LIBBY HOLMAN SOUGHT FOR MURDER

Two Die as Fast Freight Train Leaves Track

Main Driver Smashes, 14 Cars Pile Up

10 Seriously Injured as Cars Hurtle Tracks

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 4 (AP)—Fourteen cars of a through freight derailed on the main line of the Burlington railroad today were wrecked, resulting in the death of two persons and serious injury to 10 others.

The wreck occurred when the main driver on the left side of the engine broke, causing the locomotive to plow up 300 feet of the south main line track. Fifty feet of the north track also was damaged by the catapulling cars, blocking service in both directions.

Neither the engineer, Mike Wright of Galesburg, Ill., nor the fireman was hurt. The conductor, H. A. Coburn of Galesburg, also escaped injury.

Eight produce cars directly behind the tender were derailed, the

Derby to Give Talk Tonight in Old Capitol

"Frankenstein," the book which inaugurated a whole series of books of similar theme, will be discussed tonight by Prof. J. Raymond Derby, visiting member of the English department at Iowa State college, Ames, during the regular school year. He will speak at 7:30 in the house chamber of Old Capitol.

In dealing with "Frankenstein and romantic psychology," Professor Derby will point out several things which he labels as common misconceptions held in regard to the subject.

All these books which followed Mrs. Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley's original "Frankenstein," deal with one or another of the aspects found in the original, with regard to the relation of man and machine in this industrial age, according to the speaker.

Powers Fair; Resting After Cycle Crash

Russell Powers, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Powers, 510 N. Dodge street, was suffering in Mercy hospital last night from serious injuries received in a crash between his motorcycle and a car driven by Russell Meintzer, route 4, at 7:30 a.m. yesterday. Late last night his condition was reported as fair.

The accident occurred on E. Market street just west of Gilbert street. Powers was going west at the time on his way to work at the Economy Advertising company. Meintzer was driving east.

The crash caused Powers' left side to be badly lacerated. He was taken to Mercy hospital by A. A. Rarick, who was driving behind him when the accident occurred.

Supervisors Board Approves List for New 1933 Budget

The 1933 county budget, slashing 5.8 mills from the present tax levy, was approved yesterday by the board of supervisors. There were no objections to the proposed budget at the hearing.

The new budget will mean a reduced tax levy for the county of $50,581 less than this year. This was effected by a reduction in the millage levy from 43.2 to 37.4.

Long thin ostrich feathers were the filmy clouds that spread in lazy fans across the sky yesterday. They moved slowly north before a 10 mile breeze and curled gently like pennants fluttering.

Stoddard Will Give Address

Name Faculty Member as Speaker for Convocation

Appointment of Prof. George D. Stoddard, director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station, as formal speaker at the University of Iowa's convocation was announced yesterday from the office of Dean Paul C. Packer, summer session director.

Professor Stoddard, a faculty member at the university since 1925, will address the degree-candidates at the outdoor ceremonies of Aug. 25. The convocation will close the summer session of 1932.

For the last three years Professor Stoddard has administered the affairs of the Child Welfare Research station, first unit of its kind in an American university. He directs the station's work as a co-ordinating center for state projects in child study and parent education.

Not only is the speaker a faculty member, but he also holds a degree granted by the university, the doctor of philosophy. He has a diploma from the University of Paris and completed his work for the bachelor of arts award at Pennsylvania State college.

Representative of Welfare Bureau to Give Address Here

Charles L. Madison, executive secretary of the Public Welfare Bureau of Des Moines, will speak this afternoon in room 213, university hall, on "The present status of the community chest movement."

Mr. Madison is the guest of the social administration division, coming here as one of several lecturers addressing summer students during the session, on subjects of social administration.

A luncheon honoring Mr. Madison will be given this noon at Iowa Union for members of the social administration faculty and other invited guests.

Vet Expresses Confidence in Move to Obtain Bonus

Optimistic as to the fate of the bonus army, W. A. LaHue, formerly of Grand Junction, now of "Anyplace," a member of the American Legion, a World War veteran, told incidents from the history of the Anacostia camp which he left last Friday, when he appeared at the Red Cross office for last yesterday.

"We have not quit yet," said LaHue, who claims to be one of Commander Walter W. Waters' chief aides. "Waters says we won't return to Washington, but I know that we will return in the fall, at least 150,000 strong."

"People are going there right now. These stories of hunger and suffering in our Anacostia camp are grossly exaggerated. Three days before I left we got 21 tons of beans, 11,000 pounds of rice, a freight car full of potatoes and two cars of fresh meats. I don't know where they came from."

The principal element in the Anacostia camp, LaHue said, was orderly, sensible, and willing to obey orders. The camp was conducted along strict military lines, and not one communist was allowed to come within its boundaries.

Troops Attack Bolivian Forts With Artillery

Report Bombardment in Pilcomayo Area of Bolivia

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 4 (AP)—Another armed clash between Bolivian and Paraguayan troops in the disputed Chaco territory was reported today from Tarija, Bolivia, just across the Argentine border.

The report was sent out from Quiaqui, an Argentine town within a few miles of the border, by a staff correspondent of La Nacion of Buenos Aires.

The correspondent picked up "an official Bolivian bulletin" posted at Tarija, asserting that a heavy artillery bombardment had begun in the Pilcomayo sectors of the Chaco. The bulletin quoted division Commander Col. Pena. The news was received enthusiastically at Tarija.

The vagueness of the Bolivian bulletin left a doubt as to exactly where the clashes were occurring. There are several "Pilcomayo sectors" of forts, most of them Bolivian, since the Pilcomayo divides Bolivia from Argentina.

Bolivia's forts extend roughly eastward deep into the Chaco all along the Pilcomayo, a river that is generally regarded as marking the southwestern boundary of the disputed section of the Chaco. The Paraguayan forts lie roughly farther eastward, although at some points the opposing garrisons are close enough to each other for artillery bombardment.

Promise 11,000 Men
This dispatch followed closely on the arrival at Perico, Argentina, today of General Pando from Bolivia, with reports that Bolivia would have 11,000 troops in the Chaco within a few days.

General Panjo said 6,000 soldiers were already in the field.

(Perico is about 100 miles south of the Bolivian-Argentine border and about 200 miles east of the Pilcomayo river border.)

Social Service to Supervise Canning of Fruit for Needy

Apples, apples, apples!
To fill the 800 empty jars received Wednesday, the Social Service league is on the trail for apples.

All persons who have apples to spare are requested by Lucille Bruner, head of the league, to notify her and they will be called for either Monday or Tuesday.

Four Blocks Burn in Chicago Blaze

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP)—A spectacular fire which caused damage estimated at $6,000,000 was brought under control tonight after burning through four industrial blocks on Chicago's southwest side.

It was Chicago's largest conflagration in 30 years, veteran fire officials said, exceeding the $5,000,000 Burlington building fire several years ago.

Kill Four to Halt Arkansas Prison Break

Trusty Guard Leads Seven Men in Attempt

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., Aug. 4 (AP)—Four convicts, one a trusty serving as guard, were killed and three others were wounded today in a break from the stockade and in a gun battle between the besieged fugitives and officers in a field.

Prison authorities blamed the tragedy on what they termed a guard's betrayal of trust invested in him under Arkansas prison rules which permit the selection of trusty convicts to do guard duty.

Trusty Involved
Archie Jones, a trusty who had won the confidence of prison authorities, was charged with leading seven fellow prisoners in the break.

Else Howell, another convict acting as a guard, was shot and killed when he tried to frustrate the escape. Cecil Allen, another trusty guard, was beaten over the head with a gun.

Jones and the six other convicts were trailed to a cotton field several miles away by a posse of 20 officers. The officers shot and killed three of the prisoners and wounded two others, who surrendered along with two unscathed felons.

List of Dead
The dead were: Loy Smith, 23; J. D. Brown, 25, and Hersel Chaney, 23. Jones was shot in the right arm and Everett Wackerley, 23, serving a life term for murder, was shot in the right knee. Jack Slayton, 20, and Walter Higgins, 20, surrendered.

Jones, who had been a trusty guard for 15 months with a perfect record,

Rooseveltians Plan Big Cut as Compared With 1928

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP)—The job of financing the 1932 appeal for votes, which may set a new record in political economy, held the attention of both Democratic and Republican chiefs today.

Those working on the budget for the Roosevelt-Garner campaign said they thought they might be able to get along on $750,000, which is nearly a tenth of what was spent by the party four years ago.

Search for Chairman
The search for a chairman of the Democrats' executive finance committee, who will be the real money-raiser, is still going on.

Meantime, Governor Roosevelt at a luncheon conference in Albany discussed various ways of raising a war chest with John J. Raskob, who, as national chairman, put up hundreds of thousands of dollars himself for the Democrats in 1928 and directed the victory campaign for funds.

In the Republican camp, the financial end of the eastern campaign was discussed at a luncheon attended by Jeremiah Milbank, eastern campaign treasurer, William Ziegler, treasurer of the New York state committee, and W. Kingsland Macy, New York state chairman.

Considered as Possibilities
Two of the men the Democrats are reported to have been considering for the money-raising post are Samuel W. Fordyce, St. Louis lawyer, and Charles S. McCain, chairman of the board of directors of the Chase National bank.

The present plan calls for the appointment of a vice chairman of the executive committee for each federal reserve district, who in turn will name assistants in various cities.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., back from interviewing 122 newspaper editors and publishers in New England, said his survey indicated Roosevelt would win in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, but would have a 50-50 chance in Vermont and might even be victorious in Maine.

Two World, Two Olympic Records Set in Four Finals

The orgy of record smashing which has been in evidence since the opening of the Olympic games in Los Angeles, continued without a letup in four final events yesterday.

Mildred Babe Didrikson, the surprising Texas girl athlete, who had already surpassed the world's javelin record for women, stepped out in the 80 meter hurdle final to better her own mark with a time of 11.7 seconds.

At the same time, Nambu, Japan, was besting the world's record in the hop, step, and jump with a mark of 51 feet 7 inches, for Japan's first title. Meanwhile the Finns, led by the world record holder, Matti Jarvinen, who surpassed the Olympic record with a toss of 236 feet 7 inches, swept the first three places in the javelin.

Italy's first title came when Luigi Beccali lowered the Olympic record in the 1500 meter run to 3 minutes 51.2 seconds.

The U.S. 400 meter trio, Bill Carr, Ben Eastman and James Gordon, led the qualifying in the 400 meter dash. Complete story by Alan Gould, Associated Press sports editor, summaries, and color stories by Gene Thorne, Daily Iowan sports editor, will be found on page 6.

Vets Resume Disorders as Ranks Shrink

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 5 (Friday) (AP)—Field headquarters of the bonus expeditionary force was notified by messenger early today that disorders had broken out at the camp in ideal park. The message said there was drunkenness and fighting.

Only a few hours before he had used that term—"frame-up"—in referring to the "true bills" returned by a grand jury at Winston-Salem, N. C., accusing his daughter and Albert Walker, life long friend of Smith Reynolds, of his death.

Reynolds died of a bullet wound in the head July 5 after a prolonged party at the Reynolds estate. Libby and Walker have insisted his death was suicide impelled by despondency.

Previously, Holman had said his daughter would be produced for North Carolina authorities "at the proper time."

Meets Special Officer at Door
Joe Schaefer, special investigator for the Hamilton county sheriff's office, assigned to take Libby into custody as the southern officials had requested in a telegram, was met by Holman at the door of the Wyoming, Ohio, home of Mrs. Myron Kahn, sister of the former Broadway idol.

Holman insisted his daughter was not there, and met incredulously by inviting the officer to search the house. He disputed Schaefer's contention the telegram asking for Libby's arrest constituted in effect a warrant. Confirmation of the telegram by telephone from Winston-Salem could not shake him.

Though Holman, a lawyer who twice said he was his daughter's only counsel, refused to divulge his daughter's whereabouts, he informed Schaefer he was leaving for Winston-Salem tonight and personally would inform officials there on his arrival of his readiness to produce his daughter whenever her presence was essential.

Lawyer Father Says Will Not Turn Torch Singer Over to Police Until Proper Time

Labels Indictment as "Frame-Up" in Refusal

BULLETIN
CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 4 (AP)—The father of Libby Holman left for Winston-Salem tonight to seek bond for her, to save her from the ignominy of confinement in jail while awaiting trial under an indictment charging her with the murder of her husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to tobacco millions.

He is Albert Holman, Cincinnati lawyer and former broker.

He left revealing that his daughter is in seclusion, confined to her bed under the care of a doctor and a nurse, but as firmly as ever refusing to say where she is staying.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 4 (AP)—Albert Holman, father of Libby Holman Reynolds, former Broadway "torch singer," refused flatly tonight to surrender her to Hamilton county officers who sought to arrest her after her indictment for murder in the death of her husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to tobacco millions.

He refused by denying to a county officer information of her whereabouts.

"I will give out no information based on a frame-up," he firmly declared.

Gaffney Will Address New Political Club

An address by James P. Gaffney of Williamsburg, attorney and Democratic candidate for the position of judge of the eighth judicial district, will mark the permanent organization Friday night of the Johnson county unit of the Young Democratic club of America. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the court house.

Temporary organization of the club was effected last Friday night at a meeting of interested Democrats in the office of Dr. W. L. Bywater, chairman of the Democratic county central committee.

Dr. Bywater plans to organize two such clubs, one for young Democrats in the city and county and the other to be composed of university students. Mr. Gaffney, he said, will speak of the responsibilities of young people and of their importance in politics.

Will J. Holland was named temporary chairman of the organization at the meeting last Friday and Amelia Amelon is serving as temporary secretary. All Democrats between the ages of 18 and 35 are eligible for membership in the club.

WEATHER

IOWA—Partly cloudy, possibly scattered showers in southeast, not so warm Friday afternoon; Saturday generally fair with moderate temperature.

Tobacco Heir's Wife, Friend Included in Charge

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 4 (AP)—Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway torch singer, and Albert Walker, Winston-Salem youth, were indicted today for the murder of Libby's husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to an estimated $15,000,000 tobacco fortune.

The Forsyth county grand jury reported "true bills" against the two, leaving it to the prosecutor to decide what degree verdict to seek when he brings the pair to trial.

Walker Arrested
Walker, a chum of young Reynolds, was arrested at once and placed in the county jail. Authorities at Cincinnati, Ohio, and New York were asked to take Libby into custody. Her father, at Cincinnati, said she would be produced "at the proper time" but the whereabouts of the former Broadway favorite remained unknown.

"This is a terrible injustice to an innocent young woman," her father said.

Reynolds, who was only 20, died with a bullet in his brain after a prolonged party at his palatial estate, Reynolda, at Winston-Salem on the night of July 5.

Died in Hospital
He died in a hospital where he was taken by Miss Holman and Walker. He made no statement after he was shot.

At a coroner's inquest both Walker and Miss Holman testified that the young sportsman committed suicide in a fit of despondency and that he had threatened to end his life on several occasions because he feared he could not hold the actress' love.

The coroner's jury determined that Reynolds came to his death "at the hands of a person, or persons unknown" and turned the case back to the county authorities who presented it to the grand jury.

Content of Charge
The indictments charged that Libby and Walker "on or about the sixth day of July, 1932, with force and arms, and in the aforesaid county did unlawfully, wilfully, feloniously, premeditatedly, of their malice or forethought, kill and murder Smith Reynolds."

The court clerk explained that it was the language of a first degree indictment, but that when the case comes to trial it will be within the province of the solicitor to decide whether to seek a first degree verdict, or a lesser verdict such as second degree murder or manslaughter.

The next regular term of criminal court is set for Oct. 3, but a movement has been started to have a special term called for next month.

A Daily Hint to Hostesses on Tempting Appetites While It's Hot

Cooking for Two

When there are only two to cook for, it doesn't seem worth the effort to go in for involved menus yet the appetite continues and has to be appeased by something other than opening small sized can goods.

Besides it means that the busy housewife has to stop and divide the six serving recipe by three and then try to measure out the sixteenth of a teaspoon of this or that which results from the mathematics.

Here is a luncheon menu furnished by Mrs. Lowell Test, 328 N. Clinton street, that involves no left overs because it can be prepared in small amounts and is so palatable that every drop will be "licked from the platter."

St. Patrick's Church Plans Picnic Aug. 18

St. Patrick's church will hold a parish picnic on the school grounds the afternoon and evening of Aug. 18.

Recipe for Cheese Omelet (Two Servings)

Use 3 eggs. Separate yolks and whites. Season the yolks with salt and with either pepper or nutmeg. Cut cream cheese into small pieces (about 1-4 cup full) and add it to the yolks. Then add 1 tablespoon of hot water for each person served and beat well. Beat the whites until stiff and fold in the yolks. Pour into a well greased pan and cook until the under side is a delicate brown. Then place the pan in the oven, keeping the temperature between 325 and 350 degree F. When the omelet responds to the touch it is done. Make two cuts part of the way down into the omelet at right angles to the handle of the pan, dividing it about in thirds. Spread one-half of the omelet with currant jelly. Then tip the pan, slide a spatula under the omelet and fold it over as it is slipped out of the pan onto a platter. Garnish with raw tomatoes sliced or cut in sixths.

Lest He Forget

As a mark of gratitude for the preservation of his life, Henry Wacker, veteran Akron, Ohio, aviator, takes out this scorched and aging parachute and airs it once a year. On July 11, 1919, Wacker and five others were in the blimp "Wingfoot Express" when it burst into flames over Chicago. Three of the blimp's passengers were killed, but the chute saved Wacker. Ten others were killed when the wreckage crashed into Chicago's Loop.

"Peaches" Browning Reduces—and HOW!

The Girl Wife of New York's Famous "Daddy" Tells the Inside Details of How She Dieted Herself Right Out of the "Roly-Poly" Class of Young Matrons.

NEW YORK—Don't worry about being too chubby, girls! "Peaches" Browning didn't and you ought to see her now.

The girl wife of the eccentric New York millionaire realtor has been transformed in the last year from an over-stout young matron into a sylphlike creature. And all by checking up daily on her calorie arithmetic. No strenuous exercise for "Peaches"!

And is Frances Heenan Browning happy? Of course she took it easy, was careful not to drop more than 3 ounces a day. But now she weighs exactly 35 pounds less than she did this time last year. Here's her big dieting secret.

Breakfast: an orange, or a glass of orange juice and a cup of black coffee.

Luncheon: tomato juice or grapefruit juice cocktail, a salad sans dressing (tomato, lettuce or vegetable salad will do nicely) and coffee, or tea, and a few slices of Melba toast, without butter.

Dinner: clear soup, roast meat, baked potato, lettuce salad, and for dessert fruit (and only fruit, no pie or cake).

It might sound tough to young ladies who like their ice cream and Boston cream pie, but it's easy once you get started. At least, so "Peaches" vows.

"If I get hungry between meals I drink a glass of orange juice or eat an apple," says Frances. "I'm thumbs down on fudge cake and chocolate sundaes, which used to be my big weaknesses."

Along with the simple diet Frances indulges in mild calisthenics and sports. But you can believe her when she says she doesn't do any daily gross to keep that feminine form divine.

Remember what round-faced, well-fed girl "Peaches" was six years ago, when she crashed the front pages as the girl wife of old Daddy Browning? Well, here's her measurements now:

Height, 5 feet 7 inches.
Waist, 28 inches.
Hips, 36 inches.
Calf, 13 inches.
Ankle, 8 inches.
Wrist, 6 inches.
Neck, 13 inches.
Certainly doesn't sound like the old Peaches, does it, girls?

Simple Ceremony for McCraney-Weis Nuptials

The marriage of Maylou Adele McCraney, daughter of Mrs. Florence McCraney, 840 S. Summit street, and Victor L. Weis, son of M. S. Weis of Dubuque, took place at 10 a.m. yesterday at the home of the bride's mother. The couple was unattended.

The bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march were played on the piano by Marie Long. Bouquets of summer garden flowers decorated the home.

The bride wore a frock of brown transparent velvet, with which she wore a brown velvet turban and harmonizing gloves and slippers. A crystal necklace, the gift of the bridegroom, was her only jewelry. She wore tea roses in a corsage.

A wedding breakfast for a small group of relatives and friends followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nesler, the bride's brother-in-law and sister, presided as hosts. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Bucholz of Waterloo, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Starr of Dubuque.

The couple left for Niagara Falls and Montreal, Canada, on their wedding trip, and upon their return they will make their home at Dubuque.

Mrs. Weis, who is a graduate of the Dubuque schools, has been employed at the local branch of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company. Mr. Weis is an alumnus of the Dubuque schools and is an automobile dealer there.

Omaha Police Think Lapidus Death Solved

Former Convict Held as Participant in Murder

OMAHA, Aug. 4 (AP)—After several months of investigation, police tonight appeared on the verge of a solution of the mysterious murder here last December of Harry H. Lapidus, wealthy Omaha political leader and manufacturer, who was shot to death as he was driving home late at night.

Early today police announced that John Toth, 31, former convict, had confessed being a member of a kidnaping gang which he said had planned to kidnap Lapidus and which police believe to have killed Lapidus after a bungled attempt to abduct him for ransom.

Names Companions
Toth named four other men and one woman as members of the group. He asserted, however, that he was not present at the time of the killing. Toth made his confession at noon today. He was returned here yesterday from Milwaukee.

He named Mary Smith, alias Mary Elmore, 21, as the woman member of the gang and she was promptly arrested at Sioux City. Tonight Detective Inspector Ben Danbaum, Police Commissioner John Hopkins and County Attorney Henry Beal took Toth to Sioux City where he identified the woman.

Woman Tells Story
Two hours later, Danbaum reported to headquarters here that the woman had told a story practically the same as that told by Toth. The names given by Toth and the names given by Miss Smith were the same. The officers planned to return here later tonight with Toth and Miss Smith.

In his purported confession, Toth said the plot was formed at Sioux City, where he had met a man known to him as "Seattle George," whom he had known at the Idaho penitentiary while the latter was serving a term for kidnaping the lieutenant governor of Idaho.

Kidnaping Planned
Lapidus was to be taken to an isolated house 80 miles north of Kansas City, Toth said, and there held for ransom. The woman, he added, was to act as housekeeper until ransom demands were met.

The manufacturer's car was stopped on a dark street as scheduled, he said, but Lapidus refused to go with his would-be abductors, telling them: "You might as well kill me right now, because I won't go with you." The shooting followed.

Fled to Sioux City
After the killing, Toth related, the group returned to Sioux City and he followed but did not join them there. He was arrested in Sioux City several months ago and returned here for questioning but was released.

E. John Brandeis, wealthy Omaha who inherited millions from his father's estate, was to have been the gang's second victim, Toth told Detective Inspector Ben Danbaum.

Crum Announces Publication of New Publicity Pamphlet

A new Iowa City publicity pamphlet will be issued within the next 10 days, David W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, announced yesterday.

Included in the 16 page folder will be pictures of the University of Iowa buildings, a two- or three page picture of the municipal airport, possibly a map of roads leading into Iowa City, and descriptions of the city's recreational and business facilities.

Using funds raised by subscription of local merchants, the Chamber of Commerce will print between 5,000 and 10,000 of the booklets, which will be sent to all cities along the recently completed Roosevelt highway.

TWO DIE Freight Leaves Rails Near Fairfield

next five stayed on the tracks and the following six where the men were riding left the rails. The remainder of the 77 cars escaped damage.

Twenty-five men riding in a coal car and 15 others in a box car jumped as the first section rolled over, but several were caught in the wreckage.

Hunt Injured
A work train on the siding at Burnhart, five miles west of here, near where the wreck occurred, was brought to the scene and the injured placed in it. Search of the wreckage continued tonight in the possibility that other bodies might be found.

The produce cars, containing potatoes, butter and eggs, were twisted and splintered and their contents strewn over the scene. In the second group was a carload of horses. Several of the animals were killed and others were shot to relieve their suffering.

Open Main Line
Work trains quickly arrived to clear away the wreckage and railroad officials said the main line would be opened to traffic again

Register Next Week

IOWA CITY registration days have been designated for Aug. 9, 10, 11, and 12, when every voter in the city is expected to turn out at the regular polling places to fill in the blanks signifying his intention to vote at the November elections. A permanent system of registration has newly been secured by the city to facilitate efficient handling of the data required. Polls will be open on each of those days from 7 a. m. until 9 p. m. to accommodate business men, housewife, laborer, and office clerk. Two persons will be in attendance at each poll to insure quick service.

Every year a large number of persons of voting age and requirement fail to register, and, of course, to vote. Some delay registration until after the last day, and fail to vote because of the oversight. Unregistered voters do the country about as much good as those who have failed to reach the voting age, or citizens who fail to vote for other reasons. This year, issues are before the country that never have appeared in such overwhelming size and importance. Candidates, party platforms will draw more voters to the polls in November, it can reasonably be expected, than ever before in the nation's history.

Critics of the government who are ever ready and willing to voice their disapproval of this or that measure, this or that candidate, issue, problem, and yet who fail to exercise their right and privilege by participating in the correction or improvement of the conditions they find wrong, are not good American citizens, as harsh as that may sound. Democratic government means, among other things, government of the people—as well as by and for them—but it loses that aspect entirely when a mere handful, comparatively, take a hand at election time to give their opinions and views an opportunity to influence the operation of that government. There are too many people who, when election nears, sigh and tell their friends: "Oh, my one vote won't mean anything." Only too true, if everyone felt that way about it.

If voting were compulsory, every Iowa Citizen of age and requirement would be at the registration booths next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. Why not interpret the right to vote a necessity—as it certainly is—and register!

"Local Boy Makes Good"

THERE IS SOMETIMES derision in the way university students from larger cities regard items in country weekly papers about the achievements of small town students. THE DAILY IOWAN, which prints news about all students rather than those from any particular town, in turn becomes local in its attitude toward an event like the Drake relays, where the accomplishments of university athletes are given predominance.

This week the Des Moines Register, a metropolitan newspaper with standards big by comparison with the population of the city where it is published, has illustrated a kindred localness in the emphasis given the feats of Iowa and Drake relays athletes in the Olympic games. It is not the only instance, but it is the most recent and one of the most prominent.

There is no reason to apologize for this "local boy makes good" business. If John L. Beefwaite makes the Old Gold football varsity, that is news to the home town folks. He may be their biggest reason for wanting to see Iowa's team in action, or their biggest interest in reading accounts of the games. His home town newspaper merely reflects local interest in singling out Beefwaite. Larger localities and larger newspapers are only relatively free from the same species of local interest and pride.

It is only natural that anyone who is a neighbor or an acquaintance or who is familiar at sight should be of more interest than a stranger. Aside from watching that these interests do not breed a narrow exclusiveness, newspapers and other agencies can only further the community interests that make for neighborliness. In this they respond to a need and a demand. In widening the areas of those interests, in making figures like Adolf Hitler and Dino Grandi familiar to their readers, they exercise a cosmopolitan influence.

Newspapers need not apologize for "playing up" events that are most real to the experience of their circulation. They would not be fully vital to their communities if they did not. But their larger function is in making real to the experience of their readers events which transcend the littler interests of their immediate neighborhood. It is in that direction that they can exercise an educational leadership.

Cluttered Ballots

THE GENERAL PUBLIC is to a great extent unfamiliar with the work of the state railroad commission. Attorney Thomas E. Martin of Iowa City, Republican candidate for a place on that body, pointed that out to the Kiwanis club here this week.

Unfortunately, it is also true that the public is almost entirely unfamiliar with the qualifications necessary for or available in candidates for that office. Iowa City knew Candidate Martin, and other localities knew as local citizens or neighbors some one of the five men who ran in the G.O.P. primary. But the state as a whole probably did not, particularly the rank and file of voters.

This is no reason to argue against the direct primary. But it is reason for limiting that primary to the major offices, to know about which would in itself tax the capacities of many busy voters. Of all the offices, that of railroad commissioner most readily falls into the class that could be appointive. It corresponds more to the role of board of education or tax board member than to auditor or secretary of state. In the much bigger national field the somewhat equivalent interstate commerce commission is appointive.

The personality of Nominee Martin is no bearing whatever on the fact that primary voters who were unable to decide clearly among him and his four opponents were not and could not very well have been informed.

It would be better to concentrate the responsibilities of officials and the attention of voters on fewer, more crucial positions than to scatter both responsibility and public opinion with a long voting list. Removal of the railroad commissioner selection from popular ballot to appointment would be one step in this direction.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

The summer of 1932 will be a memorable date for Iowans and sports fans throughout the country to take its place beside the years 1921 and 1922, denoting high peaks of achievement for wearers of the University of Iowa colors. Although Coach George T. Bresnahan's men have made almost a habit of turning in good performances throughout nearly the last decade, the Olympic achievements of George Salling and Edward Gordon, two of Bresnahan's star pupils, set a new high for the last few years.

Justly they deserve every praise and honor their alma mater can bestow, although Bresnahan is witnessing by no means his first major triumph. Iowa sent four men to the 1924 Olympic Games, three to the 1928 contests; the Old Gold has appeared in the winning columns in track competition throughout the country, repeatedly in the state meets.

But the achievement this summer is worthy of special recognition in that it signals a high point in Iowa sports that will carry over from track into football, basketball, and other branches. Notably it might signal a high point in student support of athletics and of new interest in Iowa's teams.

No Iowan who labels himself a true sports fan can fail to grasp the significance of the Olympics championships to the state and the university. It means a revival of waning prestige, although in track that prestige has held its own, especially among those who have allowed a temporary lull in championship teams to diminish their active cooperation. Some of that loss has been due to "hard luck," some to poorer material, some to a fading "school spirit."

New blood, new titles, new coaches—all have an integral part in keeping Iowa out in front—should mean that the season of 1932-33 ought to be the greatest Iowa has ever had. Giving new impetus to sports during a period of new stress on scholastic achievement should make an unbeatable combination.

Finding of the body of a 17 year old Michigan farm girl has opened the way for a new insight into sordid crime and degenerate entertainment among morose groups of men, some no older than high school youths, all no older mentally than preschool children. And with it arises a question of how much influence present economic conditions have contributed.

No more than it is the duty of every parent to protect his children from the influence of degraded companions, it is imperative that the feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction that has cropped up among the lower economic strata of society, especially, be not commuted to the younger generation. Children must not be made to feel the pinch of the times no matter how apparent it is to parents.

Therein lies one of the existing bases for some of the evils attributed to morons, some of whom are victims of a wide-sweeping hysteria arising from adverse economic conditions. Other reasons may be more easily discerned, more simply handled. Juvenile delinquency leads to crime of any sort and sordidness finds its place in the subnormal mind along with petty thieving and murder.

The sort of mental attitude that leads a gang of young Michigan boys to abduct a pretty village maiden every Saturday night, take her to a secluded woodland spot, disrobe her, and then jeer at her shame is more difficult of solution. But the basic criminal tendencies are there, to be met by the combined resources of every parent, social worker, and lawmaker in an incessant war on hoodlumism.

"My dear Eleanor Cartwright, may I assist you to a specimen of the humble fruit of the lowly hen, God bless her?"

"No, thank you. And don't be silly. I just cooked one egg for Winifred and three for you. You always look hungry when you have only two."

"It's not my appetite. It's my other needs. Two eggs to eat and one for my vest." Mr. Cartwright scraped the remaining three eggs from the platter to his plate. He tipped the plate toward him, pretending to be about to drop one of the eggs into his lap.

STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—If your chin looks too square, if your face shows up too plump in that recent portrait, then your photographer isn't up on the tricks of his trade. Bert Longworth, Paramount stillman and a veteran of 14 years' experience, tells some of the ways in which the camera can be made to correct any desired irregularity of feature.

You may not know it, but Richard Barthelmess also has a square chin. But the cameramen take care of this by the simple trick of shooting high on his face.

Marlene Dietrich's face is a trifle plumper than it shows on the screen. This star's look of mystery is enhanced by overhead lights which bring shadows to the right side of her cheek. Miss Dietrich is never photographed except in this lighting.

When a star has a prominent nose, the cameraman highlights nose and chin, so the eye will not be attracted to any one feature. Prominent ears are sometimes flattened by the application of a bit of tape. In the case of small eyes, the camera is moved as close as possible to the face. Thick lips have to be thinned by the retoucher.

But the cameraman can lessen the effect of a large mouth by shooting at an angle. A long face calls for a straight-on shot, with the lens aimed right at the nose. High cheekbones call for highlights on each.

It's an old story, of course, that some stars prefer profiles to full faces, or one side of their face to the other. The smart photographer knows all of these tricks. That's why the stars clamor for certain cameramen and still-men on their pictures.

For the last week all of the studio commissaries have been crowded with Olympic games athletes. Two scenarists were discussing it the other noon.

"When are these luncheons going to stop?" asked one.

The other flipped cynically: "When these fellows start getting second and third places."

BOULEVARD TALK

Will Rogers got his wish. His picture won't start for a week, giving the comedian time to see some of the Olympic games. . . . Nearly all of the stars turned out for the opening day ceremonies. In some cases schedules were re-arranged to allow this. . . . Lita Grey Chaplin returned here yesterday and will go into conference with Fox officials about the picture in which her two sons make their film debut. . . . Instead of the usual studio luncheon, Elissa Landi had the Italian Olympic team up to her home. . . . A new pair of ball-room dancers, Enrico and Novello, are attracting attention at the Frolics here. Saw Harry Langdon dancing with Marjorie Ainsley at this bright-light spot. And Monroe Owsley seems to be interested in Milla Savelle, the blues singer. . . . Out at Fox a couple of German Olympic officials asked Will Rogers if it were true that he will sing in his new picture. The comedian grinned sheepishly. "Well," he replied, "you'll do a lot during depression that you wouldn't do in good times."

DID YOU KNOW— That Karen Morley never wears a hat except in pictures? That Norman Foster and Hardie Albright were schoolmates at Carnegie Tech, where both took dramatic courses? That Karen Morley received a fan letter written on ticker tape which measured a mile and a half long?

KILL FOUR

In Preventing Prison Break in Arkansas

told prison officials he originated the plot yesterday. He was on picket duty last night.

Shortly after midnight, Jones forced another guard to turn over the keys to the stockade, disarmed still another guard, locked both in a cell, and opened the stockade doors. The six other convicts with whom he had plotted the break joined him at once.

Shot in Bed
They went into the room where Howell was sleeping to get his rifle, and as he raised up in bed, he was shot. Officials said Jones fired two more shots into his body.

Allen was wounded when he resisted efforts of the escaping convicts to take his gun. The convicts decommissioned all the guns they could not carry and fled on horses.

Coroners of Jefferson and Lonoke counties, in which the prison farm is located, held inquests this afternoon and exonerated the officers for killing the three convicts.

At the camp where the break occurred, 112 prisoners were confined in the stockade and all could have escaped with the seven, De Armand said.

Bacchus in Bondage Awaits Release by Repeal

One Million Bottles of Choicest Champagne Gather Dust and Cobwebs in Sandusky, O., Looking Forward to a Wet America.

ONE OF THE HOMMEL PRESSES MICHAEL HOMMEL TURNING THE CHAMPAGNE

SANDUSKY, Ohio—In these days of national travail, while the world is waiting for the sunshine to break through the dark clouds of depression, there are more than one million bottles of that same sunshine imprisoned in a gloomy cellar of this thriving city.

Champagne, made famous by the great Hommel, sparkling wine of the gods, dancing sunbeams, imprisoned by the fruit of countless grape vines and liberated by man's agency, only to be incarcerated once more in glass fortress. One million bottles of the aristocratic beverages doomed to serve as an anchorage for numberless spider webs, while the owners patiently await the word that will loose its golden flood on the repeal of the prohibition laws.

Gathering Dust
The champagne is gathering dust and acquiring moldiness in the winery of M. Hommel, which once formed one of Sandusky's major industries. Automatically consigned to imprisonment when the prohibition law came into effect in 1919, the vast cache of liquid sunshine has been carefully preserved against the day when the act that made it an outlaw would be abrogated.

The Hommel cellars were established nearly 50 years ago by Michael Hommel, famous throughout the world as a wine-maker par excellence, who had been brought from France to St. Louis to manage a winery. His work in the Missouri city so impressed a wealthy Ohioan that the latter induced Hommel to come to Sandusky where he rapidly acquired fame and fortune.

Michael Hommel died about 25 years ago, but not before he had won a reputation as the greatest artist in the wine business.

Hommel's product won a gold medal at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., and later won a grand prize at St. Louis. It would appear that he passed his gifts on to his son, for William Hommel, who was born in a house above the wine cellar, is rated among the foremost winemakers in the world and is at present in the employ of the Canadian government in that capacity.

Under Federal Board

The storage place of the huge quantity of champagne in Sandusky is under federal bond and the golden wine may be sold for sacramental purposes only. In certain of our states, champagne may also be sold for medicinal purposes on the prescription of a physician, but sales of this kind are not enough to pay the expense of the federal agent sent to the winery at regular intervals to inspect it.

Meanwhile the winery is being run at a dead loss. For keeping the vast cache is not a matter of paying the rent alone. Champagne must be cared for. An even temperature must be maintained in the cellars and each and every one of the million bottles requires individual attention from time to time. The bottles must not be allowed to remain too long in one position, but must be turned repeatedly if the excellent quality of their contents is to be kept unimpaired.

The big wine presses, too, must be preserved for future use in the event of the prohibition law being thrown into the discard. All this care of the wine and equipment for its manufacture takes money. So you see, it is not so easy to keep one's treasure once the wheels have stopped turning.

Matter of Conjecture

The value of the store of champagne is a matter of conjecture. But one can form a reasonable estimate by comparison to the cost of a bottle of the "shampagne" that produces very real pain on the morning after. The best night clubs charge anything from $10 to $25 a bottle for what they assert is genuine champagne. Consider then the value of one million bottles of wine, the authenticity of which is beyond question—a nice little nest egg.

The widow of M. Hommel, who lives in a house adjoining the winery may still get some return from the labors of her husband. For if the liquor laws are repealed, she will find herself a millionaire overnight.

Puts Approval on Settlement

Judge Accepts Offer of $35,000 as Levy for Closed Bank

HARLAN, Aug. 4 (AP)—Judge R. J. Swanson in Shelby county district court today approved acceptance of an offer of a settlement for $35,000 made by John R. Heiken, a co-partner in the closed Farmers bank of Elkhorn.

Heiken and his wife, who had brought two divorce suits against him, had been named in a petition filed not long ago in the district court here by F. H. Kruse, receiver for the private institution. They had been charged with conspiracy to avoid payment of the levy to meet the deficit in the closed bank.

Other Actions Pending
Actions against other large stockholders are pending. Judge Swanson plans to return here Tuesday to dispose of them. Various creditors also were allowed to file claims against the co-partners.

Involved in Kruse's petition are the tangled marital affairs of the Heikens, which began in 1910 when Mrs. Heiken instituted another divorce proceeding, and obtained a settlement from Heiken amounting to $107,000. Two months ago Heiken agreed to pay her $50,000 more.

Recently Heiken's property, including some securities and land, was sold to satisfy claims in connection with the bank. This Mrs. Heiken bought at it, it is estimated, $50,000.

May Organize New Concern for Farm Aid

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 4 (AP)—Organization of a new agricultural credit corporation to re-finance present feed, seed and livestock loans to farmers in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana was outlined today by bankers and business men of those states. A committee, unnamed as yet, will discuss the proposed organization with officers of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

There was $18,000,000 potential credit capacity available through the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a new set up to take over the work of the seed loan division of the department of agriculture.

Functions of the proposed group would be refinancing and amortizing the 1930-31 seed loans of the department of agriculture and crop production loans made in 1932 by the Finance corporation; making emergency crop production and livestock feed loans in the future; operation of a livestock loan service and loans on stored grain.

Minor Changes in Business Seen as Turning for Better

Minor improvements, but those which may augur better for the future, and a more cheerful market tone because of recent price advances in some agricultural products, characterize the status of Iowa's business.

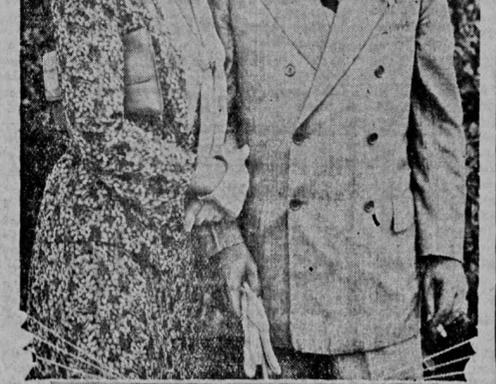

In the monthly report of the University of Iowa's bureau of business research, compiled by Prof. George R. Davies, building construction, chiefly business and residential, is credited with what slight improvement is recorded up to July.

Some Confidence Created
Iowa and the rest of the middle west has felt some awakening of confidence as prices of farm products and fuels gained. Scattered and exceptional as they are, these advances may point the way to more general improvement, Professor Davies reports.

Business building in Iowa enjoyed a mild boom in June when it exceeded the May figure by 47.8 per cent. At the same time, residential building climbed 14.3 per cent above the mark for May.

Further Losses Recorded
Minus symbols, however, appear before all of the other business figures, denoting a further decrease. The lower figures range from the .6 per cent in life insurance sales to the 13.6 per cent for public works building contracts.

For June, the report shows prices of farm products 62.5 per cent subnormal, building contracts, 58.2; life insurance sales 45.2; bank debits, 31.2; and employment, 25.8.

VISITS MOTHER
This is the first picture of the former Muriel McCormick and her husband, Maj. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, since their marriage a year ago in Bar Harbor, Maine. The picture was made in Chicago where they are staying a few days to visit Mrs. Hubbard's mother, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. It is the first time Mrs. McCormick and her son-in-law have met.

PATHE NEWS TRAVELOGUE

Sportively Speaking

By Ron Tallman

The endless parade of the world's best track and field athletes smashing record on record in the Olympic Games, seems never to find an end.

Although the dizzy point scoring of the United States team was temporarily checked after Wednesday's performance of scoring 70, and winning first in every event, the record breaking did not let up yesterday.

Included in these four performances was Babe Didrikson's second world record in the two events in which she has competed. Having already surpassed the javelin mark by more than 10 feet, the Texas star yesterday stepped over the 80 meter hurdles to nip her teammate, Evelyn Hall of Chicago, in the time of 11.7 seconds, even improving on her new mark of Wednesday's prelims.

Finns, generally rated as supreme distance runners but not so much to contend with in other events, proved that they can do something besides run yesterday. While experts had predicted freely that they would sweep the first three places in the javelin, it came as somewhat of a surprise.

Elmo Nelson, the former University of Iowa star catcher who until recently was playing with the Cedar Rapids Bunnies, has secured his release and the suspension placed on him by the National baseball association has been lifted.

Charley Grimm's debut as manager of the Chicago Cubs in Philadelphia yesterday was highly successful. Not only did his team thump the Phillies, who had just won four in a row from the league leading Pirates, by a one-sided 12 to 1 score, but the new manager himself took a big part in the proceedings.

The Cubs received more encouragement in the tight battle for the National league pennants yesterday while they were handing the Quakers nine the big pasting. The Brooklyn Dodgers rose up to knock off the Pirates in both ends of a double header, and account for the sixth straight defeat of the Pittsburgh outfit by winning the last in the tenth inning.

Brouillard Triumphs NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP)—Lou Brouillard, former welterweight champion, staved off Jimmy McLarin's closing rally to win a fierce 10 round duel before a crowd of 15,000 in the big ball yard to night.

WINS SIXTH IN JAVELIN

Kenneth Churchill, outstanding of the three javelin throwers entered by the United States in the Olympic Games competition yesterday, failed by a good many feet to approach his best efforts and ended up in sixth place behind his countryman, Lee Bartlett, with a toss of 207 feet 5 7/8 inches.

Babe Didrikson Breaks Another World Mark to Win High Hurdles Athletes, Not Movie Stars, Rule Los Angeles, Iowan Writer Reports

Italy, Japan, Finland Take First Titles

2 World, 2 Olympic Records Fall in 4 Events

By ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor OLYMPIC STADIUM, LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4 (AP)—America's greatest girl athlete, Mildred "Babe" Didrikson, shared the Olympic sun-light today with the first champions of Italy, Finland and Japan in another afternoon of record smashing performances, featuring every one of the four track and field finals.

The "wonder girl" from Dallas, Tex., raced to victory over Evelyn Hall of Chicago in the 80 meter hurdles final to hang up her second world record victory of the Olympic games. She scored a six-inch triumph in 11.7 seconds to eclipse her own previous world mark, made yesterday, by one-tenth second and added the gold medal to the one she already gained in the javelin championship for women.

Altogether, in another brilliant day of surpassing achievements, two world records and two Olympic records were sent into the discard.

Beccali Wins 1500 Luigi Beccali of Italy was crowned 1500 meter champion in 3 minutes, 51.2 seconds; Chuhei Nambu sent Japan's colors aloft for the first time with a world record of 51 feet 7 inches in the hop, step and jump; and Matti Jarvinen led a clean sweep for Finland in the javelin with a spectacular throw of 235 feet, 7 inches.

Beccali, the favorite, captured the classic Olympic equivalent of the mile with a smashing finish that left the rest of the field of a dozen middle distance stars staggering in his wake, including the best of the Americans, Glenn Cunningham of Harvard, who finished fourth and sixth.

Cunningham shot to the front midway and paced the field most of the last lap, but did not have the "kick" to keep up with his main rivals in the home stretch. He was passed first by Phil Edwards, the Canadian Negro, then by Beccali and Jerry Cornes, British champion.

Won by 3 Yards Beccali won by a good three yards, with Cornes nosing out Edwards for second place. The Italian's time clipped two seconds from the Olympic record of 3:53.2, set in 1928 by Harry Larva of Finland, who wound up eighth today, a short distance behind another fallen favorite, John Lovecock of New Zealand. This setback for the American forces, who had confidently expected to make a real fight for the 1500 meter honors, contributed to an abrupt checking of the U.S.A. runaway in the men's track and field championships.

With field event honors of the day going to Finland and Japan, the United States picked up only eight points altogether while losing one point, due to the official reversal of the judges' decision in the 110 meter hurdles finals of yesterday, placing Finlay of Great Britain third, instead of Jack Keller of Ohio State.

In Sharp Contrast This was in sharp contrast to Wednesday's sweeping American conquests but the U.S.A. was still far in front with 158 points in 16 Brouillard, a newcomer to metropolitan fistfights, sealed 145 1-2, McLarin 144 1-2.

Indians Go Long Ways for 2 Wins CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians used 22 innings to beat the Boston Red Sox twice today.

They won the first without much trouble, 8 to 2, but had to come from behind twice to take the second 8 to 7 in 13 innings. Welland pitch-er for Boston in both games, being relieved by "Dusty" Rhodes in the first and following Ivy Andrews and Bill Durham in the second.

First game: Score by innings: R. H. E. Boston 000 100 001—2 7 2 Cleveland 021 000 05*—8 11 1 Batteries—Welland, Rhodes and Connolly; Hildebrand and Sewell.

Second game: Score by innings: R. H. E. Boston 003 100 110 010—7 19 1 Cleveland 400 001 010 010—8 14 1 Batteries—Andrews, Latham, Welland and Tate; Brown, Connolly and Myatt.

Yanks Wallop Chisox, 15-3; Grimm Pilots Cubs in 12-1 Win

TOP 400 METER QUALIFIERS

Bill Carr, above, and Ben Eastman, left, United States favorites in the 400 meter dash, led the qualifying parade in their specialty, the former turning in a time of 48.8 seconds and Eastman registering 49 flat for their first heats. They will meet in the Olympic finals today, with Eastman trying to redeem himself for two defeats at the hands of his Pennsylvania rival.

Saling Fills Ambition of Two Years

George J. Saling of the University of Iowa and the American Olympic team won his thirteenth outdoor hurdle victory since April Wednesday afternoon.

Thirteen was far from unlucky for the Iowan. Flying feet and flawless form brought him the 1932 Olympic championship in the 110-meter high hurdles—his eighth hurdles title of the year—and brilliant climax of a racing season during which he splintered two world records and achieved a new Olympic mark of 14.4 in the semi-final heat.

Saling, Gordon Best Now Saling, champion of the world, and Edward L. Gordon, the Hawkeye who won the Olympic broad jump, will combine rest with light drills until mid-August when they are likely to compete in post-Olympic meets in San Francisco and Chicago.

Fortwo years Saling has pointed for the Olympics. A runner-up to champions in 1930, he remained out of the university the following year while he accumulated money to finish his education. Whenever he had a chance, he worked on hurdle form and speed in his home town of Corydon.

The 23 year old athlete, vastly improved, looked like a champion in January indoor practice. He won his first major title over the 70-yard barriers in the Big Ten indoor meet, but muscle injuries kept him out of several contests.

Breaks Two World's Marks The 120-yard high hurdle triumph at the Kansas relays April 16 was his first outdoor championship. But by June 11, he had run the barriers in 14.1, bettering the world's record; had equalled the accepted mark of 14.4 twice; and had shaded the world's standard of 14.4 for the 110-meter hurdles by a tenth of a second.

In 17 outdoor high hurdle races this year, Saling has been beaten only four times and two of these defeats were in trial heats when the Iowan was content to qualify without fighting for a victory.

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 4 (AP)—L. B. Maytag of Newton, Ia., defending champion, eliminated N. C. Morris of Denver, 1 up in the second round of the annual Broadmoor golf tournament today.

Dickey Gets Back; Leads 17 Hit Spree

Clouts Homer, Three Singles to Send in 5 Runs

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP)—Bill Dickey returned to the New York Yankees' lineup today at the end of his 30-day suspension, and the Yanks returned to their old slugging form to smother the White Sox, 15 to 3.

Dickey made four nits, including a home run with the bases full in the fourth inning and batted in five runs. Lou Gehrig also drove in five tallies, clouting his 25th homer of the season in the sixth. The only Yanks who failed to share in the 17-hit assault on Sam Jones, Phil Galloway and Grant Bowler, were Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri. Southpaw Vernon Gomez had just a breeze in winning his eighteenth victory of the season.

Score by innings: R. H. E. New York 502 401 104—15 17 0 Chicago 000 000 030—3 11 1 Batteries—Dickey and Gehrig; Jones, Galloway, Bowler and Grube; Berry, Sullivan.

Earnshaw Downs Browns for 16th

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4 (AP)—George Earnshaw outpitched Walter Stewart to win his sixteenth victory of the year today as the Philadelphia Athletics defeated the St. Louis Americans, 6 to 2. Both hurlers were wild, however, Earnshaw passing seven and Stewart six. The game, which opened the series, was featured by seven double plays.

Peace, Quiet of Competing Athletes Bothered by Public

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2—For once being a motion picture star is nothing. The screen celebrities are falling to cause even a ripple of excitement as they appear in the stand to witness the running of the tenth Olympiad—it is the athletes that are now running the city.

When a Richard Arlen or a Constance Bennett puts in an appearance—ordinarily good for much gasping and ah-ing—the comment is, "Hey you, sit down! Who do you think you are, Nurm!"

About the only one of the screen colony who gets any attention is Johnny Weissmuller, and nobody seems to remember that he is "Tarzan." He is an athlete, and it is his former Olympic accomplishments that the fans remember.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICI-FRIEDE, INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

PREFACE

The Crime Without a Parallel

If crime may be said to have a technique, one of its masterpieces was that singular series of mysteries bound up with the name of Lola Carewe, sometimes called the "Night Club Lady."

In cold patience and during long years, this fantastic plot was hatched. Conceived in audacity, and executed with rare boldness and dispatch, it was almost the perfect crime. At the time of this bizarre excitement, as some will remember, I was confidential secretary to Thatcher Colt, then Police Commissioner of Greater New York. In the Carewe case we encountered a problem unique and terrifying, a deadly enigma which Colt solved when to the rest of us all avenues of investigation appeared empty.

Yet in the Carewe mysteries, as in his other investigations, Thatcher Colt employed no miraculous gifts. He resorted to no magic except applied intelligence, relying invariably on strict police practice—industry, patience, perseverance, and the organized use of all available assistance, including the co-operation of scientists and his laboratories. As everyone knows, actual police work is seldom a garish exhibition of spectacular deduction. Crimes are solved and malefactors arrested by the use of common sense, persisted in until adventurous logic looks like inspiration.

Anthony Abbot.

"Thatcher, I know how you dislike all this," apologized Dougherty, "but tonight, old man, you've got to trust me."

CHAPTER ONE

PRECISELY at eleven-thirty o'clock on that snow-blown New Year's Eve, Thatcher Colt reached the Ritz Carlton Hotel. Through the revolving doors in East Forty-sixth Street hastened the Police Commissioner, immaculate in evening array and top hat. His large black eyes brightened when he found me waiting for him in the tiny red foyer.

"Sorry to pull you away from your family celebration, Tony," he apologized. "Hope your wife isn't cross with me for ringing you up?"

"We both realized it must be something exciting."

As the chief loosened his silken muffler, his black eyes flashed at me a gleam of rueful mistrust.

"May be only a false alarm," he warned. "I was alone at home when Dougherty telephoned. The District Attorney was more than usually excited. Implored me to come at once—to the dancing club downstairs."

"Wouldn't the D. A. tell you what it was about?"

"Sware he didn't dare—over the wire. . . . You don't suppose this could be another of Dougherty's efforts to rope me in on one of his everlasting parties?"

As I looked at Thatcher Colt, tall, slender, black-haired, Miami-tanned, I felt a twinge of sympathy. True, the Police Commissioner of New York was not a party man. But Manhattan's favorite bachelor had not always been bored by social frivolities. His monastic life began only after the fickle lady of his fancy ran off with a contract champion. Since then Thatcher Colt had lost interest in his old world of gaiety and fashion. Born to money and social position, he put aside all distractions when he accepted the appointment as Police Commissioner. With an eagerness that was like an obsession, he plunged into the Department work and of the 19,000 policemen he commanded, Thatcher Colt was the best all-around athlete, the hardest worker, the most invincible crook-hunter.

"Let's find the District Attorney now—and remember, Tony, I don't want to stay long."

"Neither of us dreamed how brief our stay was to be, as we briskly descended the staircase at our right. A flight of red-carpeted steps led down under the pavement level of the fashionable East Side. From below rose the whine and croon of an orchestra, beating regularly through a vast discord of party voices. It was New Year's Eve at Mayfair.

Like nothing else in all New York is the dancing club Mayfair. At midnight every Saturday during the season, the stars of the theater and cinema gather with prize-fighters, stock writers, theatrical agents, stock-brokers and such in the Crystal Room of the Ritz. Here the ladies and gentlemen of the amusement world triumphantly display their gentility, until the atmosphere of refinement is almost painful.

The broad room was overcrowded with table parties, except for a center oval of waxed oak, cleared for dancers. On a low platform at the rear wall, a troupe of boys with pale, elderly faces blew and scraped the mumbo-jumbo of jazz upon their strings and brass. In the warm air drifted the smells of women—powder and perfume and perspiration blending with tobacco smoke.

As we hesitated, the lumpy figure of Merle K. Dougherty appeared, lumbering rapidly toward us. The District Attorney was one of Colt's oldest and most unreasonable friends—a stout and noisy but competent man, with dangling jowls, a mop of red curls, and protruding blue eyes that always seemed indignant and alarmed.

"Thatcher, I know how you dislike all this," apologized Dougherty, "but tonight, old man, you've got to trust me. This way!"

Through narrow twisting lanes of skylarking show-folk the District Attorney led us with confident tread. As he had boasted, his table was on the edge of the dance floor. We sat down, Colt's grave eyes taking in the scene with one swift and lustrous glance. It was a jovial assemblage, and the excitement was palpably rising with the approach of the midnight hour.

Thatcher, promised Dougherty. "During the last two months, I have personally been conducting a highly secret criminal investigation."

"Jewel robberies!" stated Colt quickly.

Dougherty's eyes suddenly rolled upward.

"Who told you anything about that?" he demanded.

"Not the District Attorney," replied Thatcher Colt, mild reproach in his voice. The Commissioner had long felt that the functions of the police were too often usurped by the District Attorney, not only in New York but in many other American cities. Recently Colt's objection was given eminent support by the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission which condemned such interference.

"How much do you know about my investigation?" pouted Dougherty.

"We'll compare notes later. Go ahead!"

"Any way, I don't have to tell you how many big jewel robberies have been pulled off in the last few months. The total runs into staggering figures. The insurance companies are on my neck—and yours. The thieves force their way into houses and apartments disguised as delivery men, mechanics—all sorts of ruses. Now, Thatcher, those jewel thieves are certainly in cahoots with somebody higher up—somebody who hob-nobs with the swells and plans the jobs!"

"Have you found a clue to this mysterious personality?"

Thatcher Colt's expression was amiable and interested; not by a flicker of an eyelid did he betray that the Headquarters jewel squad had been searching for the brains of the gem thieves for many exciting weeks, and were now ready to ask for the indictment of a downtown insurance broker and seven fellow-conspirators.

"Well, Thatcher," grinned Dougherty, "I think I have found the higher-up."

Stock Market Soars Up for Strong Gains

Mart Sees Most Active Trading Since Dec. 18

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP)—Stocks swooped upward with a confidence born of their own recent successes today. It was the most active market since Dec. 18, eclipsing by three-quarters of a million shares the volume attained last Thursday when current manifestations of bullishness were beginning to gather headway.

Inspired by such aggressive leadership, commodities also developed considerable momentum, although generally speaking there was sufficient late reaction in all directions to cancel or sharply reduce peak quotations. Highest grade bonds, whose strength for more than a month has done much to stiffen Wall Street's backbone, took things somewhat easier.

One to Six Points Higher

Stocks at their best ranged 1 to 6 points higher, pushed up by almost a stampede of buying in the forenoon. There were further intervals of pronounced strength, interspersed with heavy profit-taking which clipped the market's wings sufficiently to reduce the average net advance to just a point. However, closing quotations were above the lows on the strength of late covering by shorts wary of another trap. Transactions totaled 3,522,080 shares.

Activity was well distributed, but a few leaders stood out. In this group was American Telephone which sold at 100 1-8 against its July 11 low of 70 1-4. It closed at 98, up 1 3-4. Others were U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, American Can, Union Pacific, American Tobacco "B," Coca Cola, Case, Western Union, and Drug, but their extreme advances were reduced to a point or so. Many gains by preferred stocks were spectacular.

Influences Hard to Find

New market influences proved rather hard to find. They probably simmered down to one, and that a somewhat indefinite factor. This was a report that leading banks were to organize a new company, immediately labeled a "pool," which would give credit accommodations to manufacturers for purchase of commodities.

Plans for such an instrument were said to be well advanced; $50,000,000 was mentioned as its probable capital. The stock market reached a point that represented cancellation of about half the March-June slump. Its history over the last three years shows that in half a dozen instances the market has duplicated this performance only to shy away from bettering that percentage gain; thus it would appear the real test lies immediately ahead.

Knights of Pythias Diamondball Outfit Upsets Kubbets, 3-2

The biggest upset of the local diamond ball season occurred last night when the lowly Knights of Pythias rose up to strike down the previously undefeated Kubbets in the Hawkeye league.

To chalk up their surprising victory, their first, the lodgemen had to rally for the winning run in the last half of the seventh inning. Weber, lodge chucker, allowed only two hits to his mates' seven, but loose play allowed the leaders to score two runs, the final score being 3 to 2. Goodie was on the receiving end for the vanquished Kubbets.

land, 49 feet. Sixth, Sol Furth, U. S. A., 48 feet 10 inches.

Javelin throw finals:

Won by Matti Jarvinen, Finland, 238 feet 7 inches, new Olympic record. (Old record 218 feet 6 1-8 inches set by E. H. Lundquist, Sweden, 1923). Second Matti Sappala, Finland, 229 feet 1-4 inch. Third, Eino Penttila, Finland, 225 feet 4 7-8 inches. Fourth, Gottfried Wlemann, Germany, 223 feet 3 3-8 inches. Fifth, Lee Bartlett, U. S. A., 211 feet 6 inches. Sixth, Kenneth Churchill, U. S. A., 207 feet 5 7-8 inches.

New R. F. C. Director

To fill the place vacated by the resignation of General Charles G. Dawes, President Hoover has appointed Charles Addison Miller (above) to be a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Miller, a notable economist, is president of the Savings Bank of Utica, N. Y.

OLYMPICS

Four More Records Fall in Games

sweep moved Finland into second place with 35 points. Great Britain showed 34, Japan 28, Ireland and Canada 23 each, in the biggest shakeup in the standings so far.

There was no surprise in the way the Finns out-tossed the rest of the world in the javelin. Matti Jarvinen, the bespectacled young member of a great athletic family, failed to touch his own world record of nearly 243 feet, but he got off four throws which bettered the old Olympic record by 15 to 20 feet, without even so much as removing his athletic trousers. Jarvinen's winning throw of 238 feet 7 inches was nearly 10 feet beyond the second place toss of Sippala, who with his countryman, Penttila, and Weimann of Germany, also bettered the old

Olympic record during the afternoon.

Americans 5th, 6th

Two of the three Americans, Lee Bartlett and Ken Churchill, placed fifth and sixth in the final javelin standing. Bartlett did 211 feet 6 inches and Churchill achieved only 207 feet, 5 7-8 inches.

The big Japanese contingent in the crowd of 45,000 went wild when its first favorite, Nambu, came through with a world record performance to win the hop, step and jump for Japan for the second straight Olympiad.

Handicapped by an injury, Mikio Oda, 1928 winner and holder of the listed world record of 51 feet, 1-3 inches, failed to qualify among the six finalists, but Nambu upheld the honor of his country, setting the pace from the start. The only American to place in the triple jump was Sol Furth, New York boy, who wound up sixth.

17 New Records

Nambu's world record also wiped out the Olympic standard of 50 feet 10 7-8 inches, made in 1924 by Winter of Australia.

Olympic stands now have been erased in 17 men's and women's track and field events. The men have surpassed three world records and the women four, in as many contests for the feminine brigade, led by the irrepressible Babe Didrikson.

The Texas girl won the Olympic javelin crown with a mark of 143 feet four inches last Sunday, lowered the world record in the 80 meter hurdles trials yesterday to 11.8 seconds and brought it down to 11.7 seconds today in her latest achievement.

Miss Didrikson has one more bid to make for an Olympic championship, in the high jump next Sunday.

400 Meters Today

The decks meanwhile were cleared for tomorrow's 400 meter semi-finals and final by two rounds of trials which added little to the previous expectations that Bill Carr, the American champion, Big Ben Eastman, his Pacific coast rival, and Liuet, Godfrey Rampling of Great Britain will be the principal contenders.

Carr, Eastman and James Gordon of Los Angeles, the third American, each won a brace of heats without being extended.

Carr hung up the best time, 48.4 seconds, in his second trial, beat Walters of South Africa and Golding of Australia. Eastman loafed through two heats in 49 and 48.8. Gordon's best was 48.6 seconds as he led Rampling to the tape, the British star making no attempt to move faster than was needed to qualify.

Among the dozen semi-finalists qualified were two Britons, including Rampling and Stoneley, a pair of Canadians, Alex Wilson and Jimmy Ball, and Joachim Buchner of Germany, third in the 1928 games.

Don Hurst, Phillis first baseman and leading hitter of the National league, for years was handicapped by the belief that Baker Bowl, Philadelphia's home park, was a "jinx."

Billy Petrolle, Duluth light weight, believes one of the chief drawbacks of boxing is that it limits his spaghetti-eating. Billy is forced to give up the dish when training to lose weight.

Iowa Leaders of Industry Express Varied Opinions on Five-Day Week Plan

Clinton Man Labels Project as Red Propaganda

(By The Associated Press)
Leaders of Iowa industries are by no means unanimous in their attitudes towards the five-day week, a proposal approved by President Hoover to give jobs to more persons by letting all work less.

Involved in considerations of the plan, Iowa employers say, are such factors as the types of factories suited for the shorter working week, use by employees of the extra leisure time, whether it would fulfill its intention, and how rapidly it can be extended to labor in the plants.

Range of Opinion
Opinions in the matter range from that of E. S. Selby, mayor of Mason City and treasurer of the J. E. Decker and Sons company, who believes the trend of industry is toward the five-day week, to that of W. T. R. Smith, general manager of the Collis company of Clinton, who declared that "talk of the five day week is, in some instances, an outgrowth of Bolshevick propaganda."

Comments on the suggestion follow.
A. P. Bryant, manager of operations, Clinton Corn Syrup Refining company: "We are now operating under the five-day week plan and find it satisfactory. It also gives employment to a considerable number of men who otherwise would not have work at this time. It may be, however, that when normal business returns and the labor supply is normal, that we shall again return to the six-day week. We operate three eight-hour shifts daily."

"Could Not Run That Way"
Adolph W. H. Lenders, vice president and general manager for Penick and Ford, Ltd., Inc.: "Our plant could not be run that way. We work only about 15 days a month, but while we are working, we must work 24 hours a day. We work two or three shifts and run everything right through—this is absolutely necessary with wet process operations."

George Laird, general manager of the Quaker Oats plant in Cedar Rapids: "The five-day week is going to come. In my opinion it will provide more employment in the building trades than in industries, where a plant would have to be running at the peak to do much good in the way of providing extra jobs. Most plants have been operating on a five-and-a-half days a week plan for some time; during the summer most of our men have not had more than four or five days of work each week."

Opposed to Plan
C. D. Collis, president of the Collis company and the Collis Products company, makers of wire specialties and machine tools, Clinton: "I am not in favor of the five-day week. I believe that it would create too much of a problem in the leisure time it would afford the worker. Five days a week is not sufficient time to keep the minds of young men employed. They should work in their younger days, and enjoy leisure in old age. Farmers cannot pick and choose a five-day week in the hope of gaining the benefits of leisure."

Mayor Selby: "There is no doubt but that the trend of industry is towards the five-day week. For some time it has been the practice in offices to close Saturday noon and the tendency is more and more towards closing up Friday evening for the week end. It is only a question of time before offices in general will be closed Saturday, as well as Sunday. How rapidly this can be extended to labor in the plants is a question. To have the burden of a five-day week at six days' pay thrown on industry at this time would be too much of a strain. But shorter days or shorter weeks are certain to come. Our plant was put on an eight-hour, instead of a 10-hour basis something over a year ago. That has helped to spread work to a greater number. This trend is certain to continue."

Plan Possible
Harry A. Palmer, vice president and general manager of T. M. Sinclair and Company, Ltd.: "As a matter of fact, our men do not work full time now, although the nature of the business makes it necessary for them to be on duty every day. It might be possible to work out a five-day week arrangement to take care of livestock that must be butchered when it comes in and to ship the meat that is ready to send out. The men do not put in a full day but we must have them working everyday because we are dealing in perishables. Our skilled butchers are busy—I doubt if we would have enough of them to spread the work. It's the unskilled men who are idle, largely common labor."

R. S. Whitley, general manager of Curtis Brothers and company, Clinton: "We have always operated on a five-days-and-a-half per week schedule during normal times, and I don't believe we shall change it. Present condition in the building industry are such that we are now working less than five days a week."

"Would Not Fit In"
W. T. R. Smith, general manager, the Collis company, Clinton: "The five-day week would not fit into our scheme of operations where so much of the labor is of the

AROUND THE TOWN with

DON PRYOR

But the $1 is Not Legend

That legendary figure, John Doe, actually exists. At least, he was fined $1 for overtime parking yesterday. Coming into police court while Judge Charles L. Zager was absent yesterday, "Mr. Doe" left his dough (pun) on the desk on top of his overtime parking tag, which gave only the number of his car. When the judge tried to learn the owner of the car, he was informed that because of a recent transfer of the machine, the owner's name is not recorded. So John Doe was fined $1.

Want Some?

A man yesterday received a small sack of oats in the mail. It was tied with a white ribbon and had the picture of a Jackass on the side. On the tag fastened to one end of the sack was the salutation: "Greetings from Minnesota: Hi, Pal—This bag contains real Minnesota oats to feed to the Jackasses who vote for prohibition. Yours for BEER."

Unused Muscles

The mayor and the city clerk and many another city official were sore and weary yesterday. They were unused to the exertion of a day with horseshoes and sandwiches and potato salad. But they all agreed that it was a good picnic.

Clearing the Records

C. O. Craig, receiver for the First National bank, filed claims in district court yesterday against James C. Burns and Harry Stockman, administrators of the estate of Joseph Burns; Charles M. Dutcher, administrator of the estate of Martin J. Wade; and against Hubert Remley and George E. Remley, executors of the estate of Milton Remley. The total amount claimed is $1,185. Kenneth M. Dunlop is attorney for the receiver.

One More

William H. Reynolds of Johnson county applied yesterday at the office of Clerk of Court Walter J. Barrow for a license to marry Mary Luella Smith of Emmett county.

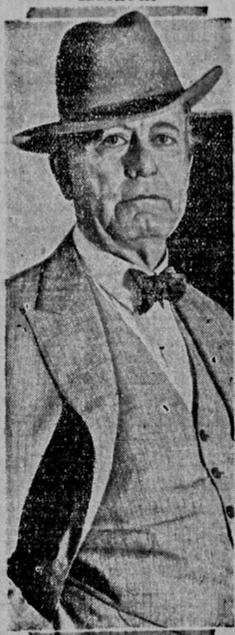

Nothing Like Publicity

The fame of the American Legion Unemployment Relief association is spreading. Yesterday a letter came from Mechanosville asking if the association could find work for two girls. Since no aid is offered to out of town unemployed, the letter will not be answered. The list of local unemployed rose yesterday to 431 with another enrollment.

Still Plugging

The Farm Bureau has raised $858.58 in its drive for $1,000 to finance the Johnson county 4-H club show Aug. 17, 18, and 19. S. Lysle Duncan, specialty type. We try to spread employment over the greatest number of employes by staggering the working week. I think most of the talk about the five-day week is impractical. It should be universally adopted if it is to prove successful."

Holdout

William Edgar Borah, senior United States senator from Idaho, photographed in Chicago upon his arrival there from Washington. He told interviewers that he will not support the Republican or Democratic ticket, and that he has no knowledge of a third party. The senator was bound for Minneapolis.

Farmers Collect $155,000 on Wild Animal Bounties

DES MOINES, Aug. 4 (AP)—Wild animal bounties contributed about $155,000 to the diminished incomes of Iowa farmers last year. Reports received by the state auditor's office today showed a total of $154,915.46 was paid out in wild animal bounties in 94 of the 99 counties, during the year. This was an increase of more than $28,000 over the previous year.

Ten Cents Per Gopher
Gophers killed returned $126,808.88 at a bounty of 10 cents a head. Wolves, paying $10 apiece and $4 for cubs, returned $10,604.14 in bounties and other animals killed cost the counties a total of $17,502.44.

In 1930 the county treasurers paid out a total of $75,954.05 for gophers, $9,704.20 for wolves, and $11,066.31 for miscellaneous animals.

Optional Bounties
Included in the miscellaneous group are the optional bounties which may be authorized by the county boards of supervisors. These include 10 cents for each crow, 25 cents for each ground-hog, and 50 cents for each rattlesnake.

Chickasaw county alone paid out $70 in bounties on rattlesnakes, its report showed. It also spent $244.40 for gophers killed and $38.00 for wolves.

And the Licenses
To drive other cars, Tom Kettles, Walter E. Houser, and Charles Gussell, Jr., applied for drivers' licenses at the office of Sheriff Don McComas yesterday.

Kellys to Entertain Children at Rodeo
Kelly brothers, owners of Gasoline Alley, will be hosts of a flood of Iowa City children between the ages of 8 and 15 Saturday.

They have invited all children of that age to be their guests at the Johnson county rodeo. A special section will be reserved for the children at the grounds. To be eligible, the children must register at Gasoline Alley. Each one will be given souvenirs of the day.

Following protests, bridge paths eliminated by a Kansas City civic improvement plan were restored.

Boys to Demonstrate New Farm Methods
DES MOINES, Aug. 4 (AP)—Farm boys from 40 Iowa counties will give demonstrations of approved agricultural methods at the coming Iowa State fair.

Among these will be: Modern methods of corn cultivation, by Scott county boys; soil erosion control, by Mahaska county teams; swine sanitation, by boys from Pottawattamie county.

Grain Market Takes Tumble With Selling

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP)—Rebound. In account of enlarged selling to realize profits, wheat prices today tumbled back from fresh advances that went 4 3/8 cents above yesterday's low point.

A bearish factor was that big concentrated buying so much in evidence from eastern sources late yesterday was missing today, and that new speculative purchase orders were mostly for small lots and were of widely distributed origin.

Wheat and corn both closed irregularly at 1-4 decline to 3-8 advance compared with yesterday's finish, oats unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions 5 to 10 cents up.

At first, the wheat market here showed a decided tendency to climb as a result of Liverpool quotations responding fully to yesterday's advances on this side of the Atlantic. Jumps in securities were an additional incentive to wheat buying.

About all the day's gains in wheat, however, disappeared in the final hour, notwithstanding reports that deterioration of late-sown domestic wheat was increasing.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Provisions reflected fair buying. Closing indifferents: Wheat—Sept. 49 3/4@7-8, 51 7-8@52; Dec. 52 7-8@53, 55 1-8@1-4; May 57 5-8 bids. Corn—Sept. 31 1-8, 32 3-8; Dec. 31 1-4@3-8, 32 3-8.

Vincent Astor Promises Aid to Roosevelt

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—Vincent Astor, head of the famous and wealthy Astor family, after a visit to Governor Roosevelt today branded as "stupid" and "untrue" reports that the Democratic presidential nominee is "an irresponsible radical." Astor pledged his support to Roosevelt.

In a statement issued after a luncheon engagement with Mr. Roosevelt, the young scion of John Jacob Astor, said: "His ability and character, one might assume, should be well enough known by now not to invite unfounded comment and yet in recent weeks he has been described, by people whom I suspect, who know him not at all, as an irresponsible radical, whatever that is supposed to mean, and even depicted as the probable enemy of every man fortunately still possessed of a few invested dollars."

Also at today's luncheon was John J. Raskob, wealthy former chairman of the Democratic national committee, with whom Mr. Roosevelt discussed party finances for this year's campaign. Mr. Raskob turned aside all questions as to his sentiments regarding the Roosevelt candidacy, declaring he was "out of politics."
