FIVE CENTS

IOWA CITY, IOWA

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1932

VOL. XXXII

NUMBER 139

VOTERS TO NAME PRESIDENT TODAY

Officials Anticipate Record Balloting in Today's Elections

Expect Local Vote to Show Unusual Gain

21 Local Candidates Ask Support of Citizens

Record numbers of Iowa City and Johnson county voters will drop their daily tasks momentarily today to go to the polls and decide the fate of 25 candidates running for county and local offices.

Four of the 25 candidates, County Auditor Ed Sulek, County Sheriff Don McComas, County Attorney F. R. Olsen, and Clerk of Court Walter J. Barrow, are unopposed in their races for re-election. With the exception of these four offices, 11 positions are open contests today.

Make Requests
Special requests have been made by City Clerk George J. Dohrer and the Iowa City League of Women Voters for all persons who can to vote during the periods of lightest activity at the polls.

Busiest hours of the day are expected to be from 4 p.m. until the polls close, at 8 p.m. A great number of working men and others whose time is occupied during the day are expected to rush the polls after working hours.

From 7 a.m. until 11 a.m. will probably be the lightest hours of the day.

Close Contests
Many of the county and local offices are expected to be closely contested, judging from the margin of victory of certain candidates in the June primary and the amount of pre-election activity this fall.

The races for district judgeship and the county treasurer's position are expected to be the most closely fought of the election.

Judge R. G. Popham, who has been on the local district bench for 16 years, is running for re-election for the fifth term against the opposition of James P. Gaffney of Williamsburg. Judge Popham is a Republican and Mr. Gaffney carries the Democratic standard.

Position Difficult
County Treasurer Charles L. Berry will probably be closely pushed in his bid for re-election by his Republican opponent, W. E. Smith. Mr. Berry's position is made even more difficult in face of the pending law suits in regard to a $20,000 discrepancy between the records of his office and those of the defunct First National bank.

John M. Kadlec, present county recorder, will likely find unusually stiff opposition in the candidacy of R. J. "Dick" Jones, Iowa City grocery man and one-time farmer.

Frank A. Brosh, Democratic candidate for the office of coroner, is expected to give Coroner Dr. George Marech a stiff run for re-election. Close tallies are also looked for in the battles for places on the county board of supervisors and for justice of the peace.

Print Ballo's
In view of the fact that extra ballots were printed yesterday by order of County Auditor Ed Sulek in addition to the 18,000 printed last week and that Iowa City registrations set a record number, an extraordinarily large vote is expected in all of Johnson county's 27 precincts.

This will be the first time Johnson county voters will have cast their ballots as members of the first congressional district in a general election.

The new district, according to the act passed by the last legislature, consists of Iowa, Johnson, Cedar, Muscatine, Louisa, Jefferson, Henry, Des Moines, Van Buren, and Lee counties.

Firemen Extinguish Two Small Fires

Firemen answered two calls yesterday and Sunday. A lighted cigarette but in the Courier hall paper chute at 11:15 a.m. yesterday started a fire which was extinguished by firemen before it had gained any headway.

Sparks from the chimney caused a fire on the roof of the Phi Delta Phi fraternity, 128 N. Clinton street, at 2 p.m. Sunday. The fire caused little damage.

President-Elect?

Franklin D. Roosevelt — born Hyde Park, N. Y., 1882 — graduated from Harvard 1904 — entered Columbia law school 1904 — elected governor of New York 1928 — nominated for the presidency by the Democratic national convention at Chicago July 1932.

Demo Leader Sees Hope in Party Victory

Asks Voters to Help Bring About Change

COLUMBUS HALL, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—In his final speech of the campaign, Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight told the voters of the nation that if it should be their verdict tomorrow that he become president, he would in humility, seek to bring the ideals and hopes of the American people to a "greater realization."

The Democratic presidential candidate cast a fleeting glance back at the wide travels of his campaign and expressed his gratitude for "the great understanding and tolerance of America" that he said had come out to meet him.

"We May Build"
"Out of this unity that I have seen we may build the strongest strand to lift ourselves out of this depression," he said.

"If all of this multitude of my friends and neighbors give expression tomorrow to your united confidence in the invigorating tonic of a change, I may in some modest way bring this unity of purpose to practical fulfillment.

"To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man.

"Mend Torn Fabrics"
"I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration.

"If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next-door neighbors of Dutchess county, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence, seek to meet this great expectation of yours.

"With your help and your patience and your generous good will, we can mend the torn fabric of our common life.

"Expressed Hope"
"On the very eve of the exercise of the greatest right of the American electorate, I bid you good night. And I add to that, God bless you all."

Governor Roosevelt said that his travels through the west and the south, the north and east had brought to him a realization that the people he had seen "have expressed to me hope in the future, confidence that things will be better."

Doris Kolstad Dies at Local Hospital

Doris Mary Kolstad, 3 month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Kolstad, 1717 F street, died at a local hospital at 4:55 a.m. Monday. She is survived by her parents. Funeral service will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Sharon cemetery with the Rev. Arthur C. Proehl, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, in charge.

Say Million Voters to Cast Ballots Today

Weather Forecasts See Favorable Outlook for Trips to Polls

DES MOINES, Nov. 7 (AP)—A heavy vote which may set a new state record is anticipated Tuesday when Iowans designate their choice for president and select state, congressional, and county officials.

Interest in the presidential race, which has held the spotlight in this state through the weeks of campaigning, continued strong. Election eve officials expected that more than 1,000,000 Iowa voters would go to the polls.

See Favorable Weather
Weather bureau reports indicated that weather favorable to a large total vote would prevail. It was expected that rains which were general over much of the area today would end by election morning and that there would be partly cloudy and cooler weather.

A heavy downfall probably would have the effect of cutting the total vote to some extent by preventing residents of rural areas from reaching the polls. Today's rains were not heavy enough to do this, however, it was believed.

In view of the heavy vote expected, Secretary of State G. C. Greenwald urged Iowans to vote as early as possible during the day, to prevent a last minute rush which would swamp election clerks and judges in some of the state's 2,435 precincts.

It was suggested that workingmen visit the polls on their way to work or at the noon hour, if possible, and that housewives cast their ballots during the morning hours.

Polls to Open at 7 a.m.
Voting placed in Iowa cities requiring registration will open at 7 a.m. and in all other communities at 8 a.m. and all will close at 8 p.m. with the close of the polls, election officials immediately will begin the task of compiling the totals.

Candidates for major places in the state government ended their campaigns for the most part Saturday night, and observed a truce over Sunday. A few, however, made last minute appeals to the voters tonight.

Gov. Dan Turner, candidate for re-election; Henry Field, senatorial candidate; C. F. Clark, candidate for lieutenant governor; Harrison E. Spangler, Republican national committeeman; and Mrs. Virginia Bedell, vice chairman of the Republican state central committee, were the scheduled speakers in behalf of the Republican cause.

Democratic speakers and candidates made their final campaign addresses tonight included Clyde Herring, candidate for governor; N. G. Krascher, candidate for lieutenant governor; H. A. Wallace, Des Moines farm editor; and E. G. Dunn of Mason City.

Iowa Claimed by Democrats

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Iowa was included in a list of eight "normally very heavy Republican" states claimed for Gov. Roosevelt in an election eve statement today by James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman.

"Last minute reports from precinct chairmen all over the country giving their best estimates as to the outcome in their voting districts is conclusive that the vote by which Roosevelt and Garner will be elected will surpass our fondest hopes and our most optimistic predictions," he said.

Midwest Voters Ponder Choice

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP)—The tidal wave of presidential campaigning, which surged out of the central states with President Hoover's departure for Palo Alto, tonight, left an aftermath of eddying comment stirring middlewesterners to last minute reflection.

The night before election found both parties hammering steadily away in an attempt to forge a corn belt victory link in the chain of votes that will carry a president to Washington.

2. Special Problems (c) World Peace

(Editors note: In this seventh and final article in the series on current issues, Clara M. Daley, assistant professor in the history department, gives her impressions of the world peace problem, and related problems of disarmament, tariff, League of Nations and World Court. Professor Daley teaches university courses in ancient, medieval, and modern history, and has made a specialty of the field covered in the following article, and has delivered lectures before various groups on the subject contained in it.)

By CLARA M. DALEY
Although the cause of peace has been close to the hearts of all Americans since the World War, there has been a distinct divergence of opinion as to the most efficient method of attaining this end. One group, standing for nationalism and isolation, holds that the great war proved the necessity of greater and more costly armaments in order that the United States might either be at peace or victorious in the next conflict. The other group contends that war has grown too costly in men and money to be used as a method, that extensive military preparations are provocative of war rather than conducive to peace, that greater emphasis needs to be placed upon international cooperation for the settlement of disputes and that conditions and policies that lead to war should be removed or ameliorated. Those of the first group believe in continuing the method of force which has been in use from primitive times, a method which cannot decide any question from the standpoint of what is right or just. Those of the second group think that since science and invention have made the world a unit, that methods adapted to the new conditions should become operative. The writer agrees with the latter contention.

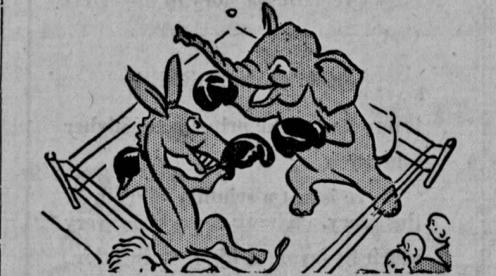

At the end of the war when the world was in a most unstable condition, the United States unfortunately assumed an attitude of isolation, leaving the nations with whom she had been fighting to recover as best they might. She neither accepted the peace treaty nor the League of Nations. The United States had not only lost fewer men in the conflict but she had made the most money and had emerged as the creditor nation. She could have afforded to be generous when her councils were needed among the discordant and conflicting interests let loose by the war in which she had taken part. This policy of the most powerful nation on earth undoubtedly retarded the cause of peace and delayed the recovery of the world. It is significant to note that in 1920 both Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt were enthusiastically aligned with President Wilson in favor of the League of Nations but both have since backslid. They became interested in politics. In the present campaign it is a bit ironic that while the Democratic platform makes no mention of the League, the Republicans pride themselves upon the fact that "our government has acted in harmony with the governments represented in the League of Nations." In fact the Republicans seem now to have accepted with real satisfaction the principle of the much-derided Article X of the League covenant which guarantees the independence and territorial integrity of nations. Their platform declares that "this government would not recognize any situation, treaty or agreement brought about between Japan and China by force." They declare that this principle is a "significant moral and material barrier to prevent a nation obtaining the fruits of aggressive warfare." This is just what was hoped for by the authors of Article X.

Hoover Issues Final Appeal of Campaign

President Pleads for Country's Welfare in Speech

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL AT ELKO, Nev., Nov. 7 (AP)—With the parlor car of his train as a brilliant illuminated stage in this dim lit Nevada valley, President Hoover tonight broadcast nationwide his final campaign appeal—a deep conviction that for the welfare of the United States the Republican party should continue to administer the government.

While miners, sheepherders, cattle ranchers and part of the 3,000 population of this little town clustered about his car, the president told a larger audience of voters over the air that "the choice you make now is more than the choice for another four years."

Appeal by Truth

"There is," he said, "great divergence in philosophy of government between the parties which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice may hazard the welfare of our children and our children's children. I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted, not by appeal to destructive emotion but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts."

Even as his train rolled to a stop the words of other Republican speakers came from a radio set in his car. From New York, Chicago, Shenandoah, Ia., and Washington the same program carried pleas for the voting of a Republican ticket at tomorrow's polls.

Coolidge, Mills Speak
Calvin Coolidge, Secretary Mills, Senator Capper of Kansas, Chairman Sanders of the Republican national committee, and others spoke in rapid fire succession for an hour and a half, with the chief executive climaxing the program.

Expect Huge Vote as Bitter National, Local Campaigns End; Parties Claim Victory

States Will Decide Prohibition Issues, Relief Bills, Budget Problems; Candidates Await Popular Decisions

By EDWARD J. DUFFY (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Inspired by the life-blood of sovereignty that has coursed since revolutionary times, the republic is being provided today with a president and a congress upon whom the people will depend to conquer the difficulties of the four years after March 4.

In 34 states, voters also name the man to whom the governorship will be entrusted. In 39, subordinate officials are being chosen.

Aside from all this, and overshadowed by the excitements of the Hoover-Roosevelt and other dominant battles, more than 150 questions of public policy are getting answered by referendum.

State Issues
These provide an index of the manifold issues at stake, embracing as they do disputes over prohibition, relief for the destitute, unbalanced budgets, and the like. State bond issues being passed on aggregate upwards of $150,000,000.

With the eighteenth amendment assailed in a manner not experienced since it took effect in 1920, the millions aligned on both sides of that issue will watch especially the 11 states having referenda bearing on the liquor issue.

Vote on Repeal
"Shall the state enforcement act be repealed?" is in effect the question in eight—Arizona, California, Colorado, Louisiana, New Jersey, North Dakota, Washington and Oregon.

Connecticut decides whether its assembly shall petition congress to propose repeal of the amendment, Michigan votes on repeal of the constitutional bone dry clause, and Wyoming voters give their opinion on whether the national amendment should be repealed.

The entire house of representatives is up for election, except the three from Maine elected in September.

Predict Majority
In the senate only 34 seats have to be filled. Democrats have freely predicted that substantial majorities in both congressional branches will be won by their party; but the Republicans have not conceded any substantial gains.

Among the senatorial contests that have aroused widespread anticipation to know the result are those involving some of the longest-serving and most-publicized legislators.

All Republicans, these include Watson of Indiana, Smoot of Utah, Moses of New Hampshire, and Jones of Washington.

Record Vote
If the electorate heeds the calls by the candidates last night to head for the polls as never before, the outpouring will make precedent. For the registration of nearly 47,000,000 surpasses all records, and the new high vote of 1928 was some 10,000,000 less than that.

Arrival of the decisive hours found Republicans and Democrats forecasting results favorable to them.

"We will carry the country," President Hoover told a group of well-wishers when his train halted once yesterday enroute to his California home.

Claim Victory
Everett Sanders, the Republican chairman, estimated that the 266 electoral votes required for re-election would be exceeded by 117.

"I am confident of the result," Governor Roosevelt has said. James A. Farley, Democratic chairman, envisioned an epochal triumph, asserting that not a single state was absolutely safe for the opposition.

A record Socialist vote is foreseen by Norman Thomas, who wound up his speech making in Milwaukee last night with the assertion that the balloting is not an end for his party "but the beginning of a new and greater crusade."

Voters Will Decide
The only one who can speak with absolute authority, the people, is doing it from dawn to dark today at elaborate voting machines in cities and in simple rural meeting places from the Atlantic to the Pacific and border to border.

Last week the chief executive in a telegram to a New Jersey party leader pointed to his acceptance speech and said his views were unshaken. The pronouncements of candidates and conventions evoked varying expressions from the national prohibition organizations, some supporting President Hoover, others making no commitments, and all urging the election of congressmen and senators taking their view of the liquor controversy.

Iowa Debate Team Wins Over Dublin

Debate on Question of Cancellation of War Debts

Speakers representing the University of Iowa won a decision of the audience in a debate with speakers from Trinity college, University of Dublin, last night in Iowa Union.

The debate, on the question of cancellation of the war debts, is the only international debate on this year's intercollegiate program. The Irish university, upholding the affirmative, was represented by James J. Auchmuty and Garrett Gill. The Iowa speakers were LaVerne Klues, C4 of Postville, and Vergil Tacy, A3 of Council Bluffs.

Arguments of Affirmative
That the European nations are unable to pay their war debts, and that cancellation would aid recovery from the world economic depression, were the arguments of the affirmative. They stressed the increased buying power, with which Europe could purchase American products, Europe would not use the money to increase armaments, they asserted.

The negative pointed out that cancellation meant the transfer of payments from the European nations to the American taxpayers. The burden of taxes is so great now, that the United States would be unable to bear the added burden. The effect of cancellation, they asserted, would be to demoralize international credits.

Receive 80 Votes
The affirmative received 80 audience votes, and the negative received 155 audience votes. A large percentage of the audience failed to cast a vote. The decision was made on the merits of the question.

Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts, presided over the debate.

Proceeding the debate, the speakers were honored at a dinner on the support of Iowa Union. A reception followed the debate.

The Irish speakers will broadcast a radio address this morning, before leaving Iowa City.

Senator James E. Watson

Indiana's veteran senator, James E. Watson, Republican, conducted a campaign that was less spectacular than had been anticipated. He stumped many parts of the state, however, as did his Democratic opponent, Frederick Van Nuys, Indianapolis attorney.

Michigan Democrats drove relentlessly to jar the state out of the Republican column, with the presidential and gubernatorial campaigns attracting almost equal attention. The state has never given a Democratic presidential candidate a majority since the birth of the Republican party. This year, Democratic leaders claimed the tide had turned.

MIDWEST Voters Ponder Choice of Hoover, Roosevelt

In as many places as possible: Republicans following up the impression made by President Hoover in a half dozen speeches in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota last week-end.

Democrats Active
Democratic strategists continued as active, concentrating more on local gatherings to spread the doctrine for Roosevelt. Chieftains of both parties estimated that as many as 75 to 100 locally arranged meetings were held today and tonight in several states.

Congressional, senatorial, and gubernatorial struggles in the midwest have spiced the presidential campaign. The currents of political feeling unloosed by these contests have made it more difficult for observers to chart the possible trend of voting.

Prohibition, Tariff
Prohibition, the tariff, prosperity, and party regularly have been issues in the congressional and senatorial contests, in which the future of many veterans in capitol halls was at stake.

The campaign for Ohio's junior senatorship has centered around prohibition. Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, Democrat, elected two years ago to the unexpired term of the late Theodore Burton, has been a consistent foe of the eighteenth amendment. Gilbert Bettman, of Cincinnati, attorney general of Ohio, Republican candidate, has maintained that "reiter" may be provided only through another constitutional amendment dealing with the liquor question.

Spirited Campaign for Senator
In South Dakota, the senatorial chair occupied now by Republican Peter Norbeck, investigator of Wall street, was the center of a spirited campaign by four other candidates. U. S. G. Cherry, the Democratic candidate, has made two unsuccessful campaigns for the office. There was also a Liberty party candidate—Howard Platt, and two Independent candidates, L. J. Marbeck and Oscar Luttio.

Wisconsin has seen a whirlwind campaign for the senatorship, conducted by John B. Chapple, Republican, Ashland editor, who eliminated Senator John J. Blaine in the primary, and F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat. Duffy is an attorney and has been prominent in American Legion affairs.

election has been waged by Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker, staunch Hoover supporter and personal dr. His Democratic opponent, William A. Constock, has tried three times before and has declared "never before have I thought that I would win." Constock favored repeal and modification of the Volstead act.

Into the sharply etched picture of midwest politics, the minority parties bulged larger than ever before. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, has made many middle western appearances and will wind up his campaign in Milwaukee.

Liberty Party

South Dakota has its Liberty party; in Ohio, Independent Farmer Labor candidates were on the ballot, and those of the Independent Progressive party as well. Nebraska has two candidates running by petition without party label, and Minnesota has a block of Farmer Labor aspirants. The Illinois ballot contained the names of candidates for the Socialist, Socialist Labor, Prohibition and Communist parties for president and all state offices.

After College WHAT?

Julian S. Myrick, famous New York general agent, says: "Selling life insurance is the best paid hard work there is. No capital required other than a good character, an active mind and perseverance. Any young man with these qualifications will find a great future in insurance."

NO OTHER BUSINESS offers greater rewards for hard work.

But insurance offers some pretty tough problems. Perhaps that explains why in this business, as in college, a pipe is the most popular smoke.

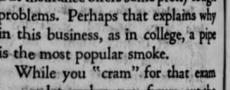

While you "crum" for that exam . . . or later when you figure out the best way to sell a $100,000 policy, just light up a pipeful of Edgeworth Smoking Tobacco.

Edgeworth is the favorite college smoke.* And only in Edgeworth can you find that distinctive blend of fat old burley tobacco. If you would like to try before you buy, just write Lane & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va., for a free sample package.

* A recent investigation showed Edgeworth the favorite smoke at 42 out of 64 leading colleges.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

For Calmness

NOW THAT THE SMOKE of oratory has cleared away and the candidates have scurried into retreat to await the outcome, it is to be hoped that the electorate has taken advantage of a Sunday and Monday of rest to consider the issues seriously and to formulate their convictions soundly.

As in no other campaign for many years the present one involves issues that are vital in American political philosophy. The principles of the two major parties have come into direct conflict, disclosing two fundamentally opposed theories of government. Choice between the two is a matter of more than ordinary serious concern to every voter today.

Personalities have played a prominent part in this campaign as in all political contests. But principles, not personalities, are the important forces in opposition at the polls today.

The good voter will be the one who considers the issues seriously and without bias, who weighs all parties and all candidates evenly in the balance and makes his choice according to the dictates of his own best judgment.

It must be remembered, also, that there is little virtue in voting any ticket straight; any party is likely to have a poor candidate here and there. Candidates for every office should be considered with the same reason and the same sound logic with which the voter makes his choice for president.

Upon the sincerity and the coolness and the logic with which the voters pass their judgment depends the future of the nation—the welfare of its people as well as its system of government.

Pep Meeting Politics

THE INSTRUCTIONS issued by Pi Epsilon Pi not long ago for making torches with canned heat might well have been given out by the Young Republican league. The same kind of torches, the same kind of music, and the same general technique were utilized in the Hoover rally a week ago.

But that was not a college phenomenon, not a Republican phenomenon. At North English, in adjacent Iowa county, Saturday night rural Democrats had a similar demonstration—the like of which old timers said had not been witnessed since Grover Cleveland won from James G. Blaine.

Astride a white donkey at the head of a procession of farm wagons, automobiles, and a tattered representation of "the forgotten man" rode the farmer who later presided at an outdoor street meeting. Signs suggested the Farm Holiday association parade in Des Moines when President Hoover spoke.

All of these were revealed in the flickering flare of torches of a little more homemade sort than the university pep meeting variety—cloth soaked in kerosene at one end of the stick.

What the effect of such a demonstration is cannot be accurately told. Perhaps the grief of Iowa county Democrats that they lacked a stuffed elephant to drag through the streets of North English was justified. Actually, it seems most likely that such activities have their greatest influence on those who take part—the farmer Democrats or the college Republicans. It gives them something to do, some share in the great campaign.

And, whatever the results of pep meeting politics, the fact of its recurrence signifies a campaign important as few have been since the old days when government was taken in such dead earnest as to make the loafer who rushed into village stores for free kerosene refills (which he took home) only the exception that proved the rule. Return of political interest even of this character is a hopeful sign.

Wanted: Schooling

NEW PROBLEMS in education have confronted the school directors of Chicago with the horde of applications to high schools for permission to take post graduate work. The applications come from young men and women who have been unable to find jobs, and want to go to school until better opportunities present themselves.

The rub comes from the facts that Chicago schools have not enough teachers to meet the need for a large increase in students, and that the schools' equipment is not large enough to accommodate them.

The senior high school enrollment is 105,000, the largest in school history for the city, and the shortage of seating space is 47,000. High school principals have been instructed not to allow graduates to enroll. Supt. William Bogan stated that "we feel they (the graduates) have already had their chance for a high school education; if we took them on it would mean a serious handicap to regular high school students."

Throughout the United States, it is estimated that 100,000 jobless high school graduates have gone back to their schools in the larger cities. The figures are those of the federal department of the interior.

One thing has been done which has been effective; that is, the increasing use of extension study. It seems to be the best panacea at present. The small need for physical equipment on a large scale is of course its best advantage. Its lower cost to the individual is another.

Perhaps the great universities of the future will teach a student body which is not on their campuses except in a minority. Or changing economic conditions may solve the problem automatically.

Some Random Thoughts

(From the Kansas City Star)

Politics produces queer trades and queer accidents. When Secretary Hurley was speaking in Tennessee a few weeks ago he was repeatedly interrupted by a heckler. In one town the heckler was particularly obnoxious. He kept shouting, "You're a liar!"

The crowd began to yell, "Throw him out!" "No, don't do that, my friends," said the secretary, taking a shot in the dark. "The Democrats probably are paying him to heckle me and we don't want to throw the poor fellow out of a job and add to the unemployed."

Soon afterward, at Philadelphia, a man came up to Mr. Hurley as he was leaving a meeting. "Mr. Secretary," he said, "I want to declare in and get a job. I'm the fellow that was heckling you down in Tennessee, but my meal ticket has run out and I thought you Republicans might want to use me."

TODAY'S TOPICS

So They Say—

"Of more importance, the governor (Roosevelt) in his speeches conveys the impression that as president I should have stopped the boom. He does not describe the method by which I should have stopped it. Of course, there is no constitutional nor statutory authority to presidents to stop booms. If the president should have attempted to stop the boom one of the persons he would have needed to warn is the present Democratic candidate."—Herbert Hoover.

"In simple terms I have attempted to say to the people of this country that the way out of disaster and depression is a battle to be fought by the people; that the task of rebuilding must come from the resolute action of millions of men and women who belong to all parties; but at the same time that leadership is essential to provide for them plans of action and to keep vividly before them the definite objectives."—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"The only conceivable reason for voting against President Hoover is that he is somehow to blame for all of the troubles that have arisen by reason of this depression. Most important of all, from beginning to end of the campaign the Democratic candidate has failed to deal with the greatest problem in American life today; that is, recovery from the depression. He has presented no program for dealing with it. He has no program."—Ogden L. Mills.

"Herbert Hoover believes in the aristocracy of government. His scheme is to feed the man at the top and let the food trickle down to the man at the bottom. That's his philosophy and it does not fit into our scheme at all when we realize the millions of human beings in want and destitution."—George W. Norris.

"If you vote Republican, you vote for a system of paternalistic capitalism under which the government gets deeper and deeper in business for the sake of saving business.

"If you vote Democratic, you vote for the same capitalist system with slightly different trimming. If anything, the Democratic party is more ramshackle and in sections more corrupt and more stupidly reactionary even than the Republicans."—Norman Thomas.

Here are the "Hoover states," and their electoral vote, listed by Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee:
Colorado 6; Connecticut 8; Illinois 29; Indiana 14; Iowa 11; Kansas 9; Maine 5; Massachusetts 17; Michigan 19; Minnesota 11; Montana 4; New Hampshire 4; New Jersey 16; New York 47; Ohio 26; Oregon 5; Pennsylvania 36; Rhode Island 4; South Dakota 4; Vermont 3; Wyoming 3; total 281.

And the "Democratic states" listed as the composite opinion of 200 observers, in the New York Times:

Alabama 11; Arizona 3; Arkansas 9; Florida 7; Georgia 12; Idaho 4; Illinois 29; Indiana 14; Kentucky 11; Louisiana 10; Maryland 8; Mississippi 9; Missouri 15; Montana 4; Minnesota 11; Nebraska 7; Nevada 3; New Mexico 3; North Carolina 13; North Dakota 4; Ohio 26; Oklahoma 11; South Carolina 8; South Dakota 4; Tennessee 11; Texas 23; Virginia 11; Washington 8; West Virginia 8; Wyoming 3; total 300.

Book Bits—

(From Samuel Seabury—A Challenge, by Walter Chambers)

The American philosophy is ideal, but in our practical application of government we have drifted far from its original conception. The fault lies fundamentally in our individual refusal to participate in the nomination and election of those who control the government. We delegate this power to the political leaders, who decide on the men for whom the people will vote. The choice to which the people are limited is the selection of those whom they deem to be the lesser of the evils presented. The result too often is that the political bosses win, and the people lose.

(From Of Thee I Sing, by George S. Kaufman)
SENATOR JONES: Unfortunately, however, while the people of the West admire our party, and love our party, and respect our party, they do not trust our party. And so, gentlemen, in the name of those gallant boys who fought overseas, and the brave mothers who sent them, we must not, we cannot, we dare not allow Russian Bolshevism to dump cheap Chinese labor on these free American shores! Gentlemen, I thank you.

General Notices

To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the Present Semester, Tuesday, Jan. 31, 1933
Each student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the university convocation to be held Tuesday, Jan. 31, 1933, must have made his formal application, on a card provided for the purpose in the registrar's office, in university hall, on or before Saturday, Nov. 19, 1932. It is of the utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately; for otherwise it is very likely that a student, who may be in other respects qualified, will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester. Making application for the degree, or the certificate, involves the payment of the graduation fee at the time the application is made, the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call first at the registrar's office for the application card. H. C. DORCAS, registrar

E. H. Lauer's Mother Dies After Illness

Mrs. Otto H. Lauer, 80, mother of Prof. E. H. Lauer, university director of university athletics, died Saturday afternoon at a Chicago hospital. Funeral service will be held Tuesday afternoon at Peru, Ill., the old home of the Lauer family. Professor Lauer and two children, Eleanor and Paul, will attend. Mrs. Lauer had been ill for more than a year. When a change for the worse was noted in her condition Thursday night Professor Lauer was called to Chicago from Des Moines, where he had been attending the state teachers' convention. He was at her bedside when she died. Professor Lauer's father is confined to his bed with illness at Bensenville, Ill., and will be unable to attend the funeral service. Mrs. E. H. Lauer is in Mercy hospital here, having undergone an operation for appendicitis Saturday evening. Her condition was reported improved last night.

Australian Talks on Educational Problems

"Problems of education in Australia" was the subject of a lecture given yesterday at Old Capitol by K. S. Cunningham, executive secretary of the Australian council for research, who is traveling in this country at the present time. Mr. Cunningham, who is accompanied by his wife, is staying at the home of Prof. W. Ross Livingston of the history department, while in Iowa City.

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

STUDIO GOSSIP

By HARRISON CARROLL

FILM SCANDAL

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Hereafter, keep an eye on Eric Linden, young R-K-O player who went over to Warners on loan and made such a hit in "Life Begins."

Out to capitalize on its property, R-K-O turned down a flock of outside offers and is putting Eric into the cast of "The Goosewoman," old silent success now to be remade as a talkie.

He plays the part taken by Jack Pickford in the silent version. Not only this, but the studio is building the role to even greater proportions in the new story.

Around Hollywood you hear many expressions of disappointment that Anna Q. Nilsson didn't get the former Louise Dresser role. She took a test and everything looked favorable, but at the last minute the studio wired to Broadway for Helen McKeller. Viewing the matter as just a temporary setback, Anna is still confident that she will make that long delayed return to the screen. One of the better Will Rogers anecdotes is told by Rob Wagner, genial Hollywood chronicler. Some time back Will received a fan letter from a man in Oklahoma. The writer said he had attended every Rogers picture and that, on each occasion, he had to walk six miles from his home to the theater.

"What about it, Will?" someone asked, "are you going to send him an autographed photo?" "Well," drawled Rogers, "I guess I really ought to give the man a horse."

HOLLYWOOD BY NIGHT

A law unto itself, the Ambassador Coconut Grove celebrated Halloween. Sitting at a rinkside table was former President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico. Bob Leonard and Gertrude Olmstead had a big party, among whom were Edna Murphy and Harry Beaumont. Pretty Virginia Cherrill (she watched the dancers through a lorgnette) was with Wright S. Ludington of Santa Barbara. At another table, and very serious-faced, was Lillian Roth and a Los Angeles broker. A few evenings ago, in a more prankish frame of mind, Lillian showed up at a local night-club wearing a man's suit and a brown felt hat. Fifi Dorsey was another film celebrity at the Grove. Also Mae Clarke, whose boyish hair-cut contrasted sharply with one of those puffed-sleeves evening gowns. Saw Polly Ann Young tete-a-tete with Houston Branch and Jack Oakie was out again with Mary Lallande. There was a whole tableful of Warners at the opposite end of the room. Filmiand never tires of the Grove, and Phil Harris' orchestra is very popular.

Suspension of Prison Term Frees Curtis

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP)—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat manufacturer, who was convicted of obstructing justice last July for his part in the fruitless search for the kidnaped baby of Charles A. Lindbergh, went free today.

Judge Adam O. Robins suspended operation of a one year prison sentence, Curtis then paid a $1,000 fine, shook hands with the judge, and walked out free. He had been under bond pending appeal of his conviction.

"Interests of Justice"

The action of the court was ostensibly "in the interests of justice" and no other explanation was given in the hearing. A report that Curtis had given authorities valuable information in the Lindbergh case could not be officially confirmed.

First hint that any action was contemplated came with the arrival of Curtis from Norfolk today. For some time before the hearing he and his attorneys and attorneys emerged later and Curtis was left alone with the judge.

Formal Hearing

The formal hearing followed. Lloyd Fisher, attorney who defended Curtis at his trial, moved that the court consider a review of the judgment "in the interest of justice."

The court said: "It is now within the province of the court to suspend the operation of the jail sentence."

This done, Curtis stepped forward and handed the amount of his fine to the clerk. Then he stepped up to the bench and grasped the hand of Judge Robins.

Calls on Warden

The boat builder and Bruce Carney, his friend, with whom he drove from Norfolk in an auto, later went to the jail next door to call upon Warden Anderson.

He told the warden he had been "getting along very nicely" in Norfolk.

Curtis involved himself with the Lindbergh case early last March. Telling of an alleged visit to him by a go-between for the baby's kidnapers, he enlisted the aid of two other Norfolk men, Dean Dobson-Peacock and Admiral Burrage.

Made Flights

As chief negotiator, Curtis made air flights to various parts of the country. Later he shifted his search for the alleged go-between to the vicinity of Norfolk. A navy yacht was placed at his disposal and he cruised about the coast, Lindbergh often going along. The flyer was on such a cruise when the baby's body was found.

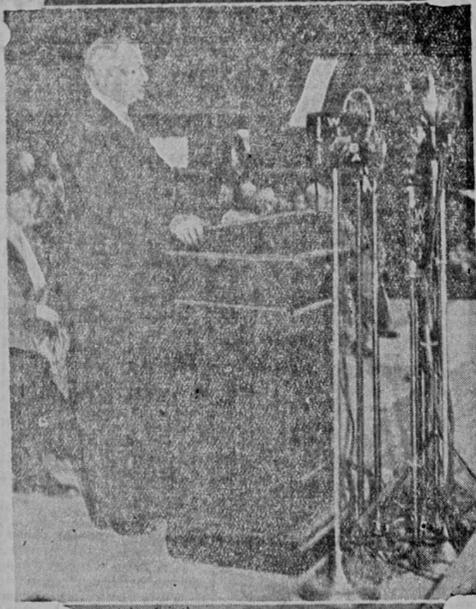

Colonel Lindbergh took Curtis to Hopewell with him. There Curtis was alleged to have confessed that his story was a hoax.

President Hoover was welcomed to Madison, Wis., Saturday by huge crowds. He is shown here as he spoke to a large audience in the field house of the University of Wisconsin.

German Teachers' President to Speak on Political Trends

Speaking on the subject, "Political tendencies in Germany," Emmy Beckmann, president of the National Teachers' association of Germany, will deliver an address this afternoon at 4:10, in the senate chamber of Old Capitol. She is appearing under the auspices of the American Association of University Women, as a part of the annual program of the graduate college lectures.

Miss Beckmann is on a lecture tour of the United States which will include talks at New York city, Philadelphia, Pa., Baltimore, Md., Washington, D. C., St. Louis, Mo., Kansas City, Mo., Milwaukee, Wis., Chicago, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, and Boston, Mass. She has been brought to this country by the Carl Schurz memorial foundation, and plans to remain here for two and one-half months.

Miss Beckmann will be the honored guest at a dinner given by members of the American Association of University Women, this evening at 6:30 on the sunporch of Iowa Union.

Luella M. Wright Writes Quaker Study

"Literature and education in early Quakerism" is the title of a humanistic study by Luella M. Wright, associate in English, which was published yesterday by the University of Iowa. The study is published in bulletin form as one of the university "studies series."

Miss Wright has developed her subject under three headings: "Level of culture," "The motivation of early Quaker literature," and "Views concerning education." The authoress received her Ph.D. last year from Columbia university, New York.

Shambaugh Gets Office

Named Chairman of U.S. Society for Iowa

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department, yesterday received notification of appointment as state chairman for Iowa, of the United States society, an organization whose primary purpose is to spread knowledge of government throughout the land.

Iowa is the thirty-seventh state to begin organization of a division of the society. As soon as the remainder of the Iowa state organization is completed, a process which will be carried on under Professor Shambaugh's supervision, distribution of non-partisan informative literature concerning the government will begin.

All materials of a controversial nature which are included in this literature are first passed upon by the society's educational council, of which Professor Shambaugh is a member. It is the duty of this council to see that no impartiality or partisanship is incorporated into the pamphlets.

Although this service is now being offered chiefly to high schools of the United States, it is the plan eventually to expand the society's operations to the college and university field. One of the features of the organization is its weekly publication, "Uncle Sam's Diary."

Among the national officers of the society are: David Lawrence, chairman; Mary Roberts Rinehart, vice chairman; Breckinridge Long, secretary; Calvin Coolidge, Newton D. Baker, Owen D. Young, Elihu Root, and John Grier Hibben.

Professor Bush Gives Talk on Types of Ideals

In telling of the lives of St. Bernard and Peter Abelard, Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the department of Romance languages, showed the contrast of two types of ideals, emotionalism, and intellectualism, in a lecture presented yesterday afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Bernard, Professor Bush explained, was a man dominated by a religious emotionalism that knew no bounds. His sickly condition was no hindrance to the hardships he endured. Not even the pope was safe from his flashing tongue, the speaker said.

Abelard was the idol of the masses, and lived in the same period with Bernard in the twelfth century. He dominated by force of intellect, he was vain, of feeble character, and erratic, said Professor Bush.

Z. T. A.'s Lead in Contest; Tri Deltas, A. D. Pi's Tie 2nd

Zeta Tau Alpha was leading the race, with Alpha Delta Pi and Delta Delta Delta in a tie for second place and Chi Omega holding third position as the annual Hawkeye sales totals were made up yesterday afternoon.

Margaret Asthalter, Marceline King, Katherine Becker, and Edna Hirsch are the representatives of the respective houses which occupy the leading positions. Houses from fourth to ninth in the race and their representatives were as follows yesterday:

Kappa Alpha Theta, Mary Louise Epperson; Alpha Chi Omega, Alice Murphy; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Ruth Christie; Gamma Phi Beta, Cherie McElhinney; Delta Gamma, Margaret Morris, and Phi Mu, Emma Krob.

Women Debaters to Hold Tryouts

Tryouts for the women's teams in Western Conference debating will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in liberal arts auditorium. All women in the university are eligible to try for a position, including participants in the all-campus debate tournament.

The question to be used is one on government ownership and control of radio broadcasting stations. No decision has yet been made on the exact wording of the proposition.

Each speaker will be allowed a five-minute speech on either side of the question. On the basis of these speeches, a squad will be selected, from which teams will be chosen for women's debates with Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Ripley Explanations

EXPLANATION OF SUN-DAY'S CARTOON

A forgotten man: Due to the efforts of the saintly Bishop Gault, a broken old man who had spent 75 long years as a galley slave on the galley "Reale" in Toulon, France, was finally liberated in 1755. There did not seem to be any record of a conviction lying against the man and authorities discharging him certified that the prisoner had never been charged with any crime. In the three score and 15 years in which the "forgetful" had undergone the most cruel privations, leading the most sordid of existences while chained to his bench, he had forgotten his very name, and the name of Jacques Desprez was awarded to him after a lengthy delving in the records.

Jacques Desprez is truly the most forgotten man in the annals of human helotage. Tomorrow: "The blown-dry river."

Donald H. Menzel Will Go to Harvard

Word has been received here of the appointment of Donald H. Menzel, former university instructor, to assistant professorship in astronomy at Harvard university.

Professor Menzel, who was instructor in astronomy here in 1925, has since taught at Ohio State university, and since 1927 has been a member of the staff of Licks observatory at the University of California.

SPORT

Potshots

by EUGENE THORNE

As each subsequent football season rolls around, the rule books get thicker as new rulings are added.

An instance of this appeared in the Iowa-Nebraska game here last Saturday, which as it happened, later meant the difference of a tie or a Nebraska victory.

The ruling in Section 7, under article 1 says that "the ball is dead and shall be declared so when a player having the ball goes out of bounds, unless 'down' or is so held that his forward progress is stopped or (except the holder of a PLACE-KICK) when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground."

This is not in any way an accusation of incompetent officiating, nor in the spirit of an alibi. Neither was there any kick on the part of the Iowa officials.

George Teyro Tops Hawkeye Yard Gainers

By his sprints from scrimmage in the last two games, George Teyro, the University of Iowa's sophomore quarterback, has dashed to the front among Hawkeye yard-gainers.

The 18 year old Minnesota native has compiled 234 yards in 70 trials, for an average of 3.3 yards per crack.

Joe Laws, who plays both half and quarter, has the best average among the men who have performed with more or less regularity throughout the season.

The total number of yards gained, Howard Moffitt and William Ash rank second and third to Teyro, with 146 and 138 yards respectively.

Six Hawkeye backs and one end have scored touchdowns this season, officials records show. Ash made three against Bradley and therefore is the leading scorer with 18 points.

One touchdown each has been registered by Bernard Page, Ted Mareah, and Voris Dickerson, the Negro end who caught a pass over the goal line in the Nebraska game.

Quadrathlon, New Event, Heads Iowa Indoor Track List

Tomorrow and Thursday will see the inauguration of indoor track season as Hawkeye intramural tracksters begin competing in an all university quadrathlon in the field house.

The event is a new one on the Iowa campus comprising as it does the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, and shot put. Each contestant must compete in each event and the man having the lowest scores after his position in each event has been added together will be declared the winner.

A silver loving cup will be awarded the winner with medals for second and third places. Ribbons will also be given for placers in the individual events.

Coach Solem Gives Hawkeyes Day's Vacation; Starts Drills Today

Heavy Work Will Prepare for Saturday

Unbeaten Boilermakers Come to Town for Dad's Day

Iowa's brilliant battle against the Nebraska Cornhuskers last Saturday not only almost saved them a defeat, but also gained a day's vacation for the squad, and for the first time this season, Coach Ossie Solem granted the gridders a Monday layoff to allow the men to recover from the bruises of the game.

It will be a busy week for the Hawkeyes, however, for they will start this afternoon to prepare for the undefeated Purdue eleven which will invade Iowa City this week end.

Coach Solem must attempt to fashion a defense to combat a well-balanced Boilermaker team which has won over Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Chicago, tied Northwestern, and expects to ride rough-shod over Iowa.

Hawks Display Comeback It is hardly the usual procedure for a Hawkeye team, trailing 14-0, to score 13 points in less than five minutes, and to lose a football game by one point. But, with the improved, hard-driving line, and the backfield which functioned with it, the Iowans would have tied Nebraska if a lineman had not held when Joe Laws place-kicked after touchdown, nullifying the perfect boot.

Iowa scouts, witnessing Purdue's defeat of Chicago, a 37 to 0 score, report that the Boilermakers do almost everything well. Fred Hecker, Duane Purvis, and Roy Horstmann gain consistently on every sort of offensive play, from Horstmann's vicious line smashes to the shifty sprints of Hecker and Purvis. Purdue's blocking is superb, the Boilermaker line is armor-plated.

Six games on Iowa's schedule are over, and yet none of the men needed for this final home contest Saturday are incapacitated. It has been the best season in years, from the standpoint of few injuries.

Revised Line Functions The revised Hawkeye line is showing the best form of the year, and continued improvement might mean that it can surprise the veteran Purdue forwards. Offensively, the Iowans are approaching their peak, with forward passes beginning to click.

What lineup Coach Ossie Solem will decide upon this week he has not yet indicated, but it seems certain that Miller, Dickerson, and Loufek will perform at ends; Schammet and Radloff at tackles; Dolly, Kouba, and Moore, guards; and Captain Magnussen, center. Laws, Teyro, Page, Bury, Hass, and Schneidman will form the various backfield combinations.

Purdue Coaches Discuss Hawkeyes

LAFAYETTE, Nov. 7 (AP) — The Purdue football team, which faces Iowa next Saturday, took the afternoon off today. The coaches, however, were in conference on the improved showing the Hawkeyes made Saturday against Nebraska, and indicated they expected tough opposition at Iowa City.

WOLVERINES SCRIMMAGE

ANN ARBOR — The Michigan football team had its first Monday scrimmage of the year today as first stringers worked on plays intended to round out a perfect season by conquering Chicago and Minnesota on the next two Saturdays.

BUCKEYES REST

COLUMBUS—Ohio State's football squad took things easy today. Coach Willaman intimated he would send the squad through a vigorous session tomorrow in preparation for the homecoming game Saturday with Pennsylvania. Several players are nursing bad bruises from the Northwestern game but are expected to be in shape.

HOOSIER RESERVES DRILL

BLOOMINGTON—Indiana's regulars took it easy today while the reserves had a long drill on blocking. Backs and ends concentrated on a forward passing practice, trying the tactics that failed against Michigan.

HANLEY SHIFTS KAWAL

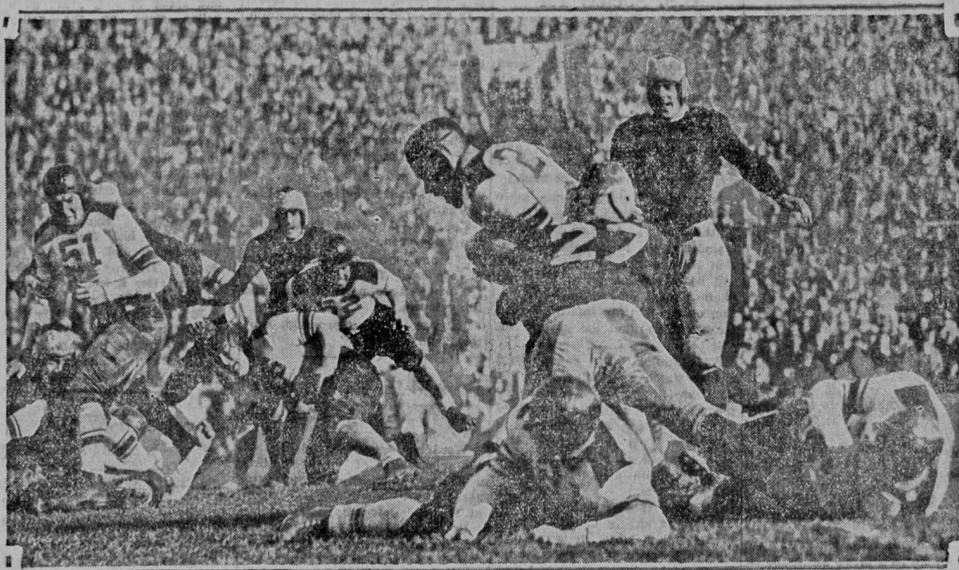

EVANSTON—Coach Hanley excused the Northwestern varsity from practice today and devoted the time to preparing the freshmen on Notre Dame formations. He indicated Roy Auguston would again start at quarter, and that Al Kawal, quarter after the early games, would be shifted to guard against the Irish Saturday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP) —

Lyle F. (Bud) Tinning, rookie pitcher with the Chicago Cubs and formerly with the Des Moines club in the Western league, was married last night to Inez Lorraine Barnett of Terre Haute, Ind. The ceremony was held in the North Shore Baptist church, the Rev. Herbert Virgin officiating.

OHIO STATE TAMES WILDCATS

Sigma Phi Epsilon Meets Delta Chis Tomorrow to Decide Speedball Champs

Championship honors for the inter-fraternity speedball tournament will be decided this coming Wednesday when Sigma Phi Epsilon, winners of section two, meets Delta Chi, first section leaders. The final outcome will determine the first championship of the year in fraternity competitions.

The finalists gained their positions by virtue of a Sig Ep victory from Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 18 to 2, last Friday and a forfeited contest for Delta Chi yesterday by Delta Tau Delta, former co-top ranking leaders of the first section.

The Tau Delt team failed to show at the appointed time yesterday, their last opportunity at the title, dropping the game to the finalists for nothing.

Last week, in the final game of section two's play, the S.A.E.'s took a severe beating at the hands of the Sig Ep team. It was the result of a scoring spree in which Mitalvsky, Barger, and Batty for the winners, played a large part. Field goals, the result of uncanny team play, were fairly crowded under the part of the losers who started the scoring in a touchdown, contributed in the opening moments of play. Umpire Joe Mowry will get the title contest going at 4:30 Wednesday on the west side field.

The desire to get freshman fraternity basketball started has caused the date of the annual cross country run to be scheduled for a week from this coming Wednesday. The entry, 11 fraternities and more than 120 individuals, has definitely been decided with the deadline having been crossed last week end.

Fraternities entered in the light-clad event include: Alpha Phi Alpha, Delta Sigma Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, Phi Epsilon Pi, Delta Upsilon, Delta Tau Delta, Beta Delta, and the winners for the last two years, Phi Kappa Psi.

The use of numbered rings will again be made this year after having proved successful in the competition last season and in the annual high school run-last week end. Each runner carries a ring and deposits it in a hopper or funnel at the end of the race, the order of the rings determining the relative place winners.

Tomorrow night marks the advent of basketball when the freshman pledge league gets under way with three games on tap at the field house. There are 12 teams slated for the tournament, a round robin affair, the schedule to be completed this month.

Two sections have been formed from the entry list to play on alternate nights. Several mixes have been carded for Saturday afternoons.

Rules governing the play are:

1. Freshmen only are eligible to play.
2. Teams must play at scheduled time.
3. A team not appearing within 10 minutes of scheduled time will forfeit.
4. Protests must be filed with E. G. Schroeder within 24 hours after a game.
5. Games consist of three 10 minute periods.
6. Managers must agree on and arrange for officials.

Assisting "Dad" this year will be Francis Merten and Joe Mowry, both graduate physical education majors, who will have active charge of the gymnasiums and supervision of games.

The bright lights of the freshman basketball squad should begin to shine in this pre-season schedule.

Fraternity tennis is still in its middle stages although the first two rounds are nearly completed. Continuation of the tournament will be made indoors if the weather conditions remain as bad as they have been. Every possible effort should be made to get this event completed in the advice from the office.

Little Hawks Prepare for Homecoming

Coach Wells Builds Up Crippled Team for Game Friday

Coach George Wells is priming his Little Hawk football team for the annual City high Homecoming game Friday night with Washington high of Cedar Rapids.

New plays were dealt out to the Red and White crew last week as Coach Wells worked with his new backfield. The new men who played their first game against Dubuque have been improving rapidly the last week and should show up well against the strong Washington high eleven.

Makes Changes

Several changes in the Little Hawk line increased the strength of the locals defense. Willard and the two Barger boys on the right side of the line have developed into a smooth working combination that will stop the Cedar Rapids' attack unless too badly outweighed.

Although the left side of the line is made up of new material, it looked almost as good as the right. Hull at left end has had some experience this year and is developing into a valuable man. Several men have been working in the position left open by Glaspy and the Little Hawk coach will continue looking for a capable man this week. Nelson, although he has had little or no experience, looks very good in the Iowa City line.

Marshall at Quarter

Marshall, Coach Wells standby in the backfield, will direct the play of the locals in their game Friday night. The heady little quarterback has been playing fine football all season and will look better this week with the improved City high line. Mutchler, the only other veteran in the backfield, has been out most of the season with an injured shoulder and is just getting back into shape again. Ayers, Zager, Kirtledge and Boyce will alternate at the other backfield positions.

Iowa City Bowling Association to Hold First Meeting at Dec's

The first meeting of the new season has been called for Iowa City Bowling association members at Dec's alleys tomorrow night.

George Kanak, manager of the alleys for the coming league season, said that meeting is for the purpose of organizing the Business Men's and Recreation loops and arranging schedules.

The meeting had been originally scheduled to take place tonight, but was postponed because of the many election parties this evening.

An Answer To My Political Opponent

While I, personally, am very much opposed to 11th hour wrangling about a political office, my opponent has made statements which force me to reply.

To the statement that the State Funeral Directors' Association of Iowa is opposed to the principle of the election of a Funeral Director as Coroner, my answer is that L. A. Jones, Washington, Iowa, president of the Iowa State Funeral Directors' Association, is also Coroner of Washington County, an office he has held for many years.

H. A. Burnette, president of the Sixth District, Iowa Funeral Directors' Association, is also Coroner of Van Buren County. So it doesn't look as if the Funeral Directors' Associations agree with my opponent.

AND NOW ABOUT NOMINATION PAPERS

My opponent at considerable expense has taken the trouble to show you that last April I circulated his nomination papers.

That is true so far as it goes. I circulated them as a favor and because he mailed the papers to me and asked me to circulate them.

It was only a short time later that I became convinced that the present Coroner was not fair in his dealings with all Funeral Directors. I was asked to enter the race for Coroner and to make a vigorous campaign. This I have done.

ENDORSEMENTS BY FUNERAL DIRECTORS

Don't pay too much attention to the point that my opponent has been endorsed by most of the Iowa City Funeral Directors. I know that the suggestion of endorsement came from my opponent and was not voluntary on the part of the Funeral Directors. And, remember, too, if one director endorsed him, the others would nearly have to fall in line.

I have been offered endorsement by members of the Medical Profession, by the Iowa State Funeral Directors' Association and the Professional Embalmers' Association, Inc., and other organizations, but I am trying to win your consideration on my own MERIT.

For many years the voters of Johnson County have selected a Funeral Director to fill the office of Coroner. These men have served this county efficiently and faithfully as Coroner. They can do it again.

Frank A. Brosh
Democratic Candidate for Coroner.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Laurence stood still, making no effort to search for Patricia. He had seen her come out with Warren and knew she must be hidden within the branches of the hibiscus. If so, she could not slip around to the other side without coming into the open walk. He had not followed them to spy on them; but to walk back with them, and thereby allay the gossip of those who might see her coming in from the grounds with Warren. He had left the hotel by the back way, circling around them, so Warren could make no charge.

After a moment she came out. "Oh," she half sobbed, "he lied. Then went away and left me. He meant for me to sneak around to the other side and get away, then let you find me."

"No, he didn't. He decided it would be better for you to walk back with me. That's why he told me you were here, and left you."

"Why did he push me into that bush anyway, as if we were doing something sneaky? Then he abouts it? If you'd been with me and he'd come out, you wouldn't have pushed me out of sight as if you were ashamed of me; then lied, and left me to sneak off like a criminal."

"No, I wouldn't have had to. I'm not a married man," said Jack quietly. "You see, Pat dear, this is just the beginning of what a girl must expect who lets herself in for an affair with a married man. This sort of thing can't be done without lies and sneaking and humiliating incidents, except by the so-called bohemians who have nothing to lose. Like Socialists who believe in poverty till they get rich, bohemians grow circumspect when they manage to acquire something they want to keep. I don't believe you could endure that situation."

"He was drawing her along the walk toward the hotel."

"No, I know I couldn't. Sneaking is wormy. But Jack—why should Jimmie—"

"His voice was lost to the heart-sick woman. Unmindful of who might be passing and see her, she came out on the walk."

A slim figure darted out of the shadows. "You see, Mrs. Warren, the hidden Arthur. Now will you do something to stop them?"

"You contemptible little sneak," Patricia cried, her suppressed hurt and rage flaring up to vent itself on him. "Bragging around the hotel about the gun you were carrying, then crawling out here to spy. I did feel sorry for you. Now I'd like to step on you, you little worm."

He began to blubber. "You didn't want me to kill him, did you? I thought you loved him. It was for your sake—I wanted to—"

"Liar! You came out to do something and lost your nerve."

"Well, Jack on the veranda followed them, too. He was on the veranda when they came out. I saw him go through the lobby toward the back as I followed them out the front way. He must have meant to do something too. But he didn't."

"He did enough. All he came out to do. Take her under. And he didn't follow them under everybody's eyes either, as you did. He came out the back way. And he didn't spy. He let them know he was coming."

"He sneaked around and came up from the other way."

"To keep from making a scene. Oh, I hope he saw you following them openly, advertising them, and that he gives you the trouncing I'd like to give you."

She turned away to the hotel, entering the rear. Stark, for the first time in her life, in primitive emotions, she cared not for the whisper, the shrug, the smile that he continued a absence from the ballroom would occasion, following, as it did, upon the exit of her husband and Pat.

She tore herself out of her gown; jerking, ripping the fragile thing apart in the fury that possessed her. With fingers that shook she got into her nightgown and taking down her hair, tried to braid it, her maid being that they tangled themselves in her hair, tore it. She gave up and lay down, but sat up immediately. Oh, the cruelty of youth!

Having heard the gossip that Arthur Savage was carrying a gun—for whom, being deleted for her ears—and watching his face from time to time during the evening she had trembled inwardly when she saw him follow Jimmie and Pat onto the veranda. That a scandal was imminent, whether Arthur tried to use the gun or not, she was convinced. She had run out into the yard in sheer panic to watch from the darkness what took place on that veranda. It had not occurred to her that Jimmie would leave it in the face of the rocking chair brigade.

Patricia's malicious little speech to hurt Jimmie, in which she had repeated Jack Laurence's summary of the situation, had revealed to Pamela not only how it all had come about; but also Patricia's blamelessness.

Her face burned with shame for Jimmie. A baby like Pat! A little inexperienced girl who had never been to be kissed till that day. . . . Oh, it was inconceivable! It undermined all her confidence in Jimmie—not as her husband—but as a man.

And he had said he would not go on the cruise if Pat were going to New York. . . .

"Then, what? Divorce. . . . She, Pamela, would be asked to step out. To take a trip to Paris and buy a nice respectable divorce."

What a poor thing marriage was if any little school girl with fresh lips and surprised eyes could step into it and— "Excuse me, will you step over to Paris and get yourself a divorce? I'd like to try your husband for awhile. . . . If I don't like him. . . . Oh, well, those things can be arranged."

Pacing the floor, mulling over every word of their conversation, analyzing, sifting, Pamela decided that whatever Jimmie might think of his feeling for Pat, the girl did not love him. It was so amazingly clear that but for his psychological appearance, holding out both sympathy, and escape from Blaine as his bait, Pat would never have thought of him in the light of a lover. Her response to Jack had been of a different order, spontaneous and natural. No confusion of emotions there. Clean young desire for a man who was a suitable mate for her. Without doubt she would have loved him had she not been blinded by the passion Jimmie had aroused in her. . . .

"Well, it can't be arranged, Jimmie Warren," Pamela stormed. "If she were a woman, and I knew you no longer loved me—I'd get out of your way. But not for a child who would tire of you and throw you out as you'd deserve. I'm not going to give up my position to make ducks and drakes of all our lives. I may leave you later. But not now. Not until she has come to her senses, at any rate."

She heard the key turn in Warren's door. She stood still, thinking. Presently she crossed to the mirror, peered at her face, applied powder carefully, touched up her lips and slipped into her negligee and slippers.

She tapped on his door. "May I come in, Jimmie?"

"Yes, come in, dear," he called heartily.

She paused, bracing herself against the wave of fury that swept her at his cordial tone and "dear." As she entered and saw him standing by a window from which he had turned at her knock, quite suddenly all her woman fury was swallowed in the motherhood of a childless wife to whom he had become more and more her child as ardor waned between them.

Absurd though it was for a man of his experience, there could be no doubt that he was infatuated with Pat. And because of it he was suffering, even as Pamela was suffering.

She stood hesitating in the doorway, almost stalling in her beauty, a negligee of silver tissue over-rose drawn close about her slender form, black hair streaming, all the repressed motherhood of her sterile years shining in her dark eyes.

His glance shifted as if he found there something he could not face. And now that she had come, she did not know what to say. He broke the silence.

"I noticed you had left. I wondered—" Still he did not look at her.

"I had a headache," she said. "I came up and went to bed. I heard you come in, and—"

She saw a look of concern in his eyes. He started toward her. Her eyes drifted toward his face. Her own hurt and anger returned. How dare he pretend concern because her head ached, when he had given her this terrible agony of the heart?

"It's better. I wasn't sleepy and I thought I'd come in and have a chat with you."

"Good," he said cheerfully. He made her comfortable in a big chair. Looking down at her white face returned to the light, her long lids lowered, it occurred to him, as it had a thousand times before, that surely God could produce nothing more beautiful. He bent to kiss her. She turned her cheek.

Giving her the merest touch of his lips he drew away, chilled, and sitting down clipped the end of a cigar.

"Jimmie," she began in her soft drawing voice, "I'd like to ask a favor of you."

His face lighted. "You don't often." Adding in the boyish way she had so loved, "There's nothing I like better than playing fairy godfather to a lovely woman, especially when she happens to be my wife. I hope it's a big favor. Something hard to do."

Oh, how could he speak like that. . . . "It is. And it may be." She was trying to make smoke rings.

"Shoot!"

"I'd like to ask you to make a business trip to Miami that will cover about four days."

His face grew serious. "For you?"

"Well, I'm interested. But mostly for Pat. And yourself. Cousin Jimmie will be here in about that time, and I think it would be more decent. Arthur Savage is making a good deal of talk—keeping liquor up and saying things that mean nothing—but causing unpleasant comment. That is, unpleasant for me, and for Cousin John. You and Pat may not care, but—" She appeared almost casual.

VOTERS

Elect Officials, Decide on Issues at Polls

and are locked as early as three p.m., eastern time; while in the far west voters still will be at it when it is close to midnight in New York.

Rain in East

Rain forecast for portions of the states east of the Mississippi raised no undue perturbations among the political managers, inasmuch as heavy storms were held unlikely. Stormy weather frequently cuts the vote somewhat, but this year no such effect is causing worry. The outlook for the country as a whole is considered favorable, save for possibility of snow in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

As he did four years ago, President Hoover with his family arranged to vote in Palo Alto, Cal.

Vice President Curtis returned to his Topeka, Kan., residence for this last act of the energetic campaign that has taken him into numerous states.

Roosevelt Votes

Gov. Roosevelt, surrounded by members of his family, is voting at Hyde Park before going again to New York tonight to hear the returns.

His running mate, Speaker Garner, took time at Uvalde, Texas, for one last fishing trip before marking his ballot today and waiting to learn whether he is to move from the house of representatives rostrum in March to the presiding chair in the senate.

Should any voter be hesitant about how to mark his presidential ballot, it certainly will not be for lack of available information on what the candidates and their proponents say on the issues. Right up to midnight, the campaign has echoed with such a volume of speeches and spectacular presentations as was far from expected back in June.

Speeches Unexpected

The one thing that it was believed would not happen did happen, the series of stump speeches by the president which wound up with his transcontinental trip and addresses in Salt Lake City and Elko, Nev., last night. Little did anyone expect that Hoover would, as he told an Evanston, Wyo., throng yesterday, use his voice "90 or 40 times a day" until it was "near its finish."

Another event that it was frequently asserted would not come to pass did come to pass. That is the vociferous support for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket given by Alfred E. Smith in speech after speech.

Dispute on Economy

It did turn out, as was expected, that economies would provide the main timber of dispute.

But few were those who in the summer and early fall could have foretold the vibrancy of the controversy, with Roosevelt and his allies indicting the administration on score upon score; and Hoover and his supporters determinedly defending all that has gone on and declaring the best that could have been done to help the nation was done.

Intense Battle

Nor did any one suspect in those early days that the campaign would be so intense in its final phases. It has reverberated with oratorical exchanges between the candidates themselves on whether a change or maintenance of the status quo would most benefit business and agriculture.

The Democratic nominee insisted change to the principles and policies advocated by him and the party platform would facilitate better times.

The Republican nominee repeatedly asserted that enactments sponsored by him have borne fruit, that

Leaders Give Aid

On both sides of the controversies, the major parties paraded their most illustrious figures as the campaign drove to its climax.

Calvin Coolidge gave his aid to the administration, saving his concluding address for last night.

Headed by Vice President Curtis and Secretary Mills, one after another of the cabinet has stamped in state after state. Henry Ford and other industrialists along with numerous officials in a variety of organizations have backed up the president.

Smith Speaks

Al Smith went to New York, New Jersey and New England for Roosevelt and Garner. Owen D. Young, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Newton D. Baker, former Governor

Cox of Ohio, Senator Robinson of Arkansas and numbers of others contributed their views in behalf of Democratic victory.

Now the hullabaloo is over. The voters are deciding who is right. What that decision is should be known before the sun rises again.

Court Orders New Trial in Attack Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—New trials for the seven Negroes under sentence of death at Scottsboro, Alabama, for criminal assault upon two white girls were ordered today by the supreme court, seven of whose nine members held that the defendants were denied the right of counsel.

The decision was announced shortly after police night sticks, vigorously wielded, had repulsed a crowd of 100 radical sympathizers who were attempting to picket the court chamber in behalf of the Negroes.

Sees Armaments as a Menace to Peace

world are a menace to peace and a drain upon national treasures. The world is spending between four and five billion dollars per year, two thirds of which is spent by the seven great powers. Of this vast amount the United States not only spends more than any other state but she has made the greatest per cent of increase since before the war. From 1913 to 1930 American expenditures upon armaments increased 197 per cent. In 1926-27 our defense expenditures were $51,000,000 while in 1930-31 they amounted to $727,000,000. In view of the favorable location of United States and the necessity of curtailing expenses, it seems as if these expenditures might be considered a major issue in the presidential campaign. Both political parties stand for reduction of armaments by international agreements. The Republican platform says: "Maintenance of our navy on the basis of parity with any nation is a fundamental policy to which the Republican party is committed" and they say that the army has "reached an irreducible minimum." Our army in 1930 was about 60 per cent greater than it was in 1913. The Democratic platform advocates "a navy and an army adequate for national defense, based on a survey of all facts affecting the existing establishments, that the people in time of peace may not be burdened by an expenditure fast approaching $1,000,000,000 annually." Neither candidate for the presidency has had much to say upon this subject.

Both platforms stand for the World

Court but the three Iowa candidates engenders hatred. Hence, it would be well to lower tariffs and cancel or reduce the war debts. Policies that create fear and suspicion are opposed to the peace of the world. Hence this country should with others recognize Russia and stand for reduction of armaments.

Pick Welfare Study Board

Charity Organizations in City to Undergo Investigation

Thorough investigation of the work of Iowa City's welfare organizations with a view to determining the efficiency of the present system and of suggesting possible improvements, was assured yesterday by the appointment of a commission of 28 persons representing as many organizations.

The commission, appointed by a special committee of the Welfare bureau, will make a complete survey of the present welfare situation, including the work being done now and the future needs of the community.

Methodists Begin Practice on 'Messiah'

Under the direction of Dr. O. E. Van Doren, the Methodist choir and soloists have begun practice for the "Messiah," which they will present at their Christmas program, Dec. 18, at 8 p.m. in the Methodist Episcopal church auditorium.

Solo selections will be sung by Anne Pierce, soprano; Hazel Chapman, contralto; Prof. Harold Stark, tenor; and Roy Maxwell, bass.

Post Printed Rules to Aid Voters Today

Ballot Void if Marked Wrong, Statute States

Every qualified voter has a chance to help decide the political battle today—if he watches his step and heeds the printed instructions for voting posted in and near all voting places.

One may know who he wants to vote for, but the important thing is to let the election judges know in the manner prescribed by law. If the ballot is not correctly marked it will be thrown out and the vote lost.

Three Ways

If one wants to vote a straight ticket he has three ways of doing it. First, he may place a cross in the circle at the top of the party ticket desired without marking any squares. Second, he may place a cross in the square opposite the name of each desired candidate without making a cross in the circle at the top. Third, he may place a cross in the circle at the top of the ticket, and also a cross in any or all of the squares beneath the circle.

A voter may, however, place a cross in the circle at the top of the ticket and still vote for candidates of other parties. Under a change in the election law made four years ago, a voter is allowed to make a cross in the circle at the top of the column and yet vote for candidates under other party tickets by making crosses opposite the names of the candidates he wishes to vote for.

Make Crosses

If one likes to make crosses and has no party preference, he may go through the ballot, marking all candidates for whom he desires to vote. If he marks more candidates than can be elected for any one office, however, his choice as to that office will not be counted.

In marking the cross, the lines should be made to cross each other inside of the circle or square. The voter should put no marks of any kind on the ballot other than the crosses within the circles and squares opposite the names of the candidates for whom he wishes to vote, except that if he desires to vote for some person whose name is not printed on the ballot he may write the name in the appropriate blank and mark a cross in the square opposite the name.

Return Ballots

Any erasures or identification marks, or otherwise spoiling or defacing a ballot, will render it invalid. If a voter marks a cross in the wrong square or accidentally marks or spoils a ballot he should return it to the judges and obtain another. All ballots marked or spoiled in any way will be thrown out.

When the voter reaches the polls he appears before the election judges and gives his name and address. When the judges are satisfied as to his right to vote one of them gives him an official ballot and a special measure ballot. The voter then retires alone to a voting booth, where he marks and folds his ballots, after which he delivers them to one of the judges.

Subject to Arrest

Voters shall not remain in the voting booth more than five minutes. If, after he receives his ballots, the voter decides not to cast his vote, he will surrender his ballot to the judges of election. A refusal to do so will subject the voter to arrest and punishment. If one cannot read the English language, or because of any physical disability is unable to mark his ballot, he should make that fact known to the judges. He will be sworn to the truth of his statement, and two of the judges will enter the booth with him to mark his choices. Intoxication is not considered a disability, and no help will be given intoxicated persons.

Time for Voting

The polls will open at 7 a. m. in cities where registration is required and at 8 a. m. in all other voting places. Iowa City polls will open at 7 o'clock this morning. The polls will close everywhere at 8 o'clock tonight. All persons entitled to vote at the election who are within their voting places at the time the places are closed shall be permitted to vote.

Registrations Predict Vote

Registrations in Iowa City this year exceed the presidential vote of 1928 by 654. A record vote is expected. Votes will have to be cast at the rate of 644 per hour if all the 8,365 registered persons vote.

Presidential votes in 1928 and registrations this year in the Iowa City wards compare as follows:
1932	1928
First ward	1511
Second ward	1719
Third ward	1020
Fourth ward	2117
Fifth ward	1998

Glen Fordyce Holds First Class in Series on Boy Leadership

The first of a series of classes in community boy leadership was held Monday night in the armory under the direction of Glen G. Fordyce, Iowa City Boy Scout executive. An outline for the course during the next few months was explained and several talks on scouting were given.

Campaigns of Past Recalled by Thornton

Reminiscences Tell of Gradual Growth of Parties

Reminiscences were presented yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon in the American Legion Community building—reminiscences which looked back to the days of Washington when there were no party clashes or passions, reminiscences which traced the history of presidential campaigns up to the present era. Prof. H. J. Thornton of the history department was the speaker.

"In looking back over the varied campaigns in the history of the United States, we look naturally to the days of Washington first," Professor Thornton said, "and in the eight years while George Washington served as president, years without precedent in history, we find a situation which has not existed since. We find an example that is absolutely unique. Twice in succession Washington was named to the highest office in the United States by a unanimous vote of the electoral college. That has not happened since."

Change in 1796

The year 1796, however, saw a change, Professor Thornton pointed out, for in that year two parties were rising in strength. Jefferson, secretary of state under Washington until 1793, had resigned from the cabinet because of his differences of opinion with Hamilton. In the intervening years between 1793 and '96 he had lent all his forces to the opposition of the Federalists and Hamilton.

"Thus," he said, "at the election of 1796 the electoral college votes were split by two candidates, Jefferson and Adams. Jefferson lost by four votes. Although defeated once, the decision against him was so close that his efforts were redoubled and a different story arose from the election of 1800. This election, which followed one of the most vigorous campaigns in our history, and which marks the entry of the press into politics, was tied by Jefferson and Burr. The house of representatives settled the problem by naming Jefferson to take office."

By the year 1824, the speaker said, the Jeffersonians were in power and the old Federalist party definitely out of the picture. But in that year four candidates sprang from the ranks of the same party, and here we see the first party convention in place of the old congressional caucus.

Jackson vs. Adams

"Jackson, chosen son of the west and war hero extraordinary, was finally chosen as his party's choice for the presidency. He was running in opposition to John Quincy Adams, who had originally sprung from the same party," Professor Thornton said. Adams won the election because Clay and Lawrence, who had also been running for the office, withdrew and threw their support to him, the speaker explained. And until the appointment of Clay as secretary of state the Jacksonians seemed satisfied with their defeat.

Opposition to Clay

"But with that appointment," it was asserted, "cries of fraud arose and the next four years were spent in making things uncomfortable for Adams. The year 1828 saw the Jacksonians determined to get the job. Here for the first time ridicule, with all its force, was brought into play. At the election Adams, because he attempted to stand on his record without replying to his accusers, was literally snowed under."

With the campaign of 1840 the Jeffersonian party was definitely split into two factions, Whigs and Democrats, with Clay and Webster

DIXIE DUGAN—Too Much Laughter

AROUND THE TOWN with DON PRYOR

The Fever
Election fever was spreading fast last night as the zero hour came nearer and nearer. Once lukewarm politics were waxing eloquent in favor of their candidates and those who were eloquent a week ago were nearly outdoing themselves.

Tonight
Men will sit by their radios tonight and give their wives not a minute of music or anything really worth while. And G. O. Partisans will drape themselves around Republican county headquarters in the Johnson County Savings bank building to watch the result of their efforts; in Democratic headquarters next to the Englert theater, the Democrats will be doing likewise.

Same as Ever
Election or no election, the business of living seems to go on about as before. Yesterday the Burt-Zaiser company, a Burlington wholesale firm, filed a petition in district court asking judgment of $214 against L. J. Schneider for merchandise. Byington and Rate are attorneys for Burt-Zaiser.

Speed
Absence of voting machines today means anything but speed in getting the returns from the election. Mayor J. J. Carroll estimates that it will take the counting boards one hour to count 25 ballots. Which means that returns from some of the Iowa City wards will not be available until midnight Thursday. And that is not allowing the counting boards time off for sleep or meals.

Insurance
Elizabeth Matthes, administratrix of the estate of the late John Matthes, filed a petition in district court yesterday asking judgment of $200 against the North American Accident Insurance company as sickness indemnity under a policy claimed to have been held by Mr. Matthes. Will J. Hayek is her attorney.

Murk and Gloom
Both settled over Iowa City yesterday afternoon. The chill rain, drizzling steadily but with little conviction, dampened everything but the spirits of the politicians.

Respite
George Dohrer, city clerk, settled back and relaxed yesterday for the first time since way back when. He and his secretary, Amelia Amelon, have been constantly rushed since the job of registering Iowa City's voters in the new permanent registration system began last August.

Whoopie
John Dobbysky, Nick Kost, and Albert Wanack appeared before Police Judge Charles L. Zager yesterday and were all fined for intoxication. Wanack and Dobbysky were fined $5 and costs and Kost was fined $10 and costs.

Far Away
W. W. Brady's $10 fine for disturbing the peace was suspended yesterday by Police Judge Zager providing Mr. Brady left town. He left.

Not There
Parking in a prohibited zone cost T. W. Brown and Mrs. Selbach $1 apiece yesterday in the court of Police Judge Zager.

Timed
Tom Reese and Thomas T. Mearson were fined $1 apiece yesterday for overtime parking.

Gone
A suitcase belonging to Richard Kasper, 455 Fairchild street, was taken from his car Sunday at 8:45 p. m. The suitcase contained a suit and hunting clothes.

County Chairmen in G.O.P., Demo Ranks Control Political Maneuvers From Backstage

Party chiefs manage speeches, rallies, caucuses. Forthwith are presented the managers of the local political stage. These are the entrepreneurs, the men who "take the tickets and ring the bell," the masters of the show, or what you will.

Their official title is chairman of the county central committee. One is a Democrat and the other is a Republican. Their views in matters of governmental principle are as widely different as those of President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt. Their work is the same.

Muster Forces
Theirs is the task of organizing campaigns, of co-operating with state and national committees, of securing speakers and promoting rallies, of calling conventions and caucuses and seeing that the delegates attend, and finally, of mustering the county-wide forces of their parties around the ballot boxes on election day.

Each one of these men has the interest of his party's candidates at heart. Their success or failure at the ballot box is at least partly a reflection of the initiative and organizing efficiency of the county chairmen. It is the principal function of the county chairmen to put his party's men in office.

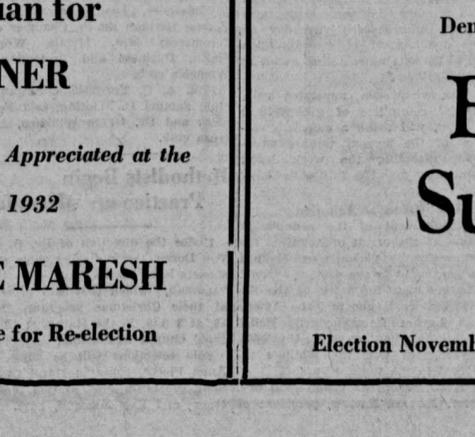

Elaborate Machines
To carry out his work, each man has under him an elaborate and efficient machine composed of committees and workers of all descriptions. He often takes the initiative in the organization and support of party clubs and societies.

About two weeks ago both the Republican and the Democratic parties opened headquarters in Iowa City. At each of these places a secretary is left in charge to facilitate the dissemination of partisan literature, copies of speeches by the party leaders, and general information of the leading topics of the day.

Give Service
At each place, also, a notary public is stationed to give free service to members of the party who must vote by absent voters' ballots. These offices serve as the central point from which all political activity in the county radiates. They are the direct result of effort on the part of the county chairmen.

After today these offices will close and the curtain will have fallen on the America's quadrennial show colossal; a president will take the oath of office and a new congress will take over the duties of the old; new officers will take their places in the state and county governments and things will go on much as they have before.

Work Continues
But the work of the chairmen of the county central committees will not cease. A municipal election is due in March and the battle of the parties will begin again.

Dr. W. L. Bywater, leader of Johnson county's Democracy, began teaching in the rural schools in Tama county back in the 80's and is now an eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist and one of Iowa City's foremost men in civic and public welfare matters. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa college of medicine; he also served six years on the Johnson county school board, has been president of the Rotary club and the Chamber of Commerce, and spent two years on the city council. He is a Mason and a member of the board of trustees of the Presbyterian church. He has lived in Iowa City 32 years.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Hold Meeting
Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet at the court house tomorrow night to discuss plans for the joint installation of officers next Tuesday, according to J. L. Johnson, commander.

The installation, for both the veterans' post and the ladies' auxiliary, will be attended by members of posts in surrounding towns. A visiting speaker will be secured.

Registrations Predict Vote

Registrations in Iowa City this year exceed the presidential vote of 1928 by 654. A record vote is expected. Votes will have to be cast at the rate of 644 per hour if all the 8,365 registered persons vote.

Presidential votes in 1928 and registrations this year in the Iowa City wards compare as follows:

1932	1928
First ward	1511
Second ward	1719
Third ward	1020
Fourth ward	2117
Fifth ward	1998
