"Government Printing Racket"

UNDER the title above an Iowa newspaper gives an erroneous impression, without being guilty of outright inaccuracy, about the federal printing department.

Because "in the 1931 fiscal year the printing office issued almost 3,500,000,000 copies of printed matter" and "this is at a time when taxes of all kinds have jumped, in the face of a lowered national income" the paper concludes that "the government printing department offers a fertile field for some real and needed economy."

It should be made clear, as the editorial does not, that the U. S. printing department has almost no authority as to what it shall or shall not print. It is merely the "job shop," subject to orders from other departments—it is a service unit and only that.

The money for all the flood of pamphlets, documents, and bound books—approximately 300,000 each working day, the Iowa newspaper says, is not spent primarily by the printing department but by the department of agriculture, the department of the interior, congress, etc.

The outflow of money is there, and needs to be checked. The government printer's statistics only reveal it; the place to diminish printing expenditures is at the source.

May Cats Look at Kings?

DEFENDERS of the federal farm board delight in an anecdote about Chairman James C. Stone, a recent Iowa state fair speaker.

It seems that a heckler obtruded into a Republican garden party at the White House—a New York business man, he was.

Quoting the United Press: "Oh, yes, the farm board, that's one thing we could get along without," the business man began cheerily.

"Stone's smile straightened while the business man unwound himself. Stone let him run down.

"I can prove you don't know what you are talking about," Stone said.

"Have you ever read the co-operative marketing act?" he asked the business man, who hadn't.

"Can you name one thing the farm board is authorized by law to do except to finance wheat and cotton purchases?" Stone asked. The business man couldn't.

"Well, that proves you don't know what you're talking about, and it's been nice to have seen you," remarked Stone as he moved off with a group of friends.

A telling anecdote, but scarcely an answer to the disgruntled farmer who was led to expect so much of the farm board and who has not read the co-operative marketing act.

It is unfortunate that the Republican administration with so excellent a record in some respects, had to enter a campaign for re-election to defend such blots on that record as that of the predestined failure of the farm board.

City Election Economy

THERE is really little need to say more than was in the news stories about a report by Iowa's legislative committee on reduction of governmental expenses concerning combination of school and municipal elections. That report does, however, deserve emphasis.

The principal factor, of course, is the economy of expense for one election instead of two. Also important is the probability of a considerably larger vote on school questions and offices.

The chief danger was also pointed out by the committee—that such a plan might inject the schools into politics. It was the body's belief, however, that Iowa's schools "are not out of politics."

"In fact," said the committee, "the schools in Iowa are represented by at least three of the strongest political organizations in the state. . . and in some large cities politics exerts a large influence in school affairs."

Wherever this joint election scheme is carried into effect it will be advisable to keep municipal and school offices strictly separate, without a unified ticket for both according to partisan lines. With that in mind, it might be considered seriously for Iowa City next spring, expenses to be shared by the two budgets pro rata.

Animosity Dies

THE BEST course for healing a break in relations which has been a sore spot in the sports world publicly and politically since December of 1927 was taken Wednesday afternoon when the two United States service schools agreed to resume athletic relations on the same basis as they were established years ago.

With the signing of an agreement in Philadelphia two days ago, which provides that the two schools, the military and naval academies, will meet on the athletic field from now until 1934 at least, the long breach has been closed.

The football teams from the academies met in 1930 and 1931, it is true, and these contests no doubt aided in cementing their relations. The games were really the cause of the agreement—due to the fact that they were post-season contests which disrupted the academic schedules of both schools, it was deemed wiser to eliminate them, and include the games within regular schedules.

Probably there are all too few sports followers who remember the cause for the initial break in relations. The question rose over eligibility rulings in the two academies. That question has been settled amicably, in the new agreement, with each school given free rein in setting eligibility standards.

The animosity which at first was strong has been dying a natural death, and it is best for the sake of sport that its demise has been hastened, so that the colorful climax of football seasons, the meeting of Army and Navy, can be assured.

When we get so that we can stave off an eclipse to the first fair day we shall be able to postpone an industrial depression to the next stretch of good times.—Boston Transcript.

All things even up in the long run. Apparently Texas has elected two governors to one job, but it will square the books in November by electing Garner to two jobs.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Flashing through the sky over Cleveland yesterday, Major Jimmy Doolittle flew faster than any man in a land plane but failed to establish a new record. His best single lap mark was 302 miles an hour, the average being 282 miles an hour, and a fraction.

It was no accident. The day before Doolittle flew four unofficial laps in an average of 293 miles an hour but the mark could not be recognized because his plane was not equipped with a barograph. Doolittle is a natural flyer, more naturally a speed demon.

When the major's partner, Jimmy Hazelip, clipped Doolittle's own record for the cross-country flight the other day, flying from coast to coast in 10 hours and 19 minutes, he predicted that "we'll be flying the same route in eight hours before very long and won't think much of it." Well, you can take it or leave it, but if you like to play with figures and statistics and such, just jot down two columns side by side—one containing the list of years from 1800 to 1932 and the other listing the speed of man's travel in each of those years.

Then, if you have any imagination at all, you can carry it down to 1935 and 1940 and 1950, if by that time you still want to play, you can try figuring out what it will mean to fly from New York to Paris for lunch, Moscow for dinner, Tokyo for a late snack, and San Francisco by dawn.

It's a great game—and it doesn't take a great deal of imagination, either. There are plenty of facts to work with and accomplishments of real people—Doolittle, Hazelip, Campbell, and others. And if you think you're carrying the thing a little too far, figuring the speeds too high or something, think of the great mind that predicts a new race on earth in the not too distant future—a race of men, women and children built on a sort of monoplane style—streamline, short-winged, and powerful—people who will fly without benefit of Boeing and Wright and Stinson and Curtis.

It may be somewhat difficult for the unscientific layman to understand how, from a mere eclipse of the sun on Wednesday, astronomers and astrophysicists can determine whether the universe is static or expanding, what kind of gaseous formation causes the green flash immediately preceding and immediately after totality of the eclipse, how far from the sun's surface certain gas formations are situated, and, as a matter of detail, what is the secret of the atom.

Any way you can rest assured that such things are quite rational—didn't an eminent British scientist discover helium in the sun long before it was found on earth? And even though it was cloudy around the region of totality, you can be sure that there will be many, many scientific papers written and published, conjecturing and proving things about the universe that happened Wednesday. And all you saw was the moon "muscle in" on the sun.

Unless the rest of the world conforms to General Kurt von Schleicher's ideas about armament and defense and such things, Germany is going to proceed with fortifying her frontiers and re-establishing what will seek to be a counterpart of the old imperial army. And that's no idle threat, you can be sure, for old von Schleicher is a militarist of the old order and bent on "saving" Germany.

In a list of 10 points calling for establishment of a new and mighty German war machine—complete to 35 war material factories—Germany has issued a new threat to disarmament and world peace. The ultimatum—passed off as just a gentle reminder—was sent to Paris where it was met with deep regard. And well it should, for Germany seems gradually to be heading back to Kaiserism.

Book Bits

(From The Hoosier Schoolmaster, by Edward Eggleston)

You, Miss Amelia, wish me to repeat all their love talk. I am afraid you'd find it dull. Love can pipe through any kind of a reed. Ralph talked love to Hannah, when he spoke of the weather, of the crops, of the spelling school. . . But below all these commonplace things vibrated something else. One can make love a great deal better when one doesn't speak of love. Words are so poor! Tones and meditations are better. It is an old story that Whitefield could make an audience weep by a way of pronouncing the word Mesopotamia. His lover could sound the whole gamut of his affection in saying good morning.

Women, Weary of Civilization Sigh for Life in Wilderness

Cities More Savage Than Jungle, Avers Explorer's Secretary. Titled British Women to "Rough It" in Bandit-Ridden Persia.

NEW YORK—To those of us who have cherished a mental picture of the woman secretary as being a meek, unobtrusive, efficient machine, whose mission in life consists of protecting the boss with the old bromide "in conference," Jane Harvey Houlson comes as a distinct surprise.

In her 12 years as secretary to F. M. Mitchell-Hedges, world famous explorer, Miss Houlson has traveled more than 80,000 miles, most of it in territory where a white person is still very much of a curiosity.

She has lived for weeks in the dense jungles of Central America without seeing another woman— which, incidentally, dispenses of the theory that a woman cannot exist without another of her sex with whom she can gossip. And furthermore, she has actually worked the miracle of living for months without either a marcel or a manicure.

It is strange to hear this girl speak of the jungle in terms of affection such as one reserves for one's home town. She describes it as a place of peace and restfulness to which she is always glad to return after a sojourn in civilization. She says that life in the jungle is real life as it should be lived, whereas the mad scramble for existence in civilized cities is just a crazy race to nowhere.

To people who have a habit of referring to the jungle as savage, Miss Houlson points out that in a country where 20,000 people commit suicide and 54,000 more are mowed down by automobiles every year, there isn't much room for talk about savagery. She also draws our attention to the fact that if a jungle savage wants to kill you, he'll go about it in a straightforward manner. He'll come right at you from the front and will not employ the methods popular among the gunmen of the underworld of civilization.

Miss Houlson is now in New York, where Mitchell-Hedges has headquarters while engaged on a lecture tour. When the tour is completed they are returning to the jungle for a two-year stay, and the young girl is emphatic in her assertion that she'll be glad to turn her back on the world of autos, gunmen and skyscrapers.

Strangely enough, just as Miss Houlson was issuing her diatribe against civilization, two prominent fellow-countrywomen of hers were thinking along similar lines. They are Lady Louis Mountbatten, cousin of King George of England, and her friend, the Marchioness of Milford Haven.

The two ladies of the British aristocracy, whose husbands are great-grandsons of Queen Victoria, plan to turn their backs on the palaces and drawing rooms of London early next month and leave for a three months' expedition into the wild, bandit-ridden interior of Persia.

They will travel alone, employing whatever means of transportation they encounter, living off the country, sleeping in a tiny tent, and taking only one change of clothing. Their route will take them from the Caspian Sea to the Gulf of Oman, right through the heart of the wildest part of Persia, where there is no law but that of the rifle and the knife.

The blue-blooded adventuresses frankly admit that their expedition has no scientific objective. They merely want to do something out of the common and go places where few people have been before.

Like Miss Houlson, Lady Mountbatten and her companion scoff at the idea of there being any danger attached to their undertaking in the wilds. They take the stand that if they attend strictly to their own business they will not be molested by the bandit hordes that are known to infest the region where they are going.

It's a great idea if one likes it. But the fad of going to the wilds for a rest will never become popular with the great majority of women, most of whom will remain content to seek relaxation and thrills at the movies.

FATHER DIED TO FEED THEM

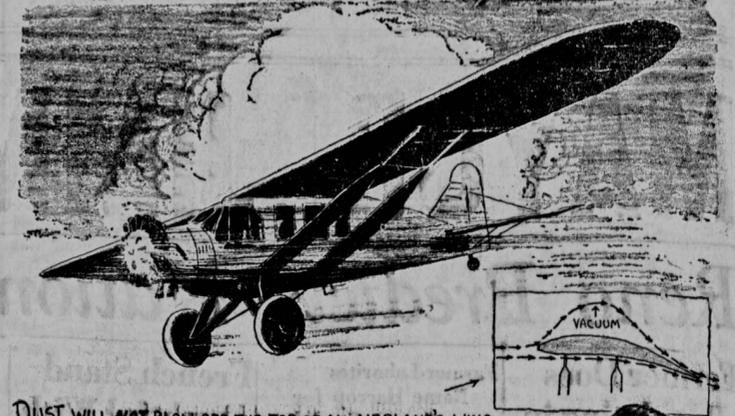

Victims of a poignant tragedy of the economic depression, the family of Wallace F. Mitchell, jobless machinist of Philadelphia, is shown above. The mother and five children were hungry and the father, desperate, was attempting to steal milk to feed them when he was shot to death. Bernard Biese (inset), grocery store owner is held in connection with the shooting.

BEHIND THE SCENES

IN HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Hollywood's latest camera-adventurer shakes the dust of the lot from his feet next month and departs for the far north.

He is Ewing Scott, the former camera man who took his own expedition into the Arctic Circle to make "Igloo," an Eskimo film.

Scott, who was promoted to that rank of assistant director for that work, is organizing a new jaunt into sub-zero latitude.

Some time in September, depending on how soon he gets his investment out of "Igloo," he will leave for Alaska again. This time his destination will be the peninsula where some of the largest live volcanoes in the world smoke amid ice and snow.

His new picture will be called "Hell Crater." It is an original story by the exploring director and founded on the life of a romantic character up there known as the Padre of the Glaciers.

Ewing Scott is familiar with the north and its denizens from his expedition for "Igloo," and from his previous journey into the far north with F. W. Murnau.

Chee-Ak, the hero of "Igloo," Scott announces to contradict all rumors, is not half-Jewish but is full-blooded Eskimo. His full Eskimo name is Ac-Nac-Cheak. The legend of his semitic ancestry began as a publicity gag when the youth adopted the name of Ray Wise out of admiration for Bill Wise, a San Francisco real estate man.

Bill Wise knew Chee-Ak as a child in his Eskimo village north of Point Barrow. Bill, at that time a young man, was up there on a gold strike. Chee-Ak is the Clark Gable of the little village he revisited when he returned with Ewing Scott after several years in Hollywood. He came out of Alaska with the Murnau company.

Director Ewing reports his Eskimo hero went native in a few days after his return, eating blubber and living Eskimo style.

One of those real-life dramas of Hollywood: A Swiss extra woman, who works as a maid between pictures, was playing in the Italian retreat scenes for "Farewell to Arms" with some soldiers. She was ordered to throw herself face down in the mud when enemy planes bombed the fugitive army.

In dropping, her arm touched the face of another extra lying in the mud who looked at her and said, "Was muchst du?" It was her former employer, a few months ago, a millionaire. The crash had wiped him out. He was now a fellow extra.

Hollywood cosmeticians decree that the mask type of make-up is going out. Also, the violent hues in nail enamel. Likewise, the yellow and dark-tan sun tones among face powders.

The extras and woman workers in Hollywood spend more than the stars for cosmetics. Upwards of $1,000,000 a year is spent by screen women for beauty.

The Spanish Rachele powder style began as a special formula, invented for Norma Talmadge. Powdered rouge was invented for Colleen Moore. It's popular because it withstands the sun.

Cupid lips have waned and the large, natural mouth is coming in vogue.

DID YOU KNOW—An Arab fortune-teller predicted Walter Byron would leave England for Hollywood and get a gold mine. He's bought the gold mine in Nevada.

Juvenile Artists Will Present Concert at 8:15 This Evening

City Woman's Club to Sponsor Girls' Program

Under the auspices of the music department of the Iowa City Woman's club, Joan and Jeanne Halamick, juvenile artists of Hollywood, Cal., will present a musical program at the Presbyterian church in Iowa City tonight at 8:15.

Joan was born in Hampton in 1918, and began to study violin at the age of four under the supervision of her mother. Her serious study of the violin began at the age of seven. Since then, a number of scholarships, advanced by various master-teachers, have been conferred on Joan, including European study and advantages.

Jeanne was born in Hampton in 1919. She began early to imitate the vocal exercises of her mother's pupils. At the age of eight months she sang the scales, arpeggi and folk songs on "Ah"—at 16 months, bits of operas and ballads.

The repertoire of Joan includes such composers as Handel, Wieniawski, Tschalkowsky, Wilhelm, Dvorak, Jenö Hubay, Schubert, Volpe, Kreisler, and Sarasate.

Jeanne sings compositions from Maxwell, Bizet, del Riego, Rachbach, Dvorak, Chadwick, Gretchenbroft, Bishop, and Bendel.

Tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. E. W. Chittenden, 1101 Kirkwood avenue, or Mrs. George H. Frohwein, Jr., 217 Lexington avenue.

VAGABOND DREAMS ENDED

When Rudy Vallee (inset), word-famous crooner, found the girl of his "vagabond dreams" and married Fay Webb (above) a little over a year ago, the world sighed and prophesied a long and happy voyage for the crooner's marital barque. But now, owing to "geographical" likes and dislikes, the good ship matrimony is on the rocks. Fay says she cannot live outside her native California and Rudy's career and ambitions are bound up with the east. So a divorce is the only solution to the problem.

ing the field open tomorrow to James Wedell of Patterson, La., and James Halzlip of Ferguson, Mo., trans-nation speed king, to try their mounts over the course.

Col. Roscoe Turner, California cross country flyer, said he might measure his ship again over the straightaway, four dashes today netting him an average of 261.414 miles an hour.

Girl Speeds 4 Laps

With the men fastening their eyes on a 300 mile an hour goal, Miss Florence Klingensmith, young Minneapolis flyer, borrowed the clipped wing monoplane owned by John H. Livingston of Aurora, Ill., and was timed in four laps over the straight-away at 198.611 miles an hour.

Her fastest run was 206.549 miles an hour, indicating the annual women's high speed classic to be run Sunday may mark a new record for the event. It was won last year by Mrs. Maude Moriarty of Springfield, Mass., with an average speed of 187.574 miles an hour.

S. J. Whitman of Oshkosh, Wis., took the measure of Ben O. Howard, Chicago-Kansas City mail pilot, in a free-for-all race for planes with engines of 350 cubic inch displacement. Whitman averaged 132.246 miles an hour to win $360. Howard averaged 127.347 miles an hour to win $200.

Wins $270

Doug Davis of Atlanta, Ga., won $270 by averaging 127.47 miles an hour in a commercial plane race

on "Political issues."

In her talk Miss Gallaher discussed the different phases of the coming election, analyzed the two platforms, and spoke briefly on the tariff, bonus, and the eighteenth amendment. The union also discussed plans for urging local persons to register before the fall election.

Following the business session, tea was served. Carrie Wetherby presided at a table centered with nosegays of garden flowers. Mrs. Hambrecht and Mrs. C. F. Wickham served.

He was followed by Art Davis of East Lansing, Mich.

In a sportsman pilot race, William A. Warrick, Jr., of Cleveland, averaged 102.014 miles an hour to win. Paul S. Bloom of Davenport, Ia., finished second.

Art Davis, beaten in one race, came back to lead a field of commercial planes with an average speed of 120.481 miles an hour. Jack Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., finished second and Marcellus King of Fairmont, Minn., third.

The national air races will return again next year to Cleveland.

Hughes, David B. Hill and Theodore Roosevelt.

Not official

(3) By considering as charges, upon which he might act adversely certain incidents involving no element of wrongdoing on my part, relating not only to my official conduct but to my private affairs and the private affairs of others having no official relation with the city of New York.

"The supreme court also held that it was without power to restrain the governor or prevent the invasion by him of my legal rights, which legal rights have been accorded without hesitancy by all prior governors when requested by officials under scrutiny.

"Technicality"

"The supreme court says that this lack of power results from the governor invoking a technicality—by making a 'special appearance' and refusing to yield jurisdiction to the courts. The court says this leaves me at the mercy of the governor and his avowed determination to subject me to an unlawful and unconstitutional exercise of power—a perversion of executive power—a usurpation of power without color of authority under any statutory or constitutional provision or any judicial or executive decision, all this in order that he may accomplish a wrongful and unlawful end.

"I am told that the governors of numerous states, and even in England, the king, yielded to the courts in order that no one may suffer from an unjust or illegal act of the executive or the crown."

"Nothing" From Roosevelt

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt said he had "nothing at all to say" when informed tonight of the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker of New York.

At the executive mansion, where earlier in the evening he had been going over his plans for resuming the Walker ouster hearing tomorrow, the governor learned through the Associated Press of Walker's withdrawal from office.

He heard with interest Walker's assertion that he had failed at the hearing before Mr. Roosevelt to receive "even the elementary rights guaranteed to any defendant in a court of law."

Walker's act meant the end of the spectacular hearing in the New York state "hall of governors," where the mayor spent 12 days defending himself against the 15 "conclusions" of Samuel Seabury.

Pete Jordan Makes Comeback to Win Iowa Open Title

Closing Spurt Gives Capital City Star Win

Passes Rodney Bliss on Final 36 Holes of Tournament

By DON MCGUIRE Associated Press Sports Writer DES MOINES, Sept. 1 (AP)—Pete Jordan came pounding down the stretch today to blast his way into the Iowa open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 296 strokes.

He overcame a five-stroke lead held by Rodney Bliss of Omaha at the start of the morning's play and when they had finished their 36-hole grind Jordan had shoved three strokes in front of his Nebraska rival.

Steady putting that reached its best at critical moments, and long powerful drives won for the Des Moines star. He started out his morning round with a 38, two over par on the first nine, then began clicking off the birdies to come home in 33 for a 71, one under par.

Bliss, playing in the same foursome with Jordan, faltered on the morning round and brought in a 78, dropping two strokes behind Jordan. In the afternoon he tried desperately to overcome his flying rival but Jordan had too much left and brought in a nice 73 while Bliss took 74 strokes to place him second in the field.

Third place went to Joe Brown, Des Moines professional, whose 301 strokes placed him in front of the 30 money players in the race. Bob McCrary of Des Moines, the dethroned champion, eased into a tie for fourth by virtue of his afternoon round of 70, two under par, the best single round shot during the tournament.

McCrary was tied at 303 with Gene Isaacson, Ottumwa, and Ted Paysour, Dubuque, both professionals.

Koontz Beats Vavra Charles Koontz, Lincoln, Neb., professional, had a 304, a stroke better than Johnny Vavra of Chicago and Jack Hall, Des Moines pro.

The gallery followed the Bliss-Jordan foursome all day as the two leaders battled for first place. Johnny Vavra and Bob McKee of Des Moines completed the foursome. Bliss never could gain on Jordan in the afternoon round, dropping three behind when he went over par on the first hole. He got it back at the third when Jordan's first drive went out of bounds, but lost it a hole later and then dropped two more when Jordan rammed home a birdie three at the fifth.

The Des Moines star held his five stroke margin when he reached the turn in 35, one under par, to trim off two of the strokes.

Climax for Jordan Jordan's victory today climaxed a two year battle for an Iowa championship. He was runnerup to McCrary in the open last year and finished in a similar position to Denver Miller of Des Moines in the amateur this year. In addition he qualified for both the trans-Mississippi and western amateur tournaments this summer.

The final standings of the competitors, with the first 36 hole totals, and the totals for each 18 today were:

Pete Jordan, Des Moines 152-71-73 -296. Rodney Bliss, Omaha 147-78-74 -299. Joe Brown, Des Moines 152-73-75 -301. Bob McCrary, Des Moines 155-78-70-303. Gene Isaacson, Ottumwa 156-75-72-303. Ted Paysour, Dubuque 153-76-74-303.

Charles Koontz, Lincoln, Neb., 151-78-75-304. John Vavra, Chicago, 156-73-76-305. Jack Hall, Des Moines 153-75-77-305. Charles Burdick, Marion 157-72-77-306. Pat Wilcox, Norfolk, Neb., 158-76-72-306. Gridders to Hail From Many Cities

Gifts of football players to the University of Iowa have been made by 29 Iowa cities and towns and by 14 municipalities in 10 other states, a survey of the official roster of eligible varsity candidates revealed yesterday.

Davenport, Cedar Rapids, and Ft. Dodge, each with three representatives, share first honors, while Iowa City, Albia, Charles City, Muscatine, and Marshalltown each have contributed two athletes.

Four of the players hail from Illinois. Other states which furnish candidates are Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Nebraska, Missouri, New York, Indiana, Minnesota, and Colorado.

This is the official list of the 55 eligible candidates by home towns: Cedar Rapids—Johnson Greedy, Ted Maresh, Marvin Moravec; Davenport—Glen Baker, Robert Loufek, Gerald Preston, Jr.; Ft. Dodge—Willard Minkel, Randall Whinnery, Lawrence Parsons; Iowa City—Eugene Clearman, Howard Moffitt.

Cumberland—Don Dorsey; Des Moines—Ray Fisher, Plover—Edward Garlock; Malcolm—Melvin Kinsinger; Center Point—Lumir Kouba; Colfax—Joe Laws; Clinton—Marcus Magnusson; Waterloo—Tom Moore.

Dubuque—Howard Orvis; Newton—Bernard Pace; Hudson—Francis Schammel; Dysart—Chris Schmidt; Marengo—Harry Slaymaker; Grinnell—Harold Swaney; Spencer—Angell Teripes; Mason City—Philip Turdle; Iowa Falls—Kenneth Trickey; Decora—Leo Samuelson.

Illinois—Rock Island, Edward Dolly; Geneva, George Ekdahl; Forest Park, Wilmon Hass; Quincy, Forrest Schmeidman.

Terraplanes Whip K.P.'s to Gain First Place Tie With Purity in American League

Elks Win Weird 21-16 Game From Press; K.C.'s Lose

For five hours out at the City park last night, diamondball fans sat through the cold to witness some of the most weird performances of the summer season. Not a game was close.

The revived Terraplanes opened with a 16 to 10 triumph over the Knights of Pythias to gain a tie for first place in the American league with the idle Purity Bakers. The loss was the third straight without a win for the lodge men.

The second game found the Press-Citizen boys climbing over the Knights of Columbus to the tune of 16 to 5. A wild first inning, in which the printers put 12 markers across the plate after two were out, gave them an advantage they never relinquished.

And then came the prize game as far as wildness goes. The Elks, battling for a second place tie with Kelley's, hooked up with the Press-Citizen, the printers having to play a doubleheader during the evening, and won after more than two hours of fighting, errors and home runs.

Trans-Sipppi Meet Planned May Build Tournament in Tri-Cities Into Annual Affair

DAVENPORT, Sept. 1 (Special)—The Tri-City Tennis club has announced plans for the staging of the first Trans-Mississippi net tournament here Sept. 9, 10, and 11. The event is expected to be an annual feature of the local tennis season after this year.

Through the cooperation of the Moline park board, play will be held at Riverside park, where seven excellent courts will allow a speedy run-off of the early rounds. Competition is to begin Friday, Sept. 9, at 9 a.m., with the final round billed for Sunday afternoon, Sept. 11.

Tourney officials are confident of attracting ranking stars from Iowa, Illinois, and Missouri for competition in the first Trans-Mississippi meet. Already they are assured of the entries of Ken Conroy, former Illinois state champion and eight times tri-city titleholder, and Curtiss, former Northwestern star and Big Ten runnerup.

From Iowa the entry list will probably include such Hawkeye luminaries as Frank Brody, ex-Iowa state champion, Merle Robins, Max Everett, Ted Swenson, and a sizeable group of lesser known stars. In addition there will be a host of tri-city aces entered, led by Ron Reddig, 1932 Iowa net captain, and Dick Goepel.

Johnny Risko Gains Win Over Levinsky

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1 (AP)—Johnny Risko, veteran Cleveland baker boy, tonight was awarded a 12 round decision over King Levinsky of Chicago. Risko weighed 196, and Levinsky 200.

Levinsky was unable to cope with Risko's punishing left, which repeatedly pushed the willies Chicago heavy off his balance and kept his dangerous right hand swinging in air.

The verdict was first greeted with a round of boos from the crowd of nearly 20,000, but later was cheered.

quiet, Dunlap Win Howell and Moe, in the final match of the day, stopped their rivals, 5 and 4, with a rally of their own on the homeward nine, after a lapse in which the American boys dropped five out of six successive holes.

Captain Francis Quimet combined with young George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, former intercollegiate champion, to administer a 7 and 6 drubbing to the Anglo-Irish combination of John Stout and John Burke.

The veteran "lead-off" team of George Voigt and Jess Sweetster of New York, after a fairly close tussle, came out in the afternoon to shake off the Hartley brothers, Rec and Lister, by the score of 7 and 6.

Moreland, Seaver Surprise The biggest jolt to the invaders was posted when their crack combination of John DeForest, British champion, and Tony Torrance, captain of the team, fell before the surge of two American newcomers of the competition, Gus Moreland of Dallas and Charley Seaver of Los Angeles.

Fortified by a rush that gave them seven of the first nine holes in the morning round, these rising stars of U. S. golf never had much to worry about thereafter and won convincingly by 6 and 5.

From start to finish, it was largely a matter of just how big the American margins would be at the close of the day. It turned out to be the biggest in the history of the competition, so far as these two-ball foursomes, in which the teams play alternate shots, are concerned.

25 Hole Aggregate Lead The United States registered its only other sweep of the foursomes in 1928 at Chicago, but the team, led that year by the mighty Bobby Jones, in the aggregate, was only 23 up at the close of the first day's play, whereas Captain Quimet's whirligig array today piled up a total of 25 holes.

Eight single matches over the 36-hole route, conclude the Walker Cup series tomorrow. Victory in only three of these contests will clinch the cup for the United States for the seventh straight time since 1922, and this did not appear to be a particularly difficult job for the home lads.

Keokuk Wins KEOKUK, Sept. 1 (AP)—After getting 10 hits off the St. Louis Cardinals last night Keokuk had difficulty in getting four blows off of Wise and it was not until the eighth that Rice's single drove Braly home with the run which beat Waterloo 2-1.

U. S. Davis Cup Golfers in Big Lead

By ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 1 (AP)—The freshmen of American amateur golf came through with flying colors today in their first test under international fire, with the result the United States routed Great Britain's challengers in all four of the 36-hole Scotch foursomes making up the first day's engagement of the Walker Cup battle.

Picking up the thread of victory where the old guard left off in a competition in which the United States never has been defeated, the American youngsters shouldered their assignments like veterans. The result never was in doubt and there were no competitive thrills outside of one flashing rally put on in vain by the British juveniles, 22 year old Eric McRuvie and Eric Fiddian, in a sensational match with the American "pony team," Don Moe of Oregon and Billy Howell of Virginia.

Quiet, Dunlap Win Howell and Moe, in the final match of the day, stopped their rivals, 5 and 4, with a rally of their own on the homeward nine, after a lapse in which the American boys dropped five out of six successive holes.

West Coast Star Gains Win Easily

Defending Champion Has Hard Time Advancing

By PAUL MICKELSON Associated Press Sports Writer ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 1 (AP)—Tom Creavy showed a storming St. Paul gallery today just why he was champion of American professional golf as the battle to dethrone him charged into the quarter final salient.

Caught in the maelstrom of upsets that has thrust aside almost every early favorite in its made sweep, the stout hearted campaigner, from Albany, N. Y., proved his class and stuck in the battle by coming back from almost certain defeat to turn back Johnny Perelli, a star member of the dark horse brigade from San Francisco, one up.

Dutra Advances One down at noon and two down and three to go in the 36 hole struggle, he rushed back with two birdies and a par to win, circling the Keller course with a rousing medal card of 69 on the final round that kept the crown on his brow for at least another day.

Creavy was joined by another set of favorites, including Olin Dutra of Santa Monica, Cal., Bobby Cruikshank, wee Scot from New York, and big Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., but John Golden, veteran from Noroton, Conn., who defeated Walter Hagan in that record-breaking match of 43 holes yesterday, was numbered among the upset victims of the day.

Golden met and lost to the surprising Al Collins of Kansas City in a dingdong struggle with Collins winning the fight on the 36th green as his ball kissed off a partial stray for a birdie four.

It was Dudley, who with Creavy represented the only two qualifiers of the 1931 national professional championship show still left in the present struggle, who turned in the biggest margin of victory today. Touring over the Keller layout with a par shattering 70, Dudley boomed six up at noon and then cleaned up with another rush of par breaking golf with a 33 out in the afternoon, winning in a walk, 10 and 9.

Dutra Big Favorite Over his, required route, he had 14 one-putt greens and never was headed.

Dutra, probably the hottest favorite in the championship field tonight, not even excluding Creavy, won by another lopsided margin, 5 and 3, but he was given a great fight by Reggie Myles, the tiny Scot from Ashland, O. The Pacific coast husky staggered Myles with a great 67 on the morning round to boom seven up. Myles, putting prettily while Dutra was missing iron shots and putting weakly, cut his lead to four after the first six holes of the afternoon but the odds were too great and Dutra clinched the match easily after that.

Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

CHICAGO baseball addicts are already making plans for seeing the New York Yankees and their own Cubs tangle up in the 1932 world series, having definitely assured themselves that the Bruins cannot beat out of the National league flag at the rate they're now traveling. And it's not only the fans who think and act thusly, some of the old-time sports writers and experts are in complete accord.

What seems to be bothering the Windy City writers most is the fact that the right fielder in Wrigley field is quite short and most of the Yankee sluggers, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, etc., are left handed hitters. But not a thing do they concede the American leaguers in the matter of defensive strength. They point to the fact that in the last 82 innings, Charley Grimm's team has made but four errors, not one costly! Which in itself is something!

With Kiki Cuyler making a great comeback in hitting, young Billy Herman hitting the ball at a fast clip, Riggs Stephenson still his old, dependable self at the plate, Johnny Moore right on Steve's heels and the former Yankee, Mark Koenig, clouting over .400—well, maybe there won't be so much difference between the two in hitting in the impending series, taken for granted of course, the two meet.

It is then that the good pitching staffs of both clubs come into prominence. Some writers contend that the Cubs and Yanks possess the best hurling corps in either league, a fact which may or may not be true. It remains, though, that one would have to look far to find two hurlers of the ability of Lefty Gomez and Johnny Allen in the American league, while another rook, Lonnie Warneke, has it all over the rest of the National loop this year.

IT WILL be a great series should these two teams meet. The Yankees are virtually in while it has been pointed out by statisticians of the game that the Cubs could lose every remaining series they have and still would win unless the Pirates could pull the impossible of sweeping practically all the contests they have left. Some experts predict that the Yankees will surpass the 107 wins set up by the A's last season while the Cubs will win 90 or more.

Large Auto Racing Program to Feature Fair Program Today

DES MOINES, Sept. 1 (Special)—Nine National Circuit auto races will headline the final program at the Iowa State fair here tomorrow, speed officials announced today.

The final event will be the closing afternoon's card of the annual Iowa State fair swiftnakes of 25 laps in which winners in preliminary events in the afternoon's program will compete for the grand championship and for the biggest purse of the day.

Sig Haugdahl, Sam Hoffman, Gus Schrader, Emory Collins, and a half dozen other nationally famous stars are already assured of qualifying for this event, promising the greatest battle for supremacy witnessed on the Iowa State fair track in many years. A total of 70 drivers and cars has been entered for Friday's classics, the greatest number ever appearing on the Iowa State fair track.

MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The Commissioner telegraphs a picture of a young man, named Basil, found on Lola's dresser, to the Paris Prefect of Police requesting that he identify it and investigate Lola's past. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

There was no indication of a history of old heart trouble? In either girl? "None whatever. The girls' hearts were sound as a dollar." "But Doctor Baldwin told me Lola had suffered from a weak heart." "Something wrong there, Mr. Colt. I know damn well that her heart could not have suddenly gone haywire and caused the condition I found. The heart muscle constrictions in both girls were simply unbelievable." "Have you no theory at all as to what caused the constriction of the heart muscles?" asked Colt. "I admit it would look like some foreign cause—poison—something external that had just got into the system either the minute before you found her, or sometime afterward," declared the Assistant Medical Examiner stoutly. "But I went all over them again—even shaved their heads—there was no trace of poison, and furthermore there was no skin puncture anywhere except, on Lola Carewe's arm, the tiny hole made by Doctor Baldwin's hypodermic needle. And that's been analyzed down here. It was absolutely innocent—the solution of adrenalin was absolutely harmless!" "Colt cleared his throat unhappily. "Now, Doctor Multooler," he said, "please don't take what I am going to say as a criticism. And I am sorry to ask you to work any more, after the pace you've been going. But this much I know—unless I am making the biggest blunder of my life, there has to be a puncture somewhere on the body of Christine Quires. Will you look again?" "Mr. Commissioner!" "The voice of Doctor J. L. Multooler rang with injury and reproach. "You know you can count on me!" he cried earnestly. "Of course I'll look again. Maybe I'll find something this time. And I'm all the more willing, Mr. Colt, because—even though I have failed to find anything—I know this is murder!" "What makes you say that?" "That belt you found?" "Belt?" "Strap, I mean—the strap with the buckle on it!" "What did they find?" urged Colt, his voice charged with eagerness. "Mr. Colt, they found on the leather of that strap a number of microscopic pieces of human skin.

"Mr. Colt," he declared, "I have come here, hounded by my conscience, to make a confession." There is no doubt that the strap was around the throat of Christine Quires! So—this explained the diabolical markings on the dead girl's throat! But what did that make clear? "Could she have been choked to death?" asked Thatcher Colt. "Absolutely not!" declared Doctor Multooler, emphatically. "You will try again!" begged Colt. "At once, Mr. Colt." "Thank you," said Thatcher Colt crisply. "Happy New Year," caroled the autopsist as he hung up. There was a baffled glint in the eyes of Thatcher Colt as he turned from the telephone and repeated what he had heard to District Attorney Dougherty. "How was the thing done?" he demanded aloud, as he sat back and filled his pipe. "There are no really new methods in crime. But I can't remember a single case that resembles this one!" Then, with a philosophical sigh, he added: "However, we have only started." Further comment was held up by entrance of the black Arthur pushing a breakfast table on wheels. The sight and smell of that meal suddenly made me realize that we had been working all night and that I, for one, was ravenous. In silence we began to eat. There was creamed chicken on toast, hot rolls and marmalade, and the exquisite coffee which Colt's butler grinds and boils with such loving artistry; the smell of that coffee is like an incense in my memory. After his third cup of that priceless beverage, and a voracious attack on the chicken, Dougherty leaned back, beaming brightly. When at last he spoke, his conversation had nothing to do with the crime. Instead, Dougherty began to talk of his shooting lodge in the Adirondacks of the ways of wild game in fog and sunshine, and the joys of living the hermit's life, which Dougherty, who had been married three times and had eleven children, could hymn with gusto. Colt responded in kind, enthralling over the fishing near the shores of Cape Cod, where he has his summer home. In this vein the talk rolled on, until Arthur interrupted us with an announcement: (To Be Continued) Copyright 1931 by Covici-Friede, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Frost Begins First Thought of Harvesting

Ames Man Studies Corn Pickers as Used on Iowa Land

AMES, Sept. 1 (AP)—With Jack Frost, that magic artist, soon to perform his autumnal trick of turning Iowa's extensive corn crop into golden hardness, farmers who own mechanical corn pickers will be confronted with the question of oiling up the pickers or hiring hand labor to harvest the crop. This year of unprecedented economic disturbances has further accentuated the problem for the Iowa farmer. John Hopkins, Jr., of the Iowa State college economics department, who has made a study of 44 mechanical corn pickers in Iowa, believes that the picker is more practical but qualifies his opinion with this statement: "Conditions vary. 'Suppose,' he says, 'that a farmer owns a machine and has only 100 acres of corn to pick. If he already has the machine, the investment has been made and there will be no more fixed or overhead expense if the machine is used than if it is idle. In this case we should compare only the variable expense as between the methods. These consist of labor hired, the fuel and other expenses on the tractor and the repairs of the corn picker. These items amount to only $76 for 100 acres of 40 bushel corn, while hand picking of 100 acres of 40 bushel corn would require an outlay of $120.'"

The labor cost of hand picking used in computing these figures was three cents per bushel. Professor Hopkins doesn't advise the use of either one or the other method or corn picking to all farmers. Individual Problem The Ames authority believes that a good deal depends on each farmer's individual problem—especially the size of his corn acreage, the topography of his land, the amount of available time to spend for labor and credit facilities. After studying the data obtained from the operations of 40 two-row pickers and four one-row pickers in seven Iowa counties, Professor Hopkins drew these conclusions about the use of mechanical pickers: (1) "It seems that the mechanical corn picker is at its best if it is used on two or three different farms, either co-operatively or for custom picking. The fact that the machine does its best work early in the season when the corn is slightly damp suggests that machine picking should start in the fall as soon as the corn is dry enough to crib. (2) "The season when the machine is used to best advantage is quite short. Therefore, while the corn it is satisfactory condition the machine should be worked the longest possible hours per day. (3) "There was a feeling that, all things considered, the use of the machine is cheaper than hand picking under normal conditions. (4) "The use of the machine avoids trouble and annoyance in hiring men and in boarding them while the corn is being picked. Disadvantages of the machine, as expressed by farmers, were that it required a heavy original investment, that it will not work under a wide range of conditions as will a man picking by hand, that the machine damages stalks, and that it does not get all of the ears and wastes some corn by shelling. Charge Property Disposal DAVENPORT, Sept. 1 (AP)—Charges of disposing of mortgaged property were brought against Mrs. Nick Coin, widow of a Davenport bootlegger slain several months ago, by W. J. Bryson, professional bondsman. DAVENPORT, Sept. 1 (AP)—

Fast driving by Fred Beech and Joe Armstrong, linemen for the Clinton, Davenport and Muscatine railway, prevented a possible wreck on the line. They noticed a truck dragging from a fast train and set out in a repair truck, overtaking the engineer and warning him of the danger. The annual Leech cup tennis competition between teams of the army and navy has been won seven consecutive times by the navy.

CHAPLINS IN LEGAL FIGHT OVER CHILDREN

Testifying that the large settlement he made at the time of his divorce from their mother made unnecessary for his children to earn their living in pictures, Charlie Chaplin, world-famous laugh-maker, is shown on the witness stand in the courtroom at Los Angeles as he sought to have his former wife, Lita Grey Chaplin (left), also on witness stand, prohibited from allowing the boys to appear before the movie cameras. The children, Charles Spencer, Jr., and Sidney Earl, are under contract to a major studio. In center is Judge H. Parker Wood, who presided at the hearing, which terminated when an appellate court order blocked the suit. Lower center is a picture of Chaplin and his ex-wife when romance bloomed.

Winged Lightning

After having crossed the continent faster than anyone has ever done it before Capt. James G. Haizlip is shown waving a greeting as he landed at Floyd Bennett airport, New York. Haizlip completed the 2,500 mile flight from Los Angeles in 10 hours and 19 minutes, clipping 56 minutes and 10 seconds from the former record of 11 hours, 15 minutes and 10 seconds, set by Major Jimmie Doolittle.

Martin Talks to Rotarians on Rail Board

Candidate for Post on Luncheon Program at Meeting

Stressing the professional nature of the duties of railroad commissioners, Thomas E. Martin, Republican candidate for a position on the state railroad commission, outlined the work of the body at a luncheon meeting of the Iowa City Rotary club yesterday at the Jefferson hotel.

Because of the quasi-judicial nature of the commission, Mr. Martin said, the people should choose its members with a view of obtaining men with legal training and an understanding of the problems involved.

Traces History

He traced the history of the commission from the time it was formed in 1878 until the present. In the early days its work was limited to investigation and it had no authority to pass upon any controversies.

With the rapid development of transportation agencies, the work of the commission has gradually increased. It has been vested with more and more power and has become, instead of merely an investigating agency, something of a legal tribunal dealing with specialized problems.

Although the body's judicial and administrative authority is limited to intra state traffic, practically all forms of commercial transportation are subject to its jurisdiction, Mr. Martin said.

Administration

Agencies of transportation which come within the scope of the commission's authority are railroads, pipe lines, bonded warehouses, airports, transmission lines, docks, trucking, and bus lines.

Mr. Martin, who described his campaign for the office, said the judicial and administrative duties of the commission are continually increasing.

Rotarian guests at the luncheon were: Baker Terry of Columbia, Mo., E. P. Hogan of Marengo, Nat A. Buck of Creston, Elmer Ziegler of Muscatine, Rollin F. Hopker of Ft. Madison, and D. Nielson of Independence.

Other guests were: George Gartzke of Milwaukee, Wis., guest of Fred Boerner; C. Rollin Scherck, guest of LeRoy S. Mercer and F. V. Orr of Cedar Rapids.

Debate Teams Open Activity

500 Prep Students to Try for Honors in State

As Iowa's high schools open next week, about 500 debaters in some 125 institutions will begin to master facts about the tax problem, each hoping to become a member of a state championship team.

Directed again by Prof. A. Craig Baird of the University of Iowa speech department, the Iowa High School Debating league begins its twenty-sixth year of activity.

But instead of one champion, as has been the case for a quarter of a century, the league's competition will determine a titlist in class A, comprising schools with an enrollment in excess of 300, and class B, which includes all other institutions.

All of the 16 sub-district winners in both classes, a total of 32 schools, will compete in the round-robin tournament at the university next April. Each entrant will send a two-speaker affirmative and negative team.

The question upon which the arguers start research next week is: resolved, that approximately one-half of all state and local revenues should be derived from sources other than tangible property.

Jones Verdict Made Insanity

Judge Directs Jury to Return Verdict in Murder Trial

BEDFORD, Sept. 1 (AP)—Judge H. H. Carter of Corydon, sitting in the Eliza Jones murder trial here, late this afternoon directed a verdict that Jones be found insane. The order provided that Jones be taken to the criminally insane ward at the Anamosa hospital.

The plea of insanity was made for him in the slaying of his son-in-law, Thomas Allen. Allen was killed with an axe and buried on the Jones farm.

Jones, confessed slayer of his son-in-law, told the district court jury that he was unable to remember the events of the day of the killing.

He testified he believed some kind of dope had been placed in his drinking water that day and also told the jury that he had suffered head pains for about 20 years, after sustaining a heat attack.

Recalled to the witness stand, Mrs. Jones said that for more than two years at her husband's insistence they had gone nowhere and had had no company.

The production of crude petroleum in the United States in 1931 totaled 851,081,000 barrels.

Asks Divorce

Hazel M. Pooler filed suit in district court yesterday asking for a divorce from W. E. Pooler on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. She asks the court to allow her $40 alimony, $100 for attorney fees, and $50 for suit money. Her attorney is Paul Toomey.

This is Straight

After having been postponed twice because of the unavoidable absence of Jack Curtis, manager of the Boeing airport, a joint meeting of the airport committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the city council will be held at 4:30 this afternoon.

Winter Wardrobe

Seven thousand yards of cotton cloth will arrive in Iowa City soon to be made up into clothes for the needy with the compliments of the federal farm board. Some of it will be prints, to be used for dresses, some will be outing flannel, to be used for night gowns, and the rest will be muslin.

Sewing Circle

The sewing of the 7,000 yards of goods into dresses and nightgowns and underwear and what not will be done by a group of nimble fingered women in the auxiliary rooms of the American Legion Community building.

Oversight

Claiming that, instead of $25,000, he meant to sue for $45,000, Melvin Fitzgerald filed an amendment yesterday to his petition appealing from the decision of the board of appraisers who evaluated his land and boat house north of Iowa Union. The land has been condemned by the state for the erection of a fine arts colony.

DIXIE DUGAN—An Ancient Puzzle

Mrs. Pollak Freed After Murder Trial

Self-Defense Basis for Acquittal in Case, Rules Judge

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Amid the cheers of an unruly courtroom audience, Dorothy Pollak won her freedom today from blame for the killing of her husband.

Judge Harry M. Fisher accepted her story that despite Joe Pollak's threats and beatings and unfaithfulness she loved him, then shot him dead as he rushed at her, knife in hand.

"The law of self defense," Judge Fisher said, "is the law of nature and the right of every human being."

He said he must, perforce, acquit her of murder.

Lewis Seeks to End Indiana Mine War

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, who is to confer with representatives of Indiana coal operators and miners in an effort to reach a new wage agreement for the strife-torn Indiana coal fields. This will be the sixth negotiation between the Hoosier operators and miners since the old $6.10 daily wage scale expired March 31 and plunged the coal belts into turmoil. All past negotiations collapsed.

He did not know whether she held the pistol in right or left hand.

From their marriage in 1929 Joe beat and kicked her, she related, and threatened to "cut her heart out"—but through it all she loved him.

Testimony

When he came home July 27 and said it was "none of your business" where he had been, she testified: "I ran to the bedroom and started to cry. I heard a scream from my cousin, Victoria, and she said: 'Look out for Joe. He's coming with a knife!' I looked up and he was coming with a knife. I grabbed the gun from the commode. I said: 'Don't come near me' and he said 'I dare you to shoot.' He made a step toward me and I fired. I didn't fire to strike him. I just wanted to scare him."

Immediately after the shooting Mrs. Pollak telephoned the police, signed a confession of the killing.

Year's Education to Cost Freshmen 22.6 Cents Day

Outside Work Can Drop Base Cost, Survey Shows at Iowa

A year's education at the University of Iowa for an outlay to the institution of 22.6 cents per class day can be secured in the college of liberal arts by the freshman who is a resident of this state.

And if the student does outside work for partial self-support, he can scale the amount of the basic costs down in proportion to his industriousness, it was reported yesterday after an official compilation.

Basic Items Total $443

Items in the basic costs for the liberal arts freshman total $443, the survey reveals. These are: tuition, September to June, $96; board, $187; dormitory room, $90; matriculation fee, $10; and books, laboratory fees, and deposits, $60.

Since so much depends upon individual tastes, it is not possible to estimate amounts spent for such items as clothing and laundry, transportation, or miscellaneous expenses. These, however, need be no more than if the person were not in the university, officials declare.

Self-Support Valuable

Depending upon talent and ingenuity, a student can earn all of his expenses and there have even been exceptional cases where the student finished his four-year course with a financial profit.

Classes in all of the university's colleges begin Sept. 26, with registration starting five days earlier. Between Sept. 26 and June 5, the close of the second semester of 1932-33, there are 196 actual class days.

Andrew Gaze Bound Over to Grand Jury

Andrew Gaze, arrested July 14 and charged with breaking and entering, was bound to the grand jury of the September term of district court Wednesday by Police Judge Charles L. Zager.

Gaze was arrested when a complaint was filed charging him with breaking into the Sigma Chi fraternity house, 703 N. Dubuque street. His bond was placed at $2,500.

Both the United States and foreign government departments were quiet.

CASH for COAL

Do you know that every time you buy a ton of Pocahontas that the railroads get $4.91?

Do you know that every ton of Eastern Kentucky has a freight cost of $4.76?

Do you know that every ton of Southern Illinois has a freight cost of $3.10?

Did you ever figure out the amount of cash it takes to handle coal with the railroads demanding cash on delivery; our employees' payroll to be cashed every week; and the mining companies all practically on a cash basis?

On top of these conditions, we had 5 local banks close and over eight million dollars tied up.

These conditions are beyond our control and force us to say "COAL IS CASH." Order in such amounts as you can pay for in cash.
