General Recommendations

Based on our examination of the records and a review of operations of the business office of the University, we make the following general recommendations in addition to the specific recommendations contained elsewhere in this report:

1. That the board of education select and appoint a business manager for the university who shall be placed in complete control of the business activities, including the supervision of accounting and purchasing department; the preparation and administration of the budget, and the preparation of all financial reports.
2. That the university auditor be relieved of all secretarial and administrative duties and that his activities be confined to auditing the transactions of the university in order to ascertain that all funds are received that should be received, and that all funds are properly accounted for from the time the funds first come into the hands of a department employe until they are finally disbursed, in the manner, under the authority, and for the purpose provided by law.
3. That the university auditor be designated as a representative of and accountable to the state board of audit and the executive council of Iowa.
4. That an exhaustive survey be made of all phases of the university accounting system with a view to eliminating any elements involving the possibility of fraud.
5. That a compilation of figures be made showing the educational cost per student in the various departments. Such compilation would furnish vital information to the university officials and the board of education for the preparation of budgets; comparison of expenses of the various departments; analysis of expenditures of different years, and the determination of the sufficiency of tuition charges.
6. That the heads of departments discontinue the present practice of

Baker Intimates Contesting Recommendations; Suggests Survey Exceeded Authority

Dr. Andrew H. Woods of Psychiatry Department Finds Auditors Behind on Iowa Code; Officials Fail to Comment

With official comment lacking concerning yesterday's publication of the completed audit of University of Iowa records and financial transactions, developments were due to be delayed for several days until administrative officers and members of the board of education familiarized themselves with the report and the recommendations it set forth.

- 1.—Statement by George T. Baker of Davenport, president of the board of education, intimating that if the survey is shown to have been not provided by law, recommendations and suggested changes would be contested. He said, in part: "Educators and not certified public accountants pass upon educational policies. So far as I know, no member of the board, finance committee, or president of the university has been interviewed by the men making this audit and report."
- 2.—Statement by Dr. Andrew H. Woods, director of Psychopathic hospital and head of the psychiatry department, mentioned in the auditors' report, regarding the portion of the report that said his department had not paid the fees from private patients at the hospital into the state treasury. He asserted that the auditors must not have been familiar with the new Iowa code and cited Section 2382 Chapter 197. This states that "all moneys collected from private patients are to be used for operating the hospital," which went into effect in 1931.
- 3.—Refusal of Secretary William H. Bates and Auditor William H. Cobb to comment on the report, pending thorough perusal. Cobb intimated that he might comment later.
- 4.—President Walter A. Jessup was still on his vacation last night and could not be reached. He is expected to return soon.

Bottled in Bond

THERE COULD be no more anxious group of well wishers for repeal of Prohibition than the stockholders of the National Distillers Products corporation who have just been granted special dividends in the form of one case of 24 full pints of 15-year whiskey for each five shares of common stock.

The catch, however, is that the dividend is payable "only as authorized by law," and until such time as the law will allow the warehouse to honor the stockholders' warehouse receipts, there the whiskey will remain under lock and key.

Distribution of the dividend will take place Oct. 1, 1934, and if at that time the law is still adamant about unlocking the warehouse vaults and unbonding the spirits in question, the stockholders can turn their stock into cash.

Maybe the board of directors of National Distillers Products corporation are Democrats, or maybe they're optimists. In either case, the stockholders stand to gain. If the law by October, 1934 allows them to cart away their dividend, so much the better for the wet among them. If the law still says no, the dry ones can cash in and the wets can figure on 16-year whiskey going on 17.

Just Another Birthday

THERE WAS nothing dramatic or ritz about the manner in which President Hoover celebrated his birthday a few days ago. His celebration confined itself to work during the day.

The president is one who doesn't stop, look and listen just because another year has slipped by. What is a year in the life of anyone who looks forward and onward? It seems to be an old American custom to hesitate on your birthday and assume all the facial qualities of a lemon-peeler.

A person lives in ambitions and joys and not in years. Some die at a comparatively early age, but manage to exist until the end comes. Others count life a privilege and make the most of it, whether it be three-score and ten or less. A Negro urchin, upon being asked how old he was, replied "Well, by the calendar I see eleven, but countin' by the fun I see had I see a hundred."

Birthdays are but trivial milestones in a stay on this old earth. They should be reckoning days—not to peer in mournful silence on the dead past, but to gaze into the future with its new surprises in happiness and service.

TODAY'S TOPICS

BY FRANK JAFFE

And now, the latest information on how to be a $20,000-a-year man — by one who makes them. That is, he selects them from among ordinary $5,000-a-year men and boosts them up among the five-figure salary monarchs of the realm.

Of course, for $20,000 a year, a man must be far above the average but he doesn't necessarily have to be born to the position. He can be made—and here's part of the secret, at least.

He must measure up to a caliber of character that includes integrity and dependability, intelligence and ambition, responsiveness and curiosity, capacity and willingness, industriousness and tenacity, adaptiveness and flexibility, courage and resourcefulness, purpose and confidence, initiative and diplomacy, personality and individuality, vision and optimism. And that isn't all.

In the first place, when you consider that in the trait of personality alone there are approximately 13 subdivisions including poise, common sense, etiquette, appearance, voice, ability to make friends easily, and general attitude toward others, it all doesn't look so easy. But, even in these times, there are $20,000-a-year men.

And you can't get by with just vision without optimism, capacity without willingness, and vice versa, nor will just half be enough. Half of them are worth only a paltry $5,000 or $7,000 or $9,000-a-year, and maybe even less. And then, there's always the chance of not being able to hold on to the job—or position, as the case may be—unless all the traits are there in full.

What has probably stopped more men from getting "there" than anything else is lack of dependability—or so the authority holds. And he points out that the reason so many $5,000-a-year men rise to $20,000-a-year prominence is because they can be depended upon for the little things as well as the big ones, and, of course, the reverse holds true.

What really makes the whole thing so interesting is that some people, the younger generation in particular, won't be convinced that there's that much money in the world, or if there is, they'll never see it. Maybe the way some of the high-salaried men get that way is because they know there's that much and go after it.

Nevertheless, there are such things as self-analysis and correct ways of "selling" oneself in order to better one's condition of life. That may sound quite out of place in a world of financial stringency and what not, but, on the contrary, it is just the time and place for it.

Of course, everyone can't be a vice president of a bank, even though there seem to be dozens to every institution, and not one in a million can get to the key positions in the world of finance and industry. But, you see, there is a chance, and that's something, or at least so they tell us.

Book Bits

(From James Branch Cabell, by Carl Van Doren) The dreams of youth come back to haunt the wisest men, who may have to admit that the dreams are of a more persistent substance than the daily phantasms which they have pursued. The average millions, who have had no such dreams or who have been so disloyal to them that they remember them only as fumbings in the dark, exult at the spectacle of a hero deprived gradually of his bright wings and harnessed to the customary furrow. This exultation Mr. Cabell challenges. What to him appears comic in the situation is not that the youth should have resisted the world so long but that he should have been taken in by it so completely. The surrender would be tragic were it not shared by so many men and by them so stoutly rationalized into victory.

Guard Units Settle Down to Camp Life

Capt. George Maresh Handles Company Hospital

Yesterday Iowa City's 186th hospital company, Iowa National Guard, settled down to the routine of 15 days at Camp Dodge.

Under the command of Capt. George Maresh, the company has taken charge of the camp hospital as it has done for the last 11 years.

Each man in the company has been assigned to certain duties for the day, so that each one of the 63 men in the unit has certain tasks to perform.

Yesterday morning the company, under the command of Sergeant Isaac Larew, together with the 186th ambulance company of Ida Grove, attended school. The school was directed by Capt. Jack J. Hinman, who presented an illustrated lecture on sanitation.

After completing the morning's work and attending classes, the men spent most of the afternoon in sports, much of which centers around the Camp Dodge pool, which has a capacity of three million gallons. The water in the pool is purified under the direction of Capt. Hinman.

The men and the details to which they have been assigned for the day are: Capt. George Maresh, officer of the day; Sergeant Mike Brown, in charge of quarters; Sergeant Jack Larew, policing of hospital area; Staff Sergeant Charles Schmitt, policing of company area; Corporal Theodore J. Bauer, ward master in the hospital.

Privates, first class, Keith Bush, George Citek, Joe Kanak, and John Grim, hospital orderlies; Privates First Class Marcus Owen and William Knoke, dining room orderlies; and Privates First Class Eldred Vestermark, Roy Calta, Darwin Cox, and Otha Cox, kitchen police.

The Iowa City hospital unit is unusual in that it boasts six captains in its membership. The complete roster of the company follows:

Company Roster: Captains, George Maresh, Jack J. Hinman, George S. Easton, Arthur S. Fout, and Harry P. Lee; technical sergeant, Earl J. Gifford; staff sergeants, Lester W. Herring, Andrew J. Larew, Robert S. Schell, and Charles W. Schmitt.

Sergeants, Clarence L. Brown, Timothy M. Fairchild, Isaac L. Larew, Bernard W. Sheridan, and William T. Watkins; corporals, Theodore J. Bauer, Kenneth Judy, and Edward J. McLachlan.

Privates, first class, grade six, Joseph A. Baschnagel, Robert D. Bothell, Burton B. Brown, Keith W. Bush, Sumner Bush, George L. Citek, Gerald E. Sox, John W. Grim, Joe H. Kanak, Jr., William A. Knoke, Marcus W. Owen, Edgar G. Vassar, and Eldred L. Vestermark.

graph or telephone in Mexico City." Walker, raising his voice, answered, "I did not. There was no necessity."

"Don't you think it strange that when a man with whom you had a joint deposit box and who handled many of your business affairs turned up at a given point, you didn't communicate with him?" continued the executive.

Mr. Walker gave a negative answer. "Here was a man who had been associated with you in a personal capacity for 15 years—there was a trace of annoyance in Mr. Roosevelt's voice.

Denies Association: Walker interrupted with "No. That isn't true."

Roosevelt thought it was "strange that you should not try to locate" Sherwood, and Walker said, "there was no necessity until he disappeared."

"So you just let it ride?" the governor observed.

The mayor was on his feet protesting, and both John J. Curtin, his legal adviser, and Seabury arose.

"Your excellency may infer as you will," Walker said, with a sweep of his arms, "there has been much innuendo in this case. I think I have shown you I tried to find him."

Audience Keyed Up: The select audience in the executive chamber was keyed up in anticipation when the governor inquired of Walker if he knew "the name of the person" to whom Sherwood transferred stocks.

Curtin objected, was overruled and the mayor said, "I've just read it on the back of the certificate."

"Do you know the person," insisted Mr. Roosevelt.

"I know a person by that name," was the reply.

Roosevelt indicated he was through with the 15 counts of the Seabury "analysis" and likely would turn to the charges preferred by James T. Finnegan and William Schieffelin, unless the mayor desired to call witnesses. Mr. Curtin said yesterday he expected to call about 12 witnesses. Finnegan has submitted a list of 40 to Roosevelt.

It appeared unlikely tonight that the hearing would be concluded before Friday when Mr. Roosevelt leaves for Columbus, Ohio, to make his first road speech in his campaign for the presidency.

Hand Mangled in Grinder: FAIRFIELD, (AP) Joe L. Ball, cattle dealer, lost his left hand when it was caught in a feed grinder today. The member was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary. Hospital attendants reported he was suffering seriously from shock.

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

STUDIO GOSSIP: HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—These arduous days of apprenticeship are nearing an end for Joel McCrea. After serving his time as studio handy-man, he now has reached the second stage towards stardom—when directors start to cast pictures around him. Harold shook his head emphatically. He snapped: "You don't want a referee. You want a coroner." BOULEVARD CHATTER: The crowd at the international ball got an extra thrill when Jack Gilbert and Virginia Bruce, his bride of an hour before, showed up at the Cocoanut Grove. They left early as Virginia had to report at the studio at 5 the next morning. Charlie Chaplin, still squiring the beautiful Paulette Goddard, was another celebrity at this gala event. Some of the visitors are disappointed at the shortage of celebrities at the famous Hollywood rendezvous. Fact is, the film people have been frightened away recently by the terrific crush of autograph seekers. 'Till the Olympic games, few of the film colony knew anything about the game of lacrosse. The other afternoon Harold Lloyd looked on amazed at the punishment taken by the players. After it was all over, an official asked him if he would like to referee a match. Harold shook his head emphatically. He snapped: "You don't want a referee. You want a coroner." DID YOU KNOW: That Dolores and Helene Costello were Helen Hayes' chums when they were little girls? Ripley Explanations
EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
A Life Saving Death Sentence. At 7:32 in the morning of May 8, 1902, the telephone operator at St. Pierre, Martinique, sent a single word over the wire to a neighboring city, and then the wires suddenly became silent.

Three seconds later the town of St. Pierre ceased to exist, and 45,000 people—its entire population—lay dead in the ruins. A fiery blast from the local volcano, Mt. Pelee, caused the most disastrous and complete destruction in history.

The only survivor out of a population of 45,000 was Auguste Ciparis, a Negro prisoner confined within the underground casements of the local prison under a sentence of death. When he was finally rescued, after being buried for five days, his first remark to his rescuers was that he had no breakfast since Thursday.

markets in the state, and at nearly a score of interior markets and packing plants, hog receipts today jumped to 10,300, as compared to 9,300 a week ago.

Oppose Move
Farmers in some sections of Iowa were said to be opposed to the strike. They said they could not afford to withhold their perishable stuffs from market now.

Dealers in Muscatine, Keokuk, Mason City, Burlington, Ottumwa, Council Bluffs, Ft. Dodge, Cherokee, and other cities said they perceived no effect of the holiday on receipts, that they were handling as much, or more, products as they usually do at this season, and that they expected no influence to be visible later on trade.

Report Large Receipts
Some buyers said they were getting larger receipts than they could handle.

Ft. Dodge grain dealers are of the opinion that this is a slack season and that low prices for oats discourage the selling of that commodity.

Contrary to statements made here yesterday by E. N. Hammerquist of Farmingdale, S. D., that 40-odd South Dakota counties were organized and awaiting the strike notice, E. H. Sauber, secretary of the South Dakota Farmers union, today declared in Yankton, S. D., that the union there had no plans for calling a strike and will not endorse the action being taken by Iowa farmers.

Committeemen Meet
Hammerquist is one of four executive committeemen who had a meeting here today to discuss the disposal of accumulated goods at the end of the strike, and other matters. The others are Milo Reno, president of the association and a Farmers union official, of Des Moines; John Bosch of Atwater, Minn., and E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill.

They decided to extend the farmers' holiday movement beyond the borders of the six states represented at the association convention here Monday.

Officers said that telegrams asking speakers and conveying expressions of sympathy had been received from farmers' groups in Montana, Indiana, Colorado, Kansas, and Oklahoma. Represented here yesterday were Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa.

Knows of No Signers
Glenn Hazen, agricultural agent of Wapello county, said he knew of no farmer who had signed for participation in the strike. Of 550 cooperative creamery members in Sigourney, 11 are not marketing their cream.

Mathilda Sorenson of Ft. Dodge, committee member of the association, expressed herself as being encouraged with progress of the movement, and said 13 of the 30 Webster county grain elevators will not buy grain during the strike period.

Routes of produce houses in Cherokee were temporarily discontinued into Plymouth and Woodbury counties.

Burlington dealers reported a slight increase in the supply of

Quiet Prevails
Comparative quiet prevailed in the sectors near Sioux City, despite the picketing. Few truckers attempted to force through the blockade. The 50 deputies were outnumbered about 100 to one, and did little except guard truckers who had asked for safe conduct or to preserve peace among the sentinels.

Paul Moore of West Branch, has been scheduled as the main speaker tonight at a Farmers union meeting in Clinton.

The farm holiday movement was first proposed at a national convention of the Farmers union here in the winter, but it failed of endorsement.

endeavoring to completely absorb their appropriations by the issuance of requisitions during the closing weeks of the fiscal year. Each department should be required to complete the year with as large an unexpended balance as possible.

7. That departmental expenditures be limited to the annual budget allocations. The practice of revising these allocations to include all revenue which may become available and appropriating the savings of one department for additional expenditures should be discontinued. We believe that a thorough and conscientious effort to formulate and administer a budget based upon the minimum needs of each department should result in a substantial reduction of expenditures.

8. That the expenditure of nearly three and one-half million dollars annually to more than 4,500 persons on pay rolls justifies the establishment of a central pay roll department to control and administer such expenditures.

9. That the voucher form used by the university be revised to include a sworn statement by the vendor and that a vendor's invoice be attached to each voucher.

10. That steps be taken to bring all abstracts of university properties up to date and to provide new abstracts for those not available. The records of the state auditor's office should show abstracts and deeds for all university properties.

11. That the administrator of the university hospital be granted statutory authority to establish regulations governing the allowance of travel claims submitted by indigent patients and their escorts.

12. That section 3335, Code 1931, which places the entire responsibility upon the university treasurer for receiving and disbursing cash and the keeping of all records, be revised. We believe this provision is contrary to the accepted rules of internal check and should be amended so as to place the responsibility for the keeping of the general records upon someone other than the treasurer.

13. That consideration be given to the advisability of transmitting all cash receipts of the university to the state treasurer. Withdrawals might then be made monthly according to the annual budget appropriations.

A Daily Hint to Hostesses on Tempting Appetites While It's Hot

Cocoonant Dainties
A cooling drink and a little "munchy" cookie and one can sit around with perfect comfort and talk about how hot it is. There is always the afternoon caller to take care of, or big sister and her friends looking in the ice box for a snack after a game of tennis. And if there isn't something especially prepared, she is apt to dip into a dish put away for the evening meal.

The punch suggested by Mrs. Homer Johnson, 1017 Bowers street, can be prepared on short notice or way ahead of time and stored in the ice box. The cocoonant dainties can be taken care of along with the rest of the Saturday baking and be on hand for instant service.

Recipe for the Punch
Juice of 3 lemons
Juice of 3 oranges
Juice of small can of pineapple
1 quart of cold tea made from 1 tablespoon of green tea
1-1/2 cups of sugar. Dissolve in one quart of hot water. Use ice cold.

Recipe for the Cocoonant Dainties
1 pound of bulk cocoonant
1 can of Borden's Eagle Brand sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon of vanilla
Mix and mold with fingers into 30 loose balls. Place an oiled paper and bake in a slow oven. Remove from paper at once after taking from oven.

Youth Builds Frigate Model

Two months, a piece of wood, and a 10 cent knife.

That is what Lyle Harrison, 15 year old brother of Billy Rlenow, Dean Robert E. Rlenow's adopted son, required to make a scale model of the frigate U. S. S. Constitution.

Lyle, who is visiting at the home of Dean Rlenow and his sister, Mrs. Mabel Ewan, for the summer, has spent most of his spare time carving on the more than 400 intricate parts which make up the completed model.

The boat is about eight inches long and in almost every respect is an exact replica of the original ship. Twenty-four tiny guns are mounted on the deck and each detail is in place down to little coils of rope.

The model maker said he has made eight model boats, of which the present one is the smallest. The others range in size up to 20 inches and represent many types of sailing craft. It usually takes, he said, four months or more to complete each boat. A pen knife is the only tool he uses.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 16 (AP)—Seven hundred and forty-eight passengers and a crew of 33 men were removed safely from the excursion steamer City of Memphis tonight when she struck a rock in the Ohio river here and began sinking.

The steamer reached the Kentucky shore safely but was listing badly when the last person was removed.

The boat was returning from Rose Island, a resort about 10 miles from here, to New Albany, Ind., with a cargo of excursionists. Police reported she struck a rock near the locks in a dam.

by GENE THORNE

At least even the most sceptical of critics are beginning to recognize the ability of the middle west athletes.

Said Mr. Carr: "The most outstanding fact of the Olympic Games was the complete triumph of the Corn Belt."

It is doubtful if these records will ever be beaten; even that they will be equalled.

The above admission by a western writer just about makes the triumph of the middle west complete.

In the heavyweight scrap between Mickey Walker and Max Schmeling doesn't turn out to be the best of the year, it will be strange.

A good showing against Walker would make the German much more popular than he now is.

Should you hear a loud snapping noise some of these days, it will probably be the nerves of some of the National League players.

amount from the tuition ledger. "However, errors and misstatements made it necessary at a later date to cancel some of the entries and alter the footings in the tuition ledger to bring it into balance with the cash account," the report stated.

The accountants said they were "unable to reconcile" with the facts found explanations given by the former cashier as to the alterations in the tuition ledger and the corresponding alterations in his reconciliation.

The misappropriation reported in the multigraphing department was said to have been discovered in August, 1931, and was placed at $6,519.50. Murly J. Otto, the foreman, was claimed to have been carrying two fictitious persons on his payroll since February, 1927.

The present investigation also showed that the payrolls prepared by Otto were false in another respect, the state was told. Some workers were employed on an hourly basis while others were carried on the budget on a monthly basis with no provision for extra compensation for overtime work.

"Two employees of the department, Grace McCook and Kenneth Squier, informed us that Mr. Otto instructed various hourly rate employees to enter excessive hours on their time cards and to turn over to him the excess thus collected for distribution among budget employees," the report stated.

carried on for years but were unable to state how much was illegally collected or whether all the money turned over to Mr. Otto had been distributed among budget employees.

C. A. Brown, the foreman of the buildings and grounds department, was discharged March 10, when the accountants reported finding he had been padding his payrolls. Of the $1,296.45 claimed to have been retained in this way, $1,099.60 was shown to have been recovered from the surety company.

The absolute audit impossible. The actual payroll padding reported uncovered amounted to $7,529.10, but the accountants said the methods of handling payrolls at the university made an absolute audit impossible.

In their audit the firm said they discovered "hundreds of checks bearing questionable and inconsistent endorsements but because of our inability to identify or locate the persons in question we were unable to determine whether or not many of these payments were for services actually rendered."

Salaries Unconfirmed. Endeavoring to verify the various salaries, the auditors sought affidavits from individuals. In response, the report said, $3,157,426.64 or 92.6 per cent was confirmed and the remainder of $211,533.97 not confirmed for various reasons.

tributed to employees has been discontinued, the accountants said, "and the opportunities for payroll padding have been greatly reduced but not entirely eliminated." Establishment of a central payroll department was advocated.

"Such a department," it was explained, "if properly conducted, should be able to eliminate the possibility of payroll padding, and also to compile valuable information regarding inefficient and unnecessary employees."

"Unwarranted Expenditure" The report commented that a practice for the cashier's department to endorse and deposit for payees accounts payroll checks of a large number of professors and heads of departments involves dangers and requires the equivalent of one man's time one month a year, and "constitutes an unwarranted expenditure of university funds."

In connection with another item in the list of "irregularities" the report said it was found that Eva Jordan, one of two women transporting patients to the hospital by auto had overcharged the state $539 during the year. This amount was said to have been returned when brought to her attention.

A shortage of $5,000 in the endowment cash fund of the former treasurer, was said due to the fact that the treasurer had issued 20,000 checks to the bank, with the explanation that these were to complete loans in process.

ered in each of the following instances: 1 The investment of the Carnegie corporation gift of $100,000.00 for a new fine arts building was improperly included with investments of endowment funds under the so-called "group investment plan" so that plant funds were credited with $2,800.53 income when as a matter of fact this investment earned only $829.41.

2 The grouping of the investments of the permanent land fund with the investments of other funds was, in our opinion, a violation of the constitution of the state and resulted in the improper allocation of interest to this fund.

3 The grouping of investments of the $12,000 J. F. Dillon scholarship fund with the investments of other funds was in direct violation of the terms of the trust which specifies that the funds shall be "separately invested."

4 The grouping of investments of expandable university funds with investments of permanent endowment funds was improper, and not in accord with the terms of the various trusts under which the permanent endowment funds were established.

restricted trust fund and designated as the scientific fund—college of medicine. We find no authority granting power to the board of education to establish a permanent trust fund from available balances in the hands of the university treasurer.

The above amount does not include $34,594.77 set up in the balance sheet as an account receivable from W. J. McChesney and the First National bank of Iowa City, Iowa. This additional amount represents interest which was not accounted for by the treasurer or the bank.

A fund, known as the "library fines fund," was established by authority of the finance committee, for the purpose of accumulating a sum of money to be used for "special decorative purposes when the new library building is provided." This fund on June 30, 1931, amounted to $8,128.23.

7 In violation of section 3926 (1), code 1927, funds were loaned on farm mortgages in excess of 50 per cent of the cash value of the land.

10 Fees collected from private patients by the director of the psychiatry department of the college of medicine are not paid into the state treasury as provided by section 3952 code 1927.

11 Chapter 261 acts of the forty-fourth general assembly provided that all expenses of the investigation of the university by that assembly were to be paid by the state. The account, known as "incidental expenses," contained numerous expenditures in connection with this investigation which were not provided for by the said chapter 261.

12 We were unable to find any approval of the board of education or of the executive council for the purpose of a small lot from tenant property rental funds in July 1930.

13 A payment of $696.45 on November 4, 1930, to Dutcher, Walker, and Ries, for legal services appears to be in violation of the statutes.

that the cause may be attributed to five general factors. These factors and the effect thereof were as follows: 1 The pay rolls of the university were handled in an unsatisfactory and inefficient manner and as a consequence pay roll padding existed.

2 The university auditor devoted most of his time and attention to duties which should have been handled by the secretary and the treasurer, and as a result the auditing department failed to function efficiently.

3 The finance committee of the board of education delegated too many of its duties to the officers of the university and as a result thereof, in many instances, were improperly administered.

4 The office of the treasurer was handled in an inefficient, negligent, and irregular manner and consequently the permanent land fund and the endowment funds suffered a loss of income and the principal has become endangered.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY" THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS Lola Carewe, night club habituée, receives a death threat, New Year's Eve. Previously her dog and parrot were mysteriously killed. District Attorney Merle K. Dougherty suspects Lola of being the "brains" of the jewel thief ring that has baffled the police. Although her husband, Gaylord Gifford, died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt places a guard in Lola's penthouse apartment, warning her that she must not be alone in a room at any time. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother; Chung the butler, Eunice the maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney, are present. In the living room, the Commissioner finds a bag belonging to Christine Quires, Lola's guest. It evidently had been used that night, yet Lola informs Colt that Christine is at the Lion's Paw, a roadhouse, where Lola was to have joined her. Colt is surprised to find Mrs. Carewe's room in strange contrast to the surrounding wealth. Lola refuses to reveal the identity of the young man whose photograph adorns her dresser. Against orders, she enters the guest room alone. A scream follows. Rushing in, Colt finds her on the floor, unconscious. Dr. Hurch Baldwin, a friend, diagnoses the case as a heart attack. Lola dies; Colt calls it murder. Unnoticed, he takes something from the doctor's bag. Police Lieutenant Fallon reports that no one but the doctor entered the house. The elevator boy claims that Christine returned home about 12:15 a. m., before Lola and the police arrived, yet no other trace can be found of Miss Quires.

"But how can I help?" whispered the old woman, forcing a crumpled handkerchief against her lips.

member the names. But she seemed to feel secure. Lola had her own ways of managing. I suppose—a very attractive and clever woman. Anything else, now, Mr. Colt?" I expected Colt to insist on pursuing this promising, if elusive, lead. But he seemed to shrug it off as not of great consequence—one of his deadliest tricks of deception. "Nothing," he replied, "except that I might need you later tonight, Mind?"

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"MR. COLT," snarled Rowland, "I am bored—I want to go home. My presence here is of no comfort to Mrs. Carewe. And certainly I can be of no conceivable assistance to the police." Colt smiled freely, and to my surprise he responded: "I agree, Mr. Rowland. You are entirely free to go." Vincent Rowland thrust forward his head in a turtle-like movement of incredulity. "You mean you will not try to detain me here?" "Exactly." Relief flooded the aged attorney's face. With a miming air, he walked up to the Commissioner and held out his hand. "My dear Mr. Colt," he said, "it is indeed a pleasure to know that your administration has put a gentleman in Headquarters. I shall bid myself in readiness to be called at any time that you may need me. And by the way—Mrs. Carewe asked me to say to you that she will be here directly."

Mona Motor Oil Firm Owes $64,639 in Nebraska, Iowa Gas Taxes Report Shows

Johnson Serves Notice for Payment of Deficit

DES MOINES, Aug. 16 (AP)—Unpaid Iowa and Nebraska state gasoline taxes totaling $64,639.50 were uncovered in the investigation of the Mona Motor Oil company of Council Bluffs, accountants today reported to state officials.

The report of Wolf and Company of Des Moines, public accountants, filed today, listed $24,253.50 as owing to Iowa and $38,507.42 owing to Nebraska from the oil company and $3,878.58 as due Nebraska from authorized dealers.

Start Last April

With the filing of the report at the conclusion of a four-month study of the company's records, State Treasurer Ray Johnson of Iowa served notice on the company demanding payment of the taxes, together with the penalty allowed by the state law.

State Treasurer T. W. Bass of Nebraska was to file similar notice for that state under arrangements made by officials of the two states at a conference here last week.

Start Last April

Accountants started checking the company's records of gasoline production, purchase and shipments last April after several officials and employees of the firm were charged by the state with evasion of the state gasoline tax law.

A preliminary hearing in the cases at Council Bluffs, set for yesterday, was postponed until Sept. 6, to permit attorneys to study the audit.

Trouble Encountered

The audit covered the period from Jan. 1, 1929 to March 31, 1932, covering shipments to and from the refinery at East Omaha, to bulk stations, to dealers and other details. Considerable difficulty was encountered in checking transactions because of improper and changing accounting records. Wolf and company reported.

Car records and railroad station records were checked the refinery records in an attempt to determine definitely that all gasoline shipments had been properly shown as orders were checked with the refinery commodity.

Changed Records

The accountants reported several instances were noted where copies of refinery sales tickets were shown as gasoline, while the original of "lubricating oil" or "gas oil" or gasoline instead of some other shipping records would show some commodity other than gasoline.

"This would appear as if an attempt had been made to evade the tax on these cars," the accountants stated, "although we noted that a few of these cars had been reported to the state of Iowa and the tax paid thereon."

Tax 1,069,659 Gallons

Nothing was said in the report as to the responsibility for the alleged failure to report the taxes or as to the changes the accountants said they found in the records.

The amount found to be due Iowa represents the tax on a net gallonage of 1,069,659. Deductions for interstate shipments in excess of deductions, cars unloaded at the refinery but reported to Iowa and for cars reported in duplicate or those carrying kerosene reduced the gasoline on which the tax is due to 898,450 gallons.

No Record Found

Nebraska was found to have failed to receive $36,507.42 due on 912,298 gallons from the company and $3,878.58 on 115,723 gallons sent to shippers in Nebraska on which no record of tax payment could be located.

In checking the interstate shipments the accountants reported the tax had not been paid on 610,878 gallons of gasoline trucked into Iowa, the tax amounting to $18,329.84.

Other Totals

Other Iowa tax totals before deductions were made included: Refinery shipments not reported $10,498.06, direct shipments not reported, $342.13, gallonage differences on cars reported to the refinery $548.85, gallonage differences on direct shipments, $1,085.22, gallonage into Council Bluffs that could not be traced to the shipper, $786.15.

The accountants also noted that the refinery in East Omaha apparently had been considered by the Mona Motor firm to be in Nebraska instead of in Iowa and gallonage there reported to Nebraska.

Attorney Tells of Tax Raise

O'Connor Says Expense Rising in State Offices

Methods of cutting down state expenses, especially those in the office of the attorney general, were discussed at the Kiwanis club luncheon at the Jefferson hotel yesterday by Edward L. O'Connor, Democratic candidate for the office of attorney general.

At the last session of the legislature, Mr. O'Connor claimed, all appropriations for state departments were cut except those for the attorney general's office, where the appropriation was raised.

Although the expenses in the governor's office have doubled in the last 34 years, he pointed out, expenditures of the attorney general and his staff have increased 17 and one half times.

Mr. O'Connor stated that the number of state agents appointed by the attorney general could easily be reduced from 20 to six, with a saving of $40,000 per year. General taxes in Iowa have increased approximately 300 per cent in the last 20 years, while wealth has increased 43 per cent, and population only two per cent, he said.

R. A. Hungerford, formerly a Kiwanian at Bradford, Ill., and who recently moved to Iowa City, was welcomed to membership in the local organization.

Guests were Senator Charles M. Dutcher and Otis W. Teeters of Iowa City, and Prof. William L. Prosser of Madison, Wis.

Cedar Rapids Man Dies of Gun Wounds

OLIVER LONGUEVILLE, 52, an attorney and manager of the securities department of the Iowa Electric and Central States Electric companies, died in a local hospital this afternoon.

Forty-five minutes earlier he was found in a washroom near his office with a bullet wound in his head, which Coroner R. A. Vorpahl said was self-inflicted.

The coroner said there would be no inquest. A .38 caliber revolver was found in the washroom.

Longueville had been despondent over illness and the loss of the sight of an eye, according to John A. Reed, vice president and general manager of the utilities companies.

Reed said there was no cause for Longueville's act as far as his connection with the utilities firms was concerned.

Longueville had been with the Iowa Electric company 10 years.

Court Martial Convicts One at Fort Crook

Soldier Sentenced for Disorderly Conduct at Stuart

OMAHA, Aug. 16 (AP)—As the result of a disturbance at Stuart, Ia., the night of last July 4, one Ft. Crook soldier was convicted and another was acquitted in a general court martial held at the post near here today.

Carl T. Nath, first class private, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated and disorderly, but not guilty to charges of attacking Night Watchman Harley Rouse and fighting with him.

Arvel Conrad, first class private, was acquitted of disarming Rouse "to the discredit of the army service."

Sentenced, Fined

Nath was convicted on all counts. The court sentenced him to six months imprisonment at Ft. Crook at hard labor, fined him $14 a month pay for six months and reduced him in rank to a private.

Conrad, after witnesses had failed to identify him as the man who disarmed Rouse during a free-for-all in front of a Stuart restaurant, took the stand himself and admitted doing it. He said he saw a gun in an open holster on a man struggling with a soldier, and took it. The gun, he said, was unloaded and returned to Rouse. Conrad said he did not know at the time that Rouse was an officer.

Missed Gun

Rouse said he missed his gun when he reached for it. He said he intended "to use it." He was unable to identify either Conrad or Nath.

Nath's defense, presented by Lieut. J. M. Evans, was that he was too intoxicated to know clearly what transpired, or with whom he quarreled. Lieutenant Charles D. Simmonds, as prosecutor, told the court that "the government is trying the case for Stuart, Ia."

The court martial was ordered by Major General Johnson Hagood, after the mayor and city council of Stuart had complained to the war department of actions of the soldiers camped at the edge of Stuart en route from Minnesota to Ft. Crook. The Stuart officials, after a formal apology from Hagood, declined to prosecute the case in civil court.

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

Together Again

Humpty Dumpty, or the Garden theater, which burned down last winter, is swiftly going together again under the hammers of swarming workmen. Nearly all of the lath walls are already covered with smooth white plaster. It won't be long until the Garden will be forgotten and the new Varsity will be in operation.

Today's the Day

Today will see the opening of the annual 4-H club livestock show at the old cannery factory. There will be pigs and bands and girls making bread and many another interesting attractions.

What's the Score?

The bench at the north side of the fire station, in the shade, is the favorite stopping place for baseball fans. They come and go, but at most any time during the afternoon one may see at least a dozen "spectators" listening to the monotonous buzz of the announcer blurring from the firemen's window. Great game, baseball.

Precaution

If the number of persons who apply for drivers' licenses was a barometer of something or other, there would be some excuse for printing them. We have been trying to think of a use for them, but so far they are just names. Forthwith, we will print some more. T. W. Brown, Anna Yeggy, John H. D. Eaton, and V. A. Raburn were the Iowa City residents who applied yesterday.

Mobs of Them

Yesterday was just Friday 13 for the unemployed of Iowa City. Although stock prices are rising, seven jobless men registered with the American Legion Unemployment Relief association yesterday, bringing the total to 445. A donation of clothes was received at the office and will be distributed to unemployed.

Vacation Time

Louis Burleson was sent to jail for 30 days yesterday for intoxication. According to Police Judge Charles L. Zager, Mr. Burleson is serving 20 days on a new charge and 10 on an old one. Mrs. Charles Anclaux paid $1 on an overtime parking count.
