

$132,000 ALLOTTED TO COUNTY

State Officials Announce Money for Four Highway Projects in City, County

Represents Fraction of $10,000,000 State Total

Iowa City and Johnson county will get $132,000 of the $10,000,000 in public works money allocated to Iowa by the federal government for highway improvement, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Des Moines last night.

The four Johnson county projects, work on which is expected to begin almost immediately, were announced as follows:

Placing eight miles of bituminous-treated gravel on state highway 1 from Iowa City to the Cedar county line, $20,000;

Resurfacing one-half mile of U. S. highway 6 in Iowa City (Burlington street), $15,000;

Grading, bridging, and graveling four and four-tenths miles of state highway 22 from Lone Tree to Washington county line, $75,000;

Reconstructing the overhead railway crossing two-tenths of a mile east of Iowa City, $22,000.

The Iowa City project will cost, according to engineers' estimates, a total of about $37,000. No definite plans are yet available for financing the $22,000 which remains to be raised if advantage is to be taken of the federal appropriation.

Consider Plan
A plan by which accumulated maintenance funds furnished by the state for caring for highways running through the city could be utilized to defray part of the cost was considered at a recent meeting of the city council, but no decision has yet been reached. Property owners along Burlington street have expressed unwillingness to bear any of the cost of improvement.

The state's $10,000,000 allotment will cover work on 828 miles of highways, according to Hans Pfund, Iowa director of the national re-employment service. A total of $5,192,000 will go for 78 projects on 459.5 miles of federal highways in 62 counties. About $2,525,000 will be spent on 81 projects covering 54.6 miles of extensions of the Iowa federal highway system in 67 counties.

79 Projects
The rest of the grant, amounting to $2,578,000, will be applied on 79 projects involving 313.9 miles of secondary roads in 67 counties.

The program, drafted in joint sessions of the state highway commission, the Iowa national re-employment service and other relief agencies, has been approved by the federal officials.

Application for funds for Johnson county was made by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce Aug. 5, at the same time the public works administrator and the bureau of roads at Washington gave approval to Iowa's $10,000,000 program.

The work probably will be under the supervision of the Mason City office of the state highway commission, D. W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

Innovation
The proposed bituminous-treated gravel surface to be used on eight miles of state highway 1 will be an innovation in Iowa. It has been used successfully in Pennsylvania and other states and has been approved by the state highway commission, which has conducted extensive tests.

Labor on all these projects will be mobilized from the ranks of the unemployed under the direction of the national re-employment service, officials announced.

Scott county will receive $210,000 and Linn county's allotment is $225,000.

Sleeping Sickness
Death Toll Climbs
to 35 in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26 (AP)—As the death toll climbed to 35, a study of "sleeping sickness" victims in St. Louis showed that patients ranged from a 3 months old baby to an 84 year old man.

Additional reports of victims of encephalitis, as the disease is known technically, were received from Missouri and Texas points.

Health officials gave the same report of "nothing new" as a result of their study of the cause of the disease and the means of its transmission.

Edward Adams, 40; Mrs. Helen Tarnes, 63, William Moranville, 56, and Paul Bories, 59, all died here last night or today.

Brothers Win Best Honors at Beef Show

Two Bloomfield Youths Repeat Earlier Win

DES MOINES, Aug. 26 (AP)—Victor and Joe Dean Miller, farm brothers of Bloomfield, captured high honors in the baby beef show at the Iowa state fair today by winning the grand champion and reserve champion ribbons with their Hereford steers.

The two steers "Just-So" and "Tailor-Made" in winning out over 500 animals, repeated their winnings at the Davis county fair a few weeks ago. The baby beef show was terminated by judges one of the strongest ever held at the Iowa state fair.

First Prize

The Miller boys' steers had previously won first prizes in the intermediate and junior class for Herefords and another Davis county boy, James Burns of Pulaski, won first in the senior Hereford class with a half-brother of the other two animals.

The reserve champion in the baby beef show was shown by Arthur Daniels of Greenfield. Davis county won first prize for county groups of steers.

A Muscatine 4-H club girl, Genevieve Naber, proved to the entire state organization that livestock showing is not a man's job when she took second place in the junior showmen's contest and placed her Holstein Dairy club heifer, Seven Springs Tritonia Ellen first in its class and champion of the dairy club show.

Claire Werner of Gibson, took first place in the junior showmen's contest after having taken first place in the Jersey class for dairy heifers.

State Champion Judge
P. H. Calahan of Rockwell, was named the 1933 state champion livestock judge in the annual contest after he had piled up a 697 point total to win the individual competition and rank as high man on the winning Cerro Gordo county team.

Calahan's total was 10 points better than that of Harold Rice of Clear Lake, his teammate, who tied with Maurice Moffitt of Newton for second. Robert Lage of Davenport, took fourth in the individual standings with a 686 point total.

The third member of the winning Cerro Gordo county team was Walter Mason of Mason City.

Second place in the contest went to Sac county with James McKenna of Nemaha, Mason Schaefer of Schaller, and Donald Pulcher of Early, amassing a point total of 1,991, one point behind the Cerro Gordo county team.

Fairgoers were treated to a sensation.

Nursery Association Protests Fund Grant to Project at Ames

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—William H. Mast, president of the Iowa Nurserymen's association, has asked Iowa legislators to stop the allotment made by the public works administration for establishment of an erosion control nursery at Ames, Ia., on the ground that it put the government in competition with privately operated nurseries.

In a letter this week, Mast said that was another step in the direction of government-owned nurseries and that nursery owners, as taxpayers, would be forced to support competitors "that will debase the prices of their products far below any reasonable trade level through free distribution."

He said nurseries were anxious to cooperate with state agencies but the industry has no desire "to see itself the first martyr on the altar of socialistic progress."

WEATHER

IOWA—Generally fair Sunday and Monday, except unsettled in extreme west portion Sunday; not much change in temperature.

Machado Departs Nassau to Seek New Refuge in Canada

NASSAU, N. P., Aug. 26 (AP)—As quietly as he fled Cuba by airplane after the overthrow of his government two weeks ago, Gerardo Machado, exiled president of the island republic, boarded the steamship Lady Rodney tonight to seek a new refuge in Canada.

Since receipt of a message a few days ago that his life was in danger, Machado has been closely guarded. Machado and his party, accompanied by police guards, entered a closed automobile and drove to the harbor late today.

Police remained aboard until the ship sailed.

Machado arrived here Aug. 13 after leaving Havana by plane the day before and spending the night at an anchorage on Andros island.

Senora Machado and the immediate family are at Philadelphia.

Oil Industry Again Center of Code Fight

Coal, Auto Industries Near Agreement in Washington

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The recovery administration announced tonight President Roosevelt would act on the code for the automobile industry tomorrow at Hyde Park, N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The long-disputed question of price-fixing in the NRA code for the oil industry flared up again today with the recovery administration's chief economist under attack for permitting publicity on his statement to Hugh S. Johnson that the price control provisions constituted "a serious blunder."

The memorandum, which again recalled the differences over price-fixing between Johnson, the NRA chief, and Secretary Ickes of the interior department—was signed by Dr. Alexander Sachs, chief of administration's research board, and Joseph E. Pogue, economic adviser to the administration for oil.

Repercussion Expected

Coming to the fore just as Johnson was pushing his efforts to bring three more under the recovery program, the controversy-clad memorandum was expected generally to have wide repercussions in the Roosevelt administration.

A few hours after it became public, Wirt Franklin president of the Independent Petroleum association, and a supporter of price fixing, said in a statement "it would be interesting to know what was being said by a seemingly inspired statement made by an official in the NRA office whereby he charged the whole administration with blundering at the same time that he served well the companies who have so long enjoyed the prerogative of price fixing."

Declines Discussion
Dr. Sachs declined to discuss the publication of the memorandum in detail, except to assert that it had been shown privately and in confidence, with no intention of it being made public. Ickes also declined to discuss the situation.

Johnson was hoping to push the coal, automobile and retail codes through quickly so that he could take command personally of the great drive in which more than a million volunteer workers will participate.

An agreement upon the automobile code was believed by officials to be near tonight but there were indications Johnson might be forced to step more forcefully into the attempt to write a bituminous coal code.

Progresses Slowly

Weeks of wrangling between operators from highly competitive fields and spokesmen for the mine workers were progressing slowly, even after Johnson's warning yesterday that he would be forced to impose a code if the "interminable discussions" did not end in an agreement soon.

The retailers' code, now applicable to all stores except grocers and druggists, was being analyzed by the administration, and there was a likelihood drug retailers might be brought under it. A new code for the drug trade was presented today at open hearings. It was similar to the one already in effect for other stores.

Officials expressed a belief that could the drug code be made to conform to the master code, all retailers might be brought under one charter.

Ft. Dodge Man Held in Tax Claim Forgery

FT. DODGE, Aug. 26 (AP)—Angus McBane, Jr., 28, of Ft. Dodge, was arrested today for investigation in connection with an alleged forgery of gas tax refund claims totaling several hundred dollars.

County officials said McBane will be charged with forgery, obtaining money under false pretenses and violating the state gas tax refund law.

He was arrested at Lehigh when, officers said, he called at the post-office for a state warrant issued by the state treasurer on a gas tax refund claim.

Roosevelt Declares Drive for Jobs, Pay Succeeding

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt today declared the national recovery drive for more jobs and more pay to be succeeding, with a unanimity of the people "unequaled since the war-days" bringing the country "back to better times."

In the bright sun on the Vassar college campus, the president told the people of his county who gathered to welcome him home that "the downhill drift has definitely turned and become an upward surge."

Speaking publicly on the recovery drive for the first time since his intensive days at the White House in inaugurating the new deal for America, Mr. Roosevelt put emphasis into his words declaring the new policy to be one extending to the nation the principle of "local community—that no individual, no family, has a right to do things which hurt the neighbors."

Detailing his purposes in the recovery campaign, the president said: "Of course, it is true that your government hopes that the building up of wages that are starvation wages, and the shortening of hours of work in every part of the United States will result in a greater distribution of wages and an increase in the number of persons employed."

"It is true that we seek definitely

Wets Hold Strong Lead in Texas Despite Dry Rural Vote

State Repeal Forces Claim Sure Victory

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26 (AP)—Texas, long a staunch rib in the dry "solid south," appeared definitely late tonight to have lined up as the twenty-third state to approve repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Of a total of 360,752 votes counted from today's referendum, 222,718 favored ratification of the twenty-first amendment, which would repeal the eighteenth and 138,034 were opposed.

The count represented the vote of 222 of the state's 254 counties, with 23 complete.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 26 (AP)—Texas anti-prohibitionists, jubilant as early returns from today's referendum showed a margin of more than 3 to 1 for repeal, saw their lead fade late tonight into a much less impressive majority but insisted final tabulations would make the lone star state the twenty-third to vote the eighteenth amendment from the constitution.

12 to 1 Majority
First returns, from urban centers, in some cases showed a majority of as much as 12 to 1 for repeal. As the count became more representative of all districts in the state, the lead simmered to 3 to 1, held there several hours, and then fell still lower under increasing dry resistance.

A tabulation of returns from 197 of the state's 254 counties late tonight showed 176,697 votes for repeal and 102,772 against.

At the same time, the Texas election bureau reported 176,565 votes for a measure to amend the state constitution to legalize 3.2 per cent beer, with 95,585 against.

"Return to Sanity"
Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, expressing certainty the state had gone for repeal, said she felt "the state has returned to sanity and that we will be rid of political hypocrisy that has been a painful incident to prohibition."

The Johnson county complaints committee, which will function in the same manner as the local committee, will be organized this week. D. W. Crum, Iowa City NRA chairman said yesterday.

The local complaints committee will meet again this week on call. Two NRA interpretations were received yesterday by Postmaster Charles A. Bowman, member of the local complaints committee. One said that owners operating their own establishments without any employees may obtain the insignia of the NRA by signing the certificate of compliance.

The other said that merchants complying with approved national trade codes would be classed with those complying with the blanket code and could display the blue eagle insignia.

List Speakers for Vespers

Six lecturers to speak at university vespers services have been secured, it was announced yesterday by the president's office. The university series will begin with a Freshman week address Sept. 24, and will continue through the year, ending with a baccalaureate address at next June's Commencement.

Opening this year's series on Sept. 24 will be Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion, who will speak at the freshman vespers service.

Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college will give the second lecture, which has been scheduled for Sunday of the following week, Oct. 1.

Oct. 15 will be the date of an address by the Rev. Fred B. Smith of New York city. Bishop James E. Freedman of Washington will speak here Nov. 5.

First on the series for 1934 will be Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Washington, who will appear here Jan. 7. Bishop McConnell was one of the speakers on the vespers series last year.

Vacant Date
No speaker has as yet been named for the annual Mother's day vespers address, which will be held May 13, as a part of the program of Mother's day events.

The final address of the year will be the baccalaureate speech to next June's graduates. The speaker for this event, which will be June 3, is John H. Finley of New York city.

The vespers programs are prepared by the senate committee on university vespers, headed by Professor Lampe.

What about Religion—

Are we better or worse church-goers than in 1929?

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this article, the second of a series, by local pastors, the Rev. W. P. Lemon of the Presbyterian church considers the problem of religion from another viewpoint than that taken in the first article by Prof. M. Willard Lampe of the school of religion. The question under consideration is "Have we, as a people, turned more and more to religion as a source of comfort during economic upheaval, or have we, on the other hand, turned away and become more cynical?"

Even in order to make special estimates one should be aware of general tendencies and trends, and to properly evaluate religion in Main street, it is necessary to serve world thoroughfares in things that relate to man's traffic with the unseen. A recurrent danger for all of us is to confuse the "rustic cackle" on our little perch with all the "mighty murmur of the world."

Perhaps we may better see the good in spite of the trees when we call the fact that 169 million in Russia are being systematically incited to regard all religion as menace to social progress.

The temper of these post-war years is shown an increasing desire for separation of church and state. The totalitarian state as in Italy, the revolutions of Mexico, Latin America and Spain, and the downfall of the Caliphate, the Pope of Islam, which last has affected some 269 million Mohammedans, have revealed at national and political bonds are stronger than professedly international forms of religion.

In China, with 400 million humans concerned, the near-cult of Sun Yat-sen, the anti-religious movement, which is bound up with the reaction against imperialism, and the liberalism which has permeated the older religions of the country, especially Confucianism and Buddhism, the "acids of modernity" are working.

There would seem to be no abatement of religious zeal among the 300 millions of India, but here again, between the syncretizing religion of Gandhi and the cosmic faith of Tagore, the anti-imperial attitude has wrought wonders. So far from religion motivating conduct, the reverse seems to be the case, for the vadeshi principles that the country one's birth demands loyalty in presence to that of others have served break down deep-seated religious prejudices.

The Barthian movement in Germany, and what is called Buchmanism in our own country, are convincing proofs that religion is never developed in a social vacuum. In the "rider, man's extremity has created sense of divine transcendence, able to a satiated and superficial life, is almost something akin romanticism in the guidance of distressed by Buchmanism.

Nothing should conceal from us the fact that the conservative and liberal elements in religion are deep-seated indigenous factors of human life generally. Those whose passion it is to preserve the values of the past are inclined to view as suspect every innovation, and to subsume all experiences under tried categories. Equalizers are those of the liberal who insist that life consists of no less than of ballast, and who like to stress experimentation more in experience.

Now, without trying to bear water both shoulders, can one who insinuates that there is an inclusive Christianity, and that it is not necessary to browbeat each other for the sake of God's sake, secure from the ongoing material, which would insulate about religion in the future? It always hazardous to assume the role of the prophet, but at least we dare some conclusions.

First, we venture to declare small hope for that small but vociferous group who in every age hold themselves in readiness to stand at the head of religion, and who offer attend the last rites even if they don't shed tears. Mankind is innately religious, and while our little mechanical system may have its ebb and cease to be, the verdict of ages over against any particular dogma warrants the conclusion that "human recognition of a personal deity entitled to obedience" will characterize a religion that will outlive all and scepticism.

Valid Claims Necessary
Second, no religion can be influential

Insull Held in Nursing Home

Greek, U. S. Officials in Argument Over
Action

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 26 (AP)—Samuel Insull, former head of the vast Insull utilities interests, was detained in a nursing home today as the United States got under way a second fight to extradite him.

Insull was taken first to the office of the chief of the Athens police. His attorneys immediately contended he should not suffer jail confinement because of the state of his health and his age. (He is almost 74.)

Physicians examined him and it was on their recommendation that he was taken to the Logothetopoulos clinic.

A difference of opinion arose between Greek and American authorities concerning the right of the Greek government to go into the substance of the case against Insull before passing on the application for extradition.

"The detention is preventive," said a statement issued by Minister of Justice Talladouris, "pending the arrival of documents to be furnished by the American legation, on the basis of which a decision will be reached as to whether Mr. Insull should be extradited or not."

Forest Harness, representative of the office of the United States attorney-general, said he doubted whether the Greek government had the right to examine into the substance of the charges, which are set forth in an indictment. Harness asserted that Greece was entitled only to judge the merits of the application for extradition.

Insull has been at liberty in Greece since Dec. 27, 1932, when a court refused to extradite him.

Iowa City to See Air Show

Fifteen Stunt Flyers,
Performers to Be Here Today

Fifteen stunt flyers and land performers will hold a flying circus at the municipal airport this afternoon under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The show, which will begin at 2:45 this afternoon, is being staged by Hunter's Flying Circus.

Included in the program is an exhibition of stunt flying by Bob Nelson, serpentine cutting by George Warner, balloon busting contest by Bob Strait, dead stick landing by George Warner, long delayed parachute jump by a girl jumper, bombing an automobile from the air by Dan Hunter, and riding motorcycle through a wall of fire by Earl Woods.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, in cooperating with city and county officers, will have charge of traffic regulations to insure the safety of persons attending the show. Parking will not be permitted on roadways adjacent to the field.

All of the flyers and stunters in the show are licensed pilots and are led by Dan Hunter, who has more than 8,000 hours in the air to his credit.

Lindys Land in Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 26 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today completed their aerial survey trip over the north Atlantic ocean, arriving here after a non-stop flight from the Shetland islands.

The pair was greeted with wild scenes of enthusiasm.

The Lindberghs left Terwick, the Shetland islands north of Scotland after a two day stay, taking off shortly after noon in perfect weather.

They flew over the North sea, crossing the southern tip of Norway, where they were sighted traveling at good speed. The distance is about 600 miles.

The flying couple left Angmagalik, Greenland, Aug. 15, for Iceland, and remained several days before proceeding to Terwick by way of the Faroe islands.

Police Seek Trail of Bank Car Robbers

DENVER, Aug. 26 (AP)—Police in Colorado and nearby states were seeking the trail tonight of two men who held up a bank car on a busy downtown street, fled with $36,000 in currency to a spot a few blocks away, transferred to another automobile in which a man, a woman and a baby were waiting, and escaped today.

The robbers held up three employees of the United States National bank, at Eighteenth and Lawrence streets, grabbed a money sack and sprayed the trio with tear gas. Several passersby also were incapacitated temporarily by the gas.

Missouri Brewers Give a Tip to Iowa

A CHARGE by Missouri's attorney general that brewers are engaging in the retail trade in violation of the law legalizing the sale of 3.2 beer in that state causes Iowans to turn with more favor to the plan of Governor Herring which would remove all private profit from the sale of liquor if and when the eighteenth amendment is repealed. One remembers the persistent assurances of the brewers before the return of beer that they "do not want the return of the saloon, with its attendant evils." One of these evils in the old days was the operation of saloons by the brewers and the cut-throat competition that developed from the practice. Every possibility that such conditions will return should be guarded against in Iowa. With the sale of liquor, of whatever kind, in the hands of powerful private interests, no restrictions can be made effective in limiting the competition which would inevitably result. The governor's plan perhaps has its defects, but it is based on the right principles.

The Meaning of the Wheat Conference

THE international wheat pact signed by 21 nations in London Friday afternoon is of more far-reaching significance than would appear at first sight. Its effects in stabilizing the troublesome problem of international wheat shipments is of course important and its practical aspects are interesting. Exporting nations have agreed to cut production and importing nations to encourage the use of wheat and not to encourage wheat raising in their own countries. When the international price has been maintained at 89 cents a bushel for four months, importing nations have agreed to lower their tariff rates. Barring minor complications, this agreement should effectively solve all the principal problems which have complicated the wheat industry for many years. More important than its immediate effect upon the wheat problem itself, however, is the pact's significance as proof that nations can and will arbitrate their difficulties successfully when the negotiations are not too inextricably entangled with world politics. Conferences aiming at disarmament, both military and economic, have been in the habit of failure, mostly because they have been conducted as political gatherings. Negotiations have been circumscribed by the devious phrasing of diplomacy instead of being open to sincere discussion. Much can be learned from the wheat conference, which met first concurrently with the world economic conference and later on its own. It is to be hoped that its lessons will be recognized and learned.

A Bullet and a Seaplane

FRANCESCO ANGELLO'S world-record Italian seaplane, according to Mr. Ripley's cartoon on this page this morning, travels 11 feet per second faster than a .38 caliber bullet fired from a high-powered police revolver. One cannot refrain from commenting further and pointing out certain implications the cartoonist has not seen fit to observe. For one thing, Signor Angello would be able, if a gun were fired behind him, to slow down, reach out and grab the bullet from the air and save it for future reference. And of course, if he didn't want the bullet, one fired right behind his head would never reach him. A more sinister possibility is recognized, however, in the fact that a pebble dropped in front of his plane would have even more force than a bullet and could cause considerable embarrassment. However one wishes to look at the matter, 621 feet per second, or 423,219 miles per hour, is traveling.

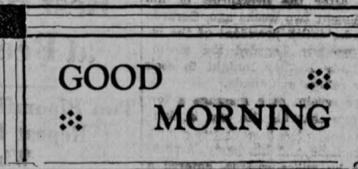

The Nation's Newest Iron Man

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the gifted author of "Williams of West Point" and the selective draft act of 1917, who now is turning out 1933 industrial codes in quantity with trip-hammer emphasis, may have to be classified presently not only as a dictator of parts but as the greatest philosophical thinker since Plato. His lucid argumentative assaults on "the witch doctors of the let-things-alone school" and his policy of running "the whole damned works in a fish bowl" prove that obscurity of meaning or of purpose is no part of his working equipment. Yet this, of course, at once raises the question whether any philosophy can be sound that is understandable. General Johnson is coming to Chicago to make a public address on Labor day. As a great logician whose syllogisms produce jobs, shorter work days and increased wage standards, his remarks to labor on labor's own special holiday should be worth hearing. Though there is never lack of either point or vigor in what he says no matter where or when he says it, he does not always get the better of an argument. Take, for example, the case of the Dayton hotel clerk who lately declined to trust him for a night's lodging because he carried no luggage. If being hard boiled be the supreme proof of executive capacity, it might be well to demote the general and give his job to the hotel clerk. The fact of the matter is, however, that the general has numerous other qualities of leadership.

Called, a modern Cincinnatus, from his plow to become dictator and save the republic, General Johnson is determined to do the job right, no matter how many heads he knocks together. He announced at the outset that he expected to put 4,000,000 unemployed workers back on industrial pay rolls by October. His account of his stewardship on Labor day, by which time every industry will be fitted more or less snugly into a code if he can possibly manage it, should prove broadly illuminating.

Getting big things done promptly and effectively in an emergency is the mark of a big man. General Johnson has informed the public that he is a Democrat both by practice and inheritance. He now has the public eye. He is six months younger than President Roosevelt. Since the public likes to be beneficently manhandled, perhaps he has a political future.

For more than two weeks authorities at Washington have been hopeful that the friction which has hampered the work of providing the coal industry with a code of fair competition would be smoothed over. Their hopes have for the most part been in vain and it has appeared at times that the government would be forced to take a leaf from its experience with the oil men and write a code itself.

The problems arising in any arbitration between coal miners and their employers are so vexing and so numerous that they seem at times to be insurmountable. The slave-like condition of coal miners in almost every section are well known in a hazy sort of way by nearly everyone. But there are probably few who fully understand to what depths of serfdom and degradation the American coal miner has been driven by the combined forces of greed and economic depression.

One of the blackest spots in the whole industry, and one that characterizes the deadening and degrading existence of the coal miner, is the company-controlled town. This, one of the few remaining vestiges of a feudal system more than a century out of date, is the blackest spot on our system of municipal government.

Denied the rights of free speech, public assembly, freedom of association with others, freedom to do as they please as long as they do not interfere with the freedom of others—all rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States—miners in company towns are subject to the absolute domination of their masters, the barons and overlords of coal.

Judge M. A. Musmanno of the Allegheny county court recently offered some interesting insights on the situation when he appeared before a conference held by the Pennsylvania Security League. Says he:

"The leases which miners are compelled to sign in some cases are rather strange documents. One lease, used by a company in Somerset county, Pa., provides that the employe 'shall not harbor or permit to use, occupy, or otherwise be upon said premises, any person objectionable to the company.' If further provides that 'said employe shall upon notice and demand of the company remove any person therefrom objectionable to the company, and failing so to do the right of the said employe and his family to so use and occupy said premises shall thereupon immediately cease and terminate.' It is of course obvious that the terms of this lease are such that the miner is practically compelled to ask the company whom he may invite to his home as his guests.

The United States Coal commission after investigating mining conditions throughout the United States reported that miners in company-owned towns are considered not as tenants, but as domestic servants in the households of their masters. The terms of the lease just quoted would certainly give the company control over the social life of its employes.

Much of the coal miner's almost unbearable condition must be blamed, of course, upon the depression and the companion troubles of competition by pipelines and the increasing use of electricity, oil and gas for fuel. But certainly it is also true that a great deal of the unrest in the coal fields and the apparently unsolvable friction between the employes and employes is the result of the cumulative bitterness of the miners resulting from poverty and oppression at the hands of a feudal system supposed to have been outlawed in America 150 years ago.

This is the most auspicious time, while all the problems of the coal industry are being forced at last into the open, to include in the industry's code a provision which will consign anomalies of the company-owned mining town to the limbo of the gladly forgotten.

Book Bits

(From Anthony Adverse, by Hervey Allen)
When we are young we think a great many people we meet are extraordinary. There is no one else in the world like them, we feel sure. Also our own precious selves are without parallel. We tell ourselves and each other, "Neither we nor our friends who are so unusual, are understood." The world, we think, is not subtle enough to understand us. But we are wrong. The adult world is far too subtle to waste time on us. It understands us instinctively by just remembering itself. It has thought through all our thoughts and is tired of our violent emotions. It is too busy about the essentials of existence to go in for theories and feelings about them. Good old world! It is the young who do not understand it or themselves.

Irish Policeman Wins Honors With Story of Youth

Twenty Years A-Growing, by Maurice O'Sullivan; the Viking Press, New York; $2.50.

"There is no doubt but youth is a fine thing though my own is not over yet and wisdom comes with age.

"I am a boy who was born and bred in the Great Blasket, a small truly Gaelic island which lies northwest of the coast of Kerry, where the storms of the sky and the wild sea beat without ceasing from end to end of the year and from generation to generation against the wrinkled rocks which stand above the waves that wash in and out of the coves where the seals make their homes."

Thus does O'Sullivan introduce himself and his book, which is "the most exciting thing which has happened in 100 years" in Ireland, which took England by storm, which was selected book-of-the-month in this country, and which is as beautiful, as pure, as sweet, as fresh, and as delightful as any book that has appeared for many years. Critics everywhere have strained themselves in futile attempts to describe the simple beauty of this story. It has been likened to the Bible, to the egg of a seabird, to the sea on a summer morning.

But it is better than that. It is delicate as a sea shell, as vigorous as a gale, as refreshing as a cool off-shore breeze, as graceful as a gull.

The author, writing after working hours in his Dublin residence, had no idea that his book would be famed in foreign lands. Practically uneducated, unpracticed in composition, he wrote only for the amusement of himself and his friends.

Tells of his school days, of fishing and of wandering through the hills, of salvage on the island shores, of hunting, of how he learned to drink and to smoke, of death and courtship, of his trip to Dublin and his enlistment on the Irish guards, of his return to the island. "When I returned home," he closes the book, "the lamps were being lit in the houses. I went in. My father and grandfather were sitting on either side of the fire, my grandfather smoking his old pipe." But it is impossible to describe the appeal of this book. Any person able to read and enjoy literature should get a copy, by fair means or foul. And any person who reads it cannot help but hope that O'Sullivan after another 20 years, will again record his experiences. J.P.

Hutchinson Traces Development of Character Fault

The Soft Spot, by A. S. M. Hutchinson; Little, Brown and company, Boston; $2.50.

Stephen Wain had "a flaw in his moral backbone which, if subjected to strain, to stress, to temptation, yielded, gave way." This "soft spot" was first revealed when he accepted a gold-mounted pen from a business associate. It grew, causing Stephen's decline in prosperity, forcing him to lie, to hide, to murder, to work, to wander aimlessly across the world, and to repent.

Exciting Life
If Hutchinson had taken more time with Stephen, he might have made him a famous character. Physically, the young English architect lives a highly exciting though somewhat improbable life. Mentally he is tortured with doubt, fear, envy, and self-disgust. Until his death, which follows his atonement for his sins, Stephen's personality is a battleground between greed and generosity.

A greater author, using the same plot, could possibly write a story of tremendous power, but Hutchinson does not quite "click." Though he almost does, at times, there is a sincerity and a force and a convincing clarity which is missing, and which might have been supplied by greater effort or inspiration.

Above Average
That criticism is not meant too harshly. Hutchinson's novel is very interesting and decidedly above the average level of modern fiction. But one feels that, choosing a theme of such unusual depth, he should have done better. The book, which may be recommended to anyone seeking enjoyment and something to think about, is not to be condemned. But that it is not a finer book is to be regretted. J.P.

to increase the purchasing power of the American people."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that for the first time in history the nation "as a whole and regardless of party has approved drastic changes in the methods and forms of the functions of government without destroying the basic principles."

He made it quite clear that his "neighbor" policy forbids monopolies, particularly in public utilities; child labor; starvation wages and long hours of work; and an unfair distribution of wealth. But he insisted all of this does not infringe upon personal liberty.

"It became unfair," he said, "to our neighbors if we sought to make unreasonable profit from a monopoly in a service such as electricity or gas or railroad tickets which they all had to use.

"It became unfair to our neighbors if we tried to hire their children at starvation wages and long hours of work." Mrs. Roosevelt and the president's mother accompanied him, flanking him on the speaker's platform.

Dr. H. N. MacCracken, president of Vassar, introduced the president and spoke significantly about the people of Dutchess county who failed to give the president a majority last fall.

"Perhaps it is a Dutch inheritance that makes us a little less demonstrative than the others of the nation about some things," he said. "Though we are slow to admit our errors in some ways, we do respect a real man and a real woman and that is why we are here today to welcome the president and Mrs. Roosevelt."

sational horse race during the afternoon when Plunging Sun, a brown gelding owned by Greer and Lambert of Lancaster, Wis., came up from sixth place in the featured state fair derby to win in one minute, 44 and two-fifths seconds, a new Iowa record and a world's record for the mile and 70 yards on a half-mile track, according to racing judges.

The Knoxville American Legion drum and bugle corps, winner of the state championship, presented a demonstration drill in front of the grandstand during the afternoon and the championship American Legion auxiliary quartet from Argonne post of Des Moines, sang.

Winners in the 4-H club classes of the baby beef show will enter their animals in the general competition beginning Monday.

Mrs. Elvira M. Williams of Milford was named today as winner of the second annual state oratorical contest for women of the Iowa Farm Bureau federation and will represent Iowa in the national competition.

Corn Contest Winners
Announcement was also made today of winners in the corn contest, interest in which is always high among Iowa farmers attending the fair. Paul Peter of Ankeny won the sweepstakes for a half-bushel of field corn and H. R. Richards of Swan took the sweepstakes ribbon for 30 ears of field corn.

W. L. Gardner of West Point won the sweepstakes in plates of apples, judging on which took place today. The Adel Garden club was awarded first place in the century of progress decorated table exhibit with a setting of a typical table of a century ago.

In the swine winnings of the 4-H club show Howard Yoeger of Wellman won the championship in fat barrows and Walter Frienser of Sac City showed the reserve champion.

Artists Meet at Dinner
Iowa artists met at a dinner gathering tonight at which Grant Woods of Cedar Rapids and Count Rene D'Harnoncourt of Washington, D. C., were guests of honor.

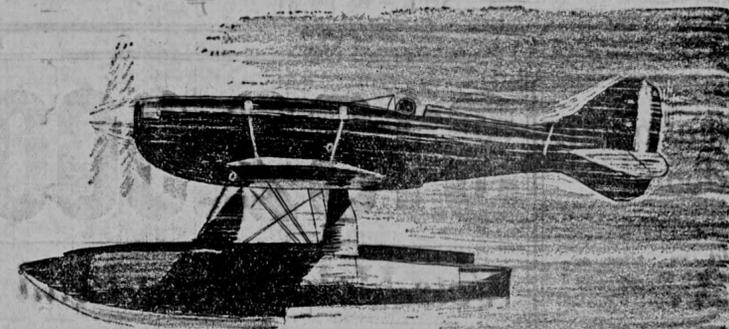

Sunday has been designated as music day and garden club day at the fair with judging to be made on garden arrangements, shadow boxes, decorations, and vases.

Monday will be farm bureau day with Francis Johnson, vice president of the farm bureau, presiding. J. P. Mullen of Fonda, president of the fair board, will be the principal speaker on the morning program and Gov. Clyde Herring and John N. Norton of Washington, D. C., worker in the agricultural adjustment administration, will speak during the afternoon.

STUDIO GOSSIP

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—The role that was a jinx for Peggy Joyce and for Lilyan Tashman has turned out to be anything but for Blossom Seeley.

After looking at the first day's pinch-hitting done by the vaudeville actress in "Broadway Through a Keyhole," Darryl Zanuck called Blossom in and signed her to a long-term contract with Twentieth Century Pictures.

As further proof of his enthusiasm, he has had a role written in for Blossom in the George Bancroft picture, "Blood Money," and is putting two writers to work on a starring vehicle for her.

While they're not talking, rumor has it that Zanuck and Joseph M. Schenck believe they have discovered another potential Mae West in the vaudeville star.

One of the better drunk stories is told by W. S. Van Dyke, the director.

It seems that a guest at a local speakeasy began to get ugly and to want to fight. Finally, he picked upon a fellow.

"Shay," he growled, "I don't like you. As far as I'm concerned, you can go straight to the devil. And I'm just the man who can do it!"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE
One of the networks is pleading with Marie Dressler to name her own price, if she will go on the air 15 minutes a week for 15 weeks. The star is going to turn them down because she feels she needs a complete rest for several months.

The gossips are abuzz. Several times recently, Frances Dee and Joel McCrea have been seen shopping together on the Boulevard. Now both of them have a short vacation from the studio and both are refusing to make engagements. Can it be an elopement?

Doctors have ordered Katharine Hepburn to stop work daily at 5 p.m. The screen's newest sensation suffers from no particular ailment, but the medics fear nervous exhaustion if she doesn't ease up on her recent hours before the camera.

Max Baer's set has superseded the dancing girls as the magnet for visitors and players on the M-G-M lot. The heavyweight championship contender shows absolutely no nervousness in the face of the camera. He is more relaxed than the veterans. Demands for passes to see the coming ring scenes between Baer and Primo Carnera are so great that M-G-M plans to limit them to 100, and to issue tickets for seats.

Funny story Lee Tracy passes on about Baer. The other day they were explaining to Max how to pull his punches against a nervous extra man. Baer turned to his victim.

"I understand how to pull punches," he said, "but I've got to tell you, or how are they going to get that sound for the screen?"

Imagine Baer hitting you for sound!

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Latrobe Roosevelt was the house guest of the Merian C. Coopers (Dorothy Jordan) during his stay in Hollywood. Vera English is being beamed around by Ivan Tededoff.

Sunday—Make the Most of Today—Fall Is Getting Near

There's a Difference in Sundays; Some Are for Walking, Some for Reading—But Today Has No Definite Pattern

There's such a difference in Sundays, and the mode of activity they call for. For instance, take a bright, sunny Sunday in early spring, when birds outside your window waken you, and you just have to get up, put on your new hat, and sally forth for a walk.

And then, on the other hand, take a rainy Sunday. The kind of a day when the sky is misty grey, and the window panes are little rivelets of water which drip, with a dull rhythmic patter. The kind of a day when you curl up in a deep chair in front of an open fire to read, or write letters, or plan an informal Sunday light supper for a few intimate friends.

But lately, Sundays have been days with different patterns. Days of catching up, of driving off for a few hours, of entertaining for a day. Days not hot, days not cold. Days pleasantly sunny, days not unpleasantly drab. Days with some of the unch gone, due to their very lack of definiteness of type.

Make the most of today, because all is just around the corner, and with it is a hint of woodland picnics, mokey steaks, and red and gold awnings. When such a Sunday calls, you can't help but answer. But today, it's all yours. Make it say what you choose. A great many Iowa citizens are, and a-going a-traveling, so... what are you going to do?

Mr. and Mrs. Merwyn Brown of Des Moines, former students of the University, visited with friends in Iowa City yesterday.

Norma Englert, 119 N. Gilbert street, has returned to her home after a week's visit in Chicago.

Ina Tyler and Helen Williams, both of Iowa City, were guests at the unley-Traer marriage at Davenport yesterday.

Mrs. Leah Frazee and son, Guy, of Cedar Rapids, were in Iowa City yesterday. Mrs. Frazee will enter the university this fall.

"World-fairing," that pastime upon which so many Iowa Citizens have put the stamp of their approval this summer, still intrigues localities, and they continue their trek to the windy city.

Mrs. C. C. Williams and daughters, Louise and Ellen, 723 Bayard, leave today for a visit at the Century of Progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Shoup, 915 Seventh avenue, leave today to spend their vacation in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mott, 420 N. Gilbert street, have returned after a week visit at the Chicago fair.

Visiting with friends and relatives on 10 days in Chicago are Rita and Mildred Sedlacek, both of Iowa City.

Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Spence, 521 Park road, have as their guests Mrs. P. R. Hoar and sons, Richard and Reed, of Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hines, 823 Clark street, have returned from a three week vacation in northern Iowa.

Guests at the F. H. Dondore home, 114 N. Capitol street, over the week end are: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Dondore and daughter, Connie, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Stooker, and children, James, Robert, and Josephine, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Bauch and children, Jack and Julia of Gladbrook; and Mrs. D. G. Miller of St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Kohl, 414 N. Van Buren street, have as their houseguest, Mrs. J. M. Furlong, chaperon of Theta Phi Alpha sorority. Mrs. Furlong, who has just returned from Pasadena and Los Angeles, Cal., where she spent the summer, leaves soon for a visit at Keokuk and Davenport, before returning to resume her duties as chaperon.

Chien Nie Hsin, Honored at Dinner

Chien Nie Hsin, who leaves soon for his home in Tungshan, Canton, China, was a guest at a dinner given Friday evening at the J. J. Gibney home, 323 S. Capitol street, for Tu Yun Cheng and Djang Kou Fan. The table was decorated in green and white.

During the evening bridge was played at two tables, Chien Nie Hsin and Mr. Gibney being prize winners. The guest list included: Mr. Cheng, Mr. Fan, Mr. Hsin, Mr. Blum, Chien Nie Wen, Chih Lun Fan, and Mr. and Mrs. Gibney.

Husted-Richter Plans to Wed Announced for Sept. 12

Mrs. C. S. Meardon, 437 S. Summit street, announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Heen Husted, to Eugene Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Richter of Davenport.

The ceremony will take place Sept. 12 at 4 p.m. in the First Presbyterian church.

Announcement of the wedding was made yesterday morning at a breakfast-bridge given at the home of Mrs. R. H. Justin, 431 S. Summit street. Satin streamers attached to individual ivory rose buds at each of the 12 places led to the center of the table, where scrolls bearing the announcement were concealed beneath a floral centerpiece of pink and ivory roses. Priscilla Crain won the prize for bridge.

Miss Husted attended the University of Iowa where she was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority.

Mr. Richter is a 1933 graduate of the University of Iowa in commerce. He was affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity. He is now associated with his father in the August Richter Furriers at Davenport.

President of Stephens to Be Complimented at Breakfast

James M. Wood, president of Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., arrives tomorrow morning from Chicago, for a few days to be spent in various Iowa towns.

Complimenting Mr. Wood at breakfast tomorrow morning at the Jefferson hotel will be the following past, present, and prospective Stephens' students: Lois Beckman, Dorothy Spencer, Alice Lampe, Goldie Sexton, Gretchen Kuever, Marjorie Bales, Margaret Wolfe, and Betty Lampe.

From Iowa City, Mr. Wood will go to Cedar Rapids for a luncheon to be held at noon at the Roosevelt hotel. The guest list there will include Orva Mitchell, Marjorie Ure, Martha Mason, Louise Porter, Audrey Ivins, and Frances Westfield. Miss Porter and Miss Ivins will enter the university this fall, and Miss Westfield will return to be a senior.

Mr. Wood will be entertained by another group of Stephens' students in Waterloo tomorrow evening at Mandalay inn. Among the guests there will be Lorraine Gibson, Betty Wurster, and Emma Lou Smith. Miss Gibson is returning this fall for her senior year in the university and Miss Wurster and Miss Smith will enter as junior students.

SEEN from Old Capitol by TOM YOSELOFF

William J. Petersen, research associate of the State Historical society, returned to Iowa City Friday evening, after conducting a five-weeks historical trip through eastern United States, on a tour sponsored by Drake university.

Some 36 students, with Dean W. F. Barr of the Drake college of education, Mrs. Barr, and Mr. Petersen, made the 6,000 mile trip, as a study course in American history. The group visited dozens of spots associated with the Revolution, the Civil war, political leaders, and other things belonging to America's past.

They visited also a spot associated with America's present and future, the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago, spending three days at the world's fair.

J. C. Ballard Thurston, a descendant of George Rogers Clark, and a leading authority on the American flag, talked to the tourists at one point. He exploded for them the interesting and romantic story of Betsy Ross and the first flag. So, the trip brought disillusionment, also.

In Philadelphia, they were given a two-hour ride in the city's tug, John Wanamaker, on the Delaware river, viewing the city's skyline from that refreshing point of view.

A prophet is not without honor, except in his own land, it would seem. For, wherever the busload of Iowa teachers and students went, they were extended all sorts of unusual courtesies. For instance, in Philadelphia, they were furnished a police escort around the city. The state of New Jersey sent two motorcycle policemen to escort them across the state.

Mayors and city officials and historic organizations turned out to meet them, greet them, and perhaps hand them the keys to the city at every point. It was a gala affair, what with speeches, sight seeing, and living for five weeks in the nation's present at the scenes of its past.

Two University of Iowa extension students decided to leave their correspondence classes for a few weeks and make the trip. They are Rena Berry and June Lingo, both of Muscatine.

Jacobs Leading in Third Set When Back Injury Causes Mrs. Moody to Quit in Tennis Final

Title Defender Playing Great Game When Halt Comes With Score 8-6, 3-6, 3-0; Moody Also Defaults to British Doubles Pair

By ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor) FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—Unbeaten and rarely even challenged for seven precious years, the great Helen Jacobs yielded today to the sturdy rush of her California rival, Helen Jacobs, and growing physical distress by defaulting in the third set of their final match for the women's tennis championship of the United States.

Facing apparently certain defeat for the first time since 1926 in singles competition and on the verge of collapse, the result of wearing a back brace that troubled her right hip and leg, Mrs. Moody defaulted to Miss Jacobs after losing the first three games of the final set. The scores of a match that was hard fought and often brilliant for two sets were 8-6, 3-6, 3-0, default.

The finish was a dramatic disappointment to the gallery of 7,000 excited spectators, nevertheless it accorded an ovation to Miss Jacobs, who rose to her greatest heights by outplaying Mrs. Moody for the first time in her career and capturing the national championship for the second successive year. They had met seven previous times in championship play and this was the first occasion on which Miss Jacobs so much as won a single set.

Doubles to England Mrs. Moody also withdrew from the doubles final, in which she was paired with Elizabeth Ryan, thereby bringing to an unparalleled conclusion a national tournament that was delayed exactly a week by rain in reaching its sensational finale.

This automatically gave the doubles championship to the dashing British pair, Betty Nuthall and Freda James.

Mrs. Moody was at first determined to come back and try to play in the doubles, but, after a half hour's rest in the club house, she decided against further competition and wrote the following statement:

"In the third set of my singles match I felt as if I were going to faint, because of the pain in my back and hip and a complete numbness of my right leg.

"The match was long and by defaulting I do not wish to detract from the excellence of Miss Jacobs' play.

"I feel that I have spoiled the finish of the national championship, and wish that I had followed the advice of my doctor and returned to California.

"I Did Right"

"I still feel that I did right in withdrawing because I felt that I was on the verge of a collapse on the court."

Mrs. Moody, never in the lead, had dropped a prolonged battle with her blonde rival in the first set, in which the defending champion's chop-stroke, strategy and steadiness under the heaviest baseline cannonading proved a decisive combination. She squared the match with a fine rally at the close of the second set, but it was obvious the effort of covering court and sustaining the long rallies was beginning to tell on the older girl.

The rest before the start of the final set apparently did Mrs. Moody's weakening right leg more harm than good. She moved about with difficulty. She double-faulted twice in the first game. Twice in the second and third games she was passed cleanly by Miss Jacobs' low-flying returns, making no effort at all to reach for the ball.

Walks Off Having taken only five points in three straight games and dropped her service twice, Mrs. Moody walked slowly to the umpire's chair, put her racket down with an air of finality and turned to the amazed Miss Jacobs to inform her that it was all over. The champion suggested a rest before continuing, but Mrs. Moody declined and walked quickly from the court in company with L. J. Carruthers, former president of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

"I just couldn't get to the ball any more and there was no use of my continuing," she told Mr. Carruthers. Miss Jacobs, somewhat dazed by the sudden turn of events, soon was beaming in response to the gallery's ovation. She participated alone in the victory ceremony, received custody of the championship cup again and acknowledged "the happiest moment of my life."

Always On Top The girl who has always merely been "Helen the second," deserved the full fruits of a gallantly won triumph. From the outset she played with a determination and resourcefulness that soon made it certain the seven-times former champion was in for the battle of her life. She was equally as steady as Mrs. Moody from the baseline, her service was even more effective and she volleyed or

Fans to See Many Games

Four Diamondball, One Baseball Game Set for Tonight

Fans who like to see baseball and diamondball games and lots of them should get in a big day today at City park where one baseball and four diamondball games will just about fill their demands for action. The five game program will start with the baseball game at 2:30 p.m. and continue at 6:30 p.m. with the first of the four diamondball games to be played under the night lights.

MI. Vernon will meet the local Odd Fellows baseball club in the afternoon contest and try to break the local's winning streak of six games. John Shannon, star twirler for the Elks who has won seven of nine games pitched, will hurl for the lodge nine.

Two junior loop games will open the night program, Bremer's playing Racine's at 6:30 p.m. and Maid-Rite juniors taking on the RiverSide juniors at 7:15 p.m.

At 8 o'clock Mutual Benefit will try for another victory over the Wellman Aces, having won from them Thursday at Wellman, 4 to 2, in a game played as a special homecoming feature.

Dinty's Demons will move from Coralville to City park to meet Knights of Pythias in the night cap affair starting at 9 o'clock. This game will be the continuation of a series of hard fought games this summer between the two teams.

Maid-Rite will again journey to West Liberty today to compete in the annual West Liberty diamondball tournament and taking as its battery Ted Fay and Lefty Jones of Cedar Rapids.

Meeting the locals in their first game will be the West Liberty Jumbo Boosters who will have on the mound, Bob Johns of Newton, considered to be on a par with Burlington's Cedar Rapids as a diamondball hurler.

Hennessey Captures Minnesota Crown

ST. PAUL, Aug. 26 (AP)—John Hennessey of Minneapolis, former Davis cup star, stroked his way to a decisive victory over Bill Schommer, Minneapolis, and won the Minnesota state singles tennis championship today, 6-1, 6-0, 6-8, 6-4.

A's Swamp White Sox, Giants, Pirates Split

Score 5 Runs in Big Rally for 10-5 Win

Uprising Spoils Lyons' Day as Fans Honor Vet Hurler

CHICAGO, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics rose up in the seventh inning today and put together five solid hits for as many runs to wipe out an early White Sox lead and spoil an otherwise successful Ted Lyons day celebration by defeating the veteran hurler, 10 to 5.

Going into the seventh trailing, 4 to 2, because of an extra base attack on Mahaffey by the Chicagoans in the third and sixth, the A's big inning was touched off by Bob Johnson's seventeenth home run of the season. Singles by Higgins and Finney followed and, although the former was forced at third on Mahaffey's bunt, the bases were filled when Bishop walked. Applying then dropped Cramer's pop fly in short center and, while he recovered in time to force Bishop, Finney and Mahaffey meanwhile raced over the plate. Cramer and Fox also scored before the uprising was quelled.

When the A's started up again in the eighth, Lyons gave way to Kinsey. Mike Higgins led the A's hit attack against the Chicago pair with a perfect day of two triples, two singles and a walk.

Before the game Lyons was presented with many gifts in an elaborate 40 minute ceremony. Among them were a check of $500 from a group of White Sox fans. If he had won the game, it would have been his 150th victory in his 10 and a half seasons with the Chicago club.

Ferrell Defeats Washington, 5 to 4

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26 (AP)—The pace-making Washington Senators lost an eleventh inning struggle with the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4 today as Wesley Ferrell outlasted five Washington hurlers to turn in his 101st major league pitching conquest.

Burnett's triple, his fourth hit of the game, enabled the Tribe to tie the score at 4-all in the ninth. Then, in the eleventh, Galatzer singled and scampered over the plate with the winning run on Vosmik's single, also his fourth of the day.

Manush went hitless in five trips to the plate after hitting safely in 33 consecutive games.

Ferrell, who took two months to turn in his 100th victory in five years of big time hurling, helped out his own cause with a home run, his sixth of the season. No one was on base.

The victory made it unlikely the big right-hander would be shifted to the outfield next season.

Yankees Gain Game by Beating Tigers

DETROIT, Aug. 26 (AP)—With George Uhle holding his former team mates to eight hits, all scattered except in the sixth inning, the New York Yankees today gained a game on the Washington Senators by defeating the Detroit Tigers in the series opener, 9 to 5. The Senators dropped an 11 inning decision to the Indians and their lead was reduced to eight games.

Gehrig and Uhle led the Yanks' 16 hit attack off Sorrell and Hogsett, the Yankee first baseman connecting with four singles in six trips to the plate and the pitcher with a double and two singles. Dixie

Although Barney Ross, lightweight champion of the world, is shown unpacking his gloves and trunks to begin training for the defense of his title against Tony Canzoneri, from whom he took it, he says he intends to keep the crown in moth-balls. Ross, a Chicago boy, will meet Canzoneri on September 12 at New York.

Australians Upset United States Team

Beat Allison, Van Ryn to Meet Gledhill, Vines

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 26 (AP)—The international flavor of the national doubles tennis championship at Longwood was retained today when Adrian K. Quist and Don T. Turnbull, the Australian Davis Cup team, rallied in brilliant fashion to gain a surprising 15-13, 6-6, 6-1, 7-5 quarter-finals victory over Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, America's second-ranking pair.

The Australian's triumph gave the rain-soaked tourney its first upset and moved them into a Monday semi-finals match with George Lott and Lester Stoeften, who tamed the Aussies' premier combination, Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, in straight sets yesterday.

Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, the defending champions, registered a routine victory over two youngsters from the home state, Jack Tibbalt and Geno Mako of Los Angeles. The titlists' margins were 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

Walker and Chapman hit the most effective blows, however, driving in three runs in the fourth.

Brown Leads Boston to 8 to 1 Victory

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26 (AP)—The slugging and hurling of Lloyd Brown gave the Boston Red Sox an 8 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the first of a five game series today. The left hander drove one of Blueholder's offerings out of the park in the sixth, scoring behind two mates. In the eighth he drove in two additional runs with a double. Previously he had singled.

Loss Costs Giants Half Game in Race

Hubbell Wins First, 2-1, But Pittsburgh Takes Second, 7 to 2

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, rallying behind the five-hit pitching of their young southpaw, Ralph Birkofer, and the veteran Waite Hoyt, today snapped the league leading New York Giants winning streak at eight games but not before they had dropped their seventh straight in the first game of a doubleheader.

After Carl Hubbell had outpitched Hal Smith to give the Giants the opening contest 2 to 1, the Pirates came back to win their first game of the series, taking the nightcap 7 to 2 as they blasted three New York hurlers for 13 hits.

The division of the double bill cost the Giants a half-game as the Boston Braves won their seventh successive tilt to reduce the Terrymen's lead to six and one half games.

Braves Sweep Card Series

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (AP)—The pennant striving Boston Braves, behind the four hit pitching of Ben Cantwell, today shut out the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 0, to sweep the three-game series mark and extend their rush to seven straight.

The game was a pitching battle between Cantwell and Jesse Haines, with the former having the edge. Haines however, allowed only one earned run.

Cubs Divide With Phils

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26 (AP)—Chicago came from behind to defeat the Phillies 6 to 4 in the first game of a double header today. Again in the second game the Cubs rallied in the ninth frame and barely missed turning the trick for a second time. Burt Shotton sent in three hurlers and the Cubs were stopped with the bases full 6 to 5.

Dodgers, Reds Break Even

BROOKLYN, Aug. 26 (AP)—Again using a makeshift infield, with Hack Wilson and Al Lopez alternating at second base, the Brooklyn Dodgers today split a double header with the Cincinnati Reds.

Coming from behind with three runs in the eighth and three more in the ninth, the Reds won the opening game 6 to 4 but Thurston, aided by home runs by Outen and Wright, pitched the Dodgers to a 4 to 2 triumph in the nightcap.

Eve Gilbert Successfully Fends Off Challenge of Alice Roose to Take Women's Crown, 8-6, 6-1

Men's Title Won After Long, Tough Struggle, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3, 6-1; Same Pair Beats Van der Zee, Fitzgerald for Doubles Championship

Battling under a scorching sun for nearly three hours, Ken Cline stroked his way to the Iowa City singles tennis championship yesterday when he downed Al Sieh, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3, 6-1.

By the time the two had finished the match they had passed through several stages of cramped muscles that threatened to stop them at times, but failed to halt the spectacular brand of tennis they were playing.

Both players were decidedly in form and let loose with everything from the start to climax the second annual tournament sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Eve Gilbert, the only 1932 titleholder to defend a title, had plenty of trouble with Alice Roose for one set but easily ran through the second to win, 8-6, 6-1.

Cline and Sieh found the going rather rough in the doubles final where they downed Rufus Fitzgerald and Jacob Van der Zee, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 immediately after finishing the singles finals.

With Sieh apparently unable to miss on his cross court shots, the singles was a battle all the way with the odds favoring the Spencer lad until the start of the third set when Cline settled down and took command of the match.

Both players were getting "ungettable gets" as they displayed the most sparkling tennis of the tournament. Covering the court so completely that points from placement were a rarity, the two finalists banged back and forth at the base lines until able to come to the net where the play was just as brilliant.

Miss Gilbert had the toughest sort of a time with her opponent during the initial set, being forced to come from a 5-6 disadvantage to take the set. In the final set, however, the champion found her game and, after the challenger had taken the first game, came back with six straight games for the title.

Miss Roose showed something of a fighting spirit herself when she came up from 2-4 to take the lead before bowing to the titlist.

With only five minutes rest and Sieh visibly the worse for the wear, the two youngsters came back on the court to add the doubles title to their honors.

Although the game score falls to show a close match, it was by no means a runaway for the winners, many of the games going to deuce.

Texans Monopolize Final Day of Open Trapshooting Meet

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 26 (AP)—Shooters from Houston, Tex., monopolized the North American open trapshooting championship today, the final event of the 34th annual grand American tournament.

E. C. Woodward of Houston won first by breaking 199 out of 200 targets, but his victory was mild compared with the battle for second place which finally was won by Tommy Lovett, another Houston marksman, after a shootout with five others who tied at 198.

Lovett and Charley Morgan of Corning, Ohio, shot at 200 extra targets before the runner-up position was decided.

Shafer Wins Elgin Road Race Event

Fred, Frame Second, With Maurice Rose Third

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 26 (AP)—In the revival of the historic Elgin national road race, Phil Shafer of Des Moines, Ia., won the event today in a thrilling finish with Freddie Frame of South Bend and Maurice Rose of Los Angeles and Maurice Rose of Los Angeles and Maurice Rose of Los Angeles.

Shafer, averaging 88.34 miles an hour, traveled the 203 miles around the rough old concrete and dusty gravel eight and a quarter mile country road course in 2:22.06.2. Frame's average was 85.86 miles an hour. Rose ended up in third place, back of Frame.

Gene Hausteil of Milwaukee, Wis., finished fourth with Dave Evans of Ft. Worth, Tex., fifth in a field of 14 original starters. Only six of them, however, finished due to motor and other mechanical trouble.

Twenty-nine thousand spectators witnessed the races from grandstands erected in corn fields and from other points of vantage around the country course. They were on the alert every second, expecting spills, perhaps death, but the drivers came through without serious mishaps.

With four laps until the finish of the race Shafer had a lead of 51 sec.

Bolstad Will Meet Barnum in Golf Final

BREEZY POINT, Minn., Aug. 26 (AP)—Lester Bolstad of Breezy Point, defending champion and holder of the Minnesota open title, reached the finals of the Ten Thousand Lakes golf tournament here today and will meet John Barnum of Edinburg, Tex., Sunday.

Barnum scored a surprising triumph over Lee Herron of Interlachen, Minneapolis, the state's amateur champion, one up in 20 holes. Bolstad advanced with a 5 and 4 victory over the veteran D. N. Tallman of Willmar, Minn.

Patsy Berg, 15 years-old of Minneapolis, upset Mrs. Ralph Little, Breezy Point 4 and 3 in the semi-finals of the women's championship flight and will meet a clubmate, Betty Hayes, the tournament's medalist, for the title Sunday. Miss Hayes reached the finals with a 7 and 5 victory over Mrs. Roscoe Fawcett of Breezy Point.

MASON CITY (AP)—Cedar Rapids and Omaha teams won the first two events completed in the Iowa State Bridge league tournament at Clear Lake.

Mac Smith Increases Lead; Police Arrest Jack McGurn

Veteran Scot Breaks Par Second Time in Western

By PAUL MCKELSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
OLYMPIA FIELDS, Ill., Aug. 26 (AP)—As a stunned gallery watched the law pick up Vincent Gebardi, a contestant known to police as "Mac-chine Gun Jack" McGurn of Chicago gangland, in slipped MacDonald Smith, the old Scot from Carnoustie, with another par-wrecking score to increase his hold on the western open golf championship today.

Milling around the club house as Gebardi was hustled away by three detectives on a vagrancy charge, the gallery all but overlooked Mac but the competing field didn't. With his record tying score of 68 yesterday, he posted another of 71 shots for a 139 total to extend his lead at the halfway mark of the 72 hole title drive to two shots over Abe Espinosa, diminutive Castilian from Chicago. Espinosa, a 69 shooter yesterday, scored a 72 today for 141. No one else was closer than seven shots from the 43-year-old veteran, now living at Nashville, Tenn.

The arrest of McGurn on the eighth hole of the swanky Olympia Fields club number one course was the sensation of the day. Competing as an amateur, he was burning up the course on the front nine in a brilliant attempt to qualify when the detectives took him in custody but permitted him to finish the round. He was one under par through six holes but, angered at the "pinch," blew up completely thereafter. On the seventh, a par four, he took six shots and on the eighth skied to an 11. After that he just puttered along in disgust, wound up with an 89 and chased a photographer who tried to take his picture.

More than 200 golfers tried to catch the methodical Mac today without success as he made par look almost foolish with his true wood shots and dead approaches. On 14 holes, he had a chance to snare birdies but his putts wouldn't go down. With any kind of putting luck, Mac might have posted a 65 instead of a 71, which broke par on the number one layout by a shot. He was out in 35 and back in par 35.

Espinosa played a steady game all day today on the number four course, a par 70, but his magic putter failed him at crucial times.

Deadlocked for third place with 56 hole totals of 146 tonight were seven others, some pre-tournament favorites and other members of the dark horse ranks. They were Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., Ryder Cup player; Harry Cooper, veteran Chicagoan; and Ralph Guldash, St. Louis 1933 national open runner-up, who had even 73's; Gunnar Nelson, Rockford, Ill., and Massie Miller of Noblesville, Ind., also with 73's; Guy Paulsen, Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Joe Paletti, Chicago.

Walsler, who has played fallback for two years, won his way to the captaincy not by the spectacular performances which send the crowds into thrills but by all-around performance and steady plugging away at interference, blocking and making it possible for teammates to race to fame.

He entered Illinois from Elgin high school where he had made a reputation as a player and won his numerals as a freshman in 1930. He achieved his varsity letter in 1931 and again last season.

Walsler does everything assigned to him in good style but his particular forte is defensive playing and there is no one on whom Coach Bob Zuppke will depend more to back up a wavering line than this rather quiet, black-haired lad of 170 pounds.

In that nip and tuck struggle at Madison last year when Badgers and Illini played one of the closest and most thrilling games of the campaign, Walsler's defensive performance earned the praise of Bob Zuppke, who said it was equal to the best he had ever seen.

Walsler will probably do much of the punting for the Illini this season as he kicks consistently well.

BIG SIX

(By the Associated Press)
As the result of the failure of the members of baseball's big six to hit consistently yesterday, the leaders in each league were drawn closer together. Virgil Davis, Phillies catcher, was the only one of the sextet to gain and he boosted his average only one point. The two hits he got in five times at bat, however, shoved him into a tie for runner-up honors in the National league with Bill Terry, who dropped five points to 344, far behind Chuck Klein. In the American league, Jimmy Foxx lost two points and Heinie Manush and Al Simmons three each.

The standings:
G. A. B. R. H. Pct.
Klein, Phillies 118 474 80 173 .378

Foxx, Athletics 118 459 99 162 .353

Chicago Wins Legion Baseball Tournament

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 26 (AP)—Chicago won the American Legion western sectional junior baseball championship today by defeating Stockton, Cal., 6 to 2, in the final game of the elimination tournament.

With the tournament victory goes the right to play a three game series with Trenton, N. J., the eastern winner, in New Orleans Sept. 1 to 3, for the Legion national boy's championship.

PREMIERE

ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

At the premiere of her latest motion picture, Leni Luneska, beautiful star, is stunned by the appearance of her jailbird husband, whom she married in Vienna when only fourteen. He insists upon recognition as her husband and waits in a private office of the theatre for her to reconsider her refusal. Lucky Cavanaugh, handsome gambler, who fell in love with Leni on sight that evening, tries to make Kruger leave. Kruger empties his gun at Cavanaugh without effect, then rushes into the next office in a rage. He surprises burglars looting a safe and is shot dead. Cavanaugh slips out unnoticed but meets Detective Tom Mulrooney in the hall. Later as Leni and Cavanaugh are about to leave the theatre to avoid questioning, Mulrooney stops them. They deny knowing Kruger but the theatre manager identifies Kruger as the man Cavanaugh brought to the office to await Leni. Lucky cautions Leni against talking.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

A patient hand was raised in the air by Mulrooney as though he were a crossing policeman halting traffic. It was a square-palmed hand with stubby fingers and fine reddish hairs on the back.

"Now folks—you're just wasting time for everybody," he said almost pleadingly. "This stalling ain't getting you nowhere at all. Myself, I'd like to finish up and get home. If you all think it's any fun for me to stay up all night arguing, you're crazy. I'm a family man. Got a wife and four kids. The missus was complaining the other day that I'm practically a stranger in my own home. Of course, I can sit up all night questioning you if you insist but I don't mind telling you it cuts into my rest something fierce. I gotta be on duty at eight o'clock in the morning while people like you two sleep till noon if you like."

Cavanaugh had always prided himself as a judge of character but he was unable to tell whether Mulrooney was kidding him or not. The professional manner of a detective had faded from the man entirely and left him as human and ordinary as a corner groceryman.

"I am tired—I would like to go home," said Leni from her tightly-strung throat. "Can't we talk this over tomorrow?"

Cavanaugh clutched quickly at the straw. "How about it, Mulrooney?"

"No, you'd both get together and hatch out some new story for me to start untangling again," the other said wearily. "I'd rather wind everything up right now—that's the sensible way."

The eyes of the detective behind their blindness were pools of lurking shrewdness. The clear blue gaze concentrated fully upon Cavanaugh's face.

"I'll ask you plain questions, Cavanaugh, and I want plain answers. Did you kill that man?"

"No!"

"But you talked to him this evening, didn't you?"

"For a fraction of a second Cavanaugh hesitated. "Yes."

"You knew he meant harm to Miss Luneska—blackmail or something?"

"Nothing was said about blackmail."

Mulrooney sighed. "All right—we'll drop that for a minute. Now about the safe robbery. What do you know about that?"

"Not a thing in the world."

"I've been in this detective business so long that it becomes natural for me to know when a man is lying," Mulrooney stated in a relaxed voice. "You don't fool me, Cava-

Capt. Walsler Steady Player for Illinois

UREANA, Ill., Aug. 24—When the University of Illinois football players soon set out to continue the climb up the Big Ten ladder they were making as the season closed last year, they will have a capable leader in Capt. Hermer Walsler.

Walsler, who has played fallback for two years, won his way to the captaincy not by the spectacular performances which send the crowds into thrills but by all-around performance and steady plugging away at interference, blocking and making it possible for teammates to race to fame.

Will Discuss Plans to Cut Wheat Yield

Explanation of Project Will Be Made at Meeting

Plans for a Johnson County Wheat Production Control association are being completed by County Agent S. Lysie Duncan upon receipt of the articles of association from the federal government yesterday.

A general meeting of all Johnson county wheat growers, to which farmers who grew wheat in 1930, 1931 and 1932 have been invited, will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the farm bureau offices at the post office. The wheat acreage reduction plan will be explained and the method of organization outlined.

Two district meetings have also been called for next week by County Agent Duncan. Wheat growers in Washington and Sharon townships will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Sharon high school. At 8 p.m. Wednesday wheat growers of Fremont, Pleasant Valley, and Lincoln townships will attend a meeting at the Fisher Opera house at Lone Tree.

County organization can now be completed as a number of wheat growers have signed applications for the wheat allotment contract and the articles of association were received yesterday.

Elect Committees
At the community meetings, called by the temporary county wheat committee, wheat farmers will elect community or township committees composed of three members each. The chairmen of the township committees will comprise the board of directors of the county wheat production control association.

After the election of the board of directors County Agent Duncan will call them together and a county allotment committee of three members will be chosen. The county committee is a permanent organization and will replace the temporary committee.

The allotment committee will make allotments in terms of bushels on which the adjustment payments to the farmers are based. It is authorized to consider, correct, and pass upon reports of past production of individual farmers, calculate farm allotments, hold hearings and authorize investigations and examine farmers' statements regarding production. Acreage production and allotment figures will be published.

Supervisors
Farmers who join the wheat production control agree that there shall be such field supervision for each county as may be necessary. The supervisors shall visit and examine acreages of farmers who sign contracts, and may, if necessary, measure fields. They are to be selected from a list to be submitted to the wheat administration by the county board of directors. No supervisor will be asked to examine farms in his own community.

Other provisions of the articles of association to which each county wheat production control association must conform are:

The county board of directors shall contain as many members as there are wheat communities in the county, one director being elected by each community.

The vote of each director shall have a value according to the proportion of the county's total number of bushels that is allotted to his community.

The board of directors may elect the county agent or one of its own members as secretary. The board shall elect a treasurer, who may, or may not, be a member of the board.

The articles provide that when several counties wish to combine to get the benefits of the wheat plan they may do so. If two or more counties set up a joint association, they shall have a joint board of directors with a single set of officers, and a single allotment committee. When three or more counties join in setting up a single association, each county may be regarded as a community and elect a single representative to the joint board of directors.

Hughes Rites Set for Today

Funeral service for Basil R. Hughes, 36, farmer living eight miles southwest of Iowa City who was killed Friday when the shotgun he was carrying accidentally exploded, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Oathout Funeral home. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

He was born on a farm in Sharon township June 14, 1897, and was married Sept. 28, 1921, to Sidel Skriver of West Branch. He lived in this county all his life.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters: Doris Marie, 10, and Anna Alvina, 6; his father, Luke T. Hughes of Iowa City; a brother, Clark Hughes of Iowa City; four sisters, Alice Hughes of Iowa City, Mrs. F. J. Morgan and Hazel Hughes of Oakland, Cal., and Mrs. Alfred Maas of Iowa City. Two aunts, Clara and Sarah Hughes of Oakland, Cal., also survive. His mother and two brothers preceded him in death.

56 Years Old, But Growing New Teeth

COUNCIL BLUFFS, AUG. 26 (AP)—Mrs. J. W. Stillwell of Council Bluffs is 56 years old, but she's using a teething ring just as she did when a baby.

Mrs. Stillwell is growing her third set of teeth. She already has eight brand new teeth in her lower jaw, and the new teeth are painfully pushing their way through the upper gum—hence the teething ring.

For 27 years she had used false teeth. The false molars will be preserved because of a sentimental attachment, she says.

Emma F. Cooper Dies Here After Lingered Illness

Emma Frances Cooper, who has lived in Iowa City for the last four and one-half years, died early yesterday morning at her home at 211 N. Dubuque street after a lingering illness.

She lived with her niece, Ethel C. Cooper, assistant in bacteriology in the university college of medicine. She was born June 15, 1841, at Bird-In-Hand, Pa., and came to Iowa City four and one-half years ago from Westchester, Pa.

She is survived by one brother, J. Bailey Cooper of Westchester; and two sisters, Miss Cooper of Iowa City and Mrs. William E. Gilbert of Radford, Va. No funeral service will be held here.

Hertz Rites Will Take Place Today

Funeral service for A. J. Hertz, 84, who died Friday morning at his home at 624 S. Summit street, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Hohenschuh mortuary. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Hertz lived in Iowa City for the last 60 years. He was secretary of the school board for 19 years and served on the city fire department for 25 years.

Herring Asked to Outline C.C.C. Work

DES MOINES, AUG. 26 (AP)—Robert Fechner, federal director of conservation work at Washington, today asked Governor Herring to forward immediately the Iowa program for winter reforestation work.

The deadline for receipt of the programs from the various states was set at Sept. 15, Fechner said.

22 Injured as Pier Collapses

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 26 (AP)—Twenty-two persons were injured, none seriously, late today as a section of a docking pier collapsed at Lighthouse Point, a bathing resort, and threw approximately 75 persons into the water of the harbor. The crash occurred at the finish of a swimming race.

Of those injured, five were taken to hospitals for treatment. Meanwhile, police dragged the water near the wreckage of the pier for bodies. All the persons on the end of the pier were thrown into the water, 14 feet deep at that point. The widest confusion followed.

Life guards, swimmers and spectators jumped into the water to save the struggling men, women and children. Tales of heroism were told as swimmers pulled aged women and babes in arms from the water.

Police said apparently all persons were accounted for but continued the dragging nevertheless.

Released on Bond
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A. C. Haffner of Des Moines and William Merle Anderson of Minneapolis were arrested here today on charges of violating the Minnesota state securities act in connection with their activities here as representatives of the Cook scientific laboratories of Omaha. The two were released on bond pending preliminary hearing.
