Al Smith May Take Up Cudgel in Roosevelt Drive

Asks Voters to Understand True Position

Leaders Will Fight Walker in N. Y. Race

'Al' Waits Nominee's Invitation to Speak NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP)—A threat to unseat the Tammany hall chief, and a belief in Democratic quarters that the way has been paved for "Al" Smith to take up the cudgels in Governor Roosevelt's presidential drive stood out tonight as results of New York Democracy's dramatic convention.

Dramatic Groups to Hold Mixer for Interested Students

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the river room of Iowa Union, students new to the campus will be introduced to the plans of University theater and University Players for the coming year, in a mixer given by these two drama organizations.

2,500 FARMERS ROO HOOVER

Disaffected farmers paraded in Des Moines Tuesday a few hours before a formal official parade welcomed President Hoover to his native state. Approximately 2,500 farmers took part in the parade. Trucks bore such banners as "In Hoover we trusted—Now we are busted"; "The Republican Four H club, Hoover, Hyde, HELL and Hard Times."

Expresses Appreciation for Reception in Midwest

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP)—In self-termed hard words, President Hoover today denounced as "deliberate, intolerable falsehoods" what he said were widespread personal misrepresentations promulgated in the midwest in the last few weeks.

Surrounded by a crowd that pushed and shoved toward him as he spoke over the radio from the rear platform of his special train at Ft. Wayne, Ind., the president said he believed sportsmanship and statesmanship called for the elimination of harsh personalities between opponents.

Names Not Mentioned The speech was the chief executive's first since he left Des Moines last night where he said a national victory had been achieved over economic difficulties and declared that enactment of the "Democratic program" would "end hope of recovery." Without naming the "opponents" to whom he referred today, the president told his Ft. Wayne audience:

"On this journey, however, I have received a multitude of reports as to the widespread personal misrepresentations which have been promulgated in the mid-west in the last few weeks. I regret that the character of these personalities necessitates a direct, word from me.

"I shall say now the only harsh word that I have uttered in public office; I hope it will be the last I shall have to say.

"When you are told that the president of the United States, who by the most sacred trust of our nation is the president of all the people, a man of your own blood and upbringing, has sat in the White House for the last three years of your misfortune without troubling to know your troubles; without heartaches over your miseries and casualties; without summoning every avenue of skillful assistance irrespective of party or view; without using every ounce of his strength and straining his every nerve to protect and help; without using every possible agency of democracy that would bring aid; without putting aside personal ambition and humbling his pride in opinion if that would serve—then I say to you that such statements are deliberate intolerable falsehoods."

Ft. Wayne was the first of a series of stops made by the president on his way through Indiana and

University Student Council Organizes; Mitvalsky President

Permanent organization of the university student council was effected Tuesday night when Milo Mitvalsky, L3 of Cedar Rapids, was elected president; Erwin Zeman, M4 of Holstein, secretary; and John R. Cronin, L2 of Des Moines, vice president.

Announcement of the organization was made yesterday by Mr. Cronin, retiring president, following conferences concerning the naming of various committee members.

Of the three, Cronin is the only one holding a two year term. Both Zeman and Mitvalsky will finish their terms at the end of this year.

Cronin was named chairman of the university elections committee, with other members: Nels Traer, A3 of Davenport; John Turkington, A3 of Rochelle, Ill.; Robert Rauscher, M3 of Fairfield; Earl Ewald, E2 of Sigourney; and Duane Lovett, D2 of Lineville.

Freshman party committee candidates were nominated and, upon approval of the council, will be announced in the near future. The party date has been tentatively set for Nov. 18.

Two Confess to Shooting of Farm Picket

MINNESOTA FARMERS SAY SHOTS ONLY TO SCARE ROAD GUARDS CANBY, Minn., Oct. 5 (AP)—A farmer and his son late today confessed, Sheriff M. F. Fitzner said, that they were responsible for the death of a farmer picket on a highway near here last night.

Oppose Walker On the heels of their joint victory in winning the gubernatorial nomination for Herbert H. Lehman came reports the two leaders stand together in opposing the possible nomination of James J. Walker for the mayoralty post he relinquished while ouster proceedings were being heard by Governor Roosevelt.

While hope grew in the states known as Smith strongholds that the 1932 standard bearer would now agree to make some campaign speeches, Smith himself smiled and said nothing.

His associates indicated he would wait for Roosevelt to invite him to become an active campaigner.

Democrats in Massachusetts have expressed a desire that the "happy warrior," whom they supported at Chicago, address a big rally in Boston Garden Oct. 18.

Look to Smith New York Democrats, recalling that Calvin Coolidge will speak in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday, were talking of the possibility of getting Smith as the headliner for their rally in the "Garden."

Out of the tangled situation resulting from Tammany's unsuccessful fight to block Lehman's nomination, came these reports, which were neither definitely denied nor confirmed:

1. That a definite move was under way within Tammany ranks to replace as leader John F. Curry, who, in private conferences, led the fight against Lehman's nomination.

2. That Smith was being considered by some leaders as possible organization candidate for mayor, if an election in November is ordered by the court of appeals.

McKee Gaining Popularity 3. That Joseph V. McKee, Walker's successor and a non-Tammany Democrat, is growing in strength as a possible fusion candidate, if not nominated by the Democrats.

A citywide convention tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden, to which there will be 32,075 delegates, will bring the only definite denial or confirmation of the last two reports.

As to the first, Smith, it was learned authoritatively tonight, was definitely offered, in one of the Tammany conferences at Albany, the nomination as U. S. senator if he would withdraw his support of Lehman.

His answer was two fold: That he was for Lehman "in spite of everything," and he was "not a candidate for any public office at present."

County Board Cut Proposed

Voters Will Decide on Future Number of Supervisors The question of whether or not the Johnson county board of supervisors will be reduced from five to three members will be decided by the voters when they go to the polls Nov. 8.

A petition signed by 2,566 qualified voters asking that such a vote be taken was approved by the board yesterday, and a resolution was passed ordering that the vote be taken at the next general election.

The petition was filed with the board Sept. 8. The signatures represented more than the one quarter of the qualified voters who voted at the last election for the head of the ticket, as required by law. One quarter of the total vote for United States senator at the last election was 2,330.

Fletcher Makes Ruling DES MOINES (AP)—Annual consent by the county superintendent of schools for the attendance of a student at an adjoining school corporation's institution is necessary, the attorney general ruled. Reply to a query of Agnes Samuelson, state superintendent of public instruction, the ruling held that such consent does not hold indefinitely, but must be renewed annually.

Award Contract DES MOINES (AP)—The Tom Drake Roofing company was awarded a contract to re-roof the agricultural building at the state fair grounds. Its bid was $5,058.75.

Hawkeye Aspirants Will Try Out Today Tryouts for all persons interested in working on the editorial staff of the 1934 Hawkeye will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Hawkeye office, Journalism building. Representatives of all classes are invited to try for staff positions. Tryouts for the business staff will be held later.

With the exception of Hunter Gehlbach, C3 of Ogden, editor in chief, none of the staff has yet been named.

County Board Cut Proposed The two other outsiders, Prof. George S. Counts of Columbia university, and Prof. J. B. Edmondson of the University of Michigan will speak at tomorrow's sessions.

Other addresses today will be given by members of the University of Iowa faculty.

Technical Fugitive Insull, technically a fugitive, had preceded the Chicago officers to the Ontario city, arriving earlier in the day from the Orilla, Ont., home he had occupied with his wife since his retirement last spring. Telephone calls to Orilla from Chicago newspapers failed to elicit information as to his plans. Similar inquiries at the Paris residence of Samuel Insull, Jr., failed to divulge where they had gone after leaving their apartment early today.

Prosecutor Swanson, learning Martin Insull had arrived in Toronto and asked that Insull be kept under surveillance. The chief agreed to do so, although pointing out he had no authority to arrest him. Later dispatches said Insull had returned to Orilla.

British Citizen Insull is a British citizen. Only Canadian officers could arrest him on Canadian soil, and the governor of Illinois notified State's Attorney Swanson today that he will sign no extradition warrant until certain that Cook county will assume the costs. The county board has voted down a $50,000 appropriation asked by the prosecutor, but Swanson still held hopes of loosening the county purse strings through public demand.

John Hampton, assistant state's attorney, and Sergeant Anthony Blazie left for Toronto by plane at 2:30 p.m. today, their clearance into Canada at Detroit pre-arranged. The trip was expected to take five hours.

TODAY'S PROGRAM Morning 8:00—Registration: office, room W113 East hall, University experimental schools, or Old Capitol. 9:00—Demonstration and conference, University experimental schools.

11:00—Conferences: Elementary education, experimental schools building, room 332, Prof. T. J. Kirby and staff.

Afternoon 2:30 p.m.—Approaches to liberal and cultural education, Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh. 3:15 p.m.—Research in relation to educational administration, David Spence Hill.

Evening 8 p.m.—National crisis and education, David Spence Hill; Dean Paul C. Packer, presiding.

More than 300 persons are expected to meet in Iowa City this morning for the opening of the university's two-day conference on supervision and administration. The meeting will be the nineteenth annual affair of its kind.

Designed for public school officials, both administrators and members of boards of education, the conference is expected to draw attendance from all sections of the state.

With three speakers of international note scheduled to address the sessions, the college of education and the extension division, co-sponsors of the conference, have arranged discussion groups and observation parties as additional features.

Prof. David Spence Hill, first of the three experts to address the conference, will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in chemistry auditorium, on "National crises and education," and at 3:15 this afternoon in Old Capitol before the general session.

Professor Hill is director of research for the national advisory committee appointed three years ago by President Herbert Hoover. He was formerly president of the University of New Mexico, and, prior to that taught psychology in several major educational institutions.

The two other outsiders, Prof. George S. Counts of Columbia university, and Prof. J. B. Edmondson of the University of Michigan will speak at tomorrow's sessions.

Other addresses today will be given by members of the University of Iowa faculty.

AWAIT ON ORDERS FOR EXTRADITION OF FINANCIER CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (AP)—Two officers bearing certified copies of the indictments charging Martin J. Insull with larceny and embezzlement of $547,000 flew to Toronto tonight with orders to keep their eyes on Insull.

They could not arrest him, and the question whether they would bring him back for trial was quite clouded tonight.

British Citizen Insull is a British citizen. Only Canadian officers could arrest him on Canadian soil, and the governor of Illinois notified State's Attorney Swanson today that he will sign no extradition warrant until certain that Cook county will assume the costs.

Dean, Noble Speak Before Mechanical Engineering Society

SIDNEY DEAN, E3 OF TRAEER, AND HOWARD NOBLE, E3 OF CLEMONS, WERE SPEAKERS BEFORE THE STUDENT BRANCH OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

The former spoke on "The use of the airplane in Alaska." He touched on the cost of operation and maintenance, and described the difficulties of operating express and passenger airlines in the Alaskan climate.

Noble's subject was "The recent meeting of the British association." He reviewed papers given before the association on control of sound from railroads, airplanes, and motorcycles and on rural electrification in England.

Flood Lights to Illuminate Shrader Field

WILL USE EQUIPMENT AT LOCAL FOOTBALL GAME TOMORROW IOWA CITIANS will see their first night football game Friday when University high and City high battle it out at Shrader field as the result of a decision of the school board yesterday to approve the installation at an expense of $1,500 of a giant flood light system at the city gridiron.

Work was immediately started upon news of the vote in the morning and the field will be ready for the game Friday night.

Merchants Aid The conclusion of the board was reached after several weeks of discussion between city merchants and members of the board and came finally as the result of the continued interest for the project and by the promise of the merchants to cooperate in the venture.

Furthermore, after a down payment of $200 on the equipment, the balance of the $1,500 can be paid over a period of three years.

The problem of the expense, which had held up the plan since it was first discussed at a special meeting of the Merchant's Bureau and the school board two weeks ago, is expected to be solved by the increased receipts from the larger gates expected to turn out to the games.

Modern Equipment The most modern and complete electrical set-up has been obtained by the high school athletic association, the board said, and the games played at night will be seen as plainly as if at day. Four uprights will be placed on each side of the field from each of which will be two reflectors containing two 1,500 watt bulbs apiece. The total of 48,000 watts of light thus obtained will make even the highest punt visible.

Plans for increased bleachers to accommodate the larger attendances were also being completed yesterday.

Garner Flays Hoover's Talk in Des Moines

SAYS PRESIDENT UNABLE TO EXPLAIN BROKEN PROMISES WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP)—John N. Garner, speaker of the house and vice presidential candidate of the Democrats, replied today to President Hoover's Iowa speech with a statement in which he said "broken promises cannot be explained away."

"Offering no apologies," declared Garner, "I say with all the emphasis at my command that if we judge the promises he now makes in the light of those he has made and failed to fulfill, either his sincerity or his ability to make good his latest pledges is seriously open to question."

Leads Demo Criticism The speaker, whose rule of the house was singled out for particular attack in the president's address, led a group of Democratic spokesmen in issuing criticism. In succession after he gave his written statement to newspapermen, Representative Byrns of Tennessee, Senator Harrison of Mississippi and others gave out through the Democratic national committee fresh broadsides against the Hoover speech.

Garner charged the president with displaying "the inconsistency that has characterized his entire administration" in the statement that he was using his good offices to prevail upon mortgage companies not to foreclose upon homes and farms.

Vetted Farm Aid "The president," he said, "vetted the measure that would have assured farmers the credit necessary to prevent foreclosure. He asserted at that time it would make the government a pawnbroker, and insisted that loans be extended only to a select clientele. After extending the loans he states that he is now endeavoring to induce those who have secured the millions of government credit to be lenient with the farmers and home owners whose mortgages they hold."

Garner said he was not criticizing the loans to the financial organizations "but it must be obvious that extension of credit to a select few only cannot bring to this country the maximum benefits that should accrue from the release of this great volume of credit."

Farmers and home owners, he asserted, are as much entitled to that credit as any corporation with equally acceptable collateral.

MacNider Takes Post MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Hantford MacNider of Mason City, Ia., former United States minister to Canada, has been renamed to the directorate of the Northwest Bank corporation, officials announced. He returned from the board when he accepted the diplomatic post.

WEATHER IOWA: Fair with rising temperature Thursday; Friday generally fair with moderate temperature.

Nurses Show Gains in First Year Classes

IMPRESSIVE INCREASES in the size of the freshman class already have been announced from the University of Iowa medical and law colleges but the school of nursing has surpassed both of these in percentage of gain.

Lola B. Corder, director of the school, reports a 40 per cent gain in the first year class, whereas the college of medicine's freshman unit is 22.7 per cent above that of last year and the yearling law class 32.8 per cent.

The new class of nurses totals 77 women. In the fall of 1931 the enrollment was 55, according to Miss Corder. The aggregate enrollment in the school is 220 persons.

Strike Movement Gains Impetus

DES MOINES, Oct. 5 (AP)—New impetus was given a middlewestern farmers' strike for better prices today, after the cost-of-production movement had been quiescent several weeks.

In southeastern South Dakota adherents of the National Farmers' Holiday association were preparing to invoke a strong blockade, they said, of roads into Sioux Falls, in an attempt to keep grain and livestock from markets.

Near Estherville a peaceful strike was in progress, but H. N. Jensen, secretary of the Emmet County Holiday association, said that while "there may be picketing in this county, the kind of picketing we advocate will be friendly."

Meanwhile, Milo Reno of Des Moines, president of the national as-

Varied Talks Occupy Program at Federation's Last Session

Art, Drama, Books, Law Bring Second District Convention of Iowa Women's Clubs to Close Yesterday

Talks on art, drama, books, and law closed the program of the second district convention of the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs yesterday afternoon. Before the next convention the federation will be reconstituted.

In the morning session, Mrs. E. B. Warner of North English, reported on "Public instruction" and S. Mason Ladd, professor in the college of law, spoke on "Women and the courts" instead of Eugene A. Gilmore, dean of the college of law, as originally planned. Professor Ladd said that he felt women were exerting a great influence in the administration of justice by their services on juries. "Women of education and training have not tried to avoid jury service to the same extent as their husbands, who must suffer loss in their business when serving upon the jury. The view against women's service that they would be unduly sympathetic and acquit the guilty, has not been found to be true."

Piano Solo

A piano solo by Mrs. George Suplee was followed by a talk by Mrs. Francis Whitley of Webster City, on "Things that are left." Mrs. Whitley, in her report, urged conservation of trees and wild flowers.

Following the luncheon, reports were presented by Cora Johnson of Davenport, on "Religious education" and Mrs. Cora Evans of North English, on "Deaf and blind."

Ernest Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms" and the Iowa poetry book, "Iowa Silks of Corn" were recommended to the club women by Mrs. Jessie B. Gordon, city librarian, in her address, "How to read the modern novel."

Speaks on Art

Due to several changes in the program, Norman C. Meier, associate professor of psychology, reported on "Art at Stone City" in place of Mrs. Louis Pelzer. Mrs. Pelzer talked about "Art work of the state."

"Fourteen" was the play given by members of the Iowa City Woman's club. Those in the cast were Mrs. Theodore G. Standing, Mrs. E. W. Chittenden, and Mrs. I. A. Rankin. Mrs. Carl Seashore of Omaha, Neb., sang three numbers at the close of the play.

"Art at SU" was the subject of an illustrated address by Prof. Catherine Macartney, head of the graphic and plastic arts department. Professor Macartney discussed the courses offered in her department and showed examples of student work. She urged the federated clubs to insist upon art departments in the public schools of their community, stating that such courses are of great benefit in many lines of work; as important as training in music and dramatics.

Prof. E. C. Mable of the speech and dramatic arts department, next discussed the work done in the university theater and the tendency of young playwrights to have their plays first produced off Broadway. "These young writers would rather have their plays produced by a sympathetic but critical small town theater producer than by a Broadway producer who might change the entire trend of the plot to fit the critical demands of the New York audiences." Professor Mable has faith in Broadway to break away from the stranglehold of labor union demands and to force lower rents. For the present, however, he said, playwrights are interested in the individual opinions of a less biased audience to be found in smaller theaters outside of New York.

At the conclusion of Professor Mable's speech, Mrs. R. G. Popham, who presided during the entire convention, called a short business meeting in which it was decided to give any surplus money from the convention fund to the scholarship and loan fund of the federation.

Thirteen paintings made by Mrs. Louis Pelzer of Iowa City, were on exhibit in the main lounge of the Iowa Union during the convention.

Coach Bresnahan Talks at Luncheon

Coach George T. Bresnahan was guest speaker at the luncheon of the Engineering Faculty club, held yesterday at Iowa Union.

He described his trip to the Olympic games at Los Angeles last summer, during which he coached two individual champions and a winning relay team. He reviewed the entire period of the Olympics and related several humorous sidelights on the games.

The congregation expressed its appreciation of the work of W. F. McRoberts, and M. A. H. Jones, who served 30 and 28 years respectively.

Announce Betrothal of Mary Blanchard to Frederick Nash

The engagement of Mary Blanchard, A3 of Davenport, to Frederick Nash, C4 of Chicago, Ill., was announced at the Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Chi houses Tuesday evening.

Miss Blanchard, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Blanchard of Davenport, is president of Pi Beta Phi social sorority; president of Octave Thanet, literary society; a member of the forensics council; and is affiliated with Sigma Delta Phi, honorary speech fraternity, and Poetry club.

Mr. Nash is affiliated with Sigma Chi social fraternity; secretary of Pi Epsilon Phi, honorary pep fraternity; a member of Pan-Hellenic council; and head cheer leader.

Professor Funke to Give Lecture

At the first meeting of the year of the German club, Prof. Erich Funke of the German department, who has recently returned from Germany, will present an illustrated lecture on "The face of the German city." The meeting will be in the alcove of the Iowa Union cafeteria at 8 o'clock this evening.

Election of officers will take place. "Kaffee Klatsch" will be served later in the evening. All students interested are invited to attend.

Child Welfare Staff Attends Dinner

An opportunity was given to new staff members of the child welfare research station to become acquainted with the old members at a chicken dinner at the community center in New Sharon, last night.

More than 85 persons were present. Limericks composed about various staff members featured the informal program which was presented.

Church Group to Meet Here

Gamma Kappa Delta to Hold Conference Saturday

More than 75 representatives of Gamma Kappa Delta, a national organization of young persons of the Episcopal church, will be guests of the local chapter, Saturday.

Clergymen and members from societies in Ft. Madison, Keokuk, Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Mt. Pleasant, Muscatine, Burlington and Clinton will attend.

A 10 o'clock Holy Communion service conducted by the Rev. Richard E. McEvoy will open the meeting Saturday morning. A business meeting will follow this, after which small discussion groups will be held. Luncheon will be served in the parish house.

The afternoon session will feature reports from the discussion groups and an entertainment of magic by Leroy McGinnis.

The Rev. Harold B. Hong of Burlington, state director of Gamma Kappa Delta, will preside at the sessions. The committee on arrangements consists of Albert Chittenden, general chairman; Esther Brown, Gladys Dunton, Frances Fout, Mr. McGinnis, and Felix Pickworth. Miss Brown is in charge of the luncheon.

Societies Entertain at Forensic Party

University women desiring to affiliate with literary societies will be entertained at a forensic tea in the women's lounge of the Iowa Union, tomorrow from 4 to 5:30 p.m.

The meeting will give new students an opportunity to become acquainted with literary groups on the campus. All active members of these organizations are urged to be present at that time.

Mrs. Gordon Marsh to Entertain

Mrs. Gordon Marsh will entertain the wives of faculty men of the zoology department at a 1 o'clock luncheon this afternoon on the sun porch of Iowa Union. Eight guests will be present.

Lions Get Survey of Utility Situation in Iowa City

Commenting on the desirability of granting the Iowa City Light and Power company new franchises for its light and gas activities when the question comes to a vote Oct. 11, Prof. C. M. Updegraff of the law college traced the history of public utility regulation in a talk at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon in the Jefferson hotel.

State Regulation
Professor Updegraff pointed out that the two most important aspects of the utility business now regulated by the state are the rates charged the consumers and the quality of service.

The first, he said, is the most conspicuous of the two. The fact that rates in one city are higher than those in another does not mean, he insisted, that they are necessarily unfair. He contended that a rate may be high compared to the rates in other cities, and still be fair if the service rendered is superior.

The question of new franchises, he reminded his audience, comes at this time primarily because of the proposal to supply Iowa City with natural gas and the necessity of borrowing a large sum of money for the installation.

Franchise Approval Necessary
Professor Updegraff explained that approval of the franchise is necessary in order to assure the stability of the business "because of the demand of those who must be asked to lend the necessary capital that the investment be safe and the income and repayment of it assured."

"The cost per cubic foot of natural gas," he explained, "may be greater than the cost of the same unit of manufactured gas, but despite the rate difference the natural gas would be cheaper to the consumer because of its containing a far greater number of thermal units."

Present Day Franchises Short
He said that, although the proposed franchises are much shorter than franchises commonly were two decades ago, they contain more than many persons would consider necessary in view of the present state laws.

It was formerly the custom for the city council, in granting a new franchise to a utility, to cover every possible emergency that might arise during the term of the contract, he said. These emergencies dealt with service rates, property evaluation from year to year, and service rendered.

System Impractical
"This system was found impractical. Under it, by action of a state legislature or public utility commission, a company could raise its service rates with mounting production costs. A city, however, could not obtain a reduction in service rates on the same basis of comparison and the original contract remained in force."

Accordingly, he said, laws have been passed in most states prohibiting the setting of rates in the contract. In place of this, the city council may now regulate the rate by appropriate action.

Immediately preceding and following Professor Updegraff's talk, Mrs. Feryl Bane entertained the members with piano accordian selections. George Frohwein announced the installation of lights on Shrader field and said they would be used first in the University high school game Friday night.

250 Shown Through Varied Sections at Reception

An informal reception last evening marked the opening of the new foreign language libraries in liberal arts building. About 250 guests, most of whom were faculty members, were received and shown through the various sections of the libraries and the study room on the floor below.

Receiving the guests were Robert A. Miller, supervisor of the department of libraries; Grace Wormer, acting head of the university library; Margaret Schindler, librarian of the new libraries, and Helen Hutchinson, assistant librarian. Several members of the liberal arts faculty also assisted in the receiving line. These included Dean and Mrs. G. F. Kay, Prof. and Mrs. Norman Foerster, Prof. and Mrs. S. H. Bush, Prof. and Mrs. C. B. Wilson, Prof. Erich Funke, and Prof. Roy C. Fleckinger.

A committee consisting of representatives from the English, library, and language departments met the guests at the door and served punch during the evening. Tacie Knease, instructor in Romance languages, was chairman.

The decorations were done in autumn colors, and dahlias were the floral note.

Wounds Detective to Escape Arrest for Stabbing Wife

DUBUQUE, Oct. 5 (AP)—Three persons were wounded, two seriously, tonight when local police attempted to arrest Joseph Jungk. Jungk was said by witnesses to have stabbed his wife and when police arrived he hid in a shed. Detective Fred Seyler was met with a charge from a shotgun in Jungk's hands as he entered the shed and fell with wounds which doctors declared would probably prove fatal. Another officer shot Jungk through the head immediately after. His condition was also reported as serious. Mrs. Jungk's condition had not been definitely determined.

Savings to Customers..

detailed information is given below regarding the proposed reductions in the cost of Gas and Electric service for Iowa City

Annual Savings

To Gas Consumers Upon Introduction of Natural Gas

Residential	$24,400.00
Commercial	11,900.00
House Heating	700.00
Total Gas	$37,000.00

To Electric Customers By New Rate Schedules

Residential	$ 7,900.00
Commercial	2,600.00
Power	3,000.00
Street Lighting (city)	1,500.00
Street Lighting (business district)	700.00
Total Electric	$15,700.00

The new gas rate schedules to be effective as soon as the installation of natural gas is completed.

The reduced electric rate schedules to become effective with the renewal of the franchises and their acceptance by the company.

The reduction in business district street lighting to be effective with the renewal of the franchise.

ANNUAL SAVING GAS AND ELECTRIC $52,700.00

Gas Rates

Present Residential
Manufactured Gas 530 Heat Units
All Gas Consumed $1.50 per 1,000 Cu. Ft.
Minimum Bill, 25c

Proposed General Rate
Natural Gas 1,000 Heat Units
First 1,500 Cu. Ft. $.25 per 100 Cu. Ft.
Next 1,500 Cu. Ft.20 per 100 Cu. Ft.
Next 2,000 Cu. Ft.17 per 100 Cu. Ft.
Next 15,000 Cu. Ft.15 per 100 Cu. Ft.
Over 20,000 Cu. Ft.13 per 100 Cu. Ft.
Minimum Bill, 75c

Natural Gas Rate
Transposed Into Equivalent of the Manufactured Gas Rate
First 2,800 Cu. Ft. $1.32½ per 1,000 Cu. Ft.
Next 2,800 Cu. Ft. 1.06 per 1,000 Cu. Ft.
Next 3,300 Cu. Ft.90 per 1,000 Cu. Ft.
Next 28,600 Cu. Ft.79½ per 1,000 Cu. Ft.
Over 38,000 Cu. Ft.53 per 1,000 Cu. Ft.

The natural gas rate effects an average saving of approximately 20 per cent to residential customers.

Because the commercial and other rates do not permit a ready comparison, the regular domestic rates only are shown. If desired a complete schedule of all rates may be inspected at our office.

The approval of the new gas and electric franchises on next Tuesday will bring a very substantial saving to users of gas and electricity in this community.

The amount of this saving as applied to your own case may be readily determined from the data above.

Both the present and the proposed gas and electric rates are given. The annual savings to residential and commercial customers are also shown.

Regulation of Rates

The regulation of rates to be charged for gas and electric service are under the jurisdiction of the city council.

Should new rates be justified at any time, the city council may establish them.

Since the franchises are non-exclusive the city may also grant others the right to serve it with gas and electricity.

Payrolls For Labor

Approximately $100,000 of the $250,000 to be invested in the Iowa City natural gas project will be used in meeting labor payrolls.

These payrolls will in turn stimulate business, relieve the unemployment situation and assure a more prosperous condition in general.

There are many indirect benefits to the community in addition to the direct savings in actual dollars by reason of the reduced cost of gas and electricity.

Hoover and the Home Folks

Editor's note: THE DAILY IOWAN'S news columns were represented at Des Moines Tuesday night by the Associated Press, its editorial columns by a staff representative whose impressions follow.

HERBERT CLARK HOOVER, president of the United States, relaxed into a bashful boy before several hundred "press conference" listeners, shifting with obvious relief from the grim matters of state to the more pleasant concerns confronting a boy of 10 at West Branch in the early 1880's.

The man who had shortly before presented with set jaw and determined face an account of his war against depression was now more often smiling and much more often shyly shifting his gaze to the floor at his feet as he told of sneaking away to the haymow to read 'The Youth's Companion', a sinful sheet to that Quaker community.

Here was not the dignitary to ride in official cars with military and motorcycle escort, but a youngster awed by the fate awaiting an older boy (who had been seen actually smoking a vile cigar in Tipton) at the hands of stern Quaker elders. And, with memories left intact because of removal from Iowa at the age of 10, here was that youngster grown to responsibility which he would gladly trade for "the happiest time of anybody's life."

This was not really a press conference. Most of the audience had no newspaper connection other than by benefit of clergy or subscription agent. There were no questions asked, as in a normal press conference. The entire purpose was to give a presentation of the president as a human being, to provide the perfect end for a day of homecoming and welcome.

Running through the Des Moines formal address, as in the acceptance speech, had been the same undercurrent of sentimentality which made Hoover wistful here for the days when he picked stones from the railroad track to polish into agates on his blacksmith father's grindstone. He had been a boy not in his teens when threatened foreclosure had made Christmas of ominous rather than holiday promise, and there is nothing he would more desire than a return to the individual farm and home as the way out of difficulties presented by a greatly changed world.

Again and again in the Des Moines speech was the insistence that the ideals that were preached in those homes should not be altered one trifle more than those in authority reluctantly find necessary. Those ideals are sacred to Herbert Hoover; they are the core of his conservatism. And the insistence upon them is more significant in his address than such concessions to change as approval for elimination of the stabilization provision of the farm board act, for equalization of the tax burden upon land, for mortgage relief.

Those basic ideals have been also the ideals of Iowa, and their limelighted possessor spoke truly when he called them American. That is one reason why several thousand Republicans in the coliseum at Des Moines gave their chief executive a much warmer welcome than the weather man.

The arguments about tariff and the theories about agriculture these Republicans had heard for the most part before, from county central committee members or from the 1932 keynote speech of Iowa's Senator L. J. Dickinson at Chicago. They constituted, as E. P. Adler of the Lee newspaper syndicate said in presenting the president later to the press conference, "A good old-fashioned Republican speech." They constituted, in his opinion, "A lot of facts and no bunk."

But not everything about Hoover's remarks was old-fashionedly Republican. He nearly quoted Senator William E. Borah when he admitted, with new frankness, that "God has not failed us. We are suffering from a man-made mess. God has been bountiful with this state; there is no more fertile region on the earth and none where human labor brings such rich returns. It is a man-made mess that we must face and solve."

This change of attitude, along with the specific concessions in the formal speech, indicate beyond question that the powerful forces which have whipped the discontent of the American people into a desire for change have overcome even the inertia of the Republican president. He has not declared for change by any means to the extent that Norman Thomas has, and less than Franklin D. Roosevelt, but voters are assured now of some conscious change no matter who is elected Nov. 8. That is the most important outcome of the president's visit to his native state.

There is one other important result possible. Iowans who had known of the president as an aloof official, a secretary of commerce made president with administrative aloofness rather than the politician's popular touch at his command, now found him a firm, forthright leader of dignity and strength. More importantly, they found him out as a human being, after all. And if Iowa is saved for the ideals which are cherished by all but its younger generations, it may be because the president put in a strong appearance.

For those unthinking individuals who have clamored "Who is to blame?" may find, now, that Mr. Hoover does not wear horns or a black scowl—and vote, as they would have, on the basis of emotions—emotions changed by the president's appeal to nineteenth century American ideals. Thinking individuals will ask "What is to blame?" and make their choice not on sentiment of attachment or of hatred but on belief in principles and policies.

The question this fall should no longer be, for thinking voters, related to personalities. Hoover has demonstrated his strength as an outstanding Republican, a capable administrator of Republican policies. If he is not the right man, it is because Republican policies have been tried and found wanting, not because there has been only a weakening to carry them out. If Iowa's pride in her native son is not great enough to carry the state, it should signify that Iowa has begun seriously to question the Republican principles to which it has remained steadfast since the Civil war.

The Royal Road to Higher Grades

A TINY NEWS item in a recent issue of the Chicago Tribune stated that at Denison university, Granville, Ohio, last year, the male students who drove cars received grades 26 per cent higher than those of non-drivers. It is to be hoped that this finding will not act in the capacity of nitro-glycerine in the field of psychology. Apparently, either modern youth has ceased to flame or the automobile is assuming an unexpected place in the educational scheme.

Coincidence, of course, must always be taken into consideration. Perhaps the students who had cars also happened to have brains; perhaps their thoughts remained upon the broad vista of their studies. Perhaps also the youths who walked allowed their minds to roam into the pleasant byways of dreams. Maybe the boy who absent-mindedly told the instructor that Schopenhauer was a salad was thinking long, long thoughts—conjecturing, possibly, as to whether the snow on the sidewalks would come in over his rubbers.

Time alone, of course, can make a judgment. But it is an interesting bit.

A police traffic director in the west is sending all local motorists a quiz of 32 questions. Leading off, no doubt, with the standard "Where's the fire?" —Des Moines Register

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

Members of the congregation of the Toledo, Ohio, First Westminster Presbyterian church will either learn to like jazz music or stay at home Sunday evenings. A real night club orchestra, replete with moaning saxophones and red hot repertoire, supplies the incidental music these days, and the pastor reviews books and discusses editorials from the pulpit.

And if the congregation doesn't like it, it can stay home and knit, for all the pastor cares. He maintains that in order to catch the Sunday night downtown crowds you've got to pep up the spirit of the church, even though the over-pious members are left out in the cold.

Sometimes the pastor conducts a question and answer forum to vary the entertainment. There may be a crooner in the near future to embellish the program. There will be, however, no drinking, even under the seats.

The idea may be a good one—for Toledo. It may draw huge crowds to the First Westminster Presbyterian church so that the architects may be obliged to add a second balcony and box seats, and the pastor to charge admission.

Perhaps the raucous blue numbers and the melodious love tunes may inspire the polyglot congregation to "get" religion, and maybe the church won't lose much by leaving out those who draw the line between godliness and jazz too close to the former. On the other hand, up bats the old argument that if a church cannot hold its membership through its spiritual appeal and must resort to ultra-modern methods as far-fetched as night club atmosphere, it doesn't have any right to continued existence.

"Modernizing" religion by bringing its teachings within the scope of interest of modern civilization does not necessarily mean reverting to the common forms of entertainment. The effort of many church leaders to carry religion to their flocks in the form of problems within their experience instead of within the experience of the ancients is doing more to fill the rear pews and keep them filled than would all the jazz orchestras in the world, Wayne King's and Guy Lombardo's not excepted.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith are buddies again—to all appearances. They came right out on a platform in their home state the other day, shook hands and grinned at each other, and swore they'd be pals. And before 24 hours had passed, editorial commentators throughout the country were predicting that Al's good feeling toward the Democratic nominee might tear gaping holes in Republican statistic sheets next month.

But Roosevelt has never forgiven Al publicly for the things he has said about him and the things he has omitted to say. In fact, to date he hasn't even invited his predecessor to go the rounds for him and say nice things about the Demo ticket to the uncertain New York electorate.

"Al, this comes from the heart," Roosevelt said to Smith when they met. "That goes for me, too," replied the genial Smith, and everybody cheered—that is, all the New York Democrats cheered. The New York Republicans who read about it in next morning's papers are still to be heard from.

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

STUDIO GOSSIP By HARRISON CARROLL FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Those rumors about Elissa Landi leaving Fox were all wrong. I have it on good authority she'll be back on the lot to do the lead in "Forgotten Kisses." Once upon a time, this was a Noel Coward play called "The Last Trick."

My informant goes on further to say that the author-actress comes back with a new contract—and that Fox intends to give her a better break on stories in the future. What hurt this actress most in the past was the early publicity haling her as a new Garbo. Then, unfortunately, some of her first pictures supported rather than dispelled the idea that Fox was grooming her as a rival to the mysterious Swede.

Recently, her vehicles have improved and Cecil B. De Mille gave her a chance to get completely out of type when he borrowed her to play the christian girl in "Sign of the Cross."

Miss Landi is now in Canada complying with immigration department rules about visitor's permits. She'll return here in about a week and her new picture will get under way shortly thereafter.

Hollywood is the home of the practical joker. There is a young Chinese employed in a technical capacity at the R-K-O studio. He and his family are devout followers of Confucius and were planning a celebration in honor of the philosopher's two thousandth anniversary. Learning of it, a studio official called the young man in.

"We are having a preview tonight of Vic Schertzinger's picture," he said. "I'm asking everybody to be there and give their reactions. I'll look for you." In great embarrassment, the young Chinese explained about his engagement. "The official took it big. "Great heavens, man!" he explained. "You don't mean to say you put Confucius before Vic Schertzinger, do you?"

BOULEVARD TOPICS:

Rather amusing, the case of that bit player who was arrested the other day for forgery. After straightening the thing out—it was really a misunderstanding—he came raging into an attorney's office. Before the lawyer's eyes, he flourished a newspaper headline: "Extra man arrested for forgery." He demanded that a suit be filed against the newspaper—the grounds that they called him an extra man.

Greta Nilsen insists it didn't mean anything when she went to Victor McLaglen's party with Welton Heyburn. They're still estranged, she says, and she is living at a hotel. . . Miriam Hopkins and Claudette Colbert are among the first to inaugurate the new winter season at Palm Springs. . . Hummer Robert Benchley is heading back to New York. He played two bits in the R-K-O picture, "Sport Page" and wrote some dialogue for Constance Bennett's "Rockabre."

Librarian Reports Additional 3,580 Books in Law Library

260 Volumes Presented to School as Gifts

Nearly 3,580 new volumes have been added to the law library during the last fiscal year according to Helen Moylan, law librarian. Since early spring, approximately 260 books have been presented as gifts, including a valuable reprint of early colonial laws of Georgia, presented by Mr. Imri L. McCloud of Washington, D. C., who graduated from the law college in 1888. Mrs. Samuel Hayes of Iowa City, gave a collection of some 200 volumes, and Judge Jesse Miller of Des Moines, contributed 50 books.

Additions in the field of comparative law, and in English and British colonial reports and statutes have been made to furnish more material in those specific fields.

Complete List

A recent list of some 130 books covering legal phases of aeronautics, aliens, banks, banking, biography, constitutional law, corporations, domestic relations, international law, legal ethics, real property, torts, and miscellaneous topics has been compiled by Miss Moylan and posted on the library bulletin board.

Dill Talks at Club Dinner

Homer Dill, director of the university museum, talked before the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a 6:30 dinner yesterday on "A fishing and bird hunting trip in Mexico." The meeting was held in the Spanish room at the Hawk's Nest cafe.

Mr. Dill made the trip for the university museum in 1924 and went into the northwestern part of Mexico along the Gulf of California. A great many of the bird and fish specimens in the university museum were collected by Mr. Dill on this trip.

"One of the interesting things on the trip was a visit to the island of Tiburon in the Gulf of California on which live a very primitive type of Indian," said Mr. Dill. "The Indians have the reputation of being cannibalistic, but when I asked the guide, who lived in that region, whether it was true or not, he said, 'Oh, no. They kill them but they don't eat them.' and I was greatly reassured."

A short business meeting was held after Mr. Dill's talk.

Allen, Brice Speak at Engineer Meeting

Regular meeting of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers was held yesterday afternoon in the engineering building.

Burton L. Allen, E3 of Keokuk, spoke on the subject, "Western highway practice." H. D. Brice, E3 of Pleasantville, gave a descriptive talk on the new Welland ship canal.

White oak mud sills of a bridge that has been in service 50 years were found in good condition when the bridge was replaced this year in Alabama.

A dog prevented a motor collision by walking into the street at a blind corner in Orangeburg, S. C., just as two cars approached.

More than a quarter million specimens have been added the past year to the University of Michigan museum of zoology.

Mrs. Youtz Directs Parent Study Groups

Groups of parents in three Iowa cities are organizing parent education study groups under the direction of Mrs. May Pardee Youtz, director of parent education for the Iowa Child Welfare Research station.

These groups have been meeting regularly in Ft. Dodge, Spencer, and Perry, for the last year but their organization is being perfected by Mrs. Youtz. They will use throughout the year materials sent out by the extension division.

Mable Lists Drop in Play Ticket Costs

To meet the present-day conditions, the price of season tickets for the University Theater has again been reduced, it was announced yesterday by Prof. E. C. Mable, head of speech and dramatic arts.

The same flexible use of tickets which was inaugurated last year will be continued, Professor Mable said. The coupons are not dated or designated for any particular performance.

Subscribers to season tickets will have the privilege of making all-season reservations, at any time after Oct. 10, in room 10, liberal arts building.

Student competition in ticket sales will begin today, and those entered may secure their tickets any time today at Iowa Union. After today, headquarters will be in room 10, liberal arts building.

By selling 10 season tickets, students can earn one complimentary ticket.

Sam T. Pate, Kinston, N. C., manufacturer, missed a meeting of his civic luncheon club, after attending 600 without a break.

Ripley Explanations

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A Young Father At 102: John O'Brien, the nephew of an Oneida Indian chieftain, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Mass. in 1752, and was sent to Europe to be educated as a physician. Returning here at the age of 22 years, he joined Washington's Revolutionary Army as an assistant surgeon and served until the close of the Revolutionary war. He was wounded three times. In 1812 he again took the field against the British, and commanded a company of sharpshooters. In 1853, when O'Brien was 101 years old, he was received into the House of Industry at Moyamensing, accompanied by his wife and the five youngest children. He was then the father of 31 children, all living. The age of his oldest son was 80 years, while his youngest was only 8 months.

My cartoon was drawn after an old daguerrotype, taken in 1854 when O'Brien, still active and vigorous, was 102 years old. A Milking Record: Theo Rohrer, of Brawley, Cal. who is now 57 years old, has run up this remarkable record in 43 years of activity, during which he has followed his trade in France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, and for the last 27 years in America. Altogether Mr. Rohrer has extracted 12,250,000 pounds of milk, from 788,400 cows. All the milking was done by hand, and Mr. Rohrer has kept an accurate record of his activities.

Another committee, that of organization, consists of Martha Fulmer, A4 of Iowa City, chairman; Harold Seashore, G of Wahoo, Neb.; Mr. Newburn; Edward C. Becker, A3 of Des Moines; and Floyd Burgeson, M3 of Des Moines.

A petrified forest was struck by C. E. Decker, Luray, Va., in digging a well. Chunks of petrified pine and cedar were found at a depth of 14 feet.

Rat-proof corn cribs are prescribed by Alabama extension experts as profitable investments for farmers.

Prof. Charles B. Righter of the music department, and Lee Cochran of the extension division will leave today for Sioux City, to attend a meeting of the northwest section of the Iowa State Teachers association.

Professor Righter will be a speaker at a luncheon session, and Mr. Cochran will be on the program for the visual education division.

Oats Popular Today, But Not in 2000 B.C., Says Thornton

Oats, of which Iowa now produces more bushels than any other state, date back in history to the bronze age but were not especially popular among the ancient peoples.

Prof. Harrison J. Thornton of the University of Iowa history department, in a report on the history of the grain, says that oats were found among the remains of lake dwellings in Switzerland.

Migrating peoples, he declares, brought the species into central and western Europe, but the grain flourished in its cultivated state best in colder regions.

The ancients knew little about oats, in fact, Pliny believed they were wheat in a diseased condition and Virgil classed them as a pest.

Union Board Selects Party Committees

Meeting for the second time this fall the student board of Iowa Union last night set up standing committees to serve during the year.

To plan for the Homecoming party sponsored by the board, the following committee was named: Wendell H. Boylan, P3 of Hubbard; James S. Hoffer, D4 of Des Moines; Ted R. MacDougall, E4 of Conesville; Phoebe Pfeiffer, C4 of Fayette; Dorothy Comstock, A4 of Auburn; Geraldine Parker, A4 of Columbus, Ohio; and Harry K. Newburn, G of Iowa City.

Members of sub-committees for Homecoming are: Justin Albright, L3 of Lisbon; and Mr. Rietz, orchestra; Miss Comstock, Miss Pfeiffer, and Mr. Boylan, choruses; Mr. MacDougall and Miss Parker, orchestra; and Mr. Hoffer and Mr. Newburn, tickets and advertising.

Another committee, that of organization, consists of Martha Fulmer, A4 of Iowa City, chairman; Harold Seashore, G of Wahoo, Neb.; Mr. Newburn; Edward C. Becker, A3 of Des Moines; and Floyd Burgeson, M3 of Des Moines.

Young Voters to Hear Talk

"Why Independent Voting?" will be the subject of a talk by the Rev. Evans A. Worthley, pastor of the Unitarian church, at the first regular meeting of the newly organized Young Voters Forum in the women's lounge at Iowa Union at 7 o'clock tonight.

A general discussion of the relative merits of party and independent voting will be taken up by the entire membership of the group after the Rev. Mr. Worthley's address.

The new organization, made up of students and faculty members, will cooperate with the League of Women voters Oct. 20 in the conduct of a school for citizenship. The group was formed at an organization meeting last week.

SPORT Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

IOWA CITY high school has placed its name among the leading prep schools of the nation in modern athletic equipment by the decision of the board of education to install lights for night football at Shrader field.

The officials are to be congratulated on their decision to pay for the equipment out of the school's athletic department funds.

THERE can be no doubt but that the first game under the lights will be a fitting dedication, with the well-meaning traditional rivals, University high.

Intramural Board Cuts Entry Fees

Fraternity entry fees for intramural athletics will be lower this year as a result of a stand taken by the meeting of managers held yesterday.

After some discussion it was found that a slight cut would not hinder the finances of the association and in all probability would get out a better list of entries.

The elimination of horseshoes and wrestling from the fall program accompanied the action on finances.

The question of a new freshman athletic association was raised in the session, being presented by "Dad" Schroeder in the interests of the athletic department.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5 (AP)—Slight improvement developed late today in the condition of Myron Ubl, capable halfback who lay critically ill as a saddened Minnesota football squad practiced for its first Big Ten game.

Entire Squad in Shape for Opening Game in Conference

Iowa's football squad was again limited to tag scrimmage last night as it prepared for the first Big Ten encounter of the season, and will leave for Madison this afternoon at 2:35.

Coach Oesie Solem called a skull practice last night to check up on the fine details of offense and defense to be used in the struggle against Coach Clarence Spear's husky Badgers.

The 34 Hawkeyes making the trip will go through a light workout before boarding the train for the Wisconsin stronghold. The team will arrive in Madison at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Iowa mentor concentrated on passing offense and defense during most of yesterday's session, with Howard Moffitt and Dutch Schmidt on the throwing end most of the time.

Every man on the squad reported in uniform yesterday, and the squad will be back in top shape for the game, which rates as one of the most important conflicts on the Iowa schedule.

The first string lineup was the same as that which started the Bradley Tech game with the exception of Marvin Kuhn, who replaced Bill Ash at fullback. Both are expected to see plenty of action, however.

Badgers Drill on Iowa Plays

MADISON—Iowa plays as demonstrated by the reserves were only moderately successful against the Wisconsin varsity today as Coach Clarence Spears drove the Badgers through a long scrimmage.

WINNER OF WORLD SERIES

Oh, so you thought a ball club won the series, did you? Well, you weren't the only one. But here is the real winner. She is June O'Day, beautiful Broadway show girl, who is to become the bride of Vernon ("Lefty") Gomez (inset), star hurler of the New York Yankees who glittered so brilliantly in the series.

First Game at Night for Blue, White

Both Teams Boast of Speed; No Weight Differences

It's going to be the kind of a game that makes the dopesters tear their hair and order reservations in the country's best padded cells.

For every point that one side brings up the opposition can find a ready answer and when the argument is all over the impartial listener is still just as much in the dark as he was before he asked who was going to win the City high-U. high battle.

If there is so much to be said for both sides it might be well to examine the briefs of the two contending parties.

The Little Hawks have one advantage from the start and that is the fact that the river school team has never played under the lights, which are to be installed in time for the game tomorrow night, while the Wells outfit has battled at night in a number of contests.

University high points to a perfect record and a higher total of points as its first argument. They ran up 18 points and more than 300 yards from scrimmage in downing Kalona easily last Friday.

Well, they won their game and then proceeded to drop three straight to opponents that made the Little Hawks look like a one story house next to the Empire State building.

Speed Vs. Speed Marshall, shifty Red and White back, will not be forced to give anything to U. high's two speed merchants, Ohlmacher and Schmoebel.

The lines will be about on a par for weight and experience no matter who starts or finishes for either school. Neither school can put out a line that will average 150 pounds or that will sport many seasoned players.

The Michigan team is receiving special attention in the Wisconsin methods from Coach Boleter, and will play its first game next Thursday afternoon.

Handicapped last year by the removal of his appendix, George Pigras, big righthander, has won two out of three all season for the Yanks.

NEW GOLF QUEEN AND TROPHY

Her dream of conquest at last realized, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, smiles happily as she poses with the beautiful trophy emblematic of the women's national golf championship, which she won by virtue of her defeat of Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare in the final match at West Peabody, Mass.

Sports Writer of Future on Hawkeye Grid Squad in Person of Tom Moore

Quiet, hard working, reliable—all characteristics of Tom Moore, a football player who entered the University of Iowa in 1929 with no great record behind him, but who has since that time through his steadiness developed into one of the outstanding linemen on the Hawkeye squad.

The 20 year old Waterloo native and resident, who weighs 182 pounds and is 6 feet 1 inch in height, entered upon his career on the gridiron at West high in his home city where he completed three years of varsity competition as a center, winding up his prep playing days by receiving allstate recognition.

It was while at West high, you may recall, that Tom first met Francis "Zud" Schammel, now a teammate, the latter being his gridiron foe when West played East high of Waterloo.

Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles dealing with University of Iowa football players.

In other sports, Moore did not recall that Tom first met Francis "Zud" Schammel, now a teammate, the latter being his gridiron foe when West played East high of Waterloo.

Shamrocks to Engage Lone Tree Eleven

Mix-Up in Dates Brings Change; Irish Get Long Drill

A mixed up schedule shows St. Pat's gridgers playing at Lone Tree Friday instead of at Kalona as was originally scheduled.

Evidently Coach Emmett Wilkinson figures the Lone Tree aggregation to be plenty tough as he sent his proteges through a stiff hour and a half scrimmage yesterday afternoon.

Most of the long drill was devoted to the linemen with Ray Floerchinger, the team's latest addition, playing the left flank.

Duane, halfback, and Hogan, guard, are two others whose play has been improving.

Pinney was back in the lineup, but Pugh went on the injured list again with his old side injury.

HEART STRINGS

SYNOPSIS

"Marriage is like reading a novel without suspense. No matter how charmed you may be at first with the words, a sustained effort demands little surprises, little moments of not knowing what's going to happen," Pamela Warren informed her lovely, young niece, Patricia Braithwait, as they basked in the Palm Beach sunshine. Eight years before the wealthy Pamela had married handsome Jimmie Warren, and in spite of an overwhelming love, their marriage had palled. Pat is shocked to learn that her father has lost his fortune. Aunt Pam suggests that Pat insure her father's and her own future by marrying the wealthy, middle-aged Harvey Blaine, warning that the glamour of love wears off. Pat goes to an isolated spot, alone, to solve her problem, where she meets a handsome young man who only reveals his first name—Jack. He tells her of his plantation, "Eagle's Nest," where he hopes to go some day with the "right" girl.

CHAPTER FOUR

The beach was utterly deserted. They were alone in an empty world. Even the cars beyond the hedge had ceased their eternal procession. Cloud tatters drew together above their heads, banking softly, white and very low. Great clusters of palm trees impinged plumes of green fire upon the pale blue. Here and there a royal poinciana stretched strong limbs, its feathery foliage like swarms of green butterflies hovering about the lavish outpouring of vine and blossom. A cooling wind released the tranced verdure, and all the countryside shook with happy silent laughter.

Abruptly she noticed how near they lay together. It gave her a sense of guilty intimacy. She wanted to move, but dared not, lest she break the spell that held her. A single move might fling her back into the smashed world from which she had emerged.

If only by some witchery of this aloof and quiet loveliness she might be forever imprisoned in its embrace, so that there could be no return to that lucid ugliness where men and women schemed and plotted against beauty. If only he would say, "Come with me to my Eagle's Nest above the sordid troubles of life—"

She caught up his significance. A deep blush suffused her face and she lifted suddenly on elbows cupping her chin in her hands, her eyes on the high road lest he should see and guess the cause of her agitation.

"What a nonsense I am thinking. As if there could be peace for me which did not include Daddy. And for the old there is peace only in freedom from poverty. Money is needed to buy beauty for them. And all my life he has given me beauty."

She sat up. The spell was broken. The incredible future was waiting. All the beauty she had felt had been a delusion—the last delusion of childhood. "I'm a woman now. And the way has been laid out for me. There's no escaping it. He watched her narrowly, sensing her return to the trouble that had brought her to this lonely spot.

"Troubles unloaded on a friend never seem quite so heavy," he said, giving her a look of intimacy and appeal, like a small boy asking roundaboutly to be allowed to carry one's books from school.

How strange he was. And how nice. An urgency swept her to tell this stranger, who was not a stranger, all that troubled her—this man who had come to her out of the sea to be "a friend by the side of the road."

She spoke without turning to him, her voice weighted with passionate rebellion. "I've discovered that life is just a nastiness covered over with smillings behind the hand."

She stopped short, ashamed of amount of wheat buying of late had been based on general expectation that President Hoover's address would prove an immediate bullish influence. Some of the largest concerns in the grain trade here, however, issued statements today that the president's speech was of no particular benefit to the grain market at present.

Other trade authorities held that the address would have bracing ultimate effects, and in some quarters it was asserted that the address amounted to an export bounty plan of the boldest nature.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. All deliveries of corn collapsed to prices not paralleled since 1896, and oats too reached levels not seen for many years back. Provisions reflected chiefly the weakness of grain. Closing indemnities: Wheat—December 50 1-4-3-8, 52 1-2-5-8; May 55 1-2, 57 3-4. Corn—December 26 1-4-3-8, 27 1-8; May 31 1-4-3-2.

"Surely this is the Eagle's Nest," she sighed.

her outburst. But the grey eyes that met her own were grave. He lighted a cigarette, blowing a blue streamer into the thin gold air. Then: "Is it as bad as that?" he asked gently. She made no reply, and after a brief space he demanded: "What do you do?"

Her small fair face was sullen. She answered bitterly, gazing into space, "Dance, golf, ride, drive, swim, chatter, flirt."

"An appalling array of occupations," he said with an irresistible laugh in which, against her will, she joined.

"Isn't it?" she agreed, trying to maintain her sense of bitterness, but aware of a sharp lifting of the spirit, as if their laughter had blown her troubles behind a veil.

What was the mystery of him which left her without conviction in her own troubles? As if her outburst had been the dramatic spouting of lines previously rehearsed, lines which, appearing most dramatic in rehearsal, were flat and bombastic when spoken aloud. She felt shy and childish and wanted to change the subject.

"You—do things?" she asked, stealing a glance at his curiously contradictory hands.

"I have done things," he said. "Many things. Now I'm sort of taking stock."

She rose with a sigh. "I must go."

"I'll come for you tonight," he said as they turned up the beach, "and we'll attend the opera of the sea."

She nodded. Isn't he going to ask my last name? Nor tell me his? How will he find me? She had a pang of fear. Did he really live? Or was he merely the Spirit of Romance, having no true existence? Was he but a beautiful play-boy created by all the millions of girls who had hungered for romance and been defeated by monstrous, incredible life?

When they were even with the tent, he stopped. "Won't you come in and see how luxurious I am?" Untying the flaps of the tent, he lifted the curtain for her.

With a little thrill she stepped inside. An army cot, an array of canned goods, stacks of paper plates... books, an oil lamp and a folding stool. On the neatly spread out a volume of Gibbons' "Rome" lay open. So quiet. So simple. No rushing about of restless discon-

ted people. No multitude of frittering activities. "Surely this is the Eagle's Nest," she sighed.

"It is—now." He was looking down at her, his arms folded across his breast, muscles taut in his bared arms, eyes on her lips.

She saw him with quivering over-clear senses, standing there in his straight dark fascination, still and pale as carved death, and she knew the effort of restraint he was putting on himself. Her pulses sang. She felt transfixed, cast up out of chaos on a high peak of sweet agony. Ah, this is what I've been waiting for all day—all my life.

The long angry honking of a car on the road above and back of the tent split the witching quiet wide open. Her moment of torturing, exquisite hopes and fears crashed about her. Noise, confusion and movement claimed her, just as she had achieved the summit of womanhood's first awareness of herself.

He moved abruptly, as if he had been rudely awakened. Then with a heavy sigh he lifted the flap and they stepped out into the unclouded crystal of day.

"And day overflowed the world," he quoted huskily, laughing, trying to establish a casual air.

Still shaken by that moment of transfiguration, she strove to be casual. To ignore what had happened. "Have you just arrived from another planet? The men I know quote Mencken, talk George Adeese, and their entire imagination is concerned with beating the Eighteenth Amendment." Her voice steadied. "Things at the top of the world like eagle's nests and sunlight—Hahl Gaudy sham Wagner, Browning—Sophomoric sentimentalists. Ernest Hemingway knows all the truth—that life is a terrible mess, and the only man that can do anything about it is the bootlegger."

She was surprised to note the swift flush that swept his face. "I—perhaps I am—archaic—rather. I've been away—for some years."

His embarrassment over such a simple matter hit her with a sense of shock. Away for some years. Well, what of it? And where? Were not the moderns, our moderns, traipsing from cafe to cafe the civilized world over in an effort to escape the "American rut"?

Major Letter Winner Upon matriculating at Iowa in the fall of 1929, Tom devoted most of his time to the gridiron, spending the off season in the weight events. All through his freshman year, he played his old position of center, but last year, his first on the varsity, he was turned into a guard, winning a major letter.

Coach Ossie Solem has also instructed him in the ways of a tackle, which position he plays on occasion. In the opening game this fall with Bradley, Tom demonstrated that he will be a tough man to handle before his competition is completed next fall. Last winter and spring he earned a major award as weight man on Coach George Bresnahan's track team.

Likes Journalism While commerce is his major, Tom pointed out that his course is a very general one, but here is the big tip-off on what he really plans to follow as a career. His one and big interest is journalism, especially sports writing. But even that shouldn't be so strange—you see, his brother, Ed Moore, Jr., is sports editor of the Waterloo Courier. He is a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Court Gives Youth 50 Cents Damages
ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 5 (AP)—Loyal E. Peterson sued the Western Union Telegraph company for $2,500 alleging the company's negligence prevented him obtaining a scholarship, but a Buncombe county court awarded him only 50 cents.

Peterson charged he failed to secure a scholarship to Iowa State college because the telegraph company failed to relay a message sent by the college to Peterson at Minneapolis, Minn. He said the company was advised Peterson was living here, but the telegram was not forwarded.

Heavy Sales Down Values in Grain Mart

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (AP)—Big outbursts of selling plunged grain values downward today, wheat to the bottommost level since Aug. 3, with corn and oats reaching new low records.

Weakness of securities and of cotton before the grain markets opened had an unsettling effect, and for the most part grain traders regarded President Hoover's speech last night as not likely to have any immediate stimulating influence. Contributing to the impetus of downturns of cereal prices was the fact that wheat at Winnipeg fell to all time new bottom quotations, October contracts there dropping below 49 cents a bushel.

Wheat closed unsettled, 2-2 3/8 cents lower than yesterday's finish, corn 1-8-1 3/8 down, oats 3-4 off and provisions showing losses of 5 to 27 cents.

Sympathizing with the action of stocks and cotton, the grain markets suffered quick sharp setbacks as soon as trading began. At no subsequent time was any decided power to rally evident, and wheat prices were virtually at the day's low point during the final transactions.

Among the reasons which pit gossip assigned for liquidating sales of grains today was that a large

In the opening game this fall with Bradley, Tom demonstrated that he will be a tough man to handle before his competition is completed next fall. Last winter and spring he earned a major award as weight man on Coach George Bresnahan's track team.

Likes Journalism While commerce is his major, Tom pointed out that his course is a very general one, but here is the big tip-off on what he really plans to follow as a career. His one and big interest is journalism, especially sports writing. But even that

Bankers Turn Guns Against Expenditures

Ask Reform in U.S. Tax, Loans Conditions at Convention

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5 (AP)—The American Bankers association turned criticism today on financial conduct of the government, calling in speech and resolution, for a correction of public loan and taxation conditions.

Resolutions adopted by the fifty-eighth convention of the bankers, while pointing in definite language to signs of business improvement, denounced excessive governmental borrowing and excessive taxation by national, state and municipal governments as "a menace to agriculture, industry, trade and transportation that is almost beyond measure."

Demand Reduction

"The association therefore goes on record before the people of this country," the resolutions read, "as insistently demanding the reduction of public expenditures, and as being unalterably opposed to the continuation of the present high rates of taxation and the progressive piling up of the public debt."

Gov. M. S. Conner of Mississippi, the first governor invited to address the association in its history, declared the need of a complete overhauling of governmental economic machinery to reduce and spread taxes; limit bond issues, and lower the public debt.

"It is not strange," he said, "that the American people have suddenly become painfully tax conscious and vociferously insistent on tax reform."

Issues Used Unwisely

"Local units have issued hundreds of millions of dollars in bonds. In many instances the proceeds of these vast issues have been used unwisely, just as in countless instances the issues were wholly unnecessary."

"The sum total of this huge obligation remains as a prime mortgage upon the lands and homes of our people."

"If you really seek a remedy for the situation, the answer is to be found in an inexorable limitation upon local bond issues."

The governor said federal, state and local government expenditures increased from $2,000,000,000 in 1912 to $12,000,000,000 in 1931.

"Y" Council Picks Heads, Makes Plans

Willard Matthews, A1 of Dubuque, was chosen president of the newly organized freshman council of Y.M.C.A. last night at the first meeting in the office at Iowa Union, Ferrill Hamilton, A1 of Jefferson, was elected vice president, and John Bornholdt, A1 of Davenport, secretary-treasurer.

The members of this new group are representative freshmen as chosen by the Y.M.C.A. president, Kenneth Braun, A2 of Davenport. They will act independently of the regular council in the majority of their plans, but will co-operate with the main organization.

Plans already decided upon include a party for the council, participation in the freshman co-educational discussion groups, and attendance at a social dancing class maintained by the Christian associations. The new council will also co-operate with the Y.M.C.A. council on plans for the mixer to be held Oct. 11.

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

Back Again

The Essex sedan with the Davenport license, the one that made its home in Iowa City for a couple of weeks last month, is back in town again. The Messrs. Johnson and Gaughenbaugh, liquor agents, seem to be active once more.

Lost and Not Found

Auto drivers of Johnson county seem to be having trouble with their driver's licenses. What with those left in clothes and sent to the laundry, and those lost or stolen with pocketbooks, several holders have found it necessary to apply for duplicates at the office of Sheriff Don McComas. Few original applications have been made for a long while.

Court of Honor

Next Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Methodist church the local Boy Scout organization will hold a district court of honor meeting, according to Glen G. Fordyce, executive.

More Eats

Specializing on sandwiches and short orders, the College Inn, Iowa City's latest lunch room, has opened at 127 W. Burlington street, opposite Nagle's lumber yard. The inn is operated by F. W. Stiles. Mr. Stiles, by the way, served for 16 years as a dining car steward with the Canadian Railways.

When Winter Comes

With the colder weather comes more and more suffering on the part of Iowa City's out of work families, of whom more than 500 are registered with the American Legion Unemployment Relief association.

For a Red Flame

One of the greatest needs of the needy right now, according to Charles Kennett, president of the unemployment association, is stoves, stoves, stoves. Many families, Mr. Kennett said yesterday, have no means of heating their houses. Anyone with a stove of any kind to spare is requested to call the employment office, dial 2501.

Henry Getting Married?

Twenty or more "beauties" were assembled in the hall of the American Legion Community building yesterday, swinging through the strains of a song we didn't recognize. They were in practice for "Henry's Wedding," a review to be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion Oct. 12 and 13.

Cities, Towns to Obtain New Post Offices

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP)—Two hundred and twenty-seven cities and towns throughout the country today were allocated new post offices under the building provisions of the Garner-Wagner Measure.

Any Wood to Cut?

Men out of work are searching for some one who will give them wood for the cutting. Persons who have wood are also asked to get in touch with the American Legion Unemployment Relief association.

Too Much

Too much alcohol brought Bill Walsh 10 days of rest in the county jail when Police Judge Charles L. Zager found him guilty on a charge of intoxication yesterday.

Costly Sport

Chester Hedges, charged with disturbing the peace, was fined $25 yesterday when he appeared in police court.

Hold 'Er In

Reckless driving was the charge that cost Howard Ballou $5 and costs yesterday when he was found guilty by Police Judge Charles L. Zager.

Odd Fellows Will Meet Friday Night

The Good Samaritan Encampment No. 5 of the local Odd Fellow organization will meet Friday evening at 7:30 in the Odd Fellows' hall, 124 1-2 E. College street.

Pointing the way to the advertised brand

Many a "sale" made by advertising has gone to a competitor because the purchaser did not know where to buy the advertised brand. Telephone men evolved a plan to make it easy to find. They created a "Where to Buy It" service in the classified telephone directory. There—beneath the advertised trade marks—Buick, Goodrich, RCA Victor, General Electric and many others now list authorized local dealers. Thus telephone men complete the chain between advertiser and consumer—increase the effectiveness of advertising—help manufacturers and dealers to increase sales—help consumers to get what they want! Because they apply vision to subscribers' problems, Bell System men continually increase the value of telephone service.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

OUTLAW OF THE JUNGLE

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great animal painter, Paul Bransom... inspired by the leopard's fierce fighting power and relentless hunt for prey which makes him the terror of every beast of the African jungle.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
