Low Cost Education

AT LEAST the process of university study, perhaps without the award of the usual sheepskin that comes to the student completing a curriculum, is in store for men who avail themselves of a late plan at Rutgers university.

Beginning with the school's new semester, Jan. 30, unemployed men under 30 years of age will be admitted to undergraduate courses, but without registration charge, according to announcement by the university registrar.

Evidence of inability to pay fees must be furnished at the time of application for entrance under the plan. Applicants will be required to buy their own textbooks. Credit for completed work will be given on payment of the tuition fees.

Colleges and schools which will give this privilege of admittance to the unemployed men include education, engineering and chemistry, agriculture, and ceramics.

There could be an open question as to the value of a diploma raised through this arrangement; probably it would be decided that there isn't so much value in a certificate of graduation as there is in the completion of the courses themselves. Or that there is little value in a set of university credits, so long as the work has been accomplished.

Graduates don't hang diplomas on the sitting-room walls any more. It is a pretty sensible attitude to take, this forgetting the formality of graduation and credit from a school; and it is a mighty fine step to offer a fellow with some tough breaks behind him the chance to use the facilities of a good sized university without the high cost being attached to the opportunity.

TODAY'S TOPICS

BY FRANK JAFFE

Just how long Huey Long can manage to stave off the impending vote on the closure rule limiting debate in the senate and thus giving way to some action before the final adjournment of congress depends more or less on how many senators catch up on their sleep. And considering that yesterday marked the fifth day of Long's filibuster against the Glass banking reform bill, it won't be long now.

The senator from Louisiana has every right in the world to protest against a feature of the bill and to present his arguments—good or bad—against it. But when he runs short of arguments on the issue at hand and just talks to fill up the hours—well, there isn't much reason to go on believing in the excellence of the U. S. senate if something doesn't happen soon.

Long objects to the branch banking clause in the Glass bill because, as he says, they've had branch banking in Louisiana (against state law, by the way) and he ought to know that it isn't any good. For that matter, says Huey (typographical error) Senator Glass may know a lot about the theory of branch banking but when it comes to practice—well, just ask Senator Long.

And Mr. Glass graciously comments to the effect that Mr. Long no doubt knows more about banking than Mr. Glass and that, in fact, Mr. Long knows more about anything than any other senator—but just the same he ought to shut up and give the country a chance.

For not only is Senator Long putting an end to discussion of the banking bill but he is staving off a vote on President Hoover's veto of the Philippine independence bill and discussion of various appropriation bills, as well as keeping Senator Shepherd from giving his annual address on prohibition.

And that is hardly all. By long standing tradition the chairman of a committee reporting a bill out is given prior right to the floor but Mr. Long cares naught about senate traditions, rules, customs, or anything else. He hops right up and gets the floor every time he sees Mr. Glass grasp his bill and make a move to rise. And he's done that for five days—so far.

The branch banking feature of the Glass reform bill is just an excuse for Long's filibustering. The emity between the two men goes deeper than that. Mr. Long will never forget that at the Democratic convention last year, Mr. Glass was opposed to seating him as a delegate from Louisiana. Now, Mr. Long has sworn that if the Glass bill goes through it will be over his dead body.

Maybe there ought to be a way of getting rid of such people—might "liquidate" them in the Russian sense—but even if there were a senate rule on the matter, just as there is a cloture rule, some of the senators would be wary of offending some of the other senators, and that's the way it would go.

Before he's finished with his term, Long will probably come to be known as the most hated man in the senate. He already has invoked the enmity of Senator Joe Robinson because he refused to become a member of any senate committee to which Robinson had appointed him. If I can't get along with the man who is supposed to be my leader, says Long, there's no sense in working with him. Now, if all the senators felt that way—

Leather-lunged Long is out for blood this time and it will take no ordinary move to depose him from his typical "kingfish" attitude. But it is a crime that a man like Long can hold up the work of the senate, fighting against—instead of for—the best interests of the people who put him in office, and still keep his standing. He may not be short on brains but he certainly is long on everything else on the other side.

Book Bits

He appeared to have a mind as orderly as his unblotted copybooks, his physique was poor and his vitality too low for insubordination. He always did exactly as he was told, rose surely and steadily to the top of each of his forms, was moved up regularly once a year, and brought home three or four books from each prize-giving.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

First Semester 1932-1933

Saturday, January 21, 8:00 A.M. to Saturday Noon, January 28, 1933

The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D, E, and F, as shown in the form below; and Speech 1, 01 and 3 as shown at "N.B." below).

The Program Committee directs the attention of both students, and instructors and professors, to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule, except as authorized by the Committee, on the student's written petition, filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned, to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

In the cases of conflicts (within the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E, and F) the schedule itself, as presented below, provides a general method of making adjustments.

All classes whose first weekly meetings have occurred as indicated in the rectangles below, meet for examination during the periods noted at the tops of these three columns, and on the days noted in the rectangles directly opposite at the left of the double, vertical line.

Table with columns for Examination Period, Time (9:00 A.M., 10-12 A.M., 2-4 P.M.), and Special Group (A, B, C, D, E, F) with associated course numbers and department information.

CONFLICTS: In case of conflicting examinations the student should report to the instructor in charge of the first of the two conflicting subjects as listed (Read by color, and alphabetically) within the particular group, who will arrange a special examination. Report to him, or her, not later than regular class hour on January 16 and January 17; if possible, January 12 and 13.

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or, in the case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first clock-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 21 meets for lectures T Th S at 8. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 8—and the class will meet for examination Monday, January 23, 24, according to the tabular form above. Again, physics 125 meets twice each week, T F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Friday, January 27, 24.

N.B. All sections of freshman speech 1, 01, and 3 will meet in the buildings on Fridays and on the days and at the periods designated below:

Table listing section numbers and room assignments for various courses like Section AA LA 7, Section CA LA 6, etc.

"ODD" classes, namely those whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays, or which meet "as arranged," will be assigned for examination, as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class, at one or another of the following periods:

1. From 4 to 6 on any day from January 21 to January 27, inclusive. 2. Any one of the examination periods assigned, as indicated above, for the examinations in the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E, and F, since for such "odd" classes, these five examination periods will be found quite available. In connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times, if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD - By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. - Here is some red news for your cinema diet. As soon as he completes "The White Sister," Clark Gable is to co-star with Wallace Beery in the Soviet story that has been knocking around Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for some months now. Perhaps this explains why the studio turned down Clark's request for the lead in "Clear All Wives," which also had a Russian locale. "Soviet," the only name for the new film to date, has given M-G-M writers a god deal of trouble. The final and successful treatment must be partially credited to Frank Capra, Columbia's star director, who is being loaned for the one picture. Capra is the man who turned out the best of the Jack Holt-Ralph Graves melodramas. He is one of the screen's outstanding directors of action stories. Never a John Barrymore picture that doesn't add to the legends of the actor's wit. The other day at R-K-O John was doing a scene for "Topaz." The script called for him to use one of those large desk clear lighters. Five times the actor crooked his thumb, but no spark was forthcoming. Finally, he threw the thing down. "Here!" he exclaimed. "Give me a box of matches. They'll think I'm playing a hitch-hiker in this picture."

Dry Officers Seize Five in Liquor Ring

Reveal 31 Indictments for Iowa Bootleg Gang

DAVENPORT, Jan. 16 (AP)—Federal indictments against 31 men, five of them officers, in connection with an alleged liquor conspiracy were revealed today with the arrest of five of the men. Four others already are serving sentences on other liquor charges.

Prohibition authorities said the alleged bootleg organization operated in Iowa and western Illinois.

Officers Named

Two suspended prohibition agents, W. C. Cooper of Des Moines and Tom Avery of Cedar Rapids; Harry Brown, deputy U. S. marshal here, who was suspended today; and two suspended city detectives, Jack Kinney and William Schwinden, were the officers named in warrants.

Those under arrest were: George Tuerk, Adrian Timmerman, Rex Carroll, William Knopp, and Sam Calaisimo. Officers picked up Knopp at Stockton and Calaisimo at Des Moines. Those already in jail are Emil Satnat at Ottumwa; and Ted Satnat, Canastane Vaxevanopoulos and Nick Pappas at Davenport.

Huge Ring

Officers said the ring handled between $2,500,000 and $5,000,000 worth of liquor in the last five years.

Among others sought on warrants are Jack Wall and Mike Talarico of Davenport, alleged leaders in the ring; Walter Wiese, said to be a former leader, and I. G. Lucchesi, alleged lieutenant to Talarico.

Officers said the organization centered around the Western Beverage company, of which Talarico is proprietor. Jealousy of another ring over the power of the supposed Talarico—Wall group led to the investigation following seizure of a huge still near Sabula.

Information obtained in the Sabula raid led to another raid upon a storage place here and the seizure of a "black book," supposedly the ledger used by Talarico. Information in the book gave department of justice officers clues on which to pursue the investigation further.

Local Studios Will Entertain

Local cameramen will be hosts Wednesday and Thursday to the Northeast Iowa Photographers' club, according to L. J. Kadginin. The hosts will be Kadginin's, Newbury's, and Luscombe's studios.

Representatives of nearly all of the large manufacturers photographic supplies will be present at the meeting to demonstrate equipment. About 30 members of the club will attend the meetings from the northeast part of Iowa.

The Wednesday session of the meeting will be devoted to a business session and demonstration in the morning and a dinner at the Jefferson hotel in the evening. Thursday the photographers will meet in the Kadginin studio to display their pictures and have them criticized.

Lester Toloff of Davenport, president of the club, will have charge of the meetings. The club met at Iowa City two years ago.

Consider Use of Scrip

MASON CITY (AP)—Upon the suggestion of Col. Hanford MacNider, the Mason City Chamber of Commerce is considering issuance of scrip money.

Secret of Murder Mystery Known Only to Few Cattle

Only a few cattle know for certain the details of the happenings which Sunday caused nearly a hundred persons to stand in the cold around a deserted farmhouse not far from West Liberty and watch Sheriff W. W. Christian of Cedar county and his assistants pump the water from a blood-spattered well.

Farmer Stanford Gregory, who lives about five miles northeast of West Liberty, discovered blood spots on the well Saturday afternoon when he visited the deserted house to attend his cattle, which were kept in pens on the rickety ground floor.

Cover Removed

The cover of the well had been removed, broken, and thrown into the water, along with a heavy rock which had been used to weight it down.

The Iowa City fire department contributed to the search by loaning a grappling hook and the West Liberty department gave Sheriff Christian the use of a pump.

A specimen of the blood found on the well case was taken to Dean Wilber J. Teeters of the college of pharmacy for analysis. Stuck in the blood was a three inch piece of hair, apparently human. While Dean Teeters attempted to analyze the blood, Sheriff Christian, his deputies, and a

The American Legion Community building was a flurry of activity all afternoon, with Mrs. W. L. Bywater and Mrs. C. E. Seashore directing the residential drive from a corner of the Chamber of Commerce board room.

Only twice yesterday afternoon did citizens refuse to open their doors to the Community Chest workers. They stayed at home, but disregarded the second part of Mrs. Seashore's request to give the workers a cordial welcome.

Firemen answered two calls over the week end. A Chrysler sedan belonging to A. R. Scott of West Liberty, caught fire at 9 p.m. Saturday but firemen extinguished the blaze before it caused any damage. A grass fire at 709 S. Clinton street at 11:50 a.m. Sunday was put out before it gained any headway.

Conroy said Boyles had made a complete confession.

Iowa, Nebraska Seek Way Out for Debt Loaded Farmer

Various Groups Look for Improvements in Economics

DES MOINES, Jan. 16 (AP)—The cold reality of the mortgage on the old homestead brought renewed efforts today to seek a way out of the tangled web of indebtedness and low farm prices throttling the economic life of many corn belt farmers.

At Lincoln, Neb., the combined forces of the Farmers Holiday association, the Nebraska Federation of Labor and the State Federation of Taxpayers leagues were thrown behind a legislative program to lift the shadow of foreclosure and eviction.

Perhaps the most concrete step yet taken in the drive to save farms was the move made Saturday by the Iowa banking department in announcing that none of the closed banks being liquidated by it would foreclose on further mortgages.

Settle Hoover Case

Settlement of an individual case involving a cousin of President Hoover was reached at Des Moines. The cousin, A. E. Hoover of Grand Meadows, Minn., turned over the deed of his farm to the creditor, the Des Moines Joint Stock Land bank, clearing himself of all indebtedness after he pays the back taxes for 1931, due in 1932. Hoover then signed a lease on the farm for 1933.

At Algona, 55 real estate foreclosures were filed today in Kosuth county district court, which convenes next Monday. The majority of them were brought by two eastern life insurance companies. At the last term of court 75 such cases were filed.

Postpone Sales

Meanwhile delinquent tax sales and farm foreclosures in Iowa were being postponed in many instances because of inability to secure bids on the property offered.

Farmers opposing issuance of deficiency judgments on mortgage foreclosures won another battle today in Taylor county when it was announced that mortgaged property of H. O. Walter had been turned over to Mrs. L. F. Ridgeway of Lenox for the full amount of the mortgage.

An attempted sale of the property, which was located in Lenox, was halted Saturday when between 500 and 1,000 farmers gathered at the Taylor county court house in Bedford. Threats were made against A.

R. Locke, attorney for Mrs. Ridgeway, when it appeared that a deficiency judgment would be issued to cover the part of the mortgage not paid for through sale of the property.

The farmers returned to Bedford today, when the sale was to have been held, and were pacified by the announcement that an agreement had been reached regarding transfer of the property. Walter is a farmer near Bedford.
