HINDENBURG REFUSES HITLER POST

Roosevelt Confers With Speaker Garner

President Refuses to Trust Nation's Welfare to Untried Party; No Violence Expected

Plans Attack on Territory of Opposition

Two Months Campaign Will End in New York

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt, spending the last week end at his Hudson river home before entering upon a two months invasion of Republican territory, tomorrow will entertain his running mate on the Democratic national ticket, Speaker Garner of Texas.

When he motors back to Albany tomorrow night, the presidential nominee will turn his back on his country home until October. The next three week ends Mr. Roosevelt will be in three states that generally are Republican in national elections, Ohio, New Jersey and Connecticut. The Associated Press has learned that the "big swing" of the Roosevelt campaign, that will take the candidate to the Pacific coast, will start on Sept. 12. It will end on Oct. 3 at Buffalo, where it is understood the New York Democrats will hold their state convention.

To Visit South

The following week end, Mr. Roosevelt will be in Tennessee and Kentucky.

The governor pushed the Walker hearing out of the way this week end. Tomorrow night he will return to it when he confers in Albany with his counsel, Martin Conboy, and go over the program for resumption of the case on Monday.

To End Hearing

While there still are two charges in the Seabury summation to be considered—those involving Russell T. Sherwood, missing accountant, and Mayor Walker's brother, Dr. William Walker—and also charges by James E. Finegan and William J. Schieffelin, it generally is believed that Mr. Roosevelt will end the hearing next week.

Despite the menace of court procedure, Attorney General Bennett has assured Mr. Roosevelt that a writ of prohibition cannot halt his decision on the mayor's fitness to remain in office.

Editor Guest

Henry Wallace of Des Moines, son of a former secretary of agriculture and publisher of farm papers, was a luncheon guest at Krum-Elbow today.

Mr. Garner, the vice presidential nominee, will arrive tomorrow. Roosevelt has invited him to go up to Albany with him tomorrow night and spend half a day there. Tomorrow's meeting will be the first since the Chicago convention between the party standard bearers.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt will drive to Peekskill to lay the cornerstone of a new armory.

Miniature River Will Show Engineers Way to Improve Shipping

A miniature reproduction of the Mississippi river below the dam at Keokuk is being started in university laboratories by the United States Engineering department, under the direction of Martin Nelson, assistant government engineer who is stationed here.

Although the model is a hydraulics project, it is being constructed in the old steam laboratories of the college of engineering because of lack of available space in the present hydraulics laboratory.

The department expects to determine from the model a method of improving navigation conditions below the locks of the Keokuk dam.

Tree Leaves Fall as Weather Holds to October Level

Shivering maple trees began to shed their leaves yesterday, a little dismayed at the abnormal temperature and the fall showers.

Friday night's drizzling rain brought much discomfort but only .02 of an inch of rain. The mercury climbed a little yesterday, reaching a high of 72 degrees, then falling to 68 degrees by 7 p.m.

The sky was still overcast last night, promising still more showers eventually. The wind was insignificant.

A. B. A. Asks Swift Prosecution of Case Against Wm. Bowen

The importance, in a negative way, of William Bowen, alias Pat Regan, alias William Snyder and 10 other aliases, was emphasized yesterday by a telegram received by Police Chief Frank L. Smith from the American Bankers' association in New York.

The telegram indicated that the association is particularly anxious that Bowen, who is in the county jail awaiting indictment by the grand jury on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, be put somewhere safely out of reach of blank checks.

Believing that conviction seemed most likely here, although the man is wanted on similar charges elsewhere, the telegram pleaded for a speedy prosecution of the case.

Drys Oppose Hoover Stand

W.C.T.U. Heads Notify Candidate of Their Displeasure

SEATTLE, Aug. 13 (AP) — A criticism of President Hoover's recommendation that the states deal individually with prohibition, made by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, was telegraphed to the chief executive today by the national convention of the organization.

The delegates adopted a report by the executive committee suggesting such action. Mrs. Boole's statement said "The proposed plan will be opposed by the dry forces every step of the way."

Lieutenant Governor Gellatly told the union "The fact that you are founded upon the right principles insures your ultimate victory." He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Arthur Barnhart of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment, will address the convention tomorrow night in place of Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York, chairman of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, who has been detained in the east.

Officers of the union said Barnhart had been instrumental in preventing repeal of enforcement laws in Illinois and that they believe he would give delegates from the 12 states which are facing attempts to repeal state enforcement acts, "constructive campaign advice."

Fear Floods at Ottumwa

Des Moines River Up Several Feet as Rains Fall

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP) — The possibility of a flood of the Des Moines river was present tonight at Ottumwa, as a result of downpours in the last two days.

The stream rose several feet in the last 24 hours and a flood stage was considered probable by weather bureau attendants here.

Eleven Iowa cities had more than an inch of rain Friday. Several had more than three inches Thursday. Some rain fell in scattered localities today, and dark clouds held promise of more.

The 4.48 inches Des Moines received in the 48-hour period ended at 7 a.m. was the heaviest rainfall here in six years. The deluge in various parts of Iowa made roads impassable, caused great damage in some communities, and flooded crop lands.

Charles D. Reed, director of the Iowa weather and crop bureau, said the rains were beneficial.

"The rain came slowly and had plenty of time to soak into the ground, which was dry because of the slight drouth experienced in July," he said.

In Fremont county in southeast Iowa, crops were damaged by a flood through a broken dike of Plum creek. Pigs and chickens on the Clay Cloyed farm near Thurman were drowned.

Pro Golfers to Meet

OTTUMWA (AP) — About two scores of Iowa's professional golfers are expected to take part in the Iowa Professional Golfers' association tourney here, Sept. 10 and 11.

Walker Trial Begins Final Act Monday

Roosevelt Will Hear More Evidence by Seabury

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—The mayor of New York will return on Monday to the "Hall of Governors" in Albany, there to enter on the final phase of his vigorous fight for what he has termed his "past, present and future."

Joyously accorded by his friends and political allies a reception such as is usually reserved for conquering heroes, Mayor Walker rested this week end at the home of his friend, A. C. Blumenthal, in Westchester county.

Offers Retainer Fee

Blumenthal has indicated willingness to pay Walker a $100,000-a-year legal retainer fee, should he be removed from office.

A day and a half Mayor Walker has spent so far answering the persistent questions of Govenor Roosevelt.

The mayor has still to explain to the governor what were his business relations with the missing Russell T. Sherwood, accountant of the law firm with which he was associated before he became mayor.

Say Sherwood Agent

Samuel Seabury, counsel to the Hofstadter legislative committee at whose hearings was produced the evidence on which are based demands for Walker's removal, has charged that Sherwood was the mayor's fiscal agent. Walker said the charge was "wholly by inference."

Included in the many volumes of Hofstadter committee records, which the governor has admitted as evidence in the hearing, is testimony indicating that in five and one half years, ending with Sherwood's disappearance a year ago, the obscure, $35-a-week bookkeeper handled stock transactions involving nearly a million dollars.

Other Charges

There are other charges still to be discussed with the governor—charges less sensational, but requiring detailed answers. They are that Walker failed to produce his financial records before the Hofstadter committee, that he was "neither frank nor truthful" in his testimony before the committee, and that he failed properly to perform the duties of his office.

So far the governor has covered four main points of the "conclusions," which Seabury offered with the record of the committee hearings.

Probe Bond Holdings

He asked the mayor about $1,000 worth of Reliance bronze and steel bonds and if he knew he owned them when the company was awarded a $43,000 contract for traffic light standards on Fifth avenue. The mayor replied that he did not.

He asked him how $26,000 worth of bonds, including those of the Reliance company, came into his possession—citing the testimony that they had been presented to him by J. A. Sisto, a broker financially interested in a taxicab company that was promoting a taxicab control ordinance before the board of aldermen.

Claims Pool Profits

The mayor replied that the bonds represented his profit from a pool, the character and formation of which he knew practically nothing, that Sisto was merely the broker handling the pool so far as he was concerned, and that he had vetoed the bill which would have benefitted the taxicab company.

Governor Roosevelt asked the mayor about the Equitable bus franchise, what interest his friend, Senator John A. Hastings, had in it, and how it came about that J. Allan Smith, New York representative of the company, paid for a $10,000 letter of credit and a $3,000 overdraft used by the mayor and his party on a European trip in 1927.

State Board Hopes for Low Tax Levy

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP)—Members of the state board of assessment and review are hopeful of keeping the state tax levy, to be made this month for collection next year, at the present eight mill level.

It was indicated that there would be no increase in the levy despite a decline of $65,899,336 in the assessed valuation of personal property. Because of the reduced valuations the actual collections would be about $130,000 less.

AS ALBANY WELCOMED WALKER TO BATTLE SCENE

Hailed like a conquering hero, Mayor Walker is shown as he arrived in Albany to appear before Governor Roosevelt to answer to the charges brought by the Seabury investigating committee. Inset shows the band that greeted New York's dapper executive leading the parade from the station to the hotel.

Motor Owner Dies in Creek

Ray A. Graham Dead After Leap Into Canada Stream

CHATHAM, Ont., Aug. 13 (AP)—Ray A. Graham, secretary-treasurer of the Graham-Paige Motor company of Detroit, was drowned today in McGregor's creek.

His brother, Robert said the motor company executive had suffered a nervous breakdown and was on the way to Morristown, N. J., to take a rest cure.

This afternoon Mr. Graham went to church with the Rev. C. A. Shine, who came here with him from Detroit yesterday. They returned to the hotel and went to Mr. Graham's room.

The clergyman said Mr. Graham asked him to go in first. He did so. When he turned around Mr. Graham was gone. He had run down stairs, across the street and jumped into the creek. A crowd of downtown shoppers saw the leap.

The body was recovered 20 minutes later but Mr. Graham was beyond help.

He was 45 years old.

Claim Selling Strike Works

Reno Declares Market Receipts Show Effects

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP) — Milo Reno, president of the Farmers Holiday association, today said that the farmer's strike declared last Monday is having a noticeable effect and will be continued.

He cited U. S. department of agriculture figures on hog market receipts and prices, as one of the points which should be noted in connection with the effect of the farm produce holding movement and also said the grain market is being affected.

Government reports for Aug. 10 showed a 10 per cent decrease in hog supplies at interior yards and a 10 cent price advance, he said. On Aug. 11 there was about a 50 per cent decrease compared with a week ago. Receipts at seven terminal markets also were down, he said.

Reno also quoted an Iowa representative of a Chicago grain company to the effect that elevator operators are complaining of their inability to fill their houses with oats although bidding over the Chicago basis.

He said representatives from practically every middlewestern state will attend the meeting of the national Farmers Holiday association in Des Moines Monday to lay further plans. Called originally for a 30-day period, the strike movement seeks to obtain produce prices commensurate with the cost of production.

Draws $50 Fine

DAVENPORT (AP) — Pleading guilty to possession of lottery tickets, W. I. Hillman was fined $50 and costs by Justice L. G. Egger of Bettendorf.

Archduke's Lineage Nearly Forgotten—But He'll Be Papa!

VIENNA, Aug. 13 (AP)—Archduke Anton of Hapsburg placed nervously about Moedling Villa today, his ancient lineage almost forgotten in distraction of a young man about to become a father.

Inside the villa a famous Viennese specialist attended Princess Ileana of Rumania, who awaited the birth of her first child. Her mother, the dowager Queen Marie, was there, and so was her sister, the queen of Jugoslavia. Private dectectives kept the curious away.

This evening the attending specialist announced that the case was developing slowly but there was no cause for anxiety.

Drama Center of Attractions for Week's Calendar

Two world premieres of plays by Paul Green, author of "Tread the Green Grass," hold the middle of the stage in the scheduled events of the university calendar for this week.

"The End of the Row" and "Unto Such Glory," which are being staged for the first time, will be combined with another of Paul Green's one-act plays, in a presentation of the University theater Thursday night in natural science auditorium.

Tomorrow at 4 p.m., Prof. Lothrop Smith of the chemistry department will give a demonstration lecture on "The metallic properties of phosphorus," in room 300 of the chemistry building.

Wednesday afternoon, Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum in the natural science building, will be host to a group of summer session students who will make a tour through the museum, arranged by the summer session office. That evening, the all-state high school band, under the direction of Prof. Charles Boardman Righter of the music department, will play its third concert of the second term.

Completing the week, the extension division will conduct a Saturday tour to the state penitentiary at Ft. Madison and the Mississippi river dam and power plant at Keokuk, for summer session students and others interested.

Take Dozen Eggs—Enter in College

OSKALOOSA, Aug. 13 (AP)—With the beginning of Penn college classes this fall, some farm produce will automatically increase 5 to 10 per cent in market value.

President H. C. Bedford said today corn, hogs, wheat, poultry, eggs, vegetables and fruits will be accepted in payment for tuition, board, and room at prices higher than the average.

Actress Weds After Divorce

Only One Day Between Two Ceremonies for Star

HARRISON, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP)—Within 24 hours after being divorced from Ralph Forbes, Ruth Chatterton, the actress, was married today to George Brent, motion picture actor.

William Wilding, town clerk in whose office the ceremony took place, said they were "the finest couple I ever saw come in here."

Miss Chatterton gave her age as 34, her home as Beverly Hills, Cal., and said she was born in New York. Brent gave his age as 28, his birthplace as Ireland and his address as Hollywood. He also has been divorced.

Justice of the Peace Allen officiated at the ceremony. Frances Starr, actress, and Virginia Hammond were the witnesses.

Miss Chatterton returned from abroad earlier in the week.

Last night in New York she said Forbes, who is an actor, had notified her he had been granted a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty and "divergence of tastes."

Find Pictures in Hotel Room

Seek Identification of Injured Mystery Woman

BARABOO, Wis., Aug. 13 (AP)—Clippings and pictures of Helen Schoener and J. Everett Sapp, both of Rockford, Ill., today were found by authorities in a room occupied by a "mystery woman" who was injured last Sunday when she plunged from the third floor of a local hotel.

Miss Schoener and Sapp disappeared from Rockford in December, 1930, and were found after Sapp's blood-stained automobile had led officers to believe they had been killed.

Frank Perse, owner of the hotel, said the injured woman was the same as the one in the pictures, but she declared she is Mrs. V. Laplante. Various papers identified her as Helen Schauer of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Helen Hutchinson of Milwaukee.

She refused to tell officials how she had fallen.

Mail Carrier Finds Mechanic's Corpse

DEEP RIVER, Aug. 13 (AP) — Clark Wolf, 31, a Deep River mechanic, today was found dead in his automobile four and a half miles from here.

He had been shot through the head. A revolver was found near the body. Officers believe he committed suicide.

A rural mail carrier discovered the body.

Hoover Stands in Limelight at Washington

Democrats Fire Up for Further Attack, Defense

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — President Hoover's commitment for a change in prohibition has all but monopolized the political forum, with those associated with dry organizations split on his stand and the Democrats getting ready for further attack and defense.

Determination of how decisively this issue is to be drawn between him and Franklin D. Roosevelt must wait until the stir he caused dies down. Also awaited is what the New York governor will say as to Mr. Hoover's contention that the Democratic plank for outright repeal means "return of the saloon system" over large areas.

Now that both nominees have spoken, the real crystallization may be expected to be deferred at least until after the Roosevelt speech next Saturday at Columbus. Meanwhile, the Democratic candidate tomorrow gets his first chance to talk plans with his running mate—Speaker Garner — and to settle the strategy for combatting the Republican assaults on the record of the house of representatives under Garner.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) President Hoover decided late today to take a two or three day fishing trip at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay.

He will leave the capital tomorrow on a department of commerce inspection boat.

The boat is equipped with radio.

It was explained the president desired to cut himself off as completely as possible from his customary routine, however, and even his usual secret service guard probably will be quartered on another boat.

The exact location of the first stop was not announced.

Presidential aides said the president would take with him three or four guests. It was said he would confine the trip completely to "fishing, rest and relaxation."

The party chieftains are wondering about the outcome of legal tactics in the case of Mayor Walker before Roosevelt, whether the court procedure might result in deferment of the decision on removal until after the elections.

The variance among persons long identified with the dry cause, over the president's prohibition position, in which he said he could "not consent to continuation of this regime" under the eighteenth amendment, has not escaped notice.

It remains to be seen whether any unity for the presidential campaign will be attained by the dry organizations, or whether all will confine attention to the congressional candidacies and let happen what will, so far as the presidency goes.

Holliday Gets Island Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — President Hoover today appointed John H. Holliday of St. Louis vice governor of the Philippine Islands.

Holliday is 53 and graduated in 1903 from Harvard university where he was associated with Undersecretary Cattle of the state department and Dwight Davis, former governor general of the Philippines.

He practiced law in St. Louis until about six months ago, when he was named legal adviser to Governor Roosevelt of the Philippines. He is now in Manila.

Warn Insurance Men Against Rate Fixing

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP)—Enforcement by casualty companies of a 24.7 per cent premium on outstanding workmen's compensation insurance will be met by revocation of licenses in Iowa, state insurance Commissioner E. W. Clark has announced.

Clark notified the national counsel on compensation, New York, which announced the rate increase, that although he has no legal power to dictate rates, he has authority to act under an Iowa law against unlawful combinations for rate fixing.

Everything or Nothing, Impatient Nazi Demands

BERLIN, Aug. 13 (AP) — Germany's venerable field marshal-president erected a new Hindenburg line against German fascism today, declining to capitulate before Adolf Hitler, the former corporal who is now the political leader of nearly 14,000,000 Germans.

Against Hitler's impatient demand that he be given all or none of the country's governing authority, President Von Hindenburg posed the weight of his conscience and personality and refused to entrust the nation to a single party which never has been tried.

Chancellor Von Papen offered to make Hitler vice chancellor. This post would be created especially for him and would include the post of premier of Prussia, which has been vacant since the national government imposed a virtual dictatorship in Prussia.

Hitler Balks

Hitler balked. He wanted the chancellorship.

Then Von Papen offered cabinet posts to some of Hitler's lieutenants. Hitler refused that. Representatives of both sides tried to get Hitler's consent to the appointment of Gregor Strasser, his right hand man, to the vice chancellorship. That also failed.

Then Hitler went to see the president.

Chancellor Von Papen was there, and Otto Meissner, the president's secretary.

The president's attitude toward the Nazi leader, young enough to be his son, was described afterward as distinctly fatherly. He reminded Hitler of his promise to support a government resting upon the confidence of the president.

Another Demand

But Hitler once more demanded that on the basis of his party's strength in the Reichstag he be made the chancellor of Germany.

The president refused "for moral reasons and for the sake of the fatherland."

With great dignity he informed the Nazi chief that his conscience would not permit him to entrust to one party the sole responsibility for the entire German people. He entreated Hitler to be content with a cabinet post.

Hitler told him that nothing but the chancellorship would satisfy him and that he would not share the governing responsibility with others.

Then he clicked his heels, saluted and left.

Call Conference

The chancellor and his cabinet associates went into conference to consider their course.

Their first reaction, it was said, was to go before the new Reichstag when it assembles at the end of the month and dare the opposition to turn them out. If there should be a vote of no-confidence the next step would be to dissolve the Reichstag and to go on governing without parliament until things settle down.

It was understood that Hitler had renewed his assurance that no illegal attempt would be made to seize power.

It was taken for granted the Nazis now will resume their active opposition to the Von Papen cabinet, but the police expected no unusual display of violence.

Smylie Killed Self Says Coroner; Will Hold Funeral Today

Date for the funeral service for Earl Smylie, who shot himself at his home, 321 E. Davenport street, Friday morning, has been set ahead one day. The service will be held at the McGovern funeral parlor at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be at Ainsworth, where Smylie was born and lived for many years.

Dr. Paul Reed, acting coroner, made conclusive yesterday his Friday statement that Smylie's death was a case of suicide. The body was found by Mrs. Smylie with a bullet through the head.

The Leading Issue

THE FATE OF Mayor James J. Walker's career—termed by commentators the leading political issue in the country today—will be decided upon a serious, non-political basis, if the first two sessions of the hearing before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt are an indication. Curbing the tendency in the opening speeches of Walker's attorney to become politically-minded, Roosevelt assured Walker, and Samuel Seabury too, of a fair trial, devoid of the legal aspects that entangled the earlier investigation.

In that light, no matter what the final verdict is, Roosevelt cannot be accused of bending to political influence, of unfairness, nor of prejudice. And although the verdict may be delayed pending the outcome of a court decision on the legality of Roosevelt's power to dismiss Walker until after the November presidential elections, it will cast no reflection on the willingness of the New York governor to speed the hearing.

Although Walker is credited with having won the opening round in his fight to remain in office, Roosevelt has tactfully refrained from commenting on the possible outcome of the hearing, has given no intimation of his personal feelings in regard to the entire case. A less diplomatic politician might easily make a "leading issue" of the case.

The issue deserves the attentive regard of the nation but it does not merit the label of "political issue," although Mayor Walker has referred to his accusers as political enemies. The case does merit, however, designation as the most important development in governmental processes in several decades, for it recognizes that not even the administration of the world's greatest city can be conducted without interference from vicious, corrupt agencies.

On the Fence

THAT THE national W.C.T.U. cannot give its support to a party which has pledged itself to bring about a change in the national liquor laws was firmly stated by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president of the group, in a speech before that body's convention in Seattle, Friday.

Just what was to be done about it was rather vague. Vague, unless one really can rely in the efficacy of prayer as was suggested in Mrs. Boole's speech, or in the guiding powers of conscience, as was also suggested.

However, it appears that even Mrs. Boole is not so sure of the suggestion which she put forth early in her speech. For slipping along its calmer waters were phrases which cannot be taken to entirely condemn Mr. Hoover. In fact the main extoller of temperance went so far as to say that even had Mr. Hoover not been president during the trying years since 1929 he would still have been called in to solve the problems which have since confronted him.

In accordance with the rest of the nation's prominent, Mrs. Boole feels that there are other issues involved in the coming elections. Mr. Hoover, she feels, is best able to carry these problems to a successful conclusion.

Consequently, if the W.C.T.U. as a body follows the suggestions which in inuendo crept out in its leader's speech it looks as if Mr. Hoover can depend on at least that bloc of votes.

Alive to Life

JOHN RUSKIN once wrote, "A man's interest in life may be measured by the number of things he's alive to." Life becomes dull and drab to the individual who finds nothing new—nothing inspiring.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, former chief justice of the United States supreme court, gets much joy from translating from the Spanish, French and German. He has that rare quality—intellectual curiosity, which is always a definite trait of a happy man.

At the time of his death, Thomas A. Edison was working on 16 new inventions. Shortly before his death, Charles P. Steinmetz, had planned 10 new electrical processes. Were they tired of life?

Life, with all of its hardships, is still a privilege. Life could be much worse than it is. Joy of living is for him who can find happiness in the little things, for him who can appropriate joy from everyday tasks. This man will always have a balance in the bank of joy.

Another War Cry?

IN A STATEMENT in which it promised to support the lawfully elected government and to aid in squelching the hidden forces of disorder, a group called the "volunteer section" of the Army Comrades association, proclaimed itself in Dublin Thursday.

It promises to point out those who might be traitors to the government, it deplores the carrying of hidden firearms, and holds itself up as a model which any man might do well to follow.

There are, however, two details brought out in its statement which might cause some wonder as to just how law abiding this group intends to be. In the first place it swears to stand back of any one of its members who might get in trouble through "traitor pointing." In the second place, the group as a whole is made up of the remnants of former president William T. Cosgrave's political organization, and one of its strongest leaders is Dr. O'Higgins, brother of the former vice president.

Suppose, then, with a natural enmity to President Eamon de Valera this group should decide that his administration was not "lawfully elected." One of its members would suddenly shout "traitor" and the war would be on.

Ever since the last elections in Ireland that country has been virtually an armed camp. Its many factions have thus far spent their time mostly in glowering at each other. No harm has been done and they've all had a good time. But this last statement with its warlike quality sounds like something different.

A German Paradox

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger)

Germany yesterday celebrated constitution day in a strange atmosphere. Outdoor observances were forbidden, and at least half of the meetings that were held indoors were devoted not to upholding and lauding the constitution but to advocating its destruction.

Baron von Gayl, the minister of the interior, delivered the Reichstag oration. He is an avowed monarchist. He pointed out that the constitution does not unite Germans, but divides them. He spoke of needed revision in general terms only. But there is no doubt that the group now in power intends to force amendments which will leave the constitution a very different document from the one which was adopted 13 years ago at Weimar.

The celebration was an altogether paradoxical affair, typical of the Germany of today, a house divided. It was a reversal of the "morituri te salutamus" of those who are about to die. Those who are about to kill it saluted the German constitution.

-:- TODAY'S TOPICS -:-

By Frank Jaffe

¶ The recent rise of the stock market was assailed by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, as "political manipulation" in a speech to more than 1,500 people gathered on a New York street corner. If it is successful, he added, both the Republicans and Democrats will claim credit; if it fails, both will deny implication.

"The great initiative in scientific advance," declared Thomas, "does not come from Wall Street. I am speaking in the district whose leaders were responsible—so far as individuals apart from the whole capitalist system were responsible —for a wild gambler's prosperity, for its inevitable aftermath of untold misery, and who are now responsible, I suppose, for nursing along this tender boom on which some of you stake far too heavy hopes."

The profits of boom years, the Socialist candidate pointed out, are nothing but a "glorified form of racketeering," they are the results of manipulation and not of constructive work for the benefit of the whole country.

Be that as it may, the success of the recent boom will hardly depend on the thousands of former speculators throughout the country who threw away their life savings on the market that crashed in 1929. Those investors have learned their lesson, at tremendous cost, and it will take more than a suggestion of normal conditions to induce them to again venture into the realms of stocks and bonds.

Whether or not the Republicans and Democrats make an issue of the improving market, the voters of the country will make their own decisions about the sudden rising prices. They'll believe what they want to regardless of suggestions like those of Candidate Thomas. And regardless of past experience in market manipulations, they'll speculate again as soon as they are assured of a steady trend.

¶ What will happen in Germany now that Hitler has refused to be contented with a cabinet post in place of the chancellorship he demanded, depends upon the extent of his disappointment and the degree to which von Hindenburg can appease the Nazi leader's party. All or nothing is Hitler's policy, it seems, and if he can't control the government by legitimate means, he may try to force his party into power by open warfare.

The new reichstag will have an opportunity for a showdown on the government at the end of this month when Chancellor von Papen's cabinet will go before it for a vote of confidence. If the confidence is not recorded the von Papen cabinet will continue to govern as at present, without the services of a legislative chamber. The National Socialist element in the reichstag, however, may vote in favor of the present regime simply as part of a plan to insure the Nazis some voice in the government. President von Hindenburg's decision not to allow a single party, Hitler's National Socialist, to run Germany is, at all events, heartily commendable.

Book Bits—

(From The Eagle's Shadow, by James Branch Cabell)

But with the lambs he sheared, and the bulls he dragged to earth, and the bears he gored to financial death, we have nothing to do: suffice it, that he performed these operations with almost uniform success and in an unimpeachably respectable manner.

And if, in his time, he added materially to the lists of inmates in various asylums and almshouses, it must be acknowledged that he bore his victims no malice, and that on every Sunday morning he confessed himself to be a miserable sinner, in a voice which was perfectly audible three pews off. At bottom, he considered his relations with Heaven on a purely business basis; he kept a species of running account with Providence; and if on occasions he overdrew it somewhat, he saw no inconsistency in evening matters with a cheque for the church fund.

So that at his death it was said of him that he had, in his day, sent more men into bankruptcy and more missionaries into Africa than any other philanthropist in the country.

Bird W. Baldwin, Son of Late Prof. Bird T. Baldwin, Receives Appointment at Indiana State Fair

(Editor's note: The recent appointment of Bird W. Baldwin, son of Bird T. Baldwin, former director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station here, as assistant in the fine arts department of the Indiana state fair, was the incentive for a feature story in the Indianapolis Sunday Star of July 31, 1932. Below are excerpts from the story.

The clipping from the Star was received from Mrs. J. E. Lukens of Milford, whose husband was guardian of Bird W. Baldwin until he came of age. The excerpts will be of interest to Iowa Citians who remember the late Professor Baldwin as research professor in the psychology department and as director of the research station from 1917 until 1928, the year of his death.)

Like many others in Indiana's younger group of artists, Bird W. Baldwin is a Hoosier by adoption. Of Quaker parentage he was born in Westchester, Pa., about 20 miles west of Philadelphia. He began the study of art in high school in Iowa City and continued it while in George school, a Quaker boarding school at Newtown, Pa. There was one year of study in the engineering school at the University of Iowa and one semester in the school of architecture in the University of Illinois.

In 1929, young Baldwin studied in the John Herron art school during the second semester. He continued his study in the Herron school the next year and did additional study during the spring semester in the Taflinger life school. The school year of 1930-31 was spent in New York, studying under George Bridgman in the Art Students' league. Mr. Baldwin earned his expenses by working as a sound checker in one of New York's motion picture theaters in Times Square.

Returning to Indianapolis after his year's study in New York, Bird Baldwin proved his devotion to Elmer Taflinger and his method of teaching by re-entering the life class for 1931-32. His work in the Herron museum means practical experience in all of the departments. When special exhibits are to be displayed, he assists Mr. Peat with the hanging of the pictures—a rare opportunity, this, for art training, as Mr. Peat shows fine artistic skill when arranging an exhibit for display.

It was with a rare stroke of humor that Mr. Taflinger painted Mr. Baldwin's portrait—one of a series of portraits that were made as gifts to successful contestants in his life class—and represented the gallery assistant in the act of hanging a painting upside down.

While Mr. Baldwin is regarded as an exceptionally good student in the Taflinger class—he won the competition for the most meritorious composition when a large allegorical picture, in which 21 figures were posed, was designed by members of the spring semester class—his estimate of his own work is a very modest one . . .

. . . You will understand how it was necessary for me to pit my will against the will of the 23 year old artist . . . when there was an inkling of a distinguished father who was widely known in educational circles, and I wished to announce the fact.

"Who's Who in America" could supply me with all the information concerning Bird Thomas Baldwin. So why should I omit from this article what the readers might like to know—information that could not be other than helpful "background" for the young artist—just because of the entreaties from Bird, Jr., that no mention be made of notable accomplishments in the family. Following my promise to make use of but a small part of the "Who's Who" information, this much was selected from the long paragraph concerning the artist's father:

Bird Thomas Baldwin took two degrees from Harvard—A.M. in 1903 and Ph.D. in 1905. While studying for his doctor's degree he was a professor in Harvard. A long list of higher institutions of learning in which Dr. Baldwin had done advanced study, both in this country and Europe, was given in the paragraph on his educational training. He was a member of the faculty in Chicago university as lecturer on psychology and education in 1909-10.

From 1917 until the year of his death, 1928, Dr. Baldwin was connected with the state University of Iowa as research professor in psychology and as director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station. The last year of the war he had a leave of absence from Iowa university and, as major of the sanitary corps, U.S.A., served as chief psychologist and director of rehabilitation of disabled soldiers in the Walter Reed hospital of Washington.

BEHIND THE SCENES — IN HOLLYWOOD —

By Harrison Carroll

STUDIO GOSSIP | FILM SCANDAL | SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Hollywood's most unusual school for actors is run by Stuart Walker, in charge of developing Paramount's younger players.

The studio has assigned Mr. Walker a special rehearsal stage where he can put his proteges through their paces. At first glance, the set appears to be an ordinary hallway and drawing room. But actually it is so designed as to present every problem in mechanics the player will come up against.

In the drawing room are five different kinds of windows: a French window that opens in, another that opens out; two sets of casement windows similarly arranged; and finally a window that raises and lowers.

Then there are seven different types of doors, including: portieres, double sliding doors, swinging doors, etc.

Placed in the set are 15 types of sofas and chairs, offering every height and design.

Completing this unusual room are 30 small hand props, such as ashtrays, books, match boxes, lighters, telephones, etc.

Under Mr. Walker's system, the student actors are cast in a play, which they rehearse and perform. Only there are never any spectators. Last week, the comedy "Candlelight" was the chosen lesson.

At present, the director has eight pupils. They are Frances Dee, Randolph Scott, Kent Taylor, Cary Grant, Sari Maritza, Adrienne Ames, Claire Dodd and Florine McKinney.

Credit Lilyan Tashman with one of the more amusing wise-cracks of the week.

A party was in progress at a Malibu home. The guests were informally attired. Presently, a leading woman arrived. She has grown plump and, in lounging pajamas, she is a symphony of curves.

Lilyan whispered: "Oo, look, a balloon smuggler."

BOULEVARD TALK

A Hollywood agent made the rounds of the casting offices this week on a novel mission. He has taken an option on a pack of wild wolves and is trying to place them in a picture . . . As if one to each door isn't enough. . . They got a laugh at a railroad station this week when Mitzi Green stepped off the train wearing a long coat and dark glasses, a la Garbo. . . In spite of losing 20 pounds in four days, via the flu route, Al Green has reported at Warners to take up his directorial duties . . . Lupe Velez's recipe for stage success: "I sing, not good but loud; I dance, not good but move around a lot. I stop the show." . . . As simple as that . . . The movie fan outdoes the traditional patience of the fisherman. When "Back Street" opened here the other night 150 fans were lined up at the theater at 1 p.m. . . . Lou Anger is in the hospital for a minor operation . . . Latest word from Fox is that Will Rogers picture, "Jubilo," will get under way in about 3 weeks . . . After being off the screen for three months with an injured back, Joe E. Brown expects to start work on a new picture, Aug. 22.

The Daily Iowan-Big Dipper Swimming Contest in Last Week

Here Are 10 Winners for This Tuesday

No Letters Accepted After Thursday, at 8 P. M.

Although the weather man is rather undecided about what kind of weather Iowa City will have this week, the 10 boys and girls who were slated to go swimming as guests of The Daily Iowan and the Big Dipper last Friday will be scheduled to go tomorrow. In addition, 10 more free swimmers are announced this morning who will go Tuesday.

Since this is the last week of the big contest, no letters will be accepted after Thursday at 8 p.m. If there are too many really good letters that come in up to that time for everyone to go swimming this week, the winners will be taken next week, until all have had their big afternoon at the pool.

So, if you want to go to the Big Dipper as a guest of The Daily Iowan some afternoon this week or next, get your letter—telling the editor how you've earned some money this summer—in at once. Remember, you must be between seven and 13 years of age, and don't forget to have some one older in your family sign the letter before you send it in.

Here are the names of the 10 winners whose swims were postponed from last week because of rain and who will go swimming tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m.:

Juanita McKean, 7, summer camp.
Anna Mae Tidman, 8, summer camp.
Norman Paukert, 108 S. Gilbert street.
Robert Paukert, 108 S. Gilbert street.
Bob Lagomarcino, 104 S. Gilbert street.
Anna Mary Schroeder, 9, summer camp.
Franklin Carter, 13, 331 N. Gilbert street.
Martin Gerber, 13, 431 N. Van Buren street.
Bud Ruppert, 13, 421 E. Davenport street.
Mary Helen Raymond, 416 Grant street.

And here are the 10 winners for Tuesday afternoon's swim period:

Pauline Obye, 12, University summer camp.
Vernal Wagner, 13, 3 E. Davenport street.
Lois Tallman, 10, 920 E. Fairchild street.
Frank Tallman, 13, 920 E. Fairchild street.
Charles Obye, 10, University summer camp.
Esther Swisher, 10, 710 Kirkwood avenue.
Pauline Ranshaw, 11, 710 Kirkwood avenue.
Kenneth Mulford, 7, 919 Fifth avenue.
Damon Edwards, 12, University summer camp.
Phyllis Edwards, 11, University summer camp.

Following are the winning letters:

Dear Editor:

I earned one dollar taking care of children here at the camp this summer. I would like to get a free swim as I did not get to go swimming much because I had ivy poisoning. I am 12 years old and live at No. 1 E. Young, University camp.

Yours truly,
Pauline Obye

Dear Sir:

I am 13 years old. I have made my spending money this summer by delivering handbills. I also have a paper route with The Daily Iowan.

Yours truly
Vernal Wagner

Dear Editor:

I am 10 years old. I have never swam in the Big Dipper so I will tell you how I earned my money this summer. I earned my money by washing dishes, and help take care of my baby sister. In this way I have earned 45 cents this summer.

Yours,
Lois Tallman

Dear Editor:

I am 13 years old and would like to go swimming. I have earned my money by chasing baseballs for Geiger and running errands for my mother.

Yours,
Frank Tallman

Dear Sir:

I have earned money by picking apples and finding golf balls. I'd like a free swim very much. I am 10 years old and learned to swim very well in summer school this year.

Yours hopefully,
Charles Obye

Dear Editor:

I earned my money by neiping a neighbor lady fix her lawn and also run errands for her. I have a dollar in this way so far this summer. I am 10 years old. I hope I get a free swim in the Big Dipper.

Yours truly,
Esther Swisher

Dear Editor:

I have been embroidering this summer. My grandmother bought a pair of pillow slips which I had embroidered. This is the way I earned my spending money. I am 11 years of age.

Yours truly,
Pauline Ranshaw

Dear Editor:

I would like to enter your swimming contest so I thought I would tell you how I earn money during the summer. I am seven years old. I made 30 cents and also got an ever-sharp pencil for selling five magazines. I will sell them again this month.

Yours truly,
Kenneth Mulford

Dear Editor:

I am 12 years old. I earn my money by selling cookies for my sister.

Yours,
Damon Edwards

Dear Editor:

I have earned my money this summer by making and selling cookies at the University camp. I hope to get a chance to swim in the Big Dipper. I am 11 years old and live at 20 E. Baker street.

Sincerely yours,
Phyllis Edwards

Watch Roads for Two Men

Imprison Bank Officer, Take $5,000 After Vault Opens

BRICELYN, Minn., Aug. 13 (AP) —Roads into northern Iowa were being watched tonight in an effort to apprehend two men who robbed the State bank of Bricelyn of $5,000 early today.

The robbers apparently had entered the building during the night and held Carl Gerzema, assistant cashier, a prisoner until the time lock was opened. They then took the official to the basement where they locked him in.

They fled in a 1930 Ford coach. Bricelyn is a few miles from the Iowa line in Faribault county.

Melvin Passolt, chief of the Minnesota crime bureau, said he believed one of the robbers was implicated in an Elmore, Minn., bank robbery June 9, when $6,000 was stolen. Passolt identified him as Chester Morris, who escaped from the Kansas penitentiary April 14.

University Students Distribute Food to Destitute Families

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP)—About 70 students from midwestern universities will leave here Monday on invitation of several mine local unions to aid in distribution of food and clothing to needy Illinois miners' families, Professor Robert M. Lovett of the University of Chicago said today.

The students will travel by automobile, carrying contributions of food, clothing and cash from various sources. The group is comprised of students from the University of Chicago; Northwestern university; University of Wisconsin; Central Y.M.C.A. college; Washington university, St. Louis; Detroit City college; Crane Junior college, Chicago; John Fletcher college of Iowa, and Commonwealth of Arkansas, Professor Lovett said.

Threaten Head of Tax Corporation, Shoot Near Home

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Aug. 13 (AP)—A sniper's rifle last night shattered a street light in front of the home of John A. Thompson, president of the Tax Securities corporation of St. Petersburg, and Thompson reported that about the same time he received the fifth recent threat ordering him out of the city before Aug. 15.

The threats have been signed "Tamper gang." They contained no specific charges.

A month ago four shots were fired near the Thompson home. Thompson formerly lived in Des Moines, Iowa.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus to Exhibit in Iowa City Soon

An advance man, wandering into Mayor J. J. Carroll's office yesterday, brought the news to Iowa City that Aug. 24 will see the arrival of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus.

The circus will come here from Burlington, where it will show Aug. 23. From here it will go to Clinton.

Mayor Carroll made arrangements with the advance man for the crippled children at the Children's hospital to see the show. The circus will probably show on S. Dubuque street.

What Shall I Serve---?

A Daily Hint to Hostesses on Tempting Appetites While It's Hot

Orange Bread

Something just a little bit different from the usual sandwich bread is Orange Bread. It makes delightful little sandwiches for tea, and may also be served as a sweet bread at meals. This recipe was suggested by Mrs. Dan J. Burke, 32 E. Bloomington street:

Orange Bread

Put in a sifter the following ingredients:

2 1-2 c. flour
1-2 c. sugar
3 teas. baking power
1-2 teas. salt

Put in a bowl 2 eggs beaten well, 1 cup milk. Combine with the above and beat well. Add 2 teaspoonsful of melted butter, 1 teaspoonful of vanilla, and 1 cup of prepared orange peel. Sprinkle a little sugar over the top and bake slowly. Bake in a bread pan. This makes one loaf.

Orange Peel (Four oranges for loaf)

Put orange peel (peel in sections) in cold water letting it come to a boil and cook till peel is tender. (Better to change water a couple of times). Scrape out all the light yellow inside. Cut peel in narrow strips. Make a syrup of 1 cup of sugar and 1-2 cup of water. Cool peel in this until syrup is all absorbed. Cut in small pieces.

Book Reviews

Expression in America by Ludwig Lewisohn; Harpers, $5. Reviewed by Melvin Stadler.

Disdaining the role of an apologist, Ludwig Lewisohn contemplates creative effort of America's past and present in a rational, scientific manner. In this book he stands revealed as a calm evaluator, neither bewailing ourlac k of genius, nor mistaking fool's gold for the more durable metal.

This of a certainty is not a criticism written by a hundred per cent patriot nor by a scholar airing his prejudices. It is not the sort of scholarly work that has for its main concern dates and footnotes; but it attempts to trace the spirit behind American letters in a study hardly fit for the mere historian. The bondage of literature to time and to the person forms a great part of the author's theme. Creation does not spring of itself. We see the growth of writing in America throughout the 12 sections of "Expression in America" from "Beginnings", to "The Critical Debate" to "The Naturalists" and ending with "Beyond Naturalism" wherein the author sees a creative rebirth for the future.

Lewisohn strikes off on a bold tack with, "Literature is no longer an art of fixed forms or contents or appropriate imitation, but an endless, ever-changing scripture and revelation of the life of man . . . Experience creates substance and substance creates form." Thus Lewisohn shows us that the substance of creative effort does not altogether fall from the heavens, "The environment, age, country, culture, climate, has everything to do with determining the existence and the entire character of the work of both the bard and, above all, the artificer."

The Puritan writers had too narrow a viewpoint. It is rare, indeed, to find the complete poet, the genius. That those who can claim the title "Poet" are few, we are made to understand. Lewisohn shows us exactly why, often too exactly, for throughout he is the analytical critic. Often he seems too coldly scientific in his evaluation. His judgments on many occasions carry the stamp of a finality that seems not just. Yet he compensates for this by the calm enthusiasm of his criticism, for here is not a bouquet tossing, mud slinging critic. As our artists have shown the power to measure life, so Lewisohn tenders them their due.

Carl Schurz, Reformer by Claude M. Fuess; Dodd, Mead, $3. Reviewed by E. W. Steinbrenner.

Carl Schurz, German revolutionist of 1848 and later militant liberalist and reformer of American politics, is the subject of Claude Fuess, grandson of a brother German revolutionist. Considering Mr. Fuess' connections and his probable sentimental interest he has written a remarkably unbiased and accurate story of one of America's foreign-born political leaders.

Recorded in a somewhat ponderous style, the author divides Schurz' life into a number of periods. The adventurous revolutionist of tender years, the political spellbinder of pre-Civil war days, the minister to Spain, the Union general, the "old-line" Republican, the literary and newspaper man, the civil service reformist, the maligned secretary of interior, and the friend of presidents, are phases that are described.

A picture of the futile "anti-imperialism" of the great reformer's last days impresses one because of the sense of utter futility that the author projects into the story of Schurz' last great fight. A sturdy independence and an intense conviction were always evidenced in the struggles in which the German-American felt himself obligated to indulge.

The book is one of the American Political Series edited by Allan Nevins. The historical eye of Mr. Nevins could find little to condemn as inaccurate or untrue in this book. Authority is quoted frequently and a long bibliography is appended to this life of "the idol of the German-Americans." Schurz' faults are not forgotten and the author shows no hesitation in acknowledging that his subject was sometime in the wrong.

A clever touch is the description of the meeting between autocratic Prince Bismarck, "the Iron Chancellor," and Carl Schurz, liberalist and former revolutionist. "A great German," is the characterization of the chancellor.

"He was never insignificant." So the author sums up his sentiments. Mr. Fuess has written a scholarly, somewhat pedantic, but, nevertheless, interesting word portrait of "that Dutchman" whose command of the English language was the envy of most native Americans.

Mrs. Richard Nelson to Entertain at Iowa Union

As a farewell courtesy to Mrs. James C. Manry, Mrs. Richard Nelson, 422 Grant street, will entertain at an informal tea from 3 to 5 p.m. tomorrow at Iowa Union. Invitations have been issued to 90 persons. Bowls of vari colored garden flowers will decorate the tea tables, which will be arranged in the fountain room.

Prof. and Mrs. Manry leave Tuesday for a visit with relatives in Atlanta, Ga., and Cambridge, Mass., after which they will sail from New York for Allahabad, India. Professor Manry, who has been on the university faculty since 1929, will develop a department of education with a bureau of educational research, under the auspices of Allahabad Christian college and the University of Allahabad. His new work in that country will be on a project recommended by the commission on Christian higher education in India, and his appointment is for a five year period.

Mrs. Sidney Miller will preside at the tea table. Assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Harold Anderson, Mrs. W. F. Bristol, Mrs. Paul Olsen, and Mrs. Lee Travis.

Two days were required for a bank employe to count a deposit of $800, all in coins less than 25 cents, at Jacksonville, N. C.

Ripley Explanations

YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The ineffaceable footprints of tragedy—In the record of western migration the Donner party ranks with the foremost tragedies connected with the pioneers of the great domain west of the Rocky Mountains. The party, bound for the Promised Land of California, led by the brothers, George and Jacob Donner, left Illinois in April, 1846, and reached Fort Bridger, Wyoming, July 22. Owing to the lack of a guide and to misleading direction the party was frequently compelled to retrace their steps. Before they reached Salt Lake Valley, where the tragic story of their sufferings began, they cut their way through what is now known as Emigration Canyon. The footprints of their oxen and the wheeltracks of their wagons are still visible, never having been obliterated in the intervening 86 years, over the Great Salt Desert west of Salt Lake.

Only a few survivors of the Donner party lived to see the Land of Promise.

Fear Milk Shortage in Producers' Strike

SIOUX CITY, Aug. 13 (AP) — A strike of the Sioux City Milk Producers association for higher prices was in its third day, and today a shortage was feared.

As an emergency measure a large shipment of milk was received from Omaha, as association members held out for their price demands, and established a depot in the city market where free milk was distributed.

No indications of violence were apparent, but trucks were being stopped and drivers were urged to return home with the milk.

Suffers Injuries

TAMA (AP) — M. R. Druty, 82, former president of Leander Clark college in Toledo, which was merged with Coe college, and former pastor of the United Bretheran church there was severely injured when struck by an automobile driven by John Johnson of Gifford, Ill.

Ames State Champs

AMES (AP) — Winning the state championship in the American Legion junior baseball contest, the Ames team will represent Iowa in the regional tourney at Salina, Kan., Aug. 18 and 19. It defeated the Red Oak team 9 to 6 in a seven inning game yesterday which was called because of darkness.

Arrest Two at Davenport

DAVENPORT (AP) — Police arrested Leroy Mockmore, 34, and Julius Van Acker, 23 of Moline, Ill., and confiscated 25 gallons of alleged alcohol in their car.

California Crew Wins 8-Oared Final as U. S. Takes Rowing Title

Sportively Speaking

By Ron Tallman

YESSIR, those Dodgers are going places and rapidly! Yesterday they turned back the New York Giants in both ends of a weird doubleheader while the Pittsburgh Pirates were losing to wind up only one and one-half games out of second place. But at the same time, the Chicago Cubs, mainly through the efforts of Charley Grimm and Charley Root, were defeating the St. Louis Cards to increase their lead to one and one-half games over the Bucs so the Dodgers only gained a half game on them.

The results that Max Carey has been getting as Brooklyn manager seem to be appreciated. At least he has been signed for another year to pilot the club which for 18 years had been directed by Wilbert Robinson up until last fall. Incidentally, Max's salary was raised, too, and he was complimented by his bosses.

THE BRUINS are certain to return home tomorrow with the lead still in their possession. The Pirates do not play today, so if Manager Grimm and his boys lose both games at St. Louis they will still lead by a half game. But those fighting Chicagoans are most likely to open their series with Boston Tuesday with much more of a lead.

The Yankees played in Washington yesterday with Bill Dickey in the lineup for the first time since he had broken Carl Reynolds' jaw. While Dickey was booed at every appearance to the plate and failed to make a hit, much to the joy of the Senator fans, the Yanks won, entirely through the efforts of Pitcher Charley Ruffing. "Red" allowed only three hits in the 10 innings, hit a homer that won the game in the tenth and collected three of the winners' seven hits.

WHILE on the subject of the Yankees, who appear well on their way to the title, President William Harridge of the American league hung up another important decision against the New Yorkers. He allowed the Detroit Tigers' protest of August 1, when Manager Harris claimed the Yankees were batting out of order, and ordered the game replayed on the next trip to Detroit. Before this decision he had ruled Bill Dickey out of the game for a month and fined him $1,000.

Deposed Cub Manager Only Guilty Party

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13 (AP)—That Rogers Hornsby, recently deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs, was not involved to any great extent in betting on horse races, but that he had borrowed $6,000 from members of the team of which he was manager, was indicated in a statement issued here today by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The commissioner handed reporters a 36-page statement containing the results of an investigation of Hornsby's personal affairs in connection with horse race betting, with the announcement that the investigation is closed.

Commissioner Landis drew no conclusions from the evidence he had gathered in interviews with Hornsby, Guy Bush, Pat Malone, Charley O'Leary, and Woody English of the Chicago club.

The story of the borrowing of $6,000 from four members of the club was followed, in the statement, by an explanation that arrangements had been made by Hornsby to pay the players out of his salary still coming from the Cubs' management.

Borrowed Money

ROGERS HORNSBY,

Commissioner K. M. Landis finished his investigation of Rogers Hornsby's personal affairs in connection with horse race betting yesterday, but he said that the deposed Cub manager had borrowed money to the extent of $6,000 from players on the team he managed. Arrangements have been made whereby Hornsby will pay the players from his salary still coming from the Cubs.

Nips Italian Entry by 15 Inch Margin

U. S. Double Sculls Team Gets Easy Triumph

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

MARINE STADIUM, Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 13 (AP) — In a nerve-tingling finish that left a crowd of 60,000 spectators gasping with excitement, the University of California's unbeaten crew came from behind with a closing surge to whip Italy's powerful boatload today by just 15 inches, one-fifth of a second, and win the crowning event of the Olympic regatta for the United States.

Facing defeat with barely 100 meters to go as the Italians drove their shell ahead in a sensational bid for victory, the American collegians responded with a remarkable closing spurt that was just enough to send the prow of their boat first across the finish line.

Battle All the Way

It was a battle every sweep of the way down the 2,000 meter Olympic straightaway, packed with roaring crowds.

Never separated by more than a dozen feet, the Americans and Italians waged a dazzling duel. Bow to bow in the last few strokes, it was so close as both crews swept across the line that it was not until the official decision came over the loud speakers that the crowd let loose its ovation for the triumphant Californians.

The official times were 6 minutes, 37 3-5 seconds for the United States, 6:37 4-5 for Italy.

Almost unnoticed in the terrific din of excitement, even though they were close enough to make it a "blanket" finish, Canada's leanders and the Cambridge university crew of Great Britian finished third and fourth in a battle that was almost as sensational as that between the first two boats.

Canadians Third

The Canadians, on a re-check by the judges, got third position by two-fifths of a second. Their time was 6:40 2-5 and Great Britain's 6:40 4-5.

Keeping their own unbeaten record for 1932 intact, thereby duplicating the triumph of their California predecessors in 1928, and likewise maintaining the unbroken string of American triumphs in Olympic eight-oared competition, the Golden Bears also clinched the Olympic rowing championship for the United States.

It was the third victory in two days and seven finals for the Americans. It followed the decisive triumph of Garrett Gilmore and Kenneth Myers of Philadelphia in the double-sculls and gave the United States the winning total of 38 points for the regatta.

Great Britain Second

Great Britain, with two championships won, finished second with 26 points, Germany third with 20 and Italy fourth with 17. Other points were distributed as follows: Poland, 13; Australia, 10; Canada, 8; New Zealand, 8; France and Uruguay, 4 each; Holland and Brazil 3 each.

These California boys—all eight of them products of the Golden State with a coxswain, "Norrie" Graham from Oregon—had the big punch when it came down to the final test. They had to call on every last ounce of sprinting energy they possessed to pull the Olympic crown out of the fire for the U.S.A.

From the start it was a two-boat race, even though Canada and Great Britain never were shaken off. Italy got the jump but California took the lead at 500 meters. Thus they seesawed.

Young Americans Respond

The heavier Italian crew timed its final spurt brilliantly as it forged ahead, with barely 250 meters to go. The younger, American boys responded, however, to Graham's last frantic call for "ten" and drove their shell ahead by a 15-inch margin that was perceptible accurately only to the judges.

Gilmore and Myers, in the double sculls, pulled away from Germany's crack pair, Boetzelen and Buhtz, in the last half of their race to win by nearly two lengths in 7:17 2-5. This victory also kept intact an unbroken string of American triumphs in this feature of Olympic rowing. Canada was third, and Italy fourth.

The British veteran four, without coxswain, pulled to victory over another German entry in the day's other event, covering the course in the good time of 6:58 1-5, and winning by two lengths. Italy was third and the United States entry fourth.

GAINS GRIMM'S CONFIDENCE

GUY BUSH

Guy Bush, who was prominently mentioned as one of the chief offenders in the reported horse race gambling by the Cubs, pitched and won against the Pittsburgh Pirates the day that the "investigation" came to light and then today, just to show that he is entirely confident of the veteran, Manager Charley Grimm is going to send him against the St. Louis Cardinals in one of the two games. In the meantime, though, Commissioner Landis has declared any investigation to be closed.

Grimm Gets Two Doubles for Triumph

Presented With Chest of Silver Before Tilt Starts

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13 (AP) —Today was Charley Grimm day in St. Louis and the new leader of the Chicago Cubs responded by bringing in two runs to defeat the Cardinals, 3 to 1.

Grimm was presented with a chest of silver by friends in St. Louis, his home town.

It was Grimm's double in the fifth that accounted for the first Cub run. Stephenson scored on a line drive in the seventh by Grimm. Watkins slipped and fell as he was about to catch the drive.

Commissioner Landis viewed the game from the box of Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals.

Pirates Drop Game to Reds by 3 to 0

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13 (AP) — The veteran southpaw, Eppa Rixey, blanked the Pirates, 3 to 0, today, and registered his third victory of the season—all of them over the Pittsburghers.

He allowed only six scattered hits. Bill Swift pitched a steady game for the Bucs, but the Reds nicked him for two runs in the fourth on Hendrick's single, Herman's double and a single by Lombardi.

Harris relieved him in the eighth. The Reds counted again in the ninth on Lombardi's triple after Haman's walk.

What does the future hold for the "Big Train"? Persistent rumors are circulating from Washington that President Clark Griffith is dissatisfied with the results Walter Johnson has been getting this year, thinking the Senators should be up where the Yankees are. ## Ruffing Clouts Homer in 10th to Win Game

Fans 12, Allows Only 3 Hits in Tight Contest

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — Big Charlie Ruffing broke a scoreless tie between the New York Yankees and the Washington nationals today by driving out a home run after two men were out in the New York half of the tenth inning.

The Yankee pitcher struck out 12 and won his own game, 1 to 0, after holding the Washingtonians to three hits during the nine innings. In the tenth he struck out two men. The third, Carl Reynolds, batting as a pinch hitter and making his first appearance since July 4 when Bill Dickey, Yank catcher, broke his jaw, went out on a long fly to center.

Japan Takes Tank Crown

Triumphs in 2 Events; Helene Madison in Close Win

OLYMPIC SWIMMING STADIUM, Los Angeles, Aug. 13 (AP) — In a rousing finish, Japan stepped into the team championship of the tenth Olympiad aquatic carnival today, closing the eight-day session with two blazing victories.

Although it was cherry blossom time in the men's events, two American girls put on the greatest race of the closing program, when Helene Madison bettered her own world's record in winning the 400 meter free-style final in 5 minutes 28.5 seconds, over Leonore Kicht, by a matter of inches.

Stroke for Stroke

The pair left the remainder of the field far behind as they matched stroke for stroke, first one and then the other forging into a lead which at no time was more than two feet.

They made the last turn with Miss Kight holding a slight edge but the Seattle mermaid, with 16 world's records to her name, had just the right amount of stamina to win out.

Knosa Kitamura, 14 year old Nipponese star closed the greatest championships known to the modern games by winning the 1,500 meter free-style for men in 19:12.4 seconds.

Grove, Freitas Hurl Athletics to Double Win Over Red Sox

BOSTON, Aug. 13 (AP) — The Philadelphia Athletics turned Lefty Grove and Tony Freitas on the Boston Red Sox today to annex both games of a doubleheader, 13 to 2, and 8 to 2.

Grove worked on the mound in the opener to win his seventeenth victory of the season. He held the Sox to six singles, struck out 10 and allowed five to walk while his mates made 17 hits at the expense of four Boston pitchers.

Freitas chalked up his eighth straight victory for the Mackmen in the second game.

Dodgers Get Double Win

Triumph 18-9, 5-4, in Battles of Homers With Giants

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers and the Giants staged a concerted assault on the home run records today for the entertainment of some 48,000 fans and when the dust had settled Brooklyn had won two games, 18 to 9 and 5 to 4, and were only a game and a half behind the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

In the course of the afternoon 13 homers were driven out of the park, nine in the first game. Two records were approached and one tied in this slugfest. The two clubs were only one behind the major league mark of 10 and the Giants collected six, also one short of the top mark.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1932 BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"Chung, do you know if Miss Lola Carewe was right-handed or left-handed?"

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, night club habitué, receives a death threat, New Year's Eve. Previously her dog and parrot were mysteriously killed. District Attorney Merle K. Dougherty suspects Lola of being the "brains" of the jewel thief ring that has baffled the police. Although her husband, Gaylord Gifford, died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt places a guard in Lola's penthouse apartment, warning her that she must not be alone in a room at any time. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother; Chung the butler, Eunice the maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney, are present. In the living room, the Commissioner finds a bag belonging to Christine Quires, Lola's guest. It evidently had been used that night, yet Lola informs Colt that Christine is at the Lion's Paw, a roadhouse, where Lola was to have joined her. Colt is surprised to find Mrs. Carewe's room in strange contrast to the surrounding wealth. Lola's own boudoir is a gaudy contradiction of the living room's elegance. Lola refuses to reveal the identity of the young man whose photograph adorns her dresser. Against orders, she enters the guest room alone. A scream follows. Rushing in, Colt finds her on the floor, unconscious. Dr. Hugh Baldwin, a friend, diagnoses the case as a heart attack.

CHAPTER NINE

COLT, who had stood with folded arms and knitted brows, turned to the butler, and unexpectedly asked:

"Chung, do you know if Miss Lola Carewe was right-handed or left-handed?"

"Right-handed," answered Chung, with prompt and urbane assurance. "I am left-handed. That makes me observe other people's hands. Miss Lola was right-handed."

At a word of dismissal from Colt, the butler then left, closing the door after him.

"I am concerned," Colt declared, "about her bathrobe."

"What about it, Thatcher?" asked Dougherty, moving forward, with a vague glance at the garment.

"The way it is buttoned, for one thing."

"Buttoned?"

Both Dougherty and I looked again at the dressing-robe, as did the now deeply mystified and nervous Doctor Baldwin. None of us noticed anything peculiar about the way it was buttoned.

"You see for yourselves," pursued Colt, "it is a double-breasted dressing-robe buttoned on the right side. We all know when a man puts on any kind of garment, he buttons it invariably on the right side. The important thing is that women always reverse the procedure. It has been my experience that no woman ever buttons her coat, pyjamas or other apparel from left to right, unless the buttons on the left side have been torn away or if she is left-handed. Chung says that Lola was right-handed. Look at her coat."

Colt's acute observation had indeed found here a singular variation from the normal. Lola's body was sheathed in a bath-robe buttoned after the manner of a man.

Dougherty gave a low gasp.

"I see what you mean. Perhaps it was put on her by someone else. And someone else made the natural mistake of reversal because he was facing his victim! But why, Thatcher, why?"

"Victim! I've heard enough of this talk!" exclaimed Doctor Baldwin. "What is going on here? It all seems very peculiar."

Thatcher Colt regarded the physician with a stern gaze.

"Doctor Baldwin," he began, "you have given it as your opinion that Lola Carewe is suffering from a heart attack. And yet—if you will pardon a layman's groping—in a heart attack the patient invariably feels suffocated and flushed. Am I not right, doctor!"

"Absolutely right!" agreed Baldwin, with an aggrieved glare. He had paled noticeably.

"Yet again," pursued the chief, "here we find a girl supposed to have a heart attack, but clad in a warm robe, and in an apartment that is noticeably overheated. That, I agree with you, is peculiar."

"Perhaps," admitted the physician with a grudging air.

"Further," pursued Colt, "that livid glow on the face which is visible even under this girl's make-up—is that curious coloring a symptom of heart trouble?"

"Not a common one, but——"

"It might be a suspicious factor, mightn't it?"

Baldwin's pallor deepened.

"Suspicious?"

"Is it not true," prodded Colt, "that in certain types of poisoning, this flush appears?"

The strong fingers of Doctor Baldwin's great right hand tightened around the frail wrist in his grasp.

"Mr. Commissioner, I must insist upon knowing if there is any reason for these suspicious?" he demanded.

"The color!" prodded Colt impatiently. "Isn't it possibly a symptom of poisoning?"

The physician hesitated, then barked his reply.

"It is one of the phenomena of carbon monoxide poisoning, — but wouldn't that be impossible here?"

There followed a long, ominous silence. Doctor Baldwin stood unmoving and speechless, as no one replied to his question. Then the physician heaved a deep and resigned sigh. With an air of finality, he let Lola's wrist fall from his hand down to the bed, lifelessly.

"I arrived too late," he announced solemnly. "This lady is dead."

With sombre eyes, Thatcher Colt stared unspeaking at the pale and haggard face of Doctor Hugh Baldwin. Then, with a slight frown, the Commissioner turned briskly and walked to the window. Raising it he looked out and down into the abyss of storm, darkness, and a straight drop of twenty-three stories to the sidewalk. One glance and he brought down the window hurriedly.

"Tony—get Mackenzie. He's on the terrace."

In less than a minute I was back with the detective who looked with solemn eyes at the unmoving body on the bed.

"Mackenzie," ordered Colt in brittle voice, "get downstairs quick as you can. Get under the window. See what you can find that might have been thrown from the window. Look for broken glass anything."

"Right away, chief"—and Mackenzie was gone.

"What is that for?" asked Doctor Baldwin vaguely.

"You say it's heart-trouble. I don't believe it. I believe it's poison. By that I mean it's murder and I'm going to proceed accordingly."

At these words from Thatcher Colt, I was suddenly conscious of the solemn situation in which we found ourselves. The woman who had appealed to us for protection now lay dead at the feet of the Police Commissioner. Not all his care, his guards and admonitions, had served to avert her mysterious fate. At the hour named, Lola Carewe had died—on schedule! Colt was right—it could not be a coincidence.

Dougherty clasped his fat hands behind his back and stalked over beside Colt. Instinctively, I too moved back from the bed, leaving the physician and the Police Commissioner standing face to face. Baldwin spoke first, his words coming unsteadily as if the intensity of Colt's gaze unsettled him.

"If what you say is true, a police autopsy should be performed," announced Baldwin throatily. "My personal belief is that this is a case of heart failure. But after the insinuations voiced here in the last ten minutes, I must insist on a medico-legal verdict—after a complete autopsy."

And the physician wiped his forehead with a large, silk handkerchief.

"It will take more than an autopsy," declared Dougherty, "to solve all the mysteries of this woman's death."

"I am going to ask you to remain here, doctor," snapped Thatcher Colt briskly, "until the Medical Examiner arrives. Mind?"

"Quite all right, sir."

As the doctor turned from his bag to reclaim his hat, I saw Colt bend swiftly over the bed, lift a gleaming object from the bag, unobserved by Baldwin, and put it away in the breast pocket of his coat. A moment later he calmly turned and asked the medical man to wait in the living-room and quietly closed the door upon him.

State Farm Department Independent

Aim of Several Years to Support Self Attained

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP)—One aim of the state department of agriculture, that of being on a self-supporting basis, has been achieved after several years of effort towards that end.

Mark G. Thornburg, state secretary of agriculture, announces in the department's forthcoming yearbook, that the income of that department from license and inspection fees, with the revenue from the oleomargarine tax, has been sufficient to meet the total expenses of the department and affiliated societies.

No Tax Support

"We feel that it is essential that a service and regulatory department be as nearly self-supporting as possible," Secretary Thornburg said. "The fact that our total revenue will now exceed our total expenses means that not one cent of property tax will need to go to the support of the department in the future."

He said he expected an annual revenue of about $300,000 from the oleomargarine tax and that in the first six months the tax law was in effect, 5-cent tax stamps were sold for 3,315,606 pounds of margarine.

Pointing out that the law resulted in reductions in oleomargarine sales, Thornburg declared that "as butter becomes lower in price, the sales of oleomargarine will undoubtedly further decline, whereas if the price of dairy products become more normal, there may be some additional revenue from the oleomargarine tax."

Levies Show Cut

He further said that the department had helped to bring about a 28.44 per cent reduction in county levies for tuberculosis eradication between 1930 and 1931. The only future expense in this connection to counties where testing is completed will be for reaccrediting.

Additional savings made by the department should be passed on to agriculture and other industries served by the department, Thornburg said.

Festival Heads to Choose Music for Next State Meeting

Selecting of contest material for large vocal groups in the state high school music events of next spring has occupied the attention of members of the committee for that purpose, which has been meeting with Chairman Charles Boardman Righter, professor in the music department, for the last two days.

Other members of the committee are M. T. Iverson, director of music in Central high school, Sioux City; Mrs. Kathryn Church, supervisor of music at Armstrong; and Eunice Butts, supervisor of music at Atlantic.

During its meeting, the committee has been making a study of suitable material, and final determination of the numbers will not be made until a later meeting of the committee.

Select Committee Heads for Local Red Cross Units

New committee heads for the local Red Cross organization have been selected, and were announced yesterday by Francis J. Boyle, president of the chapter.

The chairmen are as follows: Delmer M. Sample, home service; Harry Shulman, finance and budget; Will J. Hayek, disaster; D. A. Armbruster, life saving and first aid; Dr. Frank L. Love, public health; Capt. R. V. Rickard, ways and means; and Susie Marner, production.

The following persons have been appointed to act on the executive board in cooperation with the committee chairmen and officers, Mrs. Earl Custer, Mrs. F. C. Young, Mrs. H. N. Holdsworth, V. R. Miller, Mrs. Curtis Bey, Mrs. J. A. Shalla, and M. J. McGovern.

Stocks Slump When Buying Demands Fall

Estimate U.S. Import of $100,000,000 in Foreign Gold

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—Conflicting cross currents swept over the stock market today, and stocks ended the day off a fraction on the average. Some leading issues lost 1 to 2 points while a few registered slight net gains.

The turnover reached 1,756,690 shares, which was nearly 1,000,000 short of the previous Saturday total. A backwash of selling orders fell on the market in the first half hour of trading and stocks slumped 1 to 5 points. Later, fresh buying carried the main body of stocks forward.

Two-Fold Buying

Today's buying was apparently of two-fold character, some of it representing new purchases by bullish investors who had missed the previous rally and part of it representing covering by short sellers who were fairly active in the market on Friday.

The bond market reacted after a week of steady advances. Most bankers appeared to feel that a moderate setback in the primary investment market was in order and its action today was interpreted as a belated corrective. The commodity markets pursued a somewhat mixed course.

Foreign Exchange Firm

Foreign exchanges were firm, possibly indicating some profit-taking in our markets for foreign account. Approximately $100,000,000 of gold, it was computed today, has flowed back to America since June 15 and on Monday a substantial addition is expected incident to the plans of the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railway company to redeem a portion of its outstanding bonds.

The weekly trade reviews sounded a somewhat more cheerful note. Aside from somewhat firmer tendency for scrap iron, a fairly substantial increase in movement of some textile lines was reported. The weekly report of freight car loadings showed a reduction of 14,654 cars from the previous week.

Recoveries

Among the active stocks which, after yielding 1 to 5 points in the early trading, bounded back to a level where they ended the day about a point lower were Santa Fe, Chesapeake Corp., General Motors, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, U. S. Steel, Dupont and Pennsylvania. American Can recovered a 2 point loss. Small gains were registered by American Smelting, Anaconda, American and Foreign Power, Bethlehem Steel, Atlantic Refining, Corn Products, Consolidated Gas, Stone and Webster and Western Union.

Hold 40, Seize Race Track Gambling Outfit

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP) — Forty men were arrested and race track gambling equipment was seized in a raid by city and state agents on a local cigar store today.

All the men were booked for investigation and were to be arraigned later. Police said charges of unlawful assembly probably would be filed.

Race charts, baseball pool charts, and tape from a ticker tape machine were seized by the 12 raiders.

Baker in Charge of Milk Test Apparatus

AMES, Aug. 13 (AP)—M. P. Baker of the dairy industry department in Iowa State college will have charge of a traveling milk testing laboratory which in the next two weeks will visit many rural communities of Iowa.

The laboratory is in a truck, which has been fitted with complete milk testing apparatus. Studies will be made to determine the relationships between milk consumption and child health in rural communities.

Will Discuss Aid to Labor

Road Men Will Meet at Des Moines for Conference

DES MOINES, Aug. 13 (AP) — Requirements for employment of labor under the emergency construction provisions of the federal relief bill will be discussed at a meeting of representatives of the federal bureau of public roads, members of the state highway commission and highway contractors here Monday.

Clifford Shoemaker of Omaha, district engineer for the bureau of public roads, F. H. Mann, assistant chief engineer, and C. Coykendall, administration engineer for the highway commission, will explain the requirements.

All the paving and grading contracts to be let by the state highway commission Aug. 16, are subject to conditions specified in the relief act, it was pointed out.

Payment of a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for unskilled labor and 60 cents an hour for skilled labor, and limitation of employment of any individual to 30 hours a week are among the conditions.

Search for Blonde Woman to Solve Bootlegger's Death

SIOUX CITY, Aug. 13 (AP) — Officers seeking to solve the slaying of a man tentatively identified as Donald M. Brannon, 32, known to police as a bootlegger and hijacker, today turned their attention to finding a woman with whom Brannon was last seen alive.

The body of the man was found in some weeds near a road not far from Sergeant Bluff, with a few personal articles on which officers based their identification.

Brannon was released from the county jail July 27 after serving a 60-day sentence on a liquor charge. Officers said he was last seen alive with a blonde woman in a taxicab, and that they believe he was killed by rival bootleggers.

Cresco Church Will Observe Anniversary

CRESCO, Aug. 13 (AP)—Members of the Cresco Baptist church will observe the diamond anniversary of its organization next Sunday.

The Rev. Alexander Robertson, pastor, and two former pastors, the Rev. C. S. Carroll of Denison and the Rev. J. W. Bell of Sibley will take part in morning and afternoon services. In the evening an historical pageant will be presented.

Voice Recording, Talkies, Models, Feature University Exhibit

Display Nearing Completion for Show at Des Moines; to Go to Fair at End of Week

Extension Division in Charge of Iowa Exhibition

Voice recording, talking pictures, and miniature models will feature the University of Iowa's exhibit at the Iowa State fair in Des Moines, Aug. 24 to Sept. 2. The displays are now nearing completion and will be ready for shipment about Aug. 20.

Each year, the extension division superintends the composition of the exhibit, with Bruce E. Mahan, director of the division, Lee W. Cochran, storekeeper, and Robert Andrews, assistant, in charge.

The displays this year will include those of the school of journalism, university museum, college of engineering, athletic department, publications department, alumni office, college of medicine, university hospitals, school of nursing, college of dentistry, bureau of dental hygiene, college of pharmacy, school of fine arts, Iowa Union, Iowa Child Welfare Research station, psychology department, and extension division.

Panels Display Journalism

Panels illustrating the types of publications produced, and others on which are mounted the photographs of graduates of the school and their present locations, will feature the display of the school of journalism. There will also be a series of lantern slides which will illustrate the various steps in the publication of The Daily Iowan.

Of interest to farmers will be the university museum exhibit, which will consist of a large mounted group of European starlings—the birds introduced in the United States 40 years ago which are gradually becoming pests in Iowa, according to Homer R. Dill, director of the museum.

These will show the various stages of development in the birds, contrasting the plumage and other characteristics of the young with those of the more mature birds.

From the college of engineering will be exhibited a miniature hydraulic development, together with an old type water wheel which is one of a collection by Prof. Floyd A. Nagler of that college. There will also be pictures and descriptions of the new mechanical engineering laboratories, as well as architect's drawings of the hydraulics laboratory addition now under construction.

Athletic Plant Model

The athletic department will exhibit a large model of its plant at the university, including the field house, stadium, tennis courts, and a part of Finkbine field.

As a background for the model, there will be a large picture, in natural color, of the stadium, and two large American shields upon which will be listed and pictured the nine University of Iowa athletes who have been in Olympic competition in the last 10 years. Pictures of the new coaching staff will also be shown, and football and basketball schedules will be available.

A large number of monographs, booklets, and bulletins, released by the publications department, will comprise the exhibit of that department.

University hospitals, the college of medicine, and the school of nursing, will combine in their display, featuring X-ray photographs, types of casts manufactured and used in the children's hospital, and a series of pictures of the three units.

Combined Exhibit

The bureau of dental hygiene and the college of dentistry will also combine. Casts for the correcting of irregular teeth, dental X-rays, and pictures of the college will constitute one part of the exhibit, while a series of charts, maps, and pictures, showing the widespread use of the Iowa Dental plan in schools throughout the state, will comprise the bureau's exhibit.

Products manufactured in the pharmacy laboratories and materials taken from the pharmacy museum will be exhibited by the college of pharmacy.

Paintings, drawings, and designs executed by students in the graphic and plastic arts department will lead the showing of the school of fine arts. Besides these, will be pictures illustrating the work of the music department and views of the state high school music festival. Architect's drawings of the new fine arts unit to be constructed north of Iowa Union, together with views of Iowa Union and the new music studios and rehearsal hall, will also be displayed.

Special Booth

The psychology department will have a special booth fitted as a studio to show certain phases of experimental work in speech, being carried on by the psychology department. Pictures of the human voice will be displayed, and records made in the booth and reproduced through an amplifying device will be played.

Included in these records will be some made by various deans and administrative officers on the campus, emphasizing the type of work in each department and the opportunities to be gained by going to school this fall.

Showings of 16 mm. films, silent and talking, will be made by the extension division each day of the fair. These will include three reels of pictures taken during the state high school music festival, two reels of the all-state high school music groups taken during the summer session, and two reels of university activities from the time of registration to the day of Commencement.

Examples of work and study in child psychology, physical growth, nutrition, preschooling, character education, art, and parent education, will be the contribution of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station. There will also be a complete file of all publications issued by the station.

With the exception of the child welfare exhibit, which will be shown in the women's and children's building, all displays will be contained in the educational hall on the fair grounds.

About 10 or 12 representatives of the various colleges, schools, divisions, and departments, will be in charge of the exhibits.

AROUND THE TOWN with Don Pryor

Won't Be Long

As soon as work on the shoulders has been completed, the new cut off on U. S. highway 6 back of the children's hospital will be opened for traffic. The opening date is expected to be about Sept. 1.

O.K., Cedar Rapids

There will be no danger of falling through Butler bridge again for several more years. The new bridge has been opened to traffic, replacing the dilapidated structure which gave way last winter beneath a truck.

But I Won't Tell

William Bowen, alias Pat Regan, alias A. Fullerton, alias 10 other names, is nothing if not secretive. His stock answer to questions about his check writing business is "Find out for yourself." Police are finding out. He was bound over to the grand jury Friday.

Three of the Same Tribe

Which reminds us that local police have trapped three of the check forging tribe within the last few weeks. One tried cashing a check on the First National bank, which was inconveniently defunct. Another attempted the injury gag, trying to cash a bogus insurance check on the strength of a bandage around two healthy forefingers. And now Pat Regan.

Good Idea

The courtesy letter box installed the other day in front of the post office has been given lively usage. Patrons have repeatedly expressed their appreciation of the box, which was erected because of the parking restriction, which was made to allow the new fire truck enough room to get away to calls without backing up.

Such is Life

Paul Anderlik and Bessie Carney were married yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace Elias J. Hughes.

The Wages of Labor

Five men will be employed to work at the city park by the American Legion Unemployment Relief association next week, and two more will be sent if they recover from severe cases of ivy poisoning received there last week.

Moral—Be Prompt

Warrants for the arrests of tardy overtime parkers were issued yesterday by Police Judge Charles L. Zager. The persons arersted were tagged several weeks ago and have failed to appear at the police court. Now they will have to pay costs as well as a $1 fine.

Humboldt Cuts Taxes

HUMBOLDT, Aug. 13 (AP)—Mayor George McCollough has announced a cut in city taxes of about $9,000 from the amount originally planned in the 1933 budget. The largest reduction was made in the consolidated fund, which includes grading, improvement, and sewer funds.

Farmers Will Strike

HUMBOLDT, Aug. 13 (AP)—Humboldt county farmers have set Aug. 15 for the start of their strike for higher farm produce prices.

Stories of Steamer, War Letters, Appear in New 'Palimpsest'

Two stories, one about a steamboat and the other concerning some correspondence carried on during the Civil war, will feature the next issue of "The Palimpsest," Iowa State Historical society publication which will be released the last of this week.

William J. Petersen, research associate of the society, is the author of the first article, which deals with "the voyage of the 'Virginia,'" a steamboat on the Mississippi river. It was the "Virginia" which made the first steamer navigation of the upper Mississippi, between St. Louis, Mo., and St. Paul, Minn.

The second article, by Clarence R. Aurner of Iowa City, is the story of a young girl, Sophie Maria Smith, who corresponded with Richard Realfe, a soldier in the Civil war.

Realfe, a poet and an idealist, was a friend of Lady Byron and other notables of England. He was also a follower of John Brown, and was with Brown when the latter's army was in training in Cedar county, Ia. He later committed suicide in 1878.

Four Guest Preachers Will Fill Pulpits in City Today; No Service at Congregational

Four guest preachers will fill pulpits in Iowa City today. One is from New York state, one is a missionary to India, one is head of university athletics, and the fourth is a professor in the school of religion.

The first, the Rev. Mark Rich, is pastor of the First Baptist church of Groton, New York, and is a leader in the move to consolidate the work of separate town and rural churches into one religious unit, increasing its effectiveness. He is president of the Groton Community parish. His subject this morning will be "Am I Honest."

The second, Ray Cunningham, is a missionary to Guntur, India, and is said to have had wide experience in the foreign field. He will deliver the sermon at the First English Lutheran church this morning.

The third, Prof. E. H. Lauer, is director of physical education in the University of Iowa. He will address the congregation at the Presbyterian church on the subject, "The escape from reality."

The fourth, Prof. Charles A. Hawley, is a member of the faculty of the university school of religion. He will tell the Methodists of "The necessity of solitude."

The pulpit at the Congregational church will have no speaker at all. There will be no preaching service, but all members of the congregation have been asked to be present to hear the report of the pulpit committee. The Rev. and Mrs. Ira J. Houston will be at the church to renew their acquaintance with friends. The Rev. Mr. Houston was formerly pastor of the church.
