Al Smith Breaks Openly With Roosevelt's Monetary Policy

Favors Gold Standard as Money Basis

Declares Self Against 'Boloney Dollar' Experiment

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith broke openly today with President Roosevelt's monetary program, declaring he was for "sound money" and a return to the gold standard.

"I am for gold dollars as against boloney dollars," said the former governor in an editorial to be published in the December issue of the New Outlook.

Experience, Not Experiment

"I am for experience as against experiment. If I must choose between private management of business and management of a government bureaucracy, I am for private management.

"If I must choose between the leaders of the past, with all the errors they have made and with all the selfishness they have been guilty of, and the inexperienced young college professors who hold no responsible public office but are perfectly ready to turn 130,000,000 Americans into guinea pigs for experimentation, I am going to be for the people who have made the country what it is.

Would Make Changes

"And I say this with full knowledge of the fact that there are many things in the old order of society which I should like to have changed and which I do not applaud or even condone."

Portions of Smith's editorial were made public at the office of the New Outlook. The former governor, who recently was a guest at tea at the White House, was not present.

The appearance of the statement created a sensation in New York, with afternoon papers displaying it under large headlines. Smith was not in his office, and attendants there declined to say where he could be located.

"More Than Partisan"

The statement expressed Smith's personal disbelief that "the Democratic party is fated to be always the party of greenbackers, paper money printers, free silverites, currency managers, rubber dollar manufacturers and crackpots.

"If so, the issue is more than a partisan one," Smith continued, "because we are dealing today with the party which actually holds responsible government office, which is not merely advocating cure-alls in a campaign, but which has in its hands the present welfare of 130,000,000 people and the future of our most cherished American institutions.

"I am too old now to be regular just for the sake of regularity.

"What we need in this country is absolute dependability in our money standards. It is the only thing which will restore confidence. The latest fiscal moves of the administration have undermined public confidence. They have created uncertainty.

"Uncertainty paralyzes business.

Blumenfeld Says Civilization Requires Anglo-Saxon Unity

England and America must join forces to rescue modern civilization from destruction, Ralph D. Blumenfeld, former editor of the London Daily Express, told an audience of 1,100 in natural science auditorium last night.

Describing European political and social conditions in the third university lecture of the year, Mr. Blumenfeld pictured the foremost world powers on the brink of chaos which can be averted only by concerted action of the English-speaking nations.

"It is difficult to explain war-torn Europe," the "dean of fleet street" declared. "There is a tense feeling; we who are near the center are more apprehensive now than during the war.

Germany Has Closed Door

"Germany has closed the door upon the world, and the people are unaware what the world is saying against them. Hitler asks France to help him in maintaining peace, and in Germany he rattles the sword and tells the people that it is their destiny to conquer the world."

Hitler and Nazi Germany, in driving the Jews from their dominant position, are destroying their own country, the speaker believes.

Germany May Sink

"In depriving Jews of their rights, Hitler is depriving Germany of its motive power. If the Jews are not restored to their former power, Germany will sink to the level of a second or third rate nation," he predicted. "It seems unlikely that they ever will regain it."

Germany, he asserted, is dreaming of the glory of a conquering nation—seeing herself under Hitler's false halo as the leading people of the world. "In that spirit," the veteran editor said, "Germany is walking forward into the very gates of hell."

Dr. Alice Wynekoop Admits Murdering Daughter-in-Law After Long Night of Grilling

Declares Panic Seized Her After Giving Chloroform

BULLETIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty tonight declared he was ready to go to trial immediately against Dr. Alice Wynekoop, 62 year old physician, who confessed earlier today that she sent a bullet into the body of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, 23.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—The grey little mistress of the Wynekoop house of death, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, bent her stout will beneath the burden of circumstance today and confessed she sent a bullet into the heart of her son's wife, Rheta.

Spurning the advice of her attorney, the 62 year old widow, physician in a family of eminent medical men and women, faced her son and daughter and a coroner's jury in the county morgue and quietly identified her signature to a confession.

Believed Rheta Dead

In that document, lighting up details of the grotesque death of the girl on her surgical operating table, Dr. Alice asserted she believed Rheta was dead from chloroform, administered to relieve pain, when in panicky fear of blame for her asphyxiation the physician seized her pistol and fired a bullet to give a semblance of murder by robbers.

The coroner's jury recommended that she be prosecuted for murder. Refusing to accept her statement that death was due to the anaesthetic, the jury wrote its verdict:

Gunshot Wound

"We the jury find that Rheta Wynekoop came to her death on the 21st day of November, 1933, in an office located at 3406 West Monroe street, from a gunshot wound, hemorrhage and shock, said gunshot wound received from a revolver held in the hand of one Alice Wynekoop in that office on Nov. 21st between the hours of 3 and 4 o'clock p.m. From the testimony we find the act of shooting the deceased to be murder, and therefore recommend that she be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder until discharged by due process of law.

Others to Be Apprehended

"We further recommend that all who aided and abetted be apprehended."

Earle, the 25 year old son widowed by his mother's act, was still in custody tonight as police, professing to be unsatisfied with the explanation given by Dr. Alice, proceeded with their investigation.

"We still have many persons connected with this case under suspicion," Capt. John Stege of the Fillmore street police announced.

Earle Standfast

Even when confronted with the signed confession of his mother, Earle had been unwilling to believe his mother guilty. Separately, the mother and son had been questioned through most of Thursday night. Earle had talked freely of his life with Rheta, whom he had wooed by letter only to find unhappiness in marriage. He told of friendship with other girls—one showed the diamond ring he had given her, others told of his courtship. But he professed to have no knowledge of his wife's murder.

DR. ALICE WYNEKOOP—Confesses Murder.

Second Bank Bill Nears Enactment

Only Concurrence Of House on Senate's Change Needed

DES MOINES, Nov. 24 (AP)—The second of the administration's emergency banking bills, already approved by the house, today was passed by the state senate by a 34 to 11 vote.

Only house concurrence in a senate change which does not affect the provisions is needed to complete final passage of the measure, intended as further assurance of Reconstruction Finance corporation aid for Iowa banks.

Subordinate Rights

The bill would subordinate the rights of certificate holders to share in the distribution of earnings of banks under a waiver plan to the rights of the R.F.C. in case of liquidation.

Through its amendment the senate struck out certain sections which it was contended were explanatory in character and not material to the bill and also adopted a clarifying provision.

Child Labor

Senate action during the day also placed the approval of the upper branch of the general assembly of Iowa ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution and forecast favorable consideration when the companion bill is taken up in the house.

The senate voted 41 to 6 to approve the joint resolution for ratification, after a discussion in which Senators Pendray and Hopkins, sponsors, urged that Iowa join the 15 states which already have endorsed the proposed amendment.

House Eliminates Rule

Meanwhile, the house, after a debate, changed its mind and eliminated a rule requiring the placing of bills on the calendar after 10 days in committee.

House approval also was placed on the Hoff concurrent resolution proposing that the senate and house, sitting in joint committee of the whole, devote at least a day to each of the various tax bills now in the hands of legislative committees.

No Adjournment

The house defeated the Malone-Manice resolution for a week end adjournment over Thanksgiving. It decided to hold a Saturday session tomorrow while the senate adjourned over the week end.

By JACK GURWELL (Daily Iowan Sports Writer)

LINCOLN, Nov. 24—Held in leash just 40 miles from here tonight, Iowa's rampant Hawkeyes are set to write the final chapter to a great season when they battle Nebraska here tomorrow afternoon before a Nebraska day crowd of 34,000.

Down to the Huskers in the long series of games played between the two schools by a margin of 12 to 6, Coach Ossie Solem's gridders, the surprise team of the middle west, rule a slight favorite over the Big Six champion but not too much of a favorite, although the Nebraska backers are demanding from 18 to 20 points before taking the Crimson.

"Shoot the Works"

For Iowa it will be a long waited opportunity to wipe out that 14 to 13 defeat suffered at the hands of Coach Bible's team, a chance they will hardly be hesitant in taking. Working under orders to

Chautemps To Form Cabinet

Expected To Succeed Sarraut as French Premier Today

PARIS, Nov. 24 (AP)—Camille Chautemps, an outstanding leader of the radical socialist party and a parliamentary veteran, will be summoned tomorrow to form a new French cabinet, barring some unforeseen development, it was reliably learned tonight.

The former minister of the interior expected the support of about half of the socialists, former Premier Herriot's radical socialists, and the center votes should he assume the job of succeeding Albert Sarraut, whose ministry fell early today on budgetary proposals.

Two other veterans, M. Herriot and Georges Bonnet, the finance minister in the defeated cabinet, were talked of earlier as possible successors to the premier's mantle.

"shoot the works," the Old Gold team will open wide its bag of tricks as it closes its 1933 season.

More than just the game depends on the play today. Three players will be making strong bids for all-American honors—two Iowans and a Husker.

Solem advances Joe Laws, famed fire chief and quarterback of the Hawkeyes eleven, and Zud Schammel, the greatest guard in football today, as his contributions to that honor group while Dana X. Bible presents George Henry Sauer, triple threat fullback.

Upon the performance of these men tomorrow afternoon will rest their chances of making the team. All three seem good bets to land conference berths and have been favorably mentioned for national honors.

Since the series, halted in 1919, was renewed Nebraska holds a two to one edge with victories in the last two games.

Both schools have had fine years, the Huskers losing but one game while the Hawks were dropping two. The lone Nebraska defeat came at the hands of Pittsburgh last week. Iowa's losses were to Minnesota and Michigan, the only undefeated teams in the Big Ten.

As Iowa attempts to uphold the Western conference's fine record against non-conference schools, it will hold a slight weight advantage which may be the key to the way the battle goes. Last week when Purdue was relegated to the ranks of the defeated the Old Gold forward wall played 60 minutes of the toughest sort of football without a single substitution.

Nebraska will present its lightest team in years but one which relies on speed and aggressiveness to overcome its lack of beef. Behind the line will be a set of fairly heavy lightning fast backs.

Against this setup Iowa will match a line that averages 189 pounds from end to end and a backfield that makes the average of 184 pounds. The beef in the line by no means cuts down the speed for Iowa's line is one of the fastest and hardest charging the middlewest has seen this year.

Offensively Iowa has a slight edge, scoring 18 points per game to Nebraska's 16. On defense the Cornhuskers boast a bit more of an advantage, allowing slightly less than two points a game while Iowa has permitted seven.

Three Die In Plane Crash

Crew Killed as Huge Air Liner Bursts Into Flames

WEDRON, Ill., Nov. 24 (AP)—Three persons, members of the crew of a giant United Air Lines plane flying "deadhead" from Chicago to Kansas City, were killed today when the craft crashed and burst into flames on a farm near here.

The dead were R. W. Radloff, 33, pilot; Co-pilot Boyd Grover, 27, both of Chicago, and Hazel Goodman, 27, stewardess, Kansas City.

The crash occurred about 10:30 a.m., shortly after the pilot had wrenched to headquarters that "everything OK except visibility low."

Harold Hise, farm boy, said he saw the craft circle the field several times and then dive, nose down, to the ground. Air line officials arrived from Chicago and started an investigation along with Sheriff Welter and the coroner. The inquest was set for tomorrow.

Hoover Told To Keep Out, Fox Declares

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—In a dramatic finale to his story of a bankers' conspiracy to drive him out of the film and theater business four years ago, William Fox told senate investigators today that President Hoover indirectly sought the aid of the Chase National bank to prevent a receivership and was told "to mind his own business."

The statement drew a denial later from Albert H. Wiggin, then chairman of the Chase bank, who informed a representative of the bank here by telephone the incident could "exist only in Mr. Fox's imagination."

Revision Of Tariff Asked By Wallace

Secretary Urges "Real Scientific Thinking" On Foreign Trade

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Secretary Wallace of the agriculture department tonight carried his plea for restoration of foreign purchasing power by systematic efforts to lower tariffs and negotiate reciprocal trade agreements to the civic forum, a group of consumers.

After a campaign in the middle west against the farmers holiday movement Wallace came into historic Town Hall here to urge "a truly scientific revision" of tariffs.

Explains Farm Problem

"To get by without any reduction of acreage at all might require the importation of nearly a billion dollars more stuff than we received in 1929," said Wallace after a lengthy exposition of the farm problem in which he discussed government acquisition of sub-marginal farm land.

Such huge receipts would make necessary careful government planning in our industrial production," he said. "It is interesting to note that the program which makes agricultural planning less necessary makes industrial planning more so."

"Time Has Come"

Wallace declared that the time has come for the nation to do some "genius thinking on the tariff problem" in a new way—and that the thinking should not be done by the special interests which have stormed congress successfully in the past.

"The real thinking on the tariff should be done by the consumers, and not by the blind, selfish, narrow minded, greedy individuals who have framed our policy in the past," he added.

Warns Against Loans

He warned against the idea of loaning money abroad at the present time to enable foreign nations to purchase goods from the United States when this country has no intention of receiving anything in return. He said he would not object to foreign loans if this country's tariff was cut in half and the nation was willing to receive quantities of goods from abroad.

Secretary Wallace, discussing the farm strike in the west, asserted that it was his observation that outside of the farmers holiday group, "there are very few farmers who are at present willing to submit to the compulsory control of marketing by the government, even though their prices might be substantially increased."

Greene Urges Clear Meaning

Says Secret of Good English Curriculum Is Clarity

Declaring that the secret of good writing, good usage, and good speech is to make the meaning clear, Prof. H. A. Greene of the college of education presented an address, "Some objective bases for improving the English curriculum" as the second of a series of Baconian lectures last night in chemistry auditorium.

Balance
"If the outcomes of language instruction are to be properly balanced," Professor Greene said, "we must have more curricular and teacher emphasis on the oral language abilities, and this emphasis must be based upon an accurate objective picture of the total of oral language and not upon brief and incomplete samplings of the error aspects alone."

In his address, Professor Greene suggested three basic principals for getting objectivity into the language curriculum.

Research
To show that the "language curriculum is the place to improve the entire educational system," Professor Greene described the research work that is being done here in this field.

He showed the wide variety of opinion on proper usage brought out in a study of editorial guides of 25 publishing houses.

Because stenographers, court reporters, phoneticians, and longhand reporters were found imperfect in this type of work, records are being used in the research projects.

Obsolete Material
"Analysis of textbooks and courses of study in English show that they contain much that is no longer required by the demands of modern life or by the usages of cultivated and educated citizens," Professor Greene said.

In the absence of Prof. F. B. Knight of the college of education, who is chairman of the Baconian lecture committee, Prof. Herbert Martin, acting head of the philosophy department, served as chairman of last night's meeting.

Missouri Lecturer Discusses Research Work at Institute

Accomplishments of the research work going on at the Oscar Johnson institute concerning stimuli and nerve reactions were discussed yesterday afternoon by Dr. George H. Bishop of George Washington university, St. Louis, Mo.

Illustrating his lecture before the largest group thus far this year, Dr. Bishop explained what has been done in the way of experimental work concerning nerve reactions upon the application of certain stimuli.

Consideration of depressor reflexes, sensory nerves and optic nerves was also presented and illustrated by numerous graphs. As yet, little is known about the cortex, according to Dr. Bishop.

Following the lecture, questions were asked by members of the zoology faculty.

Slaying Solved

After being baffled by an almost complete absence of clues, authorities apparently had solved the murder of Mrs. Rheta Wynekoop (above), whose almost nude body was found on an operating table in the basement of her mother-in-law's home, when they obtained a confession yesterday from Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop, the mother-in-law.

Under Mussolini, Italy has become rid of its after-war troubles, but in spite of their surface happiness the people are not happy, Mr. Blumenfeld said. They have been deprived of human liberties, and unhappiness seethes beneath the surface.

Russia Similar
A similar condition exists in Russia, where food is taken from a starving population, in order to pay the international trade balance, the British-American editor said. He predicted that no lasting benefits would come to the United States as a result of recognition.

"Scratch a Russian, and you find a Tartar," he said. On the basis of England's recent experience, he warned that Russia would find some pretext for repudiation of new debts to America.

'Al Smith Again

ONE WONDERS if General Johnson himself knew how thoroughly right he was when he said several months ago that "the air will be full of dead cats."

He expected many of them, no doubt, and he has found them. As soon as the first public enthusiasm over the NRA had cooled enough to allow an opening, many members of the old line burst forth with the cry of "Back to the constitution!" and the prediction that President Roosevelt was leading the nation headlong into ruin.

All this was expected from the stand-patters of the old regime. Even the resignation of Dr. O. M. W. Sprague from the treasury department Wednesday was no great surprise, for Mr. Sprague also is a representative of the orthodox school of finance.

But it was hardly to be expected that Alfred E. Smith would denounce the president's program quite so bitterly as he did in an editorial to be published in the December issue of the New Outlook, as reported this morning by the Associated Press.

It has been known from the beginning, of course, that Mr. Smith was not in complete sympathy with the program of the administration. He, being a conservative Democrat, never has been in favor of the extension of government control over business activity. In line with this attitude it might have been supposed that he would object to the more or less radical adjustment of currency being undertaken by the government.

But, granting the sincerity of his convictions—and surely no one will doubt his sincerity—and granting his right to express himself as he pleases, one cannot but regret that he has felt constrained to attack the president's policy with such unnecessary vehemence.

It is doubly regrettable that he chose to attack the policy by resorting to inflammatory catch phrases which have little grounding. It is regrettable, for instance, that he chose to say:

"If I must choose between the leaders of the past, with all the errors they have made and with all the selfishness they have been guilty of, and the inexperienced young college professors who hold no responsible public office but are perfectly ready to turn 130,000,000 Americans into guinea pigs for experimentation, I am going to be for the people who have made the country what it is."

All that is to be regretted. But it will not stop this present program from going forward. Rather, it will serve only to heighten the uncertainty against which he and the New York Chamber of Commerce, at whose instigation he wrote the editorial, complain.

Welles and Recognition

THE WITHDRAWAL of Ambassador Welles from Cuba seems to imply that President Roosevelt has given cognizance, if not nominal recognition, to the fact that a government exists in the strife-torn southern republic.

Secretary of State Hull set forth the criteria by which the United States would recognize Cuba, when he said in September: "Our government is prepared to welcome any government representing the will of the people of the republic and capable of maintaining law and order throughout the island."

The questions concerning Cuban recognition have centered about Secretary Hull's statement. Few would deny that the Grau government represents the will of the Cuban people—far more than those of Machado or de Cespedes did. And just as obvious is the fact that the Grau government has been able to maintain order better than the de Cespedes government. In fact the Grau regime has already lasted twice as long as the de Cespedes, critics of the administration's policy point out.

Vague rumors have been floating around that the continued refusal of the administration to recognize the Cuban government is based on the fact that it does not meet the approval of certain financial interests.

President Grau has pleaded, unofficially at least, that the Cuban government has met with the criteria of American officials. The retention of Welles in Cuba, it has been pointed out, can serve no purpose, since he does not please the Cuban powers. President Roosevelt had supposedly made up his mind to retain Welles and thus deny the requests of President Grau.

President Grau recently sent his Secretary of Agriculture Carlos Hevia to the United States to plead Cuba's cause. Lack of recognition has seriously hampered the work of the Cuban regime, it has been pointed out.

Perhaps Roosevelt has considered the possibility of acceding to Grau's demand. At least, the American government has retreated a step from its former position.

The Stereoscope Returns

(From The New York Herald-Tribune)

The trend in certain respects toward things Edwardian and Victorian continues at a pace to delight nostalgic admirers of a more leisured time. Bicycle sales increase, roller skates squeal in Central Park Mall, chefs and restaurateurs look for a return of the good old days, the Horse Show is the greatest in its history, evening frocks are more elaborate, men return to tails and formality, life is at once more simple in substance and more ornate in appearance. It remains, characteristically, however, for Boston to appropriate to itself the gesture somehow symbolic of a Victorian renaissance. For there, of all things, the stereoscope flourishes again and scores of collectors clamor for views of Cottage City in the '70s, of bobsleds on the Common shouting "Lullah," and of the crenelated towers and locomotive weather vane of the old North Station.

As a home institution the stereoscope once had an honored place on the whatnot shelf along with the miniature ivory elephants, Indian arrowheads, Dresden figurines, postcards of the Forum in Rome from Aunt Fannie, canaries sous cloche and the other inevitable bibelots dear to the American family heart. It was supplanted by the magic lantern, even as the music box was supplanted by the gramophone; but there is scarcely any one, even of the current generation, who hasn't once clapped his face against the dusty, felt-trimmed edges of the lens box and seen a colored view of Mont Blanc stand out in amazing clarity and perspective before his very eyes. A favorite topic among stereoscope collectors, it appears, is railroad subjects, one collector now having more than 6,000 such views, while a Washington Street merchant sells four of the machines themselves a week. This would seem to indicate a real revived interest in an amusement which was once inevitably associated with the company parlor, Prince Albert coats, soup tureens on the table and the family carry-all for churchgoing on Sundays.

GOOD MORNING

Horatio Alger was just an amateur in the telling of success stories compared with the author who fashioned the life of Ralph D. Blumenfeld, former editor and now chairman of the board of the London Daily Express.

Mr. Blumenfeld spoke last night in Natural Science auditorium concerning the intricacies of the European political situation. This address was informing and impressive, presented as it was by a man who occupies a box seat beside the stage of Europe's affairs.

But the story of his life, as told by himself in brief outline yesterday noon at a luncheon in Iowa Union, was something for which the sixty or so guests would gladly have forgone the lecture.

Much has been written about the comparative virtues of the English and the Americans, about the roughness of the Yankee and the culture of the British. But Mr. Blumenfeld combines the fine characteristics of both, which is admitting that both possess admirable qualities.

There is something so seeming-competent and sincere and something so quiet and dignified about Mr. Blumenfeld that the result is just plain charm.

He could be so easily egotistical, and doubly so when he set out to tell how he rose to the heights of the journalistic world. But with a delicacy that was the essence of his charm, he continually punctured his own balloon before it could appear over-expanded. Mr. Blumenfeld is a great man.

The first meeting of the Students Forum in the cafeteria at Iowa Union demonstrated that there are students at the University of Iowa who have sufficient interest in current affairs to attend gatherings of this kind.

The meeting had its faults, of course. The cafeteria, for instance, was too noisy and the atmosphere, in spite of commendable planning, was too formal for easy discussion. And the question, "Economics of the NRA," was rather broad so that it was difficult to center the group's interest upon any particular controversy long enough to bring out any real argument.

But, considering the fact that this was the first local attempt with this sort of thing, it was something of a success and gave promise that if the few faults are corrected the idea will take hold.

The forum plan is becoming extremely popular throughout the middle west. Probably the most successful in Iowa is the Des Moines Public Forum which, bringing outstanding speakers on topics of vital interest, draws large numbers of citizens to its regular meetings.

The opportunity for such a scheme should be even greater here, considering the wealth of local talent from which to draw. Its success will depend upon intelligent organization and the extent—still unknown—to which students will respond to such an invitation to think.

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

HOLLYWOOD — Studio officials are in a state of jitters and thousands of dollars hang at stake until it is known whether Baby Leroy has contracted that familiar complaint of childhood, whooping cough.

There is no doubt that Hollywood's highest paid baby actor was exposed to the disease. Spanky McFarland, a tellow player in "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," broke right into whoops on the set.

But, by good fortune, Spanky was just finishing his part in the picture. Baby Leroy, on the other hand, works all the way through and has two more weeks before the camera. If he develops whooping cough, it will take the complaint six weeks to run its course. To suspend production for this time would cost Paramount thousands. And with Alice Brady borrowed from M-G-M too.

Oddly enough, officials at Columbia have the same kind of headache. Only, over there, the trouble is poison oak and the production of "The Paul Street Boys" actually has had to suspend. Bruce Lyon, Jimmie Butler (the clever kid in "Only Yesterday"), Jackie Searle and Frankie Darro all contracted poison oak on location. Both of young Bruce's eyes are completely closed. Only George Breakston, 11 year old star of the picture, escaped.

One of Broadway's better known, who came out to Hollywood but did not do so well, recently was taking a few cracks at the movies.

"You have to have something big to succeed on the screen," he said. "There are Clark Gable's big ears, Joe E. Brown's big mouth, Greta Garbo's big feet."

"Yes," interrupted a friend, "and then there's Mae West."

Even honeymoons have their difficult moments. When Frances Dee and Joel McCrea started to set up housekeeping in the two completed rooms of their new ranch house, they discovered that the heat wasn't on and it was too cold.

Since the workmen won't be through until Christmas, Joel went house-hunting and rented Greta Garbo's former home in Hollywood. Then yesterday the studio wanted him to work late. He went to call Frances and had forgotten his new number. As it is private, an adamant telephone company refused to give it to him. In desperation, Joel jumped into his car and started to drive home during the dinner hour. Two cops tagged him for speeding on the way out and one on the return journey.

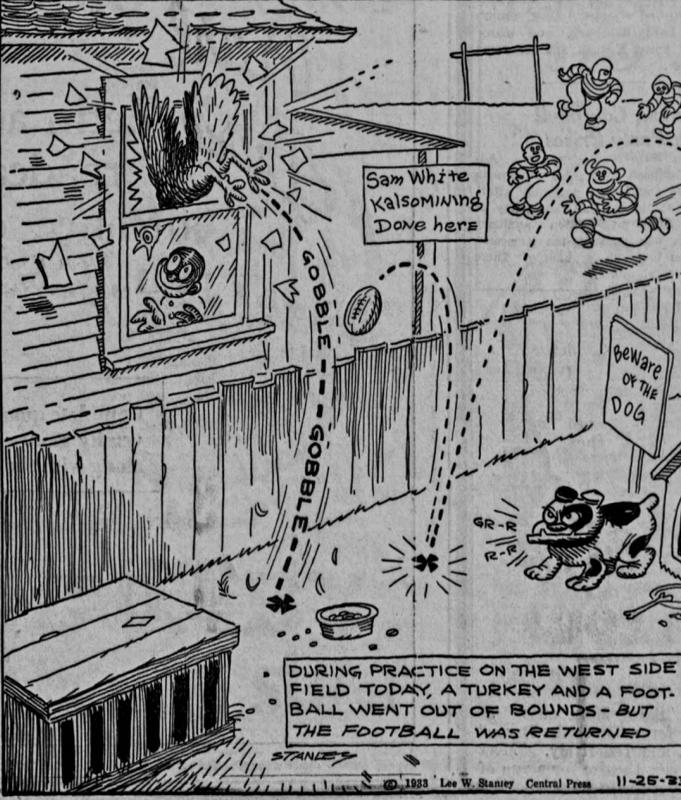

You can write finish to the reported romance between Mary Brian and Don Cook. Wonder if it has anything to do with the fact that Gwen Heller is leaving for New York soon. Which, of course, leaves Dick Powell on the loose again.

Poor Fifi Dorsay. Head over heels in love with Maurice Hill, she can't get away from the camera.

Yesterday she moaned: "I've got the man, I've got the ring, I've got the license—but I can't get the time."

The Paramount rule about no cars on the lot seems to be definitely off as far as Marlene Dietrich is concerned. Originally, the studio made an exception so that little Maria could come through the gate without fear of kidnapers. But since then the Dietrich car has just kept on coming.

Last year, under the auspices of the Association of American Medical colleges, the medical aptitude test was taken by 9,131 students of 546 colleges applying for admission to approximately 30 per cent of the approved medical schools of the United States. This test is required of all applicants for admission to the college of medicine of the University of Iowa, by virtue of its institutional membership in the Association of American Medical colleges (see the university catalogue for the current year).

The medical aptitude test for University of Iowa applicants for admission to any school belonging to the American Medical association, for the year 1934-35, will be given promptly at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 6, in chemistry auditorium.

Each such prospective applicant is notified to call at the office of the university treasurer within ample time preceding the day of the test in order to pay the prescribed fee of $1 which goes to the Association of American Medical colleges for the expenses of the test.

The treasurer's office will issue to each student who thus pays this fee a card certifying that the fee has been paid, to be presented at the time of the test.

AL SMITH

Breaks Openly With Monetary Policy

discourages private initiative, drives money into hiding and places the entire burden of sustaining the population on the central government.

"We are told that there is a new theory of government abroad. It is the theory that the executives are quartermasters on a football team who do not know a minute in advance what signal they will call next. They determine the plays on the basis of 'hunches.'

Opportunism
"Of course, this is just another name for opportunism. There is nothing new in it. It never pulled a great modern industrial nation out of a depression.

Return of Gold Standard
"In the absence of anything definitely known to be better, I am for a return to the gold standard."

The editorial, which will appear in the magazine on Dec. 1, was titled: "Sound money. An open letter to the members of the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York."

It was written in response to a request for his views from the officers of the chamber, which recently went on record as favoring immediate return to the gold standard.

Gone 'Wall Street'?
"I know that in writing this letter I am inviting the charge that I have 'gone Wall street,'" Smith concluded. "Well, this is not the first time that I have taken the unpopular side of a great national question. Put me down, therefore, as a sound money man and as being with you in your campaign."

Release of the extracts from the editorial was authorized by Frank A. Tichenor, publisher, who said in a statement:

Critical Situation
"Since going to press, the situation which Governor Smith discusses has become so critical that we do not believe that the natural limitations of periodical publication should be permitted to stand in the way of what we consider the public's right to quick access to vital thinking on this important subject."

SEEN from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

Richard Malbaum, the University of Iowa's native son, has done something with a play entitled "Birthright." This play, dealing with the Nazi situation in Germany, moved into the Broad Street theater, Newark, N. J., for a tryout previous to its Broadway opening, early last week. In its week in Newark, it succeeded in setting a new all-time house record for the Broad Street theater, scene of a thousand pre-Broadway successes.

"Birthright," unfortunately, didn't fare so well at the hands of the Broadway critics as it did at the hands of the Newark audiences. It unwound its suffering length Tuesday evening at the Forty-Ninth Street theater, where last summer I saw that gentle musical romance, "Music in the Air," and the gentlemen of the press, praising its sincerity, spoke of its artificiality in no uncertain terms.

Says Percy Hammond of the New York Herald-Tribune: "It is stilted editorial, presenting with much graceful rhetoric and many deliberate poses the troubles that befall a noble household persecuted by the Nazi madmen. Sincere at heart, it is artificial in manner, and so perhaps it falls both as propaganda and entertainment. . . . Not bad, not good, it is just another of those ambitious and second-rate soap-box shows."

That tabloid "10 best" judge of the Daily News, Burns Mantle, declares: "It has its dramatic moments. . . . It has its pity-wringing scenes in which the sufferings of the gentle Eisners are pictured and emphasized. But it lacks the grip of tragedy and the emotional sweep that the drama of direct pleading should, and probably would, command."

Malbaum wrote this play as I am told he does most of his writing—in the white heat of resentment. It happened in London, where he visited last summer. While walking through a park one day, he met a young German Jewish refugee, his head still swathed with bandages as a result of Nazi brutality. From him he learned the story of a respectable and respected Jewish family in Germany, living comfortably and happily, educated, cultured, devoted to their "fatherland." Then came the fatal March 5. The family was scattered and persecuted, and the boy fled to England. While Malbaum was writing the play he interviewed many other German refugees, and his play is the result of all the tales of suffering, crumbled hopes and ambitions, and wasted lives of modern Germany.

Despite the unfavorable notices, a fairly long run should be in store for it, for it has great appeal to New York's millions of Jews. I hope, at any rate, that it will run long enough to give an opportunity to see it to those millions for whom it holds something vital.

Chicago University of Iowa alumni will disport at the Bismarck hotel in Chicago, Dec. 8, to the music of Ted Weems. George L. Grimm, a commerce graduate of 1925, is in charge of arrangements for the merrymaking of the Windy City group.

Here are two ways to keep from growing old: Shave with a straight razor in the field house locker room during a rush period.

The four semi-cooperative dormitories for men are the field house dormitory, which houses 53 men and is cooperative in the maintenance of living quarters but does not provide board; Tudor annex and Currier annex, occupied by men who work for their board at Currier hall; and the military squad room, which provides living quarters for 15 students who serve the military department as clerks, orderlies, and assistants in various capacities.

Residents of the cooperative houses pay a basic weekly rate which enables the house managers to buy food supplies in large quantities.

Students in the cooperative houses seem enthusiastic about the plan. Academic rank above average is shown in most cases of these students.

Third of Readings On Sunday Series Given Tomorrow

Collaboration of authors whose works have been used for the first two of a series of Sunday afternoon readings under the auspices of the speech and dramatic art department is shown in the case of Durbos Heyward and Hervey Allen.

Mr. Heyward, author of "Mamba's Daughters," of which a reading will be given by Maxine Moore, A3 of Newton, in the main lounge of Iowa Union at 4 p.m. tomorrow, wrote with Mr. Allen a book of southern ballads called "Carolina Chansons."

Mr. Allen is the author of the novel, "Anthony Adverse," a best-seller, which was used by Eugene Bahn of the speech and dramatic art department in his reading last series.

Mr. Heyward's contribution to this book of poems is his knowledge of the South Carolina Negro, of whom he writes in "Mamba's Daughters."

Improvements For Pharmacy Shown In Window Display

That modern pharmacy has been patterned after the work of old masters is illustrated in a window display in the main hall of the pharmacy-botany building this week.

The window, which was decorated to show the great advancement made in pharmacy, includes equipment used in early colonial times and that which is used now.

One half of the window is filled with old scales, hand made pills, old fashioned English drug receptacles, a bottle of the first elixir made in this country, old prescription books, show globes, and other old fashioned equipment.

Michigan Tries for Fourth Conference Title Against Wildcats

Four Colorful Games Finish Big 10 Season

Minnesota vs. Wisconsin Also of Great Importance

By CHARLES DUNKLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer) CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (AP)—With the 1933 championship of the Western conference depending upon the outcome of the Michigan-Northwestern game at Evanston, the "Big Ten" season will wind up tomorrow in four colorful games.

While the Wolverines are trying to make certain of the championship, Illinois will battle Ohio State in one of their old time feuds at Columbus, with Wisconsin meeting Minnesota at Minneapolis. Purdue and Indiana will engage in Hoosier civil war at Bloomington. Chicago will engage in an intercollegiate contest with Dartmouth at Stag field, while Iowa, which closed its conference season of upsets with the biggest of them all against Purdue, will try its luck against Nebraska at Lincoln.

Wolves Must Win Michigan, which has lost none of its last 17 games and only one of its last 35, must conquer the bruised and battered Wildcats tomorrow to put a question on any championship claims from other members of the Big Ten. If the Wolverines fail, the title will land in the laps of the Gophers of Minnesota, who figure to conquer Wisconsin.

The Northwestern-Michigan game shapes up as the battle of the lines. Michigan's great forward wall has been scored on only three times in seven games, and the Wolverines probably will be able to use their heavy firing forward passing attack, which was useless against Minnesota because of playing conditions. Especially brilliant are the ends of both teams, with Michigan's Petoskey and Ward being assured a tough afternoon by Northwestern's Manske and Jons.

Kawal Big Loss Northwestern's line will be weakened by the absence of Al Kawal, star guard who sustained a dislocated shoulder in the bruising battle against Notre Dame a week ago. Northwestern's backfield also will be hampered by injuries. It is doubtful if Ollie Olson, the Purple star punter and quarterback, will be able to play more than a few moments as a result of the banging he received in trying to stop Notre Dame.

Michigan on the basis of past performances figures to wallop Northwestern but only after a tough afternoon. The Wolverines' fagged veterans are determined to win their fourth successive Western conference title, regardless of the opposition before them.

Purdue at Indiana Purdue brings its tragic campaign to a close at Bloomington in meeting their Hoosier foe, Indiana. All edge has been taken off the traditional battle by the defeat of both teams, principally the upset that Iowa scored over the Boiler-makers a week ago. But after all, a football battle between these two old time rivals, always is a desperately fought affair.

The last time the big Green team from Dartmouth played the Maroons in 1925, "Swede" Oberlander and his marvelous forward passing attack swamped one of Amos Alonzo Stagg's good teams. The outcome of tomorrow's game promises to be close, with the Maroons having their last chance to win a game of major importance.

PRINCETON'S TIGERS HEADED FOR ROSE BOWL

COACH FRITZ CRISLER, JOHN P. KADVAC, ARTHUR S. LANE (CAPT.), R. KENNETH FAIRMAN, PAUL R. PAUK, EDWARD M. KALBAUGH

The east's probable representative in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's day is the tearing Tiger team of Princeton. For "Fritz" Crisler's great unbeaten and unscored on eleven has set a record that is unlikely to be equalled this season. In his second year at the New Jersey university Crisler has developed a team that will rank at the top in Princeton's gridiron annals. His veterans, Capt. Lane at tackle, Fairman at end, Kadlic, quarterback, and Kalbaugh, center, have come through with honors, while Pauk and LeVan are hailed as new "finds" in the backfield. Crisler apparently not only built a great Tiger eleven for this season but has laid a sound foundation for next year.

"Maybe-If" At City Hi Only Three Lettermen Return From Last Year's Team.

Prospects for another winning cage team at Iowa City high took on a "maybe and if" aspect as Coach Wells sent his men through the last session of their first week's practice yesterday.

From present indications, City high will have a good team—good enough to hold its own in a majority of the loops in the state, but whether or not it can maintain the pace required in the Mississippi Valley conference is problematical.

Plenty of Material Coach Wells has material, a whole gym full of it, but except for a few rare exceptions this material possesses a decided greenish tinge. The Red and White's success in its conference race will depend upon how fast this material develops.

Fred Ballard, Dale Marshall, and Paul Mutchler are the only lettermen on the squad. Of these men, only Ballard can compete in height with the average basketball player in the valley league.

Count on Ballard With this height, Ballard looks to be the backbone of this year's five. He is the "ball hawk" type of player, ranging the court with a speed surprising for his bulk. His greatest asset is the ability to blow in shots for counters.

Mutchler and Marshall are both seriously handicapped by lack of size, but are veterans on the court. In addition to these, Coach Wells has players with some varsity experience who have not yet made their letters. Dale Williams, John Steinmetz, Richard Ash, Jack Snider, Emil Sulek, and Robert Herring are in the front rank of this group. Williams, Ash, and Herring are making especially strong bids for positions on the first five.

Good Newcomers In Alvin Miller, Jack Stork, Alvin Snyder, and Roscoe Ayers, Coach Wells has some newcomers to his varsity squad who are expected to make the fight for first team positions a warm one. Miller, end on the football team, is a rangy freshman who was a stand-out on the junior high team last year.

Ayers is small, but fast and smooth. He is a good shot and apparently thinks fast under fire. He was a leading scorer on the City high sophomore team that won seven out of 11 contests against loop foes last year.

Allen Snyder, six foot four man mountain, gives the Little Hawk mentor what may develop into a first class center. Snyder is light on his feet, despite the avoirdupois, and is gaining more speed and coordination with each practice.

Moves Stable To England BELFAST, (AP)—William Barnett, noted Belfast racehorse owner and bloodstock breeder, who has large South American grain interests, has acquired a stud farm in England, which will be the future headquarters for a number of famous horses. Among the horses are "Trigo," a British derby winner, and "Harinero," Irish derby winner.

Laws May Earn Position on Eleven for Coast Game

The startling attacking and defensive feats which Joe Laws, University of Iowa quarterback, has demonstrated all season may earn him a place on the East football team to meet an all-star West eleven in San Francisco during the Christmas holidays.

Information that the Hawkeye star is being strongly considered for a place on the East team was received here Friday. Laws has built up a great reputation as a returner of punts, a consistent yard-maker from scrimmage, and a defensive star who has saved several games by his remarkable tackles.

It was in 1930 that the last Iowa man to make the East team for the Shrine hospital benefit game played on the coast. The Hawkeye honored that year was Harold Ely, giant tackle.

Ramblers to Play 17 Game Cage Schedule

Coach Francis Sueppel put the finishing touches of preparation on his veteran St. Mary's cagers, who are slated to open their basketball campaign Monday evening, by sending the squad through a general rehearsal of tip-off and floor plays yesterday at the Rambler gym.

At the same time, Father Boeckmann, director of athletics at the Rambler institution, issued the official schedule for the current season. The team will engage in 17 contests, nine of which will be staged at the City high floor, home court of the St. Mary's dribblers. The complete schedule follows:

High School Players and Coaches Asked

The proper ways to work through a zone defense for shots at the basket and the best technique on pass breaks will be shown, as will important points in man-for-man defense, pivot play, ball-handling, and shooting.

Pro to Exhibit One of the features will be an exhibition of deft ball-handling by Charles Taylor, former star with the New York Celtics, famous professional basketball team.

All of the visitors will be guests of the athletic department at the game in the evening. Coach Williams has dispatched announcements to all Iowa high schools, and coaches and athletes from schools of adjacent states also are welcome.

Iowans Face Many States

Cagers to Meet Teams From Six Different States

A dozen different basketball teams from six states will attempt to defeat the University of Iowa's quintet during the 1933-34 season, a survey of the 18 game schedule indicated Friday.

Beginning with James Millikin university of Decatur, Ill., four teams from Illinois appear upon the schedule—more than any other state. The others are Illinois and Northwestern, each to be met twice, and Bradley Tech.

Minnesota's upholders are the state university and Carleton college of Northfield, while Indiana and Purdue, conference rivals to be played twice, will represent the Hoosier state.

Representative of Iowa are Drake and Iowa State, while the state universities of Wisconsin and South Dakota are the only opponents from those states.

Nine Cyclones in Last Game for Iowa State

AMES, Nov. 24—The Iowa State-Drake football game at Des Moines, today, will be more than just a matter of playing to win a football game for nine Cyclone players. These nine will be fighting to close their careers as Cyclones with a victory over a keen foe.

The seniors wearing the Cyclone colors for the last time Saturday are John Graveno of Cleveland, Ohio, Amos Dana of Burlington, Hiram Roe of Ames, Robert Beatty of Fremont, Neb., Mervin Zeller of Muscatine, Wis., William Dixon of Colfax, and Jack Beyer and Edward Schafroth of Des Moines.

Everyone of these veterans except Graveno is a lineman.

Penn Loses to Simpson by 13-0 Score

Carlson Accounts for Both Methodist Touchdowns

INDIANOLA, Nov. 24 (AP)—Simpson college ended its Iowa conference gridiron schedule with a record of six victories and one tie as the result of its 13 to 0 victory over Penn today.

The conference title still hangs in the balance with Iowa Wesleyan, the other team without a defeat in conference competition, winding up its season on Thanksgiving day against Parsons.

Alternating with Rabbit Thompson, Captain Carlson of Simpson scored the first Methodist touchdown in the opening period after a steady march of 50 yards. In the final quarter the Quakers attempted a pass inside their own 15 yard mark and Carlson intercepted it for an easy score.

Penn's only threat came early in the third quarter and then the Quakers failed to penetrate the Simpson 20. Grant did most of the ball totting, with Bell and Rogers standing out in the Penn defense.

EVERETT MEAD, CORNHUSKER HALFBACK

Hamburg, Ia., gave Everett Mead, husky 177 pound half-back to the Nebraska Cornhuskers this season. The Iowa boy is noted for his hard line smashing and fine defensive ability. He is certain to see action when the Huskers clash with the Iowa Hawkeyes Saturday at Lincoln in what promises to be a classic game. The contest finishes Mead's gridiron career at Nebraska.

Cyclones Will Boast of Tall Basketeers

First Team to Average More Than Six Feet

AMES, Nov. 24—A first team quintet averaging more than an inch over 6 feet in height will be pitted against a second team today in the first full game scrimmage of the 1933 basketball season for the Cyclones.

Heading the first five from the standpoint of experience, size, and versatility is Waldo Wegner of Everly, 6 foot 4 inch, 200-pound center. As a sophomore last year this giant surprised local and conference fans by his ability to drop the ball through the net, and he closed the season at the head of the Cyclone scoring list. This year he is showing more promise than ever.

At the forward positions will be two rangy men who are bound to give sports reporters no end of trouble this winter—Jack Cowan and John Cowan. Jack is from Packwood, while John is from Crystal Lake, Ill.

Jack measures 6 feet 1 inch while John is 2 inches taller. Jack is a valuable man under the basket in tipping in scores. John is a clever ball handler and a fair shot.

Handling the guard positions in this afternoon's scrimmage will be Torvald Holmes of Ames, outstanding sophomore prospect, and Eiler Ronald Sieben of Geneseo, Ill., or Ed Doty of Dallas City, Ill. Holmes is fast and clever with the ball, and measures 5 feet 11 inches in height. Both Sieben and Doty are capable reserves from last year's varsity squad.

Frank Hood of Creston, now playing end on the football team, and Chester Anderson of Cedar Rapids, who is not in school this quarter, will bring the total number of lettermen available to three. Both these men will be hard to keep off the first quintet this winter.

Opposing the first string five in today's scrimmage will be Bob Hawley of Ames, center, John Hawley of Algona and Clarg Craighead of Kansas City, Mo., guards, and Homer Batman and Merie Garber of Ames, forwards.

Other promising cagers who will see action in the first full time scrimmage are Howard Frazer of Ottumwa, Joe Norman of Ames, Max Peterson of Wataga, Ill., Richard Switzer of Cedar Rapids, Robert Temple of Miamiburg, Ohio, Glenn Fitch of Des Moines and Richard Fay of Chicago, Ill.

Australian Champ Calls Americans Greatest Golfers

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 24 (AP)—W. L. Hope, the new Australian national amateur golf champion, has given a bit of advice to those organizing the big $25,000 tournament to mark the Melbourne centenary celebrations next year.

"Have British golfers if you like," he says, "but by all means have Americans."

Hope, who, though he is loyal to the empire, is not narrow-minded about golf, calls the Americans "the greatest golfers in the world."

"Attract as many of America's crack stars as possible," he said.

Tony Canzoneri Starts Comeback With Knockout Victory Over Kid Chocolate

Cuban K.O.'d For First Time During Career

Tony Batters Foe in Short Fight in Madison Square

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—The crisp, shocking right hand that won little Tony Canzoneri the lightweight championship, then fell of him in his title duels with Barney Ross, started him back tonight to fight the ring glory he once knew.

It lashed into the head of shifty Kid Chocolate, the masterful bit of Negro fighting machinery from Cuba, once, then again and the Bon "Keeed" crumpled, knocked out in two rounds of a scheduled ten round battle before a crowd of 12,000, battered senseless for the first time in his spectacular career.

Great Job Sensational as the night he reached out three years ago and felled Al Singer in the first half minute of the fight in which he won the light weight title, Canzoneri, the former backback from New Orleans, finished Chocolate tonight with the skill and despatch of a master craftsman.

He wants another chance to go to war with Ross, the Chicago youngster who took his title, then, repulsed him in a return bout, and it was Chocolate's misfortune to be standing directly in the way.

Quick Action From the first bell the little Italian, his black hair shining, his white teeth glistened wide but cold as a diamond's flash, shot into action with his every move centered on a quick kill. He rocked Chocolate with a right to the chin in the first round, fought off his two fisted rally, and had him driving before a leather fisted storm at the bell.

Keed Fights Back It caught Chocolate full on the jaw and his long legs tangled all up as he floundered back into a neutral corner, badly hurt. But the instant that made the "Keed" a featherweight champion, carried him through 15 fierce rounds of title war with Canzoneri two years ago to less the decision but no honor, kept him in there. He fought back blindly again, dazed, but he was wise open.

First K.O. The knockout was the first of Chocolate's career, and presaged the beginning of the end for the sensational Negro who came up from Cuba half a dozen years ago to dazzle the faithful.

Canzoneri weighed 133 pounds tonight, and never looked better. He'll probably get his third chance against Ross before the indoor season ends. Chocolate weighed 130 pounds.

Purdue Set For Action In Net Game

Will Play All Home Games in High School Gym

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 24—With football down to the banquet and "all-team" stage, Purdue athletic interest, although still focused on the thirteenth annual Kwanza Club Purdue Football banquet that will be held here Tuesday evening with Harry G. Kipke, head football coach at Michigan, as the principal speaker, is beginning to swing toward the hardwood where Coach Ward Lambert is busily engaged in whipping together the 1933-34 basketball combination.

Faced with an unusually strenuous 20-game schedule that opens in the Jefferson high school gymnasium here on Tuesday night, Dec. 12, against the Indiana State Teachers quintet, and then brings Pittsburg's powerful five here on Friday night, Dec. 15, Lambert will be forced to call on all of his hardwood geniuses if the Boilermakers are to uphold their hardwood reputation.

All of Purdue's 13 home games, including six Big Ten encounters, will be played in the Jefferson high school gymnasium, which provides 2,000 more seats than Memorial gymnasium, and makes it possible for the first time in history to offer season reserved seats to the general public. The increased capacity has also resulted in a drastic cut in prices, and season reserved seats are priced at only $7.70, including tax, only a little more than 50 cents a game. The advance mail order sale of tickets has already been started, and Ticket Manager C. S. Dean reports a brisk demand.

With the grid season concluded against Indiana tomorrow, varsity and freshman football players, members of the coaching staff, townspeople and students are looking forward with anticipation to the football banquet Tuesday evening, which will have Coach Kipke as the principal speaker. In addition to Kipke's address, the election of the 1934 captain and selection of the most valuable player on the 1933 eleven will provide features of the evening, along with the announcement of varsity and freshman varsity letter awards.

Seniors Vow Not to Lose

Close Season Against Indiana; Protect Oaken Bucket

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 24 (AP)—Twenty senior members of Purdue's football squad, who have played in only two losing games during their collegiate careers and as freshmen sat on the sidelines when Indiana produced its stunning 7-6 upset in 1930, have pledged themselves to play to the last gasp Saturday against Indiana in an effort to successfully defend possession of the Old Oaken Bucket and at the same time complete one of the best three-year records in modern football with a victory.

The Boilermakers will journey to Bloomington with a full realization that the Indiana eleven that has been raked over the coals all week by the student body and alumni for an alleged lack of "fight" will be aroused to the point where it will display by far its best game of the season. The Crimson, boasting the heaviest forward wall in the Big Ten, is expected to give the Purdue attack, weakened by the injury to Duane Purvis, one of the stoutest battles it has encountered all season.

Irish Confident of Taking Trojans into Camp Today

Expect Over 40,000 Spectators at South Bend

By PAUL MICKELSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 24 (AP)—The spirit of Notre Dame, crushed only two weeks ago after four successive shutouts, rebounded to probably the loftiest heights since Knute Rockne mustered his forces on the campus of the golden dome as the defeat blistered but determined Ramblers awaited the invasion of Southern California's Trojans of football tonight.

A fortnight ago, everyone at Notre Dame, from weary Coach Hank Anderson to the most timid yearling, dreaded the day when the Trojans would come to render probably the briefest, yet fiercest, rivalry in intercollegiate football. But tonight, spurred on by their victory over Northwestern, the Ramblers were not only keyed for a great battle—their last home stand of the season that still offers glory—but downright confident to the man of skinning the Trojan horse.

Hotels were jammed tonight and, although the weather man warned that rain may fall during the game, 40,000 to 45,000 spectators were expected to watch the two rivals clash for the eighth time tomorrow, in the series that finds the teams separated only by two points, with Notre Dame the victor four times, and the Trojans victorious in three games. The total point standing for the series was 85 for Notre Dame and 86 for Southern California.

Both teams were reported in superb condition for the fray and neither Coach Howard Jones of the Trojans, nor Anderson, expected anything but the toughest kind of going. The Trojans, 34 strong, arrived in Chicago this morning, held a spirited workout at Stagg field and camped at a south side hotel for the night.

what he looked like; although everybody kind of liked Joie because he minded his own business and wasn't like his parents, either one of them. And Butcher Brown said it might be a good movie but it would be better if Albert, his cat, was in it—and that if Albert were in the movies it would be the last of "Mickey Mouse"; and Albert seemed to know what Butcher Brown was talking about because he stood right up and boxed, and Butcher Brown said that was how Albert would knock out "Mickey Mouse."

The time went quickly and everybody in town was going to see the picture. George Kauffman wanted to know if Tommy would be home for it; but Mom hadn't heard from Tommy. She sure wished he would be home because it would be her heart's delight to see some of the knockers then. Then George Kauffman put an ad in the newspaper and Mom would never forget how she felt when she first saw it:

Valeska Mourat in THE DROP KICK With Big Jeff Randolph All-American Football Star, Jack Devere and a notable cast. Cousin Emmy came running over with the paper, as if Mom couldn't read herself; and Cousin Emmy, who never missed a movie at the Bijou, even since her husband's time was cut down, said that the night before there had been an ad on the screen, showing Tommy and Valeska Mourat, and that he looked just like an actor; and Pop said, why shouldn't he?

A lot of the neighbors had hinted to Mom that they would go with her but she put them off, saying she didn't know just when she was going, that it depended on when Pop wanted to go and that she didn't know whether he would go the first night or second, or the first or second show, depending on what kind of a day he had at the factory and how his feet felt. Mom wasn't quite lying, either, because Pop was pretending he wasn't interested much and that he had to get his sleep and couldn't be staying up late just because his boy had become a movie actor.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

It was a warmish kind of December and Pop and Uncle Louie were sitting at the table arguing about it. Pop said the seasons were changing around and that before long we'd be having winter when there used to be summer and summer when there used to be winter, and that Christmas would be coming on the Fourth of July. Uncle Louie said that was all a lot of foolishness and that even the weather man was in favor of the Republicans because so many people were out of work and it wouldn't be noticed so much if the weather wasn't cold; if Al Smith had got in, it would be below zero.

Then Pop proved his point by reading in the paper about how ship captains said the gulf stream was getting closer all the time and Uncle Louie wanted to know what the gulf stream had to do with it; then Pop pretended Uncle Louie was very dumb because he didn't know that; and the way Pop talked Mom knew he didn't know, either, but you'd never find him admitting anything like that to Uncle Louie. Mom let them go because it was a harmless kind of argument and didn't hurt their digestion and they seemed to like to argue anyhow.

Then the doorbell rang and Mom went to see who it was because the neighbors never bothered to ring the bell or knock, either, but just walked in. Sure enough, it was George Kauffman who owned the Bijou, and he said he just wanted to let Mom know that Tommy's movie, "The Drop Kick," was going to play in his theatre, December 19th and 20th, only George always called it the ay-tre. Mom was so proud and happy and excited she didn't know what to say but she asked him in and he said he didn't have time to stop because his wife was waiting in the car; then Mom took so long to thank him that his wife started to blow the horn of the car and George Kauffman left. Nobody liked his wife anyhow; she had come from Chicago and was high-hat and they said George was heckped.

Mom came right in to tell them; and it was funny the way they took it. Pop pretended he wasn't excited but he didn't say anything and Mom could see his eyes smiling to himself; then Uncle Louie sniffed and said, how about some java, and said he wasn't going to spend any of his money on such truck and Pop came right back at him and asked him when he ever spent any money on anything. It was kind of a hard thing to say to him and of course Uncle Louie resented it but he didn't have to be such an old gander, Mom thought. The next day it was in the paper and the news spread around so fast that Mom couldn't show her face anywhere without somebody asking her, wasn't she proud and they bet she would be right down in the first row. And from the way Cousin Emmy carried on a person would have thought Tommy was her boy. The neighbor ladies were all excited and talked about it every day at the store, all except Mrs. Farrell who was probably mad because it wasn't her Joie and Mrs. Flannigan said the only picture Joie could be in was a "Mickey Mouse" because that was
