'Irregularities' Found in County Treasurer's Office

Audit Report Finds $20,000 'Discrepancy'

Board of Supervisors Orders Findings Open to Public

Four "irregularities" in the office of County Treasurer Charles L. Berry were set out in the report of Allen, Busby, and Harrigan, Des Moines accountants, who were hired by the county board of supervisors to investigate a $20,000 discrepancy between the records of the treasurer's office and those of the First National bank.

The report was placed on file as a public record yesterday in the office of Auditor Ed Sulek by order of the supervisors. It was filed with the board Aug. 23, 1932. Although both the county attorney and the attorney general expressed the opinion that the report was not a public record under the law, the board ordered it opened to the public because of the insistence of certain taxpayers.

Accountants' Conclusion
The conclusion of the accountants, who were hired for the purpose of collecting evidence for the trial of a case in which the board of supervisors asks an accounting by the First National bank and Mr. Berry, says:

"Our examination of the records disclosed no convincing evidence that the deposit on Jan. 2, 1932, was in excess of $6,243.30."

Mr. Berry claims he deposited $26,243.30 on that date. The records of the bank, as shown by the report of the accountants, show the smaller deposit, leaving the $20,000 discrepancy.

"Irregularities"
The four "irregularities" listed by Allen, Busby, and Harrigan as existing in the records of Mr. Berry's office are:

"1.—The entry of $26,243.30 in the pass book under date of Jan. 2, 1932, does not appear to have been written in the usual course of business and appears to have been traced.

"2.—The cash book shows tax collections on Dec. 31, 1931, of $19,853.17, whereas $12,143.48 of this amount was collected many months prior to that date.

"3.—The summary of the cash book on Dec. 31, 1931, shows cash on hand of $7,899.57 and checks of $26,668.57. The treasurer claims that approximately $20,000 in currency was included in the amount shown as checks.

"4.—The statements of the treasurer regarding the count of cash, checks, and cash items on Jan. 1, 1932, are not in accord with the

Men to Argue Tax Question in Tryouts for Debate Squad

Tryouts in the men's division of inter-collegiate debate will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. in liberal arts auditorium. It was announced yesterday by A. Craig Baird, director of university debate.

All debaters in the university above freshman classification are eligible to try for positions on the team, which will debate in the Western conference.

Speakers will be allowed a trial speech five minutes in length on either side of the question: "Resolved, that at least one-half of all state and local revenues should be derived from sources other than taxes on tangible property."

Speakers who have been eliminated in the all campus debate tournament are eligible to try for these positions, Mr. Baird said.

Accident Victim Dies From Gunshot Wounds

George Monn, woodcutter living in Jefferson township, who accidentally shot himself Saturday morning, died Saturday at 10 p. m. at the University hospital.

Monn was found unconscious at 2:30 p. m. on the John Novotny farm in Jefferson township, with a bullet wound in his head above the right temple. It is believed that the gun discharged as he climbed over a fence.

No relatives are believed to reside in this county. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

No More "Ball and Chain" for Iowa's Class Broadcasters

If plans prove successful, University of Iowa faculty members who conduct classes which are broadcast over station WSUI will no longer be "chained" to their microphone supports.

They will be able to move freely about the lecture room, use the blackboards if necessary and practicable, where they now must stand within a fairly short distance from the microphone. Lapel microphones, fastened to each speaker's coat, will replace the standard models now in use if tests to be conducted soon prove them satisfactory. Such instruments were demonstrated here last spring by Sergius P. Grace, official of the Bell Telephone company.

Medical Dean Says Assets of School Hidden

Urges Premedic Quest for Pay Dirt in Liberal Arts

Before 200 European history freshman and sophomores, among whom the presence of 100 premedics testified that he practices what he preaches in his college of medicine curriculum, Dean Henry Spencer Houghton yesterday morning declared that professional skill without a cultural background is barren for genuine future success.

A man who has only two years in liberal arts will do his technical courses in a professional college about as well as the man with four years and a B.A. degree, he admitted, but asserted that the "hidden assets" of university days must emerge if a doctor or other professional man is to be a figure in his community. "He is expected to be learned, not just skilled," Dean Houghton said.

"A man may go out without either skill or learning—but not from this school—and make a financial success. That is the kind of success a man can make standing on a corner selling patent medicines. The kind of success I mean is measured by the kick a man gets out of his job, the amount of richness and variety he has in his life."

"You Start From Scratch"
"You are starting now from scratch," he reminded the freshman premedics, "Your most critical years are in the immediate future. Most of you are here to get all that can be squeezed out of the coming years. And the time to start is before you get into professional college."

Remarking that in addition to scientific aptitudes a feeling for words, an ability to follow directions, and a capacity to read are essential to medicine, the dean roundly condemned "university illiterates."

"Do You Read?"
"The question is not can you read, but do you read," he insisted. Interest, illustrated by this, and moral sense—integrity, perseverance, consideration for self and others—he classified as traits possible to develop beyond innate inheritances.

Applicants for Seals' Club Membership to Make Second Attempt

Second tryouts for Seals' club, honorary swimming organization, will be held this afternoon at 4:15 in the women's gymnasium, Alice Sherbon, instructor in physical education, is in charge of tryouts.

Leas Montgomery, A1 of Boone, Normalee Van Horn, A1 of Iowa City, and Betty Coultas, A1 of Moline, Ill., were admitted into the organization following the first tryout last Thursday, Oct. 20.

Initiates will be honored at a dinner Thursday evening. The Seals' club emblem will be awarded at that time.

All students who failed to complete requirements in the first tryouts and all university women are invited to compete for membership.

Oklahoman's Fate Rests in Hands of Jury

State Charges Minister With Poisoning of First Wife

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 24 (AP)—A jury instructed to vote either acquittal, the electric chair, or life imprisonment, late today was given the case of the Rev. S. A. Berrie, charged with the poison murder of his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie.

In final arguments the minister was pictured as a "representative of the devil" and again as an innocent man wounded by "cunning" prosecutors.

The jurors were told by County Attorney Oldham they must remember "the wages of sin is death." The 52 year old preacher, declared the prosecutor, had become intimate with the young Sunday school teacher he later married and, unable to secure a divorce from his wife took "the only route left."

But Grover Watkins, the preacher's counsel, in declaring death was from natural causes, shouted: "We've got every circumstance in the world that Mrs. Berrie died of uraemic poisoning," and added the prosecution has not proved "where the Rev. Berrie even gave her a glass of water."

"Don't wake up and find, after you've turned on the juice, that you've made a mistake," he warned. "Are you trying him for illicit relationship?" he asked.

With M. D. Hartsell, also of Berrie's counsel, Watkins assailed Oldham and his assistant, S. C. Cavender, Watkins declaring "Oh they're cunning men; they're cunning and they're seasoned—cunning as minks."

Closing for the state, Cavender declared Berrie "is not representative of the gospel of Christ but of the devil."

"He's using religion as a cloak for his nefarious schemes and his crimes," he said. Describing Berrie as "always a ladies' man," Cavender shouted the state was trying "the Dr. Berrie who took this little school girl and debauched her."

The preacher's pretty bride of last May sat by his side throughout the day. They were married less than two months after the first Mrs. Berrie collapsed at a church meeting and was brought home to die in convulsions last March 21.

Study Works of Grecians in First Lecture

In the first of a series of nine lectures to be presented during the year on the subject of literary scholarship, Prof. Roy C. Flickinger, head of the classical languages department, told yesterday of the influence and history of two of the early Greek writers, Aristotle and Aristarchus.

Approximately 85 faculty members and students attended the talk in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

According to Professor Flickinger, Aristotle's major contribution to literary history was a book on poetics, in which was included the characteristics of the drama of the Greeks of his time.

Aristarchus, a Greek of the Alexandrian school in Egypt, was noteworthy as the publisher of two editions of Homer's works, the Iliad and the Odyssey. His editing of these produced a decided effect on the present day version, according to the speaker.

He was also the father of the asterisk and other grammatical symbols, besides being the first grammarian to distinguish the eight parts of speech.

Ruth Bryan Owen Will Give Address for Roosevelt Here

Ruth Bryan Owen, congresswoman and daughter of William Jennings Bryan, will speak in natural science auditorium Thursday, Oct. 27, at 2:30 p. m.

This is the third of a series of talks by Mrs. Owen in the national campaign on behalf of Franklin D. Roosevelt. She will arrive by plane sometime Thursday, Dr. W. L. Bywater, Johnson county chairman of the Democratic central committee, announced. Entertainment has not been fully planned as it is not yet known just how long she will stay in Iowa City.

WEATHER

IOWA: Cloudy, possibly showers and somewhat colder in east portion Tuesday; Wednesday generally fair with rising temperature in west and north portions.

Al Smith Makes First Address for Demo Ticket

Four teams will enter the semi-finals of the all campus debate tournament next week as a result of third round eliminations made last night. The speakers who have so far survived the eliminations are:

George Palmer, A1 of Omaha; Bob Rosenfeld, A1 of Council Bluffs; Ansel Chapman, A1 of Iowa City; Philip Mitchell, A1 of Iowa City; John Moon, A2 of Ottumwa; Roswell Johnson, A2 of Ottumwa; H. J. Hawkinson, A2 of Cedar Rapids; Collman Yudelson, A2 of Council Bluffs.

Pairings for the semi-finals, as announced by the committee in charge are: Palmer and Rosenfeld vs. Chapman and Mitchell; Moon and Johnson vs. Hawkinson and Yudelson. The winning teams will debate in the final contest Nov. 3.

The question debated is: "Resolved, that the American voters of 1932 should elect Hoover rather than Roosevelt as president."

Hold Man on Kidnap Count

Claim Easterner Tried to Murder 8 Year Old Child

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24 (AP)—Anna Kleinhandler, 8 year old girl victim of an abductor who lured her away while her mother was watching a movie concerning a kidnaped child, today identified Samuel Morris, 39, as her kidnaper.

Morris, after questioning at police headquarters, denied he was implicated in the crime. He was held on a charge of kidnaping and atrocious assault with intent to kill. He said he had spent the night in a coffee house.

The girl, bleeding from knife wounds in her neck and over her heart, appeared at a lonely farmhouse at Springfield at 5:30 a. m., and later told police of a 10 mile ride last night in a taxicab, with "a man with a scarred face."

Morris had argued with Anna's mother at her store in Newark over her refusal to cash a check. He was arrested this morning as he appeared at a factory where he was employed. At police headquarters the girl at first said Morris was not the man. Police Chief McCall then took Anna on his lap in another room and she told him, "I didn't want to mention Sam's name in front of all those men. He is the man who took me in the taxicab. He's the man who put his hand over my mouth and told me to keep quiet."

Banks to Get R.F.C. Loans

Corporation Authorizes Aid for 4,973 Institutions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Nearly 5,000 banks with 14,340,000 depositors have been told by the Reconstruction corporation they may borrow $853,496,289 from the government.

The corporation's report today said total loans authorized up to Sept. 30 to banks and trust companies, insurance companies and building and loan associations were $1,016,328,228. Among the depositors of the 4,973 banks, the announcement estimated, about 900,000 had their funds in closed institutions.

Announces Opening
Coincidentally, the corporation announced the creation of the eleventh of 12 regional agricultural credit corporations.

Headquarters of the new institution for the first hand bank district is to be at Albany, N. Y., with a branch office at Bangor, Me. The middle Atlantic state district has not yet been organized.

Other Loans
In addition to the loans to banks and trust companies, the corporation said $75,193,200 had been authorized for 88 insurance companies with 14,989,000 policy holders and $87,638,738 to 736 building and loan associations with 1,544,000 members.

Loans of $44,178,509 were authorized to the receivers or liquidating agents of closed banks to enable them to make an early distribution of funds to the depositors, the corporation said, or to affect reorganization which would allow the banks to reopen.

20,000 Cheer Candidate of '28 Campaign

Asks for "Nothing But Roosevelt, Garner Election"

STATE ARMORY, Newark, N. J., Oct. 24 (AP)—"Al" Smith, before a police estimated crowd of 20,000 persons, concluded his first national campaign speech tonight by declaring that nothing but the election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket would solve the economic problems of America. The crowd was in an uproar virtually throughout the speech.

A broad grin played across the "happy warrior's" countenance as he faced a battery of floodlights and a frenzied throng of Jersey Democrats, whose leaders had supported him for the presidential nomination in the Chicago convention.

Smile of Four Years Ago
It was the same sort of smile he wore just four years ago, when he appeared in this same building to face an equally enthusiastic crowd and deliver one of his famous anti-prohibition speeches.

Smith himself was the candidate then. A reminder of that campaign hung over his head tonight as he began to speak—a "Smith-for-president" banner.

It was several minutes after Smith stepped to the front of the platform before the throng would allow him to begin.

Smith began by telling how he wanted to campaign in many sections, but had to limit his speeches. He spoke in praise of Governor Cross of Connecticut and said he wished specially he could go to that state and to Illinois.

Crowd Roars
"Now we get it," he continued and the crowd roared for what he was going to say.

Speaking of his appearance here four years ago, he said: "Well, we're four years older and 40 years wiser. We were waging an impossible fight then."

Speaking of Herbert Hoover's campaign, he said: "He even promised to banish poverty from our land although our Divine Lord said: 'The poor you have always with you.'"

Helen Back in Rumania

Officials Deny Rumors of Reconciliation With Carol

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 24 (AP)—Former Queen Helen, divorced wife of King Carol, is back in Bucharest for the birthday of her son, Prince Michael, tomorrow and the old report of a reconciliation with Carol has been revived.

Her arrival early in the morning was not altogether expected. The first information the government received of her approach came from Belgrade when she passed through on the way from London.

Deny Rumors
In responsible and well-informed quarters rumors of the reconciliation were denied. There was an authoritative denial also of a report abroad that Premier Manu had accepted that post last week only on condition that the reconciliation be effected.

The former queen was reported as somewhat disappointed over her reception, for the royal coach which was attached to her train at the frontier was routed through the outskirts of the city and she was taken to her palace in a closed automobile.

Will Stay in Rumania
Nevertheless, it was said, she has decided to stay in Rumania so that she may be near Michael and help in his education.

There was a statement from the cabinet today that the boy's eleventh birthday will not be observed officially tomorrow, but will be celebrated with his saint's day, Nov. 18. This was said to have been decided so that Helen would have a chance to be with her son for a private birthday party.

Reynolds Executors Solicit Court Orders; Protect Unborn Heir

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—A court order empowering it to protect the interests of the unborn child of Libby Reynolds, widow of the tobacco fortune, was sought today by the Guaranty Trust company, which was named executor in Reynolds' will.

The trust company, in a petition filed in surrogate's court, asked that letters of temporary administration be granted pending the birth of a child to Reynolds' widow, or the "definite determination that the possibility of birth no longer exists."

The petition specifically asked for permission to sublet an apartment, which Reynolds had leased in New York, effective Aug. 1, for 14 months at $6,000 a year.

Speaker Cites Hoover Plans for Recovery

Says President Only One to Suggest Practical Line of Battle

That a change of presidents now would be comparable to removal of a general after he had gathered information and began his final offensive, was the contention of Harrison E. Spangler of Cedar Rapids, Republican national committeeman, in a speech at the American Legion Community building last night.

Saying that Hoover is the only statesman in the nation who has offered some practical plan to stop the depression, Mr. Spangler outlined the president's battle to re-establish credit, stop hoarding, and drive away panic. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Farm Board, and agricultural banks were given as agencies.

The speaker offered the decrease in bank failures, preservation of the gold standard, and the opening of factories in the east as proof of the progress being made through the Hoover program. To remove the chief executive now, he pointed out, would be to stop the work he has already begun, and which is now showing results.

"The Democrats are attempting to turn the nation over to an untried man," Mr. Spangler warned. "We once had a great man by the name of Roosevelt. This fellow, a cousin far removed, is trying to be successful by virtue of the name and with the help of Tammany Hall."

"Franklin D. Roosevelt never attended public schools for a day," the stocky committeeman said. "His preparatory education came from private governesses and tutors. Brought up under such circumstances he cannot have the same breadth of vision as a man who has rubbed elbows with the common people."

Taking issue with the Democratic candidate's statement that he would strive to reduce taxes and would practice economy, Mr. Spangler said that in the last two years of Roosevelt's administration as governor of New York taxes in that state increased some 95 million dollars.

"As a running mate to Roosevelt, the Democrats have nominated 'Pork-barrel' Jack Garner, a creature of William Randolph Hearst," the speaker said. "In so doing they have endorsed the kind of economy he stands for, a program that called for 'pork-barrel' legislation amounting to $4,400,000,000 since Garner became speaker of the house."

Mr. Spangler called attention to a bill written and supported by Garner which called for the building of post offices in towns and small cities throughout the United States with a total cost of $1,500,000,000. Post offices with an average estimated cost of $70,000 each were to be built at West Liberty, Bettendorf, Madrid, and other Iowa towns, he said.

"We must consider a vice president as a potential president," the speaker said. "Seven out of 31 presidents have died in office. Wilson and Harding in recent years were both able-bodied men when elected. If reports are true Roosevelt is not vigorous. If he were elected president and did not live to

Mapes Tells of Trip South

Relates Incidents of Hunt for Ruben Dario's Work

"Contact with scholars in South America" was the title of the paper read by Prof. E. K. Mapes of the Romance languages department, last evening at the meetings of the Humanities society.

Professor Mapes explained that his trip to South America was made because of his interest in Spanish literary technique and because he wished to study and collect the works of the poet, Ruben Dario.

"In Buenos Aires," Professor Mapes said, "I first looked through second hand bookstores; then I put advertisements describing the material I was looking for, in two of the largest newspapers, but I located nothing."

He then explained his discovery of less than half of the poet's works in a library, and these he obtained by photo-copying the material he found. Not only did Professor Mapes find poems of the author, but also portraits, pictures of Dario's homes, text of speeches, and biographical sketches, which he copied.

The speaker explained how upon traveling to Argentina, he added to his information and collection by research in the National Library of Argentina.

Professor Mapes closed his paper with the statement, "I received more consideration at the hands of Spanish American scholars than I believe would be shown here in the United States. Because of my associations with them, I am convinced that these South American scholars are friendly, open hearted, and considerate."

Following the reading of the paper some of the photo-copying was projected, and the filming explained.

The meeting was held at the home of Prof. B. V. Crawford, 208 Richards street.

MEDICAL DEAN Urges Pre-med Work in Liberal Arts start professional studies must not, the dean warned, regard "pre-work" as "just a series of hurdles set up by unfeeling authorities" or as a purgatory through which the student must pass successfully to obtain access to the pearly gates of his professional college.

Many students say, "Just wait till I get into medicine; I'll show 'em then what I can do." Perhaps once in a hundred times he shows us something; but in the other 99 we show him," the dean remarked.

Advices Broad Culture

To those who contemplate four liberal arts years prior to professional study the dean advised avoiding "a narrow, confined, limited view" of their field. If medicine is ahead, "I don't care whether you take any more science beyond the requirements; on the contrary it would be better to take something you enjoy to balance and round out your intellectual diet."

In closing Dean Houghton reiterated his thesis that "the relation of a professional man to his community rests upon his relation to their minds and to the world. That relation is determined by his relations now to persons in other fields and to the things in which those others are interested."

AUDIT REPORT Reveals 'Discrepancies' in Records

statements of the members of your board, before whom this count should have been made."

Records Found Regular

The report said that the bank records were found to be "regular" and that the statements of the teller who accepted the deposit, James V. O'Meara, appeared "to be well supported by the documentary evidence" examined during the course of the investigation.

"The only bank record which might indicate that the amount of the deposit could have been altered in the bank was the deposit ticket," the report stated. "This deposit ticket was in the handwriting of Mr. O'Meara, whereas, in the usual course of business, the deposit tickets are made out by the depositors. Mr. O'Meara stated that he made out the deposit ticket because Mr. Berry did not have a deposit ticket made out when he presented the checks for deposit."

Puzzled by Entry

The accountants said that they were unable to determine who made the entry in Berry's pass book, which shows the deposit to be $26,243.30, and that Mr. O'Meara was unable to identify the handwriting as that of any of the employees of the bank. They also reported that the entry did not appear to have been made in the usual course of business and that it could have been made by "anyone of average handwriting ability."

They pointed out also that the letter "D," which they claim is ordinarily used to designate an entry made from a duplicate deposit ticket, is not found in connection with the entry of Jan. 2, 1932.

Received at Various Times

In connection with the second "irregularity," the accountants claim that their verification of the taxes shown to have been received revealed that $12,143.48 is considered in actual receipt of Dec. 31, 1931, was received at various dates during the year.

Mr. Berry is said in the report to have explained this fact by stating that he had built up a cash reserve to be used in event of bank failures by "taking cash out of the drawer to cash certain checks which had been received in payment of taxes and the cash together with the receipt stub was placed in an envelope and the latter placed in the safe until Dec. 31, 1931."

"At Least $20,000 Shortage"

"While we made no attempt to determine that all taxes certified to the treasurer's office had been accounted for, the records of that office reveal that unless the treasurer can show a deposit of $26,243.30 on Jan. 2, 1932, that the shortage is at least $20,000," they concluded.

Filed in Five Parts

The report of the accountants was filed in five parts. The first part, addressed to the supervisors, is a summary of the investigation with comments on the record, an analysis of the treasurer's records, and a statement showing their computation of the $20,000 discrepancy.

The second part, "Exhibit A," consists of a copy of the schedule of collections. The third part, "Exhibit B," is the transcript of the record of a conference claimed to have been held in the office of the county treasurer July 14, 1932. Mr. Berry, Henry Negus, Mr. Berry's attorney, D. A. Busby and G. M. Taylor of the accounting firm are said to have been present at the conference.

The fourth part, "Exhibit C," is the transcript of a statement claimed to have been made by Mr.

SPANGLER Urges Maintaining of Hoover in Office complete his term Garner would take his place, and who would want Garner for president?"

Mr. Spangler stressed Hoover's economy program, relating how in all of his messages to congress the executive has urged that legislation be passed doing away with duplication of government bureaus and agencies. He quoted Hoover as saying that, were he given the authority, he would save the nation $33,000,000 in this alone.

The committeeman displayed a sticker which he obtained in Iowa City and on which appears the words, "Let's quit going to hell with Hoover." Small type at the bottom of the sticker proclaims that the slogans are published and for sale by the "Unemployed of America, Post-office box 385, Iowa City." Mr. Spangler condemned such practice as "dirty politics," saying that he believed no good Democrat or Republican in Iowa City would sanction such activity.

The speaker was introduced by Kenneth M. Dunlop, chairman of the Johnson county Republican central committee. Mr. Dunlop also introduced a number of county and district Republican candidates. They were: Dr. Frederick Schadt of Williamsburg, candidate for state senator; Prof. C. M. Updegraff of the law college, speaking in behalf of District Judge R. G. Popham; A. C. Harmon of Iowa City, candidate for state representative; Will E. Smith, candidate for county treasurer, and R. M. Work and J. E. Colony, candidates for county supervisor.

The speech at the American Legion Community building followed a dinner for the speaker in the Spanish room at the Hawks' Nest cafe, which was attended by 75 persons. Mr. Spangler gave a short address at the dinner, referring to early associations in Iowa City. Mr. Spangler was a student in the University of Iowa from 1899 to 1905, when he graduated from the law college. "While a student he was active in intercollegiate debate work, and was one of the founders of The Daily Iowan. Upon his graduation Mr. Spangler entered the Cedar Rapids law firm of James W. Good, who later became secretary of war in the cabinet of President Herbert Hoover.

O'Meara. Neither the statements said to have been made by Berry nor those by O'Meara were sworn to signed.

Child Welfare Head to Edit New Journal

Prof. George D. Stoddard, director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station, is a member of the editorial board of a new periodical, the Journal of Experimental Education.

This new journal is primarily for technical workers interested in the experimental study of education. It will contain reports of experimental studies of the child, the curriculum, and methods of study, combined with critical discussions and researches relating to the measurements, statistics, and methods of experimental research.

Professor Stoddard will be editorially responsible for materials on child welfare, guidance and development. He is to edit the December issue of the journal, which will be devoted to studies of the child.

In addition to Professor Stoddard, two other contributing editors are members of the University of Iowa faculty. Both Prof. E. F. Lindquist and Prof. Beth Wellman are to contribute various articles from time to time.

First Grade Children at Henry Sabin Prepare for Hallow'en With Spooky Decorations

First grade children of Henry Sabin school who had perfect attendance during the last six weeks are: Dorothy Crawford, Dorothea Fry, Leona Huffman, Shirley Cole, Doris Thomas, Clyde Albrecht, Billy Helm, Irwin Richardson, and Robert Ruppert. The room is beginning to take on a "spooky" appearance. Witches, cats, and bats are seen in the windows, and Jack-o-lanterns hang in the room.

Phyllis Jean Coulter, Marjorie Mirsky, Shirley Cole, and Billy Helm returned their blue dental cards last week. Our chart shows nine people have finished their dental work, 12 others have started, and eight have not started. We hope all will be spared soon.

Dorothea Jen Fry announced Monday that her dog won a prize in the pet show for the best decorated dog.

Marjorie Livingston of the 2B class has left for Oklahoma. We are sorry to have her go. The following got 100 in spelling last Friday: Geraldine Boss, Dorothy Carson, Catherine Sue Chambers, Roberta Fleming, Joy Secar, June Stenson, and Alice Taylor.

2A, 3B Classes

In the 2A and 3B the following children were perfect in attendance during the first six weeks period: Colleen Frenzen, Allaire Miller, Elda Mae Phend, Ronald Stanfield, Carl Williams, Herman Alcala, Violet Benson, Jeannette Chursler, Vera Dunaway, Elizabeth Hershberger, Eugene Larew, Robert Myers, Ruth Norton, and Margaret Poulson. Visitors here last week were Eleanor Eastman, and Mrs. Earl Benson.

In the 3A and 4B classes Dorothy Nichols, Phyllis Fry, and Gretchen Brown missed no words in spelling during the first six weeks.

These children were neither absent nor tardy during the first six weeks of school: Wayne Barnes, Gretchen Brown, Arthur Insalls, Robert Krehner, Myra Speaks, Irls Mathew, Emma Lohridge, Milo Palmer, Betty Sholly, Max Smith, Norma Thorman, Bobbly Albrecht, Phyllis Fry, Kendall Thomas, Billy Vorheis and Lawrence Wallen.

Ruby Copas have been transferred from our school to 4B at Longfellow school. We made Hallow'en lanterns in Miss Otto's art class Friday.

Perfect Records in 4A

The children in 4A who were neither absent nor tardy during the last six weeks period were: Thomas Patterson, Kenneth Kupka, Raymond Hess, Gene Fulton, Betty Zane Miller, Hester Fowler, and Florence O'Leary. In 5B those who had perfect attendance were Dean Fitzgerald, George Fleming, Lynn Richmond, Earl Williams, George Zinkula, Howard Clark, Charles Obye, Kenneth Obye, Catherine Brown, Lottie Funk, Doris Jones, Virginia Mackey, Bernadine Zinkula, and Richard Ratchford.

George Caldwell received 100 in spelling during the six weeks period. Kenneth Kupka received a rating of 10 in self-testing drill No. 5.

Mildred Cook, Julie Kasper, and Eugene Stanfield have been transferred to Miss Rankins division of 6B. Dorothy Carnett, 5A, was transferred to Henry Sabin school from Longfellow. We are interested in the growth of our aquarium, and now have four kinds of water plants, six gold fish, a turtle, and a snail.

Plan for Hallow'en

We are planning for Hallow'en, and are making Jack O'Lantern baskets. Our black board is decorated with cats, witches, and other popular characters. Una Butler is our civic league leader. Violet Dunaway wrote our school news this week.

In the 5A and 6B language class, Miss Schindhelm had us write stories about corn so that we too could celebrate Corn day. Meyer Markovitz wrote the best story. It told about the growth of corn in Iowa and Illinois, and the various uses of it.

Nurse Visits

Horace Mann

Mrs. Gartner, school nurse, examined the Horace Mann kindergarten children and found that the following had good teeth: Jacqueline Shelladay, Bobby Briceland, Rodney Crawford, Harrison Elkema, Ruth Husa, John Michael Hatcher, Hubert Farnsworth, Bobby Kaufman, Bruce Knowles, Bob Lee, Jeanne Ott, Otto Proehl, Helen Reed, Margaret Ries, and LeRoy Van Den Berg. These children have gold stars after their names on the honor chart.

Bennie Abbott, 1103 Bloomington street, was transferred to the Kirkwood kindergarten last Monday.

Jimmie Igou entered kindergarten B. He came from Washington, Ia.

Kindergarten B

Rodney Crawford, kindergarten B, brought a small basket of different kinds of nuts. The class learned interesting things about the walnut, hickory nut, acorn, and hazel nut.

Round Tables Will Feature Science Meet

Round table discussions will be a feature of the fourth annual conference of science teachers to be held here next Friday and Saturday. It is expected that more than 200 teachers from high schools and colleges throughout the state will attend.

Following the addresses during each session of the two day meeting, round table discussions will be held. The problems to be discussed include evaluation of tests, work books, and teaching helps in high school physics, and successful teaching helps in high school biology.

The discussions will be led by E. S. Osburn of the John Burroughs school, St. Louis; Prof. L. P. Sherman, chemistry department of Grinnell college; Prof. R. L. Abbott, natural science department of Iowa State Teachers college, and Prof. Jacob Cornog, chemistry department of the University of Iowa.

The conference, which is under the auspices of the college of liberal arts, the college of education, and the extension division, will include programs in chemistry, physics, biology, and botany.

Scout Committee to Meet

The Iowa City district executive committee of the Boy Scouts organization will meet Thursday at 4:30 p.m. at the American Legion Community building.

There are 5,872 grain elevators with a capacity of 414,660,260 bushels in the western and eastern divisions of Canada.

IOWA CITY STORE TO CLOSE

We have decided to close our local store until economic conditions improve! Operating a factory store . . . on a merchandising plan that requires a large volume of business and quick turnover . . . it is obvious that local conditions will not produce a volume of business large enough to justify the continuance of this store. It was, therefore, decided to close this store until local conditions permit a greater number of people to participate in our method of merchandising. We will be back!

This store has been conducted along methods new to Iowa City people . . . they have had an opportunity to purchase good, honest furniture at extremely low prices . . . in fact, so low as to be unbelievable! A few people erroneously judged the quality by the price label . . . but would a 30 to 40 per cent increase in the price label increase the quality? . . . Not any more than a 30 to 40 per cent "less than regular" would decrease its quality! It has not been necessary in our factory-direct-selling to sell inferior quality . . . to misrepresent . . . to juggle prices for "trade-ins" . . . but we are guilty of selling good, honest furniture at inferior prices!

Now every home can have lovely furniture of undisputed quality . . . correct designs . . . at unbelievable prices! BELOW WE GIVE YOU JUST AN INKING OF WHAT TO EXPECT——and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
 Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

Senator Norris in Rebuttal

ON THE platform from which Herbert Hoover spoke to Iowans early this month, in the coliseum at Des Moines, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska charged Saturday night that the president has not taken the people into his confidence. Hoover spoke of cattle in Mexico at $2.50 per hundredweight, others in Texas at $4.50 "and only the tariff wall between." To demonstrate that sometimes Hoover "has told only half the truth, Norris said that 1) Roosevelt has not suggested removing or lowering the bovine tariff; 2) Mexican cattle are scarcely worth $2.50, tariff wall or no tariff wall, by comparison with choice $4.50 Texas cattle—"you couldn't fatten one in two years' time on all the corn from an Iowa farm." Then he let his point sink in: "When you just compare the cattle on the other side with the cattle on this side, you haven't told the people all the truth." Hoover's disparagement of a Democratic attempt "to destroy the independence of the 'bipartisan tariff' commission" was challenged by Norris, who said a "bipartisan" commission means control of tariffs by the party in power, whereas the desirable commission would be "non-partisan like a judge on the bench." Answering the president's Des Moines assertion that "... the Democratic controlled house ... did not pass a single resolution requesting a readjustment of a single schedule," Norris said this bill provided for readjusting schedules separately, not otherwise possible. By making it impossible to tack on amendments about other schedules, rolling each other's logs in joint action would be dealt a blow and "every schedule would stand on its own bottom." "That tribunal," Hoover said of the tariff commission, "is open to all the people." Norris said those who appear before it are invariably attorneys or experts of special business interests, that the vetoed bill provided for a people's counsel to represent the public at large. "I am speaking as a protectionist," went on the white haired senate veteran, "but I am just as anxious that a protective tariff shall not be too high as that it shall not be too low." He pointed out that tariffs on non-surplus products (hence not on exportable farm goods) serve to bolster prices artificially, operating as shields behind which great trusts and monopolies can be formed. Provision placing on the free list such duties as reported by a non-partisan commission he cited as "the most effective way of checking trusts that has ever been put into any bill or any law." The contrast between this progressive Republican and the Missouri Democrat who also rebutted Hoover in Des Moines is clearest in their treatment of the president's undenied failure to vote in the United States until after he was 40 years old. Reed fumed that it is time to select "an American" for president. Norris stressed indifferent citizenship. "When all these great questions that were bothering the people came up," Hoover was guilty of absence not so much from the country as from concern about problems to which he was to return a stranger, Norris charged. For this man who condemned utterly the "philosophy of an insider" which he attributed to President Hoover had not, like Smith W. Brookhart, gone blind in his indignation; had not, like James A. Reed, lost his temper—even after 40 years of legislative battles at Washington. Hale in body and spirit at 71, vigorous in voice and gesture, Senator Norris was effective most of all in his personality. Significantly, he follows Abraham Lincoln in reverence for that great document written by a Democrat—the Declaration of Independence. Like Lincoln in that, in protectionist tariff views, in midwest origin, and in championship of midwestern tariff views, Norris claims allegiance only to party principles, not to party organization. Practical as well as emotional about the Declaration, Norris has fought for extension of its principles in the Constitution via removal of such barriers between people and government as the electoral college and the lame duck session of congress. No depression bolter, in 1928 he dared party wrath by supporting Alfred E. Smith, in 1930 successfully faced his Nebraska constituents for re-election. Sagely, Norris does not support Roosevelt unreservedly. Believing him right fundamentally, the Nebraskan waives specific disagreements—until the question arises whether progressives of the Norris stripe (including most of the southwest coalition that nominated Roosevelt at Chicago) will lead the Democratic party. Norris now speaks mostly of the Hoover who as secretary of commerce was rivaled only by Albert B. Fall in his ambition for power at the expense of the department of agriculture, the Hoover who during three administrations blocked agricultural measures desired by the Norris faction. The Nebraskan is more anti-Hoover than pro-Roosevelt. But in his courageous, tempered indictment of the president he displayed qualities which call for enthusiasm like that of the burly labor leader who argued with a farmer after the speech Saturday night: "Don't tell me us laborers haven't got the George Norris spirit. It was us labor fellows that elected him."

Minister, Not Preacher THE REV. O. H. CESSNA, chaplain of the Iowa State college since 1902, and member of that institution's first graduating class, that of 1872, died Saturday afternoon in his rooms on the college campus. To students of the sister institution to this university, the loss of a guiding hand such as his must be serious. Far greater than officiating at college chapel services and appearing on lecture platforms with visiting dignitaries were the extent of the "duties" which he took upon himself. Coupled with a remarkable ability for recognition of individuals who composed the student population of the college, no matter whether he had met them once or a hundred times, the Rev. Mr. Cessna acted as "unofficial adviser"—practically as godfather—to thousands of men and women. His advice was good, and well accepted. Probably there was no publication as generally read on the state college campus as "The Chaplain's Corner," appearing in the official college newspaper, and the product of his thought and hand. Yet, though he was a minister of the Methodist faith, he was not a preacher, if the distinction is clear. His kindly advice were not tracts. He did not "preach down," but considered a problem of a student as his own, and offered that student advice on the basis of what he had seen in more than four decades of college life.

TODAY'S TOPICS

Although in his speech before the League of Nations Assembly on Sept. 29 of this year, France's Premier Herriot declared that the League should obtain two results: 1) suppress secret diplomacy, and 2) bring about equality of nations, the new diplomatic map of Europe shows only the antithesis of that Utopian plan.

For example, when an attempt is made to answer the questions that have arisen during the last few years concerning strategic moves by various nations, stumbling blocks arise as if by magic to nullify even the most logical of diagnoses.

Why did the entire Roumanian cabinet resign on Oct. 17?

What caused the resignation of Signor Grandi, Mussolini's foreign minister?

Why did France stand alone in favoring the aggression of Japan against China?

Why did Germany give up the idea of a customs union with Austria?

What would have happened (not "might" have) if the Hoover moratorium had not been promulgated when it was?

What is Italy's interest in the Balkans?

What caused the failure of the great Austrian banking institution, the Credit-Anstalt in March?

Why did the German financial institutions crash?

Why did the von Papen-Schleicher government declare that Germany could not pay?

What was the result of the Spanish debacle?

Where does the U. S. stand in relation to the entire European situation?

When you have discovered the answers to all those questions and many more like them, you will have half-solved the leading problem of the age. When you can determine to the satisfaction of all the European nations and the United States what the most reasonable solution is, then you have aided the cause of world harmony beyond all dreams of the wisest statesmen and most astute diplomats.

Three big issues are projected from the European situation that must be met squarely in the immediate future. If they are sidestepped before another year goes by, or if they are met and no working solutions are offered, then the world can stand ready to face another 1914 holocaust.

Day before yesterday, Mussolini appealed to the "heart of the United States" for cancellation or reduction of European war debts. He declared that Germany's parity demand was fully justified, deplored the ineffectiveness of the League of Nations but added that Italy was prepared to stand by it. He challenged France in his statement that "Turin (where he spoke) has never been afraid of war."

What would cancellation of European debts by the U. S. mean to Italy? Would it give the nation an opportunity to strengthen its bloc in the Eastern Mediterranean? Would it mean a stronger tie between the Fascist government and the Soviet? Would it signify a new balance of power with Italy in the lead?

The three important economic and political questions confronting the world, if analyzed in the light of what existed before the World war, certainly reflect a new cause and effect sequence that augurs no good for international security. Specifically, they are:

- 1) The Franco-German military equality problem; 2) the Lytton report concerning the future of Manchuria; and 3) the world economic conference, for which preparatory work is already underway.

There are other matters concerning the future of the League of Nations, the future of war debts and reparations, the future of disarmament—all of which are vital to solution of the above named issues, but none of which seem capable of solution now. There is much more to be said about what has happened in Europe and what is impending, about which more tomorrow.

What They're Doing on Other Campuses—

Society — Education — Sports

By BIG TEN NEWS SERVICE

More Power for Men
 MADISON, Wis.—Men students at the University of Wisconsin will be given a more direct voice in their government, it plans for an assembly of 60 students to assist the Men's Union board by reflecting campus sentiment receive favorable consideration of the board, advocates of the proposal contend.

The plan must become a reality by amendment to the constitution of the board. It is doubtful whether the assembly will be given much legislative power. Its chief duty will be to reveal genuine popular opinion on controversial questions.

The proposed assembly will include one representative from each of 42 fraternities, one delegate from each large rooming house and each cooperative rooming house, representatives from the university dormitories, and one delegate from each group of 10 unorganized men students who sign a petition asking representation.

"Room and Board"

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Branding fraternity houses on the University of Michigan campus as "little better than rooming and boarding places," Prof. Philip E. Bursley, director of the orientation period and counselor to new students, told members of the Interfraternity council last week that it was their duty to clean house and see that the marks of the freshmen improved.

The Michigan campus now has more fraternities than can survive, in the opinion of Professor Bursley. Local and national Greek houses total more than 75.

Visitors Name Queen

COLUMBUS, Ohio—The university will have a homecoming queen to predominate over ceremonies incidental to the Pennsylvania football game here Nov. 12, but the students will not be permitted to select the campus beauty this year.

Seeking to remove the queen selection from the realms of campus politics, machine enterprise, members of the Homecoming committee announced recently that final selection of the queen will be left to the Pennsylvania football squad.

Love Draws 10 Per Cent!

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—A survey made recently at Purdue university among the students taking elementary psychology shows that school work causes a majority of the worries which bother undergrads. The results show that 56 per cent of the students lay the blame on studies for one of their major worries, 55 per cent consider money matters among the chief worries, family affairs come in for 19 per cent, and social affairs 16 per cent. Love matters claim 10 per cent while religion only takes 4 per cent.

Obviously some of the students worried over several items as the above total amounts to considerably more than 100 percent. A similar study made four years ago shows that about the same number worry over school work but a considerably larger portion worry over money matters. Love and social affairs get less attention as a result.

Tough on 573 Men

MADISON, Wis.—If all fraternity men on the University of Wisconsin campus attempted to date sorority women on a given night, 573 fraternity men would go without dates, figures compiled by Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men, and Mrs. Louise F. Troxell, dean of women, indicate.

An item of interest to Greek letter rushing chairmen on the campus, the report shows that only one-fourth of the members of the student body are members of social sororities or fraternities.

If fraternity pledges attempted to revolt against the punishment inflicted during "hell" week, they would find themselves outnumbered four to one.

At the close of last semester, there were 1,148 social fraternity pledges, and 274 pledges. Social sororities claimed 685 actives and 164 pledges.

Professional Greek letter organizations, most of whose members are drawn from the membership of social groups, showed about the same ratio of men to women. Professional fraternity actives numbered 865 and pledges 107, while professional sorority actives were 131 in number and pledges 38.

No Socialist Books

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Ten minutes after the opening of a book-stand for the sale of radical literature by the Michigan Socialist club, organization of University of Michigan Socialist students, police authorities interfered and ordered the stand closed because of the alleged violation of a city ordinance.

Although a member of the Socialist club stated he had obtained permission from Chief of Police Thomas O'Brien to operate the stand, O'Brien later denied that he had ever sanctioned the sale of the books, which included works of Lenin, Karl Marx, Norman Thomas, and Upton Sinclair.

According to a member of the Socialist club's committee, when O'Brien was asked why news-stands were allowed to operate in violation of the city ordinance, and why an exception was being made in the case of a stand for the sale of radical literature, he said that the stand was "too large," and added that he would be holding himself "open to criticism by the mayor and the city board of aldermen" if he allowed it to continue.

On the grounds that Chief O'Brien violated an agreement giving permission to operate the stand, members of the club are contemplating a lawsuit against the police head. Also it is planned to circulate a petition to the university and the board of aldermen demanding the same privileges as any other news-stand.

Military Units to Hold Mixer in Iowa Union

Advanced coursemen in all four units of the military department will hold their annual mixer in the river room of Iowa Union tomorrow.

This mixer is put on by Scabbard and Blade, honorary military organization, to assemble all advanced coursemen and to impress upon them their duties in maintaining the right attitude toward military training and national defense on the Iowa campus. It is also to create a good fellowship among the advanced coursemen of the four units.

Second year members of the two basic R.O.T.C. clubs, Pershing Rifles, and Pontoniers are invited to attend.

During the ceremony of the evening, Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts will present a flag to Scabbard and Blade.

Invitations have been sent to 87 faculty members of the university, as well as to the adjutant general of Iowa and prominent organized reserve officers and national guardsmen.

Added guests include Colonel Shaw of Sigourney, president of the district organized reserve, and Colonel Robbins of Cedar Rapids.

Entertainment will be provided and a buffet supper will be served.

Vesper Talk Has 'Service' as Main Idea

M. E. Bishop Delivers Address at Union Sunday Night

That service to humanity should be the aim of every man in interpreting his life, was the message of Bishop William F. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church, Washington, D. C., in his vespers address Sunday night in Iowa Union.

"If life is to go on, if humanity is to continue, we must be related to it," he declared. "Poverty, sickness, and sorrow are not comfortable but they can be borne. But there is no compensation for this."

1638, 1639, 1640, 1642, 1643, 1646, 1647, 1648, and 1649, so that altogether he was elected governor 16 times, in addition to three terms as deputy governor.

Winthrop is the man whose mind is credited with "having arranged the social state of Massachusetts, while Massachusetts in turn has moulded the society of New England."

Tomorrow: "A Unique Recovery" person who goes through life without fellowship, without relating himself to the problems of others."

"Worthy Goal"

To make the world a better place is a worthy goal for everyone, Bishop McDowell asserted. People should be made to see clearly, and to interpret their lives properly in their contact with one another.

"In this day of stress it is most important to the people that they should see straight. It is surprising how much of the difficulties of the world are due to wrong attitudes, to jealousy and hatred."

Religion can not be interpreted through metaphysics, he believes. Only in practicing the truth of the incarnation by interpreting their lives in the service of others, can people understand it.

Christianity is the only force in the world which can unite the nations in a common brotherhood. Government, politics, war are only agencies of conflict among countries, and Christianity alone can bring about a union of countries, he said.

After College WHAT?

Advertising?

Frederick C. Kendall, editor of Advertising & Selling, says, "Advertising is still young. Yet it is already a vital part of every important industry. The professional advertising man must be not only a thoughtful student of human nature, but also a student of all American business."

"SPARKING" ideas are the life blood of advertising. That's why advertising men, as well as college men, turn to a pipe. For a good pipe with the right tobacco is man's first-aid to clear thinking and wisdom. As for the "right tobacco"—that's Edgeworth Smoking Tobacco.

Coach Solem Lets Team Off With Light Workout; To Drill Pass Defense

(STORY IN COLUMN 5)

NORTHWESTERN, PURDUE PLAY 7-7 TIE

NOTRE DAME SWAMPS CARNEGIE TECH

Northwestern battled those fighting Boilermakers from Purdue to a 7-7 in their game at Dye stadium, Evanston, Ill., although the invaders three times missed chances to score by narrow margins. Here Kawal, Purple quarterback, is shown stopping Hecker, Purdue left halfback, on an attempted end run in the second quarter. Horstman and Purvis, Purdue backs (in dark jerseys), are trying to block out Kawal, Dille, Purple guard (No. 34), and Olson, Northwestern fullback (No. 25). Thirty-seven thousand fans witnessed the game Saturday.

Carnegie Tech was not much opposition for Notre Dame, as witnessed by the beating they took at South Bend Saturday. Capt. George Kavel of Carnegie (No. 32) is stopping Steve Banas, powerful Notre Dame fullback (No. 60), notwithstanding a vigorous push in the face from Banas' left. Notre Dame winning by a 42 to 0 score.

SPORT Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

IOWA'S backers proved conclusively Saturday that they don't demand victories of the Hawkeyes this year, but just plenty of that old "Iowa fight." They got it. Every man on the team battled from start to finish, and but for the two slips on pass defense, the outcome would no doubt have been closer. Incidentally, the Gophers were a bit distressed that their running attack didn't function for touchdowns, which is a tribute in itself to the Iowa line from end to end.

A good many of the fans had trouble telling Joe Laws and Herman Schneidman, Iowa's starting halfbacks apart. The two lads are about the same size. For your benefit, Schneidman is number 23, and Laws wears number 35. For consistent performance, Schneidman just about shows his teammate the way. He's in a tough, punishing position, that of blocking half. He doesn't get into the limelight before the crowd in general, but he takes 'em out, big or small. He did bounce off Manders once in a while, but who would't?

THE Iowa pass defense will get an acid test when the Hawkeyes meet George Washington at Washington, D. C., Friday night. Advance reports say that the Colonials use every variation of the passing game known, and they try them from any place on the field. Unless the Old Gold backs improve on their aerial defense, they may get into all kinds of difficulties. If the Hawkeyes can get their offense started, the game may turn out to be one of those high-scoring affairs.

The game will at least show Coach Ossie Solem what his team can do against an outfit of about equal weight. In every game this year, with the exception of the Bradley contest, the Hawkeyes have had to give away several pounds per man on the average. It will be the Iowa team's first experience in playing night football. The Iowa mentor isn't worried about that however, and will send the team through one workout under the Colonials' lights, just to show the boys that night football is just like the day pastime.

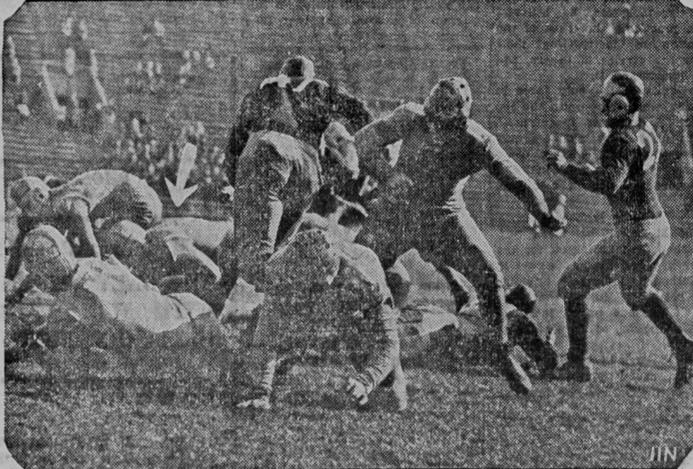

HOWARD JONES demonstrated to the football world last week end that he still has plenty up his sleeve when his U. S. C. Trojans upset Pop Warner's Indians 13 to 0. Up until the game the men of Troy had failed to show a thing, just managing to beat supposed set-ups. Then they easily outclassed the Big Red team, maintaining the record of never having lost to Stanford on the Stanford gridiron. Jones is using six different formations this year. Part of the time his tackles are ends, and part of the time his ends are halfbacks. He'll probably figure out a scoring play for his center before the season is over.

Three Gophers on Sidelines; Injured in Iowa Engagement

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 24 (AP)—Minnesota returned to drill Monday to prepare for the Northwestern game with three regulars, Capt. Walt Hass, Ken Gay and Milton Bruhn, on the sidelines resting injuries from the Iowa engagement. None of the three is expected to see much hard work this week. Coach Bierman scrimmaged the reserves Monday and worked on new plays with the regulars in signal drill.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—Coach Hanley today ordered a two-day rest for the Northwestern reg-

OHIO LINE FLATTENS PITT FULLBACK IN TIE GAME

Weinstock, 196-pound University of Pittsburgh fullback, is flattened by Ohio State linemen after a small gain in their annual game at Pittsburgh. Each team was unable to score during the four quarters of play. Arrow indicates Weinstock hitting the ground.

Frosh League Resumes Play

Michigan, in Second Place, Has Chance to Go in Lead

Michigan, runner-up in the freshman league tournament, will have an opportunity to regain its standing by playing two games this week against weak competition. The former frosh varsity meets Indiana on Wednesday, and Minnesota on Thursday.

Two Different Styles

The Indiana-Michigan game should provide the majority of thrills for the afternoon since it brings together two teams featuring two entirely different styles of play. Indiana has a fast, shifty backfield, combined with a rangy line, while Michigan, with a backfield averaging close to 200 pounds, features line plunges and straight power plays. However, if the opponent's line holds up, the Michigan backfield is usually caught flat-footed.

Indiana's hope for victory lies in the success of its aerial attack. Although the passing offense did not result in a score against Minnesota last week, the yardage gained was impressive. Time after time the passes from Stevens to Yetter and Lindermeyer brought the ball down within scoring distance, but the lack of a good plunging back meant the difference in victory.

The Michigan outfit has shown itself woefully weak against passes, losing to a lighter Purdue team through this fault.

Minnesota Easy? Purdue, the league leader, should have an easy job against Minnesota on Wednesday, but it may function so well that it will soften the team for Michigan on the following day.

If Indiana pulls through the Michigan game it will be handicapped in starting the next day against Wisconsin, a fresh team. Michigan, playing its bone-crushing style against Indiana, should have the light backfield ready for a day's rest, instead of a game with Wisconsin.

Roy Horstman, Purdue fullback, had the better of all-Conference Jack Manders in the Purdue-Minnesota game, Horstman gaining 84 yards in 14 tries while Manders made but 32.

ulars who helped gain Saturday's tie with Purdue, but will have all hands out for scrimmage Wednesday. No serious injuries resulted from the battle and the Wildcats will be at full strength for Minnesota Saturday.

Bargain Rates Will Rule for Cyclones' Contest With K. S.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 24 (AP)—Dollars football will be offered followers of the gridiron sport Nov. 5 when the Iowa State team meets the Kansas State Wildcats here. M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics at Kansas State college, today announced the Kansas State stadium will be opened to the public for an admission price of $1, plus 10 cents federal tax. High school students he said, will be admitted to a special section for 40 cents.

Tracksters to Resume Fall Competition

University intramural fall trackmen will renew their inter-class activity tomorrow as freshmen vie among themselves and sophomores, juniors, and seniors are arrayed against each other. Ribbons will again be given for first three places in each meet.

The yearlings proved too strong for the upperclassmen last week in the first fall meet of the year when they collected over two thirds of the total points, so this time they have been segregated into a class by themselves.

The same events will be run off with the exception of the half mile and the two mile races. The other running events will be the 100, 200, and 300, while the field events will again be the discus, javelin, shotput, hammer, pole vault, broad jump, and high jump.

Freshman football men will be allowed to contest the weight events on old Iowa field. Other men may hang up their marks at the south end of the stadium.

Coach George Bresnahan is looking for improvement in the competition tomorrow since the men have had an additional week in which to practice. Last week's meet saw the thin clads more or less green.

The meet tomorrow will be in the nature of a warm up for the deciding fall meet of the year a week from tomorrow when the university championships are held. In conjunction with this meet there will also be held the annual Rotary club javelin throw. A traveling cup will go to the winner.

Carideo Scores a 93 KANSAS CITY (AP)—Frank Carideo's golf isn't quite up to his quarterbacking. In a game here the new Missouri university grid coach had a 93, compared with an 85 for Chester Brewer, Missouri's athletic director.

Irish to Play Kalona Friday

Wilkinson Seeks More Backfield Speed After Layoff

After a week of light workouts because no game was scheduled for last Friday, St. Pat's gridgers have again settled down to hard work in preparation for the game with Kalona, Friday.

Coach Emmett Wilkinson sent his charges through a long offensive drill yesterday afternoon, then ended up with a short scrimmage. He is trying to inject more speed into his backfield, the men being rather slow in the last game with University High.

In Good Condition The entire squad is in good condition after the short layoff. Wetrich's knee, which has been bothering him practically all season, is now in good shape, and he will be back at one of the halfback positions for the game with the Ke-Wash league team.

Kalona has a fast team, and one that must be feared. In their only appearance here this season they went down in defeat before University High, 18 to 6. But it must be remembered that the Kistlermen have not tasted defeat this year.

Yoder is Star "Red" Yoder, hard plunging fullback, is the nucleus of the Kalona team. He has been the chief gainer for his eleven and is also an adopt pass receiver. Both teams have been effective in pass offense this season and the game may turn out to be quite an aerial affair. Wilkinson expects to devote a good share of practice this week in that department.

A hard scrimmage is on today's program for the Irish.

Purdue to Receive Rest From Conference

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers, jolted by three hard Big Ten games, will be given a rest cure this week, only one hard drill being scheduled before they leave for an inter-sectional game with New York university.

Opponent of Friday Night Aerial Threat

George Washington to Use Many Passes; Squad in Shape

As a reward for their valiant battle against Minnesota Saturday, Iowa's Hawkeyes indulged in a brief workout yesterday afternoon, merely limbering up and running through a few formations in a dummy scrimmage.

Coach Solem indicated that he was satisfied with the defensive work of the line, and would devote most of the preparatory work for the George Washington game to moulding a pass defense for his backfield men.

The Hawkeyes have only this afternoon and a short time tomorrow noon in which to get ready for the game with the Washington, D. C. team Friday night.

Leave Tomorrow At 2:35 tomorrow afternoon, Coach Solem and his charges will board the train for the eastern jaunt. They will arrive in the capital city Thursday night in time for a work out under the lights, and then will rest until game time.

The team came through Saturday's game in good shape, and is ready to go with the exception of Zud Schammel, 218-pound tackle, who is nursing some boils on his neck, and Howard Moffitt, quarterback, who has a lame shoulder. Both men are expected to be back in form by Friday night.

Schammel was the tackle who grabbed a Minnesota pass in the closing minutes of Saturday's game

Coach Bill Boelter, who scouted the George Washington team when they played Tulsa last week end, reports that they weigh approximately the same as the Hawkeyes. Their offense is based on passes, forward and lateral, that are thrown from all parts of the field. Although they were defeated by Tulsa, breaks gave the winners two scoring opportunities.

To date, George Washington has won three games and lost two, Tulsa winning 29 to 14, and Alabama coming out ahead, 24 to 6.

HEART STRINGS By EDWINA L. MACDONALD

Love, young Patricia Braithwaite agrees to marry wealthy, middle-aged Harvey Blaine because the father she adores is in financial straits. She hopes, however, that handsome Jack Lawrence, a young camper whom she only met once— and the only man she ever wanted to kiss her—will rescue her from Blaine. When Jack fails to appear, she turns, in desperation, to Jimmie Warren, her Aunt Pamela's fascinating husband. They become infatuated and Pat breaks her engagement. Aunt Pam is suspicious but blames herself for warning Pat that love fades, inferring that her marriage to Jimmie had failed. Feeling that Jim no longer cares, Jimmie and Pat see no wrong in their "love." Then Jack appears, but Pat tells him he is too late—the emotion he awakened, blossomed to love under another's kiss. Jack, claiming he is the one Pat really cares for, refuses to give up, and the next day moves to her hotel. Jack is very popular, but he has eyes for Pat alone.

CHAPTER TWENTY

Warren had made no effort to speak with her alone, nor gave the slightest sign that he remembered that flaming night in the moon dappled garden, and Patricia was beginning to find the strain of eating at least twice a day in Jimmie's company unbearable. Sometimes she hated him intensely. Then, she was convinced that she loved him with a love as deathless as it was hopeless. This consoled her a little. Not everybody had depths enough for a big deathless love. There was something rather pleasant in knowing one's self to be such a person; something fine and splendid in seeing one's self in black silk with silver hair sitting over an open fire meditating on the one big love of a long, long life; of having one's grandchildren asking—no, their wouldn't be any grandchildren because she could never, never marry. Well, one's nieces and nephews—only unfortunately, having no brothers or sisters, there couldn't be any nieces or nephews. Then her mood would change. Pleasurable melancholy would give place to white hot anger. Thoughts and conversation intermingled so that sometimes she had a terrifying sense of not knowing which were silent, which spoken. How have you the face to sit there talking like that, Jimmie Warren? No, thank you, Jerry, no bridge for me. When less than a week ago you kissed me like a madman, held me in your arms as if you could never let me go, told me you loved me. . . . Girls, let's get up some old fashioned games. . . . But of course you lied, I suppose that's why you can look so darned innocent. Oh, no, we won't need music. We'll play some that go with songs. . . . I suppose you're used to that sort of a scene, you rouse! It means nothing to you except fun. . . . Won't you help us, Aunt Pam, think up some games? Oh, darn you! Darn you, Jimmie Warren. . . . How could you do such a thing to me. . . . When I might have cared for—someone else who's worth two of you. And now I can't. . . . The climax came one day as Patricia lingered over her lunch. Jack had gone to get a Richmond paper. "Come on, Grand conference in the library," said Ida Fallon. The gang trooped out after her. Perkins signaled Pamela on some household matter. Patricia pushed back her chair hastily as Pamela went out. "Wait, Pat," Warren said softly. She sank back, face flaming, heart hammering. His eyes returned to his paper. "In asking me to fill his place and guard you in his absence as his one precious jewel, your father

"In asking me to guard you in his absence, your father quite securely locked you away from me," Warren explained.

quite securely locked you away from me. You see that, don't you, Pat?"

She saw that his face was white. The hand that held his paper was shaking. "I wanted you to know, Pat, that I'm not such a darned cad as you must have thought," he went on without looking up. "That's all."

She was trembling from head to foot. Throat closed tight. Smothering. Drowned in the pained blue eyes now suddenly lifted to her across the table. So that was it. He cared. He cared. Daddy had tied him. And her. How had Daddy guessed?

Warren continued, his voice husky. "Have you—darn it—I can't ask you that. I—the fact is—forget it, Pat—I mean that night. You're too young and lovely and— His voice trailed off. She found her voice. "A thing like that happens once in a lifetime to a girl like me. I haven't forgotten. I won't. Ever."

"Are you still gorging, Pat?" asked Jack from the doorway. Her strength returned. She sprang up, abundant in pulsing vibrant life.

It was as if the sun had suddenly thrust through the clouds, illuminating the world, converting it into a grand pageant of color and movement. Jimmie loved her. . . . Terribly. . . . A big strong man shaking like that. . . . An experienced man of the world, who had known many beautiful and brilliant women, choosing a silly young girl like her. . . . "One of the finest minds at the bar," she'd heard a renowned judge say. And I, little I, can shake him like that. . . . It didn't matter now how much it rained, how grey the world was outside. The world inside her was blinding sunlight.

Jack followed her, his face stern. So Warren's man, he thought. The darned scoundrel! Even if he had not heard Patricia's last low spoken words, the telltale faces of the two would have emblazoned the truth to him.

Sharply Jack Lawrence knew the desire to kill a fellow man. All the blame he put where it belonged—on the brilliant, experienced man who had snared her confused senses.

Quite definitely Jack Lawrence decided that if he failed to win her for himself he would in any case kill Warren, thus leaving her free to choose someone who could take her before the world.

Telling himself that he could not stay under Warren's roof, Jack

Faculty Men Attend Annual Convention Held at Sioux City

Prof. E. L. Waterman of the college of engineering, Prof. J. J. Hinman, university water analyst, and Prof. Edward Bartow, head of the chemistry department, left yesterday for Sioux City to attend the annual convention of the Missouri Valley section of the American Waterworks association.

Professor Waterman is secretary-treasurer of the organization, and Prof. George J. Keller of the college of engineering is a director.

A paper on "Studies of floc using aluminum sulfate," in which Professor Bartow was a collaborator, will be read this afternoon at the convention.

Prof. Jacob Cornog of the chemistry department is co-author of a paper, "The air oxidation of ferrous sulfate," which will be read Thursday morning.

The convention opens this morning and will close Thursday noon.

Will Observe Movements of Meteor Group

Wylie Will Head Party on Nearing Trip to Arizona

Prof. C. C. Wylie, head of the astronomy department, will head a party of three Iowa scientists on a trip into Arizona next month to observe the Leonid meteor shower, he announced yesterday.

Accompanying him will be Prof. Thomas C. Poulter and Prof. R. E. Crilly, both of Iowa Wesleyan college, Mt. Pleasant, and Ray Anderson of Cedar Rapids, photographer. They are to leave Iowa City by auto Nov. 8, to be gone two weeks.

Wylie Set Up Reticles Reticles similar to those used in observing the Perseid meteors will be set up at two stations, probably Flagstaff and Canyon Diablo. These will determine the paths, through the atmosphere, of meteors observed simultaneously. A third reticle will be used to determine the radiant, or point of radiation, of the meteors from night to night. Cameras will be set up at each of the stations.

The scientists plan also an attempt to verify the observations of A. King, British astronomer, as to the radiance of the meteors between Nov. 14 and Nov. 20.

Expect Favorable Display The observations are being made in Arizona, Professor Wylie states, because of the probability of more favorable weather. Preliminary observations have indicated that there will be a better display in the southwest. He expects the display to be most favorable on the early morning of Nov. 16 or 17.

So far as is now known, the Iowa scientists will be the only astronomers in Arizona primarily to observe the Leonid shower.

Students at the University of Iowa and Iowa Wesleyan college also plan to observe the meteors through reticles set up in Iowa City and Mt. Pleasant.

Students in Columbia college at Dubuque, under the direction of the Rev. J. A. Theobald, will make systematic counts of the number of Leonids appearing near the date of the expected maximum.

Enrollment at the University of Missouri showed a decrease of 16 per cent from the 1931-1932 year, with a decline of 30 per cent in the freshman class.

O'Connor Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Liquor Possession

DES MOINES, Oct. 24 (AP) — Walter L. Maley, Des Moines attorney, today appeared for Edward L. O'Connor of Iowa City, Democratic candidate for attorney general, and filed O'Connor's waiver to the Polk county grand jury on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

Maley posted a $500 bond for the appearance of his client.

O'Connor was arrested following an auto accident near here last week. A charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated was dismissed.

Enrollment at the University of Missouri showed a decrease of 16 per cent from the 1931-1932 year, with a decline of 30 per cent in the freshman class.

Il Duce Asks Turin Support

Urges Hostile People to Join Fascist Party

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 24 (AP) — Premier Benito Mussolini made new profers of peace today to the Turinese, who probably have been the most hostile people in all Italy towards Fascism.

Workers in a big automobile plant cheered his statement that "no other country in Europe or America does for the workers what Fascism is doing for you." He urged them to join the Fascist party.

Prince Entertains The second day of his first visit in nine years was to conclude tonight with a dinner given him by Crown Prince Humbert and his bride in Castle Racconigi, the king's summer residence. It is the first such entertainment the crown prince has offered Il Duce.

Turin's reluctance to accept Fascism has been attributed partially to its affection for the prince, whose favorite home is here.

In contrast with the elaborate precautions taken yesterday for protection of the premier on the occasion of his arrival here, Signor Mussolini walked without an escort through

Fooling or Loyal?—Robinson Wonders

Benjamin W. Robinson, head of student employment bureau at Iowa Union, is learning all about the perversity of human nature.

Saturday he had lots of jobs and nobody wanted to work. Yesterday he had no jobs and everybody wanted to work.

Which proves that university students are either intensely loyal to the team or not as financially embarrassed as reports indicate, Mr. Robinson believes.

Intramural Archery Tournament Begins

The intramural archery tournament will open this afternoon at 4:15 on the women's athletic field. Marjorie Keiser, A4 of Keokuk, student captain of archery, and Janet Cumming, instructor in physical education, are in charge of the contest.

Each contestant will shoot 30 arrows at 24 yards distance. In case of inclement weather the tournament will be postponed until Thursday at the same place and time.

Airplanes licensed in Germany have increased in number from 635 in 1931 to 1,144 in 1932.

Porter Talks to C. of C. on Government

Says Economy Moves May Lead Toward Waste

That economy moves in county government are likely to be the direct cause of waste was the theory put forth by Prof. Kirk H. Porter of the political science department, in a talk before members of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon in the American Legion Community building yesterday.

He condemned the pressure being brought to bear on boards of supervisors, and said that either a reduction in the number of counties in the state, or the use of the manager plan of government would bring no appreciable reduction in county costs.

Small Saving

"Perhaps such a plan would bring some saving," he said, "but the saving would be only in that it would do away with a number of men and women now hired in county government."

Pointing out that very little of the taxpayer's dollar is used in paying county employees, Professor Porter said that less than two cents of every dollar taken in taxes is used in paying county salaries. Even if there were no other reasons for opposing the change the very fact that so many would be deprived, would, he said, make a change impracticable.

Big Costs Will Remain

The big items of expense in county government will remain despite any reorganization, he said. He mentioned highway construction and maintenance, and poor relief as specific instances where costs would not be reduced.

"As an example of the waste of county funds incurred when laymen replace professionals in the carrying out of county functions," he said, "consider the case of bridge construction."

Compares Officers

"The engineer, trained for his position, names the location for the bridge and decides on the proper type and weight needed according to the duties it must perform. The bridge is constructed and remains a permanent improvement in the county highway system."

"Suppose, on the other hand, that the engineer, in order to cut county expenses, is dismissed and laymen take his place. They also order the construction of a bridge. A heavy storm comes and the bridge is washed away because it was not in the proper place or because it was not the proper construction."

Cites Example of Waste

"A new bridge is constructed of perhaps twice the weight and cost. No one stops to consider that had the engineer still been in his position the accident would never have happened and the county saved great sums of money."

He praised the Iowa system of county government and said that rather than reduce the number of professional men in office, the number should be increased. He put forward this method above all else as the best means for a further reduction of county costs.

The county manager plan was cited by him as objectionable because it isolated the country from the state and reduced its efficiency in carrying out the functions of the state.

Centralization Impracticable

Centralization he also said was impracticable since it would give the state complete control over the county and would not allow the carrying out of the numerous small functions now associated with the county.

Chow, Chow

Two chows of more than the average size attracted a good deal of attention on a downtown street yesterday. They sat in the rear seat of a parked sedan, and appeared to miss nothing of the happenings of the street.

And Chow

Roy L. Chopek post members of the American Legion met Monday night for their monthly "chow" at the American Legion Community building. A short program was presented following the meal.

Whoopie

Jim Moylan was given five days in the county resort for intoxication when he appeared before Police Judge Charles L. Zager yesterday.

Another

T. J. Lencey was fined $5 and costs by Police Judge Zager yesterday for the same offense.

WE APPRECIATE

The ovation given us upon the opening of our MEAT MARKET Saturday at ECONOMY CASH STORE NO. 1 (corner Washington and Clinton Sts.) Because of the tremendous crowds that exceeded our anticipations, we were, at times, unable to maintain our reputation of immediate and careful attention to our customers' wants. We're sorry!

For the benefit of those who stayed away because of bad weather and the crowd, we are going to continue the SPECIALS, featured at the OPENING, through TODAY AND WEDNESDAY. Our creed of selling the HIGHEST QUALITY FOODS AT LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES will also be effected in our MEAT DEPARTMENT. Only Meats of the HIGHEST QUALITY will be sold—but at PRICES far below what you have been accustomed paying for Meats of LIKE QUALITY.

Fraternity and Sorority Stewards and other group buyers are especially invited to view our new MEAT DEPARTMENT. The same proportional SAVINGS that the ECONOMY CASH STORES have effected for these groups on Groceries are now open to them on HIGHEST QUALITY MEATS.

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

For Gun Toters

Sheriff Don McComas announced yesterday that the second annual school of instruction for vigilantes and other peace officers will be held in the court house Thursday. The "students" will be given instruction in the proper method of handling fire arms, criminals, and that sort of thing.

Cleaner

The debris from the corn festival, although it is not all gone, was cleaned off the streets in a remarkably short time. Or maybe it just isn't noticed now in the general fall accumulation of leaves.

Pow Wow

All loyal Republicans converged on the Spanish room at the Hawkes' Nest cafe last night to pay tribute to Harrison E. Spangler of Cedar Rapids, one of Hoover's rising lieutenants.

No Secret

Joe Crookham, LI of Oskaloosa, isn't single after all. The news leaked out yesterday that Joe was married in De Kalb, Ill., Aug. 1, to Lill Ravick of Guttenburg.
