NEW CLUE IN LINDBERGH MURDER

General Rodriguez Sure of Mexican Presidency

Revolt Party Gives Support to Candidacy

Congress Will Accept Resignation of Incumbent

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3 (AP)—General Abelardo L. Rodriguez, the scourge of the Escobar revolt in 1929, will be designated as President of Mexico by congress tomorrow in succession to President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, it was assured tonight.

General Rodriguez received the unanimous approval of the national revolutionary bloc in congress at a meeting of senators and deputies and will appear before a joint session to take the oath of office at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Senator Ortiz Rubio will have his resignation given to congress and acted on previously. Tomorrow night he will leave for Hot Springs, Ark., for rest and treatment. Former Minister of War Amaro will accompany him as far as the border.

Diplomat

The outgoing president said he had received health benefits at Hot Springs before and he hoped his condition would again be improved. After his return he indicated he might accept a diplomatic post abroad.

He took occasion to praise the work of American Ambassador J. Reuben Clark, Jr., and said his methods closely followed those of the late Dwight W. Morrow.

At a preliminary caucus this morning General Manuel erez Trevino, president of the party, said Mexico must show the world it has stable democratic government and that the change in administration must take place without disorder.

President Ortiz Rubio is retiring a little more than two and a half years after his inauguration. He was to have served the remaining four years of the six year term of the late Alvaro Obregon.

Rubio gave a farewell interview in which he explained that "serious reasons" were responsible for his retirement, listing some of them.

"Cordial Spirit"

"I resign with a spirit of cordiality," he said. "As you know the manner in which congress received my presidential address. I do not care to give the text of my resignation before it is presented to congress. The serious reasons I give in it are sufficient for my resignation.

"The principal reason is my health. The nation needs tranquility. The president must not be a national problem. When the president feels that he is the cause of agitation he should retire. He should not constitute a problem to the nation any more than any other man. Mexico has demonstrated its constitutional government and this we do for the good and tranquility of the nation."

The president smiled throughout the interview. He was visited during the day by most of his cabinet at Chapultepec. He bade all his household employes goodbye and embraced some of them. The stenographers and office girls shed tears.

Last Message

In his last official act as secretary of war, General Rodriguez, spending the day at Cuernavaca, telegraphed to all military commanders the following words:

"With reference to Senator Ortiz Rubio's decision to present his resignation, the army and navy will proceed to safeguard the institutions, keep order and lend all aid necessary to the new president, whom congress will designate in case of the acceptance of Senator Ortiz Rubio's resignation. Transmit these orders to the men of your command."

General Rodriguez's designation will bring another military figure to the presidency.

Waterloo Company Gets Contract for Woolf Avenue Bridge

Erasure of the sign on the fire station black board which reads "Woolf avenue closed" was in sight yesterday when John Sykes, resident engineer of the state highway commission, said the contract for the construction of a bridge over the relocated section of U. S. highway 6 has been let to the A. Olson Construction company of Waterloo.

Work on the new bridge is expected to be completed by Nov. 1, Mr. Sykes said. The bridge will be built of steel and concrete over the highway. The portion over the tracks of the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railway will remain as it is, except that it will probably be widened to allow room for a sidewalk.

Roosevelt for Taxation Cuts

Speaks Before Demos Gathering in Bridgeport

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 3 (AP)—Reduction in taxes, particularly those affecting the farmer, the small home owner and the railroads, was emphasized by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight in a presidential campaign address before Connecticut Democrats.

Declaring there is need everywhere for a "concentrated attention upon local government," the Democratic nominee for president asserted there should be a nationwide effort to effect substantial relief.

"The taxpayer, particularly the farmer, is blanketed by too many layers of local taxing authorities," he said.

"The relieving of this is our first responsibility in restoring his economic well-being.

"In a fundamental way, this problem is the source of much of our present distress. The mortgages on our farms and the foreclosures thereon burden our banks, which strains the entire credit structure of the country.

Railroad Burden

"Moreover, the railroads are likewise burdened by this local tax expense and it requires only a moment's reflection to see that when we burden the railroads in this way and force them to the brink of receivership, we are endangering the savings of the people in their savings banks and their insurance companies.

"The economic life of the country is a seamless web. It must be adjusted so that strains are equally distributed and constant vigilance must be exercised to avoid a break in any one place.

"My principle, however, and that of the Democratic party," he continued, "is that every part of this seamless web is precious to the welfare of the nation, and that the small farmer and the small home owner must be the object of our most careful solicitude in these times of distress and relief.

"It is because the leadership of the Republican party during these recent years has failed to understand that the government must consider the high, the middle and the low—has failed to consider the forest, the farm, the village and the city with equal justice, that millions of voters are turning today to the leadership of a revitalized Democracy.

"Strip Weeds"

"Change of party leadership does not strike at the fundamental principles of the republic. On the contrary it gives opportunity to strip from these fundamentals of the fathers the weeds and vines which today obscure the simplicity and the cleanliness of its outline.

"If you believe in that new deal you will have done your part towards the restoration of the purity and the success of representative government. We face the crisis with singleness of purpose and above all with faith."

The presidential candidate, flying the election of Wilbur J. Cross as Democratic governor of Connecticut, Governor Cross was his host at tonight's meeting.

Old Capitol Opens to Public Labor Day

Old Capitol, the seat of the first government of Iowa, famous for its hanging stairway and its great candelabra in the senate and house chambers, will be open for public inspection Labor day, according to an announcement yesterday.

Old Capitol has always held a strong appeal for visitors to Iowa City. Hundreds of persons have taken advantage of the opportunity to see the building on other days when it has been opened.

296 M.P.H. Record Set by Doolittle

Official Confirmation Waits on Check at Washington

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3 (AP)—A new land plane speed king was crowned today at the national air races as Major James H. Doolittle blistered over a three-kilometer course at an average of 296.287 miles an hour.

Eclipsing the eight year old record of Warrant Officer Bonnet, France, by 17.807 miles an hour, the St. Louis flyer blazed his snub-nosed plane six times over the straightaway and took the best four consecutive laps for his high average.

He carried a sealed barograph and his only doubt of not making an official record lay in a pull-up from the course at the beginning of his runs when a formation of army planes crossed his path to land.

Not Official Yet

His record may only be stamped as official after the instrument is calibrated in Washington and the flight report homologated by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, world governing aviation sport body in Paris.

The six speeds were clocked at 293.047, 287.154, 309.040, 281.955, 306.99, and 298.156 miles an hour, the average of the second to fifth dashes, inclusive, being taken as the new mark.

The crowd of a different kind of thrill late in the day when a reproduction of a "pusher" plane, piloted by Al Wilson of Hollywood, Cal., collided with an autogyro flown by Johnny Miller of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Wilson was reported critically injured, suffering from fractures of the left arm and left leg, lacerations of the head and a possible fractured skull. Miller and his passenger, William Miller, a newspaperman, escaped with a shaking up.

Collide Near Ground

The collision occurred near the ground in front of the stands. It was the second serious accident of the races, William A. Warrick, Jr., of Cleveland and Paul S. Bloom of Davenport, Ia., colliding in mid-air yesterday. Both were reported recovering tonight.

Major Doolittle, former air corps flyer, looked grim as he landed, but a wide grin spread over his face as he learned that he had succeeded in shattering the mark after failures Wednesday to carry a barograph when he averaged 292.801 miles an hour.

Then, with the sportsmanship which has endeared him to the flying fraternity, he said:

"We'll leave the next record to Russ Boardman. There are still more miles in the ship; he'll bust 300 miles an hour, and then we'll all be happy."

The plane, a barrel shaped ship with an 800-horsepower air-cooled engine, was to have been Boardman's entry in the races but an accident while testing another plane injured the transatlantic flyer, and Doolittle, whose own fast plane was damaged in a landing, at Wichita, Kan., slipped into his place.

Mrs. Halzlip Wins

His speedy dashes followed closely by the feat of Mrs. James Halzlip, flying the ship her husband used in setting a new west-east transatlantic record of 10 hours and 19 minutes Monday, in unofficially beating the women's world land plane record of 210.636 miles an hour, set in 1931 by Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., society flyer.

Mrs. Halzlip was clocked at 231.639 miles an hour on two laps over the straightaway, but her course was diagonal and timers were unable to get the photographic records necessary to make the runs official.

Lee Gehlbach, Mt. Clemens, Mich., flying a model of Major Doolittle's world record plane except for a lower powered engine, averaged 248.548 miles an hour in one passage over the course before pulling off because of failure to receive sufficient fuel from the plane's main tank.

Mrs. Betty Lund, Troy, Ohio, flying a ship borrowed from Art Davis, East Lansing, Mich., qualified

Will Discuss Plan for State's Relief at Iowa's Capital

DES MOINES, Sept. 3 (AP)—Plans for beginning relief on a statewide scale will be discussed here this week of Sept. 11, A. L. Urick, secretary of the emergency relief committee, announced today.

Members of county boards of supervisors have been asked to attend to present estimates of the amount of money needed in their counties for relief work. A state loan rather than loans to individual communities is planned. Governor Dan Turner has applied for a $10,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Wisconsin to Have Holiday

6,000 Farmers Pledge Support to Strike Movements

MARSHFIELD, Wis., Sept. 3 (AP)—Six thousand farmers voted at a statewide mass meeting here today to join the Farmers' National Holiday association, sponsors of the farm strike movement that originated in the midwest.

They set up a Wisconsin unit of the National association and elected a set of officers who will start at once organizing the state's 71 counties.

No action was taken to precipitate Wisconsin into an immediate strike.

National Role

Instead, the officers announced they will set out to build an organization which will ask all farmers to pledge themselves to hold their products from the market at such times as the national body designates—unless they get the cost of production.

Arnold Gilberts, 37, of Richland, was elected state president. He is connected with a Farmers' Union Oil cooperative.

Kenneth Hones, Colfax, chairman of the committee of three which arranged for the mass meeting, was named vice president. He also is an executive of the Farmers Union. A. G. Larson of Waupaca, is secretary-treasurer.

At 10 a.m. the hour set for the meeting, about one thousand persons were gathered in Columbus park. The crowd increased gradually and after an intermission for lunch there were fully 6,000 on the grounds within hearing distance of the loud speakers set up for the occasion.

Contribute $300

While townspeople mingled in the audience, farmers delegated by their local communities were in majority. Hats passed around in the crowd yielded the newly formed organization $219.30—the contributions being mostly nickels, dimes and pennies.

Groups represented at the meeting either officially or unofficially included the Farmers Union, which is most active in behalf of the farm strike, the Wisconsin cooperative milk pool, the Wisconsin Dairy Union and the progressive farmers. According to President Gilberts, who declared at the morning meeting that the farmers will go to extremes, if necessary, to increase present prices for farm products, the holiday movement in Wisconsin will be organized systematically.

Arrangements were made today for selection of county groups which will enlist workers to sign up all farmers they can on pledges they will refuse to sell, at any date, the national association prescribes.

Case in Hands of People of New York City, Says Jimmy

Question of Al Smith's Support for Walker If He Runs in Doubt; Smith Silent Concerning Reports

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP)—James J. Walker left the way open tonight for a fight to regain the toga of mayor which he voluntarily put aside two days ago.

"Are you going to be a candidate for re-election?" he was asked as he rested in his apartment.

"My case is in the hands of the people of New York city," he replied slowly.

"I am not going to urge them one way or another.

"My record as mayor of the city of New York is all I have to offer.

"The Democratic party as well as the people of New York have my case. I want the fellow on the street—the man and the woman on the street—to decide it.

People's Judgment

"The statement as mayor must be judged and I want the people's frank and definite judgment."

It was the first statement he had made since he resigned at the height of removal proceedings before Governor Roosevelt, which grew out of a legislative investigation of the city government.

The statement fell into a bubbling mass of speculation over what national political repercussions are likely to result from the tangled situation.

At the same time "Al" Smith's name was injected into the discussions.

The Post reported it had learned on "excellent authority" that if Walker becomes a candidate and Smith's aid is sought, the "happy warrior of 1928" will reply, in effect, that "he cannot support a man who resigned under fire."

Smith himself was silent.

Smith and Walker are fellow members of Tammany Hall.

Driver Killed When Cars Lock Wheels at Minnesota Fair

ST. PAUL, Sept. 3 (AP)—An automobile racer was injured fatally today as two speeding cars locked wheels and careened against a concrete wall during the opening day program of the Minnesota state fair.

Charles Anderson, Minneapolis, died within a few minutes of a fractured skull. Emery Collins, LeMars, Iowa, driving the other car, was not injured and prepared at once to enter the next race.

Judges estimated the cars were going 65 miles an hour on the dirt track.

Stocks Move to New Peak

Session One of Year's Most Active in Day's Trade

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP)—Optimism ran high in the financial markets today, and after seeing stocks move to new average peaks for the year Wall street shut up until next Tuesday morning, hoping that business would definitely improve after Labor day.

It was a busy morning on the New York stock exchange, the street was in a decidedly bullish mood and even though many traders were away for an extended week end, the session was one of the year's most active. Rosy rumors circulated with a freedom that was reminiscent of just three years ago when, incidentally, the market was touching the pinnacle of the "new era."

Justification

Brokers maintained that there was real justification for cheerfulness, pointing to forecasts of larger steel operations in the near future, to the strong commodity markets and to a gain in freight car loadings which, on a percentage basis, was of normal seasonal size. Stock trading was so brisk that the ticker once fell six minutes behind, and sales swelled to 2,440,380 shares for the two hours.

Extreme advances were somewhat reduced by late profit-taking, but the market closed strongly and the composite kept by Standard Statistics company, embracing 90 representative issues finished at $72, a new 1932 high and a level that represented recovery of about half the ground lost between price levels existing a year ago and the bear market lows of June. In other words, the appreciation from June's minimums has been slightly more than 100 per cent, adding more than $13,000,000,000 to quoted values of shares listed in the stock exchange.

Steels, Utilities Lead

Steel and utility stocks were leaders, although the entire market was strong. United States Steel common, touched $51.82 and closed only 12 cents under the top for a net gain of $1.50. Bethlehem continued its spectacular recovery, adding $3.62 to yesterday's list price, which meant a quotation of $27.37. Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Republic Steel, Crucible, National Steel and McKeesport Tin Plate were up $1 to more than $2.

American Telephone gained $2 to $120, but lost half its rise. Western Union was bid up to $5 to $48.12, while North American, American Water Works and Consolidated Gas advanced $1 to $22.5. Ralls were inclined to be quieter than of late, although Central of New Jersey soared $5. Delaware and Hudson $4, Southern Pacific $2 and Santa Fe $2.50. United Aircraft jumped $5.25.

Hold Suspect for Questions on Kidnaping

Hopewell Fish Dealer Arrested, Held by Police

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3 (AP)—Sheriff Ira McCloskey of Clearfield county tonight announced that a man describing himself as Garret Schenck, Hopewell, N. J., fish merchant, is being quizzed in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case.

McCloskey said that he and other officers found Schenck this afternoon in an abandoned farmhouse four miles from Somerset. The sheriff declared that two of three men who kept guard over Schenck also were being quizzed.

McCloskey stated that Schenck was taken from his fish wagon in Hopewell 76 days ago by a private investigator of Johnstown, on the latter's own initiative, and brought to a mountain cabin near Dubois.

Three men, McCloskey held, held Schenck captive on pistol point there and on Aug. 25 transferred him to the Somerset "hideout."

McCloskey said he traced Schenck with the aid of a Johnstown man and went to the Dubois cabin this afternoon, only to learn that Schenck had been taken to the Somerset farmhouse. McCloskey and other officers then went to the Somerset farmhouse and found Schenck, guarded by one man. This man was taken into custody and later another guard was apprehended. The whereabouts of the third guard is unknown.

Schenck and the two guards were brought here and McCloskey and other police officers started questioning Schenck.

Authorities plan to take Schenck to Clearfield, where agents of the bureau of investigation, department of justice, will take up the questioning.

U. S. Agent on Arrest Scene

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP) —

The bureau of investigation of the justice department tonight ordered an agent to Johnstown, Pa., where a man identified as Garret Schenck has been arrested for questioning in the Lindbergh kidnaping, to see if the department "has any jurisdiction or any interest in the new angle."

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau, said he had received word of the arrest from Pennsylvania authorities and had directed Francis X. Fay, agent in charge of the Pittsburgh field office, to go immediately to Johnstown.

Fay, Hoover explained, was authorized to conduct a thorough investigation of the Schenck angle and to confer with state and local officers.

Hoover said he was not familiar with the details involved in the arrest which, he said, was engineered by local authorities in Pennsylvania, but added he understood Schenck came to Pennsylvania from Trenton, N. J., where he was a fish dealer.

Hoover indicated that if a preliminary inquiry disclosed sufficient basis for federal action, the bureau would take custody of the prisoner and conduct an intensive investigation of the report that he has knowledge of the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Great Guy, Vallee

At Least While He Lasted, Says Ex-Wife of Future, While She Awaits Train

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP)—Reno bond, Fay Webb Vallee stopped off here between trains today and confided to reporters that her intended ex-husband, Rudy Vallee, was "a great guy—while he lasted."

"And Rudy's still a great guy," she added quickly.

Accompanied by her father, police chief of Santa Monica, Cal., Mrs. Vallee, wife of the crooner, said she would go to Ames, Ia., for a visit with her mother's family before establishing residence at Reno to obtain a divorce.

Mrs. Vallee and her father negotiated a property settlement with Vallee in the east. The settlement was reported to include a $100,000 villa in California and $12,000 annually.

"Of course," she said, "I still like Rudy. We're regular pals."

Mrs. Vallee said she expected to obtain the divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

She indicated to reporters that the movies likely would be her next attempt,

Railroader, in Chicago, Dead

Arthur Wells, Santa Fe Vice President, Dies at 70

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP)—Arthur G. Wells, vice president in charge of operations for the Santa Fe railroad, died today in Presbyterian hospital. Pneumonia following an operation three weeks ago caused his death.

Wells would have been 71 years old on Nov. 18.

He had been with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad continuously since 1893 and prior to that time had served between 1881 and 1886 with the same road.

Wells was stationed for many years in Los Angeles, being transferred here in 1920.

He is survived by his widow, Gertrude, and two daughters, Mrs. H. Morton Johnson of Los Angeles and Mrs. R. Hunter Clarkson of Santa Fe, N. M.

Wells was born in Guleph, Ont., on Nov. 18, 1861, and was educated at the Guelph Collegiate institute, coming to this country soon afterwards.

Men Drown as Bridge Drops

15 Plunged Into Torrent as International Span Crumbles

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 3 (AP)—Several men were believed to have drowned in the flooded Rio Grande here late today when two spans of the international railroad bridge collapsed.

Fifteen men standing on the structure were plunged into the racing torrent. Later four of them were seen clinging to lamp posts on a submerged footbridge.

One of the men who managed to reach a lamp post crawled ashore. He was E. E. Sharkey, a conductor on the National lines of Mexico.

Searching parties ran down the river bank to aid any other survivors in reaching shore.

The bridge gave way near the Mexican bank. It had been weakened by the steady pounding of debris and the surging current.

Rain began to fall in Laredo this afternoon, adding to the gravity of the situation. The river was above the 45-foot stage and showed no indication it would recede immediately.

No Request Made for Arrest

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP) —

Captain John J. Lamb, one of the officials directing the investigation of the Lindbergh kidnaping, tonight said the New Jersey state police had not requested that Garret Schenck be taken into custody for questioning in connection with the case.

He said the state police had no knowledge of the arrest of Schenck and would not seek to question him, so far as he knew.

Vorheis Kills Self in Muscatine Cell; Jailed for Forgery

L. E. Vorheis of Iowa City committed suicide in the city jail at Muscatine last night, according to word received by local police.

Vorheis was arrested yesterday afternoon by Muscatine police for giving a bogus check in payment for a suit of clothes. The means by which he killed himself were not revealed.

Poggenpohl Suffers Amputation

Amputation of the left arm of Charles Poggenpohl, 920 Seventh avenue, was necessitated late Friday night as the result of injuries received when he fell from the top of the garage at his home Friday afternoon.

To Face Trial

GRUNDY CENTER, Sept. 3 (AP)—Cressy R. Whaylen of Waterloo, will go on trial Sept. 19 in Grundy county district court for the slaying of his stepmother, Mrs. Florence Mae Whaylen, July 1.

In observance of Labor Day, there will be no issue of The Daily Iowan Tuesday morning to allow employees a holiday tomorrow.

He Overlooked Russia

IF THE WORLD were ruled by engineers and scientists, Prof. Miles Walker told the British Association for the Advancement of Science Friday, there would be no depression, poverty would be wiped out, and everybody would be much happier.

Professor Walker also made a diagnosis of the world's ailments before the august body of scientists. The trouble with everything is that the world is run on the principle of every man for himself, he said.

With the engineers and scientists in control, the young people of the world would do all the work, the average standard of living would be $3,000 annually or more, there would be a universal language and monetary system, and war between nations would be a thing of the past, because everybody's wants would be satisfied.

The other ailments of the world which the professor mentioned were poverty in possession, poverty in outlook, and incompetence in rulers. He took a cut at the United States by telling the assemblage that especially was the last ailment true in this country.

Professor Walker wants the British nation to establish such a colony as an experiment; about 100,000 persons would be included in the group.

Why he thinks it necessary to establish such a colony as an experiment is a bit hard to understand. The professor evidently has overlooked that great experiment in standardization of living. The experiment is now known as Soviet Russia. He might raise the argument that Russia has no engineers and scientists left alive at present to form the governing nucleus of such an existence.

All the other features of the idea are present, however, and they compare almost coincidentally with Russia's idea. Perhaps Russia may make a success of it, in time, but assuredly the nation has not found much glory or accomplishment in its near present history.

With the loss of individuality, individual effort and individual gain, the structure of a nation, or the structure of a world, would be in a state of peaceful slothfulness. The situation would be exactly back to the same status as it had always been in a short time—the rulers and the masses, leaders and followers.

No man, if it were possible to get ahead, would be content to spend his lifetime in the masses, and the ruling bodies would not long maintain their internal equality; the human animal just doesn't work under standardization.

Decent Government

"DON'T CARE what a man's or woman's politics are," said Gov. Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin, the other day. "What we all are interested in is decent government."

He qualified his statement during a talk to some 200 loyal supporters in upstate Wisconsin by mentioning millionaires and soaking the rich and class legislation and excessive property taxation. He advocated further reduction of property taxes to relieve the farm situation. He advocated collecting from those best able to pay.

The political situation in Wisconsin is different from other states, the tax situation is different, the relief burden is different, the farm conditions are different. Yet when the governor of Wisconsin says "decent government" everybody knows what he means. Decent government—in Wisconsin that has to do with taxes—is common language throughout the 48 states, whether it means Republican, Democratic, Socialist, or Farmer-Labor or Progressive administration.

Indecent government denotes misplaced tax burdens more than any other single item. Maladministration doesn't affect more people than work for the government, except those who want to put the taxpayers wise to fraudulent use of taxes. And so the tax question contains the secret to decent government, that is, according to Phil LaFollette.

But what about prohibition, farm strike, education, interstate commerce, foreign trade, waterways, railroads, and a thousand and one other things tied up directly with the lives of the people. It just isn't possible to point out the tax question as the single key to good, decent government.

Breaking Formality

"THE FLYING HUTCHINSONS"—no, not a circus act, are now enroute on their leisurely trip from America to England. George Hutchinson, his wife, their two small daughters, and a crew of four, took off in their plane Friday from Labrador to Gothaab, Greenland, and plan to turn from there to the continent of Europe.

Authorities at Gothaab stated soon after they took off that the Danish government would frown on the family's flying over Greenland, and would possibly confiscate their ship, if their passports were not in order, "as they would not be."

All of which is serious and at the same time a bit comic.

If international jaunts become a habit with the world through the medium of air travel, or a commercial assurance, there should be one result that would augur for the world's good. That is the breaking down of passport formality, and the difficulties of getting from one country to another.

Maybe it will be through people like the Hutchinsons that the world's nations will get to be better "neighbors."

Young Communists Show Off

(From the Kansas City Star)

The riot staged in a New York court by children in their early teens, apparently under Communist influence, once more raises the question as to how far tolerance is justified in dealing with this type of propaganda. Communist agitators in the United States seem to have paid a good deal of attention to the "education" of children in the principles of their cause. In this case, evidently, the principle of direct action had been included. Children of that age, of course, are not able to comprehend political theories, and their conversion to Communism is meaningless, except in as far as it creates disturbances, such as occurred in the New York court.

Indeed, the methods employed by the Communists to spread their doctrine in this country seem generally futile and stupid. They have chosen to appeal largely to ignorance and race prejudice, with the result that most intelligent persons have come to regard them as a nuisance, rather than a menace. Their tampering with children is a case in point. It simply tends to create public animosity for a system which, although itself highly intolerant, is constantly imposing upon the tolerance of others by its attempts at propaganda.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

California in November will present one of the strange anomalies of politics that might prove or disprove anything. For at the next election, a Republican "wettest of the wet" will oppose a dry Democrat for the U. S. senatorship. Tallant Tubbs vs. William Gibbs McAdoo, and may the best man win.

McAdoo, although in San Francisco beaten by more than 18,000 votes, cleaned up the rest of the state so successfully that there wasn't much doubt left about his popularity, even as a dry. On the other hand, Tubbs' success may be partly due to the unpopularity of Senator Shortridge, his opponent.

Nevertheless, the whole thing may prove that, after all, prohibition is not the big issue and that voters are getting some education along that line. There may be other contributing causes, but in California's instance, at least, prohibition is not the one shining feature of the year.

McAdoo's suggestion that his nomination shows that Roosevelt and Garner can't lose in California may throw some light on the situation. If the U. S. senatorial race was a barometer of the presidential contest, then prohibition was just sidetracked as of less import.

But, McAdoo's success can easily be laid to the backing of the Hearst papers and his support of the deal that nominated Roosevelt at Chicago. That latter event brought McAdoo back into the limelight as a convention "big shot," and won him a lot of support back home. His work in the government during war days is all to the good, besides.

And so, perhaps, it was a matter of personalities in the California primary that brought about such an odd situation. Whether California Republicans want repeal of the eighteenth amendment, or whether California Democrats want prohibition is still rather evasive. It's just one of those things that remain mysteries. And probably all for the better.

The London Daily Herald took a crack at Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and his mysterious visit to the United States under the name of Prof. Clarence Skinner, in an editorial the other day, entitled "Silly Secrecy." In part, it relates: "Grave fears are being expressed in financial circles at the recrudescence of methods of 'secret diplomacy' and the effect which this may have on other countries represented at the world economic conference.

"Norman's American visit is even more dangerous. People on both sides of the Atlantic are getting tired of his theatrical pretentiousness. . . . Disastrous results have so frequently followed Norman's mysterious voyages that this grave disquiet is amply justified."

Nevertheless, Montagu Norman insists that he's on a vacation, state officials declare he's visited them just on social calls, financial leaders say they've conferred with him just to pass the time of day, and W. R. Hearst insists there's a rat, if only people would wake up and smell it.

If he is here for a "private and unofficial investigation in preparation for a drastic reduction of war debts to be asked of the United States by her European debtors immediately after the presidential elections," as it is stated in "informed" circles, then there is nothing to keep so mysteriously under cover. We've suggested before that he was here to see the eclipse, and now that that's over with and he doesn't go home, it begins to look like we were wrong.

Book Reviews

Master of Chaos by Irving Bachel-ler; Bobbs-Merrill, $2. Reviewed by John C. Palmer.

Irving Bachel-ler has written another historical romance, this time around the character of George Washington and his contemporaries, during the early parts of the Revolutionary war from the siege of Boston to the surrender of Burgoyne. The story centers around the romance of Colin Cabot, just out of Harvard and an ardent patriot, and Pat Payerweather, of a loyalist family, but also a patriot in beliefs. "Our hero" is separated from the belle of Boston when he escapes through the British lines to join Washington and his ragged army outside Boston. From then on, except for a few brief tele-grams, the romance is carried on by means of letters until the two are finally reunited after Saratoga.

As for the historical background Bachel-ler says in the preface: "Having consulted available authorities, with some sixty thousand words in my note books to guide me, I shall have been a dull student if I am not able to give my readers a fairly correct estimate of Washington and of the chaos with which he had to deal in making war with the most formidable empire on earth. I have tried to reproduce in this story, with a degree of precision, the spirit, certain of the leading characters and even the vernacular of the Revolutionary time."

Out of such a momentous attempt, Bachel-ler has achieved a story which is entertaining and never lags, yet I laid it down with a sense of something missing. In the first place the book is too short to do justice to Mr. Bachel-ler's historical investigations as well as the romance he has evolved. Whether the romance so fascinated the author that he neglected the background is a question.

At all odds he has given a fairly good picture of George Washington in a human setting, and the difficulties with which he had to contend. However it seems to me he has made the father of his country almost too good to be true. He seems to have overemphasized his good qualities, and neglected his faults entirely, with the result that we have something of the traditional story book, I-cannot-tell-a-lie Washington.

In Mrs. Washington he has pictured a kindly, humorous, sympathetic, romantic man who is delighted at the opportunity to aid Colin's budding romance. She is altogether human and whether she is true to life or not, leaves the reader with a warm feeling for her.

Whatever its faults of omission or brevity, this book is well worth the reader's time for the insight it gives into those troublous times. The minor characters, conversation, in fact all of the details, give the impression of authenticity. One feels that the author is thoroughly acquainted with his subject, and presents it with a naturalness, which is foreign to most historical novels.

She Takes a Lover by Anthony Thorne; Macmillan, $2. Reviewed by Philip S. Newson.

Peter Dane fell over a precipice to his death hurling his wife, who no longer loved him, into a chaos of more or less trite situations.

Frances, the widow, resolved to have nothing further to do with men; she felt she had been deceived by them. Her life was shattered. She was convinced that no man was perfect and that most of them were perfectly awful.

But she forgot her resolve and weakened. She fell in love with a handsome word artist who regarded her as a somewhat clever toy never to be taken too seriously. Most of her time, however, was divided between a desire to hurt herself at his feet and the necessity of being a good sport. Usually she was a good sport and at the end of the story goes so far as to let him leave without telling him that she is to have a child.

The reader throughout is impressed with the feeling of sadness and a sense of boredom. The situations resulting from a sophisticated age, the characters moving within a sophisticated atmosphere, and the sophisticated handling of the whole problem are tiring. At times a paragraph or two will rise above its fellows and sparkle momentarily, but for the most part the book is hardly worth reading.

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

By HARRISON CARROLL
STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Two weeks from now George M. Cohan will say goodbye to Hollywood. His first, and perhaps his last, talking picture will be completed and his thoughts will be directed towards the coming theatrical season during which he plans to offer three plays on Broadway.

The first will be unnamed comedy, which he purchased last year; the second, his own play, "Go East Young Man" and the third, "Confidential Service," in which he will act. About the talkies, the famous song and dance man is uncertain. "They are an interesting and educational experience," he says. "I wouldn't have missed them for a great deal. But I know I would never feel perfectly at home in pictures. And this doesn't imply any criticism of them. I suppose it's just a case of every dog liking his own kennel. And the stage is my kennel."

As far as Paramount is concerned, the talkies also could be Mr. Cohan's kennel. The studio is pleased with his picture, "The Phantom President," and would be glad to go on with the second talkie, which was vaguely planned when the Broadway favorite came out to Hollywood at the beginning of the summer.

But the veteran of the White Way years for the familiar boards of the theater and for the warming spell of applause. And so he goes back, carrying with him the fond wishes of many expatriated cronies and of a multitude of new friends. Hollywood will miss his genial presence.

Here's a re-wrable of the auto-graph seeker, as related by James Creelman: The other noontime the scenarist was hailed as he left the Brown Derby. "But I'm not an actor," he protested. "I know it," replied the signature-grabber. "You are James Creelman, the writer." "Well, did you ever see any picture I wrote?" persisted Creelman. "Oh no," admitted the other. "But you had Mary Brian out to lunch yesterday."

BOULEVARD TOPICS
Bebe Daniels is very much upset over the loss of her wedding ring, which was vaguely planned when she took it off on the set the other day for a marriage scene with Edward G. Robinson. An attendant received it, but when the scene was over, the slender band was nowhere to be found. A diligent search is still going on. . . . For eccentric costumes, Katharine Hepburn out-Garbo Garbo. The New York stage actress parades around the R-K-O lot in blue overalls topped with a Russian smock. . . . Orchestra leader Red Stanley remains out here to become an actor. Just for fun, the lean, carrot-topped Texan played a drunk in a recent Jimmie Dunn picture. Now Fox has hired him to impersonate a cowboy in the new George O'Brien western. . . . After four months of labor, a famous Hollywood makeup authority has just completed the most realistic fake gorilla to date. The nostrils dilate and the lips draw down in a snarl. Worn by an ape impersonator, it will give you chills in a forthcoming thriller. . . . Several studios are bidding for the services of Grace Fogli, Italian dancer, at the Aqua Caliente Hotel. This spot is doing big business again since the new midnight closing rule at the border went into effect.

I.F.E. Club Opens Year on Sept. 13 With History Talk

Organization Began in 1915; Has Membership of 16 Women at Present; Will Conduct Programs Through Nine Months

"Think for thyself one good idea, but known to be thine own..." Such is the motto of the I. F. E. club, a social group in which only members of the immediate organization participate on programs with discussions of histories of interesting places, biographies of famous men, and reviews of new books.

Organized in 1915, the club has a membership of 16 women. Officers are Mrs. Cathrine Hope, president; Mrs. Josie Snider, vice president; Mrs. W. F. McRoberts, secretary-treasurer. The following committees have been appointed: program, Mrs. Edith West, Mrs. Vina Davis, Mrs. Josie Moon; entertainment, Mrs. E. E. Lawyer, Mrs. H. A. Spencer, and Mrs. Annette Yoder; refreshment, Mrs. Ed McCollister, Mrs. Margaret S. Day, and Mrs. Fred Meardon.

The club will hold its first meeting of the year Sept. 13 at the home of Mrs. Spencer. Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m., after which Mrs. Yoder will discuss the history of the State University of Iowa.

Hospitals

On Sept. 27 Mrs. Gertrude Mercer will talk about the state hospitals of Iowa at the home of Mrs. Snider. Mrs. McCollister will entertain the group at her home Oct. 11, at which time Mrs. Spencer will talk about the child welfare department.

The state parks of Iowa will be described by Mrs. Ada McCollister Oct. 25, when Mrs. McRoberts is hostess to the group at her home.

Mrs. Davis will select a book which she will review for the meeting on Nov. 8, at the home of Mrs. T. N. Wagner. At the home of Mrs. Lawyer on Nov. 22, Mrs. Day will describe the native trees of Iowa.

A Christmas program has been planned for Dec. 13, with Mrs. Lawyer in charge. Mrs. Hope will be hostess to the members at a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home.

A talk by Mrs. Snider on "Theodore Roosevelt—ambassador for a day," will follow a meeting at the home of Mrs. Davis Jan. 3.

Review Jan. 17

"We Must March" will be reviewed by Mrs. Edith West, Jan. 17 when Mrs. Day entertains the group at her home. Industrial schools of Iowa will be discussed by Mrs. Hope at the home of Mrs. Yoder Jan. 31. For Feb. 28 a meeting has been planned at the home of Mrs. Greer, with Mrs. Moon relating the life of George Washington.

Mrs. Dunham will entertain the group at her home March 14, when Mrs. Wagner talks about "Dirigibles."

On March 28, the lakes and streams of Iowa will be described by Mrs. Alice Greer, at the home of Mrs. Moon.

During Iowa History week, Mrs. McRoberts will relate the history of Iowa. The club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Meardon.

Election of officers will take place April 25 at the home of Mrs. Miller. No definite program has been planned to follow the business session.

Mrs. Meardon will tell a short story on May 9, when Mrs. West is hostess to the group at her home. The annual picnic will close the club calendar for the year.

After covering 12,000 miles and 36 states by bus in a search that rivaled that of Diogenes, these five university men are back in New York, confessing failure. They were seeking just one inebriate who had been reformed by prohibition, but so far they say they have sought in vain. However, they collected some figures to show that 24 billion dollars had been expended in the last 12 years in an attempt to enforce the liquor laws. The men are, left to right: Paul Morris, Dr. Robert N. Nicholson, Russell G. Salmon, J. Ward Ryan and Ernest W. Borkland.

Hoover in Close Touch With Farm Situation, Says Hyde

SHENANDOAH, Sept. 3 (AP)—your logic will in the end bring you to grips with the surplus. American farmers have other ills but if we can solve the problem of the surplus we shall be on our way to prosperity.

A second factor at work, the secretary said, is the present American transportation system which makes every farmer a competitor of every other farmer.

"The available supply of wheat or corn or hogs is the sum total of the production of all the farmers in America. They all join together to add to the surplus and all suffer together when the surplus breaks the price.

"Some folks would whisk the surplus out of the way by dumping it abroad at any old price and absorbing the loss out of what is consumed at home. The equalization fee, the debenture, and to some extent the domestic allotment plan are based on this idea. The weakness of them all is that if they were even temporarily successful they would stimulate more production and thus not only defeat themselves but leave us with a larger surplus."

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

It is a well known fact that beltless frocks make one appear much taller and slimmer. The lines of the frock sketched are most interesting as they produce the slender hip illusion. The sleeve treatment is very new and really delightful and the bow at the neck is applied in a novel way. Satins and crepes are chic this season.

Pattern 2270 may be ordered only in sizes 16 to 20 and 34 to 44. Size 16 requires 4 1/8 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 1/4 yard 39 inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted.

The fall and winter edition of the Anne Adams pattern catalog is ready! Charming, flattering models—32 pages of the newest and best house, street and formal frocks—cleverly designed styles for large figures—and beautiful, practical models for juniors and kiddies. Lovely lingerie patterns, and suggestions for gifts that can be easily and inexpensively made, are also included. Send for the new catalog. Price of catalog, fifteen cents. Catalog and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Gar Wood's Entry Wins First Heat

Miss America (top), Gar Wood's giant speedboat, and Miss England III, the latest speed creation of Kaye Don, noted British speedster, are shown here in trial runs at Detroit where they prepared for the Harmsworth Trophy series for the world's speedboat championship. In the first heat of the series yesterday, Gar Wood came from behind in the last lap to gain a victory over his English rival. They will make the second run tomorrow where another win would cinch the cup for Gar Wood for another year.

Kaye Don's Boat Falter

Harmsworth Cup Races Continue With 2nd Heat Tomorrow

DETROIT, Sept. 3 (AP)—The jinx that for more than a decade has dogged every foreign quest for the Harmsworth trophy settled on the white hull of Miss England III today and snatched away what seemed to be an almost certain victory in the first heat of that speedboat classic. The veteran, Gar Wood, who had trailed as much as a mile and a half most of the way, came from behind and coasted to an easy victory.

For more than 25 miles of the 35-mile course, Kaye Don, the British speed king, had led Wood, driving his Miss America X over the rain-swept and choppy course in Lake St. Clair. Then something happened. Don's speed suddenly dropped from 79.20 statute miles an hour in the fourth lap to 49.66 miles an hour in the final circling of the course.

Wood, meanwhile, had stepped up his speed in the fourth lap, overtook the British challenger in the fifth and final lap and won throated down to 73.357 miles an hour. Miss England III finished nearly three minutes behind the defender.

Don, after the race, explained that his hydroplane began shipping huge quantities of water, that one of her two 12-cylinder motors went out of commission and that carburetor trouble developed.

The race was run under probably the most adverse conditions that either Don or Wood has contended with in powerboat competition. Rain that started before daylight ceased long enough to permit a start at 7 a. m., and soon began falling again. A snappy breeze kicked up whitecaps and made the course unusually rough.

Under these conditions neither Don nor Wood equaled last year's best average speed for the Harmsworth, 89.913 miles an hour, made by Don when he beat Wood in the first heat.

Wood's average speed today for the 35 nautical miles was 78.489 statute miles per hour. His best lap was at 87.387 statute miles an hour in the second time around. Don's average for the heat was 71.265 miles an hour and his best lap, the first, was 88.885 per hour.

Tonight Don's mechanics were working on the British challenger and expected to have her ready for the second heat at 6:30 a. m., Monday.

The two speediest hydroplanes in the world were on the course just a little more than half an hour—Wood's official time for the 35 nautical miles was 30:48.72 and Don's 33:55.92. It was half an hour that brought more than 125,000 persons to the mainland side of the course to sit through a drizzle of rain, and other thousands in canoes, boats,

Bruins Take Long Opener Behind Bush

Red Birds' Star Tight in Pinches, Fans 7 in Nightcap

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP)—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean today ended the Chicago Cubs sensational string of victories at 14, shutting out the National league leaders, 3 to 0, in the second game of a double header. The Cubs gained their 14th in a row by winning the opener, 5 to 4, in 11 innings, before an overflow crowd of 43,000.

Dean gave up eight hits and was in trouble several times, but bore down and smothered the Cub sluggers with men on. He struck out seven batters, two of them for third outs with base runners waiting.

Tinning Finishes Pat Malone, who opposed Dean at the start, was a pretty good pitcher, giving seven hits and two runs in seven innings. Bud Tinning finished and was the victim of the final Cardinal error, although an error by Hemsley let it in.

Guy Bush outlasted Paul Deringer and Tex Carleton in the opener, in which the Cubs blew a four-run lead to send the contest into extra innings. The Cards tied it up in the eighth when Bottomley lined a home run into the rightfield stands with a mate astride.

English's single with Hack on third drove in the winning run. St. Louis scored in the first inning of the second game, on Charley Wilson's double into the crowd, and long flies by Medwick and Frisch. Another double by Flowers, followed by Mancuso's single produced one in the fifth, and Flowers' second double, a stolen base and Hemsley's error accounted for the last one.

It was the Cubs' first defeat since Aug. 19, when the Boston Braves defeated Malone, who was charged with today's defeat. The defeat was the second in 19 home games, and the sixth in 30 games since Charlie Grimm succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager.

The Cubs close the present home stand tomorrow with one game against the Cardinals.

Siipi Loop Prexy Calls Meeting; Will Make Series Plans

KEOKUK, Sept. 3 (AP)—President C. B. Logan of the Mississippi Valley baseball league today called a meeting of representatives of the Rock Island, Davenport, Burlington, Keokuk and Cedar Rapids clubs to arrange for the playoff series for the league title.

The meeting will be held at Davenport next Wednesday. Keokuk, Burlington and Cedar Rapids were asked to participate because each team has an "outside chance" to win the second half pennant. Davenport at present is leading. Rock Island won the first half of the season.

Jimmy Foxx Keeps Lead

Has Good Chance for Passing Home Run Mark of Ruth

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP)—Gaining almost daily in momentum, Jimmy Foxx's latest drive toward the American league batting championship has carried him to his highest lead over the field since early July.

Starting his drive two weeks ago, the Athletics' first baseman picked up speed last week, and figures which include Friday's games gave him an average of .363. During the week he hit the baseball at an even .500 clip, and added seven points to his mark. Ranking second among the regulars was that old familiar figure, Babe Ruth, who improved his average a single point to .347—16 points back of the hustling Foxx.

Chance for Record Foxx added another pair of home runs to his total, giving him 49 and a splendid chance of reaching Ruth's major league record of 60 for a season; continued to set the pace in scoring with 134 runs, and blasted in seven runs to bring his total in the latter important department to 143. He had 375 total bases, for another leadership, but yielded the base hit crown, at least temporarily, to his teammate, Al Simmons. Simmons had 185 hits, but Foxx was only one behind, with Helme Manush of Washington, in close pursuit with 182.

Two other leaderships changed hands. Charley Gehring of Detroit, had a total of 39 two base hits to take the lead from Roy Johnson of Boston, and Joe Cronin of Washington, assumed the edge in three base hits, with 16, displacing his colleague, Buddy Myer. Ben Chapman of the Yankees, as usual, was well in front in base stealing, having snatched 33.

Yank Pitchers Lead The league leading Yankees again monopolized the choice positions among the pitchers. Johnny Allen scored his fifteenth victory during the week, and had met defeat only twice. The left handed ace of Joe McCarthy's staff, Vernon Gomez, accounted for another triumph and had won 22 games, while losing six. Tony Freitas, the young Philadelphia southpaw, lost one and ranked behind Gomez with 10 victories and three defeats.

Paced by Foxx, the Athletics improved their collective batting average three points to .293, to break their tie with the Yankees, and in team fielding, Washington and the A's remained tied at .980. The Chicago White Sox clicked off seven double plays for a leading total of 141.

Other leading hitters, following Foxx and Ruth, were: Manush, Washington, .346; Gehrig, New York, .344; Ferrell, St. Louis, .329; Jolley, Chicago-Boston, .326; Burns, St. Louis, .321, and Cronin, Washington, .319.

Three Diamondball Contests Here Today Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Purdy Bakers, at present at the top of the American diamondball league, will take on a North Liberty outfit in a regular seven-inning game, the first of three contests booked for the day.

The other two games, finding the Maid-Rite and T. Dell Kelley teams in action against out of town opponents, will be played under the lights at night.

Maid-Rite will play the first game at 7 o'clock against West Liberty. Kelley's will follow at about 8:15 against the Muscatine Journal team, an outfit over which they hold one decision.

Errors Costly as Moline Wins, 14 to 6 DUBUQUE, Sept. 3 (AP)—Moline took advantage of Dubuque misplays and hit the ball opportunely to win 14 to 6 and a clean sweep of the series. Stehml pitched excellently for four innings and in the fifth he fell to pieces and allowed six runs. From that time on Moline could not be stopped.

Latter Checks Creavy's Bid to Hold Title

Californian's Great Par Golf Establishes Him Meet Favorite

By PAUL MCKELSON Associated Press Sports Writer ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3 (AP)—Turning back a dramatic challenge by Tom Creavy in a stirring overtime struggle of 38 holes, Frank Walsh of Chicago today joined Olin Dutra, the par busting tendor from Santa Monica, Cal., in the finals of the national professional golf championship.

Creavy, fighting the battle of his golfing life to keep his crown, wrote a comeback saga for the northland galleries over the wind-tossed Kellar. Right down after the morning round, he stormed back in the afternoon to square the match on the 36th green and then tossed it away by miffing a five foot putt on the second extra green.

Dutra Wins Easily Dutra fairly romped into the finals with a 3 and 2 triumph in a battle of the Giants against Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., grabbing a four up margin in the morning with a brilliant 67—his fourth score in the sixties during the tournament—and playing with fair comfort during the afternoon except for brief flurries by his rival as the wind played tricks with their pellets.

Walsh's struggle against the 22 year old Albany, N. Y. youth saw one of the most remarkable comebacks in golf.

Walsh, playing slowly and deliberately enough to make Creavy nervous, went right out with a par, cracking 35 on the front nine to zoom to a four hole lead.

stretched it to four more on the back nine of the morning to obtain his stunning lead of 8 up, blanking the slipping champion without a single hole on the entire round and breaking par by one shot with a fine 71.

Reversed in Afternoon But in the afternoon, their medal scores were exactly reversed. Walsh, never a good player against the wind, began to slip on the 25th hole and Creavy tore into him. He started by dropping his approach two feet off the pin for a birdie four on 21, captured the next three holes with a pair of deuces and a par four, hesitated as Walsh won the 25th to go five up again, and then barged through with pars on the last two holes of the final outward nine to shave Walsh's lead to three.

They swapped the 29th and 30th with birdies but he still stood three behind as they fought the wind off the 33rd. It was there that Creavy whirled through his staggering rival.

He won 33 and 34 with par as Walsh missed the green and putted poorly and squared the tussle with a putt that pivoted on the cup and dropped. But his magic putter turned against him after they came to the 35th green.

Wins With a Par Both were 20 feet from the cup with their seconds and five feet away with their putts. Creavy studied the slightly rolling lie carefully and missed. Walsh snatched his for the conventional par four and it was all over.

Dudley might have given Dutra a royal fight right down to the final green today if he had been just a little luckier with his putts. On the front nine of the morning, he almost matched Dutra's great 32 with a 33, despite two missed putts from five and six feet.

Because of his great record this season and his par-smashing tendencies during the current championship drive, Dutra ranks as a formidable favorite for tomorrow's 36-hole final.

16 Ahead of Par Picking up from his triumphs in the Metropolitan and North Shore (Chicago) opens, he has tamed par by exactly 16 shots since last Tuesday over the 6,686 yard Kellar

Foxx Blasts Two Homers as Macks Rally to Win, 4-3

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3 (AP)—Two more dramatic ninth inning home runs by Jimmy Foxx and Eric McNair today gave the Athletics a 4-3 victory and a clean sweep of the three games with the Boston Red Sox.

Foxx, first up in the last inning, tied the score with his 51st home run and McNair followed with his 16th homer.

The rousing finish gave Lefty Grove the better of a pitching argument with Dusty Rhodes. Saving Grove from defeat, it gave him his 22nd triumph of the year against nine losses. Grove allowed but five hits.

Foxx hit two home runs, clubbing his first in the second inning. He is now only nine behind Babe Ruth's 1927 record. Marty McManus hit for the circuit in the fourth inning.

2 Year Striving of 188 The Yanks, of course, gained a new major league record with their 133rd game of the season without having been shut out. Earle Combs, the leadoff man, settled that in the first inning with a home run. In addition to passing the old mark of 132 games, set by the Phillies and Boston Nationals in 1894, the Yanks put together a two-year string of 138 games with one or more runs in each. They tallied in their last 55 games in 1931.

Charley Ruffing pitched the entire game and was credited with his 17th victory. He gave 11 hits but fanned six to bring his season's total to 180.

Nip-and-Tuck Battle The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair. Combs' homer, Ruth's triple and Gehrig's fly sent the Yanks off to a two-run lead. Washington made it a 3-3 tie in the sixth and went ahead in the next inning with two tallies. Monte Weaver, shooting for his 20th victory, gave way to Lloyd Brown in the seventh and Brown was the loser.

Kress Leads Chisox to 13-8 Triumph ST. LOUIS, Sept. 3 (AP)—A heavy batting attack, led by Red Kress who hit a homer, two doubles and a single in five times up, gave the Chicago White Sox a 13 to 8 victory over the St. Louis Browns today and evened up the series at one game each.

The Chicago attack began in the first inning in which they sent Bumps Hadley to the showers and scored six runs. The Sox also pounded Kinsley, Hebert and Fischer, collecting 19 hits for the day.

Davis Takes Second Davis picked up three points and captured second place with a .351 average. Klein and Hurst trailed him at .346 and .344, the former losing four points and the latter eight. The "first ten" after Friday's games were completed by Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, .341; Terry, New York, .344; Stephenson, Chicago, .331; Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh, .329; Ott, New York, .325; and Herman, Cincinnati, .322.

The Phils' idleness gave Klein practically no chance to improve his slugging record but he continued to show the way in three hitting departments and in base stealing and to hold second place in the other three sections. He made two hits, both of them doubles, and batted in one run.

Warneke Still Leads Klein's totals through Friday were 138 runs, 193 hits, 124 runs batted in, 45 doubles, 15 triples, 35 homers and 20 steals.

The records of the pitching leaders, Lonnie Warneke of the Cubs and Steve Swetonic of Pittsburgh, also remained unchanged. Warneke with 19 victories and five defeats and Swetonic with 11 won and five lost.

Nip Senators With Homer in 9th Frame

Lazzeri's Blow Brings Win; Complete 133rd Without Blanking

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP)—Tony Lazzeri tackled a thrilling finish into a record-breaking game today and saved the Yankees from complete defeat in their series with Washington. With two out in the ninth inning and Gehrig on first, Tony walloped a home run and won the game, 6 to 5.

The victory was the only one for the Yanks out of the three game series and let them finish the season on even terms with the Senators with 11 victories apiece.

Awaits Next Heat "This is one of the unfortunate things which happen from time to time in racing and they just have to be accepted and cannot be helped," said Don.

After the Chicago Cubs, with Charley Grimm as new manager, came home in first place from a road trip they played to 119,000 paid admissions in their first six home games.

THE young fellow who only recently ran away from his team because he couldn't get enough pitching work to suit himself—Jerome Herman (they call him "Dizzy") Dean—made good on one of his numerous boasts much to the discomfort of the Chicago Cubs yesterday and his mates, the Cardinals, became the first team since Aug. 18 to hand the pennant bound team of Charley Grimm a defeat.

Dean stated before yesterday's doubleheader got underway that if Paul Deringer couldn't halt the Cubs' mad winning streak (and he didn't), he, the eccentric one, would. And for nine innings he pitched sterling ball. Although he allowed eight hits, Dizzy neatly white-washed the Bruins and while doing so added seven whiffings to his league leading total in this department of pitching.

It will be recalled that while with Houston of the Texas league last season, when he and Tex Carleton between them won over 60 games and practically handed their club the league title, he boasted to newspaper writers that he could pitch and win a doubleheader any time they would let him. And so he did. And then this season he got flighty during one eastern trip and ran away from the club, telling Manager Gabby Street he didn't get enough work.

When Street wired him to come back under the assurance he would have plenty to do, he did so. And since that time he has been doing more than his rightful share on the mound. You will recall that only recently, Dizzy pitched three games in five days and won every one of them. Remarkable record for even a hunk—Dean himself is a tall, spindly fellow, but he certainly must have the staying power. Incidentally, when he blanked the Cubs Aug. 14 it was their last shutout until yesterday.

LEON WARNEKE will probably be back on the firing line today against the Cards in the Cubs' final home game before they start their last road trip of the season. Warneke, knocked out of the box by the Giants the other day before he could retire a man, should be ready to hang up his twentieth victory of the season, that is if he doesn't meet up with some more tough luck, the kind of which he seems to be having lately. He had a hard time getting both No. 18 and No. 19, but maybe it'll be easier from now on.

Harold Mauney, a sophomore, will call signals for the South Carolina football team.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then wandering alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The Commissioner telephones a picture of a young man named Basil, found on Lola's dresser, to the Paris Prefect of Police requesting that he identify it and investigate Lola's past. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multoeler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap picked up in Lola's room presents evidence of having caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had found out a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved.

"Macy sends on the report about Lola Carewe's hybrid past." continued Colt.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

AND Eunice James?"

"Just a little German girl from Staten Island. I think she is in love with Guy Everett."
"Quite likely," smiled Colt. "Now what have you got about Lola?"
Flynn pulled a sheaf of papers from a side pocket.
"Plenty," he answered, "but what does it mean? By working here, and telegraphing Hollywood, we have interviewed three of her former leading men, one producer, a customer, and a scenario writer who was in love with her. Also a dozen wealthy men she was friendly with here in New York. None of them will say very much. If I were to make a guess, I would say that Lola had something on them all."
"And you would be right!" smiled Colt. "What about her arrival in this country?"
"Got that, too. Of course the records are all locked up, but those Department of Justice boys can get pretty nearly anything they want. Lola came to this country alone about twelve years ago—here are the records!"
Colt studied the transcript of the State Department records with absorbed interest. Then he tucked them in his pocket.
"And about Christine?" he went on.
"Her brother and his wife are leading citizens of Rochester. Their reputation is first rate. They did leave on the train for New York—but so far they haven't reached here."
"So unless they arrived before the crimes," murmured Colt.
"There's always that," asserted Flynn, closing one eye. "As for Vincent Rowland, he went home, went to bed, and from all accounts is at this minute sound asleep."
"Sensible man!" sighed Colt. "What report did you get on Doctor Baldwin?"
"The worst of all," revealed Inspector Flynn heavily. "He spent the rest of his night at his office. Hasn't gone home yet. The bells at his apartment house say he and his wife quarrel frequently—over money and Lola Carewe. People in the next apartment say the same thing. They say the wife is a good woman and all that—but fat and jealous! And that's bad!"
Colt nodded his entire concurrence, as he lit his pipe and skuffed.

had the typed reports into a drawer. "What about the bottle and the writing paper that you found under the mattress?" he asked.
Flynn shrugged his shoulders. "No finger-prints on any of it, he growled. "Looks to me like we're dealing with a professional."
"Or with a smart amateur," amended Colt, as he turned to another pile of papers beside him. "Here are the cables from Scotland Yard."
"Macy sends on the report about Lola Carewe's hybrid past," continued Colt, reading hastily. "Starts off as a London working girl. Once arrested for a fight with another girl in the millinery shop in Soho where she was employed. Then she disappeared. Reappeared along the Riviera as a dancing girl. Walks of her own invention called 'The Scorpion!'"
Colt looked over at me and chuckled. My chief loves the whimsical, the odd and the extravagant in all the affairs of life. He could not hide his pleasure in this picturesque detail.
Quickly he shuffled through the other reports lying there—the official statements of the department chemists and the Assistant Medical Examiner, and a message from Fallon, left in charge of the penthouse, stating that all was quiet. Colt was about to pass on, when a telephone rang. The operator warned us that we would presently receive a call from M. Dupont in Paris.
"Thank God—the old boy works fast," exulted Colt aloud.
"You are banking on Lola Carewe's past as the key to the whole thing?"
"I am, Tony—it seems logical to me that, one way or another, the more we learn of Lola, the nearer we come to the killer of herself and Christine."
"And this Basil?"
Again the telephone rang. The connection was complete; M. Dupont was ready to speak with M. Colt. The great French police detective came directly to the point. He had taken the portrait, conveyed to him by the telephotographic service, and shown it to Grand D'Iena. After some search, the picture was identified—and here the under-oceanic voice of M. Dupont became tense with excitement.
"It is Basil Boucher, mon cher ami—Basil Boucher, no other name when I heard that name I was tremendously excited. For I remembered the name—a cause célèbre—here in Paris."
"I'm all attention, M. le Prefect!"

"Ah, well! Basil Boucher was an honest young bank clerk of very respectable parents. Then one day he met a dancer. Her name was Lola—I know no other. In my city she had left behind her a sordid trail of ruined men. Basil Boucher loved her. He promised her a ruby if she would love him. To get the money—he robbed the bank. We came to arrest him—he had disappeared. Voilà!"
"My dear confrère, may I request another great favor from your kindness?"
"It is with pleasure that I cooperate."
"May I have by telephoto all the pictures of Basil Boucher and his family that you can find?"
"Avez plaisir?"
"Especially the carte d'identité pictures in your office."
"It shall be as you wish, M. Colt!"
"A moment or two more, please."
"A thousand, if you wish them!"
"What business did the Boucher family have?"
"The son, Basil, was a bank employee, a teller, do you say? The father had a little shop, where he sold specimens to medical laboratories. A malodorous business, M. Colt!"
"Vraiment! Further, did you get word from Roumania?"
"Of a certainty, yes! They have no record of a M. Jorga. But they say it is a good old Roumanian name!"
"Thanks!"
Colt sat back with a smile.
"I know it," he muttered. "I was sure of it!"
But he refused to explain what he meant, and a moment later the telephone rang again. Professor Snicker was calling.
"Good morning, Herr Commissioner!" rumbled the old biologist as usual, I was making notes on an extension phone.
"Good morning, Herr Professor!" "Herr Commissioner, the superiority of machines over night-sticks has again been demonstrated. You have made possible another triumph of the greatest of the detective weapons—the vacuum cleaner!"
"Which means?" prodded Colt, as the good-humored old professor paused for effect.
"I know what killed the young ladies—but I won't tell you. You will have to come and see for yourself."
"We'll be right up!" snapped Colt and jammed the receiver back on the hook.

Uncertainty Clouds Cyclone Football

Vets, Reserve Strength Low, at Iowa State

Veenkermen to Report Sept. 10 for First Autumn Drills

AMES, Sept. 3 (AP) — How to develop a team comparable to his 1931 machine from a squad of only four veterans, four reserves and an uncertain crop of sophomore players is the immediate problem of George Veenker, the Iowa State football mentor who in his first season resurrected Cyclone gridiron prestige.
Until the candidates report Sept. 10 and gradually are regulated to the respective positions Veenker is certain of but few placements.
To lend Veenker confidence, however, in his task of rebuilding the Cyclone team, the head coach has a corps of capable assistants.
Joe Truskowski, former all-around athlete at the University of Michigan, has been signed to coach the centers and ends with the probability he will help with the backs as the season progresses.
Schmidt Assists
The tackles and guards will be under the supervision of Harry Schmidt, the veteran line coach.
Louis Ménez, basketball coach, will devote his time to the backfield until late in the season when he will start cage practice.
There will be few brilliant "stars" on the team this fall, although Veenker has in Dick Grefe of Des Moines, the 1932 captain, one of the outstanding backs in the Big Six.
Besides Grefe the veterans to report are Harold Templeton of Coeysedan, Ed Schafroth of Des Moines, and Ivan Impson of Glidden.
Templeton as a sophomore became a reliable end whose size made him a great blocker and he also was adept on the receiving end of passes.
Schafroth is a big fellow who can block with the best of them. He devotes most of his time to smoothing the wave for his fellow backs but on the few occasions when he does carry the ball usually makes yardage.
Impson Back
A broken leg early in the year kept Impson from the team last year. Once again in splendid physical shape he is ready to conclude his career with a bang-up game at fullback. He has tremendous driving power.
Veenker's worries probably will be mostly with his line.
To fill in the gaping holes the mentor has Jack Beyer, a reserve center from Des Moines, William Dixon of Tama, a tackle, Hiram Roe of Ames, another tackle, and Gerald Smith of Milwaukee, a guard. That is the extent of Veenker's veteran material for the forward wall.
What the sophomores will offer in the way of help remains a mystery. Outstanding as frosh players on the line were Glen Listen of Tama and Paul Berger of Manchester, Md.
Of the freshmen backfield performers, Herbert Oht of Dexter stood out above his mates. He is fast and slippery once in the open.

AS MOTHER NATURE PUT ON HER SHOW

Here is a complete photographic record of the great show put on by the two great celestial stars, Old Sol and Luna. Many astronomers who came from all parts of the world to New England were denied a view like this owing to the presence of clouds. But our high-flying cameraman at Fryeburg, Me., went above the cloudbank, into the very wings as it were. At left (upper) is Old Sol just before Luna entered the spotlight.

Governor Dan Turner Remains Silent on Market Moratorium

Abandon Two Picket Lines at Sioux City

Attorney for Association Sees Need for Proof of Farm Welfare

SIoux CITY, Sept. 3 (AP) — Farmers' holiday picket lines were abandoned on two highways near here today, but one leader in the campaign for higher farm prices, declared that all picketing will stop only after Governor Turner has proclaimed a moratorium on farm marketings.

Carlos Goltz, attorney for the Woodbury county Farmers' Holiday association, today conferred with other leaders and inspected picket lines. Afterwards he said that "the farmers must have some definite and tangible proof that their interests will be given due consideration before the picketers will leave the highways."

Governor Olson of Minnesota, to whom Goltz also a few days ago addressed a suggestion that farmers be asked to refrain from selling their goods until Sept. 9, when middlewestern governors will meet to discuss a marketing plan, advised farmers not to market their non-perishable products.

No Statement

Governor Turner, however, remained silent on the point.

Meanwhile state authorities late today again were asked to take a hand in the "strike." R. G. Rodman, Cherokee county attorney, was enroute to Des Moines to ask Attorney General John Fletcher to detail a state agent to investigate the shooting and wounding of 14 holiday adherents early Wednesday.

Farmers near Washta and Pierson, small towns near Cherokee, were circulating petitions asking that the investigation of the affair be taken over by the state. During the last three days, hundreds of farmers encamped near Cherokee, demanded that the assailants be brought to justice.

They collected data among themselves, and this evidence, with that uncovered by Rodman in interviews with the injured men and boys, will be presented to a grand jury, which meets in Cherokee Monday.

Partial Lift

The partial lifting of embargoes on highways 77 and 20 in Nebraska was in keeping with the generally quiescent status of the holiday movement, which seeks higher agricultural products by trying to keep farm commodities from being sold.

In all other parts of the state, save for some half-hearted picketing near James and Correctionville, not far from here, the holiday workers had bowed to a request by their president, Milo Reno of Des Moines, that "strike" activities cease until after the governor's parley.

Directors of the South Dakota Farmers' Holiday association voted to defer starting their non-selling campaign until after the conference. The "strike" was to have started on Labor day. Emil Loris, secretary of the South Dakota association, estimated that 20,000 farmers have joined the movement.

5,000 Farmers Meet

In Marshallfield, Wis., today, between 4,000 to 5,000 farmers gathered to discuss the movement. They cheered when Arnold Gilberts, a Dunn county farmer prominently identified with the campaign, declared: "We'll solve our problem, if necessary, with bayonets, and I don't mean maybe."

John Bosch, president of the Minnesota holiday group, said that Minnesota farmers will be organized for a "strike" in two weeks.

Governor Shafer of North Dakota refused to declare an embargo on wheat shipments from the state and to allow the use of national guardsmen to prevent their movement. Dell Willis of Tolna, originator of the movement to hold wheat for a price of $1 a bushel, had asked the embargo proclamation.

He was told by the North Dakota executive, however, that "I think you are following the right line in advocating the principle of withholding the marketing of grain through voluntary co-operative action."

Suffers Skull Fracture

Charles Herfel of Allen, Neb., a truck driver who tried to penetrate the picket lines near Sioux City, fell from his machine while he was getting out to adjust the motor, and suffered a broken skull. He was taken to a hospital here, where his condition was said to be critical.

Governor Turner sent his special state agent, J. A. Baker to this vicinity to investigate the situation. The governor's office, however, attached no great significance to Baker's mission.

On the decisions made by the governors, 15 of whom have been invited here, leaders of the holiday say they base their plans and hopes for continuing the movement and achieving their objectives—getting for farm products what it costs to produce them and a fair profit.

No "Depression"

"In order that the conference can get down to earnest consideration of the farm price situation at the earliest possible time, I intend to pre-

Hold Dakotan for Extortion Plot on Sioux City Farmer

SIoux CITY, Sept. 3 (AP) — Daniel Ulvog, South Dakota farmer, was held in connection with what officers said was a plot to extort money from Ole Anderson of Sioux City, retired farmer.

Arrested when he picked up a decoy box planted by the officers, Ulvog was said to have admitted attempting to obtain $3,000 from Anderson, who had received a note telling him to leave the money at a designated spot on an abandoned road.

Anderson notified authorities, who hid in a cornfield and arrested Ulvog when he appeared. Ulvog will be prosecuted in Union county, South Dakota.

Working Man Gets Attention in Three Services at City Churches This Morning

In Iowa City churches today the working man comes in for his share of notice with morning sermons at three churches being devoted to him. At the First Methodist church, the Rev. H. D. Henry will tell of "Christ's appeal to working men."

The Rev. W. S. Dyingler, minister of the First English Lutheran church, will give a dissertation on the relation of "The church and the working man," and the Rev. C. C. Garrigues of the Christian church will present a "Challenge to Labor."

Awaiting the arrival of the new minister, the First Congregational church will have no morning service at all and will complete the day's program with a student class at 9:50.

HEARING UNDER THE ZONING ORDINANCE

In conformity with the provisions of section 195 of the Revised Ordinances of Iowa City, Iowa, parties in interest and other citizens are hereby notified that at eight o'clock p.m. on the 23rd day of September, 1932, at the city hall in Iowa City, they may appear at a public hearing to make objections to changes in the Zoning Ordinance.

The amendment proposes to add to District II A, which is the business and industrial district the following area to-wit:

All that portion of the real estate described in a warrant deed recorded in Book 132 at page 107, of the Deed Records of Johnson County, Iowa, said records being found in the office of the County Recorder, lying east of Riverside Drive in Iowa City, Iowa, the same being 100 ft. North and South running from said Riverside Drive to the Iowa River, being all the land owned by Amelia Sorenson, East of Riverside Drive in Iowa City, Iowa.

Dated at Iowa City, Iowa, this 3rd day of September, A. D. 1932.
GEO. J. DOHRER,
City Clerk.

False Alarm

The burglar alarm in front of Tilden's got tired of the lack of action the other day and began ringing of its own accord. Since then it has continued to have fun all its own, ringing blatantly in the middle of the night and causing disgusted police to stop and investigate just in case there might be something to it besides noise.

"Our principal and immediate problem is the solution, not the cause, of the problems incidental to low prices," he added. "I will suggest that the conference be conducted without regard to politics, and with a view to solving future problems, rather than inviting debate on things past."

Governors of Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Ohio have already notified Governor Green that they will attend the parley or send a representative to it.

In common with the General tenor of the town, all was quiet at the American Legion Unemployment Relief association office yesterday. No one registered, strangely, and few calls were made. The association is still in need of furniture, especially kitchen furniture.

Ray Castelline is the gentleman who tangled with Iowa City police early in June. He attempted to steal a car from a local resident, but was knocked out with a well aimed right to the jaw. Later he got in a wreck with another stolen car just north of town. Information furnished by local police led to his arrest in Des Moines June 29, where he was wanted on similar charges. We'll see whether or not the Johnson county jail will hold him.

JAPANESE NAVAL HERO TO SEEK U. S. GOOD WILL

ADMIRAL KICHISABURO NOMURA WASHINGTON, D. C.—That the age of goodwill tours is not yet past is evidenced by the announcement in Tokyo that Vice Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese naval hero, will shortly leave his native land on a friendship mission to the United States.

Admiral Nomura, probably Japan's best-known naval officer, will be entrusted with the task of putting an end to what high officials designate as the "loose talk" that has arisen regarding the growing tension between Japan and the United States. This so-called "loose talk" received added impetus after the recent speech of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, in which he condemned Japan's policy in Manchuria as a violation of the Kellogg pact.

The selection of Admiral Nomura as goodwill salesman to the United States is a happy one for both countries, as the great sailor enjoys a large measure of popularity on both sides of the Pacific. He is no stranger to Washington, having served as naval attache in his country's embassy at the capital from 1915 to 1918. He was also aide to the Japanese delegation to the Washington disarmament conference in 1921 and, 1922.

Admiral Nomura was very much in the limelight during the recent Shanghai turmoil, at which time he commanded the Third Japanese Fleet in Chinese waters. He lost an eye as the result of injuries received when a Korean threw a bomb into a group of high Nipponese officials conducting a review at Shanghai last April. On his recovery, Admiral Nomura was presented with a glass eye by Emperor Hirohito.

One of the objects of Admiral Nomura's mission will be to clear away the misunderstanding that exists in certain circles in Japan as to the presence of the United States scouting fleet in the Pacific. Although Japanese naval experts and governmental authorities scoff at the idea of there being any significance attached to the continued presence in the Pacific of the American fleet, which is ordinarily stationed in the Atlantic, the jingo press has continually harped upon it, and on every occasion when Secretary Stimson has felt the inclination to pen another note to Japan, the cry of "Wolf" or its Japanese equivalent has arisen.

The goodwill admiral will also dispose of the reports current on this side of the Pacific, that Japanese airplane and munition factories are working under forced draught, piling up a stock of war supplies that has no place in a country that professes to have peaceful intentions.

Competent authorities in Japan ridicule the report that the activity of the arsenals may be coupled with the rumor of the League of Nations commission investigating conditions in the orient. They aver that the increase in arms production, if any, is because of the prospect of further campaigns on the Asiatic side, probably in the Jehol province. Then, too, they point out, it is necessary that they replace the munitions and materials expended during the recent Manchuria and Shanghai campaigns.

As regards the presence of the United States scouting force in the Pacific, United States naval authorities, while refusing to comment on the Far Eastern situation point out that the fleet went to San Pedro, Cal., last March to carry out maneuvers on the west coast with the battle force in accordance with a schedule mapped out three years before.

As regards the presence of the United States scouting force in the Pacific, United States naval authorities, while refusing to comment on the Far Eastern situation point out that the fleet went to San Pedro, Cal., last March to carry out maneuvers on the west coast with the battle force in accordance with a schedule mapped out three years before.

presence of the United States scouting fleet in the Pacific. Although Japanese naval experts and governmental authorities scoff at the idea of there being any significance attached to the continued presence in the Pacific of the American fleet, which is ordinarily stationed in the Atlantic, the jingo press has continually harped upon it, and on every occasion when Secretary Stimson has felt the inclination to pen another note to Japan, the cry of "Wolf" or its Japanese equivalent has arisen.

The goodwill admiral will also dispose of the reports current on this side of the Pacific, that Japanese airplane and munition factories are working under forced draught, piling up a stock of war supplies that has no place in a country that professes to have peaceful intentions.

Competent authorities in Japan ridicule the report that the activity of the arsenals may be coupled with the rumor of the League of Nations commission investigating conditions in the orient. They aver that the increase in arms production, if any, is because of the prospect of further campaigns on the Asiatic side, probably in the Jehol province. Then, too, they point out, it is necessary that they replace the munitions and materials expended during the recent Manchuria and Shanghai campaigns.
