Snow, Abnormal Temperatures Grip Entire Nation

Fall Labeled Most General in Last Years

(By The Associated Press) The nation's weather map yesterday showed what federal observers termed "one of the most widespread precipitations in years."

To all except residents of the Oregon country and the southeastern coastal plain it meant snow, varying in depth but accompanied almost everywhere by temperatures below the season's normal.

An inch of snow descended upon Iowa City and surrounding territory yesterday, according to reports from Prof. John Reilly, official observer.

The coldest temperature here Friday night was 7 degrees above zero and with the rising of the mercury yesterday morning to 13 degrees above snow began to fall and continued throughout most of the day.

Washington, Philadelphia and Manhattan Island saw their first snowfall of the year.

Along with these, the entire Mississippi and Ohio valleys were to look whiter than ever today.

Colorado sent a low barometric area slowly eastward. Another north from Tennessee where a heavy sleet storm grazed the countryside.

Meanwhile Lander, Wyo., recorded temperatures of 26 degrees below zero, Yellowstone Park 20 below.

Some California points were colder than Point Barrow, Alaska, North America's northernmost town which was 30 degrees above zero.

The New York morning mail plane arrived in Chicago ahead of schedule but a western passenger ship had to send its customers from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Maramie by truck.

A sliding scale plan whereby cash rentals for farms may be charged according to prices which tenants received for their products was discussed in a talk given by Millard Peck of Iowa State college, Friday night at the Farm Bureau office here.

The plan explained by Mr. Peck is intended to give landlords, in a period of hard times, benefits of any rise in prices of farm products, and at the same time assure tenants that the rents which will not be far beyond the market value of their products.

It is believed that Mr. Peck's plan will make relationships between owners and tenants more harmonious than under the system of fixed rentals in which case one of the two usually gets the better of the deal.

The speaker has drawn a model form of lease with a schedule of rentals fitting for the average Iowa farm and has also prepared a table for abnormal farms.

Notify Herring DES MOINES (AP) — Dr. H. P. Seldemann, assistant director of the Brookings Institute of Washington, D. C., informed Governor-elect Clyde L. Herring that investigators of state reorganization can be assigned to Iowa Jan. 1, if desired.

Bomb Explodes in Garden of Official

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 10 (AP)—A bomb exploded tonight in the garden of the official British residency, at present occupied by Sir Percy Loraine, British high commissioner to Egypt.

There were no casualties and no serious damage was done. Investigators connected the outrage with the internal political situation in Egypt.

Nationalists have criticized Britain because King Fuad ousted the Wafdist (Nationalist) administration and replaced it with the present cabinet under Ismail Pasha, Britain has disclaimed any part in the internal situation.

Herriot Looks for Method of Debt Payment

Chamber May Demand U. S. Agreement to Conference

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP) — Premier Edouard Herriot and two important committees of the chamber of deputies worked separately today in an effort to find a formula under which the chamber would be willing to vote for payment of the war debt installment due the United States next Thursday.

The foreign affairs and finance committees of the chamber worked out a resolution providing for payment—but only on the condition that the United States agree before Thursday to a debt conference which would liquidate the entire problem.

Members of the delegation which presented this resolution to the premier quoted him as saying it tended toward the government's intentions, although he made reservations because negotiations still are continuing with England over a policy acceptable to both nations.

Doubt was expressed in French circles about whether the premier would approve the project of obtaining acceptance in advance from the United States for the conference proposal.

On Monday the premier will hold a cabinet session after which he will go before the chamber to explain the position of the government toward the Thursday payment.

After the chamber has heard the premier's exposition, the session will be suspended to permit the various groups to determine the attitude they will adopt.

1812 War Pension Comes Monthly to Iowa City Widow

Widow of a soldier of the War of 1812, Mrs. Marlan A. Clark, 713 E. Burlington street, who calls herself 96 years "young," gets a pension check every month from Uncle Sam.

Mrs. Clark is the only one of the surviving 1812 war widows living west of Ohio.

Although she did not marry John R. Clark until more than 50 years after the war had ended she knows of the adventures he experienced in the primeval forest along the Niagara river, of the open fighting at Lundy's Lane near the Cataract, and of the two battles of Ft. Erie, where he served under Gen. Jacob Brown.

Long after war, Clark migrated to Iowa prairies and became a resident of Iowa City. After the death of his first wife he met the Scotch lassie, then 29 years old, who became his second wife. Immediately after the marriage, the veteran, who was 70, took his bride to Maine, where he died 11 years later, in 1876.

Mrs. Clark returned to her invalid mother in Iowa City. She never had children. She never took steps to get a pension list, but the government money has been coming to her since her husband's death, beginning with $8 a month.

Committee Names Candidates for Rhodes Scholarship Honor

Representatives of Six Midwest States Meet in Des Moines Official of R. F. C. Missing From Home

When Rhodes scholarship candidates from six midwestern states meet in Des Moines tomorrow, Iowa will be represented by Paul H. Engle, former graduate student of the University of Iowa, and Wayne S. Birchard, graduate student at Iowa State college, Ames.

Selection of these two men was announced yesterday following a meeting in Old Capitol of the state committee on Rhodes scholarships, before which 17 applications from students of 11 Iowa schools were considered.

Mr. Engle, who is studying at Columbia university, New York, and William Chase of Ames, who is attending the University of London, were unable to attend the meeting, but the remaining 15 applicants appeared in person.

Interviewed by committee Since both Mr. Engle and Mr. Chase appeared before the state committee last year, they were not required to attend this year. Mr. Engle was also interviewed by the regional committee last year, and will not be required to present himself in Des Moines tomorrow.

Under the terms of a trust fund left by the late Cecil Rhodes, British statesman, the four successful candidates chosen at Des Moines tomorrow will be awarded $2,000 a year for study at Oxford university, England, for two years. The students have a choice of continuing at Oxford or transferring to another university for a third year.

English Literature Should Mr. Engle be successful in tomorrow's competition, he plans to study English language and literature at Oxford, and return to this country for his third year and a doctorate degree.

Mr. Birchard, whose home is in Cedar Rapids, received his B.A. degree from Coe college in 1931. His M.A. degree from the University of Iowa in 1932 was one of the first to be granted by the school of letters for the writing of a long poem.

He has written several collections of poems, one of them having been selected this year by Yale university for its annual publication of the works of some outstanding younger poet of the United States.

World Study Physics Mr. Birchard, who received his B.A. degree from Iowa State college in 1931 and his M.A. in 1932, hopes to study physics at Oxford, being especially interested in the conduction of electricity through gases. His home is in Council Bluffs.

States which will be represented in tomorrow's competition are Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Missouri, and Iowa. Each state will have two candidates, picked by the respective state committees.

Personnel of the regional examining committee is not made public until after the examination and interviews, which will probably conclude tomorrow night.

Select States' Rhodes Candidates

Missouri's candidates for the Rhodes scholarships, who will compete in Des Moines tomorrow, are Paul Jones Sturm of Kansas City, a student at Yale university, and Willis J. Wager, graduate student at Washington university, St. Louis. Minnesota's representatives will be Carl J. Lind and Waldemar Rasmussen. Both are medical students at the University of Minnesota, and both live in Minneapolis.

John William Dowling of Madison, Neb., and John William Wehn of Lincoln, Neb., were picked yesterday as Nebraska's representatives, from among 17 applicants.

The years have dealt kindly with Mrs. Clark, who goes about her home without aid. During the last few years, however, she has almost lost her hearing. She maintains that that she will easily pass the century mark.

She came to Iowa City from Scotland at the age of 19.

WEATHER IOWA—Unsettled, snow Sunday in east and central portions Monday; somewhat colder Monday in west and central portions.

AT BAT FOR BEER BILL

Attorney Levi Cooke of Washington, representing the United States Brewers' association, is shown as he argued the case for immediate beer before the house of representatives ways and means committee at the first of a series of informal hearings on the beer bill. Cooke, in pleading for beer with an alcoholic content of 2.75 per cent, told the committee that $360,000,000 would be spent immediately by the brewers, and that federal revenues from beer taxes would amount to at least $200,000,000 annually.

Z.T.A. Wins Sales Contest

To Zeta Tau Alpha, represented by Margaret Asthalter, goes the $200 prize offered by the 1934 Hawkeye to the winning sorority in its annual sales contest. Gamma Phi Beta, represented by Cherie McElhinney, was awarded the second prize of $75.

Gamma Phi Second, Pi Phi Takes Third Place

For hours the committee heard "naturally fermented virus liquor" extolled by a French wine producer and representatives from the many grape producing states. Prohibitionists will state their side of the case on Monday.

Answers Brewers

The opposition of brewers to the inclusion of wine in the measure on the ground that question of it being non-intoxicating might imperil the beer provision was assailed by Marlon de Vries of Washington, representative of the Grape Growers league of California.

Shantytown, Rendezvous of Des Moines Needy, Has Officials Serving Without Pay

DES MOINES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Shantytown, rendezvous of the unemployed, is going to have a mayor and a chief of police. Already this little community populated by the city's unfortunates has a chief counsel, a supreme court and a court of the last resort.

The 25 inhabitants, all men, have constructed 10 crude huts which are nestled on city property at a fork of the Des Moines and Raccoon rivers. Now they seek to complete the political setup of their constituency.

Mayor Dwight Lewis of Des Moines has consented to act as the court of last resort. He serves without pay, a considerable convenience to Shantytown's residents.

James Moran, president of the trades and labor assembly, is the supreme court. Russell Lundgren, city employe at the city dump near which Shantytown is located, is chief counsel.

Which of Shantytown's numbers will round out the political council will be determined soon by election. They, too, will serve without pay.

Local Youth Faces Trial for Murder

James Regis Martin, 16, of Iowa City must stand trial Dec. 21 for murder in the circuit court at Muskegon, Mich., according to an Associated Press dispatch yesterday which reported that Circuit Judge John Vanderwerp held Martin to be sane.

James Regis Martin to Answer for Killing in Michigan

He was arrested in Benton Harbor, Mich., by police who traced him by a hat left at the scene of the shooting. He also confessed to the robbery of a grocery store in Dayton, an oil station in Elgin, Ill., and a grocery and drug store in Milwaukee, Wis.

Martin, a senior and an honor student in St. Mary's high school here, took his father's revolver and left home Oct. 28. His parents could give no reason for his disappearance.

State Bank of Galva Robbed

GALVA, Dec. 10 (AP)—Officers headed by Sheriff C. H. Dahlquist continued a search for a bandit who today held up the Galva State bank here and escaped with about $1,000. A farmer living four miles from town reported that a car believed to have been that used by the bandit went past his farm at a rapid rate shortly after the robbery.

C. C. Elk, the cashier, was alone when the bandit entered the bank shortly after 11 a.m. Flourishing a revolver, the man compelled Elk to hand over all the currency in the till.

The bandit escaped in a car parked a short distance from the bank. The auto license number was not obtained.

Elk described the bandit as about 35 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and sturdily built. He was wearing a sheepskin coat and a cap.

The robbery was the eleventh successful bank robbery in Iowa this year. Two other attempts failed.

Houghton Will Address Men

Results of a year's study of mission work in the far east will be given by Dean Henry S. Houghton of the college of medicine in an address at a men's supper in the Congregational church tomorrow at 6 p.m.

This will mark Dean Houghton's first public discussion of his work as a member of the appraisal commission of the Laymen's Foreign Missions inquiry.

The commission was composed of 15 members prominent in churches and universities throughout the country, representing the following denominations:

Presbyterian, Dutch Reformed, United Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal, Congregational, Protestant Episcopal, and Northern Baptist.

The work of the commission involved a study of all Christian mission work in the far east. Leaving the United States in Sept., 1931, the group devoted nine months to a study of conditions in India, Burma, China, and Japan.

Among the questions which the report of the commission will seek to solve are:

Have foreign missions finished their work? Is there a decline in their value to the far east? Should these missions any longer go on?

What should be the attitude of Christianity toward the non-Christian religions of the east? Members of the group were Union.

Public Projects Costs Receive Biggest Slash

Treasury Department to Face Curtailment of Expenses

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—A sharply cut money bill, for the first time in many years carrying less than a billion dollars for the treasury and post office departments, was recommended to the house today by its appropriations committee.

Decreases that brought the total for these two big departments down to $961,416,000 for the next fiscal year extended even to the coast guard, although Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, the commandant, told the committee he expected greater run-running activities in the next two years.

Hamlet said legalizing beer of low alcoholic content, which the house ways and means committee is now considering, "will have no effect whatever on the smuggling of distilled spirits into the United States from the sea."

Expect Action

"We assume that committee will take some action, and add it on the treasury-post office bill when it reaches the senate," Byrns said.

To treasury took by far the biggest cut of the two departments. When the house debates the bill Monday it will consider allowing the treasury $244,353,000 in 1934 against $270,200,000 asked by the budget and $350,000,000 appropriated this year.

The largest item in this decrease was taken from the public building allowance. Because relief and emergency expenditures on public buildings this year were not repeated, the committee could recommend $81,919,000 for 1934, which is $149,565,000 less than appropriated for 1933 and $10,940,000 less than the amount asked by the budget.

$88,000,000 Cut The post office, with its huge expenditures on domestic airmail and ocean mail, under the committee recommendation would get $717,033,000, a reduction of $88,966,000 under the current year and $7,094,000 less than the budget estimates.

There was a reduction of $5,000,000 under budget estimates to $100,000,000 in the allowance for mail transportation by railroads and messengers; of $1,000,000 under budget estimates to $19,000,000 for airmail service. On this subject, the committee said:

"In the case of this class of transportation as in ocean mail the committee is of the opinion that subsidy service should be conducted at the lowest possible cost, and, in consonance with the reductions which are being made in other directions, there should be curtailment in this as in other appropriations."

Postal Employees Aid Relief Groups; Shoe Shops Add Donations

Post office employees, who organized about two weeks ago in an active campaign to aid local relief organizations, made their second contribution yesterday when they donated a quantity of clothing to the Social Service league. They contributed a collection of $40 in cash about a week ago.

To bolster the supply of shoes for the needy families of the city, Donny Boot shop and the Stewart shoe company gave the league a number of shoes yesterday, according to Lucille Bruner, secretary of the Social Service league.

BOOK REVIEWS

The Son of God, by Albert Payson Terhune. Harpers, $2.00. Reviewed by Virginia Maxson.

Mr. Terhune forsakes dogs for scripture. I wish he'd stick to dogs. Into them, at least, he breathes a soul. From the Christ we find in The Son of God, he saps all life, makes of him a remote, unreal, alabaster miracle-man.

The erstwhile canine-writer dovetails from other contemporary Biblical chroniclers. He does not rationalize. His Christ is no fanatical lunatic exhorting a doctrine of Love to a corrupt world. Nor is he a mystic with some strange power to sway the multitudes, nor a lying imposter, nor an epileptic, nor even a human being like ourselves, compounded alike of virtues and faults.

No, Jesus for this clergyman's son is the all-good, a divine supreme being, "son of the living God." He cannot sin, cannot err. He is pure, shining, spotless—the merciful father of mankind, who forgives not from a human fallible heart but from the magnanimity of perfection.

As his source-book Mr. Terhune quotes scripture. "His life has been written by a score of wiser folk than I," he writes in the opening lines of an introductory chapter. "I have read none of these books. The only Life of Christ I have read is in the four gospels." The volume's seven rambling, unrelated, somewhat disjointed chapters evidence the truth of this statement. Their text is pure scripture, literally interpreted. In them we piece together a picture of Christ, a radiant, shining being beside shameful darker figures that blot the Scripture's pages. By comparison other long-reversed Biblical characters appear base, evil, corrupt.

Mighty Samson is seen a blundering, moronish, puny-willed comedian who squanders glorious opportunities and whose "final practical joke literally brought down the house." Contrastingly, Jesus stands forth a powerful, dominating personality not alone in rugged physical strength but in the strength of his all-encompassing sympathy and unselfishness.

Four more Gospel fathers are given the acid test of comparison with Him, and prove dross. Solomon uses "his heaven-sent wisdom to win a name as a wisecracker and an erotic poet and to swing mammoth get-rich-quick schemes." Elijah, a hairy and snarling superman with a leatherp loin-cloth, invokes his miraculous power for his own benefit. Moses stubbornly forges with fire his petty iron creed, even after its emergency-needs are long outworn. Gentle David is shown a grasping insportsmanlike monarch who excessively wines, dines, quarrels with his wife, and neglects his offspring.

All this faintly amusing muckraking to exalt Christ to more glorious heights—his wisdom greater than sage Solomon, his miracle-power more benevolent than Elijah or Elisha, his law-giving more humane than Moses, his kingship more unselfish than David.

Terhune slings blindly to the conception of an all-perfect Christ. His is a simple, unswerving faith accepted unquestioningly from the clergyman father whom he worshiped. Unfortunately the beauty and dignity of his homely philosophy is lost in a mire of petty detail. Like an unreasoning child he distorts the frailties of his villains to make the hero's virtues shine more brilliantly.

"One hears much about the size and splendor of Solomon's temple," he complains pettishly. "We learn it was only 35 feet wide and a hundred feet long. Many a modern suburban home is larger."

Or again: "He (Jesus) coined no cheaply smart proverbs as reporters for these profound doctors of the law as Solomon might have done. Nor did he try to impress them with loud eloquence."

Such shallow 12 year old reasoning may convince the credulous; and if it brings them hope and cheer, well and good—but most of us in this skeptical age will demand a foundation more real, more convincing, more unprejudiced, on which to base our faith.

Iowa City's Own Chandu to Present Magic at Music Fete

LeRoy McGinnis Will Show Wares in Iowa Union

Now you see it and now you don't. Iowa City's own Chandu and master of magic, in the person of LeRoy McGinnis, 720 River street, will demonstrate his feats of magic at the Christmas Music Festival to be held Dec. 20 at Iowa Union under the auspices of Iowa City organizations.

McGinnis, who is only 16 years old and a senior at Iowa City high school, said that he first became interested in magic six years ago when one of his friends who became tired of the magic set he got for Christmas sold it to him. Since then he has practiced daily on his tricks and for one year took instruction under Magician Tarbell, one of the foremost magicians in the country.

One of his best tricks is that of the vanishing bird cage. The cage with a bird in it is held directly in front of his body and he suddenly slaps his hands together and the bird and cage are gone—he won't say where.

McGinnis has appeared before practically all the Iowa City clubs, has played for two weeks during the summer at a Cedar Rapids theater, and has been engaged by various organizations throughout the state on special programs.

He will graduate from Iowa City high school in the spring, but says he does not intend to become a professional magician but will enter the university and take either dramatics or law.

Farmer Folly

FOR YEARS one of the valid claims among agricultural leaders has been against discriminations. Now that farmers seem to have a president sympathetic to their views, they have a chance to demonstrate whether they can be any more just in program.

There is the tariff. To protect farm products as other commodities are protected is fair, if you believe in prohibitive tariffs.

But to favor on one hand an equalization fee, or export debenture, or domestic allotment, or some other form of surplus control which is the equivalent of a tariff—and to insist on the other for reduction in industrial tariffs is not entirely consistent or practicable.

But tariffs on manufactured goods are too high. In the Hawley-Smoot tariff it was possible to make industrial duties high because agricultural tariffs were demanded.

The same is likely to be true of the domestic allotment. How can it be obtained without concessions to other interests?

Can a backward one-sixth of the world catch up and leap into the future without going through the period of capitalism? Some of the "catches":

- 1) Unstable money, exchange varying from seven to 70 roubles for one pound sterling in legitimate circles, ranging to 120 roubles as currency bootleggers resist an artificial control;
2) Education, though much more widespread, only another phase of mass production, turning out standardized little Bolsheviks;
3) Controlled uniformity of the press;
4) Unemployment because peasants and the proletariat won't work some of the time—or are they idlers, parasites;
5) Religious freedom only in the constitution;
6) Class discrimination, small farmer against large, worker against peasant, lower classes against middle class, intellectuals, special privileges for the few party members;
7) G. P. U. espionage, shadowing of suspects as vigilant as Czarist secret police;
8) Gradual withdrawal of U. S. engineers, who had been a keystone factor—will peasant labor from behind the plow continue without this prop to its industrial structure?;
9) Inefficiency of labor, five Russians equal to one European;
10) A philosophy of utter materialism and force, its working out depending upon a world wide class revolution.

Ready at Last

THE FIRST SNOWFALL of the year makes even more vital the need of relief for the hundreds of men who are without work and whose families are in want for food and clothing and heat.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the Community Chest drive, which will probably begin shortly after the end of the Christmas holidays.

Indecision and bickering among the various relief organizations and a constant lack of cooperation have postponed the drive, which was to have been staged early this fall.

Rough spots in the chest organization seem at last to have been ironed out. When the drive begins, with its goal set at $30,000, it will be well organized and should receive the wholehearted and generous support of every citizen of Iowa City.

More Parties?

THERE WILL probably be two all-university parties which are new to the Iowa campus this year; a coach's idea and the formation of plans by members of Hawkeye athletic squads have started things rolling.

The returns from the parties will be turned into financial backing for competition in two sports. That financial backing must be assured, or there will be little or no track and baseball in 1933. The sports are not self-supporting, and at the present time there does not seem to be a bright prospect for them.

The question may be raised as to whether the additional parties will crowd a second semester all-university party schedule, with the possibility that the two parties which have been canceled might be scheduled again for the second half of the university year.

The question of lower financial return for all parties if more are included in the schedule is another question for consideration.

From Jan. 1, 1933, to May 12, 1933, there are seven all-university parties scheduled. January, April, and May are the only months in which one party is to be held, unless the date of the Junior Prom is re-scheduled for April.

May is not a favorable month, it would seem from the athletic point of view, because the season for spring sports will be nearing the end, and finances would better be received and budgeted earlier in the season. Disregarding the Junior Prom, there would seem to be room for all-university parties late in January and late in March. There are 28 days without a party scheduled through January and February; 21 days are open in March and April.

The New Rule in Germany

WHAT THE HOPES for a new era of peace in the stormy sea of German politics were not entirely ill-founded was revealed Friday when the Reichstag consented to adjourn, subject to call, until January. That this was done without the customary demonstration against the chancellor is indeed something new.

It was pointed out several days ago by those reputedly in the know on German politics that the new chancellor, Kurt von Schleicher, could, if the thing was possible at all, iron out at least part of the difficulties now besetting the government.

Painted as a man of magnetic personality, energetic, and of inflexible will von Schleicher was named to his present post in the hope that someone, something, could prevent the nation from tottering into the yawning abyss of revolution and disruption.

Faced as he has been by almost insurmountable odds in the shape of opposition of one sort or another from almost every party in Germany, von Schleicher has already made remarkable headway in the task of building and entrenching a strong leadership.

By his victory in the Reichstag he and his cabinet will have absolute rule until January, and by some means still unknown to the world at large he has succeeded in splitting the opposition of the Nazis, perhaps the strongest and the best organized party in Germany.

If these latest developments do presage a new and closer knit Germany, then that nation and the world can thank its gods of destiny for von Schleicher.

TODAY'S TOPICS

BY FRANK JAFFE

A land almost as foreign as Alice's Wonderland, seven centuries behind the world and trying to catch up all in a leap—Russia as seen by Rennie Smith.

From wooden plows to tractors, from thirteenth century peasants to twentieth century industrial workers, from czarist autocracy to class dictatorship—such was the picture he presented to Commerce club Thursday night.

Can a backward one-sixth of the world catch up and leap into the future without going through the period of capitalism? Some of the "catches":

- 1) Unstable money, exchange varying from seven to 70 roubles for one pound sterling in legitimate circles, ranging to 120 roubles as currency bootleggers resist an artificial control;
2) Education, though much more widespread, only another phase of mass production, turning out standardized little Bolsheviks;
3) Controlled uniformity of the press;
4) Unemployment because peasants and the proletariat won't work some of the time—or are they idlers, parasites;
5) Religious freedom only in the constitution;
6) Class discrimination, small farmer against large, worker against peasant, lower classes against middle class, intellectuals, special privileges for the few party members;
7) G. P. U. espionage, shadowing of suspects as vigilant as Czarist secret police;
8) Gradual withdrawal of U. S. engineers, who had been a keystone factor—will peasant labor from behind the plow continue without this prop to its industrial structure?;
9) Inefficiency of labor, five Russians equal to one European;
10) A philosophy of utter materialism and force, its working out depending upon a world wide class revolution.

Crucial was this point: So long as only bankruptcy threatens five year plans Russia can start all over again—if there is food for her tremendous manpower. . . yet Russia has exalted the proletariat and crushed the peasant into subservience. . . starving now, with a lower standard of living even than during the black days of 1917 and smaller crops from stubborn peasants, Russia faces a hard winter.

A Socialist, representing rivalry for future world leadership, Rennie Smith was not absolutely impartial toward Communist Russia. His point of view is nearer that to which the United States can attain because his nation and ours have a thousand years of common tradition marred only by a misunderstanding now relegated to the past.

Russia cannot be ignored. She will leave her impress on the modern world as surely as did France a century ago—revolutionary France, too, began a new calendar with the Year One, of Liberty.

The United States of America now stands with regard to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics somewhat as England did to France a century ago—on the threshold of potential free trade governmental reform liberalized society. . . and world empire drifting toward world war?

Perhaps Communists are right about their "inevitable" revolution—even in the younger United States which is fortunate in being conducted a longer time before the crisis threatens. But Communist dogma assumes the continued dumbness of "capitalist" civilization.

Is western civilization to allow so backward a country as Russia has been to outstrip it in conscious planning of the future? England's "muddling through" is no perfect example. England has clung to liberty, Russia has swung to planned justice—can U. S. leadership combine liberty and justice, freedom and planning, through consent, cooperation, and continuity instead of by coercion and conflict?

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

By HARRISON CARROLL STUDIO GOSSIP FILM SCANDAL SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD — When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talked of Jean Hersholt for its beer picture, it was throwing a red herring across the trail to cross up other producers. The real plan of the studio is not a serious picture but an uproarious comedy based on the red hot national issue.

Now, when it is too late for other studios to cop the idea, officials admit that the story will be a co-starring vehicle for Buster Keaton and Jimmie Durante. They have Bob Hopkins, one of the ace comedy writers on the lot, giving it a final workover.

Such coups, providing this is a coup, are the delight of the producers. Many a tale could be told of the Machiavellian strategy with which the Hollywood nabobs seek to protect their ideas from lynx-eyed competitors.

And well may they plot for the first studio on the market with a successful idea skims the cream of the profits. And even the cream is none too thick these days.

On a coolish Monday night, author Preston Sturges entertained the Baltimore Dairy Lunch Club with a dinner in his back yard. One end of the long table had its back to an open-air fireplace, and there Harry Ruby, the song writer, contrived to find himself a seat.

The lobster bisque was perfect, the chicken pie melted in the mouth, the flames crackled merrily behind him, but Ruby became more and more ill at ease.

Southern California Turns Back Notre Dame, 13 to 0

Trojans Stop Irish Offense for 3 Periods

Second Straight Win for Jones-Coached Eleven

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Southern California outplayed Notre Dame for three periods and outsmarted the visitors all the way today to win the annual football battle between the Trojans and Ramblers 13 to 0.

A record crowd of 100,000 saw the home team win its 19th straight game and move a step closer to a second national championship in two years.

The crowd set a new attendance mark for football games this season and was the biggest assembly ever to witness a game in Los Angeles.

Two Straight The record crowd saw a record performance. The Trojans made history for their seven-year football war with Notre Dame for this was the first time the Howard Jones team has won twice in successive seasons from its rival. Notre Dame, however, continued to hold a one game margin for the series, four to three.

Southern California rode to victory on the flying feet of Irvine (Cotton) Warburton, a pint sized quarterback, a sensational catch of a forward pass by Bob McNeish and a series of well placed quick kicks.

McNeish, Griffith Score Warburton, little but fast, started his team on the road to the first score in the second period by returning a Notre Dame punt 39 yards to the visitors' 44 yard line. The little fellow dashed to the 30 yard line on the next play. Notre Dame called a halt through the line then, but Homer Griffith on fourth down, with the ball on the 31 yard line, tossed a pass to McNeish, who made a sensational catch over his head two yards from the goal line and stepped over.

A quick kick in the third period was fumbled by Chuck Jaskwich, Bob Erskine recovering for the Trojans on Notre Dame's 26 yard line. Southern California moved on to a second touchdown by successive running plays.

Quick Kicks Help The home team used the quick kick to advantage throughout the game, booting the ball over the head of the Notre Dame safety men and three times grounding the ball inside the visitors' five yard line. Once the ball came to rest less than a yard from the goal.

Notre Dame's offense failed to function during the first three periods but came to life with a bang in the closing quarter, when it was too late.

Notre Dame was not in Southern California territory during the first period until the elusive Mike Koken, assuming the role of an invader, side stepped his way to the 43 yard line. The visitors did not get past the center of the field again until the final period. At the outset, Jaskwich, finding no available pass receiver, ran with the ball and was brought down on Southern California's 49 yard line.

Passes Start A few minutes later Notre Dame uncovered a passing attack which for a while had the Trojans running around in circles. After Smith missed a field goal from the 40 yard line, the visitors took the ball on their own 29 yard line and Ray Brancheau passed to Hugh Devore on Notre Dame's 48 yard line.

Lukats passed to George Melnikovich on Southern California's 41 and the same combination worked the ball to the 23 yard line. Laurie Vejar, a Hollywood boy, then shot one to Sheketskii on the five yard line. The drive was stopped when Griffith intercepted a pass on his own nine yard line.

Back Again The Trojans kicked out but Notre Dame was right back knocking at the door with another long pass from Lukats to Melnikovich, winding up on the 13 yard line. An incomplete pass over the goal line rolled this, the last effort of the South Bend contingent.

Notre Dame gained 131 yards on seven completed passes from a total of 17 attempted. Southern California completed only one pass of eight, but this toss was good for a touchdown.

Rough Game The visitors outgained the home team and scored twice as many first downs. Notre Dame never kicked on third down while Southern California consistently punted when two plays failed to negotiate a first down.

The game was a rough, tough affair, marked by hard line play. Larry Stevens, Southern California guard, and Steve Bannas, Notre Dame fullback, were ejected from the game just before it was completed for hitting in the clinches.

SEATTLE, Dec. 10 (AP)—Making all their points in the first two periods, the University of Washington football team defeated the West Seattle Athletic club 66 to 0.

Hawk Five Invades Drake Tomorrow; St. Mary's Meets St. Ambrose Here

Comedy, Sentiment Mingle When Herd Battles Rambler 11

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—There was a mixture of the sentimental and the comical here today as Coach Howard Jones' thundering herd turned in its second straight win over the Rambler from South Bend.

Emotionally the game was given a perfect send-off when the Southern California coach sent Orville Mohler into the game to hold the ball for the opening kickoff. Mohler, one of the coast's greatest quarterbacks, was injured early in the season and forced to give up football.

The comedy relief to a very serious game was furnished by Nick Lukats in the final period when he lost his trousers in a melee. He was hurriedly escorted to the sidelines, holding his apparel and the Notre Dame players on the bench made up a ring around the embarrassed player and in this open air dressing room he donned another pair.

101 Quintets Play in Iowa Intramurals

Cage Sport Reaches Peak on Local Campus

"Iowa intramural basketball is at its peak in the history of the University of Iowa. Never before have there been so many teams and never have there been so many individual competitors. Especially this year have turnouts been gratifying, with approximately twice as many teams entered on the intramural schedule as competed during last year's successful season."

Such were the words yesterday of Prof. "Dad" Schroeder of the physical education department, who is entering upon his twenty-third year as director of intramural athletics. Professor Schroeder went on to enumerate some statistics upon the phenomenal increase in basketball this year.

Twice as Many Last year 55 teams played. This year 101 teams have already begun their schedule or have been scheduled to compete later on. There may be more registrations even yet.

At this time last year there were 26 teams playing while at the present there are exactly 62 aggregations in action.

The 62 teams that are playing now and which consist of fraternity and dormitory teams will play a total of 366 games. They have already played half of this schedule and will begin the second half Monday.

The other teams that will play will be various independent groups, numbering 39 squads.

Third of Men Competing on these 101 teams will be a total of between 700 and 800 men, or approximately one third of the male registration in the university.

Only about 50 of these men will be duplications, that is, playing on more than one team and none of them belong to the separate freshman squad of 125 men. Neither are any from varsity teams.

In previous years the fraternity league comprised more than half of the entire intramural program. This year, however, in direct reverse there are more non-fraternity teams playing than fraternity.

Two Games Per Week Each man, for all the scramble for playing room, plays on an average of twice a week. Usually there are 12 teams playing at a time and the schedule would permit 15.

The games are run off in the most official manner as all the junior and senior phys-ed majors devote a large part of their time to officiating the contests. The refereeing is a valuable part of their practice coaching and is likewise an essential factor to

Iowa Cagers to Seek Third Straight Win

Hawkeyes on Foreign Court First Time This Season

With two scalps of non-conference opponents safely tacked to their belts, the Iowa Hawkeyes will invade the stronghold of the Drake Bulldogs tomorrow evening in their first game of the season off the home court.

Although little is known of the strength of the Drake team, Coach Rolfe Williams is expecting plenty of opposition, and sent his squad through a drill on offense yesterday afternoon to get the men limbered up and pointed for the Bulldogs.

Same Lineup

The Hawkeye mentor indicated that he would probably use the same lineup as that which started the Bradley and Monmouth contests, with Howard Moffitt and Ivan Blackmer at forwards, Howard Bastian at center, and Ed Break and Ben Selzer at guards. However, Guelnder Krumbholz, substitute forward whose scoring spree of five baskets in the first half played a big part in Iowa's win over the Scots, may get the call at forward in place of Blackmer, with the lanky Iowa City recruit going to center in place of Bastian.

The Hawkeyes will have the edge on the Bulldogs in experience and length of practice as the Drake squad has been scrimmaging for but a week, and has had no games.

Iowa Has Edge

The Bulldogs and the Hawkeyes have met 10 times on the basketball court, and the latter holds a 9 to 1 advantage. Drake scored its only victory against Iowa in 1930, when in the second game of a two-game series, the Blue and White came through for a one point triumph.

The Drake squad is working under a new coach, Bill Williams, who also took over the job of head coach at the Des Moines school this fall.

Two Veterans

Two Drake men, stars from last season are back this year, and are expected to carry the brunt of the Bulldog attack. Sebastian a center, and Abrams, a forward, were both outstanding on the team last season.

The following is the squad list: Forwards—Howard Moffitt, Ivan Blackmer, Jack Kotlow, Guelnder Krumbholz, Harold Eshleman, Duane Smith.

Michigan Awarded National Title by Dickinson System

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 10 (AP)—Although Southern California's Trojans defeated Notre Dame today to finish their regular season undefeated and untied, the University of Michigan tonight was awarded the Knute K. Rockne Memorial Trophy, symbolic of the national football championship, under the Dickinson rating system.

The Wolverines played one less game than the Trojans, but Prof. Frank Dickinson of the University of Illinois, originator of the system, said Michigan won because of the superiority of middlewestern football in inter-sectional games.

Michigan had a rating of 28.47, with Southern California second at 26.81. Pittsburgh, undefeated but twice tied, had 26.49 for third place and Purdue ranked next with 26.32. Colgate the only undefeated and

State Champs Play on Local Court Monday

Squad Suffering From Colds; Vic Belger Still Out

State champion vs. runner-up. That is the menu for local basketball fans tomorrow night when Coach Francis Sueppel's St. Mary's Ramblers take on the St. Ambrose quintet from Davenport in the City high gymnasium.

But Coach Sueppel is singing the blues. It was a cold that has kept Vic Belger, sharp-shooting forward, out of the last two games, and now almost every man on the squad is suffering from a like malady.

No Practice

Not since the St. Wenceslaus game Thursday night has the St. Mary's squad been able to practice. While a few of the men were able to be out, the Rambler mentor chose to give his men a rest and try to have them in top shape by game time tomorrow night.

Against the powerful St. Ambrose five, Coach Sueppel expects to start the same lineup as that which opened the last two games, with Joe Maher and Tom Griffin at forwards, "Caesar" Consamus at center, and Dick Lumsden and Bob Bradley at guards.

The invaders, fresh from a 35 to 15 victory over Immaculate Conception, and already rated as likely repeaters as state champions, will be out to prove their right to the title.

Vet Teams

Coach "Bun" Austin used four veterans, three of them regulars from last season, and one recruit in the season's opener with Immaculate Conception, and another regular, Thompson, is available, although handicapped at present with a sore foot.

Adrian, a new man, and Mohr, a vet regular have been at the forward posts, with Captain Moran at untied major eastern eleven was fifth with 25 points. Southern California won the trophy last year but cannot get it this year since post season games have no place on the ratings.

Gopher Field Goals Sweep Over Grinnell for 55 to 25 Victory

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Minnesota swamped Grinnell with a flood of field goals tonight for a 55 to 25 victory, the second straight for the Gophers in pre-conference play.

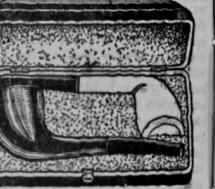

Led by Captain Brad Robinson, who accounted for 17 points, the Gophers made easy work in a rather ragged engagement which produced good basketball only in spots and otherwise was a free shooting exhibition.

The largest winning score the field house has seen in three years, the Minnesota triumph was obtained in this style more by reason of Pioneer errors than Minnesota's own technique.

center, and Blunk and Spaeth at guards. Blunk was a regular last season, and Spaeth was a reserve who saw plenty of action.

Although unable to chalk up a win over St. Ambrose last season, the Ramblers forced the Davenport outfit to the limit in every game, one contest going into extra periods before the Ambrosians win, 20 to 17.

ACADEMY Gift Suggestions

A PIPE and a PIPE CASE They will be welcome long after the Christmas season is past.

The ACADEMY Smokers' Headquarters

THAT ragged second half wasn't all the players fault, either. You can't turn a basketball game into a rough house and still have it a smooth basketball game. You can just figure that when someone is on the floor half the time, that energy is being expended for something besides getting the ball down to the basket. The fault Friday evening was partially with the officials. There weren't any fouls called on Iowa that were not deserved, but Monmouth went almost unscathed for the same sort of play.

Despite the publicity given the ten second rule, and the rule which prevents a team from passing the ball back past the center of the floor after taking it up, unless a shot at the basket is taken, or the opposing team has gained possession of the ball, the officials of Friday night's encounter failed to call it once. Several times Monmouth intentionally flipped the ball back, and Iowa did so a time or two, but neither the referee or the umpire called it. Either they have been working high school games on small courts where the rule is not used, or else they weren't up on their job.

IOWA fans are noted for their tendency to "boo" every decision that goes against the home club. This is true to a certain extent, but it is to be expected when officials don't give the Hawkeyes at least half the breaks. On the other hand, the fans will do well to keep in mind that an official is only human, and can't see everything, or be all over the court at once. Certain officials will call fouls on the crowd for being too liberal with their booing, and spectators should be careful. It may cost the Old Gold a game some time.

Well, the wise boys took one on the nose yesterday when U. S.C. beat Notre Dame, and no doubt plenty of Southern California's alumni determined to continue to do all in their power to keep Howard Jones supplied with football players. A lot of gamblers clean up by backing the Trojans year in and year out. And Hunk Anderson undoubtedly won a name for himself by predicting defeat before the game. You see, if his team had won, he'd have been credited with just being smart and putting out a bear story. As it was, you've got to admit that Hunk knew his boys were going to be outkissed.

ST. MARY'S have another tough one up for tomorrow night when they meet the strong St. Ambrose outfit from Davenport. Whether or not they can rise up and score another upset as they did against St. Wenceslaus has got their followers guessing. One thing is certain, they won't run up against any better defensive work than they did Thursday night. George Van Duesen's proteges just didn't give the Suppelmen a chance to get set for a shot inside the middle of the floor, and used their height to good advantage.

Browns Card Games ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 10 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns will play 17 exhibition games next spring, and with the exception of two games with the Cardinals here, will meet only one major league team, Brooklyn. The date of the departure of the Brownie squad for West Palm Beach, Fla., has not been set.

Stock Market Prices Suffer Slight Losses

End Week of Improvement With Dull Day, Small Setbacks

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Stocks interrupted a week of improvement with a slight setback today, but the market was dull as ever and the average loss was of minor proportions on a turnover of 482,705 shares. More interest and significance probably attached to continued steadiness in higher grade bonds and the strong pound sterling.

Stock trading faced the uncertainty of what the steel corporation would show in its monthly tonnage report, since the figures did not appear until closing time. Steel shares were inclined to heaviness, especially U. S. Steel preferred which apparently anticipated a favorable change in the backlog statistics. Unfilled orders were off 28,739 tons, but this did not quite cancel the gain made from August through October; furthermore, it was a seasonal movement, since November almost invariably witnesses a contraction.

South Noses Out North in Charity Game

Cold, Snow Hampers Players; 7-6 Win Results

BALTIMORE, Dec. 10 (AP)—A touchdown break in the closing minutes of the game gave the South all-stars a 7 to 6 victory over the North all-stars in a football battle today.

Snow fell steadily and a chilling wind kept the 1,723 spectators shivering in the vast Baltimore stadium. The weather prevented any of the fancy football expected and led to a shortening of the periods to 12 minutes each.

Both touchdowns were made on sensational breaks and victory went to the South from the accurate placement kick of Guy Turnbow, University of Mississippi tackle.

Breaks Help
The touchdown for the gray team from the South came with startling suddenness in the last period when it appeared that the North's six points made in the first quarter would be sufficient for victory.

Turnbow's long punts had gradually forced the North back during the fourth quarter, and Chase, quarterback from Brown university, found himself forced to punt from his own 15 yard line. As he booted the ball, Romeo Hunter, an end from Marshall college in West Virginia, crashed through the line and leaped high in front.

The ball struck Hunter squarely in the chest, and skidded over the packed snow across the goal line. Hunter was after it like a flash, falling on it for the six points that tied the score.

Dick Harlow of Western Maryland, coach of the Southern eleven, had given his boys some tricky criss-cross plays, and it was on one of these the North touchdown was made.

Another Break
Crozier, fullback from Davis and Elkins, had the ball and was preparing to hand it to one of his teammates when it shot out of his hands and into the air. Cliff Aultman, Geneva tackle, happened to be in the vicinity and snatching the ball before it had time to touch the ground, raced 20 yards for the touchdown. He was untouched in his dash for the goal. Chase's attempt at placement was wide.

Farmers Ask Cash Bonus

Demand Recognition of Russia in National Convention

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Amid a din of applause, delegates to the farmers' national relief conference today concluded their first national convention after adopting resolutions advocating immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus and recognition of Soviet Russia.

Through a driving snowstorm, many of the 250 farmers who came here from every section of the nation began the journey homeward in dilapidated trucks and automobiles. The bulk of them, however, remained overnight for an early morning start.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, house members from eight northwestern and midwestern states agreed to support legislation giving the secretary of agriculture a free hand in dealing with federal seed, feed and crop production loans to farmers unable to meet payments this year.

Before adjournment of their four-day meeting, the farmers set up an organization to press for enactment of their legislative demands, including a moratorium on farm debts and an end to evictions. These proposals were carried yesterday to President Hoover and congress.

SYNOPSIS

In the year 1690, when piracy was rampant on the Spanish Main, Priscilla Harradine sailed from the West Indies bound for England aboard the "Centaur." She is accompanied by middle-aged Major Sands, the aide of her late father who had been Captain-General of the Leeward Isles. The Major aims to win Priscilla's hand and fortune. Monsieur Charles de Bernis, former lieutenant of the notorious buccaneer, Henry Morgan, is aboard. The Major, feeling superior to the young Frenchman, is hostile toward de Bernis, but Priscilla is fascinated by the latter's charm and wit. Morgan now is Governor of Jamaica, and employed by his King to rid the sea of pirates. A few still elude him—among them the scoundrel Tom Leach, for whose capture Morgan has posted a reward. Major Sands upbraids de Bernis calling him a pirate, and adding that Morgan and his cut-throats were just bloodthirsty, thieving scoundrels. De Bernis nonchalantly accepts this tirade of abuse. Next morning, "The Black Swan," Tom Leach's ship, attacks the "Centaur." The latter is crippled and the pirate prepares to board her. De Bernis tells Priscilla to have courage and trust him.

"Save me!" she gasped. "Save me!"

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

Priscilla rose from her knees to question the Major.

In his heart Major Sands could not suppose that the Frenchman was anything but vaingloriously boastful. A theatrical fellow who would attitudinize in the very face of death. But he made gallant shift to stifle that conviction, so as to comfort her distress.

"I do not know what he can do. Stab me, I don't. But he seems confident. A resourceful fellow, I should judge. Remember, too, that he has been a buccaneer, and knows their ways. Dog don't eat dog, they say."

Thus, vaguely, he mumbled on, though in his heart there was no hope. From what they had heard as lately as last night of the ways of Tom Leach, he could only assume that death would be his portion, and only pray that it might be a swift one. Fearful as the prospect might be, yet a deeper agony clawed him on behalf of Priscilla Harradine. Beholding her, so sweet and lovely in her distress, he feared for her the worse fate of being allowed to live, the prey of such a beast as Leach. It even crossed his agonized mind to kill her where she stood, considering this, in the pass to which things were come, the highest and noblest proof he could give of his love and reverence. But the thought took no root in his will. Inert he remained standing by the locker on which she sat, conscious for once of his own utter futility, and offering her cheerlessly vague words of comfort.

Thus, until the sunlight was eclipsed for them by the bulk of the great black ship. She came, her bulwarks lined with men, gliding up astern on their larboard quarter, and so cast her chilling, sinister shadow athwart the stern-ports where Miss Priscilla sat. Across the short gap of water came a trumpet call from the pirates' deck. They heard, too, the roll of drums, and presently there was a volley of musketry.

It brought Miss Priscilla quivering to her feet, and urged the Major to set a protecting arm about her slimmest.

And then from his cabin Monsieur de Bernis re-emerged at last, followed by his servant. He came now, not merely cleansed of his grime, but restored to his normal courtly habit. He had resumed his curled black periwig, his fine ruffled shirt, and his doublet of violet taffetas with its deep cuffs reversed in black and the buttonholes richly laced with silver. In addition, he was booted, in fine black Cordovan leather, and he had armed himself, not only with a long rapier, but with a pair of pistols, slung before him, after the fashion of the buccaneers, in the ends of a stole, which, like his badrick, was of purple leather stiff with silver bullion.

They stared at him in wonder. That he should have been at such pains with his toilet at such a time was surprising enough. But the ease of his bearing was more surprising still.

He smiled upon their wide-eyed wonder. He explained himself. "Captain Leach is a great man. The last of the great buccaneers. He is to be received with ceremony."

He was moving forward towards them when the deck under their feet shuddered to a thudding, crashing impact, followed by rending of timbers, the ringing clank of grapples, the snapping of spars, and th long, harsh rattle of volley upon volley of musketry.

Flung forward, Monsieur de Bernis clutched the table to steady himself. The Major dropped to his knees, whilst Miss Priscilla, hurtling across the cabin, found refuge in the Frenchman's arms.

"Save me!" she gasped. "Save me!"

Holding her, the man's tight lips under the little black moustache softened into a smile. One of his long shapely hands stroked the golden head that lay against his breast, and it may be that the firm, calm touch of him soothed her more than his actual words.

"I hope to do so. It may well be possible."

Deeply resentful of a situation which gave the Frenchman license for the intimacy of his attitude, the Major, gathering himself up, glared at him.

"Why, what can you do?" he growled ungraciously.

"We are going to see. Perhaps much. Perhaps little. But to do much, it is necessary that you obey me." His manner became stern. "Contradict nothing that I say, whatever it may be, and whatever you may think. Remember that, if you please, or you may destroy us all."

Professor Schroeder went on to contrast this situation with the one of 23 years ago when there were six teams competing. Each one at that time represented a college in the university.

Asked for the reason for this sudden phenomenal growth of interest in basketball, Professor Schroeder replied that for one thing the program was much better organized this year. Also he continued the success of last year probably en-

Major Loop Bosses to Meet; Seek Ways for Filling Coffers

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Major league baseball magnates, most of them singing the "box office blues," will gather in New York city next week to ponder what they can do as a body to cut down expenses, strengthen weak clubs and bring the customers' back to the parks.

The National league will open the three-day sessions with its annual meeting Tuesday, the American league will meet the next day and the joint session of the two bodies will be held Thursday.

Except for a few clubs, such as the New York Yankees, Boston Braves, Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Cubs, baseball did not do so well at the rate in 1932 and further economies must be made for the coming season.

DES MOINES (AP)—A patent infringement suit was filed in federal court today by the Hardsco Manufacturing company of Ottumwa and John Underation of Albia against the Copple Hardware and Furniture company of Des Moines and the Central Mine Equipment company of St. Louis. The companies are alleged to have manufactured and distributed auger heads embodying an invention by Underation.

City Donates Footwear to Unemployed

The city rained shoes yesterday as more than 125 Girl Scouts scurried from house to house gathering what was probably the largest collection of footwear ever brought together in Iowa City.

Generosity was apparent every where. Ruth Frerichs, Girl Scout executive, said last night. The scouts, she said, received the best of treatment and cooperation from everyone.

The canvass, planned as a morning's excursion, grew to such proportions that Miss Frerichs and her helpers were not through until after 6 p.m.

Many residents donated not only shoes, but blankets, clothing, toys, and broken jewelry besides. One woman, having no shoestings in the shoes comprising her donation, gave the solicitor fifty cents with which to buy laces. Another gave five cents to help in the repair of garments.

Grain Prices Gain Strength With Buying

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Brisk upturns in grain values today went hand in hand with lively speculative buying and with authoritative assertions of irreparable damage to domestic winter wheat.

Reports that President-elect Roosevelt would demand abolition of the farm board contributed impetus to buying of wheat and other grains. Another stimulating factor was announcement that the new Argentine wheat crop was officially estimated at 232,000,000 bushels, compared with private forecasts heretofore that ranged as high as 280,000,000.

Wheat closed firm at almost the day's top, 1 cent above yesterday's finish, corn 1-4 to 1 up, oats 1 advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20 cents.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat and as a result of curtailed receipts of corn. The country refuses to sell corn at present levels.

Provisions responded to firmness of the hog market.

Closing indemnities: wheat—Dec. 45 1-4 to 3/4, 46 1/2; May 48 1/2, 49 1/2; July 48 1/2, 50. Corn—May 27 1/2, 28 1/2; July 28 1/2, 29 1/2.

See Them Before They Are Gone

DON'T delay. Come in tomorrow and inspect this beautiful model E-59 Voss washer. You'll be pleased with its appearance, its color, its symmetry of design. You'll like its many time and energy saving features. You'll wonder how such a washer and tubs can be offered at a price so ridiculously low.

Here's the answer. The model E-59 has been discontinued. All present stock must be cleared in a hurry. For this reason the Voss factory has made possible a price which places the Voss easily within reach of almost anyone.

Plan now to surprise her by having this wonderful gift delivered just before Christmas. Corrugated porcelain enamel tub, genuine Lovell wringer, floating agitator, and other features will make washing a great deal pleasanter and easier in the years to come.

Approved appliances may also be purchased from other reliable dealers in this community.
