Detectives Gain Entrance to Harlow Home

Stepfather Enters House With Officers

Police Begin Questioning in Effort to Solve Suicide Mystery

BULLETIN
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 6 (AP)—The trembling lips of beautiful Jean Harlow of the films assured police detectives tonight that she knew no reason why her husband, Paul Bern, brilliant motion picture executive, should have killed himself.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 6 (AP)—After a day and a half of effort, detectives tonight gained admittance to the home of Jean Harlow's parents to question the blonde film star in connection with the apparent suicide of her husband, Paul Bern, motion picture executive. Previously they had been refused permission to see her on the ground she was too hysterical.

Accompanied by stepfather they were accompanied to the home by Marino Bello, Miss Harlow's stepfather, who was questioned by police earlier in the day in the effort to learn the reason for Bern's death by a pistol bullet in the luxurious Benedict canyon home he deeded to Miss Harlow when they were married last July 2.

The questioning of Bello was behind locked doors in the office of Miss Harlow's attorney, Mendel Silberberg.

Withheld Statements
Authorities withheld Bello's statements, but before he was called to the attorney's offices he told newspapermen, "if a man is out of his mind enough to commit suicide, he is in a state in which he may say nothing. That's the only explanation I can give for that farewell note."

Drove Miss Harlow Home
Bello was reported to have said he was working at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio last Sunday, and sometime between 6 and 7 p.m. drove Miss Harlow to her home, then going on to his own residence.

He continued saying that later in the evening she arrived at the Bello home, explaining that Bern was tired and had decided not to accompany her. On Monday, Bello said, he went fishing and did not learn of the death until late in the day.

Stories Disagree
Police claimed they had found discrepancies in stories told by the Bern butler, the chauffeur and others concerning the movements of Bern and Miss Harlow from late Saturday afternoon to Sunday evening.

The film executive was presumed to have died late Sunday night or early Monday.

John Carmichael, the butler, said Bern and Miss Harlow dined together at their motion picture studio during the time she was free from work, from 6 to 8 o'clock Saturday. However, Harold Garrison, the chauffeur, was quoted by police as saying he drove Bern away from the studio shortly after 6 o'clock.

Carmichael insisted he knew of no disagreement between Bern and Miss Harlow, but, according to police, Cliff Davis, the Bern gardener, said Carmichael had made statements concerning the trouble between the couple over money matters.

Two Killed; Two Injured in Fire at Independence

INDEPENDENCE, Sept. 6 (AP)—An early morning fire today took the lives of two women and imperiled several other tenants of a two-story frame building here.

Mrs. Mary Lynch Staats Harper, 64, and her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Staats Lamb Chesmore, 43, were the victims.

George Davis and Charles Staats, a son of Mrs. Harper, suffered burns and were treated at a hospital.

The fire destroyed the building, which housed the Louis Kiggings grocery store and four families.

The bodies of the two women were found near a door in their apartment.

Jury Convicts Two in "Auto Murder" Case

Asks Life Sentences for Killers of Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6 (AP)—A jury of seven men and five women, weary from three days of deliberation, today convicted Frank J. Egan, ousted city public defender, and his associate, Albert J. Innin, and recommended they be imprisoned for life for the slaying of Egan's former friend and client, Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes.

Sentence will be passed Thursday.

The verdict climaxed a trial lasting four weeks and featured by numerous battles between opposing counsel.

Egan's attorney, Vincent Hallinan, was found in contempt of court last Friday and sentenced to 24 hours in jail by Superior Judge Frank H. Dunne for interrupting the closing argument of Prosecutor Isadore M. Golden.

Sentence will be passed Thursday.

Body in Street

Mrs. Hughes' crushed body was found in the gutter of a residential street the night of April 29. What at first appeared to be a hit-run death, later was diagnosed as murder by investigators.

Glad to Leave Office Cares, Says Former Mexican Head

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 6 (AP)—my best collaborators. The country is in good hands." He referred to General Rodriguez as "an 'improvised' military man," who he said, "at heart is a civilian with civilian ideas."

No Danger of Revolutions
"There is no danger whatever in the fact that a military man heads the government," said Ortiz Rubio adding that Mexico was through with revolutions and that the institutions of the country "are consolidated strongly."

Emphatically denying he had resigned because of differences with General Calles, Ortiz Rubio said he quit only because of illness.

"I resigned solely because of a long standing illness, which dates back to my military campaigns, and because of the absolute necessity for a long rest," he said.

Physicians to Study Throat, Nose, Ear Ills

Double Shooting Theory Advanced in Waterloo Deaths

Tammanyite Will Support Demo Drive

Brooklyn Man to Have Office in Campaign Headquarters

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Confederates between John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, and Roosevelt-Garner campaign chiefs today were followed by an announcement that McCooey will have an office at Democratic national headquarters and will "cooperate" in the campaign.

"I am confident Governor Roosevelt will carry New York state," said James A. Farley, national chairman, in reply to questions, as he came from an hour's session with McCooey.

Confident of New York State
Before James J. Walker resigned as mayor, Farley made a similar statement, in reply to a Republican claim that Roosevelt would not carry his own state, and without New York's 47 electoral votes would lose the election.

McCooey, in addition to being Democratic national committeeman for New York, is one of the political allies of John F. Curry, Tammany head.

First Visit to Headquarters
Today's visit to national headquarters was the first he had made.

His conversations with Farley, with Louis Howe, Roosevelt's confidential secretary, and with other campaign leaders, were the first he had held with any of them since the Chicago convention, at which the New York organization opposed the New York governor.

Although Tammany and Democratic organizations in the other boroughs of the city have all adopted formal resolutions pledging their support to the national ticket, there had been no indication until today of how active a role in the Roosevelt-Garner movement any of the leaders would play.

Discuss Entire Situation
It was said at headquarters that the entire political situation—national, state and local—had been discussed by Farley and McCooey.

"He is going to cooperate in the national campaign," the national chairman said. "He will move into his office here next week."

McCooey, along with Curry and the other organization leaders, has the task of deciding before November.

Tennessee Farmers Threaten to Dump Milk in Price War

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 6 (AP)—A threat to pour 40,000 gallons of Memphis' milk supply into the Mississippi river was made in a dairy price war here today.

Fred Howard, business manager of the Independent Dairymen's association, told a gathering of 150 producers that unless prices were raised by Saturday, the milk will be dumped into the river as a protest.

He persuaded assembled dairymen to delay a "dairymen's holiday" until after a mass meeting Friday night. At the meeting, Howard said, a committee will be appointed to confer with operators of milk plants at daylight Saturday morning.

"If the representatives are successful in negotiating a better price," he added, "the milk will be delivered to the plants. If not, the whole supply will be dumped into the river."

Pupils Begin Year's Work

Open Registration at Iowa City High School

More than a thousand students began another nine months of study yesterday morning when St. Mary's and St. Patrick's parochial schools opened for the 1932 to 33 term.

With the opening of the Catholic schools, seniors at Iowa City high school registered for the new term, which begins next Monday. Registration will continue throughout the week, with juniors today, sophomores tomorrow, and freshmen Friday.

The University high school will not open until Monday, Sept. 19, and the University elementary school will open Sept. 26, when the new session of the university begins.

Many of the rural schools of Johnson county have been in operation for the last week. The remainder opened their doors Monday morning.

Collapsing of House Brings Death to One
CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (AP)—A two story frame cottage being wrecked, collapsed tonight, burying a score or more of men, women, and children with at least one fatality and probable fatal injuries to several other persons.

Casper Ethna, 55, was found crushed to death when firemen dragged him from the debris.

Foreign Minister Asks for International Discussions in Fight for Equal Armaments

French Cabinet May Refuse Answer to Demands

PARIS, Sept. 6 (AP)—France has informed the United States that the cause of disarmament would be endangered if Germany's request for arms equality were approved, it was learned today from an official source.

Indications were that Premier Edouard Herriot in obedience to his interpretation of public sentiment, would eschew direct negotiations with Berlin over the German request and would transfer the issue to the League of Nations and eventually to the disarmament conference.

From an official source, it was learned that in her recent "aide memoire" to France, Germany gave the impression that unless she obtained satisfaction on the issue of arms equality she would not participate in further sessions of the disarmament conference.

Cabinet to Meet
The cabinet probably will meet tomorrow for another discussion of the German move. The expectation tonight was that France would make no answer to the Berlin communication, but would join in a concerted reply to be framed after consultation with the United States and with the powers which signed the recent European pact of confidence.

In addition to informing the United States that the cause of disarmament would be harmed by acceding to Germany's request, France is understood also to have asserted that such action would endanger international conditions generally.

To Consider Plea
Assurances were given that because French leaders realize Germany cannot be omitted from efforts to consolidate European peace, if German representations will be examined minutely.

Some French commentators have taken the position that the German move represented a real effort on the part of the Berlin government to establish a workable entente with France on the vital question of armaments as part of general cooperation between the two nations.

British Study Demands
R. H. Campbell, British minister plenipotentiary to France, discussed the German memorandum with Premier Herriot last week, but announcement of Britain's attitude awaits the return to London of Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary.

Joseph Paganon, under secretary of state at the foreign office, expressed confidence that both the United States and Britain would favor the French view that Germany should not re-arm.

France Wants Security
M. Paganon discussed the issue in an address to an audience of farmers at Uriage, near Grenoble. He was quoted as saying that if Germany wants equality in armaments France wants assurance for its national security.

"France is not isolated," he said. "England and the United States are in complete communion of ideas with us."

Germany Wants Either Disarmament or Protection

BERLIN, Sept. 6 (AP)—The first point of Germany's recent demand for arms equality was revealed tonight as providing for "confidential talks between the German and French governments."

After Geneva parleys, the memorandum (or aide memoire) proposed such a talk as the best method of coming to an understanding, with each nation frankly and openly laying down its standpoints and desires.

Text Made Public
This information was contained in the text which was made public tonight by the German Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, who said he took the action to dispose of current erroneous interpretations of the much discussed disarmament paper.

The document was handed to the French ambassador, Andre Francois Poncet last week. The text as made public tonight revealed that it contained nine points, most of them stressing the German stand that she must be given equality in armaments.

Refuses Participation
It was confirmed that Germany insisted she could no longer participate in the disarmament discussions at Geneva until her position was "cleared up."

A resume of the document:
First: Following the Geneva parleys, Germany believes the best method of coming to an understanding is a confidential talk between the French and German government, each frankly and openly laying down their standpoints and desires. If France agrees, either would be free to inform other powers, especially the United States, Great Britain and Italy, which may participate in negotiations later.

Can Not Agree
Second: Germany could not agree to the Geneva resolution, not only because it plainly showed the disarmament convention will remain far behind the treaty of Versailles, but also because the question is left open as to whether the resolution is also applicable to Germany. Until this is cleared up, Germany can no longer participate in the negotiations, refused to declare her entitled to a position of equality.

Demands Equality
Third: The fundamental point is (The world disarmament conference adopted a resolution at Geneva on July 23 promising an agreement for substantial reduction of armaments in later deliberations. Soviet Russia and Germany voted against the resolution, Germany contending that the disarmament commission

Platinum Blonde

FAME IS Jean Harlow's. In her own right she is acclaimed a star. Thousands have sighed at her platinum beauty and thousands have envied her.

Youth also is Jean Harlow's. Barely 21, seductive and beautiful, she ran swiftly up the ladder of cinema fame and found fortune awaiting her.

But even for Jean Harlow there was a price to pay. Plunging, reckless, heedless of everything but the incandescent top rung of the ladder, she married and divorced and married again. It was the thing to do. And what did it matter in the long run as long as silver shoes climbed higher and higher?

But Paul Bern killed himself the other day. Paul Bern was her second husband.

It is barely possible that the platinum head will check for a time its frantic bobbing and the silver shoes will falter and Jean Harlow will wonder whether, after all, the bargain is a good one.

The Usual Thing

NEWSPAPERMEN — and others — look forward to holidays not only for the respite from labor but for the grand total of accidents and deaths that make good "copy." And Labor day, 1932, did not fail them for with reports still coming in from outlying districts the casualties stand at 200 dead and uncounted hundreds hurt.

Of the number, 97 died in auto accidents, 44 drownings are listed, seven airplane deaths, and the others distributed among minor causes, if any cause of death can be said to be minor. During one parade, 244 persons were overcome by the heat. The report goes on and on, endlessly.

And every holiday brings a similar list, some greater, few smaller. Crowds at the beaches, automobiles crowding the highways, spectators standing for hours to watch a long line of marching men. Family picnics, jaunts in the country, childish pranks all take their toll. And when the rush and noise fade out after a glorious week end the countryside lies strewn with the wreckage—human wreckage.

Careful!—oh, yes, everybody's careful. The accidents are so unexpected. Like little Bobby and the buzz-saw, or Mary Jane and the unstable ladder. Drivers in a hurry to get nowhere, uncautious swimmers who really do know better, parents preoccupied with their own good times. Only chance in the year, you know, to get away and enjoy nature. And they don't all come back, usually.

Perhaps there shouldn't be any holidays. But maybe 200 lives aren't worth so much to do. Maybe they'd just better count up the casualties and be glad there weren't more.

Ghosts

COPYRIGHTED stories in current issues of American newspapers tell of General Peyton C. March's (U.S.A. Retired) impressions of the World war and how it was handled for America by General John J. Pershing. It is quite evident that March, then chief of staff, didn't like Pershing's tactics. And he minces no words when he charges the A.E.F. commander with various and sundry shortcomings as a great general.

The stories are all chapters from March's book, written as a reply to Pershing's own memoirs. They deal almost minutely with maneuvers of American troops in the great conflict, details of battles are colorfully drawn. In all, they serve to refresh the memories of those who served their country during the war, and to revive the fading glories of those who never came back.

The charges against Pershing include: that Pershing asked for cavalry overseas when there was no need for it; that Pershing caused costly delays in the United States airplane production program; that Pershing was disobedient to orders and would have been removed by President Wilson had not March kept certain correspondence from the president's attention; that Pershing could not work with Generals Wood, Sibert, Bliss and Goethals because he feared their superior military knowledge.

The charges may be true or may be false. What difference the proving one way or the other can possibly make now is beyond normal comprehension. How much more harm than good the mere mention of such charges can do at this time is easily discernible. General March can heap no added glories upon himself nor can he detract materially from those that have been showered upon Pershing. Such revelations can only breed disgust for the ruling powers of the day in the minds of those who believe the charges; and for those who fail to believe them, only contempt for the accuser is aroused.

By no means should the secrets of the World war be immured forever in a wall of silence. The facts, on the other hand, are of increasing interest in this world of ours.

They are responsible for the present unstable, threatening, tottering state of society. Certainly they must be brought to light, not in the form of pointed accusations arising from some insignificant, comparatively unimportant phases of the conflict, but in the form of statistical threats to the future promise of mankind.

Reassurance for the Race

(From the Kansas City Star)
To be added to the growth of public confidence in the business situation is the assurance coming out of the International Congress of Genetics at Ithaca, N. Y. There it was maintained, without any attempt at refutation, that the view of Dr. C. C. Hurst of Cambridge university as to "the true ancestor of man" now is generally accepted. Dr. Hurst's theory, as everybody will recall, is that man's direct ancestor was not the primate ape, but that the two had a common ancestor, a genuine "missing link," known as Dryopithecus. Now Mr. Dryopithecus is known to have inhabited the forests of Europe about 12 million years ago. He was more of a man-ape than an ape-man, and probably was related to Tarzan.

While this view, which should be especially pleasing to small boys and slightly larger girls, does not leave the monkey out of the ancestor picture, it pushes him far back something like 40 million years, counting from the date of the November election, this year. It can be deduced from this reference that there is nothing of the monkey element left in the human race by this time, anyway. Relatively speaking, we are safe, as there is ahead another 40 million years for progress, at a conservative estimate.

The more literal-minded leaders of finance and industry are now saying that if wage-earners are kept employed at high rates of pay they will have more money to spend in a fashion likely to keep trade and industry booming. Certainly the spirit of daring and pioneering logic is not dead in America!

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

"Under all circumstances," says General Kurt von Schleicher, the military "menace" of the German Republic, "Germany will do what is necessary for her defense." No more of this beating about the bush when it comes to military preparedness. Germany must be prepared for the worst, whatever that might be. And, furthermore, "Germany no longer will stand for being treated as a second class nation."

Coming on the heels of Germany's recent demand for arms equality, the statement of Germany's war lord reiterates his position in the matter of armaments. His attitude is almost belligerent, so intent is he upon the re-elevation of his fatherland to the military position it once held.

From France, coincidentally, comes the report that that nation has informed the United States that if Germany's request were acceded to, the cause of world disarmament would be struck a serious blow. Once Germany were given the right she seeks to re-establish her military machine, then the world powers might as well prepare themselves for what will inevitably follow—another and final world war.

For it is the opinion of some greater minds—notable among them that of Bruce Barton, author-journalist, who in a recent issue of American magazine, declares that "the world... is shaken by fear of war and threatened with bankruptcy because of preparations for war today"—that war will follow and such a war as will put all others to shame.

And as for the most recent request of Germany—that there be "confidential talks between the German and French governments" that each might lay down its "standpoints and desires" perhaps Mr. Barton may again be quoted:

"Conferences, rashly summoned, have led only to the exacerbation of national passions and international resentments. This fact explains the Geneva axiom that one disarmament conference is more disastrous for world peace than three battles in actual war. The same thought was disclosed in the prayer of a London clergyman after the Naval Conference: 'Give us peace in our time, O Lord, peace without conference.'"

Just how far the suggested Franco-German conference can get is easily demonstrated in the message of von Schleicher, who makes it clear that Germany will never give up East Prussia, even if it means (and this is certainly implied) violating the integrity of the Polish Corridor. And one thing, in such cases, certainly has been known in similar instances in recent European history to lead to another—the re-embroiling of the whole European continent is not such an obscure probability.

The United States, Great Britain, and Italy are the parties of the third, fourth, and fifth parts, respectively, as far as Germany is concerned in these latest advances. They will be called in later if either France or Germany sees fit—and what is more important—if they come to an agreement. That is so unlikely under the circumstances that it need not be seriously considered at this time.

But what Mr. Barton mentions in his American magazine article that is so aptly applicable to the present situation concerns certain understandings—a whole series of them—among nations, nay, among peoples; something that is conspicuous in current negotiations by its absolute absence.

Court Clash Likely on Walker Right to Run Again in Fall

City Charter and State Constitution Differ as to Legality of Resigned Mayor Seeking Re-election Before Current Term Expires.

NEW YORK CITY HALL

NEW YORK—With the sensational resignation of James J. Walker as mayor of New York, augmented by his announced determination to seek re-election this fall, a knotty problem has arisen which may precipitate a bitter court battle.

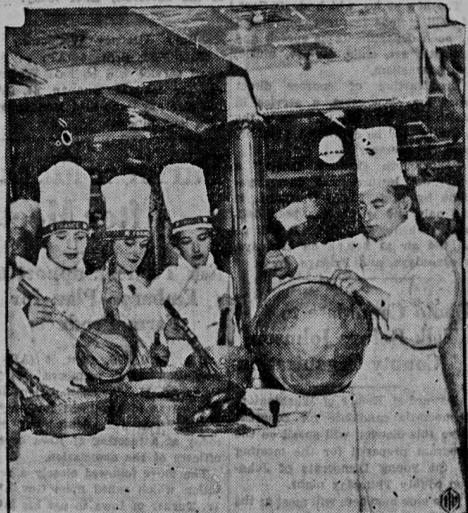

The problem is a constitutional one. The statutes provide that in the event of a vacancy in the mayoralty the president of the board of aldermen, in this case Joseph V. McKee, shall take office and act in the capacity of mayor until the expiration of the current term, and until noon of the first day of January following the election at which the mayor's successor shall be chosen.

Now as Walker's term does not expire until Dec. 31, 1933, it would appear that McKee is firmly settled in the saddle for a year at least. But another clause in the charter provides that should a vacancy occur before Oct. 15, the vacancy shall be filled at the next general election, which is in November. The question is further confused by an article in the state constitution which rules specifically that municipal elections in New York city shall be held only in "odd" years. The purpose of this last provision is to prevent the choice of a municipal administration from becoming involved with the vote for a governor or a president.

The present situation, however, is one without precedent. Walker, declaring that the procedure followed at the hearing into his official behavior before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was "unfair and un-American," resigned from office as a strategic move to take his fate out of the governor's hands and place it in the hands of the people who elected him. His act, then, in desiring to seek vindication at the polls may be termed an emergency, for which the constitution says the legislature shall provide.

As regards the article in the state constitution covering municipal elections in "odd" years, a precedent where that rule was violated may be cited. In 1916 New York city elected a president of the board of aldermen, despite the fact that it was a presidential and gubernatorial year.

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

By HARRISON CARROLL
SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD—On Oct. 21, Robert Armstrong will complete his five-year contract at R-K-O. Before that time, he will be given one of the most important parts in his career—the lead in "The Penguin Pool Murder Case."

Ordinarily, Bob doesn't play leads; he's better known for character parts.

But this time he'll share the honors with Edna May Oliver, and so far they are the only two players chosen for the cast.

"The Penguin Pool Murder Case," adapted by Willis Goldbeck, is a thriller with an unusual background—an aquarium. Miss Oliver plays a school-teacher who is shepherding her charges through the building when the slaughter takes place. Armstrong is the attorney who ferrets out the culprit.

The fall season will see a rush of murder mysteries coming out of Hollywood. Nearly all of the studios have them on their programs.

Following a recent studio salary cut, a certain Hollywood writer was trying to persuade his bootlegger to cut the price of bottled goods.

The "lagger" walked away with a derisive wave of his hand. "You know what he'll do," observed the writer morosely. "He'll cut the liquor instead."

On the way back, he had an automobile accident in front of a billboard advertising the picture. The next morning a piece of property he was dicker for was bought by Groucho Marx.

One of Hollywood's newest brides, Betty Davis, will play the lead opposite Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Parachute," another story by the prolific Rian James.

Mr. James, incidentally, has given up his column on a Brooklyn newspaper, and will devote all his future activities to writing pictures for Warner Brothers stars.

With "Cynara" due to be completed Sept. 18, Goldwyn has been scouring the literature of the world for a suitable vehicle for the English star. The time element was all important because Colman's contract is finished on the first of November.

Kiwanis Club Hears Speech

Sam T. Morrison Talks on Subject of Insurance

The position of the old line fire insurance companies, which, although suffering heavy losses through the depression, have not passed a single dividend payment in 100 years, was the subject of a talk by Sam T. Morrison, president of the Iowa State Insurance Agents association and member of the firm of Morrison and Parsons, before the Kiwanis club at a luncheon yesterday in the Jefferson hotel.

Mr. Morrison said the insurance companies expected poor business during times of depression and prepared for it. He explained that bonding and casualty companies are suffering even greater losses because of the great number of persons who are under bond.

Losses, he said, are particularly heavy in the field of automobile and elevator liability insurance, as well as from workmen's compensation.

Mr. Morrison outlined the work of the insurance companies during the last 10 years in developing a new variety of insurance known as inland marine insurance. It provides for the insurance of goods in transit.

Past President Edward S. Rose presided at the meeting in the absence of the president and vice president. F. W. Hohman was the guest of Isaac B. Lee.

Noted Writer, Politician Dies

Gilbert Parker Fails to Recover From Heart Attack

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian born Englishman who gained fame in the fields of literature and statesmanship at the turn of the century, died in his seventieth year today after a heart attack.

The author of such best sellers as "The Seats of the Mighty" and "The Lane That Had no Turning," had been in good health, working steadily in his London flat in Whitehall Court until Sunday, when it was necessary for nurses to attend him. Just before the end Dr. A. Leslie Lankester was called in, and the famous author expired at 6:30 p.m.

Nurses Present
Present were only nurses, Sir Gilbert's valet and the physician. He had no close relatives in England, although several reside in Canada and the United States.

Sir Gilbert's wife, the former Amy Van Tine, wealthy New York heiress, died in 1925, after the couple had been married for 30 years.

Best Seller
Before Sir Gilbert went to London in the early nineties he had done considerable writing which however had not attracted universal attention. It was not until he developed a leading character half hero and half villain but essentially and adventurer that Sir Gilbert won his way into the best seller group.

But just as he began to reap the rewards of his work, he began to devote more of his time to politics, and in 1900 became a member of parliament from Gravesend, serving 13 years. He was created a Knight in 1902, a baronet in 1915, and in 1916 was made a member of the privy council.

Mrs. Carrie Fairchild has returned to her home, after spending the week end with friends in Keokuk.

Mrs. Mary Merrith has returned to her home in Des Moines after a few days visit with relatives here.

over the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Conklin.

Mrs. Erned Fountain of South Dakota and Mrs. Emma Hinkley of Minnesota have been summoned here on account of the serious illness of their mother, Mrs. Arys Gaunt.

In celebration of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversaries of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McGinnis, Mrs. Carrie Fairchild entertained about 50 persons at her home Saturday evening.

GEO. P. HAUSER

Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

WHEN the New York Yankees turned back Connie Mack's A's in both ends of Monday's doubleheader, they, to all purposes, clinched the American league pennant.

A week ago it seemed that it would be practically impossible to check them. But that was before the Pittsburgh Pirates started their latest winning streak which has reached 10 straight and before the Cubs' long spree was broken.

HERE are some interesting observations by Brian Bell, the Associated Press columnist, on the world series and Babe Ruth in particular.

"If he bats .300 or better he will set another mark, for he has batted in the charmed circle in the five past series. If the series goes the full seven games and he plays in all of them his total world's series games will be stretched to 44, one more than the mark set by Frankie Frisch last year.

"HIS first base on balls, too, will be a new record—30 and his first strikeout—the same—28. Ruth has many more world series records not based on seniority and the other fellows will have as much chance as he has to break these, such as most home runs in a single series, most bases on balls, most home runs in a game, most runs batted in, and others."

Cleveland Sweeps Series With St. Louis With Two Wins, 4-3, 6-0

Averill Gets 31st Homer in 2nd Tilt

Connally Allows Only 8 Scattered Hits in Shutout Win

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians made a clean sweep of their four-game series with the St. Louis Browns by winning both games of a doubleheader today, 4 to 3 and 6 to 0.

Earl Averill, Cleveland centerfielder, hit his thirty-first home run of the season in the second, and also clouted a two-base hit. He hit two home runs in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader.

Connally Hurls Shutout Connally held the Browns to eight safeties in the second contest today, and made a three-base hit. The Browns used five pitchers in an attempt to halt the Indians' slugging attack in the second game.

The Browns were the first to score in the opener. Scharein singled in the third, went to second on Russell's wild pitch, advanced to third on an outfield fly and scored on another wild pitch by Russell.

Hadley Again Pitches Irving Hadley, making his third start in four days for the Browns, had only one bad inning, the sixth, but the Indians then scored three runs which won the game for them.

Ottumwa Pros Big Favorites in State Meet

OTTUMWA, Sept. 6 (AP)—A pair of Ottumwa professional golfers have high hopes for gathering in the Iowa P. G. A. title when the state's money players meet in a 72-hole test here Sept. 10 and 11.

Dave Bonella, pro at the host club, the Ottumwa Country club, will have the advantage of knowing every ditch, gopher hole and tree on the course when he enters the long two-day test. He is joint holder of the course record of 65 with Art Bartlett, veteran Ottumwa amateur.

The other home town contender is Gene Isaacson, pro at the municipal course. Isaacson finished in a tie for fourth in the Iowa open tournament at Des Moines last week and was tied for second highest professional with Ted Payseur of Dubuque. Isaacson has been well up among the leaders in the professional and open tournament in Iowa for several years and this year is playing his best game.

One of the most dangerous rivals will be Joe Brown, young Des Moines ace who led the pros home in the Iowa open with a 301 total, five strokes behind the champion, Pete Jordan. Another youthful Des Moines contender is Jack Hall, who finished in a tie for eighth place in the open.

Harold Smith of Cedar Rapids, defending champion, was not in the Iowa open field, but he will be on the firing line to protect his title here.

Purdue Grid Record High Illini Play Bargain Bill

2932 Squad Faces Big Task in Upholding Victory Plane

(Special to The Daily Iowan) LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 6—Purdue's football squad will have an enviable record to uphold this fall when it takes the field in defense of its Big Ten co-championship, for in the past five seasons of play Boilermaker eleven have piled up the remarkably high victory average of .829 while winning 34 games, tying one and losing only seven.

The record which the reconstructed 1932 eleven will attempt to live up to this fall is even more impressive when it is considered that only three times in five years have Purdue teams been outscored on touchdowns, for four of the losses during the period have been by the margin of a missed kick after touchdown—a single point.

Met 22 Teams In setting the consistent five-year victory clip, the Boilermakers have met 22 different teams, including eleven from practically every section of the country, the east, far west, south and Missouri Valley in addition to the Big Ten foes.

Against 16 of the 22 teams, Purdue still has a clean 1,000 per cent sheet, while Minnesota is the lone eleven on the list that makes the Boilermaker balance sheet show in the red. The Gophers turned back the Old Gold and Black at Minneapolis in 1928 in the single meeting between the two teams in recent years, and this fall will find the Boilermakers attempting to even that part of the grid ledger.

Perfect in Intersectional Tilt Michigan and Wisconsin have both broken even with the Boilermakers during the period, while Northwestern has won 1 out of 3, Indiana and Chicago, which have both won one out of the last five engagements, complete the list of teams that have been able to stop the victory stride.

Against intersectional foes, Purdue has a perfect 1,000 per cent slate, the victims including Harvard, Carnegie Tech, Montana State, Mississippi, Baylor and Centenary among others.

Northwestern Athletic Office Spends $15,000 for Equipment

(Special to The Daily Iowan) EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 6—Northwestern university's athletic department did its part last week to help bring back prosperity by letting orders for $15,000 worth of athletic equipment and supplies for the coming football season.

The orders given by Carl Erickson, equipment manager, consist of a wide variety of materials including uniforms, headgears, shoes, tape, bandages, drugs, rubbing oils, cotton and footballs.

Fourteen Dozen Balls It will require a total of 14 dozen footballs to keep the Wildcats supplied with this fundamental requisite for the great fall pastime. These balls will be on hand when the players report for practice Sept. 15.

Tonight Goes to Chicago for Grid Meetings

Will Return Next Week to Prepare for 1st Drill of Season

Ossie Solem, tanned and physically fit from a summer in the Minnesota woods, arrived here yesterday after an absence of three months, eager for the assembling of his University of Iowa football squad Sept. 15.

He was able, however, to spend little time in Iowa City, for tonight he must leave for Chicago. There he will address two alumni meetings and attend the rules interpretation sessions for Western conference coaches and officials Saturday.

Spikes Illness Rumors Coach Solem since early June has been at a boys' camp near Annandale, Minn. Reports that he has been seriously ill were spiked by the new Hawkeye coach, who said that his disability of two weeks ago was a minor ear infection which now is cured.

With Rollie Williams and Otto Vogel, the other members of the Hawkeye varsity coaching staff, and William Boelter, freshman mentor, Solem will hold several conferences next week for a discussion of plans for the season.

Practices Start in Week The first practice for his Iowa squad of some 55 athletes occurs on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 15. Twice daily drills will be given to the men until Sept. 24, a week before the initial game with Bradley Tech. Because university classes start later than usual, the squad will have the benefit of the greatest number of September work-outs in recent seasons.

Little Hawks Open Season Next Monday

Coach George Wells, daily sending his Iowa City high gridlers through their paces in preparation for the tough 11 game schedule which faces his inexperienced squad this fall, will present them to their first actual competition next Monday.

Lone Tree, with whom the Hawks have opened their seasons for the last several years, will come here for the opening clash which comes the first day of school. Last year, the visitors came close to handing the Red and White an upset, the locals managing to squeeze out a 6 to 0 win.

The Lone Tree game is one of two next week, West Liberty playing here that week end.

The Duke university forest has been taken over by the state of North Carolina to use as a refuge for small game.

Gene Tunney was the only heavyweight champion in history who did not suffer a knockout at some stage of his career.

This fall Tulane's grid squad will have 12 backfield men who can kick if needed.

The first half of the American diamondball league wound up last night with Swaner's handing the hitherto first place Purity Bakers out a 16 to 4 defeat. The victory for the daylirners threw the league into a five-way tie for first place, the lowly Knights of Pythias having been the only team falling to mark up a win.

The only game in the National league found Maid-Rite continuing undefeated by routing the last place Kublets, 19 to 1. One game remains in this league, the Elks being due to play the Maid-Rite outfit but the game has not yet been scheduled for any definite time, having been postponed twice already. A victory for the Elks in that game would put the league into a three-way tie with Maid-Rite, Elks and Kelley's sharing the lead.

George Lott Upsets Young Frank Parker

"Grudge" Match Highlight of Play in U.S. Net Meet

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Just as he vowed he would, George Lott, Jr., of the Chicago Lotts, had his revenge today on Frankie Parker, the 16 year old Milwaukee phenomenon who has been beating him all over the south, the mid-west and Canada the last several months.

Luring Frankie out on the center court at West Side Tennis club, with 6,000 fans and a dozen linesmen eyeing his every move, the Davis Cup veteran mowed down his youthful tormentor by scores of 6-4, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 in the third round of the national tennis championships.

It was a battle every stroke of the way, with Parker at times rising to the heights of brilliance and eliciting the loudest cheers his youthful ears have heard, but in the end he couldn't cope with the determined Lott, roused to a pitch usually foreign to his nature.

High Point of Day The match was the high point of the third day's play, in which all but two seeded stars won and joined the select group of 16 who will continue in the fourth round tomorrow. Dave Jones of New York seeded ninth in this country lost a grueling match to Edward Avory of England, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, 5-7, 10-8, and Marcel Bernard of France, seeded No. 6 on the foreign list was waylaid by Keith Gledhill, the California star, 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

Henri Cochet of France and Ellsworth Vines, Jr., defending champion, went blithely on toward the finals, although Vines was carried to four sets in eliminating Gabriel Lavine of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-0, 8-0, 7-5.

Sparkling Exhibition Cochet, playing Manuel Alonso for the first time in 10 years, gave a sparkling exhibition in beating the veteran Spaniard, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1. Johnny Van Ryn of Philadelphia, who will tackle Cochet tomorrow, defeated Edward Felbman of New York, 6-1, 5-7, 6-0, 6-3. Vines next opponent will be Gledhill, co-holder with him of the national doubles crown.

Other seeded players who came through on schedule were Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, Jr., Wilmer Allison, Clifford Sutter, Les Stofen and Gregory Mangin of the United States; Takeo Kuwabara, champion of Japan, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Frederick Perry and John Offit of England.

MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at the Chicago New Year's Eve celebration. A few hours later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Ross, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap picked up in Lola's room presents mute evidence of having caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boncher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents sold medical laboratory specimens. The scientist employed by Colt to analyze the dust garnered from Lola's room telephones that he knows what killed Lola and Christine.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

The laboratory of Professor Luckner, as I recalled while Neil McMahon was driving us up toward Morningstar Heights, was a plain room in the rear of a private apartment. Some years before, the old scientist had retired, but at Colt's persuasion had equipped himself with a private workshop which he devoted solely to research work requested by the police department. On many occasions he had seen of substantial assistance to Thatcher Colt.

At the door of the apartment we were met by the professor, a middle man with a red beard turning gray, reminding one of Bernard Shaw. This morning the scientist's eyes were twinkling behind double-lensed nose spectacles and his wild, scraggy gray hair was waving excitedly on the top of his long, thin head.

"Come right in," the savant invited, shaking hands effusively and laughing nervously. "Once more you skeptics shall see what poor, humble science can do!"

He led us to a plain room. In the center was a kitchen table, over which had been laid a covering of glistening white cardboard. Here the dust and fragments from the bags of the vacuum cleaners had been spread on the cardboard and the whole dumped mass leveled to a fine thin layer, spread like varnish. Trained on this exhibit was a beam of light from a portable nickel-plated lamp—like the "baby spot" of the theaters—with the additional feature of a belt of mirrors concentrated around the light. Under this light, Professor Luckner had been examining the mess for hours, peering at it through an ultra-microscope.

"Please show us what you have found, professor," pleaded Colt, in a tone a rising note of eagerness. Without replying, Professor Luckner picked up a pair of dainty tweezers. Reaching into a wooden box, which he produced from the pocket of his white linen robe, he dipped something between the steel fingers of his gleaming little instrument. With the air of a conjurer performing a trick he held up the tweezers exposing his treasure.

"I found this in the dust," he proclaimed with an air of pride.

We drew nearer and peered at the two fuzzy, microscopic pieces held in the nippers. What could they be? Professor Luckner deposited his precious findings on a clear piece of the cardboard, and placed over it a magnifying glass.

"See for yourself!" he invited.

Quickly the Commissioner bent over, turned the screw of the glass, and squinted. With intense interest he studied the almost invisible treasure which the scientist had rescued from a sea of dusty sweepings.

"They look like the thin attenuated bristles of some insect!" declared Thatcher Colt finally.

The professor gave a mighty sigh.

"Exactly, Herr Commissioner!" he boomed. "You should have been a scientist yourself!"

"But bristles of what insect?" urged Colt.

Again without replying, Professor Luckner opened a drawer in the kitchen table upon which he had performed his mysterious labors. From the drawer, he drew out a long tube which physicians call a specimen jar. It is the kind of glass finds in which an appendix often finds a permanent home. This jar was nearly filled with yellow alcohol. It was labeled, and as Colt received the bottle from the professor's long, pale hand, he pronounced the legend of the label as if it were an incantation: "Cebtrurus Exilicanda!"

With a startled air, Colt glanced from the embalming thing in the specimen jar to the flushed and proud face of Professor Luckner.

"What is this?" asked the Commissioner.

"A scorpion!"

"A scorpion?" repeated Colt in astonishment. "A scorpion, did you say?"

"The most deadly known to man!"

"Lola Carewe and Christine Quires died from the bites of a scorpion?"

"There is no doubt of it! I have already talked on the telephone with your Doctor Multooler."

My ears were ringing with astonishment. How could such a thing have been done? I remembered the box, stuffed with cotton, found in the snow. But who could plot and manage such an unthinkable method of murder? It seemed mad—preposterous—and madder still when I remembered that once Lola Carewe had danced a waltz of her own invention that was called "The Scorpion!"

"Tell me about this," urged Thatcher Colt. "I had never understood that the bite of a scorpion was necessarily fatal."

The old scientist wagged his head to one side and his eyes gleamed with the pride of superior knowledge.

"But this is not the ordinary insect," he explained with a bland air. "It caused me a great deal of trouble before I could identify it. Seven Columbia professors have been here this morning to help me out. Fortunately one of them had this perfect specimen—and then I knew I was right!"

Over Colt's shoulder I looked at the dead creature in the bottle. It was light-colored, long-tailed, and was about two inches long, with two enormous feelers at the head, flat at their ends.

"There is an even finer specimen in the Bureau of Entomology, in Washington, so I am informed," continued Professor Luckner. "I have a photograph."

"But where are these creatures found?" interrupted Colt.

"Particularly in Durango, Mexico," Professor Luckner replied. "They cause about forty deaths a year in that region."

"What are the symptoms when one is bitten, professor?"

"A stinging, burning sensation like a hot needle being plunged into the flesh. It is a peculiar sensation and is always recognized, even by those who did not see the alacran, as the Spaniards call the scorpion. Within a few minutes the bitten place becomes red, followed by a severe pain in the part affected. In a little while—in some cases it is three or four minutes, often a second or so—that part becomes numb. The tongue becomes thick and it is impossible to pronounce words clearly."

Colt glanced at me. Our thoughts must have been the same. Again we were living through those moments of agony when he had found Lola Carewe in anguish on the floor.

"Go on," urged Colt in a low voice.

"For quite a while there is a coma. Then spasms or convulsions of the entire body begin. They are more marked in the legs and back. They are accompanied by a straining and grunting sound. There is more or less paralysis of the respiration. Croup-like sounds come from the throat. These convulsions come in waves and increase in severity. There is a livid pallor to the face. Just before death the pulse is very rapid, the eyes bloodshot—and often the patient spits up blood."

Colt's sombre eyes lingered on the specimen of the dead scorpion in the bottle.

"It all tallies," he remarked. "There is no doubt, as you say, that these two women died from the bite of its body? You found only these two legs?"

"No more, Herr Commissioner," replied Luckner inconspicuously. "And why is it that the scorpions, living or dead, were not found?" added Colt, peering under contracted brows at Professor Luckner.

The old savant grinned.

"They die when they bite human beings," he explained. "Then the murderer must have recovered the dead scorpion—"

Professor Luckner laughed aloud. "All except those two little legs," he boasted, with undignified glee. "And where did it bite Lola and Christine—when there were no wounds on the body?"

"It is not for me to answer that."

"Not for you—but for me," said Colt in solemn accents. "There was no mark on her body, except—"

"I think I could give you a hint!" cried the old scientist surprisingly. "Look here what I have also done—all for the honor and the glory of your unappreciative police department!"

On another table at the farther end of the room lay the clothes in which Lola Carewe and Christine Quires had been clad when we found them. From out of the bundle one piece lay exposed—the bathrobe about which Thatcher Colt had been so curious. Lola's garment that had been buttoned the wrong way.

"There is what you call a clue, Herr Commissioner," said Professor Luckner. "I cut away the sleeves of all the garments and sheared them open. Here, in this one, just below the elbow, I found something."

Heavy Sales Down Prices in Stock Mart

Leading Shares Register Losses of More Than Point

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—The stock market's pursuit of plus signs was halted today by a liberal volume of offerings, and leading shares showed an average net loss of slightly more than a point.

Some other markets, too, acted a little tired. Cotton, which had climbed about $2 a bale on the strength of the farm board's announcement concerning surplus holdings, all but gave up its advances, while wheat's early response to the same stimulus likewise underwent a correction.

Maintain Good Spirits

However, coffee, cocoa, hides and rubber maintained their good spirits, and it seemed that profit-taking had been chiefly responsible for the setback in shares. Bonds were rather passive.

Bullish Professional Kept the Pot Stirring

by mark-ups in coppers, steel, oils and specialties during the forenoon, but encountered more general resistance than of late.

Steels Hits for New High

U. S. Steel common did its best to set a new high for the year but the stock shied off after touching 52-1/2, or 1-8 under its 1932 peak. It closed at 50, down 11-2 net.

American Telephone's 3-point loss was matched by Santa Fe and Union Pacific. Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, American Can, National Biscuit, Case, International Harvester, and others lost about 1 to 2. United Virovorus salines. Transactions reached the substantial volume of 4,362,700 shares.

Strength of foreign security markets on our holiday appeared to have little effect here.

Profit Taking Hits Prices of Grain Market

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (AP)—Urgency of wheat traders who wished to convert paper profits into cash did much to turn prices sharply backward today after a brisk advance.

Stirred by news that 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of government-financed domestic wheat would be held off the market until next year, prices made a quick jump of 2-1/8 cents, but later dropped nearly all the gain. Tending to incite selling was a 3,638,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply, and enlarged hedging pressure at Winnipeg.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8 to 1-2 above Saturday's finish, corn unchanged to 7-8 higher, oats 1-8 off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Highest prices in wheat were reached during an early general buying rush that hoisted many contracts to a new top record for the season. On subsequent dips, buying was of good volume, but insufficient to keep the market upstage.

Bears laid stress on predictions that the United States wheat yield, he supply would continue to show increases, and that seeding of domestic winter wheat would be much augmented by announcements that sales of farm board sponsored holdings would be halted.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat.

Provisions gathered firmness from cereals and the hog market.

Closing indemnities: wheat—Sept. 53 1-2, 55 1-2; Dec. 57 1-8 to 1-4, 59 1-8 to 1-4; May 62 1-8 to 1-4, 64 to 64 1-8. Corn—Dec. 33 1-8 to 1-4, 34; May 37 7-8, 38 3-4.

Ripley Explanations

Explanation of Sunday's Cartoon

A record in pinnetting—Louise Brown, musical comedy star and dancer, made 85 pinnettes on toe in succession to set a new world's record. Miss Brown performed this feat of successive single and double complete turns while practicing at Tarasoff's studio in New York city, Aug. 1932.

Robert Kiphuth, head coach

Standing on the sidewalk in front of his apartment-home, smiling and looking in better health than he did last week, he spread his arms in a wide gesture, and said:

"I'm just trying to give an imitation of a private citizen."

Will Take Vacation

In telling of plans to go away "to the woods somewhere—maybe to the Adirondacks—for a vacation," he said:

"I want a vacation from politics."

In another part of the city James E. Finnegan, who filed charges against Walker with Governor Roosevelt, issued a statement that Walker "ran away not to save his own face, but to save his wasting, misgoverning organization's face."

"Had Tammany hall not been threatened," he said, "it would have been vastly better for Walker to take his medicine than to subject himself to charges of being 'yellow.'"

He predicted Walker would be kept from running again.

for the United States men's Olympic swimming team this year, coach in 1928 for the women's Olympic swimming team, and also swimming coach at Yale for many years, is himself unable to swim a single stroke. This paradox is the more unusual for the reason that as swimming coach he has turned out an incredible number of champions, and in one year's time has taken men who were unable to swim and coached them to inter-collegiate championships.

Kiphuth is a professional gymnast.

Tomorrow: A most distinguished career.

GERMANY Asks Disarmament or Arms Equality

the question of equality, which Germany has emphasized again and again.

Fourth: Germany would not decline any general disarmament scheme as long as it applied to all powers, hence Germany always has urged that other powers should disarm, each according to its particular situation, down to Germany's status under the Versailles treaty. Germany regretfully finds that there is no prospect of this. Germany cannot be blamed for refusing to accept a solution entitling the heavily armed powers only slightly to reduce armaments, while to Germany the Versailles treaty continues to apply. Germany has the same right to security as others.

Wants Border Protection
Fifth and sixth: The application to Germany of any discriminatory provisions would mean that Germany would continue to be relegated to a second class position. Germany would insist on a convention paying due regard to her security, but would be content with certain modifications of her present status because she is convinced a second convention will inevitably follow in which Germany's standpoint will receive more adequate recognition.

Seventh: All categories of arms not generally forbidden by the convention must also be permitted to Germany and likewise such modifications as are needed for her peculiar situation, notably the length of military service and the formation of a special short service militia for the maintenance of order and protection of frontiers—all within the limits of her financial resources.

Asks French Tolerance
Eighth: In recent utterances in connection with the German equality question, the French premier has emphasized the significance of security for France. Germany cannot at the moment take up a definite attitude in regard to this, as she does not know what the concrete desires of France are, but she is always ready to discuss any projects serving the end of security to everybody. Ninth: Germany begs France to be assured of the loyal and moderate character of her intentions, but adds the question of equality can no longer be left open. It would serve to relax the present tension if the military discrimination against Germany, which the German people feel to be humiliating, could be eliminated and thereby help to establish the stable equilibrium of Europe.

Once-Penniless Immigrant Controls McCormick Estate

Edward Dato, Who Bought Krenn's Claim to Estate of John D's Daughter, Was Destitute Fugitive From Russia. Holdings Once Valued at $40,000,000 May Be Worth Nothing.

EDWIN KRENN

EDWARD A. DATO

CHICAGO—While lawyers and accountants are busily engaged taking an inventory of the estate left by the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, once valued at $40,000,000, but now said to have dwindled to almost nothing, a few remarkable figures whose lives have been interwoven with the great fortune may be of interest.

The first, Edwin Krenn, who is the principal beneficiary in the will of the oil king's deceased daughter, is a fairly familiar figure to the American reading public. Krenn came into the limelight some years ago when it was persistently rumored that he was to marry Mrs. McCormick.

The wealthy woman had met him 10 years earlier in Zurich, Switzerland, where she had recently graduated from a school of psychoanalysis and launched a cult of her own. Krenn was one of the first pupils at this school, and Mrs. McCormick had formed such an attachment for him that when she returned to the United States she brought him with her, as personal adviser.

Soon after, Krenn blossomed out as a real estate operator in Chicago with an elaborate suite of offices on Lake Shore Drive, a short distance from the $7,000,000 McCormick mansion. The business prospered from the start, backed as it was by the fortune of Krenn's wealthy patron, who became principal stockholder in the enterprise. It was about this time that rumors of an engagement between Mrs. McCormick and her protegee began to circulate. However, it is well known that family opposition put an end to any intention the couple had of marrying.

Now comes the second figure into the picture. He is Edward A. Dato, architect and realtor. Dato, a native Russian, fled from his own land in 1906 and took refuge in Switzerland, where he entered an engineering school. Here he met Edwin Krenn. The latter, it seems, was having trouble with mathematics and Dato often helped him with some of the problems that had him stumped. They became fast friends. Later, when he had received a degree at a Zurich college he came to the United States and looked up his old friend, Krenn, who by this time was sitting on top of the financial world. When Dato arrived on the scene, Mrs. McCormick and Krenn had just entered into a gigantic real estate venture and had set up the Edith Rockefeller trust, with $18,000,000 of Mrs. McCormick's securities as financing.

Krenn's bosom friend was invited to join the venture. He did, and started on the road to prosperity. An instance of the manner in which Mrs. McCormick played the role of financing angel to the three-cornered combination is recalled by Dato in telling of his first interview with the wealthy woman.

"Here's $5,000,000 to start with," he quotes Mrs. McCormick as saying as she nonchalantly handed Krenn securities to the value of that amount.

The death of Mrs. McCormick, of course, broke up the combine. But it did not break Dato. Krenn, who was left five-twelfths of his patron's estate, sold out his claim to the huge inheritance to the third partner for an annual sum of $25,000, which action places Dato in complete control of the gigantic realty venture, said to have cost Mrs. McCormick from $18,000,000 to $25,000,000.

However, it is more than likely that Dato's claim to the vast holdings will be contested by opposing factions. It is probably for this reason that Krenn is glad to get out from under and retire to his native Switzerland.

If it is true that the original $40,000,000 estate has shrunk to a much smaller total, the legacies which Mrs. McCormick left to her children may amount to little or nothing. In the opinion of Judge Charles S. Cutting, who drew up the wealthy woman's will three weeks before her death, the entire estate may not be worth a penny.
