F. D. Accepts British Debt Installment

Promises Review of Problem as Token of Good Faith

BULLETIN
PARIS, June 14 (AP)—A French notice of debt default will be handed to the Washington government tomorrow by Ambassador de Laboulaye.
It was learned tonight, after the return of Premier Daladier from the world economic conference, that the notice will reiterate that the French positions are unchanged since the chamber vote of last December defaulting the payment due at that time.

BULLETIN
WARSAW, Poland, June 14 (AP)—A government communiqué announced tonight that Polish Ambassador Patek notified the Washington government that the situation was unchanged and asked for postponement of the debt payment due tomorrow, amounting to $3,559,000 interest.

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—A review of Great Britain's debt to the United States was promised today by President Roosevelt in announcing a 10 million dollar debt payment had been tendered by that country in "acknowledgment" of tomorrow's due date.
In a formal note tendering the partial payment of the $75,950,000 due, the British government asserted the sum was to be considered "acknowledgment of the debt pending final settlement."

Lacks Authority
The American reply set forth Mr. Roosevelt's lack of authority to alter the existing agreement and, in a supplementary statement, Mr. Roosevelt said that he would not consider non-payment of the balance due as default.
"In a spirit of co-operation I have as executive noted the representations of the British government with respect to the payment of the June 15 installment inasmuch as the payment made is accompanied by a clear acknowledgment of the debt itself," the president's statement said.
"In view of these representations and of the payment I have no personal hesitation in saying that I do not characterize the resultant situation as a default."

"Can't Go"
"Beyond this, the law and the constitution do not permit me to go. The American public understands clearly that the settlement under which these debts are now being paid was made under the authority of congress and that congress alone has the right to alter the amount and method of payment of this debt.
"Further than this," the congress in December, 1931, in approving the moratorium in June of that year, specifically set forth that the debt should not be cancelled or reduced."
Mr. Roosevelt, puffing at a cigarette, read to correspondents the British note, the American reply and his own supplementary statement.
In neither the American note, which went to London today, nor in Mr. Roosevelt's statement were found the words 'receive' or 'accept.'

Roosevelt Says:
Mr. Roosevelt said: "The British government has today announced a payment to the United States of $10,000,000 with a note indicating that this payment is to be considered 'an acknowledgment of the debt pending a final settlement.' It has in its accompanying note pointed out circumstances that have induced it to take this action."
There were immediate reverberations on Capitol Hill. Senator Robinson of Indiana, Republican anti-cancellationist, assailed the partial payment. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, replied to him.

Meanwhile, Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain outlined the procedure to the house of commons and said the sum would be paid in silver procured in India, and received by the United States at 50 cents an ounce.
Acceptance of debt payments in silver to a maximum of $200,000,000

Only One Defeat

President Roosevelt, whose vast program has sped through congress in a manner seldom equaled in American history, met his first defeat last night when the senate, undismayed by the threat of a certain veto, added $30,000,000 to the program for a slash in veterans' compensation.

Debate Aid for States

Iowa, Nebraska Officials Still Uncertain as to Relief

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Iowa and Nebraska representatives who attended the conference on federal relief administration today were still uncertain how much their states would receive from the half billion dollars appropriated for federal relief.
E. H. Mulock and Ralph Kittinger of Des Moines represented Iowa at the meeting. William H. Smith, state tax commissioner, was Governor Bryan's representative, and Mrs. Arthur Mullen, wife of the Nebraska Democratic committeeman, also was present.
"Our main interest is to find out how much Iowa is to get," Mulock said after a regional session this afternoon, "and so far we can't tell."
Under the administration program, half of the $500,000,000 will be apportioned to the states on the basis of one federal dollar for every three dollars disbursed by public agencies in the state for relief. The other half is to be given to the states at the discretion of the administration, where shown to be absolutely necessary.

Recommend Five Men for Vet Review Board

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—The Iowa Democratic delegation today recommended five men for consideration by the veterans' administration in appointing a board to review presumptive cases in the Des Moines region under the veterans compensation plan.
Those recommended were General M. A. Tinley of Council Bluffs, Everett Waller of Sioux City, C. W. Nolan of Clinton, Charles Altfillish of Decorah and Walter L. Abel of Waterloo.

was authorized by the special session of congress in enacting the inflation legislation.
Above 10 Per Cent
Officials pointed out that the British payment was well above the 10 per cent figure that information from London had indicated was proposed.
President Roosevelt also was considering a proposal from Italy that she too make only a partial payment, indicated today as limited to the amount of the interest due, a sum considerably less than 10 per cent of the total $13,545,000 installment.

A second default by France, owing $40,738,000, was regarded as inevitable. Czechoslovakia was preparing to make a partial payment as also was Rumania. Belgium had already declared its intentions of defaulting.
Ambassador Patek of Poland discussed that country's debts today with Assistant Secretary Moley at the state department and tomorrow will make known the decision of his government about June 15 payments.

J. Ray Murphy Talks Before Elks Meeting

Calls World 'Confusing,
Complex' in Flag
Day Address

By DICK FAGAN
(City Editor, The Daily Iowan)
"Never, it seems to me, have we looked out upon a world so confusing and so complex as that which we face in this year of our Lord, 1933," J. Ray Murphy of Ida Grove, chairman of the American Legion national legislative committee, contended in an address at the annual Flag day ceremony of the Elks lodge last night in the club rooms.
After reviewing the history of the United States showing how its people have marched ever forward under the Stars and Stripes, Mr. Murphy reviewed the present outlook for the country:
"Rugged individualism, as once we knew it, is disappearing. Paternalism in government increases by leaps and bounds with the almost ecstatic approval of our people, once so proud and jealous of their personal rights and of their state and local governments. Gangsters, hoodlums, and racketeers lay heavy toll upon the legitimate activities of great cities.
"And not content," he continued, "reach out with sinister hands toward control of our most respected institutions, our legislatures, and our courts. Millions of men in desperation pound the streets of the nation looking in vain for honest work; three hundred thousand jobless boys drift aimlessly from city to city, hitch-hiking and riding the roads, bawling food and shelter, lodging in squalid jails and box cars, and in the jungles of hobo land.
"A gloomy picture?" he asked.
"At some angles, yes. But at other angles highly colorful, and intensely vital and interesting, always. An ever changing picture, a picture to which we of the present can and must contribute our own colors and our own art, that we may spread upon the great canvas of time the vision and the achievement of our generation."
"Yes," he continued, "we are in the midst of rapid changes, but except there be a change in the eternal verities of honor and truth, we need not fear. For the future we can have no guaranty of security and safety, and will not ask for it. Life still must be a great, a supreme adventure.
After warning that we cannot

Four Sentenced, Three Await Trial on Arson Charge

MAQUOKETA, June 14 (AP)—Sentences have been passed on several of seven men alleged to have been implicated in the burning of the farm home of Relbert Bickford, near here, two years ago. Bickford collected $1,500 insurance.
George Kruef of Davenport, was given an indeterminate sentence in Anamosa reformatory; Basel Hinton was sentenced to five years but paroled to his brother-in-law; Alfred Nelson was sentenced to five years and Frank Broders was given the same term. All are from Davenport.
Broders' term is to run concurrent with a present sentence at Anamosa where he was sent for stealing hogs. Leroy Nelson and Lee Miller, also of Davenport, are to be sentenced Friday.
Bickford, who is ill in a hospital, is to be questioned later.

Furniture Shop in Burlington Damaged

BURLINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Damage estimated at $22,000 resulted from a blaze in a downtown furniture shop tonight. The fire was started by a spark from a motor as rugs were being sprayed with a moth preventative fluid.
Manager Harold White said the loss in ruined furniture amounted to $10,000 and Bert Waggoner, owner of the building, estimated damage to it at $12,000.

John Figg, manager of the Transient hotel, received slight injuries when struck by a car yesterday afternoon, while crossing the street at the intersection of Burlington and Clinton streets. Mr. Figg was crossing from the north to the south side of the street, when a car driven by Mrs. John Cameron of west of the city, going east on Burlington street, struck him.

Would Test Legal Status

SIoux CITY, June 14 (AP)—A test of the constitutionality of one of the major economic acts passed by the last general assembly was broached today in district court by counsel for F. P. Rice Smith, Woodbury county treasurer.
The act, known as senate file 479, provides 10 and 15 per cent reductions in the salaries of all public officials in Iowa, excepting sheriffs, judges and court reporters.
Smith is suing for a writ of mandamus to compel the county auditor, Frank S. Lamar, to pay him the salary in effect at the time of his election in November. An amended petition was filed today attacking the constitutionality and legality of the new law.

Chamberlain Acknowledges Rest Due U. S.

Accepts Invitation to Formal Debt Parley
at Washington

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—A payment of $10,000,000 in silver on Great Britain's war debt obligation of $75,950,000 due the United States tomorrow was announced to the house of commons tonight by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, in a statement which acknowledged the "debt pending final settlement."
Simultaneously, the chancellor stated formal debt negotiations between Great Britain and the United States upon the entire problem will be started at Washington in accordance with President Roosevelt's reply to the British remittance.
U. S. Accepts
The United States accepted the partial payment, the chancellor declared, "without prejudicing the freedom of either government in subsequent discussions."
News of the arrangement was hailed by the American delegation to the world economic conference and the chancellor with high hopes that it might open the way for genuine progress toward economic rehabilitation.
Partial Payment
The partial payment, Mr. Chamberlain told a cheering house, will be made in silver at 50 cents a fine ounce and constitutes Great Britain's acknowledgment of her obligation to America under the war debt account.
Labor and liberal spokesmen, applauding the arrangement, joined Chancellor Chamberlain in praising President Roosevelt for his acceptance of the scheme of payment.
"The difficult and delicate problem has been adjusted," the chancellor announced in revealing the results of several days anxious negotiations between London and Washington.
Good Augury
"It is a good augury for the success of the world economic conference and may prove the first step toward complete and final settlement of the whole of the war debts."
The chancellor revealed that the British government had hoped that it would be possible for the United States to accede to a request that the payment of the June installment be postponed pending discussion of the war debts as a whole.
"They (the British government) maintained this hope up to a very recent date," the chancellor continued. "In the end it became clear that it could not be realized. They therefore had to decide upon their course of action in these circumstances as they found them."
The American president was con-

Two Slain in Gun Battle

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 14 (AP)—Two officers were shot to death here today by three men fleeing with the loot of a holdup of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Mexico, Mo. Posses sought them tonight, many citizens joining authorities in the hunt throughout central Missouri.
Sheriff Riger Wilson, 42, of Boone county, and Sergeant Ben Booth, 38, a state highway patrolman, were slain when they halted the three men for questioning 45 minutes after the robbery.
The slayers continued their motor car flight eastward. Four airplane pilots took off in efforts to spot the trio from the air.
Witnesses said that Wilson and Booth, after halting the robbers' car, had questioned the men about two minutes when the driver whipped out a pistol and began shooting.

Three Billion Dollar Appropriation Measure Still Awaiting Action With Independent Offices Bill Hanging Fire in House

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Out of a dazzling whirl of developments, the veterans dispute was passed tonight from the senate to the house and a vote by that branch on whether to accept more liberal compensations for former warriors was put over until tomorrow.
In the face of a certain presidential veto, the senate wrote into the independent offices appropriation bill a change which would give the veterans some thirty million dollars more of compensations than was provided in the compromise agreed upon by President Roosevelt and house leaders.

Vets' Cuts J. Ray Murphy Says People Should Seek Change.

J. Ray Murphy of Ida Grove, chairman of the American Legion national legislative committee and former commander of the Iowa department, when informed of the action that congress had taken on the veterans' cut bill said in an interview last night:
"The veterans' cuts as they still stand in present regulations are so deep, and so fraught with gravest consequences to the disabled veteran, even to the extent of being a matter of life and death in many instances, that if the American people were fully informed they would demand a very substantial change."
The senators and representatives now know this, for thousands of pitiful cases have been brought to their attention. They do not fear public opinion as they did when the economy bill became law, for they know that public opinion, once it becomes aware of true conditions as created by the new regulations, will sustain extensive liberalization."

Search Intensified for Bussey Bandits Following Kidnaping

KNOXVILLE, June 14 (AP)—Sought for two days in connection with the Bussey bank robbery, Joe Mella of Pershing, voluntarily surrendered to Marion county officers at Lovilia late today and was brought here for questioning.
ALBIA, June 14 (AP)—Search has been intensified for two of the Bussey bank bandits following the kidnaping of Albert Hart and his release in Kansas City.
Authorities believed the men who forced Hart to drive them to Kansas City yesterday were among the four men who Monday held up the State bank of Bussey and obtained about $8,000.
Hart picked up one of the men on the highway near Albia yesterday and the other a short distance down the road. Compelling him to drive to Kansas City, they left Hart and his car in the suburbs.
Hart reached home this morning and conferred with the sheriff during the day.

Nearly 500 G. A. R. Veterans Assemble at Iowa Encampment

FT. MADISON, June 14 (AP)—was just a remnant of Iowa's mighty force of G.A.R. veterans which participated in the parade the fifty-ninth annual state encampment today, but they drew plaudits of admiring throngs who lined the thoroughfare here to them homage.

State Adjutant John P. Risley reported less than 500 veterans as last Dec. 31. During the last year 169 had answered the last roll call. By 1940, it is estimated, few if any of the proud army of 1861-65 will left.

R. S. McKeehon, 94, of Atterbury, one of the oldest drummer boys in the United States, was here as was Charles Davis, 95, colored, of Keokuk, who was the guest of the department.

Davis deserted his slave master during the war and enlisted in the 56th Missouri infantry when passed through Tennessee.

Round Table Discussion Will Feature Child Welfare, Parent Education Meeting

Stoddard Will Direct 3-Day Parley Here

Program Emphasizes School's Part in Teaching Child

Six round table discussions, each headed by a leader in his field, will be a feature of the program of the University of Iowa conference on child welfare and parent education, to be held here next week.

Prof. George D. Stoddard, director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station, has planned a three-day conference which presents a program of lectures and round table and symposium discussions by men and women in the field of child study and education.

The program places special emphasis on the place the public schools have in child study and parent education through mental hygiene, personality development, character education, and psychological development, character education, and psychological clinic work. Carleton Washburne, superintendent of the Winnetka, Ill., public schools, represents the progressive movement to adjust the schools to the individual child. He is known for his work in promoting scientific investigation in progressive education.

The lectures of a psychiatrist who has had much professional experience with children and their behavior problems will be a high light in the routine.

Esther Loring Richards, professor of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins university will discuss "The origin of conduct problems in school children" and will conduct round table discussions on "Mental hygiene of the school child."

Hedley S. Dimock, professor of religious education at George Williams college, Chicago, will speak on "Religion and the modern child." Mr. Dimock is an active worker in the Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. C. E. Roe, field secretary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will give a lecture, "The place of national organizations in child study and parent education." She will also conduct a symposium on the work of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Ralph H. Ojemann of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station will illustrate how child study group work is carried on and directed by radio.

Harold M. Skeels will show motion pictures of life in the preschools. These movies show activities of preschool children in the group both indoors and outdoors. Jennie Rowntree, professor of home economics at Washington university, Seattle, Wash., will give a symposium lecture on "Parent education in the Pacific northwest."

Carl H. Milam, secretary of the American Library association will lecture on library service offered to children. Mr. Milam will also conduct a round table on the same subject.

Harry J. Baker, director of the psychopathic clinic of the Detroit public schools, will discuss "The place of clinical service in the public school." To both his lecture and his round table discussion, "The psychological clinic," he will bring the experience of several years' work in this field.

In addition to the lectures, round tables, and symposiums of the conference, an institute for study group leaders will be conducted in conjunction with the conference meetings. An exhibit of materials and equipment tours through the preschool laboratories and the preschool movies will be other features of the program.

The climax of the conference will be the conference dinner. Following the dinner, Floyd Dell, novelist, playwright, and lecturer will speak on "Education in the machine age." Mr. Dell is one of the contemporary novelists who has turned his interests to the study of human behavior. His book "Love in the Machine Age" has been accepted by psychologists.

All sessions of the conference are open to the public and there are no admission charges or registration fees. Last year 715 persons from Iowa and other states attended the conference.

Legion Unemployment Fund Shows Balance

A balance of $17.64 is reported for the American Legion Unemployment bureau for the week ending June 10 by D. W. Crum, financial chairman, and Charles Kennett, chairman.

The balance on hand June 3 was $29.64, and the only disbursement was $12 for secretary. There were no receipts from the community chest.

Farmers of Colquitt county, Ga., this year harvested one of the best oats crops in history. It will be used chiefly as hay.

Plan Purchase of Police Car

Bids Being Taken for Council Meeting Tomorrow

Bids are now being accepted for a new police car by Police Chief W. H. Bender. A committee of three, consisting of Aldermen Roscoe Ayers, James E. Stronks, and J. P. Memier, was appointed by the council at the last meeting to investigate the need of a new car.

The committee authorized Chief Bender to ask the Iowa City dealers selling Chevrolet, Pontiac, Essex, Plymouth, Rockne, and Ford cars to submit sealed bids. The bids will be opened tomorrow night by the committee before the council meeting. If the bids are satisfactory to the council and they approve the expenditure a new car will be bought.

The present police car, an Essex driven 35,000 miles, will be turned in on the new car. The bids are for standard four door sedans, less tubes and tires.

Repairs on the old car were becoming so frequent that Chief Bender recommended that the city buy a new car saving expensive repair bills.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civil service commission has been asked to hold examinations of applicants for the postmastership at Perkins, Ia. The date of the examinations will be announced by the post office there.

Lapp Explains Rise of Steam Engine as Method of Power

Gives First Lecture in Physics Series Last Night

The growth of the steam engine as a method of industrial power was traced by Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department in the first of a series of lectures on "This physical world," in physics auditorium last evening.

Speaking on the subject, "The rise of the robot," Professor Lapp declared that the future of the machine age is problematical; only its past can be certain.

Every civilization, regardless of how early it was, had some form of motor or engine," he told the audience of nearly 100, assembled for the opening address in the series.

"The machine common to all of them was the human body." The speaker compared the human body with machines, showing that the human body develops one-tenth of a horsepower, as compared with one horsepower to each, two pounds in the modern engine.

It would take 500 years, Professor Lapp pointed out, for a man to spade a section of land. With a gang plow it can be done in 36 hours. It would take 5,400,000 galley slaves, such as were used by the Romans, to row the airplane carrier Saratoga.

The richest man of Rome could command 4,116 slaves, which is equivalent to a mere 130 horsepower engine, which is the property of the ordinary man today.

In discussing the invention of the steam engine, Professor Lapp traced its growth before the time of Watt, commonly supposed to be its inventor.

As early as 150 B. C. a steam engine had been developed, the forerunner of the modern turbine. With this as a basis, later experimenters developed more efficient parts, until the time of Watt, who was able to make the steam engine a real success.

The speaker illustrated his address with drawings and slides. He

44 Johnson County Farmers Request Forest Army's Aid

Forty-four Johnson county farmers have notified the Johnson County Farm bureau office that they are interested in soil improvement work on their farms. The work will be done through the civilian conservation corps now encamped in Iowa City at the airport park.

F. S. Yetter, camp superintendent, said yesterday that the man would probably start on the soil erosion work next week after the camp is fully completed.

Rabbi Talks Here Tonight

Will Lecture on "Jew's Place in History," at Auditorium

Rabbi Felix A. Levy of the Emanuel congregation, Chicago, will lecture tonight at 8 o'clock in chemistry auditorium on the subject, "The Jew's place in history."

The rabbi was educated in New York and Chicago. He received his A.B. from the College of the City of New York, and did graduate work at Columbia university and the Jewish Theological seminary. His Ph.D. was granted from the University of Chicago.

He was first the rabbi of Hebrew Union college and later was in charge of Brith Kodesh congregation. Since 1908 he has made his home in Chicago where he is rabbi of Emanuel congregation.

Rabbi Levy was welfare worker at the Jewish welfare building, during the World war.

He has lectured for the Jewish Chautauqua society, has been associate editor of B'nai Brith News, and has contributed to the Reform Advocate. His address here tonight will be under the auspices of the chautauqua group.

Rabbi Levy is the author of several books: "Royal Dynastic Obsession," "Moses Mendelssohn's Ideals of Religion," "The Task of Reform Judaism," and "Judaism and Modern Thought."

Rabbi Levy has given two lectures at this university. His lecture tonight will be open to the general public.

Time to Decide

NOW that the public works bill appropriating $3,300,000,000 for the relief of unemployment has become law, Iowa City stands in line for its share of the $30,000,000 or more to be allotted to Iowa.

THE DAILY IOWAN reiterates its suggestion that the first consideration in the expenditure of whatever funds might come to Iowa City be given to the construction of a public playground.

The money could be spent in innumerable ways. It remains for the local relief committee to adopt those projects which it feels will be of the most importance to the community, will provide the greatest amount of work for the unemployed, and will be acceptable to the state advisory committee on public works.

Perhaps the funds will be sufficient to carry out several different projects. Some of those so far suggested include construction of a sewage disposal plant, paving of certain streets, and park construction and improvement.

All of these are worthy. It is doubtful, however, if any conceivable project that could be built with a reasonable outlay would be of more lasting and constructive benefit to the city as a whole than a supervised playground for children.

Other cities are recognizing the vital need for such social insurance. Des Moines, for instance, is opening this summer a number of playgrounds, having learned by experience the almost dramatic decrease in crime and delinquency which results.

Iowa City, with the best of educational advantages, makes no provision whatever for filling profitably the leisure time of its children. Those who have not the advantage of first rate home environments can do nothing but wander. Their resultant delinquency is the fault of the community, not theirs.

These children deserve a chance to become useful citizens. They should be given every possible opportunity, for themselves and for Iowa City.

Sixty in Blue

FIFTY MADISON was a town of merry sadness yesterday as it played host to 60 grey boys in blue.

The once long, proud lines are thinning rapidly in the greying mists as they march a little faltering over the horizon to the last bivouac.

The 60 who met yesterday spent their time remembering the old days, the time 59 years ago when more than 20,000 met for their first encampment.

They were not sad. They have lived lives full of usefulness. Even the fact that the statisticians say there will be no camp in 1940 did not make them sorrowful. What of it?

It was the rest of us who were sad. It is not only that the battles they fought were so futile and so useless, or that the whole cause which formed the centerpiece of their lives appears from this distance so regrettable. It is the fact that the wound opened so long ago has not yet completely healed and that the grey is still the grey and the blue the blue.

And there is still a further cause of sorrow. When their ranks have been thinned to the last man, when there are no more blues and no more greys, we shall have before us the long parade of the khaki, whose battles were even more futile.

Is it too much to ask that the khaki shall be the last?

Let Congress Adjourn

WITH FINAL adoption by congress yesterday of the last two major proposals of the Roosevelt administration—the public works-industry control bill and the Glass-Steagall banking measure, the nation can now sit back and wait for success or failure.

President Roosevelt's control over congress, almost absolute since his inauguration, was waning even as the last of his important measures were given final approval. The industry control measure mustered a majority of only seven votes when the conference report was accepted Tuesday evening.

The congress is still in the throes of a disagreement over the veterans' appropriation and is not expected to adjourn until the end of the week.

In Europe, prospects for the success of the economic conference appear more hazy as the question of war debts persists in pushing its ugly countenance up through the placid surface.

Altogether, the future looks hardly as rosy as it did a week ago. But there is still cause for hope.

The president now has enough power to do much as he pleases as far as internal affairs are concerned; success in this respect is dependent to a large extent on the administration of this power. As for the international problem, Roosevelt will probably have to await the adjournment of congress before he will be able to take appeasing steps.

GOOD MORNING

The question of a league of nations made up of the Caribbean, Central and South American countries, and the United States was broached again not long ago, this time by El Salvador.

The idea of a Pan-American league of nations is not new. It was suggested in 1920 by the late Uruguayan president, Dr. Baltasar Brum, who based his contentions on the fact that the council of the League of Nations was framed by the great powers to the exclusion of the Latin-American republics. His proposal for such a league included the following conclusions:

- 1) All American countries should consider as a direct offense anything that might be inflicted by extra-continental nations on the rights of league members.
- 2) An American league should be formed on the basis of absolute equality of all associate nations and without prejudice to the world League of Nations.
- 3) All controversies of any nature whatsoever which might arise among the American republics should be submitted to an American league when they cannot be settled directly by friendly mediation.
- 4) Any American nation having controversy with the world League of Nations would ask for the cooperation of the associate members of the American league.

President Brum was not the only man, however, who has pressed such a scheme. William Randolph Hearst has championed a Pan-American league for many years. Mr. Hearst, of course, sees a great economic advantage in such a union, contending that the two Americas could be entirely independent of the rest of the world economically if they were united in a common purpose.

Based on the same broad conception of American brotherhood, but not as potent as a political league of nations, the Pan-American Union is still functioning. The Union, however, was organized on the assumption that instead of seeking to impose peace or to act as an instrument for settling political controversies, it was better to instill in the thinking of the people and the political leaders of the American republics a spirit of cooperation and neighborliness in order to make wars and serious disputes impossible.

There can be no doubt that if the purpose of the Pan-American Union is possible of fulfillment it is by far the most desirable procedure. In any event, such a program of education should be relentlessly pursued. But if there is to be any permanent peace in Latin-America and if the commercial and cultural relations of North and South America are to be closely cemented, the efficacy of a political union cannot be questioned.

Granting all the advantages that would doubtless accrue from the league of nations suggested by El Salvador—which follows closely the lines of that proposed by Dr. Brum, the plan presents several major questions.

Would the formation of an American league of nations and the consequent severing of direct relations with the world league on the part of the Latin-American republics be a wise move at a time when all efforts are being bent toward world-wide cooperation of all governments?

Would the formation of such a league bring about a more or less sudden division of the world into three opposing forces, the European, Asiatic, and American? Such a result would be highly probable and the prospect would not be pleasing.

Finally, are the peoples of the Central and South American republics ready for participation in a Pan-American organization which holds, in addition to its favorable prospects, so many sinister possibilities?

The great majority of these peoples are notably backward. Governments in Latin America have only recently begun to recognize the necessity of thorough education as a basis for republican rule. The process of educating the masses has just begun and until it is well on its way there is little likelihood that the question can be answered in the affirmative.

The whole thing is a moot question. The plan has much to commend it and much to condemn it. It is at least something to think about as a possible move for the future in case present attempts toward international cooperation should fail.

Book Bits—
(From Henry Adams, by James Truslow Adams)
If he never found a satisfactory method of education he has succinctly expressed his own idea of its aim and of the test of its success. Its eternal task, he says, is to solve the problem "of running order through chaos, direction through space, discipline through freedom, unity through multiplicity."

(From Marjorie Daw, by Thomas Bailey Aldrich)
"Thirty years ago," I reflected, "I was nothing; fifty years hence I shall be nothing again, humanly speaking. In the mean time, who am I, sure enough?"

(From The Great Illusion 1933, by Norman Angell)
"The peace advocate pleads for 'altruism' in international relationships, and in so doing admits that successful war may be to the interest, though the moral interest, of the victorious party. That is why the 'inhumanity' of war bulks so large in his propaganda, and why he dwells so much upon its horrors and cruelties."

To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the First Term of the Summer Session, July 20, 1933.
Every student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the university Convocation, to be held Thursday, July 20, 1933, should make his formal application on a card provided for this purpose, at the registrar's office on or before Saturday, June 24, 1933.

It is of utmost importance that each person concerned comply with this request immediately, for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present term.
Making application for the degree or certificate involves the payment of the graduation fee ($15) at the time the application is made—the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call at the registrar's office for the card.
H. C. DORCAS, registrar

Keeping Up With the New Books

By JOHN SELBY

"The Romantic Exiles," by Edward Hallett Carr; (Frederick A. Stokes company, New York).

NEW YORK—Probably a good share of the gentlemen now engineering the Russian revolution never heard of Alexander Herzen, and if they have, consider him as definitely a relic from the attic of the past as a jar of rose petals, or a set of grandmother's hoops.

Not without cause. Herzen was most active in the 'fifties and 'sixties, and died early in 1870. He was no nihilist and no waver of the red flag. He was, essentially, a bourgeois of independent means and generous disposition who felt that the first step toward Russian freedom was the liberation of the serfs.

Herzen was also a romanticist, as Edward Hallett Carr points out in "The Romantic Exiles," published today. It seems strange, not to say unbelievable, that the romantics once were revolutionists not only in literature and music, but in the political field. Yet they were. In any case, Herzen's was an interesting as well as romantic life, James Buchanan.

perhaps more interesting to us moderns for its sidelights than for its accomplishments, for the latter were not important in a broad sense.

Especially in London, Herzen's major functions were two: to provide, at his home, a meeting place where all whose ambition was a democratic Russia might meet and plot, and to publish (and finance) "The Bell," which was the periodical of Revolution and a thorn in the sensitive side of Russian imperial officialdom.

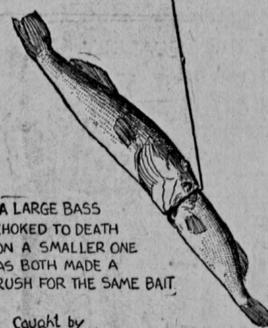

At the last, Herzen woke to the reality that confronts many revolutionaries. He found, quite suddenly, that he and his concepts had been pitched into the ditch, and that "The Bell" was ringing away without a soul to listen. It was not a happy awakening.

Nor is Herzen the only figure in Mr. Carr's book of romantic revolutionaries. Besides the innumerable Russian exiles, one meets Mazzini, Kossuth, Victor Hugo, Marx, Raspail, Worcell, Sue, and even

By HARRISON CARROLL

SCREEN COMMENT

FILM SCANDAL

HOLLYWOOD—Whenever Sally Eilers can tear herself away from London, Sol Wurtzel has a picture ready for her to step into at the Fox Hollywood studio.

It is Kathleen Norris' "Walls of Gold," a story about a Broadway play-girl who refuses to settle down until—well, what do you think?

The boy in the picture will be Norman Foster, who teamed very nicely with Sally in "State Fair." Norman is a Fox contract player, in case you didn't know. He has been loaned frequently to other studios, but now that Fox is getting back to its usual volume of production, you'll see him more on the lot.

From a half dozen people in England, you hear how popular Sally is and what a good time she's having. One of my scouts writes of seeing her and Harry Joe Brown dancing to the music of Bert Ambrose's new Mayfair band. Babe and Ben Lyon were there the same night, also, Thelma Todd and Dennis King, Jeanette MacDonald and Bob Ritchie, Hal Roach and others. It was like the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles, like

If Connie Bennett had any plans to go out of town on her five weeks vacation, she's given them up now. After months of attempts, a process-server finally has handed her the papers in that $30,000 commission suit brought by the Joyce-Selznick agency.

The films are to get Mary McCormic at last. While Mae Murray was filing suit for divorce yesterday against Prince David M'Divani, the former Chicago opera star, who is married to brother Serge, was preparing to make her motion picture debut in Janet Gaynor's new picture, "Paddy the Next Best Thing." It came about this way. Both Miss McCormic and Director Harry Lachman of this film were proteges of Mary Garden. He persuaded her to take the role.

Sometime this month, the marriage of Josephine Seanz and John Wayne will take place in the garden of Loretta Young's Bel Air home. Loretta will be bridesmaid. Incidentally, this young star has just bought the lot next to her property and is building a combination guest-house and play-room. . . . That large conditions,

Rienow Again Leads Faculty in Committee Memberships

Named to Eight Groups in Appointments for 1933-34

His customary place as the member of the most University of Iowa boards and committees again has been assumed by Robert E. Rienow, dean of men.

According to the official appointments for 1933-34, Dean Rienow heads the committee on scholarships and loans and military affairs, and is a full member of groups governing extra-curricular activities, freshman lectures, health, and student housing.

Rienow on Eight Groups

By continuing as an ex-officio member of the discipline and social organizations committees, he brings his total number to eight, equalling that of last year.

Dean Rienow, however, will be only slightly more occupied with committee work than will Mrs. Adelaide Burge, dean of women. She has been named on six groups.

Ranking in third place is Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department, appointed to five committees, while Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, is on four.

New Chairmen Named

New chairmen have taken over the leadership of two groups. They are Prof. Clarence M. Updegraff, board in control of athletics, and Dr. Everett D. Flass, maternal and infant hygiene.

Leaders of other bodies are: Advisory, President Walter A. Jessup; audit, William H. Cobb; auditorium and intercollegiate debate, dramatics, and oratory, Prof. Edward C. Mable; constitution, Prof. Charles B. Ensign; extra-curricular activities, and freshman lectures, Prof. Arthur C. Trowbridge; library, Prof. Winfred T. Root; music, Prof. Philip G. Clapp; radio, Bruce E. Mahan; religious education, Dean George F. Kay; social organizations and affairs, Rufus H. Fitzgerald; student housing, Prof. Earle S. Smith; student publications, Prof. Frank L. Mott; university lectures, Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, and vespers, Prof. M. Willard Lampe.

Arrange New Photo Exhibit

"One-Man" Exhibition of Pittsburgh Man Displayed

A photographic exhibit, another "one-man show" by O. C. Reiter of Pittsburgh, Pa., will be placed on view at Iowa Union today. It was announced by Benjamin W. Robinson, in charge of photographic exhibits at the Union.

Mr. Reiter is nationally known in the field of photography and is district director for the middle west of the Pictorial Photographers of America. He was one of the founders of the Pittsburgh Salon of Photography at Carnegie institute in 1912.

Among the pictures to be hung here are: "The Husbandman," a composite of a sky background, negative and a negative of the foreground scene, which Mr. Reiter classes among his favorites; "The Spirit of Pittsburgh," showing the factory roofs and dark smokestacks; and "Beside Still Waters," a country scene.

"The Husbandman" and "The Spirit of Pittsburgh" were reproduced in a recent issue of Camera Craft, a magazine devoted to photography.

Mr. Robinson is planning several other one-man exhibits for this summer, and hopes to have a new one each month for next year's regular academic sessions.

Chicagoan to Speak Here

Camera Club Member Talks on Canyons of U. S.

Dr. C. O. Schneider, an honorary member of the Chicago Camera club, will present an illustrated lecture June 24, at 8 p. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union, on the subject, the beauties of Bryce, Zion, and Grand Canyons.

Dr. Schneider, who presented a similar lecture here last November, is especially interested in color photography. Ten years ago he became interested in the Lumiere process of securing pictures directly in color.

His "autochromes," glass transparencies which are projected on a screen, are the result of this interest. He will bring about 150 of them here to illustrate his address.

He will tell of his travels in the giant canyons of the west, and will show the pictures he has taken in natural color. Dr. Schneider claims for this color process a high degree of perfection in the reproduction of colors true-to-life, and will preface his address with slides to check the accuracy of color reproduction.

He will bring a lantern much improved over the one used here last fall, by which he obtains a larger and more brilliant picture.

Dr. Schneider has presented his lectures at a score of universities, clubs, and museums. His address here will be under the auspices of the graduate college.

Barber Inspectors Named

DES MOINES (AP)—Clyde Shanks of Centerville, Lester Van Pelt of Decorah, and W. B. Rusie of Sioux City, have been nominated barber inspectors by Dr. W. L. Biering, state health commissioner.

Triple Knockout Credited to Cupid

NEW YORK—The person who gave birth to the deathless phrase: "The bigger they are, the harder they fall" may not rank with Shakespeare as an epigrammatist, but recent events have proved that he knew whereof he spoke.

K. O. Cupid
Brawn may be all very well in its place, but that place is not in a ring with Cupid, for the little chap with the bow and arrow has frequently demonstrated his ability to give away poundage and come through with a kayo.

The other night in the Yankee stadium here, for instance, while 60,000 boxing fans were hailing Max Baer as the victor in the bout against Max Schmeling, Dan Cupid was quietly chucking to himself, for he was the real conqueror in the ring that night.

True, Baer had licked Schmeling, but Cupid had put a kayo on both the winner and the loser. At the ringside sat June Knight, Broadway stage star, who, according to the gossips, is to be the next Mrs. Baer.

Although the California boxer already has a wife, a divorce is impending.

ing and Maxie sees no obstacle to his marriage with the stage beauty. In fact, Baer's two pet ambitions are to lead Miss Knight to the altar and to acquire the world's heavyweight championship crown for his curly head.

Double Loser
As for Schmeling—well, he not only has suffered a sweeter defeat at the hands of Cupid. The mornings after his humiliation at the Yankee stadium, the German boxer caused the publication of marriage bans in Berlin newspapers. The object of his affections is Anny Ondra, Czech film actress.

Schmeling had originally planned to postpone any matrimonial plans until he had won back the championship he lost to Jack Sharkey. But Mr. Baer's insistence, not to say his terrible right hand, necessitated a change in Der Maxie's program.

A Third Victim
But don't get the idea that little Cupid was content with putting the two mighty rival gladiators on the matrimonial spot. Without even a slingshot he brought the list of his victims up to three by the submission of the promoter of the fight—none other than the one and only Jack Dempsey.

Of course, this is all according to the Broadway gossip who have ears especially adapted for close contact with the ground. But the rumor persists that the erstwhile Manassa Mauler and Hannah Williams, musical comedy star, are planning a morning stroll to the stately music of Lohengrin.

Cupid already holds a previous decision over Dempsey. He was once the husband of Estelle Taylor, movie star. And Miss Williams, too, has had previous marital experience. She was the wife of Roger Wolfe Kahn, of the famous New York financial family.

Since Dempsey established headquarters for his promotional enterprises in the metropolis, he has been almost constantly in Miss Williams' company. Rumors of a romance have been invariably met with non-committal smiles from both parties, but the Broadway-wise are also smiling, knowingly, and preparing to say: "I told you so."

Where there was no agreement it has been found that some concerns were absorbing transportation costs, while others were not. Those who absorbed these costs were, in effect, cutting prices.

More obvious evils listed by the chamber were secret rebates, mislabeling and misbranding, espionage, bribery, piracy of styles and imitation of trade names.

Ripley Explanations

YESTERDAY'S CARTOON
A Water Volcano—La Antigua, capital of Guatemala in the Spanish days, was a city of great importance, being famed as a site of great schools of theology and science. In 1541 the rumblings of an earthquake were heard one evening. Intense darkness spread over the valley and without warning a great deluge issued through a fissure in the crater of the extinguished volcano Agua completely destroying the city. The volcano was so named because it contained an immense quantity of water, accumulated through successive melting of snowfalls over a long period of time. The name Guatemala is said to be a corruption of Uatezmalha, (Water Spewing Mountain), Mount Agua's aboriginal name.

New Ideas in Economics

Competition Versus Cooperation; Evils of Price Cutting.

By J. R. BRACKETT
(Associated Press Business Writer)
NEW YORK (AP)—The cracks in competition, once regarded as the foundation stone of American business development, are being filled with the newer economic cement of cooperation.

Behind competition is a great deal more than appears in the store window, or is heard in the salesman's selling talk. Although it still is held to be an essential factor, government and business plans envisage changes which will make it a less stabilizing force.

The keynote of business success is the selling of goods at a profit, but the very effort to do so, paradoxically, often reduces or eliminates profits, particularly in a depression.

Payrolls Cut
To beat a competitor, the seller will seek to offer his goods at lower prices. To lower prices, he must lower costs also. To lower costs, wages and prices of materials must be reduced. When these costs are cut, labor and producers get less income with which to buy the goods they have made possible.

Industrial payrolls in the depression have fallen about 65 per cent, indicating how much narrower has become the opportunity of selling goods. In 1929, 921 companies studied by Ernst and Ernst, accountants, made profits of $3,280,000,000 in 1932 these same companies lost $43,000,000.

In times of prosperity these competitive factors are not so active. A New York department store sales manager, for example, found that an item he could not sell at a low price could be sold at a higher price with a more attractive label. The appeal was style rather than price.

Curbing Price Competition
The national industrial recovery bill seeks to alleviate price competition and to insure higher wages—thus to increase payrolls and other purchasing power. Industry has attempted to accomplish these ends on its own accord in some cases, but has failed, many industrial leaders say, because of recalcitrant minorities.

The members of an industry might agree not to cut prices, and not do so—apparently. There is, however, more than one way to skin a cat. The United States Chamber of Commerce suggests several other methods of competition which must be eliminated, or made identical among all members of an industry.

Where there was no agreement it has been found that some concerns were absorbing transportation costs, while others were not. Those who absorbed these costs were, in effect, cutting prices.

More obvious evils listed by the chamber were secret rebates, mislabeling and misbranding, espionage, bribery, piracy of styles and imitation of trade names.

Four alterations in the house, one in the senate and one in the lobby of a hotel marked fisty activities of the 1933 Texas legislature.

Plum Speaks at Historical Conference

Terms Puritanism in England as Being Constructive

Puritanism in England during the latter part of the seventeenth century was a constructive force, Prof. Harry G. Plum of the history department said yesterday afternoon, in the first of a series of historical conferences, to be held weekly during the summer session.

Speaking before an audience of more than 100, which filled the senate chamber of Old Capitol, Professor Plum compared the Puritans of that period to the liberal Democrats of today. They were ready to compromise; they were strong nationalists, he asserted.

"Intellectual Revolt"
The age, he told the assembled group, was "throbbing with intellectual revolt" against the established order. The revolution was made up of many elements, including the Puritans' challenge to the authority of Rome.

"Above all, the age was revolutionary in its denunciation of the old communistic feudalism," the speaker declared.

Even in the radical elements of the parliament under Cromwell's commonwealth, the Puritans represented a constructive movement, Professor Plum believes. The revolutionary movement was especially felt in religion.

"Unfortunate"
"Unfortunately, all revolutionary movements seem to strike hardest at religious standards," he said, "Perhaps religion, setting its goal at the end of life, met with and was defeated by the human failing of disregarding the future."

Puritanism started as an attack on the authority of Rome in religion, but by the time it had become a strong movement, it was directed against the newly created Church of England.

Restoration
The restoration was the work of conservative elements in the Puritan group, Professor Plum said. It was brought about through a lack of well organized and directed planning.

The period following the restoration was one of religious anarchy. The church was often dominated by undesirable forces; there was controversy between old and new elements, which often resulted in members leaving the church.

The loss of religious fervor, however, did not mean that there was a downfall in the religious spirit of the country as a whole, Professor Plum concluded.

Kentucky's Bluegrass Gives Anemia Cure
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky, the bluegrass state, long famed for her horses, also is proud of the eggs her hens lay.

The experiment station of the University of Kentucky has reported after considerable research work that Kentucky bluegrass and sunshine make hens lay eggs particularly rich in copper and iron, minerals considered valuable in fighting anemia.

The scientists reported that bluegrass is superior to cod liver oil in increasing the amount of copper in egg yolks.

Sheriff, Aide Slain in Fight

Killers Thought to Be Missouri Bank Robbers

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 14 (AP)—Roger Wilson, 40, sheriff of Boone county, and Sergeant Ben Booth, 30, member of the state highway patrol, were killed late today in a gun fight with three men, believed to have been those who robbed the Farmers and Merchants bank of Mexico, Mo., about 2:15 p. m.

The encounter took place at the outskirts of Columbia, where the officers had prepared an ambush to intercept the robbers.

The automobile carrying the three men was halted. They left the car and engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with the officers.

Sheriff Wilson was on the ground fighting with one of the three men when another of the trio shot him through the head. Booth attempted to shoot the sheriff's assailant but was shot down by the man who killed the sheriff.

The trio managed to escape from the other officers and fled east on U. S. highway No. 40.

The amount of loot obtained in the Mexico robbery was not determined.

Ames Banking Firm Votes to Liquidate

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Formal announcement of the voluntary liquidation of the Ames National bank of Ames, Ia., was made by the comptroller of currency this week.

Its liquidation was effective March 31, with H. W. Stafford of Ames the liquidating agent. The bank had a capital of $50,000 and was absorbed by the Ames Trust and Savings bank.

Stamps for Use in Tube System Issued by Italy

ROME (AP)—Two new stamps for Rome's metropolitan pneumatic tube system have been issued by the government.

The stamps are of the 15 and 35 centesimal series. Two inches long by one inch wide, they carry the legend "Regno d'Italia, Posta Pneumatica" superimposed on the seal of the House of Savoy.

The 15c, purple, carries a picture of Dante on the left portion of the stamp. The 35c, red, carries Galileo's picture similarly placed.

Long Grove Banker Criticizes Work of R.F.C. as 'Lender'

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Two paper dollars and a denunciation of the reconstruction finance corporation for "loan shark" tactics were received by the national depositors committee this week from H. O. Brownlie of the Long Grove, Ia., Stockman's Savings bank.

Both will be used in the committee's work, it appears, since a report issued immediately quoted Brownlie's criticism of the R.F.C.

"We were going along nicely until closed by the president on the morning of March 4," Brownlie wrote.

"As to the R.F.C., they have $70,225 of good farm mortgages as collateral for our loan of $30,000. As I understand it they will keep all those mortgages now, (as we are restricted) as long as we owe them anything.

Mrs. Newbold, Miss Robinson Meet in Golf Quarterfinals Today

Luque's Pitching Saves Game for Giants; Red Sox Again Defeat Yankees

Champ Plays Tournament's Toughest Foe

Challenger Barely Stops Denver Woman in 2 and 1 Win

By DON MCGUIRE (Associated Press Sports Writer) DES MOINES, June 14 (AP)—Safely past their first two matches, Mrs. Charles Newbold of Wichita, defending champion, and Miss Lucie Robinson of Des Moines, tournament medalist, will clash tomorrow for the right to go into the semifinals of the women's trans-Mississippi golf tournament.

Miss Robinson quelled a dangerous uprising by Mrs. Jack Scott of Denver today to win 2 to 1 while Mrs. Newbold trounced Mrs. R. C. Coffey of Newton, 8 and 7.

The Des Moines star had her hands full in dealing with the slender Denver star, who went on a rampage after she was six down at the tenth hole to carry her opponent to the seventeenth before bowing out of the picture.

Great Australian Horse Coming for Racing Campaign

SYDNEY, Australia, June 14 (AP)—Winooka, called Australia's greatest miler, is America-bound to pick up where the late Phar Lap left off.

The horse is accompanied by his owners, W. A. McDonald and Joe Matthews, and the most famous of present-day Australian jockeys, J. E. Pike, who will ride Winooka in America. The horse's trainer also is in the party.

After his arrival in San Francisco, Winooka will be sent to Chicago where he will be trained for races on the Arlington Park track in August and for Saratoga and Belmont Park, New York, in September and October.

Cuban Hurler Aids Winners' Up Hill Battle

Holds Braves Runless in Seven Innings, Wins, 8 to 5

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—With Adolfo Luque, veteran relief pitcher, pitching no run, two-hit ball for seven innings, the New York Giants came from behind to defeat the Boston Braves 8 to 5 today.

Luque took over the hurling duties in the third after the Braves had scored five runs in the first frame as a result of five bases on balls, issued by Roy Parmelee, and Maranville's single off Herman Bell.

For five straight innings, the 42-year-old Cuban set the Braves down in one, two, three order. In the eighth, Knothe, first man at bat, connected with a single and in the ninth Spohrer drove out a one-bagger.

Small Track Squad Goes to N. C. A. A.

Only Five Men Compete in Collegiate for Iowa

The smallest University of Iowa track and field squad ever sent to the National Collegiate A. A. championship meet Friday begins its struggle for points in four events.

Only five men will compete at Soldier field, Chicago in the twelfth renewal of the N. C. A. A. affair—a meet in which an Iowa team never has finished below sixth place.

The high Hawkeye ranking in national competition which has become almost traditional during Coach George T. Bresnahan's regime, this year cannot possibly be continued, and only a meager scattering of points appears at all likely. Finals occur Saturday night.

Both Robert Cornog and Dale Barker may score in the hammer throw, if they can repeat their best marks. Sidney Dean might edge in for a place in the 220 yard dash or 440 yard run, while Bernard Page, with a mark of 49.2, has a chance to break into the quarter mile scoring. The fifth man, Richard Bott, does not appear fast enough to place in the half mile, unless he should clip several seconds from his best mark.

If one or both of the Iowans place in the hammer, they will continue a custom begun eight years ago. Since 1925, nine men have won 14 places in this event at the N. C. A. A. meet, the high point arriving in 1930 when Hawkeyes were second, fourth, and fifth for a total of 14 points. No other university has won so many hammer places over a period of years in this title affair.

Hickey Bans Four Players

Also Fines Columbus, A. A. Club, on Salary Rule

INDIANAPOLIS, June 14 (AP)—Four star players of the Columbus American association baseball team were ordered barred and the club was fined $500 today for alleged violation of the association's salary agreement.

T. J. Hickey, president of the circuit, and directors decided to inflict the penalty after a three hour session here.

One of the four players barred is Art Shires, who has been reported as declaring that, while playing with Columbus, he was receiving a major league salary.

Shires has been playing first base. The others barred are Charley Wilson, second baseman; Gordon Slade, shortstop; and Pitcher Jim Lindsey. They will be permitted, however, to play until Saturday night.

It was the most drastic action taken in the association in many years and virtually wrecked the Columbus infield. The Red Birds have been leading the association much of the season.

The club was found guilty of having exceeded the $5,500 maximum monthly payroll agreement, made by association members last winter. Since the team is a farm for the St. Louis Cardinals, disposition of the barred players will be up to that organization.

Can't Elect a Captain MILWAUKEE (AP)—Marquette university basketballers for three seasons have been unable to elect one individual to the captaincy. Two years ago Budrunas and Sholey shared the honor, last year it was Ronzani and Zummach, and this spring, when three ballots failed to break a deadlock between Gorychka and Mullen, it was decided to do without an elected leader.

After staking the Braves to a five-run lead, the Giants recovered all their lost ground and went out in front with a five-run attack off Frankhouse in the second. They previously had counted once in the opening inning.

The Giants could do little with Cantwell, who relieved Frankhouse, until the eighth, when Ott hit his eighth home run of the season. A base on balls to George Davis, a stolen base and Ryan's single produced the final run.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Boston ..... 500 000 000—5 3 1 New York ..... 150 000 02*—8 9 0 Batteries—Frankhouse, Santwell and Spohrer; Parmelee, Bell, Luque and Mancuso.

Cards Even Series With Bucs ST. LOUIS, June 14 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals squared the four game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates by taking the final game today, 3 to 2. The Cards thus tightened their hold on second place and lengthened their lead over the third place Pirates by 1-2 games.

Hallahan pitched shutout ball except in the first, when the Pirates scored two runs on three doubles. The Cards scored in the third inning on three singles, tied the count in the fourth on Warkin's homer and scored the winning run in the sixth on a single, sacrifice and double.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Pittsburgh ..... 200 000 000—2 10 0 St. Louis ..... 001 101 000—3 7 0 Batteries—Moline, French and Grace; Hallahan and Wilson.

Dodgers Finally Quit Losing PHILADELPHIA, June 14 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped out of their slump today, defeating the Phillies 6 to 3 behind the pitching of Ray Benge.

Benge held the Phillies to eight hits and kept them away from the plate except in the sixth inning when Chuck Klein hit his eleventh home run of the season and Don Hurst connected with a circuit blow. Klein also had a double and a single.

The Dodgers got to Elliott, Collins and Lisika for 11 hits. Score by innings: R. H. E. Brooklyn ..... 001 023 000—6 11 0 Philadelphia ..... 000 003 000—3 8 3 Batteries—Benge and Lopez; Elliott, Collins, Lisika and Davis.

Root Hurls Two Hit Game CINCINNATI, June 14 (AP)—Charlie Root held Cincinnati to two scattered hits today, refused to permit a Redleg to get past second and took the final game of the series for the Cubs by a 7 to 0 score.

Only three Reds got on base and the Gubs, hitting almost at will, pounded three Cincinnati hurlers for 11 safe blows, two of them for three bases each.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Chicago ..... 202 012 000—7 11 0 Cincinnati ..... 000 000 000—0 2 1 Batteries—Root and Hartnett; Johnson, Kolp, Frey and Hemsley.

N. Y. U. Baseball Nine Boasts Six Winning Hurlers NEW YORK (AP)—Where most college baseball coaches are satisfied with a pitching staff of two, or at the most three men, Coach Bill McCarthy of New York university has successfully called on six pitchers this year in compiling the Violet's record of 11 victories against three defeats.

Bob McNamara, the football star, heads the list with three victories and no losses, followed by Donald Schaefer, Ernie Vavra and Jim Lancaster, each with one and none; Bill Gottlieb, two and one, and Walter Signer, the hardest working hurler, three and two.

At Bat With Joe Mowry For the second straight day, Mowry failed to hit, this time in three attempts. He scored one run in the first inning against the Giants yesterday when the New York hurler gave five bases on balls to allow five runs. The Braves were allowed only three hits. Mowry also added three more errorless chances to his fielding record.

SET FOR FOURTH VARSITY ROWING CLASSIC

Here are the representative sons of John Harvard and Old Eli who will match stamina and skill for the honor of their respective alma maters in the fifty-fourth annual rowing classic between the varsity eights of Harvard and Yale on the Thames river, New London, Conn., on June 16. Of the 53 previous contests between Crimson and Blue, Yale has captured 32 victories and Harvard 21. This year the Crimson is confident of cutting down the Yale lead by one, while the Blue is equally determined to swell the list of victories to 33.

Junior C. C. Wins Match

Defeats Country Club Golfers by Scant 2 Point Margin.

Iowa City Country club, playing a challenge match on its home course, lost a close decision to the Junior Chamber of Commerce golf team yesterday, 1,068 to 1,066 in a match that hung fire until the final scores were written on the books.

Prize winners for the Junior C. C. of C. team were: Collins, Schoup, Gippis, Dunlop, Bohren, Shellady, Horrabin, Moore, Nolan, Stewart, Linebaugh, Russell, Kelleher, Messner, and Taylor.

The Country club winners were: Seashore, Chittenden, Plum, and Larsen.

A dinner for participants was held following the match, in the Country club cafeteria. Entertainment was furnished by Mrs. Walsh's dancing class. Group dancing was given by Katherine Grim, Shirley Hegg, Dorothy Smith, Phyllis Briceand, Barbara Boudard, Betty Cole, and Barbara Mezik. Gladys Morgan Justice gave a novelty dance and was accompanied on the piano by Marie Buck Burger.

A putting contest was held in the club house for the players of the two teams.

National Collegiate Track Meet to Draw Luminaries

Indiana, Last Year's Champs, Will Find Going Tough

CHICAGO (AP)—The grand finale of American college and high school track and field sports for 1933 will find the starriest of all-star casts treading the titanic stage of Soldier field stadium here June 16-17.

Combining the national interscholastic and National Collegiate Athletic association's championships into a two-day festival of fleetness as a feature of the Century of Progress exposition figures to make these the most thickly star-studded events of their kind ever held.

Many champions of conference meets all over the country—which serve as semi-official "qualifying" tests for the 13 year old N. C. A. A. games—or those whose records are of true championship caliber are included in the field of nearly 300 competitors representing about 85 colleges. The preppers' field is equally select.

Count Six Places Indiana, which won the 1932 team title and accounted for eight first places in the Big Ten meet, although it did not win the latter, will find Southern California and Stanford, among others, back with small but select squads likely to take the team prize coastward again. Southern California won in 1931 but neither of the coast schools entered last year.

Michigan, whose rugged individualist, Willis Ward, and a flock of minor place winners gave it the Big Ten team trophy, and Ohio State and Louisiana are others aspiring to high team totals.

Since six places count for points —10, 8, 6, 4, 2, 1—it doesn't take very many ace athletes, capturing a couple of first places each, to run up an impressive team total when distribution of places is scattering.

Louisiana State is Threat Charles Hornbostel and Ivan Fuqua between them gave Indiana four conference firsts—in the 880 and mile, and 220 and 440, respectively.

Others include Jimmy LuValle, California (Los Angeles) Negro who shaved 47 seconds in the I. C. 4-A. 400 meter dash; Gray, Nebraska broad jumper who has been flirting with the 25 foot mark; Bill Bonzhron, Princeton's 800 and 1,500 meter I. C. 4-A. champion, and possibly Pete Zarembo, N. Y. U.'s giant hammer thrower, and Joe McCluskey, Fordham's veteran two-miler.

Boston Wins Third Straight From Champions

Errors Big Factor in 13 to 5 Victory; Homers Help

BOSTON, June 14 (AP)—The lowly Red Sox took their third straight game from the world champion Yankees today as they connected with 15 hits off four pitchers for 13 to 5 victory.

The Sox got away to a five-run lead in the early innings as Ric Ferrerrell and Dale Alexander home runs.

In the seventh, however, the Yanks got to Pipgras and his successor, Bob Kline, for five runs enough to tie the score. Then Walter Brown walked the first three Boston men to face him in the last half of the inning and, with Fenwick unable to stop the Sox, the victors scored three runs. The climbed aboard Cy Moore for five more in the eighth, when Combs Lazzari and Ruth made errors of ground balls.

Score by innings: R. H. E. New York ..... 000 000 500—5 12 Boston ..... 021 020 35*—13 15 Batteries—Gomez, Brown, Fenwick, Moore and Dickey; Pipgras, Kline, Andrews and Ferrerrell.

Marberry Beats Indians, 13-2

DETROIT, June 14 (AP)—Fred Marberry ran his string of victories to nine by pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 13 to 2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the second game of their series today.

Clint Brown, who started for Cleveland, has beaten Detroit three times this year, never allowing them more than one run. But today the Tigers collected four runs during the two and a third innings he worked. Hudlin and Bean finished the game.

The Tigers gathered 14 hits from the three Cleveland pitchers, the longest a home run by Stone in the seventh inning, with White and Gehring on base. Averill, who had a perfect day at bat, also came through with a home run in the eighth inning scoring Ross ahead of him. Cleveland misplays proved costly.

Browns Wallop White Sox, 14 to 1

CHICAGO, June 14 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns, losers in 10 of their previous 12 games with the White Sox this season, arose in wrath today and clouted out a 14 to 1 victory that gave them the series, two games to one.

Whereas the Browns were held to one single by Wyatt yesterday, this time they molested a quartet of Chicago pitchers for 15 hits for a total of 23 bases. Adding them in their rout were five infield errors by the Sox, four of which came in the first four innings to make eight of the Browns' first nine runs unearned.

Irving Hadley, who was traded to St. Louis by the Sox last year, held his former mates to four scattered hits.

Stocks Rally in Afternoon; Close Lower

Markets Reactionary as Sales Amount to 5,570,695

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—Most of the speculative markets were reactionary today. Stocks met heavy resistance and, although they found enough strength for an afternoon rally, the close was largely lower.

A downward slip during the morning was more than made up. However, fluctuations became erratic toward the finish, leaving a moderate net loss as the average change for the leading issues. Sales totaled 5,570,695 shares.

Word that the railroad executives were moving for a 12 1/2 per cent wage cut found carrier issues fairly steady and they were little changed on the day. Industrials dipped, especially in the tobacco section. Utilities accomplished little either way.

Consolidated Gas lost a point, while American Telephone and North American were fractionally higher. Losses amounting to about half a point were the rule for U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Bethlehem, General Motors, Harvester and Allied Chemical. American Tobacco "B," Woolworth, American Can, Youngstown Sheet, Continental Can, Westinghouse, United Aircraft and Corn Products.

Wheat Price Lowered by Pessimism

CHICAGO, June 14 (AP)—Active selling based largely on pessimism as to the outcome of the world economic conference led to about 2 cents break in wheat prices today. Wheat closed nervous, 1-1/2 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 1-2-1/4 off, oats showing 3-8-3-4 decline, and provisions lower 12 to 20 cents.

From the outset, uncertainties of the London economic conference tended to put the wheat market under heavy selling pressure, and gave emphasis to six points fall in sterling. Lowest prices of the day in wheat were reached in the final hour, and at no time there evidence of any great power to rally. Corn and oats closely followed wheat action. Corn belt weather conditions were favorable and primary receipts both of corn and oats were liberal. Provisions went lower with hog values and with grain.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 74 3-4, 77 5-8; September 76 3-4 to 7-8, 79 3-4 to 7-8; December 79 5-8-3-4, 82 1-4-3-8. Corn—July 44, 45 1-8-1-4; September 47 1-4-3-8, 48 5-8-3-4; December 50 1-8, 51 3-8-1-2.

BRITAIN Announces Part Payment (Continued from page 1) gratulated by Sir Stafford Cripps, labor spokesman for "the realism with which he has faced the situation."

Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader, expressed his "deep appreciation of President Roosevelt's action in acceding to the agreement, which was a profound relief to all."

Payment of tomorrow's slice with $10,000,000 in silver at 50 cents an ounce will actually cost Great Britain only about $7,500,000 it was calculated tonight, since the white metal sold on the London market today for 36 1-8 cents an ounce.

Silver From India Mr. Chamberlain said the silver for the payment was acquired from the government of India but he did not indicate what price the British paid.

(At Washington today President Roosevelt made it clear that he "by no means concedes" some of the contentions which the British advanced as argument for debt relief.

Some time ago the British note asked for postponement of the June 15 payment but this was not granted, it was disclosed.

Mr. Roosevelt informed Great Britain that he had no power to reduce the British debt and that he would submit the results of the negotiations to congress for action.)

Hull Ignores Debts The war debt question was completely ignored today by Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, in delivering his first address to the assembly of economic and monetary leaders.

Mr. Hull, launching the American program, denounced economic nationalism and urged that the nations begin their work at London by adhering to the renewed tariff truce, to which 19 states have already announced adhesion.

"Has not the time come," Secretary Hull asked, "for governments to cease erecting trade barriers with their excesses, rank discriminations and hate-breeding reprisals and retaliation?"

"Honest intelligence now compels the admission that nations are substantially inter-related and inter-dependent in an economic sense.

"This conference should proclaim that economic nationalism as imposed upon the various nations is a discredited policy."

Approved Mr. Hull was enthusiastically applauded by the congress. Twice Mr. Hull deviated from the prepared text of his speech, to insist that the conference develop a will for success and to urge permanent stabilization of currencies.

As Secretary Hull spoke, Prime Minister MacDonald, sitting in the presidential chair near him, followed closely from the manuscript every word of the American exposition.

Adhesion of 19 countries to the armistice on new import duties, renewed with the beginning of the London parley, was announced by Chairman MacDonald.

All-around observance of the tariff truce Mr. Hull declared would be a useful expedient as a preliminary to the later reduction of excessive tariffs which he heartily invoked.

Remove Restrictions The removal of restrictions on foreign exchange in various countries was advocated by Secretary Hull. He also described stabilization of currencies as one of the pressing problems before the conference.

Delegations were excited by a report, from French quarters, that President Roosevelt would soon summon a conference with each debtor in turn to make proposals for a new settlement of war-time obligations.

Another interesting report was that Prime Minister MacDonald, Premier Daladier of France and Chancellor Hitler of Germany would soon go to Rome to meet with Premier Mussolini in an effort to complete and put into effect the four-power peace pact.

Stabilization Chances for the early de facto stabilization of the dollar and the pound, insisted upon by the French delegation as the first essential for the conference success, distinctly improved today as representatives of central banks and governments concerned continued their private talks on this subject.

The British program for the conference was presented at the morning session by Chancellor Chamberlain.

ROOSEVELT Accepts British Installment

conference, Secretary Hull avoided any reference to the problem. Mr. Roosevelt backed up his cabinet officer, asserting that American delegates "have been instructed not to discuss debts with the representatives of any of the debtor governments."

In its note, the London government asserted an opinion that the debts have a large and distinct relevancy to the problem of world recovery. The American reply said this government could not agree with that point of view.

"The treatment of intergovernmental obligations must closely affect the solution of the problems with which the world conference has to deal," the British communication said, "because they cannot be separated from influences which have brought the world to its present plight."

"Agreed" "For instance, it is generally agreed that one of the first and most essential of our aims should be to increase the general level of commodity prices. It may be recalled that after the Lausanne conference there was a marked tendency for prices to rise, but that this tendency was reversed when the prospects of a final settlement of intergovernmental obligations receded, while the December payment was accompanied by a sharp fall in prices which was felt in America at least as much as in Europe. Experience, therefore, appears to show that the effect of these payments upon prices is very direct."

However, the American reply, signed by acting Secretary Phillips of the state department and saying its contents were what Mr. Roosevelt had directed him to say, asserted:

"The president understands that his majesty's government have concluded that payment of the June 15 installment 'could not be made at this juncture without gravely imperiling the success of the conference and involving widespread political consequences of a most serious character.'"

"Circumstances" "He notes . . . the characterization of the circumstances with which the British government accompanies this payment, although he, by no means, concedes some of the statements concerning the world wide economic cause and effect contained in his majesty's government's communication, especially insofar as they affect the economic conference."

Mr. Roosevelt in the note called to Great Britain's attention the fact that whatever is done on the debts must be approved by congress.

"The president points out to his majesty's government the well known fact that it is not within his discretion to reduce or cancel the existing settlement. Such power rests with congress."

Free to Act Both Mr. Roosevelt and Chancellor Chamberlain pointed out that the two governments have retained complete freedom of action for the debt discussions, which Mr. Roosevelt indicated would begin a month or two from now.

"Such payment does not of course in any sense prejudice the freedom or either government in any subsequent discussions of the entire debt question which will take account of this and other debt payments," the president said.

"I announced in November, 1932, a policy to the effect that a debtor may at any time approach a creditor with representations concerning the debt and to ask for readjustment of the debt or its terms of payment."

"Under such circumstances the debtor government makes such representations as it deems of importance with respect to the desirability of any readjustment in the terms already agreed upon."

"The British government availed itself of this principle following the payment of the December fifteenth payment and I had informal discussions concerning the debt with the British ambassador even before my inauguration."

Further Exploration "On the occasion of the visit of the prime minister of Great Britain in April further exploration of the subject was made by us and additional discussions were held by the experts of the two governments."

"Time and circumstances would not permit any definite conclusions in these discussions because at the moment both governments were vitally concerned in making preparations for the world economic conference in London."

"It seems the part of fairness and wisdom to postpone formal representations on the debt subject until later. Meanwhile, the world economic conference is beginning under favorable auspices and it is vitally necessary that during the opening days of the conference difficult and possibly protracted discussion of the debt be avoided."

Mr. Roosevelt was emphatic in asserting that debts were not to be included in the London discussions.

Inland Customs Offices WASHINGTON (AP)—Representative Burke of Nebraska said he had been advised that the inland customs offices and sub-offices would not be abolished as previously indicated. Among offices to which this is applicable is that in Des Moines and Iowa sub-offices.

Injured in Ark LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—When he fell from the running board of a car near Brinkley, Donald Grell, 30, of Atlantic, Ia., was seriously injured. It is feared he may have suffered a fractured skull.

World Debts Affect Market

Economic Conditions Cause Fluctuations in Bonds

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—Secondary issues, subjected to considerable profit-taking, gave the bond market a rather heavy appearance today despite the fact that the highest grade issues generally maintained a steady position.

Sales totaled $15,075,000, par value. The average for 70 domestic corporate loans declined half a point. The more speculative bonds apparently followed the erratic movement of stocks, reflecting uncertainties surrounding the London economic conference, war debt payments and the prolonging of the congressional session.

United States government securities were dull, but steady to firm. German government 5 1-2s and 7s registered 2 and 3 7-8 points, respectively, and British 5 1-2s improved.

4-H Club Convention Meets at Iowa State AMES, June 14 (AP)—Lectures, demonstrations and discussions tonight held the attention of more than 1,000 Iowa 4-H club girls attending the sixth annual convention at Iowa State college.

Delegates have been separated into four divisions, the projects covered including home furnishings, bread, canning and clothing. Demonstrations were held by club girls in the four divisions today.

The convention will close Friday evening with the staging of the pageant, "Festival of the New Corn."

George Farley, state club leader of Massachusetts, was among the speakers on tonight's program. Other features of the annual gathering include an address Thursday by Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor; the awarding of medals to contest winners Friday and the crowning of the 4-H queen that evening.

DES MOINES (AP)—Police arrested Mark Jack Smith, 27, who said he escaped from Ft. Madison penitentiary, an hour after he had bound and gagged Roy Rogers, a taxi driver, and stolen the taxi.

Adapted by LEBBEUS MITCHELL

Yesterday's installment of "Hell Below" ended with Captain Toler throwing out of his daughter's room his former lieutenants on the submarine, discharged for being at an enemy destroyer against orders, when he found him drunkenly making love to the girl.

CHAPTER XIV "SHOW ME THE WAY TO GO HOME"

The control room of the submarine W-14 was filled with boxes of explosives. Captain Toler stood in front of a chart hanging on a bulkhead, surrounded by officers and men in dungarees. They were dirty and unshaven. Toler made a cross on the map with a pencil.

"Our position is here. We're lying on the bottom, a mile off the enemy harbor. In five minutes our warships will arrive at this point. . . . he made another pencil mark—and open fire at the range of 20,000 yards. Simultaneously, our air squadrons will attack from the air. We'll then rise to periscope depth and observe the enemy fleet at attempts to escape from the harbor. Then we'll break surface and run for the harbor entrance. Once inside that narrow channel, we can't miss crashing into one of their ships. There'll be one hell of an explosion, and the harbor'll be bottled up."

"He stopped speaking, his lips parted in surprise as he saw Tommy Knowlton emerging from the Junior Officers' quarters, clad in dungarees.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded, frowning in anger. Knowlton replied quite calmly: "I might fit come along—and see the fun."

Toler snapped out his words: "You're under arrest. . . . I'll see you in my cabin, Mr. Knowlton. . . . Just a friendly tip, Captain: never lead with your right. Any guy with as good a left as mine would murder you."

"Now, do all of you know what to do? All right, upon breaking surface, each of you will complete his duty, then immediately go over the side. That's all."

A moment later Toler had entered his cabin and closed the door. He advanced threateningly towards Knowlton.

"Before you say anything, Toler, I want to tell you that I wasn't drunk last night."

Toler started, looked hard and long into Knowlton's eyes which returned the look clearly, without wavering. Toler's expression softened.

"Take your station, Mr. Knowlton." Knowlton saluted, went to the doorway, and turned.

"Just a friendly tip, Captain: never lead with your right. Any guy with as good a left as mine would murder you."

Radford appeared at the door, "Three minutes before the zero hour, Captain."

"Take her up to periscope depth." Toler, with eyes glued to the periscope, saw the harbor of Durazzo filled with battleships and other craft, the concrete mole, the light-house, and a captive balloon. On the elevation beyond was the city of Durazzo. He turned the periscope and scanned the stretch of open water that came into view.

Turning it further, through the smoke-screen over the water, he could make out three lines of cruisers emerging, while over head two scores or more airplanes roared out of the smoke. The cruisers all at once belched flame sending shells screaming well up into the city of Durazzo. Answering shells from the shore batteries and the warcraft in the harbor began bursting about the Allied cruisers. He saw the light-house crumble and fall as it was struck by a shell; a plane, soaring over the wharf, dropped a bomb, and the wharf crumpled up and slid into the sea, spilling the moving trucks and the warehouse on it into the water. Three Allied airplanes were laying a smoke-screen in front of the advancing cruisers. One of the planes was hit by a shell, burst into flames and nose-dived into the sea, a black trail of smoke marking its downward plunge. Directing the periscope back in the direction of Durazzo, he saw flames and black smoke ascending in various parts of the town, hearing witness to the accurate aiming of the cruisers' guns. Planes approached the city, with shrapnel bursting about them. Suddenly one of the planes, staggered from formation and went down in flames. It landed on top of a building which caught on fire. Two planes roared past the enemy's captive balloon, firing incendiary shells into it; the fabric of the bag collapsed and Toler could just distinguish small, white umbrella-like things opening as the crew of the balloon took to their parachutes.

Directing the periscope back to the Allied ships, he saw a British cruiser sinking slowly beneath the waves. Back on shore he saw two planes chasing a troop train which was headed for the tunnel. That race was won by the planes; the bomb demolished the train just as it was entering the tunnel. After the explosion of the train, the tunnel began to cave in.

Toler lifted his eyes from the periscope and ordered the crew and

As the hatches were opened, the men came up on deck.

"So long, Mr. Knowlton," said MacDougal. "So long, Mac." "See you next cruise." "Next cruise, Mac."

The chief torpedoman reluctantly followed his mates over the side of the mole. Austrian machine-gun men were firing like mad at the submarine. The Austrian warships were steaming close to the mole in an effort to make their escape before the submarine could block the harbor. Machine-gun bullets ratted like hail. Shells burst in the water nearby.

"Take the wheel, Knowlton," Toler ordered, and Radford surrendered it to Knowlton. "Go on, Radford," said Knowlton. "Okay, mister. 'Stions, Captain," Radford saluted. Toler returned it with a smile, and watched Radford go over the side.

Knowlton kept the submarine headed towards the mole as machine gun bullets sprayed the water about it and shells, screaming overhead, fell into the sea, sending up great spouts of water. The harbor had become an inferno.

Toler approached Knowlton, his hands outstretched to take the wheel. "Shove off, Knowlton. I'm taking her the rest of the way."

"All right, Captain."

"I know you're going back and live like a gentleman."

Knowlton grasped the proffered hand, and shook it firmly.

"I'm afraid I couldn't live like you, but I know I can die like one."

As their hands parted, Knowlton seized the submarine's commander by the arm and swung him overboard. He watched Toler disappear beneath the waves and then bob to the surface.

When he turned to the wheel and pointed the submarine straight into the mouth of the mole and the heart of the machine-gun fire. Bullets ricocheted off the steel sides of the ship, shells screamed close by, but none of them struck the lone man on the AL-14. Enemy airplanes approached the submarine only to be driven back by the Allied planes, while their ships kept being hit by shells into the harbor and the town which was now afire in scores of places.

The men on the mole operating the machine-guns kept up a steady fire at the rapidly approaching submarine, paying scant attention to the rain of machine-gun bullets poured into them by low-swooping Allied airplanes.

Steadily onward drove the AL-14, its steersman seeming to be a charmed man, for he had not been damaged it; the bullets rattled against its steel sides and deck only to roll harmlessly off.

Knowlton looked back once; saw the man screen in front of the Allied fleet creeping closer up the harbor, caught a glimpse of some members of the submarine's crew swimming, on the crest of the waves towards the shore.

When he had brought the vessel within a few rods of the mole and had assured himself that it would strike in the proper place to block the mouth of the mole, Knowlton let go of the wheel, waited the railings and dropped into a sea alive with machine-gun bullets. Every Austrian on the mole seemed intent on dealing a swift, retaliatory death to the man who had blocked their way.

A profound satisfaction settled down over him, and he continued swimming vigorously.

A squadron of enemy airplanes swept out of the pall of smoke over the destroyed mole and the harbor with its imprisoned warships, swooped low over the water, and opened combined gunfire upon the lone swimmer. He was cut to pieces by the rain of bullets.

Turning on his side, Tommy Knowlton, laid his face against the water as though it were a pillow, and smiled contentedly. Brick Walters' favorite song came to his lips.

"Show me the way to go home, I'm tired and I want to go to bed. . . ."

His body sank beneath the waves and bubbles from the airplane machine-guns kicked up tiny swimmers all around him.

THE END.

War Veterans to Enroll Soon in Work Army

Application Blanks Are Expected Soon by Red Cross

War veterans to work on emergency conservation projects will be enrolled either late this week or next week, Mrs. Martin Pederson, secretary of the Johnson County Red Cross, said yesterday. She said she is expecting application blanks this week.

The project is country wide. Twenty-five thousand war veterans will be enrolled in a "veterans' conservation" for emergency conservation work authorized by President Roosevelt. Selection will be made by managers of regional offices and combined facilities of the veterans' administration.

Quota

The quota of veterans in each state will be based upon the state population as shown by the 1930 census. Local quotas will be made on a county population basis.

Veterans to be eligible must have seen service with the armed forces of the U. S. during the following periods: World war, April 6, 1917 to July 2, 1921; Spanish-American war, April 21, 1898 to July 5, 1902; Philippine insurrection, Aug. 13, 1898 to July 5, 1902; Moro expedition, Aug. 13, 1898 to July 15, 1903; and Boxer rebellion, June 20, 1900 to May 13, 1901.

Other Encounters

Service at later dates will also be recognized in the Philippine and Puerto Rican encounters in which battle deaths occurred; also in such expeditions as the Cuban pacification, Vera Cruz expedition, and Mexican border service. Seven per cent of the total number of veterans will be selected from among veterans of wars prior to the World war and the remainder will be World war veterans.

Requirements

Applicants must meet the following requirements: 1. Service in the armed forces of the U. S. during war. 2. Honorable discharge from the service. 3. Must be unemployed. 4. Must be a citizen of the U. S. 5. Physical condition must be such as to reasonably insure that he will be able to perform ordinary manual labor in the work camp, and that he is free from active or communicable disease. 6. Good character and general fitness to perform the work required.

Veterans who have dependents will be expected to allot three-fourths of their monthly cash allowance of $30 to their dependents.

Today's Hero

Four-year-old John Rinella who tried to get a rubber hose away from Boston bull pup, Bobbie, for half an hour yesterday in front of Smith's cafe and persistently kept at it until he had regained the hose.

Mayor Breene

After an operation for a cataract on his left eye about a week ago Mayor Harry D. Breene left Mercy hospital yesterday and walked to his home. He is to stay at home under doctor's orders for about five days before he returns to his office at the city hall.

Drums

The Alexandria, Minn., drum corps, consisting of 30 girls dressed in bright uniforms, will be in Iowa City at 5:30 p.m. tomorrow. They will give a demonstration of marching on the streets here.

Topping

Floyd Chase was fined yesterday by Police Judge H. W. Vestermark for topping trees without a permit. The fine was suspended on his promise to get a permit at once.

Reckless

F. W. Kutchendler was fined $10 and costs for reckless driving yesterday by Police Judge Vestermark. The fine was suspended on good behavior.

Horses

According to a recent report Iowa City has 23 hitching posts—according to the same report some of them are being used to tie up the young sons or daughters who like to get out and see just how much there is of Iowa City.

Heavy Day

Police Judge H. W. Vestermark had a busy morning of it yesterday, giving fines to five for intoxication; Ed Kinney, $25 and costs, took 10 days in the county jail; Philip Watkins, $25 and costs, suspended on good behavior; Harley Miller, $25 and costs, took 10 days in the county jail; James Harrison, $25 and costs, took 10 days in the county jail; Paul Bock, $15 and costs, took five days at labor in city park.

Lions Club Plans to Lengthen Tenure of Office; to Elect Soon

Plans for the annual election of officers and decision to lengthen the office terms from six months to one year were made by the Iowa City Lions club yesterday at their weekly luncheon in Reich's Pine room.

Mr. George Maresh, George H. Frohwein, and H. J. Ries are the nominating committee. The election will be held in the near future. Willis W. Mercer, vice president, presided at the meeting.

After the luncheon H. J. Ries told of a northern fishing trip he took last year.

BIGGEST BAND TO PLAY AT WORLD'S FAIR

Out in Iowa, where the tall corn grows, grew this band, the Southern Iowa Farm Bureau band of 800 pieces. The music-makers are shown upon their arrival in Chicago, where they will give two concerts at a Century of Progress Exposition. In the center in the front are Mayor Edwin Manning (left) of Ottumwa, Iowa, and M. S. Winder executive secretary of the Farm Bureau.

Iowa Band at World's Fair

Exposition Heads Praise Performance of Organization

CHICAGO, June 14 (AP)—The theme song of the day at the Century of Progress Exposition concerned Iowa and her fields of tall corn, and an 800-piece band played it.

The largest organized group of musicians in the world, it was described by officials of the Iowa Farm Bureau which the band represented. Whole families of southern Iowa Farm Bureau members played in the band—father and son, and mother and daughter.

Cornetist Donald Crabb of Albia, Ia., is 10, and Dr. H. C. Young, clarinetist of Bloomfield, is 53.

The band arrived in Chicago Monday and became official guests of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Since then, it has paraded through loop streets and the exposition city. Last night it offered its first concert before a large audience in the court of states.

Newspaper critics unanimously made favorable comments on the band's rendition of a long and difficult program of overtures and martial selections.

The concert tonight was the band's finale of its exposition appearances. A large group of southern Iowa Farm Bureau members accompanied the band to Chicago clustered in the small amphitheater of the state's court and sang the "corn song" and the "American Farm Bureau's Spirit," organized agriculture's theme song.

Grain Crops Affected by Heat and Drought; Corn Not Damaged

DES MOINES, June 14 (AP)—Heat last week damaged Iowa small grains but failed to prevent Iowa corn from shooting upward, Director Charles D. Reed of the state weather and crop bureau said in his weekly report.

Corn furled and withered some in the dry west central counties but in general stood the test of warm weather well, Reed reported. The tallest ranges from a foot to knee high.

Less than half a crop of oats, barley and wheat was said to be indicated in the drier western counties. Small grains in all parts of the state felt the effect of the scorching sun of last week.

Nearly all corn has been cultivated once and more than half twice in the central and western parts of Iowa, Reed said, observing that the fields are generally clean.

Truck crops, berries and fruits were damaged by the heat and drought.

May Open Clearing House

WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Establishment of a "clearing house" for Nebraska projects which will require public works funds is being contemplated by Nebraska's congressional delegation in collaboration with Governor Bryan. A board of review would be appointed to examine all projects and make recommendations.

U.S. 6—Roosevelt National Highway

This map shows the route of U. S. highway 6—Roosevelt Highway from Boston to Denver. The highway, a well paved motor lane between the chief cities of the United States, avoids the congested traffic of the great centers of Boston, New York, and Chicago by passing close, but not through them.

Beginning at Provincetown in the seaside country about Cape Cod the road runs along the Atlantic seacoast in Rhode Island, through the Catskill mountains along the Hudson westward across Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska until the snow-clad Rockies come in view.

The road was made a national highway last fall. The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce and those of other cities on U. S. highway 6 helped to promote the road and it was finally connected with the Roosevelt highway running from Chicago to Provincetown and Boston.

Map-folders, showing in detail the route of the highway from Boston to Denver, are now available at the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, free of charge.

Iowa's Stone City

Artists Find Haven in Old Quarrying Community.

High upon a windswept hill overlooking the wooded hills surrounding Iowa's Rip Van Winkle city, which was once a thriving town of 1,000 population, artists from the middle west will gather June 27, to portray on canvas and stone the beauty of Iowa landscapes.

Last year many of the students lived in gaudily bedecked ice wagons on the hill top at Stone City, situated about four miles east of Anamosa. This year, if the enrollment continues to be as great for the next two weeks as for the last two, cabooses will be added to the gay string of wagons, according to the art colony headquarters.

Opens June 27

The colony this year will open June 27 and continue for eight weeks. Native stone, from a nearby abandoned quarry which once made the place a thriving town instead of the romantic little village it now is, will provide the embryo sculptor with laboratory materials.

Ice Wagons

In addition to the decorated ice wagons, tents and part of an unoccupied stone mansion will serve as dormitories. Efforts are also being made to obtain railroad crew cars and several box cars for the disciples of the brush and chisel.

The colony, established as an experiment last year, has proved a success and will be continued as the middle west's first summer school for artists. The colony is directed by Adrian J. Dornbush of the Little Gallery in Cedar Rapids. The Cedar Rapids gallery is a project of the American Federation of Arts.

Grant Wood Directs

The faculty is headed by Grant Wood, whose "American Gothic" and other paintings have been recognized by art critics throughout the country. The faculty also includes Marvin Cone, David McCosh, Frances Chapin, Frances Sprague, and Arnold Pyle.

This year, as last, thousands of visitors are expected to travel the winding road through the Wapsipinicon river valley to watch the artists working alongside their gay painted wagons. An old stone ice house on top of the hill will serve as an exhibition gallery.

Girl Dies of Wounds; Police Think Suicide

COUNCIL BLUFFS, June 14 (AP)—Nettie Barnes, 20, wounded mysteriously at her home here last Friday, died at a local hospital today without giving a coherent explanation of circumstances surrounding the shooting.

The girl had told of an unidentified assailant who shot her but police expressed belief the girl fired the gun herself.

Why Did Michigan's Senator Couzens Go to London Parley?

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON—It would be interesting to know exactly what induced Senator James Couzens to accept his place as a London conference delegate.

The reason certainly was not that he likes the social surroundings going with the job. No man in Washington public life seems less interested in that than the sturdy, dogged Michigander.

Couzens has shunned the social aspects of senatorial life. He has no more of a bent that way than he has for advertising his charitable benefactions.

Probably the senator's own statement of why he was willing to go is to be taken at face value. He said he wanted to widen his knowledge as to his "principal interests"—finance, distribution and production.

Certainly a man of his determined persistence when in quest of information, so often disclosed in senate committee hearings, should find plenty of opportunity at London to add to his knowledge.

Can Afford Trip

One matter that might have had a bearing on the refusal of Senators Johnson and LaFollette to accept the delegation assignment meant nothing to Couzens. Costs outside the rigidly limited government expense account are apt to be involved for all the delegates.

The Bystander has never heard any estimate of what the London naval conference cost Secretary Stimson, who headed the American group. It was unquestionably a large sum.

Stimson took to London that taste for country house life indicated in his purchase of the Woodley estate as his Washington residence. He leased a country house near London and entertained there extensively during the conference.

Couzens, of course, could afford to follow the Stimson precedent, but nobody expects him to do so. Neither Johnson nor LaFollette could have gone outside the limits of expense accounts very far without feeling the pinch.

An Independent

The Couzens appointment suggests that a definite decision to restrict Republican representation on the delegation to off-the-reservation mem-

Congress Scores Naval Custom

WASHINGTON (AP)—Calling a "mistaken policy" the navy's custom of transferring airship personnel to sea duty, the congressional committee investigating the crash of the dirigible Akron today suggested that the navy command be given until next session of congress to "correct the situation" under penalty of losing aircraft operations to a separate navy air corps.
