'WORK FOR 5 MILLION BY SEPT. 1'

President Roosevelt Expected to Approve 32 Hour Week for Shipbuilders

Navy Opens Bids on Giant Building Plan

Claims Short Week Will Add $120,000,000 to Annual Cost

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—On the eve of the navy's largest formal bid opening for new war vessels, it was indicated today that President Roosevelt would approve a 32 hour week for the shipbuilding industry so that the government might help to create a model for other businesses.

Secretary Swanson had gone to the president with a navy department protest that a 40 hour week should be substituted for the 32 hours demanded by Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator.

Swanson Acquiesces

Swanson said later he had acquiesced in the 32 hour week proposal. His acquiescence was regarded as forecasting Mr. Roosevelt's approval.

The navy, which tomorrow receives bids for 21 fighting vessels and soon will start navy yards working on 16 others, insisted a 40 hour work week was necessary in the proposed shipbuilding code if the cost and time of bringing the fleet nearer London treaty limits were not to be increased greatly.

Proposed 32-Hour Week

Johnson, meanwhile, had demanded and received from shipbuilders the proposal of a 32 hour work week on naval construction, obtained after he had threatened otherwise to recommend suspension of the entire naval program. The shipbuilders, busy finishing their bids, had sought a 40 hour week.

Already the White House had received a protest against the navy's stand on working hours expressed at the shipbuilding hearing. John Frey, spokesman for the American Federation of Labor, took it there after Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chief of naval construction, answered labor's demand for a 30 hour week with the argument it might increase costs and delay delivery of the 32 ship program the navy wants completed in three years.

Farmers Holiday Group Pledges to Aid Price Fight

DES MOINES, July 25 (AP)—Support of National Farm Administrator George N. Peek in the "fight for price stabilization on the basis of cost production to the farmer," was pledged today by the Iowa Farmers Holiday association.

John Chalmers, president of the Iowa association, commended Peek's demand for regulation of the Chicago grain exchange. All the farmer asks is cost of production for that portion of the crop sold for domestic consumption, Chalmers declared.

"If Peek is ready to launch the fight for price stabilization on the basis of cost of production to the farmer, and make the gamblers operate above the figure, he will have the full support of the Farmers Holiday association right now," Chalmers said.

Another Victim of Oil Car Explosion Is Believed Found

GLADWIN, July 25 (AP)—Bones believed to be those of a fifth victim were recovered from the wreckage of a Milwaukee railroad train which crashed and burned last week.

Three of the four bodies recovered immediately after the wreck were identified by John Cheek of Dewey, Okla., father of one of the victims, as Kenneth Cheek, 21, Joe McKibbens, 19; and Daulton Bond, 18, all of Dewey.

Wreckage of 12 of the 25 cars which crashed and burned had been cleared away and railroad officials said the clearing of the main track probably would be completed by Thursday. Damage to railroad equipment and to buildings at Gladwin was estimated at $300,000.

Saws Way Out of Jail

CARROLL (AP)—Harold Sharp, about 40, of Carroll, escaped from the county jail today after sawing five bolts from the door of his cell. He was arrested July 1 on an auto theft charge.

Henry Morgenthau Spends Day in Iowa on Farmers' Behalf

DES MOINES, July 25 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., farm credit administration governor, spent today in Iowa talking appraisal values and trudging through Polk county cornfields.

Pressed by Iowa officials for his opinion on maximum appraisal figures for Iowa land, Morgenthau declined to name a definite amount saying:

"Don't pin me down on how high we will go on appraisals. We will do our part to see that any applicant gets as large a loan as good business judgment warrants. I think I may say that appraisals will be somewhat higher than they have been in recent months."

Grain Market Heads Agreed on Reforming

Plan Outlaws Violent Fluctuations, Limits Speculations

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Representatives of grain exchanges agreed today on reforms in American grain marketing methods whereby speculation would be restricted and violent fluctuations in prices outlawed.

Farm administrators threatened to step in unless prompt voluntary action was taken by the exchanges.

Limit Daily Changes

One of the recommendations would limit the daily fluctuations in futures prices to 5 cents a bushel for wheat, rye and barley to 4 cents on corn and 3 cents on oats.

The exchanges are expected by officials here to approve these limits soon. Then the present emergency rule, established at Wallace's demand, limiting trading in grain to prices above last Thursday's closing quotations will be removed.

Emergency Rule

The exchanges also are operating under an emergency rule limiting fluctuations on wheat to 8 cents a bushel above the minimum, on corn to 5 cents and on oats to 4 cents.

Agricultural officials said limiting the fluctuation limits as permanent policy will effect the most important change in several decades in methods of marketing the products of American grain farms.

F. R. Approves

This was insisted on by administrators with the approval of President Roosevelt in an effort to provide greater stability for prices and to make markets less attractive to speculators who do not handle grain physically at any time.

Representatives of the exchanges also agreed to recommend to their organizations early adoption of rules to:

Limit Holdings

Limit the holdings of individuals of either "long" or "short" contracts for future delivery, probably at a figure between 2,000,000 bushels and 5,000,000 bushels.

Require higher margins for grain traders.

Permanently eliminate trading in both weekly and daily indemnities ordinarily known as "bids and offers" or privilege trading in market cents.

Grain Pits Near Normalcy

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—The grain pits were more nearly normal today, with brisk price advances all along the line, except in barley.

Buying was general with prices progressing upward in orderly manner. Gains of more than four cents in wheat were registered around noon, but reactions due to profit taking cut about 2 1-2 cents off the gains.

$20,000 Blaze at Council Bluffs

COUNCIL BLUFFS (AP)—Damage in a fire which destroyed the G. F. Manufacturing company plant was estimated at $20,000. The blaze started from an overheated furnace in which rubbish was being burned.

Justice Begins Catching Up With Kidnapers as Federal Officers Push Three Cases

Luer Query Reported as Being Near Solution

(By the Associated Press)

Justice began catching up with the kidnapers with a vengeance Tuesday.

In three cities prosecution was either being prepared or already underway for groups charged with kidnapings in which nearly half a million dollars ransom was demanded, and at least $150,000 collected.

At Milwaukee, Wis., federal officials moved swiftly to remove Roger Touhy and three of his Chicago gangster cohorts to St. Paul, Minn., for trial on charges of having kidnaped Brewer William Hamm, Jr., for $100,000 ransom.

"Airtight Case"

Officials at St. Paul claimed an "airtight case" against the four prisoners, saying that from four to six witnesses would identify them.

Mary McElroy of Kansas City pointed out Walter McGee, former Oregon convict, on the witness stand as the leader of kidnapers who held her captive last May until $30,000 ransom was paid. She told of spending 29 hours manacled in a basement used as a chicken roost.

Complete Statement

In the third case which officials claimed was near solution, Michael Musiala made a complete statement at St. Louis, Mo., concerning his part in the kidnaping of August Luer, wealthy banker of Alton, Ill., who was released without payment of the $100,000 ransom demanded.

Musiala owned the farm on which Luer was held for five days. Police Chief Joseph Gerk said Musiala named Eugene Norvell, professional bondsman under arrest at Benton, Ill., as the leader of the band.

Federal officials expressed belief that information concerning still other kidnapings would be obtained after they arrested "Public Enemy" Leo Mongoven. Five other men suspected as kidnapers were arrested with Mongoven.

Two Others

In two other kidnapings, relatives and friends awaited anxiously for positive words that the victims were alive and unharmed.

Mrs. Berenice Urschel waited without police protection in her mansion in Oklahoma City for word from abductors who held her husband, Charles F. The family of John J. O'Connell, Jr., at Albany, N. Y., also awaited anxiously for word from his kidnapers.

Seven Die in Plane Crash

Army Flyers Killed as Ship Loses Wing in California

OCEANSIDE, Cal., July 25 (AP)—Seven bodies were taken from the wreckage of an army bombing plane, which dropped a wing and crashed at the southeastern city limits of Oceanside today noon from 1,000 feet in the air.

Army officers from March field, near Riverside, the home base of Sikorsky amphibians, identified those killed as:

Second Lieut. Carl A. Murray, flyer, Idaho, attached to the 17th group, March field, who was at the controls.

Sergeant Snodgrass, 64th squadron.

George Herrick, 95th squadron.

Private T. Taylor, Los Angeles.

Private Stanley Book, Detroit.

Private Vincent Galdin, Green Rapids, Mich.

Private Albert Overend, Coronado, Cal.

The plane left March field at 11:40 a.m., bound on a service mission for Rockwell field, San Diego.

Dubuque Man Drowns

DUBUQUE (AP)—Joe Brom, 28, Dubuque, drowned in Lake Peosta shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. Unable to swim he had gone out into the water too far. Three companions were unable to rescue him. Workers found the body within half an hour.

Gunmen Shoot Prisoner After Slaying Guard

Leave Body of Convicted Robber in Alley at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 25 (AP)—Four gunmen today killed a deputy sheriff, wounded another, snatched a convicted robber from the officers and after slaying the prisoner, left him in an alley less than a block from his father's home.

The four opened a deadly pistol fire on the officers' car soon after the deputies left Charleston for the state penitentiary at Moundsville with Homer Harper, 19, sentenced a few hours earlier to 25 years imprisonment for armed robbery.

The gunmen fired as their car pulled up behind the other machine and Deputy Roy Shamblin, who was guarding the youth, was instantly killed.

One of the bullets wounded the other deputy, G. L. Dudley, and he brought the car to a screeching stop just about a mile beyond the Charleston city limits.

Three of the four killers leaped from their automobile, grabbed Harper from the rear seat, hustled him into their car, and turned back toward the city.

Driving back in spite of his wounds, Dudley gave the alarm and a statewide search was started for the four gunmen and the prisoner.

Huntington officers, aiding in the search, saw two men jump from an automobile parked in an alley and walk away.

Curious, they opened the machine door and there found a handcuffed youth dead in the rear seat. Thinking the dead youth might be Harper, they called his family who live nearby. The robber's brother identified him.

He and John Newell, 20, were arrested on a charge of robbing a shoe store in Charleston of $23 and an overcoat last January. Newell was sentenced several months ago to 20 years in prison.

Parley Frowns on Reopening

U. S. Pleas Received Coldly as Conference Nears Close

LONDON, July 25 (AP) — The steering committee of the world economic conference holding its closing session today received coldly the American proposal to assure definite re-assembling of the parley after recess is taken Thursday but agreed that some activities should be carried on during the indefinite holiday.

The suggestion of Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, to limit the recess period to a maximum of three months fell upon deaf ears, even Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada who staunchly defended the American position in the fight to prevent adjournment three weeks ago, failing to respond.

It was agreed that Prime Minister MacDonald, chairman of the conference, should have authority to summon the bureau at any time to deal with the question of reconvening the plenary body.

In high American quarters, however, it was said that a spirit of complete defeatism prevailed at today's meeting, even the date for the next sitting of the bureau not being fixed although Mr. Hull proposed that it should meet no later than Nov. 1.

At Thursday's final plenary session Secretary Hull is expected to make an appeal for continuance of the work in the direction of international economic co-operation.

OIL MAN KIDNAPED PLAYING BRIDGE

Balbo Armada Completes First Leg of Return Trip

24 Planes Rest at Shediac, N. B., Over Night

SHEDIAC, N. B., July 25 (AP)—The 24 seaplanes of the Italian air armada which crossed the north Atlantic for a visit to the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago rested tonight on Shediac bay, having completed the first leg of their homeward flight from New York.

Twenty-two of the ships, including the directing plane piloted by General Italo Balbo, bearded leader of the exposition, landed during a 30 minute period beginning at 2:55 p.m. eastern standard time.

Two Have Trouble

The other two, which had been forced down enroute, arrived later. One plane, which developed engine trouble over St. John, N. B., and turned back to Milledgeville, New Brunswick, reached here at 5:32 p. m. E.S.T. the other, which came down at Rockland, Me., because of a broken oil line, arrived at 5:05 p.m.

The armada covered the 650 miles from New York in less than six hours.

Overnight Stop

General Balbo planned an overnight stop here before proceeding to Shoal Harbor, Nfld., where he will decide whether to take the northern route by Iceland and Ireland or to go by the southern track, halting at the Azores.

It was considered possible that delay caused by the late arrival of the two planes which encountered trouble might cause the leader to extend his scheduled stay here.

One Killed, Two Hurt in Wisconsin Accident

MILWAUKEE, July 25 (AP) — Alex M. McFadyen, 49, Milwaukee district manager of Sears-Roebuck stores, was killed early today and his three sons injured, two of them critically, when their car left a highway in Waukesha county and plunged into a marsh.

The sons were all taken to a Milwaukee hospital, Newton, 19, and Robert, 17, suffering from serious head injuries and multiple lacerations and bruises. Richard, 16, was less severely cut and bruised.

H. S. Band to Give Concerts

Prof. Charles Righter Announces Series of Appearances

Plans for a series of public concerts by the all-state high school band were announced yesterday by Prof. Charles B. Righter of the music department, director of the high school groups.

A series of outdoor concerts will be given Wednesday evenings in the court between the music building and East Hall. Conducted by Professor Righter, the band will present the first of these next Wednesday at 8 p.m. Each of the presentations will be broadcast over station WSUI.

Each Friday

Each Friday at 3 p.m. the all-state organization will give a concert in the north music rehearsal hall. Contrary to the procedure followed during the first term, the Friday recitals will not be broadcast.

The band will make its final appearance Aug. 24, when it will play several numbers for the university Convocation, which will close the summer session.

45 Pieces

About 45 pieces comprise the all-state high school band this summer. Though this is about the same size as was last year's organization, more high school students are represented, Professor Righter said. Music supervisors and staff members formed a larger percentage of the band last year.

The members of the all-state groups started five weeks of study in the music department Monday. In addition to the major work in band, they are being given instruction in music theory, appreciation, and chamber music.

All of the concerts planned will be open to the public without charge.

Johnson Estimates Results of Industrial Recovery Plan From Approvals Pouring In

And in Iowa

Here's How State Responds to Plea for Recovery

(By the Associated Press)

Here's the story of Iowa's response to President Roosevelt's national industrial recovery program to shorten working hours and increase industrial employment:

MARSHALLTOWN—The Times-Republican adopted the recovery code, effective Aug. 1. Retail grocers and meat dealers of Marshall county approved a 54 hour week and approved in principle the National Grocers association recovery code.

CEDAR RAPIDS—Quaker Oats company increased wages of 900 workers here 10 per cent, to the 1929 level and retroactive to July 15. The company's plants in other cities also will benefit by the increase, applicable to all except salaried workers.

SIOUX CITY—Retail stores adopted a 52-hour week, effective Labor day, thereby creating an estimated 3,500 new jobs. Fairmont creamery announced a $500 bonus for 140 employes.

COUNCIL BLUFFS—Georgia Progie company cut 13 hours from its present 48 hour week and increased wages of girl employes from $12 to $12.25 weekly for the shorter working period. Retail grocers and butchers associations adopted the national recovery code. All Council Bluffs employers were called to a general meeting.

CHARLES CITY—Northeast Iowa cleaners and dyers scheduled a meeting here Sunday to discuss a 44 hour week and a business code.

DES MOINES—Printers and newspaper employes and employers planned meetings at Atlantic, Cherokee, Cedar Rapids, Ottumwa and Mason City. The Iowa Press Association called a meeting here for Aug. 11 to discuss a National Editorial association code providing a 40 hour week, a 45 cent minimum hourly wage and a 35 cent minimum for women.

Divorce Idea Shocks Aimee

Evangelist Is Still "Tremendously" in Love

NORFOLK, Va., July 25 (AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, expressing herself as "shocked" at her husband's action in seeking a divorce but still "tremendously" in love with him, returned to American soil today after seven months abroad.

Reclining on a bunk on the liner City of Havre she received interviewers, told them of her love for David Hutton, the choir singer she married two years ago, declined to make any statement that might be interpreted as "unkind" to him and then apparently collapsed.

Later she posed for photographers and news cameramen and then took a 25-mile automobile drive to Virginia Beach, a resort where she remained until time to return to Norfolk to board the City of Havre to continue her journey to Baltimore.

Fitzpatrick Home Damaged by Fire in $1,200 Blaze

Iowa City firemen saved the home of Ed Fitzpatrick Monday night after flames, which started from children searching for clothes in a closet with matches, spread through the upstairs and caused about $1,200 damage.

Although the flames had burned part of the roof and had gained headway under the roof firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze after two hours of fighting with chemical equipment. Damage to the home was estimated at $900 and loss of clothing and furniture at about $300.

Myriads of Employers Send Notices of Acceptance

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Employment of between 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 new workers before Labor day was predicted tonight by Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, on the basis of responses received to President Roosevelt's appeal for immediate adoption of the national industrial code.

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Thousands of employers informed President Roosevelt today that they were raising the pay and shortening the hours of their workers.

From villages and crowded metropolitan centers, there came a steady flow of yellow and blue messages pledging whole-hearted co-operation to his appeal last night to industry to maintain or increase present pay levels and shorten working hours to put more persons to work.

Express Satisfaction

Both President Roosevelt and Hugh S. Johnson, the key man of the recovery program, expressed their satisfaction with the response, and forecast a further spontaneous return when the wage and work regulation agreements go out Thursday to 5,000,000 business men for their signature.

The recovery administration itself was moving ahead with the more lasting codes. The oil, lumber, rayon weaving and wool industries had their codes before deputy administrators for hearing. So expeditiously were the hearings functioning that the woolen code was finished in less than two days and that for rayon within one day.

Shipbuilders

The code for shipbuilders, a center of controversy between Johnson and the navy department over the maximum hour provisions, was sent to the White House, and others were likely to reach President Roosevelt this week. Hearings begin next week on steel, widely heralded as the nation's key industry.

It was understood that Aug. 7 had been tentatively set for the hearing on coal, another of the basic industries. And codes for retail dry goods and automobiles were said by the administration to be so near completion that they might be received this week.

Some 200 other minor codes were being culled through with hearing dates to be set, indicating that from now until fall the capital will be the scene of several hearings daily.

Producers, Workers Clash Over Effects of Hollywood Strike

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 25 (AP)—Conflicting claims on the effects of a strike called among sound technicians in the movie industry were made today, producers insisting their schedules were proceeding under somewhat reduced programs and one union executive contending that all but two of 794 cameramen had walked out.

The employes' gates at all studios were jammed with men and women looking for work in response to advertisements offering employment.

Producers declared all plants with the exception of two were working at 50 to 60 per cent of normal production and that work soon to begin on other film productions would bring the figure up to normal.

Stratosphere Trip Planned for Today by T. G. W. Settle

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—Mobilization of a ground crew started today as Commander T. G. W. Settle, who plans a solo flight into the stratosphere in an air tight spherical gondola attached to an immense balloon, announced chances were "better than 50-50" that weather conditions will permit a take-off tomorrow night.

Settle accepted the opportunity to make the trip alone, carrying scientific instruments designed for cosmic ray study prepared by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, scientific director of the flight.

The Exporter Cries; What of It?

DIRE RESULTS to the American export trade because of provisions of the National Industrial Recovery act were predicted in a story in the New York Times Sunday which pictured foreign trade officials in deep blue colors after conferences with the administration in Washington.

Their predicament would excite a fair degree of sympathy were it not for the nature of their objections. Their plea is for exemption from the requirements concerning treatment of labor, the very provisions most essential to the success of the New Deal program.

The exporters' arguments, briefly, are that the increased cost of production incident to compliance with the codes contemplated under the recovery act will raise prices to such an extent that it will be next to impossible to sell in foreign markets. This is true to a large extent, but what of it?

America has followed a policy for a good many years of developing foreign trade at all costs on the theory that this country was producing a surplus of goods and the only market open was in other countries. This was the theory on which the boot-strap export boom before 1929 was based. In that hysterical period our foreign trade phobia was carried to such an extreme that we gave untold millions to other nations so they could buy from us and give us the impression that we were enjoying prosperous times. At the same time we built up an extravagantly oversized merchant marine with taxpayers' money and gave preferred rates to American exporters whose products were purchased by foreign nations with money donated by American bondholders.

Of course all this was gravy to the exporters and it is little wonder that they dislike the notion of eating dry meat for a change with the rest of the nation. But for the public as a whole the attitude of the administration—which happily gave export representatives the cold shoulder—is the only proper one.

Foreign trade is not of vital importance to the United States, regardless of the propaganda of those who make their living at it. Even in boom times when our foreign trade was living on fat subsidies of a dozen varieties it represented only about seven per cent of our total business activity, according to figures of the statisticians.

The theory of domestic overproduction on which our export mania was based was nothing but a national delusion. At the same time we were paying out money to sell goods to Europe more than 2,000,000 men were out of work in our own country and millions more were struggling along in squalor and poverty. There was an abundant market for our goods right here at home, but there was no money in the market.

If the New Deal works by breaking up the concentration of wealth that has strangled the nation and spreading a little among the common people where it belongs there will be little trouble in finding a market for our goods. If that happens the exporter will just have to cry. What of it?

Balbo and Fly-By-Nighters

GENERAL Italo Balbo and his entourage are living evidence of a point upon which writers have extended their opinions at odd intervals since the transoceanic flying bug bit aviators many years ago.

The contrast between the precise, well planned, expertly handled Italian flight and the crop of hop-in-the-dark seekers after adventure who are in the midst of their perennial blossoming is nothing short of startling.

It is a contrast which emphasizes the often repeated contention that unless transatlantic and round-the-world hops are to be conducted on a scientific basis aiming at a well conceived objective they have little excuse for being.

It is not a matter involving the personal liberty of the flyers. They can fly to the moon if they want to and are able for all anyone cares. But if they crack up it becomes a different story entirely.

It would be interesting to know just how much money has been spent during the last 10 years looking for flyers who started on haphazard hops in search for adventure and gold. It would not be a small amount.

Iowans! To the Rescue of Green Bay Cheese

(From The Des Moines Register)

A Register staff writer in Burlington reports to The Sunday Register that, unless the younger generation takes an interest in preserving it, Green Bay cheese, one of Iowa's most delectable products, will become a thing of the past.

That, The Register says with emphasis, ought not to be.

It is true that Green Bay cheese, taking its name from the Green Bay bottom land along the Mississippi south of Burlington, is called a "Limburger-type" cheese. And The Register is one epicure that can get along indefinitely, or at least almost indefinitely, without Limburger. But while that description of Green Bay cheese is accurate, since it's of the Limburger family of cheeses, it does the Green Bay cheese an atrocious libel.

Better compare Green Bay cheese with delicate, creamy-textured, softly perfumed Fromage de Brie. Better compare it with Canadian Trappeste. Better compare it with that dream of Italian gourmets, Bel Paese.

King of cheeses may be Roquefort. A sort of pretender or regent or something may be the cis-Alpine version, Gorgonzola. Queen may be Camembert. The high Stilton of Merry England, the rich Gouda of Holland, the compact Choddar and Edam, and—oh, ever so many products of man's finest if most homely genius—these all are of the royal court.

But if in a democracy we can't have royalty, not even cheese royalty, we do have palates. We do have taste. We do have noses, keyed to a fine and reverent appreciation of that which is gustatorily blissful.

And Green Bay cheese is a delicacy fit to grace any table that ever was set beneath any skies, those of Olympus not excluded!

Iowa ought, as a man, to rally to preserve for all posterity its own, its very own product of dairying genius, Green Bay cheese.

GOOD MORNING

The world is bubbling this morning with happenings upon which one could comment endlessly and with much vigor. The president's speech to the people, for instance. The ghastly affair at Dexter which brought Iowans face to face with the hideous seriousness of this "gang menace" of which we have read so much at long range. The stock and grain markets and the humorously conflicting opinions of those in the know as to the exact causes of recent acrobatics. The startling and instructive contrast in tone between the flight of General Balbo and those of the perennial lightning bugs aiming at records, renown, and rewards. The navy's cooperation with shipbuilders in their attempt to thwart the effect of the NIRA's program by keeping labor costs down in order that ships to be built with public works money might cost less (nice picture, isn't it?). One might even—with the virtue of timeliness—dedicate a column to Mr. Roosevelt himself and attempt to analyze his immediate position, the road he has travelled, how well he has travelled it, and where he might be going.

But I prefer this morning to speak of none of these things, to be neither logical nor timely. I prefer rather to speak of the man who has been more forgotten than the forgotten man—Herbert Hoover, private citizen, motorist, librarian, fisherman, reader of biographies, writer of letters, man of leisure, ex-president.

Not very long ago he divided his time with exact precision in order to use to the best possible advantage the all too inadequate days. In those days the life of a goldfish was a life of privacy compared with his. His way was a public way. When he spoke the world listened. When he was silent the world waited and wondered. His least opinion was material for headlines. His speeches took right-of-way over the nation's wires.

In those days there was in his eyes the look of a tired man, the look of a man who has been scratching with bare fingers at a stone wall, but withal the look of a man who had never yet lost faith that some day the wall would give way.

Whatever else one might wish to say of him, it cannot be said that Herbert Hoover ever betrayed his own convictions. Perhaps in this very strength can be found his weakness; his faith was too inflexible, it could not be molded to comply with the demands of circumstance.

But all that is a matter of yesterday. The worn and weary man who rode so somberly out of Washington hardly five months ago can be found now only in old files of newspapers and dusty newsreels. He is a man now whom the world has largely forgotten, but who has found himself.

To do as one pleases . . . To go to bed when one is sleepy and to get up when one is ready . . . To eat when one is hungry . . . To go fishing at will, or motoring to undetermined places . . . To read quietly while the mood lasts . . . To work at a leisurely hobby . . . These are the common joys of existence with which they tell us Mr. Hoover is becoming happily acquainted.

He still is actively associated, of course, with numerous welfare organizations; he still keeps a close touch on the pulse of the world's news; he maintains a lively interest in the affairs of Stanford university; and he keeps up a barrage of correspondence with persons of all stations from all over the world—a correspondence said to cost him a neat $1,000 a month. But his principal occupation is simply doing as he pleases for the first time in many, many years.

There is one other thing. One wonders if the world has noticed with what poise he has stepped out of the picture. Not every man could have done it so nicely.

—Don Pryor.

Book Bits—

(From The Coming of a New Party, by Paul H. Douglas)

But just as under the latter Roman Empire the phenomenon that the son of a poor peasant might conceivably become the Caesar did not ensure political democracy for the toiling masses at the base of the social pyramid, so today the infinitely small chance that the child of an unskilled laborer may become another Ford or Hoover has little or no significance concerning the conditions under which our laboring millions must work and live.

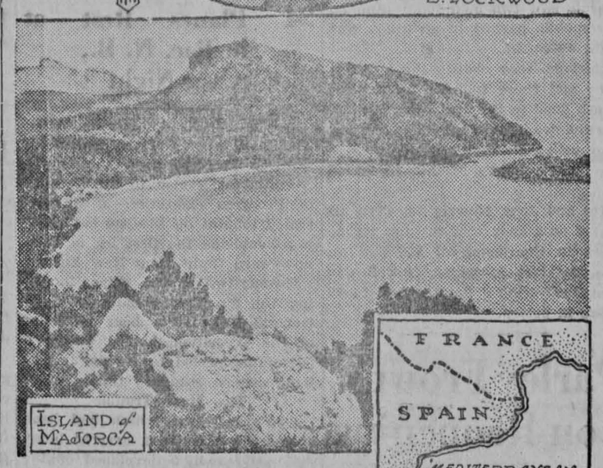
Majorca No Paradise for Her

MRS. CLINTON B. LOCKWOOD



When Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of Springfield, Mass., read that the island of Majorca (or Mallorca) in the Mediterranean was a "new Paradise" where one could live in luxury for a dollar a day, they, as have many Americans, hied themselves there. After six weeks in jail awaiting trial on the charge of striking a civil guard the Lockwoods and three American friends, likewise imprisoned, have opinions of their own. Only the intercession of Uncle Sam effected their release pending trial.

MADRID—"Paradise lost."

This is what expatriates from the states are calling Majorca, the beautiful Spanish island in the Mediterranean since the international imbroglio there, in which four American men and one woman were tossed into durance vile where they remained for six weeks to repent of their misdemeanor.

The five unhappy Yanks are: Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of Springfield, Mass.; Rutherford Fullerton, Columbus, O.; Roderick F. Mead, New York city; and Edmund W. Blodgett, Stamford, Conn.

It seems that the quintette engaged in an altercation in which a Spanish civil guard was struck. So what? Well, they were marched off to prison and kept there more than 40 days without benefit of trial.

Recently Ambassador Claude G. Bowers appealed to the Spanish government to intervene in the matter and a trial has been promised.

All this has come as a terrific shock to those Americans who like to live in quaint, old places and observe folk ways and customs. For, a couple of years ago, following the commercialization of Paris as a tourist center, and the exploitation of Bali, Majorca was hailed by arty folk as the one spot on the globe where one could live and be happy on one dollar a day.

But as soon as the news came out, the rush was on. Americans streamed into the place, hired all the villas and started to drink up all the wine and spirits on the island.

The natives, instead of being grateful for the money the visitors brought with them, bitterly resented the invasion of their peaceful island.

They want to be left alone and when a civil guard was struck in a fight they thought the insult was the last straw.

Not only were the five Yankees cast into a hot and uncomfortable prison but Theodore Pratt, an American writer, was much harassed because of an article he wrote about the island.

The islanders rioted against him and it is now said he will be brought to trial on some charge or other. So violent is the feeling against Pratt that the Majorca authorities have thought it best to assign him guards.

No wonder that Majorca is now called by the playboys and girls along the Riviera "Ex-Paradise."

BEHIND THE SCENES — IN HOLLYWOOD —

By HARRISON CARROLL

STUDIO GOSSIP | FILM SCANDAL | SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD—Routed out of his silence by persistent rumors, Gary Cooper told me something today that should please a lot of his feminine friends.

He has no plans to marry and is not even in love.

The tall star, whose reticence about his reported affairs of the heart has often been mistaken for confirmation, particularly is impatient with those reports linking his name to that of the Countess Di Frasso.

"They are most unfair to her," he said. "The Countess Di Frasso is already married and, as a good friend of hers, I haven't heard her say a thing about getting a divorce. As a matter of fact, I believe she intends to return to Europe for the latter part of the summer."

Cooper insists that he not only is heart-whole now, but has been for a number of years.

"My career," he says, "is going to keep me busy enough. The next few years will be critical, and it wouldn't be fair to ask a woman to share a life so divided."

Asked when he might consider marriage, the star replied: "Not until the time when I make only two pictures a year, or preferably one."

His eyes crinkled; he gave me one of those sidewise glances.

"And of course," he added, "I'll have to find the girl."

It's a gateman gag, but it actually happened and they're getting a great laugh out of it at Universal.

The other day, Claude Rains, newcomer from the stage, was stopped as he tried to drive his car on the lot.

"Who are you?" asked the gateman.

"I'm Claude Rains," the actor explained. "I'm playing out here in 'The Invisible Man.'"

The movie St. Peter looked bored. "Oh yeah," he said. "Well, you'll have to make your car invisible too. I can't let you in."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Here's a dramatic short story I ran across in the studios. Several years ago, a Wall Street operator went crash. Once he'd sold a stock exchange seat for $750,000 and had had plenty of cash. But the debacle came and he got caught outside the law. They charged him with embezzling. It wasn't an out and out steal but technically he was guilty. They sent him up to Sing Sing.

Some time ago, he came up for parole, but somebody had to sign papers offering to give him a job. The man who did it was one of his victims, Director Lloyd Bacon, who had lost $10,000 in the smash. Today, the one-time mogul is doing extra work in Bacon's pictures. Says Bacon: "Remember Arbuckle? They wouldn't give him a chance to come back."

DID YOU KNOW—

That the real name of Bruce Cabot, who pals around with Adrienne Ames, is Etienne S. Debujac?

DID YOU KNOW—

That Wallace Beery once starred in a series of pictures made in Japan and can carry on a limited conversation in that language?

YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The Aphis—The rate of increase of the Aphis or plant-louse is so enormous that were it not for their innumerable natural enemies, the descendants of a single female produced and reproduced within a single season, would represent organic matter sufficient to outweigh the entire population of the earth 8½ to 1. This is due to the fact that the young require but a few days to take up reproduction, and that the succeeding generations can, in turn, reproduce ad infinitum.

Apartment House Fire Causes $1,200 Damage Yesterday

Sparks, resulting from burning paper in the furnace, set fire to the west side of the house. The flames had gained considerable headway before firemen were called. Two lines of hose, one booster and one hydrant were used in extinguishing the fire. Water soaking through the first and second floors caused much of the damage.

SEEN from—Old Capitol

by TOM YOSELOFF

With seven other spectators, I spent 15 minutes yesterday afternoon "traveling" around the Century of Progress exposition—figuratively, of course. It was at a preview of a reel of pictures entitled "Around the Century of Progress with Burton Holmes," which will be shown by the extension division tomorrow afternoon.

The picture, a silent version, is not accompanied by Mr. Holmes' justly famous lecture. However, Bruce Mahan, director of the extension division, pinch-hitted for Mr. Holmes, interspersing the unreeling of the show with his own remarks—caustic and otherwise. Just a warning—Mr. Mahan will not repeat his remarks at the regular showing tomorrow.

Old Capitol, center of the university, continues to be a drawing card for visitors to Iowa City. Every Sunday or holiday sees from 50 to 150 sight-seers looking in on the "sights" at Iowa's first state-house.

Costly display: Visitors to the Iowa State fair will have opportunity to see the work of faculty members of the university's graphic and plastic arts department, as well as a group of paintings from the university's permanent collection. The 22 departmental canvases—excluding those of the permanent collection—are valued at $3,775!

College of Law Makes Awards

Three S. U. I. Students Granted Scholarships for Coming Year

Three University of Iowa students and four graduates of other Iowa colleges were awarded scholarships in the college of law, it was announced yesterday by Dean Eugene A. Gilmore.

Four Laffey scholarships, one Miller, one Hammond, and one Dillon award, make up the seven honors presented.

Miller Scholarship

The Miller scholarship, bearing a stipend of $200 for a year's work, was awarded to Donald M. Box of Ottumwa. Mr. Box received his B. A. degree at Grinnell college in 1930.

To Harold Keele of Dysart, will go the $150 award of the Hammond scholarship. Mr. Keele is a graduate of last month in liberal arts at Cornell college.

Laffey Awards

The Laffey scholarships, with a combined stipend annually of $600, were given to four students, allowing each $150. Two of these awards will go to University of Iowa students: A. B. Cummins and B. Bernard Druker of Marshalltown.

The Laffey award was also won by J. W. Schwarzenbach of Ottumwa, who received his B.A. degree at Iowa Wesleyan college last month, and Edward Danforth of Sioux Falls, S. D., who graduated last month in liberal arts at Grinnell college.

Dillon Grant

Casper C. Garrigues, Jr., of Iowa City is the recipient of the Dillon scholarship, which bears a yearly stipend of $100.

The students who received these honors will begin their work in the University of Iowa college of law next September.

Hinman Tells Dangers of Too Much Saving in Water Plants

Cites Possibilities of Epidemics When Budget is Cut

Poor operation, perhaps causing tragic epidemics, follows in the wake of attempts at economy in water treatment plants, Prof. Jack J. Hinman, chief of the water laboratory at the University of Iowa, warned yesterday.

It is an economic error, he said, to replace trained personnel of plants with inexperienced operators, and to install cheap equipment.

Ineffective

The university man declared that officials in some communities are agitating reduction of chemical application, until the dose is ineffective. Such reductions are likely to be found in plants where chlorine is applied by novice employes.

Professor Hinman cited as an example a small town where the dosage was reduced materially, although the saving in money was no more than 25 cents per day. The town then suffered from a typhoid epidemic, with estimated damages of half a million dollars.

Trained Men

Water purification, with its increasing complexities, soon will require a larger number of trained men for design, construction, and operation of plants, he declared. Communities, many of which take water from streams with concentrated impurities, demand constantly greater refinement in the product—free from odor, taste, and disease dangers.

GRAIN

Exchange Officials Agree to Reform

tor of the farm act, made it clear that he and his associates are "not committed' to the program to the extent of preventing them from taking other action changing rules as they may think desirable.

Peek said President Roosevelt "has taken great interest in the accomplishments of the conference and has watched its course closely.

Urges Haste

"If I have any suggestion to make it is that you should not lose any time in getting your codes in here. You had better do this yourselves. If not, it may be done for you."

The code for the grain exchanges is to include the rules employed by the exchanges at Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Duluth. It will be a supplement to a master code for the grain industry.

Other Branches

Other branches which will prepare supplemental codes include country elevator operators, whose representatives will meet at Chicago Thursday, terminal elevator groups and millers who have already begun work.

The codes are to include lists of fair and unfair trade practices and competitive activities to curb operations which administrators believe conflict with their purpose of obtaining "fairer and more stable prices to farmers for their products."

Seventh Inning Scoring Spree Gives Swaner's 6 to 2 Verdict Over W.W. Club

Dairymen Bat in Four Runs to Win Game

Both Teams Play Tight Ball Until Fatal Seventh

Four runs blasted across the plate in the seventh inning broke a two-all tie to give Swaner's a 6 to 2 victory over W. W. Club last night at city park in a closed league game.

With both teams supporting their hurlers, and batters going down with clock-like regularity, Swaner's came to bat in the first of the seventh and Mathas lead off with a base on balls to score a moment later when Moore clouted a long two base hit. J. Soucek blasted a homer over center field for the second score. Dohrer and Sulek crossed the plate before the side retired to finish the winning rally.

Swaner's started the scoring in the second with a run by Sulek, and increased it by one run in the fourth when Dohrer scored. W. W. club collected their runs in the fourth and fifth with Hinchcliffe and J. White scoring.

Mathas hurled for Swaner's and Moore worked behind the plate. For W. W. Club, B. White pitched and J. Burger caught.

I.C.W.F. Rallies to Win, 5-2

Iowa City Wholesale Fruit staged a three run rally in the last of the sixth to break into the open league win column with a 5 to 2 victory over Kelley Cleaners last night in the opening game of the evening.

Boyles started the scoring in the second inning when he hit a long three bagger and scored on the error that let Hora to first. Chelf scored in the third on a hit by Anderson to finish the losers' total.

The winners first two runs were scored in the third with Johanas and Kerr crossing the plate. The fifth frame went scoreless.

In the last of the sixth, with one out, Moore hit to first. Donley went to first on balls but was caught off base. Parish reached first on a fielders choice. Howard went to first on an error. With the stage set, three on base, Johanas blasted a sizzling two base hit that brought in the three runs that put the Wholesalers in the lead.

The Cleaners failed to score in the last of the sixth and the game was called on account of time. Griffith hurled for the Cleaners and Chelf caught. Parish held down the hill for the winners with Callahan behind the plate.

Golden Glow Downed in Nightcap

Golden Glow again failed to register a win and fell before Hydraulic Lab. in the night cap game, 8 to 5. Despite a steady attack, the Glowers could not overcome a five run lead collected by the Lab. outfit in the first.

Hitting Lowell, new pitcher in these parts, for five runs in the first, the winners had little trouble in standing off the red shirted boys, who twice started rallies that faded before the support that was given to Free, the winning hurler. One run was collected in the fourth, one in the fifth, and one in the sixth to finish the winner's total.

Stimmel and Lowell scored in the third, Chelf in the fourth, Gallocher in the sixth, and Lowell again in the seventh to complete the losers' five runs.

Lowell, losing pitcher, who was relieved of mound duty in the sixth, proved the best hitter of the game, with three long hits in three attempts. His first chance in the third, turned into a long triple. He got a single in the fifth. In the seventh his smashing triple was turned into a home run on an overthrow home.

Free struck out seven men during the game's activities. He hurled a steady game and at no time was in trouble. Evans was on the receiving end of his offerings. Gallocher took over the hill for Lowell in the sixth for Kelley Cleaners. Chelf went the route behind the plate.

Hawkeyes to Seek Even Break in All Games in Stadium

One more victory will give the University of Iowa an even break in football games played in the stadium, it is shown by a summary of the records.

The Hawkeyes, since tying Illinois in the dedication game of 1929, have won seven, lost eight, and tied another contest. It is likely that the eighth triumph will be scored Oct. 7 against Bradley Tech.

Then the 1933 team will have a chance to make the wins outnumber the defeats by whipping Wisconsin Oct. 21 in the Homecoming game and Iowa State Nov. 4 on Dads' day.

Zell Eaton in Western Lead

Oklahoma Youth Wins Medalist Honors at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 25 (AP)—Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City, a 19 year old youngster, romped off with the western amateur golf championship's qualifying test today with a 36 hole total of 72-39—141.

He was two shots in front of the veteran Jack Westland, the first day's leader, who had 71-72—143.

Playing his entire round in a steady rain, Eaton had par hanging on the ropes as one birdie after another rolled off his clubs. He was three under perfect figures for 14 holes and needed only par in for a 67.

After the opening round yesterday Gene Vinson of Meredian, Miss., and Maurice Hankinson of Oklahoma City were tied with Eaton for second place with 72's. Vinson kept up his fine play for another 72 and a total of 144 but Hankinson blew his chances with a high 82 and wound up with 154.

Two strokes behind Vinson came Louis Montedonico of Memphis with 146 while Mike Roach of St. Louis was another four shots away with 150. Billy Howell of Richmond had 151. Tied at 152 were Charles Yates, Atlanta; Leland Hamman, Waco, Tex., and Jack Munger, Dallas.

English Maiden to Try for Gertrude Ederle's Record

LONDON (AP)—Miss Eva Coleman, a cashier in a London hotel, plans to tackle the English channel in July or August to give England the women's record now held by Gertrude Ederle.

Saying that "I can swim much better to music," she will have a phonograph playing "This is my lucky day" in the boat accompanying her.

She is being trained by T. W. Burgess, who, in 1911, became the second man to conquer the channel.

Miss Coleman weighs only 134 pounds but expects to jump up to 147 pounds when she is in full training "on red steak, a few potatoes, plenty of fruit, a lot of milk—and, of course, pounds of peaches."

Game Halted in 5th Inning With 5-1 Score

Philadelphia Pitcher's Wildness Costly to Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, July 25 (AP)—The Washington Senators hung up a 5 to 1 victory over the Athletics today in a game that was shortened to five innings by rain, and increased their lead over the idle Yankees to a full game.

The Griffmen took advantage of Roy Mahaffey's wildness to score four runs in the first inning. After that Earl Whitehill's flinging never left the issue in doubt.

Mahaffey issued five walks in the opening frame, and a couple of flies and two hits helped turn them into the winning rally. He walked in one run and three times loaded the bases with passes.

Goose Goslin and Heinie Manush drew the first two tickets to first after Buddy Myer had made a scratch single. A fly by Joe Cronin produced the first run, Mahaffey then handed walks to Fred Schulte and Joe Kuhel, forcing in a run. Ossie Bluege's liner brought Manush home. A pass to Luke Sewell crammed the corners again and Whitehill beat out a single to bring in Schulte with the fourth run.

Score by innings:			R.	H.	E.
Washington	400	10—	5	7	0
Philadelphia	000	01—	1	5	0

Batteries: Whitehill and Sewell; Mahaffey and Cochrane.

Indians Take Extra Inning Win

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP) — Mel Harder shaded Sam Jones in a pitching duel today and the Cleveland Indians defeated the White Sox, 2 to 1, in 10 innings in the series opener.

The defeat, their sixth in succession, dropped the Chicagoans to sixth place for the first time this season.

Frank Pytlak, diminutive catcher, featured the Indians' attack, hitting a home run in the fourth inning to tie the score and advancing Willie Kamm from first to third with a tenth inning single. Kamm, who had singled, then scored the winning run on Billy Knickerbocker's fly.

Harder kept the White Sox to six hits, two of which were paired in the first inning for their lone run when Evar Swanson doubled and Al Simmons singled.

Score by innings:			R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	000	100 000 1—	2	7	1
Chicago	100	000 000 0—	1	6	1

Batteries: Harder and Pytlak; Jones and Grube.

Tigers Smother Browns, 9 to 3

DETROIT, July 25 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers opened their home stand today with a 9 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Browns, while the Bengal batters fattened their averages with 15 hits gathered from the offerings of Irving (Bump) Hadley, and Gray. McDonald worked the closing inning but yielded no hits.

Carl Fischer kept the visiting batters well under his thumb, keeping 10 hits scattered.

Score by innings:			R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	001	000 011—	3	10	0
Detroit	403	200 00*—	9	15	1

Batteries—Hadley, Gray, McDonald and Shea; Fischer and Hayworth.

Cunningham, Metcalfe Lead Winners Under Bresnahan

Headed by Glenn Cunningham and Ralph Metcalfe, each with four victories, the American track and field team, now on a European tour in charge of Coach George T. Bresnahan of the University of Iowa, had collected 22 first places up to Monday.

The eight-man team gathered 15 firsts in a three day meet in Stockholm last week, and added seven at Sundsvall Sunday, according to press dispatches from Sweden.

Ranking next to the Kansas distance runner and the Marquette sprinter in number of triumphs is the Louisiana hurdler, John Morriss, who has three wins.

George Spitz, high jumper; Henri LaBorde, discus thrower; Joe McCluskey, distance runner; and Ivan Fuqua, quarter miler, each have won twice, the Americans also have two relay first places, and John Anderson won a discus event.

Following two or three other meets in Sweden, Coach Bresnahan will pilot the men to Germany for engagements in Hanover and Berlin.

8 Titles Decided at State Trapshoot

SIOUX CITY, July 25 (AP)—Eight championships were settled today in the Iowa State Trapshooting association tournament at the Sioux Gun club. A Sioux Citian, C. H. Brechlin, turned in the outstanding performance by winning two titles, the class B doubles in the morning and the Iowa handicap in the afternoon.

Other shooters who won championships were F. J. Lightner, Cedar Rapids, class A doubles; John Jahn, Spirit Lake, Iowa professional doubles; F. D. Saunders, Minneapolis, out of state doubles; L. H. Hoover, Dallas Center, Ottumwa Diamond badge; L. D. Russell, Des Moines, Iowa professional handicap, and B. A. Mahlum, New Effingham, S. D., high out of state handicap.

Brechlin was required to engage in shoot offs to win both titles. He defeated L. E. Carlson of Des Moines 46 to 44 for the class B doubles and A. R. Mills of Sioux City 24 to 21 for the Iowa handicap championship.

Giants Refuse to Lose Spirit

Terrymen Confident of Continuing Victory Streak

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Displayed prominently and confidently in the club house of the pace-setting New York Giants at the Polo grounds is a telegraphic message that stands today as the baseball equivalent of the celebrated Spanish war-time "message from Garcia."

It reads: "They cannot beat us. En-route. J. C. Ryan."

If the rejuvenated Giants have a slogan, if there are four words that typify the rare fighting spirit of Bill Terry's club, they unquestionably consist of the telegram that Shortstop John C. (Blondy) Ryan dispatched to his manager in St. Louis shortly before he got back into the game after being laid up with a spiked leg. He proceeded to help break the team's losing streak.

"Sparkplug" Ryan

Ryan, playing his first season as a major league regular, has developed into the sparkplug of a team that has cut a sensational swath through National league ranks and just returned from a tough western trip, still in the lead and still confident it can lick any rival in sight.

They were forced to spend today kidding each other and playing cards instead of having a workout, due to a mid-day downpour.

"Guts? You never saw anything in your life like this outfit," remarked Terry, who is young and enthusiastic enough to participate in, instead of being aloof from his team's "college spirit."

"Win Anway"

"We have gone out there and won games with one outfielder handicapped by a charley-horse, a shortstop with either a bad knee or a bandaged leg, a pitcher with a sprained ankle and a manager with a headache," said Memphis Bill. "They are just a bunch of fightin' fools, that's all. They don't know when they are licked. Boy, have I been discouraged some times! Then up we come with seven runs in the ninth to beat Brooklyn.

"On top of that, we have had marvelous pitching right along, even when the rest of the club slumped or we didn't hit or we were handicapped without Ryan. Give Gus Mancuso a hand for the way he has helped develop Parmelee and Schumacher."

Up in the executive offices of the club, the winning spirit of the players is reflected. Fan mail pours in from all parts of the country. More than 1,000 letters were on Secretary Jim Tierney's desk when he got back from the last road trip, on which the club set a record for the year by drawing 200,000 cash customers.

Twin Victory Cuts Chicago Lead on Bucs

Smith, Swetonic Twirl Good Ball; Lindy Hits in 22nd

PITTSBURGH, July 25 (AP)—The Pirates defeated the second place Chicago Cubs in both ends of a doubleheader today, 4 to 3, and 4 to 1, and got back into the thick of the National league race.

The double victory left the Bucs only a game and a half behind Chicago. The lead the idle Giants hold over the Cubs was increased to three games.

The pitching of Steve Swetonic and Hal Smith was an important factor in the Bucs' triumph while Freddy Lindstrom put in a busy day at bat to run hitting streak to 22 consecutive games.

Swetonic failed to finish the opener, being lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth, but Smith worked the entire game and limited the Cubs to five hits and an unearned run.

The Bucs' got their winning runs in the second inning of the nightcap as Piet was hit by a pitched ball, Hal Finey beat out a bunt and Lindstrom smacked a single to center that Demaree let go past him for an error.

ST. LOUIS, July 25 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made Frankie Frisch's debut as manager a success today by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1, behind the excellent pitching of the veteran Jess Haines. Haines held the Reds to six hits.

Frisch, handicapped by a leg injury, coached from the thirdbase line.

Gabby Street to Head Club Again in '34

Deposed Cards' Leader Refuses to Name Team

JOPLIN, Mo., July 25 (AP)—Gabby Street, deposed St. Louis Cardinal manager, said today he will head a major league baseball club again next season.

"I cannot answer that," he replied when asked to name the club. "The news belongs to the home club's city," he said, "and it's up to the club owners to release it.

"Besides, I wouldn't want to say anything that might worry some manager who is still in there fighting for a place in the win column. I was a manager yesterday, you know.

"Do you know," he asked, "that this is the first time in 32 years, excepting that year in France, that I've been off a ball lot in the middle of July?"

Tomorrow will be "Gabby Street" day at the Western league game here. Street will appear in a Joplin miner uniform. Infrmed by Manminer uniform. Informed by Manage the team for the game, Street said, "No. You run the game, Runt."

Speaking of his release, Gabby turned to Marr and said:

"You know how it goes, Runt. The old remedy for a sick ball club is to fire the manager. He can't go in their and throw for the pitchers; he can't bat when he needs base hits; he can't run bases; but he's the boy who's to blame. It's an old baseball custom."

Florida Fish Jump Into Anglers' Boat

EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP)—Pompano is the prize fish of these waters, not only for its delicacy but because it is wary and hard to catch.

But Maj. Fred Bradford and Henry Wrenn of Miami got a four-pound pompano without a struggle.

They were trolling the inland waters of the Ten Thousand islands for redfish and tarpon when the boat disturbed a feeding school of pompano. One pompano, frightened, leaped from the water and landed in the boat.

Bonds Attain Higher Level

Sales Total Twelve Million in Active Trading Day

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—The bond market, apparently paying little attention to the gyrations of stocks, advanced to higher price levels today in fairly active trading.

Sales totaled $12,049,000 par value.

Rail issues, aided by roseate June earning reports of leading carriers, made the best showing of the day.

Gains of 1 to 3 or more points were registered by some loans of Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern, Wabash and Western Pacific.

Utility and industrial advances of 1 to 2 or more were recorded by loans of Colon Oil, Colorado Industrial, Detroit Edison, Goodrich, Hudson Coal, International Paper and International Telephone.

United States government securities were dull and slightly irregular.

Wheat Prices Regain Part of Recent Drops

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—Bounding upward to almost 10 cents a bushel above the extreme low prices current during recent panicky selling, wheat values today recovered equilibrium.

The maximum net advance scored today in wheat, 4 3-4 cents, came after evidence developed that the end of liquidation of huge distressed speculative holdings had virtually been reached. Acting as if emerging from a nightmare, the market advanced steadily from then until just before the close, when brisk profit taking led to material setbacks from the day's top figures.

Helping to rally prices were reports indicating likelihood that the Canadian wheat crop had passed the limit where drought relief this season was possible.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1 1-4—1 3-4 cents above yesterday's finish, corn 3-4—2 1-8 higher, oats 1 1-4—3 5-8 up, and provisions 5 cents to 75 cents advanced.

Active buying tended from the outset to lift wheat prices. Definite estimates were circulated that export business at Winnipeg had amounted to 10,000,000 bushels within the last four days, greater than supposed. There was also a sudden rise of about 5 cents in Winnipeg wheat quotations today.

Further significance was attached to the circumstance that milling interests were prominent today as buyers of wheat here. The fact was also apparent that the drastic decline in grain futures of late had not influenced farmers' belief in higher prices ultimately, as there were practically no offerings today of cash grain to arrive here from the country.

Provisions went upgrade with cereals, regardless of downturns of hog values.

Rumor Rajah May Manage in Jr. Circuit

ST. LOUIS, July 25 (AP)—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch says Rogers Hornsby, whose stormy major league baseball career has taken him from St. Louis to New York, Boston, Chicago, and back to St. Louis, will within a few days become manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Waivers on Hornsby, at present a member of the Cardinals squad, have been out several days and all will be in by tomorrow, leaving Hornsby a free agent with the right to sell his services wherever he desires, it was explained.

Until the waivers all are received a National agreement forbids any club owner dealing with the Rajah.

Reports were current that Hornsby, Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals; Phil Ball, president of the Browns, and Frank Carter, an attorney, conferred today.

Ball, however, denied he had seen Hornsby.

"Waivers will not be declared until tomorrow," he said, "until then I can do nothing."

Bill Killifer, former manager of the Browns, was ousted last week after the club made a dismal American league showing.

"The SEA BRIDE"

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"WHAT is it, Noll?" Faith asked. "Why are you —angry?"

He lifted a clenched hand over his head; it trembled there for an instant, then came slowly down. He wrenched open the door to the main cabin, and went out and left her standing there.

Faith watched him go, perplexity in her eyes. Dan'l joined him, and they went on deck together.

They came to the Solander Grounds with matters still in this wise—Brander much with the crew; Noll Wing rotting in his chair in the cabin; Faith gaining strength of soul with every day; Dan'l playing upon Noll, upon Roy, upon all those about him to his own ends.

The Solander received them roughly; they passed the tall Solander Rock and cruised westward, keeping it in sight. There was another whaling-ship, almost hull down north of them, and the smoke that clouded her told the Sally she had her try-pots going. Dan'l Tobey was handling the vessel, and he chose to work up that way; but before they were near the other craft, the masthead men sighted whales—spouts all about, blossoming like flowers upon the blue water.

Noll had regained a little of his strength when they came upon the grounds; he took the ship, and bade Dan'l and the other mates lower and single out a lone whale.

"They'll all be bulls, hereabouts," he said. "Big ones, too. We'll take one at a spell, and be thankful for that."

The whale was, as Noll had predicted, a bull. Dan'l made the kill, a ridiculously easy one. The vast creature lifted a little in the water at the first iron; he swam slowly southward; but there was no fight in him when they pulled up and drove home the lance.

An hour after lowering the whale was alongside the Sally—a monstrous creature, not far short of the colossus Cap'n Wing had slain. He was made fast to the flukechain bitt, and the cutting in began forthwith. That, too, on Noll Wing's order.

"Fair weather never sticks, hereabouts," he said. "Work while there's working seas."

Now the first task when cutting in a whale is to work off the head; and that is no small job. For the whale has no neck at all, unless a certain crease in his thick blubber may be called a neck. The spades of the mates, keen-edged, and mounted on long poles with which they jab downward from the cutting stage, chock into the blubber and draw a deep cut along the chosen line. The carcass is laboriously turned, the process is repeated. Thus on, till at last the huge mass can be torn free.

Before the work on this whale was half done, it became apparent that a gale was brewing. Cross swells, angling together at the mouth of Foveaux Strait, kicked up a drunken sea that made the Sally pitch and roll at the same time—a combination not relished by any man. Nevertheless, the head was got off and hauled alongside for cutting up.

This work had taken the better part of the night; and with the dawn, there arose a whine in the wind that sang a constant high note in the taut rigging. With the Sally pitching and rolling drunkenly, the 15-ton junk was got off the head and hoisted aboard, while every strand of rigging creaked and protested at the terrible strain. The blubber was coming in; but the wind was increasing.

In the end the Sally had to let go what remained of her catch and run for it, losing thereby the huge "case" full of spermaceti, and a full half of the blubber.

They ran into Port William for shelter. Noll Wing swore at his ill luck, and when the ship was anchored, went sulkily below. Dan'l drove the men to their tasks.

The weeks that followed were repetitions of this first experience, with such capricious modifications as the gales and the sea chose to arrange. They killed many big whales; some they lost altogether, some they lost in part, and some few they harvested. They fell into the way of running for port with their kill as soon as the whale was alongside, rather than risk the storms in the open. It was hard and steady work for all hands; and as the men had grumbled at ill luck when they sighted no whales, so now they grumbled because their luck was overgood.

Dan'l found them easy working, ready for his hands; and by a word dropped now and then through these busy times, he led them in the way he wished them to go. He never let them forget, for one thing, the ambergris beneath the cabin. When they grumbled, he reminded them it was there as a rich reward for all their labors. He reminded them, at the same time, that Brander claimed it.

Neither did he let the men forget that which he wished them to believe of Faith and Brander. By indirections, by words with Roy which he took care they should overhear, by reproofs for chance-caught gossip he kept the matter alive in their minds, so that they began to look at Faith sidewise when she appeared on deck.

Brander was not blind to this, and if he had been blind, Mauger's one eye would have seen for him. He knew the matter in the minds of the men, but he could not be sure that Dan'l was putting it there. Nevertheless, he spoke to Dan'l of it one day. It was the first time since Brander came aboard that he and Dan'l had had more than a passing word alone.

Brander made an opportunity to take the mate aside. He held Dan'l's eyes with his own and said steadily:

"Mr. Tobey, there's ugly talk among the men aboard here that should be put a stop to."

Dan'l looked surprised; he asked what Brander meant. Brander said openly:

"They're coupling my name with that of the captain's wife. You've heard them. It should be ended."

"I know," Dan'l said amiably. "It's very bad. But that is a thing you can't stop from the after deck, Mr. Brander."

"That's true. So what do you think should be done in the matter?"

The mate waved his hand.

"It's not my affair, Mr. Brander. It's not me whose name is coupled with Faith's."

Brander nodded, his face hot.

"Suppose I go forward again," he said. "I'll make some occasion to commit a fault; Cap'n Wing can send me forward and put Silva, or another, in my place.

Dan'l looked at Brander sharply, and he shook his head.

"The men would be saying then that it was because of this matter you were put out of the cabin."

"I suppose so."

"It is very sure."

"What would you suggest?" Brander asked, his eyes holding Dan'l's.

Dan'l seemed to weigh the matter.

"How if you were to leave the ship completely?" he inquired.

Brander's eyes narrowed; and Dan'l, in spite of himself, turned away his head. If Brander left the ship— There was no other man aboard whom he need fear when the time should come. If Brander but left the ship—

Brander's eyes narrowed; he studied Dan'l; and after a little he laughed harshly, and nodded his head as if assured of something which he had doubted before.

"No," he said. "No. I'll not leave the Sally." He could never do that; there might come the day when Faith would have to look to him. "No; I'll stick aboard."

Dan'l's hopes had leaped high; they fell low. But he hid his chagrin.

"You are right," he said. "That is a deal to ask, just to stop the idle chatter of the men. Best stay —it will be forgotten."

Brander turned abruptly away, to crush down a sudden flood of anger that had clenched his fists. He knew Dan'l now beyond doubt. He had guessed the mate's eagerness to be rid of him. Dan'l should not have his way in this so easily.

Dan'l's own eyes had been opened by this talk with Brander. The mate's heart had not yet formed his full design; he was working evil without any further plan than to bring harm and ruin. But Brander's suggestion, the possibility that Brander might leave the ship, had revealed to Dan'l in a single flash how matters would lie in his two hands if Brander were gone. Noll Wing was nothing; old Tichel he could swing; Willis Cox was a boy; the crew were asleep. Only Brander stood out against him; only Brander must be beaten down to clear his path With Brander gone—

Dan'l set himself the task of eliminating Brander. He thought of many plans. A little mishap in the whaling, a kinked line, a flying spade, an ugly mischance— These could not be arranged; he could only hope for the luck of them; but that need not prevent him working to help out the fates. Not openly; he could not do that without setting Brander on guard. And Brander on guard was doubly to be feared. Dan'l remembered an ancient phrase, the advice of a philosopher to a rebellious soul. "When you strike at a king, you must kill him!" It was so with Brander; he must be destroyed at a blow—utterly.

Noll was a tool that might serve; Noll would strike, if he could be roused to the full measure of wrath. Dan'l worked with Noll, discreetly, in hidden words, appearing always to defend. Brander and Faith meant no harm, he said. They were friends, no more. Dan'l assured Noll of this, again and again; and he took care that his assurances should not convince.

"Why must you always be defending Faith?" Noll stormed at him, one night. "Why do you stand by her?"

"I've always known Faith, sir," Dan'l said humbly. "I don't want to see her do anything—that is, I don't want to see you harsh with her, sir."

And Noll fell into a brooding silence that pleased Dan'l mightily. But still the captain did not strike at Brander.

Dan'l reminded the captain that Brander still gave much time to the crew; he played on that string, still hoping that Noll might be roused to overwhelming rage. But Dan'l's poisoned soul was losing its gift of seeing into the hearts of men. The old Noll would have reacted to his words as he hoped. This new Noll was another matter; this Noll, aging and rotting with drink, was led by Dan'l's sly talk to hate Brander—and to fear him. His fear of Brander and of the one-eyed man obsessed even his sober mind. He would never dare seek to crush Brander openly; Faith he might strike, but not the man.

In the end, even Dan'l perceived this; he cast about for a new instrument, and found it in the man Slatter.

Slatter had crossed Brander's path, to his sorrow. The loose-tongued man dropped some word of Faith which Brander heard, and Brander remembered. He made pretext of Slatter's next small failure at work to pommel the man unmercifully. No word of Faith in this; he thrashed Slatter for idling at the windlass when a blanket strip was being hoisted, and for impudence. Slatter was his enemy thereafter.

Sick Father Made Denver Girl Champ

Phyllis Buchanan Finds Golfing Touch as Dad Gets Well

DENVER (AP)—Shy, taffy-haired Phyllis Buchanan of Denver is among the champion women golfers of the nation today because she learned the game while helping her father win his fight for health.

No muscled Amazon of the links is this 22 year old prodigy of golf. With a figure like a young aspen and a face that seems more suited to a chorister's surplice than a sports frock, she doesn't look the type for athletic triumph.

But at 16 she battled her way to within a short putt of the Colorado women's golf championship—at 19 she had won it—and this summer she went to Des Moines and won the Trans-Mississippi title just as a sort of twenty-second birthday present to herself.

He Got Well; She Got Good

Born in Kansas City, Phyllis spent 13 years without a mashie among her playthings. Then her father, C. M. Buchanan, became ill. A tennis champion in his college days, Buchanan didn't relish the doctor's prescription of golf for his convalescence, but he went down to the links in bandages and disgust and took his 13 year old daughter with him.

He got well and his daughter got proficient in golf. The Buchanans bought a home in Denver close to Lakewood Country club; and Phyllis played golf every day. Soon few of the men could beat her.

She persuaded her father, who had given up golf for trap-shooting, to let her enter the state tournament in 1927. Only 16, she fought to the finals and was beaten at the last hole.

Mrs. Vare Her Ideal

In 1930 she won the state title, and bowed to Marion Turpie in the semi-finals of the Trans-Mississippi only after a tussle that took them to the twenty-second hole. This year, recovered from an operation, she played the best golf of her career.

"I hope to play in the women's Western and the national championship at Chicago in August," Phyllis said, "I'd like to be national women's champion, but maybe that's hoping too much."

Besides her golf, Phyllis is interested in archery, bowling and writing. Her father and mother, both skilled in trap-shooting, have taught her something of that sport.

Her golfing ideal is Glenna Collett Vare, but unlike Glenna, who is married and recently became a mother, Phyllis doesn't think she'll ever give up golf for a home and family.

"Golf is the only thing I've ever been in love with yet," she smiled.

Ex-Gridder to West Point

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Harrison Stafford, whose football feats for the University of Texas won him fame far outside the southwest conference, probably will be on the army squad next season.

When a previous appointee of Representative Joseph W. Bailey of Dallas failed to qualify, Bailey named Stafford. All of the latter's credits were accepted, friends here were advised.

Stafford was graduated from the university this spring.

Cleveland Girl Wins Early Golf Laurels

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Golfers in the Cleveland district would not be surprised if the game shortly takes on a fair, blond and blue-eyed hue.

Miss Genevieve Rich began playing only three years ago, making her first round in 126. Today she holds the course record at Lakewood Country club with an 82, and last year she unseated Mrs. William Dawson, for six years the club's undisputed woman champion. This year she has taken part in two inter club competitions here and has won both of them.

She is a sister of George Rich, former University of Michigan football captain and now coach at Denison university.

Parker Wins at Seabright Tennis Match

Doeg, Baroness Levi Also Advance to Quarterfinals

By B. GREGORY HEWLETT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 25 (AP)—John Hope Doeg, one-time national champion, young Frankie Parker and the Baroness Maud Levi accomplished the outstanding feats in the forty-sixth annual Seabright Cricket and Tennis club invitation tournament today while quarter final brackets in both the men's and women's divisions were being filled.

Beats Kamrath

Doeg, who has played only occasionally since he reached the heights in 1930, stroked his way to a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Karl Kamrath, husky Texan.

The 17 year old Parker, who holds the national clay courts championship, found the knack of the grass surface and gave Grady C. Frank, former all-around athlete at Duke university and now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford university, a sound thrashing.

And the Baroness Levi, winner of four titles in the metropolitan district this year, perhaps surpassed the feats of the other two by outplaying the second-seeded Caroline Babcock of Los Angeles, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4. Like Doeg among the men, she was the only unseeded competitor to reach the round of eight.

Defending Champ Wins

The defending champions, Sidney Wood of New York, and Helen Jacobs, national champion from Berkeley, Cal., managed to win, Wood putting out Percy L. Kynaston, of New York, and Miss Jacobs eliminating Mae Ceurvorst of Wichita, Kan., but both made numerous errors.

Wood's scores of 7-5, 13-11, against Kynaston indicate how he was playing. Miss Jacobs, who appears unable to reach her form, had an even more difficult task than the scores of 6-1, 7-5 showed.

In the quarter-finals tomorrow, Wood meets Bryan Grant who today had trouble getting by Robert "Lefty" Bryan, another southerner, 4-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Miss Jacobs tomorrow will oppose Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn.

Profit Taking Cuts Down on Market Gains

General Rally Fails to Hold Own Against Late Realizing

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Profit-taking today claimed part of the stock market's recovery from last week's losses, but not until the market had had a general rally. By closing time early gains of 1 to 4 points for many of the favorites had been more than surrendered and there was a liberal representation of 1 to 2 point net losses, due to late realizing.

Traders seemed willing to move cautiously. "Repeal" shares had a good early boom and rails were anxious to get ahead for a time. Standard industrial, however, tended to lag, even while the rally was at its best, and finally reaction became fairly inclusive. Last prices were somewhat above the lows. Sales totaled 3,539,140 shares.

Second Short Session

The market had finished its second successive abbreviated session before two striking testimonials to the business recovery had been mae public. The first of these was General Motors' quarterly earnings statement, showing 90 cents a common share for the year's second three month period against 11 cents in the first and seven cents a year ago.

Then came the figures for U. S. Steel corporation, always a good yardstick for measuring business trends. The company's June quarter was the best in a year and half, a net operating profit before depreciation, depletion and interest charges. Wall street had expected no change in the 50 cent dividend rate on the preferred stock, and there was none.

Rail Business Good

June railroad business was decidedly good, though current freight loading reports, covering last week's traffic, indicate that the delayed seasonal sag may not be far off, since traffic on several roads ran fairly even with the previous week.

On the stock exchange, "repeal" shares skidded toward the close, bringing losses of 5 or 6 points to National Distillers and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Western Union and Case yielded about 4, while U. S. Smelting and Canada Dry yielded approximately as much. U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, American Telephone, Chrysler, Du Pont, General Electric, Deere, International Harvester, Lackawanna, New York Central, Illinois Central, Consolidated Gas, Cerro de Pasco, Safeway, United Aircraft and American Commercial Alcohol sagged 1 to about 2 1-2. American Can, Union Pacific and Allied Chemical closed moderately higher. General Motors lost half a point net, reducing an extreme loss of more than a point.

The English-speaking countries of the world are reported by the department of commerce to be carrying 85 per cent of the international life insurance total.

Midwest Committee Approves Restrictive Tax, Curtailing of Hog Production

Five Point Plan Made for Future

Benefit Payments Also Included by Farm Representatives

CHICAGO, July 25 (AP)—A vast program for curtailment of work production which would entail benefit payments to farmers for marketing operations which would cut their future hog production and a "restrictive" tax on all hogs marketed at weights above 235 pounds was advocated tonight by the national corn and hog committee of 25 members representing 10 midwest states.

The committee refrained from recommending a production plan for corn growers because of the season. The hog situation, it was explained, can be better effected at present.

Parity Price Level

A five point plan was drafted by which the conferees said a parity price level for pork could be reached. Carrying out of the scheme would require the levying of a processing tax on pork and competing products in order to pay for losses incurred by putting into effect of any of the proposals.

Leaders attending the conference refrained from any discussion as to how much this tax might be. They said it would be impossible to reach an estimate until the exact number of hogs to be taken from the market had been determined.

Ambitious

The ambitious program—the committee's recommendation to be forwarded to department of agriculture officials at Washington, aims at the removal from market of 500,000,000 pounds of pork and pork products between now and Jan. 1, and a total reduction of two billion pounds of pork products during the coming marketing year.

The committee suggested any one of a combination of the following methods be used to accomplish the object of establishing pre-war parity prices for hogs.

Methods

1. By sale or donation to relief agencies under agreement that their normal purchases of meat will not be reduced.
2. By making low grade hogs and hog products into tankage, and the lard from them, if necessary, into soap.
3. By making payments to farmers for the marketing of light pigs and piggy sows. This would bring benefit payments to farmers and at the same time reduce the 1934 hog supply.
4. By increasing exports.
5. By levying a substantial processing tax on all hogs marketed at weights above 235 pounds.

Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agriculture association, who presided, said the committee tried to protect the interests of consumers of meats. Item 3, he explained, is the crux of the program, for by this a bounty will be paid to farmers who agree to market sows.

$14,000 Given to Local Group for Stream Gauging

As a part of a $500,000 federal grant, the water resources branch of the U. S. Geological survey cooperating with the Iowa Hydraulics institute has been awarded $14,000 for stream gauging purposes and the rehabilitation of stations in Iowa, it has been announced here.

The grant is for use in addition to the amount already planned in the budget and will be under the direction of R. G. Kasel, U. S. engineer stationed here to work in cooperation with the institute. The work carried on is statewide and is a resumption of activities dropped in 1927.

Aldous Talks to Kiwanians at Luncheon

Describes Study of Colors, Tells About Business Relations

James A. Aldous talked on, "Business relations and a study in color" at the Iowa City Kiwanis club meeting yesterday.

Stressing the importance of courtesy to the customer he advised, "Don't argue with a customer. The customer is always right." He also pointed out the wisdom of co-operation among competitors and business contemporaries.

Six Things of Importance

In his study of colors Mr. Aldous listed six things that were of importance to the florist: origin, mixing, harmony, temperature, emotional response, and psychological effect.

There are three primary colors, red, yellow, and blue and three secondary, orange, green, and violet, he explained. All of the thousands of the various delicate shades and hues originate from the primary colors.

Floral Groups

Using floral groups to illustrate harmony groups, he listed the five different harmony types used by florists: monochomatic combination of tints of the same hue, analagous colors, contrasting color combinations, split complement harmony and the triads or union of the three primary or secondary colors.

Temperature

In discussing the temperature of flowers Mr. Aldous said that red was warm, yellow was cool, and blue was cold. Emotionally yellow is cheerful, reminding one of the sun. Red suggests love, bravery and vitality. Blue is quiet and peaceful. Violet is symbolic of royality, solemnity and mystery. Green is nature's favorite, delightful, restful color. Orange combines the warmth of red and the cheerfulness of yellow and is the most aggressive color.

Don C. White of Storm Lake, Johannes Anderson of Keokuk, and W. Otis Teeters were guests at the meeting.

CRASH ENDS MOLLISONS' FLIGHT

The wrecked plane Seafarer, in which James Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson, crashed in the marshes outside Bridgeport, Conn., 60 miles short of their New York city goal. The 400 gallons of fuel they took aboard at the start of their flight had run out. Mollison was slightly injured, while his wife was only shaken up.

Four Seeking Court Action

Four petitions asking for judgment on notes were filed with the clerk of the district court yesterday.

W. R. Hughes asked $3,000 judgment against Reynold Amish for notes signed by both he and his son, Malon A. Amish. Mrs. Emma Hughes also asks judgment against Amish on a $1,000 note. Popham and Hayek are attorneys for both W. R. Hughes and Mrs. Emma Hughes.

J. W. Sullivan asks $3,100 judgment against F. J. and Hazel Carlstrom on notes and mortgage deed bought from the Iowa City Savings bank. E. C. Halbach is attorney for Sullivan.

Mary Roberts, guardian of Frank Roberts, Jr., and Paul William Roberts asks judgment against Elmer J. and Sylvia E. Nelson on a $900 note secured by a mortgage deed on the west 40 feet of the south 100 feet of lot 8 in block 7 in East Iowa City.

AROUND THE TOWN with DICK FAGAN

Summer Morning

Around Iowa City between 4:30 a.m. and 7 a.m.—

A rotund gentleman sprawled in disarray on some blankets on a front porch completing the bass horn part of Schubert's unfinished symphony.

Not So

Birds noisily greeting the sun and the sun greeting the milkman—a disheveled, jubilant gentleman on his way home.

Bells

Irritating alarm clocks being strangled by groping hands. The bell on St. Mary's striking six and the city hall clock with its crashing jangle disputing its accuracy five minutes later.

To Work

Laborers with dinner pails under their arms walking to work with sleep in their eyes. Cars dashing down Burlington street, jouncing and bouncing over the rough pavement. A tramp crawling out of a culvert, stretches and blinks in the sunlight. The fragrant aroma of breakfast coffee.

Two Hours Later

A young fellow running down Dubuque street with a notebook under his arm—just 15 minutes late to class by St. Mary's chimes but only 10 by the city hall clock—probably 20 by the university system.

Discussed

The city council waterworks committee discussed water rates again yesterday with George Keller, manager of the Iowa Water service. Keller says the blanket code on wages and hours of the National Recovery administration will raise production costs so that the council will have to make allowances in the water rate ordinance. No definite decisions were reached.

Organize

More information from President Roosevelt concerning a drive to organize Iowa City merchants under the blanket code and trade codes is expected soon by D. W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Wallen Reports on Committee Meeting

A report on the Legion boys' work committee meeting, which was held recently in Des Moines, was made by Allen Wallen when the executive board of the Iowa City area council of the Boy Scouts met in the American Legion Community building last night.

Mr. Wallen was representative from this district. A report of the Kansas City national council meeting was also given at the board meeting.

"Red Ticket" Drive Goes On

The march of red tickets to Justice of the Peace B. F. Carter's office continued yesterday with 10 traffic violators each receiving a fine of $1 and costs. Police Chief W. H. Those who were fined $1 and costs yesterday are: H. C. Paup, using streets for storage; P. A. Clippinger, left wheel to curb; C. O. Ingersoll, parking in alley; C. Burns, left wheel to curb; L. B. Bandit Gang Foils Posse in Man Hunt

Believe Trio Escaped Into Minnesota During Night

DES MOINES, July 25 (AP)—Three members of the Barrow brothers Texas bandit gang eluded their pursuers somewhere in Iowa today, and most of the vast force of federal, state and county officers gave up the hunt of two days and a night.

Only a few men with U. S. Marshal Fred Hird remained near Sutherland, northwest Iowa, on the long chance that the fugitives might return to an old hideout there.

May Be in Kansas

Belief was expressed that the trio, Clyde Barrow, a man known as Jack Sherman and a woman, made their way into Minnesota during the night. However, a report from Junction City, Kan., indicated the three may have made their way southward across the state and reached Kansas.

Meanwhile, Marvin Barrow, captured in a wooded tract near Dexter yesterday, admitted to Arkansas officers that he shot and killed an Alma, Ark., marshal several weeks ago.

Cannot Live

Barrow, in a Perry hospital where physicians say he cannot live, told Sheriff F. Maxey of Ft. Smith, Ark., and an Arkansas deputy that he shot the Alma officer, H. D. Humphrey, and advised the deputy "you were lucky you got out of my way."

Marvin Barrow's wife, captured with him in the Dexter woodside, was held in jail here.
