(Special to The Daily Iowan)
LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 17—Confident it will give Purdue its biggest surprise since the tie with Minnesota, Iowa's Hawkeye football team, 31 strong, tumbled off the train here today eager to start the fray that ends its most successful season in five years.

Still showing plenty of the zip and pepper that has characterized its workout all this week, the Old Gold machine was prepared to halt the Boilermakers' string of 20 games without defeat and ensure itself of a first division position in the final Big Ten standings.

Second Most Important
Next to the Michigan game, this encounter will be the most important Western conference tilt of the day. In addition to settling Iowa's chances of finishing high, it will play a deciding part in the final standing of the Purdue team. Coach Noble Kizer's crew must win if it is to retain a chance at the league title.

Another record at stake, one shared by both teams, is that of continued scoring. Purdue's mark is the most impressive, since they have not failed to cross the enemy's goal line in 46 games. Not as long but just as important to them, the Hawks hope to continue the same type of habit, having scored at least one touchdown in each game this year. This stretches the string to seven games, including the final game against Northwestern last year.

Potent Offenses
So potent are the offenses of the two schools that the mentors of both have given more attention to defense this week than is usual. Especially did the pass defense get through overhauls, both in Iowa City and here at Lafayette.

Last week Iowa gave the conference a neat exhibition of aerial tactics, something an Iowa eleven has never done before, when five passes were completed against Michigan for a total of 113 yards. Heretofore Dwight Hoover has been the sole Iowa passer, but against the Wolverines every man tossed them and it is probable that Solem will instruct the veteran Joe Laws to use the same tactics against Purdue.

The great goal line defense thrown up by the Boilermakers is another reason for predicting an aerial barrage.

Past Master
But the Hawks will be meeting a past master in the art of air tactics for the Purdue club boasts of a great set of passers. Fred Hecker is the most dangerous, completing two 35 yard tosses for scores against Notre Dame last Saturday.

This is another similarity between the two teams. Both are touchdown teams in the middle of the field. Throughout the season the two school have watched long runs account for victory, each relying on "perfect plays" for points rather than trying to ram the ball the full length of the field by line plunges. More than half the touchdowns scored by the two teams have been from outside the 30 yard line.

One Sophomore in Line
Purdue's undefeated team will start with only one sophomore in the lineup, Ed Skorinski at center. Jim Carter and Duane Purvis, the two halfbacks, are the only juniors. In Capt. Dutch Fehring, the Boilermakers present one of the best tackles in the conference.

Iowa, on the other hand, will start four sophomores, four seniors and three juniors. Led by Capt. Tom Moore, Zed Schammel, Ray Fisher, and Joe Laws will face their last conference starting whistle tomorrow afternoon.

Hawk Line Outweighed
The Hawks will face a line that outweighs the Old Gold forward wall by five pounds and a backfield that

Passengers Escape Injuries as Ships Collide in Harbor

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—The liner Deutschland, loaded with passengers from Europe, collided in New York bay tonight with the steamer Munargo, tearing a great gash in the latter's side and forcing it to be beached off the statue of Liberty.
The Deutschland, only slightly damaged, moved slowly through the darkness to its pier.
The Munargo, which plies between New York and the West Indies, was crossing the harbor to discharge some of its cargo in Brooklyn. No passengers were aboard.

Relief Aides Ready to Put Men to Work

Action to Begin Next Week as Program Develops

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Federal relief officials, charged by President Roosevelt with the task of putting 4,000,000 men back to work during the next month, said today they were "ready to go into high gear."

Up to States
Theoretically, they said, many thousands now receiving work relief or made work were being designated on job rosters. They added that direct administration was almost entirely up to the states and their political subdivisions.

"We will get plenty of action next week," said one relief official, "just as soon as we can get our machinery rolling."

Immediate Transfer Impossible
The immediate transfer overnight of 2,000,000 from relief rolls to jobs was described as an "administrative impossibility," but, officials said, the transfer had begun, and they were pushing this task.

The veterans administration, designated as the disbursing office for civil works projects, was ready to see that the new employees get their checks by a week from tomorrow, in time for Thanksgiving.

Pay
The men will receive their checks through the disbursing officers of the veterans administration unit in their state, equipped for the task by years of experience in paying pensions, veterans' compensation and loans on adjusted service certificates.

Herrmann Lectures to Unemployed

An illustrated lecture entitled "Microbe foes and man," the first of a series of lectures on health and sanitation, was given last night in the women's gymnasium by Dr. Walter W. Herrmann, associate in bacteriology and pathology, before the Iowa City community school for the unemployed. A dance, the music for which was furnished by Connors' orchestra, was held after the lecture.

Dr. Milford E. Barnes, head of the department of hygiene and preventive medicine, will talk on "Defenses of the normal human body" at the next meeting of the school which will be held at the American Legion Community building, next Tuesday evening.

Dr. Andrew H. Woods, director of Psychopathic hospital, and Dr. Kate Daum, director of the nutrition in University hospital, will lecture before the school in the near future. The school meets twice a week on Tuesday and Friday nights and is under the direction of Prof. Moses Jung of the school of religion.

Funeral Arranged for Monday for Prof. Henry F. Wickham, University of Iowa Zoologist

Private funeral service for Prof. Henry F. Wickham, 67, of the university zoology department, who died at his home early yesterday morning, will be held at 4 p.m. Monday at the home, 911 Iowa avenue. The Rev. R. E. McEvoy will officiate at the service. The body will be at the Hohenschuh mortuary between 2 and 4 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery. His death was the result of a heart attack caused by asthma.

Heart Attack Fatal to Faculty Member 42 Years at S.U.I.

Professor Wickham was associated with the university from the time of his graduation, 1891, until his death yesterday. He was first appointed assistant curator of the university museum. In 1894 he was appointed assistant professor of zoology and in 1903 professor of zoology. It was that position which he held at the time of his death.

Professor Wickham was born in Shrewton, Wiltshire, England, on Oct. 26, 1866. He came to Iowa City with his parents in 1871. He went to the Iowa City high school and then to the University of Iowa, where he majored in zoology and botany, receiving his degree in 1891. In 1894 he received the honorary degree of master of science.

Nationally Known
Not only was Professor Wickham a popular personage on the campus, but was also nationally known for his work in aiding farmers to combat insect menaces. Because of his work in the field of insects, he was called to Washington, D. C., at one time to help identify the types of insects found in birds' stomachs, so that it might be discovered which types were being destroyed.

Numerous scientific articles were written by Professor Wickham and published in various scientific periodicals. He was known by scientists as an authority on beetles and fossil insects, and was a member of a number of scientific groups, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Entomological Society of America, and also that of Ontario, the Societe Entomologique de Belgique, the Iowa Academy of Science, and the Ottawa Field Naturalists club.

Survivors
Professor Wickham is survived by his wife, formerly Fanny Chastina Thompson of Independence, to whom he was married in 1891; two brothers, Bern Wickham, a contractor in South America, and Edgar Wickham of Iowa City; two nephews; four nieces; and two grand nieces.

Tributes
Dean George F. Kay of the college of liberal arts and Prof. J. H. Bodine, head of the zoology department, said of Professor Wickham yesterday:

Professor Wickham served the university faithfully for more than 40 years. By his kindly disposition, his sincerity, and his spirit of helpfulness, he won many friends among the faculty and students. As a scientist, he gained recognition at home and abroad.

Dean George F. Kay, Professor Bodine

Professor H. F. Wickham was a man whose philosophy and outlook on life were such as to inspire and enrich the lives of all with whom he came in contact. His genial manner and keen insight into the brighter sides of difficult problems were his outstanding attributes. His contributions to the study of fossil insects, his chosen field of scientific endeavors, will always be looked upon as outstanding landmarks throughout the years to come. His loss will be most keenly felt by all with whom he was in intimate contact.

1833 Shower of Meteors Scared German Teacher

"Pete! Get up! The last time has come!"
Thus Peter Walter, father of H. T. Walter of Tipton, was awakened one November night in 1833 by the cries of an old German school teacher who was boarding at the home.

Stars were "falling like snow," according to subsequent accounts of the spectacular Leonid shower of 1833 by father to son.

The son was a caller yesterday at the office of Prof. C. C. Wylie, university astronomer.

Major Codes Expected to Be Renewed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Disclosure that the White House expects the codes of the steel, textile, lumber and other major industries to be continued for a six months period was made today shortly after the steel institute expressed "general satisfaction" with the results of its code and asked a six months continuance of its operation.

Effective 90 Days
The steel code, and most of those for major industries, was originally made effective for 90 days. The steel code would have expired on Sunday.

At the recovery administration it was disclosed also that the automobile industry was expected to fall in line behind the others.

Significant
The steel action was regarded as specifically significant because in one steel mill and all steel owned coal mines the existence of codes have compelled the industry to let workers vote on whether they want unionization, the one thing steel men had openly announced they would fight.

The automobile code runs to Dec. 31. Some of the codes, however, contain provisions for continuance after that date if permitted.

Developments
Outstanding NRA developments today included:

The consumers advisory board's program for establishment of county councils all over the country was said today to be the nucleus around which the Roosevelt administration hopes to evolve a closer link between its several programs for national recovery.

New Codes
Presidential approval was given to important new codes—the newspaper, paper and pulp, automobile tool and die industry and hotel trade were covered.

Revised construction industry codes, meeting part of the labor objections, were issued and submitted to American Federation of Labor leaders for study.

Government Contracts
Administrator Hugh S. Johnson told reporters he was having a thorough study made of the presidential orders regulating the granting of government contracts; he still took issue with the comptroller general for ruling that non-signers of codes like Henry Ford were entitled to the business.

Rietz Lauds, Condemns Types of Insurance in Baconian Talk

250 Hear Professor Call Longtime Endowment Finest Kind

Commending "longtime endowment" as the finest type of insurance, Professor Rietz, in a Baconian talk, condemned the policy of insurance companies functioning as savings and commercial banks; and condemning experimental disability policies, Prof. Henry Lewis Rietz, head of the mathematics department, opened the 1933-34 series of Baconian lectures last night in chemistry auditorium.

250 Present
More than 250 persons were present to hear his address on "Life Insurance during the depression." The lecture was broadcast over WSUI.

"The primary function of a life insurance company or association," Professor Rietz said, "is to administer an efficient scheme for overcoming the economic disturbances which the natural uncertainty of life brings in its train."

Protection
After the bank panic of this year, emergency legislation was enacted to protect insurance companies. At the present time, Professor Rietz explained, funds are available to policyholders for the purpose of paying premiums to the company; to pay off mortgages, taxes, interest, rent, or necessary debts; for medical or funeral expenses; for educational purposes; or for agricultural needs.

Professor Rietz traced the history of insurance to its present place as "a practical necessity in modern society." "In America there has been a marked tendency to make life insurance as individualistic as possible," he said.

Future Safeguard
To safeguard the future, Professor Rietz suggested the enactment of legislation in every state, in charge of such an organization as the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, which would require that all new policies contain the right to defer cash withdrawals for a definite length of time.

16 Year Old Breach Between U.S., Soviet Actually Ended Before Midnight on Thursday

Recognition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States was announced today by President Roosevelt.

Sitting at his desk in his executive office shortly after 4 p.m., Mr. Roosevelt, smiling, said that the 16 year breach between the two nations was actually ended at 10 minutes before midnight last night.

Agreed
At that time he and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, came to an agreement on the points that have been in negotiation since Litvinoff arrived Nov. 7. The two were in the White House at the time.

William C. Bullitt, a state department expert on Russian affairs who has attended to personal conversations between the chief executive and the Russian diplomat, has been proposed by the president as the first American ambassador to the Soviet Union.

Recognition Immediate?
The president was asked whether recognition was actually effective until an exchange of ambassadors but Mr. Roosevelt said it was his horseback opinion that diplomatic relations were resumed the moment he and Litvinoff came to an agreement.

Who will be the Russian ambassador to this country was not immediately disclosed.

Bulky Document
The White House made public a bulky document covering the points agreed upon. Mr. Roosevelt chuckled when he asked the reporters to read it in its entirety.

The exchange of communications between the president and the Soviet government's foremost diplomat showed that an understanding had been reached on propaganda, the right of religious freedom for American citizens in Russia, civil rights of American nationals and some claims.

"Consular Convention"
An agreement also was reached for a "consular convention" between the two countries in which the United States is to be assured that its citizens will have all the rights that are granted to the nationals of other states under existing treaties with the Soviet.

The convention will deal specifically with the rights of consuls of America and Russia.

Members of the Soviet delegation said that accord reached before recognition set no precedents so far as Russia was concerned and that it conformed to other understandings and treaties reached by the Soviet with other states.

Claims, Counter-Claims
The involved question of claims and counter-claims between the two countries was largely left for further negotiations.

The Soviet government, however, made some concessions, among them the important one that it would waive all demands growing out of the expedition headed by General William S. Graves to Siberia in August, 1918.

No Waiver
But there was no waiver where the Archangel expedition of the same year was concerned. The Soviet charged that American troops in the Archangel vicinity participated in offensive operations against Bolshevik troops.

There was little mention of future trade relations between the United States and Russia, although it was known that this subject was reviewed thoroughly in the man to man talks between Mr. Roosevelt and his visitor.

Carter Continues Salisbury Hearing Until Next Friday

The hearing of Al Joe Salisbury, charged with assault with intent to commit manslaughter, will be continued until Friday. Salisbury pleaded not guilty to the charge in the court of Justice of the Peace B. F. Carter yesterday morning. His bond was set at $2,000, which he did not furnish.

Salisbury was arrested yesterday morning by Sheriff Don McComas and Officer Wesley Sedice on a warrant issued by Justice Carter. He is charged with stabbing Clarence Gordon of Iowa City in the back with an ice pick in an altercation which took place on S. Linn street Oct. 8.

Bullitt Sure to Meet With Favor

MOSCOW, Nov. 18 (AP)—(Saturday)—The news that America finally had recognized the Soviet government came to Moscow shortly after midnight last night and found Soviet officialdom in bed.

Due to the hour, there was no official comment available, either on the fact of recognition or on the appointment of William C. Bullitt as the American ambassador to the Soviet union.

It was said Bullitt is bound to meet favor here, however, because of his efforts to persuade President Wilson to recognize the Bolsheviks during the Versailles peace conference.

Mrs. Pelzer Speaks, Drama Group Gives Play

One hundred and twenty-five members of the Iowa City Woman's club attended the general club luncheon at Youde's yesterday at 1 p.m. The entertainment of the afternoon consisted of a play entitled, "Free Silver," by Maude H. Hickman of Centerville, of which the drama department was in charge.

Preceding the luncheon the executive board met for a business session. Presentation of new members, who sat at a special table along with the reinstated members and the club chorus, was made during the luncheon. The chorus contributed two songs, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and "Song Without Words."

Mrs. Louis Pelzer spoke on the Iowa artists, who are endeavoring to preserve the memory of historical homes and buildings by encouraging painters to copy them. The fund is to be used for prizes for the artists who produced the best copies of points of historical interest.

New members of the club are: Mrs. W. H. Allan, Mrs. C. O. Ingerson, Mrs. Nettie Lake, Mrs. B. G. Thomas, and Mrs. John Yarbrough. Mrs. O. Irwin is a new member of the club chorus. Names of members not appearing in the year book are: Mrs. C. L. Palmer, Mrs. Jeannette Furlong, and Catherine Mullin.

From Hot Dogs to Babies Varied Amusements Greet Visitors to Carnival Sponsored by Horace Mann P.T.A.

From hot dogs to babies, from yo-yos to band concerts—such was the gamut of amusements facing the visitor to the "Land of Nickledom" carnival sponsored by the Horace Mann P.T.A. from 7 to 10 o'clock last night.

The carnival was held on the first floor of the Horace Mann school building and persons attending ranged from Superintendent of Schools I. A. Opstad—who took his chances at a penny shot booth—to high school students coming back to see how their first school looked after their absence.

Baby Show For the amusement of the crowd, a group of teachers and parents presented a "baby show" in the gym. Under the leadership of Ronald Smith, four students from the Iowa City high school band presented a number of selections ranging in difficulty from "The Campbells Are Coming" through "Dixie" and "The Ducks Flew Over the River" to "Goodnight Ladies."

Fish Pond A fish-pond where for 5 cents one could grab certain articles was exhibited long before the evening was over. The rifle range where one could shoot six times for a penny was attended by a large number of future members of boys' and girls' rifle teams.

Yo-Yo's Featured earlier in the evening was a yo-yo contest which was won by Jean Mocha, Dolores Elchler, William Ward, and Boyd Tietlin. In the fun house, springs, slides, skeletons, served to confuse those who ventured in.

Principal Rogers Near the hot-dog booth Principal J. L. Rogers was wearing a painted mustache, beard, and side-burns, carrying a cape, and enthusiastically munching a hot-dog. Later he was forced to reprimand a student who was marching down the hall ringing a bell.

Preparations Nearly 75 members of the P.T.A. worked three weeks preparing for the carnival and these same members had supervision of the booths last night. "Land of Nickledom" was sponsored to raise funds to carry on the work of the Horace Mann association. Mrs. Joe Kanak and Mrs. Albert Graham headed all the committees supervising the carnival.

3:45 p.m.—North Shore I vs. St. Louis.

8:30 p.m.—Business meeting.

Two more hockey squads, Milwaukee Association and West Suburban Club of Chicago, will arrive in Iowa City this morning to participate in the second day of play in the Women's Midwest Field Hockey association tournament on the local field.

Madison Club, North Shore association of Chicago, the St. Louis Club, and hockey enthusiasts from throughout the midwest invaded the city yesterday for the three games of the first day.

Iowa City Defeated
North Shore first team defeated the Iowa City Hockey Club 5-3 in a clear fast game in the opening hour of the tournament yesterday afternoon. Iowa showed up well against the fast Chicago team, who displayed excellent defense work cooperating in plays and formations which showed much practice as a unit. The Iowa team played a much more steady game both on offense and defense in the second half than in the first.

Purvis Scores
Purvis scored two goals in the first half of the game, and one in the second for the North Shore team and Moore and Leonard each scored one goal in the first half. Kenefick made the three scores for Iowa in the second half, with clear, hard right hand drives from the edge of the shooting circle.

The second game between Madison and St. Louis resulting in a 6-0 score in favor of the Wisconsin team, was not as clear a game as the first. Madison's exceptional defense in its covering game furnished the high spots for the spectators.

Madison Lineup

St. Louis players included: Wilson, right inner; Gallagher, right wing; Prendergast, center forward; Webb, left wing; Coleman, left inner; Stanley, right half; Boeckmann, center half; Hencken, left half; Livered, right back; Ellis, left back; and Fitzwilliams, goalie. Forcier substituted for Stanley.

In order that the second team from North Shore Chicago might have an opponent, Iowa student varsity team played them in the last game of the afternoon, which resulted in a 3-0 score. Street made two of the goals for the Chicago team and Waldner made the other. Brilliant saves were made by the Iowa goalie, Neuzil, under the heavy bombardment of the North Shore aggression.

Tea will be informally served the hockey players in the social room at the gymnasium after the games tomorrow afternoon. W.A.A. members were hostesses at a tea honoring visiting players yesterday afternoon after the games. The tea table was set before one of the fireplaces in the main lounge of Iowa Union. Belle Markovitz, A.S. of Iowa City, was in charge.

The midwest hockey team, to be selected from the outstanding players in the tournament, will be announced at the banquet honoring all players, officials, and members of the association, which will be given at 7 o'clock this evening at Iowa Union. Janet Cummings of the women's physical education department is in charge. The following will assist: Alice Sherbon of the women's physical education department; Bernice Everameyer, M.I. of Muscatine; and Maxine Park, G. of Marshalltown.

Ourselves and Russia

PERHAPS NOW that America definitely recognizes the Soviet as a nation of human beings worthy of notice, the attitude of the American people toward the Communist experiment will become more wholesome and realistic.

There are many advantages in this new born relationship, both for the people of this country and for those of Russia.

Economically the advantage is mutual. It cannot be otherwise, as much as tariff-minded industrialists might wish for a one-sided market.

The United States and Russia, working in sympathetic harmony can do more than any other nations in the world in promoting world peace, and their services in this respect are going to be seriously needed if another holocaust is to be averted.

The greatest move for world peace in history was begun by an American, Woodrow Wilson. The most important steps in the direction of cementing European peace during the last generation have been taken by an unobscured Russian, Maxim Litvinoff.

Both nations are more or less remote from the squabbles and petty bickering of the European sewing circle. Both are powerful, and both have everything to gain and nothing to lose by insisting on peace.

Edwin Booth— America's Romantic Figure

THE ONE hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edwin Booth last Monday serves to recall the career of the man who was one of America's greatest actors and romantic figures, as well as one of its most tragic.

One hundred years ago, as in this week, astronomers were watching the most brilliant shower of meteors in modern history. People all over the world were frightened by the thousands of shooting stars which rained upon the earth and lighted it as bright as day.

Descended from a family of actors, it is only natural that at the age of 16, Edwin played his first role, and when he was 18 he appeared in one of his father's great roles, Richard III, in New York.

He was considered by far the greatest Shakespearean actor of his time, and none have yet come to claim the glory that was his. But even more remarkable than his historic career was the tragic, adventurous life he lived off the stage.

When the gold rush to California began, among the first to go west was the elder Booth and his two sons, Edwin and Junius Brutus, Jr. But instead of the riches which he thought would await him there, Edwin Booth found only hardships so great that he had to live in a two room hut and cook his own meals.

Even after he had gained fame and riches he knew great tragedy, far greater than that which he portrayed on the stage. His brother, John Wilkes, deluded by the zeal of the Confederate cause, assassinated President Lincoln. His brother's act came as a great shock to Edwin, and on the very night of the shooting, he addressed himself to the American people, expressing his profound feeling.

Many critics acclaimed his Hamlet as his greatest Shakespearean role, and there was perhaps a premonition when he presented Hamlet as his farewell matinee in 1891. It was indeed farewell, for he never again appeared on the stage.

At his death 40 years ago, he left an estate valued at $650,000, from which the great actor bequeathed gifts to four charities, including one for his own profession.

In half a century no figure has appeared in America to take the place of Edwin Booth, the really tragic and romantic man of the stage.

Kinds of Government

Ten days ago or so in our city-wide public forum Prof. Bruno Roselli gave an eloquent "Defense of Fascism."

It stimulated everybody, and left everybody convinced that we want no fascism for ours.

One week later in the same city-wide forums we had Sir Norman Angell of Great Britain, who spoke on "Defense of Democracy."

This address left most hearers disquietingly dubious as to whether democracy would work.

of Marx or Lenin give us a thumping "Defense of Communism," which would leave us with the feeling that Communism is as full of holes as a Swiss cheese, the circuit would be complete.

We should then have arrived—somewhat backwards, to be sure—at the point of recognizing that, contrary to our childhood impressions, the great problems of government have not yet been solved, all at once, by any single, easy, and magical formula.

The democratic system, in which the multitude always has the right and power—though ordinarily unused—to impose its will without violence, is still, this newspaper believes, the most workable for the long pull.

The democratic system is the only system ever invented in which the safety valve is the biggest part of the machinery.

That has its defects, but it has its merits, too.

GOOD MORNING

Reams of good paper have been used in the hurricane of controversy over the relation of newspapers to the NRA. For the most part it has been a fruitless demonstration, with the newspapers fighting a bogeyman by instinct and General Johnson warding off dead cats only to find the air still cluttered.

As is so often the case, it was left to Walter Lippmann to clarify the issue by pointing out that perhaps both the papers and the administration are wrong. And the argument he presents is, as far as I can discover, the first unbiased and reasonable discussion that has yet appeared.

In their attempt to escape control by the NRA the publishers conjured up the first amendment to the constitution and proceeded to defend it. It needed no defense, of course, but it offered a resonant sounding board for drumming up public opinion.

All they asked, said the publishers, was that a specific statement affirming the constitutional right of freedom of the press be incorporated in the newspaper code. This, said the publishers, General Johnson refused to do. If General Johnson is sincere when he says he believes in freedom of the press and does not intend to abridge that right, why is he averse to saying so in writing? On the surface that sounds like a good argument and makes General Johnson look like a touchy old bigot.

But, as Walter Lippmann points out (something the publishers have failed to do), the paragraph they have insisted the code include is hardly as innocent as the public has been led to believe. Lippmann quotes it thus:

"In submitting this code, or in subscribing or assenting thereto, the daily newspaper publishers do not thereby agree to accept or to comply with any requirements other than those herein contained, or waive any right to object to the imposition of any further or different requirements, or waive any constitutional rights or consent to the imposition of any requirements that might restrict or interfere with the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press."

In this freedom of the press is merely incidental. As Walter Lippmann points out, "The vital clauses, it seems to me, are those in which the newspapers do not thereby agree to accept or comply with any requirements other than those contained in their proposed code, or waive any right to object to the imposition of any further requirements."

"These clauses reject the idea of an evolution and elaboration of the code, whether by act of the president or on the initiative of any association in the newspaper industry."

"In order to appreciate the issue which has been raised, it is necessary to realize that an NRA code is federal legislation for a particular industry; it is framed by trade associations, labor associations, and the executive, and is as enforceable as if it were a statute that had been written by the congress of the United States."

"If I read correctly the paragraph on which newspapers are insisting, it means that they refuse to agree that the power to legislate for the newspaper business shall be delegated."

Obviously, the vociferous publishers have told only half the story. Evidently their concern over freedom has been not much more than a blind.

Although tactics such as these are not to be excused, Mr. Lippmann sees another side to the argument. Newspapers should not, he believes, be subject to the provisions of the NRA whatever. The type of industrial organization which the NRA contemplates, while ultimately necessary for industry, would, he thinks, be inimical to the sort of competitive freedom upon which a liberal press depends.

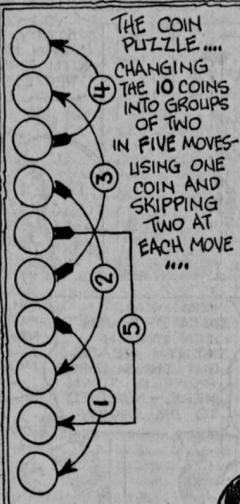

"It is not the powerful and rich newspapers that are threatened," asserts Mr. Lippmann. "It is the weaker newspapers. If the principle of raising costs uniformly is carried very far, it is the weaker newspapers, more often than not the liberal and progressive newspapers, which will be driven to the wall. It is the big newspapers which will survive."

"In other words, it will accelerate the process of merger and combination which has already, I believe, gone much too far for the public good. That is the real danger. I am not afraid that the president or General Johnson will suppress a newspaper they do not like. I am much more afraid that they will inadvertently kill a whole lot of newspapers they do very much like."

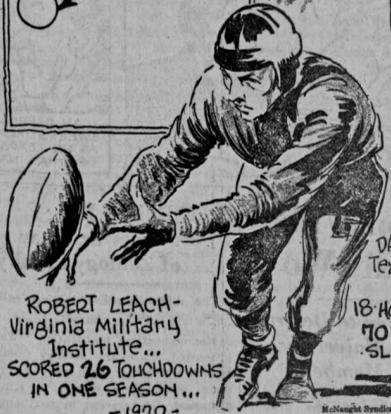

That is a real argument and is worth considering. But it is interesting to notice that the liberal newspapers were the first to sign the blanket code and accept the NRA wage and hour provisions. And it was the liberal press—notably the Milwaukee Journal—that was first to criticize the weasel tactics of the big publishers. —Don Pryor

SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD — They'll tell you that Randy Scott is going to Europe to see the sights with Cary Grant but another purpose is romantic.

For, according to Vivian Gaye, pretty manager of Sari Maritza, the handsome North Carolina star also goes to London to meet her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bezenecet. And if certain matters can be arranged, Vivian will be leaving Hollywood about Dec. 15 to spend the holidays with her family.

Will there be a marriage? "Randy and I are not officially engaged," says Vivian. "My family are old-fashioned and how do I know they are going to like him? Or he them? I'm very glad, though, that Randy could get away at this time to meet them. Our plans will have to be decided later."

The boys who grab photographs for the fan magazines and the picture services are great matchmakers and follow a Hollywood romance from its inception to the divorce court.

There was that time the other night when Junior Laemmle left a hotel dining room with a well known ingenue. He was asked to pose and did. Then the photographer asked for a second picture.

"And put your arm around her this time," he suggested. "What would that be for?" asked Junior, smused.

A young lady who is not always so compliant to the photographers' wishes is Bette Davis. In the prolonged absence of her husband, Bette naturally goes out some with other men. (Remember when she ribbed the gossips and appeared with eight boy-friends at a Hollywood premiere?) But when she goes dancing with one man she dodges pictures. Just two nights ago, she and playwright Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs," side-stepped the lenses at a fashionable dining place.

Incurable Deaf Cases Great Problem, He Says

Highlights of research achievement in the science and pedagogy of deafness were traced by Dr. Max A. Goldstein, founder and director of the Central Institute for the Deaf, before about 75 persons in room E-105, East hall, yesterday afternoon.

Nearly 3,000,000 children in the United States have some deflection from normality in hearing, according to a research experiment five or six years ago by the National Research council, Dr. Goldstein pointed out in emphasizing the importance of the growing problem of deafness.

Incurable Cases

Perhaps 10 per cent of this number are the "potential oto-sclerotics of tomorrow," incurable progressive deaf cases, presenting a problem of tremendous importance to the scientific and educational worlds and to all who are interested in communal welfare, he declared.

"It is time the educational field realized its responsibility in the final disposal and end result of hard-of-hearing cases," he said, stressing the enormity of the task of preparing some 20,000 "lip-readers" teachers.

Lip-reading was described as superior to sign-reading or use of electrical devices by the deaf, owing to certain factors in the emotional readjustment of the deaf person.

May Develop

About 30 per cent of the congenitally deaf children have a residuum of hearing, through which, with the cooperation of the senses of sight and touch, a mental appreciation of speech may be developed, he said.

Slides of charts and of various mechanical devices used in teaching deaf pupils were shown by Dr. Goldstein.

Clouds Hide Sky for Observers of Meteoric Shower

Clouds obscured the skies yesterday morning, thwarting the efforts of star-gazers who had planned to observe the Leonid meteoric shower. Two solo counts made between 11 and 12 p.m. Thursday, however, led Prof. C. C. Wylie, university astronomer, to believe that the peak night of the shower occurred during the small hours of yesterday morning for American observers.

The shower was expected to reach its maximum brilliance in India yesterday afternoon. Prof. J. C. Marry, formerly of the philosophy department, now teaching at Allahabad college in India, was asked by Professor Wylie to cooperate in the study of the meteors by making counts of the shower.

Entrants to Choose Between Subjects in Debate Contest

A choice of two questions is to be offered to those participating in the all-campus debate tournament which starts Nov. 27, Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of university debate, announced yesterday.

Entrants may signify their preference for either the question originally selected, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt the principal features of the British system of radio control and operation," or, "Resolved, that a constitutional amendment, making permanent the powers of the president as of July 1, 1933, should be adopted."

The final debate will be held upon a third subject to be selected by the winners in each of the two groups.

SEEN from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

Prof. Enrique Blanco, formerly of the Romance languages department here, is proving that a good formula can work both ways. In America, or more specifically, Iowa, he taught Spanish to English speaking persons. Now, according to a report of the Boston Transcript, he is in Tahiti, teaching English to the natives.

Professor Blanco left Iowa several years ago, went to Boston, bought a 37 foot boat, and set out across the Atlantic to Barcelona, Spain, with his wife and daughter, Evaline Lucy. Shortly after their arrival, Mrs. Blanco became ill, and died six months later. Some time after that, he again set out to continue his wanderings, with his little daughter, starting out across the south Atlantic. Their only companion on the trip was a small canary.

For several months nothing was heard of the adventurer. His friends in America were able to make contact with him, however, when he stopped at a small island in the south Pacific to take on supplies, and now the word has come to the United States that he is in Tahiti. He hopes, through his English lessons, to earn enough money to continue his world travels soon.

Detroit alumni of Iowa met on the eve of the Michigan-Iowa game, for a dinner and general meeting. Prof. Edward H. Lauer, director of Iowa athletics, and Coach Ossie Solem attended. Dr. Martin Hoffman, medicine '22, served as toastmaster. Other Iowans present were: Dr. Ivor Reed, medicine '19; Dean W. E. Lessinger of the College of the City of Detroit, liberal arts '20; Dr. Angus McLean of the Detroit board of education; J. Fred Lawton; Dr. A. A. Cotton, H. M. '86; and Neal Tomney, "Uncle Neal" of radio station station WJR. Dr. Reed was elected general chairman.

Things were rather warm for at least one man who attended the first book chats program at Iowa Union Thursday. After figgering around during the whole of Prof. Leigh Sowers' talk, he suddenly arose and, holding a smoking cushion before him at arms' length, he walked from the room. He lost none of his composure, let it be said. Nonchalantly, he remarked, "I'm glad it's just cushion trouble, and not pant trouble."

This one might be called "Death Takes a Holiday," or something. It was Wednesday night, and cars were parked everywhere near Iowa Union, while owners listened to the symphony orchestra concert. It took only a shove to start a car parked near women's gymnasium down the hill. It rolled neatly along the sidewalk, down the hill, turned almost as if by magic at the corner, missed all the trees, sideswiped a parked car by an inch or so, and came to rest in a vacant parking space. There were a lot of hearts standing in a lot of throats. And who says there's no Santa Claus?

Groups Seek Plans to Aid Local Needy

Luelle Bruner, head of the Social Service league, and Margaret Decker, assistant, met with representatives of various student religious organizations, Y.M.C.A., and Y.W.C.A. at Iowa Union yesterday to discuss ways for students to help with the relief of needy families.

Describing the work of the Social Service league, Miss Bruner said that its policy has changed recently from the old idea of giving charity to the poor to the new idea of helping out a friend who is temporarily unable to support himself.

Suggestions were made that besides collecting used clothing from dormitories, fraternity, and sorority houses, students might help at the clothing center, and with preparing Thanksgiving baskets.

"The Social Service league can use anything in the way of donations," said Miss Bruner. "I know one woman who would like nothing better than to obtain a glass bowl for her goldfish, and a little boy who thinks heaven would consist in owning a guitar."

Prof. Zuill Leaves for Unemployment Conference Today

Prof. Frances Zuill, head of the home economics department and president of the American Home Economics association, will leave for Washington today to attend a conference to be held Monday at the White House for the purpose of discussing the emergency needs of unemployed women.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will be chairman of the conference, will entertain the delegates at luncheon in the White House at noon Monday.

Professor Zuill received an invitation to attend the conference from Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the federal emergency relief administration.

Edith Holmstrom to Lecture Today

Edith Holmstrom, field worker for the bureau of dental hygiene, will give an illustrated lecture on the Iowa plan for dental health in Muscatine this afternoon. This will be given before a group of rural school teachers.

Miss Holmstrom spent yesterday in Wilton, Atalissa, West Liberty and Nichols where she spoke before school groups in the town schools. The purpose of her speeches, Dr. C. L. Drain, acting director of the bureau explained, is to stimulate interest in the Iowa dental health plan in the schools of Muscatine county.

Cambridge, Iowa Teams Use Different Speaking Manners

One of the most interesting aspects of the international debate between Iowa and Cambridge Wednesday evening will be the contrast in forensic style displayed by the two teams, according to Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of university debate.

It is customary in this country to think of the typical Englishman as a hard-headed, unemotional, logical thinker, and more or less stolid sort of individual. This view does not hold true as far as his speaking manner is concerned. The English debater, as previous meetings with their representatives have shown, is primarily interested in his audience and in making friendly contact with them. To gain this end he resorts to all the emotional devices that make for a responsive and sympathetic hearing.

American Style
The American debater, while he by no means ignores his audience and their tastes and prejudices, has been trained to appeal to impartial judges who will be swayed by the logical presentation of a well organized and soundly substantiated argument. As a result, debates between our colleges and English schools are apt to be a contrast: between what might be termed literary and judicial styles, Professor Baird said.

The reason for this difference in method and procedure lies in the background and training and the approach of the speakers. The Britisher is accustomed to deciding his debates on the merits of the question itself, the American on the merits of the debate.

Seek Response
For example, in a debate on the League of Nations as an instrument for promoting world peace, the Englishman is interested in getting the response of the audience on their side of the league's ability to perform that function. The American speaker is interested in convincing a judge that, on the merits of the argument as presented, his side should be awarded the decision.

Hence, the contrast in methods employed to gain the varying ends. The Cambridgeite will make use of his natural wit, indulge in epigrams and epithets, inject humor at every possible turn, engage in elaborate figures of speech, bring in poetic illustrations, quote the classics, and otherwise do his best to entertain and amuse the audience to ingratiate himself with them and gain their sympathy. All this is done, however, against a background of well prepared information and a thorough acquaintance with the problem at hand.

Argument First
The speaker raised his emphasis on convincing by strength of argument rather than by eloquence. His task has always been to convince a critic judge who will be swayed by statistics, authority, clear and concise summary, and team work. Oratory, humorous presentation, and other devices are for him merely a means of projection to an audience to gain the end of convincing them that he is right. To the British speaker, these things are the essence of the debate. Whether or not he succeeds in winning the debate is a matter of little concern.

This attitude is the product of the training and experience which he has received. There are no formally conducted speech courses or even speech departments in the English universities. Forensic activity is directed by the students themselves through such organizations as the Oxford and Cambridge Unions. These bodies are comparable to the old time literary society in this country.

British Unions
The Unions are modeled on the British parliament with the students divided into political factions. Questions of the day are discussed just as they are in the house of commons. There is a much closer contact between the students of that country with political life than there is here in the United States, and they take an active part. In the Union the students meet to thrash out the problems confronting the nation.

Their debate begins formally enough, but ends, just as in congress or parliament, with discussion from the floor and a vote on the question in accordance with the views held by the students without any attempt to settle it on the merits of the discussion. The decision is not for a team but for or against a principle.

Illinois Professor to Give Address

Prof. Donald B. Keyes of the University of Illinois will speak on "Cooperative industrial research in universities" at a meeting of the student branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of chemistry building.

Pharmacists Used Key to Yank Teeth

Old time pharmacists were called upon to extract teeth with a device resembling a large turn key, according to a display in the pharmacy museum in the main hall of pharmacy-botany building.

This key is more than 100 years old, and is made of iron. It was also used by barbers, veterinarians and doctors for extracting teeth before dentistry became a profession.

Presented Key
This key was presented to the college of pharmacy by B. F. Osborn, a druggist of Ripley, and once regent of the University of Iowa. He has also given the college of pharmacy many other old time tools and relics which were a part of his equipment many years ago.

Among these are a pocket scales and stock jars which are more than 75 years old. There is also an assortment of scoops and spoons made of horn, and stock battles with emery paper around the bottoms to indicate the bottle contained poison. The use of emery paper on bottles of poison was an early ruling of the pharmacy commission.

Opium Outfit
Another display is an opium smoking outfit, presented to the college of pharmacy by George L. Parsons, class of 1911. This outfit includes a balance for weighing the opium, a weight and case in which it was kept and the pipe and apparatus for smoking the drug. Mr. Parsons obtained this set while serving as federal narcotic inspector.

Many other displays which show the advancement of pharmacy in the last century are to be found in this museum.

Pharmacy Window Displays Cosmetics

Beauty products are the main theme in the pharmacy window display this week in the main corridor of the pharmacy-botany building.

Decorated in black and silver, the window displays beauty products of a well known brand of cosmetics.

The window was decorated this week by George Trowbridge, P2 of Dows, Ronald Shumway, P1 of Arlington, and Charles Sarge, students in the window display class of the college of pharmacy.

Iowa City High Plays Grinnell in Season's Final This Afternoon

Visiting Eleven Favored to Defeat Battered Wellmen in Clash on Shrader Field

Little Hawks Present Altered Lineup to Curb Powerful Grinnell Outfit; Rejuvenated Spirit Prevails at City High

It will be the last stand of the season for the gridders of Iowa City high out on Shrader field this afternoon at 2 o'clock as they make their bid for victory against another powerful Grinnell eleven.

And like other times this season, there appears little hope for victory. Grinnell, riding the crest of a successful season, comes here 30 strong; confident of adding one more victim to its season's list.

Unusual Success Employing lateral passes and strong end sweeps usually from a modified punt formation, Grinnell has had unusual success. Two of their more notable victories are a 12 to 0 victory over Marshalltown and a 6 to 0 decision over Newton.

To combat this team, Iowa City will put on the field, an eleven, battered and bruised from numerous defeats but still game. In practice this week the Little Hawks have been showing surprising spirit and should this feeling of enthusiasm extend through the game tomorrow, an upset would be surprising.

Altered Lineup In the attempt to put his maximum power on the field, Coach George Wells has made several shifts in his first string the past week. George Maresh, a diminutive but scrappy center, who has worked on the reserves most of the season will probably start at center for the first time this year.

This will allow Coach Wells to shift the veteran McGreevey to guard or end to plug up possible weaknesses. Fred Ballard a stand-out at end in last two games will be back at his fullback post today. Bill Klitridge, a reserve who has alternated at guard and halfback this season, is favored to start at Jamison's halfback post. Klitridge, and Ballard have been teaming up well in practice, both crashing the line with effectiveness.

Thirteen Girls Grinnell will come here with a squad of 30 players and a special cheering section. Thirteen of these, members of the Girls Athletic association, will be feted by the local G.A.A. group. They will be given a lunch at noon and will then be guests at the game.

This has come to be an annual friendship gesture between the two schools. Last year 13 Iowa City high girls were guests of the Grinnell G.A.A. at a turkey dinner when the Little Hawks travelled there for the Thanksgiving day game.

Iowa City started the tradition when it invited the girls from the neighboring school here for the first time two years ago.

O'Doul Said, "Get A Load of This," and 35 Shot Picked Out

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP)—"Lefty" O'Doul, New York Giants outfielder, pulled the trigger on a covey of quail he had just jumped in the brush and said "get a load of this."

Hap Collard, hunting companion of O'Doul, "got the load," but not the kind "Lefty" meant. They picked 35 bird shot out of Collard's face, ears, arms and chest.

The injuries were only superficial.

YEAR in and year out the argument wages for a city basketball league or a city tourney, round robin or elimination. Year in and year out the battle rages and that's all that is done about it. Today there is no reason for further refusal to hold the meet or form the league. As the setup now exists, it is possible for two schools to claim the title and neither gain much personal satisfaction from the claim. City high plays but two games, St. Pat's and St. Mary's, four, while U. high meets every team in town. If either the Irish or the Ramblers come through undefeated while the Little Hawks are taking two from the Blue, what's the result. Just a garble and a lot of argument.

High school athletics in Iowa City never have paid to the extent that any school could afford to overlook the opportunity to make more money. Aside from the novelty of a tournament involving all four schools, the natural rivalry would bring out crowds that would force the tourney to be held in the field house. Certainly no one is going to object to that. From the looks of some of the equipment and the economy measures of some of the schools, the added dividends would be more than welcome.

THERE can be no real reason for not holding the meet. In the past such things as intense rivalry, differences in scholastic standards, and difference in class of competition have been advanced. Checking over them today one finds little difference on any count. The intense rivalry is more talked of than felt. Surely no more intense feud could be imagined than that existing between St. Mary's and St. Pat's. Where once blood flowed one now finds sportsmanship and good natured rivalry. More rigid enforcement of scholastic standards in all the schools has eliminated that problem.

Certainly there can be little difference in the calibre of basketball played by the schools. Last year Tipton defeated both U. high and City high. St. Ambrose holds its own with Davenport and the Hilltoppers are always the class of the Mississippi Valley conference. The Irish dropped all the schools except City high, which they did not play. City high beat U. high twice as did the Ramblers. Certainly that gives no basis for saying the competition is of differing brands.

PROPERLY handled, the tourney could be built into the out-

Earle Chism Lost to Wrestling Team With Broken Leg

Earle Chism, sophomore varsity wrestling candidate from Aurora, broke his leg yesterday afternoon while working out in the wrestling room at the field house.

The break, which is of the smaller leg bone down close to the ankle, will throw Chism out for at least two months, and probably for the season.

The accident occurred as Chism's leg caught beneath him as he fell to the mat while wheeling around on his feet.

Chism won the freshman 155 pound title last year and was looked upon as a promising varsity candidate this year.

Intramural Swimmers Slow in Signing for Pentathlon; May Be Discontinued.

Only nine men have signed up for the intramural swimming pentathlon which is being held in the field house pool under the direction of Coach Dave Armbruster.

Unless more men enter the competition, Coach Armbruster plans to discontinue the pentathlon. In order to give swimmers a last opportunity to enter, the record books will be kept open until next Friday. Any men entering the meet next week will have to take their trial for both the 50 yard free style and the 50 yard breast stroke.

The following men have been timed for the 50 yard free style: Ralph P. Walker, .38.2 seconds; Robert C. O'Brien, .35.5 seconds; James J. Murtha, .37.1 seconds; Joshua Harris, .33 seconds; and Lee K. Mathes, .30 seconds.

The other men who have signed up are Sterling Dover, Charles Edwards, Allan Blatherwick, and William Shubert.

Thirty-five games have been scheduled for the interfraternity freshman basketball league when play begins next Tuesday evening on the courts in the north gym of the field house.

Three sections have been organized in the league and each section will play a round robin tournament. The winners of the section competitions will clash for the final championship. Six games will be played each time the league meets. The fraternities must furnish their own officials for each game.

The games scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 21 are: 7 o'clock, Sigma Pi vs. Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Alpha Tau Omega, and Phi Delta Theta vs. Phi Gamma Delta; 7:45 p.m., Sigma Chi vs. Theta Xi, Pi Kappa Alpha vs. Phi Epsilon Pi, and Delta Tau Delta vs. Beta Theta Pi.

Princeton's rampant Tigers look much too strong for the Navy in an eastern program otherwise featured by Oregon State's invasion of New York to play Fordham.

If nothing else, there is plenty of rich tradition at stake in the games involving Colgate-Syracuse, Cornell-Dartmouth, Pennsylvania-Penn State and Harvard-Brown.

Good Chance That Three Will Topple

Nebraska, Michigan and Oregon Face Hard Battles

By ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor) NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Simultaneous with the cracking of the cold wave in the east and midwest, most of the nation's seven undefeated major college football teams will be put to severe tests tomorrow in a series of games marking a climax in the championship competition.

He attended Hickman high school, Columbia, Mo., winning the state high school championship in 1931, after being runner-up the year before. Cline then moved to Washington, Ia., and attended junior college there for two years, winning the championship of the Black Hawk conference both years and being No. 2 in Iowa junior college ranking.

Last summer he competed in three tournaments, playing singles and pairing with Al Sieh in doubles.

Kenneth Cline Brings Tennis Reputation to Hawkeye Freshman Net Squad

By RON MILLER

One of the most outstanding tennis players in the university is Ken Cline. High school champion of Missouri in 1931, he was ranked No. 2 in junior colleges in Iowa in 1932 and 1933, while attending Washington junior college. His record shows that he should be a valuable asset to the tennis team when he becomes eligible for varsity competition next year.

Swimming Season Opens With 42 Natators on Hand

Armbruster Expects Larger Number After Exams

The varsity and freshman swimming season was opened yesterday afternoon at the field house pool as 42 natators reported to Coach Dave Armbruster. Coach Armbruster expects the number to be swelled within the week when freshmen finish frosh lectures and varsity men rid themselves of mid term departmentals.

Of the varsity men to turn out six were veterans from last year, five having won awards. The letter winners that reported yesterday were Bruce Grove, Phil McClintock, Bill Busby, Auggie Anderson, and Capt. Tad Close. Tom Collins, a veteran who during the later part of the season succeeded in beating the regular varsity man, also was among those responding.

Veteran Absent Conspicuously absent from the ranks were six "I" men who either failed to return or who graduated. They are former Capt. Steve Neilson, Burt Meyers, Warren Ross, William McCloy, Roy Bodine, and Chet Mohl, Harry Haskins has only one semester left and will be of value to the team in one meet, the Midwest A.A.U.

A strong contingent of sophomores, who consistently whipped the varsity as freshmen last year, showed up yesterday, however to make Coach Armbruster's task of replacement more simple. Outstanding from this last class who reported yesterday were Frosh Captain Adolph Jacobsmeier, Wilbur Wehmeyer, Jack Sieg, Allen Hurley, George Ernest, Allen Dutton, and Chuck Van Hoesen.

Zukas Missing Missing from the number of promising last year's freshmen was Anton Zukas who left school immediately after the Dolphin Show had been completed. He is expected to be back and eligible for competition when the season starts second semester, however.

Among those reporting were a number of outstanding freshmen swimmers who either have records behind them or who already this year have proved themselves. They are: Richard Westerfield, Ray Walters, Fred Haskins, Kenneth Booth, George Nissen, Homer Bradshaw, Arnold Christen, George Cosson, J. J. McConnell, C. L. Trowbridge, W. S. Knehr, and Darrell Southern.

Coach Armbruster put the group through a strenuous session of Danish gymnastics for the opening drill yesterday. Lumbering up exercises were then executed as the first practice ended with a short discussion on the coming practice schedule.

Plan Extensive Drill Both varsity and freshmen will work out for form and ground work Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays will be devoted almost exclusively to water polo work. Nosed out for the title last year by Illinois, Coach Armbruster is determined to win it this year.

It is likely that the team will compete in three championship meets—the Big Ten affair, Midwestern A.A.U. at Ames, and National Collegiate at Columbus, O. Coach Armbruster also is attempting to arrange a dual meet with Iowa State college.

Other dual meets in which the Hawkeyes will probably engage are: Michigan, Illinois, Chicago, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Sigma Chi Wins Sigma Chi won its final game in the interfraternity speedball league by defeating Phi Kappa Sigma 6 to 3 yesterday afternoon.

The battle for the league championship will be played next week between the winners of the two sections of the league.

Huat Beat Cuban PARIS (AP)—Eugene Huat, French bantamweight, won a 12-round decision over Padron Boy Finnigan, who was billed as the bantamweight champion of Cuba, tonight. Huat weighed 115 1-2 pounds, Finnigan 116 1-2.

Big 10 Title Depends on Final Score

Plenty of Argument Can Arise From Result of Game

By PAUL MICKELSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—The old gold and maroon of Minnesota blends with the maize and blue of Michigan tomorrow in a titanic struggle that has stirred the imaginations of the Big Ten football world all season with its possibilities.

Improving rapidly and rested after a two week layoff from competition, the Gophers will shoulder the hopes of their own excited partisans and three other teams as they clash with the undefeated, untied forces of Harry Kipke before 70,000 spectators at Ann Arbor. On the outcome of the battle hinges the fate of the Big Ten championship race with these possibilities and "ifs":

Big Favorite If Michigan wins, the Wolverines will be a 20 to 1 shot to brush aside Northwestern in their final conference engagement and go on to their second straight Big Ten title.

If the game results in a tie, Michigan will be tied in the championship standings by Purdue if the Boilermakers defeat Iowa at Lafayette. Only a tie game—against Minnesota—blots the Purdue record. Minnesota, tied three times, also would be in a position to share in the title on a percentage basis. The Gophers, too, are undefeated.

More Argument If Minnesota wins, the Boilermakers, if they beat Iowa, would claim the lead with some more disputes coming from the Gophers.

If Minnesota wins and Purdue loses, the Gophers would be on top with no arguments or questions asked. Illinois and Ohio State, each defeated only once, would have hopes of sharing in the title—if the Illinois survive Chicago's attack tomorrow and Ohio State defeats Wisconsin, two strong possibilities.

On past records, Michigan rates the call, but only the hardest kind of a battle was expected. Since Coach Kipke took charge of the Wolverines in 1929, the games have been story book thrillers with the Wolverines victorious by an average margin of 4 1/2 points. In 1929, they Two non-conference games, Notre Dame vs. Northwestern at Evanston and Indiana vs. Xavier at Cincinnati, are on tomorrow's card along with the Iowa-Purdue, Ohio State-Wisconsin, and Chicago at Illinois engagements, but the Gopher-Wolverine struggle shapes up as the game of destiny.

Wary after last week's close game against Michigan, the Iowa Hawkeyes were expected to face against the hard driving Purdue backs; Notre Dame and Northwestern, the scoreless wonder of 1933 football, permitted a tossup battle, whereas Ohio State, Illinois and Indiana rate as favorites.

Steve Hamas Ploughs Over Lee Ramage in 10 Rounds

Record Low Attendance for Madison Square Garden Arena

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer) MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Steve Hamas, as plugging a heavyweight as he was a fullback half a dozen years ago at Penn State, ploughed his way to a ten round victory over Lee Ramage, clever San Diego youngster, in the feature of a card that set a new low record for flight attendance in the big battle arena.

A motley gathering of 2,614 of the faithful, who paid net receipts of only $4,980, saw the broad shouldered Hamas buffet and batter Ramage just about enough to edge out the decision, though he failed to floor the Californian and never was in danger of taking a count himself.

The judges disagreed in their decision, one voting for each warrior, but Referee Griffin cast the deciding ballot in favor of the former football star.

It was the fourth time the two youngsters have battled, and tonight's victory gave Hamas an edge in the series. He has now won two decisions, lost one, and finished in a draw in the other.

Several times Ramage was in distress as his graceful footwork failed him before Hamas' charges, swinging lefts and rights to the head raked Ramage in the first, fourth, sixth, eighth, and ninth rounds, but an unintentional low blow cost Steve the ninth in the score card. Ramage made up some of this loss by stinging Hamas with sharp fists to the head in the second and fifth rounds.

Hamas weighed 193, Ramage 184 3/4.

St. Ambrose Wins, 19 to 0

Hansen Leads Way to Triumph Over Buena Vista

DAVENPORT, Nov. 18 (AP)—St. Ambrose college ended its football season today by trouncing Buena Vista college of Storm Lake 19 to 0, in an Iowa conference battle.

Marvin "Bucky" Hansen, star Saint quarterback who was on the injury list most of the season, played the leading role by scoring two touchdowns.

His first came after a six play drive down the field at the start of the contest, Hansen climaxing the march with a 46 yard sprint on a fake punt play.

His second score came in the third period after a long pass from Bowers to Workens put the ball on the one yard line. Baker, substitute senior fullback, made the other touchdowns, the only one of his college career, on a plunge from the one yard line in the final period.

Seven seniors made their last appearance for the Saints, Baker, Grandinetti and Eddie Klenck, backs; Co-captains Mekne and Drees, guard and tackle, and Urie and Hanley, ends.

Vikings Beat Penn, 19 to 6

OSKALOOSA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Two intercepted passes which led to touchdowns for the visitors gave Augustana college of Rock Island a 19 to 6 decision over a scrappy Penn eleven today in a non-conference game.

After fighting off two Viking threats in the initial period, the home team gave the invaders a nip and tuck battle until late in the third quarter when an intercepted pass, a penalty and a 12 yard sprint by Marek resulted in the second Augustana touchdown.

Robers made a shoestring catch of Wilkins pass in the final period to give the Quakers a marker, but the Vikings regained their margin by intercepting a pass and driving over the Penn goal in the waning minutes of the game.

Barney Ross Easily Beats Sam Fuller

Retains Junior Welter Crown Over Ten Rounds

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer) CHICAGO STADIUM, Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—The junior welterweight championship of the world still is the property of Barney Ross of Chicago, also holder of the world's lightweight title.

Ross, engaging in his first battle since he defeated Tony Canzoneri for the second time last September, successfully defended his synthetic 140 pound championship against Sammy Fuller, rugged Boston Italian, in their ten round battle tonight. Ross, in the opinion of the majority of the ringside experts, was credited with winning eight of the ten rounds, and always appeared master of the situation.

The contest, opening the indoor boxing season, drew 11,430 spectators with receipts $21,163.

The verdict of the two judges and the referee Joe McNamara, was not unanimous, however, one of the judges, Livingston Osborne, voted in favor of a draw, while the other, W. A. Battye, cast his ballot 43 to 47 in favor of the Chicagoan. McNamara, in deciding the issue voted 51 to 49, in favor of the world's lightweight champion.

Although close, Ross appeared to have the edge in every round with the exception of the sixth and ninth, in which Fuller outslugged him. Ross, anxious to make a sensational showing before his fellow townsmen, in his first contest since beating Canzoneri the second time, was willing to do everything that Fuller attempted and beat him doing it. He slugged with the Boston fighter in thrilling rallies, outboxed him and out generated him in the fierce exchange.

Marvel Still Masked; Wins Over Laditz

DES MOINES, Nov. 17 (AP)—Rudy Laditz, 225, New York, won the first fall tonight but was unable to unmask the Masked Marvel in the feature of the American Legion wrestling show here, losing two out of three to the unidentified grappler.

In the semi-windup, Arthur Von Saxon, 198, Milwaukee, drew with Sam Leater, 206, Ponca City, Okla., Lee Wykoff, 205, Dallas, Tex., and Wild Bill Thornton, 215, Oklahoma City, also drew in a 30-minute affair.

Fred Brondell, 177, Des Moines, threw Young Strangler Lewis, 190, Los Angeles, with a body press and bar arm in 16:32.

Cornell Loses to Simpson

INDIANOLA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Iowa college football triumphed over the Midwest conference brand as portrayed by Cornell tonight when the Simpson Methodists trounced their adversaries from Mt. Vernon, 18 to 6.

The two teams battled on even terms throughout the first half, which ended at 6-11. In the second half, the Methodists began to click and pushed over a touchdown in each the third and fourth periods.

Carlson, Clarke and Wells scored the Simpson touchdowns, while Peterson tallied the lone marker for the Purple.

Parsons Scores On Trick Pass; Beats Dutchmen, 6 to 0

PELLA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Parsons college uncorked a trick pass play that went for the only touchdown of the game today and defeated their traditional Iowa conference rivals, the Central college Dutchmen, 6 to 0.

After three periods in which almost all of the action took place in the center of the field, the Wildcat strategists unloosed a long pass which Norvell snagged and lugged across the Dutchmen's goal.

It was the final game of the season for Central and closed the gridiron career of Hosteter, Devellder and Neifert, three Central mainstays.

Logger Does "Break Up" for Washington University Students

SEATTLE, Nov. 17 (AP)—It was 3 o'clock in the morning and 12 University of Washington students were escorting an airplane up a street. They planned to park it on a lawn with a sign "Huskies break up Bruin machine," meaning the University of California at Los Angeles football team which plays here Saturday. Mike Belich, logger, driving a car, did his best to justify the sign. He collided with the plane, head-on. The logger was arrested for drunkenness. The plane, slightly damaged, was moved on to the university.

Julian Downs George Kelly in Cue Meet

OMAHA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Coy Julian of Little Rock, Ark., defeated George Kelly of Philadelphia, 125 to 52 in the first round of the midwest billiard tourney tonight.

Kelly, who won the national meet at Minneapolis last week, was a heavy favorite to capture the tourney here.

In other opening games, Willie Mosconi, Philadelphia, beat Scotty Farrell, Red Oak, Ia., 125 to 42; Eddie Sauer, Oakland, Cal., beat Walter Franklin, Kansas City, 125 to 103; and Leo Imolati, Omaha, beat Marcel Camp, Detroit, 125 to 106.

Tulsa Still Undeatable WASHINGTON (AP)—Tulsa university's golden hurricane kept its record clear tonight walloping George Washington 13-6 in their fourth meeting and as many victories for the Tulsans.

Minor League Executives Close Session of Trading

Western League Again to Function as Whole

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—Minor league executives and club presidents wound up their player deals and official business and started home tonight with the Southern association's radical measure to curb intentional passes fresh in their minds.

More than 30 such transactions were announced at the meeting, most of them involving, however, minor league clubs. Transfers of still other players were in the making but officials decided to wait until they returned home to make the announcements.

The Western league, with Denver and Pueblo members again after a year's absence, today re-elected Dale Gear of Topeka, Kan., president.

J. E. Beller of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska State league, made verbal complaint to William G. Bramham, president of the National association, relative to the league's announcement that it might enter Lincoln.

He said there was no way the Western could obtain a franchise in Lincoln unless it obtained it from the Nebraska State league, of which Lincoln is now a member. He added he did not believe the Western would have money to do that.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

No, Mom knew how poor Tommy would be embarrassed by all of them and like as not they'd ruin his chances for getting a big job or maybe even marrying that artist from Park Avenue because what nice people would want to get mixed up with people like Uncle Louie, Cousin Emmy and Lou Menken? Pop was all right, he could be talked to and Mom could keep him down some, particularly if he got one of his acting spells, then he'd be more aristocratic than even Elaine's father himself.

But Pop would fight like a steer about going and where would they get the money anyhow? Pete wouldn't think of going but he had told Mom to make her plans and to outfit herself from head to foot with everything she needed to make her look as swell as any of the other mothers and that it would all be on him. Mom almost cried when because she knew Pete was saving to get married, and Steve was, too, the two of them were putting all of their waking hours in at the garage trying to make it go; and it was going, too, and Pete had his eye on another new place he was figuring on opening and he had great plans for the future.

Pete always had a good head on him. He was different from Tommy, of course, but everybody couldn't be great like Tommy and Pete was a fine boy in his own quiet way and Mom surely felt herself blessed with the two of them, always thinking of her and doing nice little things to make her happy and proud. It looked like Pete was going to get along, too, in his own way; and one of these fine days the town would wake up to find that the Randolphs were somebody—and the old lady on the hill would know that the Serogings were, too.

The only thing Pete was worrying about was hard times. Other people were still spending right and left, easy come, easy go, but Pete had his eye ahead and he said the bottom was dropping out. He was always reading the financial sections of the paper. Uncle Louie told him he was crazy, that the moneyed people would never let hard times come on during a Republican administration but Pete said, all right, the factory's only working five days a week, isn't it? And the mill's on short time.

But Uncle Louie just wrinkled up his face and said, with a voice that seemed to run over the teeth of a saw, that Pete was just a kid who wasn't dry behind the ears. But Mom noticed Pete was the only business man in the family. Pop helped him at the garage when he wasn't working at the factory and Mom was glad of it for two reasons—because it took him out from under her feet and gave him something to do. Once Mom hinted to Uncle Louie that he ought to go down and help Pete fill up tanks on busy days; but do you think he'd do it? It was too far beneath the dignity of the man who'd be postmaster if the Democrats ever got in.

Then there was one more thing which puzzled Mom although she knew it was silly to even think about it. Naturally she talked some about going over for graduation making up studies after the football. She peeled the potatoes and cut them in cubes and dropped them into the water in the pan and put them on to boil.

Still, it would be a consolation to have everything arranged so she wouldn't have to worry. Thordyke would be so new and so grand even Mom might be a little out of place. But since when did a mother need an invitation to her son's graduation?

The little boy she had carried around this very kitchen! Mom heard the fire whistles, as usual, and knew it was up in that section of town but she never imagined it could be the garage although she did think of it first thing and then put the idea out of her mind because fires always seemed to happen to somebody else. Anyhow when they came to wake Pete up the whole place was buried down and Mom felt so sorry for him when he came back and sat down in the kitchen, so alone, with little black Nippy sitting at his feet and looking up like he knew what had happened and he wanted Pete to know he had one friend, anyhow. Here was poor Pete, working hard to do something for himself, and the place had to burn down—sparks from the engines did it, the Chief said.

Pete didn't go back to bed and Mom got him some of his favorite breakfast of pancakes and sausages and she tried to cheer him up. So did Pop but Uncle Louie slept through it all even though he claimed to be a light sleeper. And when it was past time for him to go out to work, Pete still sat there because he had no work to go to this day, the poor boy.

Then the door opened and Steve came in. Somebody had told her the first thing when she got up. She started crying when she saw Pete and he smiled and put his arms around her, real gentle-like and seemed to be embarrassed because Mom was there so Mom went out and left them alone. And when she came back, after making a noise so they'd know she was coming, Steve was herself and the two of them were kidding again and Mom knew that's the way they'd go through life.

"What're you crying for, Sissy," Pete was saying, "this is just what we needed. We'll take the insurance money and build up this place again and start the new one over on Foster Street."

"Can we?" Steve was wide-eyed. "Sure—pay part down on each one and let them pay for themselves."

Berry's Case Dismissed by Judge Gaffney

No Malicious Intent of Members of Board, Says Gaffney

The $35,000 damage suit of Charles L. Berry, former county treasurer, against the county board of supervisors was dismissed yesterday by District Judge James P. Gaffney, who sustained the demurrer of the board filed Oct. 3, 1933. The costs of the case were taxed to Mr. Berry.

Filed Petition

Berry filed the petition asking for $35,000 damages Oct. 28, 1932, claiming that the members of the board conspired with malicious intent to deprive him of public confidence before an election by making public the report of Allen, Busby and Hartigan, hired by the board to audit Berry's books.

The firm was employed by the board to trace the $20,000 discrepancy between the former treasurer's records and those of the First National bank. Mr. Berry was held responsible for the discrepancy in a decision early in 1933 by District Judge Frank Bechly.

Gaffney's Reasons

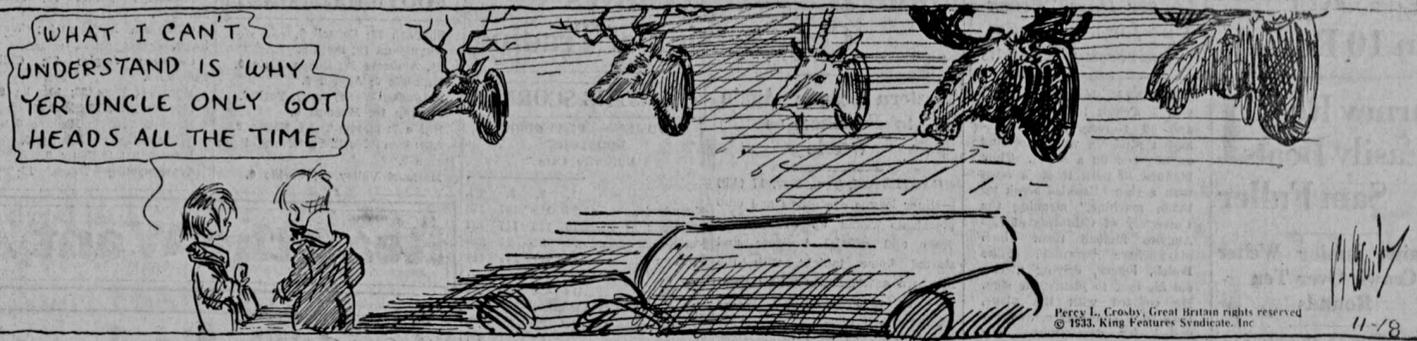

Judge Gaffney's reasons for dismissing the case are as follows: "At the time the board of supervisors of Johnson county by resolution, employed the firm of certified therein named to audit the books of a county official of said county and of other records incident thereto, and further ordered the filing of said completed audit, that said board was acting in the performance of certain governmental duties imposed upon it and required by law.

"Board Acted Rightfully"

"Having determined that said board rightfully and expediently acted concerning the corporate property of the county, and directing all act necessarily incident thereto, it now becomes unnecessary and is immaterial to inquire into the state of mind or motivating causes of said board or the members thereof in acting as alleged.

"Public officials are charged to perform their prescribed governmental duties and such other duties as are inherently incidental thereto faithfully and impartially, and when they do so act, the doctrine of absolute immunity based on public policy obtains and protects them from civil liability. Demurrer Sustained. "It is therefore hereby ordered and it is the judgment of the court that defendants' demurrer should be and the same is hereby sustained and the petition of the plaintiff, as amended, should be and is hereby dismissed at the plaintiff's costs."

There are 6 types of home-grown tobaccos that are best for cigarettes

BRIGHT TOBACCOS
U. S. Types 11, 12, 13, 14.

BURLEY TOBACCO
U. S. Type 31.

SOUTHERN MARYLAND TOBACCO
U. S. Type 32.

U. S. Type 11 is produced in the Piedmont Belt of Virginia and part of North Carolina.

U. S. Type 12 is produced in eastern North Carolina.

U. S. Type 13 grows in South Carolina.

U. S. Type 14 is produced mostly in southern Georgia—a few million pounds in northern Florida and Alabama.

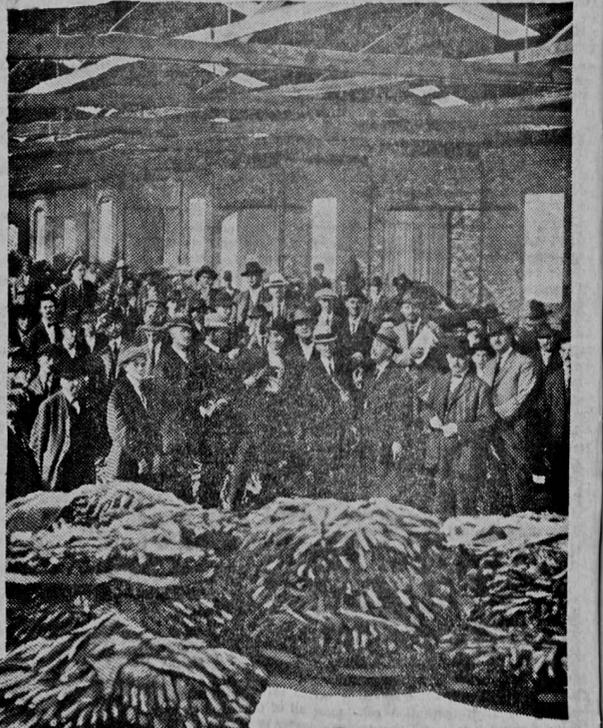

U. S. Type 31 includes what is called White Burley tobacco. It was first produced by George Webb in 1864. It is light in color and body, and is milder than the Burley used for pipes.

U. S. Type 32, Maryland tobacco, is noted for its "burn". In this respect Maryland excels most other tobaccos.

These are the kinds of home-grown tobaccos used for making Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Then Chesterfield adds aromatic Turkish tobacco to give just the right seasoning or spice.

Chesterfield ages these tobaccos for 30 months — 2 1/2 years — to make sure that they are milder and taste better.
