FORESEE END OF TAMMANY POWER

Tuesday Set for Hoover-Roosevelt Debt Conference

Executives to Discuss Two Big Questions

House Committee Takes up Slashing of Budget

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — Deeply engrossed in the federal government's two great problems—war debts and a balanced budget—President Hoover halted momentarily today to agree by telephone with President-elect Roosevelt upon a politically-unparalleled conference next Tuesday to discuss both subjects.

Early in the afternoon, the chief executive lifted the telephone on his desk to hear from his successor-elect in Albany that he would reach Washington at 3:30 p.m., next Tuesday and would go directly to the White House. Both before and after the call, the White House buzzed with the efforts to deal with foreign debtor requests for relief and to whittle federal spending to the level of receipts.

Ambassadors Claudel of France and May of Belgium conferred with Secretary Stimson on the debt problem, but left the state department reporting they had received no reply to requests for a moratorium extension and a review of the debt situation.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, the house appropriations committee began its slashing of the budget. It went to work on the treasury-post office money bill, with Chairman Byrnes predicting an appropriation "considerably less" than the $1,056,000 given by the last congress. At his desk in the executive offices, President Hoover considered both war debts and budget in a series of conferences with his administration's aides.

He had before him the latest treasury information showing the federal deficit as of Nov. 15 had exceeded $769,000,000—with expenditures approaching $1,342,000,000 since July 1.

Additional figures were being amassed by Secretary Mills, meanwhile, to show that although the new billion dollar tax bill had brought in slightly increased revenue in October, as compared with last year, it could not bring collections for the quarter up to last year's mark.

The president called in J. Clawson Reop, director of the budget, for more information, and also Secretary Hurley, who left the White House after an hour, reporting the war department budget "in very satisfactory shape," but with no recommendations for national defense.

Geneva Gets British Plan for Germany

Arms Equality Proposal Designed to Satisfy Conference

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 17 (AP)—Great Britain made a definite move to bring Germany back into the disarmament conference today when Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, submitted to the conference bureau a plan designed to satisfy the German demand for arms equality.

His proposals approached the problem from an entirely different angle from that taken by the French plan submitted last week, but the conferees were hopeful that a combination of the principles of both might provide a basis on which the conference could re-unite and proceed toward a disarmament treaty.

Like the French proposal, the British contribution was favorably received. Norman Davis, the American delegate; Augusto Rosso, for Italy, and the other chief delegates emphasized especially the necessity for bringing Germany back to the conference table.

The British plan for solving the equality issue rests upon four points.

Second, the plan provides that "limitation of Germany's armaments" (Turn to page 3)

Seven Iowa Bonds Mature
NEW YORK (AP) — Among the seven matured issues to be struck Friday from the bond list of the New York stock exchange will be five per cent bonds of the Iowa Central railway, due 1938.

Hawks to Win! Ritual is Successful

Will Iowa beat Northwestern? The signs says so. Yesterday afternoon, Capt. Marc Magnusen tossed the old shoe over his shoulder and into the straw, igniting it, and thereby bringing the Hawkeyes luck in their last game of the season. The ceremony, a tradition with Coach Ossie Slem's teams, signified the end of the practice season. Both varsity and freshman squads took part in the rites, as a handful of fans watched from the sidelines.

Winners of Junior Law Trial Chosen

Theodore C. Hutchinson Wins First in Law Class Trial

In a practice trial to settle the ownership of an estate, Theodore C. Hutchinson of Algona was named first, and Dean W. Stauffacher of Cedar Rapids, second, by Judge Herbert C. Ring of the eighteenth judicial district, in selecting the best presentations at the second junior law class trial last night in the court room of the law building.

As attorneys, Hutchinson and Stauffacher successfully defended their clients against the claims made by the client whom J. Harold Saks of Council Bluffs, and Robert H. Keelin of Burlington represented.

The question which was argued was the ownership of the estate, Blackacre, which James Smith left to his heirs, making the provision in his will leaving Blackacre to "Susan, Tom, and the rest of the children of my late brother Frank." He left all the rest of his property to his sister, Helen Smith.

Though Frank Smith's children died before James, they were each of them survived by their children, who now claimed the share their parents would have received had they lived, and which was now claimed by the sister, Helen Smith.

Judge Smith decided that the statute in the Iowa code relative to the case applied where some of the claimants were children of children specifically named, and that the estate should go to the children, who were represented by Hutchinson and Stauffacher, rather than to Helen Smith.

Seven Sororities Lose $160 in Three Weeks' Burglaries

Alpha Xi Delta Loses $30 in Most Recent of Invasions

Thieves who gained entrance to the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house through a kitchen door Wednesday night at dinner time and left by a fire escape with $30, brought to seven the number of sororities that have been similarly robbed during the last three weeks and to $160 the amount taken.

Most sororities have taken steps to prevent further burglaries. All are taking care to keep doors and windows locked during the dinner hour and special precautions are being taken with windows near fire escapes. Three housemothers have loaded guns ready for instant use and in one sorority a cow bell has been tied to one of the windows as a burglar alarm.

All the robberies have occurred near of two minor "Ts" in swimming.

Cadet Maj. Donald C. Hudson, 32 of Council Bluffs, member of Delta Sigma Delta.

Medicine—Cadet Lieut. Col. Ralph W. Lewis, M3 of Iowa City, member of Alpha Kappa Kappa, Rho Chi, and Beta Phi Sigma.

be made soon.

During the dinner hour when the sorority members are downstairs and the same method has been used in almost every case. The burglar invariably enters through the front door or a window and leaves by a fire escape. In each case the upstairs rooms have been hurriedly ransacked and only money has been taken.

Dean Phillips Presents Plan of Farm Aid

Outlines Seven-Point Relief Program in Nebraska Talk

Partial guaranty of bank deposits is as the keystone of a seven-point program for putting the farmer back on his financial feet was proposed by Dean C. A. Phillips of the University of Iowa at Lincoln, Neb., yesterday before a conference of farmers and business men, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The object of the whole program, Dean Phillips said, would be to restore confidence in the nation's commercial banks and bring back to life 15 million dollars worth of bank credit which died when depositors put a billion and a half dollars into hoarding.

Fifty farmers and business men along with 200 students, attended the conference on "Prices, debts and the farmer" called at the University of Nebraska.

To reduce the objection that guaranteed deposits made customers careless, Phillips would have the government stand back of deposits up to 75 or 80 per cent. Other points on his program:

1. Take greater care in granting bank charters.

2. Increase minimum bank capital to $100,000 as a means of reducing the number of banks.

3. Increase minimum bank directors to seven as means of eliminating banks controlled by one man.

4. Increase the minimum share of directors to make them assume more responsibility.

5. Permit branch banking, with limitations.

6. Set a limit on the ratio of capital and surplus to deposits and loans.

Economic Roads to Recovery Differ

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 17 (AP)—Proposed roads to economic recovery were described by experts here today at a conference of farmers and business men, but all roads didn't lead in the same direction.

George W. Woods, state banking commissioner, asserted that "unless we have a more adequate understanding of the problems and province of commercial banking, we are going to have failures whether we have branch or independent banks."

Yet, branch banking in limited form was suggested by Dean C. A. Phillips of the University of Iowa as part of a program to restore public confidence in commercial banks, bring money out of hiding and revive 15 million dollars worth of bank credit. Also he advocated partial guaranty of bank deposits by the federal government.

Stanley Maly, Lincoln banker, then suggested that even a partial guaranty would run into the same trouble that brought about the downfall of the Nebraska guaranty fund law two years ago.

M. Weil, another banker here, proposed inflation by means of "liberty money" based on European debts to America, while Prof. K. M. Arndt of the University of Nebraska said it was a gamble whether inflation would help or harm the farmer.

L. S. Clarke of Omaha, president of the Nebraska Mortgage Bankers association, backed the voluntary domestic allotment plan as "the way out of the depression" and said it would decrease over-production and "everyone knows we produce too much."

On the other hand, Prof. H. C. Filley of the University of Nebraska pointed to charts to show that over production of food and feed crops should not be blamed for low prices, while Dean Phillips thought that increased industrial production rather than "specific devices" would help the farmer.

But the most applause went to K. S. Wherry of Pawnee City, recently a candidate for governor, who asserted that "the thing we need in Nebraska is more money," and that the coming legislature should take care not to run capital out of the state."

VON PAPEN

Resigns From Post in Germany

It is conducted at present, and to carry out at least that portion of Chancellor von Papen's economic program designed to reduce unemployment.

Important to President

These two matters, it is said, are especially important to the president, and anyone who doesn't see these things his way need expect an appointment as chancellor.

Should he fail to find a more acceptable man than the retiring chancellor, he could re-appoint Colonel von Papen, but with the knowledge that he would have to invest him with dictatorial powers against a hostile Reichstag.

Meantime the von Papen cabinet will remain in office until a new chancellor is appointed. The Reichstag convenes on Dec. 6.

OLD SALEM, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP)—The frontier village of "New Salem" where Abraham Lincoln became a clerk in Offutt's store 101 years ago, was re-born today.

Dedicating the corner-stone of the first of 25 log buildings, Illinois officials started the restoration of the deserted town, renamed Old Salem, which started the emancipator on his political career.

101st Anniversary

It was exactly 101 years ago today that "Abe" Lincoln first rested his long legs at the Rutledge tavern. He had just returned from a flatboat trip to New Orleans, where he vowed to strike at slavery if the chance ever came.

As Governor Emmerson laid the corner stone, Governor-Elect Horn sent a pledge to complete the building of Old Salem.

"This is a labor of love," Emmerson said, "in which the sole recompense is the knowledge that we are sharing in the preservation of the village of Lincoln's young manhood as an inspiration for future citizens of America."

Here Lincoln demonstrated his physical prowess in meeting the challenge of Jack Armstrong, the village's champion wrestler. Unable to avoid the combat, in which Armstrong resorted to a foul by stamping on his instep, Lincoln threw the wrestler bodily over his head. From then on Armstrong was his steadfast friend.

Here Lincoln first ran for office and was elected state legislator, after a campaign in which he kissed many babies to please their fond parents, and established a reputation as a story teller that followed him to the presidency.

Postmaster Lincoln

Back from the Black Hawk war, in which he served as captain, Lincoln was named postmaster. Most of the mail he carried in his hat. Then he met Ann Rutledge, daughter of the proprietor of the Rutledge tavern, where he boarded. Her death from a slow fever affected Lincoln profoundly.

"My heart is buried there with Ann Rutledge," he told friends. Long years after he declared, "I have loved the name of Rutledge ever since."

"Illinois has no greater wealth than the example left us by the immortal Lincoln and no historic shrines more immortal than those attached to his name," Gov. Emerson said.

Iowan Denied Verdict Move

Motion Based on Claim of Two Forced Confessions

CHARITON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A defense motion for a directed verdict for Ralph Stewart, 20, on trial for the slaying of his former sweet-heart's foster mother, Mrs. L. A. Botkin, 73, was denied by Judge R. W. Smith today at the close of the state's case.

The motion was based on claims that Stewart's two confessions, placed in evidence by the prosecution, were obtained by force. Defense counsel charged that the youth was denied food and right of counsel and that brutal methods were used in forcing their confessions.

Sheriff John Smith, final state witness, had testified that two weeks after the confession Stewart told him Mrs. Sylvia Young, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Botkin, was involved in the killing and that state agents had him so confused at the time he signed his confessions that he did not know what he was doing.

The crowded courtroom was tense this morning as County Attorney Lewis read the final confession in which the youth stated he killed the woman because she was mean to Helen Botkin, her adopted daughter, and because Helen and Sylvia said they would be better off with her out of the way.

Stewart's attorney has indicated his defense will be that he confessed the slaying to shield his sweetheart and Mrs. Young.

Witness, Wife Identify Suspect in Nick Coin Trial

DAVENPORT, Nov. 17 (AP)—Walter Schweider, Davenport carpenter, testified today that Louis Sprigden, on trial for the Nick Coin slaying, is the same man he saw in an automobile zig-zagging west on Locust street the night of May 23, two days before the killing, as the occupant scrutinized the homes within a block of where Coin was shot. The witness said that he brought next witness, Fred Burson, said on cross examination he saw Stewart in the Botkin yard that afternoon.

Mrs. Wilson Blackstock testified to feeling between Mrs. Young and Mrs. Botkin. However, the daughter-in-law was recalled to the stand and denied this.

Attorneys indicated the case may go to the jury late tomorrow.

Hospital Dietitians Return From State Association Meeting

Prof. Kate Daum, head of the nutrition department at University hospital, Eunice Longworth, Edna Kenney, and Bertha Gardner, all dietitians at the University hospital, will return today from Ames, where they have been attending the semi-annual meeting of the Iowa State Dietetic association. The two-day session closed yesterday afternoon.

Professor Daum, president of the association, was in charge of the program, which included experiments in nutrition, lectures and round table discussions. On Wednesday afternoon, the group made a tour of the hospital, which was followed by a hospital tea. Tours were also made of the home economics building, dormitory, and kitchen of the Memorial Union.

his car to a halt when the other machine stopped near a street intersection and that he got a good look at the man then whom he identified today. His wife, who was riding with him, corroborated his testimony.

Defense counsel questioned the identity of shotgun shells found in the street following the killing. They attacked the testimony of Dr. J. D. Cantwell, Scott county attorney, who said he did not place his initials on the shells until three or four months after they had passed through the hands of several officers.

The state is attempting to show through reports of ballistic experts that at least one of the three shells on exhibit was from the shotgun seized later at Sprigden's home.

Testimony began this morning with Mrs. Jennie Coin, widow of the slain man, the first witness. She wept as she pictured her husband, Davenport liquor chief, lying dead on a terrace near their home where he had been felled by shotgun slugs while on his way to a bus line early the morning of May 25.

Naughty Words

BOLSHEVIKI: A foul Russian epithet meaning "the majority." —Ralph Barton

WORDS that have made citizens of these United States see red have been many, from the time that Thomas Jefferson and his followers were suspected as Jacobins down to the speech of Herbert Hoover calling Franklin D. Roosevelt a "radical" desiring to "destroy the American system."

Before the war, Socialism. During the war, I.W.W. Immediately afterward, Bolsheviks. Now, Communist or "red."

There are still some who do not know that Socialism has become respectable. Communists even call Socialists members of "the third capitalist party." But many otherwise intelligent individuals call even Smith W. Brookhart a waver of the red flag—the Chicago Tribune's editorial staff for conspicuous examples.

The latest is Representative Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania. To the Shannon congressional committee investigating government interference with private business he said last Monday that the United States "is fast becoming Socialistic."

Why? Subsidy of coal for export. Farm board. Others have mentioned Reconstruction Finance corporation and "bureaucracy."

Socialism signifies government operation "for public use, not for private profit." Is coal subsidy not for private profit? Or the farm board? Or Reconstruction Finance corporation? Because these are governmental functions paid for by taxpayers, some call them socialistic. Actually, they constitute paternalism—or government aid to private business, just as the protective tariff is paternalism.

The government did, as a government, enter the grain exchange to buy and sell. But it did so, the country was told, to aid farmers, a special group within the nation. If prices could be boosted, the individual farmer would get more for his crop.

But those who are color blind will continue to call everything they do not like "red"—thereby driving into Communist ranks many who'd as soon be hanged for a sheep as for a lamb.

Republican Waterloo?

COMPLETE reorganization of the Republican party by the liberal elements or the party's dissolution in the limbo of forgotten causes was forecast the other day by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and for many years one of Republicanism's chief exponents.

"The simple fact is," he said, "that since the summer of 1919 the Republican party, as represented by the vast majority of its office holders at Washington, has been moving steadily toward intellectual, moral, and political bankruptcy. It has managed to get on the wrong side of every important question which confronts the anxious American people."

Should the Republican party pass out of existence, a possibility considered likely by Dr. Butler, the stormy college president predicts the formation of a truly liberal party made up of the best elements of both major parties.

Such a party, as outlined by President Butler, would stand for removal of high tariff barriers to international trade, a loosening of the grip on government of "every form of private or group interest," a balanced budget; readjustment of war debts, retention by the people of the remaining natural resources, a study of the world monetary system and the gold standard, and general cooperation by all nations.

In part, these are policies generally advocated by the Democrats. It remains only to see with what sincerity they are advocated. Failure of the Democratic party to uphold them would probably result in a realization of Dr. Butler's prediction.

The "Maritime" Purchase

THE SENATE sub-committee on foreign relations has opened its hearing on the proposal for a great waterway which would open through the United States another channel out of the St. Lawrence river system.

With that opening has come a startling proposal, made by Peter G. Ten Eyck, president of the New York State Waterways Association. He proposes that the United States buy all Canadian lands south of the St. Lawrence river between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean.

The cost would be stupendous, but more of that later. Ten Eyck has a panacea for that which would not affect John Public's tax-paying budget at all. He would have the purchase price deducted from the war debt of Great Britain.

The territory referred to embraces the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and part of southern Quebec.

Ten Eyck urges the rejection of the waterway treaty, stating that its cost would be $3,000,000,000 over a 50 year period and that the whole would be a hazardous undertaking.

It was estimated by a joint commission that the cost of the project would be $543,429,000, but Col. Hugh L. Cooper, American engineer now in charge of Soviet construction in the U.S.S.R., estimates that the cost would be $1,350,000,000.

The project is supposed to be fairly good business for the United States, but the present is a bad time psychologically to talk in billions of expenditure.

Ten Eyck's plan sounds better than the plan for direct spending; but the world has progressed since the time of the Louisiana purchase. The truth of that was held in a statement by O. E. Fleming, president of the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power association.

"The people in Quebec and the Maritimes are intensely British, and would object being transferred like a lot of cattle," he said.

That alone is a serious barrier to a good, although drastic plan.

Long Live the Prince!

WILD enthusiasm greeted the Prince of Wales when he arrived at Belfast the other day to dedicate the new Northern Ireland parliament buildings—enthusiasm that ran riot as railroad tracks were torn up and communication lines put out of commission and 12,000 guards watched over the famous son of England's king.

Strong nationalist feeling that wants a united Ireland was responsible for the demonstration against the prince, whose coming was heralded as emphasizing the breach that separates North Ireland from the Free State to the south.

But there was nothing in the words or actions of the prince to warrant any fears that the Empire rulers favored the north against the south, or vice versa, or that they cared to influence the political, economic, and religious unrest that surges through Ulster and the Free State.

"It is my father's earnest prayer," Wales told the assembled throng, "that you will meet all of those difficulties which confront the world as well as your own special problems with the courage, tenacity, loyalty, and devotion which has always characterized the men of Northern Ireland and made them famous in the annals of the empire."

If that be treason, make the most of it.

TODAY'S TOPICS

BY FRANK JAFFE

The next time your ever-present critic who insists that he's your elder, and so has a perfect right to correct you, takes exception to your "It is me" or "I wish I was there" refer him to the National Council of Teachers of English who recently okayed those and 228 other commonplace colloquialisms.

The English teachers—who employed 229 judges, including authors, linguists, editors, businessmen, and of course, teachers—reported that their study tended away from "an impossible literary standard" and toward "the habits of better middle class speech."

So now, if you want to be correct and enjoy free speech the better, you may say:

Who are you looking for?

Invite whoever you wish.

None are expected.

Everyone was here but they all went home early.

Healthy climate.

Pretty good, awfully bad.

I felt badly.

Walk slow.

Try and get well.

He invited my friends and myself.

Farther for further, shall for will.

The reason was because . . .

If it wasn't for football, school life would be dull.

And lots more. But remember that's acceptable for only "better middle class" English. Now, if you want to be high class you must go right on saying: None is expected, Healthful climate, Walk slowly, etc.

And if you are still in the freshman English theme writing stage, you'd better stick to the old reliables if you expect to pass the course. Then, when you get out in the open air, you can be yourself.

Obviously, there are some forms that sound better when incorrect, or at least, are easier to say quickly. And since there is certainly some differentiation to be made between spoken and written English, you can decide as you go along just what forms you want to use. The secret of the matter lies in being consistent.

There is need for revision every once in a while in a language that is noted for its confusing and varied rules and exceptions. Some consideration must be given to sectional usages that fall harshly on foreign ears, some also to evident grammatical errors that have become usage through the years.

That there can be few hard and fast rules of grammar, variation from which is a capital crime in terms of classroom grades, is evident from the increasing number of radical changes that have been brought about by overwhelming use. In general, more emphasis might justly be placed on changes to simpler forms, more easily understood and spoken phraseology.

Of course, you can't go wrong by remaining loyal to childhood teachings even though some people are wont to raise their eyebrows and snicker when you say "It is I."

(From Huckleberry Finn, by Mark Twain)

But that's always the way; it don't make no difference whether you do right or wrong, a person's conscience ain't got no sense, and just goes for him ANYWAY. If I had a yellin' dog that didn't know no more than a person's conscience does I would poison him. It takes up more room than all the rest of a person's insides, and yet ain't no good, nowhow. Tom Sawyer he says the same.

Children's Theater to Open "The Ivory Door" Tomorrow

Takes Place in Iowa Union With 15 in Cast

Tomorrow at 2 p.m. the Children's theater will open its third season with the presentation of "The Ivory Door" in the Studio theater in Iowa Union. The cast of 15 children was chosen from the members of the group, made up of children from all Iowa City schools.

Two years ago, five members of an advanced dramatics class met with Dawn Dunton Steele, and laid plans for the organization of the Children's theater. They hoped for a series of plays to be given during the fall and winter.

Opened in 1930

For their first play they selected "The Patchwork Girl of Oz," which they presented in the Studio Nov. 19, 20, and 21, 1931. Memberships in the theater were made available to all Iowa City school children, and before the end of the year, the group boasted 75 members.

"Christmas Story" was the next effort of the club. This play was produced under the direction of Prof. Edward C. Mable, head of the speech department, with a large cast.

During the spring of 1931, the children studied puppets, and planned a play in which the actors would be little wooden men and women. "Jack and the Beanstalk" was selected as the script. For many weeks they worked on the project. University students built the puppets and the children learned the manipulation.

Performed Drama

On March 20, on a tiny stage in the studio, the little actors performed their drama for the audience, and brought great laughter and applause. But above the stage, unseen by the audience, eager, trembling fingers of children pulled the strings that made the drama go.

The first season closed with the production of "Little Princess," directed by Mrs. Marguerite M. Rehder, and presented May 1 and 2.

When the second season began, last year, Mrs. Mary Young organized and directed the work of the group. Mrs. Young came to the University of Iowa from Sioux City, where she had directed the Sioux City Children's theater.

Had Large Casts

Large casts were the order during the entire season. This enabled a greater number of children to appear in plays. For the first play,

Iowa's 22,389 Living Grads Scattered All Over World

When the University of Iowa in 1931-32 awarded the greatest number of degrees in its history, the presentations pushed the all-time total past the 25,000 mark.

Frederic C. Higbee, alumni secretary, disclosed after a check-up yesterday that 25,561 persons have been granted degrees since that August day in 1858 when Dexter E. Smith became the university's first alumnus.

22,389 Grads Living

Of the total number of graduates, 22,389 now are living, he said. More than one degree is held by 2,808 of the alumni, the official records reveal.

Solem Sends Men Through Last Session

Captain Sets Fire to Straw in Colorful Ceremony

By GENE THORNE

Iowa will defeat Northwestern tomorrow!

Capt. Marc Magnussen determined the outcome of the game yesterday afternoon as he calmly tossed a blazing old football shoe backward over his shoulder, through the goalposts, and into a pile of straw.

That Captain Magnussen's feat as good as sewed up the contest for Iowa is attested to by Coach Ossie Solem and his tradition. At the end of the final practice each year, the mentor has this ceremony carried out, and he has faith in its results. If the shoe fails to ignite the straw, the team is doomed to hard luck in the final contest. If it lights, the outfit will get all the breaks.

In Long Drill

The straw blazed up last night, and varsity and freshmen snake-danced around the blaze, gloating at the thought of tasting Wildcat blood.

But just to be sure that they would be ready for Northwestern Coach Ossie Solem sent the squad through a long drill on offense before letting "Maggie" toss the shoe.

A hard-driving running attack and a lightning-fast aerial offense was the goal of Coach Solem, and several backfield combinations were tried out behind the first string line in order to locate the most efficient quartet of backs.

The line, with one possible exception, will be the same as that which faced Purdue, and held the Boilermakers to three touchdowns. John Miller and Bob Loufek were at ends, Lumin Kouba and Leo Samuelson were at guards, and Captain Magnussen was at center.

It seemed to make little difference to the football fan that the Hawkeyes were playing high class opposition in most of the major games at home. Bradley wasn't expected to draw heavily at the gate; Minnesota, billed as a Homecoming attraction, brought out the largest crowd of the season; then came Nebraska, and a small crowd watched the contest; Purdue, with only a tie to blemish its record and rated as one of the leading and most powerful elevens in the country, could only bring out a meager few thousand fans.

Financially the season must have been disappointing to the athletic department. The writer would like to offer a suggestion which might help in boosting the attendance at the non-conference games to be played next year. Would it not be well to schedule one or two state schools, in addition to a probable game with Iowa State next year, to fill the two dates now open in 1933?

Surely an opening game with either Coe or Drake would create much more interest than one with some school out of state. Either Coe or Drake would have sent more followers to Iowa City this year than Bradley drew in the opening contest. —J. B.

These Diving Boards

Divers big and little will all have the same opportunity to realize a maximum effort from now on over at the field house pool.

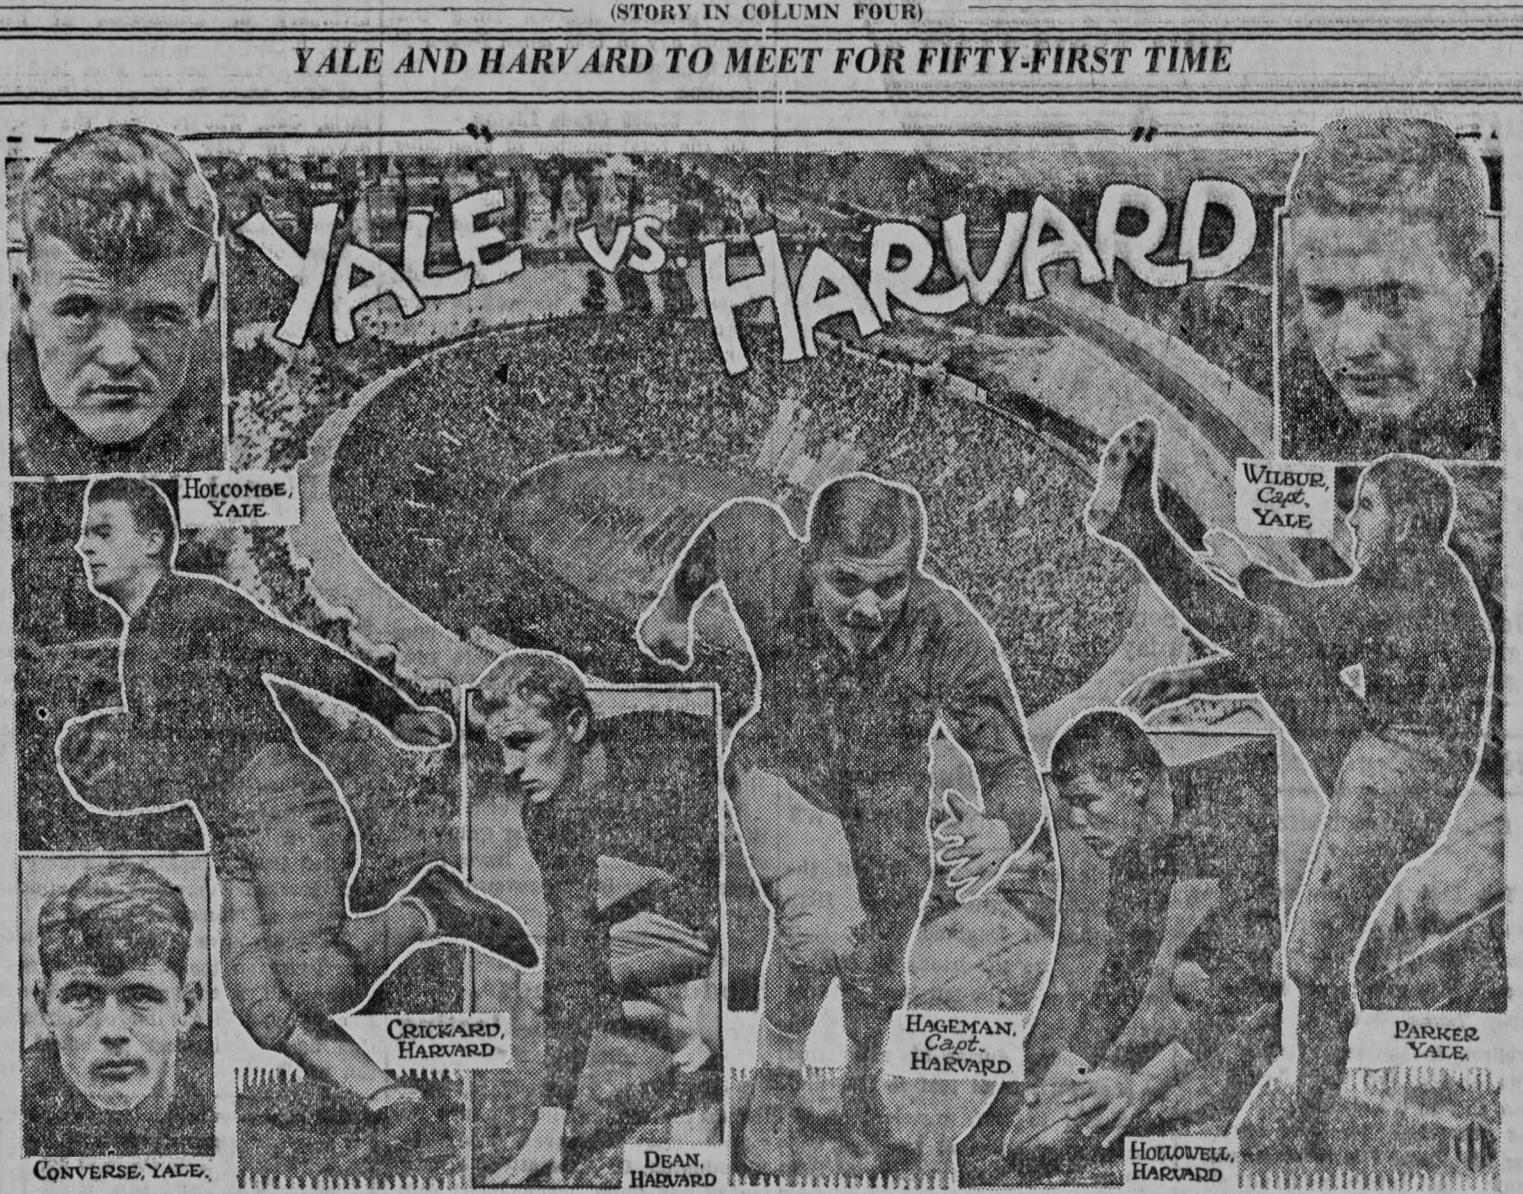

For a radically new type of spring board has been installed which is self adjustable to the weight of each diver. The adjustment is a momentary process and can be made in between dives.

The adjustable, multiple, fulcrum spring board as the new board is called is expected to revolutionize the art of diving. It was used during the Olympics and was officially sanctioned by the international Olympic body during the summer.

As a consequence of the acceptance by the international association, it is expected that the national inter-collegiate athletic association will also officially legalize its use within the present year.

The contrivance which has as its principle the movement of the fulcrum upon which the board is resting, either backward or forward, gives greater flexibility to the individual divers according to their particular weights or style.

Iowa is one of the first universities to have adopted the innovation and Hawkeye divers are already becoming accustomed to its use, marked improvement being noticed in the performances of some of the men.

YALE AND HARVARD TO MEET FOR FIFTY-FIRST TIME

Above are some of the stars of the Yale and Harvard grid squads who will clash Saturday at Yale Bowl, New Haven, in the fifty-first meeting of the teams of the famous universities. The Eli-Crimson football war started way back in 1875 and since that time Yale's grididers have carried off the honors 27 times and tied in six games. Both teams have had a poor season and Yale, with its victory over Dartmouth and tie with Princeton, is a slight favorite over John Harvard's warriors, but one guess is as good as another.

Yearling Harriers in 2 Mile Run Win Awards

By DEWEY CUMMINS
Six freshmen won cross country numerals by running two miles in under 12 minutes in the annual numeral run held on Finkbine field yesterday.

Seven men came under the mark, but the winner, Ray Fisher, did not come in for the award, since he is not registered in the university. He was merely running with the thin-cards as he has been doing all season.

Willard, although small for the grididers making the trip will be held at 10 o'clock this morning, and the squad, accompanied by coaches, trainers, and managers will leave the field for Cedar Rapids at 1:15 this afternoon.

37 to Make Trip
The 37 men making the trip are: Ends—John Miller, Bob Loufek, Gene Clearman, Ray Fisher, Harold Swaney, Voris Dickerson.

Freshman Gridders Guests at Dinner

Eighty-five freshman football men were guests of the athletic department at a dinner in Iowa Union last evening.

Coach Ossie Solem and Freshman Coach Bill Boelter addressed the group.

Maroons End Drills

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago's Maroons moved outdoors today to take their final hard practice before the Wisconsin battle Saturday. Badger passes were stopped in good shape, and the Chicago overhead game showed improvement.

As a consequence of the acceptance by the international association, it is expected that the national inter-collegiate athletic association will also officially legalize its use within the present year.

Winners Get Six Points in Second Period

Show Better Blocking, Tackling; Score by Aerial Route

By TED KRUGLAK

Purdue pounded through in sustained drives yesterday afternoon to nose out Wisconsin 6-0, in the second half of the deciding game for the freshman league championship. Purdue entered the second half with a 12-0 advantage gained in the two quarters played Wednesday, and with yesterday's touchdown earned an 18-0 victory.

Wisconsin made desperate attempts to overcome Purdue's lead, using an aerial attack throughout the game, but the Boilermakers' heady blocking and keen tackling soon had the losers backing up.

The Badgers played a good defensive style during the third quarter, holding their opponents scoreless.

Pfander Scores

But the Purdue aerial attack started functioning early in the fourth quarter when Johnny Stephens hurled a 20 yard pass to Al Pfander who sped around the Wisconsin secondary defense for the first touchdown of the day. McCormick missed the try for the additional point.

The Badgers resumed their efforts to get going and began driving in and nailing the Boilermakers' behind their own line. Yetter showed considerable ability in ferreting out the plays the Purdue backs tried and several nabbed Anderson and Pfander behind the line of scrimmage.

Take to Air

In the final minutes of play Wisconsin took to the air again in an effort to catch up on the Boilermakers. A triple pass from Kemp to Yetter to Ersland was broken up for a 15 yard loss, but Ersland made this up with a long pass to Carson (Continued on page 7)

Fresh Basketball Will Start Monday

Freshman basketball will get underway Monday afternoon, according to the call for candidates issued by Coach Bill Boelter.

The first practice will be held at the field house Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and daily thereafter. Coach Boelter said that there would be no cut in the players the Purdue backs tried and several nabbed Anderson and Pfander behind the line of scrimmage.

The Little Hawk lineup will probably be the same as that which started against Washington high of Cedar Rapids last week with Willard and McGreevey at ends, Bill Barger and Nelson at tackles, Thomas and Kirkpatrick at guards and Glaspy over the ball. Marshall, Mutchler, Zagier, and Boyce will probably start in the backfield.

Barnes Gets High Honors for Evening

Gasoline Alley, Iowan Teams Stage Close Team Battle

By DICK NORRIS

Spits, added to "buck fever" and a general tendency to blow in the pinches, which is usual in early season bowling, kept the scores down last night as a general thing.

However, Louis Barnes of Gasoline Alley made a creditable showing in winning all the available individual honors with totals of 624 and 241. The Daily Iowan and Gasoline Alley staged a battle royal for team honors, the former taking both the three game high with 2,662 pins and the single game honors with a 920 total.

Gasoline Alley took on the Iowan outfit and lost, two to one, while the other scheduled contests for the evening saw Bremer's forfeit to Paris Cleaners and City Fuel win by the same method from the Jefferson Hotel quintet.

Citizens Club Picks Garner as Executive

"New Deal" in Doubt, Group for Help to Roosevelt

A Democratic administration was swept into office in the Young Citizens forum last night with election of James Roe Garner, G of Bethany, Okla., as executive.

According to organization plans agreed upon by the group, Mr. Garner will head a responsible cabinet under an English parliamentary system. Other officers will be appointed by him. If it retains the confidence of its constituency until next semester, the cabinet's term of office will expire then and a new election will be held.

Program participation will be confined largely to students.

Preceding the organization there was discussion of "The new deal—Democratic or Socialistic?" led by Mr. Garner and Roland A. White, G of Marengo.

Mr. White declared he had been in favor of Franklin D. Roosevelt for governor of New York in 1930 "at a time when I was among those who vaguely believed he was a son of Theodore Roosevelt." As a progressive Republican, he had hoped for "new deal" through the nomination of Roosevelt, as the only real progressive at the Chicago convention.

This change within the party looked less and less convincing to him as the campaign proceeded. Roosevelt compromised on protective tariff, emphasized the investor rather than the consumer on public utilities, and praised Reconstruction Finance corporation which he had earlier condemned as leaving unmindful of "the forgotten man"—according to Mr. White.

The keynote of his talk was his opening quotation from Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate:

"In 1916 you voted for Wilson and peace—and got Wilson. In 1928 you voted for Hoover and prosperity—and got Hoover. In 1932 you will vote for Roosevelt and reform—and get Roosevelt."

Garner expressed confidence in Governor Roosevelt as leader toward a liberal "new deal," pointing to the election of some progressive Democrats and of Jews as governors of New York and Illinois. He said there had been "a bloody revolution" and the government has been restored to the party of the people. In rebuttal to Mr. White's fear that the new deal "will be only a shuffle of a few face cards at the top," he contended there should be "a shuffle clear down to the bottom—but not putting the bottom on top like they did over in Russia."

After Mr. Garner had said "Let's find the forgotten man and look after him," the group agreed that Governor Roosevelt deserves all the co-operation possible if he is to succeed in effecting his "new deal."

Dr. Wood to Attend State Clinic Today

Dr. Andrew H. Woods, director of Psychopathic hospital, will leave for the Iowa State college, Ames, this morning to take part in a college health clinic.

At the invitation of the college hospital staff, Dr. Woods will deliver two lectures before a faculty and student assembly. His subjects will be "The satisfactions of life" and "Attaining best mental efficiency in college."

Dr. R. M. Hughes, president of Iowa State college, said in an article in the Iowa State Student, college paper:

"Within recent years, we have become generally aware that the mind as well as the body needs some proper attention to keep it in health and working at good efficiency. Just as very few people have perfect bodies, so very few have perfectly balanced and working minds. I feel sure that Dr. Woods can advise and help any of us to have a finer mental life."

By arrangement between the medical faculties of the University of Iowa and Iowa State college, a university physician will hold health conference at Ames once a month during the school year.

Stocks Lose Ground After Small Sales

Professional Activities Distinguish Minor Fluctuations

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Stocks gave up a little more ground today, although they held much better than grains. Volume was the smallest in a fortnight and activity so substantially professional that the minor fluctuations appeared to represent only the "in and out" transactions of floor traders.

Changes over the day showed frequent shifts of direction, but all the moves were of minor extent. However, the undertone was easy and although one of the little rallies came at the close most leading issues finished a shade off.

No Big Jumps

Except for Homestake Mining, which jumped nearly 8 points, there were no outstanding swings. Farm implement stocks were unaffected by losses running close to two cents a bushel in wheat.

Sterling had a sharp reaction and German bonds dipped when resignation of the von Papen government was announced.

Net losses in shares were almost entirely fractional. U. S. Steel, American Can, Bethlehem, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, National Biscuit, American Tobacco "B," North American, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Santa Fe averaged half a point lower. Losses of around a point appeared in Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Lackawanna.

Declare Dividend

Penick & Ford profited by declaration of a larger extra dividend than had been paid last year. Homestake's strength coincided with news of larger gold production in the United States during September and the general letdown of commodity prices.

Corn and oats dropped with wheat, although country offerings of corn were not large and notwithstanding that there has been four cents advance for cash corn compared with what was bid two weeks ago.

Provisions reflected the action of cereals as well as late setbacks of hog values.

Closing indemnities: wheat—December, 42 3-8, 43 7-8; May 47 1-2, 5-8, 48 7-8, 49; July, 48 1-2, 5-8, 50 1-8. Corn—December, 24 1-4, 25 1-8; May 29 5-8, 3-4, 30 1-2, 5-8.
