I Want Santa To Bring--

Hospital Kiddies Tell Christmas Wishes; Who'll Fill Them?

By JESSE GORKIN
Tom Waldmoe, 8, of Mason City, one of the many kiddies at children's hospital, wishes to inform Santa Claus that he desires a pair of roller skates for Christmas.

Evidently Tom is possessed with a rambunctious spirit for he also longed to receive an automobile, electric radio, and apparently he believes there's a vague there's a way to go he is in quest of a bicycle. "If I can't have any of these I'll settle for a scooter," he said.

Prays Every Night
A few bars of sweet chocolate complete his 1933 order from St. Joseph. "I've been a nice boy all year long—well, especially during the last few months, and lately I've been praying every night. To prove his goodness for the remainder man he justly displays a memento that he prizes highly, a large picture of Santa Claus.

Tom represents the spirit of the youngsters who will be confined to the institution during the Christmas holiday. Rather than feel embarrassed because circumstances make it impossible for them to receive gifts from Santa at their homes, these children pray that their Christmas will not be a duplicate of the years when their appeals for a complete Yuletide season went unanswered.

Thinks of Daddy
A bright new year is looked forward to with considerable zeal by the DeBeer, 11, of Davenport, and it will take to make him happy a "brand new searchlight" to replace his "busted" one.

Explaining the same unselfish attitude as that of his fellow mates, he impressively noted that his daddy deserves to be treated well also. He hopes he'll receive a pocket knife.

Rumane Stern, 4, of Sioux City, should make a good housewife for somebody someday. If St. Nick stops by her window for a rocking chair, table, bed room set, and a set of dishes she practically insists that she will not only be well supplied but likewise highly capable of undertaking her duties in this role immediately.

A Sled and Health
Lying flat on his back and in a suit, Arden Wheeler, 8, of Center Point, eyes the future with great optimism, and he tenders his request for a sled and good health "so that I'll be able to use it."

U. S. Treasury Officials Probe Gold Price News Loophole

Promoter Radloff 'Plenty Griped' As Town Talks About His Party

"I'm plenty griped," says Fred Radloff, chairman of the I-club party committee and varsity football tackle. Yesterday afternoon "Promoter" Radloff was all set to have a party at Varsity that would have the town talking.

The town is talking. Ken Herbst, with his baton arm in the best shape it has been this season, was ready to lead his band into lilting waltzes and melodious fox trots.

By courtesy of the sororities all of their fairest pledges were lined up row after row—the floor was in the best of shape for gliding feet. And so the lights were dimmed and the music started.

"What's wrong?" wailed Herbst when no couples appeared on the floor. "Plenty," shouted back the disgruntled Radloff, "there aren't any fellows here. They've all gone down to the FREE dance at Iowa Union."

And as the concert continued, Radloff hurried down the stairs onto the street to gather men.

"You're it," said Radloff as he tapped team mates, school mates, first mates, and passersby on the shoulder, "beat it up to Varsity and dance and dance—and dance."

Having worked for many an hour to sponsor the dance, the proceeds from which are to be used to furnish a memorial lounge at the field house for visiting athletes and alumni, Radloff went down to Iowa Union with a fighting glint in his eyes.

"Huh," said the sponsors of the free dance at the Union, "you're trying to promote, a this and a that, trying to make a few shekels for your own pocket." And back up to Varsity went "a this and a that" Radloff under full steam.

After some maneuvering the I-club finally made $3 on the dance. Radloff is worrying now over a reversal of the situation for next week when there might be all men and no girls.

Plan Holiday Vesper Service
Christmas Carols, Songs, Special Orchestra Feature Event

Music is the Yuletide spirit will be the theme of the annual Christmas vesper service to be given under the auspices of the school of religion at Iowa Union Wednesday evening. The service will be open to the public.

The music department will furnish the program. The university chorus, directed by W. A. Multer, will present Christmas carols, anthems, and part songs. Most of these will be given without accompaniment.

While choral music will make up the greater part of the program, a special vesper orchestra will also take part in the service. Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp, head of the music department, will serve as conductor of the group in the absence of Prof. Frank Estes Kendrick, who is ill.

Additional Men Will Receive Work on Two CWA Projects Here

Sixty men, in addition to the CWA quota of 437 for Johnson county, will go to work tomorrow and Tuesday on two projects, according to word received by Dr. W. L. Bywater, chairman of the civil works here, from Prof. George Keller, state engineer of the CWA.

Forty men will be added to the state park project, and 20 men will be used on the new project to make a topographical map of the Iowa river to include territory south from the city limits to Coralville.

With the addition of these men the total number to be working on CWA projects by Tuesday is 497.

Flames End Chicagoans' House Party

WHITCHURCH, Hampshire, England, Dec. 9 (AP)—A sudden fire roared through the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, prominent Chicagoans, early today, east tragedy over a week end house party by causing the death of a peer of France and a British army captain, and left the mansion virtually in ruins.

Duke Among Victims
The victims were the Duke De La Tremolle, a French cavalry officer and premier duke of France, and Capt. J. H. B. Rodney of London, brother of a British peer.

Strickland Lovell, daughter of Representative Oldham of Seattle, Wash., was gravely injured in a 20 foot jump to escape the blaze.

Operation
At the Royal Hampshire hospital, Winchester, where she and her husband were taken, and where the captain died, an operation was performed upon her for serious spinal injuries. Hospital authorities said later her condition was critical.

The guests had spent a quiet, happy evening about the rural English fireside of "The Herony," the McCormick mansion, and were looking forward to this morning when a hunting party was planned.

Awakened by Smoke
Mrs. McCormick was the first to be awakened by the odor of smoke and the crackle of flames. She aroused her husband and with utmost courage they then ran through the halls of the blazing house, shouting warnings to the guests and servants.

No ladders were available, and those inside were forced to jump from their bedroom windows or scramble down the drainpipes. The servants then ran through the icy night dressed only in night attire and sought all available help from the surrounding buildings.

Rouses Chauffeur
Mrs. McCormick, who had no time to slip a wrap over her nightclothes, ran across the lawn and aroused the chauffeur in an adjoining building. He gathered all the other helpers he could find, but the blaze blocked their attempts to reach the Duke De La Tremolle's bedroom.

Redraft Food Bill
WASHINGTON (AP)—Open hearings on the measure concluded for the time being, a senate subcommittee is redrafting the Copeland food and drug bill with indications it will be modified substantially.

Try Vainly To Find Leaks In System Used

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Puzzled treasury officials searched in vain tonight for any tiny crevice in an inch murmured her gratitude today when a surgeon promised he will try to check the affliction which is fast locking her jaws.

The operation was ordered after a stormy scene in juvenile court where the mother of the girl refused to allow surgeons to proceed.

London Knows Current Price Before U. S., Complaint Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The gold price today was held unchanged at $34.01 for the eighth consecutive business day, the longest period yet that it has remained stationary. Officials, meanwhile, announced an increase in the money in circulation and read with interest a United States Chamber of Commerce interpretation of recent developments as diminishing the probability of mandatory inflation legislation at the next session of congress.

Established Each Day
The gold price is established each day by Morgenthau and Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction corporation, in a consultation by telephone. The treasury chief is supplied beforehand with up-to-the-minute figures on foreign exchange, the price of gold and other statistical factors involved.

After the two have agreed upon the day's gold figure, an interval of five to ten minutes elapses while a mimeographed announcement is run off. At the same time this is delivered to the press, a telegram is dispatched to the New York federal reserve bank over the private wire that links it with the treasury. Only a few most trusted workers are aware of the quotation during the time between its determination and its announcement.

Smith Fund Grants University $250 For Study in Astronomy

Receipt of a grant of $250 from the J. Lawrence Smith fund of the National Academy of Science for promotion of meteoric study at the University of Iowa was announced yesterday by Prof. Henry L. Rietz, head of the mathematics department.

The work is carried on under the director of Prof. C. C. Wylie, university astronomer.

"Professor Wylie has made important contributions to the study of meteors during the last few years, and the grant was undoubtedly made in recognition of the character of work he has done in the past and promises to do in the future," Professor Rietz said.

Basketball Course Opens

A course in basketball officiating is being offered to women interested in refereeing and umpiring girls' basketball. The class will meet in the social room of the women's gymnasium every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday at 5 p.m., beginning tomorrow.

Gummen Escap With $10,000

AKRON, Colo., (AP)—Four gunmen, escaping with $10,000 taken earlier in the holdup of a downtown Denver cafe, out-distanced Washington county officers in a motor race this afternoon and made their getaway towards Nebraska in a stream of bullets.

Locking Jaws Say "Thanks" to Doctor

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 9 (AP)—A 17 year old Milwaukee girl who can open her mouth only a fraction of an inch murmured her gratitude today when a surgeon promised he will try to check the affliction which is fast locking her jaws.

The operation was ordered after a stormy scene in juvenile court where the mother of the girl refused to allow surgeons to proceed.

Tax Revision, Adjournment Face Session

DES MOINES, Dec. 9 (AP)—Answers to two questions—the decision on tax revision and the possibility of adjournment by Christmas—probably will be found in next week's work of the Iowa general assembly.

Sixth Week
With the start of the sixth week of the special session, formal consideration of tax revision will begin on the floor of the senate, which has as a special order of business for 10 a.m. Monday S. F. 1.

The bill, sponsored by the interim committee and recommended for passage by the senate's tax committee, proposes a personal net income, net corporation income and retail sales taxes.

Draw Line
The senate debate will draw the line between advocates of net and gross income taxes, it is expected, and will be regarded as the first reliable showing of support for the respective forms.

A gross income tax bill, sponsored by 11 senators, will be the alternative to selection of the net income tax plan. The Harrington-Hicklin-Tripp gross tax bill is on the senate calendar but probably will be withdrawn in favor of the former measure.

House to Mark Time
The house has five major tax bills, in all, but probably will mark time on these measures pending a decision of the senate.

Urgings of the administration that the special session be adjourned by Christmas have not been forgotten but many senators and representatives do not believe that the major pieces of legislation such as tax revision and liquor control, can be completed by that time.

Fernow Asks For Writ of Attachment

Judgment of $175 is asked by Owen S. Fernow against W. T. Ellis in a petition filed in district court yesterday. The petition claims the sum is due as rent on property known as the Terrace Tavern, formerly the Kappa Sigma fraternity house. Fernow asks that a writ of landlord's attachment be issued.

Ain't No Gentlemen

"We ain't the gentlemen of the press," barked a publisher. "We're the men that own the newspapers. And we ain't got no freedom."

"But colonel, haven't my boys fixed up a nice code for you? Haven't they given you everything you wanted? Aren't we making all the news you can use?"

Who's Afraid? Big Shots Might Be Wolves, But Not To Newspapermen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (AP)—With President Roosevelt as the guest of honor, a galaxy of celebrities were guests tonight at the annual winter dinner of the Grid-iron club, to view themselves as depicted by the pale green glare of a satirical spotlight.

Using the developments of recent months as a lens, the Washington correspondents brought into view, one by one:

King Midas Warren whose touch converted material objects into paper instead of gold.

Emperor Jones
Emperor Jones, who threw iron washers into a brass box and announced the price of gold as 37 dollars and 53 mills.

The Republican party driven into a nudist colony by its losses in the big wind of 1932.

Alfred E. Smith as the man opening up the main line of attack on the Roosevelt administration.

Recovery Agencies
An alphabetical parade of the Roosevelt recovery agencies, including such new ones as AWOL, BVD, NERTZ, IOU and SOS.

Hugh S. Johnson, the king of crackers, NIRA, the queen of codes, and their court sitting in judgment on Henry Ford, the king of tin, and experiencing some difficulty in inducing a jury of blup eaglets to bring in a verdict.

A new deal farm, with ma and pa in evening dress served by shabby city cousins who were unable to afford evening clothes any more because beefsteak was eight dollars a pound.

Ritchie's Saloon
An after prohibition drinking place tended by Governor Ritchie and inspected by Bishop Jones Cannon, Jr., where, after supplying a birth certificate and character references, a member of the Florida sextet called for a drink but could not buy less than a quart.

Ferdinand Pecora and P. T. Barnum as ringmasters at a circus whose three big bad wolf performers—a hanker, a speculator, and a promoter—jumped through hoops but failed to satisfy Carter Glass who called for the midget.

Toilet Kit Hour
The Louis M. Howe toilet kit hour in which the president's secretary was interviewed for the radio by Walter Sombell and described balancing the budget as an achievement similar to the discovery of the north pole by Dr. Frederick A. Cook.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., as an aide to King Midas Warren, was introduced as one "who learned about government finances just where you did, down on the farm."

One of the skits depicted an interview between General Johnson and a group of the American Newspaper Publishers association in working out the newspaper code.

"I'm so happy to meet the gentlemen of the press," said Johnson mildly.

24 Slain In Revolution Yesterday

Outgoing News Placed Under Censorship Of Government

MADRID, Dec. 10 (Sunday) (AP)—Derailed by extremist revolutionaries, a fast express train plunged over a 100-foot embankment near Puzol, Valencia province, early today. Six bodies were hauled from the wreckage, bringing the toll of known dead in 24 hours of nation-wide fighting and disorder to 40.

Eleven were critically injured in the train wreck and it was feared many more bodies were contained in the ruins.

MADRID, Dec. 9 (AP)—Eight bomb explosions rocked Madrid tonight and complete confusion reigned in the Spanish capital, hitherto untouched by the nation-wide extremist revolt which in 24 hours has brought an unofficial toll of 24 dead and hundreds wounded in sporadic fighting.

Five Bombs
Five bombs burst late tonight in the central streets of Madrid, two more beside a church and another in front of a Rightist government supporter's home. Troops were immediately reinforced throughout the city.

Government authorities invoked strict censorship on the Spanish press and outgoing news of foreign correspondents. They forbade all public assemblies under a "state of alarm," which is the next thing to martial law.

Retaliation
The government claimed the anarchist and syndicalist rebellious movement, apparently in retaliation for Rightist victories at the polls in recent elections, had been suppressed except in the province of Zaragoza, but insurgents were reported to be planning strikes at Tarragona, Reus and Manresa in northeastern Spain, and rumors in the capital said a general revolutionary strike might break out any time between tomorrow and Monday.

Deaths
Semi-official reports at noon put the number of dead at 12 in Logrono province, seven in Barcelona province (Catalonia) and three in Zaragoza. Later reports said two more were killed by a bomb in Barcelona and two injured, one a woman.

Troops engaged the rebels in a series of swift fights after the rioters smashed communication lines, wrecked trains, and tried to isolate the area.

"State of Alarm"
Premier Diego Martinez Barrios proclaimed a "state of alarm" throughout the country to supersede the "state of prevention" under which assault guards and national police forces took precautions against any uprising.

Disgruntled adherents of the Leftist group were believed responsible for the disorders, as a result of a trend toward conservative elements in last month's election.

The convening of parliament yesterday was apparently the signal for the outbreak.

Shambaugh to Address American Political Science Association

Professor Shambaugh was formerly national president of the association.

Jobless Storm Capital

Petitions Ask For Election On City Plant

Petitions asking that the city council call a special election on the question of a municipal light plant in Iowa City have been circulated for the last week and will probably be presented to the council when the survey being made by Walter Schwab, consulting engineer, is completed.

According to law, the petition must carry the names of at least 15 residents from each of the five wards before the council will act on the matter. The required number has already been secured, it is reported. The survey, according to the contract, must be completed by Dec. 28.

Willard Fined

GLENDALE (AP)—Jesse Willard, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 today or spend 60 days in jail after he had been denied a new trial of a battery charge. Willard said he would appear. He was accused of beating Joe Logreco, a truck driver, after a traffic accident.

Work Starts Tomorrow on Fine Arts Colony

Work will begin tomorrow on a fine arts colony, the first of a series of building and repair projects proposed for the university on this year's building program.

Because there is little excavating to be done on the fine arts building, representatives of the William Horabin Contracting company of Iowa City, which holds the excavating contract, estimate that this work will be completed by the last of the week.

Actual building will probably begin by the first of next week. The Paulson Construction company of Cedar Rapids was awarded the building contract, since its bid was the lowest of the eight submitted.

Repairing and additions to be made on Psychopathic hospital probably will be begun early this week by the Stark Construction company of Cedar Rapids.

It is estimated that 200 men will be employed on these two projects. Work on the fine arts colony will last about nine months.

The buildings will cost in the neighborhood of $190,000. Donations from the federal government on these two buildings amount to about $100,000. The improvements on Psychopathic hospital will probably cost about $10,000, and the remainder will be used on the art colony.

The fine arts colony has been planned for many years. Small studios will surround a central building, according to the plans. The central building will include studios, offices, exhibition rooms, and a central lobby.

This building will be constructed across the river from Iowa Union. A service bridge connecting the east and west campuses is one of the proposed projects that has not yet been definitely stated on the building program. The cost of such a bridge would be approximately $30,000.

The improvements on Psychopathic hospital will include completion of unfinished parts. The section of hospital that houses occupational therapy will undergo some changes, and the roof will also be repaired.

In addition to the projects which will begin this week, three other undertakings have been provided for. A proposed law dormitory, to be erected at a cost of $150,000, has been definitely included in the building program.

The federal government has granted $57,000 toward this unit, which will be erected as part of the west campus expansion program.

Another proposed enterprise being considered is the addition to the Quadrangle, men's dormitory. This project calls for up-to-date additions on the exterior of the dormitory.

A dramatic art unit to be constructed on the east side of Iowa river is also being projected. Such a unit would coordinate the facilities of University theater, which are now scattered in four buildings.

These building projects are part of a permanent expansion plan which has been under consideration for some time by the University of Iowa.

U. S. Hinders Disarmament

'Other Nations Watch Us Build, Follow Suit,' Says Mrs. White

Instead of the United States leading the world in the reduction of armaments as it did in 1921 and the years immediately following, it is now building up a navy of its own for war efficiency, Mrs. Dorra White, chairman of the Iowa City League of Women Voters, pointed out in her radio broadcast conversation with Alice Murphy Friday night, on "Disarmament proposals," over WJUL.

"An appropriation bill, signed by the president, grants a yearly appropriation of $341,000,000 to the navy," Mrs. White quoted, "and out of that sum, $224,000,000 will be spent on the building of battleships alone. The remainder will be spent for airplanes and other war craft.

The regular monthly meeting and luncheon of the Chaperons club will be held Tuesday at Iowa Union, at 1 p.m., half an hour earlier than previously announced.

"Night and Day"

Apparently Rita Gentry Biehler, 19 year old Chicagoan, has a keen sense of humor, for she can laugh although she is charged with bigamy. Rita, it is alleged, married a window trimmer, who worked days, in September and eloped with a cafe proprietor, who works nights, in November. The latter brought the charge.

Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, dean of Boston university's department of health, declared that the beautiful chorus girl is almost certain to be intelligent; that catch phrases like "Beautiful but dumb" are merely superstitions and that in the long run good things tend to go together.

In a recent number of the American Medical Journal statistics were quoted to show that the general health of college students was falling from the standards of some years ago. Research over a number of years revealed that students' health grew worse during the years spent in school.

A New Jewish Frontier

TO THE persecuted Jews of Germany the offer of Soviet Russia of 10,000,000 acres of land with which to build up a Jewish national state may mean an opportunity to rebuild lost fortunes, happiness, and self respect.

The Soviet state recently extended a special invitation to the Jews of Germany to make use of this land, with the stipulation that as soon as 30,000 persons have settled in the territory it will become a separate state, to be known as Birobidzhan.

There will be work in Birobidzhan for all classes and all vocational groups—for farmers, for merchants, for doctors, for lawyers, for writers, for entertainers. There is only one requisite for the settlers. They must have great courage.

They must have the courage which permeated the work of the early American pioneers, the courage to face a strenuous task in a new, unsettled land, and build up a nation.

The Jews have for hundreds of years been a "lost people." Driven from one country to another, persecuted in many countries, they have, as a people, looked to the future when the biblical promise of a national land would be fulfilled.

The selection of Palestine as the site of the Jewish national state of the future was perhaps more a matter of sentiment and tradition than one of logic and reasoning. Palestine is far too small to be of any considerable importance—only one-third as large as the proposed site of Birobidzhan. It is now inhabited by a race hostile to Jewish settlement. It is Asiatic, both in position and attitude, and is too far from the circle of European and American affairs to be very desirable.

Birobidzhan, on the other hand, is large enough to provide for several million persons. It is not now inhabited to any considerable degree, thus offering unlimited opportunity without danger of conflict. Its location, in Russian territory should make it a part of the European scene, now that Russia has been recognized by the United States and the major European powers.

The offer of the Russian territory to the Jewish refugees is a token of friendship, but it is far more than that. It may offer a solution for a problem which has caused the world many years of distress and bloodshed—a problem for which no one can take the blame, but which nevertheless has been ever present.

When Is Liquor Not Liquor?

IF AN EDITOR of an American newspaper should mount a soap box and announce to his audience that a cannon is not a cannon in the United States because the Kellogg pact outlawed war, the general consensus of opinion would probably be that the editor was "kidding" his hearers.

Yet the same newspapers consider it perfectly legitimate to carry under their liquor advertising a notice: "This advertisement is not to be construed as a solicitation in those states where advertising of liquor is illegal."

The reasoning is analogous. The assumption is that the advertising of hard liquor will have no effect in dry states because congress decreed that it shall not be permitted.

But, obviously, in order to eliminate the effect of such advertising, all the readers in dry states would have to be blinded to prevent their reading the ads.

Some metropolitan papers, a bit more conscientious, have done away with the necessity of using such a scheme by printing two editions, one to go to wet states and the other to dry states, with the liquor ads eliminated in the dry state edition.

Perhaps the recent ruling of the attorney general's office that the Reed provision is unenforceable will put an end to the need for such childish subterfuges as telling readers that liquor advertising is not liquor advertising when congress says it isn't.

A Heritage of American Humor

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

The movie cartoon feature in this instance appears to have hit upon that combination of humor common to all Americans. If we read those journalistic productions of the early West, which were forgotten when more romanticized conceptions of the pioneer held sway, we find that there was at that time a love of exaggeration, especially that kind which lends verisimilitude to the union of incompatibles. It can be found in the tall tales told by the pioneer, the early settler, and the Mississippi River flatboat man, and in the Mark Twain of the Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn days.

Settlers in the South and the West kindled the fires of humor in their listeners when they spoke seriously and judiciously of monstrosities which shocked common sense and yet touched a responsive chord of appreciation. The well-known Paul Bunyan yarns are of such a type. Perhaps the best defended theme that American nationality was fostered in the West may be disputed, but it seems to be a fact that best examples of American humor are found there. It is that humor in which fact is disguised into absurdity and the most uncouth of parallels are drawn.

The newspaper cartoon comic sketch is a short step from the tall tale which, like true satire, touches lightly but does not sting. The movie cartoon, following a trend to which response had been so spontaneous, pointedly attempted the presentation of the unusual and ludicrous. Its success has been complete.

With the innovation of the talkie all kinds of opportunities for striking at this side of the American funnybone have presented themselves. Animals speaking and performing with all the gusto and illogicality of human beings zany as strongly of the characters in the Uncle Remus Tales of Joel Chandler Harris. Perhaps the general response to the tall tale, the animal story, and now Mother Goose fables in a setting of catbaiting tapes and whimsical performance, is due to recognition of them as genuine American folk humor.

Every radio owner and movie goer and frequenter of dance halls has been long aware of the fact that the life of a musical hit these days is a matter of a few short weeks or months, whereas in the old times a catchy tune might have lasted nearly a year.

And in conjunction with this high death rate among new songs, there has seemed to be a decided drop in quality. And it is all, according to the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, the fault of the radio.

Back in the cozy old days writers of popular music grew fat from the sale of their products in the form of sheet music and phonograph records. It was a good business. Not long ago there were 3,000 retail outlets for sheet music in the United States and there were 3,000,000 phonographs in American homes.

Today only 2,000 establishments handle sheet music at all, and the phonograph has been stored in the attic. Back in 1927 "Rhapsody" sold 1,700,000 copies of sheet music. Four years later "The Swan Song," a hit of the year, sold only 900,000 copies and today the best of them are lucky to reach 300,000.

Yet music is more popular today than ever before. Even the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, who complain about their reduced incomes, will tell you that. Why?

The radio. The radio sells songs faster than any device ever invented. It shows them to hits, devalues them by the hundreds, kills good hits in a week's time, and begs for more, more, more.

But the composers object, because they say they are not getting their fair share of the profit from the songs they write. And one is inclined to sympathize with them.

E. C. Mills, general manager of the society, states it thus: "From 1927 to 1931 commercial time on the air increased ten times. In the same period the sale of sheet music and phonograph records declined to one-sixteenth of the sales of 1921, of what they were in the fall of 1927. Record royalties for the first quarter of 1932 averaged one fortieth of what they were in the last quarter of 1927."

"Four hundred million dollars' worth of business was done in 1931—a depression year—by the radio interests—solely because a few thousand men and women throughout the world had written and could still write the music which made possible the commercial dissemination of entertainment by radio.

"The broadcasters paid to the composers and authors of the world precisely $500,000 for their licenses to perform this music. In other words for the essential raw material that made whole operation possible, they paid less than one dollar out of every four hundred of the amounts grossed in broadcasting operation; and in the meantime, the result of their operation was to destroy the sources of revenue to which the authors and composers had in previous times looked for their livelihood.

Well, the composers and authors are not the only persons who have complaints to make against the radio industry. And as time goes on and television comes into its own the army of objectors will be increased. Meanwhile one wishes some way could be found to stop writers of popular music from spreading their talents quite so thin as they are spread today. Probably the best way

'Chris Bean' Didn't Quite Live Again

University Theater Cast Fails to Realize Full Drama of Sidney Howard Play

By TOM YOSELOFF

When a playwright sets his words and thoughts upon paper, he is taking something of a chance. He is entrusting his ideas to an intermediary party, the actor, to transmit to his audience. And if the actor transmits the words without the thought, the playwright has failed to reach his audience.

This truism may serve to establish the limitations which bounded University theater in its production of Sidney Howard's adaptation, "The Late Christopher Bean." For, though the presentation was in many ways adequate, it lacked that visualization which is subtle author demands of the persons who essay the roles he has created.

Tremendous Theme: The author of "The Late Christopher Bean" had an idea, and wrote on a tremendous theme. He felt keenly the injustice of life which forces a great artist—creating works for the world to admire—to live and die in poverty. Christopher Bean sacrificed his life to his art, and was happy in his sacrifice. And 10 years later art lovers felt the debt they owed him, and unscrupulous art dealers fought for the profits of his labor.

Why, asks the author, "should a man who could paint pictures worth so much be so poor?" Christopher Bean. Once in a while there Fallacious Details: Details may have a big part in spoiling dramatic effect. At least these didn't help the production. Though the action was supposed to take place over a period of 24 hours, the clock on the stage stood at 10 throughout; though it was broad daylight, and the room had several windows, the chandelier reflected light from above; the room was set as though it had three sides the fourth chair around the table was moved away throughout the play; though one side of the stage setting had a 90 degree corner, the other side had 180 degree corners of various angles; and making the thing complete, on the first night, the curtain stuck at the end of the second act.

Though "The Late Christopher Bean" was sufficient to make a somewhat funny and rather enjoyable performance, University theater lost sight of its greater dramatic value, and "Mr. Bean" throughout remained too, too at the telephone, was delicious, and was a contributing factor in making his part outstanding. Mrs. Haggert (Betty Bebout) was consistently fair, though she was not the stern New England type. Among the players of the lesser roles, this writer nominates Grant Fairbanks, a typical newspaper art critic, from a dignified manner to the business of flicking cigar ashes into his trousers cuff.

The sisters Haggert (Virginia Zellhoefer and Delma Reynolds) were not clearly enough differentiated in casting or in delineation. Therefore, I suppose, it was seen fit to impose upon Ada, the unsympathetic one, a costume of large plaid, which must have proved obnoxious to even a stern New England sense. At the end of the second act she was allowed to remove this plaid, for which due praise should be given. Russell Longhew's typical gesture of clutching his right hand tightly to his side belie is a wistful expression of a tender movement in Abby's portrayal, but it is insufficient for the big task which the author has left to her.

Carries Secondary Theme: Ramay's portrayal is nearly a caricature of the moderately well-to-do New England doctor, but it is strong enough to carry the secondary theme of the play, the change in character which greed may cause, even though that character is equipped with a proverbial non-homized New England conscience.

"The Late Christopher Bean" tells the story of a New England family living in a condition of "just enough" money. Ada can't go to Florida to get a husband, Susan can't marry the man she loves because he is a poor artist, and Mrs. Haggert can't get a butler, all because Dr. Haggert can't collect his bills.

Abby Remains True: Art critics and dealers come flocking to the house one day, offering many thousands of dollars for the paintings of Mr. Bean, 10 years before a patient of Dr. Haggert. The doctor strives to get the paintings from Abby, who had saved them, but it is she who remains true to his memory, and refuses to sell them. The last act reveals that Abby is Chris Bean's widow.

Ramay's delineation was a combination of serious and comic. His

The battle of music which was to have been held yesterday at Iowa Union between Walt Long's orchestra and the musical outfit of By Golly, turned out to be a battle between By Golly's band and an unnamed piano. Golly won the campus orchestral championship by default, assuring his entrance into the Big Ten competition.

While he was director of the dramatic art department at Yankton college in South Dakota, Mr. Spayde's presentation of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" was repeated at several request performances besides the scheduled showing.

Mr. Spayde is a member of Northwestern university chapter of National Collegiate Players.

Publication Prints Paper by Prof. Funke

An article entitled "Lessing's 'Faust' fragment" by Prof. Erich Funke, acting head of the German department, will appear in an early issue of "Deutsche Monatshefte," a publication of the University of Wisconsin.

This article analyzes a fragment that has been preserved and discusses the rest of the play which was lost in 1775. Professor Funke says, "Lessing's 'Faust' fragment is surpassed in literary value only by his great drama 'Nathan the Wise' which is among the outstanding works of the eighteenth century, and is widely read at the present time in the United States."

Total circulation has increased 7,609, the total circulation for November this year being 55,749 and the total for last year 48,140. The greatest single increase in the libraries was in the reserve library where the increase was almost 3,000 over last year.

Books used in the rooms for the month totaled 37,877 and books taken out of the libraries totaled 16,932. The library sent out 187 books from the special collection used as references by non-resident students.

In inter-library loans, a service among all libraries of loaning books to other libraries, the university library has loaned out 51 books and borrowed 54. The university library is also making an inventory of the main collection this year to check up on all books.

Big Ten Coaches Finish Business With Hope for New Rules

Faculty Men To Approve Two Changes

Training Table, Earlier Opening Asked by Coaches

CHICAGO, Dec. 9 (AP)—Enthusiasm over the prospects of winning permission of the faculty representatives to establish a modified training table and moving up organized fall gridiron practice from Sept. 15 to Sept. 18, Big Ten football coaches and athletic directors cleared up various odds and ends of their meeting today and then talked shop.

The proposals for one meal daily during the season for regulars on the football team and the Sept. 18 date for opening of drill will be presented to each faculty representative individually instead of in a group as first suggested. No decision was expected before the May meeting.

Confident "We are quite confident that the faculty representatives will see our point," the coaches said. "It seems only fair that the football players should be assured one good, square meal a day during regular practice. Many have to eat cold meals after practice under the present arrangements."

Odds and ends of today's meetings: Minnesota agreed to meet Tulane in the third game of its 1934 football schedule, the game to supplant the Pittsburgh contest.

Marquette university was advised by Centre college that a game at Marquette next Oct. 20 was agreeable. Only approval of the Marquette board of control was necessary to clinch the game, to be played day or night, and that was considered certain.

Move to reorganize the Missouri Valley conference was started as letters were dispatched to athletic directors of Creighton, Grinnell, Coe, Cornell college of Mt. Vernon, Ia., and Carleton to meet for that purpose.

Schedules set Big Ten basketball, swimming, and track schedules were announced. The conference swimming championship meet was awarded to Iowa, March 14 and 15. The national collegiate will be held at Ohio State, March 20 and 21, and the national amateur championship event at Ohio State, April 5, 6 and 7.

Harry Kipke, Michigan coach, refused to discuss reports that he had been offered the coaching position at Yale. Neither would F. W. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, refused to be drawn into a discussion over the possibilities of a new coach at his university.

New Coach? Rumors of a new football coach at Indiana were met by the report of Coach E. C. Hayes that "it's up to the board and anything it does is okay with me."

The Central Intercollegiate Athletic association announced that its annual outdoor track and field meet at Marquette, June 1, would be open to the Big Ten and all colleges of the world. The indoor meet will be held at Notre Dame, March 3 and 13.

Football Study A committee of three, Athletic Commissioner John L. Griffith, Athletic Directors Thomas N. Metcalf of Chicago and Kenneth L. Wilson of Northwestern, was named to study football schedules and arrangements for 1935 and make a report next March 5.

Among the basketball coaches, the "shop talk" agreed that Wisconsin and Iowa were the teams to beat in the impending conference championship race.

One of the chief problems discussed by the athletic directors was the losses incurred in opening football games. Almost every member reported losses in the inaugural except those that have traditional games like Michigan's annual battle against Michigan State.

Indiana Quintet In Hard Fought Victory Over DePauw, 24-16 BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 9 (AP)—Indiana defeated DePauw, 24 to 16, tonight in a basketball game that saw the Tigers hold to a single free throw in the second period after they had taken a 15 to 10 lead over Indiana during the first half.

DePauw dominated the play throughout the first period as Townsend scored three times from the field. The Indiana defense held stubbornly in the second period, however, in the second period, a pass play from Walter Flannery to Bill Smith net-

Illinois Prof. Gives Wolves National Title

Nebraska Rated Second Under Dickinson System

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 9 (AP)—The University of Michigan football team, champions of the Big Ten for the fourth straight year, tonight was announced as the winner of the Knute K. Rockne national intercollegiate football trophy by Prof. Frank G. Dickinson, originator of the Dickinson football rating system. This marks the second consecutive year that the Wolverines have received first rating.

According to the Dickinson system, Nebraska was awarded second place in the national ratings and Michigan third.

Michigan, although tied, finished its season undefeated and was given the trophy because of its extremely difficult schedule. Southern California ranked sixth—like Oregon and the Big Ten team, was added by the strong inter-sectional record of its conference.

Between Pittsburgh in fourth place and Stanford in eleventh there was only the smallest of margins. Princeton, although undefeated, did not play an exceptionally strong schedule and was ranked seventh.

The Rockne memorial trophy is sponsored by the four horsemen, Harry Stuhldreher, James Crowley, Don Miller and Elmer Layden. The Rockne trophy must be won three times in a decade in order for a school to maintain its permanent possession.

The following are the eleven leading teams for 1933, according to the Dickinson system:

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Michigan	7	0	1	28.5
Nebraska	5	1	0	24.1
Minnesota	4	0	4	23.7
Pittsburgh	5	1	0	23.1
Ohio State	7	1	0	22.9

Trojans Drop Washington 11

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9 (AP)—Southern California came from behind today to defeat Washington, 13 to 7, and go into a tie with Stanford and Oregon for the football championship of the Pacific Coast conference.

The Trojans won the game in the third period when the elusive Cotton Warburton scored two touchdowns, cashing in on mistakes of the Huskies. The visitors had stepped out in front on a touchdown in the second period, a pass play from Walter Flannery to Bill Smith net-

Crowd Likes Exhibition of Novel Thrills

Sokols Use Unique Equipment In Acts

The European system of gymnastics as contrasted with American methods of physical culture was presented at the field house as the Sokol society of Cedar Rapids and the university tumblers joined forces in an attractive gym program last night.

From the moment that Prof. Bohumil Shmek delivered the introductory address, until the completion of the evening's final number, the several hundred persons who attended the exhibition were entertained alternately by the sensational, novel, and comical nature of the various stunts and drills.

Win Admiration The Cedar Rapids organization, appearing on the campus for the first time, won warm admiration from the spectators for their expert performances of unique and difficult team exercises. They relied in the main upon group formations which required perfect coordination and rhythm, and made use of the vaulting table, parallel bars, and twisting sabers to skillful advantage as both the male and female squads contributed sparkling exhibitions.

The Hawkeye squad, on the other hand, specialized in individual performances with Larry Griswold, Ed Kringsel, Al Ellis, Rudy Bolte, and Eugene Wettstein, a great freshman prospect, providing the sensational part of the evening's presentation. Griswold and Ellis, incidentally, furnished most of the laughs of the program by their clever clowning and slap-stick pantomimes.

Successful The exhibition, the first of its kind in this locality, was highly successful on the whole, for the Sokols registered a definite hit with the crowd. Their performances were extremely well prepared and executed, and the novelty of their presentations held the attention of the audience from the start to the finish of their activity. At times they employed apparatus which they brought with them from Cedar Rapids, that not even Coach Albert Baumgartner, a veteran in gymnastic circles, had ever seen in use. And their practice of performing bare-foot in many of the events created a mild sensation on the part of the spectators.

The portion of the program which featured the Hawkeye gymnasts was of equally high calibre, though radically different in style. Besides the contributions of Griswold, Ellis, Bolte, Kringsel, and Wettstein, Rockwood, Cassel, Nissen, De Hart, Peterson, Frasher, Houser, Cooper, and McCoy had prominent parts in the evening's activities.

Honor Banquet Crowd Expected to Exceed 1,000

Indications of the largest banquet ever to be held at Iowa are evident by the number of reservations being filed for the all-Iowa dinner to be held Tuesday evening in the Iowa Union.

More than 1,000 persons hope to attend the affair which will feature such speakers as Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference commissioner, Coach Ossie Solem, Mayor Harry Breene, Prof. Clarence Upeggraff, chairman of the athletic board, Capt. Tom Moore of the 1923 team, and the newly elected captain for the 1934 season, Russell Fisher.

Honored Guests In addition to many students who plan on attending the event, there will be various alumni representatives throughout the state as well as many high school athletes who will be honored guests.

Iowa fans will be able to see the entire Hawkeye aggregation as Ossie Solem will introduce individually each of the players. Two of the Hawkeyes most renowned players will make short talks, Joe Laws and Francis (Zed) Schammel. Both men have been chosen to play on the East's team in the Shriner's New Year's day game in San Francisco. Schammel has been named on every important all-American selection thus far this season.

Introduce Fresh Among other introductions that will be made are some of the freshman players who will take the place of those graduating this year. The banquet is being held under the auspices of the Iowa City Junior-Senior League.

merce committee members. Tickets for the affair may be obtained from D. W. Crum at the American Legion Community building for 75 cents. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m.

Layden Will Take Charge At Notre Dame in February

By PAUL MICKELSON (Associated Press Staff Writer) SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 9 (AP)—It's all true. Elmer Layden, one of the immortal "four horsemen" of Notre Dame, is coming back to the campus of the Golden Dome as athletic director and head football coach. Jess Harper and Hearty "Hunk" Anderson, who responded to the university's call three years ago when Knute Rockne crashed to his death, are definitely out.

Two-Year Contract Layden will return to handle both their duties next spring, armed with a two-year contract at $10,000 a year. With him as assistant football coach will come Joe Boland, one of the "seven mules" of the "four horsemen" eleven. The resignations of Harper and Anderson are effective at once. Layden will take charge Feb. 1.

The sweeping change in Notre Dame's athletic leadership, news that leaked out early yesterday, was officially confirmed today as the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, returned to the campus after a trip from Rochester, Minn., where he convalesced after a long illness. Layden accepted the post after a conference with the Rev. John F. O'Hara, acting president, at Indianapolis and the die was definitely set.

Open Letter As a flood of inquiries descended upon the officials at Notre Dame, seeking verification of the report, the now mysterious sealed letter was opened shortly after the confirmation of Layden's appointment and acceptance had been made, but all it contained was a note of appreciation for the services of Harper and Anderson. Both were praised for their endeavors although, in Chicago, Father O'Donnell admitted he was disappointed with the results of the 1933 football campaign, in which Notre Dame won only three games. He said he felt the team should have done better.

Text of Letter The text of Father O'Hara's announcement, confirming the sweeping change, was as follows: "The University of Notre Dame has accepted the resignation of Jess Harper and Hearty Anderson as athletic director and head football coach and has signed Elmer Layden for a contract that governs both positions. The university also has approved the selection of Joseph Boland as assistant football coach."

At Indianapolis, Layden, who leaves the head football coach job at Duquesne, Pittsburgh, said he was elated with his new job. "Naturally, I feel honored," the scholarly fullback marvel of nine years ago said. "Who wouldn't, being called to such a post at his alma mater. I'm afraid to think of the responsibilities it involves—trying to uphold Notre Dame traditions not only as they exist at Notre Dame, but also as they are being exemplified by scores of splendid men, who are making football history all over the country. I have the greatest admiration for my predecessor, whose resignation placed me in the position of refusing a call from my alma mater or accepting one of the hardest jobs in the country. All I can promise is that I will do my best and the Notre Dame authorities tell me that is all they want."

Each Considered Joe Bach, who assisted Layden at Duquesne, wasn't mentioned for a job in the new Notre Dame shake-up, but it was understood he would be offered a connection with Layden if he decides to break away from Duquesne. Many figured Bach would now become a leading candidate for the head coaching position there to succeed Layden. No mention was made either of Mal Edwards, now assistant coach at Purdue. Edwards, in Chicago, said he had not been approached and planned to stay at Purdue anyway.

The campus of Notre Dame was in the throes of excitement as the news of Layden's appointment and acceptance was confirmed. Few students know Layden personally, but all were familiar with his many deeds on the gridiron. Layden went direct from his conference at Indianapolis to St. Louis, where he is to play with a team of former Notre Dame all-stars tomorrow.

Pays Tribute This statement was contained in the mysterious sealed letter, opened today: "In accepting the resignations of Harper and Anderson, the university wishes to pay high tribute to the men who three years ago, on the tragic death of Knute Rockne, assumed very difficult tasks in carrying on his work."

For Mr. Harper, it meant perfecting a new organization. Knute Rockne was a keen business man, but his methods were unique. Mr. Harper installed a new and very efficient system for directing athletics at Notre Dame. This is deeply appreciated by the university and will be by Mr. Harper's successor. "Mr. Anderson threw his whole soul into the work that he inherited from his old teacher and brought to it not only a great knowledge of football but a remarkable devotion and loyalty as well. No alumnus of Notre Dame was ever more honest and sincere."

It is with great regret that Notre Dame bids farewell to these two men, whose splendid service has carried her over a critical period in an extra curricular activity which commands much public attention. The note was signed by Father O'Donnell two weeks ago at Rochester after a conference with Father O'Hara.

Hawkeyes Schedule Eleven Diamond Contests for 1934

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (Special)—Iowa scheduled 11 games, the greatest number of championship affairs since the year the Hawks last won the Big Ten title, for the coming baseball season. However, only four of the conference battles will be played at Iowa City, the double-headed affairs with Chicago and Minnesota.

Iowa plays four games with the Gophers, two each, in double-headers, with Chicago, Northwestern, and Wisconsin, and one game with Michigan, Indiana, Chicago, Minnesota, and Ohio State play 10 games, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Purdue play 11, while Northwestern and Michigan are called upon to play an even dozen games.

IOWA April 27-28—Chicago at Iowa. May 4-5—Iowa at Minnesota. May 11-12—Iowa at Northwestern. May 25-26—Iowa at Wisconsin. May 30-31—Minnesota at Iowa. June 2—Iowa at Michigan.

Tom Moore Most Popular All-State Man Led by Francis Schammel, who made the team for the second time the University of Iowa gained seven places on the Des Moines Register's all-state team for 1933. Two places on the second and one on the third were also given to Hawkeye riders.

Four linemen, Schammel, Capt. Tom Moore, Fred Radloff, and Bernie Page, were selected while three-fourths of the backfield was composed of Iowa players, Captain-elect Russ Fisher, Joe Laws, and Dick Crayne were named along with Freddie Hill of Coe.

Coe was given two places on the first team, and Cornell and Drake one each. Page, Schammel, Moore, Laws, and Crayne were the most popular choices with the Iowa center most nearly approaching a unanimous choice.

The honor roll given mention to two more Iowans, Bill Seel and Jack Gallagher, who played the guard opposite Schammel. Jerry Foster and Ray Fisher were picked on the second team with Dwight Hoover rating a third team halfback post.

Notre Dame Wins Rough Battle Over Wildcats, 28 to 24

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 9 (AP)—In one of the roughest games played here in years, Notre Dame defeated Northwestern's quintet tonight, 28-24.

It took a second half rally that netted 18 points for the Irish to defeat the Wildcats, who led at half time 11-10.

A total of 29 personal fouls were called and Manske and Fisher of Notre Dame were ejected from the contest on fouls.

Chicago Loses To Armour Tech Five

CHICAGO, Dec. 9 (AP)—The quintet from Armour Institute of Technology of Chicago tonight defeated the University of Chicago basketball team, 27 to 23.

Only once in the game was the outcome uncertain. In the second half, after two Armour stars were ousted on personal fouls, Chicago climbed up to be within winning distance, but Armour pulled away as the half ended. Score at half time stood 16 to 11 for Armour.

Iowa Swimmers To Compete In Five Dual Meets

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (Special)—With the conference championships scheduled for the Iowa pool March 16-17, the University of Iowa swimmers will compete in five dual meets, one of which will be before a home crowd. The Hawkeyes will meet Wisconsin, there, Feb. 10; Illinois will be at Iowa City Feb. 17; Iowa at Michigan St. Feb. 23; at Michigan Feb. 24; and at Minnesota March 10.

Iowa was awarded the final meet since it possesses the finest pool in the country. It is possible to swim over the 150 foot length in 10 lanes or over the 20 yard course in as many lanes as the coaches desire. If the long course is used the lanes are marked on the bottom of the pool while cork floats will serve for the short course.

The seating capacity of 2,500 was no small factor in securing the meet.

Spartans Overcome Michigan, 26 to 25

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 9 (AP)—Maurice Buysse, Michigan State's lanky center, led the Spartans to a 26 to 25 triumph over the University of Michigan basketball team in the opening home game of the season tonight.

Buysse sank five baskets from the field and made good on three shots from the foul line to account for half of the Spartans' points. State led, 13 to 11, at half time, overcoming a five point lead Michigan picked up before State scored.

Lead Coral Gables In High Wind With 143 Totals

BILTMORE COUNTRY CLUB, Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP)—High wind played havoc today with the low scoring professionals as Willie MacFarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., the metropolitan open champion, with a 144. Having carded a sparkling 67 yesterday, four under par, which established a new course record, the lanky Scot dropped ten strokes to the field today with a 58-59-77 that crowded him out of the lead he held at the end of the initial 18 hole round.

Bunched in the next position with ties of 145 were four veteran pros—Gene Sarzen, P.G.A. champion, with 72-73; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Agua Caliente, champion, with 71-74; Tommy Armour, Chicago, with 72-73; and Al Watrous, Detroit, with 72-73.

A stroke behind came Herman Barron of Port Chester, N. Y., who carded a 57-58-73 to add to his yesterday's score of 73 for a total of 144.

Tied with a group of seven at 145 was Denny Shute, the defending champion, who also holds the British open title. The best he could do today was a 28 and 29 for 77 which was six strokes worse than his score on the first 18 holes.

Others in that group were Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., with 74-74; Al Espinosa, Akron, with 73-73; Tony Manero, Redfield, N. C., with 74-74; Phil Perkins, Willoughby, Ohio, with 73-73; Tony Penna, Pensacola, Fla., with 72-74; and Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., with 74-74.

Four, headed by Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, the Canadian open champion who had a 72-77, tied at 149. They were Mike Brady, Coral Gables, Fla., with 72-77; Jules Hunt, Quebec, with 74-75 and Ed Brook, Barton, Fla., with 76-73.

Goodman was tied in a group of five at 150 with a card of 71-79. Others in that division were Vincent Ledrod, Pittsburgh, with 72-78; Jimmy Wynn, Great River, L. I., with 73-77; Fred McCaskey, Charlotte, N. C., with 72-78; and Felix Sarafin, Scranton, Pa., with 75-75.

Revolt Rises Over Coaching Post at Yale

Kipke Mentioned As Possible Man For Job

NEW YORK, Dec. 9 (AP)—Revolt against persistent defeat broke out into the open today among Yale's powerful alumni, threatening to sweep away not only the football regime of Reggie Root, young head coach, but the traditions of over a half century as well.

Just as "Hunk" Anderson was overthrown at Notre Dame this week, and as the old order was tossed overboard at Princeton, arch rival of the Elis, two years ago with the importation of "Fritz" Crisler to start a victory string, so has Yale headed definitely toward a new deal on the gridiron.

Never in Yale's football history, dating back to that first game with Columbia in 1872, have the Elis gone beyond their graduate ranks for a head coach. There is still a possibility T. A. D. Jones, former Yale star, coach and brother of Howard Jones of Southern California, will be called back from retirement but the alumni now appear strong for a thorough shake-up.

Things have gone so far that a committee of prominent graduates has negotiated with Harry Kipke, successful head coach of Michigan's Big Ten champions.

Kipke probably won't accept the task of directing a team that, despite splendid material, lost this fall to Georgia, Army, Harvard and Princeton, and faces next year the hardest schedule in the history of the university, eight successive major games, against Columbia, Pennsylvania, Brown, Army, Dartmouth, Georgia, Princeton and Harvard.

In the 45 years he was a locomotive engineer on an Ellensburg, Wash., run, J. A. Patchett traveled 2,000,000 miles.

Ray Consamus Grabs Early Scoring Lead

Holds 4 Point Margin Over Teammate, Maher

Ray "Caesar" Consamus, elongated center of the fast traveling Ramblers, is away to a four point lead in the city scoring race this year. Leading his teammate, Joe Maher, by four-point Consamus has tipped in 14 baskets to lead that department as well as total scoring.

Dick Ash, towering City high guard, is the leader in sinking free throws with Maher again in second place, this time tied with Fred Ballard, king pin of the City high forces. Ballard leads the personal foul column and again Maher is second, tied, in this case, by Dale Williams, Red and White guard. Ballard has eight, one more than any one else.

St. Mary's on Top
The St. Mary's winning streak of three straight puts it at the top of the percentage column with St. Pat's second and City high third. Playing more games than any other school, with U. High yet to show against interscholastic competition, the Supeemen naturally have more men in the upper regions of the scoring zone than the other schools.

CHAPTER I TO MEET LORD AND LADY FERNOLIFFE

Oliver Jordan, president of the Jordan Line Steamships, New York City, looked up from his breakfast as his wife Millicent, in dressing gown and slippers came into the room, excitedly waving a radiogram. He put off, like a man, the worried and preoccupied air that had emphasized the wrinkles in his forehead and about his eyes.

"Oliver! I've got them! I've got the Fernoliffes!" She read the message to him. "Delighted to dine with you Friday at eight. Fernoliffes!"

"I have a date with our daughter next Friday to hear Rachaminoff."

"But the Fernoliffes are terribly important. Hasn't Lord Fernoliffie something to do with shipping?"

"I should think you'd want to talk with him."

"Mr. Oliver Jordan accepts," smiled her husband, graciously. She hugged him in her exuberance, and chattered so volubly about her plans for the dinner, whom she would invite, who in the city was available, that he seized upon the appearance of their daughter, Paula, ready to start for the job she insisted upon keeping, to make his escape from the social plottings of his wife.

Millicent called after Paula: "I hope Ernest doesn't ask me how you've been behaving while he was away—coming in at five o'clock in the morning!" Ernest Graves was Paula's fiancé.

"He won't—he trusts me," was Paula's retort.

"You don't seem wildly excited about this coming marriage of yours," commented her father too low to be overheard by his wife.

"Mind your own business, darling," Then Jordan put his case before having been given a theatre by a wealthy man, she had retired from both the stage and New York, choosing to live in England and on the Continent.

CHAPTER I TO MEET LORD AND LADY FERNOLIFFE

Along with many others of his generation, when he was a very young man indeed, Oliver Jordan had been one of her fervent admirers and, more fortunate than most of the others, admitted to her circle of friends.

"Heavens, what a hole!" she exclaimed, looking about the dingy office which Oliver had kept because it had been good enough for his father. "Is that what I own stock in? I expected to see it all platinum and plush."

"Gosh, I'm glad to see you again, Carlotta. Tell me, what brought you to America?"

"The shattered fortunes need mending, darling. I'm as flat as a millpond. Railroads, oil, cotton stocks, all down to next to nothing. No tenant for the Vance Theatre—had locked for six months. I'll never go back to the stage. I'll have my double chins in privacy."

"You're not thinking of selling your Jordan stock, are you?" asked Jordan, alarmed. "You wouldn't get what it is worth—"

"You wouldn't want to buy it back yourself, would you, Oliver?"

"It would be difficult, just now. Hold on to your stock, Carlotta.... We'll pull through."

Miss Copeland opened the door and big, breezy, self-confident, somewhat arrogant Dan Packard blew in, and Carlotta departed in a few minutes, reminding Oliver that she would see him at dinner Friday, for Millicent had already phoned for her to meet the Fernoliffes.

Then Jordan put his case before

"I've got the Fernoliffes," Mrs. Oliver Jordan said.

ling," whispered Paula, pressing his arm affectionately.

Paula refused a lift, she preferred to walk, and as Jordan climbed into a taxi, the worried look settled down on his face again. He hated to tell Cannon, captain of the Castilian, that, for the first time in forty years, the ship would not sail; it did not have a third of a cargo. The depression had hit his shipping business hard; now capital was necessary, and Jana Packard, western mining man who had wormed his way into a position of financial importance in New York City, was about his last hope. Others to whom he had gone were as hard hit as he was himself.

He found that his secretary, Miss Copeland, had finally located Packard, after phoning all over town, at the Athletic Club, and that he had agreed to call at the Jordan line offices. The question now was: Could he put his needs up to Packard in such a way that Packard would put money into a hazardous proposition? He had just begun to glance at his mail when the door of his office burst open and Carlotta Vance, refusing to be detained by the anxious and pursuing Miss Copeland, entered dramatically, exclaiming:

"Oliver, ducky, how are you? How simply marvellous to see you! I never was so glad to see anyone in my life!" She kissed him on one cheek and then on the other, also dramatically, for she had been a darling of the New York stage until,

CWA Payroll For 360 Men Is $4,339.60

Women's Project For 105 Unemployed Is Nearly Ready

More than 360 men who are now employed on civil works projects here received a total payroll of $4,339.60 yesterday, Dr. W. L. Bywater, chairman of the civil works committee announced last night.

A project which will employ 105 women will soon be carried out in Johnson county according to word received from Des Moines yesterday by Dr. Bywater.

He also received word from Prof. George Keller, state engineer of CWA, that 40 men in addition to the quota will be hired on highway work in Johnson county soon, but the exact project was not mentioned.

About 75 men, who are yet needed to fill out the Johnson county CWA quota of 417, will be employed early next week, probably Monday morning the chairman said. These men will be employed on the various projects which have already been started but need more men. The airport project will receive some men, the school grounds grading and fixing at Roosevelt and Lincoln schools several, some more on the cemetery project, and some on the paving and fixing of certain streets in Iowa City.

Largest Yet
The payroll yesterday was by far the largest issued in the three weeks that the civil works program has been functioning. The first payroll was $443.18. The next was about $1,700. Yesterday it was increased by more than $1,800 more to reach $4,339.60.

City Allotted Extra $6,000

Iowa City was allotted $6,000 yesterday for the improvement of the airport and park upon approval of the project by Prof. George Keller, Iowa civil works engineer. Thirty men will be employed on the project.

The cost, type of project and number of men to be employed on each project are as follows:
Council Bluffs, $24,648.75, build runway, complete second runway, surface with 17,800 yards of alk, 124 men.

Davenport, $79,204, grade field and lay stone runway, 430 men.

Des Moines, three projects, $1,412.20, gravel drives at airport, 43 men; $152, engineering service laying out drives, three men; $1,122.04, grading, 22 men.

Hawley Contributes Article on Religion To New Publication

Prof. Charles A. Hawley of the school of religion is one of the principal contributors to a new book, "The Church Looks Ahead," recently published by the Macmillan company.

Contributors to this book, which is a series of essays, include scholars from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the middle west.

Professor Hawley's section of the book deals with the movement toward unity in the Christian church. He points out that the great movement in American religion unity is hampered because of a lack of historical appreciation of the reasons for divisions in American religious life.

Professor Hawley believes that certain characteristics in American life are destined eventually to bring about a united church.

The basis of Professor Hawley's essay was a lecture given in the Baconian series at the University of Iowa.

Tennis and volleyball, literary clubs and a school magazine, and domestic science have all been introduced to a Buddhist girl's school in India by an American woman, Clara Heath Motwani, who "little dreamed when studying in an education course at the University of Iowa about the duties of a principal that she would ever be one."

In a recent correspondence with Prof. Forest C. Ensign of the college of education, Mrs. Motwani, who was Clara Heath before her marriage to Kewal Motwani, describes her work and the work of her husband in his native land.

Both boys and girls attend this school for the first few years of work, but when a girl reaches the age of 10, he is sent to a boy's school.

Shambaugh To Talk On Series Here

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department and superintendent of the State Historical society, will be the final speaker to appear before Christmas vacation on a Baconian lecture series, which is under the auspices of the graduate college.

"The totalitarian state: when the dictator comes" is the title of Professor Shambaugh's address, which will be given Friday at 7 p.m. in chemistry auditorium.

In his lecture, Professor Shambaugh will call attention to the state of economic, cultural, and spiritual revolution in existence today. He will cite the new tempo in political thinking that is needed. The several attitudes that may be taken during a revolution such as cynical, ultra-conservative, ultra-radical, or actively interested, will be described.

Professor Shambaugh will review the many philosophies which have been proposed for solutions of political problems in revolutionary periods in the past.

Besides considering the present outlook and "the new deal," Professor Shambaugh says he will picture the situation "if, and when, a dictator comes to rule America."
