this emergency that is open to fair criticism, and what steps he would have taken that have not been taken to meet the successive forces that have threatened to undermine and to destroy our economic structure and to bring complete disaster to our people."

"We find," said Secretary Mills regarding Roosevelt's relief program,

"that, aside from the fact that he would plant trees where his running mate would plant post offices, all Governor Roosevelt has to say is that he favors the use of certain types of public works and the issuance of bonds. But he is not very sure, for the works are, 'insofar as possible, (whatever that may mean) to be self-sustaining if they are to be financed by the issuance of bonds' and no economic end is served 'if we merely build without building for a necessary purpose.'"

Speaks of Demo Pledges

Of the pledges of Governor Roosevelt and his party for drastic economic relief, abolition of useless offices and consolidation of government bureaus, Mills said "the expenditures of the state of New York increased from 1929 to 1931 by more than one third; that Democrats of the house voted by a large majority for 'Garner's pork barrel measure,' and that they declined to give the president the necessary authority to abolish useless bureaus."

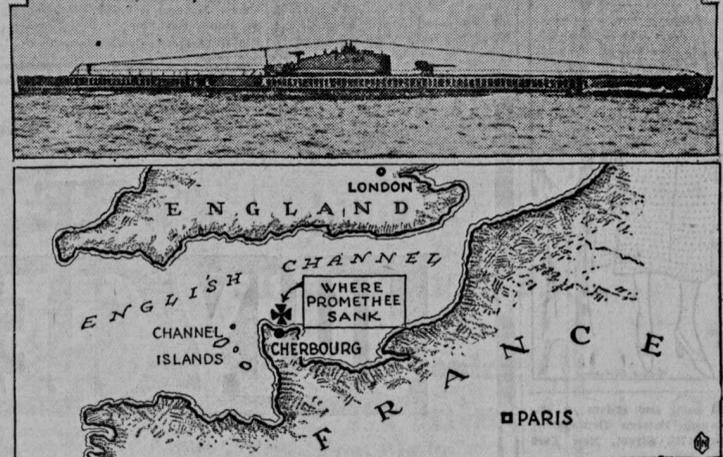

The declarations of Governor Roosevelt and the Democratic platform for sound currency were met by Mills with the assertion that "Democrats in the house within the last two months voted 152 to 50 . . . to issue fiat currency."

FRENCH SUBMARINE THAT SANK WITH 63

Above is the French submarine Promethee which went to the bottom of the English Channel off Cherbourg, France, with 63 officers and men of her crew. The submarine, one of the newest type, was undergoing diving tests when she plunged to the bottom without warning. Seven of the crew, including the skipper, Commander Du Mesnil, on deck when the craft foundered, were rescued by a fishing vessel. The map shows where the disaster occurred. The submarine is in 150 feet of water about 15 miles from land.

Contemplate Damage Suit

MUSCATINE (AP)—H. M. Bartlett, attorney for Louis Spridgen, one of three men arrested in connection with the deaths of Nick Coin and Angelo Kaloudis, said that a $50,000 damage suit was contemplated against Scott county officials who caused the trio's arrests. Spridgen was freed on a writ of habeas corpus and Charles Elder of Redfield and Pat Welsh of Columbus Junction were released by the sheriff.

Republicans to Meet in District Convention

Sixteen Iowa City Republicans will attend the Republican district judicial convention in Marengo at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The convention will name a candidate for the position of judge of the eighth judicial district.

Last week the Democrats chose James P. Gaffney of Williamsburg to run for the position. The term of Judge R. G. Popham, present incumbent, expires this year.

Former Dean of Law Dies

Charles Noble Gregory Occupied Position for 10 Years

Charles Noble Gregory, former dean of the University of Iowa college of law, died Sunday night at his home in Washington, D. C., according to an Associated Press dispatch received yesterday.

Dean Gregory headed the college of law here for 10 years, leaving here in 1911 to become dean of the department of law at George Washington university, Washington, D. C. Prior to his service here, he was dean of the University of Wisconsin college of law at Madison, Wis.

International Authority

He was an internationally known authority on law, having been honorary vice president of the American branch of the International Law association, and for 17 years one of the editors of the "American Journal of International Law."

Also active in the training of students in law, Dean Gregory was chairman of the meeting at Saratoga, N. Y., which formed the Association of Law Schools, an organization of which he was president in 1909.

Member of Various Societies

At the time of his death, he was a fellow in the Royal Society of Arts, London, and a corresponding member of L'Institut de Droit Comparés at Brussels, Belgium.

Dean Gregory was also the author of several law treatises, and was a contributor to English and American legal reviews and journals, and to literary publications, especially on matters of international law.

Awarded for Action

OTTUMWA (AP)—Through friends it was learned that Delano Portwood, corporal in company K of the 235th infantry had been awarded the Order of the Purple Heart for action in the Argonne, Oct. 14, 1918.

Returns Indictment

ALBIA (AP)—As the result of the shooting of Luther Clark last spring, the grand jury returned indictments against Uris Johnson and Ted Curl of Des Moines, charging them with assault with intent to commit murder.

Man Mistakes Lye for Weaker Fluid; Suffers in Hospital

Mistaking a strong solution of lye for something less potent, L. J. Strong of Solon had his mouth badly burned early yesterday and was taken in a serious condition to University hospital.

Iowa City police were called after Strong had swallowed the lye. They, in turn, notified Dr. George Maresh, who had the sufferer taken to the hospital. Little change was noted in his condition at a late hour last night.

Little Chance for 'Hopefuls' on White Way

Playwright Gives Talk Yesterday Afternoon in Old Capitol

Young hopefuls in the dramatic profession will find greater encouragement in their own little theaters than on Broadway today, according to Paul Green, author of the play, "Tread the Green Grass," being presented here beginning Friday. Mr. Green spoke yesterday afternoon at Old Capitol on "The phases of contemporary American drama."

He named and discussed what he considered the outstanding American dramatists and discussed the activities of the various classes of theaters in the country. That the drama has not reached the maximum of its perfection was stressed.

Broadway Spell Broken

"The spell of Broadway is broken and the tide will turn the other way," said the playwright in discussing the organization and the future of the little theater movement. "You have greater facilities offered you in your little theater here than you will ever find in what were once the great art centers—New York, Vienna, and Paris."

The following were named as the outstanding American playwrights:

Eugene O'Neill, Sidney Howard, Maxwell Anderson, George Kelly, Philip Barry, Susan Glaspell, Elmer Rice, Virgil Giddes, and Lynn Riggs.

America Has Expressed Herself

"America has expressed herself in many ways better than in the play," Mr. Green said. He named skyscrapers, railroads, and banks as fields in which a peak of perfection had been reached and said that the American novel had developed far ahead of the drama.

"The full possibilities of the cinema and the camera as a medium will never be developed so long as the dollar is in power," he said. "But the time is at hand when art will have a place in cinema. People have more sense than movie folks give them credit for."

Optimistic for Development

Mr. Green was optimistic about future development of these forms of art. He cited one of his own experiences in Hollywood to show that a change is being directed toward a more serious presentation and the abolishing of the old "kiss fadeout."

His division of the present theatrical organization was into four classes.

The professional group included the Shuberts and other big chains who are in the business solely for business. The Theater Guild and Civic Repertoire, in a professional-art group, are interested, he said, in giving the people what they want and in producing good plays.

The art division has all died out except the Group Theater, which Mr. Green helped to organize. "Art has killed them," he explained.

Praises Little Theaters

In the development of the little theater, he sees the most progressive step that is being taken at the present time. For the training of young actors and acting as experimental schools, their possibilities are unlimited, he believes.

Canvass Includes Votes

DES MOINES (AP)—Ralph Kittinger, secretary of the state executive council, said that the official canvass of primary votes had credited J. W. Long, suspended state auditor, with the 301 additional votes in Union county, which Long claimed had not been included in the count.

Files Writ

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—George E. Knapp, former Benton county attorney, and Waterloo attorney, filed a writ of habeas corpus in the Benton county court, claiming he had been committed to the Independence state hospital without due process of law.

Jury Verdict of Indecision Frees Singer

Grand Jury May Take Action Today to Place Guilt

BULLETIN WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 11 (AP)—Smith Reynolds, heir to the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions, met death from a bullet wound inflicted by a party or parties unknown, a coroner's jury decided here tonight.

The jury's indecision verdict has the effect of releasing Libby Holman, widow of Reynolds, and Albert Walker, his secretary and chum, who were held as material witnesses.

It leaves the status of the case open with the possibility that the grand jury may, if it believes the situation warrants, take action.

The grand jury meets tomorrow.

The verdict, signed by every member of the jury, was read by Assistant Solicitor J. Eric McMichael. The verdict was reached at 11:45 p.m., three hours and a half after the jury began its deliberations.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 11 (AP)—A Forsyth county coroner's jury tonight began deliberating testimony in the fatal shooting last Wednesday morning of young Smith Reynolds, heir to the huge fortune of the late R. J. Reynolds, the tobacco king.

An hour after it took the case the jury was still undecided. Sensational Testimony The six men went into executive session in Forsyth county court house at 8:15 p.m., following an afternoon of sensational testimony relating to events immediately preceding and following the shooting of young Reynolds at his palatial county home.

This afternoon the jury was told by two star witnesses that the youthful millionaire several times had threatened to take his life, the last time only a few minutes before the fatal shot was fired on the Reynolds country estate near here.

Singer a Witness

One of the witnesses was Libby Holman Reynolds who, as a singer of torch songs, became the toast of Broadway and who married young Reynolds just six days after he was divorced by Anne Cannon Reynolds, wealthy North Carolina society girl, in Reno a few months ago.

The other was Ab Walker, lifelong chum of the dead youth, who, with the pretty young widow, has been held as a material witness in the case.

Often Melancholy

Mrs. Reynolds told the jury her husband suffered a lapse of virility and often was melancholy and that seven or eight times he threatened to kill himself, once going so far as to point a revolver at her.

Walker, who followed her to the

Legion Names Delegates for State Meeting

Delegates and alternates to the annual state American Legion convention in Ft. Dodge, Aug. 1, 2, 3, were elected at a meeting in the American Legion community building last night.

The delegates are F. J. Boyle, W. R. Hart, E. L. O'Connor, Capt. R. V. Rickard, L. E. Clark, and H. H. Jacobsen. The alternates are Jess Lackeiser, Donald McLean, Charles Kennett, William Bender, Max Garner, and Charles Flesher.

It was announced that at the next meeting, Aug. 8, nominations for all officers for next year will be held, and election of two members of the members of the building association for three years.

William E. Hart announced he will be a candidate for election as state commander of the American Legion. The elections will be held at the convention. The Legion authorized the lady's auxiliary to produce a play next fall. Mrs. George Unash, president, will be in charge. A stag picnic will be held by the Legion members this summer, it was decided at the meeting. The date will be announced later. In addition to the delegates and alternates a number of Legion members are expected to attend the convention at Ft. Dodge.

Reynolds

stand, furnished the big sensation of the session by relating that the youngest son of the late R. J. Reynolds threatened to kill himself only a few moments before he fell mortally wounded on the sleeping porch of his home. "He had been peevish with Libby (Mrs. Reynolds) all evening," Walker said. He announced to me that his proposed around-the-world flight was off and that he intended to "end it all." He finished by hurling his pocketbook at me."

Then, Walker added, young Reynolds went upstairs, telling Walker to wait. Almost immediately came the sound of a shot and Mrs. Reynolds ran out of her bedroom screaming "Smith has been shot."

At 10:20 p.m., more than two hours after it began reviewing the testimony, the jury summoned J. Eric McMichael, assistant solicitor, for a conference.

Neither Mrs. Reynolds nor Walker was in the courtroom. Both remained at the Reynolds estate in custody of deputy sheriffs.

Unhappily Married Mixed with her story of the events preceding of last Wednesday night when Smith was shot through the head on a sleeping porch of Reynolds, the Reynolds family estate here, was a tale of marital unhappiness.

Sobbing almost incoherently, she related that he urged her to have an affair with another man, because of his inability to make her happy. "No, no," she cried, "I told him my love for him was too great to be impaired by any one thing."

Comforted by Parents The raven-haired stage beauty broke down numerous times during her recital of her life with Reynolds and was comforted by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holman of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Walker, 19 years old, asserted Smith told him just a few minutes before the shot which took his life was fired that he was going to kill himself.

Nurse's Testimony A sensation was caused during the hearing by the testimony of Ruby Jenkins, a nurse in the hospital to which Smith was taken, concerning an incident involving Walker and Libby.

When Smith was brought to the hospital, Libby, clad in a negligee and barefooted, was taken to another room. She had held Smith in her arms and his blood had stained her face.

Walker and Libby on the floor, nurse said she heard a commotion in the room and entering it found Walker and Libby on the floor, struggling to get up.

Besides Libby and Walker, the jury heard testimony from 19 other witnesses today. It was the first open session held by the coroner's jury which had met twice before.

Farm Relief Plans Under Consideration

Definite Action Awaits Governor's Return From Trip

DES MOINES, July 11 (AP)—A movement to "stir things up" for enactment of congressional farm relief measures today awaited the return of Governor Turner from northwestern Iowa but the ball, set in motion Saturday, was nevertheless rolling. Following a conference with Iowa Farm bureau members from the second district, Governor Turner sent eight middlewestern governors telegrams urging them to ask congress to pass certain relief legislation and to Iowa's delegation in Washington. Brookhart Favors Relief Shortly before the senate voted to expand the national currency by a billion dollars, a telegram in reply to the Iowa executive's message came from Senator Brookhart, who promised to do all he could "to stop adjournment until adequate farm relief is enacted" and expressed the hope that the governor could "stir things up in the state to stop" a probable defeat of a price-fixing measure for cotton, wheat, and hogs. Governor Turner and Secretary of Agriculture Mark G. Thornburg viewed in northwest Iowa, particularly Plymouth county, the extent of damages from two severe hail, rain, and wind storms, losses from which were estimated by one observer as being more than $1,250,000. No Replies Yet No replies had been received today from the governors addressed Saturday, but it was generally said that "important developments" would be forthcoming soon, probably Tuesday. OMAHA, Neb., (AP)—Milo Reno of Agency, Ia., was among five men mentioned for vice president on the Farmer-Labor party ticket which is headed by "General" Jacob S. Coxey. The nomination will be made by a mail vote of the executive committee.

Kansas Storm Hits Iowa R.O.T.C. Unit While at Ft. Riley

Weather proof houses would have been welcome when a Kansas storm hit the Iowa engineers of the R.O.T.C. unit encamped at Ft. Riley, Kan., blowing over the guard tent and five others, and drenching the place with rain last week. The next day, according to a letter from Capt. Bernard Smith, some timely instruction in pitching shelter tents and displaying field equipment was given. Excursions to Kansas City were taken by most of the Iowa men the fourth of July. Those who lived in Kansas went home. From the infantry unit at Ft. Crook, Neb., Capt. Russell J. Potts reports that the unit has been at the head in nearly all of the marksmanship contests thus far. South Dakota won the rifle competition from Iowa by .8 point, but Iowa won the automatic rifle contest "hands down."

Housing Service Compiles Room List

Lists of rooms for unmarried students, and of rooms and apartments for married students, are now being compiled by the university housing service, under the direction of Prof. Fred E. Holmes, manager. Within a short time, the service will start its annual inspection of rooms, preparatory to completing the list of approved rooms for fall and winter. Any householders in the city who have not previously been on the approved list, and who desire to have their rooms inspected, are requested to communicate with the housing service office in Iowa Union. Take Examinations DES MOINES (AP)—Among national guard members who took examinations for promotion were Thomas F. Hollowell, Jr., of Ft. Madison for promotion from first lieutenant to captain in the 113th cavalry and William G. Eldridge of Washington, Ia., for promotion from sergeant to first lieutenant in troop F, 113th cavalry.

Have a Laugh

OVER IN Galesburg, Ill., there is much rejoicing these days and here's why: there is plenty of money in the treasury, city employes are being paid regularly, and, most important, municipal taxes have been cut 25 per cent. Citizens of Galesburg no longer need write to their congressmen to do something about that promised prosperity.

Perhaps the investigation of happenings in the camp will tell another side which is as saddening. The man's mother will plead for justice when the case is brought to trial. Justice should be meted out, and that after a thorough-going investigation of all the principles of prison practice.

It does not really matter whether the man was an incorrigible criminal, whether he was a constant trouble-maker in the prison; neither should the mother's pleas influence the decision of the court. A human life is gone, and cannot be replaced.

Independence Day took a toll of 245 lives. It would seem to have been a glorious celebration despite the weather.

—Boston Evening Transcript

Evasion of Justice

Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel for John Hughes Curtis found guilty of obstructing the capture of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, in preparing an appeal says that there are "100 grounds" on which to attack the verdict.

Such a loophole for the evasion of justice pronounces a sad commentary on American jurisprudence. The issue is not whether Curtis is guilty but whether justice can exist in a system that lays stress on the trivial procedure rather than the main facts.

Called "the goat" by his attorney, Curtis had repudiated his confession that he hoaxed the story of his alleged dealings with the kidnapers of the murdered Lindbergh baby.

Elloquence of lawyers and beating about the bush by men who are paid for evading issues and enlarging pinhole details to maximum importance are successful in the long run, as American court history shows.

Whether the case is relegated to the files of unsolved murders or whether in time "murder will out," is relatively unimportant now in the minds of the public.

What is important, however, whether anyone who has followed the case and then gave it up for lack of interest thinks so or not, is whether there will be a noticeable decrease in kidnappings and murders, whether there comes in the near future a new era of law enforcement.

The expected has happened again with the vetoing of the $2,122,000,000 Garner-Wagner relief measure, and once more efforts to alleviate the unemployment situation and the credit conditions are at a standstill.

There is some indication, however, that before very many more days, the Garner-Wagner bill will become a law—shorn of the item against which President Hoover so strenuously objects—the provision for loans to individuals and corporations on the "merest suggestion" of security.

This proposal, according to the objector, "violates every sound principle of public finance and of government." On that basis, he is justified in holding out for its removal.

The issue has become, sadly, more than a governmental matter. It bears, now, all the earmarks of a party problem and as such, requires the best brains of both parties to settle.

There are far better ways of coming to terms with the nations that have signed the Lausanne treaty in an effort to force the hand of the United States.

Having obtained such a scattered empire, what would we do with it? Set up democracies and trust to luck and providence that they will not be more Philippines, Hawaii, and Porto Ricos? Restrict them by law from competing with domestic producers and manufacturers?

There are 15 important debtor nations of the United States, most of which own or control various territories, islands, loose states, and territorial claims.

Without doubt, some of them would be only too willing to part with a portion of these interests in lieu of cash payment.

Mills' Speech: (Continued from page 1) to maintain the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced, Mills said the house Democrats "already voted to unbalance it by over $3,000,000,000 this fiscal year, and within the last four days the house has passed a bill providing for $322,000,000 of expenditures with no revenue to cover them."

Secretary Mills said that when the latter went into oil, coal, lumber and ore sections and condemned the protective tariff on those products he would "believe in the sincerity of his criticism of barbed-wire entanglements."

Referring to the American farmer, Mills said that other than Governor Roosevelt's suggestion that interest rates on farm mortgages should be reduced without saying how it is to be done, "I find nothing in his program which does not constitute a mere endorsement in principle of what has and is now being done, and nothing to indicate how he would proceed to carry out these principles."

Answering Governor Roosevelt's criticism of the administration's credit achievements, Mills cited the establishment of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, provisions for additional credit for federal land banks and banks allied with agriculture.

Critiques Tariff Utterances: Secretary Mills criticized Governor Roosevelt's tariff utterances and said that when the latter went into oil, coal, lumber and ore sections and condemned the protective tariff on those products he would "believe in the sincerity of his criticism of barbed-wire entanglements."

Referring to the American farmer, Mills said that other than Governor Roosevelt's suggestion that interest rates on farm mortgages should be reduced without saying how it is to be done, "I find nothing in his program which does not constitute a mere endorsement in principle of what has and is now being done, and nothing to indicate how he would proceed to carry out these principles."

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD - By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 11—Gossip is buzzing here over the defiant gesture of Ann Dvorak, who has tossed away a chance to play opposite Ronald Colman and is aboard a vessel headed for New York and then, report has it, for Europe.

No Bargains Today

INTRODUCED in the senate the other day, immediately following the news from Lausanne that the former allies had signed an agreement to cut down on a 100 to one scale the German reparations payments, a resolution called upon the state department to ascertain from this country's debtors if they would like to part with some revenue-producing possessions in exchange for all or part of their debts to the United States.

A Convict Dies

THE DAYS of the Inquisition again? Investigation may throw some light on the conduct of Florida prison camp authorities, now that Arthur Mallefert, 22 year old convict, has died, supposedly from tortures of the camp. First degree murder is charged against a camp captain and guard in connection with his death.

Book Bits

(From the short stories of Guy de Maupassant) "Now it is right to say that the women of the mountain district have the reputation of being light, lighter than in the plain. A bachelor who meets them owes them at least a kiss; and if he does not take more, he is only a blockhead. If we think rightly on it, this way of looking at the matter is the only one that is logical and reasonable.

Dance Classes to See Special Demonstration

Will Present Movies in East Hall This Morning

A special demonstration of movies, with and without sound effect, dealing with Indian life, will be shown at 11 o'clock this morning in the visual education laboratories in room C5, East hall, for all dancing classes. The demonstration is for the interest of those who wish to teach rhythm to children, and gives a background for presentation. It deals with the use of percussion instruments in connection with sound effects.

Rhythmic Ceremonies

Other films will deal with the rhythmic ceremonies of various Indian tribes. A discussion and presentation of the methods in the teaching of rhythm to children will be held in the mirror room at the woman's gymnasium at 4 p.m. The presentation will be by Anne Pierce's class in public school music and by the class in rhythm training for children.

Still in Theory

This work is yet in the theoretical stage and experimental work is being done by the children. Many theses have been written on rhythm, and the general consensus of opinion is that rhythm is at least half motor experience.

Those who are interested in the use of percussion instruments in the teaching of rhythm and in comparison and contrast are invited to attend.

End Series

Tomorrow's meeting at 7:30 p.m. will end the series of experimental periods in rhythm and dancing directed by Elizabeth Southard of the physical education department, in the mirror room of the women's gymnasium. Previous testings have been made of the relationships of rhythmic movement to the other art forms.

The final experiment will deal with dancing and the various means of control. This will include group organization for dancing and methods evolved by the modern German school. Themes and variations involving fundamentals will also be demonstrated.

EXPLANATION OF SUN-DAY'S CARTOON

Breath-taking, extravagance: Pal Antal Esterhazy, prince of Galantia, count of Edelstetten, and hereditary lord of Forchtenstein (1786-1866) was the owner of the most princely fortune on the European continent. His personal holdings included 21 castles, 60 boroughs, 621 villages, and over 100,000 acres of land. Referred to as the "First Cavalier of Europe," he represented the Austro-Hungarian empire at the courts of Saxony, Holland, Rome, and in 1830 was accredited as the Austrian ambassador in London. For 30 years Prince Esterhazy was the most picturesque figure on the continent of Europe. His breath-taking exploits, his extravagance, and his fabulous splendor were a permanent newspaper feature of every country between 1810 and 1840. Within that period he squandered more than 24,000,000 gulden (about $9,600,000) in addition to his revenue, a colossal sum for his day. The two most talked about feats were the shooting of the Derby winner and the destruction of a priceless Titian original with which he lined his coat. The story is told in the French "Illustration" of May 21, 1866.

Prime minister at the age of 23: William Pitt, son of the great earl of Chatham, born in 1759, was elected to the English parliament in 1780 when barely 21 years old. In July 1782, when barely 23 years old, he became chancellor of the exchequer in the Shelburne cabinet. When Shelburne resigned on Feb. 24, 1783, the position of prime minister and first lord of the treasury was repeatedly thrust upon the youthful Pitt, with absolute authority to name a cabinet of colleagues. When Pitt finally accepted the position his term of office lasted, with a few months' intermission, for 20 years. The brilliant, youthful statesman headed one of the most powerful ministries in English history. Tomorrow: "The skyscrapers of the desert."

Prof. Dill to Direct Museums Inspection

Under the personal direction of Prof. Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum, summer session students will be escorted on a tour of the museum Saturday morning. All those intending to make the tour are requested to meet in the lower corridor of the natural science building at 9:50 a.m. Saturday.

Hunting Wild Goats Dill's Topic Tonight

Prof. Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum, will give the fourth in a series of lectures this evening at 8 o'clock, at the chemistry auditorium. The title of the lecture is "An expedition to Billy-Goat Pass," and it will be a description of a trip into the Rocky mountains in search of wild goats for the museum.

HUBBY'S SAFE, SO ALL'S WELL

Showing signs of the strain of waiting for news of her flying husband and his co-pilot, Mrs. James Mattern, wife of the 'round-the-world' airman, is shown beside the radio in her Ft. Worth, Tex., home, where she listened continuously for news of the globe-girdlers. The long silence after the flyers left Berlin and failed to arrive in Moscow caused much anxiety, and one can imagine Mrs. Mattern's relief on receiving the good news that the men were safe. The 'round-the-world' plane was forced down at Minsk, Russia, by a broken rudder, but none of the daring aviators was injured.

Token of Rising Tide in Musical Culture Found in Sunday Concert by Orchestra, Chorus, Says Critic

By MARTIN BRUHL (Guest Critic, The Daily Iowan)

As token of the rising tide of musical culture in Iowa one calls attention to the concert by the university summer session orchestra and chorus at Iowa Union Sunday afternoon.

Its virtues began when Conductor Frank E. Kendrie of the music department, read the remarkable symphonic commentary on Wagner's sturdy comedy "Die Meistersinger," with an interpretive resource that one rarely sees surpassed. The prelude, familiar to everyone who makes the slightest pretense to musical culture, discovered new proportions under Professor Kendrie's baton, which proved vastly interesting. Perhaps it was the environment of the Iowa Union lounge that moved me to discover points of beauty overlooked and unremembered in many previous hearings.

String Vitality

The prelude had all the orchestral virtues and some of them stood out in sharp relief. There was, for example, a vitality in the tone of the string body most stimulating; there was a mellow resonance of brass and a warm pulsating vibrance of wood-wind tone, that only skill and the right kind of discipline could have achieved.

Professor Kendrie played upon this ensemble with a sure hand. The certainty of contrast, the inflexible tempi, the range of expressive inflection, flowed from his baton with an impulse that left the captious audience stirred by the masterly interpretation of this great work.

Others recently entertained their families at a picnic in the city park.

"Silver and Pewter" Subject of Lecture by A. P. Hoelscher

That Paul Revere is famous not only for his ride, but for his ability as a silversmith as well, was pointed out by A. P. Hoelscher, instructor in the chemistry department, in a lecture on "Silver and pewter," last night in the chemistry auditorium.

The first American pewter was used between 1650 and 1825, and during part of this interval, Paul Revere did his work.

"Silver has always been a favorite metal," said Mr. Hoelscher, "because of its long wearing qualities. Solid silver does not stand up under wear and tear very well, however; it must be alloyed with some other metal."

There are three definite periods of silver, he said—Colonial, Georgian, and Empire.

Slides showing different pewter and silver patterns were shown during the lecture, and a movie showing the manufacture of silverware ended the talk.

Professor Zuill Will Discuss Changes in Scope of Home Ec.

Changing conceptions in the philosophy and scope of home economics will be discussed in a lecture by Prof. Frances Zuill, head of the home economics department, in room 2105, East hall, at 4:10 this afternoon. The college of education is backing the lecture, which is one of a series on the special subjects of the school program.

Attention in home economics was once almost wholly centered upon the skills of sewing and cooking, an attitude that is still too prevalent in Iowa, according to Professor Zuill. These skills are very important now, but times have changed so that a course in home economics is no longer complete unless it includes more of the problems of the home. Professor Zuill includes in home economics a study of the relations of the members of the family to each other and to society.

HUMBOLDT (AP)—By reducing teachers' salaries and affecting other savings, the board of education announced a reduction of $4,000 in school expenditures for next year.

How Prince of Wales Balks Matrimonial Rumor-Mongers

LONDON — Apart from standing forth from the pack as a leap year, 1932 can lay claim to one other distinction — that of being the only since the war that the Prince of Wales has not been rumored engaged to a princess or a commoner.

Old Lady Gossip, whose tongue once wagged so freely about the prince's legendary brides-to-be, has apparently given up in despair, for she at last has come to recognize that though the heir to the British throne may have a wonderful record of falls from horses to his credit, he is determined not to fall for any of the thousands of hopeful maidens who would like to be the Princess of Wales.

The reason for the usually talkative dame's reticence is the plan of strategy followed by Prince Eddie lately. The world's most eligible bachelor, irritated by constant rumors of his matrimonial intentions, has taken to avoiding all the single maidens of his set whom he has to meet at social functions.

Of course, Wales is as charming as ever to the fair sex, but he no longer gives the rumor mongers a chance to couple his name with that of any one girl in a matrimonial sense, because his partners at bridge, parties and dancing are all young married women, whose thin, gold bands protect his highness from the wagging tongues of those whose one mission in life seems to be to have Wales safely married off.

Among the prince's favorite woman companions is Viscountess Furness, the former Thelma Morgan Converse, American-born daughter of Harry Hays Morgan, former United States consul general in Belgium.

Wherever the prince is to be found, surrounded by members of the exclusive section of English society of which he is the acknowledged leader, the American viscountess is usually the "life of the party." Unhindered by the hide-bound traditions that place royalty on an almost divine plane, Viscountess Furness, who has retained her American heritage, independence of spirit, treats the prince as he wants to be treated—just like a human being, a regular fellow who likes to have a good time without a lot of ballyhoo.

Another of the prince's favorites is Mrs. Dudley Ward, one of the leaders of London's smart set, who was one of the first to become a regular partner of the British heir. Mrs. Ward is a vivacious, petite brunette, the prince apparently being an exception to the rule that gentlemen prefer 'em straw-topped. She is noted for her wit and dry humor and has a debutante daughter who is more like a sister.

There are other charming women in the prince's select circle, but none are unmarried and therefore even Dame Rumor in her wildest flights of imagination cannot designate any of them as the next "Princess of Wales."

Prince Eddie's evident unwillingness to start housekeeping has caused the British government no little amount of worry. King George isn't growing any younger and one day Wales will awaken to find himself King of England with his hand wrapped firmly around the helm of the British Empire.

Although there has been a maiden queen in England, royal and parliamentary circles are alarmed at the prospect of a bachelor king and have striven time and again to make Prince Eddie see the light. They have pointed out that it is his patriotic duty to marry, but they insist that they must choose his bride, all of which leaves Wales quite cold.

It is generally believed by those close to the prince that he has no desire to succeed to the position occupied by his royal father. It has been rumored more than once that Wales would be only too willing to step out of line and surrender his claim to the crown and sceptre to his younger brother, Prince Albert, Duke of York, who is married and has children. Whatever Wales decides to do, it is very apparent that he has taken the old maxim for his slogan—"You can drag a prince to the altar, but you can't make him say 'I will!'"

Instructors Leave Camp at Ft. Riley

Two graduates of the military department returned to Iowa City yesterday after about three weeks spent as instructors at the R.O.T.C. engineering encampment at Ft. Riley, Kansas. They are Donald E. Farr, Waucoma, and Francis Murray, Iowa City.

Guilford Moravec of Iowa City, lieutenant colonel of the cadet engineering unit, went on duty Sunday as instructor at the camp for two weeks. William Noland, Raymond L. Birkholz, and Angelo D. Brewer are instructors of the infantry unit at Ft. Crook, Neb.

Carl H. Fischer to Deliver Last of Math Talks This Afternoon

Carl H. Fischer of the mathematics department will deliver the last of the summer session mathematics lectures this afternoon at 4 o'clock in room 224, physics building. His subject will be "The field of statistics."

The lectures this term have been for the purpose of acquainting students with the various phases of the field. They have dealt generally with several divisions of mathematics.

Continues Business Holiday

P.T. DODGE (AP)—A proclamation by Mayor C. G. Finlay continued the business holiday during banking hours for another six days during the campaign to obtain waivers on bank deposits. Store regulations, however, were modified so they may open at 3 p.m. for the remainder of the day.

Prof. Dill to Direct Museums Inspection

Under the personal direction of Prof. Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum, summer session students will be escorted on a tour of the museum Saturday morning.

Hunting Wild Goats Dill's Topic Tonight

Prof. Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum, will give the fourth in a series of lectures this evening at 8 o'clock, at the chemistry auditorium. The title of the lecture is "An expedition to Billy-Goat Pass," and it will be a description of a trip into the Rocky mountains in search of wild goats for the museum.

Taxable value of horses in Montana has decreased more than 50 per cent since 1923.

Seven Sioux Citizens Among Sixteen Qualifiers in Iowa Amateur Tourney

Wallie Krone Leads Field in Qualifying

Posts 36 Hole Score of 143; Lasche Eliminated

SIoux CITY, July 11 (Special)—Charles Van Epps and R. Miller of Iowa City, both of whom qualified for the second 18 holes of qualifying play in the Iowa amateur golf tournament here, failed to place among the 16 to participate in the championship flight. Van Epps' score of 160 and Miller's 158 were just out of the 157 dividing line.

By DON McGUIRE (Associated Press Staff Writer) SIoux CITY, July 11 (AP)—Home-town boys took the spotlight today in the chase for the Iowa amateur golf championship, seven competitors from Sioux City and Morning-side clubs qualifying among the 16 whose scores make them eligible to participate in the championship flight.

Wallie Krone, one-time caddy master at the Sioux City Country club, led the campaign of the home forces and captured medalist honors with a scintillating 36 hole total of 143, one under par, and five strokes better than the second place score of Pete Jordan, a Des Moines entry and last year's medalist.

Krone contributed the only sub-par round today in the close of the two-day qualifying play. He burned up the final 11 holes to add a brilliant 71 to his first day's par total of 72.

Over Par Once His parade, however, was not all beer and skittles. After going five over par on the first seven holes, Wallie settled down and riddled off five birdies and an eagle in the remaining distance.

In his comeback he slipped over par only once. Des Moines entrants fared poorly. Three of them, consistent enough to land among the contenders for the championship, however, comprised a choice trio, with Jordan and Denmark Miller ranked as favorites, and Gilbert Phillips, who tied with Krone at 72 in the first day's play, also well among the leaders.

Waterloo was the only other city to place more than one competitor in the championship flight. Johnny Lasche, youthful Waterloo star in the previous two state tournaments, failed to land among the charmed circle of 16. Ralph Harmon and Merle Stinson, however, survived the 36 hole grind and are included in the select group.

Lasche Eliminated Lasche was tied at the dividing mark of 157 strokes with W. H. Thomas of West Okoboji, Kenneth Finkle of Sioux City, and Louis Walker, another Waterloo entry. In the playoff, Finkle won with an 18 foot putt for a birdie two on the extra hole.

Lasche was not the only top-ranking star to fall by the wayside. With him were two other of last year's qualifiers, John Kraft of Oelwein and Hal Chase of Des Moines. Only four of the 1931 championship field survived the test today. They were the three Des Moines men and Aiden Hviistendahl of Sioux City.

Save for two other veterans, the championship field was made up of comparative "unknowns." Allen Qualities Ira Allen of Dunlap, formerly of Davenport, who once was a medalist and several times a finalist in the state meet, and Clark Tilden of Ames, 1930 medalist, were the only other familiar figures.

Joining Krone, Finkle, and Hviistendahl, in the championship group were Frank Lamar, Jim Donohue, Bill Hagen, and Carl Haakinson, all of Sioux City.

Pairings placed them all against foes from other cities in the first round matches tomorrow morning. In the upper bracket, Krone was pitted against Tilden, Donohue against Phillips, Lamar against Miller, and Hagen against Harmon. In the lower bracket, Ira Allen was slated to meet Claude Bailey of Newton; Finkle will meet Glenn Darrow of Cedar Rapids. Hviistendahl will match strokes with Stinson, and Haakinson will be pitted against Pete Jordan.

Lamar vs. Miller The match between Lamar and Miller is expected to be one of the first round standouts. Lamar has frequently captured the city championship, while Miller, holder of the Des Moines city title, has gained match play in several amateur tilts as well as in transmississippi competition.

Four survivors at the end of tomorrow's matches will meet in the 36 hole semi-finals Wednesday.

Bunnies Nip Tigers DUBUQUE (AP)—Cedar Rapids bunched eight hits on Wedbe to win, 3 to 1, from Dubuque tonight. Kleinke was in rare form and held the Tigers to four hits, two of them coming in the fifth inning when he allowed one run.

Sportively Speaking

By Gene Thorne

Either the competition in the annual summer session kitenball league is getting tougher, or else Tent City isn't playing the brand of ball that it has for the last two years. Champions for the last two seasons, the Tent City aggregation is now in third place with a percentage of .500. They have won three and lost three. Last night they forfeited a game. That is always a bad sign. When a team is up in the running, nothing can keep the men away from a game.

And Jack Dempsey is still talking about making a comeback, with Jack Sharkey as his idea of a good opponent. In a broadcast on the west coast the other night, the former king of heavyweights said that he would like to make his return to the ring against the Boston sailor man, for he was just the man he could beat. Dempsey added, however, that as boxing is now at an ebb throughout the country, he would not care to sign now. The Mauler explained that he had seen the pictures of the Sharkey-Semelung fight, and was convinced that Sharkey has slowed up.

The fans who saw Dempsey during his last tour of the country which he labeled a means of finding out whether or not he could "come back" are convinced that Dempsey is through—and without the aid of pictures. When he returned to the coast after his tour he was supposedly headed for a mountain training camp where he would get into shape for a comeback scrap, but evidently his four round bout with King Levinsky proved to Jack that he is too old for further ring activities.

If there is one man in the world who can pack them in, it is Dempsey. He signifies action to the fight fan. It would be great to see Dempsey come out of the ranks of the has-beens to beat the champion of the world for the title, but it is highly improbable that he will make such an attempt. There is just one thing that would induce him to try such a thing, in the opinion of most people. That is, need of ready money.

In all probability, he could use a little cash. The fights in the arena at Reno which bears his name have proven rather costly, and Dempsey returned to California. He has a hotel in Los Angeles which is rather popular where he has been buying himself. At present he is making a vaudeville tour, although he admitted over the air that as an actor, he is still a boxer.

State Junior Finals Here?

Clark Sees Possibility of Bringing Baseball Finals Here

The state finals in the American Legion junior baseball tournament in Iowa City? Although no definite announcements of such an occurrence have been made, L. E. Clark, chairman of this district, stated at the American Legion meeting last night that there is a very strong possibility of the final play being held here.

Burlington Forfeits Chairman Clark also said that Burlington and Keokuk would fight it out between now and the fifteenth of the month for the right to represent the district in the state semifinals.

Burlington was scheduled to play the Iowa City juniors yesterday, but forfeited the game because the river city boys had already clinched the title of the northern half of the district by one-sided wins over Fairfield and the locals.

The A. G. Spaulding company of Chicago has donated a trophy to be presented to the winner of the district title in addition to the Hart cup.

Enter Golf Tourney At the meeting last night, the local group also decided to enter an entire team in the state Legion golf tournament which is to be held in connection with the state convention at Ft. Dodge July 31. Charles Kennett is chairman of the committee to organize such a team.

The local American Legion junior rifle team, which has been coached by Sergeant Walter and W. H. Bender, will participate in the national tournament.

Davenport Sweeps Series BURLINGTON (AP)—Davenport swept the three game series with the Bees tonight by capturing the final game 7 to 3, behind the five hit pitching of Touhey.

Foor Twirls Four Hit Ball for Milkmen

Winners Pound Smith Hard; Errors Aid in Victory

BY TOM EVANS George Foor turned in a four hit baseball game last night, and that, with the addition of some hard hitting by his mate, was the reason for Sidwell's trouncing of the Academy entry, 11-1. It was Foor's fourth victory.

Of those four hits, Bob Sampson, versatile Academy pitcher and first sacker accounted for three. Two of them were solid blows while the third glanced off Ivan Blackmer's glove after he had made a long, hard run for it. Meanwhile, the dairymen whacked nine blows off Chuck Smith, four of them for extra bases.

The dairy crew served notice that they were not to be loitering around the bullpen all evening by getting three runs in the opening stanza. Petty couldn't locate first base on a throw, and Ebert was safe. Treptow beat out a bunt, and Ebert reached second. Then Al Crawford lined out a double and the two men on base scored. Lee Semuth singled, and Blackmer drew a pass, but the action produced only one score as Bill Norris gave an exhibition of a whirling dervish to snare Ewalt's high fly over second base.

Score in 2nd, 3rd Treptow's single and an error by Perry Oakes produced another score in the second frame for the winners, and in the fourth stanza Strickler contributed a bobble, and George Foor a single, to duplicate the scoring activities of the second.

Then in the sixth, and final batting inning for the milkmen, they evidently decided to rub the defeat in, incidentally fattening their batting percentages, for the boys fell on Smith for five hits and six runs, aided by some erratic Academy play.

Ewalt commenced the disastrous frame with a double. George Foor singled, Petty dropped Ebert's grounder, and Treptow tripled to clean up the odds and ends on the paths. Hogan started over again by singling Treptow home, and Al Crawford got his second double to get Hogan to third. Petty dropped one of Semuth's efforts, and the sacks were saturated. Walt Foor rolled to Smith and "Kooch" threw Crawford out at the plate.

End Sneece Hosan was brought home on another single, and then Ewalt celebrated his second appearance at the plate with a pop fly to Smith. After George Foor drew a pass, the inning was stopped when Petty ran Walt Foor down between third and home for the third out.

The Academy scoring attack was limited to one inning. Strickler singled and went to second on Sampson's hit. Then Carson hit into a double play, and both he and Sampson went to the bench. Ewalt tossed a wild one to Hogan, and Strickler took advantage of the misplay to score the solitary run of the evening.

In last night's game, the Sidwell aggregation looked like a first place club. They fielded the ball well, played heady ball, and hit well enough to drive home what runs were available on the paths. Foor was in excellent form, his spitter working at top speed, and allowing only grounders to be hit to the infield for the most part.

Champs Find Lumsden for Easy Victory

Count Seven Runs in First, Then Take A Rest

By RON TALLMAN A baseball game, at least some might refer to it as such, was played at the City park last night and Racine's title bound organization chalked up its tenth victory of the season. The score was 11 to 3. Yes, you've guessed it, St. Mary's was the team which absorbed all the trampling, unspirited as it was.

Ralph Lumsden, the big right hander who got credit for the Ramblers' only win of the Twilight league season, went to the hill last night, but he and his mates had once more returned to their losing habits, one which they seem to enjoy in no small degree.

Flake for Racine's Maynard Flake, the member of Waldo Geiger's hurling staff who has been on the idle list for quite some time because of a sore throwing arm, picked the encounter in which to test the long rested limb. While his results were not startling, he held the youngsters away quite handsly and never once was distressed to such an extent that he had to bear down.

Little Dick Lumsden, who has the distinction of drawing more passes than any other participant in the dusk league baseball, walked to start the game, stole second and scored as Vic Belger, a young man who takes his baseball seriously and is quite successful as a result, singled sharply through short.

Griffin Hits Two The Ramblers counted their second score in the next frame when Ivan Belger got the first of his two hits, went to second as Pooler walked, to third as Bradley forced Pooler, and crossed the plate on the first of Tom Griffin's two hits. The final St. Mary's tally came in the sixth. With two down, Pooler singled to right, Bradley walked and Griffin poked home the runner.

The champions in the meantime had done no small amount of offensive work. Doubles by Cheff, Fry and Drizhal, singles by Glick, Brown, and Anderson, two errors and a base on balls brought about the scoring of seven runs in the first inning for the victory.

Hurry Game Along In the remainder of the game, the cigar store men strove mainly to hurry up the five inning mark to make it official, although they opened up with a little more slugging in the sixth inning to account for three more runs, having pushed the eighth run across in the second.

Billy Southworth to Pilot Columbus Club of American Assn.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11 (AP)—Appointment of W. H. "Billy" Southworth of Rochester as the new manager of the Columbus baseball club of the American association was announced here tonight by L. S. McPhail, president of the Columbus team. Southworth will succeed Harry "Nemo" Leibold, who was released today.

Navy Olympian

Ready to fight for Uncle Sam on land or sea. That's Lieutenant George Moffett, eldest son of Admiral Moffett, head of the United States navy air forces, who is one of the five members of the navy boxing team which will participate in the Olympic tryouts at San Francisco, Cal. Moffett is the 126-pound representative of Uncle Sam.

Braves Rout Cubs 8 to 2 Behind Betts

Malone, Grimes, Tinning Parade to Box for Bruins

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP)—"Huck" Betts and his teammates stopped the Cub winning streak at five straight today, 8 to 2 and shoved the Chicago entry in the heated National league flag race two and one-half games behind the pace-setting Pirates.

Three hits, a wild throw by young Stanley Hack and a base on balls gave Betts a five run working margin in the first inning and the Brave rookie sailed to an easy triumph. He allowed but seven hits, two of which came in the final inning, and would have scored a shutout except for a wild throw in the first inning by Urbanski.

Pat Malone was the victim of the first round Brave assault. His downfall started with a pass to Maranville and extended on a wild throw of Urbanski's grounder by Hack that sent Maranville to third and saved Urbanski at first. Berger cracked out the first of his three singles for the day, scoring Maranville. Worthington followed with another single to score Urbanski and Leach swept the bags with a triple to left.

Grimes relieved Malone at that point with nobody out but Leach came in with run number five on his wild pitch after two were down. A walk to Urbanski, Berger's second single and a long double by Leach netted two more runs in the second after which Grimes settled down so effectively that he permitted but one hit. The hit, Berger's third, was coupled with another wild throw by Hack, so another Brave run came home.

Pirates Increase Lead with 5-3 Win

PITTSBURGH, July 11 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates increased their lead in the National league to two and one-half games today, defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers 5 to 3 while the Cubs were dropping a game to the Braves.

Steve Swetonic, aided by the bat of Tommy Thevenou, dug up his tenth victory of the season as he held the Dodgers to seven hits. Thevenou, subbing for the injured Traynor, drove in two runs in the fifth and led off with a triple in the eighth, finally scoring. Gus Suhr accounted for the other two runs.

Olympic Tank Trials Draw 2 Hawkeys

Cincinnati, site of the final trials for the American Olympic swimming team, was the destination of two University of Iowa athletes as they departed to make their bids as free style sprinters.

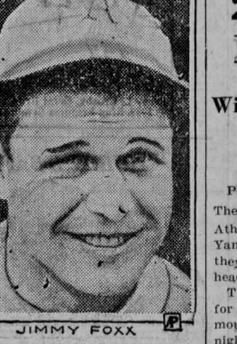

The Hawkeys are Jack McGuire of Des Moines, captain of the 1932 team who finished his intercollegiate competition last March; and August Anderson of Ft. Dodge, an outstanding speed man on the freshman team. Trials begin Thursday and end Saturday.

Both will enter the 100 and 200-meter free style events, having qualified for the final trials by placing in the midwestern section affair six months ago.

McGuire, the rangy redhead who has a mark of 52.8 for 100 yards and 2:20 for the 220-yard distance, was the best chance of the two to make the team, but even his opportunity is a slender one since the best college and club performers in the United States will be present.

Jane Weiler Leads MILWAUKEE (AP)—A 19 year old Northwestern university coed, Jane Weiler, Chicago district champion, took medalist honors with times of 41 and 42 for an 83 in the qualifying of the women's western open golf tournament today at the Ozaukee country club. Her score was three under par.

IN FORM? Well Anyway, Saling Equals Record

When George Saling cannot at least equal the world's record in the high hurdles, the former University of Iowa athlete thinks he has an "off" day. He ran the 110-meter barriers in 1:43 last week in Pasadena, Cal., during one of his workouts for the final American Olympic trials. That time equals the accepted world mark.

Saling, who motored to the coast, Monday was scheduled to report to Coach G. T. Bresnahan in Palo Alto. There he will take his last drills before the tryout meet Friday and Saturday.

The record-breaking Iowan, who has run the high hurdles faster than any man in history, declares that he feels no ill effects from his cross country journey, and his 1:43 time indicates that he has retained his condition "edge."

Quad Wallops Dudes 18 to 4

BOSTON, July 11 (AP)—Detroit made it two out of three in its present five game series with the Red Sox by scoring a 5 to 3 victory today behind smart pitching on the part of George Uhle.

The bulk of the Tiger attack was furnished by Davis and Webb, while McManus, Alexander and Johnson, former Tigers, showed the best punch for the Sox.

Run String of Wins to Five in Kittenball League

Pounding Chuck Van Deusen hard for seven innings, and scoring in all but the third and fourth frames, the Quad kittenball team increased its lead over the Independents last night by drubbing them 18 to 4.

Dan Merrill and Eldo Bungli, who labored on the mound for the Quad-rangle outfit kept the losers' hits well scattered, the Dudes scoring once in the third inning and three in the fourth.

Tent City forfeited to the Independents in the other game on last night's schedule. The City Dudes will swing into action again tonight when they meet the Tent City club in a postponed game.

Tomorrow's schedule sends the league-leading Quad against the Independents, holders of second place, while Tent City plays the Dudes.

EMBERS OF LOVE

SYNOPSIS

Lily Lou Lansing, young and pretty telephone operator, gives up her opportunity for an operatic career to marry wealthy Ken Sargent. Ken's parents had hoped their son would marry the socially prominent Peggy Sage and threaten to have the marriage annulled. However, the young couple go house-keeping and are ideally happy. Then Ken loses his position and, one night, Lily Lou hears him sobbing. Next day, Ken's father calls and informs Lily Lou her marriage has been annulled. Feeling Ken no longer cares, Lily Lou accepts a railroad ticket and $500 from Mr. Sargent and goes to New York. She rents a furnished room and through Maxine Rochon, one of the boarders, secures a position playing the piano for a dancing teacher. Later, she and Maxine go to live with the wealthy Mrs. Paula Manchester, whose hobby is befriending young artists. Word comes that Ken is engaged to Peggy Sage and Lily Lou is depressed. Shortly after, Lily Lou is stunned with the realization she is to become a mother. She longs for Ken, thinking how proud he would have been, but refrains from writing him. She loses her position but Dwight Gwin, the noted vocal instructor, employs her as his accompanist and promises to give her singing lessons. At times, Lily Lou is happy envisioning a successful career but there are also hours of anguish when she thinks of her baby and feels so lonely without Ken.

"He'll be more famous than either of us!"

"Of course he will. He's a genius!" Gwin chuckled. "What has that to do with it?"

"Nothing. Only—"

"Only it excites him for being bandy-legged, and bald-headed and—"

"How can you be so unkind?"

"I'm not unkind. It makes no difference what he looks like. In fact it's an asset to a violinist. And a conductor! I predict that Tony Schiarilli will be world famous. That limp is worth half a million dollars—"

"I thought musicians talked about music, and not personalities!"

"You were wrong. Did you think by chance that I chose you because of your voice?"

He was delighted by her dismay. Threw his head back, laughed uproariously.

"Your voice is all right, child. It is a good voice. It's a perfect coloratura, and there are few perfect coloraturas—even fewer that keep their voices after a season or two. But! Do you know how many girls are right here in this country have voices as good, perhaps better? And in France—and Germany—and Italy—"

"You've just admitted that my voice is good!"

"Yes, and I'm just telling you that that isn't enough. Out of the hundreds who come to me and others, intent on careers, how many have the build, the beauty, the personality, even the intelligence and the pure animal strength to go through with it? The voice is such a small part of it. . . . Lily, you had so much, why couldn't you have looked ahead? Oh, it's a pity—a great pity—"

She knew what he meant. That it was a pity that she was going to have a baby. He knew, of course. She had known that he thought of it sometimes, but he had never spoken of it before. Nobody had spoken of it. . . .

She sat, with her head bent, picking at the frayed red velvet of an old chair, studying the intricate carving of the arms, memorizing each tiny detail, trying to pretend that she did not know what Gwin meant.

"When is it to be?" he asked her boldly.

"In April, I suppose," she answered. There was no use pretending. He'd just insist on making it plain.

"Perhaps I can help. These things cost money. And there are arrangements to make—"

Lily Lou rose and opened the window, letting in a blast of icy air, and a flutter of wet snowflakes. "I have everything arranged," she said.

For the first time the full realization of what she must face gripped her. She hadn't let herself think. She hadn't really believed it. She had thought that something would happen. . . . not a miracle of course, but something. . . .

She was afraid she was going to be ill on the subway going home. She turned so pale that a woman sitting near her opened a large black satchel and offered her a bottle of smelling salts.

The doorman looked at her strangely when she entered the apartment building. She thought that the elevator boy's glance was quizzical, too.

"I can't stay here," she thought, distractedly. "I've got to get away. Mrs. Manchester will notice it. Oh, I was a fool to leave my wedding ring behind, and start out as Miss Lansing. Why, Maxine even asked me if I was married, and I said no, and I could just as well have said. . . ."

Things that she could have said went leaping through her tired brain. Things that Mrs. Manchester would say. . . . Mrs. Manchester with her rescue homes, and sunshine nurseries, and all the rest of it. . . .

She went into the room she shared with Maxine. Began flinging things into her suitcase.

Sadie, the maid, stood at the door, rolling her large, dark eyes. "Were you going some place, Miss Lily Lou? Do you want me to help you pack?"

Stung with the realization of what she was doing, Lily Lou sank back on her heels, staring a little stupidly at the half-packed case.

"No, I was just getting a few old things out of the way," she said, and thrust the bag back under the bed.

"Oh, all right, Miss Lily Lou." When the girl had gone she dragged out the case, put the things back in her bureau. What was the case? Where could she go? Better to stay here. . . . wait a while. . . .

She didn't know it, but two days later she was to have it all to do over again.

"Yes, ma'am, Miss Lily Lou knew she was going all right," Sadie told her mistress after Lily Lou had said goodbye for the last time. "I saw her packing her things, far back last Thursday."

"There's no use planning your life," Lily Lou thought afterward. "Things just happen to you, or they don't happen. Nothing used to happen to me, and now everything does."

It had been an ordinary morning. Nothing to set it aside from other mornings except that Maxine had a cold in her head, and was in bad temper, and Mrs. Manchester spilled the cream and scolded Sadie for it.

She had looked with distaste at her reflection in the mirror as she pulled on her hat, and prepared to leave for Gwin's studio. Last night's secret tears hadn't improved her appearance. She thought she looked ill and rather sullen.

Gwin was in a vile humor. The throaty contralto who sang "Du bist die Ruh" left in tears. He even found fault with the Russian soprano's French, though he had said repeatedly that her accent was perfect.

Two book agents called, and he almost kicked them out. When, a moment later, the door opened again, Lily Lou looked up in some alarm. She was afraid it was the over-brave book agent again.

It was no book agent. It was Nita Nahlmann.

Older, but the same unforgettable Nahlmann, who sang Carmen in Lily Lou's first visit to the opera in San Francisco, nearly eleven years ago. Even then she was fat, and now she was enormous, but not unpleasantly so. She had been dark in those days, or Lily Lou had seen her pictured often in dark wigs. She was delicately—but not too delicately—hennaed now, with her bright blue eyes looking bluer than they really were, because of blue mascara and blue shadows pencilled in.

She was dressed in a sable coat. The largest orchids Lily Lou had ever seen bobbed on her shoulder. In her ears pendant diamonds, like clear, reflecting beams of light.

Off came her gloves, revealing lovely, young-looking hands, the fingers banded with jewels. Diamond and emerald bracelets clattered stiffly on her wrists. She gave a little cry of rapture, and holding out both arms, rushed on Gwin.

Lily Lou found out afterward that she had never cared very much about Gwin, but had never been very good friends. This was just the Nahlmann personality—she either kissed you on both cheeks, or didn't speak at all.

Youth Tries Escape, Dies From Wounds

Sought on Many Counts, Police Shoot in Arresting

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 11 (AP)—James Storey, 22 year old St. Paul, Minn., youth wanted in Ohio for murder, robberies, and kidnappings, died in a hospital here tonight, little more than 12 hours after he was shot down by police who arrested him here early today.

A bullet in the abdomen, received when Storey broke away from his captors at the police station, raced through the business district, leaped a bridge railing and with manacled hands tried to swim to freedom, caused his death.

Requests to See Bride

Only police and hospital attaches were at the bedside. The youth's last request, that his bride of three weeks be brought to see him, was denied. Police said her father, Delbert Hardy, had taken the girl, Margaret, to a Michigan lake resort.

During the last questioning by police, the young desperado insisted his real name was "O'Keefe" and not Storey.

Storey, with his brothers, Bert, 19, and Manley, 17, began a series of crimes last week which include the slaying of Jay Davis, town marshal at North Baltimore, Ohio; the wounding of Dr. Martin Larkin at Toledo, four kidnappings and the robbery of a gasoline filling station.

Brother Wounded

Bert was seriously wounded and captured when Marshal Davis was killed. Manley also was arrested.

James escaped and went to Toledo, where he jumped on the running board of Dr. Larkin's automobile, fired two bullets at the physician and fled. Storey later kidnaped John Hova and the latter's 9 year nephew, William Kresin of Dearborn, Mich., and forced them to accompany him to South Bend, where he released them.

Jury Convicts Lindy 'Hoaxer'

Curtis Sentenced to One Year in Jail With $1,000 Fine

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 11 (AP)—A penalty of one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 was imposed today on John Hughes Curtis for obstructing justice in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. Immediate steps were taken to appeal.

Curtis stood motionless as the sentence was pronounced. Then he went back to his jail cell, while his lawyer in Norfolk, Va., announced friends were raising bail for him.

Lloyd Fisher, Curtis' lawyer here, said he would get in touch with Norfolk friends and try to arrange bond, fixed at $100,000.

M. W. Fessenden, the Norfolk lawyer, said funds being raised there would be used either to pay the fine—in case an attempt to get the prison sentence suspended is successful—or to pay for an appeal.

Strangely, the real truth about whether or not the boat builder actually was in contact with the kidnapers he described to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh never has been established. Technically, the jury decided he did have such contact, since the court instructed them they must so find in order to convict.

Ohio Lecturer Will Speak Before Music Supervisors Group

Olar C. Christiansen of Oberlin college, Ohio, visiting lecturer in the music department, will speak before the weekly dinner meeting of music supervisors on the campus, Thursday at 5:30 p.m. in Iowa Union.

As a special guest at the dinner Prof. Howard Kirkpatrick of Lincoln, Neb., director of the school of music at the University of Nebraska, will be among those present.

During his stay here, Professor Kirkpatrick will be the guest of Prof. Charles B. Richter of the music department.

The meeting is the final one of a series which have been held during the first term of the summer session for the purpose of discussing problems common to the supervisors.

Church Group Holds Monthly Meeting

At the monthly board meeting of the Christian church last night, it was decided to paint the exterior of the church and plant shrubbery in the church yard. Fred Boerner was appointed chairman of the improvement committee and will receive help from other members of the board.

Gladys Emerson, treasurer, gave the financial report to close the first half of the year and the Rev. Casper C. Garrigues gave his service report for the month. W. F. Miller was chairman of the meeting.

Troops March to End Revolt in Brazil State

Commission Named to Draw Up New Constitution

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 11 (AP)—Loyal troops marched toward the city of Sao Paulo from the south, north and northwest tonight to quell a rebellion which apparently had the support of most of the powerful militia in Brazil's richest and busiest state.

Provisional President Vargas, whose regime was born of revolution, meanwhile appointed a commission of 21 members to draft a new constitution for the nation. Political leaders in Sao Paulo have demanded an early return to constitutional government.

Extend Payments

The Vargas government also extended for 15 days payments in foreign currency of interest on bonds due before Sept. 1.

Santos, the great coffee port of Sao Paulo province, was closed to all navigation by government decree in the campaign against the rebels.

In a manifesto to the nation, the president said he "would rather die as a simple soldier defending the ideals of the 1930 revolution (which raised him to power) than accept threats of violence."

Refuse to Join Rebels

The government announced that infantry and artillery regiments at Itupirassuaunga and Jundiha, 25

Bankers Send Out Appeal for Return to Gold Standard

BASEL, Switzerland, July 11 (AP)

A call for return to the gold standard was issued today by the directors of the bank for international settlements with the approval of the representatives of Great Britain, Japan, and Sweden, which are of gold.

Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England and British member of the board, was not present, but his alternate voted for the gold resolution. This was the first public indication of the stand of the Bank of England since the nation went off gold last fall.

The gold resolution, adopted by unanimous vote of the board of directors, took on added significance because it came on the heels of the Lausanne agreement virtually ending reparations.

PERU, Ill., July 11 (AP)—Police were inquiring into the story told by James Williams, 22 year old high school graduate, who said he believed he had been kidnaped from his parents in Rock Island, 19 years ago. He has been living on a houseboat in the canal with a man named George Sullivan.

Williams said he had lived under the name of James Sullivan and confronted Sullivan with the kidnaping story during a quarrel yesterday. He said Sullivan left without explaining. Williams told Sheriff E. J. Weiler

Violent Deaths for Week End Brought to 12

Drowning at Waterloo Adds to State's Recent Total

(By The Associated Press)

The recent death toll from storms, suicides, drownings, and accidents was brought to 12 late Monday by the drowning in Waterloo of Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, 54, who stepped from a river wall into two feet of water in the Cedar river.

Others who met violent deaths in Iowa over the week end and today included:

Charles Wilson, 70, Keokuk, Negro, drowned while fishing.

Emil Arp, 48, Walcott farmer, suicide by hanging.

Mrs. Cora Steward, 70, Nevada, died in Chicago from effects of a broken leg.

Dies of Poisoning

Mrs. Frank Johnson, 20, died in a Waterloo hospital from effects of self-administered poison.

Warren Fien of Hills, Minn., and Elliott Dunkelberger of South Sioux Falls were killed in a storm that swept through northwest Iowa and parts of Minnesota and South Dakota.

Mrs. William Funk, 67, of Rock Rapids, was in a LuVerne, Minn., hospital suffering a broken back as a result of the storm. She was in her farm home when the wind struck, and was reported to have died from her injuries.

Injured in Accident

Mrs. Helen Kirchner of Webster City and Eugene Smith of Kamrar received injuries which physicians said might prove fatal when an automobile in which they and three others were riding ran into a tree.

Mrs. John Bosch of Rock Rapids and two of her children were seriously hurt when the storm hit their house.

Fred J. Weller, 42, of Burlington, well known in Iowa Knights of Columbus circles, dropped dead following a heart attack.

Mrs. Stevenson was the widow of the former vice president of the James Black dry goods company in Waterloo.

Relief Bill

now on the senate calendar the next special order of business, announcing he would offer the unemployment relief bill as a substitute.

Carries Same Total

The new bill carried the same total as the one vetoed, $2,122,000,000. Its only difference is the elimination of provision for loans to individuals.

It calls for an increase by $1,500,000,000 in the Reconstruction corporation funds — to be loaned under limitations suggested by Mr. Hoover — as well as $300,000,000 for loans to states for distress, and $322,000,000 for public works.

The arrangement for prompt action was made by a conference among leaders of both parties in senate and house. It was evident that all were aware the veto of today will have reverberations in the political campaign.

New Bill Satisfactory

Representative Rainey house majority leader, said the new bill would be "satisfactory as long as we put in President Hoover's recommendations, because we are going to hold him responsible for this legislation."

In his veto message President Hoover declared the Garner loan proposal "violates every sound principle of public finance and of government."

"Dangerous Suggestion"

"Never before," said the president, "has so dangerous a suggestion been seriously made to our country. Never before has so much power for evil been placed at the unlimited discretion of seven individuals."

"My major objection to the measure," he said, "lies in the inclusion of an extraordinary extension of authority to the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make loans to 'individuals, trusts, estates, partnerships, corporations (public or quasi-public or private), to associations, joint stock companies, states, political subdivisions of states, municipalities or political subdivisions thereof.'"

Impracticable, Unworkable

Asserting the directors of the Reconstruction corporation described the provision "totally impracticable and unworkable." Hoover said it would be necessary to set up a "huge bureaucracy" to handle the business.

Concluding, he said:

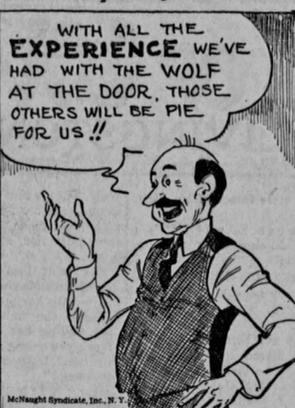

"With the utmost seriousness I urge the congress to enact a relief measure, but I can not approve the measure before me fraught as it is with possibilities of misfeasance and special privileges, so impractical of administration, so dangerous to public credit and so damaging to our whole conception of governmental relations to the people as to bring far more distress than it will cure."

Silence Reigns

Silence reigned in the house throughout reading of the message. At the conclusion the Republicans arose and applauded while the Democrats remained unmoved. Garner was not present.

In his message the president recommended that in the new legislation the Reconstruction corporation's capitalization be increased from $2,000,000,000 to $3,800,000,000, of which $300,000,000 will be for loans to states for care of distress where needed; that the individual loan provision be

Stock Market Rally Follows Early Slump

Sprightly Advance in Last Hour Bolsters Trading

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Stocks pulled farther away from the June lows today, making a sprightly advance in the last hour, after sluggish fluctuations during the earlier trading.

Support for the rally and a brisk retreat of shorts in Auburn auto were among the technical developments that worked to the general list's advantage. Also, Wall street saw definite signs of congressional adjournment, a prospect which was probably much more to the point than any other single market influence of the day. Domestic bonds were encouragingly firm. Although many Europeans had to absorb speculative profit-taking.

Extreme Gain in Auburn

The short squeeze in Auburn brought an extreme gain of 13 1/2 points and the close was only a point under the top. Tobacco prospected considerable strength, American Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers rising more than 2. U. S. Steel preferred, International Business Machines, Case and Allied Chemical were also up 2 or so, while Steel common, Westinghouse, American Can, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey and a few rails, including Santa Fe, New York Central and Union Pacific, gained about 1 to 1 1/2.

Sales Total

Sales totaled only 596,117 shares. Statistical services and brokerage house commentators agreed that the market's fundamental concern now is the depression's grip on domestic business, aggravated by midsummer dullness in basic lines. However, a lively interest is being taken in the action of several commodities, especially provisions, whose strength appears to have some statistical justification.

Open House to Mark Opening of Iowana Luncheon Tonight

Three hours of "open house" will mark the opening of the new Iowana luncheon, 133 S. Dubuque street, from 7 to 10 o'clock tonight. The new establishment is located in the building formerly occupied by the Citizens Savings and Trust company.

With seating capacity for 48 persons in booths, and nine at the counter, the cafe will specialize in soda fountain service and plate lunches. A complete line of magazines will be carried also, the managers say.

In rear of the cafe, a large room opening on College street will be fitted for use as a news agency. The formal opening for business will be at 6 a.m. Wednesday. V. H. Boss and W. C. Huck are the proprietors.

Crop Rumors Down Values in Wheat Mart

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP)—Faced by prospects of more than a billion bushels of wheat supplies in North America this season, wheat values went generally downhill today.

Crop advices both north and south of the Canadian border were optimistic regarding spring wheat, the French foreign wheat quota was reduced 10 per cent, and official forecasts indicated that Germany's 1932 wheat crop would be the largest ever known. Furthermore, there was almost complete absence of export demand for wheat from North America, and with traders awaiting government crop figures from Washington, future delivery dealings were reduced to the smallest total in some time.

The government July 1 crop estimates issued late this afternoon was construed as decidedly bearish indicating that the 1932 domestic yield of all wheat would total 737,000,000 bushels, against latest private forecasts of 685,000,000.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-4-3/4 under Saturday's finish, corn 1-8 off to 1-4 up, oats unchanged to 1-2 lower, and provisions showing 2 cents to 27 cents advance.

Price setbacks in wheat took place despite the season's small movement of winter wheat so far, reflected by 110,000 bushels, decrease of the United States visible supply today, compared with a gain of 3,600,000 bushels at this time last year.

Developments northwest regarding spring wheat were sharply watched, as it was conceded the crop had entered a critical phase. With black rust widely in evidence, fears of damage continued if the weather became hot and muggy.

Corn and oats were steadied by 1,920,000 bushels decrease of the corn visible supply. A bearish factor, though, was the heavy tone of the wheat market, together with suspicious crop reports about corn.

Provisions displayed a continued upward trend helped by a fresh advance of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 46 7-8, 48 5-8; September 49 1-8-1/4,

Bond Prices Make Gains

Buying Goes on Despite Chilling Performance of Foreign Issues

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Despite the slightly chilling performance of some foreign bonds, notably German and Brazilian issues, further buying appeared in the bond market today and prices advanced.

U. S. government obligations displayed a firm tone, advancing from 1-32nd to 5-32nd point, with exception of the Liberty group which recorded a 1-32nd point loss for all three issues.

Attributed to Hitler Prediction

Selling in German bonds which carried the government 7s off 2 1/4 and the 5 1/2s off 3 1/4 points, respectively, was attributed partly to Adolf Hitler's prediction that the Lausanne agreement would amount to little. Profit-taking also played a part.

Brazilian weakness was attributed to the revolutionary outbreak in that state.

Register Substantial Gains

The utilities registered fairly substantial gains in the Domestic group. Gains of 1 or more points were recorded by the Brooklyn Edison 5s, Detroit Edison 5s, Illinois Bell Telephone 6s and Kansas City Power & Light 4 1/2s. American Telephone issues moved fractionally higher.

Packing company bonds featured in the industrial list, the Wilson & company, first 6s moving up 2 1/2 points and Armour & company first 6s moving up 2 1/2 points.

The rails were generally fractionally higher.

Nature Aids in Battle Against Grasshoppers

New Malady Strikes at Insects Infesting S. Dakota

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., July 11 (AP)—Nature, the producer of the disastrous grasshopper invasion of South Dakota last summer, is making amends.

Giving man a "break" in the insect war, a strange malady today was reported striking the insects down by the millions in Jerauld and Buffalo counties, while the farmers were aiding in the pest war by making every effort to spread the disease.

Nature Not Determined

Although the exact nature of the disease which has attacked the hoppers has not been determined, its virulence is shown by the report from the farm of George Speckles, living near here, where the epidemic was discovered.

Speckles reported he had found millions of grasshoppers dead in one field, clustered in groups of a half dozen or so, and still clinging to stems of vegetation. He believed they were stricken while eating.

Small Area So Far

While the area affected by the insect epidemic is small, farmers in this section had hopes of enlarging it by planting dead and diseased hoppers in their own fields and thus spread the infection. From miles around they visited the Speckles farm today to obtain specimens to take back home.

Many of the farmers, eager to take any advantage against the insects, arrived as early as 6 o'clock at the Speckles farm to get bodies of the dead pests. Others continued to come during the day.

Obtains Specimens

F. A. Powers of Chamberlain, a naturalist student, visited the farm today to obtain specimens of the hoppers and distribute them to many farmers in the vicinity. Powers estimated that millions of the insects had already perished from the strange malady and he was certain it would spread if infected insects were left in infested fields.

Little damage to growing crops has been done in South Dakota thus far this season by grasshoppers.

Mercury Changes From Frigidity to Torridity in Day

Sunday's frigid night made Monday afternoon's normal temperature seem torrid. The reading fluctuated from a low of 53 degrees Sunday, the lowest since July 2, to a high of 81 degrees Monday afternoon, receding to 69 degrees by 7 p.m.

Variety seemed to be the keynote of last week's weather. Intense heat, chilly dampness, hard rain, drizzles, clouds, and sunshine, in combinations or in singles, complicated the problem of dressing suitably and comfortably.

The rains of last week end measured a total of 1.39 inches.
