HOMECOMING IN FULL SWING TODAY

Field Attacks Roosevelt, Offers Farm Aid

Candidate for U. S. Senator Slaps Demos

Claims Tariff Aids Farm Produce Prices

Henry Field raked deep among the news of 12 years ago yesterday and came up waving aloft an answer in kind to the accusations of Governor Roosevelt that the Republican administration has been an accessory to certain questionable methods of the international bankers in making loans of American money to foreign nations.

The answer was an advertisement printed in the San Francisco Chronicle 12 years ago and reprinted in the same paper Sept. 13 of this year which showed that the Democratic nominee was at that time head of an investment concern dealing in the sale of German marks to American citizens at the rate of $200 per million.

Speaks From Platform Mr. Field, using the giant loud-speaking apparatus of the university on the platform east of Old Capitol instead of the equipment on top of his sedan, recalled with meaning emphasis that it was only a few months after the governor was active in the brokerage business that the bottom fell completely from under the German mark and left the investors "holding the bag."

Franklin D. Roosevelt's name, as president, filled a prominent place in the advertisement for the United European Investors, Ltd. The company was advertised as being "Organized to centralize the many billions of mark holdings in America to participate in the large earnings and the dividends of German investors, etc."

Farm Problem Discussing the general political situation, the senatorial candidate and seed merchant outlined what he termed the four big problems facing the government. They were: 1—Taxation. 2—Farm mortgages. 3—Unemployment.

Control of surplus crops and tariff protection of agricultural products were the methods he urged for solving the first problem and raising the level of farm prices.

Only five per cent of Iowa's agricultural products get into foreign trade, he said, "and the price of that five per cent sets the price on the entire crop. I'm not sure just what plan should be adopted. I am sure if the farmers of Iowa will get behind a clear cut, workable program, we can put it across."

Asks Protection Pleading for protection for farm products, he blamed the lack of a tariff on molasses and starch, which he said are shipped in from Java and are manufactured with coolie labor, for being greatly responsible for the present low price of corn. He contended that if those products were excluded the sale of corn in this country would be raised by 250,000 bushels.

Explaining his stand even more fully, he said: "I am not sure just what plan should be adopted. I am sure if the farmers of Iowa will get behind a clear cut, workable program, we can put it across."

Retiring to the Lincoln study in the executive mansion immediately after luncheon, the president resumed work on his Detroit address.

Call Manila's Sun Mild MANILA (AP)—An army medical board has assured the insular government that research "indicated that in Manila the ultra-violet rays of the sun are not excessive, as often believed," and hence the custom of going bare headed here is safe for white men.

Committee Head Urges Monuments Remain for Dads

"Don't destroy the Homecoming monuments," was the request yesterday of Edward A. Cerny, EA of Iowa City, chairman of the corn monument committee.

"These monuments have been erected by engineering students to add to the appearance of the campus," he continued. "They contain much valuable machinery. We want to use them for Dad's day. So please don't burn them after the game today."

G. O. P. Chief Rounds Plans for Trip West

Refuses All Comment on Subjects for Speeches

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—Before turning westward tonight for the third time in three weeks of active political stumping, President Hoover devoted almost a full day to marshalling the campaign issues and counter-issues he will stress tomorrow night in Detroit.

Although he worked until late last night and resumed his efforts after but a brief rest, the president prepared to board his special train tonight with his address not quite completed.

Outlines Speech In outline form, also, was a speech he will deliver early tomorrow morning in Charleston, the first of 15 stops in West Virginia, Ohio and Michigan.

Both the chief executive and his aides guarded closely the subject matter of tomorrow's talks. Conjecture on them ranged from a new lineup of Republican economic, unemployment and tariff ideas to an attack upon Franklin D. Roosevelt's statement on the bonus and other subjects.

Full Staff A full staff of aides, in addition to Mrs. Hoover, Postmaster General Brown and Perry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, will make up the presidential party.

Mr. Hoover interrupted preparation for this third swing into the mid west to meet this morning with six members of his cabinet remaining in the capital. Several stayed behind to talk with him of political affairs.

Retiring to the Lincoln study in the executive mansion immediately after luncheon, the president resumed work on his Detroit address.

Can't Park Here; Leave Car There, Says Chief Smith

Approve Change WASHINGTON (AP)—Final approval was given the removal of radio station WKBB from Joliet, Ill., to East Dubuque, Ill., by the federal radio commission.

Gamma Phi Beta Named to Lions' Award for Outstanding Sorority House Decorations

Kiwanis Club to Pick Fraternity Winner Today

Gamma Phi Beta won the Lions club cup for the best decorated sorority house, it was announced by committee members last night after judging had been completed.

The Kiwanis club's award for fraternity house decorations will be made today, following final committee inspection this morning.

Featuring a football field and goal posts constructed from cornstalks, the display includes a life sized figure of Coach Ossie Solem, shooting at a Minnesota gopher. A hawk between Solem and the gopher is hovering overhead, ready to pounce on the gopher.

The accompanying sign informs one that the scene represents the "Iowa Game Preserve—Gopher Season Opens Oct. 22—No Limit."

Phi Mu, winner of second prize, decorated with a theater theme. Behind a wall of rubble stone appears the following advertisement: "The Hawkeyes in 'Go for the Gophers'—Magnussen and all-star cast—Comedy—Minnesota in 'Don't Bet on Me.'"

Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi tied for third place. Presentation of awards will be made next Wednesday noon at the regular Lions club meeting, at which the winning sororities will entertain.

Committee members were: Irving Weber, chairman; Coach D. A. Armbruster, and Dr. W. B. Kell. Phi Delta Theta has a goal post with a gopher hanging from it and the slogan, "Go for the gopher."

The goal post is wrapped in the colors of the two schools. An "I" and "M" in corn are on either side of the Phi Epsilon Pi's side walk, and a corn canopy is over the door and down the walk. Corn decorates the four pillars.

A Fiji Islander made of cornstalks is in front of the Phi Gamma Delta house, and pumpkins and cornstalks are scattered throughout the house. Corn stalks are a favorite decoration for the season, being used by Delta Upsilon, Alpha Sigma Phi, Phi Beta Delta, Kappa Alpha Psi, Alpha Xi Delta, Tri-angie, Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Sigma, Sigma Pi, and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The Phi Chi house has a gilded skeleton about eight feet tall, lighted by a flood light at night, and gold and white streamers on the lawn.

Rex, Iowa's mascot, is exploited in the Alpha Sigma Phi decorations. A corn sign advertises: "The home of Rex," and below it is another corn sign saying "Welcome grads."

A black crepe frame in the form of an "I" connects the two. A fascimile of the Homecoming badge is in the center of the frame.

STIMSON ON STUMP FOR HOOVER

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is shown as he made his first address of the presidential campaign at the national Republican club in New York. The secretary's speech, delivered on behalf of both the state and national tickets, consisted mainly of an attack upon Governor Roosevelt for his failure to declare his attitude in regard to the soldiers' bonus.

Part to demonstrate that order had been restored in the institution, Brig. Gen. D. M. Ormond, dominion superintendent of penitentiaries, escorted a group of newspapermen on a tour of inspection.

After these visitors—the first admitted since the riot last Monday—had examined every part of the penitentiary with the exception of the cell blocks, General Ormond took them to the warden's office where he recounted the events of the week.

As he spoke occasional shouts from the inmates could be heard. Yesterday's riot, the penitentiary superintendent said, started while he was interviewing inmates in his investigation into the Monday disorder. Prisoners in the cell blocks started breaking up their furniture and destroying fixtures, and men in the corridor of the ground floor of cell blocks G and H wrenched off fasteners to release their comrades.

There were 40 guards in the cell blocks dome outside the corridors and patrolling the curtain barriers. Contrary to widespread reports, General Ormond said these guards never were captured as hostages by the rioters.

"It was soon evident the prisoners were capable of wrecking the curtain barriers, and a call was sent to the permanent force in Kingston (soldiers) who arrived in less than 15 minutes," he continued. "Parties were placed in the center cell block dome and no further danger of losing control of the penitentiary existed."

"This was about 4:30 p.m. on the twentieth. Since that time we have been in absolute control of the convicts."

State officials planning to be here include: Lieut. Gov. A. W. McFarlane; Attorney General John Fletcher; R. E. Johnson, treasurer of state; Oscar Anderson, budget director; Louis H. Cook, state tax commissioner; G. C. Greenwall, secretary of state.

M. G. Thornburg, secretary of agriculture; A. R. Corey, secretary of Iowa State fair; Robert Henderson, state superintendent of printing; Maxwell O'Brien, assistant attorney general; R. M. Williams, deputy treasurer of state; Fred L. Mahannah, deputy in department of public instruction; and A. W. Long, former auditor of state, and candidate for governor.

Senators who will be present are: George Clearman, Oxford; M. D. (Turn to page 5)

118 Dogs, Cats, Ponies March Through Streets

Iowa City's 1932 Corn Festival closed Friday evening with a pet parade of 118 cats, dogs, and ponies. The march was started at the American Legion Community building and after going through the downtown district came to a halt near the intersection of Clinton and Iowa avenues.

Another feature on the final day of the celebration was the presentation of the Distinguished Service cross posthumously to Corp. Ferdinand H. H. Prien, Company I, 168th Infantry, 42nd division. Col. Converse R. Lewis and Dr. O. E. Van Doren were in charge of this ceremony. His widow, Mrs. Hulda Prien, received the award.

Gather Before Platform About 500 Johnson county persons gathered in front of the platform near Old Capitol for the address by Henry Field, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, of Shenandoah. A program of musical numbers followed the talk. A public address system was used for all events on the platform during the two days.

Besides 12 special prizes awarded for first place winners in the pet parade, all entrants received free tickets to the local moving picture theaters. The special prizes were donated by Iowa City merchants, and were awarded to the following children: for the largest dog, Viola Mae Hayek, 714 Brown street; smallest dog, Bessie Mae Dull, 1805 Muscatine avenue; funniest looking dog, Raymond Hotka, 511 N. Dodge street; and the smallest girl with a pet, Bessie Mae Dull.

The judges in the pet contest were Jeanne Doran, Richard L. Davis, and Irving B. Weber. The horseshoe pitching exhibitions by Frank and Hansford Jackson, father and son, of Kellerton, proved to be the best attended feature on the festival program. These men come from a family of expert horseshoe pitchers. The Iowa state horseshoe pitching championship has been won by members of their family every year but two since the beginning of the state contests.

This store that has made campus friends in three generations says again "WELCOME BACK OLD TIMERS"

Drop in and let's renew The Good Old Days! For more years than we really care to remember you and Coasts' have walked up and down the side lines, sat on old hard wooden bleachers, or in the stadium on the river bank, and today we'll gather again in the big new stadium to see Iowa Fight.

"Way back when" Larrabee made "center smashes," or later when Red Griffith displayed his brand of generalship. And didn't you thrill too to see Nyle Jones take the ball and head for the line. Then later Mike Hyland fought his way thru an Ames game all battered up. "Swede" Hanson's long spiral kicks down the field and the old board fence with the big "Iowa Fights" on it. Let's live again the tenseness of seeing Chuck Long go out after a pass, and recall the hopes that mounted high when Howard Jones came to Iowa, then he and the Devines, et al, went East and "cleaned up." Next grinning Burt Ingwersen, and on his teams Mayes McClain, Bill Glassgow and a lot of other big boys. And today Solem with Moffitt, Magnussen and Schammel, and another fighting Iowa team. Drop in while you're here and let's talk it all over.

The Glad Hand

RETURNING grads and university friends are fast streaming into Iowa City and getting immediately into the swing of Homecoming. They are discovering—especially those who have not been back in many years—new things on the campus and in the city, new buildings and improvements that have worked a gradual change in the physical aspects of this university city.

But there is the same handshaking, the same greeting and backslapping as of old, the same mingling with students and reminiscing with faculty and older residents that is typical of every Homecoming. And there is traditional Iowa spirit through it all.

This is the one time of the year that is set apart for just such activity. Coming as it does this year when the campus greens are almost wholly hidden beneath a blanket of reddish brown leaves and when the frosty autumn chill is just beginning to bring out the overcoats and head coverings for the collegiate hatless, nature does its bit to hearten the welcome home and mellow the host.

Every student and every townsman is a part of this annual get-together and celebration, as much a part as the old grad himself. And there is as much to be gained, certainly, by the student as by the alumnus about "how goes it" in the world.

A Clasp of Henry Field

THROUGH the glass sides of that goldfish bowl he says he's been in during the last decade because of his radio station at Shenandoah, Henry Field looked somehow different than he did at close range in Iowa City yesterday. Versions of him coming through the press were, not through distortion but through emphasis of the spectacular, almost as erroneous as the press versions of Senator Smith W. Brookhart.

Henry must have dug up those English essays Louis Cook said (in the Saturday Evening Post last summer) had been stored away in the trunk up in the attic. Or maybe the attic he carries around on the top of that substantial figure of his is where he had stored a command of the English language that, barring an occasional grammatical error that shouldn't count, was worthy of a university audience. Yet he did not lecture to his listeners; he talked to them. It was an achievement far greater than that of Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, who said the public cannot understand. Henry is trying to understand, and he sees no reason why the public should not try to understand.

Although he can be, Field yesterday was no showman; certainly there was nothing like some of the June primary episodes to designate it as part of any "freak campaign."

It looks as though this man who claims to be only "an ordinary, average Iowan like yourself" is just talking politics. What Henry means is that he can put into words what the average Iowan is thinking. His vote at the polls in November will demonstrate whether he is right.

In expressing himself on specific issues yesterday Mr. Field showed that the average Iowan is not thinking exactly as President Herbert Hoover. In favor of Hoover as a man 100 per cent, like the 10 Iowa Republican congressmen who voted for the Goldsborough "honest dollar" bill to which the president is opposed, Field is not entirely for his program.

And when it comes to tariff, Field speaks much more convincingly than Senator L. J. Dickinson usually has. No expert on statistics, he faces squarely the fact that a protective tariff carries with it the necessity of dealing with the exportable surplus. "Surplus control," as he called it, must be worked out if the tariff is ever to protect the ordinary Iowa farmer who trades with Mr. Field at Shenandoah.

That he also recognized the desirability, within a tariff system, of drawing into a semi-isolation as a nation also speaks for Field's horse sense. Tariffs work best where there is no export surplus. They restrict and interfere with trade among nations. Not trading at all with other nations except in irreplaceable specialties is the logical conclusion of tariffs.

Yet it is true that "I don't always agree with myself, even." First giving as the principal cause of the depression the coming due of World War bills, Field later prescribed relief for U. S. agriculture as a way out of the depression. If his first idea is correct, there is inequality between the United States and Europe which must be removed either through concessions on debts or concessions on tariffs. If his second idea is correct, causes of the depression must have been national and internal.

President Hoover is an internationalist on war debts, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt on tariffs Mr. Field is on neither. Maybe he doesn't believe that consideration for other nations is practical nationalism; that seems to be the reasoning of each presidential candidate. And the internationalism of loaning money to Europe was, in the first place, Liberty bond loans to help pay for a war in which the United States was not yet fighting. Later loans, largely under Republican prosperity auspices and by private bankers on "slim security" are not the ones which Hoover "internationalists" would cancel.

Provincial enough to say that Iowa is the heart and the best part of the farming mid-west that is the best part of the best nation in the best of all possible worlds—he only hinted at the last item in calling himself "a happy optimist"—Henry Field is nevertheless himself and not the tail to any Republican kite.

He is, to his credit, not a 100 per cent national Republican. He is, however, far nearer a 100 per cent Iowa Republican than the man whom political gossip named as the probable convention choice. By his speech yesterday he showed that he has not wavered seriously from his pre-primary positions in spite of being converted to Mr. Hoover's cause. As a Republican—"I don't ask you to vote for me unless you believe the way I do, because these are the things I'm going to work for"—he is a candidate for whom rank and file Republicans have no need to apologize, whatever machine leaders may think. And his intention of reversing "lame duck" procedure by going to Washington before he is seated to do what he can is evidence that he is no slave to tradition or precedent.

For those who believe in the things for which he stands, Henry Field is just about the shrewd transplanted trading Yankee they want to represent their beliefs at Washington.

What—No Free Lunches?

PERHAPS the city of Chicago will add a new degree to scholastic awards when the first classes graduate from its lately revived college; the degree B.B.—Bachelor of Brewing—might well be instituted for the graduate of the city's "beer college," now in operation with 19 students, after a lapse of 17 years.

It has another name than that used above; formally it is known as the Wahl-Henius institute of fermentation, and it was closed in 1915, as the first prohibition laws, under the stress of war, began operation.

The busy hum of students at work over test tubes and books permeates the laboratory now, under the guidance of its catechism, expressed something like this in President Max Henius' opening lecture: "What has the future in store for us? The revival of the brewing industry in the United States."

Chemistry, physics, bacteriology, yeast culture, refrigeration, and botany are the subjects included in the curriculum.

And who knows that some day there shall not be some graduate thesis devoted to, perhaps, "The effect of aging on fermented liquids," or "How to produce beer from cornstalks?"

Later, there will be needed another special degree for the students who might compose such a thesis—M.B.—Master of Brewing—and for the hardy souls who venture even further into the field, perhaps—D.B.V. Doctor of the Beer Vat. And maybe an honor society—Order of the Pretzel.

How Does the Wind Blow?

STRAWS indicate the way in which the wind blows.

But not in the case of straw votes, says Mark Sullivan, New York Herald Tribune political writer.

With only 20 days before the election, Sullivan wrote in a special article Wednesday, substantially all straw votes point toward a Democratic majority. But, he points out, all nationwide polls are top-heavy toward the Democratic side, because of the overwhelming majority of that party in southern and border states, which in the actual balloting is not decisive in results.

Hoover for instance, needs to win those states which are most strongly for him, and which in the aggregate are sufficient to give him the election. In a poll conducted by the Hearst newspapers, 19 such states are listed, with an aggregate of 268 electoral votes, two more than necessary to win.

Yet in the actual poll, Hoover had only 1 per cent more than enough votes to carry the election. A Republican campaign, on the other hand, focused on the group of states, might bring out Republican margins enough to insure victory.

The women's vote, in the poll referred to, goes strongly for Hoover (not in Iowa, on the other hand; the total is Roosevelt 6,141, Hoover 5,022) but whether or not the true women's vote is represented is quite another question. Sullivan stated that the poll uses names taken from telephone books, where the names of women, especially those who are wives and mothers, are few.

Many of the votes cast in straw elections were made weeks ago, in September, Sullivan points out also. Since then, the campaigns have gotten under way, but nothing of formal campaigning had been done at that time.

Sullivan concluded wisely that straw votes do not take enough factors into consideration, and that the race will be close. In 1916, straw votes and other evidence were radically wrong, he said. Hughes, predicted to win by five to one, lost by a narrow margin.

Sullivan makes no mention of university student voting as a separate power. Perhaps the straw vote means nothing, as he seems to think, but for example, in the University of Minnesota polling the totals seem to indicate a growing student sentiment toward Norman Thomas, who placed second to Roosevelt. But then, the percentage of franchised students is lower than the poll would indicate. The whole thing looks like anyone's guess.

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

By HARRISON CARROLL

STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—All the old silent classics are finding their way to the talkie screen. Latest project of the sort is to refilm "The Goosewoman," a Universal picture that won fame for its director, Clarence Brown, and for its leading player, Louise Dresser.

Oddly enough, it is not Universal but R-K-O which plans the talkie version. Head-man David Selznick is enthusiastic over the story and has assigned Bartlett Cormack to produce it on the Radio program.

In the original film, Louise Dresser played the character lead, an old woman who bore marked resemblance to the famous "Pig Woman" of the Hall-Mills murder case. Jack Pickford was another member of the cast and Constance Bennett, then almost unknown, was the girl.

None of the players for the talkie is selected as yet, and, offhand, there would seem to be no actress on the R-K-O list who would fit the Dresser role. But in these days of player-borrowing, this doesn't mean a thing.

The directorial plum falls to Dell Andrews and Harlan Thompson.

Samuel Ornitz is doing the adaptation from Rex Beahm's novel.

They were talking the other day about trying dress ties, and that reminded Al Jolson of the fellow who simply couldn't get the ends to come out right.

In a big hurry, he rushed into the hall of his hotel and commanded a passing guest.

"All right," the stranger obliged, "but you'll have to take off your coat and vest and lie down on the bed."

Mystified but desperate, the man did as he was told. After the knot was finished, he said: "Say, what was the idea of all that?"

"Well," replied the stranger, "you see I'm an undertaker."

And then there was the New York stage actor who was trying to get a part in "The Shanghai Gesture."

He cornered an acquaintance on the "United Artists" lot.

"You go in there," he said, "and tell Lewis Milestone I'm the best character man on Broadway. If he says anything, I'll back you up."

BOULEVARD TOPICS

Weldon Heyburn may be unlucky in love, but they said he is the favored candidate for that Mary Pickford lead. . . . Reelings, Leslie Howard tells me he may stay in Hollywood to do another picture. Possibly "The Fountain" or "The Sun Also Rises." Or, of course, it may be something else entirely. At any rate, Howard will not put on that London play until after the first of the year.

Claude Gillingwater is mourning the death of his mother. She was 84 years old. . . . In "Animal Kingdom," Myrna Loy wears an evening gown so tight, she can't sit down in it. They had to rig up a contraption like a leaning ironing board for her to use between scenes. Now, if someone would only solve the problem of the stiff shirt bosom.

DID YOU KNOW—

That James Cagney got his first practical stage experience as a chorus-man in the Broadway musical, "Pitter Patter"? Allen Jacobs, who played the tough gangster in "Blessed Event," had a similar job in the same show.

Strikers Will Sell Produce

County Association Grants Freedom to Farmers

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 21 (AP)—A county farmers holiday association today voted to free members from non-marketing pledges, bringing a rift in Minnesota since a sellers strike was proclaimed several weeks ago.

Resume Selling
Three hundred Washington county farmers, meeting at Stillwater, decided to resume marketing of non-perishables. They took action after speakers asserted members should be allowed to sell products on an equal basis with non members not affected by the strike.

They will market until the national holiday association meets at Sioux City Oct. 25, and be guided thereafter by its action, leaders said. The national organization ordered the current ban of selling non-perishables.

Instruct Delegates
Four delegates to the Sioux City convention were instructed to support a program of agricultural betterment through legislation.

Pickets were on highways of only one county near the Twin Cities today. In Dakota county small groups stopped trucks to urge drivers not to market. No attempt was made to turn back farmers who insisted on going through. State highway patrolmen ordered late Wednesday to keep highways open reported peaceful picketing in a few counties elsewhere in Minnesota.

"Present status and future problems of dentistry" is the subject of a talk to be given by Dr. C. N. Johnson, Chicago, who is editor of the Journal of the American Dental Association.

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

In the Swim
Jumping into the Homecoming spirit, the powers at the court house decided that this afternoon would be a good time for a recess. Result: Johnson county employees will be allowed to go to the game and watch the new Iowans walk over Minnesota.

Menagerie Street
Cats and dogs, turtles and ponies, chickens and pigeons took the fight of way yesterday when 118 boys and girls laughed and roared their way up College street from the American Legion Community building to the roped off section on Clinton street for inspection by the judges of the pet parade. Glen G. Fordyce and Ruth Frerichs, Boy and Girl Scout executives, had to strain themselves to be heard above the roar of the contestants.

Piled Leaves
In the midst of the Homecoming excitement and preparation yesterday, the janitor at the court house quietly raked the lawn, rolling up piles of crisp brown leaves.

Himself
Homecomers should have no trouble identifying Ossie Solem when they see him for the first time. Large painted cutouts of the new grid mentor appear in the windows or among the decorations of a number of downtown stores. And they really look like Ossie.

Bad Omen
Francis Billock was fined $20 and costs for intoxication yesterday when he appeared before Police Judge Charles L. Zager. His sentence was suspended on the promise that he leave town for six months.

And Another
H. H. Aheff joined the list of the Overtime Parkers' club yesterday when he paid the entrance fee of $1 to Police Judge Charles L. Zager.

Mmmm, Bossy
The cowbells tied on a rope in front of Williams' Iowa Supply were jangling continuously yesterday as every kid in town gave them a pull when he went by.

Hey—
Got your Homecoming badge? Pedestrians didn't have a chance yesterday, with high pressure co-eds on every downtown corner. Homecoming badges were much more in evidence than political badges, too.

The Hotelers
Homecomers were flocking into the Jefferson hotel yesterday much as they did in the old days. Which means they were flocking in.

And the Election
And in the midst of it all, Ed Sulek, county auditor, becomes busier and busier with each passing day getting everything in readiness for the coming election. He is the man responsible for seeing that ballots are in shape and printed and all that sort of thing.

Us Girls
A load of corn stalks rolling down the street yesterday suggested a farm scene in the fall. But when it drew nigh and more nigh, it turned out to be only three lonely girls in a Chevy coupe hauling a load of house decorations.

Hurry, Hurry
More than 60 people have clearly on the tariff issue, the farmer-merchant proclaimed, "I'm not an internationalist! I don't believe in free trade; I believe in more protection rather than less and I hope the day will come when we can build up our home market instead of following the will of the wisps of foreign trade. It's always unsatisfactory."

Urges Tax Cut
Declaring that it would take three crops like the present one, which happens to be a bumper, to pay even state and local taxes, he insisted that taxes must be cut by all branches of the government, from the municipal and county to the state and national agencies.

"Taxes," he said, "can easily reach a point where they are worse than war. I hope our nation can avoid that pitfall before it is too late to turn back." Referring to graft and its influence on the tax rate, he asserted, "It's simply everybody taking a grab out of every- body. What we need is more horse sense down at Washington and less horse play."

Mr. Field assured his audience that the problem of farm mortgages was being satisfactorily taken care of by a program already under way.

Pleased by Hoover
"The quarter section farmer," he said, "is the backbone of our civilization here in Iowa. When he is well off we will all be well off. I was much pleased with the statement of the president in Des Moines when he advocated the refunding of farm mortgages with long terms and reasonable rates."

As for the unemployment problem, the genial speaker asserted that "We don't know much about unemployment here. It's in the big cities and along the east coast that you can really see what unemployment means. But we don't have to know much about it. Unemployment will solve itself when we get prosperity here in the middle west."

One more issue stressed by the radio station operator was what he called currency reform. He insisted, on the strength of the quoted opinion of an authority on economics, that the dollar should be inflated to the value it had five or six years ago.

"I do believe in a moderate and registered each day during the last week at the office of City Clerk George J. Dohrer. Everyone must be registered in the new permanent registration system by Oct. 29, in order to vote at the general election, he said.

controlled inflation of the dollar," he said. "We've got to corral that dollar before it gets clear out of sight and bring it back to where it was several years ago."

Asks Inflation
He made it clear that he was not in favor of the printing of fiat money for the purpose of inflation, but insisted that the dollar must be inflated.

Tackling the problem of war debts and reparations, Mr. Field expressed himself as adamant in the opinion that foreign nations should be compelled to pay their debts in full.

"We have enough to do to take care of ourselves without playing big brother to all the nations of Europe," he said with a grin. "They say they can't pay, but every one of them is paying 10 times as much on armaments as they owe to us. If they have enough to pay for battleships they have enough to pay us."

Blames War
The smiling seed man did not parading the opposite party for the tide in the current practice of depression or for blunders since the depression. He blamed it all on the World war.

Accompanied by Elbert Read, a Shenandoah neighbor, and Harley Bartles, his radio engineer, Candidate Field left shortly after his address for Tipton, where he was slated to attend a Republican dinner and to deliver another speech.

Tomorrow he has speeches booked at Manchester, Postville, Strawberry Point, and Elkader.

A zeppelin marked "Iowa," letters of the two schools in their respective colors, cornstalks, and an illuminated pin, are the Sigma Kappa's decorations. A large green cardboard Buddha is the chief ornament at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house.

A harvest scene, showing a gopher pushing out of a mound on which a hawk stands, a blue sky and a harvest moon, corn stalks, an old rail fence, and pumpkins, decorate the Pi Kappa Alpha house. Windows are covered with blue paper and silver stars. A "Hello, grads" sign hangs below the second story windows.

Delta Upsilon
Delta Upsilon has a square frame with a football in the center, in front of the house, carried out in silhouette effect.

Gamma Phi Beta's house bears a symbolic picture showing a gopher in a field, Ossie Solem at the other side with a double-barreled shotgun, and the whole surmounted with a sign: "Iowa game preserve. Gopher season opens Oct. 22. No limit."

An effigy of Minnesota hanging by the neck from a goal post, with Iowa holding the rope, and a "Let's all help" sign are features of Delta Delta's trimmings.

A gilded horseshoe with a good luck sign in Iowa colors, illuminated by flood lights, is the feature of Chi Omega's decorations.

At 2 p.m. Marc Magnussen and company will square off against ex-Iowan Hass and his Gopher organization.

Last night at the pep meeting the crowd went wild when Ossie Solem stepped up to the P. A. "Mike." Today, this afternoon, in the heat of the struggle with the ground-hogging Gophers, Solem will be obscure beside the team.

There are, of course, other games besides the Iowa-Minnesota tussle. For instance, the Stanford-Southern California game and Stanford seems to have a headline edge on the early season basis.

Harriers Will Meet Gophers

Veteran Minnesotans in Position of Favorites This Morning

A fighting and improved team of Hawkeye hill and dalers will attempt this morning at 10:30 on the three-mile Finkbine cross country course to turn the tables on the highly touted Minnesota squad in the opening Big Ten contest for both schools.

It will have to be a doggedly fighting group of Old Gold runners that face the Gophers today, however, as the Minnesota team boasts an array of five major letter men and seven rookies who have bettered their more experienced teammates. Last week the Cardinal and Gold trounced North Dakota State 18 to 41.

Currell Favored to Win John Currell, veteran Gopher runner won this meet and stands as the big favorite today. Second to Currell is a rookie, Richard Herick, who took second at the Dakota meet. Other men on the Minnesota team are Carroll Gustafson, Francis Moore, Erhardt Bremer, Mike Seiler, Roland Schaar, Wally Rasmussen, Theodore Lindstedt, and Ralph Gaeb.

The Hawkeyes will be headed by Leo Campisi, veteran and minor letter winner. Norman Rosenberg will be the only other veteran supporting Campisi and the rest of the squad is entirely new and green material.

Last week the Old Gold runners lost the first meet of the year to Cornell college 22 to 33. Over the racing distance of two miles, the Iowa runners did not seem to let loose and lost in the second half of the race to the Purple men.

Longer Route May Help

The longer distance as well as considerable improvement on the part of the Hawkeyes ought to give the team at least an uphill chance against the Gophers.

By HARRY BURRELL (Staff Writer, The Daily Iowan) MONTICELLO, Oct. 21—Led by a pair of watch charm guards and a fast stepping halfback, University high's undefeated football team ran over the Monticello eleven here today to win its opening Little Seven game, 20 to 2.

With the backfield so nervous that it fumbled four times inside its 35 yard line, the line was forced to meet the full brunt of two Monticello drives before the first quarter was over. Twice they were tried and twice they threw the local fear for enough losses to take the ball away from them.

Line Shines Spearheading this fine defensive display, Capt. Arnold Rarick and Harold Justice, smallest men on the field, stopped everything they could reach, which was plenty. Time after time the two guards would smash through to nail the ball carriers for big losses or else to slow them up enough for the rest of the team to get them.

The rest of the line played right up to these two defensive stars and did their work so well that only on two occasions could Monticello make concerted drives.

Ohlmacher Opens Up Unable to get going in the first half, Bill Ohlmacher took charge of the offensive proceedings after the first period and counted the first touchdown when he turned his own right end for 37 yards. The stage had been set for this play only a moment before when Larry Fuhrmeister blocked Hansen's punt on the 37 yard line. Fuhrmeister made it 7 to 0 with a place kick.

Following the opening score Ohlmacher intercepted an enemy pass on the 36 yard marker and ran it back to the eight yard line before he was stopped. A play later Fuhrmeister went off tackle for a score but it went for nothing when U high was detected holding. Fuhrmeister blocked another punt on the 19 yard line and smashed it to the two foot line where Bob Schnobelon circled end for the score. Fuhrmeister converted.

Dever Scores The final score came just after Fuhrmeister was caught behind his own goal line for a safety. The "Big Horse" kicked from his 20 to Monticello's 15 yard line. Freddie Dever intercepted on the 25 and went over untouched. His attempted drop-kick failed.

Although he failed to average his usual five yards, Fuhrmeister played almost as good a defensive game as the two guards, making most of the tackles that they missed.

The all-round play of the team was excellent and all the more so because of its refusal to lay down after the bad breaks in the first half.

MOST VALUABLE DIAMOND STARS

To the City of Brotherly Love goes the honor of producing the two most valuable baseball players of the 1932 season, according to the judging committee of the American Baseball Writers' association. They are Jimmy Fox (left), first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics, who was adjudged the most valuable in the American league, with a total of 75 points out of 80, and Chuck Klein, who patrols the right field for Philadelphia, was given the corresponding honor in the National league with a score of 78 points out of 80.

Boilermakers Face Wildcats

N. U. Seeks Revenge in Feature Game of Big Ten

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 (AP)—A year's pent up fury, smouldering in the hearts of Northwestern's Wildcats since Purdue beat them out of undisputed possession of the Big Ten football championship in that charity game at Soldier field, will explode against the Boilermakers tomorrow.

The two intense rivals, Purdue fighting to keep pace with Michigan and the Wildcats struggling to retain an outside chance of landing a share of the title, clash in the most important game of a busy afternoon along the Big Ten football front.

Northwestern had all to win and virtually nothing but some prestige to lose in the game. Still furious that they were forced to play an extra game for charity last fall against the Boilermakers, a battle they lost along with their undisputed claim to the title, the Wildcats were out to shoot the works against the enemy. Odds were about even on the result, dropping to that level when Bob Gonyea, star Northwestern tackle, was forced out because of a charley horse.

Three other conference games, an interconference duel between Ohio State and Pittsburgh, and a Wisconsin workout against Coe college were on tomorrow's program. Illinois, soundly defeated by Northwestern last week at Champaign, wasn't expected to extend the undefeated but crippled Michigan contenders at Ann Arbor, Pittsburgh was a favorite to defeat Ohio State, and Minnesota seemed likely to hand Iowa its third straight Big Ten defeat.

Hoosiers Favored

A hard tussle was in prospect at Stagg field where the retiring Amos Alonzo Stagg opens his forty-first Big Ten campaign against Indiana. Stagg's team, which held Yale to a seven all tie, was the real mystery mark of the race although the Hoosiers were favored because of their tie game with Ohio State and a victory over Iowa.

Coach "Doc" Spears was the most interested man at Wisconsin. He planned to perform a lot of experiments with his Badgers during the Coe "breather" in an effort to obtain more punch for the coming Big Ten wars.

Considerable interest centered at South Bend, Ind., where Notre Dame encounters its first serious opposition of a comeback campaign tomorrow by tangling with the Skibos of Carnegie Tech. Although the Ramblers, who have dashed through Haskell and Drake at better than a point a minute this fall, were heavy favorites, the Skibos were regarded most seriously. It looked like a Notre Dame victory all right but the Scots are undefeated and threaten a lot of thunder. Thirty thousand were expected at the game.

Iowa Golfers Get Triumph

Turn Back Iowa State College Foursome, 10 1/2 to 7 1/2

By scoring shutouts triumphs in the morning foursome play, University of Iowa golfers chalked up a 10 1/2 to 7 1/2 victory over Iowa State college in an off-season dual match at Finkbine field yesterday.

The Cyclone representatives came back strong in the afternoon singles competition, winning two matches, tying one and losing one, to count all of their 7 1/2 points to only 4 1/2 for the Hawkeyes.

Schlanger Wins Singles Ralph Harmon and Charles Van Epps paired off to take the measure of Carl Gath and Sig Hull of the visitors, 3 to 0, in the four-somes as did LeRoy Vanderwicken and Joe Schlanger in their clash with G. Cooper and H. Engledinger.

Schlanger was the only Old Gold representative to score a win in the singles, turning back Cooper, 2 to 1. Vanderwicken held his opponent, Engledinger, to a 1 1/2-1 all score, while Harmon and Van Epps were both going down to their opponents, Gath and Hull respectively, by 2 1/2-1 1/2 scores.

Drake, Grinnell Seek Conference Wins on Foreign Grids Today

DES MOINES, Oct. 21 (AP)—Iowa's two members of the Missouri Valley conference will invade foreign fields tomorrow seeking their first victories in conference play.

Drake university, dethroned by the Oklahoma Aggies after four successive years as the conference champion, will meet Creighton at Omaha tomorrow night in a game that is expected to decide second place in the conference.

The Aggies, with victories over Drake and Creighton, are conceded an excellent chance to go through the season undefeated to capture the circuit title. They engaged in a non-conference battle tonight at Oklahoma City with Oklahoma City university.

Pardonner's Educated Toe Big Boon to Boilermakers

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—In Quarterback Paul Pardonner, Purdue university has one of the country's finest scoring machines—the kind that scores those extra points after touchdown which so often mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Twelve times last season he stepped back after touchdowns had been scored, and 12 times he dropkicked the ball between the goal posts for points.

One of them—the last of the season—did not count, however, because his team was offside. On the second try, the ball fell just short of the bar.

Yale Engages Army in Big Tilt of East

Crowds This Year Will Run Smaller Than Formerly

By ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—College football moves into the big game battle area tomorrow on all major fronts, with the sectional or national championship hopes of a score of teams more or less heavily involved.

The ranks of the big fellows as yet neither beaten nor tied in the early October skirmishing may be abruptly depleted. Not only do a half dozen of these leaders clash in such vital contests as the Stanford-Southern California, New York university-Colgate and Virginia Poly-Kentucky frays but other pace setters face opposition of varying shades of intensity.

Smaller Crowds Despite the season's most spectacular offerings, thus far, including such glamorous traditional battles as the Yale-Army game at New Haven, the tumult and the roar will reach new "lows" for the post war span of college football development. Where close to 500,000 spectators could be expected in normal times, less than 300,000 will see eight of tomorrow's outstanding contests, to be played in the most populous centers.

The critical Stanford-Southern California game at Palo Alto, with the Indians a favorite for the first time in several years, probably will attract close to 65,000 for the day's biggest turnout. The same game drew 83,000 to the Olympic stadium in Los Angeles last year.

N.Y.U. Meets Colgate In the east, the N.Y.U.-Colgate tussle between two well-matched rivals for sectional honors probably will attract 50,000 customers to the Yankee stadium and, for the first time, outdraw the colorful Yale-Army game. Estimates today were that no more than 40,000 would journey to the Yale bowl, where the Cadets will be the offensive favorites to trounce the Elis. This game has usually been a sellout and last year drew 70,000 fans.

Crowds of 20,000 to 35,000 are expected to see the outstanding games in the middle west, featuring Northwestern's attempt to stop the unbeaten rush of Purdue's Boilermakers at Evanston. This and the Chicago-Indiana battle seem to us, but Notre Dame's juggernaut should flatten Carnegie; Michigan, despite injuries to two star backs, figures to whip Illinois, and Minnesota has an edge over Iowa.

Pittsburgh Meets Buckeyes Among others with clean slates, in the east, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Holy Cross, Brown and Harvard figure to post fresh triumphs, the Crimson at Dartmouth's expense, but Pittsburgh may catch a tartar in Ohio State and Boston college will find a brisk reception by Marquette in Milwaukee.

In the south, Virginia Poly looks to have come through a tougher slate so far than Kentucky, but the two are well matched.

The big battle in the southwest, between Rice and Texas at Houston, will be watched by upwards of 25,000.

The Big Six, in a general melee, headlines the attempt of the rejuvenated Kansas Jayhawkers to toss Nebraska for a loss, while Missouri struggles to come back against Iowa State, and Kansas State invades Oklahoma's stronghold.

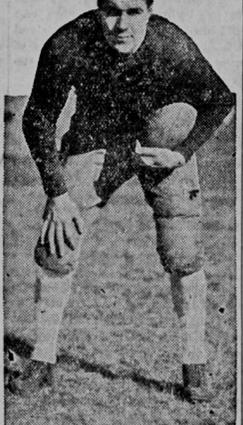

Low Fonseca, manager of the Chicago White Sox, plans to use slow-motion movies in instructing rookies next spring at Pasadena.

Butler college will play a home state opponent in Wabash, the game being played at Crawfordsville, Ind.

On the following Saturday it was his perfect boot that enabled the Boilermakers to edge out Wisconsin, 7 to 6, and maintain its spotless record against Western conference opponents.

A little thing like a sore toe does not stop Pardonner. While he prepares to do his dropkicking with the right foot, the left has proved it almost is as well "educated." He has tallied points with the "off" foot on several occasions.

Gopher Star

Jack Manders, 200 pound Minnesota fullback and line plunger extra-ordinary, will be a big power in the Gopher attack when the Hawkeyes meet them in Iowa stadium this afternoon in the feature attraction of Homecoming.

Waterloo on Scoring Spree to Win, 95-0

Red, White Reserves Lose in Opener by 39-0

By GENE THORNE (Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan) WATERLOO, Oct. 21—What a storm! And that's exactly what happened here tonight as West Waterloo cut loose with a pouring rain of touchdowns that at times reached the proportions of a cloudburst, completely submerging Iowa City high's Little Hawks to hand them the worst drubbing in the history of Red and White football competition.

15 Touchdowns Not only that, but the exhibition, which was a part of West high's Homecoming activities, marked the biggest score the newest members of the Mississippi Valley conference had themselves ever posted and dropped the visitors into the solitary confinement of the league cellar. Fifteen times, local backs paraded across Iowa City's final chalk line and on five of those occasions the extra point was accounted for. In blunt figures, West Waterloo 95, Iowa City 0.

After the first period, in which two touchdowns were scored, the Little Hawks never had a chance, Marshall displaying what little offensive and defensive the visitors could muster in face of the deluge.

Reserves Lose The Little Hawk reserves lost, 39-0, in the opener. Of the numerous Waterloo scorers, the leaders were D. Nipper, Walker and Sawyer, with three touchdowns each, and Captain Peterson with a touchdown and four extra points to his credit.

25,000 Alumni of University Keep in Touch With Campus Affairs Through Prof. Higbee

Bound together by an elaborate and effective system, University of Iowa alumni are seldom out of contact with their alma mater. Through the Alumni association of the University of Iowa, they are made aware of activities of the university and of opportunities to serve it.

The organization is supervised by Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, executive secretary, from his office in Old Capitol. This office furnishes speakers for meetings, sponsors class reunions, keeps biographical records of all alumni, and endeavors to learn the correct address of every alumnus.

This year the association is sponsoring an edition of commemorative plates by Wedgwood, which are being furnished to subscribers. They are decorated with a border design by Edna Spurgeon, an Iowa graduate, and contain prints of campus scenes.

Arrange Senior Loans

The association also adopted a policy this year of investing its life membership funds in student loans for deserving seniors. These are being administered by the student loan commission of the university.

The office finds that 400 address changes must be made each month to keep pace with the constantly-moving alumni. There are 25,000 alumni of the university, and the addresses of 1,400 of them are unknown, although they have been sought for years through hundreds of post offices. Known addresses are checked each month through distribution of the university news bulletin.

Robert J. Bannister

Robert J. Bannister, Des Moines is now president of the association. Vice presidents are Gordon C. Locke, Cleveland, Ohio, and Wayne J. Foster, Cedar Rapids. Directors at large are Rush C. Butler, Chicago, Ill.; Marjorie E. Kay, Swarthmore, Pa.; Karl S. Hoffman, Washington, D. C., and H. L. Van Metre, Los Angeles, Cal.

There are also 11 district directors as follows: Carl C. Riepe, Burlington; Mrs. Preston Coast, Iowa City; Benjamin F. Swisher, Waterloo; W. Earl Hall, Mason City; J. K. Von Lackum, Cedar Rapids; W. Keith Hamill, Newton; Clyde C. Charlton, Des Moines; H. G. Dougherty, Alorton; George S. Wright, Council Bluffs; J. C. Shrader, Ft. Dodge, and Karl J. Knoepfler, Sioux City.

Meet Twice a Year

These directors meet twice a year to discuss association business. Between meetings affairs are handled by an executive committee composed of Mr. Bannister, Benjamin F. Butler, and Mr. Hamill.

The president and vice presidents are elected annually. The directors serve three-year terms but not concurrently. The ballot, prepared by a nominating committee, is sent to all alumni, but the votes of only association members are counted.

Within this major organization, there are county clubs in Iowa, as well as out-of-state alumni clubs. Forty-six counties have active alumni clubs. In the other counties meetings have been held from time to time, but no permanent organization has ever been effected.

Among the out-of-state clubs are those in Aberdeen, S. D.; Chicago, Ill.; Columbus, Ohio; Detroit, Mich.; Duluth, Minn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Kansas City, Mo.; Lincoln, Neb.; Los Angeles, Cal. (two clubs); Milwaukee, Wis.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Missoula, Mont.; Moorhead, Minn.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Omaha, Neb.; Peoria, Ill.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Portland, Ore.; Rochester, N. Y.; San Diego, Cal.; San Francisco, Cal.; Seattle, Wash.; St. Louis, Mo.; Tucson, Ariz.; St. Paul, Minn.; and Washington, D.C.

TRADITION SATISFIED

The Homecoming corn monument always made a beautiful blaze, but the result was too hard on Iowa City's paving; last year the tradition of burning the monument was met by taking it to a point south of Iowa Union, and igniting the blaze.

Fraternity Chapters Show Strong Increase in Number Since Beta's Advent in 1866

When Beta Theta Pi fraternity came across the Mississippi river and founded a chapter at the University of Iowa in 1866, it started something. It was Iowa's first Greek letter society. A year later it was followed by Phi Kappa Psi.

With only two fraternities on the campus, it was many years before they overcame the hold of the literary societies, which for years had controlled campus politics and social life.

When Beta came here there were four literary societies on the campus, Zetaphian and Irving Institute for men, Hesperian and Erodelphian for women.

These four organizations ruled the campus and they looked with alarm on the arrival of the secret organizations from the east. Four more fraternities soon appeared, Phi Gamma Delta in 1873, Delta Tau Delta in 1880, and Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Theta in 1882. About 1885 the Zetaphian society began to take notice of the intruders, and two years later passed a rule that men could not belong both to a literary society and to a fraternity.

Societies Alter Rules

Soon there were withdrawals from the literary societies, but the rule continued in force. It was not until Oct. 27, 1905, that the literary society changed its constitution to permit fraternity men to join, and friendly relations were resumed.

From that time fraternities and sororities grew in strength to their favorable position of today. Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi were the first sororities on the campus, coming here in 1882. Eleven years later came the first professional fraternities, Phi Delta Phi, law, and Xi Psi Phi, dentistry. Phi Beta Kappa, the first honorary society, established its Iowa chapter in 1895. When the Greek-letter organizations began to live in houses, 35 years or more ago, they took a second great step forward. Most of them now own their own homes. Fifteen years ago came the formation of the pan-hellenic councils, to govern the affairs of men and women's organizations.

Recent Development

A comparatively recent development is the establishment of scholarship proctors, who are chosen annually by every social fraternity and sorority. Where once these organizations ranked lowest in scholarship on the entire campus, they now out-rank the non-Greek-letter group.

Last year when the all-university average showed a decided increase over previous terms, the fraternity grade average was 2.203, compared with 2.153 for non-fraternity men. Sororities, although they have raised their grades substantially since their advent to the campus, have not quite equalled the average of non-sorority women. Last year the averages were 2.394 to 2.337 in favor of the latter group.

Fraternities and sororities, not mentioned previously, with the date of their establishment on the University of Iowa campus, are given as follows by Baird's manual:

First Homecoming Edition of "Iowan" Published in 1916

"Husk the Huskers" Bannered as Howard Jones' Team Prepared to Battle University of Nebraska

Sixteen years ago, the first Homecoming edition of The Daily Iowan was published; an issue different from those of today. The paper was 12 by 18 inches, and contained 20 pages. All the news was local, and most of it pertained to the coming game. There was no division into campus, city, sports, and social news.

The first page carried a picture of the Iowa team with the headline, "Husk the Huskers." Six thousand reservations had been made for the game, according to a news story. The sports writer of The Daily Iowan was the author of an article to the effect that the Cornhuskers were out to avenge themselves for their unexpected defeat at the hands of Kansas the week before.

Howard Jones, now coach at the University of Southern California, was then Iowa's coach. "Dope" writers were predicting an even score, and Old Gold, according to the headlines, was believed to have its best chance in 16 years, of beating the Cornhuskers.

asked, "Haven't you often wished you could stay at home rather than go to the wedding or ball in the dress suit that feels too small and looks out of style?"

Few changes were made in the inter-department basketball rules at a meeting held the night before, a story said.

Editorials in the issue were on "Homecoming" and "Criticisms," the latter publicly reprimanding with a young lady who declared that if the story appeared in The Daily Iowan, it was sure to be inaccurate. On the same page was an advertisement of a touring company at the Englert theater in "Bird of Paradise."

Forty in Currier Hall

"Daily Iowan Has Good Circulation," boasted a headline. The story said that 40 residents of Currier hall had subscribed, as the result of a "specially intensive campaign." The previous year only seven residents of the hall were subscribers.

Work on the dental building had to be stopped because of cold, a story related.

Reserved tickets for the Homecoming game were advertised for $1.50 and $2.

"Family Dinner"

The first "family" dinner, now an institution at Iowa, was written up on the first page. Held the night before the paper came out, it was attended by 500 persons. Attorney Rush C. Butler of Chicago, Ill., an alumnus, was toastmaster, and Senator Lafe L. Young, guest speaker. The dinner was held in the armory, now the library annex.

A mass meeting, the last of the year, was featured on page two. Held in natural science auditorium, it was so well attended that hundreds were turned away. A snake dance through the business streets of the town was held afterwards.

Close Football Season

"With the satisfaction of having beaten Ames and the realization that they are considered something of a football power in the middle west, the Iowa team closes its 1916 season this afternoon with the big Homecoming game against Nebraska. The record is one of achievement and glory with one exception—the defeat by Minnesota to the score of 67-0," opened a story on page three. The defeat was justified further in the story by the remark that Minnesota beat Wisconsin, which was considered a team of the same caliber as Iowa, by a score of 54-0.

DIXIE DUGAN—He'll Come Back!

By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

Iowa Famed for Buttons, Homecoming

Emblems Bear Entire Cost of Annual Celebration

Button, button, who's got the button? You've heard of that old game and it's distinctly an Iowa game. Iowa is as famous for its buttons as it is for its corn, not the button industry developed around Muscatine, but the Homecoming button industry of Iowa City.

For nine years now this has been in operation and is only another proof of how well all departments of the university can collaborate. The pharmacy department furnishes a director for the activities, Prof. R. A. Kuever; the art department furnishes designers for the badges; the athletic department furnishes a subject for the designers; the sororities furnish saleswomen; and we all furnish customers.

There is no use describing this year's button, for by this time all Iowa City is well acquainted with the grinning face of Rex, the Iowa mascot, designed by Gerald R. Boyd, A3 of Ft. Worth, Texas. But let us look back through the years and see how all this came to pass.

Small Affairs

The first seven Homecoming days were small affairs, and their expenses were correspondingly small. As Homecoming came to be a bigger thing, the expense of it also increased, until the merchants of Iowa City were called upon to bear the brunt of it. They bore it willingly enough, but as the expenses grew and grew it appeared that even they were not capable of carrying the burden. Each year as it drew on toward Homecoming time the newspapers would make quavering queries as to whether the old traditions such as the corn monument, Washington street arch, etc., would have to be discontinued at last, or if they could raise enough money to have them one more year.

Finally the idea was hit upon of printing special Homecoming stamps, selling them at a penny each, and attaching them to all outgoing mail. This plan was followed for two years, but was not very successful, as it was necessary to sell so many stamps in order to raise very much money.

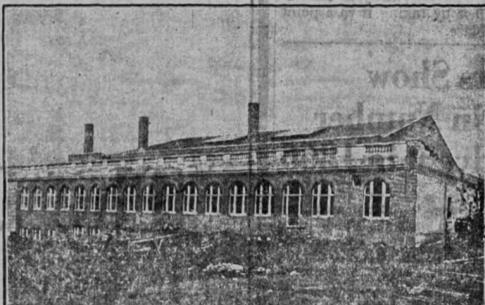

Finally, in 1924, under the direction of Professor Kuever, the Homecoming button made its debut. The regulations established at that time have never been changed. The buttons must be one and one-half inches in diameter, must pertain to the University of Iowa and football, must have the word Homecoming and the date on it, and finally must be in old gold and black. Each year a prize of $10 has been awarded for the best design.

Pink Old Gold

That the colors of the buttons have varied from year to year is only due to the fact that experiments are constantly being made to obtain the true old gold one. The first two buttons were almost pink and black. From that time on they have been various shades of yellow and orange until this year Professor Kuever believes the old gold tone has been obtained as nearly as possible.

John Hancock of Superior, Wis., tackle on Coach Burt Ingwersen's first Iowa football team and an all-Iowa selection, basketball and track man, and also art student, designed the button of 1924. Hancock graduated from the University in

REMEMBER HOW IT LOOKED?

Iowa Union in the embryo, might be the title of this view, snapped shortly after the construction began on the first unit of the building. With two units completed, plans call for extensions of the structure which will eventually cover nearly all of the block in which it is situated.

1925, taught and coached for some time at the Colorado State Teacher's college at Greeley, and was last year at Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis. His design represented a player, carrying the ball, being tackled by another player wearing a contrasting sweater. In the black border are the old gold letters, S. U. I. HOME-COMING, and inside the circle, Oct. 25, 1924.

Johnson Design

In 1925 Nels N. Johnson of Des Moines, another art student, designed the Homecoming badge. He graduated in July, 1930, and was afterward at the State Teacher's college in Aberdeen, S. D. Last summer he took some graduate work at S.U.I. His design was a picture of the tower of Old Capitol with a large football placed horizontally used as the background. The inscription on the border read, IOWA HOME-COMING—OCT. 17, 1925.

Walter Roach, a speech major, who was born in Liverpool, Eng., was the designer of the 1926 button. The design was the profile of Paul C. Smith, the captain of the football team, and read, "HOME-COMING—IOWA" in old gold letters and Nov. 6, 1926 in black. Roach graduated in the class of 1927 and is now designing for Adrienne Morrison in New York city. He took part in many plays while in Iowa City, the most important of which were "What Every Woman Knows" by J. M. Barrie, and "He Who Gets Slapped" by Leonid Andreyev.

It was in this year that President Walter A. Jessup said, "I approve the badge selling project as a means of raising funds to cover Homecoming expenses and I believe this plan which has been in operation for three years will become a popular Homecoming tradition." It was also necessary to make this one button an official button as peddlers had been coming into Iowa City to sell badges with profit to themselves. Confusion was eliminated by having only one such article on sale at this time.

Old Iowa Field

Ralph Lanning, 220 E. Davenport street, Iowa City, designed the button in 1927. It showed the entrance to the old Iowa field on the east side of the river. From its two main posts were flying the flags of Iowa and Illinois. IOWA HOME-COMING were the words in the border, and within the circle, Nov. 5, 1927. Lanning was a student of engineering and journalism, and graduated in 1929 in the college of liberal arts. For a time he was in business in Iowa City, but at present he is temporarily employed in a printing office in Chariton.

The 1928 badge designer was Donald E. Craig of Council Bluffs, art student. He graduated in 1931, and has had a scholarship last year and this to the School of Fine Arts in Boston, Mass. He took some work at Iowa this summer, and is also known for having made the decorative map of the campus being sold by the Association of University Women here. His badge represented a football player with the ball under his arm, about to make a touchdown. The date was Oct. 27, 1928, and the border with its inscription of IOWA HOME-COMING was decorated with ears of corn.

Edna M. Spurgeon, then of Galva, was the first woman to have her design accepted for the Homecoming button. Hers was a drawing of the portico of Iowa's first capitol, the hub of the university. The date, Oct. 19, 1929, as well as IOWA HOME-COMING were to be found in the border. Miss Spurgeon was for some time an instructor in fine arts here. Last year she made use of a scholarship to the Grand Central Art school in New York city, and this year she is in Omaha, Neb.

Cow Bell Badge

Dr. Fred D. Francis of the college of dentistry won the annual contest in 1930. He got his inspiration for it from a watch fob he carried which is in the form of a cow bell with a raised "I" on either side. The button he designed had a large football placed lengthwise as a background. Upon this was placed a cowbell which had the letter "I" on it in black. IOWA HOME-COMING, Nov. 15, 1930 were the words around the border.

Last year it was Leone Neider, A4 of 224 E. Burlington street, Iowa City, who won the prize. Her design was a poised hawk about to plunge upon its prey, superimposed upon a background formed by a large letter "I". The date was Oct. 17, 1931. Miss Neider is a senior in the graphic and plastic arts department this year.

As the years have gone on even the usual lump sum contributed by the Chamber of Commerce for Homecoming has become unnecessary, so that the button itself is now financing all extra expenses, and it can almost certainly be said that wearing the badge is an established Homecoming tradition. Professor Kuever, who began the

University Alumni Pursue Work in Diversified Fields After Leaving Iowa Campus

Look over any catalogue of the nation's outstanding men—statesmen, journalists, explorers, executives, surgeons, jurists, educators, or dozens of other professions—and you are almost certain to find listed one or more University of Iowa graduates.

Out from the shadow of Old Capitol they have gone into every walk of life, and few schools can boast greater achievements for their graduates.

Consider the case of Frank O. Lowden, Valedictorian of the University of Iowa arts class in 1885, he returned here to receive a doctor of laws degree in 1918, the year before he became governor of Illinois. Since then he has been nationally prominent in Republican party affairs. In 1920 he was strongly considered for the presidential nomination, and four years later he refused second place on the ticket.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde graduated from the college of law in 1900, practiced for several years, then gained the governorship of Missouri in 1921, and went from there to the cabinet position.

Vilhjalmur Steffansson, widely known for Arctic explorations, came from his birthplace in Canada to receive a bachelor of arts degree here in 1903. A year later he went to Iceland and headed the Canadian Arctic expedition from 1913 to 1918. He is the author of numerous books and articles concerning the northland.

Leading business executives among Iowa alumni include W. H. Bremner, first president, then receiver of the M. and St. L. railroad, and Edward J. Cornish, president of the National Lead company and a director in five other national firms. The former is a native movement, is still actively in charge of it. News of this method of financing has travelled far and wide. Not only do alumni who cannot attend the game send in their orders, but inquiries from other schools have been received asking the ways and means of the campaign.

Iowan, born at Marshalltown. Outstanding in the journalistic field are Harvey Ingham, editor and chief of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, and Charles S. Smith, for years a foreign correspondent and now head of the foreign service of the Associated Press. The latter's chief recognition came from his coverage of the international conferences growing out of the World war.

Turning to education we find John S. Nollen, president of Grinnell college, a member of the arts class of 1888, who received his doctor of laws degree here in 1910. In the same field are George E. Shambaugh, a brother of Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, now a professor in Rush Medical college, University of Chicago, and Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale divinity school since 1911. The former was a member of the class of 1892, while Dean Brown took a master's degree here in 1886.

If we peer into the legal profession we find two prominent Iowa alumni on the state supreme court bench. They are Chief Justice Truman S. Stevens, a native of Tama county, and Justice F. F. Faville, born at Mitchell, Ia.

In medicine is Dr. Charles E. Riggs of the United States Naval hospital; in governmental affairs are Judge William S. Kenyon of Ft. Dodge and Senator L. J. Dickinson of Algona; in the military service are Major General J. A. Hull, a member of the supreme court of the Philippine islands, and George S. Gibbs, who has been decorated for

Nearby Quarries Furnished Materials for Old Capitol, First State House of Iowa

For more than 50 years, Old Capitol bell has been tolling hourly for the students of the university. To those who know the colorful history of Iowa's first capitol, the bell unfolds a story of glorious tradition and promise.

Thousands of students have passed through the portals of the old Capitol since the founding of the university on Feb. 25, 1847, only two months after Iowa was admitted to the Union. Thousands of feet have trod up and down Old Capitol's famous spiral stairway, and have admired the structural beauty and grace of the building when measured by the scanty resources of the pioneer builders.

Indians Give Land

In 1836, a large section of Johnson county was turned over to the United States by the Sac and Fox Indians. In 1838 the settlers assembled to celebrate territorial recognition, and invited their Indian neighbors as guests of honor. Poweshiek, chief of the Foxes, said in a speech on this occasion:

"Soon I shall go to a new home and you will plant corn where my dead sleep. Our towns, the paths we have made, and the flowers we love will soon be yours. I have moved many times and have seen the white man put his feet in the tracks of the Indian and make the earth into fields and gardens."

"I know that I must go away and you will be so glad when I am gone that you will soon forget that the meat and the lodge-fire of the Indian have been forever free to the stranger and that at all times he has asked for what he has fought for, the right to be free."

Drive Stakes for Building

A few months later, the territorial commissioners drove stakes for the capitol site not far from the spot where Poweshiek had spoken. Thus the Indian chief, with his spirit of friendliness toward the white man, gave to Old Capitol one of its first traditions.

Congress donated to the Territory of Iowa $20,000 for the capitol building and a section of land on which it was to stand. This was not a large donation, and led to the financial difficulties involved in the erection of the capitol, and to its long delayed completion.

Two Quarries Used

Old Capitol was built from stone taken from the site on which the president's home now stands at the head of Clinton street. By the time the first story was completed, the supply of stone at this point was exhausted, and Old Capitol quarry was then established nine miles up the river. Individual stones of an estimated weight of 8,000 pounds were floated down the river on rafts. The walls of Old Capitol were constructed six feet thick.

In 1857, the seat of government was moved to Des Moines, and Old Capitol passed into the hands of the university. At one time, it was the headquarters of several academic departments including the college of law. For several years, however, Old Capitol has been the seat of university administrative offices.

Twice Won Cup on Display in Armory

A silver cup won by the University of Iowa in 1931 and 1932 is now on display in the armory. This cup, offered by the National Society of Pershing Rifles for small bore shooting, is a traveling cup until some team wins it three consecutive times.

Practice shooting starts immediately with many of last year's men back to try and win the cup once more and make it the permanent property of the university.

Women 'Rusle' Cattle

PUERTO MONTE, Chile (AP)—A band of highly skilled women thieves, calling themselves the "Amazonas de la Oveja," has been ravaging the southern cattle and farm region, stealing livestock and robbing lone wayfarers. Frightened farmers term "La Oveja," the leader, a giant "mythological incarnation."

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Patricia Braithwait adored her father so much that she was willing to sacrifice love and happiness to insure his future independence by marrying his middle-aged Harvey Blaine for his wealth. It was Aunt Pamela who suggested that Pat marry wealth, warning that "the glamour of love wears off". Pamela spoke from experience; her own marriage to handsome Jimmie Warren, a young lawyer, was becoming dull. Jimmie, furious at Pat's engagement, awakens to the realization that he, himself, cares for her, Pat, with youth's optimism, hopes in vain that the young camper whom she only knows as "Jack", and saw only once, will rescue her from Blaine. Jimmie finds her in the garden, sobbing. He takes her in his arms, and in despair and hungry for love, she permits him to kiss her. Next day Pat breaks her engagement. Pamela is suspicious when, immediately following Pat's broken engagement, Jimmie offers to loan Pat money to study art. Pat's father declines Jimmie's offer, saying his insurance (which he would not touch for himself but felt justified in using for his daughter's career) was adequate for her needs. He plans to take Pat to Paris. One minute Patricia feels she cannot leave Jimmie, and the next, she loathes him for the kiss experience of the previous night. Then Jack arrives. Pat thinks—if he had only come yesterday, for today, he is too late and it is Jimmie she wants. Jack explains he stayed away because her "good-bye" seemed so final. Pat learns that he is wealthy Jack Lawrence, for whom a nation-Jack Lawrence, for whom a nation-years ago when he was kidnapped while enroute to his father's oil lands in Mexico. He tells Pat of his love and longing to take her into his arms at their first meeting. She sobs, "If you only had!" Pat explains how she turned, in desperation, to another in whose embrace the love which Jack had awakened—

you, I'll step out some night, holding one of my grandchildren by the hand; and the full moon, smiling slyly down will wave her magic wand, and my grandchild—in the twinkling of an eye—will be a dark young man. My silver hair will be gold. The scene will be this. It's an unfair spell you're trying to put on me."

A low chuckle escaped him. "It was done with malicious intent. Wherever you go the moon will be there to remind you of this night and me. But—I may be there too—holding the other hand—of your grandchild. You don't think, little Pat, now that I've found you I shall walk submissively out of your life, leaving you to this other man? You don't think I believe your love for him is legitimate? You told me you had never wanted a man to kiss you till yesterday in my tent. I was the man. The first man who stirred the somnolent womanhood in you. I let fear cheat us both. I feared to shock you and lose you. This other man caught you in rebound from my failure. He won your gratitude and you think that's love. I don't. He's got to fight me for you. Au revoir, Mostly Pat."

He turned swiftly away. She watched him push his boat off. He stood up waving to her, then began pulling a dark figure swaying in rhythmic beauty against the silver mist. A little thrill caught her. The thrill of a young girl who has just received from a handsome young man the promise that he will fight for her, win her from another . . .

Patricia was awakened by an insistent rattling and swishing outside her windows. She sprang up, ran to lower the sash, and looked out on a streaming world.

Troubled by dreams of Jimmie and Jack in deadly combat, she had slept badly. Sometimes they were romantic gentlemen in short velvet breeches and brilliant coats, swords flashing in sunlight. Again they wore trunks and padded gloves, naked bodies straining, pommeling each other inside a prize ring. Now strange savage men wearing the skins of animals, themselves like animals. Hair flowing, teeth gnashing, they wielded curious weapons of death. And always Jimmie seemed to have the better of Jack.

She dressed hurriedly. Her father had finished his breakfast and sat in conversation with a nearby couple. Long rows of white tables in pallid light. Forlorn faces bent over chilly grapefruit. Cold looking waiters. Shaws. Sweaters. Gloom. Loud complaints against the false advertising of Florida as a land of eternal sunshine. Assertions to the effect that it was never colder in the North than this morning. Talk of returning to steam heat and houses built for bad weather. All the intolerable aspects of a day without sunshine in Florida were being debated.

Patricia drank a cup of coffee and escaped. Her father followed her and she went upstairs with him to help him pack for his journey. "Now run along," he told her, "I must dress."

In the lobby entrance two bellboys were divesting a tall man of a dripping mackintosh. Two others were rushing toward the desk with wet luggage. An oil hat covered the man's down-bent head. A boy took the hat and Patricia's heart lost a beat as Jack's dark and smiling face was revealed.

"Even if I hadn't already heard an urgent call back to civilization," he called to her, his eyes shining, "the elements would have forced me. But I had packed last night anyway. Wait here for me," he added, following the bellboy past her. "I'll be right down, soon as I get in some dry togs."

She watched him leaning over the desk, saw the puzzled expression of the clerk's face, his quick glance at the register, and recognition . . .

He spoke to Jack eagerly . . . Jack talking to him. Protest in the clerk's face; then, slow agreement and the serious air of a fellow conspirator.

"He has promised not to give Jack's name to the papers," she thought. "He didn't want to. But Jack is the kind of a man who gets what he wants—usually."

The elevator opened. A woman stopped out. An exquisite woman dressed in sand color from head to foot. Her shoes and hose exactly matched the simple yet exquisitely tailored frock. Her hair, parted on one side of a low forehead, was a little darker sand and her perfect marcel had the look of having been tailored too. Not an ornament. Plain as an old-time wedding ring, yet smart, oh, very smart and modern. A slightly short, slightly square woman, altogether satisfying.

A pair of large hazel eyes rested on Patricia. The eyes were friendly, but did not quite reach the point of a smile; they passed to Jack now near the elevator. She stepped out, addressing the bellboy carrying Jack's bags. He pointed to the right. She smiled her thanks, and her smile seemed to encompass Jack. Not a forward or flirtatious smile, just quiet, encompassing quite impersonal, yet personally engaging. They did not speak, but when Jack faced around in the elevator his eyes were smiling. They followed the lady in sand on her way to the library.

To her surprise Patricia found that she also had responded to that encompassing smile. "Personality," she thought, dropping down on a big divan and tucking her feet up under her "Colorless as the desert, and as poignant."

Her thoughts returned to Jack. He had packed up his things last night—in bright moonlight, before he knew there would be rain. He had meant it—He would not give her up without a struggle. She thought of her dreams; savage men slashing at each other with strange weapons. A little thrill caught her sharply, passed as sharply per perhaps Jimmie would not fight. Perhaps he didn't want her.

She was covering the tragic possibilities in this thought when Ida Ragan, tall, blonde, slinky as to movement and figure, entered, followed by the "gang." They pounced on Patricia.

"What a day! . . . What'll we do? . . . Think up something, can't you? . . . Library? Children, Pat suggests the library as if it isn't dull enough already. . . . Arthur, speak up. You're from Tampa. What do people do in Florida when it rains?"

"Well," replied Arthur, dropping into a chair as if too weary to hold himself together, "if you all want to you can come up to my room."

"Let's go," cried Ida, showing signs of life. "Come on, Pat."

"I can't. I've got a date."

"A date? . . . Who with? . . . To do what? . . ."

"To do nothing. Just to wait here for a handsome young man."

"A new man? Have we seen him? When did he arrive? Where's he from? How'd you meet him?"

"You boys go on to your date with the bellboy," Ida said, her slinky figure straightening. "We'll stay and help Pat keep hers."

Arthur was frowning darkly. He didn't want to go. But it was his suggestion. The men pulled him to his feet. He protested noisily. The lady in sand came from the library carrying a book. They paused . . . Noise lessening . . . All watching her cross the lounge . . . Who's she? Not a beauty but—something about her . . .

Not until she entered the elevator did they resume their rough persuasion of Arthur. He yielded reluctantly, casting a dark glance at Pat. Several girls went alone. Most of them stayed.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

Jack sat still. The silver night dropped of its own weariness; the moon hung flaccidly and palely in space, waving tattered cloud banners above a darkened sea where a few feeble stars rocked in the wash of their own light.

She reached out to him, touching his hand shyly, aching for his hurt and her own; aching to comfort him and be comforted. He seemed unaware of her touch, turned inward upon himself, submerged and withdrawn—thinking what thoughts! Mysterious and detached.

Suddenly he sprang up, light, cat-like in his grace, and stood smiling down at her. Tall and straight, lightly poised, swaying to the movement of the sea.

He bent over the motor. Its harsh voice cut across the resplendent night, shattering its quiet. Patricia watched him, her heart heavy, suffocated by the pity of it all. She saw the deep light falling on him, glinting on his smooth black head, draining his absorbed face of color.

New and again he gave her a smile, friendly, withdrawn.

At the entrance of the hotel grounds he stopped, and taking her arm, turned back to face the sea. Behind them the dark quiet gardens; before them an infinitude of light. A palm tree on the rim of sand, tall and slim, its dark plumelike head etched high against the silver wash, gave the whole picture a fabulous quality.

"Mostly Pat," he said in a low voice, "whenever you see the full moon, and wherever—I'll be thinking of you."

She laughed tremulously. "It's a long and wide promise. For wherever I go the moon will be there. When you are an old man, and I an old lady, dimly remembered by

Alumni, Residents Recall Homecoming in Days of Nightshirts, Pep, Parades

And they didn't have pajama parades then because they wore nightshirts.

"The football team, the alumni, the band, the students, and the faculty—all of them, 20 years ago, would meet in the auditorium of the natural sciences building the night before the Homecoming game and the roars of "Iowa Fights" could be heard all over the town," said one of the "old timers," reminiscing.

"Members of the team would give short talks, the faculty would urge the team on, the band would play, and the students would yell, and believe me, they could yell."

Run Around Town

"After the meeting the football team would leave to get a good night's rest, the students and the alumni would run around the town most of the night, and the faculty went to their homes, I guess. Joy water guzzlers were prominent then too," he said laughingly.

"One of the best Homecomings I've ever seen," said one of Iowa City's business men, "was when Iowa walloped Minnesota 38 to 14 in 1922—Leland Parkin made the first touchdown. Everyone went wild. Iowa City's street cars were lifted off the tracks and pushed down the streets, and I'm afraid that if the crowd had got much more jubilant the town would have been a wreck before morning."

Cheer Leading

One of the features of the Homecoming eve celebration in '22 was the leading of cheers by Al Fischer, university cheer leader in 1911. Conspicuous among the rosters then were "Sisters of the Howling 300" of ear puff fame.

"I've seen too many Homecomings," said one of the oldest members of Iowa City's police force. "We always have a lot to do during Homecoming, as the students do things in groups that they wouldn't think of doing by themselves.

"Pretty lenient"

"We usually have a bunch of celebrants waking up at the police station the next morning with a surprised look on their faces—they act differently then, too. The police have been pretty lenient with students, as they're usually decent but when they get too lawless, as they sometimes do during Homecoming, we have to clamp down on them."

"I usually find a mob of students at my door Homecoming night, howling and pushing to get in—for nothing," said one of Iowa City's theater owners. "I wouldn't mind so much if they just wouldn't break things up and disturb the patrons already in the theater."

No longer do students wear dressing mustaches and pajamas—but Homecoming will be Homecoming.

Corn Monument Had Beginning at 1919 Ames Game

Iowa's Homecoming corn monument has become a tradition in the comparatively short time of 13 years. It was first erected for the same against Iowa State college Nov. 22, 1919, the last contest in the bitter intrastate series.

Since then it has come a long way in planning and construction. At first the framework was built by whoever had time to do the job, and the ears of corn, raised by the botany department, were nailed on in a more or less irregular manner. Now the whole affair is managed by a committee which purchases selected corn, and the ears are split to lie more evenly on the wooden frame.

Plans for the 1919 monument were drawn by Prof. B. J. Lambert of the college of engineering. He still has in his office the blueprint of the wooden obelisk. The construction was supervised by Prof. S. M. Woodward, head of the mechanical engineering department. For many years corn used in the monument was yellow and black, but more recently it has been red and yellow, with occasional touches of other shades.

The first structure was placed at the corner of Clinton and Washington street. It was later moved to the intersection of Clinton street and Iowa avenue, to allow for changes in Iowa City traffic.

In 1921 Prof. Floyd A. Nagler of the college of engineering took over the job of supervising the construction, and that was the first year in which the monument was completely covered with corn. Not until 1923 were the ears split before being nailed to the framework.

Caywood Has Charge

The mechanical engineering department took over the project in 1926 and has had it since, with Prof. T. G. Caywood in charge most of the time. The electrical engineers have annually furnished the lighting, effected by small bulbs on the monument and floodlights surrounding it.

Burning the monument is a recently inaugurated custom. An unexpected victory over Minnesota inspired the first conflagration. In 1929 it escaped destruction, but was burned in 1930. Last year there was no bonfire.

Instructors of Four Science Groups Meet

Visiting Speakers Will Give Talks, Lead Discussions

A quadruple conference in the field of science, designed for both college and high school teachers, will bring more than 300 men and women to the University of Iowa next Friday and Saturday.

The visitors will be aided in their search for further knowledge of teaching by comprehensive programs in physics, chemistry, biology, and botany, during which professors from several state institutions will present addresses or lead round table discussions.

Speakers from other institutions include V. W. Meloche, University of Wisconsin, a chemist; C. W. Lantz, biologist from Iowa State Teachers college; R. E. Buchanan, biologist who is dean of the graduate college at Iowa State college; and Helen Cromer of State Normal college, Aberdeen, S. D.

During the course of the two-day affair, the teachers will hear of such subjects as formulae for successful teaching, field study of plants, summer work in field biology, teaching of college chemistry and physics, and test exercises for measurement of pupil comprehension in science.

Among the science teachers from Iowa colleges who will lead sessions are Leo P. Sherman, Grinnell; Myron E. Graber, Morningside; H. M. Kelly, Cornell, and Roy L. Abbott, State Teachers.

Law Classes End Elections

A. Fred Berger Will Wield Gavel for Year

As president of the senior class in law, A. Fred Berger, L3 of Davenport, will wield the gavel for the coming year. Class elections of officers in the college of law were completed yesterday when the freshman voted for their choice.

William B. Howes, L2 of Davenport, was chosen president of the juniors, and George J. Salling, L1 of Corydon, named leader of the freshman class.

Other senior officers are Stratton R. Eller, L3 of Cedar Rapids, vice president, and John E. Miller, L3 of Albia, secretary-treasurer.

Herbert Box, L2 of Ottumwa, will serve as vice president, and Arthur H. Jacobson, L2 of Waukon, as secretary-treasurer of the juniors. In the freshman class, Lumund F. Wilcox, L1 of Jefferson, was appointed vice president, and Howard S. Masden, L1 of Milwaukee, Wis., secretary-treasurer.

About 175 law students attended the mixer given by the law classes earlier in the week.

Pershing Rifles to Select Personnel After Four Drills

With 48 men trying out, 23 of whom are veterans from last year, selection of personnel for Pershing Rifles, honorary military organization, is now in progress.

The selection is to be made after the completion of four drill periods. Men who are accepted will be put on probation for one month before final initiation.

Officers of the organization for the coming year are: Capt. Ted MacDougall, E4 of Conesville; First Lieut. William Ellsworth, A3 of Omaha, Neb.; Second Lieut. Vincent Allison, E3 of Taberville, Mo.; First Sgt. Don Martin, A2 of Iowa City. These men will be assisted by Staff Sgt. Fred C. Waller and Sgt. Gordon H. Hall, and sponsored by Capt. William G. Murphy of the military department.

Tryouts for the crack squad will begin next week. The squad will make several trips this year and will enter competitive drills. Al K. Kiechler, E2 of Davenport, is to command the squad this year.

C. C. Wylie Describes Meteor Experiments in Current Magazine

In an article in the current number of "Popular Astronomy," just received at the mathematics library, Prof. C. C. Wylie, head of the astronomy department, describes experiments with the Perseid meteor shower last August.

Observations were conducted by Professor Wylie in conjunction with the physics department of Iowa Wesleyan college. Observers at Iowa City and Mt. Pleasant viewed in duplicate five meteors, on which data were compiled.

Three of these were Perseids, two were not. The largest and brightest came into view 92 miles from the earth and burned into vapor when it was 55 miles away.

A special apparatus, known as the reticle, was used for these observations. It was invented by Professor Wylie and Prof. Thomas C. Foulter of Iowa Wesleyan college, and has been generally commended by astronomers.

WHERE BRITISH JOBLESS RIOTED

Here is a photo of the British house of parliament, the scene of the recent jobless riot, one of the worst in the history of the English capital, which began when an organized army of jobless attempted to storm Parliament Square. While police battled the demonstrators, the national government of Premier Ramsay MacDonald (inset) was in session within. Scores of rioters were injured when mounted police charged into the throng and at least 20 police were rendered hors de combat.

Society Suicide

Taken when she attended a society function in costume some time ago, this is one of the most recent photos of Mrs. Charles J. Prescott, Jr., of Norwood, Mass., who plunged to death from the thirty-first floor of a New York hotel. She was the wife of a wealthy Cambridge and Norwood manufacturer and socially prominent. Mrs. Prescott pinned two fresh carnations on her blouse and penned a note in lipstick before her fatal leap.

Theatrical Manager Leads Round Table Drama Discussion

More than 100 people gathered in the senate chamber of Old Capitol yesterday afternoon for a round table discussion on drama, led by Daniel Frohman, veteran theatrical manager.

Introduced by Prof. E. C. Mabie, head of the speech department, Mr. Frohman told of the many changes that have come into the field of drama since his entrance into the theater.

"The theater will always live,"

Students at Iowa Once Could Get Education, Pay Board, Room Rent, Live "Loftily" for $100 Per Year

Each year, when the Homecoming returns, he finds new changes wrought in the organization of the university. New lands have been appropriated for academic settings, and impressive buildings have been erected around the nucleus of the Old Capitol, which once housed the entire university. The latest in educational systems are adopted here, with faculty independence the fundamental policy.

In the second circular of the State University of Iowa, published in 1856, the location is described:

"6,000 Inhabitants
"The university is located at Iowa City, which now numbers some 6,000 inhabitants. It is beautifully situated on the Iowa river; readily accessible by railroad from the east; surrounded by forests and rolling prairies; possessing at all times a fine, bracing atmosphere, and a climate which has proven mild and healthy."

In these early days the tuition was $10 a term, with no other charges. According to the catalogue, a student could obtain an education, pay board and room rent, and live in a "lofty style" for $100 annually.

A preparatory school was es-

Exhibit War Implements

Guns, Helmets, Sabers, Shells on Display at Armory

Guns, helmets, sabers, shells—these are just a few of the many implements of war now on exhibition in the armory.

The collection includes a Chinese wall gun having a bore of one and a fourth inches, which was captured during the Boxer rebellion. A rifle with a 20 pound barrel taken from a Kentucky moonshiner, and a Civil war saber also add color. The group was furnished by the United States arsenal at Rock Island, Ill. A complete line of service rifles and pistols used by the army since 1822 is also to be seen.

The dental and medical units of the military department have erected a battalion aid station, with all equipment on display. The engineering unit has put in place a pontoon bridge, a wooden bridge, and wire entanglements.

Maps and charts showing military movements, sections, ranges, and organization are also on display. Gas and shrapnel shells of many types, helmets, machine guns, and bombs used during the World war form a part of the exhibition. The public is invited.

Museum Open Today

The university museum will be open to the public during Homecoming celebration, it was announced yesterday by Homer R. Dill, director.

Killed by Train

CEDAR RAPIDS, Oct. 21 (AP)—L. M. Bosh, manager of a produce station at Oxford Junction, was killed this afternoon, when struck by a fast Northwestern passenger train at Wheatland crossing.

he asserted: "the greatest need is for good plays. It has lived for 3,000 years, and it will live for 3,000 more."

In answer to the questions of his listeners, Mr. Frohman discussed the changes that have taken place in the style of plays and acting technic.

Purdue Takes Field Against Northwestern

Purple Rates Slight Favorite as 1931 Tiltists Start

DYCHE STADIUM, Evanston, Ill., Oct. 22 (AP)—Forty thousand spectators marched into Dyche stadium this afternoon to witness the battle between Northwestern and Purdue, co-sharers of the Western title. The result appeared to be a toss up, although Northwestern took the field a slight favorite. Purdue, undefeated this season, was determined to upset the Wildcats, just as the Boilermakers did a year ago in knocking Northwestern out of undisputed possession of the Big Ten conference title in 1931.

First Quarter

Two fumbles marked the early play with Purvis losing the ball on Purdue's 39 yard line. Kinder recovered for Northwestern. Rentner cracked off five yards, and then Olson fumbled with Ungers recovering for Purdue on its 34 yard line. Horstmann and Hecker made a first down but Moss was forced to punt to Rentner, deep in Wildcat territory. Olson immediately returned the kick to Purdue's 44 yard line. Purdue tried desperately to pass after its running attack had been piled up. Hecker threw a 50 yard pass to Moss, which Rentner batted down. The Boilermakers gained 26 yards in an exchange of punts and then ripped off a first down. Purvis broke through for another but a 5 yard penalty nullified it. Rentner then intercepted Purvis' pass on Northwestern's 30 yard line. Olson punted out of bounds on Purdue's 14 yard line. Purvis fumbled on the Boilermaker 34 yard line with Potter recovering for Northwestern. A pass Olson to Potter and Rentner's dive through tackle gave Northwestern first down on Purdue's 21 yard line. Northwestern drew a 15 yard penalty as the period ended with Purdue 0; Northwestern 0.

Carter replaced Hecker at left half for Purdue and after an exchange of punts Carter, Horstmann and Purvis cracked off two first downs going to Purdue's 47 yard line in advances through the line. Purdue drove down and threatened to score when Purvis tossed a 25 yard pass to Moss on Northwestern's 33. Carter dashed over right tackle for a first down on Northwestern's 20 yard line. The Wildcats held and Pardoner attempted a drop kick from his 23 yard line but the ball sailed wide. Horstman, Carter and Purvis later, ripped off two first downs, taking the ball to Northwestern's 11 yard line. Again Pardoner's drop kick from the 23 yard line missed. Later Carter heaved a pass to Moss in the end zone, which Rentner batted down just as the ball was about to settle in Moss' arms over the line. Olson ended the threat with a punt of 77 yards before the period ended.

Purdue 0; Northwestern 0.

Maroons Take Opening Stand With Hoosiers

Olsen Denies County Audit Public Record

Because of the special nature of the audit of the county treasurer's office made by Allen Busby, and Harrison, Des Moines accountants, County Attorney F. B. Olson decided yesterday that the decision as to whether it should be filed as a public record is within the discretion of the board of supervisors.

Mr. Olson's opinion was demanded by the supervisors in the matter because of agitation demanding that the report, filed with the county auditor, be opened to the public as a public record.

Not Required
The audit was not one required by law, he pointed out, but was made for the special purpose of developing evidence for use in the trial of the case of Johnson county vs. Charles L. Berry, county treasurer, and the First National bank. As such, Mr. Olson said the audit does not come under the provision of the law required the filing of public records.

Worded Misleading
He contended that the wording of the resolution of the board in designating the accountants as "Public auditors and accountants" was misleading and that they were hired neither as "public" nor as "state" accountants, but as special auditors for the purpose of collecting evidence.

Position Clear
In his statement yesterday, Mr. Olson said that the first request of the board was an oral one and that he made his position clear at that time.

The office of the attorney general concurred in Mr. Olson's opinion, as evidenced by a letter from Earl F. Wisdom, attorney general.

Gopher Pass Opens Scoring; Sloppy Field Slows Contest

Fumbles, penalties frequent as Gophers, Hawkeyes clash; Lund's flip to Robinson, Manders' place kick score first for Minnesotans

Minnesota defeated Iowa 21 to 6 before a big Homecoming crowd of 18,000 in Iowa stadium.

Too much water and too many fumbles for real power play; the ball too greasy for clean handling on passes, both teams resorting to punts frequently—that was the story as the Iowa-Minnesota Homecoming game got under way. One of the few passes of the half, Lund's 12 yard pass to Robinson, with the latter's unhampered trip over the goal, and Manders' boot through the uprights for Minnesota's seven points shortly after the second quarter got under way.

The rest of the way was push, run, and kick with plenty of penalties holding up the progress.

"Way back when" Larrabee made "center smashes," or later when Red Griffith displayed his brand of generalship. And didn't you thrill too to see Nyle Jones take the ball and head for the line. Then later Mike Hyland fought his way thru an Ames game all battered up. "Swede" Hanson's long spiral kicks down the field and the old board fence with the big "Iowa Fights" on it. Let's live again the tenseness of seeing Chuck Long go out after a pass, and recall the hopes that mounted high when Howard Jones came to Iowa, then he and the Devines, et al, went East and "cleaned up." Next grinning Burt Ingwersen, and on his teams Mayes McClain, Bill Glassgow and a lot of other big boys. And today Solem with Moffitt, Magnussen and Schammel, and another fighting Iowa team. Drop in while you're here and let's talk it all over.

First Homecoming Edition of "Iowan" Published in 1916

"Husk the Huskers" Bannered as Howard Jones' Team Prepared to Battle University of Nebraska

Sixteen years ago, the first Homecoming edition of The Daily Iowan was published; an issue different from those of today. The paper was 12 by 18 inches, and contained 20 pages. All the news was local, and most of it pertained to the coming game. There was no division into campus, city, sports, and social news.

The first page carried a picture of the Iowa team with the headline, "Husk the Huskers." Six thousand reservations had been made for the game, according to a news story. The sports writer of The Daily Nebraskan was the author of an article to the effect that the Cornhuskers were out to avenge themselves for their unexpected defeat at the hands of Kansas the week before.

Howard Jones, now coach at the University of Southern California, was then Iowa's coach. "Dope" writers were predicting an even score, and Old Gold, according to the headlines, was believed to have its best chance in 16 years, of beating the Cornhuskers.

"Family Dinner" The first "family" dinner, now an institution at Iowa, was written up on the first page. Held the night before the paper came out, it was attended by 500 persons. Attorney Rush C. Butler of Chicago, Ill., an alumnus, was toastmaster, and Senator L. F. Young, guest speaker. The dinner was held in the armory, now the library annex.

A mass meeting, the last of the year, was featured on page two. Held in natural science auditorium, it was so well attended that hundreds were turned away. A snake dance through the business streets of the town was held afterwards.

Close Football Season "With the satisfaction of having beaten Ames and the realization that they are considered something of a football power in the middle west, the Iowa team closes its 1916 season this afternoon with the big Homecoming game against Nebraska. The record is one of achievement and glory with one exception—the defeat by Minnesota to the score of 67-0," opened a story on page three. The defeat was justified further in the story by the remark that Minnesota beat Wisconsin, which was considered a team of the same caliber as Iowa, by a score of 54-0.

Pages four, five, and six were devoted to pictures of the Iowa team and its coaches, and the leading Nebraska players.

Iowa Famed for Buttons, Homecoming

Emblems Bear Entire Cost of Annual Celebration

Button, button, who's got the button? You've heard of that old game and it's distinctly an Iowa game. Iowa is as famous for its buttons as it is for its corn, not the button industry developed around Muscatine, but the Homecoming button industry of Iowa City.

For nine years now this has been in operation and is only another proof of how well all departments of the university can collaborate. The pharmacy department furnishes a director for the activities, Prof. R. A. Kuever; the art department furnishes designers for the badges; the athletic department furnishes a subject for the designers; the sororities furnish saleswomen; and we all furnish customers.

There is no use describing this year's button, for by this time all Iowa City is well acquainted with the grinning face of Rex, the Iowa mascot, designed by Gerald R. Boyd, A3 of Ft. Worth, Texas. But let us look back through the years and see how all this came to pass.

Small Affairs The first seven Homecoming days were small affairs, and their expenses were correspondingly small. As Homecoming came to be a bigger thing, the expense of it also increased, until the merchants of Iowa City were called upon to bear the brunt of it. They bore it willingly enough, but as the expenses grew and grew it appeared that even they were not capable of carrying the burden. Each year as it drew toward Homecoming time the newspapers would make quavering queries as to whether the old traditions such as the corn monument, Washington street arch, etc., would have to be discontinued at last, or if they could raise enough money to have them one more year.

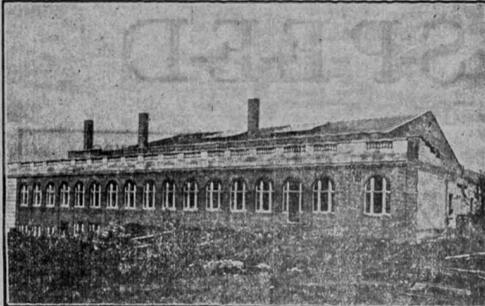

Finally the idea was hit upon of printing special Homecoming stamps, selling them at a penny each, and attaching them to all outgoing mail. This plan was followed for two years, but was not very successful, as it was necessary to sell so many stamps in order to raise very much money.

Finally, in 1924, under the direction of Professor Kuever, the Homecoming button made its debut. The regulations established at that time have never been changed. The buttons must be one and one half inches in diameter, must pertain to the University of Iowa and football, must have the word Homecoming and the date on it, and finally must be in old gold and black. Each year a prize of $10 has been awarded for the best design.

Pink Old Gold That the colors of the buttons have varied from year to year is only due to the fact that experiments are constantly being made to obtain the true old gold one. The first two buttons were almost pink and black. From that time on they have been various shades of yellow and orange until this year Professor Kuever believes the old gold tone has been obtained as nearly as possible.

John Hancock of Superior, Wis., tackle on Coach Burt Ingwersen's first Iowa football team and an all-western selection, basketball and track man, and also art student, designed the button of 1924. Hancock graduated from the University in

REMEMBER HOW IT LOOKED?

Iowa Union in the embryo, might be the title of this view, snapped shortly after the construction began on the first unit of the building. With two units completed, plans call for extensions of the structure which will eventually cover nearly all of the block in which it is situated.

1925, taught and coached for some time at the Colorado State Teacher's college at Greeley, and was last year at Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis. His design represented a player, carrying the ball, being tackled by another player, wearing a contrasting sweater. In the black border are the old gold letters, S. U. I. HOME-COMING, and inside the circle, Oct. 25, 1924.

Johnson Design In 1925 Nels N. Johnson of Des Moines, another art student, designed the Homecoming badge. He graduated in July, 1930, and was afterward at the State Teacher's college in Aberdeen, S. D. Last summer he took some graduate work at S.U.I. His design was a picture of the tower of Old Capitol with a large football placed horizontally used as the background. The inscription on the border read, IOWA HOME-COMING—OCT. 17, 1925.

Walter Roach, a speech major, who was born in Liverpool, Eng., was the designer of the 1926 button. The design was the profile of Paul C. Smith, the captain of the football team, and read, "HOME-COMING—IOWA" in old gold letters and Nov. 6, 1926 in black. Roach graduated in the class of 1927 and is now designing for Adrienne Morrison in New York City. He took part in many plays while in Iowa City, the most important of which were "What Every Woman Knows" by J. M. Barrie, and "He Who Gets Slapped" by Leonid Andreyev.

It was in this year that President Walter A. Jessup said, "I approve the badge selling project as a means of raising funds to cover Homecoming expenses and I believe this plan which has been in operation for three years will become a popular Homecoming tradition." It was also necessary to make this one button an official button as peddlers had been coming into Iowa City to sell badges with profit to themselves. Confusion was eliminated by having only one such article on sale at this time.

Old Iowa Field Ralph Lanning, 220 E. Davenport street, Iowa City, designed the button in 1927. It showed the entrance to the old Iowa field on the east side of the river. From its two main posts were flying the flags of Iowa and Illinois. IOWA HOME-COMING were the words in the border, and within the circle, Nov. 5, 1927. Lanning was a student of engineering and journalism and graduated in 1929 in the college of liberal arts. For a time he was in business in Iowa City, but at present he is temporarily employed in a printing office in Chariton.

The 1928 badge designer was Donald E. Craig of Council Bluffs, art student. He graduated in 1931, and has had a scholarship last year and this to the School of Fine Arts in Boston, Mass. He took some work at Iowa this summer, and is also known for having made the decorative map of the campus here sold by the Association of University Women here. His badge represented a football player with the ball under his arm, about to make a touchdown. The date was Oct. 27, 1928, and the border with its inscription of IOWA HOME-COMING was decorated with ears of corn.

Edna M. Spurgeon, then of Galva, was the first woman to have her design accepted for the Homecoming button. Hers was a drawing of the portico of Iowa's first capitol, the hub of the university. The date, Oct. 19, 1929, as well as IOWA HOME-COMING were to be found in the border. Miss Spurgeon was for some time an instructor in fine arts here. Last year she made use of a scholarship to the Grand Central Art school in New York City, and this year she is in Omaha, Neb.

Cow Bell Badge Dr. Fred D. Francis of the college of dentistry won the annual contest in 1930. He got his inspiration for it from a watch fob he carried which is in the form of a cow bell with a raised "I" on either side. The button he designed had a large football placed lengthwise as a background. Upon this was placed a cowbell which had the letter "I" on it in black. IOWA HOME-COMING, Nov. 15, 1930 were the words around the border.

Last year it was Leone Neider, A4 of 224 E. Burlington street, Iowa City, who won the prize. Her design was a poised hawk about to plunge upon its prey, superimposed upon a background formed by a large letter I. The date was Oct. 17, 1931. Miss Neider is a senior in the graphic and plastic arts department this year.

University Alumni Pursue Work in Diversified Fields After Leaving Iowa Campus

Look over any catalogue of the nation's outstanding men—statesmen, journalists, explorers, executives, surgeons, jurists, educators, or dozens of other professions—and you are almost certain to find listed one or more University of Iowa graduates.

Out of the shadow of Old Capitol they have gone into every walk of life, and few schools can boast greater achievements for their graduates.

Consider the case of Frank O. Lowden, Valedictorian of the University of Iowa arts class in 1885, he returned here to receive a doctor of laws degree in 1918, the year before he became governor of Illinois. Since then he has been nationally prominent in Republican party affairs.

In 1920 he was strongly considered for the presidential nomination, and four years later he refused second place on the ticket. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde graduated from the college of law in 1900, practiced for several years, then gained the governorship of Missouri in 1921, and went from there to the cabinet position.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, widely known for Arctic explorations, came from his birthplace in Canada to receive a bachelor of arts degree here in 1903. Leading business executives among Iowa alumni include W. H. Bremner, first president, then receiver of the M. and St. L. railroad, and Edward J. Cornish, president of the National Lead company and a director in five other national firms. The former is a native

For more than 50 years, Old Capitol bell has been tolling hourly for the students of the university. To those who know the colorful history of Iowa's first capitol, the bell unfolds a story of glorious tradition and promise.

Thousands of students have passed through the portals of the old Capitol since the founding of the university on Feb. 25, 1847, only two months after Iowa was admitted to the Union. Thousands of feet have trod up and down Old Capitol's famous spiral stairway, and have admired the structural beauty and grace of the building when measured by the scanty resources of the pioneer builders.

Indians Give Land In 1836, a large section of Johnson county was turned over to the United States by the Sac and Fox Indians. In 1838 the settlers assembled to celebrate territorial recognition, and invited their Indian neighbors as guests of honor. Poweshiek, chief of the Foxes, said in a speech on this occasion: "Soon I shall go to a new home and you will plant corn where my dead sleep. Our towns, the paths we have made, and the flowers we love will soon be yours. I have moved many times and have seen the white man put his feet in the tracks of the Indian and make the earth into fields and gardens."

"I know that I must go away and you will be so glad when I am gone that you will soon forget that the meat and the lodge-fire of the Indian have been forever free to the stranger and that at all times he has asked for what he has fought for, the right to be free."

Drive Stakes for Building A few months later, the territorial commissioners drove stakes for the capitol site not far from the spot where Poweshiek had spoken. Thus the Indian chief, with his spirit of friendliness toward the white man, gave to Old Capitol one of its first traditions.

Congress donated to the Territory of Iowa $20,000 for the capitol building and a section of land on which it was to stand. This was not a large donation, and led to the financial difficulties involved in the erection of the capitol, and to its long delayed completion.

Twice Won Cup on Display in Army

A silver cup won by the University of Iowa in 1931 and 1932 is now on display in the army. This cup, offered by the National Society of Pershing Rifles for small bore shooting, is a traveling cup until some team wins it three consecutive times.

Practice shooting starts immediately with many of last year's men back to try and win the cup once more and make it the permanent property of the university.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Patricia Braithwaite adored her father so much that she was willing to sacrifice love and happiness to insure his future independence by marrying middle-aged Harvey Blaine for his wealth. It was Aunt Pamela who suggested that Pat marry wealth, warning that "the glamour of love wears off." Pamela spoke from experience; her own marriage to handsome Jimmie Warren, a young lawyer, was becoming dull. Jimmie, furious at Pat's engagement, awakens to the realization that he, himself, cares for her. Pat, with youth's optimism, hopes in vain that the young camper whom she only knows as "Jack," and saw only once, will rescue her from Blaine. Jimmie finds her in the garden, sobbing. He takes her in his arms, and in despair and hungry for love, she permits him to kiss her. Next day Pat breaks her engagement. Pamela is suspicious when, immediately following Pat's broken engagement, Jimmie offers to loan Pat money to study art. Pat's father declines Jimmie's offer, saying his insurance (which he would not touch for himself but felt justified in using for his daughter's career) was adequate for her needs. He plans to take Pat to Paris. One minute Patricia feels she cannot leave Jimmie, and the next, she loathes him for the kiss experience of the previous night. Then Jack arrives. Pat thinks—if he had only come yesterday, for today, he is too late and it is Jimmie she wants. Jack explains he stayed away because her "good-bye" seemed so final. Pat learns that he is wealthy Jack Lawrence, for whom a nation-year ago when he was kidnapped while enroute to his father's oil lands in Mexico. He tells Pat of his love and longing to take her into his arms at their first meeting. She sobs, "If you only had!" Pat explains how she turned, in desperation, to another in whose embrace the love which Jack had awakened—the lover!

Patricia was awakened by an insistent rattling and swishing outside her windows. She sprang up, ran to lower the sash, and looked out on a streaming world. Troubled by dreams of Jimmie and Jack in deadly combat, she had slept badly. Sometimes they were romantic gentlemen in short velvet breeches and brilliant coats, swords flashing in sunlight. Again they wore trunks and padded gloves, naked bodies straining, pommeling each other inside a prize ring. Now strange savage men wearing the skins of animals, teeth gnashing, they wielded curious weapons of death. And always Jimmie seemed to have the better of Jack.

She dressed hurriedly. Her father had finished his breakfast and sat in conversation with a nearby couple. Long rows of white tables in pallid light. Forlorn faces bent over chilly grapefruit. Cold looking waiters. Shown. Sycophants. Gloom. Loud complaints against the false advertising of Florida as a land of eternal sunshine. Assertions to the effect that it was never colder in the North than this morning. Talk of returning to steam heat and houses built for bad weather. All the intolerable aspects of a day without sunshine in Florida were being debated.

Patricia drank a cup of coffee and escaped. Her father followed her and she went upstairs with him to help him pack for his journey. "Now run along," he told her, "I must dress."

In the lobby entrance two bell-boys were divesting a tall man of a dripping mackintosh. Two others were rushing toward the desk with wet luggage. An oil hat covered the man's down-beat head. A boy took the hat and Patricia's heart lost a beat as Jack's dark and smiling face was revealed.

"Even if I hadn't already heard an urgent call back to civilization," he called to her, his eyes shining, "the elements would have forced me. But I had packed last night anyway. Wait here for me," he added, following the bellboy past her. "I'll be right down, soon as I get in some dry togs."

She watched him leaning over the desk, saw the puzzled expression of the clerk's face, his quick glance at the register, and recognition...

you, I'll step out some night, holding one of my grandchildren by the hand; and the full moon, smiling slyly down will wave her magic wand, and my grandchild—in the twinkling of an eye—will be a dark young man. My silver hair will be gold. The scene will be this. It's an unfair spell you're trying to put on me."

A low chuckle escaped him. "It was done with malicious intent. Wherever you go the moon will be there to remind you of this night and me. But—I may be there too—holding the other hand—of your grandchild. You don't think, little Pat, now that I've found you I shall walk submissively out of your life, leaving you to this other man? You don't think I believe your love for him is legitimate? You told me you had never wanted a man to kiss you till yesterday in my tent. I was the man. The first man who stirred the somnolent womanhood in you. I let her cheat us both. I feared to shock you and lose you. This other man caught you in rebound from my failure. He won your gratitude and you think that's love. I don't. He's got to fight me for you. Au revoir, Mostly Pat."

He turned swiftly away. She watched him push his boat off. He stood up waving to her, then began pooding, a dark figure swaying in rhythmic beauty against the silver mist. A little thrill caught her. The thrill of a young girl who has just received from a handsome young man the promise that he will fight for her, win her from another...

She was covering the tragic possibilities in this thought when Ida Ragan, tall, blonde, slinky as to movement and figure, entered, followed by the "gang." They pounced on Patricia.

"What a day!... What'll we do? Think up something, can't you? Library? Children. Pat suggests the library as if it isn't dull enough already. Arthur speak up. You're from Tampa. What do people do in Florida when it rains?"

"Well," replied Arthur, dropping into a chair as if too weary to hold himself together, "if you all want to you can come up to my room."

"Let's go," cried Ida, showing signs of life. "Come on, Pat."

"I can't. I've got a date."

"A date? Who with? To do what? To do nothing. Just to wait here for a handsome young man."

"A new man? Have we seen him? When did he arrive? Where's he from? How'd you meet him?"

"You boys go on to your date with the bellboy." Ida said, her slinky figure straightening. "We'll stay and help Pat keep her."

Arthur was frowning darkly. He didn't want to go. But it was his suggestion. The men pulled him to his feet. He protested noisily. The lady in sand came from the library carrying a book. They paused.

Noise lessening... All watching her cross the lounge... Who's she? Not a beauty but—something about her... Not until she entered the elevator did they resume their rough persuasion of Arthur. He yielded reluctantly, casting a dark glance at Pat. Several girls went along. Most of them stayed.

He spoke to Jack eagerly... Jack talking to him, those exact words, the clerk's face; then, slow agreement and the serious air of a fellow conspirator.

"He has promised not to give Jack's name to the papers," she thought. "He didn't want to. But Jack is the kind of a man who gets what he wants—usually."

The elevator opened. A woman stepped out. An exquisite woman dressed in sand color from head to foot. Her shoes and hose exactly matched the simple yet exquisitely tailored frock. Her hair, parted on one side of a low forehead, was a little darker sand and her perfect marcel had the look of having been tailored to fit an ornament.

A pair of large hazel eyes rested on Patricia. The eyes were friendly, but did not quite reach the point of a smile; they passed to Jack now near the elevator. She stepped out, addressing the bellboy carrying Jack's bags. He pointed to the right. She smiled her thanks, and her smile seemed to encompass Jack. Not a forward or flirtatious smile, just quiet, en-compassing quite impersonal, yet personally engaging. They did not speak, but when Jack faced around in the elevator his eyes were smiling. They followed the lady in sand on her way to the library.

To her surprise Patricia found that she also had responded to that encompassing smile. "Personality," she thought, dropping down on a big divan and tucking her feet up under her "Colorless as the desert, and as poignant."

Her thoughts returned to Jack. He had packed up his things last night—in bright moonlight, before he knew there would be rain. He had meant it—He would not give her up without a struggle. She thought of her dream; savage men slashing at each other with strange weapons. A little thrill caught her sharply, passed as sharply. Per-haps Jimmie would not fight. Perhaps he didn't want her.

She was covering the tragic possibilities in this thought when Ida Ragan, tall, blonde, slinky as to movement and figure, entered, followed by the "gang." They pounced on Patricia.

Alumni, Residents Recall Homecoming in Days of Nightshirts, Pep, Parades

And they didn't have pajama parades then because they wore nightshirts.

"The football team, the alumni, the band, the students, and the faculty—all of them, 20 years ago, would meet in the auditorium of the natural science building the night before the Homecoming game and the roars of "Towa Fights" could be heard all over the town," said one of the "old timers," reminiscing.

"Members of the team would give short talks, the faculty would urge the team on, the band would play, and the students would yell, and believe me, they could yell."

Run Around Town
"After the meeting the football team would leave to get a good night's rest, the students and the alumni would run around the town most of the night, and the faculty went to their homes, I guess. Joy water guzzlers were prominent then too," he said laughingly.

"One of the best Homecomings I've ever seen," said one of Iowa City's business men, "was when Iowa walked Minnesota 28 to 14 in 1922—Leland Parkin made the first touchdown. Everyone went wild. Iowa City's street cars were lifted off the tracks and pushed down the streets, and I'm afraid that if the crowd had got much more jubilant the town would have been a wreck before morning."

Cheer Leading
One of the features of the Homecoming eve celebration in '22 was the leading of cheers by Al Fischer, university cheer leader in 1911. Conspicuous among the rooters then were "Sisters of the Howling 300" of ear puff fame.

"I've seen too many Homecomings," said one of the oldest members of Iowa City's police force. "We always have a lot to do during Homecoming, as the students do things in groups that they wouldn't think of doing by themselves."

"Pretty Lenient"
"We usually have a bunch of celebrants waking up at the police station the next morning with a surprised look on their faces—they act differently then, too. The police have been pretty lenient with students, as they're usually decent but when they get too lawless, as they sometimes do during Homecoming, we have to clamp down on them."

"I usually find a mob of students at my door Homecoming night, howling and pushing to get in—for nothing," said one of Iowa City's theater owners. "I wouldn't mind so much if they just wouldn't break things up and disturb the patrons always in the theater."

No longer do students wear drooping mustaches and pajamas—but Homecoming will be Homecoming.

Corn Monument Had Beginning at 1919 Ames Game

Iowa's Homecoming corn monument has become a tradition in the comparatively short time of 13 years. It was first erected for the game against Iowa State college Nov. 22, 1919, the last contest in the bitter intrastate series.

Since then it has come a long way in planning and construction. At first the framework was built by whoever had time to do the job, and the ears of corn, raised by the botany department, were nailed on in a more or less irregular manner. Now the whole affair is managed by a committee which purchases selected corn, and the ears are split to lie more evenly on the wooden frame.

Plans for the 1919 monument were drawn by Prof. B. J. Lambert of the college of engineering. He still has in his office the blueprint of the wooden obelisk. The construction was supervised by Prof. S. M. Woodward, head of the mechanical engineering department. For many years corn used in the

Unbeat Skibos Meet Fighting Irish Eleven

Notre Dame Enters First Big Game of Season

NOTRE DAME STADIUM, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP)—Notre Dame encountered its first big time opposition of the season today by clashing with the undefeated but tied Skibos of Carnegie Tech. The Ramblers, playing before a home crowd of 25,000, started their second string fighting front. It was cloudy and warm at the kickoff.

Stewart kicked off for the Scots over the Notre Dame goal. Koken dropped back for a pass on the first play but fumbled and McCurdy recovered for Carnegie. Three punches at the line failed and McCurdy passed incomplete over the goal. Notre Dame regained the ball on its 20 yard stripe marching to midfield before being stopped.

After two exchanges of kicks and offensives, Mike Koken doubled around his right end on a spectacular run of 58 yards for Notre Dame's first score. Koken added the extra point from placement.

Notre Dame 7; Carnegie Tech 0.

As the period ended, the Ramblers unleashed a passing attack that carried them to the Scot 23 yard line.

Notre Dame 7; Carnegie Tech 0.

Stopped on the 10 yard line, Vejar dropped back on fourth down and tossed a high one to Sheeketski who caught it easily for touchdown number two. Koken added the extra point.

Carnegie 0; Notre Dame 14.

The Notre Dame regulars entered the fray, repelled a weak attack and then marched 56 yards on straight football to score. George Melnikovich taking it over from the one foot line. Jackwick placed-kicked the extra point.

Notre Dame 21; Carnegie 0.

The Scots couldn't dent the Rambler wall so McCurdy punted to Jackwick who ran the ball back 66 yards for another touchdown. He also kicked goal.

Notre Dame 28; Carnegie 0.

As the half ended the Ramblers were again threatening.

Iowa State, Missouri Battle to Decide Cellar Position in Big Six Conference Race

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Columbia, Mo., Oct. 22 (AP)—The Cyclones of Iowa State and the Tigers of Missouri met here today in a battle which will lift the winner out of the basement of the Big Six football race.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Boy Scouts were guests of the university at the game. The weather was warm and cloudy.

FIRST QUARTER

The Cyclones started without their backfield ace, Capt. Dick Grefe. Hebert Oht was substituted. Don Grefe's short kickoff was recovered by Martin on the Missouri 43 yard line. Oht made first down. A long Iowa State pass failed to connect and Missouri got the ball on its 20 yard line.

Iowa State was penalized and Houston gained 15 yards for Missouri.

Impson intercepted a Tiger pass and ran it back to the 34 yard line. An incomplete pass gave Missouri the ball on its 25 yard line.

The Tigers made little headway and Gill punted out of bounds on the Missouri 47 yard line. A long pass, Schafroth to Oht looked good for a touchdown, but the receiver dropped the ball. Oht then kicked out of bounds on the Missouri 33 yard line. An exchange of punts followed. Ross went in for Houston in the Missouri backfield just before the period ended with neither team having an advantage.

Missouri 0; Iowa State 0.

Beyer intercepted a pass and the Cyclones started an offense from midfield but bogged down and Missouri took the ball on its own 35 yard line when a long pass failed.

Gill punted to the Iowa State 20 and Oht kicked back to midfield. Houston fumbled and Farrell recovered for Iowa State on the visitors' 48.

MONTICELLO, Oct. 21—Led by a pair of watch charm guards and a fast stepping halfback, University high's undefeated football team ran over the Monticello eleven here today to win its opening Little Seven game, 20 to 2.

With the backfield so nervous that it fumbled four times inside its 35 yard line, the line was forced to meet the full brunt of two Monticello drives before the first quarter was over. Twice they were tried and twice they threw the local team for enough losses to take the ball away from them.

Line Shines

Spearheading this fine defensive display, Capt. Arnold Rarick and Harold Justice, smallest men on the field, stopped everything they could reach, which was plenty. Time after time the two guards would smash through to nail the ball carriers for big losses or else to slow them up enough for the rest of the team to get them.

The rest of the line played right up to these two defensive stars and did their work so well that only on two occasions could Monticello make concerted drives.

Olmacher Opens Up

Unable to get going in the first half, Bill Olmacher took charge of the offensive proceedings after the rest period and counted the first touchdown when he turned his own right end for 37 yards. The stage had been set for this play only a moment before when Larry Fuhrmeister blocked Hansen's punt on the 37 yard line. Fuhrmeister made it 7 to 0 with a place kick.

Following the opening score Olmacher intercepted an enemy pass on the 36 yard marker and ran it back to the eight yard line before he was stopped. A play later Fuhrmeister went off tackle for a score but it went for nothing when U high was detected holding. Fuhrmeister blocked another punt on the 19 yard line and smashed it to the two foot line where Bob Schnoebelen circled end for the score. Fuhrmeister converted.

Champions of Big Six Meet Jayhawkers

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 22 (AP)—The champion Nebraska Cornhuskers, handicapped by the absence from the starting lineup of George Sauer, clashed with the Kansas Jayhawkers in a Big Six conference football game here this afternoon.

Sauer was held on the bench because of injuries. Threatening clouds hung over the amphitheater and a stiff breeze whipped out of the south as the old rivals warmed up.

Injuries Keep Sauer on Bench as Rivals Battle

Schaake returned the kickoff for Kansas to his 27 yard line, tried the line twice for five yards and then punted over the Husker goal line. After a punting exchange Mathis ripped off six yards and Hokuf punted to the Kansas 35 yard line. Mathis intercepted Dumm's long pass, and dashed 50 yards for a Nebraska touchdown. Masterson placekicked the extra point.

Lumm returned Nebraska's ensuing kickoff 20 yards to his 20 yard line. An exchange of punts gave Kansas the ball on its 40 yard line. Debus intercepted Dumm's pass on the Jayhawk 35 yard line. Staah then skirted the Kansas left end for the second Husker touchdown and Masterson converted.

The first period ended with Nebraska ahead 14 to 0.

WATERLOO, Oct. 21—What a storm!

And that's exactly what happened here tonight as West Waterloo out loose with a pouring rain of touchdowns that at times reached the proportions of a cloudburst, completely submerging Iowa City high's Little Hawks to hand them the worst drubbing in the history of Red and White football competition.

Not only that, but the exhibition, which was a part of West high's Homecoming activities, marked the biggest score the newest members of the Mississippi Valley conference had themselves ever posted and dropped the visitors into the solitary confinement of the league cellar. Fifteen times, local backs paraded across Iowa City's final chalk line and on five of those occasions the extra point was accounted for. In blunt figures, West Waterloo 95, Iowa City 0.

After the first period, in which two touchdowns were scored, the Little Hawks never had a chance, Marshall displaying what little offensive and defensive the visitors could muster in face of the deluge.

Reserves Lose

The Little Hawk reserves lost, 39-0, in the opener.

Of the numerous Waterloo scorers, the leaders were D. Nipper, Walker and Sawyer, with three touchdowns each, and Captain Peterson with a touchdown and four extra points to his credit.

Score by periods:

Minnesotans Sweep First Five Places

Minnesota harriers proved too strong for a plucky Iowa team this morning as the Gopher outfit shut out the Hawkeyes to win in the first Big Ten encounter for both schools, 15 to 40.

Let by lanky John Currell, who copped first place in 16:54, the Cardinal and Gold runners swept ahead of the Old Gold men in the last mile after the Iowa hill and dalers, paced by Bob McElroy, had led for the first two miles.

Minnesota finished in a four way tie for second place, Carroll Gustafson, Richard Herrick, Erhardt Bremer, and Mike Soller grasping hands as they passed across the finish line a few yards ahead of Bob McElroy.

McElroy Improved

McElroy, showing great improvement over his form in the Cornell meet last week when he lagged behind to hopelessly out of the running at the end, stepped out to the lead from the start of the race today, clocking 61 seconds at the quarter and 2:22 at the half. The closely bunched Gopher runners jumped him as he raced alone at the end of the grind, however, and he was forced into a close sixth place.

Leo Campisi took seventh for Iowa with Verne Schlaser, eighth and Dick Mityalsky ninth. The fifth man to count in the Iowa score was Dick Bott, who finished eleventh behind Frank Moore of Minnesota.

Gophers Too Strong

The Iowa team as a whole showed improved stamina and form over their last week's showing and, though so crushingly beaten as the maximum score would indicate, were not actually so badly beaten, as the three Hawkeyes, McElroy, Campisi, and Schlaser, were right behind the Gopher's four way tie and with a little luck or better track strategy might have slipped into the scoring column.

Coach Sherman Finger's squad, composed of five major letter men showed their experience over the green Iowa team as, taking the bad conditions into consideration, they allowed the Hawkeyes to set the pace over the rain swept and muddy course.

Finishes Strong

Captain Currell stayed with his mates until the last 200 yards when he broke away from what looked like a five way tie and sprinted to the tape, finishing strong. The other Gophers were about five seconds behind their captain while "Mac" was gaining as he finished in sixth place.

Sig Nu Takes House Prize for 3rd Year

For the third consecutive year, Sigma Nu won first prize in the Kiwanis club's contest for the best decorated fraternity house, it was announced this morning by Wilbur Cannon, chairman of the judging committee, who with Prof. A. C. Trowbridge, inspected the decorations.

Permanent possession of the Kiwanis cup will go to Sigma Nu as a result of its third straight win.

Sigma Nu's decorations include a foreground of cornstalks, with a blue background. Leading from the ground up to the second floor is a ladder made of corn, each rung of which represents a Big Ten game. The two lower rungs, Indiana and Wisconsin, are broken, signifying the defeats handed the Iowa team earlier in the season. A figure of Coach Ossie Solem is reaching for Minnesota, the third rung, seeking to get a foothold for the remaining games of the season. A large replica of the fraternity's pin, over the entrance, completes the decorations.

Gamma Phi Beta was last night awarded the Lions club cup given to the sorority with the best decorated house. Phi Mu placed second, and Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi tied for third.

Lions club judging committee consisted of Irving Weber, chairman; Coach D. A. Armbruster, and Dr. W. B. Keil.

Rivals Continue 30 Year Old Battle for Supremacy

YALE BOWL, New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22 (AP)—Against the colorful background of military grey and Eli blue, army and Yale resumed one of the east's most dramatic football rivalries today in the mammoth amphitheater of Yale. Despite a crowd of 40,000, it was the smallest attendance in the post war history of a 30 year old rivalry. Weather conditions were perfect, the day sunny and clear, but cool.

FIRST QUARTER

Yale lost a brilliant chance early in the first quarter as Dud Parker's punt carried and rolled 62 yards to Army's 15 yard line and forced Ken Fields to punt back short to midfield. Parker slashed through tackle for five and Bob Lassiter ripped the line for seven, but passes failed and the Yale thrust ended as Parker was forced to kick over the Army goal from the Cadet 32 yard line.

Roy Evans, alert Army center, pulled down one of Parker's passes at midfield as Yale started another offensive, but the Cadets could not pierce a stubborn Eli line and kicked to Yale's 20. A 15 yard penalty for holding set Yale back to the eight yard stripe and Army faced another fine opportunity as Parker's kick out of trouble carried only to his 48 yard marker. Again the Yale line, with two new ends, Johnny Overall and Bob O'Connell playing magnificently, held Army's plunging offensive.

"Pick" Vidal, who almost beat Pitt last week took MacWilliams' place at quarterback for Army and led two drives that smashed at the Yale goal as the first period ended scoreless. He took a pass from Fields at midfield and raced to Yale's 13 yard line, but the Eli's held for downs at the 11 yard mark. Vidal then raced Parker's kick back 39 yards from midfield and had blasted to the Yale 18 yard line as the period ended scoreless.

SECOND QUARTER

After Yale had made its third brilliant defensive stand to take the ball on its 18 yard line, Vidal finally broke away after an exchange of punts to race 73 yards along the sidelines in a dazzling burst to Army's first touchdown. Charley B

HAWKS, GOPHERS SET FOR BATTLE

Slow Starting Minnesotans May Click Today; Bierman Doesn't Underrate Iowans

Precision, Speed Required in Attack of New Gopher Coach; Northerners Seek Retaliation for Narrow Defeats of Past

By STEVE HARRIS
(Sports Editor, The Minnesota Daily)

The Hawkeyes are supposed to have a weak team this year but that doesn't make any difference to Minnesota's Gophers. Memories, quite realistic, of two previous defeats at the hands of the Iowans still smart, for those defeats ruined Gopher championship hopes in 1928 and '29.

This year the Gophers have no championship aspirations but they hope to wreck a lot of championship hopes of other Big Ten schools.

The game with Iowa will find the Gophers approximating their November form when they will meet three conference schools.

Bierman Hampered

Bernie Bierman's return to Minnesota and his development of his first team has been hampered by the failure of the men to catch the essence of the Bierman style which demands the utmost of speed, power and deception.

Coming from a double dose of fall practice the Gophers emerged into the limelight dogged tired and unable to play football in their opener with South Dakota State.

The team gave some indication of its power when on the following week end it virtually swept Purdue of its feet in a terrific second half drive which found the Gophers marching up and down the field but unable to muster enough punch to score.

Develop Offense

The Nebraska game saw the further development of the Gophers along the offensive line. Possessed of a staunch defense it was the hope of the coaches to produce a team that was capable of scoring heavily.

For Iowa the Gophers are reserving no tricks and no special plays. Nothing has been held back from scouts with the exception of the first game in which the Gophers used but four plays. Everything has been used and the only new plays that will be revealed are those plays that will further the ability of the Gophers to gain ground.

Burly Jack Manders will be the chief threat, together with Francis "Pug" Lund, triple threat sophomore halfback. Manders, a fullback of all-American caliber and one of the hardest hitting backs in the country, is due to raise havoc with the Hawkeye forward wall.

Walt Hass Ready

Captain Walter Hass, whose fight for a place in the first string backfield has shown him to be a sterling player, will probably be the third man in the Gopher backfield when the team lines up for Iowa.

A typical football success story fits Gerald "Red" Griffin, whose shock of flaming hair will be an outstanding feature in the Iowa game. Griffin has been on the squad four years. He didn't play at all in his first year but he played in a few games last year and the year before.

This year when Bernie Bierman tried to settle the annual Minnesota problem of who to use at quarterback the little red-headed fellow caught the coach's eye and he has come through in good style. His ability to pick the best spots for the plays seems to be good although his real test came against Purdue.

Hit 'Em Hard!

Gopher linemen have been mastering a program which entails hard charging tactics together with sure

Gopher Grid Leader Hails From Iowa

By STAFF WRITER
(The Minnesota Daily)

Playing the same hard football that characterized his football career last year, Captain Walt Hass of the 1932 Minnesota football team is back this year to make an even greater name for himself in Big Ten circles.

Last season Hass was used principally in the role of blocking half. This season Coach Bernie Bierman gave him a chance at carrying the ball and Hass more than proved his ability at gaining yardage for his dear old, Alma Mammy.

In the Gophers' conference opener with Purdue Hass was the only consistent ground gainer for Minnesota and even served as a quarterback for part of the game.

A slender chap, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 165 pounds, Hass is one of the hardest tacklers on the Minnesota squad. His blocking ability is exceptional, and until this year kept him from a ball carrying role.

In addition to his ability as a football player Hass is also a dash man on the track team. He ran on the 1931 team captained by his brother John, and on the Gopher track squad of last spring.

Hass is the fifth in a family of six brothers, all of whom are athletes. All of them except the youngest have earned letters in college athletics. Walt's fraternity is Delta Tau Delta, and he is a senior in the college of science, literature and arts.

The late Dr. H. L. Williams, brought up to date with a remarkable lot of ground gaining plays.

Bierman has one of the most spectacular offenses ever seen at Minnesota, its tremendous speed is a factor which is holding back the squad because perfect coordination is required for the proper execution.

Gopher linemen have been hampering the backs by their failure to be at the required place at the proper time. The backfield, composed of four of the fastest starters on the squad, has been all too slow to satisfy Bierman, who demands the utmost in drive and speed from his team.

Hawkeyes Try for Twelfth Homecoming Victory Today; First Game Played in 1912

Only Nebraska and Wisconsin Hold Edge in Games Won; Minnesota Will Play Here for Seventh Time

When the present Iowa football team was averaging about one year of age, the Old Gold was celebrating its first Homecoming game by losing to Wisconsin 28 to 10. Since that time the young players have grown until today they will take the field themselves in an attempt to add the twelfth victory to the Homecoming records of the Hawkeyes.

Eleven times Iowa has made the "mellow" hearts of old grads rejoice, seven times they have mourned and twice they went home just as good as the other fellow "and if Blank had only done—we would have beaten those punks!"

Wisconsin and Nebraska are the only teams which hold an edge on the Hawks in the "Big Games," both having won the single game they played. Illinois is the only other school that has done as well as break even with the Iowans, winning two, losing two and tying one.

Only Two Ties

Twice in 20 years the game has ended in a tie, one a 7 to 7 draw with Illinois, the other a scoreless affair with Indiana last year.

From the point of service Minnesota ranks the favorite among Iowa Homecoming opponents, having played in six games and winning two. Illinois and Ames rank next with five games. The Illini tying with the Gophers for the most victories, two. Minnesota has also lost four games for top honors in this field.

Delay of 2 Years Fails to Halt Marc

By GENE THORNE
(Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan)

A veteran and star pivot man, absent from a University of Iowa football lineup for two long seasons because of ineligibilities and injuries, returns to round out his career this year with nothing but happy memories of competition against Minnesota's powerful Gophers, opponents of today.

In his first year as a varsity center, when he won a minor letter as an understudy to the all-conference man, Dick Brown, Marcus J. Magnussen, oldest man on the Ossie Solem's present Hawkeye squad with his 26 years, 6 feet 1 inch tall and a 190 pounder, can remember that sensational and thrilling victory of 1928.

In that memorable game, Oran "Nanny" Pape, raced around end in a long dash in the closing minutes of the game to tie the score, the Iowans winning a moment later when Irving Nelson drop kicked the extra point. The following year, after leading by virtue of Capt. Bill Glassgow's field goal only to see the advantage disappear when Bronco Nagurski romped for a touchdown, Marc was an active participant in an equally thrilling engagement which was won by another last minute dash by Pape.

It was following that campaign that the big blonde was chosen by many critics on the all-conference first team. But then his participation in his favorite sport was checked. Ineligibility kept him out of uniform in 1930 after he had been elected co-captain with Mike Farroh and a broken leg halted him before the opening game last fall.

Now he is Captain Marc again, well on his way to a successful conclusion to his Hawkeye playing days.

Today's game may develop into a wide open battle for first scoring honors, for the winner is likely to be the team that first crosses the goal line for points.

Both Teams, Coaches in Search of First Big Ten Victories of 1932 Season

Ossie Solem Former Minnesotan Himself, Hopes to Have Improved Iowa Squad at Top Form for Homecoming Clash Today

By GENE THORNE
(Sports Editor, The Daily Iowan)

It's a three-fold crucial game, this contest between the Hawkeyes of Iowa and the Gophers of Minnesota, at Iowa stadium this afternoon.

For either of these traditional rivals of the gridiron, continuing a feud of many years standing, a victory today will almost in itself make the season a success—helping to wipe out past defeats—throwing the spotlight on triumphs of years gone by.

Neither team has yet won a Big Ten game, and a win today will pull the victor out of the cellar.

Another Reason

Then add to this, two new coaches, also seeking their first scalp in Western conference circles.

Yes, it's a crucial game. Perhaps the rest of the Big Ten does not look upon this Iowa-Minnesota fray as an important game, for conference honors are not at stake, but to all concerned, it is second to none.

Both Ossie Solem's Hawkeyes, and Bernie Bierman's Gophers are primed. New plays have been prepared, old plays have been polished off, and both are ready to throw their full strength into action.

The visitors from the north hold the edge in experience, but they have been experiencing difficulties all season in working smoothly under their new system.

New to Hawkeyes

Coach Solem, also forced to initiate his squad into the secrets of his style of play, has brought his squad along in quite a satisfactory manner. Out of a rather mediocre array of material he has fashioned a team that has steadily improved since the first game.

Today's game may develop into a wide open battle for first scoring honors, for the winner is likely to be the team that first crosses the goal line for points.

Bernie Bierman Returns to Minnesota With Good Mark

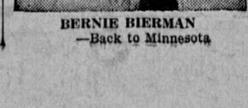

By COURTNEY SWENSEN
(Assistant Sports Editor, The Minnesota Daily)

After coaching the Tulane Green Wave to a Southern conference championship and a place in the national football spotlight, Bernie Bierman returned to Minnesota, his alma mater, last spring to take up his duties as head football coach at the university.

Captain and halfback on the 1916 Minnesota team, Bierman gained national recognition and was placed on the all-conference of that year. His team was the last coached by Doc Williams and won the Big Ten title.

After the war Bierman accepted a position as an assistant coach at Tulane, later going to Loyola university as head football coach. He returned to Tulane in the same capacity.

It will be Minnesota vs. Minnesota as far as coaching goes today. Ossie Solem vs. Bernie Bierman—graduates of the Gopher institution, both of them.

Nationally prominent coaches—none returned to his alma mater, the other to the same competitive circuit of his playing days—who learned their football in the same gridiron school.

Bill Ash, another sophomore, will be ready to go into the fullback position, with Dutch Schmidt, the longest kicker on the squad, Voris Dickerson, Lawrence Parsons, and George Ekdahl likely to get some work at the halfbacks.

Iowa's passing attack is built around the three quarterbacks and the two regular ends, Bob Loufek and Ray Fisher. Any combination Coach Solem puts into the game will have an aerial game with possibilities.

At the center of the Iowa line is Capt. Marc Magnussen, an all-conference center in 1929, who is now in his third year of competition. Magnussen did not compete in 1930 and '31 because of ineligibilities and injuries, but the big blonde is back this year, his passes as accurate as ever.

Flanking the husky Iowa leader are four linemen, two of the sophomores, with whom will rest the task of stopping Minnesota's power plays. Wilmon Hass, left guard, and Zud Schammel, left tackle are in their first year of big league competition. Tom Moore, 185-pound junior, and Leo Samuelson, a senior tipping the beam at 215 pounds, are at right guard and tackle respectively.

For outstanding reserve linemen, Coach Solem has Don Dorsey, a bulky sophomore tackle, Lumir Kouba and Ed Dolly, guards, and Gene Clearman and John Miller, ends.

"Dad" Schroeder, Father of Intramurals, Held First of Tournaments in Fall of '08

Has Since Developed Annual Program of Events

By ART HANNES

Father of intramurals—reason enough why E. G. Schroeder has the affectionate title "Dad."

Known to all the hangers-on at the field house from the biggest of the big guns to the most lowly of the freshman class asking about swimming, he daily works his hardest for the betterment of the intramural athletic program in addition to his duties as head of the physical education department.

"Dad" came to the university, in his prime, from Marshalltown where he had the position of physical director of the Y.M.C.A. The department was new then and there was lots of room for development.

To this task, he has set himself, and unto his hand has the department grown.

E. G. "DAD" SCHROEDER
—Founded Intramurals Here

First Journey in '08

"Not much to say," remarked this department head. "There has been a natural growth during my years here." Still, it is a long step from a wrestling team performing on a makeshift mat evolved from an old mattress to the elaborate schedule of interfraternity, Quadrangle, intercollege, and interclass athletics that are projects for this year's program in the intra-mural section. Very unassuming in his ripe old age.

Back in 1907, Mark Catlin was the head football and track coach for the university at a time when the rugby game was played in innings, by the way. Schroeder was put on the coaching duties with emphasis on wrestling. He had been a wrestler and had the experience for coaching. The first tournament was an all-university affair in the fall of 1908.

Football Play Started

Showing a remarkable memory, he pointed out that there was a representative group of 26 "puff and blow" artists competing in that wrestling tournament, first active intramural sport. "It was upon this mat that the idea of opening athletic activity to a large group of men was born. There was considerable enthusiasm.

Because of the demand for that sort of sport the program for the following year grew considerably and the next fall found the representative college sport of today entering the field. Football was instituted on an inter-college basis with five colleges taking part that season. The engineers, laws, dents, pharmacists, and the medics lined up teams and the competition was keen. Fact is that there were many slips betwixt the referee and the umpire and it is rumored that bloodshed resulted several times, although time has ripened the tale and there may be considerable dead fruit to the story.

Round-Robin Affair

Interesting is the story of the manner in which signals were called by the groups. Particular mention was made of the fact that plays were named after portions of the human anatomy by the medic strategists. "Dad" will never forget the time that a quarter back ran the length of the field for a touchdown on his head. It was a round-robin affair that year but was never quite finished for dubious reasons.

Stimulated by the success of the previous year's additional activity, the department continued the former program and added baseball. There were five college teams and one representing the faculty in the game of swat. The "teachers" had a plenty "salty" nine with such young bucks as Prof. Raymond Kittredge, Prof. Fred Higbee, Prof. Percy Bordwell, and even "Dad" himself. Coach Catlin did the pitching for this all-star outfit. They were in good form then and "leaked the stuffs" out of those other teams. Those names are easily recognizable in connection with the present administration.

New Sports Rise

The program remained steady during the next year but because of limited facilities could stand no increase. However, the following season, 1912-13, found an addition to the gymnasium that now serves as reserve library, providing a swimming pool and additional space for tennis, indoor track, and indoor baseball. There was a rapid development with these new facilities and that fall saw the inception of the interfraternity athletics. There was a league organized with Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Phi Kappa Psi, Kappa Sigma and several others, carrying on a schedule during the year that led to the present interfraternity leagues. It was known as the Pan-Hell league and progressed very efficiently.

Because of the spirited feeling of competition, the basketball games that winter saw a great deal of free-for-all battling because of the loose rules governing play. There was keen rivalry and unenforced decisions.

Filled to Capacity

The other sports profited by the new equipment and the program for the year was filled to capacity at the time. A gradual development in the afore mentioned list of games was noticeable up until the World war came around, at which time all intramural activities were discontinued. Schroeder's time being occupied with the physical training for some 700 or 800 men stationed in the old men's gym in preparation for active service in the army.

Directly following the Armistice there were renewed activities in the former program and an assistant was appointed to care for that branch of the physical education department. For two years much of the organization of the year's activity was centered in Dr. Swallow, the new assistant, but "Dad" was soon to get back to a more active performance of his former duties and has done the same ever since. There have been times when the future was quite dark but a solution has always been forthcoming when the reins were surrendered.

Many Assistants

From 1923 to 1926, Tommie Tompkins, was the light of the intramural program being succeeded by Bruno Marchi for two years, and he by "Pops" Harrison. Marchi was captain of the cross country team while he managed the fraternity and dormitory competition.

Just recently, Mike Farroh and John Carlson did the work of "Dad's" assistant with now, Harold Greene and Ed Volter handling the jobs.

With the completion of the athletic field just west of the present field house, a new era in intra-mural athletics will have arrived. All competition in several lines will be held at that location. After all it is in its early stages and, as "Dad" says, will still find lots of development in the years to come.

Seeks New Spirit

Right now he hopes to get the intercollegiate spirit renewed so that there may live that fine competition that prevailed before, even though it did mean life or death then. The possibilities are good.

When asked about the future of the department, and he would make it a department with a full time man at the helm, he stated that it was very bright—that the University of Iowa might have as well a defined program, all inclusive, as any school in the United States.

Lack of time in the university school day, tends to cramp the program just a bit. There has been a few era take hold in the last few years. Time is an important element and the program must be adjusted to suit the requirement.

Starts Minor Sports

The aim for the department this year is to develop the intercollegiate side of the program, working as many university boys into athletic activities as possible. Fraternity athletics run along fairly smoothly now, and there is a need for promotion in the other direction.

All minor sports in the university are direct outgrowths of this intramural program according to Schroeder. Iowa and Nebraska held the first college competition in wrestling in the middle west as a result of this incentive.

The interview was closed with the feeling that there would be magnificent strides taken in the near future to involve every student in the university in some form of athletic competition. The project in "Dad's" hands might easily come to pass.

sight into college life. In his senior year, Solem won recognition as an all-Western fullback, a position which has always seemed to have been the outstanding strength in a Minnesota eleven.

He started his coaching career in Minneapolis, his home, later being called to Des Moines where he was engaged by East high school to instruct its teams in the mysteries of Minnesota's attack. After a period of service at Luther college at Decorah, he was signed by Grinnell, but service in the World war prevented the carrying out of this contract.

upon his career at Drake, becoming head football and basketball mentor in the fall of 1921. Three years later, when K. L. "Tug" Wilson went to Northwestern, he relinquished his basketball duties to take over the position of director of athletics.

While at Drake, Solem, who is the ninth Iowa head grid coach, compiled an all-time record of .607 against the toughest opposition in the country. The Bulldogs during this time, also won three Missouri Valley titles and tied once. And all of this with small squads. Add to all these accomplishments, Ossie was for eight years director of the Drake relays, a track and field carnival which he has developed into national importance.

Keen Grid Student

The personality and character of the new Hawkeye mentor are of the finest. He has a knack for organization, is an excellent strategist and a keen student of football. The ability of Solem to handle men is reflected in Drake's record. And now he comes to Iowa.

Iowa's swimming prospects this year have been enhanced recently by the report that last year's captain, Jack McGuire, would be back for a semester of competition in the dashes. # Iowa Cagers Appear Ready for Big Year

Promising Sophs Will Battle Seven Vets for Positions

Basketball prospects at Iowa for 1932-33 are the brightest in many years. With seven veterans and a host of material returning, Coach Rollie Williams hopes to turn out a team that will put Iowa back at the top of the conference.

Before the 1931-32 season started Iowa was considered a strong dark horse of the conference and as the opening games came on it was evident that the Hawkeyes would go a long way toward redeeming their poor record of the last two seasons.

Ed Break, touted as the greatest guard since the incomparable Chuck McConnell, was declared ineligible shortly before the opening game for participating in a K. C. basketball game while attending Illinois as a freshman. This was a costly blow to Coach Williams and his team. The inexperienced Hawkeyes could not adjust themselves to Break's absence and dropped three out of five non-conference games, winning from Drake and Nebraska.

Three Wins

Iowa failed to get started when the Big Ten season opened and won only three games. Their losses were by close scores and several of them went into overtime periods. The biggest upset of the season came when the Hawkeyes defeated the conference leading and undefeated Wildcats, 30 to 25. This was the turning point in the runaway race the Northwestern team was making, the ending of its two year dominance of Western conference courts.

Among the 1931-32 Hawkeye basketball men who rated conference recognition we find Howard Moffitt, first year forward, who finished among the first five high scorers for the season, outpointing the next three scorers on his own team. Parker Bennett, towering 6 foot 5 inch center, gave Iowa opponents plenty to worry about. Ben Selzer was rated as a close second to Break as a guard.

Returning Vets

Those who top the list of seasoned vets to return this year are: Moffitt, Selzer, Bennett, Krumbholz, Brecher, Filkins, Break, who is eligible again, and Swaney.

Iowa's 1932-33 schedule is one of the queerest in years from the point of makeup. Last year the schedule for the conference was completed and published only to discover that it would interfere with the non-conference schedules of several of the schools and a new schedule was drawn up.

Odd Schedule

The revised schedule permits Iowa to play the same teams but on different dates which brings about a strange arrangement for the Illinois and Ohio State series. These teams will not be met until the last two weeks of the season when Ohio State is slated for games on Feb. 20 and 25, with Illinois appearing Feb. 27 and March 4.

Minnesota sent a great aggregation to Iowa for the 1929 contest, as witness these men, but it was an Iowa back, "Nanny" Pape, who raced over the Gopher goal to insure Iowa the long end of a 9-7 count.

Bresnahan, Saling, Gordon Compile Excellent Records

Let George do it? Well, he certainly did.

Coach George Bresnahan and his two proteges, George Saling and Ed Gordon, achieved for this university, in the tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles last summer, a mark which no other school could equal—the winning of two individual championships.

Michigan won two events, but they were both won by the same man—speedy Eddie Tolan, America's sprint champ.

Sets Record

Saling, first of the two great Iowa athletes to bring fame to his native state, captured first place in the 110 meter hurdle race and established a new Olympic record in his semi-final heat with a time of 14.4.

A leap of 25 feet, 1.4 inch, made in the preliminary round, won first place in the broad jump for Ed Gordon. It was not the lengthy Hawkeye's first taste of Olympic competition.

250 Ushers at Stadium Aid Befuddled Spectators

Homecoming football fans today will have little trouble finding their seats. Were it possible to conceive of a ticket holder unable to locomote himself or to control his maneuvers whatsoever, it is safe to say that with the present ushering system in force at the stadium, the befuddled spectator would, by a series of shoves, eventually reach his designated seat.

As he competed in the Amsterdam games, four years ago.

Assists Robertson

So George really did it! After grooming Saling and Gordon all through the spring and summer months, getting them in the peak of condition, his great ability was recognized by Coach Lawson Robertson, head of the American team, who selected him to assist in the coaching of the hurdlers, broad jumpers, and the 1,600 meter relay team.

Bresnahan's success was complete as the relay team also came in pacing the field.

Two or More

A record of never having less than two men on the United States' team since coming to Iowa, can be claimed by Bresnahan. Other Hawkeye athletes of years gone by who have engaged in Olympic competition are: Frank "Babs" Cuhel, second in the 110 meter hurdles in '28, Eric Wilson, Chan Coulter, and George Baird.

ing the fan's progress.

These men are stationed at short intervals all the way from the ticket gate up through the halls to the stands and from there up and down the stadium, every 10 rows. With the men placed so close together it is practically impossible for the excited grad or even undergrad to go astray.

Ushers Leave at Half

If advantage is to be taken of these men the spectator must be sure to come during the first half for at the crack of the gun, sounding the intermission, a general exodus of the ushers will take place as the men are privileged to leave at the half.

The lucky persons holding front row tickets may arrive at their seats in minimum time but when it comes to leaving, the bleacher fan will have the edge. For in order to save the field, the south gate will probably be closed necessitating all traffic to leave through the nine gates.

30 Minutes to Empty Stadium
It is estimated that with a record crowd, the stadium could be emptied in not less than 30 minutes. Each of the nine gates is 12 yards wide or capable of holding 12 people abreast comfortably or 20 if necessary.

The closest the stadium ever came to having its capacity of 42,184 jammed was at the Illinois Homecoming game in 1929 when 40,000 people sat for an hour in a driving rain and cheered as the Hawkeyes, led by Bill Glassgow, held the Illini to a thrilling 7 to 7 tie.

Iowa's stadium, though not the largest, is one of the biggest and most complete in the country. If its ends were rounded out in the form of a bowl which can be done, it would have a capacity of 70,000.

Ohio's Stadium Holds 63,000
Six other schools in the Big Ten boast stadiums larger than Iowa's.

However these plants are also among the largest in the country. The capacities of the stadiums are as follows: Ohio State, 63,000; Chicago, 60,000; Illinois, 60,000; Northwestern, 55,000; Minnesota, 55,000; Michigan, 55,000; Iowa, 42,184; Purdue, 23,000; Wisconsin, 25,000; Indiana, 22,500.

Many track fans have looked at Iowa's gridiron and asked, why no track? The answer is that a track in the bowl would necessitate the moving back of the stands some 30 feet. It was thought by the designers and founders of the structure that inasmuch as ample space was provided for a track on the field adjacent to the stadium that it would be unnecessary to handicap the football spectator by placing him so much farther away from the game. Work is being done on the track now.

Prospects for Baseball Nine Look Brighter

Many Veterans Return; Several Prominent Sophs on Hand

Baseball prospects for the University of Iowa and Coach Otto Vogel look the best since spring of 1929 when Iowa lost a close game to Michigan to be beaten out of first place in the conference standing.

After a slow start last season Coach Vogel's team finished the season in the first division of the Western conference. The Hawkeye team dropped six games by the margin of one run, three of them in extra innings, and won three games by the same edge. Ninth inning rallies by opponents brought disaster to the Hawkeyes four times, and came within one run of tying the score in three other contests.

Riegert Captain

Vogel's best bets at the bat and classy shortstop and outfielder, will captain the Hawkeye squad this year. Most of last year's veterans will report again this year with a host of new sophomore material. The loss of Gordon Prange at third base and James Kenny at first will be the big problem for the Iowa coach.

Joe Laws, flashy little Hawkeye football man, will probably report for baseball again this year as a first baseman. Although very short he will hold an advantage of two years experience over sophomore prospects for the position.

Soph Southpaw
Graduation hit Coach Vogel's pitching staff a heavy blow by taking John Ingraham, Charlie Blackman, chunky little sophomore, will go a long way to fill this position with his left-handed deliveries that worried the varsity so much last year in practice games.

Those who were lost from the baseball squad by graduation last year were: John Ingraham, Wesley Flala, Leo Frigo, James Kenney, Gordon Prange, and Elmo Nelson.

Coach Vogel will start working with his pitching staff immediately after he finishes his work as assistant football coach. Battery prospects will work indoors all winter before other candidates report the first of February.

Mileage Rates Fixed
DES MOINES (AP)—Municipal court bailiffs and others holding similar positions cannot charge more than seven cents mileage for service of processes in criminal cases, the attorney general's office ruled. The ruling dealt with E. L. Brooks, Des Moines municipal court bailiff. It held that he would be justified in collecting 10 cents mileage in civil cases.

OTTUMWA (AP)—Charges of illegal possession and transportation of liquor were filed in federal court against Oral Fleming of Burlington. He was released on $1,000 bonds.

Yearling Ball Toters Learn Solem Ways

Nucleus for Teams of Future in '36 Gridders

The Solem system is being given its first serious test with the instruction in its principles to the freshman football squad. While this year's varsity was largely a carry-over from the old regime, with little opportunity to learn the Solem style of play until last spring, the '36 gridders are being weaned on it.

The adoption of this method by Coach Bill Boelter has brought out a number of good yearling players, who have shown in freshman league play, that they will have to be reckoned with when assignments are given for next year's varsity berth.

Richards and Smith
The outstanding freshman players include Joe Richards of Denison, who placed on the second all-state team. Richards was advanced to the first freshman team on the basis of his shifty running, and passing ability. His fellow-backfield mate, Ken Smith of Correctionville, received his previous training on the Correctionville high school eleven, and is rated by Coach Boelter as one of the best line plungers on the squad.

The shining backfield is completed with Walter Ewald, who started on the gridiron path at Central High school, Sioux City, and is the blocking counterpart of Schneidman of the varsity; and Elton Hoover of Redding, who made the northeast conference team in South Dakota after attending the Dolan high school.

Good Offensive Tackles
Among the linemen, Coach Boelter singled out Marvin McAllister of Winfield, and Lloyd Hoffman of Sibley, tackles, who have shown up rather well on the offensive. Hoffman, however, is a little slow on the defensive.

The outstanding guard on the squad seems to be Casey Jones of Ames, who made the Central Iowa conference while at Ames high school. Jones has provided the principal fighting spirit in the freshman league games, and kept the Michigan team on its toes against Purdue, despite a severe head injury.

In addition to the players on the squad, there is a considerable amount of promising material in the freshman class which has been unable to take part in practice on account of class schedules and working hours.

In drilling the freshman squad, Coach Bill Boelter has emphasized the Solem system, and he hopes that the players brought out in practice this year will fit snugly into the varsity methods next fall.

40 Candidates Answer Golf Coach's Call

With a turn-out of over 40 candidates for fall varsity and freshman practice, Coach Charles Kennett hopes to improve the golf record of last year, when his charges won only three out of a total of eight matches.

Losing conference matches against Northwestern, Chicago, and Minnesota last year, the Iowa golfers managed to regain some measure of prestige by winning the Iowa State intercollegiate tournament for the second year in succession. The winning foursome was composed of Loufek, Ottesen, Beck, and Van Epps.

The remaining games on the schedule resulted in two victories over Coe college, one victory and one defeat against Ames, and a defeat at the hands of De Pauw.

Coach Kennett expects to remould an entirely new squad out of the 19 candidates for varsity and

Gophers Boast Huge Lead in Series With Iowa Teams

It took Iowa 18 years to register its first win over the terrible Swedes of Minnesota and now after 31 years of competition the Hawks will be trying for their ninth victory in 25 games.

The Thundering Herd of the north piled up six consecutive victories before the Old Gold team could even score and made it 11 straight before Howard Jones coached his team to a 4 to 0 victory. All in all the Gophers have won 16 of the 24 games and have swamped Iowa with 633 points to 174.

But if today's opponent must point to the past for emphasis of its strength Iowa can meet it on equal footing for in eight of the last 13 games the Iowans have faced the final whistle victorious. Even more important, they have won two of the last three games.

Record Feat
After losing for so long that it became tiresome, the Old Gold team turned the tables and won five in a row for its longest winning streak in the series. This set a record against the Minnesota outfit for no other team in history has ever beaten them five seasons running.

No longer regarding the Hawks as a practice tilt, the Gophers came back and won the 1923 game 20 to 7 but Iowa shut them out the next year, winning 13 to 0. It was the second shutout win for the Old Gold, the first coming in the initial victory in 1918.

Three Bad Years
Then came the era of Joesting and Iowa was trounced 33-0, 41-0, and 33-0 before they could put the breaks to the runaway Gophers.

It was Oran "Nanny" Pape who stopped the onslaught by turning in last minute touchdowns in the next two games to give Iowa two of the most sensational wins in Iowa history.

In the first game Pape turned in a 67 yard smash off tackle for six points and then Irv Nelson became a hero by dropkicking for the extra point. All this happened just after Fred Hovde, Minnesota quarterback 23 freshmen. The foursome playing fall matches includes Ralph Harman, Roy Vanderwicken, Charles Van Epps, and Joe Schlanger.

Full practice is expected to continue until mid-November, and will resume in February with indoor workouts at the field house.

the winning touchdown.

The two teams did not meet the next year and last year the Gophers pulled a surprise and passed Iowa into a 34 to 0 defeat.

Since their 7 to 0 win in 1914 the Gophers have only won one game on the Iowa gridiron and the Hawks are determined to keep up that great record. They have won in 1918, 1920, 1922, 1924, 1927 and 1928 while the

"Stub" Stewart Newest Man on Athletic Board

Walter "Stub" Stewart, Des Moines lawyer and a former Hawkeye star athlete, is the newest member of the Iowa athletic board, taking the place of W. Earl Hall, managing editor of the Mason City Globe Gazette, at the start of this school year.

"Stub" has the distinction of having been one of the few Old Gold athletes to ever win nine major "I's." He won awards in 1910, '11, and '12 in football, basketball, and baseball. Rush C. Butler of Chicago is the other Iowa alumnus on the board. Faculty members on the board are: Dean C. C. Williams, Prof. Henning Larsen, Prof. Rudolph A. Kuever, Dr. Howard L. Beye, Dean Chester A. Phillips, Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, Dr. Ralph A. Fenton, and Prof. Rollin Perkins.

The board members supervise all athletics, have charge of the hiring of the coaches, and handle the financial matters. Especially was their lot a busy one last spring when they had the difficult problem of selecting a football coach to take the place of Burton Ingwersen when he resigned.

Although Edward H. Lauer, director of athletics, is not a member of the board, he attends all of its meetings and helps in solving the problems.

Track Squad to Miss Great Hurdle Star

Saling's Loss Somewhat Offset by Balance of Team

By DON SAN GIOVANNI
To speak the word track in Hawkeye circles is to speak of Capt. George Saling, Iowa's stellar Olympic high hurdles champion of the last Olympiad. But to speak of him now is but to tell of his loss to the team by graduation and to consider Old Gold track prospects without him.

Although not having such a man as Saling this year, Iowa should have a fairly well balanced team with the entrance to competition of a delegation of promising rookies and the return of a reasonable number of last year's letter men.

Weaker in Hurdles

In the hurdles of course the Howkeyes will be weaker, but points may still continue to be won by Miles Jackson who last year took second to Saling in both hurdle races at the state meet. The real weakness facing Coach George Bresnahan will be in the distances with no veterans showing at all. Verne Schlaser, and Bob McElroy are as yet untried and will have to materially improve their last year's times to stand off Big Ten competition.

Adams Returns

The dashes will find Bob Adams, major letter winner back. He will be aided by Henry Nehls and Russell Henry, last year's leading fresh sprinters. The half mile should be well handled by Dick Bott, another sophomore, who last year pushed Stuart Skowbo and who should this year break 2:00 easily.

The quarter mile will as always be well taken care of by a large array of men. The rookie delegation of Bob Cook, Henry, and Bury should be enough, but veterans back are Calvin Hoskinson, and Sidney Dean. Bernard Page, football man, is also a proficient quarter miler.

Bob Okerlin, a consistent 13 footer and Drake place winner should represent the Old Gold effectively this season although the loss of Otto Whitmore and Roland White from the rookie array will be felt.

High Jump a Question

The shot put will find Tom Moore and Lumir Kouba returning as vets from last year. Moore should put the 16 pound weight well out this year and is looked upon to accomplish close to 45 feet before the season is over. Last year Oliver Sansen and Wesley Yongerman performed for Iowa in this event.

The high jump is an open question this season with the graduation of Ray Story and the failure of any freshman last year to approach six feet in height. John Miller, another football man, seems to have the inside track on the job. Last year he cleared 5 feet 10 inches.

MAKERS OF HISTORY

The fighting Hawkeyes of '24, gathered once more at a recent Iowa Homecoming to recount the exploits of a past century on the gridiron.

Iowa "Hippodrome," Once Feature of Homecomings, Resembled Gigantic Circus

Homecoming at the University of Iowa used to mean a regular circus day with its attendant silver spaniels and gaudy costumes. That was in the days long ago, when the Iowa "hippodrome" was as much an attraction to the returning alumni as was the football game.

But the Iowa "hippodrome" is no more. It died a natural death after the Homecoming of 1917. As a matter of fact, it was very short lived, lasting but two years. The World War and the suspension of most university activities probably did the most to kill this novelty and it was never started after 1918.

Held Huge Parade
One of the many features of the old Iowa "hippodrome" was the parade held in the morning preceding the game. It was a gigantic affair in which students, faculty, and business men took part.

All of the colleges of the university sponsored huge floats and spent weeks in their preparation. Other floats in the parade represented Iowa City business houses. One such float was that gotten up by the home economics department. A small house was mounted on a truck and inside the house various household arts were depicted.

Show Included
The huge and colorful grand parade was but a part of the entire show. Immediately after the parade, alumni, guests, and townspeople would assemble on the east approach to Old Capitol for the various acts featured in the "hippodrome" show. A temporary platform was erected high on the east steps of Old Capitol so that all might see the show. Members of the speech department and other students took part in staging vaudeville acts, playlets, and songs. Several classrooms on the lower floor of liberal arts building had to be converted into dressing rooms for the erstwhile actors.

Direction by Mable
Prof. Edward C. Mable, now director of University theater, was the guiding force in the ancient Iowa "hippodrome," and it was mainly through his efforts that the affair was carried out successfully.

Instead of the "hippodrome" with its gaiety and color, the morning of Homecoming now features such prosaic events as physical education and military exhibits, open houses, and band concerts.

Mat Squad to Miss Trio of Non-Returners

Parmenter, Champlin, Keilhorne Unable to Return

Hawkeye mat prospects which had flared brightly at the beginning of the year, have since been dimmed by the failure of three sure point winners and possible future champions to return to the university this fall. Although the Old Gold with the material in sight at the present will be woefully weak in these three divisions, possession of powers in some of the other classes is however assured.

The biggest loss will be in the 126 pound division in which Rollo Parmenter, a green sophomore, last year ruled supreme. He won three of his five duels last winter as well as coping third in the Big Ten. With his experience and subsequent improvement he would have been hard to hold this year but was unable to return to school.

Story, a promising rookie, may do anything in the class, however, and should give a good account of himself this winter.

The 135 pound division also suffered when John Champlin, state interscholastic champ from Iowa Falls, failed to come back. His place may be taken by Willard Minkel of Ft. Dodge who ranked high in high school events as physical education and military exhibits, open houses, and band concerts.

wrestling, or by Clarence Donnelly, a green, but strong man.

Keilhorne Missed
The 165 pound class is bereft of a powerful exponent in Earle Keilhorne's absence. Also a state high school champ, Keilhorne had improved considerably since coming to college and had never been headed by a varsity man. Pat Righter is back in school this year but has taken on weight, however, and he may fit nicely into this position, although the 155 pound division is his more natural spot.

The strongest bets for the Old Gold will be in the 145 and 155 pound classes. Here, are arrayed against each other, five men any one of whom has the makings of a champion. Last year's two title holders, Burt Dull, 145 pounds, and Capt. Clarence "Swede" Johnson, 155 pounds, are back. Appearing equally good as these two wrestlers are Randall Whinnery, state high school champ, Pat Righter, and Loren Heiler. The final representative in these classes should be a good man.

O'Leary Has .667 Average
The 175 pound division should find an improved veteran and major letter winner, John O'Leary, making things uncomfortable for opponents. Last year John had a .667 average and should do better this fall.

The heavyweight and 118 pound classes are wide open with no man as yet the favorite unless it be William Hass in the heavier division. In the light weight Clarence Donnelly, LeRoy Pfeiffer, Deegan and Bill Sedlack will have to scrap plenty before a champ is found.

Conducts Budget Hearings

DES MOINES (AP)—State Budget Director Oscar Anderson conducted hearings on the budget askings of the board of railroad commissioners, the board of control, the health department and the vocational education department.

Stadium Not Filled Since 1929 Season

Planned and built during the athletic and financial boom years, Iowa stadium has been filled but once. The only time the athletic plant approached the saturation point was in the dedication game with Illinois in 1929 when 40,000 spectators saw the teams fight a 7-7 tie.

The stadium is the mecca of statisticians. Listing its 42,500 seats, the mathematicians revel in computing the number of miles the planks would reach if placed end to end. To frustrate the designs of those who lay planks end to end, Charles Gallher, business manager of the athletic association, announced that the distance is exactly 12 1/2 miles.

The physical lay-out of the stadium contains 22 gates, 11 flag poles, and a score board which requires the attention of nine men.

Parking facilities again bring on the end-to-end "layers," who may

"On Iowa," Pep Song, Thumped First on Piano

"On Iowa," the university's pep song, was written 14 years ago by a graduate of the college of law, Robert Law, and has been used as a cheering song ever since.

Mr. Law, who is now practicing in Duncan, Okla., was a resident of Waterloo in 1918, when Dr. O. E. Van Doren, director of the university band, was directing a Chautauqua band in Waterloo. After the band concert, Mr. Law approached Dr. Van Doren and asked that his manuscript be given a tryout.

The song was not then in a form that could be used by a band, as Mr. Law had thumped it out on a piano, note by note. An arrangement for tax their wits trying to lay 3,500 automobiles single file in the combined parking spaces. The golf course accounts for 1,500 cars; the south field, 500; and outside of the stadium, an additional 1,500.

The parking problem is handled by a detachment of the national guard.

band had to be made by a Chicago musician before the song could be used.

Songs of Other Schools
Previous to the use of "On Iowa" as a pep song, popular tunes for football games were songs from other schools, such as "The Rambles," adapted from Princeton's song; the Yale "Boola," the Iowa "Corn Song," "Hot Time," and "The Old Gray Mare," all of these except the Iowa Corn song have fallen into disuse.

Mr. Law holds the copyright for the song, and few copies of it exist. For that reason the Iowa Corn song is usually substituted for "On Iowa" as the college football song by dance orchestras.

Corn Song Unfitted
The Corn song is used by practically every school in the state, so that it has not the particular appropriateness for this school that "On Iowa" has.

In previous years Mr. Law has made three or four appearances during the football season, but he will be unable to attend any of this year's games.

Iowa Opponents Lucky That Coaches Can't Play-for Each Boasts Good Record

By HARRY BURRELL
It's a good thing for Iowa opponents that coaches are no longer allowed to play on their own teams! If Iowa were permitted to use 10 of its coaching staff on the various teams it would have a strong nucleus in every sport and, in practically every case, a star of the first magnitude.

Running the usual routine of college activities and starting with football, the Old Gold team would have the services of two of the greatest stars of two middlewestern universities.

Williams Was Star
Rollie Williams, head basketball coach and assistant to Ossie Solem, was one of Wisconsin's few nine letter men, starting in football, basketball and baseball. All-conference and all-western honors were gained by this gray-haired coach, who is one of the youngest head coaches in the western conference. Rollie, strange as it seems, graduated only nine years ago.

He has coached at Iowa as an assistant basketball coach, frosh coach, and assistant coach and finally, when Sam Barry went to Southern California, he was named as Barry's successor.

Bill Boelter could team up with Rollie in giving the Hawks a dangerous backfield combination, for he was one of Drake's greats—ranking with Chuck Everett, Chuck Van Koten, Dick Nesbitt and Lynn King.

Boelter Head in Basketball
Boelter served as head basketball coach and an assistant to Solem

while at Drake and then followed his colleague to Iowa.

Only two men, but any coach could find room for them.

Turning to basketball we still find the names of Boelter and Williams but to them we must add Lawrence "Pops" Harrison, born and practically raised on the campus. Pops lived at Coralville and went to University high and then to Iowa where he was regular on the hard court for three years. Following graduation he coached for several years and then returned to the campus as assistant basketball coach and freshman baseball coach.

Vogel Diamond Star
On the diamond, Otto Vogel, was a star at Illinois before joining the Chicago Cubs. Vogel came directly from the Cubs to Iowa, where he has been baseball coach for the last eight years. A pitcher and an outfielder during his playing days, he can still show the boys a few things. He is an assistant now in football to Ossie.

Track brings together a coach and one of his star pupils as brother coaches. George Bresnahan, like Williams, came from Wisconsin where he was an outstanding middle distance and cross country man. Next to "Dad" Schroeder he is the oldest coach from the point of service.

Swenson a Hurdler
One of his pupils, W. T. "Ted" Swenson, was a part of one of Iowa's greatest hurdling trios. Forced, by the presence of Babs

Cuhel, to a secondary part, he became a part of the announcement that followed every hurdle race at Iowa—"Cuhel first, Swenson second, and Beatty third."

Swenson coached at Scotts Bluffs, Neb., and earned his place on the Old Gold coaching staff when he brought his team through to the state football title.

He was also one of the front ranking tennis stars while an undergraduate.

Howard Was Champion
There is one sure fire bet for a championship on the staff if coaches were competing. For seven years Mike Howard ruled the roost as the amateur light heavyweight champion of the world. He could realize his ambition of a Big Ten championship if his men were his equal.

Dave Armbruster never competed as a swimmer while in college but if he can perform as well as he can coach he should be right up in there.

Charles Kennett, since he came from the home of the game should be, and is, one of the better golfers in this section and turns out at least one first rate man a year.

"If Coaches Could Play"
If Al Baumgartner could find 10 men who were anywhere near as good as he is as a gymnast then Iowa could turn out conference champions each and every year.

Well, there you are, Homecomers. Too bad, isn't it, that coaches can't compete?

Forty-Five Die
DES MOINES (AP)—Forty-five persons lost their lives in Iowa auto accidents during September, the state motor vehicle department reported. Accidents reported to the department involved 1,166 autos and 516 persons were injured.

Uniforms of Today Differ Greatly to Those of Old Days

Those nifty uniforms that the Hawkeyes are wearing this season compare to a burlesque girl's outfit to those that the "old timers" wore.

One wonders how they used to run at all with the heavy padded regalia that surrounded their body. Nose guards and socks are two accessories which have since been discarded. But the modern football player has, in the helmet, an article of protection which was missing in the "good old days." The players then were forced to let their locks grow in the summer months so that their gray matter would have some protection in the fall clashes.

Uniforms are not the only thing that has changed down through gridiron history. Today's style of play would make the "originals" think that it was a different game being played from the ones they engaged in. Whereas games won today depend upon skill, scientific plays, and master minding, they used to be won by brute strength. Linemen stood opposite each other and gave and took it like two prizefighters. Slugging was the thing, then. It was not uncommon either to see the linemen join hands and sweep down the field like fishermen with nets.

If there was no hole for the runner to dash through, he did a "Saline" through the air. And oftentimes a small back was picked up and tossed over the opposing line like a ball. No, they didn't have any costly stadiums, large coaching staffs, and great turnouts like we have in modern football. But they did have just as much spirit, could take it on the chin, and enjoyed playing just as much as 1932's gridiron player. Yep, them were the days.
