Tennessee Valley Project Goes to Congress

Would Provide Muscle Shoals Rehabilitation

F. D. Now Turns to Aid for Railroads, City Home Owners

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The latest vital segment of the Roosevelt program envisioning mighty development of the Tennessee valley—was dispatched by the president today to a congress embroiled over the farm aid, arms embargo and bills involving billions for bank deposit guarantees and home-owner help.

That off his chest, the chief executive turned to the next two mammoth schemes, slated soon to reach the legislative gantlet—refinancing of urban home mortgages and railroad rehabilitation.

Economic Conference
And in and between the seeming unending course of big immediate doings ran preparation for the parleys to come with world statesmen and gradual loosening of patronage distribution.

Secretary Hull gave newspapermen a view into presidential plans for the coming talks with leaders of Great Britain, France and other powers, evidencing that control of wheat production and means of helping silver would figure in them.

Among the several appointments forwarded to the senate was that of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit for governor general of the Philippines. It developed, too, that James W. Gerard, Wilson's ambassador to Germany, is in line to go as envoy to the Argentine.

Bill to Both Houses
Both senate and house tomorrow are to receive bills for creation of a Tennessee Valley authority, recommended in today's message by Mr. Roosevelt to plan "proper use, conservation and development of the natural resources of the Tennessee river drainage basin and its adjoining territory for the general social and economic welfare of the nation."

As explained by Senator Norris (R., Neb.), the legislation will largely embrace his oft-rejected plan for government operation of Muscle Shoals.

Expecting increased employment to result, the president said the proposed "valley authority" should have for its duty "rehabilitation of the Muscle Shoals development and the coordination of it with the wider plan."

Farm Bill Debated
The senate returned to the farm relief bill debate, once the executive message had been read.

The house, which applauded the message, adjourned after objections had blocked the planned adoption of resolutions to empower the president to proclaim arms embargoes under certain conditions and for congressional inquiry into the motion picture industry. Both will be acted on later.

The house did, however, approve

Iowa River Rises to Flood Lowlands of Municipal Park
Lowlands in the city park were under water yesterday, as Iowa river reached its crest about 7 a. m., 10 feet above low water level, according to measurements at the hydraulics laboratory.

The high waters were receding slowly yesterday afternoon, after attaining a height two feet above flood stage.

With a forecast of snow for today the temperature yesterday remained about the same. The highest temperature, according to Prof. John F. Reilly, was 45 degrees. The mercury stood at 42 degrees at 7 a. m. yesterday and was the same at 7 p. m. There was a trace of precipitation yesterday morning consisting of a light drizzle.

Einstein Goes to Madrid
MADRID (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, who has refused to return to Germany because of the anti-semitic movement there, today accepted an invitation to become a member of the faculty of the University of Madrid. He is expected here as soon as he has finished other engagements.

Takes Railroad Relief

Judge Recommends Bread, Water Cure for Stomach Ills

CEDAR RAPIDS, April 10 (AP)—A sixty day diet of plain food and milk as the guest of the county sheriff was recommended today for stomach ulcers of which a liquor law violator complained before Federal Judge George C. Scott.

Mark Collogan's attorney told the court that his client, who had been indicted for illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor, was entitled to leniency because of stomach trouble and presented a doctor's affidavit to that effect.

"We have splendid results curing this ailment with about 90 days in the county jail where the sheriff prepares a simple diet of milk and plain food," the judge smiled.

The attorney abruptly ended his plea and the court with a flourish of leniency meted out a 60 day sentence.

Demos Plan Beer Vote in House Today

DES MOINES, April 10 (AP)—The bill to permit the manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent in Iowa is to come up for consideration before the Iowa house of representatives tomorrow morning, under plans agreed to at a Democratic party caucus tonight.

Despite pleas made for party regularity at the caucus, it is understood there were some defections and that not sufficient votes were pledged to insure passage by the majority party alone. However, some of the house Democrats failed to attend and almost a dozen who were at the gathering did not record their votes. On these facts, plus the aid of minority party members who favor the bill, its backers pin their faith to garner the necessary 55 votes, needed for passage.

Several amendments it is understood are in the offing, among them one which would prohibit sale of the beverage to persons under 15 years of age.

There was sentiment tonight among some of the members to ask postponement of a vote on the bill until the special session. It was pointed out that by that time the special election would be held for selection of delegates to the constitutional convention to consider repeal of the eighteenth amendment and that through this election the sentiment of the various counties would be known without any doubt.

Lieutenant Governor Kraschel was present at the meeting and made a brief address to the members. He urged passage of the bill.

Chief Bender Gives Warning to Drivers in Parking Violation
Police Chief William H. Bender warned motorists yesterday that all parking violators will be fined. Parking on the wrong side of the street, in prohibited zones, and leaving cars parked all night were the most numerous offenses he said.

Chief Bender particularly warned motorists against leaving their cars parked outside of apartment and fraternity houses all night and against parking in prohibited zones near university buildings.

With May 1 as the deadline for old license plates Chief Bender said that the local officers, cooperating with state officials, would start checking cars then.

Attempt to Wreck Trains
CHICAGO (AP)—Police of suburban Evanston revealed today several amateurish attempts had been made in recent weeks to wreck trains of the Chicago Rapid Transit company. The most recent attempt was a section of steel rail placed across the tracks today. Police said they believed children were responsible.

River Floods Lowlands
QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—River islands near here were inundated today, and residents had taken refuge on the shore. Many lowland camps were under a foot of water, which for the first time in two years today was over the flood level of 14 feet, registering 16.1.

Akron Officers Had Warning of Bad Weather Conditions Before Starting Last Flight

Court of Inquiry Hears Testimony of Wiley

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 10 (AP)—A naval court of inquiry learned today the U.S.S. Akron had reports that the weather was unfavorable for her purpose when she took off last Monday on the fatal flight that plummeted her into the sea from lightning swept skies.

Lieut. Commander H. V. Wiley, sole surviving officer of the great dirigible, testified that he and the commander had been informed the weather would be adverse for taking radio compass dimensions off New England, that visibility would be poor and that bad weather conditions over Michigan were moving north-eastward.

No Apprehension
He added, however, that in his opinion "there was no feeling of danger or apprehension in starting the flight at that time."

A trim figure in his blue dress uniform and grey hair, Wiley speaking slowly, also informed the court that his thought when lighting first glared to the south after the ship had left Philadelphia was to change the course to the westward from the southerly direction the ship was taking down the Delaware river. Captain McCord, skipper of the ship, however, ordered the course changed to the eastward, and the ship moved across New Jersey to its destruction off Barnegat inlet.

"Competent"
Wiley, second in command on the Akron, emphasized he did not wish his remarks to be construed as criticism of Captain McCord, whom he praised for his "competent" handling of the ship, for setting the course he did.

Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, president of the court, and his associates, Capt. H. E. Shoemaker, and Com. Sidney Kraus listened with rapt attention.

"My own doctrine," said the officer, speaking of what he has taught on storms in the station ground school, "has been to place the ship on the west side of a circular storm in the northern hemisphere."

"That is why you would have laid

Winnie Judd Fails Again
PHOENIX, Ariz., April 10 (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd's effort to obtain a new trial on the charge of murdering Agnes Anne LeRoi failed abruptly today in the same courtroom in which she was found guilty and sentenced to die.

Superior Judge Speakman, ruling the state supreme court had stripped him of authority and jurisdiction in its rejection of her appeal, declined to entertain the new trial motion, which had been filed with affidavits alleging a jury "deal" for imposition of the death penalty to "make her talk."

The court's decision was made without hearing arguments.

The 12 jurors who voted the death penalty and the alternate who sat with them in the box, subpoenaed by the blonde woman's counsel, were dismissed without testifying. The affidavits, charging some of their number with pre-conceived prejudice and with instigating the alleged "deal," were not read.

It was all over in less than five minutes.

Mrs. Judd is sentenced to be hanged April 21.

Reports Increase in Railroad Business
ST. PAUL, April 10 (AP)—The last 10 days have brought a noticeable increase in railroad business, President H. A. Scandrett of the Milwaukee system said today.

Nations Send Acceptance to Parley Plans

Three Line Up in Favor of World Economic Meeting

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Three great nations had said "yes" tonight to the dispatch of their outstanding figures to parley with President Roosevelt on alleviating world economic ills, even as Secretary Hull jotted down wheat and silver problems as among the matters to be discussed.

Canada was lined up tonight behind Great Britain and France as definite word reached the capital that Prime Minister Bennett would journey at the president's convenience to talk over possible contributions the two neighbor nations may make to world recovery.

British First
To diplomatic representatives of several nations who called at the state department today, however, it was made clear that the Roosevelt administration will receive first the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, who is expected here about April 21.

Les than a week later, the president will be able to receive former Premier Edouard Herriot of France. MacDonald will be sailing back to England April 26.

While no definite date for Bennett's visit has been fixed, he probably will be next in line.

Not Heard From
Still to be heard from were Germany, Italy, Japan, China, Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico.

Among the callers at the state department today were diplomatic representatives of Poland, Hungary, Norway, France, Chile, Germany, Turkey and Czechoslovakia. Some were described as appearing chiefly to get information concerning the plans for the economic discussions which the administration has expressed itself as willing to conduct through regular diplomatic channels with nations which have not been invited to send special representatives.

Denounces Tariff Walls
WASHINGTON (AP)—A stout denunciation of American tariff barriers was coupled tonight by Secretary Roper with a disclosure that the economy program of the administration is taking shape—$10,000,000 being chopped away from the commerce department's $36,000,000 appropriation for 1934.

Sentenced on Five Charges
CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—T. E. Carroll of Sumner was given five ten year sentences and one five year term, all to run concurrently, by Judge John T. Moffit on five charges of auto larceny and one charge of displaying false auto license plates. Carroll's arrest here March 15 solved the thefts of eight automobiles. All were recovered.

1,200 Persons Hear Concert at Iowa Union

Nearly 1,200 persons heard the annual spring concert of the university symphony orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Frank Estes Kendrick, at Iowa Union last night.

Observing the centennial of Johannes Brahms' birth and the semi-centennial of Richard Wagner's death, the 78-piece organization presented a program made up entirely of the works of these German composers.

Brahms' Symphony No. 2 was the featured number, and its four movements made up the first half of the concert. Following the intermission three compositions of Wagner were presented. The Idyll, from "Siegfried," was the first, followed by the Good Friday Spell, from "Parsifal," played in observance of Holy Week. The program was concluded with the stirring Overture to "Tannhauser."

Concert Notes
A performance of Brahms is "fussy," not without many problems, beset with dangers of rhythmic and tonal accident. The D major symphony is very hard to play, and we were glad not to be required continuously to bolster our enthusiasm for the university orchestra, with the word "amateur."

Flaws are the more apparent in an ensemble of greater precision, and it was not hard to make criticism of obvious detail: sorry intonations, occasional insecurities in woodwind quality and attack, more especially the real need for more basses, violas, and cellos to balance the violins.

The audience again, as at the last university choral concert, was not a great help, sitting back throughout the symphony in a rather disconcerting "show us" manner. More of interest was shown in the Wagner, especially the Idyll and the Tannhauser Overture. Perhaps the audience was again right, and the latter were performed the more flexibly, with the more telling effect.

Former Railroad Employee Dies Here

Plan Riders for Farm Bill

Congressmen Work on Expansion for Amendments

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—A campaign to add currency expansion as a rider to the administration's huge farm relief program was being formulated in congressional cloakrooms today as the broad agricultural price lifting and mortgage refinancing measure plodded along its tortuous course through the senate.

Republican and Democratic blocs alike were quietly at work on inflationary plans—whose authors for the moment preferred to remain publicly silent—in line with the senate agriculture committee's recommendations for monetary expansion to aid the farmer.

On the farm bill itself, the senate today worked methodically but slowly. Leaders were confident that a final vote could be had by Thursday or Friday and the measure sent back to the house for consideration of the many senate changes and additions, such as the Simpson production-cost guaranty plan.

What form the currency expansion proposals would take had not definitely been decided by their sponsors, but one under consideration was to permit issuance of currency against "the $2,000,000,000 bond issue proposed to finance the mortgage program."

This was a subject in which Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.), weighed the thought of proposing remonetization of silver as an amendment and Senator Thomas (D. Okla.), considered submitting an outright inflation proposal.

Makes Mandatory Cut of Five to Ten Millions

DES MOINES, April 10 (AP)—The Beatty-Bennett mandatory tax reduction bill, last surviving major proposal of the economy program, tonight had received final legislative approval.

The house of the general assembly by a vote of 57 to 50 adopted the report of a joint conference committee which recommended a substitute for the original bill. The conference report previously had been adopted by the senate.

More than a score of speakers aired their views on the measure before it was put to a vote late in the day. Calculated to effect a reduction of between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 in taxes the measure was alternately bitterly attacked and staunchly defended.

Final Chapter
House approval of the conference committee report wrote the final legislative chapter on the mandatory tax reduction proposal which had the longest legislative history of any bill before the current session.

Introduced in the senate Jan. 25, it subsequently was revised through substitutions and various changes. As passed by the senate the bill provided for a 25 per cent tax cut but the house reduced this to 15 per cent and it went to the conference committee for the final re-writing.

In its final form the bill provides for a 20 per cent reduction in the 1933-34 levies of counties, cities and towns from the 1930 levies and a graduated reduction in the levies of school districts.

Lighten Provisions
Provisions applying to school districts particularly were lightened from the requirements of the original measure to avoid the crippling of any district which already has effected economies. Opportunity for appeal for exemptions also have been broadened materially.

Opposition attacked the bill not only from the angle of enforced reduction in school taxes but also because it was mandatory. They also asserted the problem was one for the people "back home" to decide.

Proponents declared it the one real tax reduction measure of the session and pointed out that all laws were in themselves mandatory. They also declared that the measure would force reductions by school boards which have refused to acknowledge the present economic situation.

Open Debate
Representative Rice of Keokuk, a member of the conference report opened the debate in moving its adoption. He said it was an honest attempt to reduce the tax at high points without imposing any additional burden on the low ones. He asserted that the greatest opposition to the report came from people living off the public funds.

The report was characterized as

Federal Men Arrest Five in Burlington

The arrests were made by a group of federal agents headed by U. S. Marshall Fred Hurd of Des Moines. Additional arrests, it was said by the operatives, are to be made under other indictments returned.

The men arrested are to be taken to Keokuk for arraignment early tomorrow, Hurd said.

Rudy Vallee, Wife Separated for Keeps

LOS ANGELES, April 10 (AP)—Fay Webb Vallee returned to California today with emphatic assertions that she and her crooner husband, Rudy Vallee, are separated "for keeps" and that the trouble was not caused by a $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed against her in New York.

"Rudy and his Fay are through for good," she said, "and you may say for me that that silly suit is as nothing to do with it."

Professor Talks to Women Voters About Legislation

In a talk on "Recent Iowa legislative actions" at the luncheon meeting of Iowa City League of Women Voters yesterday noon in Youde's inn, Prof. Frank E. Horack of the political science department, said that "the hazards of politics may have with both houses of our legislature."

The speaker mentioned the experience and qualifications demanded in other lines of work and compared them with political requirements. He then divided the legislative actions of this session into seven groups, all of which were designed to reduce expenditures and discussed examples of each.

"But the last chapter isn't written yet," said Professor Horack. "The session is not adjourned and until then the story cannot be finished."

More than 20 members heard the address and the reports of various committees in the business meeting which followed. Mrs. Minerva S. Knight, president of the group, was the presiding officer.

New Boeing Plane Blazes Trail Today

Jack Curtis, manager of the Boeing airport, said last night that the first of the new model transport planes to be used on the east end of the coast to coast route will leave Cheyenne, Wyo., at daybreak today for Chicago. It is expected to land at Iowa City about noon.

The plane will probably be flown by Walter J. Evans, chief pilot of the Boeing Air lines. According to word received by Mr. Curtis last night, the plane will stop for a time in Omaha.

Attendants at the airport calculated that the flight from Cheyenne to Iowa City would require about seven hours, counting stopover time at Omaha.

The plane is one of 60 new twin-engine, low wing, 10 passenger transports being built for the Boeing lines. Twenty of the planes have already been delivered, some being placed in service on the line from Cheyenne to San Francisco and others on the north-south route on the Pacific coast.

Demos Round Out Job List

Expect Decisions on Appointments Shortly

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Decisions on recipients of the many choice political appointments still dangling temptingly from the Democratic patronage tree are taking shape rapidly and probably will be announced shortly.

Unless there are changes in present plans, Breckenridge Long of Washington, D. C., will be ambassador to Italy, James W. Gerard of New York will be ambassador to Argentina and John Cudahy of Milwaukee will become ambassador to Cuba.

Other Appointments
Other appointments regarded in authoritative circles as virtually certain are J. F. T. O'Connor of Los Angeles as comptroller of the currency; T. A. Walters, Idaho Democratic chairman, as first assistant secretary of interior; and Major James M. Curley of Boston as ambassador to Poland.

President Roosevelt himself today sent to the senate three nominations—Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit to be governor general of the Philippines; L. W. Robert, Jr., of Atlanta, to be assistant secretary of the treasury; and Peiron M. Hall to be federal attorney for the southern district of California.

Anxiously Waiting
Meanwhile, Democrats eyed anxiously the heaving away of jobs with the economy axe.

The application of a flat billion dollar cut to governmental expenditures will probably result in thousands fewer jobs.

Even Democrats on Capitol Hill who advocated the stern retrenchment program are wondering how they will satisfy job hungry constituents.

Aided by Director of the Budget Douglas, President Roosevelt is fast whipping his economy and reorganization program into shape and an announcement of further details is expected soon.

Secretary Roper said tonight in an address that the $36,000,000 appropriated for the commerce department would be cut to $26,000,000, with the remainder impounded in the treasury.

Henry Opens Talk Series in Holy Week

"Power of religion" was the theme of an address by the Rev. Harry DeWitte Henry, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, in the opening of a series of holy week services under the Iowa City Ministerial association, yesterday noon at the Englert theater.

The Rev. L. A. Owen, pastor of the Congregational church, will speak on "The power of conviction" at the meeting sponsored by the local Kiwanis club this noon. Mrs. Maud Whedon Smith will play the organ.

Speaking of the misunderstandings in regard to the meaning of religion, the speaker said that when people learn that religion is not destroyed by a mere change of phraseology, or shift, from one instrument to another, a great gain will be made for it.

"If anyone were interested in discovering whether any benefit accrues to the individual who believes in, and practices any religious discipline, there are three qualifications necessary for the individual who will testify acceptably for this scientific age," said the speaker.

The qualifications then given by the Rev. Mr. Henry are: A person should have spent 60 years of his life in faithful practice of his belief in a power, or intelligence, or person who is worthy of his faith and allegiance; he should be a person who possesses a critical and well trained mind; and third, such a person would face the necessity of distinguishing religion as a power in his daily life, and the place and part of the form of his discipline.

The speaker in explaining the power religion has over human life, told the story of Jesus Christ, from his early childhood to his passion and death on the cross. "We must come eventually to this man's life to ask if religion has power," he said.

"However, there is but one ultimate authority for any faith in any religion. There is but one way a man can know whether any gain is achieved by spending 60 years of his life in stern and sacrificial training. Other men may tell him that it is either good, bad, or false. But that settles little," explained the Rev. Mr. Henry.

"The final answer lies in actual participation. That is entirely a personal matter in this country. Many voices outside of the church today are saying that this must be done before the broken walls of our brotherhood can be rebuilt."

BEATTY-BENNETT

Tax Measure Goes to Herring

cumbersome and unworkable by Representative Hanson of Lyon who said it was wrong in principle and that there was no need for the bill at this time.

Representative Peet of Guthrie said the report was complex, while Representative Gallagher of Iowa said "This is the strangest item ever presented to the assembly." He said it provides for "mental starvation for children."

There has been no complaint from the taxpayers about this bill, Representative Reed of Mahaska told the assembly, adding it provided nothing to penalize those taxing agencies which have been economical.

Disagree
Representatives Sours of Floyd, Felter of Warren and Casey of Mitchell disagreed with Reed, while Representative Malone of Cass seconded his remarks by stating that if school expenses are not reduced a point will be reached where there will be no schools.

The report was called a "bad dream" by Representative Johnson of Linn and a "cheap advertising scheme" by Representative Bruce of Pochontas. Representative McFarlane of Black Hawk said it was unfair since it would reduce the two Waterloo districts more than any others in the state.

Meanwhile Representative Ditto of Osceola rose to the report's defense stating it was not so stringent as the original bill which passed the house, while Representative Deawick of Van Buren said his county and the schools would feel its effects but a small amount.

Levity Added

A touch of levity was added to the debate by Representative Stanzel of Sac who stated that a beautiful lady had come to his desk and threatened to hang him if he failed to vote for the report.

Representative Cunningham of Polk said the report meant an 80 percent instead of a 20 percent reduction and challenged any member to explain its contents. Representative Dole of Jefferson called the report a bad bill and Representative Durant of Hancock attacked the mandatory feature.

Any such measure is bound to draw blood, said Representative McCreery of Linn, who called it the only real tax reduction bill before the assembly. Representative McKinnon of Henry charged that it would force reduction in school districts which have not cut their expenses and declared he hoped the report would be adopted.

Opposes Report

Representative Foster of Cedar opposed the report contending the question of spending was a local one while Representative Doran of Boone said the report was in behalf of the taxpayers.

In closing Rice pleaded for adoption of the report stating "the most determined effort was put forth to defeat this measure of any so far this session." The tax spenders have refused to recognize the situation. The legislature must do its duty.

Mr. World Takes Her Wrong; France Will Put Him Right

Deputy Dariae Proposes Huge Propaganda Organization

PARIS, April 10 (AP)—A comprehensive propaganda organization, aimed at making France known in her "true light," has been proposed by Deputy Adrien Dariae in a report on the foreign affairs of budget.

"There is no question of organizing the distribution of misleading news," Deputy Dariae says, "but to spread rapidly accurate news of government policy and events interesting the nation."

The deputy suggested the spreading of propaganda through lectures, personal contacts, articles sent to the newspapers, broadcasting which already has started, motion pictures and an active campaign against Germany designed to establish war guilt and treaty violations.

A superior propaganda council, centralizing all activities and dispatching a corps of "missionaries" abroad, is provided for the plan.

Any attack against France would be answered promptly and French citizens and their friends abroad would be organized and informed to present the French views.

"The sole efficacious weapon against calumny is to spread abundant precise information," Deputy Dariae says. "Good money drives out bad. The poverty of our action abroad is dangerously shown by the unjust attacks we suffer in the United States."

Sacrifice Minimized
"Our sacrifices for a common cause during the war are shamefully minimized, if not ignored."

The work of propaganda must be discharged by specialists, the report says, and diplomats are utterly unfitted for it. Since the plan would take time, it is proposed to centralize all press services. The government would quicken delivery of news to correspondents and would designate press attaches at all legations and embassies.

"Missionaries" would be sent by the superior propaganda council to countries where they know the people and the language. They would be persons of marked ability and good speakers and they would be equipped to present all subjects. It would be their duty to travel constantly and to meet people.

Little Spent
The French spend less than $3,000,000 on propaganda, the same as Great Britain, while Germany spends $10,000,000 and Italy nearly $5,000,000 the deputy says in his report.

In support of his contention that the French are attacked abroad, he asserts that one characteristic method is to compare the enormous sums France spends in various ways with the small size of the war debt interest payment to the United States defaulted last December. "Because of the complete lack of our propaganda," he continues, "American public opinion is in no wise prepared to understand France's viewpoint on the debts."

Organized Against France
He recounts that groups of women organized to refuse to buy French goods, to refuse to travel on French ships or to spend their vacations in France.

Through inquiries by Frenchmen sent abroad and American newspapermen and others in Paris, he continues, the need of propaganda was shown and suggestions for the plan were received.

"These conversations," he says, "enabled the establishment of a general plan which will serve as the basis for work to be attempted soon by development of press services at the Quai d'Orsay as well as by collaboration with the Associated Press in American and the Agence Havas."

In listing methods of propaganda already undertaken, M. Dariae includes "the conclusion of an accord between the Associated Press and the Agence Havas."

M. Dariae's recommendations were not debated and were not put in concrete form in a bill. Being purely administrative, his proposals now for being studied by a sub-committee.

AP Chief Denies French News Tie-up

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, in comment today on reports from Paris that the French government has planned a propaganda campaign to reach the United States through the Havas News Agency and the Associated Press, stated that the Associated Press "had not engaged, never has been engaged and will not engage in any propaganda service for any country."

VILLARD Appears on Campus Today

opinions of Villard in regard to some contemporary problems:

"There is today no sound reason why the army and navy appropriations should not be cut by several hundred millions of dollars, as a long step toward disarmament.

"Unfortunately the average eastern newspaper editor is unaware that a portion of the United States lies beyond the Hudson river.

"The feeling in the West against the East is growing so tremendously as to be a genuine cause for alarm.

"I maintain that the liberal press is indispensable and serves a profoundly valuable purpose—yes, an absolutely necessary one—if the country is not to go on the rocks of blind conservatism, base intolerance, and criminal refusal to face conditions as they are."

At 4 o'clock this afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol Mr. Villard will lead a round table discussion on the German situation and American journalism.

This "world's champion writer of obituary notices for lost causes" has severely criticized President Roosevelt's appointments to the cabinet and to the diplomatic service, pointing out that those making large contributions to the Democratic campaign fund were in many instances awarded with high positions regardless of ability.

Professor Foerster Gives Talk Before Literature Institute

"Humanitarianism begins with society; humanism and religion begin with the individual," Prof Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, yesterday said in speaking before the institute of modern literature at Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me., on "The humanitarian illusion."

"After two centuries of increasing humanitarian fervor and endless patchwork under the fine name of amelioration, we have 'progressed' to a world war and a depression of unparalleled proportions and a tolerably real prospect of the extinction of civilization," Professor Foerster insisted.

"Humanitarianism wants to reform society; humanism wants the individual to reform himself. Humanism begins as a philosophy of society.

"It believes that the key to the future lies in education; and that higher education must no longer stultify itself by merely training the masses for 'getting-on' materially, but rather return to its proper function of discovering and training leaders."

Other critics and authors appearing on the program this year are; John Masefield, poet laureate of England; William Butler Yeats, Irish dramatist and poet, winner of the Nobel prize for literature in 1923; T. S. Eliot, editor of "The Criterion"; Marc Connelly, author of "The Green Pastures"; and Theodore Dreiser, author of "An American Tragedy."

Outdoor Life Award Goes to Hornaday

Announcement of the Outdoor Life Conservation award, a gold medal, to William T. Hornaday, the explorer-naturalist, once again brings honor to the man whose collection occupies a large part in mammal hall of the university museum.

Mr. Hornaday, who is a personal friend of Homer R. Dill, director of the museum, has been active in promoting game preserves and new laws for the protection of wild life. He is the organizer of the Permanent Wild Life Protection fund, and the author of many books on animal life and exploration.

The naturalist has always been deeply interested in the university museum, said Mr. Dill. Among his presentations has been a large group of Australian marsupials.

Mr. Hornaday gave a public lecture in Iowa City about seven years ago. Mr. Dill relates how, coming prepared to address an adult audience on the conservation of wild life, the naturalist found a number of children before him. Adroitly, says Mr. Dill, he changed his topic to a less serious vein and spoke for more than an hour extemporaneously on material more interesting to the young listeners.

One of his acts was the prevention of Alaskan fur seal extermination. Slaughtered by the hunters, the number of seals had dwindled to 30,000 from their former millions. Mr. Hornaday brought the matter to congressional action and the herds again number more than a million.

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—Alfred Hershel, proprietor of a fruit store, was seriously burned this afternoon when gasoline with which he was cleaning a paint brush at his store exploded.

Villard, Crusader

TO WELCOME Oswald Garrison Villard without reminding him of his favorite anecdote would be heresy. In adapted version it is this:

One sunny morning in 1898 a youngish man clad in yellow-brown riding garb cantered horseback down Fifth avenue. A soft, wide-brimmed hat was crushed down over his large spectacles. Pedestrians eyed him with curiosity; there was something vaguely familiar about the figure. Finally a besmeared stoker sidled up to the rider and ventured: "Say! Are you Colonel Roosevelt—or ain't you?" The mounted young person was Oswald Garrison Villard.

Similarities between the aggressive "Teddy" and Editor Villard have often been noted; their love for horses (little Oswald used to ride his pony down Fifth avenue behind his mother's victoria), their active habits (Villard can still swim a mile), an appreciation of music, power of keen observation, knowledge of military strategy, and a flair for literature.

Yet essentially they are opposites. Roosevelt was militarist—an idealistic militarist. Villard is pacifist—but a militant one.

He comes by his crusading passion directly. Herr Heinrich Hilgard fled from Russia for radicalism in 1848, fled to this country to become Henry Villard, paternal grandfather of the illustrious Nation editor. In his maternal strain flows the blood of William Lloyd Garrison, fiery abolitionist whose "Liberator" fanned the flame of Civil war. With almost inconsistent reverence for the past, Grandson Villard has battled to carry out his family tradition.

At 24 he plunged from uneventful history-teaching at Harvard into journalism, as a cub reporter on the Philadelphia Press. A more privileged job he could have had—Villard social position was assured.

His is not a typical success story. Lamentable failure came of his work with the Evening Post which he finally sold, unable to carry on successfully (from a financial standpoint) the policy of his predecessors, William Cullen Bryant, Carl Schurz, and others. "Fearless uncompromising, high-principled, catering to intellectual honesty rather than expediency" someone has called it.

Unrelentingly, Villard clung to these principles. He opposed the United States' entry into the World war. He denounced as illusory the slogan "making the world safe for democracy." He struck at social evils, stood for individual liberties. For these, he and his family suffered social ostracism.

In the Nation, first issued 15 years ago, he carried out his unpopular crusade. Belligerently, he attacks militarism, denounces smug American complacency, pleads the cause of down trodden workmen. Inconsistently enough, probably no literary workmen are more "down-trodden" than contributors to the Nation, and no "boss" ruled more with an iron hand than Editor Villard.

Through it all he has remained uncompromisingly idealistic, optimistic—this sometimes reflected in sentimentalism and moralizing in the Nation. He still believes, sometimes a trifle bitterly, in "the people." It will be interesting to hear what can be said about current problems, about society and journalism and people, by a man-of-the-world who has not turned cynic.

Germany—A World Problem

"A MAN OF great dynamic force." That was the appraisal of Hitler by America's ambassador-at-large, Norman H. Davis, when he met the German dictator the other day in Berlin.

Hitler has been called a great many things by a great many persons, most of whom have probably been right. Most writers admit the uncanny appeal of the man, but insist that behind his clear voice and passionate gestures there is a pitiful hollowiness.

Oswald Garrison Villard, contributing editor of "The Nation," employs the phrase "incredible stupidity" in describing the Brown Shirt's antics. And it is certain that it would require an incredible amount of incredible stupidity for one to subscribe to the ridiculously contradictory platform written by little Gottfried Feder and subscribed to by Hitler and his party.

But Hitler himself is not the most interesting phenomenon in Germany. The long series of crushing, deadly blows that have been withstood by the German people, forcing them into a state of political paresis in which they were ready to accept the insanely garbled doctrines of Hitlerism, constitute the real problem of Germany.

And it is a problem that lies heavily upon the shoulders of the rest of the world, a fact that has been disastrously ignored.

It is hard for other nations to realize the depths of economic degradation into which Germany has been forced without mercy and without reason. At the end of the war she was deprived of more than a million square miles of colonies, 90 per cent of her merchant marine, all of her navy, nearly all of her iron resources, upper Silesia and the Polish corridor, in addition to having her army, the greatest in the world, reduced to a mere police force.

Not only that—which represents only a bare outline of her tribute—but she was forced into utter economic bondage by reparations payments designed to keep her a subject nation for all time.

And all of these ignominies—harmful enough economically, but devastating to the moral fiber of any nation—were inflicted on the theory—long since denied by an almost unanimous chorus of historians as absurd—of Germany's sole war guilt.

It is time all the allied nations concern themselves with Germany and her problems and save her from a revolution that otherwise is inevitable. For if they do not, it is entirely possible that the result will be a conflict that will embroil all of Europe, and perhaps the world, in a convulsion of undreamed of agony.

The solution lies in transferring attention from Hitler—the "man of great dynamic force" and of "incredible stupidity"—to the underlying causes that have made Hitler possible.

Experts in matters of the heart have decided that if a woman is to be happy she should have not more than five love affairs. Some movie stars must lead a pretty sordid life.

TODAY'S TOPICS

By FRANK JAFFE

IT'S REALLY DIFFICULT to pass judgment on the administration of justice in the now nationally advertised Scottsboro case. The entire handling of the trial has been so wrong, so full of injustice, that it defies condemnation by an average vocabulary.

It is inconceivable that this latest outrage in court procedure will go down on the record books to be referred to by future lawyers as an example of justice. No more than a direct appeal to mob spirit, to sectionalism, to race prejudice, to every pagan instinct, the case definitely ranges alongside the Sacco-Vanzetti case as another example of juridical miscarriage.

Aside from the fact that the latest verdict rendered in the two-year-old case will be appealed—and the entire process through the higher courts repeated with little deviation in method or cost or time or result—there is little hope that the outcome of the present trial will further the cause of justice.

Two years ago nine Negroes were arrested and brought to trial for the alleged rape of two white women at Scottsboro, Ala. Eight were sentenced to die, the ninth allowed to live because of his youthfulness. The Negroes were allowed no counsel until the day of the trial, which was held in a courtroom teeming with outraged white residents of the district, in an atmosphere redolent with threats of lynching and with prejudice.

Appeals to the Alabama supreme court and the U. S. supreme court were of little avail except that in the latter opinion, handed down by Justice Sutherland, and objected to by Justices McReynolds and Butler, a new trial was ordered.

One of the "girls," who had been missing for some time, suddenly reappeared at the new trial last week and admitted she had perjured her testimony at the previous trial, said the Negroes were not guilty. A strongly worded appeal to sectionalism and race hatred—not to mention bigotry and mob spirit—ended the summation for the state in the case of the first Negro brought to retrial.

"Show them," said Circuit Solicitor Wade Wright of Morgan county—pointing to the table at which sat the defense counsels—"show them that Alabama justice cannot be bought and sold with Jew money from New York."

Chief Defense Counsel Samuel S. Leibowitz immediately asked for a declaration of mistrial which was not granted. Judge James E. Horton, endeavoring to make up for the raucous outburst of his colleague, told the jury in his charge: "The court rules that the statement regarding Jew money from New York was simply improper and unjustified, and the court asks you members of the jury to disregard it and put it out of your minds."

But the damage was done, the jury had heard. Now it hastened to return a verdict that, in the words of the prosecutor, "will resound around the world as a victory for law enforcement." It did all of that—and for the second time one of the eight Negroes heard his death sentence.

Yes, it's difficult to pass judgment when, in the face of all the good that's been done in the world, so much of the bad as occurred in that one sitting of the court of justice in Alabama can be accepted by a civilized nation AS JUSTICE.

As long as prosecutors fight only for convictions, believing that is their only function; as long as race hatred and prejudice and bigotry must enter into every trial in which Negroes and the International Labor Defense figure; as long as DULY ELECTED judges must make peace between outsiders or law-breakers and their constituencies in order to be sure of re-election; as long as contentions and appeals to local pride are deciding factors in the trial procedure; as long as the taxpayers of the U. S. are willing to pay salaries to officials whose only function it is to FIGHT AGAINST justice rather than for it—just so long will the administration of justice in the United States be the laughing stock of the rest of the civilized world.

Keeping Up With the New Books

By JOHN SELBY

"Son of Earth"

NEW YORK—"Son of Earth" is one of those miraculous creations, a first novel that was accepted at once, Howard Erickson finished it, shipped it to the publishers, received word almost by return mail that he was forthwith a novelist.

There were reasons for this, however, Mr. Erickson is, according to his publishers, a man past 50—no college sophomore. He has been a newspaper man for many years, and now works on an Omaha paper. And he has been writing magazine pieces a long while, having been a find of Robert H. Davis.

"Son of Earth" is the story of Tolf Luversen, Danish farm boy in Northwestern Iowa who has the urge toward something better, but not the necessary equipment. He struggles along in the wake of what he conceives to be more luminous creatures than those of his immediate environment, chiefly the wrong ones.

There are two girls, the drudge who wants him very much, and the American girl Adelaide whom Tolf wants very much. The disintegration of Tolf under the strain of his conflicting desires and misinterpreted ambitions is the body of the book. And at last it is to the drudge he returns, greedy for the land she has left because its owners had no one else to bequeath it to.

But, alas, the drudge has changed. She seizes the reins that have been held over her own back so long, and Tolf becomes the drudge. He had expected to hire a man to plow along behind the plow, but that is not permitted. He is not looked up to as he hoped, but despised. At last Tolf has a vision. He will fulfill himself in his children.

"Son of Earth" is a little dour, about halfway between the earth novels of our Scandinavian brethren (and sisters) and the middle west of Willa Cather in her "My Antonia" period. It is written consistently in the present tense, which is a little awkward. But it is true and honest.

AKRON SURVIVORS IN CAPITAL

Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson is pictured as he congratulated Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley and his two fellow-survivors, Richard E. Deal and Moody Erwin (background), on their narrow escape from death in the Akron disaster. The men flew from New York to Washington to give their official version of the catastrophe. They were referred to by Secretary Swanson as "members of as gallant a crew as ever served in the U. S. navy."

BEHIND THE SCENES

— IN HOLLYWOOD —

STUDIO GOSSIP

By HARRISON CARROLL
FILM SCANDAL

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD — Love interest that sizzles is promised for an untitled picture Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is rushing into production, with Jean Harlow playing a torch-singer and Clark Gable her prize-fighter lover.

This is the story Frances Marion has been working on, but studio officials deny it is the old "Prize-fighter and the Lady," for which Norma Shearer and John Crawford previously have been mentioned. The new scenario will have special dialogue by John Mahin, one of the smarter young writers of Hollywood.

You'll be asking, of course, "Can Jean Harlow sing?"

I don't know that she can—at least not well enough to make a career of it—but then neither can a lot of professional torch singers.

This will be a problem for the man in the sound booth, anyway. What M-G-M wants is a pair of colorful characters for its two high-temperature lovers, and here they have it.

Howard Hawks will supervise the new film. He expects to start in about 10 days.

Speaking of love interest, they were kidding Bob Hopkins the other day about not getting enough of it in one of his stories.

Bob, who is getting grizzled around the temples, snorted.

"Boy, give me 250 yards off that first tee every morning and you can have Garbo!"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

With that cool nerve that struck to him always, Wilson Mizner said before he fell into his last sleep: "Well, boys, I guess this is the main event." A little while later he died.

Strange, the ways of coincidence. The other day Fred Kley walked onto the "Jennie Gerhardt" set at Paramount and saw an old trunk that had a familiar look. Upon examination, it proved to have his name stenciled in faded letters upon its end. Kley bought the trunk in 1904 when he was manager for Dustin Farnum in a road company. In 1910 he sold the battered veteran to an old trunk man in New York. The apparent explanation is that the eastern Paramount studio bought it as a prop and that the west coast plant eventually fell heir to it.

A letter from Patsy Ruth Miller tells that she is still in London. She had about extinguished the blaze.

has not joined Tay Garnett, because the Swiss location for "S. O. S. Iceberg" has shown a temperature of about 10 degrees below zero. She and Tay will meet in Berlin when he has finished these scenes of the picture. . . . Soon now, Gloria Stuart expects to leave for Gundalajara, Mexico. It will be her first vacation in 12 pictures. . . . Apparently, Nancy Carroll will not take her trip immediately. Saw her lunching at a Hollywood rendezvous and she says she may go to New York but not to Europe.

If Mary Pickford does "Peter Pan," she will break away from tradition and use a real dog to play the part of "Nana," the children's nurse. By the use of trick sound effects, the dog will be given a deep bass voice. The star also has plans to utilize the full flexibility of the camera.

Did you hear that Bob Montgomery's house caught on fire the other evening? He and some guests were just sitting down to dinner when they smelled smoke. "Pardon me," said Bob, "I believe the house is afire." By the time the department arrived, Bob was atop the roof and tells that she is still in London. She had about extinguished the blaze.

No Limits Set on Discussion

MacDonald to Consider Any, or All World Problems

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald will go to Washington free to discuss with President Roosevelt any and all Anglo-American and world problems.

The prime minister's trip was the subject of a cabinet session today and in the house of commons Mr. MacDonald said he intended to put no limit on the subjects which might be touched on in his conversations with Mr. Roosevelt.

Mere Disillusion

One of the members of the house asked whether Britain's return to the gold standard was to be considered, requesting assurance that parliament be consulted before the British government acted in this direction.

"The object of this visit is not to negotiate or fix an agreement," Mr. MacDonald replied, "but to discuss questions with which both of us are confronted."

Said on Same Date

Dispatches from Paris mentioned the possibility that Edouard Herriot, France's special representative for the Roosevelt discussions, might also sail on the Berengaria—Mr. MacDonald's ship—which leaves here April 15, but there is no question of a United Anglo-French front for the Washington talks.

The Italian embassy in London denied a rumor that Ambassador Dino Grandi would travel to New York on the Berengaria.

Herriot to Act as Free Agent

PARIS, April 10 (AP)—The status of Edouard Herriot in his discussions at Washington with President Roosevelt will be that of a free agent acting more as an informant than negotiator, it was learned today.

The former premier, selected for the Washington mission largely because he lost the premiership last December rather than surrender his conviction that France should make her war debt interest payment to the United States, will not be empowered to make decisions at Washington which would modify the position of France.

This was explained in a semi-official announcement. It was explained also that M. Herriot would contribute to the work of world economic relief undertaken by the American president.

If the Washington conversations develop to a point requiring the French to make a declaration, the declaration will be communicated through Ambassador de la Boulaye. Premier Daladier presented President Roosevelt's invitation at today's cabinet meeting and explained the reasons for the appointment of M. Herriot. The cabinet approved the selection.

The government expects the conversations to be of a general nature—a charting of the course for the world economic conference to be held in London.

M. Herriot is chairman of the foreign relations committee of the chamber of deputies. Present plans are for him to sail April 19.

Chittenden to Work on Symposium for Mathematical Study

Prof. E. W. Chittenden of the mathematics department will participate in a symposium on the work of the late Prof. E. H. Moore at the three hundred sixth meeting of the American Mathematical Society at the University of Chicago Friday and Saturday.

Several former students of Professor Moore, who was head of the mathematics department at the University of Chicago, will make up the symposium. Professor Chittenden will read a paper on "The introduction to a general analysis."

Other faculty members who will attend the meeting are Prof. Henry L. Rietz, head of the mathematics department; Prof. Richard P. Baker, and Deane Montgomery, graduate assistant in mathematics.

Dallman May Get U. S. Treasury Job

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Reports from reliable sources today were that Postmaster-General Farley had tentatively offered the position of assistant secretary of the treasury to V. Y. Dallman, Springfield, Ill., newspaper publisher.

Dallman, Roosevelt supporter who has been credited with exerting considerable influence in holding Illinois Democrats in line despite "upstate" pressure, arrived here almost a week ago at Farley's invitation.

Custer's Career Recalled by Widow's Death

As Young Bride, Mrs. Custer Accompanied Her Dashing Husband in Civil War and Indian Campaigns Until General's Death in Little Big Horn Massacre.

SCENE OF LITTLE BIG HORN MASSACRE

NEW YORK—With the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Bacon Custer here, at the age of 91, another link with the colorful frontier days, when the Red Man still disputed the Palefaces' right to take his country away from him, is severed.

Mrs. Custer was the widow of General George Armstrong Custer, once called the "Boy General," who was killed by Sioux Indians, under the great old die-hard, Sitting Bull, at the massacre of Little Big Horn, on June 25, 1876. Up to the day of her death, Mrs. Custer's recollection of the stirring days of the Indian war remained acute. For she was no stay-at-home soldier's wife in those days, but insisted on accompanying her husband on many of his campaigns. Virtually all of her married life was spent near the scenes of Red and White battles.

Born in Monroe, Mich., in 1844, the daughter of Judge Daniel Bacon, Mrs. Custer first met the man who was to become her husband when he visited her sister in 1862. Custer was then a captain in the Union Army and only 23 years old. They fell in love at first sight, but Miss Bacon's parents opposed the match and young Custer returned to the Army of Virginia.

Distinguishing himself in the Civil war, Custer soon became a brigadier general. He returned to Monroe while convalescing from the effects of a wound, and renewed his wooing of Miss Bacon. This time the young lady's parents made no objection and the young couple became man and wife on February 6, 1864.

They went to Washington on their wedding trip, but before the honeymoon was over, General Custer was ordered to rejoin the army. The young bride had the choice of remaining in Washington or going to the front with her husband. She chose the latter. Thus began her adventurous life, always within range of battle smoke, which lasted as long as her husband lived.

Mrs. Custer stayed with her husband all through the Civil war, and was with him when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox. Although she encountered many privations and dangers during that time, she never complained, taking things as philosophically as the soldiers in her husband's command.

After the Civil war, General Custer was transferred to Texas, where he remained for a year as chief of the government cavalry. It was here he gained his first experience as an Indian fighter. In this phase of his career, Mrs. Custer was constantly at his side, personally attending him on many of his hazardous expeditions against the Indians.

In the four or five years that followed, General Custer fought the Indians in Colorado, New Mexico, Nebraska and Wyoming. He was then in command of the 7th United States Cavalry, which served as something in the nature of a flying column, ready to dash off at a moment's notice to wherever the Indians were reported on the war-path.

Then came the Dakota campaign, in 1873, which marked the beginning of Custer's last war on the Indians. He was opposed in that campaign by the irreconcilable Sioux chief, Sitting Bull. General Custer's career came to an end when he and 207 of his comrades were ambushed by an overwhelming force of Indians at Little Big Horn on June 25, 1876. The entire force was wiped out in the battle, which since has been glorified in song, poem, stage and screen as "Custer's Last Stand."

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Custer came to New York to live. Although she rarely was seen in public, she led an active life. She wrote three books on her experiences in camp as the wife of a soldier. The books, which have been widely read, are: "Boots and Saddles," "Tenting on the Plains," and "Following the Guidon," all true stories which for thrilling adventure are comparable to anything in fiction.

Six Orators Seek Honors

Compete Tonight for Jessup Prize Award

The Jessup prize in oratory will be awarded to the victorious speaker in a contest to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in liberal arts auditorium.

Six orators will compete for the Jessup prize of $25 and the right to represent the University of Iowa in the Northern Oratorical league contest, to be held at Iowa City April 28.

The contestants are: Earla Blaine, A1 of Hampton; Geraldine Beard, A1 of Bedford; Frederick Schwartz, A1 of Boone; and Russell Lembke, A3 of Sioux City; Jack Siddens, A1 of Council Bluffs; and C. LaVerne Kluss, C4 of Postville.

These six were selected as a result of a series of elimination contests. A group of freshmen were selected as survivors in contests in freshman speech classes, in which 700 students participated.

These, together with upperclass entrants, spoke in a final elimination contest last week, from which the six orators who will compete tonight were selected.

Each speaker in tonight's contest will present an original oration of 2,000 words.

The winner of the Jessup prize will compete against representatives of five other universities in the Northern Oratorical league contest, for the Lowden prizes of $100 for first place, and $50 for second place.

Second Report of March 23 Meteor Made by Student

Second report of a meteor which fell at about 9:45 p.m., March 23, was made yesterday to Prof. C. C. Wylie, university astronomer, by Elizabeth Ringena, A4 of Brooklyn. The meteor was originally reported by Clarence S. Carlson, G of Northfield, Minn., who saw it while driving along the highway east of Ellendale, Minn.

The meteor lit up the sky nearby, was much brighter than the planet Venus, and appeared about five or six times as large as Venus, Miss Ringena said. It was of a bluish color, which turned yellow before it disappeared. It burst into five pieces, resembling the balls of a Roman candle.

Miss Ringena was sitting in an automobile facing west on Davenport street near Currier hall at the time.

Further reports on the meteor are desired by Professor Wylie, who is particularly interested because of its proximity in time to the large meteor which fell a few hours later in northeastern New Mexico.

Hawkeye Nine Opens Season at Western State in Michigan

SPORT Potshots by EUGENE THORNE

GRADUALLY more and more information is being learned concerning the opponent which Coach Mike Howard will wrestle as one of the feature attractions of the circus to be staged by the Iowa physical education majors later in the month. Men in charge of the show have thus far been indifferent when discussing the ability of this "Terrible Russian," but have indicated that they will have plenty to tell before long. When asked if it is merely a publicity scheme to build up the match, they emphatically shake their heads.

Ivan Krasawsky, the Terrible Russian, is the official title of the man the Iowa men will meet. George Ekdahl also advanced the information that Krasawsky claims a title. There was nothing in that statement to mark the Russian as unusual, as there are about two-thirds of the other professional matmen in the country claim some championship or other. Krasawsky is a member of none of the recognized mat circles it is an outcast.

NO less than 23 athletic contests involving University of Iowa teams will be held within the next two and a half weeks, with Coach Otto Vogel's baseball team leading the pack in number of appearances. Only four events—two ball games, and two golf meets will be held in the Hawkeye stronghold. The remainder, including four tennis meets, will be in foreign territory. It looks like May will be the month for Iowa fans to watch their favorites work.

The Hawkeye baseball squad left on a long swing up through Michigan and Illinois yesterday. Coach Ott Vogel, Dr. A. S. Fout and 16 players are making the trip by bus. Ott, never extremely optimistic concerning the prospects of his teams, has admitted that his material is good this season, and with a few breaks on the weather in order to allow the men to round into shape, should turn out a good brand of baseball. Iowa fans appreciate no good team more than a classy aggregation of baseball players. We hope things go right for the outfit this season.

COACH Charles Kennett is once more studying the greens at Finkbine field with an eagle eye. The Iowa coach always makes it his business to have the course in as near tip-top shape as possible, and can tell you more about grass seeds and care of turf than you can find in any book. If you see him wandering around with his head down, don't think he is depressed. He is probably just wondering if there is any way to improve the stand of grass.

For those interested in betting on the outcome of the major league races this season, the conservatives will all be picking the Yankees and Cubs, according to an Associated Press story. The Yanks are a 2 to 5 bet—the shortest odds offered in the last 20 years, so say the experts. And in case you are interested in long shot gambling, you can get 500 to 1 if you care to place any money on the Boston Americans to finish on top. Washington and Philadelphia are both 3 to 1 bets in the American league, and Pittsburgh money can be had at 8 to 5 in the senior loop.

LOU Fonseca's White Sox were listed as 190 to 1, and may be after Saturday and Sunday's games. Charley Grimm and his Cubs would like a little of that. This pre-season series may do the White Stockings a lot of good. A victory or two at the start of a season often puts a club up on its toes in great shape, and a couple of wins over the Bruins should double the work of any other triumph, so far as the White Sox are concerned. A ball team that will hustle is always dangerous, and it looks like Fonseca has that kind of a club this season.

Walter Brown went the route for the Yankees, holding the Cadets to four hits and fanning 14.

Blackman or Bill Ricke to Hurl Opener

Schedule for Initial Trip Altered; 5 Games Booked

By CHUCK WILLIAMS
The University of Iowa baseball team will open its 1933 campaign today at Kalamazoo, Mich., meeting Western State Teachers college in the first of a two game series.

Either Bill Ricke, veteran right hander, or Charlie Blackman, sophomore southpaw, will start on the mound for the Hawkeyes in their initial effort of the season. Dutch Schmidt, veteran catcher, turned up yesterday with a badly infected jaw which may prevent him from seeing active service behind the plate in the forthcoming series. In the event that Schmidt is unable to work, Ken Blackman, sophomore, will get into action.

Schedule Changed
The schedule for the series of games through Michigan during the next week has been slightly altered. Michigan Normal was forced to cancel its game with Iowa due to financial conditions. However, the team will play five games as Michigan State has agreed to play the Old Gold nine times at East Lansing instead of once as originally scheduled.

Now the Iowans will definitely play—barring bad weather—Western State at Kalamazoo today and tomorrow, Michigan State at East Lansing Thursday and Friday, and Hillsdale college at Hillsdale Saturday. On the return trip, the team will stop off at Monmouth, Ill., to play Monmouth college Monday.

The final two men to be selected to accompany the team were Francis Schammel and Nero Wolf, outfielders. The rest of the squad includes Schmidt, K. Blackman, C. Blackman, Baker, Drager, Schulteheing, Bazant, Bend, Capt. Mike Riegert, Laws, Ricke, Stempel, Marquis, and Ford.

Mound Staff
The mound staff comprises Gene Ford, Franklin Stempel, Charlie Blackman, Vance Marquis, and Bill Ricke. Ford and Blackman are sophomores about to start their intercollegiate careers while the other three are seasoned veterans. Ricke and Stempel made a gallant attempt to pitch the Iowa club to a Big Ten championship last season. Stempel won three conference games last year and lost none.

When Schmidt turned up with his infected jaw, it merely added another patient to the already large hospital list which included Captain Riegert, suffering from the effects of a lame back, Stan Bazant, sore arm and shoulder, Frank Drager, pulled muscle in left leg, Bill Ricke, stiff elbow, Gene Ford, sore arm. "Ham" Schulteheing, injured knee, and Franklin Stempel still recovering from a recent "foul" attack. Doc Ford is along with the team and will make a good attempt to have nine of the invalids on the field at the same time.

Probable Lineups
The probable lineup and batting order for today's game is:
Schulteheing, 2b
Drager, 3b
Benn, ss
Riegert, 1c
Laws, cf
Schammel, rf
Baker, lb
B. Blackman, c

Washington's Crews Sweep Three Races With Californians

OAKLAND, Cal., April 8 (AP)—Washington's eight oared varsity crew won its annual three-mile race with the University of California crew today to make a clean sweep of a three race program.
Three powerful crews from the Washington university, the varsity, junior varsity and freshmen all scored victories over the Bears in the regatta.
The Washington varsity finished 10 lengths ahead. The time was 15 minutes, 9.2 seconds.

Hawkeye Golfers to Meet Only 2 Big Ten Golf Foes This Year

Northwestern and Chicago will provide the Western conference competition for the University of Iowa's varsity golf team, Coach Charles Kennett said yesterday.
The Hawkeyes will travel to Evanston April 28 to play Northwestern and will meet Chicago there on the following day. It is the shortest schedule of conference matches in several years.
St. Ambrose college of Daytonport will be played Thursday in the opening meet of the season, the coach also announced. Finkbine field, the university's course, will be the scene of the match.
More than 120 players, hurl during professional and municipal matches, received payments from the St. Louis Soccer Players' Protective association last season.

Heydler Stresses Cooperation of Major League Players

"OAKLEYS" FOR "FIRST FAMILY"

No matter what the state of the exchequer during the next year, President and Mrs. Roosevelt are at least sure of being able to see the ball games. Here are Clark C. Griffith (left), president of the Washington Senators, and John Heydler, head of the National league, as they arrived at the White House to present American and National league passes to the "First Family."

Frosh Whip Reserve Nine

Brown Holds Losers in Mound Debut; Mates Triumph, 3-1

Picking up one run in the first frame and two in the third, Coach Pops Harrison's freshman baseball team defeated the varsity reserves yesterday afternoon 3 to 1 in a six inning game.

Although the cool breezes slowed up the game considerably, the yearlings looked exceptionally good for having been hampered in spring training by the weather.
Dick Brown, a first baseman whom Coach Harrison converted into a pitcher, hurled good baseball in his debut on the mound. Although shaky at times, Brown allowed the reserves but four hits, one of them a triple by Johnson for the only extra-base hit of the game. It was Johnson's blow, followed by a single by Swandt in the third inning, that produced the reserves' only run.

The freshmen found Joe Whiting and Ray Andrews, reserve pitchers, for five hits.
The winners were guilty of three errors, while the losers committed two miscues.

Final Touches Added to Big Circus Plans

Hard work and religious practice has been the dish of Lawrence Griswold and company who are in training for the physical education circus which is scheduled for April 20, directly following spring vacation. A program of 29 acts in four divisions has been planned and the finishing touches are being applied to the performance.
A late release on the order of events has the presentation of the circus crew, who will be chosen by a committee of all university coaches headed by George Bresnahan, between the second and third events. She is to be selected from representative girls entered from every woman's organization on the campus, as well as her attendants.
Included on the new program is the provision for a grand entry which will exhibit the whole circus company as a group and a grand finale to include every member of the show in a rousing farewell to the audience.
This circus is to be held in the main gymnasium at the field house and will show but one night.

Tigers Gain 3-1 Triumph

Y., April 10 (AP)—Winding up their training season with an 8 to 4 victory over the Buffalo International league team, the Detroit Tigers entrained for Detroit tonight with a record of 13 hits. ## Lays Down "Five Point" Player Law

Describes Baseball as Facing "Acid Test of Popularity"

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—For the purpose of developing a greater spirit of aggressiveness on the ball fields and giving the game more customer appeal this year, John A. Heydler, president of the national league, today addressed a striking appeal to his players to avoid fraternizing with rivals or loafing at any stage of the forthcoming pennant race.
With the start of the 1933 season only two days off for the big leagues, and baseball as a whole facing what he described as an "acid test of popularity" in competition with other outdoor amusements, President Heydler laid down a "five point" program for National league players.

"Stringent Conditions"
"Never before have we faced more stringent money conditions or keen competition from other sports, motoring, and amusements," wrote Heydler. "People are going to go to ball games and they are going to patronize other sports and amusements. But they will budget their expenses and will choose only what promises the most enjoyment."

"No outdoor game can compare with a major league ball game. But that game must be played aggressively by both sides. It is in your power to build up and maintain the interest in our game by a display of heads up, winning spirit which does not surrender until the last man is out. To sustain the spirit of contest and the ethics of sport, you are asked to accept and live up to the following:

1. Do not mingle on the field with players of the opposing club. Keep away from their bench and dugout. Remain off the field when the other club is entitled to its exclusive use for batting or fielding practice.
2. Do not enter the club house or dressing rooms of the other teams. Many players have shifted clubs during the off season. The urge to hold friendly reunions will prevail; but the proper place for such contacts is not on or around the ball field.
3. Do not take it for granted that with a lopsided score against you the game is lost and that you can take it easy. The man who pays is still entitled to your best effort and exhibition of skilled performance to the end of the game. Run out your hits.

Babe Herman Will Play in Cubs Opener

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—Babe Herman worked out with the Cubs today and showed so little difficulty with his twisted ankle that he was regarded as a certain starter in the club lineup against the St. Louis Cardinals in the National league opener here Wednesday.
Herman twisted his ankle while sliding into home base after a home run as Kansas City last Friday.

Clint Brown Choice of Cleveland Indians

CLEVELAND, April 10 (AP)—Clint Brown probably will pitch the opening game for the Cleveland Indians in Detroit Wednesday. Manager Peckinpaugh said today, but who will be at shortstop is another problem.
Peckinpaugh said he probably would not decide until the opening day whether Johnny Burnett, last year's regular shortstop, or his rival, Bill Knickerbocker, sensational recruit from Toledo, will be in the lineup.

Ed Durham Named as White Sox Starter

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—Ed Durham, who was picked up in last winter's trade with the Boston Red Sox will pitch the opener of the American league for the White Sox against St. Louis, Manager Fonseca announced today. Twice Bob Johnson, Athletic's rookie who alternated between first and second, tied the score with home runs, once in the fourth and again in the ninth. Frederick also hit a homer to knot the count after the A's had worked a triple steal in their half of the tenth.
Score by innings: R.H.E. Philad'a (A) 010 100 001 21—6 9 2 Brooklyn (N) 000 000 010 22—7 13 4

Senators Squeeze Out 5 to 4 Victory

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The Senators squeezed a 5 to 4 win from the Baltimore Orioles today and wound up their exhibition series with a record of 17 wins, 5 losses and one tie.
Washington got only 9 hits off Cunningham's delivery, while the Orioles connected with 11 of Stewart's throws.
Although Manager Joe Cronin retired in the second with an injured left hand and he was expected back in the lineup for the opener before President Roosevelt Wednesday.

Pirates in Narrow Win at Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 10 (AP)—Staging a rampage in the fourth inning, to score all of their runs, the Pittsburgh Pirates closed their spring exhibition tour today with a 3 to 2 victory over Louisville.
Chagnon, who allowed the American association crew one run in the second frame, was relieved by Lefty Birkhofer in the fifth. The Kentuckians scored their second out in the ninth.
The Pirates, outbatted 9 to 7, failed to register a hit in the last three innings.

Giants Shutout Fordham by 7-0

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—The New York Giants, playing their thirty-first and final exhibition game of the season, today defeated Fordham university 7 to 0.
Lefty Al Smith, a rookie, went the route for the Giants and held the collegians to six hits and fanned 10. A Ram error helped the Giants get away to a three run lead in the first round, after which they just coasted home with the second team seeing action in the final innings.

Rookies Pitch Phils to 2 to 1 Triumph

PHILADELPHIA, April 10 (AP)—A pair of rookies pitched the Phillies to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Internationals today.

U. High Thinclads Sent Through Fast Outdoor Workout

A light workout, tapering off with a series of 100 yard dashes by the entire squad, was meted out to the University high track team yesterday noon at old Iowa field.
A week of preliminary outdoor workouts have been conditioning the river school athletes for two weeks of more strenuous work before the first outdoor meet at Cedar Falls on April 22.
Van Phillips, University high's crack sprinter and quartermiler, ran the 100 yard dash in :10.3 with a wind at his back.

Sigma Nu in Easy Victory

Downs Phi Gams, 11-5, in Only Regular Encounter

A barrage of hits and runs in the last inning allowed Sigma Nu to take home a victory from Phi Gamma Delta, 11 to 5, in the only regularly scheduled inter-fraternity kitenball game yesterday afternoon. The winners collected six scores to demoralize the Phi defense and in the last half the latter could diminish the lead by but three runs.
Good field play by the Sigma Nu's cut off a number of opposing scores and behind the pitching of Jenvold, the victors could not be nicked for a "higher total. Finley went all the way for the losers. The Sigma Chi-Phi Beta Pi mix was postponed until after vacation.

Letup in Action
That portion of the schedule which was slated for the period preceding vacation has been completed and further competition will occur beginning April 19.

A number of late scores for games played over Sunday have been obtained. Score by innings: R.H.E. St. Paul (AA) .302 000 200—7 10 3 Cincinnati (N) .012 030 000—6 7 3

American League Endorses Movement

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—The American league heartily endorses the move of the National league in warning players against fraternizing on the baseball field, President Will Harridge said tonight.
Ben Eastman, Stanford's great foot racer, has done 100 yards in 10 seconds, flat, and the mile in 4:21.

Wrestling in Illinois Gets Indefinite Ban

Commission Takes Step Following Savoldi, Londos Upheaval

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—A strangle hold was clamped on professional wrestling in Illinois today. Aroused by rumors of "double crossing," the Illinois Athletic commission issued an order indefinitely suspending the sport in the state as the result of the surprising finish of the Jim Londos-Joe Savoldi match at the Chicago stadium last Friday night, which saw the former Notre Dame gridiron star victorious.

The verdict automatically cancels the match between Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Jim Browning, scheduled for tomorrow night.
The suspension was the most drastic ruling the sport has suffered in its recent climb to popularity.

The commission refused to recognize Savoldi, who was awarded a victory over Londos, recognized as champion in some states, as the new titleholder, because the commission ruled it did not recognize any champion or championship matches and had also refused permission to have Londos announced as champion just before his match with Savoldi started. The commission said that sanction for all wrestling bouts had been issued with the understanding that they were not for any championship but were only exhibitions.

In the presence of the victor and the vanquished, attorneys and managers, Joseph Triner, chairman of the commission, rendered its decision, which upheld the verdict of Referee Managoff in awarding a fall to Savoldi after 20 minutes and 26 seconds. Both Londos and Savoldi gave their versions of just what had happened. Managoff, however, was examined privately and was not present when the principals testified.

Londos declared the referee's decision was unjust, that no fall had been accomplished and that at no time was he ever on his shoulders, even for one second, let alone for three seconds, as required by the rules.

After College 'WHAT?'

Former Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin says: "A keen mind, sound judgment and unflinching industry are required to digest the volumes of laws and decisions facing the practitioner today. The young lawyer can no longer practice by ear and intuition. The science of the law is exacting and difficult."

LAW?

ONLY "a keen mind" can absorb the volumes of information which must be at the finger tips of the young lawyer today. Perhaps that's why in this profession, as in our leading colleges, a pipe is the favorite smoke. You see, it helps a man concentrate . . . clears cobwebs from his brain.

Try a pipeful of Edgeworth Smoking Tobacco—the favorite smoke among college men. *Notice how that blend of fine old burleys really helps you think out a difficult problem. # Stock Market Prices Show Strong Gains

Increase of Industry Speeds Prices to Advance

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Accumulating signs of acceleration in industry and a fairly general advance in commodity prices stimulated stocks to their best rally since March 15 today.

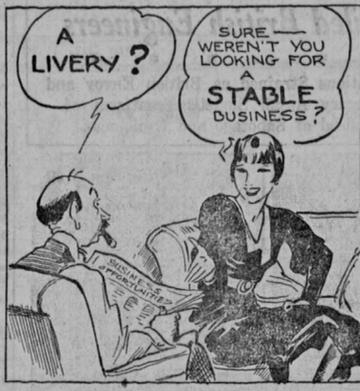

The market finished at the top of a lively advance, with gains ranging from 1 to 4 points for active issues. Industrials made a particularly strong showing throughout the session, leading an early rise and displaying bullish tendencies in the period of quiet that preceded the final spurt.

Steel, silver, motor and copper shares were prominent, though all divisions brightened emphatically during the last half hour. Sales, 1,759,654 shares, were the largest since March 16.

With wheat, silver, copper, sugar, zinc, cocoa and cotton quoted at better levels and bonds firm, stocks obviously felt impelled to reflect the improved spirits. An encouraging report on current steel operations, together with a favorably interpreted unfilled tonnage statement from the leading factor in that industry and the recently available statistics on automobile production further fortified speculative sentiment which seemed eager to anticipate a spring business upturn.

U. S. Steel common and preferred, up 2 and 3 points, respectively, set a good pace for their division. Bethlehem rallied more than a point and its senior issue was up 3. Vanadium, Youngstown, National Steel, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Inland Steel and Howa Sound improved major fractions to nearly 2 points. U. S. Smelting, International Silver and National Lead gained more than 3, while Union Pacific, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, General Mills, and Du Pont advanced 2 3/4 to 3 1/4. Allied Chemical and Case rose 4 each. Numerous preferred stocks, especially of metal products, jumped 2 to 3 or so. Gains of 1 to 2 for rails were plentiful.

Bond Market Prices Go Up

Corporate Group Shows First Gain Since March 23

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—The bond market took a turn for the better today.

The reversal of trend was accounted for principally by rallies in the secondary groups.

The turnover in all departments was rather restricted, however. Sales totaled only $8,670,000, par value, not quite normal. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced four-tenths of a point, the first gain recorded since March 23. Low priced rail liens were the leaders. Gains of 1 to around 4 points were retained by a number of them, including some of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Iron Mountain, Southern Pacific, Southern, and Western Maryland.

The best utilities and industrials, with advances ranging from 1 to around 3 points, included loans of American & Foreign Power, Columbia Gas, Dodge Bros., Goodrich, Goodyear, International Hydro-Electric, International Telephone, Pathe Exchange, Shell Union Oil, Sinclair Oil, Studebaker, Western Electric, and Youngtown Sheet & Tube.

Federal land bonds edged up one-thirty-second to nine-thirty-seconds of a point, but foreign obligations were mixed. Most of the Germans rallied around a point following reports of an agreement for closer co-operation between the German and British central banks, particularly in regard to exchange and credit problems.

make the price level so uncertain it would "dry up the channels of trade."

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, agreed the section referred to by McNary was "one of the controversial provisions of the bill," but said to impose the tax with no power to change it would be dangerous.

Two Other Features "Conceivably," Robinson said, "a tax might be made so high that stocks would accumulate with the result that prices would be depressed instead of raised."

Meanwhile, two other major features of pending legislative attempts neared final form.

The president set this evening aside for climactic conferences with Secretary Woodin, Secretary Roper, Budget Director Douglas and Commissioner Eastman of the interstate commerce agency for last minute discussion of the lay out of difficulties facing the railroads.

And on capitol hill, the Glass subcommittee of the senate banking committee found such growing confront over the newly drafted bank reform bill that it arranged to have Secretary Woodin confer tomorrow with leaders who have been handling the legislation.

Red Cross headquarters specialized yesterday in the distribution of overalls. Three hundred twenty-four pairs were given out by Mrs. Martin Pederson, secretary, and her assistants.

Crop Damage Reports Help Grain Prices

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—Well grounded belief that the government April report would show worse crop damage than private advices implied gave wheat values a lively upturn late today.

A decrease of 2,596,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply had a further stimulating effect, and so too did reports of dust storms southwest, with predictions of freezing temperatures tonight.

Wheat closed firm, 1-1 3/8 above Saturday's finish, corn 3-8-5/8 up, oats 3-8-1/2 advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Highest prices of the day were reached by wheat just before trading ended with September contracts hovering around the season's top-most quotations. The late advance in the face of heavy selling to realize profits.

Corn and oats were mainly governed by wheat action. Farm reserves of corn are regarded as somewhat bearish.

Absence of selling pressure gave a firm tone to provisions. Closing indemics: Wheat—May 56 3/4-5/8, 60 3/8-1/2; July 57 1/2-5/8, 61-2; September 58 3/8-1/2, 52-1-3/8.

"MARY FAITH" by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, young and comely fiancée of Kimberley Farrell, handsome blond youth, just out of law school, leaves her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry "Kim."

CHAPTER II

He got out of his shining mahogany chair, crossed the office and held the door of it open for her as she went out—a thing he never had done for her before in all the time she had worked for him. A thing that no employer ever does for his secretary or for any other person who works for him, as Mary Faith knew very well. It was as if he had forgotten all at once that she was his employee and was seeing her for the first time as a young and beautiful woman.

Her own little room opened off his office. Her desk stood against the wall that faced his door. She sat down at it and put the letters he had just signed into their envelopes.

When she raised her head from her work a moment later he was still standing in the doorway looking down at her in that same puzzled, frowning way.

"Did I tell you that I'm sorry you're leaving?" he asked. "I meant to, if I didn't. I'm going to miss you, Miss Fenton—" He seemed to be on the point of saying something else to her; then suddenly he changed his mind apparently, for he shook his head and went back into his own office, shutting the door of it behind him.

He was still in it when Mary Faith left a few minutes afterward. She knew that he would miss her when she left Nesbit's. For, in addition to her regular work, she did all sorts of little odd jobs for him. Every year she sent out his Christmas cards. She picked out the presents that he gave to his mother and his two sisters on their birthdays.

When he was too busy to leave the office at noon she always sent Stanley Odeskalki out to buy a bottle of milk and a sandwich for him.

She kept at bay all the people he did not want to see; and by some miracle she did it without hurting their feelings. There was no doubt that Mary Faith had a "way with her" when it came to dealing with people. Almost everybody liked her.

She was more than a secretary to Mr. Mark Nesbit. She was the guardian of his comfort and his peace of mind all day long, six days a week, year in and year out. . . . Of course, he would miss her.

Mrs. Puckett's family hotel in River Street was none of your ordinary boarding houses.

front windows hung a small framed sign which read:

DINING ROOM OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

That small sign, with its neat, black lettering on a white background, had been the means of changing the whole course of Mary Faith's life.

For on a certain Sunday night in November four years before, Kim Farrell and his mother had seen it in the window as they passed the house; and they had come in to have their supper there.

That was how it had happened that Mary Faith met him. She had fallen in love with him before he left the house that night, and three months later she had promised to marry him.

There was a note from his mother lying on the table in the hall when Mary Faith let herself into Mrs. Puckett's house that night.

She read it on the way upstairs to her room.

Dear Mary Faith: Kimberley wants me to ask you to have dinner with us tonight. He will stop for you at half past six.

Amelia K. Farrell. Half past six. . . . It was twenty-five minutes past six that very minute! Mary Faith flew up the two flights of stairs that led to the top floor of the narrow three-story house.

Her room was a large one with three windows that looked out across the housetops and chimney-pots to the distant trees of Halthnorth Park three blocks away.

It was filled with things that she had been collecting for more than three years. There was a breakfast set of pink sprigged china on a table in one corner. On a shelf above the bed was a row of books and above the books hung a Simon etching.

Under the bed, hidden by a valance of dotted Swiss, was a battered steamer trunk filled with the linens she had embroidered. On the writing desk lay a scrapbook half full of household hints and recipes that she was always clipping from newspapers and magazines.

The bottom drawer of the old bureau was filled with the garments that she had bought for her honeymoon. A breakfast coat of creamy silk. A combing jacket of yellow satin with high-heeled mules to match. A little lace cap trimmed with yellow rosebuds. Princess slips and dance sets. Five yards of thick smooth satin of the subtle shade that Mr. John Galsworthy calls "moonlight color." Mary Faith had bought it for her wedding dress almost two years before and it had lain in the bottom of the drawer ever since.

To this room of hers she always returned at the end of the day with a feeling of rest and home-coming. It was true that she loved Nesbit's and she got a certain pleasure from her work there. But she was the kind of woman whose life never could be filled by an office career. She was the kind who would rather clean cupboards than keep files in order, who would rather run a sewing machine than a typewriter.

To potter around the room, wiping the dust from the set of china, picking the withered leaves from the plants on the window sill, satisfied some home-making housekeeping instinct in Mary Faith.

"Even my hair looks happy tonight," she told herself, smiling at her reflection in the mirror as she pulled her hat down over its crisp shining waves.

It was twenty-five minutes to seven when she ran downstairs. The front hall was empty. So was the parlor. The doors of the dining room stood open and through them came the buzz of voices and the clatter of dishes and silver. The boarders—"my great big happy family," as Mrs. Puckett called them sometimes—were at their evening meal.

Five minutes went ticking slowly by. Mary Faith opened the door and looked out. River Street lay empty and silent under its arc lights.

Ten minutes. . . fifteen, and still no Kim. He never was on time for anything or anybody. He often said himself that he had no sense of time.

It was seven minutes past seven when he rang the doorbell.

"Sorry if I'm a bit late," he said when Mary Faith opened the door. "A man came in to see me just as I was leaving the office."

He stood there, unsmiling, with the darkness behind him. He was an exceptionally good-looking young man, tall and straight and broad-shouldered. He was gray-eyed and ruddily blond. His nose and his cleft chin were almost too well-cut. If there was any weakness in his character it showed itself in his sensitive, sulky-looking mouth.

Outdoors the night was cold and still. The stars looked so big and bright and near that Mary Faith felt that she could stretch out her hand and touch them all if she tried to.

"What a lovely night, Kim," she said as she trotted down the steps beside him, "and what a lovely world. . . . Kim, I'm so happy I'm foolish. I've been walking on air all day long. You'll never know how hard it was for me to get down to earth long enough to tell the people at the office that I'm leaving. . . . Kim, I just can't believe that we're really going to be married in two weeks!"

But she did believe it, of course. For almost four years she had been sustained by an absolute faith in the happiness that she and Kim were going to find in their life together. And now that happiness was almost within their reach. . . . It was as close as the large yellow stars that hung just above River Street.

Kim's car, a roadster without a top, stood at the curbstone. He jumped into it and Mary Faith got in after him. There had been a time when he tenderly helped her into the car first, but that had been a long time ago in the first delicious days of their engagement.

"Kim," Mary Faith said as they started off, "what did your mother have to say about our getting married on such short notice?—When I saw her note tonight I began to feel a little bit shaky. You don't suppose she's going to try to talk us out of this, do you?"

Kim didn't answer. In the glow of the dash-light she saw his eyebrows draw together and a muscle in his cheek twitch as his jaw tightened.

And all at once she sensed that there was some change in him. He was not the Kim who had kissed her good night in Mrs. Puckett's parlor the night before. . . . She looked at him again, trying to penetrate the secret of his diffidence. There was something sullen and resentful about him tonight.

a resolution for joint house and senate investigation into airship disasters, including the Akron, and future policy toward lighter than air craft. The senate yet has to vote on it.

City Homes Administration collaborators on setting up a two billion dollar corporation to refinance mortgaged city homes of less than $20,000 value completed the bill, agreeing on a five per cent interest rate. It will be introduced in a day or so, the president in a late day conference having given his sanction.

The farm mortgage refinancing feature of the farm bill won Senator Borah (R., Idaho), to it, although he told the senate the price lifting sections would prove "as disastrous" for agriculture as was the act creating the farm board.

The house rules committee late in the day approved procedure for the consideration of the farm mortgage refinancing bill to preclude all amendments except those offered by the house agriculture committee.

The house will begin consideration tomorrow.

Will Rush Bill Through Democrats are aiming to jam it through so an immediate conference can be had with the senate when it has passed the bill as a whole. The mortgage proposal was attached in the senate after the house had passed the price lifting legislation.

In debate on the latter angle today, Senator McNary—the Republican leader—contended the "arbitrary powers" conferred by the bill on the secretary of agriculture would

Missing Bank Cashier Held

Guy Lines Arrested on $20,000 Default Charge

DES MOINES, April 10 (AP)—Charges of embezzlement by a bank officer were filed today against Guy Lines, assistant cashier of the Capital City State bank following his arrest at the Polk county court house.

Lines disappeared April 1. He appeared today at the court house and was waiting to see County Attorney Carl Burkman when arrested.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge Ralph Powers, Lines pleaded not guilty and was held in default of $20,000.

Burkman said Lines confessed to appropriating about $20,000 loss of which is covered by insurance.

The accused man said he was kidnaped the evening of April 1 while en route to the bank for a conference. He told Burkman he was confronted by two men as he tried to park his car and that he was ordered to drive them away. Sunday, he told Burkman, he escaped in his car when one of his abductors left him to enter a grocery store in the Ozarks. He said he drove to Des Moines immediately.

Burkman said Lines explained that he took the money after he had "played the stock market and lived too high." Bank officials said a few days ago that the misappropriations amounted to about $9,000, but Lines said he thought he had taken about $20,000.

AKRON

Inquiry Board Gets Wiley's Testimony

our course to the westward?" asked the judge advocate, Lieut. Commander Ralph G. Pennoyer.

"Yes sir."

Error in Navigation

Wiley said he mentioned the possibility of changing the course to the westward when he saw the first lightning to the south. Captain McCord, he said, replied that he had noticed lightning in the west and was shifting the course eastward. In this regard, Wiley observed he had not seen any lightning in the west himself until a half hour after this conversation in the control car.

After the ship took the course seaward a mistake was made in navigation, Wiley informed the court. "The captain told me he had ordered a 15 degree change in the course and that a mistake had been made and the course changed 50 degrees."

No apparent significance was attached to this either by the court or the judge advocate.

Able Skipper

The witness paid high tribute to McCord's ability as the commander of the dirigible. Since McCord was appointed the ship's skipper last Jan. 3, he said, "the ship had operated more extensively and successfully than at any other time in her history."

Wiley was visibly affected as he spoke of his former chief. His voice grew husky as he praised him and lauded the calm courage and discipline of both officers and crew as the ship plunged to her doom.

"Stand By" Wiley recounted bit by bit all the details of the fatal trip from the takeoff in fog from here at 7:28 last Monday night to his last calm order, "stand by for a crash."

Among other things he told of frequent conferences on the weather after the ship turned westward from the Delaware and was riding toward the sea through a sky ringed with blinding lightning.

During the day preceding the takeoff Wiley said he and Captain McCord had made frequent trips to the aerology station here. The weather map then showed bad conditions over Michigan, moving northeast.

"This, however, was outside our area of operations, and we did not consider it a threat," he observed.

Unfavorable Weather

The fog and poor visibility, however, led to McCord's countermanding orders for taking the small air-planes along with the dirigible for the book and takeoff operations that had been planned. The forecast, Wiley said, likewise was that the weather in the vicinity of Newport, R. I., the ship's first goal, would be unfavorable.

The ship was not due at Newport until an hour after sunrise, Wiley explained, and hence "my impression was that the captain expected to remain in the New Jersey area during the night until the unsettled weather moved from the coast."

Relatives Present

A small group of serious faced, dry eyed women in the improvised court room in the gas cell shop listened gravely. They were the widows and relatives of men who had lost their lives in the crash.

The lieutenant stated categorically that he had no complaint or criticism to make of any of the ship's officers or crew on the fatal voyage. He supported this statement with a graphic story of how every one stood by his post without panic to the end, Captain McCord and Lieut. George Calnan valving ballast to the last in an effort to bring the snip out of the death descent.

There was a stir in the court at the opening of the session when a notebook, containing records of the last flight, was identified by Wiley and placed in evidence. The book, the judge advocate announced, was kept by First Lieut. H. V. Duran, one of the 73 men lost. The book was found in the pocket of Dugan's coat. It was presumed the coat was picked up at sea.

Highlights

Among the highlights of Wiley's testimony, to be continued tomorrow, were:

That the ship's 1,500 feet altitude during the storm was considered safe.

That the fact the ship was 5,000 pounds heavy in the storm was not unusual, since it had weathered bad weather when 40,000 pounds heavy.

That McCord changed his course to 120 degrees true just before the crash broke because "he did not know where we were," and wanted to seek territory to the southeast where there was no danger of flying over a city with tall buildings.

And that the ill-fated Akron was, in his opinion, a trustworthy ship.

Diplomatic Relations Strained as British Envoy and Foreign Secretary Assail Soviet's Treatment of Britons Accused of Sabotage and Espionage.

SIR JOHN SIMON, MAXIM LITVINOFF, SIR ESMOND OVEY and MICHAEL I. KALININ

LONDON, Eng.—While it is freely rumored here that the United States is virtually on the brink of extending the right hand of friendship to Soviet Russia, present indications in British circles are that while Uncle Sam may come in the front door to renew diplomatic relations with the erstwhile Land of Czars, John Bull will go out the back door, no longer on speaking terms with the Soviet.

For Great Britain is thoroughly angry. The British lion is aroused and growling menacingly over what it considers an injustice to certain of its subjects who had been aiding the Soviet in the progress of the famous five-year plan only to be put in jail for their pains.

The men in question comprise a group of engineers employed by a British firm which had contracted to install a number of power plants in Russia. Some weeks ago they were thrown into jail by the OGPU, the Soviet secret police, on charges of sabotage and espionage, which the men insist, were trumped up and without foundation. At first the matter was taken lightly, it being believed that the occurrence was due to a misunderstanding, but when Sir Esmond Ovey, British Ambassador to Moscow, failed to obtain the release of his compatriots, the affair began to assume serious aspects.

Notes began to fly between London and Moscow demanding the immediate release of the Britishers and the dropping of the "ridiculous" charges. But Soviet officials remained adamant. The prisoners must go to trial, they said. However, some of the men were admitted to bail.

The crux of the matter was that the British Ambassador was recalled from Moscow to make a personal report to his government. This Sir Esmond did, in no uncertain terms. He said that the charges against the British engineers were the result of Russia having worked herself into a state of "morbid hysteria" in fearing a

DES MOINES, April 10 (AP)—One suspected burglar was reported dying and three other persons were being held by police today following a gun battle between officers and the wounded man.

A raid on the house resulted in the arrest of a man who gave his name as M. R. Burton, his wife, and Fred H. Lee. A shotgun was found lying on the table.

The plan, members of the board said, would require the refunding of $10,000 in Black Hawk county road bonds.

The Black Hawk county board contends that available money should be apportioned to all the counties on a pro rata basis.

Johnson county was given a check for $10,887.18 yesterday afternoon by the law firm of Wilson, Clearman and Brant, attorneys for the American Surety company.

The check was to satisfy a judgment returned against the company by Judge Frank L. Bechly following a trial to place responsibility for a $20,000 discrepancy in county funds. It represents the amount of the bond of former County Treasurer Charles L. Berry, and interest. The balance of the shortage will be taken care of through the state sinking fund, and will be prorated between counties.

Expenditures by the American Legion Unemployment Relief association last week were only $51.27, the report of Charles Kennett, chairman, shows. This low figure was caused, Mr. Kennett said, by bad weather which prevented many men from working.

These expenses left a balance on hand April 8 of $452.97. No income from the Community Chest was received during the week. Disbursements were as follows: airport, $27; new check book, $2.50; bank charges, $5.72; office secretary's salary, $12; and telephone, $4.75.
