HUEY LONG'S FORCES DEFEATED

General Hugh Johnson Outlines Buyers' Drive to Aid NRA Members

Assures Help When Time Is Ripe for Move

Other Pace Quickening Developments Fill Busy Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Pace quickening moves by Hugh S. Johnson today swept hundreds of thousands more workers into the recovery administration's new wage and hour circle and opened the way for a new form of cooperation between capital and labor.

Other principal developments of an action-crammed day were:

Johnson promised a buyers' drive "when the time is ripe" to assure a market for the products of the re-stimulated industries.

Code for 20,000 Banks

Authorization for 14,000 member banks of the American Bankers' association and 6,000 other banks, if they subscribe, to put into effect the wage and hour provisions of their own code pending hearing, instead of President Roosevelt's blanket agreement.

Similar permission for the electrical manufacturing, radio, rayon weaving, bedding, and rayon and synthetic yarn industries to put their own wage and hour limitations into effect.

Oil Industry Dispute

Dispute over whether governmental price fixing should be given the oil industry.

Johnson went before the cotton garment and kindred industries with his plan for a nation-wide purchasing drive which would favor those stores displaying the blue eagle.

"We know that unless your goods are moved off your shelves you cannot keep up your part in this program," the administrator said.

"Time Is Approaching"

"The time is approaching and the signal will be merely the certainity that this plan is working—that people are back again with a certainity. This is no flash in the pan.

"When that moment comes—and I think it is almost here—we are then going out in supplement to the drive that we are making to bring the whole country together on re-employment, to bring the whole country together on patronizing those people who aided in this great cooperative national movement."

Cause of Delay

Johnson said the signal had been delayed only because "we don't want to repeat the mistakes of the past," adding that "we would not regard it as fair or equitable or proper or prudent to go out and urge the people to begin increased spending until we thought that it was safe for them to do so."

Motion Pictures Must Submit Code to Administration

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The three major branches of the motion picture industry were told today by the recovery administration they must get together and submit as early as possible a wage increasing, hour regulating agreement.

The word was sent to eight organizations in a telegram from S. A. Rosenblatt, deputy administrator.

"The motion picture industry, presently divided into groups and factions," Rosenblatt told them, "must compose its differences and unite so far as possible to submit a code at the earliest moment. I understand various groups are working separately. They must work together."

Rosenblatt invited representatives of the producers, distributors and exhibitors to a meeting in New York Aug. 8 "to formulate a compact representative authorized group for code formulation purposes."

Legionnaires to Attend Meetings

The annual state convention of the American Legion will be held at Dubuque, Aug. 7, 8, and 9. Delegates to the Forty and Eight convention will meet in Dubuque Sunday.

Local delegates to the Forty and Eight convention are Robert O. Schell, L. E. Clark and Harry Lewis. Commander J. E. Gatens, Capt. R. V. Rickard, and W. R. Hart will represent Iowa City Legionnaires at the convention.

New York Police Comb Gangster Haunts in Search for Kidnapers

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Nathan Baskowitz, Brooklyn real estate dealer, was released unharmed tonight by men reported to have kidnaped him Monday night for $35,000 ransom.

Baskowitz's brother, who calls himself Arthur Bass, said that no ransom was paid but did not offer any explanation as to why the kidnapers should have freed his brother.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—The kidnapers of Lieut. John J. O'Connell, Jr., and Nathan Baskowitz, Brooklyn real estate and boxing promoter, were hunted today in two police searches that extended throughout the city's gangster haunts.

O'Connell, nephew of the politically powerful O'Connell brothers of Albany, N. Y., was returned after payment of a $40,000 ransom early Sunday. Baskowitz, also known as Nat Bass, was kidnaped Monday and is still missing.

Police were seeking an east side gangster, lieutenant of the late Frankie Yale, whom they believed had some connection with the abduction of O'Connell.

"We are dealing with a pretty tough crowd," Assistant Chief Inspector Sullivan said after conferring with Acting Captain Oliver, who returned from Albany.

"But I will say that we are making progress."

The search for Yale's lieutenant started when police learned that for a time he used a store at Broadway and 220th street as a headquarters for a so-called produce business. It was near this store that O'Connell was released by his abductors.

Yale's ex-lieutenant was described by police as the former leader of a band of "strong-arm" men who forced east side shopkeepers to buy cigars he manufactured under sweatshop conditions and who bombed stores which refused.

300 Attend Band Concert at University

All-State High School Group in First of Summer Series

Before an audience of more than 300 in the north rehearsal hall of the music building, the all-state high school orchestra performed last night in the first of a series of public concerts.

Conducted by Prof. Charles B. Righter of the music department, the all-state musicians played a group of numbers that brought evidences of appreciation from the audience.

Peer Gynt Suite, by Grieg, brought much applause from those gathered for the first presentation. A selection from "The Fortune Teller," by Victor Herbert, also proved popular.

The concert was originally scheduled to be given outdoors, on the campus between the music building and East Hall, but threat of rain forced it indoors. Similar concerts will be given weekly, at the same time. The concert was broadcast over station WSUI.

The all-state band is composed of 46 members, most of whom are high school students of the specially selected state group. Several of the musicians are school music supervisors or teachers who are studying here this summer.

The personnel of the all-state high school band is as follows:

Ralph Austin of Clarion, Thomas A. Ayres of Iowa City, James Buchanan, Paul W. Behm of Englewood, Cal., Thelma Case of Logan, Flora Lou Cotnam of Oelwein, Raymond Crilley, Leo Dvorak, Dexter French of Dubuque, Roger S. Galer of Fairfield.

Donald Graham, G. Herwig, Clark Higginbotham of Iowa City, Jack Hinman of Iowa City, Mark Houser of Iowa City, Edward Jebousek of Solon, Dan Jensen, Don L. Kessler of Cedar Rapids, Edward King of Iowa City.

Frances Mapes of Iowa City, Richard Marnette of Des Moines, Gilbert McEwen of Mason City, Maynard Meacham of Iowa City, Verla Ruth Mooney of Oelwein, Leland Nichols of Colfax, William Plant of Iowa City, Paul Popejoy.

Rail Group to Map Out Code for Workers

Union Head Calls for Conference Today on NRA

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2 (AP)—Code for railway workers under the national recovery act will be discussed by representatives of the Railway Labor Executives association in a special meeting here tomorrow.

The gathering was called today by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, one of the 21 railroad labor organizations in the United States.

Many Complaints

Whitney explained he had received many complaints from railway workers that the "railroads were not going along with the president's recovery program," particularly toward increased employment.

Simultaneously at Cincinnati, George M. Harrison, president of the brotherhood of railway clerks, freight handlers, express and station employes, said the railway labor groups were preparing to demand the adoption of a code.

"Action Should Be Taken"

"Some action ought to be taken by President Roosevelt," he said "to make the national recovery act apply to the railroads so as to provide work for the 700,000 unemployed railroad men, and the railway labor executives association proposes to demand such action."

Whitney asserted, however, that he could not predict what action would be taken but was quite sure a national code for railway workers would be prominently discussed. He said he did not know the attitude of the railroads toward such a code.

"Action Necessary"

"Action is necessary, nevertheless," he went on. "The railroads are not going along with the president's program. They are reducing forces to effect economies and adopting other means to cut expenses. This is contrary to the president's program to end the depression."

Grattan Hearing Postponed Until August Seventh

DECORAH, Aug. 2 (AP)—The hearing of M. T. Grattan of Decorah on charges of having murdered Claude Meade was continued until Monday, Aug. 7 at 2 p.m. when he became seriously ill during today's hearing before Justice H. F. Barthell.

Grattan was removed to a local hospital and if he recovers before the date set for continuance of the hearing he will be returned to jail, bond not having been fixed, according to Justice Barthell.

He was not bound over to the grand jury as had been previously reported.

Forced Peace Spreads Over Mine District

Machine Guns Used to Enforce Calm in Coal Fields

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The possibility of a settlement tomorrow of the Pennsylvania bituminous coal strike was seen tonight by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, at the end of a conference with spokesmen for the operators and labor concerned.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Peace doves—and machine guns frowning from hilltop vantage points—spread a spirit of calm over Pennsylvania's strike-wracked soft coal fields today.

An easier atmosphere pervaded the entire strike zone, where a walkout eight days ago of 2,500 men has spread to some 35,000—demanding recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

Six Shot

Pickets congregated in large numbers, and at Star Junction, where six strikers were shot and wounded in disorders yesterday, nearly 1,000 strike sympathizers taunted coal company police but no disturbance occurred.

Machine guns were set up by national guardsmen at four workings, scenes of the fighting yesterday in which one striker was killed.

Peace Moves

The moves toward peace came from several quarters.

General Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, speaking at Harrisburg, pleaded for conferences between opposing factions in the strike and cited the federal codes and policies of President Roosevelt as a means of settling industrial disputes.

Gov. Pinchot and Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke company, near whose mines most of the disorders occurred, arranged a conference.

"Union Guides"

The governor's agreement with union leaders, under which miners will serve as "union guides" to help keep peace, had a quieting effect.

Under the plan, more rigid picketing rules were effective and demonstrators were barred from parading on private property without the owner's permission.

Roles in Play Are Assigned

Cast of Nine Chosen to Present Play by Wilde at University

"The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde, will be presented by University theater, as the only play of the group during the second term of the summer session. It will be given a single evening, Aug. 17 at 8 p.m., in natural science auditorium, Prof. E. C. Mabie, director of University theater, announced yesterday.

The cast of nine, announced by Professor Mabie, will be headed by Hollister S. Smith, in the role of John Worthing, and Russell W. Lembke, A of Sioux City, as Algernon Moncrieff.

Supporting Cast

The supporting cast will be composed of: Charles Pedri, A of Mt. Pleasant, as the Rev. Canon Chasuble, D.D.; Karl Goetz as Merriman; Rodney Stewart, A of Iowa City, in the role of Lane.

Ottilie T. Seybolt, G of Eugene, Ore., as Lady Bracknell; Rachel B. Bastian as the Honorable Gwendoline Fairfax; Martha G. Canfield as Miss Prism; and Blanche E. Davis, G of Ottumwa, in the role of Cecily Cardew.

Morton Directs

Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of University theater, will direct the presentation of the comedy. Settings will be designed by Arnold Gillette of the theater staff.

"The Importance of Being Earnest" is from the pen of Oscar Wilde, an Irish playwright and wit of the later Victorian period, who symbolized the new sophistication.

Advances of NRA in Iowa

State Committees Ready to Meet With Herring as Industries, Businesses Drive Ahead

(By The Associated Press)

As Iowa industries and business today continued their drive toward unification in the nation-wide industrial recovery program, the dozen men and women who will coordinate the state and district drive prepared to meet at the call of Governor Herring.

The group, named yesterday by President Roosevelt, will meet as soon as further instructions have been received from Washington, Governor Herring said.

First Hitch

The first hitch in the recovery drive appeared in Des Moines where five grocers were reported to have been threatened with violence for allegedly failing to abide by provisions of the NRA code. Three, however, denied receiving threats and all said they were abiding by the code and displaying NRA insignia.

Reports from Iowa cities today included:

Bondurant

BONDURANT — Fifty business men and women representing firms in Ankeny, Altoona, Mitchellville, Bondurant, Elkhart, Berwick, Rising Sun, Norwoodville, Bowsher Station, and Ivy at a meeting here adopted temporary plans calling for operation of stores from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a 10 p.m. Saturday closing hour.

OSKALOOSA—The Knapp Electric company reopened after four months' suspension of work and announced that 50 former employes are to be called back.

Ames

AMES—A committee of seven has been named under chairmanship of Dr. E. B. Bush to administer details of the code. Retail stores have agreed to operate on a 57 1-2 hour week. Restaurants, drug stores, and garages are awaiting further instructions.

Logan Man Bound to District Court on Murder Charge

LOGAN, Aug. 2 (AP)—William E. Kelly of Logan charged with the slayings of his wife, Leah, and their 2 year old son, Billy, was bound to the district court at a preliminary hearing today.

Kelly was accused of having killed his son with a hammer Monday and inflicted wounds which caused the death of his wife. He sat through the hearing apparently unmoved.

He broke his silence for the first time today in talking with his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Kelly of Mystic, when she visited him in his jail cell.

Posse Seeks Kansas Bandits

Surrounds Farm Yard in Search Near Coffeyville

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Aug. 2 (AP)—A posse late today surrounded a nearby farm where they reported sighting two of a group of robbers who terrorized Weir City more than four hours, stole a bank safe and left 16 citizens captive in the city jail.

The 100 pursuers were armed with machine guns. A contingent of national guard dismounted cavalry was ordered into the chase by the adjutant general.

The hunt for the bank looters began along the Verdigris river bottoms when two of the men were driven to cover in a gun fight with Coffeyville police in which A. P. Keeling, night captain, shot two of the tires from their car. This gunfight took place a short time after the robbers left Weir City with the unopened safe on a truck. The truck mired in a mudhole and was abandoned. Its valuable cargo was brought here by guardsmen.

Attempt to Adjust Differences as 300 Iowa Miners Strike

REXFIELD, Aug. 2 (AP)—George Heath, owner of a local coal mine, and miners in his employ were attempting to adjust differences which today caused the walkout of about 300 men.

The men charged an unfair handling of waiting lists, declaring that when once employed they should be guaranteed a minimum amount of work before being returned to the general waiting list.

They asked establishment of a shorter list, providing more frequent opportunities for employment for those who work less than the minimum at each turn.

Row Over Ballot Recount Results in Dissolving of Investigating Grand Jury

Members Retire From Courthouse in Disorder

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2 (AP)—Huey P. Long's political machine today was dispersed from the field of battle over a recount of November's election ballots by action of two criminal district judges.

A grand jury friendly to the Long regime was obliterated by an order of dissolution from Judge Echezabal and its members dispersed in disorder from the courthouse.

File Petition

They sent back one of their counsellors, James O'Connor, assistant attorney general, to file a petition citing Leonard K. Nicholson, president of the New Orleans Time-Picayune Pulishing company, and James M. Colomb, one of the grand jurors, for contempt of court for the publication of a statement by Colomb exposing the grand jury procedure. The judge ordered the petition filed and said a date for hearing would be fixed later.

Recount Ballots

At the same time, next door, in the court of Judge O'Donnell, of another section of the court, a committee of citizens was engaged in recounting six of the disputed ballot boxes used in the vote of constitutional amendments last November.

In the afternoon the committee reported to Judge O'Donnell it had found discrepancies in each of the boxes with the vote on the fourteenth amendment used as a test case. The fourteenth amendment empowers the city of New Orleans to purchase ferry systems.

Returns Differ

The committee reported their recount showed 1,715 votes were cast for the amendment and 301 against it, compared with the commissioners' returns of 2,419 for and 220 against. The figures of the recount, the committee reported, differed for each box and in each case the vote against the amendments was increased.

District Attorney Stanley, chief target of the Long forces, said he would study the report before determining a future course. He has already charged 15 election commissioners with making false returns and capiases have been issued for them.

35 Merchants Add Names to Code Signers

Total Now Rests at 210 for Iowa City, Says Charles Bowman

Thirty-five more merchants signed the agreement of compliance with the blanket code yesterday, bringing the total up to 210, Postmaster Charles A. Bowman announced yesterday.

Emphasizing that the plan is no plaything, D. W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and director of NRA in Iowa City, received his first instruction from General Hugh S. Johnson yesterday asking him to send daily telegrams to Washington, D. C., on the increase in employment here through the NRA and the blanket code from day to day.

Speaker's Handbook

Included in the instructions was a handbook for speakers, publicity material, and excerpts from President Roosevelt's NRA address, to be used in a local publicity campaign. The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce here is expected to meet sometime this week to organize an NRA campaign committee for Iowa City.

The organization is expected to administer the proper use of NRA insignias and to sell the entire community on the plan. Secretary Crum said yesterday that the administrator's proposal would be studied to determine just how far it can be carried out in Iowa City.

Trade Groups Meet

Pending the adoption of national trade codes, various trade groups here have been meeting during the last few days in an attempt to set hours and wage scales. Many of them have done this, others are still working on their local codes. Restaurant owners are expected to meet tomorrow to work out some kind of agreement. Their national code will probably be submitted this week.

Explains Policy

General Johnson in his instructions to Secretary Crum yesterday explained the policy and purpose of the recovery plan, "There is no force here except conscience and opinion. This is an appeal to those good instincts of our people which have never been besought in vain. But it is not a ballyhoo campaign. The plan is new; the agreement is not simple and a thorough public program of explanation is needed and will be carried out.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 2 (AP)—Shades of the gold rush days of 1876 have hung over Rapid City for several days, ever since Dr. G. C. Redfield brought in a bottle containing nearly $150 in fine and coarse gold.

Dr. Redfield and two unnamed associates have had tests made of a placer claim "about 20 miles" from Rapid City. Dr. Redfield, who has had some experience in the business, says the tests indicate the discovery of "one of the richest placers ever uncovered in this section of the country."

Dr. Redfield has not divulged the location of the claim.

County Workers Strike

Violence Must Be Strictly Taboo

THE greatest danger inherent in the NRA program for national recovery showed its snarl in Des Moines Tuesday night when five grocers were threatened with violence for refusals to comply with the opening and closing hours agreed upon at a meeting of the Des Moines Retail Grocers association.

Lloyd Sandahl who said four men called him and threatened to bomb his establishment, clung to his decision to remain open and posted a guard armed with a shotgun in the rear of his store. The other four closed their doors. All received telephone calls and were threatened with bombing, throwing bricks through windows, painting the store fronts yellow and personal injury.

It should hardly be necessary to remind intelligent men and women that actions such as these are not only silly, but that they defeat the purpose of the recovery program itself.

No one will deny that the purpose of the NRA is entirely commendable. Its methods are probably the only feasible way of achieving recovery without submitting to more long years of misery. Its success depends upon the wholehearted cooperation of every employer and every employe in the United States. This is especially true of the blanket code, which can be enforced only by the employers themselves and by public opinion.

The pressure against those merchants who refuse to comply with the decision of the majority in such an intense common drive is bound to be heavy, almost unbearable. But that must be the limit. Those who would resort to violence to enforce compliance with a voluntary agreement, however commendable the agreement might be, are more dangerous enemies of the public welfare than any shirker could possibly be.

Mr. Welles and the Cuban Knot

THE task of Sumner Welles, American ambassador to Cuba, who has been quietly attempting to mediate between the intolerable Machado government and the doggedly radical revolutionists is a thankless one. Machado, though appreciative of a breathing spell, resents the intervention of an official American representative. The revolutionists not only resent American interference, but are unsympathetic with anything that means a compromise with the hated dictator.

However this might be, it is vital for the welfare of Cuba that the labors of Mr. Welles proceed to some fruitful and peaceful conclusion. From an economic standpoint alone, Cuba cannot afford the terrific expense and uncertainty of a major revolution. Already she is faced with problems that will require years to solve, without the added misery of wholesale bloodshed and the resultant demoralization of a revolution.

The chief element among those who want the revolution to proceed are the students. Last Saturday several thousand met at a students' rally in Havana and made it clear that they disliked the interference of Mr. Welles.

The attitude of these students is easily understood. President Machado closed the University of Havana because of their obstreperous activity in opposing the dictator's reign of blood. Dozens of their members have been killed without mercy under the inexcusable expediency of the "law of flight." Convinced that Machado could be fought only with his own weapons, they instituted a campaign of terror equal to his own. For them there can be no compromise.

But there are many among the older revolutionists who look upon the problem with more practical eyes. Although they will never be reconciled to Machado's tyranny, they will be able and willing to subordinate their resentment to the greater good that will come from mediation.

Already Mr. Welles has achieved some progress. If he succeeds he will have accomplished something really worth while, whether Cuba thanks him or not.

Falling in Love

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger)

A reporter with a better understanding of news values than of elementary physics has managed to extract an opinion from Dr. Albert Einstein on a matter somewhat remote from his usual studies. There is no good reason, of course, why distinction in one realm of knowledge should entitle anybody to authority in another. But the great American majority thinks otherwise. If somebody wins fame in aviation, roller-skating, the talking pictures or the writing of one-act plays, his opinion is likely to be requested and respected on anything under the sun.

A veneer of pseudo-science disguised the reporter's real intentions. He wanted to know whether the revolution of the earth, with the resultant effect that we are sometimes wrong side up, accounts for the prevalent habit of falling in love "and other foolish things."

Dr. Einstein answered with discretion and a spice of sarcasm, possibly at the reporter's expense. "Falling in love," he said, "is by no means the most foolish thing mankind does." And gravitation isn't responsible for the emotional aberrations of mankind. He says so positively, "with highest regards" for the reporter who wanted to know.

Experience would indicate that falling in love is one of the few sensible habits and customs of humanity. Its effects and consequences, however, must sometimes be called foolishness, including the indiscretion of falling out again, or failing to make the best of the original accident.

GOOD MORNING

A blue note among the honest harmony of a nation sincerely trying to bring the scattered threads of society together into some semblance of order was the Utah senate's vote refusing to ratify the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

This amendment, long moribund, has been given new life this year by the ratification by nine states, making a total of 15. Many persons who wished for the end of this "monstrous thing," as President Roosevelt calls child labor, will taste the sourness of Utah's decision.

Two persistent bogeys have pursued the child labor reform movement since its inception many years ago. One is the fact that child labor is cheap and is therefore a source of profit. The other is the conviction that such reforms are matters for states, that they do not come within the constitutional province of the federal government.

Condemnation of those who exploit children for profit cannot be too severe. It is reprehensible enough to hire men and women for starvation wages and work them from daylight to dark, but when the same thing is done to small boys and girls, it becomes an inexcusable crime against society.

In this case as in the case of underpaid and overworked adult labor the majority of employers are not at fault. Most of them would gladly remedy such conditions if they could, but they are forced by sheer necessity to meet the competition of industrial vultures with their own weapons. This has been clearly evident in the voluntary abolition of child labor by the textile and other industries under the protection of government-enforced codes.

The insistence that child labor regulation must be reserved to the states perhaps fits well with the ancient Democratic theory of states' rights. As a strictly legal concept it probably is quite correct. But it is inexcusably ridiculous to pawn a million children for a theory.

It is interesting to note in this connection that those who argue with the greatest conviction for state sovereignty in this matter are Democrats heartily in favor of the present Democratic administration's effort which virtually concentrates all control of industry in Washington.

Their answer is that the National Industrial Recovery act is a purely emergency measure of only temporary duration and is justifiable only on that ground. If that is true (and one cannot yet be certain) it is the best possible argument for swift ratification of the child labor amendment. The heavy hand of the federal government has dramatically proved itself within the last few weeks to be the only force capable of healing this national sore. If that hand is withdrawn at the end of two years it would be sheer imagery to suppose the evil would not be resumed.

Even though the codes now adopted remain in force they will not affect the sort of child labor Utah is determined to exploit. The industrial codes do not touch farm labor, and the farm act does not deal with it. Nothing has yet been done—even in the "emergency"—to put a stop to this phase of the child-breaking business.

Child labor reform is not intended to prohibit farm children from helping their fathers, as long as they are given the advantage of schooling. It is directed at the sort of industrialized agriculture, such as the beet industry, of which Utah seems so proud.

Conditions of child labor in Utah were reported in the St. Louis Post dispatch recently in the following words: "Utah children, including very young ones, work in cramped positions for long hours, often exceeding 10 and 12 hours, at pulling and topping the beets. They meet excessive heat, dampness, cold, insanitary conditions in the camps, the danger of injury from sharp knives, tasks beyond their strength. Hired by contract with their parents or recruiters of labor, they migrate across the beet country to fields where help is needed. Their schooling is neglected; they help keep adult workers unemployed."

These conditions do not affect Utah alone. When raisers of beets in Utah are allowed to profit from the sweat of children, raisers of beets in Colorado and California and other states must do likewise or be forced out of competition. It has been the same in the textile industry and a dozen others. Looked at in this light, even the theory of state's rights will not fit. This is a national problem and can be solved only by the national government. —Don Pryor

Book Bits—

(From Figures of Earth, by James Branch Cabell)

"No, Sesphra, no: men are so made that they must desire to mate with some woman or another, and they are furthermore so made that to mate with a woman does not content their desire. And in this gaming there is no gain, because the end of loving, for everybody except those lucky persons whose love is not requited, must always be a sick disgust and a self-despising, which the wise will conduct in silence, and not talk about as I am talking now under your dear bewitchments."

(From The Wit & Humor of Colonial Days, by Carl Holliday)

It now seemed to occur to Trumbull, as to many another college professor since, that if he intended ever to possess any of this world's goods he had better turn his wits to some other profession.

John Jacob Astor, 3rd, Eyed as Newport's 'Most Eligible'

NEWPORT, R. I.—Doting mamas of society's visiting debutantes are keeping a watchful eye on young John Jacob Astor, 3rd, these days. For on August 14 the scion of the House of Astor reaches his twenty-first birthday and comes into his inheritance of $3,000,000. That just about makes him the most eligible young man at this exclusive resort, or for that matter, many other places this writer can think of. The famed Astor name and $3,000,000 to boot is a prize many a mama would like to see her Gwendolyn carry off in the matrimonial sweepstakes.

Reported Engaged

Young Astor's name has already been linked in heart affairs with those of two of society's most sought after and loveliest debutantes. Last winter the gossips had it that the heir to the Astor millions would wed Donna Christina Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia of Rome and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia of New York. The young couple met in Europe last year and were inseparable companions at the smart Italian mountain and seaside resorts. An American friend of Donna Christina's let the cat out of the bag when she stated she had been invited to be a bridesmaid at the wedding scheduled for the spring. Mrs. Torlonia at her Palm Beach home vigorously denied the reported engagement. Young Astor very properly declined to comment and the rumor became just another rumor.

New Romance Budding?

Since arriving here to spend the summer the Astor heir has been seen much in the company of Miss LeBrun Rhinelander, charming daughter of Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, 2nd, of New York. This popular deb's family traces its ancestry back to one of New York's earliest settlers, antedating by years the arrival of the original John Jacob Astor from Germany in 1784. However, though the Rhinelanders own much of little Old New York their holdings do not compare with those of the House of Astor. Vincent Astor, step-brother of young John Jacob, is said to be the largest individual owner of real estate in the metropolis.

Father Titanic Hero

John Jacob Astor, 3rd, was a posthumous child, having been born four months after his father, Col. John Jacob Astor, died a hero's death in the Titanic disaster on April 15, 1912. His mother, Colonel Astor's second wife, later married William K. Dick of New York. The fortune young Astor inherits was left him by the father he never saw. Colonel Astor stipulated that the amount be held in trust until his child attained the age of 21.

Fayette Boy Is Released After Probe on Killing

FAYETTE, Aug. 2 (AP) — Paul Doland, 20, of Fayette, held in connection with the slaying of Nels Louvring Saturday night, was released from the county jail here late this afternoon.

Louvring was shot dead late Saturday as he was entering the back door of his home after closing his oil station for the night. Doland was taken into custody for questioning the next day.

Doland maintained that he was in Maynard, and Oelwein when the shooting occurred and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bolsyn of Oelwein, substantiated his story.

Doland is under bond pending grand jury disposal of a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury filed against him last April in connection with a fight with Louvring.

New Rates Listed for Chicago Trip

A new, low round trip fare of $4.75 to the World's Fair in Chicago has been announced for the Rock Island railroad beginning Aug. 11, by F. E. Meacham, local agent.

The new fare will apply on all trains leaving on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays and will have a 10 day limit. The special fare at present only applies to one train on Friday and all trains on Saturdays and Sundays.

Kraschel Would Buy Poor Grain Land to Rent for Grazing

DES MOINES, Aug. 2 (AP) — Lieut. Gov. N. G. Kraschel today set forth a sweeping plan to turn unproductive Iowa farm land into grazing ranges for cattle, thereby hoping to cut the margin of over production of corn and hogs and in turn to force up prices for those products.

The plan calls first for the purchase, with state or federal funds, of scattered sections of southern Iowa land with a low producing average or menaced by erosion.

Gradually, if the project appears successful, Kraschel hopes that several million acres of land might be turned from cultivation of corn and moderate yields to a more profitable raising of cattle.

HERE'S A BANK THAT'S LIQUID

What to do with all the busted banks? Philadelphians solved the problem in the case of the once prosperous Bankers' Trust company by turning the banking offices into a tavern. It now deals only in liquids of 3.2 content. Note the vault in the background, formerly housing frozen securities and now used as a refrigerator.

BEHIND THE SCENES — IN HOLLYWOOD —

By HARRISON CARROLL

STUDIO GOSSIP | FILM SCANDAL | SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD—Judging by the picture plans for her, Broadway has lost Alice Brady for keeps. She not only is scheduled to do "The Vinegar Tree" after "Stage Mother," but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just bought "It Happened One Day" for a future Brady vehicle.

This novel by Marjorie Bartholomew Pardis tells the series of crises that face the members of a New York family between the hours of eight and five of a single day.

Miss Brady's part is that of the mother of two girls and a boy. The father of the story, they'll tell you, simply cries to be played by Lionel Barrymore.

Meanwhile, Alice has given up her apartment and rented the proverbial house in Beverly Hills. There she lives quietly—if a household with four dogs can be considered quiet. One almost never sees her in filmland's favorite haunts.

Chester Morris tells this one about the visit he and Dick Arlen paid to the insane asylum in Oregon.

They were about half way through when one of the inmates approached the superintendent who was guiding the party. He tapped the official on the shoulder.

"You're the crazy one," he said. "You've got keys to get out of here and still you stay."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

His success in the decorating business is not the only reason why Bill Haines is making no more pictures. Most people don't know that Bill still draws a weekly pay check from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer — and will until September.

Mary Pickford gave a party, her first since the separation from Douglas Fairbanks became known. . . . All you hear is vacation plans. Nancy Carroll has sailed for Honolulu, Jobyna Ralston and Dick Arlen are plotting a trip to Europe when he finishes a couple more pictures. Incidentally, Dick's troubles with Paramount are all straightened out. He has signed his new contract. It calls for only five pictures a year.

Constance Talmadge is giving a "kiddy" party for Carmen Pantages Considine. The Considines are expecting an addition to the family in November, you know. . . Dick Powell still isn't strong enough to stay up late, but he and Mary Brian were having dinner at the Brown Derby the other evening. . . Henry De Soto, popular Hollywood Maitre d'Hotel, is in the Wilshire Hospital for an operation on his shoulder. Dr. Frank Nolan says he'll be all right.

Latest gesture of the young-men-about Hollywood is to send the lady a lei of gardenias instead of a corsage. . . Most ambitious of the cinema swains, it would seem, is David Manners. In a single day he was seen lunching with Peggy Fears, swimming with Bessie Lasky and dining with the Countess di Frasso.

At least one Hollywood host will tell you it'st ime to batten down the furniture when Major Ernst Udet and Dance Director Leroy Prinz start to describe the war-time dogfight in which the Major's squadron downed Prinz' plane over Flanders fields. . .

Geologists Laud Work of Dean Kay

That Iowa is the classic state for study of the effects of glaciation, and that Dean George F. Kay, Iowa state geologist, is one of the leading authorities on glaciation, were the opinions of members of the International Geological congress who made an over-night stop in Iowa City Tuesday.

Outstanding geologists from the mid-west, and the western and eastern coasts of the United States and one from Sweden were among the members making the trip which led through Iowa City. Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Michigan, and California were among the states represented.

Glacial soil deposits, including four distinct layers with interglacial layers, were well recorded in the eastern part of Iowa, they said.

"Best Field"

Ernest Antevs, Auburn, Me., said that Iowa afforded probably the best field in the world for a study of the results of the ice sheets. Antevs, a native of Sweden, is an authority on glacial deposits, and until recently was connected with geological work at Harvard university.

"I have been impressed by the glacial materials and the beautiful records that are found in Iowa," Antevs said. "The excellent way that they have been worked out both in the field and reports is another impressive feature of the state.

"Better Than Europe"

"For the record of glaciation Iowa is probably the best field anywhere. It is better than anywhere in Europe."

Much credit for glacial interpretation must be given to Dean Kay and M. M. Leighton, the state geologists of Iowa and Illinois, he stated. They have done excellent work.

Prof. Eliot Blackweller, head of the department of geology at Stanford university, commented upon the qualities of Iowa. Ice sheet glaciation records, he said, could best be found here. Only mountain glaciation could be studied along the west coast regions, he stated.

"Most Important"

"Iowa is the most important state in the union for the student of glacial geology—that is, ice sheet geology. Anybody who studies glaciation, in the United States or anywhere, should come to Iowa to see evidence of a complete record.

"One of the fine things about this trip is the friendly cooperation between the geology surveys of the different states."

Students Together

Reminiscing of days when he and Dean Kay were students together, he said that they had sat opposite the same table in a geological laboratory and squinted through microscopes together. That was about 32 years ago, he added.

Geology is but a hobby with Bernard B. Fallon, banker of Grand Rapids, Mich. His state has only one layer of glacial drift. This trip, he said, was his first intimate contact with Iowa.

Only Woman

Anna M. Wellnitz, professor of geology in Brooklyn college, New York city, had the unique distinction of being the only woman on the tour.

Professor Nils G. Horner of Geological institution, Uppsala, Sweden, has spent the last four years in central Asia as a member of the Sven Hedin expedition. Sweden, he said, is a glaciated country, but the features here are somewhat different.

Edith Holmstrom Returns to City

Edith Holmstrom, public health nurse of the bureau of dental hygiene, has recently returned from a four-day field trip through Scott, Dubuque, Delaware, Jones, and Linn counties.

The object of her trip was to aid in promoting plans for a program of dental hygiene in the rural schools of Iowa during the next school year.

Ripley Explanations

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The never-changing shadow: For all practical purposes astronomers and meteorologists consider the sun's rays to be parallel within the atmosphere of the earth, due to the great distance of the sun from the earth (about 93,000,000 miles). Hence whether a plane is 50 feet from the ground, 500 feet, or 5,000 feet, the size of the plane's shadow will be the same, although to the observer in the plane, it would appear to diminish, while to an observer on the ground it would appear blurred. Also, to the ground observer, when a plane gets high enough for its outline to be contained within the disc of the sun, the shadow blurs and appears to be surrounded by a "halo." But could the shadow be measured exactly in ideal air conditions it would be found to be the same as when the plane has just left the ground.

Tomorrow: "The oddest old man."

Professors Yoder, Leib, Davies Review NRA Code at Symposium

To stimulate buying power immediately and to force industrial groups to draw up their individual codes—these were given by Prof. Dale Yoder of the college of commerce as the two main purposes of President Roosevelt's national recovery blanket code, in a symposium on the National Recovery act yesterday afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Addressing an audience which filled the senate chamber to overflowing, Professor Yoder, Prof. Karl Leib, and Prof. George Davies, all of the college of commerce, spoke on various phases of the act.

Social Control

Professor Yoder saw in the act and the blanket code a step toward social control of industry. Telling the audience that the United States may "look forward to real progress coming out of this," he predicted a "great future extension of social planning."

The motives behind the entire movement, he said, are to remove obstacles to the free flow of commerce, promote cooperation of industry and labor, eliminate unfair competition, increase purchasing power, and eliminate unemployment.

Causes

Describing the causes leading to the adoption of the National Recovery act and the blanket code, Professor Leib pointed out that the widespread unemployment of the last few years had destroyed purchasing power in America, 85 per cent of which is in the hands of persons in the lower income classes.

Foreign markets, as well as home markets, were greatly restricted as a result of the depression, he said. Credit structures were strained to the point where much of the credit was lost.

Work of 50 Men

The National Recovery plan, designed to spread employment, and thus build up buying power, was the work of about 50 men, foremost among whom was Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state.

It was found that the drawing up of codes, as provided for in the act, was a slow process. Hence the blanket code—to speed up the return of better conditions, Professor Leib concluded.

Professor Davies discussed the historical and psychological background of present conditions. He denounced the old fatalistic ideas of economics, and termed the blanket code a great step toward real civilization.

University Graduate Hurt in Plane Crash

Dr. Paul N. Mutschmann, a graduate of the University of Iowa, was injured in an airplane crash at Warren, Ohio, recently, it was learned here yesterday.

Dr. Mutschmann had gone up in the plane on a demonstration flight with three companions. He was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital at Warren, where his condition was reported serious.

SEEN from Old Capitol

by TOM YOSELOFF

Rained in: The threat of rain caused the all-state high school band to give up its projected outdoor concert, the first of a series, and move inside last evening. Scheduled for the music quadrangle, the concert was held in the north rehearsal hall of the music building, instead.

It would take more than the threat of rain to keep away Iowa City music lovers, however. Witness the throng that filled the rehearsal hall for last night's event.

There will be no more cup-crushing for students who stop for a drink of water in liberal arts building. Two new fountains have been installed to replace the old water coolers, in the lower corridor and the first floor.

The reason for yesterday's discussion on the National Industrial Recovery act, in Old Capitol, was a telegram received by summer session officials from Hugh Johnson, administrator, asking that the university cooperate with the administration.

Paste and scissors and typewriters are seeing much service these days in many departmental offices. New catalogs, listing courses to be offered this next year, are now being prepared, and will soon be on their way to prospective Iowa students.

Students who have attended classes here for years without paying a visit to the university museum might take a lesson from the men, women, and children from all over the state, who visit the museum daily. It offers a great opportunity for an afternoon of exploration.

Pharmacy Week Will Be Observed Oct. 9-14

The ninth annual pharmacy week will be observed this year from Oct. 9 to 14, according to word received by Dean Wilber J. Teeters of the college of pharmacy.

Alumni are urged by Dean Teeters to participate in the national pharmacy week window display contest to be held at that time.

Annual Course for Physicians Being Planned

20 Physicians of Iowa to Take Part in Survey

A surgical survey, an annual postgraduate course in surgery, will be offered by the University of Iowa Sept. 12 to 15, with the college of medicine and the extension division cooperating.

The course will be open only to registered physicians of Iowa, and attendance will be limited to 20 doctors, it was announced yesterday by Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division.

Staff Members

Instruction during the four-day gathering will be given by staff members of the college of medicine, and all the facilities of the college will be opened to the visiting group.

Thirty-six individual lectures and demonstrations, in the fields of orthopedic surgery, otolaryngology, genito-urinary surgery, general surgery, and gynecology will make up the program of instruction for the 20 Iowa physicians.

A section of the Quadrangle will be set aside for the accommodation of the group. It is expected that gatherings for meals or other social events will be arranged during the four day stay.

Instructors

Staff members who will take part, and the fields in which they will offer instruction, are as follows:

Orthopedic surgery: Dr. Arthur Steindler, head of the orthopedics department, and staff.

Otolaryngology: Dr. Dean M. Lierle, head of the department; Dr. Ralph R. Fenton of the oral surgery department, and Dr. Paul N. Moore of the otolaryngology department.

Genito-Urinary

Grimm Glad He Accepted Managership

By PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP)—If you don't think a major league baseball manager can be happy, you should have seen Charlie Grimm on the first anniversary of his ascension as pilot of the championship Chicago Cubs today.

A year of successes and disappointments lay behind him. Ahead was the increasingly difficult job of overtaking the surprising New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1933 National league pennant fight. Yet, Charlie, cheered on by President Veeck and his mates, was as happy as a member of the knothole gang with his first grandstand pass. Memories of the disastrous 1932 world series and a current losing streak on the road that tumbled his team from second place didn't bother Charlie a bit.

"Not Licked Yet—"

"We're far from licked yet," he beamed as he accepted congratulations from the teammates and friends. "It sure is a tough race and those Giants amaze me the way they stick up there, but we're about to get started. As far as I can see, it's a four-team race among New York, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and ourselves and the long August stretch will tell the story."

"How do I like managing a big league ball club," he said, "managing the Cubs is great. I couldn't be any happier doing anything else. If I could only start hitting 'em myself, and help out more, it would be swell."

Tough Road Trip

Although the Cubs lost every game on their last road trip to Pittsburgh and St. Louis—six of them in a row—to lose valuable ground to the Giants, Pirates and Cardinals, while home town fans chided them for getting "homesick" for Wrigley field, harmony seemed to reign among the club officials and players today. President Veeck gave Grimm an encouraging pat on the back and the players reiterated their usual compliments to "the grandest guy in all baseball" as they appraise their manager.

"Grimm has had some tough breaks this year with injuries to himself, Riggs Stephenson and Kiki Cuyler, and has done remarkably well in the face of them," said President Veeck, who astonished the baseball world just a year ago today by dismissing Rogers Hornsby as manager and installing Grimm as his successor, "Yet, we still have a good chance to win the pennant."

Gus Sonnenberg to Seek Reno Divorce

RENO, Nev., Aug. 2 (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, one time claimant to the world's heavyweight wrestling title, arrived late today and announced intention of establishing a residence so he could obtain a divorce from Judith Allen, motion picture actress.

The wrestler said he planned to take things easy here "on account of my heart." His physician, he said, had ordered him to relax completely.

Gordon Helps Recruit Stars

Negro Track and Field Day to Feature Fair

Recruiting of athletes for the National Negro day track and field meet in Chicago Aug. 12 now is one of the jobs of Edward Gordon, former University of Iowa athlete and Olympic broad jump champion.

Gordon, who now is living in Chicago, is assisting with preparations for the meet, which will be held on Soldier field as one of the Century of Progress features.

The ex-Iowan, who won 19 major broad jump championships during his career as a Hawkeye athlete, will attempt a come-back in the broad jump at the Negro meet.

It is likely that he will meet DeHart Hubbard, Olympic champion of 1924, who, like Gordon, was a member of two American Olympic teams, and John Brooks of Chicago, present national collegiate champion.

Gordon has been out of competition since he won the Olympic title at Los Angeles last August with a leap of 25 feet 3-4 inch. He was scheduled to defend his National A. A. U. title in Chicago last month, but did not compete.

Philadelphia Takes First Game, 13 to 6

New York Wins Second by Lop-Sided Score of 18 to 1

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2 (AP)—With Joe Moore leading the attack and Roy Parmelee pitching effective ball, the New York Giants today earned an even break in a doubleheader with the Phillies, winning the second game by the lop-sided score of 18 to 1 after falling before the power of the Philadelphians' bats in the opening contest, 13 to 6.

Although splitting the twin bill, the Giants increased their lead to three games over the Pirates, who dropped a close decision to the Cardinals.

With three doubles and two singles in six trips to the plate, Moore paced the Giants' 24-hit attack off Austin Moore and Jackson in the nightcap. Parmelee, meanwhile, held the Phils to eight scattered blows.

Schulmerich's double followed by Virgil Davis' single in the sixth robbed Parmelee of a shutout. He struck out eight.

Mel Ott, who cracked out two home runs to drive in five of New York's runs in the curtain raiser, added another circuit blow in the nightcap. The three increased his total for the year to 14.

In the opening game, Manager Terry tossed four pitchers and 12 other players into the sun-blistered arena in an effort to stem the Phils powerhouse attack, led by Chuck Klein.

Klein collected a triple and two singles and drove in four runs. Holley and Roy Hansen divided the pitching assignment for Philadelphia, holding the Giants to 11 hits. Holley received credit for the victory, while Fitzsimmons, the first of the four New York hurlers, was charged with the defeat—his eighth of the year. Fitz has not won a game since July 1.

Cards Capture Stormy Contest

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 2 (AP)—With hostilities flaring for the second time in two days, St. Louis trounced Pittsburgh 4 to 3 today in a 12 inning melee marked by a fistic exchange between Bill Walker, Card pitcher, and Arky Vaughan, Buc shortstop, and disputes with the umpire.

The Cardinals evened the score in the seventh, registering two runs, and forged ahead in the ninth with another tally. The Pirates added one in their half of the ninth to knot the score.

The Pirates had the tying run on second with one out when Vaughan grounded to Crawford. Walker covered first and Vaughan crashed into him. Walker swung at the base runner and the shortstop retaliated. Meanwhile, Paul Waner raced home with the tying run. The contestants were ejected.

Umpire Magerkurth allowed the run but reversed his decision after a storm of protest from the westerners. Waner finally went back to third and scored on Traynor's grounder which Durocher threw low to Crawford.

The Cards decided the battle in the twelfth, Frisch getting to third when Crawford's grounder to Piet took a bad hop. He scored on Medwick's single.

Braves Divide With Phillies

BOSTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Boston Braves, outhit in both games, today earned an even break with the Brooklyn Dodgers, winning the first game of a doubleheader, 8 to 5, and dropping the second 3 to 1 with Van Mungo holding them to five scattered blows.

After three scoreless innings of the first game, the Braves opened up on Walter Beck and the Dodgers scored three of their five runs off Ed Brandt in the third.

The Braves were at the mercy of Mungo's fast ball in the nightcap while the Dodgers got to Frankhouse for two runs and then scored their third tally in the ninth off Bob Smith, who recently returned to Boston from Cincinnati.

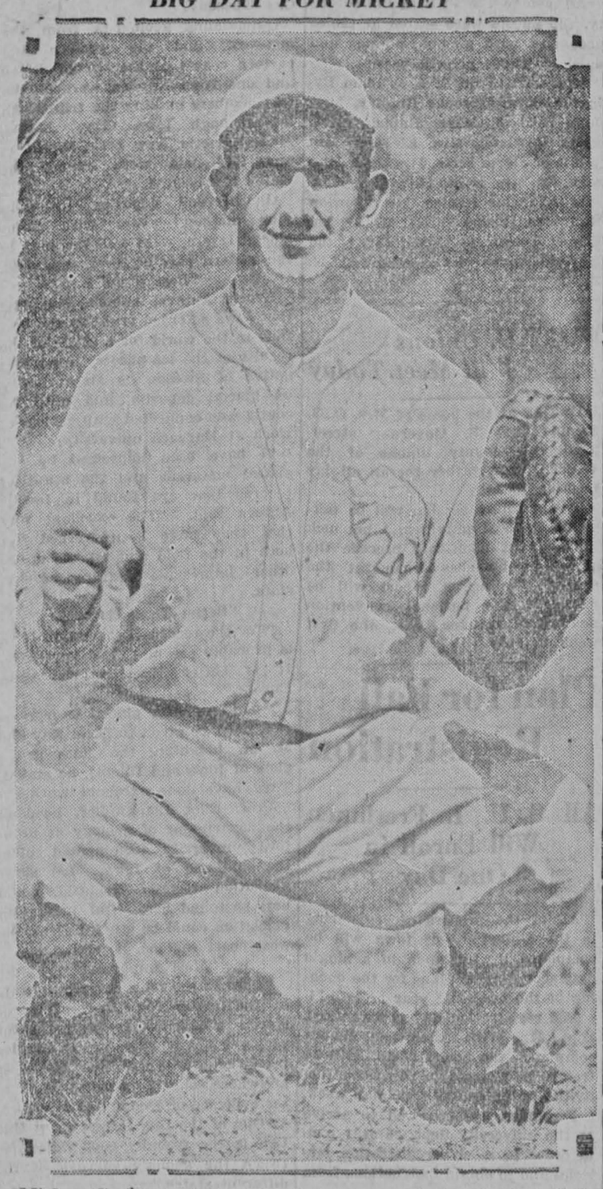
Cubs Trounce Reds, 10 to 6

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Cubs chased their old nemesis, Red Lucas, from the mound in less than one inning today and went on to a 10 to 6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was the Cubs 23rd victory in their last 26 games at Wrigley field.

Lucas pitched to six batters and was able to retire only one of them, four singles and a hit batsman leading to four runs before his successor, Ray Kolp, could retire the side. The Cubs then pounded Kolp for a run in the second inning and three more in the third and picked up two more runs as a result of three errors by Shortstop Otto Bluege in the fifth.

BIG DAY FOR MICKEY



Mickey Cochrane, long regarded as one of the greatest backstops of all times, put on a big show for the benefit of the New York Yankees yesterday and played a big part in the 16 to 3 thumping the Athletics gave the world champs. He hit a single, double, triple, and a homer in addition to getting one base twice from walks. He scored three runs and batted in four to complete the day's work.

Hurler Holds Losers to 4 Lone Singles

Outfielder Ties Count With Home Run in Eighth

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Dave Harris, slugging substitute outfielder, and Pitcher Alvin Crowder today put on an all-star act between them to help the Washington Senators to a 2 to 1 decision over the Boston Red Sox, stretching the National's slim league lead over the Yankees to two full games.

While Crowder was holding the Sox to four singles, Harris gave the Senators a chance to win by poling a home run into the left field stands to tie the score in the eighth. It was his third homer within two days.

Bob Weiland, Sox flinger, allowed Washington fans little to cheer about until past the start of the eighth. Although liberal with his passes and granting six hits, he tightened up when hits meant runs to blank the Senators for seven innings.

A single by Manush in the ninth, while three of his teammates crowded the base paths, brought across the winning run with only one out.

Kline had relieved Weiland in the eighth following Harris' home run and a double by Kuhel. He retired the side but filled the bases in the ninth with walks to Myer and Goslin and a single to Cronin before giving way to Brown. Manush, whose place in the outfield had been filled by Harris, then stepped up as a pinch hitter and closed the game.

White Sox Sweep Doubleheader

DETROIT, Aug. 2 (AP)—Two ninth inning rallies gave the Chicago White Sox a clean sweep of a doubleheader with the Tigers today. The scores were 2 to 1 and 4 to 3.

Berry hit a home run with Lyons on base in the last inning of the opener to drive in both Chicago runs.

Swanson doubled with two out in the ninth inning of the nightcap to score Berry with the winning tally.

Athletics Thump Yankees, 16 to 3

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics, snapping their six-game losing streak with 19 hits behind the effective pitching of George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg, defeated the New York Yankees 16 to 3 in the first game of the series today. The defeat shoved the Yanks two games back of the Senators, who defeated the Red Sox.

Earnshaw, pitching seven innings before being relieved because of the extreme heat, gave seven bases on balls but set the Yanks down with seven hits and only two runs. Walberg yielded one run and three hits during his two-inning sojourn on the mound.

Indians Rally for 16-8 Win

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians pounded Lena Stiles hard to stage an 8 run rally in the ninth inning today and defeat the St. Louis Browns, 16 to 8, in a game delayed 53 minutes by rain.

Two home runs by Hale and one by Wes Ferrell featured the hard hitting contest.

George Blaeholder retired in favor of a pinch hitter after allowing eight runs in six innings, while Ferrell, ace of the Indian moundsmen, was driven from the mound in the eighth when the Browns tied the count at 8-all.

The Cleveland victory came after two setbacks at the hands of the Browns.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Cleveland	005 120 008	16	16	0
St. Louis	400 002 020	8	13	3

Batteries—Ferrell, Connally and Pytlak; Blaeholder, Hebert, Stiles and Shea.

Three Hawk Coaches Celebrate Long Terms With Athletic Regime

For Ernest G. Schroeder, the twenty-seventh year; for David A. Armbruster, the eighteenth, and for George T. Bresnahan, the fourteenth—that is what the year of 1933-34 means to the three senior coaches at the University of Iowa.

Back in 1907, "Dad" Schroeder joined the staff, and since then he has had a hand in almost every sport. Now he is tennis coach and director of men's physical education classes and intramural athletics.

Coach Armbruster developed his first Iowa swimming team in 1916 when the sport was in its infancy among Big Ten schools. He is credited with the coaching of numerous all-American performers and of teams which rank in the upper half of the conference.

The service of Coach Bresnahan began in 1921. Now he is nationally known for his Olympic point winners and other individual champions. He also is coach of cross country.

Stocks Again Rally in Last Hours of Day

Shares Conform With Tuesday's Listless Early Trading

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Stocks today conformed to Tuesday's pattern, rallying in the last hour after a narrow, listless movement in the earlier trading. "Wet" issues were again prominent during the upturn, being joined by the metal issues. Volume was light.

Gains for the rank and file ranged from 1 to 2 points, though numerous particular favorites of the moment rallied more briskly. Wheat's improvement at Chicago, despite a reaction at Winnipeg, contributed a constructive influence but shares had their major upward push after a financial news ticker had printed a Washington dispatch to the effect that inflationary moves by the administration might not be long delayed.

For U. S. Steel, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas, North American, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe net gains ranged from fractions to about a point.

American Telephone, Du Pont, Union Pacific, American Tobacco "B," Industrial Rayon, Celanese, Penney, General Mills and General Railway Signal, Illinois Central and many of the alcohol issues lifted more vigorously, to the maximum extent of 6¾ points in the case of National Distillers. Western Union was up 5½ on its good earnings report. U. S. Smelting climbed around six. Sales totaled 1,730,680 shares.

DES MOINES (AP)—Governor Herring was advised that Aug. 18 had been set aside as Iowa day at the Chicago Century of Progress.

Bond Prices Finish Firm

Late Rally Completes Dullest Full Day in Months

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP)—Some secondary rails and scattered industrials led a late rally in the bond market today and prices generally finished with a fairly firm tone.

It was one of the dullest full sessions in several months, sales totaling only $9,397,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced two-tenths of a point.

Continued improvement in railway earnings and electric power output was a sustaining factor and better grade corporation issues were sentimentally aided by the hearty response to the treasury's new bond offering. United States government securities, however, were moderately irregular.

Among rail liens that recorded gains of fractions to 2 or more points were some of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Central Pacific, St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Iron Mountain and Southern Pacific.

The more active utility and industrial gainers included some loans of Colon Oil, International Hydro-Electric, International Telephone, McKesson, Paramount Public, Postal Telegraph, Shell Pipe Line, Sinclair Oil and Warner Bros. Bonds of Colorado Fuel GG Iron and its subsidiary, Colorado Industrial, added some 5 more points to their previous losses following yesterday's interest default.

Foreign obligations were generally quiet and mixed. Swiss government 5 1-2s rallied 5 1-2 points and British 5 1-2s came back 2 5-8 in heavy trading. German Young and Dawes Plan issues recovered a point or more and some of the Brazilians were up more than 2. Argentine, Japanese and Italian bonds were heavy.

The monthly average of unemployed Jews in Palestine in 1532 was 1,363 as compared with 2,568 for 1931, says the Jewish Statistical bureau.

Still Active Golfer at 53

Star of Gay Nineties Shoots Good Golf Game

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Every year or so some golfing prodigy appears to startle the links world, but it is doubtful any ever gave the royal and ancient game such a shock as did Beatrix Hoyt back in the gay nineties.

She not only was a youthful star in her own ballwick, but at 16 she went out and won the national women's championship—the second ever held. And the women's crown was hers after less than a year's practice.

That was back in 1896. She beat Mrs. Arthur Turnure in the finals at Morristown, N. J. The next year and again in 1898 she won the championship. She had been medalist in all three of those meets and also won the medal in 1899 and 1900.

Retired in 1900

Her record marks her as the only golfer, man or woman, who ever won five straight medal qualifying rounds in a national tournament. And only Alexa Stirling and Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare have matched her achievement of winning three tournaments in a row.

After the 1500 tournament she retired from competition, but has continued to play regularly since. Her medal scores were in the low 90's—very good in those days.

Now at 53—though she looks much younger—Miss Hoyt still can go around a tough course in less than 100. A native of New York, she has been living in the south for some 25 years. She has an estate bordering on the Glen Arven country club course here, said to be the oldest in the country in point of continuous play.

Distinguished Lineage

Other interests have claimed her attention since her retirement from golf competition. She shoots occasionally. And she rides a bit. Of medium height, keen eyed and sun tanned, she has the appearance of a young sportswoman, with only a few gray hairs mingled with many jet black ones.

She is of distinguished lineage. Salmon P. Chase, chief justice of the United States from 1864 to 1873, was her grandfather, and one brother is Judge Franklin Chase Hoyt of New York.

Soon America's finest women golfers will play for this year's championship over the Exmoor country club at Highland Park, Ill., but it is unlikely that any in the field will ever surpass the record set more than a quarter of a century ago by Beatrix Hoyt.

Rained Out

ROCKWELL CITY (AP)—Rain today caused postponement of the second pair of games in the Iowa American Legion junior baseball tourney here. Tomorrow Burlington will meet Cedar Rapids and Burt will play LeMars. The last games Friday will be: Burt vs. Cedar Rapids and LeMars vs. Burlington.

$2,671,279 Fire Loss

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa's fire loss for the first six months of the year was $2,671,279, John W. Strohm, state fire marshall, said.

Favorites Win Doubles Play

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP)—While singles play was suspended for a day, contestants in the annual Southampton invitation tennis tournament got through the greater part of two rounds of doubles play today with a minimum of casualties among the leading stars.

The favored combinations, Gregory Mangin of Newark and Berkeley Bell of New York, champions last year; George Lott and Sidney B. Wood, Jr.; Frank Shields and Frank Parker; the Oxford-Cambridge aces, Douglas Freshwater and Grady C. Frank and John McDiarmid of Ft. Worth, Tex., and Robert Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., all came through into the quarter final round.

Lott, Davis cup doubles star who returned from Europe only yesterday, was in his best form as he joined up with Wood and won two easy victories. They first eliminated Edward W. Burns and Elmer Griffin of New York, 6-2, 6-4, then beat J. W. Staffard and L. Page of Southampton, 6-1, 6-2.

The defending champions, Mangin and Bell, turned back two good New York combinations in straight sets, defeating Carl Gray and Herbert L. Bowman, 6-4, 6-3, and William Rosenbaum and Fred Baggs, 6-3, 6-4.

"The SEA BRIDE"

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

CHAPTER XLI.

THE men came; they tumbled up from the fo'c's'le; they slid down from the mast-head. Harpooners, mates, under officers grouped themselves by the captain; the crew faced him in a huddled group. He cursed them, man by man, for thieving dogs.

"Now," he said at last. "Now some one o' you has got the stuff hid away. Out with it; or I'll cut the heart out of you!"

He paused, looking about him with flickering, reddened eyes. No man stirred, but Dan'l Tobey asked:

"What's wrong, Cap'n Wing?"

Noll told him, told them all, profanely. Somewhere there was hidden a store of whisky; he meant to have it. If the thief gave it up, so much the better. He would get off with a rope's-ending. If he persisted in silence, he would die. Noll vowed that, by all the oaths he knew.

The men stirred; they looked at their neighbors, and then their eyes fastened on the captain with a curious intentness. They licked their lips, and Faith thought they were enjoying the spectacle of Noll's weak rage. She thought they were like dogs of a pack, with hungry eyes, watching the futile anger of a dying man. She was afraid of them for an instant; then she was afraid of no man in the world. She stood by Noll Wing's side, proud and level-eyed.

When Noll got no answer, his crackling fury waxed. He swore every man of them should be tied up and flogged unless the guilty spoke. They scowled at that, and one of them said sullenly:

"It's no man forrard a doing this, sir. Look aft, sir—look at them that had the chance."

The words seemed to focus the sullen hate among the men; they growled like beasts and surged a step toward the captain. Brander, from the captain's side, moved toward them, and lashed at him who had spoken with a swift fist, so that the man fell and lay still as a log. Brander looked down at the still man, faced the others.

"Be silent," he said quietly, "unless you've a word to say to the captain about what he wants. And get back—back into the waist; and stay there!"

They gave back before him.

"They mind you well, Mr. Brander," Dan'l Tobey said softly from behind Brander's back. "You've a rare control of them."

The words were innocent enough, but the tone was accusation. Brander faced the mate, and Dan'l grinned malignantly.

Noll passed abruptly from threats to pleadings; he tried to cloak his pleading under a mask of fellowship; he spoke to the men as to friends, beseeching them to yield what he wanted. They remained silent; and his mask fell off, and he abased himself before them with his words, so that old Tichel and Willis Cox were sickened, and Dan'l was pleased. Brander made no sign; he stood loyally at the captain's side; and Faith was on Noll's other hand.

She was studying the faces of the men and of the officers, seeking for a shadow of guilt. The men were sullen, but there was no shame in their eyes. There was nothing furtive—save in the countenance of Mauger. The one-eyed man had ever a furtive look; the twitching of his closed eye irresistibly suggested a malignant wink. Faith watched him; she saw his eyes were fixed on Brander. In spite of herself, a cold pang of doubt touched her. Mauger had reason to hate Noll Wing. Had he——

She put the thought away, to study Dan'l Tobey. But Dan'l, though he was obviously content with matters, had no trace of guilt or fear in his demeanor. He was perfectly assured, almost triumphant. Faith thought he could not appear so if he were the thief. Not Dan'l; not Willis Cox, nor Tichel. Not Brander; she would not have it so!

Yet she could not keep her eyes away from Mauger's leering, chuckling, furtive countenance.

Abruptly she touched Noll's arm. The captain was near a collapse. He was pleading helplessly, so that some of the men were beginning to grin.

"Noll, do not beg," she said quietly. "You are master here."

He caught himself together with a terrific effort. He turned and stumbled away, down into the cabin. Faith went after him. Dan'l came down a little later.

"Why not put into port somewhere, sir?" he suggested. "Get what you want——"

Noll clutched at that desperately. "Aye, Mr. Tobey. What's nearest?"

Dan'l named the nearest island where they were likely to find a trading-post. Noll nodded.

"Put for it, Dan'l. All sail on. For God's sake, quickly, man!"

Ten minutes later the Sally heeled to a new tack. Noll, with Faith, below in the cabin, bit at his nails, and tried to hold himself and stifle the appetite that was tearing him. His passion and pleading had burned out the effects of the drink he had taken, his body agonized for more.

By nightfall, Noll was shaking with an ague. He could not sleep that night. And toward dawn a brewing gale caught the Sally.

She fought that storm till noon, giving way before it, and in the cabin Noll passed from tremors to paroxysms of fright. He gnawed at his own flesh, and hallucinations began to prey upon him. Faith bade him lie down, tried to soothe him. She knew the danger of his enforced abstinence, she gave him a draft that should have compelled sleep, but after an hour he woke with a scream, clutched at her shoulders with fingers that bit the flesh, flung her away from him, and cowered in the most distant corner, his hands before him, shrieking:

"Back, Mauger! Get away. You devil! Mauger, get back. Eh, man, get away. By Jupiter! I'll—I never meant the kick, man. Let be! Let be!"

"It's Faith, Noll," she called softly. "It's Faith, Faith—not Mauger."

He recognized her. He ran and caught her, swung her around before him as a shield, and besought her to keep Mauger and his knife away.

"He's not here, Noll," she told him over and over. "He's not here. It's Faith!"

"Look at his knife!" he cried, and he pointed horribly. "His knife—it's red now. Look at the knife! Kill him, Faith! Drive him away!"

She held him against her breast as she would have held a child. Brander came to the door with Willis Cox. She called to them:

"Stay away! He's mine. I'll tend him."

Noll saw them, and screamed at Brander in a panic:

"There! Him! There's a knife in his sleeve!"

Brander slipped out of sight. She managed to quiet Noll for a space; but he broke out again.

"Mauger! He's coming, Faith. There!" And then, to the man he thought he saw: "Mauger! Get back, man — get back! God's sake—"

Then he wept whisperingly to Faith:

"See his eye! Make him put it back—where it belongs. Mauger, man—"

Bit by bit she wooed him back to sanity, or the semblance of it. He was quiet when Dan'l Tobey came down.

"Are we making it, Dan'l?" Noll demanded when he saw the mate. "Are we near there?"

Dan'l shook his head.

"Not with this gale, sir. We're hove to—drifting away—"

Noll came to his feet, catlike.

"You're all cowards!

"You're all cowards! I'll bring her in. I'll bring her in, I say!"

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

"Noll, do not beg," she said, quietly. "You are master here."

Funeral Rites Tomorrow for W. W. Fousek

Local Youth Victim of Crash Which Injures Solon Girl

Funeral service for Woodrow W. Fousek, 19, son of Mrs. Irene C. Fousek, 933 E. Davenport street, who was killed at midnight Tuesday when his car side-swiped with a truck on the Sharon-Wellman road about three-quarters of a mile east of Frytown, will be held at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the First Christian church with the Rev. Caspar C. Garrigues officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Zita Beuter of Solon, who was riding with Fousek at the time of the accident, suffered severe scalp lacerations and concussion and a possible fracture of the skull. Her condition is serious, but not critical, if infection does not develop. She has been in a semi-conscious condition since the accident. Late last night hospital authorities reported her condition improved and said she is resting comfortably.

No Inquest

Dr. George Maresh, coroner, said no inquest will be held as the coroner's jury found a verdict of accidental death.

The road is narrow at the scene of the accident and the two cars side-swiped going in opposite directions. Fousek was coming back from a dance at Wellman, and the truck, driven by P. H. Neis, was returning to Wellman from Cedar Rapids. The truck is owned by the Swartzendruber Brothers Trucking company of Wellman.

Born in Dakota

Woodrow W. Fousek was born in Vega, S. D., Oct. 13, 1913. He attended the schools here, graduating from Iowa City high school in 1931. He was employed at the Dey building.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Irene C. Fousek, a teach in the Horace Mann school; a brother, Robert, at home; a sister, Mrs. Sylvia Brown of Montezuma; his grandfather, Anton Yavorsky, at home; an uncle, Robert Yavorsky, of Iowa City; and an aunt, Mrs. Grace White of London, England.

DeMolay Member

He was a member of the First Christian church, the Iowa City DeMolay chapter, and the C.S.A. lodge.

Funeral service will be held at 9 a.m. Friday morning at the First Christian church with the Rev. Caspar C. Garrigues officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Smoke! Smoke! Smoke!

June 4, 1842—We are tired of recording the terrible things that are going to be. The Texans, the Rhode Islanders, the New Yorkers, et id omnes genus, have regularly, each 24 hours, set the world on fire—on paper—with ample promises that the next returning sun should witness it put out with blood. But they seem no nearer fighting now, than when the fuss commenced. Gentlemen, if you are going to fight, fight, if you're not going to fight, stop your fuss.—Iowa City Standard.

Modest

July 21, 1842—A lot of Illinois youngsters who state their ages to be 19 to 26, have petitional Congress to give them wagons and horses to emigrate to Oregon, and give them a lot of land when they get there, besides other favors "too numerous to mention in small bills." Boys, can you spell "bashful?" —Iowa City Standard.

More Dueling

July 30, 1842—Col. James W. Webb, editor of the New York Currier and Enquirer and T. Marshall, the white Charley of Henry Clay, fought a duel upon Saturday the 25th inst. at Naaman's creek on the Delaware and Pennsylvania lines.

They fought at 4 o'clock in the morning, in the presence of 40 witnesses. They tossed up a piece of money for the first fire, and Webb won it. The first shot was harmless, both firing into the ground. On the second fire Marshall shot Webb in the left leg about three inches above the calf. The ball merely touched the ligaments, and the wound is so slight, that Col. Webb ate a hearty breakfast, and then wrote a number of newspaper articles describing the cause, the fight, and its result. What an itching these fellows have for notoriety! —Iowa Capitol Reporter.

Putting on Roof

July 30, 1842—The laborers upon the Capitol commenced on Thursday last to put the roof upon the building, the main walls being about finished up to the cornice.

We look upon the question as now settled, that the building will be gotten in readiness for the meeting of the legislature in December next.—Iowa Capitol Reporter.

Patriotism

Aug. 13, 1842—When the news of the fall at Ticonderoga reached the capital of New Hampshire (says the Patriot) John Langdon, who was speaker of the provincial legislature, then in session, seeing the public credit exhausted and his friends discouraged, he rose and said:

"I have three thousand dollars in hard money, I will pledge my plate for three thousand more; I have 70 hogsheads of tobacco and rum, which shall be sold for the most it will bring. These are at the service of the State. If we succeed in defending our firesides and homes, I may be remunerated, if we do not the property will be of no value to me. Our old friend Starke, who so nobly maintained the honor of our State at Bunker Hill, may safely be trusted with the conduct of the enterprise and, we will check the progress of Burgoyne."

These were truly days of hard money and patriotism. The offer was accepted. A corps of mountaineers was soon raised, placed under the command of the gallant Starke, and it covered itself with glory at Bennington.—Iowa Capitol Reporter.

Judgments Awarded Bank Receivership

Judgment of $2,294 against Fred Rapp and R. R. Rapp for non-payment of stock assessments, was awarded L. A. Andrew, receiver of the Farmers' Savings bank of Oxford, yesterday in a district court decision by Judge Harold D. Evans.

Judgment of $694 was awarded against R. R. Rapp for eight shares of stock of a par value of $100 a share. Judgment of $1,600 was awarded to the bank receivership against Fred Rapp.

It is estimated that from 390,000 to 400,000 calves are born annually in Tennessee.

AROUND THE TOWN with DICK FAGAN

Loitering

Tom Applebee was fined $15 and costs yesterday by Police Judge H. W. Vestermark on a charge of loitering. The fine was suspended on good behavior.

To Work

After a two week's rest the city council meets again tomorrow night to hold a public hearing on the 1934 city budget—the last lap of a mighty tough problem. Even with the budget out of the way the council has plenty to keep it busy with the water question still in the air, the sewage disposal plant proposed to be submitted soon, and ever-occurring small problems.

No Speeding

Beginning a campaign against speeders police arrested two persons yesterday. Police Judge Vestermark fined Raymond Prybil $5 and costs for reckless driving and Welby Hold $5 and costs for speeding.

Who Has He?

A number of persons have been wondering who was inside the night shirt parading around old Iowa field the other night but no one seems to know. Police investigated but could find no man and no night shirt—probably the forgotten man as his wife or relatives insisted he wear pyjamas and not be so old-fashioned.

No One There

What two Iowa City boys would like to know is—what became of their dates. After promising to meet them at a certain place to start for a picnic they purchased about $2 worth of groceries but when they arrived at the meeting place there was no one there. After waiting for a half hour they went to their room and proceeded to get rid of about $1.31 worth of the groceries.

Intoxication Brings Fines

Three persons were fined yesterday by Police Judge H. W. Vestermark on intoxication charges.

Sam Latino, esntenced to 10 days in the county jail after refusing to pay a $25 fine, is temporarily blind and was taken to University hospital by city health officials for treatment. Latino told authorities yesterday that he was totally blind. Attributing the blindness to alcohol police are tracing its source.

Cornelius Reed, Negro, pleaded not guilty to a charge of intoxication when he appeared before Judge Vestermark yesterday morning and trial was set for 4 p.m. yesterday, but an hour before trial he changed his mind and paid a fine of $10 and costs to Judge Vestermark.

Jack Teefy was fined for intoxication but the fine and costs were suspended on good behavior.

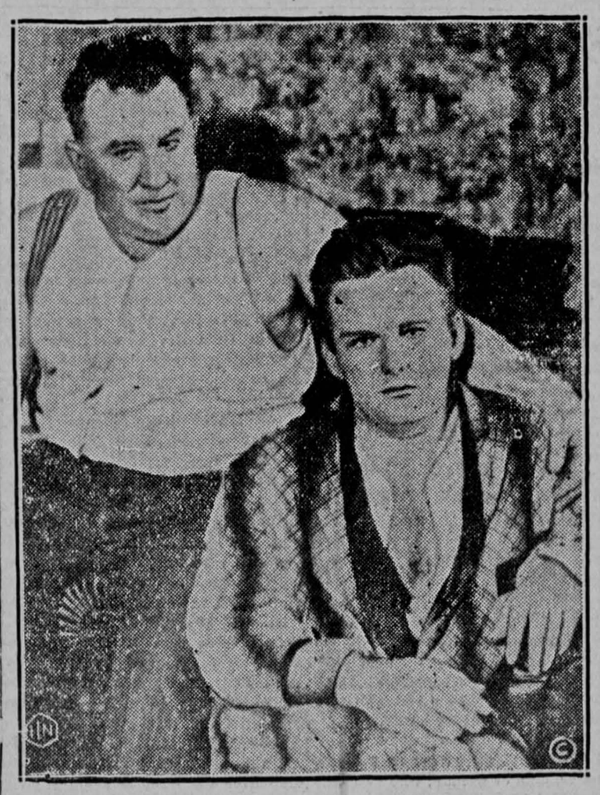
seemingly helpless suffering and inaction," he continues, "it would be unforgivable not to open to the country the chance it now has under this law to unite once more to overcome an emergency and, it may be, to defeat depression."

Appealing for everyone to cooperate he says, "This is a test of patriotism. It is the time to demonstrate the faith of our fathers and our belief in ourselves. We are a people disciplined by democracy to a self-control—sufficient to unite our purchasing power, our labor power, and our management power to carry out this great national covenant with vigor, with determination but with the calm composure and fair play which should always mark the American way."

O'CONNELL AFTER RELEASE



Safe at the summer camp of his politically powerful uncle, Daniel P. O'Connell (left), John J. O'Connell, Jr., is shown as he appeared a few hours after his release by kidnapers who had held him captive for 23 days. It is believed that $42,500 was the amount of ransom paid for the young man's freedom.

Roosevelt Wins Distinction With 'Phrase-Making'

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2—Not since the days of Woodrow Wilson has so much public attention been given to president "style" as has been paid to President Roosevelt's addresses and announcements.

Mr. Wilson had an almost poetic flair for word effects—a gift for unusual phrases. He also had the terrific significances of the World war situation to deal with.

Mr. Roosevelt also came to the presidency as a wartime leader, to command a national drive on the depression enemy.

He also is a phrase-maker. His presidential campaign speeches bristled with expressions that have been picked out and widely employed, like "the forgotten man" and the "new deal."

Later Style Differs

There is a very marked difference, however, between the style of Candidate Roosevelt and that of President Roosevelt. No one who thumbs back through his campaign addresses now and compares them to his presidential utterances could doubt that.

There was perhaps a suggestion of what was to come in his precedent-making speech of acceptance of the nomination at the Chicago convention, but not until his inaugural did the Roosevelt presidential style really disclose itself.

Brevity is the outstanding characteristic. Along with it goes the simplest of language, designed to reach a man-in-the-street audience. Brevity and simplicity have marked every Roosevelt public paper.

Much Work Entailed

Having had an unusual opportunity to see at close hand one of the most important Roosevelt papers in process of preparation, the bystander is able to say that the brief simplicity of presidential communications is a hard-won characteristic, not a literary gift.

That particular paper, which had to do with the putting into operation of the industrial recovery-public works-employment bill, was born of many brains. When originally typed it required several thousand words to get into it all that cabinet officers, prospective administrators, "brain trust" advisers and Mr. Roosevelt himself thought ought to be said.

Tells Story of Stock Market

Visiting Professor at Lions Club Explains Trading

"The Stock Market" was discussed by Prof. Leonard M. Ekland of the college of commerce of Detroit university at the Iowa City Lions club luncheon yesterday at the Pine room at Reich's.

Professor Ekland said that only five per cent of those who play the stock market win and another five per cent break even. He said that the workings of the market are a mystery and that even years of study fail to reveal all its characteristics.

He predicted that the general trend of the market will be upward. Prof. Dale Yoder of the university college of commerce introduced Professor Ekland.

Robert Leinbaugh, a new member of the club, was introduced. President L. C. Clearman presided at the meeting.

City Budget to Have Hearing

Exemption in 5 Funds Will Also Be Heard

Public hearing on the proposed 1934 city budget and exemptions in five funds asked of the budget director will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the city hall by the council.

The budget, which is made up under the terms of the Beatty-Bennett law, caused the city council considerable trouble in some of the funds. The budget totals $211,552 in comparison with the 1932 expenditures of $226,774.

Five Funds

After much juggling of figures and cutting of departments the council decided to appeal five funds: consolidated, fire maintenance, library, park maintenance, and sanitary district. Comptroller Murtagh told the city committee that the hearing on the funds should be held at the same time of the hearing on the entire budget. Objections to and reasons for the increase over the provisions of the Beatty-Bennett law in these funds will be submitted to the comptroller after the hearing Friday and he will decide whether or not they shall be allowed.

Beatty-Bennett Law

The city council decided, after fully investigating the five funds, that compliance with the Beatty-Bennett law would seriously cripple the efficiency of the city government.

Out of the total proposed budget of $211,552 there would be $166,540 raised by taxation.
