NATIONS ALLY AGAINST DEPRESSION

Revive "16 to 1" Silver Cry at Farm Convention

Farm Union Recommends Aid Program

Revive "16 to 1" Cry, Ask Appointment of Simpson

OMAHA, Nov. 16 (AP)—Final business sessions of the national Farmers Union annual convention today found 300 delegates in agreement on an 11-point agricultural relief program and resulted in reelection of all officers.

John A. Simpson, Oklahoma veteran of innumerable farm battles, will lead the union for his third term, with H. G. Keeney, president of the Nebraska state organization, retained as national vice president. E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., was re-elected national secretary.

Indorse Simpson
Members of the executive committee of the Minnesota farmers holiday association tonight sent a letter to President-Elect Roosevelt asking the appointment of Simpson as secretary of agriculture. John H. Bosch, of Atwater, Minn., head of the state group endorsing him for the cabinet post.

The long-familiar "16 to 1" cry of the late William Jennings Bryan was revived by convention delegates in passing a resolution calling for reauthorization of silver on that basis and indorsing the Wheeler bill looking to such action by the federal government.

Favor Two Bills
The convention indorsed two other proposed federal measures—the Frazier bill calling upon the government to re-finance farm mortgages at radically reduced interest rates, and the Swank bill which would license dealers in agricultural products and guarantee cost of production to farmers.

Higher Income Taxes
Higher income taxes, a moratorium on all private and public debts, reduction of government costs as a means of balancing the budget and a recommendation that farmers give "careful consideration" to the farmers holiday association were included in the program adopted by the convention.

Mentions Strike
The resolution dealing with farm strike activities contained no direct indorsement of the holiday group's program but was decidedly sympathetic in tone.

Other resolutions called for adjustment of certain livestock rates involving re-shipping and sorting, condemnation of the "militaristic attitude fostered by our educational institutions," exemption of small farms and homes from all except income taxes, and legislation limiting individual inheritances to $500,000.

Jury Convicts Elmer Brogla

Judge Will Sentence Guilty Man on Saturday

Elmer Brogla was found guilty of driving while intoxicated last night by a district court jury. Sentence will be passed Saturday at 9 a. m. by Presiding Judge R. G. Popham.

Final evidence in the case, which began Tuesday afternoon, was presented Tuesday morning. Witnesses for the state called by County Attorney F. B. Olsen were C. Emerson Brant, Leo T. Kessler, Jacob Hess, M. S. Bales, Grace Price, L. B. Hess, and Sheriff Don McComas. Witnesses for the defense were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brogla, and Mr. and Mrs. William Grabin. E. A. Baldwin was attorney for the defense.

Closing arguments of both attorneys were presented yesterday morning, and court instructions to the jury were given. The jury retired shortly after 11 a. m. and the verdict was returned at approximately 10:15 p. m.

Jurors in the case were: Leo Haman, Joseph Frolik, James Sullivan, Frank S. Unruh, Frank Burger, and W. O. Coast, all of Iowa City, George Stych of Lincoln township, Lloyd McGruder of Fremont township, Anton Herman of Monroe township, D. W. Sentman of Madison township, J. D. Musser of Fremont township, and George Klaus of Sharon township.

Railway Trainmen, Executives Meet to Present Violations

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Railway Labor Executives' association, which represents 21 brotherhoods in the railroad industry, held a closed meeting today as a preliminary to a conference tomorrow between a committee of the association and executives of the leading railroads.

A. F. Whitney, chairman of the association, and president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said after the meeting that the railroad executives had not lived up to certain agreements made last January and that tomorrow's meeting had been called to prevent further alleged violations.

Denies Charge of Conspiracy

Dennison Refutes Plan to Organize Liquor Syndicate

OMAHA, Nov. 16 (AP)—Tom Dennison, defendant number one in the liquor conspiracy trial here, today ended his direct testimony with a statement branding the story told by Tom Crawford, former police officer, and government witness, as "absolutely false."

Crawford had previously testified he had at one time served as Dennison's confidential secretary and had asserted that Dennison once expressed his intention to organize a liquor syndicate along the lines of Al Capone's organization in Chicago.

Testifies to Statement
The former police sergeant testified Dennison made this statement after visiting Capone in Chicago. Crawford also testified that Dennison once offered him $1,000 to kill Harry Lapidus, reform leader. Lapidus was shot to death as he drove home late at night last December.

When court was recessed today, Dennison, 73, was undergoing cross examination. During direct examination, the political leader said he had never met Capone, had never talked of a liquor syndicate here, had no knowledge of such an organization in Omaha and had never employed or used Crawford as a confidential secretary.

Introduce Jail Record
To refute Crawford's testimony regarding Dennison's alleged trip to Chicago to visit Capone, the defense introduced a certified copy of a Philadelphia jail record, showing that from May 14, 1929, to March 17, 1930, Capone was imprisoned there. This period of time takes in the date when, according to Crawford's testimony, Dennison returned from Chicago and told of a visit with Capone.

Move to Bar Trial Evidence

Stewart Attorneys Say Client's Confession Not Voluntary

CHARITON, Nov. 16 (AP)—A motion to exclude from evidence the confession of Ralph Stewart to the slaying of Mrs. L. A. Botkin was entered by his attorney at the conclusion of court sessions today. Stewart is on trial here charged with slaying Mrs. Botkin last September.

The defense contended that the confession was not a free and voluntary statement after State Agent Ray Scott admitted in cross examination that Stewart was not informed of his constitutional rights.

The state denied defense allegations that Stewart had received unfavorable treatment. Judge R. W. Smith announced he would rule on the motion at the opening of court tomorrow.

Other witnesses today were Harry Passno, photographer; Ralph Downs, at whose funeral home an autopsy was performed; L. A. Botkin, husband of the slain woman, and Helen Botkin, 18, adopted daughter of the couple and a friend of Stewart.

Miss Botkin testified that Stewart and her mother were good friends and that he frequently visited at the Botkin home.

Hoover Asks Advice About Debt Policies

Confers With Members of Cabinet on Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Gathering his advisers around him, President Hoover today plunged deep into consideration of the nation's war debt course and of the policies his administration will pursue until its March 4 conclusion.

Almost before the echoes of a returning-to-the-capital reception for him had died, the chief executive called in one after another of his aides.

Talks to Mills
Secretary Mills, after a half hour conference, let it be known that he had discussed the policies to be outlined shortly in response to requests from foreign debtors for a review of their obligations and for a suspension of payments due on December 15. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania followed, while Secretary Stimson discussed the debt problem, also, across the White House luncheon table.

Other cabinet and official callers, including Vice President Curtis, reported they had spoken principally of more domestic problems and of other matters to be placed before congress by the chief executive when it convenes December 5.

President Silent
Although the president himself remained silent on debt matters, as possibly he may until the closer approach of his conference with President-elect Roosevelt, Mr. Hoover was represented in authoritative quarters as definitely opposed to another year's moratorium.

The president is not convinced, it was said, that all payments due the United States on December 15, will not be made and feels that a more rigid attitude should be adopted than any wholesale suspension of these payments.

Reviews Requests
Today the separate but similar requests of Great Britain, France and Belgium for a deferment of payments and a re-opening of debt negotiations were reviewed by the president.

While the president was discussing plans for meeting this situation, to be placed before Governor Roosevelt upon his arrival at the White House, probably early next week, presidential aides awaited a call from the New York governor to set an exact hour for the parley. There was no call from Albany today.

Opposes Cancellation
The exact proposals to be discussed at this debt conference have not been outlined, although repeated opposition to cancellation has been expressed by the chief executive. He has already communicated to the president-elect, also, his belief that if concessions are made, concrete extensions of American markets abroad should be received in return.

Roosevelt Works on State Budget

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Governor Roosevelt, in a gray business suit, up from a sick bed after five days illness, worked on the state budget at the mansion today, seeking ways of making up a deficit of "something under $80,000,000" in this year's revenue.

The president-elect held his regular press conference and saw a few visitors, among them Louis B. Wehle, a relative of Supreme Court Justice Brandeis. Wehle is an attorney in New York. His was a social call.

"No, I don't know when I shall call on the president," he replied to a question. The governor asserted, in his answer to Mr. Hoover's invitation, that he would telephone him when he decided to leave for Georgia.

Thanksgiving Charity Urged by Governor

DES MOINES, Nov. 16 (AP)—Governor Turner today issued a Thanksgiving day proclamation urging generous gifts to the fund for Iowa unemployed.

FACING A DIFFICULT TASK

Enroute to Washington to resume his duties as chief executive of the nation for the concluding four months in office, President Hoover is shown with his son, Allan, as he stopped off at Sierra Madre, Cal., to visit the home of his son, Herbert, Jr. The president's first job on reaching Washington is to dispose of the war debts problem, Great Britain and France having sought an extension of the moratorium. He has invited President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to confer with him on the matter.

Irish Protest Wale's Visit to Dedication Ceremonies

12,000 Men on Guard Over Prince in Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16 (AP)—Railroad tracks were ripped up today in an effort to prevent sightseers from coming to Belfast to see the Prince of Wales, who guarded by 12,000 men, took part in a five mile parade to Stormont where he dedicated the new Northern Ireland parliament buildings.

Long sections of the railroad between Kells, County Meath, in the Free State, and Belfast were torn up and other parts of the road were mined. Rails also were ripped up in the vicinity of Cavan, also in the Free State.

Ireland for Irish
At each end of the breaks in the tracks were placed notices reading: "Ireland belongs to the Irish, both North and South," and on the station at Kells there was a poster: "Warning. Line ripped up and mined in several places. The train must not proceed or it will be fired on."

Here and there along the damaged section of the railroad from Kells to Belfast were signs reading: "down with the Prince of Wales."

Telegraph Wires Cut
All telegraph wires on the Kells to Belfast route were cut. Red flags were placed at points where the rails were broken. Railroad officials discovered what had happened before a crowded Kells excursion train came to any harm.

Belfast received the prince with great enthusiasm, but thousands of police remained watchful tonight to quell any hostile demonstration.

Ulster Nationalists refused to have anything to do with the ceremonies connected with the prince's first visit to Belfast. They protested that in coming here he emphasized the breach between the counties which make up Northern Ireland and the independent Free State to the south.

Planes Soar Aloft

State Representative Dies of Heart Attack

Government Acts Against Capone Plea

Former Gangster Chief Gets Brief Respite From Prison

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 16 (AP)—Al Capone emerged from his enforced retirement in the Atlanta federal penitentiary long enough today to hear Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood take under advisement the government motion to dismiss the habeas corpus petition brought by attorneys for the former gangster.

For three hours and 15 minutes Capone sat in court with his counsel and listened to a maze of legal arguments involving his right to freedom under the statute of limitations.

Hustled Back to Prison
Then Chicago's former public enemy No. 1 was hustled back into a prison car and hurried once again behind the gray walls where his identity is screened behind the number 40,888.

William E. Leahy and William J. Hughes, Jr., Washington attorneys, appeared to argue Capone's contention that the three year period under the statute of limitations had expired before Capone was indicted for violation of the federal income tax laws.

The government sent G. A. Youngquist, assistant U. S. attorney general in charge of prohibition and income tax prosecutions, and District Attorney Dwight H. Green of Chicago to assist Assistant District Attorney Hal Lindsey of the northern district of Georgia in combatting Capone's bid for freedom.

Move for Dismissal
Assistant District Attorney Lindsey moved immediately for dismissal of the petition and Youngquist said the petition "practically pleads itself out of court."

The assistant U. S. attorney general denied the contention of Capone's attorneys that there was any similarity between the Capone case and that of William Randolph Hearst, a Boston lawyer whom the U. S. supreme court freed of income tax charges under the statute of limitations.

Rainey Enters Speaker Race

Demo Floor Leader Would Take Lead in House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—The race for the speakership of the house in the new congress began today with the formal announcement of Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, that he would be a candidate.

The vigorous veteran of 28 years in the national assembly told newspapermen: "I think I am in line for the speakership and will be a candidate."

Vacant March 4
The speakership will become vacant next March 4 when John N. Garner leaves the house to take up his new post as vice president. At least five candidates for the Democratic speakership nomination expect to announce their intentions soon.

Rainey, Byrns of Tennessee, McDuffie and Bankhead of Alabama, and Rankin of Mississippi are outstanding contenders.

Rainey said he had received pledges of support from members elect from northern and midwestern states. He rejected the suggestion that he remain to be chairman of the ways and means committee, of which he has been a member for many years.

Entered 58th Congress
Rainey, farmer and lawyer from Carrolltown, Ill., entered the house in the 58th congress and served continuously since with the exception of in the 67th when he lost his seat in the Harding landslide of 1920.

Business Shows Upward Trend

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)

Railroad employment on Sept. 15 showed an increase of approximately 14,000 men over the same date in August. The total of all employes at mid-September was 1,010,442, and in mid-August 996,317.

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va., Nov. 16 (AP)—Two hundred men were ordered to return to work next Monday in the steel plant of the Follansbee Brothers company. The plant has been closed since June 30.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—A falling off in the number of business failures to the lowest figure since 1929 was hailed by Bradstreet's weekly review today as an indication of a business revival. For the week ending Nov. 10 there were 415 defaults, 23 less than the previous week.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP)—Employment and payrolls in Illinois advanced 1.2 and 1.3 per cent respectively, during October industrial firms have reported.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP)—Along the dark, silent corridors of the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university is a small, square room called "the hall of death" by those around the place.

On the door is a red, scare-head sign which reads: "Danger This room protected by tear gas bombs." The warning means business.

Inside are solid walls of glass cases, running from the floor to the ceiling. Along the shelves are 2,500 pistols of various types. In addition there are 500 machine guns, rifles and other firearms.

The 3,000 pieces compose the "sure death" library of the laboratory. The pieces have either killed men or women, or have been taken from hoodlums who may have used them in murders.

Attached to each weapon is a numbered tag, which refers to a card describing the tragedy.

The "sure death" library was built up in connection with the study of ballistics at the crime detection laboratory.

It's Merely an Old Solem Custom, But Let's Hope It Works

Will Iowa whip Northwest-ern?

Will Capt. Marc Magnusson finally have some good luck? Be down to old Iowa field for football practice this afternoon, you football fans, and you may find the answer.

The final workout of the season will be held today, and following it will be the burning of the old shoe. This ceremony is tradition with Solem-coached teams, and is supposed to be significant as to how the team will go in the last game.

Both varsity and freshman squads take part in the rite, featuring the lighting of an old shoe which the captain tosses over his shoulder at a pile of straw. If the blazing shoe ignites the straw, the team will have good luck against its last opponent.

The final practice as well as the ceremony is open to Hawkeye fans. Practice starts shortly after four o'clock, and the ceremony will take place about 5:15.

Plan for City Thanksgiving

Ask Organizations to Aid Distribution of Provisions

All Iowa City will join this year in carrying the spirit of Thanksgiving to every home if plans announced yesterday are carried through to completion.

A union Thanksgiving service of the Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish churches will be held Thanksgiving morning from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. at the American Legion Community building. The Rev. Richard E. McEvoy, rector of the Trinity Episcopal church, will preside and representatives of the other co-operating bodies will assist in the services.

Ask Support
All organizations in the city, besides co-operating in the services, are being urged to support the churches in their drive for "Harvest Home" donations so that every needy family shall have a taste of plenty on Thanksgiving day.

The American Legion Community building will be turned into a storehouse Wednesday for donations of fruits, vegetables, canned goods, nuts, and other provisions.

Suggest Food
Some of the provisions suggested as appropriate for donations are: potatoes, turnips, parsnips, squashes, cabbage, beets, lima and soup beans, canned vegetables and fruit, preserves and jellies, all kinds of fruit, nuts and popcorn, lard, smoked meat, dried beef, flour, corn meal and eggs.

All donations should be left at the American Legion Community building Tuesday or Wednesday or Thanksgiving morning. All citizens of Iowa City and the vicinity are asked to give their assistance in making the "Harvest Home" a success.

The Social Service league has been asked by the Iowa City ministerial association to administer the donations and the cash offering which will be taken at the Thursday service on behalf of the needy of the community.

"Tape" Bandit Gets 20 Year Sentence

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 16 (AP)—Edmund Rohde, 28, Omaha, pleaded guilty here late today to nine charges of robbery and was sentenced to 20 years in the Missouri penitentiary.

Three Power Combine Will Help Industry

Recommend Simpson for Position in Cabinet

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—The creation of an economic consortium by France, Germany and Great Britain, which is designed to assist in coping with the unemployed problem, was announced today by Raymond Patenotre, who will be in charge of its operations.

"We foresee," said M. Patenotre, "a return of prosperity by the natural process of the development of industrialization."

Aid Jobless
"The unemployed in the smaller depressed countries will be given work, while the jobless in the larger countries will be relieved by the operation of factories."

The plan was described as a combination of French capital and German industry, with guarantees covering the subjects of insurance, security and non-competition.

Patenotre in Charge
M. Patenotre is France's under secretary for national economy. As vice president in actual charge of the operations of the consortium he will have headquarters in Paris.

The German minister of national economy will serve as German vice-president of the organization.

The first project of the consortium will be the offer of a loan of 17,000,000,000 francs (currently $880,000,000) for the electrification of railways in Poland, Rumania, Iraq and Portugal.

Three Syndicates
The Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune said France and England would provide 40 per cent of this loan each, and Germany would furnish 20 per cent.

The consortium will consist of three syndicates—Franco-German financial experts; British, French and German bankers; and a Franco-German syndicate designed to carry out recommendations of the banking group in the electrification projects.

M. Patenotre said the organization was purely an economic arrangement. Premier Herriot will be its titular head in France and Chancellor Von Papen in Germany.

Claim Young Helped Insull

Witness Calls Diplomat "Peacemaker" in Negotiations

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP)—The part Owen D. Young took in the last attempts to save two now bankrupt insull utility holding companies was outlined today at a federal court hearing.

Edward A. Brown, executive vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, said the eastern capitalist acted as "peacemaker" a year ago in negotiations with New York banks which had loaned huge sums to Insull utility investments and corporation securities of Chicago.

Wanted Agreement
Insull company officials were seeking to persuade the banks to sign an agreement not to sell Insull operating company stocks which they held at collateral for the loans. Sale of the stocks, it was claimed, would have "caused the bottom to drop out of Insull securities values."

Brown was preceded on the witness stand by Samuel Insull, Jr., son of the utilities magnate now fighting in Greece against extradition to Chicago for embezzlement and larceny.

Young Chairman
Brown said Young was "chairman of the board of the General Electric company and much interested in the electric industry and its financing, a deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York city with great influence in banking circles, and a friend of Insull of many years standing."

"We were all glad to have him," Brown said when asked if he and other Chicago bankers "were afraid the New York banks would get out of line and were thankful for Mr. Young's assistance."

Prof. Lula Smith Speaks to Club on Peasant Art Exhibit

Bright Colors Enrich Drab Existence of Villagers

The peasant art on exhibit in the University club rooms was the subject of a short talk by Prof. Lula Smith of the home economics department, at the club Kensington at Iowa Union yesterday afternoon.

Displaying a Czechoslovakian costume, Professor Smith explained that it was not the typical dress of the country, but that in each village the costumes varied slightly. Clothing for both men and women is brilliantly colored and nothing of that type can be bought ready made in the little villages, she said.

More Developed in Poland

"Polish painting is more developed than Czechoslovakian because the latter is taken mostly from costume designs and decorative schemes used in the homes. Poland is encouraging the native arts and crafts and schools of art and has developed wood carving to a high degree of perfection," she asserted.

In summarizing the peasant art, the speaker said, "It is the natural expression of the people's artistic sense. It is functional and the gay colors are developed to make the homes more attractive and to add color to the drab lives of the peasants."

Continues to Exhibit

The International School of Art contributed to the exhibit which consists of posters and paintings by the modern Polish artists; toys, Easter eggs, ceramics from the central countries; embroideries, new and old laces, cards, woven scarfs, and kilim rugs from the remote mountain regions; and some Polish toys and textiles like those described by Raymond in "The Peasants."

Ed O'Connor Talks to Lions

New Attorney General Says Demos Will Keep Faith

That Democrats elected to state offices in the general election Nov. 8 will live up as best they can to their pre-election promises was the declaration of Edward L. O'Connor of Iowa City, newly elected attorney general, in a talk yesterday noon before the Iowa City Lions club at the Jefferson hotel.

Mr. O'Connor said that people may expect too much of the Democrats, but that all new officers are going to work with a full realization of the situation, and the determination to relieve the overburdened taxpayers.

The new attorney general told of Governor-Elect Clyde Herring's plans to consolidate state bureaus and eliminate commissions in order to cut down expenses.

Three re-elected county officers also spoke at the luncheon. They were: County Attorney F. B. Olsen, Sheriff Don McComas, and Dr. George Marsh, coroner.

A committee of three to investigate needs of the children of poor families in the city was appointed by President J. G. Garner. Members are: Willis W. Mercer, chairman, James E. Stronks, and George Ball.

Bad Debts to Cause Sale of Flyer's Plane

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 16 (AP)—An aerial vagabond's plane will be sold at auction here Monday night to satisfy a $617 judgment obtained by Josephine E. Simpson of Kansas City.

Municipal Judge John Polk issued the order today although the owner, S. Kastner, a former German soldier, did not appear.

Ready to give prospective bidders a practical demonstration, Constable Charles Anderson, who will have charge of the sale, said he had received many inquiries. He was a war time flyer and still takes to the air once in a while.

The judgment holder located the plane at the municipal airport here after a nationwide search of flying field registers. Then she filed suit claiming she had loaned Kastner $617 in Kansas City to pay a repair bill against the ship in Texas.

Officials said Kastner had been unable to fly from Lincoln because a finance company here which also had loaned him money would not permit him to move the plane until the loan was paid.

Alpha Chi Omega Jumps to Lead in Hawkeye Contest

Alpha Chi Omega, represented by Alice Murphy, now leads the field in the 1934 Hawkeye sales campaign, having forged to the lead from third place in the last three days.

Margaret Morris of Delta Gamma has also jumped ahead, from sixth place, to be runner-up to Alpha Chi Omega.

Zeta Tau Alpha, led by Margaret Asthalter, took a step in the opposite direction, slumping from first to third.

Others who spurted ahead during the last three days are Helen Narber of Phi Omega Pi, Katherine Spain of Kappa Delta, and Helen Wetlich of Theta Phi Alpha.

Standings of the leading contestants at 8 p.m. yesterday were: Miss Murphy, first; Miss Morris, second; Miss Asthalter, third; Ruth Christie of Kappa Kappa Gamma, fourth; Mary Louise Epperson of Kappa Alpha Theta, fifth.

Gertrude Mowry of Alpha Xi Delta, sixth; Edna Hirsch of Chi Omega, seventh; Cherie McElhinney of Gamma Phi Beta, eighth; and Kathryn Chrysler of Pi Beta Phi, ninth.

Phi Delta Phi's Suffer Fire Loss Yesterday Morning

Fire and smoke routed members of the Phi Delta Phi law fraternity, 128 N. Clinton street, at 8:30 a.m. yesterday when a chimney spark caught fire to the south half of the roof and filled the house with smoke.

Damage to clothes and furniture was thought to be considerable, although no official estimate was made yesterday. Nearly all rooms in the house were drenched with water from the firemen's hose and a suitcase and other small articles were burned.

About 12 feet of the roof on the south side of the house was completely burned. Carpenters, who went to work early in the afternoon, had the damage nearly repaired last night.

Junior Laws Argue Case

Will Determine Heir in Blackacre Trial at Practice Court

Who will be the owner of the estate, Blackacre, left to the heirs of James Smith, is the question which will be argued in the junior law practice trial this evening at 7:15 in the court room of the law building.

Theodore C. Hutchinson of Alsona, Dean W. Stauffacher of Cedar Rapids, Robert H. Keehn of Burlington, and J. Harold Saks of Council Bluffs are the attorneys at the trial, at which Judge Herbert C. Ring of the eighteenth judicial district will preside. Judge Ring, whose home is in Cedar Rapids, is a graduate of the University of Iowa of the class of 1894.

Before his death James Smith made a will leaving Blackacre to "Susan, Tom, and the rest of the children of my late brother Frank." All the rest of his property was left to his sister, Helen. Frank Smith's children died before James Smith, but each of them left children. The children now claim the share their parents would have received had they lived. Helen Smith now claims all the property.

The major question is whether the children of Frank Smith's children take the property by the will, or whether it goes to his sister, Helen. A presentation will be made by the attorneys deciding whether a statute in the Iowa code relative to the case applies where some of the claimants are children of children not specifically named.

If Judge Ring believes the statute does not apply, Blackacre will go to Helen Smith under the general bequest to her of "all the rest of my property."

Hutchinson and Stauffacher are the attorneys for the children, while Keehn and Saks will plead Helen Smith's case.

Hurt in Explosion. TAMA (AP) — Ellis Wilson, 60, was badly hurt when a stove in a vacant house he was helping repair exploded because of frozen water pipes.

Water—Clear, Cold, Sparkling—Boon to Life, But Treacherous Too, Must Pass Rigid Laboratory Tests

"H<sub>2</sub>O"—what mysteries of health and life abound in those apparently insignificant symbols! It is an interesting fact that 70 per cent of the human body, by weight, is composed of water. But not just any water will do; the body demands a pure fluid, free from toxic salts and an excess of soluble minerals.

Located on the second floor of the medical building is the water analysis department, under the direction of Prof. Jack J. Hinman, Jr. The department is connected with the state hygiene laboratory, operated under the preventive medicine and hygiene department. Here it is that scientific research is daily exploited to detect minute danger signs in Iowa City's drinking water.

Water from all over the state, as well as from the local supplies, is examined in this laboratory. The state department of health requires that all water be tested at frequent intervals, according to the source of supply. Consequently, the water analysis laboratory busies itself with from 700 to 1,200 new samples monthly.

Water reacts fearlessly to temperature and is not found chemically pure in nature—often it is dangerously contaminated—hence the measures taken to prevent human infection. Polluted water contains organic matter of animal or vegetable origin, and may contain intestinal bacteria from human or animal sources.

Typhoid bacilli may accompany the intestinal organisms. Search for typhoid organisms is not made as a routine procedure because these bacteria may have died out in the water supply before the sample was taken and because of difficulties in isolating them readily. Instead a more delicate test is used.

Samples may be sent to the local laboratory by city officials, or by individuals who think that there should be an investigation of the water in their communities. To insure safe transportation, the laboratory sends out special containers, fixed in insulated wooden boxes, which may be packed with ice to keep the sample cool, thus preventing chemical or bacteriological changes.

Immediately upon receipt of the sample, the water is tested, and a bacteriological analysis made. If the water is found to be contaminated, a report of the proceedings is sent to the mayor of the community, another to the state board of health, and another kept for the files of the local water analysis department.

All civil engineering students are required to take an elementary course in water analysis, under the supervision of the department. The course is dissociated from routine laboratory work, however, and the students do no analytical work on the samples sent in for examination.

Astronomers Err, Wait for Brilliant Sky Show in Vain

Even the best laid plans go wrong—even those of astronomers.

For although astronomers had predicted a brilliant shower of the Leonid meteors would arrive early yesterday morning, only a few of the long-expected visitors showed up.

Five meteors appearing in the zenith were recorded in two hours on the specially constructed rocking mirrors apparatus in use at the university observatory, while 19 were sighted in the direction of the constellation, Leo.

Two possible explanations of the scarcity were advanced by Benrose Boyd, research assistant in physics, who is in joint charge of the observations here with Howard Wagner, graduate mathematics assistant, and William Willis, G of Bedford, Ky.

Either the brilliance of the shower was overestimated, he said, or else it was a day late, in which case the maximum will have occurred in the early hours this morning.

Civil Engineering Group Hears Talks by Kellow, Daniels

Gaylord A. Kellow, E4 of Cresco, described the "Chute-a-Caron obelisk" at the meeting of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers yesterday.

This structure is a dam in Canada, built in a unique way, he explained. The velocity of the water prevented normal construction, so the dam was built on end and blasted in such a way that it fell across the stream.

Bruce E. Daniels, E3 of Dubuque, was the second speaker. He gave a descriptive talk on the subject, "Right-of-way maintenance on railroads."

Brookhart Improving
CHICAGO (AP) — Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa was reported to be greatly improved from an attack of pneumonia which he incurred while visiting at the suburban home of a friend.

Big Men Can Be Bad

CLEVEREST of political commentators, Heywood Broun is not also the least partial. This he disclosed in calling Fiorello La Guardia best 1931 congressman and in labeling Senator Bernard H. Moses, Reed Smoot, and Hiram Bingham indiscriminately by dubbing "that the senate will lack stuffed shirts to take the place of these missing guardsmen."

None of these men can be considered, even by inference a stuffed shirt—unless the shirt is of the mail and mesh variety of ye olde knighthood.

Columnist Broun happens to disagree with the political and economic philosophy of these gentlemen. Power to him for that. But he was at the Democratic convention in Chicago last summer and must not have been blind to the courage and vigor—right or wrong—with which Senator Bingham championed the wet side of prohibition against administration and minority sentiment. Perhaps he recalls that this same senator voted to seat Iowa's Smith W. Brookhart over Dan Steek because he placed justice above party loyalty.

Possibly Mr. Broun knows that actual authorship of the much-damned tariff bill traces to Idaho's Smoot, who took the work of Representative Hawley and made something of it that he and his colleagues could pass through the whole national government. He also, almost single-handed, often rewrites bills in committee and convinces house members of joint committees of the rightness of Smoot's views.

If for nothing else, New Hampshire's Moses will have a place in history—at least a footnote—as the utterer of that denunciation of "sons of the wild jackass."

Congressman La Guardia's fight against the sales tax pitted him versus Congressman Charles R. Crisp of Georgia—a Republican progressive against a Democratic conservative. That Crisp was on the wrong side should be no reason to condemn his individual ability; the men who most deserve speedy exit are those sheeplike followers not important enough to be conspicuous to Observer Broun.

Anybody believing fundamentally in the rights of the people would have voted against Senator Smoot in Idaho, Senator Moses in New Hampshire, Senator Bingham in Connecticut, Aspirant Crisp in Georgia. Yet in an election so sweepingly Democratic it is too bad to lose an opposition of their caliber.

The "new deal" wants to be tested against all the arguments the ablest of foes can muster if it is to be foolproof and lasting. Heywood Broun should know better than to think otherwise, for he affiliates with a political party which says no matter how good the man as an individual he may lack qualifications to represent the people because he has no intention of championing the people's issues.

Those who disbelieve in them may moralize about "bad" men like Napoleon Bonaparte and Benito Mussolini, try to make out also that they are not "big." Men bad enough to get the spotlight are nearly always big. Public opinion needs to learn that its representatives must not only be able but also spokesmen of public opinion. The best way to do that is to watch those representatives as every bill comes up, decide how it should be treated and see if they vote accordingly. The ablest of men have been known to right-about-face in their political climbing.

One House Legislature?

A NEWS dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., reports that John Boelts of Central City, Neb., was elected to the state senate last week but already wants to abolish his own job by doing away with that body. He proposes to introduce a constitutional amendment for that purpose in January.

Senator Boelts—that name would make a fine pun, come to think about it—is beside the point for Iowans. The question of a one house legislature is not.

United States theories of government were devised before the day of political parties as they now are known. Check and balance in those days was provided for by a rigid division of powers—purposely obstructing participation of the "mob" in grave matters.

This very device often serves to block action. Iowa's legislature will this year see a house controlled by one party—due to the election landslide—a senate dominated by the other—due to holdovers from Republican times. Usually there is a division between the two houses in which the senate's longer term members are older and more conservative.

Who originally desired such obstruction, and who desires it now, might be worth while to think over as the bicameral assembly is challenged in the neighbor state of Nebraska. If a simpler, cheaper, and trustworthy single chamber legislature can be adopted there, the experiment may give Iowa some hints.

In foreign governments where there is one legislating body actual "check and balance" is provided by parties and factions. When a cabinet leadership loses the confidence of its deputies or legislators, a new election is called. Actually, then, the "check and balance" is provided less rigidly by the voters.

In the day when the United States constitution was drafted perhaps "the people" was "a great beast" not to be trusted with its government. A time may come shortly when that will not be true. If so, it may be appropriate to give citizens power according to their abilities. And possibly one reason for recent disinterested citizenship is the very remoteness of governments set up purposely distant from those with whose consent governing is, principally, done.

Leaving the Machine

A DIE STAMPING machine may receive steel plates at one end and turn out sections of blacksmith's tongs at another; these may be turned into another machine which grinds them to shape and rivets them together; but the real artist of iron work will take raw material to a forge, and by heat and the sledge turn out a pair of tongs for himself.

The machine turns out its product much faster, much cheaper, and much more uniformly than can the smith; but the smith prefers to use the implements of his own fabrication. His reason is that he knows just what he needs, and can shape his product to fit.

A college curriculum may take men and women and pass them through various class machinery, "finish" them according to a certain mold, and turn them out with great swiftness and efficiency; but the student who has made individual research into some branch will be better in that field than the student who has merely gone through the machine.

The new provision for freshman honors in English at the University of Iowa is highly in keeping with the need for individual work as an aid to better scholarship; with the elimination of machine-like study and the chance for individual research comes the broadening in outlook which is like the fine hand-executed finish given a steel instrument by the smith. The project may well be extended to other fields of study.

Men of 50 are the steadiest drivers, a survey shows. By that time, you understand, they have found that it is safer to keep only one head on their shoulders at a time.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

With so very many, many things in the world to write columns about, the difficulty of choosing is sometimes overburdening to the extent that writers often scatter discretion to the winds and take the first thing they lay hands on to perpetrate on their readers.

Which is just one way of excusing the frame of mind that allowed this writer to snatch up at random a magazine with a pretty red cover and turning to the very first attractive page, to find there on the following:

"It sounds incredible, but nevertheless it is true. If everybody in this world of ours were six feet tall and a foot and a half wide and a foot thick (and that is making people a little bigger than they usually are), then the whole of the human race (and according to the latest available statistics there are now nearly 2,000,000,000 descendants of the original Homo Sapiens and his wife) could be packed into a box measuring half a mile in each direction . . ."

"If we transported that box to the Grand Canyon of Arizona and balanced it neatly on the low stone wall that keeps people from breaking their necks when stunned by the incredible beauty of that silent witness of the forces of Eternity, and then called little Noodle, the dachshund, and told him (the tiny beast is very intelligent and loves to oblige) to give the unwieldy contraption a slight push with his soft brown nose, there would be a moment of crunching and ripping as the wooden planks loosened stones and shrubs and trees on their down ward path, and then a low and even softer bumpity-bumpity-bump and a sudden splash when the outer edges struck the banks of the Colorado river.

"Then silence and oblivion!"

"The human sardines in their mortuary chest would soon be forgotten. The Canyon would go on battling wind and air and sun and rain as it has done since it was created. The world would continue to run its even course through the uncharted heavens. The astronomers on distant and nearby planets would have noticed nothing out of the ordinary. A century from now, a little mound, densely covered with vegetable matter, would perhaps indicate where humanity lay buried.

"And that would be all."

Then follows an account of how much it costs to read the complete story in Van Loon's Geography, all for so many dollars or such and such a subscription, which sort of spoils a perfectly sincere reverie.

And just when we get all set to remark that "Hm, it's a small world, after all," we remember that, after all, there are 196,950,000 square miles of world, ranging from 35,410 feet deep and 29,141 feet high and weighing, in all some six sextillion, 592 quintillion tons, not including the atmosphere estimated at not less than five quadrillion short tons, (all with the help of the almanac). And besides, the 2,000,000,000 people are divided up into so many finicky groups nobody'd ever get them all together long enough to see if Mr. Van Loon's idea will work. So what's the use?

Passages of utter despair are commoner to the young than they are to those whom years have experienced in the impermanence of any fate, good, had, or indifferent, unless, perhaps, the last may seem rather constant.

STUDIO GOSSIP

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Milady will wear no more puffed sleeves on her evening gown.

This is the dictate brought back from Paris by Travis Banton, fashion creator for the Paramount studio.

"We have found out," says Mr. Banton, "that these sleeves are too often rumpled or crushed by wraps. Consequently, the new evening gown will follow the body line closely.

"This does not mean the abandonment of the puffs. They still will be used on wraps and for day wear. Being particularly adaptable for fur, they are causing an important revival in this type of trim. Paris, in fact, is fur crazy. Everything is silver fox or sable."

Another Parisian trend, declares the style expert, is a greater use of feathers. And here the fad is directly traceable to the hats and costume worn by Marlene Dietrich in "Shanghai Express."

To the fashion designer, however, the big surprise in Europe is the new smartness of London. English women, Banton reports, now dress as smartly as their Parisian sisters. Noon-time at the Ritz is a veritable fashion show.

And now another tip. Say goodbye to reds. This spring both Paris and Hollywood will feature grey.

Jane Murfin tells the story of a little theater owner who was trying to rent a big picture for a song. "But listen," argued the salesman, "when this film showed on Broadway, people came to see it three and four times."

The exhibitor gave a deprecatory shrug.

"And if it took those New Yorkers four times to understand the thing, how do I sell it out here?"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Hollywood stars will see themselves plastered in informal poses across three pages of an English newspaper. The candid camera views were taken by the wife of Charles Laughton when he visited the film capital. . . It's Honolulu again for Dorothy Mackall after the first of her year. She's already booked her passage. . . Out here they're gazing a little wide-eyed at Marnie Self, co-author of "Blessed Event." In one hour after his arrival to write for Paramount, he had bought a car, a radio, rented an apartment and had his suit pressed. . . When M. G. M. gave Karen Morley a plain, old-fashioned wedding ring to wear in "Flesh," she showed unusual excitement. This same ring was worn by Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie," by Lynn Fontanne in "The Guardsman" and by Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Through." . . . Gene Raymond gave a second and he hopes final farewell party at the Cocoanut Grove last evening. Among those present were Jesse Lasky, Jesse Lasky, Jr., Frances Dee, B. P. Schulberg, Raquel Torres and Charles Fieldman.

Root Terms America 'A New Europe'

Says Destinies of Two Continents Always Interlinked

"The history of Europe does not lie in Europe alone. . . . America is a new Europe."

This was the thesis of a guest lecture by W. T. Root before the European history class of Prof. George Gordon Andrews yesterday morning.

Deplored the scholar's division of the unity of western civilization into "petty fragments," the history department head declared that "American history has been studied and taught as if we had no connection across the water, as if we lived on Mars . . . under the false shadow of the Monroe doctrine."

U. S. Industry vs. Leadership

"We need to point that out most particularly in this country because we have such insulated minds. We seem to think we can go our own way as if there was no such thing as interdependence of nations. That mind is a peculiar characteristic of the American people. We must get over it to play our full part in the concerns of the world."

Professor Root pointed to the founding of colonies in America as the expression of European forces—commercial revolution that expanded economic horizons from the isolated medieval manor to the entire globe, intellectual renaissance when men began to question old ideas and to think for themselves, political nationalism of states aspiring to be masters of their individual destinies, religious reformation that shattered the unity of Latin Christianity.

Pointing out the intimate relations of Europe and America, Professor Root showed how colonial possessions weighed heavily in the scales of European nationalism's new "balance of power" idea. No longer having the papacy internationally accepted, modern Europe turned to alliance and counter-alliance in the hope of a peaceful equilibrium.

Protestant, Capitalist Religiously, he said that "the settlement of America was an important phase of the Protestant reformation in Europe." France and Spain, hostile to heretics at home, would not receive them in their new world possessions. English America became the "new Zion"—open to the oppressed because the mother was interested not so much in religion or government as in business; her venturesome capitalism required labor that was hard to obtain.

Interdependence was a factor from the beginning, said Professor Root. Colonial markets and raw materials fed the industrial giant in England, while development of the new world was financed from "home" so largely that at one time the American revolution colonists owed English merchants 5,000,000 pounds sterling. Their purchasing power depended on ability to spend natural resources for European manufactured goods.

In closing, Professor Root introduced the topic of forces separating the two continents—on which he is to speak Monday—remarked that "there is as much European history in America as there is American."

Professor Larsen Will Give Second Baconian Lecture

Prof. Henning Larsen of the English department will give the second Baconian lecture of the season at 7 p.m. tomorrow in chemistry auditorium. His lecture will be entitled "Old Norse medicine."

Professor Larsen will trace the development of the so-called "scientific" medicine, particularly as practiced in the Norse countries, from its early Greek and Roman beginnings, down through the fifteenth century.

An old fifteenth century Norse manuscript, accidentally discovered in the library of the Royal Irish academy in Dublin, is the source of much of the material.

The discoverer of the manuscript sent it to a professor in Oslo, Norway, who in turn gave it to Professor Larsen to be edited and published. The work was completed last year, and the book was published in both Norwegian and English.

Professor Larsen is a scholar in the field of Norse and old English linguistics. His lecture is one of a series of 12 under the auspices of the graduate college.

Research Director Will Address Iowa Chemists Tonight

Dr. Anson Hayes, director of research laboratories at the American Rolling Mill company, Middletown, Ohio, will address the Iowa section of the American Chemical society tonight at 7:30 in the chemistry auditorium. The subject of Dr. Hayes' talk is "Some applications of the fundamental theories of the physical sciences to sheet metal manufacture and sheet metal fabrication." A 6 o'clock dinner at the Alpha Chi Sigma house will precede the meeting.

Opposition Within State Party Failed to Stop "Ma" Ferguson

Governor-elect of Texas, Only Woman in U. S. to Hold Such High Office, Won Second Term in Capitol Despite Party Bolt.

ORVILLE DULLINGTON - GOV-ELECT MA FERGUSON - JAMES E. FERGUSON.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 14—Riding high on the crest of the Roosevelt wave that washed high above the head of the grand old party, Mrs. Miriam ("Ma") Ferguson, the stormy petrel of Texas politics, is once more restored to her place as the only woman governor in the United States.

Although Mrs. Ferguson's election comes as no surprise, the Democratic nomination in Texas being tantamount to victory at the polls, the militant lady was obliged to hurdle many obstacles before attaining her goal—the gubernatorial chair of the Lone Star state.

Not the least of these obstacles was the bloc of Democrats who threw their support to Orville Dullington, the Republican candidate, since Ma's great primary fight against Gov. Ross Sterling, the incumbent, and the resultant furor arising out of Governor Sterling's charges that his opponent's victory was the result of irregularities in the primary.

At that time Mrs. Ferguson's name was ordered omitted from the November election ballots. But Ma took her case to the state supreme court and won a decision over the governor, with the result that the latter announced he would bolt the state ticket, although he pledged continued allegiance to the national party.

This action on Governor Sterling's part started the stop-Ferguson movement, the object of which was "to prevent the state falling into the hands of James E. Ferguson," Ma's husband, who, the bolters asserted, would be the real power in the state capitol if his wife were elected. Ferguson, a former governor who was impeached in 1917, acted as his wife's campaign manager in the race which has just terminated.

The career of the new governor-elect has been one of the most turbulent in American politics within recent years. Denounced by politicians as a figurehead for her husband and lacking the full backing of the women of her state, Mrs. Ferguson has nevertheless smashed through all opposition to wrest con-ted political honors from veteran opponents.

Claiming no special qualifications for the position, Mrs. Ferguson ran for the governorship of her state in 1924, more, she said, "as a vindication for Jim (her husband, who had been ruled ineligible for office) than for the honor it would bring." A wave of popular resentment against the Ku Klux Klan at that time played no small part in Ma's victory.

But no sooner was the woman governor secure in the capitol than the Texans wished they hadn't put her there. Her conduct of office brought a storm of criticism, in which legislators and voters of both sexes joined vigorously. The most outstanding activity of the lady governor, and the one chiefly responsible for the criticism, was her unprecedented policy of the granting of pardons to convicted criminals. So many pardons were granted in Mrs. Ferguson's two-year term that her prison became known as "the prison orgy."

More than 3,500 prisoners, many of them said to be notorious criminals, received clemency. Besides the pardons, the woman chief executive exercised her prerogative in commuting death sentences on convicted murderers to the number of eight.

In 1926 Texas' Democrats refused to accord to their first woman governor the traditional honor of an unopposed second term. Instead, they put forward Dan Moody, a young man who had held but one state office, the attorney generalship. Moody was elected by more than 100,000 votes.

Mrs. Ferguson's decision to seek office again this year was made after the supreme court had confirmed a previous ruling that her husband could not hold public office in Texas. Ma has made no secret of the fact that she was running for election on hubby's platform.

The Turkish government has forbidden display of faulty films. The same decree forbids the showing of films aiming at religious propaganda, derogatory to military honor and prestige.

Government Engineers Seek to Reduce Waterway Costs by Study of Miniature Locks

Huge locks needed for the nation's inland waterway system now are being duplicated to scale in the University of Iowa hydraulic laboratory by the United States engineer department, it has been revealed by Prof. Floyd A. Nagler, director of the research laboratory.

The first model, he said, has just been finished. It is that of a standard lock, built on a scale of 1 to 18, mimicking in exact detail all of the features of the actual lock. The experiments are under the direction of Martin E. Nelson.

Seek New Designs With the model completed, the government engineers for more than two years will seek to incorporate improvements. They believe that economics of design are possible, thereby lessening by thousands of dollars the expense of locks yet to be built for the inland waterways, Professor Nagler asserted.

One of the major problems is speeding up of the time required for filling and emptying, and doing so without creating disastrous eddies in the lock chamber. May Cut Shipping Costs If the experiments are successful, Professor Nagler said they may bring about savings of millions of dollars in shipping costs by cutting down the time lost by ships passing through the locks.

Government experts, using the facilities of the university laboratory, also are laboring with a model of the Mississippi river below the Keokuk dam. They must solve a baffling problem of cross currents, to prevent these currents from wrecking boats against the bridge piers just below the lock.

Visiting Professor Addresses Council

Prof. H. M. Johnson of the philosophy department at Augustana college in Rock Island, Ill., traced the development of humanism from the time of Emanuel Kant to the present date, when he spoke on "Humanism" at the Religious Workers' Council luncheon at Iowa Union yesterday noon.

Ripley Explanations

The Indefatigable Mayor: Mr. Waller's family name, which is so prominent in Texas that Waller county is named after it, probably accounts for his success in getting his name on the ballots. Nineteen times he has run for office unsuccessfully, and at the time my cartoon was drawn Waller's name was posted for the twentieth time, in this case for office of state representative, with full support and good wishes of his townspeople.

Coincidentally, for the last 20 years Mr. Waller has been mayor of Quintana, Texas, a town that does not exist. About 1910 Quintana ceased to function as a trade center, and its entire population of 3,000 moved elsewhere. But, as it still retains its legal status of an incorporated municipality, its last elected mayor is still in office.

Waterloo's Human Weather Van Die

WATERLOO, Nov. 16 (AP)—With the death of Maurice Eugene Hoar, 78, local residents will have to depend solely on the weather bureau for weather forecasts. Hoar, one of Waterloo's most colorful and eccentric residents and with asserted ability as a weather forecaster, died late yesterday. He would walk along the streets carrying an umbrella as a sign of approaching rain or wear a straw hat as a signal of fair weather.

Blackstone to Attend Meeting at Urbana; Will Address Group

Prof. E. G. Blackstone of the college of commerce will leave Iowa City at noon today for Urbana, Ill., to attend the annual high school conference and conference of superintendents at the University of Illinois, today, tomorrow, and Saturday.

Professor Blackstone will address the commercial section of the conference tomorrow morning on "Research in business education in Iowa." He will emphasize the importance of critical analyses and research in commercial education, as opposed to personal opinion and dependence on tradition.

Professor Blackstone spoke before the same group several years ago, and it was at his instigation that a research committee was organized in Illinois to investigate the problems of commercial teaching.

Professor Blackstone plans to visit friends in Springfield tomorrow night, and to return Saturday.

Dr. C. O. Schneider Devises Lantern for Illustrated Lecture

A stereopticon, especially devised by himself, will be used by Dr. C. O. Schneider, in his illustrated lecture on the beauties of Bryce, Zion, and Grand canyons, to be given at 8 p.m. Saturday in the auditorium of Iowa Union.

The stereopticon uses slides four by five inches in size instead of the usual three by four size. This brings out more sharpness of detail.

To prevent the usual cracking of slides, caused from the heat of long exposures required in his lecture, Dr. Schneider has built dual fans in the apparatus, which throw cooling air currents against the faces of the slides.

The machine projects pictures in autochrome, or natural color.

It haunted clerks for generations

"The first of the month" used to be a time of feverish activity for ledger clerks. But the Bell System accounting staff—breaking away from tradition—simplified the keeping of accounts and rendering of monthly statements to customers.

They applied a modern system of rotation billing to the telephone business which now spreads this work evenly throughout the month. In cooperation with manufacturers, they devised special typewriters and bookkeeping machines. Thus they did away with inefficient rush and achieved greater accuracy, speed and neatness.

This is but one example of a point of view found throughout the Bell System. Even long accepted routine is constantly studied—it's always worth looking for the more efficient way!

Purdue Takes Lead in Frosh League; Holds 12-0 Edge at Half of Last Game

Hawkeyes Continue Heavy Preparation as Solem Conditions Team for Northwestern Contest

STARS TO BE SEEN IN RAMBLER-NAVY CLASH

Nick Lukats Mike Koken Robert B. Harbold Bill Kane

Sixty thousand are expected at the Municipal stadium in Cleveland Saturday to see Notre Dame and Navy in their annual grid battle. While the Ramblers are favored to win, the Middies are strong and may come through with an unexpected victory. Three of the Navy stars are Gordon Chung-Hoon, Hawaiian halfback; Bill Kane, right tackle and Bob Harbold, the 202 pound Washington lad at center. Steve Banas, Nick Lukats and Mike Koken are but three of Notre Dame's all-star backfield. 'Twill be a real battle!

Wisconsin on Losing End in Title Contest

Victory This Afternoon Will Give Purdue Championship

By TED KRUGLAK
Purdue took the lead in the freshman football league by running up a 12-0 score over Wisconsin yesterday in the first half of the deciding game. The second half will be played this afternoon with winner of the contest the league champions. The Bollermakers started their drive for the championship early in the first quarter with Leo McCormick gaining a first down on the Wisconsin 25 yard line on a 10 yard plunge through tackle. Al Pfander brought the ball to the 5 yard line on two pushes through the line, with Don Anderson taking the ball over for a touchdown on the next play. McCormick missed the try for the additional point.

Intercept Pass
Wisconsin's attempt to put a punch into the game with an aerial attack folded up under Purdue's expert secondary defense. Anderson, playing back, intercepted a pass on the 50 yard line, and dashed 14 yards before being downed. Johnny Stephens, speedy Bollermaker quarterback, picked the ball up on a fake plunge by Pfander, and weaved and twisted around right end, for 40 yards and a touchdown. In making the run, Stephens displayed enough speed to elude almost half the Wisconsin team. Another try for the additional point by McCormick failed.

Wisconsin threatened once more towards the end of the quarter. Glenn Booton returned a Purdue punt 25 yards, and then alternating with Clarence Kemp and St Ersland brought the ball to the opposition's 25 yard mark. However, a five yard penalty and a stiffened Purdue line prevented the Badgers from gaining additional ground.

Threaten at Half
The last Purdue drive started late in the second quarter, reaching the Wisconsin 1 foot stripe. Pfander started the march with a 25 yard sprint around right end from his own 30 yard line. Anderson gained another 10 yards on a plunge, and Pfander carried the ball four times in succession for a total gain of 34 yards to bring the ball within one foot of the goal. The whistle blew before the Bollermakers could attempt a play.

The lineup:

Irish Will Devote Entire Week to Defensive Work

Coach Dick Conner's St. Pat's tagers were put through their first scrimmage of the season last night, a short defensive drill being meted out to them. Such practice will be continued the remainder of the week, Conner wanting a good defense developed before offensive drill is taken up. At present the squad list includes 24 men, but the number will be cut down to about 12, Friday. Those men who do not make the squad will be relegated to class teams, and a series of games will be planned for them. The schedule has not been completed yet, but it is thought that the first game will be with St. Mary's of Clinton either the first or second week in December.

Meeker Cops First Place in Greek Race

By ART HANNES
Stretching out in a finish that could not be headed, Meeker of Sigma Phi Epsilon nosed out Meyers of Delta Upsilon by scant yards yesterday afternoon and took the sixth annual inter-fraternity cross country run in record time, 3:52, while Phi Kappa Psi won the team event for the third consecutive year, scoring 55 low points.

Second place honors went to Sigma Chi, third to Sigma Nu, fourth to Delta Upsilon, fifth to Delta Tau Delta, and sixth to Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Richards Third
Third place in the individual standing was copied by Richards of the Delta house with the other seven places in the following order: Stevenson, Phi Kappa Psi; Lees, Delta Upsilon; Sloan, Sigma Nu; Hessel, Sigma Chi; Crowley, Phi Kappa Psi; Banner, Sigma Nu; and Roupe, Sigma Chi.

The new mark completely shatters the former record of 4:42 made last year by Harrison Cole of Phi Kappa Psi and establishes a new record for the run.

The winner ran up in the lead all the way closely pursued by Meyers and forged ahead for the winning margin soon after the half way mark.

Weather Good
The weather turned out in fine shape for the event and gave the Greek harriers a good day on which to hold their classic. Contrary to expectations the running wasn't nearly as cold as it had been anticipated, judging from the high heat generated by most of the contestants. As the herd came in across the finish and deposited their "return checks" in the funnel, much distress was in evidence in several cases, but before the limited time of 10 minutes was up every one of the 84 original starters had finished.

Not having five men in the competition disqualified Sigma Phi Epsilon in the run for team honors and Meeker's win was for naught as far as his house was concerned.

The washer system of recording finishers worked in fine style and the funnel fairly rang as the thinclads passed and the metal pieces clicked home.

Two Veteran Pros, Youngster Tie for Mid-South Pro Win

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—A couple of veterans of golf's money campaigns, Al Watrous of Detroit and Al Houghton of Washington, and a 23 year old youngster, Henry Picard of Charleston, S. C., wound up in a triple tie for first place in the mid-south open golf tournament today.

Each shot a 143 for the 36 holes, but the two veterans played steady golf for their scores while Picard romped over the course in 63 this morning and faded to a 75 in the afternoon. Watrous put together rounds of 72 and 71 and Houghton did likewise.

Frosh Eleven Fails to Gain Through Air

Use Northwestern Plays in Drill; Old Gold Offense Clicks

By GENE THORNE
Working at top speed in preparation of the final game of the season against the Northwestern Wildcats at Evanston Saturday, the Hawkeyes drilled on offense and defense yesterday afternoon. Using deceptive Northwestern plays, Coach Bill Boelter's freshmen picked up considerable yardage over the varsity, but could do little in the way of completing passes. Coach Ossie Solem devoted considerable time with his forward wall, coaching the men to rush in to snare the plays back of the line of scrimmage.

Varsity Offense Works
The first string offensive was clicking in good shape against the yearlings, as they continued polishing off their blocking and interference assignments.

There were no changes in the line yesterday. Bob Loufek and John Miller got first call at the ends, Fred Radloff worked one tackle while Bill Hass and Zed Schammel alternated at the other. Lumir Kouba and Leo Samuelson were at the guards and Capt. Marc Magnusen was at center.

Seeking more drive at fullback, Coach Solem tried both Hass and Schammel at the plunging post, with Joe Laws at quarterback, and Herman Schneidman and Bernie Page, former fullback, at halfbacks.

Last Drill Today
Another scrimmage session is scheduled for this afternoon, and will conclude the heavy work of pointing for the Wildcats, as well as mark the final regular practice of the season.

A ceremony, the burning of the old shoe, after the workout this afternoon will officially close practice. This ceremony, including freshmen and varsity squads, is a tradition with Solem-coached teams. It will be open to all Iowa fans.

The Hawkeyes making the trip to Evanston will report for hibernating up exercise at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The squad of 33 men will leave for Cedar Rapids at 1 o'clock.

June Underwood, North Carolina's great center, was one of the south's best tackles last season.

Five Big Ten Games--

Northwestern, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, and Purdue—those Big Ten universities, in chronological order, will be played by the University of Iowa football team during the campaign of 1933.

Only one of the five rivals, however, will be met at Iowa City. Wisconsin comes for the Homecoming game of Oct. 21, according to the official schedule. It will be the first appearance of a Badger team here in five years.

The Hawkeyes will open the 1933 season as they close that of 1932, by playing Northwestern at Evanston. This game of (Continued on page 7)

NEARLY every football team has its pet superstitions and traditions. No doubt the Hawkeyes have their own superstitions, football traditions have been noticeably scarce. Among other things he brought with him, Coach Ossie Solem brought his own tradition, and he is passing it on to Iowa. This afternoon, the varsity and freshman football squads will take part in a public ceremony, the burning of the old shoe.

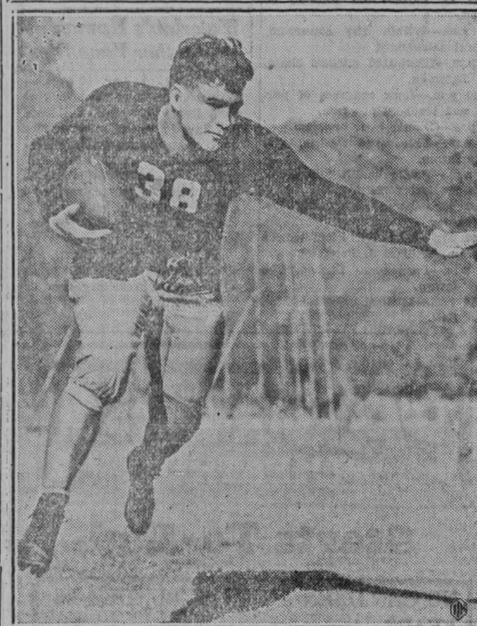

It is to symbolize the end of the gridiron practice season. After the gridirers have run through the last play in this afternoon's practice, the workouts for the season will be at an end. It means that there will be no more weeks of hustling down to the field after classes in the afternoon to practice. It means that instead of burning the proverbial midnight oil, the men can study when the rest of the student body does. Yes, and for some of the boys, it means time enough to get jobs that will give them board. There will be no more rigid training for a while, no bruises, sprains, or scratches.

DON'T think that this means the men are really glad the season is over. Those men love the game. If they didn't, they wouldn't work like they do, wouldn't stay in there and fight when they are up against superior teams. But just the same, I'll wager that most of them will heave a sigh after the game Saturday. Some of them because they'll get a rest, and some of them because they have played their last game of collegiate football. There's a whole of difference between the two kinds of sighs, too.

The list of entries in the all-Iowa stadium team continues to grow. But there is plenty of room for more, and if you want a chance at those two basketball tickets, you'd better get going. Select the 11 best men you have seen perform in the Iowa home games this season and send them to me in care of The Daily Iowan. The selections must be in the mails by midnight of Nov. 21, and the team, selected by the consensus of the fans teams, will appear in the paper Nov. 23. Hurry them along.

AND while on the subject of "all" teams, Prof. D. T. Jitters, our prognosticator, recovered sufficiently from the gruelling task of picking his winners for last week to pick an all-captain team from leaders throughout the country. Here is what he produced:
Ends—Host of Notre Dame and Williamson of Michigan.
Tackles—Brown of U. S. C. and Sokolis of Pennsylvania.
Guards—Summertfelt of Army and Tozier of California.
Center—Oehler of Purdue.
Quarterback—Beasley of St. Mary's.
Halfbacks—Berry of Illinois and Hitchcock of Auburn.
Fullback—Cain of Alabama.

ONE OF THE GALLOPIN' GAELS

The Dark Angel they call him, and he packs the big offensive power and defensive strength of the backfield of St. Mary's strong west coast eleven. Angel Brovelli, for such is his name, recently received the biggest ovation ever accorded a visiting player in New York city when the team "Slip" Madigan coaches played Fordham.

U. High Played in Four Games Without Defeat-- Then Lost Fuhrmeister

By HARRY BURRELL (Staff Writer, The Daily Iowan)

And only a finger tip stopped a great bid for the Little Seven title.

In retrospect that sums up the football season at University high this year. The season might well have been divided in two sections and labeled "Before and After."
With big Larry Fuhrmeister smashing opposing lines to pieces at the first of the season, the Blue drove through to the city title and at the half way mark had won three and tied one. Then the planer got in its work and they lost the last three games by such close margins that it seemed impossible to have lost them if the team had been at full strength.

Star improving
Despite the unpleasant ending, the season was a successful one and marked improvement was shown as Coach Joy Kistler rounded out his second year as football mentor at the local school with a 5.00 mark. Last year the Blue and White also finished with an even break, and they also finished with a crippled fullback. However, they finished with three wins, three losses and a tie this year to win one more than last season.

Starting the season with only fair prospects, plenty of speed in the backfield and little experience in the line, the Blue rapidly began to make it plain that they were going places this year.
Power was the big problem and the (Continued on page 7)

Light Buying Causes Stock Price Slump

U. S. Bonds Show Only Upturn in Dull Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The stock market found buying thinner today and prices resumed their sluggish decline, leaders losing generally from 1 to 3 points in a turnover of less than a million shares.

With the line of least resistance downward, professional traders, in whose hands the market appeared to be resting, exhibited little interest in the day's developments.

U. S. government bonds provided a bright spot in the investment market, selling higher on reports presumably that there was to be no immediate change in the open market reserve policy by which the system is maintaining a portfolio of around $1,850,000,000 in federal securities. Wheat and corn closed steady, while cotton was able to show some net appreciation.

American Telephone failed to draw inspiration from the expected regular dividend. The stock lost more than three points.

H. H. Macy weakened severely when its directors voted for discontinuance of the 5 per cent annual stock dividend which had been a fixture for five years. The shares had a tumble of 4 points. Rails

DIXIE DUGAN—That's Love!

Sieg Takes Another 1st for Yearlings

The freshman green flag remained aloft during the second day of the university swimming pentathlon when Jack Sieg, yearling merman, copped first honors in the 100 yard back stroke event barely nosing out another neophyte in the time of 1:05.8.

Joseph Ernst represented the frosh in second place while third place was partly taken by another yearling when Adolf Jacobsmeyer tied with Bruce Grove of the varsity.

Sieg, who has rarely competed in the back stroke, showed unexpected style and lasting qualities as he unofficially broke the university record of 1:08.1 held by Ray Mohl.

Fifth place in the back stroke affair was taken by Jack McQuire. Other finishers in order were James McIntook, Allen Hurley, Donat Webber, Charles Van Hoesen, and Ray Bodine. About 15 other swimmers competed in this event.

With the 50 yard dash and back stroke over Sieg is now leading the field in total points with a figure of 198. Jacobsmeyer who romped home first in the dash Tuesday is second with 195 while in third place is Joseph Ernst with 194. Jack McQuire is leading the varsity in fourth place with 184 points.

were soggy on indications that a sizeable decline in freight traffic occurred last week, advance evidence thereof being given by New York Central's report. A number of carrier shares, including Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio and Norfolk & Western, sagged 1 to 3.

Betas Down Delts, 13-9, in Hard Tilt

Beta Theta Pi won the hardest fought fray of the evening last night and finally eked out a victory, 13 to 9, from Delta Tau Delta in the freshman fraternity basketball tourney. Every man of the Beta five came through with a goal to help out the total and Walrath registered two.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon went down under a barrage by Harring, Booten, and Jun for Pi Kappa Alpha and lost their second game, 25 to 14.

A new individual record was established by Halton for Phi Delta Theta when he flipped 13 baskets and a free throw in a 59 to 23 victory over Phi Gamma Delta. He eclipsed Leacock's 24 points made last week as did another victor, Gardner, who made 25. Delzell scored freely and ended with 15. Anderson for the Phi Gams excelled with nine counters, and Newton second, scored eight. Hawkins provided the only defensive punch for the losers.

GRID SCHEDULE Finds Hawks Playing Five Loop Foes

Oct. 7, only major contest in the Chicago area on that date, will be announced as a world's fair attraction.

Both Minnesota and Purdue have chosen the Iowa game as their Homecoming affair. Gophers will celebrate at Minneapolis Oct. 28 and Purdue's fete at Lafayette is Nov. 18.

An Iowa team will play Michigan for the first time since the scoreless tie an Ann Arbor in 1929, with the Wolverines as the only 1933 opponent not met during the current season. The game is set for Nov. 11.

Definite announcement about the scheduling of three more games to complete the card will be made within the next month. Nebraska is the probable opponent of Nov. 25, and for the other two, non-conference games Hawkeye officials have the choice of three dates, Sept. 30, Oct. 14, and Nov. 4.

U. HIGH Played "Even Break" Season Again

One thing the backfield needed to make it dangerous. This difficulty was solved when Fuhrmeister, last year's left tackle, was shifted to the fullback post. The Big Horse was on his game from the first and led the team against four foes without defeat.

Kalona opened the season here and U. high won handily, scoring once in each of the last three periods while holding the invaders to a single touchdown, scored on a dazzling array of passes. That touchdown left the score 12 to 7 and the Blue immediately drove down the field for the final counter to win 18 to 7.

Then came the classic battle of the local prep season when University high met City high in a regular game for the first time since 1919. That first game ended in a 33 to 0 rout on the U. high team but it was a different sort of a game that took place under the lights at Shrader field on the night of October 7.

The Little Hawks City high started out as if to repeat that first game and after having the Blue on the run for half the game led 6 to 0 at the half. Then came one of the most relentless drives ever seen on the local field, a drive that, though stopped by fumbles and penalties, came right on with Fuhrmeister rolling over the opposing line on plunge after plunge until Bob Schnoebelen whipped around left end for the tying score.

That was the way it ended—all even—a fitting end for such a game. A week later they took the City crown by overcoming the stubborn resistance of a fighting St. Pat's eleven. Outplaying the Green by a wide margin, they were unable to score more than once and that one third period smash by the big fullback made the score 6 to 0.

Trim Monticello With the city scramble over, they returned to the conference fight and opened against Monticello and won 20 to 2 in another great second half comeback. Played off their feet and nervous in the first half, they did little but fight back, but their great defensive work in twice holding when they had tumbled in their own territory bore fruit in the last half.

Bill Ohlmacher went 37 yards around end for the first marker just after Fuhrmeister had blocked a Monticello punt. Immediately he intercepted an enemy pass and carried it to the eight yard line where

HEART STRINGS

By EDWINA L. MACDONALD

COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FORTY

In her fortnight way Patricia had told her father of her letter to Jimmie and what she proposed. He seemed undisturbed.

Exactly what her feeling for Jack was, she never analyzed. She had welcomed his arrival in Paris as she had always welcomed him in Palm Beach.

She wrote Jimmie long heart-burning letters from Paris in which she reiterated her love and her impatience. He wrote her brief, but tender letters telling little beyond the fact that his feeling for her was unchanged. He was waiting for Pam to take some action. They lived under the same roof, went about together; but the door between their rooms had never opened. Since that night in Palm Beach they had not so much as exchanged a kiss of goodbye or greeting when one of the other went away for a few days.

But time went on, and Pamela made no move, gave no hint of her intention. She wrote to Patricia and her father jointly; chatty outside letters, telling them all that went on around her, all she was doing, but nothing from the inside of her.

Patricia didn't like to think of Pamela. When thoughts like nauseous maggots gnawed at her consciousness, she would throw them out, assuring herself with fierce determination that she had done no wrong to Aunt Pam. Had Aunt Pam not really left Jimmie in her heart, even before that winter in Palm Beach? But why was she staying on . . . if not because she hoped for some adjustment other than a Paris divorce?

She chafed against her situation, but it was not her way to brood. Both she and Jack were studying, working faithfully. Their play hours were spent together. They prowled the city; joined the Montparnasse satellites at the sidewalk cafes of evenings, had part in the unending arguments while they watched the strange motley life of the boulevards go by. Often, too, Jack carried her away to one of the grand cafes where the Montparnasse crowd went not.

"Is there any place in the world so perfect as the Bois on a Spring night?" sighed Patricia.

They were driving in a close little cab, with the top thrown back. White roads winding. Old trees huddled in velvet shadows. Black waters gleaming between. Gentle wind fanning their cheeks, rumpling her perfumed hair. Above them the great silver moon swam in pale seas.

"I think I'll have to be going home soon," he said presently. "It's time I settled down to work. I'm twenty-seven and not started."

"Somehow, I can't imagine Paris without you," she said with a catch at her heart. "You've become part of it."

"No, I haven't become part of it. I've merely yielded myself to it because of what it held. I don't like it. There's something exotic and strained here; a determined gaiety that doesn't ring true to me."

"I feel like that sometimes. And I grow homesick. But of course, I've no home to go back to," she said. And immediately she wished she hadn't added that last.

"Poor little girl." He put his arm around her. Not as a lover, but as a friend.

She had an impulse toward resistance; then she let him draw her gently against him. There was something very comforting about the feel of his arm, even a little exciting. She was all at once lonely and oppressed. The heavy per#### fume of magnolias and lilacs and cape-jasmine weighted her senses.

The moonlight and the soft night air were doing something to her. "I wish I might take you home with me, Pat," he said in a low voice.

"Yes. . . I wish you might too, Jack. . ." She was suddenly aware of this strange wish. "But I'm afraid things haven't changed with me. It may never come to anything; but—" She broke off. "Tell me about your home, Jack—the one you plan to have."

"It's already there," he said. "I shall have my offices in Richmond; but I'll live on the plantation. The house is just ten miles out. I wish you could see it, Pat. A big rambling two-story house, with heavy white columns and green blinds, and almost covered with ivy. There's a long oak avenue leading from the yard to the river road."

She put her hands quickly over her face. "Oh, don't. It's like my old home. Only most of the oaks had gone into the river before I was born. The house had been moved back; but the big ivy roots were moved too, and they had covered it by the time I—left for boarding school. I never saw it again. . . How Dadums can endure it here—"

Jack's arm tightened about her. "Pat, couldn't you come with me? Since Mother's death, Dad has lived in the town house. Your father would love the old place. And—you like to be with me, don't you, dear? You'll miss me, won't you?"

"Yes, terribly. But—"

"Don't you think in time my love would win some return?"

She lifted her face from her hands and looked up at him, her eyes shining with tears. "Your love has already won considerable return," she smiled. "But it doesn't seem fair to give you less than the best. I wish—oh, Jack, I'm a plantation girl. Montparnasse seems so tawdry to one who has lived in white houses with big columns and green blinds; lived with lilacs and magnolias and jasmine, peach trees, and white cotton in Fall—It's so noisy and disquieting here."

"Dearest, if I know, and am willing to take you with second best, and trust to time—"

"I shouldn't let you; but that little is—futile—going on and on—and I don't see how I can go on here—in Montparnasse. At first they were novel and amusing, but there's something hard and small under their bright talk. They are as intolerant as the intolerant ones they preach about; and a great deal more savage in their intolerance. But for you and Dadums I'd have found them unbearable at times. And now you're going."

His arms tightened around her. "I'm going to take you with me. I won't leave you here."

"All right, Jack," she said breathlessly, "but let me out of your arms a minute. I'll come back. I want to tell you something."

His arms loosened. She did not draw entirely out of them. "I'll go back with you." She started straight ahead. "I want to. Not just to get away from them; or because I'm homesick and love the picture of your home. But because I want to be with you. . . Wait, Jack. . . I wasn't terribly sick of them, not terribly anxious to go home till you told me you were going. . . But there's one thing I want to ask of you. . . don't kiss me. . . If you kissed me I mightn't go. . . Do you understand. . . I might compare. . ."

"Yes, I understand," he said huskily. "But if you're afraid of that now—what about afterward?"

"Well, then—don't you see—"

that was my first real kiss. Perhaps no other kiss can ever quite compare with it. . . even if one loves more. But in marriage there comes—other experience—that dwarfs a kiss—and perhaps one doesn't remember to make comparisons."

His arms closed convulsively around her. "There's something in you, Pat, that dwarfs all other women," he whispered.

"It's a little bit of the spirit of my Dadums in me," she said simply. Adding, "but it's only a pinch. I'm really a very doubtful character. Just a lot of good paint not yet formed on the canvas."

He laughed happily. The cab stopped. "Why, the cabman must have raced."

During dinner in the garden of the Cafe Madrid they danced. And grazing over Jack's nice shoulder into the overhanging trees strung with colored lights, Patricia felt that she had not been so at peace in many months. There was something in the strong pressure of his arm—not thrilling; but reassuring and satisfying. Within that arm one found courage to go on.

They scarcely talked on the way home, giving themselves silently to the beauty of the Bois in Spring-time under a flooding moon—and to a new-old beauty within themselves.

He left her at her door, a song of hope in his heart.

"There's a cable for you, Patricia, on the virologa," called her father as she closed the door.

A cable. . . her heart seemed to stop. . . she tore it open. . . Jimmie. . . in London. . . coming to see her tomorrow. . . Her knees gave. She sat down quickly to save herself from falling. Tomorrow—Jimmie. . .

Upon his arrival, Jimmie had phoned her to meet him at The Regence.

Almost his first words, after giving their dinner order, had been, "Pat, Pam is coming to Paris to get her divorce. She's probably on her way now."

For some reason this word for which she had waited so long, and so eagerly, shocked her immeasurably. All the maggot-like thoughts she had looked in the secret places, refusing them the open of her conscious mind, jumped out as by the release of a spring lock.

So you've succeeded. . . You little beast. . . She didn't want to give him up and you know it, or she wouldn't have held on a whole year. . . But you wouldn't let go of him. . . Kept writing him burning letters. . . She used to hold you on her lap when you were a tiny thing and tell you stories. . . She loved you. And you've taken her husband away from her. . . You are a vile, sneaking little reptile. . . Well, now, it's done. . . Why didn't you think of all this sooner?

She felt sick. Her voice emerged, very faint and small: "On account of—me, Jimmie?"

"No, dear. On account of another woman."

Another woman. . . Another woman. . . Of course she hadn't heard him aright. . . But yes. . . He had said it quite plainly. . . Another woman. . .

A landslide set up inside her head, sweeping all visible life from sight. Another woman. . . another woman. . . Then Jimmie hadn't gone on loving her, longing for her all this while. And he hadn't returned to Aunt Pam. . . She could have borne that. . . But another woman. . . Oh, no. It was too hideous. . .

The North Pole.

Dear Santa:—

Hundreds of youngsters in Iowa City and vicinity are already looking forward to your annual visit to the United States at Christmas time, but we're wondering if you can't arrange a trip a little earlier to get acquainted with all of the fine boys and girls here.

Couldn't you get away from your home at the North Pole long enough to dash down here with your reindeer and pay us a real visit before you get too busy with the last minute Christmas rush? Of course this invitation includes Donner, Blitzen, Prancer, Dancer, Comet, Vixen, Cupid and Dasher, your famous reindeer team.

We'll be anxiously awaiting your reply and we know you won't disappoint the hundreds of youngsters who want to get better acquainted with you.

"Nature in the Raw" is seldom MILD

THE JUGGERNAUT OF THE JUNGLE

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous animal painter, Paul Bransom... inspired by the savage charge of the African rhinoceros crashing through the untamed jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies
