RAILROAD LABOR ASKS FEDERAL AID

'Kidnaped' Stock Operator Returns Home; Says He Lost His Memory

Livermore Has Vague Memory Of Hotel Room

Detectives Attempt To Check Disappearance As Broker Sleeps

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—Jesse L. Livermore, noted stock market operator who became the object of an intensive 24 hour search when his wife reported him missing, walked to the private door of his Park avenue apartment at 6:20 o'clock tonight and rang the doorbell.

Remembers Nothing

Once inside, he told detectives he had been there with his wife that he remembered nothing from 5:30 p.m. yesterday until he woke up late this afternoon in a downtown hotel with a headache and read reports of his disappearance in a newspaper.

Livermore, one of the most spectacular plungers in Wall street's history, then went to bed while detectives pieced together the story of the 24 hours he said were a blank in his mind.

Federal Agents Withdraw

Federal agents, who had joined the hunt on the basis of the fears of the trader's third wife that he had been kidnaped, dropped their inquiry immediately. Word was flashed over police wires to a dozen cities and a search that involved the police of a dozen states was called off.

At the hotel where Livermore said he had spent the night the desk clerk said he was not registered. Police, however, explained that Livermore told them he "couldn't remember" whether he registered or not.

Suffered From Nausea

Just after a police official had announced that the taxi driver who drove Livermore yesterday from his home to his office said Livermore then had suffered from nausea, another taxicab pulled up before the Livermore apartment tonight. Several photographers were nearby.

Livermore, his coat pulled close about him, paid off the cab, walked to the private entrance of his ground floor apartment, and rang the bell before the photographers realized his identity.

He stood on the steps, shivering a bit, waiting for some one to open the door.

Photographers' bulbs flashed before the door was opened by a detective who hesitated a moment before he recognized the trader. Police had been stationed in the apartment throughout the day.

He saw his wife at 4 p.m. yesterday and told her he was going to keep an engagement with a friend. He never got to the appointment, but instead walked to the curb before his house, summoned a cab, and ordered the driver to go to his office on lower Broadway.

"Mind a Blank"

From that point on, he told police, his mind was a blank.

Detectives at his home said he told them he "vaguely remembered" going to a hotel, but had no clear idea why he had done so.

Manning Says Phone Calls Are Paid For

OTTUMWA, Dec. 20 (AP)—Mayor Edwin C. Manning testified at the state's ouster hearing against him in district court today that he has now paid all charges for telephone calls, both private and for city business, from his residence since he took office in April, 1929.

The state bases much of its charges of corruption and maladministration against Manning on allegations that the city of Ottumwa paid for the mayor's private telephone calls.

Two Burned to Death

LONE OAK, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP)—Two men were burned to death and four others injured when fire swept the McBride hotel early Wednesday. The dead were Clem Wilburn, 53, and Dr. F. Roberts, 60.

Fractures Skull, Dies

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — Belief that A. Z. Bliss, 75, of Marion, met his death accidentally was expressed by Coroner R. A. Vorpahl. Bliss apparently fell from a wagon while loading wood, suffering a fractured skull.

Local Temperature Takes Upward Turn

Yesterday's temperature took an upward swing, reaching a high of 50 degrees. Tuesday night's low was 33 and Wednesday morning at 7 a.m. it was 34 degrees. At 7 p.m. last night the official thermometer registered 42 degrees.

F. R. Extends Time Limit of Blanket Code

Seeks to Fortify NRA Against Possible Let Downs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt sought to fortify his economic recovery machinery against any let downs today with two moves — the extension of his blanket re-employment agreement and the concentration of the many faceted units of the national recovery agencies.

Four Month Renewal

The extension for another four months of the re-employment agreement was designed to cover with the temporary codes the estimated 30 per cent of industries which have yet to come in under the NRA permanent set up. Mr. Roosevelt said that "in the midst of winter and with many persons out of work it is essential that the new year should not bring with it any let down in the recovery program in the trades and industries."

Concentrates Units

He also definitely established a policy of tying together under the direction of a single leader, Frank C. Walker, the whole recovery machinery, including the NRA, the several farm rehabilitation agencies and the home loan corporations.

The NRA echoed this renewed spirit by disciplining for the first time an employer charged with violating the collective bargaining guarantee of the industrial law. The recovery administration announced it had withdrawn its blue eagle emblem from the J. J. Martin company, Roxbury, Mass., furniture movers. The administration said the company had publicly asserted that "no union or union men would be tolerated in the business."

Temporary Measure

The blanket code or agreement was originally drawn up by the president to serve for industries until they had agreed on and signed with the government permanent codes of fair competition and labor practices. More than 160 such codes have been approved by Mr. Roosevelt to date and he indicated today he expected the remaining codes would come into existence before the four months renewal for the blanket agreement had expired.

Billy Bock, 10 Years Old, Is Injured

Billy Bock, 10 year old son of George F. Bock, 1184 Hotz avenue was in a critical condition at Mercy hospital last night after falling from a box car near the Woodlawn apartments at about 1:30 yesterday afternoon.

He and other boys were playing on top the cars on the old railroad siding back of the apartments. Billy stepped backward, fell between the cars and hit his head causing a basal skull fracture. He was unconscious from the time of the accident until 6:30 last night.

Christmas Means Little Delay For Handling of Mail

Little delay in handling mail is being experienced by employes of the Iowa City post office and substations, although the peak of the Christmas rush is near.

Holiday mail and parcels can move rapidly this year because of improvement of mailing facilities. The operating of four windows during the rush hours of the day, usually the middle of the afternoon, has resulted in few delays in the post office.

Additional mailing stations operating are at Whetstone's No. 1, Iowa Union, and the Quadrangle.

INSULL, JR., AT BANKRUPTCY HEARING

Samuel Insull Jr., (left), who was put on the witness stand in the Federal court probe of circumstances surrounding initiation of Insull receiverships and bankruptcies in Chicago Monday, gets a light from his counsel, Floyd E. Thompson, during a lull. Young Insull was quizzed in an effort to establish whether receivers had been arranged by his fugitive father beforehand.

'Champion' Mothers Of Italy Honored By Mussolini at Rome

ROME, Dec. 20 (AP) — The 92 "champion" mothers in Italy's provinces, who have brought 1,288 children into the world, came to Rome today to receive the enthusiastic acclaim of Premier Mussolini and the populace.

Their five day visit is at the expense of the state and is a part of the kingdom's celebration of mothers and infants day which, with the Fascist campaign to boost the birth rate, has become one of Italy's most important holidays.

The climax of their stay will be Il Duce's reception for them Sunday.

Commission Accuses Nazis

Final Report Places Blame for Fire In Reichstag

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP)—The conviction that national socialist (Nazi) circles, either directly or through the hands of others, touched off the fire in the German parliament building last winter was expressed today in the final report of an unofficial "legal commission" of inquiry which investigated the blaze.

In a ringing declaration presented at Caxton hall, the commission of international attorneys did not mince words in saying that Hitlerites were connected in one way or another with the arson and that Marinus Van Der Lubbe, young Dutch brick mason who confessed the incendiarism, must have had help.

Five men, including Van Der Lubbe, three Bulgarians, and Ernst Torgler, former communist whip in the German house of representatives, will be sentenced in Leipzig next Saturday after a long trial in which they were called communists and in which they were charged with arson and treason. The death penalty was asked for Torgler and Van Der Lubbe.

Debate Teams Will Attempt to Qualify For Tourney Here

Elimination contests will be started throughout the state next month by more than 100 high schools, each institution seeking to qualify its debate teams for the round robin championship tournament at the University of Iowa.

The field will be reduced to 32 schools, 16 each in classes A and B, and on March 22, 23, and 24 two teams of two speakers from each will argue for the state title. That the United States should adopt the British system of radio control and operation, is the question.

Roosevelt high of Des Moines is expected to defend its class A title, with Onawa as the defending champion in class B.

Warrant Issued For Insull, Jr.

Six Others Included In Charge of Conspiracy Brought in Indiana

CROWN POINT, Ind., Dec. 20 (AP)—Warrants charging Samuel Insull, Jr., and six others with conspiracy to commit a felony and embezzlement and larceny from the $100,000,000 Northern Indiana Public Service company were in the possession of deputy sheriffs for service tonight.

Indictments

Indictments against the seven charged, in effect, that they looted the formerly Insull-controlled utility in order to bolster the finances of certain financing and holding companies in the Insull system.

Judge Murray of Lake county criminal court had custody of the indictments and, under Indiana law, they will not be made public until all the defendants have been apprehended. Authorities did not disclose the amounts of the alleged peculiations.

Others Named

Those named in addition to young Insull, former chairman of the board of the company, are:

John H. Gulick of South Chicago, former director of the company.

Edward W. Lloyd of Chicago, former director.

Morse Dell Plain of Hammond, Ind., president and director.

Charles W. Chase of Chicago, former director and vice president of the utility and now general manager of the Indianapolis street railway.

Bernard P. Shearon, vice president and director.

Thomas C. Hamilton, former director and now general manager of the Gary, Ind., street railway company.

Officials Count On NRA to Ease Usual Post-Holiday Slump

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP) — With Christmas business now reaching its peak, officials were described today as hopeful that the various measures of the recovery campaign might cushion the usual post-holiday slump.

They looked upon the civil works administration, with its reemployment of 4,000,000 workers, as holding strong possibilities in this connection, with this agency to be backed up early in the year by direct reconstruction corporation loans to the industries, plans for which are now in formulation.

Beet Sugar Worker Dies

MASON CITY (AP)—Injuries suffered in the explosion of a power turbine at the American Beet Sugar company plant Tuesday caused the death of Claude Stillwell, 54.

WEATHER

IOWA: Fair Thursday; somewhat colder in extreme east; unsettled and colder Friday.

Jaffe, Yoseloff Plan Burial Services for Iowan News Flashes

An Associated Press ruling has rung down the curtain on The Daily Iowan news flashes.

They will be buried tonight with fitting ceremony as The Daily Iowan program of news broadcasts goes on the air over station WSUI for the last time at 7:45 to 8 o'clock.

Frank Jaffe, former editor of The Daily Iowan and originator of the news flash program, will appear as guest announcer, together with Tom Yoseloff, J4 of Mason City, who has broadcast the program nightly for the last seven months.

The program of news broadcasts has been a regular feature over station WSUI for the last two years. Originally there were two broadcast periods, 7 to 7:10 p.m. and 9 to 9:10 p.m. each day. This year the news has gone out on the ether in a single broadcast, at 7:45 p.m.

Liquor Control Debate Slated

Iowa House Will Take Up Subject Friday At Des Moines

DES MOINES, Dec. 20 (AP)—Liquor control is to be considered by the Iowa house of representatives Friday, it was learned today.

The house committee on liquor control legislation tomorrow will ask that the members go into a committee of the whole for a thorough discussion of the subject, one of the committeemen said today.

The committee has made several changes in the bill submitted a week ago, embodying the administration's thought on state monopoly of manufacture and sale of wines and hard liquors.

It is proposed to bring out the measure without recommendation and along with it another bill providing for private sale but state control.

Indicted Banker Commits Suicide

AUDUBON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Edward F. Bilharz, Audubon banker indicted on a charge of fraudulent banking, committed suicide at his home here today by drinking poison.

Bilharz, who had been held in the Audubon county jail in default of $10,000 bond, persuaded Sheriff Fred Clemmensen to take him to his home to get some clothing.

While gathering up clothing at his home, Bilharz drank poison and died a few moments later.

Safety Bulletins Ready

DES MOINES (AP)—First bulletins covering safety precautions on civil works projects will be issued Thursday by Charles McFarland, newly appointed safety director. The safety program will be carried out through county administrators and foremen on the various jobs.

Shooting Renewed In Cuban Capital

HAVANA, Dec. 20 (AP)—Widespread shooting broke out in Havana tonight. Snipers perched on roofs and gunmen in speeding automobiles began shooting at soldiers.

The soldiers answered the fire and pedestrians and automobile traffic fled from the streets.

2 Americans Linked With Band of Spies

Espionage, Complicity Charges Cause Detention

PARIS, Dec. 20 (AP)—A young American, accused by police of serving a great international band of spies with Soviet Russian connections, and his wife were held in separate prisons tonight while authorities investigated what they called a wide network of military tipsters.

The man, who said he was Robert Switze, aged 29, and a native of East Orange, N. J., was charged with espionage.

His wife, who identified herself as the former Marjorie Tilley, and who was born in New York in 1911, was accused of complicity in an espionage service reaching even into the ministry of marine.

About to Flee

They were arrested as they were about to flee, police said, before a series of swift raids netting eight other men and women of various nationalities, clandestine radio apparatus, military documents, Communist books, photographic equipment, large sums of money, and papers indicating Communist affiliations.

Held Incommunicado

Police held all incommunicado and, pending an examination by a magistrate, the Switzes were given no opportunity to deny or explain.

Authorities said all indications were that the band worked for the benefit of Soviet Russia.

Russian Chiefs?

The real chiefs of the organization were suspected by police to be two Russians whom Switze was reported to have met frequently and who fled from France in July when they were replaced by two others still at large.

Switze, who police said was always followed by two bodyguards, was first suspected in March. He was called "the aviator."

Three hundred French operatives under Commissioner Gianvetti trailed him and the other alleged members of the band for eight months after they learned of the wide ramifications through Switze's movements.

U. S. Enters Switze Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP) — The state department tonight cabled the American embassy in Paris for complete information on the arrest by French authorities of a couple who described themselves as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switze on charges of espionage.

It was reiterated that the embassy would do whatever might be necessary to protect the legitimate interest of Mr. and Mrs. Switze.

Hoovers Will Spend Christmas at Home, First in Seven Years

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 20 (AP)—For the first time in seven years, the Herbert Hoovers will spend Christmas in their own home here.

The big house on San Juan hill, which has seen but little of its traveled owners since it was built on the Stanford university campus soon after the war, is abuzz with festive preparations. The Yuletide board will see an old fashioned family reunion about the Christmas turkey, to be carved by the former president.

Requests Scaling Down of Capital Obligations, Plus U. S. Financing of Credit

Continuance of Gravel Pit Quiz Still Undecided

House Resolution For Further Probe To Come Up Today

DES MOINES, Dec. 20 (AP)—Whether or not the Iowa house of representatives should continue investigation into the purchase of the Guthrie county gravel pit and the sameness of cement bids remained a moot question with the members tonight.

Resolution Approved

As a committee of the whole, they approved a resolution by Representative Brady of Pottawattamie, carrying an amendment by Representative Koch of Bremer that the attorney general and a committee should further investigate the "apparent irregularity" in the purchase of the pit, and cement bids as they relate to the state's anti-trust laws.

Although partisanship was injected into the debate, party lines split in the vote on the resolution, which was 60 to 43. Of the 50 voting for the resolution, four were Republicans, Representatives Fletcher, Goode, Grau and Hanson of Lyon.

13 Demos, 30 Republicans

Thirteen Democrats joined with the 30 Republican colleagues in voting against it. They were Representatives Beswick, Bouska, Dean, Dole, Falvey, Frizzell, Gallagher, Gissel, Hartman, Hopp, Laughlin, Reed and Wiese.

Representative Bonstetter of Kossuth said tonight that he planned to ask the house to adopt the resolution at Thursday's session. He made such a motion today but on motion of Representative McLean of Marshall the house adjourned.

Four Days Spent

Four days were spent by the house in considering the report of its committee to investigate the commission and hear rebuttals of Fred White, chief engineer, to the charge made. The committee pointed out the sameness in cement bids, charged that the purchase of the gravel pit was unwise, referred to sale of surplus war material and said that snow fences had not been purchased from the lowest bidder.

Shouse, One Of Convicts, Is Captured

PARIS, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP)—Edward Shouse, one of the 10 prisoners who escaped Sept. 26 from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary, was captured here today but at the cost of the life of an Indiana state policeman.

Patrolman Eugene Teague fell with a bullet wound in his head when he made an impetous rush to capture the convict. Capt. Matt Leach of the state police said it had been determined that the bullet came from the gun of a brother officer, Lieut. Chester Butler.

Information had been received that Shouse, who has been linked with the notorious John Dillinger gang, would be in this city today and 20 officers, including Indiana state police, Edgar county, Illinois, deputy sheriffs and Paris police, were awaiting him.

Aware that Detective Sergeant William Shanley of Chicago and Sheriff Jess Sarber of Lima, O., have been killed by desperadoes identified as members of the Dillinger gang, police opened fire as Shouse brought his automobile to a stop in front of a hotel.

Shouse cowered behind the wheel and surrendered when Albert Stepp, a Paris policeman, poked a revolver against his body. His .45 caliber pistol still was in his pocket.

Boston Girl Found Mysteriously Slain

BOSTON, Dec. 20 (AP) — Edith Zuperman, 18, a recent graduate of Boston Girl's high school, was found dead tonight in a bakeshop in which she was employed, a cross cut in her forehead and a bread-knife driven through her throat and into the floor. The bakeshop is on the edge of Chinatown.

Public Threatened By Doles Unless Hours Are Reduced

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—A scaling down of the capital obligations of the railroads and the financing without profit by the government of all credit needed for railroad operations was urged tonight by George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, at the banquet of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

Charity Looms

The more than 1,000 railway workers and labor leaders who attended also heard A. F. Whitney, chairman of the executives and president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, declare that the day may soon come when the majority of American people will be dependent on doles and charity unless shorter working hours are adopted.

Frances M. Perkins, secretary of labor, was another speaker at the banquet.

Top Heavy

Only the drain of a top heavy financial structure prevents the railroads from supporting their workers in decency, Harrison charged.

"There must be a scaling down of the capital obligations of the railroads, especially the fixed charges on funded debt and other obligations that cannot and should not be met," he said.

Non-Profit

He suggested that the government take over the job of financing by setting up a federal railroad credit corporation, operated without profit. Such a corporation, he said, could raise the necessary funds through the sale of bonds at a low rate of interest and reduce the interest payments of the carriers one half.

Harrison declared the railroad problem, at the bottom, was entirely one of finances—"a relic of unwise methods of the past.'

Mortgage Difficulty

"No industry that is mortgaged for 60 per cent of its capitalization," he said, "can survive an economic depression which reduces traffic approximately 50 per cent. Nor can that industry meet its responsibilities to its workers."

Other recommendations of Harrison were for a sound and adequate system of payroll reserves; shortening of the work period; retirement insurance; the abolition of company unions; and greater cooperation between the railroads and their employes.

Shorter Hours, More Pay

The shorter work period and higher rates of pay for all workers were staunchly championed by Whitney.

"The worker of today is much more productive than the worker of yesterday," he asserted. He cited figures to show that substantially the same number of workers produced practically twice the amount of revenues for the railroads in 1929 as they did in 1916.

Patsy Seydel, 4, Iowa City, Dies of Burns

Patsy Ruth Seydel, 4 year old daughter of Robert E. Seydel, 517 Riverside drive, died at 3:30 p.m. yesterday in a local hospital, from burns suffered Tuesday night when her clothes caught fire as she was playing near a fireplace at the home of her aunt in Washington, Ia.

She was born Feb. 21, 1929, at Mason City, and is survived by her father, two sisters, Merle, 7, and Phyllis, 6; and her grandmother, Mrs. J. C. Seydel, all at home.

Private funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Oathout funeral home with the Rev. Harry D. Henry, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Hours Listed For S. U. I. Libraries

University library reading rooms will be open during vacation from 8:30 a.m. to 12 a.m., and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., to enable students to carry on their work.

The same hours will be observed by foreign language, education-philosophy, and medical libraries. Other departmental libraries will be open at special hours, schedules of which are posted on their doors.

Astor Scion and Bride-to-Be

Two of America's oldest and most exclusive families will be united in the forthcoming marriage of John Jacob Astor, 21-year-old scion of the famous Knickerbocker family, whose father, Col. John Jacob Astor, was lost in the Titanic disaster, and Miss Eileen S. S. Gillespie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, of New York and Newport, R. I. The forebears of both parties played a prominent part in early American history. Young Astor, who recently came of age, is heir to a fortune estimated at between $6,000,000 and $40,000,000. He is a conservative young man, devoted to outdoor sports and intensely interested in mechanics. The bride-elect, who made her society debut this month, is also a sports enthusiast. She won several tennis tournaments at Newport last Summer.

NEW YORK (I.I.N.) — With the engagement of John Jacob Astor, scion of the famous Knickerbocker family, to Miss Eileen S. S. Gillespie, bud of a family tree as old and distinguished as that of the Astors, debutantes are crossing "America's most eligible bachelor" off their lists and bemoaning the scarcity of swains with young Astor's recommendations — good looks, breeding and oodles of money.

Perfect Match

Swallowing their disappointment, society matrons, even though possessed of marriageable daughters, are unanimous in declaring the Astor-Gillespie betrothal as the perfect match. Both are young and charming, and, above all, belong to the same social stratum. Then, too, it is first love for both, and even the poets of old, who didn't know much about Freud or such newfangled things as psychology, were of one voice in declaring that "First love is best love."

Astor, who is now 21, is a son of the late Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster, and a lineal descendant of the original John Jacob Astor, who founded the fortunes of the great family. On his coming of age about four months ago the young man came into a fortune estimated variously at from $6,000,000 to $40,000,000; the exact sum never was given out for publication. In addition he has a $3,000,000 trust fund left him by his father.

Astor was educated by private tutors and was graduated from St. George's school, Newport, R. I. Unlike many other young and wealthy Americans, he never has been given to enacting the role of playboy. A remarkably conservative youth, he never made the newspaper spotlight through Broadway escapades or romances with ladies of the ensemble. He likes outdoor sports of all kinds, and his favorite hobby is the study and practice of mechanics.

Kindred Spirit

Miss Gillespie, who made her bow to New York society only a short time ago, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, of New York and Newport. Her engagement to the Astor scion is of interest not only in America, where the linking of big names and big fortunes is always an event, but in England. Miss Gillespie is a niece of Lady Camoys, of London.

Like the forebears of her husband-to-be, the ancestors of the bride-elect played a prominent part in the early history of America. She is a descendant of Roger Williams, who, in 1649, founded Providence, R.I.; is a granddaughter of John Carter Brown who founded Brown university, and a granddaughter, on the paternal side, of Maj. Gen. George Lewis Gillespie who served on Sheridan's staff in the Civil war and received the congressional medal of honor. He was acting secretary of war at the time of President McKinley's assassination.

Miss Gillespie was graduated from Miss Hewitt's school in New York. She is a member of the Junior league and, like her fiance, is an ardent enthusiast of out-door sports. Both she and her younger sister, Miss Phyllis Gillespie, were outstanding tennis players in Newport last summer, when they won several tournaments.

To Wed in Spring

Although no definite date has been set, it is believed young Astor will lead his bride to the altar early next spring. The event promises to be one of the most colorful in recent years, in sharp contrast to the recent marriage of Astor's mother, the former Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor Dick, to Enzo Fiermonte, Italian pugilist, which took place in a New York hospital where the society matron was recuperating from the effects of a broken shoulder.

Employes Of Sidwell Co. Are Honored

Albert Sidwell Host At Annual Christmas Party Tuesday

Employes of the Sidwell Dairy company and their families were honored at the annual Christmas dinner party given by Albert B. Sidwell at Red Ball inn Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Red tapers and poinsettias decorated the tables set for the 100 persons who attended the affair. A special program, group singing, talks, bunco, dancing and the exchange of gifts formed the evening's entertainment. Jerry Hall served as toastmaster.

Singing

Celeste Fuhrmann sang two numbers, "O Holy Night" and "The Birthday of a King." She was accompanied by her sister, Zita Ann Fuhrmann, who also played for the group singing of Christmas carols.

Betty and Dorothy Cole, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Cole, presented four feature dances. A tap dance was given by Wilbur Wallace, A3 of Washington, D. C.

Santa Claus

Talks were made by Mr. Sidwell and Irving Weber. Merle Heabner, acting as Santa Claus, distributed the gifts.

Music for dancing was furnished by Parizek's orchestra, and four bunco prizes were awarded. Al Crawford and Mrs. John Breese won the two first prizes. Consolation honors went to John Breese and Mrs. George Maxey.

Guests

Among the guests present were E. B. McLain of Chicago, accountant of the International Milk Dealers association, eight employes of Sidwell's Dairy company at West Branch, and eight employes of the retail store in Cedar Rapids.

Those from Cedar Rapids were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedell and son, Bennett; Joseph Stepanak, Ray Smart, Alfred Miller, Carl Valesky, William Stusak, and Robert Eckhart. Guests from West Branch were: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunter and sons, Kenneth and Bobby; George Lathrop and son, Kenneth; and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gray.

Iowa City Guests

Iowa City guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schell, Frances Goulacher, Mr. and Mrs. Weber and son, Willis; Mr. and Mrs. Al Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Rosenberger and son, Winfield, Jr.; Olive Fuhrmann.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. Hall and daughter, Doris; Gerald Griffin, Jack Hudgins, Keith Bush, Floyd McDowell, Kenneth Higgins, Aubrey White and children, Mr. and Mrs. Heabner, Mrs. Emma Heabner, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Garwood, Roe Clute and children, Dorothy and Rose, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Weeber, Mrs. Ed Weber, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and son, Richard; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Fordyce, Mr. and Mrs. Maxey and son, George, Jr.; Mrs. Morris Ward and son, Dick; Mrs. Nettie Huber, Grace Huber.

Leona Amelon

Leona Amelon, Mr. and Mrs. Breese, Glenn Swalls and son, Larry; Russell Anderson, Celeste and Zita Ann Fuhrmann, Bernard Davis, Betty and Dorothy Cole, Mrs. Florence Crawford, and Mr. and Mrs. Abner Rockwell and children.

Forming the committee in charge were Mrs. Crawford, Olive Fuhrmann, and Mr. Hall.

Christmas Music Features Meeting Of P. T. A. Today

Christmas music will feature the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Horace Mann school this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The fifth and sixth grade glee club will sing "Silent Night" by Gruber, "A Christmas Hymn" by Praetorius, and "Deck the Hall," an old Welsh carol. Phyllis Lehmer, music instructor will direct the program.

Mrs. Joseph Kanak, president of the association, will report on the P.T.A. convention at Marshalltown.

Students Complete Tour of Coal Mines

Roy J. Diwoky of Council Bluffs and Henry A. Heiss of Sterling, Ill., graduates in chemistry, returned Tuesday after a tour of 19 coal mines in Appanoose to Boone counties.

Samples were gathered from each mine for work being done in chemical engineering, part of which is in cooperation with the bureau of mines at Pittsburgh.

Foreign Relations Study Club Traces German Revolution

Reports of Events Are Made by 5 Club Members

Five members of the Foreign Relations Study club traced the events of the German revolution in chronological order at the club meeting held yesterday at 3:30 p.m. in the women's lounge of Iowa Union.

The club is under the auspices of the international relations committee of the Iowa City chapter of the American Association of University Women. In tracing the events, the members gave reports on articles taken from "Current History," and a pro-German pamphlet, "The New Germany Desires Work and Peace," and on chapters of Calvin B. Hoover's "Germany Enters the Third Reich."

Mrs. W. H. Lovell

The first report, by Mrs. W. H. Lovell, concerned the assumption of control by Hitler. "Before he gained control of the Reichstag, there were only three national-socialists in the cabinet, and most of the members were ultra-conservatives. Then Hitler made a shrewd bargain with the social democrats, who thought they had outwitted him," said Mrs. Lovell.

He obtained important posts for his men and gained control of the police. During the staging of political rallies, he issued "sugar-coated" statements which threatened dire consequences if his proposals were not carried out. Before the election of March 5, the two other important parties in Germany were allowed no electoral propaganda. Following the election, a reign of terror ensued, not as drastic as similar revolutions in other countries, Mrs. Swindal said.

Mrs. T. S. Hill

Proclamations and speeches of prominent Germans formed the basis for the report of Mrs. T. S. Hill. In a proclamation signed by President von Hindenburg and Hitler, the condition and standing of the country was attributed to 14 years of strife. Mrs. Hills' central them was that the spirit of the German people must be revived, and that the country could be helped by a four-year plan involving reorganization of the farmers and the combatting of unemployment.

In two speeches to the Reich, Hitler summed up the condition of Germany and said that Germany's war guilt had been overestimated. His program for reconstruction called for the four year plan.

Mrs. E. L. DeGowin

According to Mrs. E. L. DeGowin's report, the Hitler government has had the support of the heavy industrialists because of its power to keep the people in check. Mrs. DeGowin also said that Von Papen used his influence in favor of Hitler before the dictator actually assumed control.

Mrs. E. A. Gilmore

The subject for Mrs. E. A. Gilmore's report was "The first result of Nazi dictatorship." After the actual revolution in Germany, the persecution that followed disturbed the government. Since the other nations were boycotting German goods, the persecution was stopped in order to protect the country's interests, she reported.

The Nazis also excluded communists from the Reich and passed an act enabling the present cabinet to promulgate laws without consent of the Reich. The act is to be effective until April 1, 1937, unless the present government loses control before that time.

Mrs. H. A. Mattill

Taken from "Current History," Mrs. H. A. Mattill's report concerned the strong-arm methods Hitler used to control the March election. Newspapers and political meetings were suppressed; Prussia fell into the hands of the dictator and courts and committees refused to work against the Nazis, she said. The radio was reserved for Nazis. After the Reich fire, blamed on communists, von Hindenburg signed a declaration which led to martial law.

The club has been studying the German revolution at all of its meetings so far. The next meeting will be held Jan. 10.

5 Day Recess Approved By Iowa Senate

Concurrent Resolution Goes to House For Consideration

DES MOINES, Dec. 20 (AP)—Adjournment of the special assembly session from Dec. 22 to 10 a.m., Dec. 27, today was approved by the state senate in acting on a concurrent resolution which now goes to the house for consideration.

As introduced by Senator Paul Schmidt of Iowa City the resolution originally provided for a holiday only until Dec. 26, the day after Christmas, but a day longer was allowed by adoption of an amendment presented by Senator E. J. Wenner of Black Hawk.

Efforts to obtain a longer vacation were defeated through the rejection of several substitute proposals. A resolution signed by 13 senators proposing Jan. 3 as the date for reconvening was rejected 17 to 27.

The latter resolution stated that the legislators and employes, except members of the custodian's force whose presence was required in Des Moines, would receive no pay during the interval.

In its afternoon session the senate approved two other resolutions, including one by Senator Joe R. Frailey of Ft. Madison to provide for the printing of proceedings of the repeal convention as a supplement to the senate journal.

The other resolution, sponsored by Senator D. Myron Tripp of Newton, provides for the appointment of an interim committee of six members, three appointed by the president of the senate and three by the speaker of the house, to study rules and procedure of the assembly and report by Dec. 1, 1934.

The number of self-supporting students at the University of Wisconsin has fallen off perceptibly this year, according to the secretary of the student employment bureau.

Per cent increase in number of kilowatt hours you can use under the new rates for the same amount of money as under the old rates	20%	25%	28%	60%	70%

It is estimated that the new electric rate schedule will effect an annual saving of approximately $49,000.00 for the customers of this company.

Individual monthly savings will amount to from 12.5% to 30.4%, depending on quantity used.

This is in addition to the saving to the customer brought about on September 1, 1933, through the transfer by the federal government of the 3% excise tax on electricity from the customer to the company.

As to just how the new rates will work out in your case—call us.

We will gladly inform you of the number of kilowatt hours you use—and the amount—based on such use—your bills for electricity will be reduced.

Better still drop in at our office and ask for Mr. Gipple. He will be pleased to explain the new reduced rate schedule in detail and show you the savings which will result in your case.

No need to delay. Do it today. And remember, please—at the new low rates, you will receive the same high grade service.

Holding Its Own

IT MAY WELL be a source of gratification to University of Iowa officials to learn that in these troublous times the university has managed to hold its own with other educational institutions in the United States, and even to gain in position of several units.

The annual report covering conditions in 438 approved colleges and universities for the period ended Nov. 1, shows that the University of Iowa ranked tenth in enrollment among state universities. The advance from the position of eleventh to tenth was made in a year which saw heavy decreases in enrollment in almost all institutions.

The colleges of pharmacy and dentistry held seventh place, and several other professional colleges ranked high. The 1933 summer session, despite a decrease of about 800 students, ranked eighth in the country.

This should be gratifying to university officials, not because it represents quantity enrollment, but because it represents the success of the efforts which they have been making in the last two years here at Iowa.

The depression, and its consequent enforced idleness meant a chance for educators to extend educational opportunities to the young victims of economic conditions.

Iowa took the lead. Opportunities for employment of students were created, and an employment bureau established. Cooperative dormitories were set up, and education was made available to even the poorest students. Success depended upon the students who took advantage of these opportunities.

Now the results are in, and they are more than satisfying. It marks a triumph for the Iowa plan.

CWA vs. The Dole

CRITICS OF President Roosevelt's civil works program have taken a keen enjoyment in pointing out that the civil works is a huge system of government dole, that the wages paid are too high, that it spells ruin for many private industries.

What they have failed to consider is the vast good which the program is doing. Admitting that it is a plan of government aid in that some of the work done is not absolutely necessary, admitting that the government is paying a wage which is in many cases beyond that of private industry, which seeks always its own advancement at the expense of labor, there is still much good in the plan—benefits which make it a sound and constructive project.

One has only to compare the plan with the British dole system to see how vastly different, how much better it is.

One can hardly deny that the re-employment of several millions of persons has been a boon to industry in the United States. Buying power, long at low ebb, has risen so much that cities throughout the country are reporting their briskest business since the boom days of 1928.

Denim clad men and shabby women, waiting patiently in long lines at CWA headquarters, are happy for the first time in many years—happy not only because once again do they have the money to buy necessities of life, but because they have earned that money honestly by their own manual labor. How different from the lazy shiftlessness, the sham, and disgrace which have surrounded the British dole system.

Of course all this must be paid for in the future. But it will be paid when America will perhaps be better able to pay. Meanwhile it is accomplishing work which is of real and lasting value to the nation. Ugly spots are being beautified, dirt is being cleaned, public works of permanent value are being built.

If the CWA is a dole under camouflage, as its critics have claimed, it is the most useful, the most beneficial to laborers and the public, and the least offensive, plan which has yet been devised.

Christmas for the Air Folk

EEN old Solomon Owl and Blacky Crow, who so avowedly scorn the superstitions of men, will have to admit that there is a Santa Claus after all, for there will be, not one, but twenty in airplanes this year in northern New Jersey. They will scatter six tons of grain over an area of 2,500 miles for the birds' Christmas feast.

Blacky, shrewdly versed in the ways of human creatures, will probably conclude that the depression had something to do with it, and maybe he'll be right. Perhaps this depression has taught us all to know how the other fellow feels with an empty stomach and an empty larder.

Shirt Fronts for Bobbies

(From the New York Herald-Tribune)

Ever sticklers as are the English for the masculine proprieties, it has now been ordered by the highest London police authorities that the officer who would get ahead in his profession must be in full possession of a dinner jacket and its accessories (before the fact, presumably), from patent pumps to opera hat or Gibus, and that the larger and more varied his general wardrobe the more certain may he be of assignment to important and delicate cases. Just as an actor is expected to be proprietor of a "gentleman's wardrobe," including sports, formal and business attire, so now will your ambitious bobby see to it that when he comes up for examination he will make no mistake between a field guest's costume and that of a hunt member and will not commit the solecism of wearing a bowler with tails.

These colorful and even amusing details of the grim saga of crime detection and prevention in England will seem, perhaps, a little less humorous if one recalls the infrequent attempts on the part of officers in our own country to affect the manners of a more elaborate world than that which constitutes their customary midst. Federal prohibition agents when arrayed in purple and fine rented linen for the evening rated the sneezes and jeers of the most naive speakeasy doormen. Even the incomparable Moe and Izzy were better when disguised as waiters than as gilded college youths. And, while exceptions, naturally, exist, there are few enough Philo Vances on any American police force. Simply from their longer experience with such things the English know that there are times for good manners and personable appearance even in the business of catching counterfeiters and detecting murder.

GOOD MORNING

Japan's happy faculty for choosing ambassadors to Washington with the rare ability to make lasting friendships has contributed more than a little to smoothing our relations with the seething little island through difficult times.

Hiroshi Saito, who will soon take over the post recently vacated by Mr. Katsuji Debuchi, is well fitted to carry on the tradition of friendliness fostered by his predecessors. Although a young man—he is only 47—Mr. Saito is one of Japan's leading experts on Japanese-American relations. He held an important post at the London Naval conference and has many friends in the United States, having served as counsel-general in New York and as charge d'affaires in Washington. His elevation to the ambassadorship is from the post as head of the Japanese legation in the Netherlands.

Once again little Finland has, without flurry and without a whine, paid her semi-annual installment on her debt to the United States. Once again she is the only one of our European debtors to refuse to default.

One highly worthwhile task being undertaken by the Civil Works administration is the national real estate inventory recently authorized. It's first objective, of course, is to provide employment to some 10,900 persons, but it also will be of real benefit from both the business and the social viewpoint.

Questions tentatively scheduled for the survey would determine the number of people in typical cities living in dwellings unfit for habitation and would give a check on the number of living quarters lacking sewerage facilities, the degree to which structures are fire-resistant, heating facilities, etc.

The results will be of equal importance to real estate interests, to manufacturers, and to the social scientist. Perhaps we will learn just how widespread are the manifestations of the high standard of living of which we have been so proud.

The turmoil between Bolivia and Paraguay over the wilderness of the Gran Chaco Boreal is a perfect example in miniature of the futility of war. At midnight Tuesday, when the ragged armies ceased firing to begin an 11 day truce during the Christmas season, the count of the dead stood at 300,000 and nothing had yet been decided.

The argument is over a strip of jungle wilderness which Paraguay claims belongs to her and which Bolivia wants because it would give her a river outlet to the sea. If neither government possessed an army the matter could be quickly settled to the satisfaction of both nations over the conference table. But both have armies, and what are armies for if not to settle arguments?

The prediction was made not long ago in this column that the seadromes for which the public works administration has allotted money for experimental building would be obsolete before they could be put into operation and that dirigibles probably would take first place in transoceanic air transport.

Tuesday Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, announced that his company is ready to establish a trans-Pacific dirigible line to carry passengers, freight and mail between California and Hawaii as soon as necessary legislation can be passed by congress.

Iowa City can well be proud of the share it is playing in this state's civil affairs. The election Tuesday of William J. White, city assessor, as president of the State Association of Assessors merely swells an already long list of local men who are leaders in the state. —Don Pryor

BEHIND THE SCENES - IN HOLLYWOOD -

STUDIO GOSSIP — SCREEN COMMENT

HOLLYWOOD — So far as is known, singer Jeanette MacDonald and crooner Rudy Vallee have nothing against each other, but their two mutts staged the film colony's wildest dog-fight — and right in the lobby of the fashionable Beverly Wilshire hotel.

It all happened when Jeanette, on her way to MGM to talk about "The Merry Widow," met Rudy entering the hotel.

Their two purps—Jeanette's English sheep dog, "Captain," and Rudy's half-chow-half-St. Bernard, "Windy"—took one look at each other.

It was a case of spontaneous combustion.

For 10 minutes the battle raged. Clerks ran from behind the desk, the late breakfast crowd dashed from the dining room. Finally, a group of bell-boys moved in on the combatants and pulled them apart.

The net result was that Jeanette's "Captain" had to be taken to the dog hospital for repairs.

"It really was a draw," she said, "but I doubt if the management of the hotel will ask a rematch."

If Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., really wants to fool anybody about Gertrude Lawrence, he ought to cultivate a poker face when he reads those cablegrams which are delivered, at least once and sometimes twice a day, to the "Success Story" set at RKO.

Also that proud look when he looks at the gold cigaret lighter with the initials "G. L."

Thanks for all those letters suggesting a new name for Ginger Rogers—although I meant for you to write the star herself at RKO. After a process of elimination, Ginger is now considering three names: Rochelle, Lela, and Virginia.

Lela is her mother's name and Ginger rather favors it. But her mother insists on Virginia, which is Ginger's own name.

However, the final choice may be something else entirely, so if you have any good ideas write them.

No woman is more particular than George Raft about the color scheme of costumes. Unable to find the right shade of hat the other day, Georgie sent a sample of a blue-gray suit and asked a prominent hat company to match it.

They've just written back thanking him for suggesting a new shade.

QUICK GLIMPSES

Has anything been printed about Jack Laltue's narrow escape in an automobile accident? The star received severe cuts about the head and lost much blood. Physicians had to shave off part of his hair, so he will play his role in "Good Dame" with his hat on.

Keeping Up With the New Books

By JOHN SELBY

"WHAT ME BEFELL," by Jules Jusserand; (Houghton, Mifflin, Boston).

NEW YORK—Memoirs seem to have an increasing audience in this country, one that some time may be as large proportionately as the English audience.

The number of Americans interested probably would increase more rapidly if more books like Jules Jusserand's "What Me Befell" were published. And it is a little sad to reflect that M. Jusserand did not live to finish the book just mentioned, which breaks off where death reached him. The publishers end the volume with a facsimile of the last page of the manuscript.

From that the reader learns one quite interesting fact, which is that the former ambassador from France to the United States was at least bilingual. "What Me Befell" was written in English, and good English at that.

It is M. Jusserand's story from boyhood to the end of Theodore Roosevelt's second administration, a career somewhat lacking in swashbuckling romance and such, but full of honest accomplishment and apparently full of honest observation as well. The distinguished Frenchman had the trick of seizing upon the characteristics that differentiate us, and reproducing them clearly. He might very well have had a career as a novelist.

He exercises his gift upon an extraordinarily varied assortment of humanity, perhaps most interesting being Roosevelt himself. There is a great deal about the former President; some is of historical interest, but the part most readers will enjoy most has to do with Roosevelt's pleasures.

One of them was walking; it became an honor of the first water to be asked to accompany him in his rambles, but it was an honor that cost dearly on occasion. "Teddy" used to bring back his walking party, sometimes, with their clothes literally torn off their backs. He had a habit of walking through brambles, and up the faces of cliffs

Inflationists Prepare For Battle Soon

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON—There is a gathering of forces in Washington, as members of congress reassemble, that may foreshadow a campaign on monetary policy next year dwarfing in bitterness and effect the great free silver struggle of 1896.

Whether actual shaping of the issue is to come when congress convenes rests exclusively with President Roosevelt. He holds all the cards, will hold them until a new congress has been elected.

Senator Elmer Thomas scents the battle from afar. Stirred by rumors of impending dollar stabilization at a conservative level, he burst out with predictions of a conflict "that may disrupt the Democratic party."

We (the inflation bloc) have the votes to pass some form of mandatory inflation," he said; "but not to override a veto."

Nobody disagrees about that. Even Senator Dave Reed, Pennsylvania Republican and as far to the right on the inflation issue as Thomas is to the left, agrees there are substantial inflation majorities in both houses.

Hasn't Used Power

Armed by the Thomas farm act amendment with czar-like authority over the currency, President Roosevelt has never used it. Departure from the gold standard, and the gold buying device were not based on that legislative grant.

Looking back to circumstances under which the Thomas amendment was conceived and voted, it appears Mr. Roosevelt then feared just such a contingency as Thomas now pictures: a monetary policy conflict.

The president inspired the Thomas amendment as a substitute for seemingly certain mandatory inflation. The conflict on that, or over a presidential veto, would have endangered other elements of the recovery program. To avert it the president asked and received the currency powers he has not used.

President Hopeful

It is a reasonable assumption that the president then hoped, and still hopes, that a sustained march toward economic revival would come out of other moves, and make resort to any such inflation as the Thomas amendment authorized unnecessary.

Mr. Roosevelt's deaf ear to pleas for word of his purposes to restore "business confidence" may be explained by this situation.

He faces a graver problem than setting a desirable figure for dollar stabilization. As Senator Thomas says, merely a definite disclosure of the objective of the gold manipulation moves might precipitate an intersectional war on that issue alone, which, it is pointed out, certainly would impede and possibly wreck the whole recovery effort. An administration silver gesture, it is agreed, might defer the clash.

William Petersen Writes Story of Early Railroads

Palimpsest Publishes Fifth in Series Of Articles

"Once let the iron horse slake his thirst in the Mississippi and congress will send him on to the ocean," and so the story, "The Milwaukee comes," is told by William J. Petersen, research associate of the State Historical society, in the December issue of The Palimpsest, monthly publication of the State Historical society, which will be out today.

This is the fifth of a series of articles by Mr. Petersen, on early railroads which helped to open up the land that is now the state of Iowa.

Started in 1850

The territory of Wisconsin, created in 1836, from which Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and a generous share of the Dakotas was carved, had a population of 22,218 when it became a territory. During the year 1836 there was a meeting in the "mushroom village of Milwaukee" of prominent men interested in building a railroad from that town to the Mississippi.

Two thousand dollars was appropriated the same year for a survey by congress, but an adverse report was turned in by the engineer who made it. Asa Whitney made a survey in 1845 and pronounced the feat possible. The news spread like wildfire, and in 1850 work was begun.

First Train—1857

On April 15, 1857 the first train steamed into Prairie du Chien, the western terminus of the Milwaukee and Mississippi railroad. The 235 miles of railroad was constructed at a cost of $6,841,627.11 and "is today a segment of a greater system—the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad company."

The editor is Prof. John Ely Briggs of the political science department. His "Comment by the editor" is a feature of each issue.

An index of all items for the year is also included in this issue, the last one in this year's volume.

Contributors

Contributors for 1933 were: James B. Weaver, Prof. Harrison J. Thornton of the history department, Mr. Petersen, Jacob A. Swisher, research associate of the State Historical society; Prof. Louis Pelzer of the history department; Hazel E. Hosmer, Ben Hur Wilson, Ruth A. Gallaher of the State Historical society; Virginia Maxson, J. M. D. Burrows, Dorothy Wagner Regur, Helen B. Wyman, and Prof. George P. Robeson of the political science department.

New Book List

New books received at university libraries during the last week are as follows: "A Handbook of NRA Laws, Regulations, and Codes"; "Whiteoaks of Jalna," De La Roche; "My American Friends," Jacks; "The American Way," Looker; "The Roosevelt Program," Rodgers; "A World That Can Not Be Shaken," Tittle; "War Memoirs of David Lloyd George, 1915-1916."

Shortest—

But Tomorrow Will Be The Longest Day of Year.

Today is the shortest day of the year; tomorrow will be the longest day, says Prof. C. C. Wylie, university astronomer.

Old Sol will reverse his apparent journey southward today. Sunrise will occur at 7:30 this morning, sunset at 4:38 this evening, making a period of daylight nine hours and eight minutes long. This is three and a half seconds shorter than yesterday, and three-fourths of a second shorter than tomorrow will be.

Curiously enough, according to Professor Wylie, the sun does not set the earliest or rise the latest on the solstice. The earliest sunsets occurred from Dec. 4 to 14, and the latest sunrises will occur from Jan. 1 to 4.

Using mean or astronomical time rather than apparent (clock) time, sun noon is later from day to day near the winter solstice by about 30 seconds. In mid-November sun noon occurs at about 16 minutes before 12 a.m.; in February it falls about 14 minutes after 12 a.m. This accounts for the phenomenon that the evenings are actually getting longer by Dec. 21.

It also accounts for the fact that tomorrow as a solar day (sun noon to sun noon) will be the longest day of the year—29.98 seconds longer than 24 hours.

Better Stuttering Now Taught At Speech Clinic Laboraory

That old adage, "Learn to do the right thing in the right way," is now being applied at the speech clinic laboratories to stutterers who are encouraged to stutter correctly rather than react to the defect with strain and embarrassment, according to Wendell Johnson of the speech department.

Voluntary stuttering is a new method of treatment of this affliction, Mr. Johnson declared, but during the brief period of this experiment considerable evidence has developed to warrant its possibilities. This type of response implies reaction to a spasm without strain or excess effort.

Most important in voluntary stuttering is the necessity of maintaining a normal bodily condition which enables the brain to respond adequately in the control of the muscles. A certain attitude must be cultivated towards this imperfection and the stutterer should be willing to stutter openly, freely, audibly, and without effort to conceal the spasm.

The chief advantage of this type of treatment as compared with the old contention and practice, which held that the disorder should be corrected by a determination to keep from stuttering, is in its opposition to fear and trembling. Mr. Johnson noted that a person is not afraid of performing something that he is perfectly willing to do, and in the development of this attitude pertinent to stuttering, the body overcomes violent disturbances that accompany fear. Conditions that interfere with the efficiency of the brain are thus improved upon, resulting in better speech.

Method Better

Perhaps the outstanding reason for desiring to overcome this defect, Mr. Johnson asserted, is the intense desire possessed by the stutterer to be capable of approaching speaking situations without exhausting emotional turmoil. The adoption of the proper attitude as devised by this new method makes possible speaking with this defect in a manner that is embarrassing neither to the stutterer nor the listener.

Headed for Separate Goals

DOUG and MARY

"After divorce—what?" Hollywood gossips are asking, referring to the suit filed against Douglas Fairbanks in Los Angeles by Mary Pickford. Pickfair will probably be sold and it is believed Mary may seek forgetfulness in a return to the screen in an attempt to win back the place she once held as "America's Sweetheart." Doug, it is said, may become a permanent resident of England, it being rumored that he may even become Sir Douglas Fairbanks. The American D'Artagnan has been organizing a $5,000,000 film company in the English capital since last August. In London, Doug is something of a social lion, his friendship with the Prince of Wales being his passport to the most exclusive drawing-rooms in the land.

LOS ANGELES, (I.I.N.)—Now that the once idyllic Pickford-Fairbanks romance is inevitably headed to disaster on divorce reef, following filing of suit here by "America's Sweetheart," filmland's gossips are busy with predictions as to what the future course of the partners in what was termed Hollywood's "ideal marriage" will be when they have severed the tie that binds.

Trouper Traditions

One thing is certain, sob-sister tales to the contrary, neither Miss Pickford nor Douglas Fairbanks will begin wearing sackcloth and ashes in vain regrets for dream castles that toppled.

The traditions of the world of make-believe are bound up too much with both their lives to allow their parting to wreck their respective careers. It would be virtually safe to bet that the show will go on and that time will mend whatever hurt may be caused to either by the wreck of their dreams.

Mary is still admired and loved by millions of movie fans, whose adulation won her the title of "America's Sweetheart." Although her appearances on the screen have been rare during these last few years, it is believed that she will throw herself whole heartedly into the work when the divorce courts have granted her freedom. Thus in the employment of her talent she may forget, or, at least, remember without bitterness, the shattering of her romance.

Doug the Enigma

It is much more difficult to prognosticate as to Fairbank's future course. He may indulge in the craving for travel, which more than any other cause contributed to the wreck of his marriage. For the last few years, Doug has been almost a stranger at Pickfair, the $500,000 mansion jointly owned by him and Mary in the exclusive residential section of Beverly Hills. The South Seas, Africa, Asia and other remote corners of the earth have an irresistible attraction for the "Peter Pan of the Movies." It was his long absences from home on these trips to out-of-the-way places that first introduced the marital discord that climaxed in separation and now in divorce action.

Rumor has been persistent for many months that Doug would marry a titled Englishwoman. The gossips mention many prominent names, well-known in London society in connection with these rumors, but no action of Doug's could be taken as confirmation.

The American screen star is popular in exclusive society circles in the English capital. The Prince of Wales is listed among his close friends, which fact automatically opens the doors and drawing-rooms of English nobility to the dashing American D'Artagnan.

Whispers of Title

Among the reports that have trickled into Hollywood from time to time was one to the effect that Doug was contemplating taking up permanent residence in England and becoming a naturalized subject of his majesty George V. But this report is at variance with Fairbanks' known intention of building a new mansion to replace Pickfair, deeded over to Mary, on his Rancho Zorro, in California.

However, it is virtually certain that Doug will confine his future screen activities to London, where he has been organizing a $5,000,000 film producing company. The studios of the organization are to be at Elstree, the British equivalent of Hollywood.

Too, there have been whispers that the bestowal of a knighthood on the American film star by King George is not a remote probability, so the day may not be far distant when he may become Sir Douglas Fairbanks. Meanwhile, enjoying the winter sports at St. Moritz, Switzerland, Fairbanks maintains a "dignified silence" on Mary's divorce action, but it is believed he has no intention of contesting the suit.

From Other Fields

Phi Delts are warned to beware the brothers from Canada! It seems that two young men, giving assumed names, visited the Phi Delta Theta house at Northwestern university recently, introduced themselves as Phi Delt brothers from Canada, gave the fraternity grip and password, and were duly invited to spend the night at the house. There was a great deal of consternation the next morning, when three bona fide brothers, who had given up their room and slept on the couch, awoke to find the guests gone, and with them about $107 worth of clothing!

Do students think, or do they just vote? That seems to be the question which is being thrashed out pro and con on the University of Wisconsin campus, following a student conference on war and peace. A few skeptics are of the opinion that the student vote against war and the instruments of war was cast without due thought. But for the most part students and faculty members are convinced that those who voted against support of armed intervention did so with mature judgment.

At Ohio State university about 70 faculty members are looking with guilty mien at their students and are trying to live down a certain banquet. The banquet was given several days ago for two professors who were graduated to the rank of professor-emeritus. In a jocose mood the banqueters presented the degrees: One diploma was adorned with blissful cherubs and pink ribbons, and the other diploma, conferred upon an engineering professor, was a portrait of Prof. William D. Turnbull, junior dean of the college, with his bald pate accentuated. In this and other ways the "boys" of the faculty whooped it up, and now they're trying to live it down.

Members of the Student Union at Purdue university are playing Santa Claus. About 100 children from various orphan homes in Lafayette, Ind., were entertained by the Union members in the ballroom of their Union last Sunday. Besides the figurative Santa Clauses, one real St. Nick, with whiskers and all, appeared to present gifts to each child. And food—just what the heart of every child calls for: Ice cream cones, candy, and apples!

Technograph, University of Illinois engineering publication, is going the way of most college engineering magazines. It is forsaking engineering, and going in for humor Walter Winchell, and student questionnaires. With the last issue the magazine, as a serious and technical publication, went out of existence. Some of the things promised for the next issue are "a dirt column, to throw some light upon the night life of engineers," non-technical features, and the result of a questionnaire submitted to students on some question or other. I may be a cynic, but I'm still of the opinion that writers would do well to give unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto Winchell the things that are Winchell's.

The University of Virginia was defeated by John Hopkins university in what is believed to have been the first chess match ever contested via radio last Saturday.

Probe Into History of Music Building Reveals Varied Past

By EDMUND LINEHAN

A cement shelf in the south wall of the old music building—the old music building, if you didn't know, is the red brick structure that is surrounded by Old Capitol, natural science, grounds and buildings department, and university hall—tells a mute story in the history of science.

Once, back in the earlier days of the university, that shelf was the resting place of an instrument called a heliostat. The heliostat consisted of a mirror, regulated by cogs and springs and clocks, which followed the sun around its daily course and reflected its rays into the physics and chemistry laboratory, which at that time was housed on the first floor of that building.

No Electric Lights

That was, of course, before the advent of the incandescent lamp, and sunlight was essential for the carrying on of experiments in the laboratory. The instrument, properly regulated for use in this latitude, picked up the earliest rays of the morning sun and, guided by a synchronized clock, moved as the sun moved throughout the day, so that sunshine was always available.

At that time, as Prof. G. W. Stewart of the physics department points out, there was greater use of nature's aids than there is today. Now our laboratories are flooded with artificial electric light. The heliostat is nearly obsolete—but not quite. While its use here is only occasional, it is still being employed in some other laboratories.

Varied Career

The old music building, originally known as north hall, has had a varied career. Begun during the waning days of the Civil war—its cornerstone reads "July 1, 1865"—it is, next to Old Capitol, the oldest building on the University of Iowa campus.

It was at first the home of the "department of natural philosophy," which included both physics and chemistry, and the university chapel. The chapel was on the second floor, and regular student worship was held every morning. There was none of the "let me sleep, my first class is at 11" stuff in those days. Attendance at the 15-minute service was required by the curriculum.

Physics

Laboratory work by students in physics was begun at Iowa in 1869, the same year it was introduced at the Boston Institute of Technology. A periodical, the American Scientific Monthly, was started here in 1870. It was succeeded in the following year by a quarterly publication, the School Laboratory of Physical Science. Work in physical science at Iowa became internationally known, being commended several times by the English journal, Nature.

The laboratory of physical science occupied the entire first floor of the building. It had four uses: lecture room, recitation room, chemical laboratory, and physical laboratory.

Many Uses

In time the departments of chemistry and physics became distinct and were moved to separate quarters in their own buildings. Old north hall was open for other business.

Besides the department of natural philosophy and the chapel, the building has housed in its day many other departments, including the library, the home economics department, the music department, and University theater.

Home for "Transients"

The building today has become the home of temporarily homeless departments. The music department used it until the new music studio building was erected. University theater is using it until the projected fine arts building is completed.

As Arthur A. Smith, superintendent of grounds and buildings, philosophizes," the simplest way for a department to get a new building is to move into the old music building. It seems to work."

Two Graduates Compile Index For Publications

A topical directory of the publications of the Mississippi Valley Historical association on the history of the west has been prepared by two graduate students in the history department. This manuscript of about 100 pages has been compiled by Charles H. Norby and Walker D. Wyman.

The directory is a topical guide to the first 19 volumes of the Review of the Mississippi Valley Historical association, and of the 10 volumes of its proceedings. The main fields of western history are classified here and supported by references to the geographic provinces in those fields.

Iowans May Compete for Fellowships

Columbia University Offers Aid To Graduates

Graduates of the University of Iowa are eligible to compete with graduates from other colleges and universities in Iowa for Lydia C. Roberts graduate fellowships, for which application must be made to the secretary of Columbia university before March 1, 1934.

Lydia C. Roberts fellowships are annual awards given to residents of Iowa for graduate work at Columbia university in New York city.

Besides being an Iowan by birth and having received a degree from an Iowa institution, applicants must be in need of financial assistance for their advanced work.

Holders of the fellowships are not allowed to study law, medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, or theology except as part of a program of study leading to a degree besides those granted in any one of these subjects.

Upon the completion of his work at Columbia university, each of the fellows is expected to fulfill his promise of returning to Iowa for a period of two years, during which time he must agree not to accept another fellowship or scholarship.

Application blanks may be secured from the secretary of Columbia university, New York city.

Probably the reason Purdue university never missed its signals was due to the fact that 34 members of the squad are majoring in mathematics.

IOWA CITY, IOWA THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1933

Iowa Baseball Team Will Play Twenty Six Games This Season

Nine Games To be Played At Iowa City

Fifteen Non-Conference Foes Added to Title Opponents

One of the longest intercollegiate schedules in Hawkeye history, including the best Western conference card in six seasons, awaits the University of Iowa's 1934 baseball team.

Coach Otto Vogel has announced the scheduling of 26 games, 11 of them with Big Ten teams, and said that at least three more non-conference contests would be added.

Six Title Games Here

Six of the conference championship games will be played on the home diamond, but 12 of the 15 non-conference games already booked will occur on opponents' fields, the card shows.

Iowa's 1932 and 1933 teams played only five conference games, but the 1934 schedule is only one game short of the maximum league number. The Hawkeyes will play games on two successive days with Chicago, Northwestern, and Minnesota here; with Wisconsin and Minnesota away, and will meet Michigan once at Ann Arbor.

Close With Michigan Trip

Instead of a trip through Michigan in April which opened the 1933 season, the Iowans will travel to the Wolverine state for the five closing games of the campaign, four of them occurring after the semester's end.

Here's the schedule to date:

March 28—Monmouth at Monmouth, Ill.

April 2—Bradley Tech at Peoria.

April 13-14—Iowa State at Iowa City (tentative).

April 20-21—Iowa State at Ames (tentative).

April 27-28—Chicago at Iowa City.

May 3—Carleton at Northfield.

May 4-5—Minnesota at Minneapolis.

May 11-12—Northwestern at Iowa City.

May 18-19—Notre Dame at South Bend.

May 21—Carleton at Iowa City (tentative).

May 24—Luther at Decorah (tentative).

May 25-26—Wisconsin at Madison.

May 30-31—Minnesota at Iowa City.

June 2—Michigan at Ann Arbor.

June 6-7—Western State Teachers at Kalamazoo, Mich.

June 8-9—Michigan State at East Lansing.

Faculty Five Battles Blue

University High Works Hard for St. Pat's Contest Friday

University high's basketball team has just about decided that its impending contest with the Irish from St. Pat's will furnish plenty stiff competition and so are going about preparations for the official season opener with more than ordinary vim and vigor.

These last few nights have found various independent fives from about town visiting the river school gym for the purpose of providing stiff scrimmage sessions for the Blue.

Play Faculty

Last night it was the faculty outfit that handed the Blue and White cagers a workout. Against the faculty Coach Joy Kistler pitted his full squad and it gave a satisfactory exhibition.

Good spirits prevailed throughout, with a few extra curricular activities, such as free-throw contests, very impromptu, between various players holding the opening minutes of practice. Indications pointed to Coach Kistler as the champ, with Welt, Myers and Jessup pressing the mentor all the way.

Drill for Accuracy

The squad was then divided into two groups in a warm-up, "under the hoop for basket" exercise, followed by drill in floor work by all members of the squad.

Hurried play seems still a factor to be ironed out of the Blue attack, the various teams racing through against the faculty in such fashion as to loose control of the ball when a score demanded more time with shots. This defect is being worked out, however, and a more steady quality of play is showing up.

Real Grid "Battles

LISBON (AP)—Because many players have not yet learned the difference between a football match and an exhibition of "all in boxing" several football teams in the Lisbon league have been placed on the black list by the chief of police. The offending teams will not be allowed to play for periods of one to three months.

FOR some reason Nick Kearns will not appear here this year as a basketball official. Whatever the reason it is to be regretted that the sleek-haired one has been switched. Despite an unpopular reputation with the fans there were few better officials in the game. Nick, in the seven years I have watched him, has never called one wrong intentionally. He has been as square a whistle-blower as the game has produced. He had the courage and the nerve to disregard the crowd when he called them and it hurt his popularity. Of late years, however, there has been a growing feeling of respect for Nicholas. Sorry to hear you're not coming, Old Timer.

An unusual situation exists in the makeup of the East team which battles a picked West eleven in San Francisco New Year's Day. One of the ends is Brad Robinson, regarded by many as the class of the wingmen in the Western conference TWO years ago. He finished his competition a year ago and now after a lay off has been picked by Dick Hanley to represent the east. Must be a real player to be picked after he had been through for a full season.

IOWA gained an honor yesterday seldom if ever given a team wearing the Old Gold and Black. When the Associated Press announced its list of outstanding teams for the last year, the Hawkeyes were placed twelfth among all the outstanding teams in the world. Iowa ranked sixth among the football teams of the nation. Maybe in another year or two the lads from the tall corn can step up and take over that number one post now held by the Giants. Nice thought, anyway.

Hunk Anderson insists he is not applying for a job at North Carolina, but those in the know wonder why his private secretary and family have moved into an apartment at Raleigh. It comes on good authority that the former Notre Dame coach will be announced as State's new coach despite any denials. He said he had many jobs open but was just looking around. The climate is awfully nice in North Carolina and the boys show a lot of fight. Hunk will like it.

ST. MARY'S undefeated five strikes for its fifth straight Friday in it fourth straight game away from home. The Irish of Cedar Rapids will boast of a fast passing team that has split even in its first two games. Like the Ramblers, the Shamrocks are a veteran team but are not expected to be as strong as the local quintet. However, the teams are all tough when a club is trying to continue a winning streak. Friday night will provide Coach Sueppel's lads with their hardest test of the year, unless we're badly mistaken.

He may be a retired fighter but it still doesn't pay to take any pay to take any chances with "Iron Mike," Dempsey's world famous paralyzer. The former heavyweight champ was refereeing a wrestling match at Compton, Cal., the other night and one of the performers swung at him. The Manassa Mauler let him taste that famous right and the show was over. Ought to get Jack to handle the bouts that Everett Marshall puts on.

IOWA baseball players will certainly get their fill of the diamond sport during the 1934 season. Twenty-six games have been carded with the possibility of several more being added. So far only nine of the games will be here. Coach Otto Vogel will have a great chance to develop his material, not only for this year but for the next year as well.

This Carleton team must be setting a record for fouling. In two games with Iowa foes, there were a total of 64 fouls called. The Carls lost three men in each game by the foul route. Certainly the teams from Northfield never exhibited such roughness as did the one here last week. Even the lads on the bench were pleading with the regulars to play basketball and forget the rough stuff. Awfully hard on a swell fellow like Marshall Diebold, Carleton coach, to see his players go haywire out on the floor. No cleaner coach in the game than Diebold but his men want to play rough it seems.

BOBBY JONES! Remember how the name used to strike fear into the hearts of opposing golfers? It hasn't been so long since this perfect golfing machine stunned the world by sweeping the four major golfing titles and then retiring to practice law in Atlanta. Jones was responsible for the building of one of the toughest courses in the country and next year he returns to competition against the best in the land in a special tourney. It will be of great interest to see if he still holds his spell over the rest of the golfers. He is supposed to be just as good as ever and in better physical condition. If that is the case the rest of the field had better start playing for second place.

What an attraction it would be, if Iowa copped the Big Ten title and the Irish finished the season undefeated, to match the two teams. Notre Dame always did draw big crowds at Iowa and in such a case it would need a field house with a 20,000 capacity to hold all the fans who wanted to get to see the game. Iowa still has two games which it may schedule now that the conference allows 20 games to be played. Might not be a bad idea to think about. Of course Iowa hasn't won the title and the Irish might be defeated but it is still a good idea.

WHEN a motion picture producer failed in Buenos Aires in 1931 for a total of $55,000, creditors found among his assets a two-year old race horse, Cote d'Or, which he valued at $10,000. They decided to enter the mare in local races to see if she could get some of their money back. "The mare that runs for the creditors" earned $14,000 in 1931, $51,000 in 1932, and has captured $35,000 in stakes thus far in 1933. Although 19 per cent of the money has to go for expenses, the creditors are nearly clear and are beginning to vision a profit. Unusual but just another queer quirk in the sports world.

For the third straight year Columbia university's football team voted Captain Ray Burger, Virginia's all-Southern conference tackle, as one of the two best tackles it encountered in the season just closed. Burger must be some man to rate such an honor for three straight years. At that he wasn't much in evidence when the Buckeyes of Ohio State poured on the Old Dominion to the tune of a 75 to 0 defeat.

WELL, Michigan finally broke through and did its bit toward upholding the prestige of the Big Ten in outside competition. At the same time Wisconsin's rampant Badgers added their fifth straight win by downing the Stevens Point Teachers, one of the outside quintets to upset the Meanwell-coached crew last year. These two victories give the conference a 17 to 14 edge over non-conference foes while holding a scoring edge of 979 to 771 for the 31 games. Western conference teams have averaged 32.2 points per game while holding the opposing forces to an average of 24.9.

Wisconsin and Iowa still top the conference in pre-season averages, ranking as the only undefeated teams in the loop.

	W.	L.	T.	P.	OP.	Pct.
Wisconsin	5	0		196	93	1.000
IOWA	3	0		121	63	1.000
Indiana	3	1		113	90	.750
Purdue	2	1		107	96	.667
Ohio State	1	1		64	54	.500
Illinois	1	1		58	41	.500
Chicago	1	2		69	78	.333
Northwestern	1	3		109	98	.250
Michigan	1	4		118	133	.200
Minnesota	0	1		24	25	.000

This leaves Minnesota the lone Big Ten team yet to count a victory.

OFFENSIVELY the Hawkeyes have the best average despite the greater number of points scored by the Badgers. Wisconsin, however, rates as the best defensive team in the loop. Offensive and defensive standings:

	Off.	Def.
IOWA	40.3	21
Wisconsin	39.2	18.6
Purdue	35.7	31
Ohio State	32	27
Illinois	29	20.5
Indiana	28.3	22.5
Northwestern	27.3	24.5
Minnesota	24	25
Michigan	23.6	26.6
Chicago	23	26

Giants Gain Top Honors In 2 Fields

Princeton Gets Runner-up Position With British Tennis Third

NEW YORK, Dec. 20 (AP)—The feat of William Harold Terry and his team of destiny, the New York Giants, in winning the National league pennant and the world series today was voted the outstanding team achievement of the year by sports editors and writers balloting in the Associated Press third annual sports poll.

Despite the intervening smoke screen of a sensational football season, the thrilling dash of the Terrymen to the pennant and their smashing victory over Washington in the world series still remained vivid enough in the minds of 68 of the 198 experts voting in the poll to cause them to so mark their ballots.

Double Honor

The Giants thus gain two top positions for the year as the same experts voted Carl Hubbell, Terry's sensational southpaw, the outstanding individual of topsy-turvy 1933.

Princeton's undefeated young football team ran second to the Giants, 43 votes going to Fritz Crisler and his Tigers while the British Davis Cup team, upset conquerors of the United States and France in international tennis play, were selected for highest honors by 27. The fine Michigan football team, champion of the Big Ten, completes the *"Big Four" with 14 votes. The re*mainder of the votes were scattered among 16 other combinations.

Iowa Mentioned

The feats of the gridiron were the most widely recognized, seven of the 20 teams figuring in the voting being football elevens, among them the two Rose Bowl contenders—Columbia and Stanford. The Lions were picked by three and Stanford by just twice as many.

Michigan's Big Ten champions finished fourth in the standing with 14 votes. Army's followers lost some of their enthusiasm after the Cadets fell victim to Notre Dame's last round-up but there were eight ballots for West Point, nevertheless. Stanford, for its triumph over Southern California, and Iowa, for a brilliant come-back under Ossie Solem, received strong endorsements.

The complete results of the balloting:

New York Giants, world baseball champions	68
Princeton's undefeated and untied football team	43
British Davis Cup tennis team	27
Michigan football	17
West Point football	8
Louisiana State track and field	6
Stanford football victory over U. S. C.	6
Oregon State football "Iron Men"	4
Western All Stars, polo	4
Columbia, football	3
Washington, varsity rowing	3
Iowa, football	2
Washington Senators, baseball	2
New York Rangers, hockey	2

One vote each for following: Harvard varsity crew; Chicago Bears (pro football), British Ryder Cup golf team, Michigan State cross country team, Yale basketball team, and Tulsa Oilers, basketball.

Bluejays Give 46 Awards

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 20 (Special)—Seventeen varsity monograms and 29 freshman numerals have been awarded to members of the 1933 football squads at Creighton university to mark a "depression year" in the awarding of such honors.

Varsity men who will henceforth wear a "C" include Honorary Captain Howard Gordon, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Vincent Anderson and Max Egbert, Omaha; Mike O'Leary, Pat Holland and Vivien Quinn, Butte, Mont.; Otto Bernacchi and Joe Serpe, Kenosha, Wis.; Captain-elect Gene Hackett and Peter Kelly, Chicago; Tom Johnson, Kewanee, Ill.; Dexter Jones, Silver Creek, Neb.; Peter Marchetti, Topeka, Kan.; Charles Miller, Cheyenne, Wyo.; John Moran, Wymore, Neb.; Paul Schmidt, Spearville, Kan., and Dick Tomlinson, O'Neill, Neb.

Freshmen who qualified for the "37" numeral include Captain Bob Lannon, Winner, S. D.; Patrick Corrigan, Jack Douglass, Don Gray, William Lambrecht and Edward Muffitt, Omaha; Lester Bausch, Atkinson, Neb.; George Busch and Francis Fishler, Schuyler, Neb.; Ivan Callen and Earl Hunt, O'Neill, Neb.; George Donich, Deer Lodge, Mont.; Robert Finnegan, Junction, Ia.; Lawrence Goeckel and Frank Jenkevicius, Chicago; Casimir Kareckas, Cicero, Ill.; Prentiss Jones, Cherokee, Ia.; Edward Knapp and Joe Navoichick, Kenosha, Wis.; Francis Kripal, Lodge Pole, Neb.; Dan Lalick, Pueblo, Colo.; Donald McIver and Lester Sampson, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Robert Oshlo, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Jack Pederson, Long Beach, Cal.; Dick Scull, St. Paul, Neb.; Douglas Trish, Aberdeen, S. D.; Jack Truscott, Miles City, Mont., and Francis Wilcox, Perry, Iowa.

Ace Bailey Has Even Chance For Life Doctor Says

BOSTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—The slight but progressive improvement that Irvin "Ace" Bailey has made since his relapse of Monday night continued tonight and, for the first time since the Toronto hockey player suffered his skull fracture on Dec. 12, his physicians expressed hopes of his recovery.

Dr. Donald Munro, who twice operated on Bailey's brain, gave him an even chance for life.

Zud Schammel, Joe Laws Put On Second 11

Grantland Rice Selects Iowans on Annual All-American

Added honors were awarded Zud Schammel and Joe Laws, stellar Iowa gridders, when they were named on Grantland Rice's second all-American team, selected in Colliers today, at guard and quarterback.

Rice, in speaking of his selections, said that the choice between Schammel, Corbus and Rosenberg was the most difficult one in the entire makeup of the team. He says "It was almost a dead heat among Corbus, Rosenberg and Schammel all the way.

Four Iowans

The final squad from which the 33 honor men were picked included Schammel, Moore, Laws, and Crayne of the Iowa team.

Besides Corbus and Rosenberg at the guards, the other members of the team included Skladany (Pitt) and Larson (Minn) at the ends, Crawford (Duke) and Wistert (Mich), tackles; Bernard (Mich) center; Warburton (USC), quarterback, Purvis (Purdue) and Feathers (Tenn), halfbacks; and Sauer (Neb), fullback.

Second Team

Other members of the second team included Petoskey (Mich) and Geisler (Centenary), ends; Mehringer (Kan) and Jorgenson (St. Mary's), tackles; Volok (Tulsa), guard; Del Isola (Fordham), center; Lund (Minn) and Buckler (Army), halfbacks; and Danowski (Fordham), fullback.

The Big Ten rated four men on the first team with the middle west getting five places. The east took one, the south two, and the west three. On the three elevens, the Western conference placed 11 men with the middle west totaling 14, the east six, the south five and the west eight.

Laws, Schammel Head for Coast

Francis Schammel and Joe Laws University of Iowa football players Thursday were en route to the Pacific coast with an all-star squad scheduled to play a west team in a San Francisco hospital benefit game New Year's day.

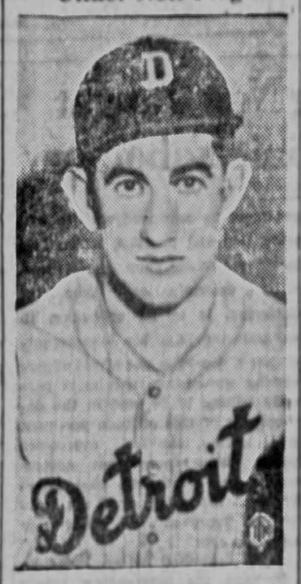
The Iowans are the first men from the university to appear in the annual contest since 1931 when Harold Ely, tackle, played on the east eleven. Iowa never before has had two athletes selected in the same season.

It appears uncertain at what position Schammel and Laws will be used. Schammel, of course, is a guard who won all-American recognition on the Associated Press and United Press teams, while Laws is the all-conference quarterback who also was given a place on an all-American second and third team.

Newspaper listings of the squad, however, name Schammel as a tackle, along with Ceppi, Princeton; Wilton, Pitt; and Riley, Northwestern, while Laws is given as a halfback with Everhardus, Michigan; Feathers, Tennessee; and Sebastian, Pitt. It is possible that the coaches have decided to shift the Iowans.

No Iowa athletes have appeared in California since George Saling hurdler; and Edward Gordon, broad jumper, won Olympic championships at Los Angeles in August, 1932.

Under New Flag



One of the principals in the recent sale of stars by the Philadelphia Athletics, Mickey Cochrane, erstwhile star catcher of the Mackmen, is shown in his 1934 livery. Mickey's case was a "kick upstairs," for he will be manager of the Detroit club.

Ramblers in Final Drill For St. Pat's

Cedar Rapids Quintet Set to Give Blue Severe Test

Ten days' preparation for St. Pat's of Cedar Rapids came to a close last night when Coach Francis Bueppel ran his crack Rambler quintet through a scrimmage session with a squad of independent players. Instead of holding the customary signal and tip-off drill tonight as the last step before Friday's tilt, the Ramblers will rest tonight and will not throw a ball through the hoop until game time at Cedar Rapids.

Not much is known about the Cedar Rapids five, since the Irish of that city have not as yet been satisfactorily tested, but with the reputation the Ramblers are carrying about these days, it is certain that the opponent will strive to put forth its best performance of the season in encountering the Iowa Citians.

As a result, the Sueppelmen are anticipating a struggle of the sternest sort Friday, and are prepared to repulse the St. Pat's in their attempt to put a crimp in the Rambler winning streak.

Lions Limber Up on Trip

Hold First Workout On St. Louis Field

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20 (AP) — The Tournament of Roses-bound Columbia Lions stopped off for five hours here today, went through a brisk workout under the watchful eye of Coach Lou Little, and tonight resumed their journey westward.

Mid western football critics, viewing the workout, decided the Lions will have to give away too much weight in their New Year's day clash with the powerful Stanford Indians, but Coach Little brushed the idea aside.

"We won't be outweighed too much," he said.

While giving every indication of optimism, Coach Little said he almost had given up hope that Joe Ferrar, star tackle, might become scholastically eligible for the annual East-West classic at Pasadena.

"It doesn't look now like Ferrar will be eligible," Little said between orders to his players.

He gave special attention to the passing of Capt. Cliff Montgomery and Al Barabas, indicating the Lions will take to the air if they find the going too tough on the ground.

Westrope Rides No. 299 at Epsom Downs

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP) — Gay World, winner of $17,430 with a string of important victories today carried the silks of J. A. Nix to victory in the San Jacinto handicap at Epsom Downs.

Jack Westrope put across one more winner for a total of 299 since Jan. 1. He scored with Chehalis, a 4 to 1 shot, in the sixth event.

McCloy, Schroeder Mentioned in Phys. Ed. Journal in Dec.

In the December issue of the Journal of Health and Physical Education several Iowans come in for mention, as well as a former Iowan.

Mention is made of the rapid growth of Phi Epsilon Kappa, national physical education fraternity, of which Ernest G. Schroeder is a national officer.

In the following paragraph the plans of C. H. McCloy, newly created president of the Central District of the American Physical Education association, for holding a huge meeting of the organization in St. Paul are discussed.

Still another item tells of the awarding of a fellowship in the organization to David K. Brace, now at the University of Texas but formerly connected with the University of Iowa.

Tigers Show $53,000 Loss For Athletics

Football Season Not Included in Data At Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 20 (AP) —Despite a 25 per cent reduction in expenditures, a deficit of $53,000 was incurred in operating Princeton athletic teams during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, said the report today of the Princeton Athletic association.

The report was published in the current issue of the Princeton alumni weekly, which said that the budget for 1933-34 again had been reduced, to $200,000, and that it was hoped with the new economies and greater receipts in football to show a favorable balance next year. That is almost a 50 per cent reduction from the peak year of 1930-31 when $380,000 was allotted.

The chief decrease in revenue was in football receipts, which dropped to $170,418 for the 1932 season and showed a favorable balance of only $95,590. All other sports except hockey failed to pay their own way and the $13,794 receipts from hockey were only $746 above expenses.

Despite the drastic retrenchment, the weekly said, "there has not been a corresponding loss of athletic opportunity. The athletic association has continued to support the 15 branches of athletics which have for many years come under its jurisdiction. Certain schedules have been curtailed and a few junior varsity schedules completely eliminated, but all undergraduates still have the privilege of participating in intercollegiate competition as members of properly equipped and adequately coached teams in the 15 branches of sport.

Arizona Starts Basket Tour of Mid West

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 20 (AP)—Faced with one of the toughest schedules in years, the Arizona university basketball team left here today on an invasion of the middle west.

Notre Dame, Purdue, Drake, and Illinois Wesleyan are outstanding teams the Wildcats will meet.

"Good Game" Says Hunk

Columbia A Good 11; "Not Seeking Job, Will Seek Mex"

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 20 (AP)—Hunk Anderson, former Notre Dame coach, expressed the opinion here today that Columbia university will give Stanford " a good game" in the Rose Bowl tournament New Year's day.

"There oughtn't to be more than a couple of touchdowns difference between the teams," Anderson said. "Columbia has a good defensive club and a fairly good offense."

Anderson, who arrived in Raleigh on the eve of a meeting of the athletic council of North Carolina State college to consider hiring a new football coach for the school, insisted he was not applying for any coaching job.

"There are plenty of good jobs open," he said. "If I don't get the first one or two I'll be able to live until I get one, I think. I have not applied for any job. I'm on tour. If they want to hire me, they'll call on me. Then I'll talk to them."

Anderson revealed he has been in touch with the University of North Carolina in regard to the coaching vacancy there and said he planned to visit Auburn, where there is another opening, while in this part of the country.

"I was going south by Auburn but when I got to Cincinnati an alumnus of State contacted me so I came by here," he said.

Commenting on reports that the University of North Carolina was seeking a coach who could be an inspirational leader and football teacher, Anderson said:

"Yep, and that inspiration stays in a team just about three minutes. When it's gone what can you do? They are on the field. You can't get out there and talk to 'em. You can try to shoot in a couple of spark plugs to pep them up. That's all."

The former Notre Dame mentor said he was in favor of keeping football scoring on the basis now used, despite the fact that his team last season usually made many more first downs than opponents even though they lost games.

"Let the score count when the put that ball across the last white line," he said as he recalled Notre Dame made more than twice as many first downs as Purdue and yet got beat 19 to 6.

42 Cyclones Pass Exams For Life Saving at Ames

Qualified to Enroll as Life Guards At Resorts

AMES, Dec. 20—Forty-two Iowa State college swimmers recently passed senior life saving examinations under the direction of C. E. Daubert, special Red Cross Examiner and Cyclone swimming coach.

These students will be permitted to enroll in advanced work which will qualify many of them for position as instructors, life guards and pool managers at swimming resorts next summer.

The following students passed the examinations:

Robert Anderson of Carroll, Kenneth Fair of Laurens, Earl Soderstrom of Chicago, J. D. Hotchkiss of Marion, Robert King of Adel, William Dickinson of Windom, Minn., George Dunkleberg of Rockford, William Stump, Dan Harrison, Carl Erickson and Milton Sererinsen of Omaha, Neb., Gus Scheffler, Frank Holmes, R. D. Rae, Phil Seeling and Darwin Adams of Des Moines, Robert Bauge, Felix Dhainis, Donald Hutton, John Sawin, Francis Rausch, Robert Beresford and Howard Cornelius of Ames, Boyd Pestotnik and Russell Sputhe of Boone, V. Brown of Hampton, Raymond Menzel of Passaic, N. J., W. B. Alsup of Bryans Mill, Tex., Charles Reynolds of Evanston, Ill., Frederick Miller, Blythe, Cal.

Kenneth Madsen of Clinton, Richard Dewey of Dubuque, Cloyd Smith of Westchester, John Leonard of Ottumwa, P. J. Emmert of Hawarden, Tom Stewart of Washington, Arthur Knapp of Lake Charles, La., Russell Lauderdale of Minneapolis, Minn., Hugh Hull of Oak Park, Ill., John Gruenwald of Blairstown, John Estel of Waterloo, Burton Fitzgerald of Perry, Howard Shelley of Manchester, M. L. Michaelson of Marshalltown, and David Branson of De Peru, Wis.

Anderson to Bolster Iowa State Cagers

Vet Forward Returns To School at Start Of Second Term

AMES, Dec. 20—That the Iowa State basketball team may develop an offense as effective as its defense seems not unlikely since the return of Chester Anderson of Burlington, speedy forward on last year's quintet, to the squad.

This flashy, red-headed forward was a potent force in last year's attack. He is fast on the floor and sinks a majority of his shots at the basket. Not only will he strengthen Iowa State's offense, but he will bring the total number of lettermen on the first quintet to three.

Coach Louis Menze is working Anderson in practice this week with the intention of using him in the lineup against Drake in the place of Jack Cowen of Packwood at one of the forward positions. This is the only change in line-up he contemplates making from that used in the three opening tilts. Ed Doty of Dallas City, Ill., will start at the other forward post, Waldo Wegner of Everly at center, and Torvald Holmes of Gilbert and Frank Hood of Creston at guards.

Iowa State Doubles Grid Attendance

AMES, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Iowa State college 1933 football team played before twice as many spectators as its predecessor, according to records of the athletic department.

The 1933 eleven participated in nine games as compared to eight for the 1932 team, and all except three of the games showed a marked increase over the corresponding game for 1932.

Total attendance for the season, with estimates for a few away from home games, was 66,012.

Attendance for the 1932 season totaled 32,783.

Beavers Play Eight League Foes in 1934

STORM LAKE, Dec. 20 (AP)—Eight Iowa conference basketball games have been arranged by Coach F. L. Casey for his Buena Vista college cagers.

Casey said he may add a few other games to the schedule to fill in blank spaces during the season. Upper Iowa, Western Union and Luther appear twice on the card and single games have been booked with St. Ambrose and Simpson.

The Beavers have a veteran quintet built around Ernest Salveron, high scoring center. They opened the season last Wednesday by defeating the Harlem Globe Trotters, crack Negro outfit, 34 to 20.

The conference schedule:
Jan. 5—Luther at Decorah.
Jan. 6—Upper Iowa at Fayette.
Jan. 8—St. Ambrose at Davenport.
Jan. 23—Western Union at Le Mars.
Jan. 27—Upper Iowa at Storm Lake.
Feb. 13—Western Union at Storm Lake.
Feb. 24—Luther at Storm Lake.
Feb. 28—Simpson at Indianola.

Walsh Resigns at St. Louis; Name Maxwell as Coach

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20 (AP)—Charles F. Walsh, head football coach at St. Louis university for the last four years, announced tonight that he had resigned.

The faculty board, apprised of Walsh's announcement, verified it and stated Joe Maxwell, line coach, would take charge of the football situation.

It was regarded as probable that Maxwell, who like Walsh learned his football at Notre Dame, would be appointed head coach.

Badgers Avenge Year-Old Beating

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis., Dec. 20 (AP)—Avenging a defeat suffered on the same floor a year ago, the University of Wisconsin basketball team tonight defeated the Stevens Point Teachers quintet 35 to 10. Stevens Point last year humbled the Badgers here 28 to 24.

Michigan In Initial Win Of Tour 32-22

Rutgers Trails Wolves Throughout Game; Plummer High

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 20 (AP)—Led by Al Plummer, high scorer with 13 points, the University of Michigan basketball team defeated a fighting Rutgers quintet, 32 to 22 tonight. It was the first victory of their eastern invasion.

Michigan played a fast passing game and took the lead at the start and was never headed. Rutgers best chance to win came in the first 10 minutes of the second period when John Chandler, Scarlet's Negro star, scored on a pass from Grower, making the score 20 to 18.

Michigan then sent in Captain Petoskey and Oliver and recovered the team's speed.

Penn Five Drops Game to Success School, 49 to 36

OSKALOOSA, Dec. 20 (AP)—Penn dropped a 49 to 36 decision to a quintet representing the Iowa Success school of Ottumwa tonight when the latter spurted after the Quakers had tied the count at 32 all.

Success took an early 14-5 lead, but quick baskets by Rhiner and Graft put Penn ahead. The visitors took the lead again at half time, 19 to 16, but trailed throughout the second period until Nelson and Shepp went on a scoring rampage.

Nebraska 5 Loses Opener To Marquette

Spirited Rally Falls Short; Hilltoppers Win, 25 to 22

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 20 (AP)—The University of Nebraska basketball team tonight was defeated in its first game of the season by Marquette 25 to 22.

While Marquette took a seven point lead and held Nebraska scoreless until Boswell opened with a free throw Mullen, Kukla and Morstact moved the lead to 12 to 3 before Boswell caged a long shot for Nebraska's fifth point of the first half.

When Marquette swung into a 20 to 7 lead early in the second half, the reserves went in and almost dropped the game to the invaders who led by Loder and Mason boosted the score to 22 to 18.

Loder led Nebraska's scoring with three goals and three foul shots for nine points. Mullen equalled his total with four baskets and one free throw.

St. Ambrose Loses

CHICAGO (AP)—A second half barrage which netted five successive goals gave Loyola university a 24 to 22 victory over St. Ambrose of Davenport, Ia., tonight.

Creighton Wins

OMAHA (AP)—Creighton university, led by Engelbretson, brilliant sophomore forward, defeated Kansas State university 55 to 21 in a basketball game here tonight.

Little Hawks' Injury List Decreases

There'll be no set-up for Davenport's crack basketball outfit when it invades City high Friday night—the injured list has decreased, and the boys that were laid up during the Dubuque contest have again donned the togs and are raring to go.

Fred Ballard who has been out with an infected foot and Paul Mutchler after a siege of the flu are both expected to take part in Friday's game. Ballard and Mutchler went into a snappy skirmish in yesterday afternoon's drill and showed as much punch as ever.

City high's lofty center, Allen Snyder, sprained his ankle about two weeks ago and is doubtful that he will be able to play.

KNAVE'S GIRL

By JOAN CLAYTON

COPYRIGHT 1932, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

"You must be our fourth," he said. And then quickly, not very steadily, "I—somehow I didn't think you'd be like this."

SYNOPSIS

Unable to find employment, young and beautiful Patricia Warren capitalizes her card skill, at fifty cents an hour, by making a fourth at bridge parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Eileen Sycott. Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, is fascinated by Patricia and impressed by her game. He offers to make her his secretary and partner, suggesting that she live at his home. Aware of Haverholt's unsavory reputation, Patricia hesitates to accept the position. Haverholt escorts Patricia to the drab home she shares with her nagging stepmother and stepsisters. In the hallway, he suddenly embraces Pat. Indignant, she declines his business offer and rushes indoors. Mrs. Warren, Pat's stepmother, thinking of her own comfort, is furious at Pat's refusal. Bill McGee, a small-time politician and thug, invites Patricia to a New Year's Eve dance. She declines but he retorts, "You'll go, kid, and like it." Patricia is thrilled with the prospect of meeting her ideal, Clark Tracy, the famous polo player, at another bridge party to be given by Mrs. Sycott.

CHAPTER FIVE

Outside it was drizzling. Patricia reached Eileen Sycott's apartment breathless, rang the bell. A maid answered the door. As the girl entered the living room, a tall young man in evening clothes rose from an easy chair. He was alone. Patricia hesitated, light falling upon her hair, her eyes intent, almost searching, her lips slightly parted. To herself she seemed to be in a dream. She knew this man—it was not that she recognized him from a photograph—she knew him; she believed that she had always known they were to meet in just this way. For a moment the two stood looking at each other. Something magical seemed to steal into the room; some magic seemed to hush the world, so that the traffic on the Avenue below pulsed faintly, rhythmically, like the surf on a quiet day.

The man spoke first.

"You must be our fourth," he said. And then quickly, not very steadily, "I—somehow I didn't think you'd be like this."

"And you're Clark Tracy," said the girl, at ease for once in this house, careless for once of what Eileen Sycott might have said before her arrival. "I—I thought you'd be exactly like this."

"Why?" he demanded, puzzled.

Quite naturally then she told him about the photograph. It never occurred to her to evade his question. She hardly realized that she had suddenly destroyed all her barriers of pride and reticence. She wanted passionately to tell him everything and anything he might want to know. He seemed to want to know everything. They sat on the divan before the crackling fire. They talked and talked and talked.

A door opened upon their absorption. Eileen Sycott summed up the situation in one long, infuriated look and swept down upon the divan. Patricia started. She hardly noticed the thin, smart girl who had entered with her hostess. She braced herself for insult. It came.

"I thought I told you eight-thirty," began Eileen Sycott in high indignation. She would have used the same tone in reproving a servant.

"I'm sorry if I came early," stammered Patricia.

"I should say you—" Mrs. Sycott broke off before her other guest's astonishment and offence. She resumed sulkily, "It's all right only I was sure you understood." She added ungraciously, "You seem to have introduced yourself to Mr. Tracy. I'd like to present Miss Marthe March."

Patricia looked now at the other girl and experienced a pang of pure envy. Marthe March was so smart, so completely poised, so unruffled by the unpleasant passage at arms that had not concerned her. She was perfect from the tips of her tiny, diamond buckled shoes to her flawless coiffure. Her evening gown was straight from Paris. Her jewels were exactly right, the chiffon handkerchief tied carelessly about her wrist matched precisely the coral of her lips. All at once Patricia felt badly dressed, awkward, shy.

"How do you do," she murmured in response to the other girl's clear, cool acknowledgment.

"Miss March is Mr. Tracy's fiancee," Eileen Sycott said distinctly. "They announced their engagement last night."

The evening went on. Like one trapped in a nightmare, unable to waken or escape, Patricia followed the others to the bridge table, shuffled in her turn, bid in her turn, played in her turn. Like the others she concentrated on Kings and Queens and Aces or tried to do that. In a kind of dreadful detachment she heard Mrs. Sycott's endless complaints and grudging, patronizing praise. Her whole being was absorbed in a precise and bitter recapitulation of the things she had said to a man who was a stranger to her. Her silly, silly words echoed and reechoed in her ears. What must Clark Tracy think of her? She had thrown herself at his head like a foolish high school girl. She had thought that he understood, this man who had announced his engagement last night. She had thought that he liked her, that he—oh, dear heaven, what hadn't she thought?

"Four spades," she said.

"Double," said Marthe March, a shade uncertainly.

"Redouble," said Patricia.

"Well, I hope you've got it in your hand," said dummy tartly, spreading a collection of cards that were mostly knaves and tens.

Patricia got through the evening. She did not break down until she reached home. Once there she wept as she had never wept before, hopelessly, despairingly. Clark Tracy was engaged, lost to her. And she loved the tall, fair man, had loved him from that moment when first their eyes had met. She cried until Teresa, sleeping beside her, woke and began to whimper in sympathy. After that she lay rigid and dry-eyed in the darkness. Toward morning she slept.

Next day she did not go job hunting. Listless and dispirited she helped with the cleaning and persuaded the children to dismantle the Christmas tree.

"But tomorrow is New Year's Day," argued Teresa valiantly "Shouldn't we have a tree for New Year's Day, Pat?"

"Not this tree, I think," said Patricia with a wan smile for the dilapidated object of her little sister's solicitude.

"Well—" hesitated Teresa. She eyed the tree and said suddenly, conciliatingly, "Could we have a bonfire then? In the back yard?"

"Yes, we can have a bonfire."

The three of them went to work with a will. They had packed away the last brightly colored ornament for next year when Lillian Warren came in carrying a large department store box. A box in that household was always an event. The two children instantly began clamoring and questioning. Only Patricia was disinterested.

"It was delivered upstairs by mistake," Lillian Warren announced, pleasantly important, "but it's addressed to you, Patricia. What in the world do you suppose it is?"

Seizing a pair of manicure scissors she prepared to satisfy her curiosity. Patricia watched, unprotesting, incurious. Her stepmother flipped aside the lid and a moment later was displaying an evening gown in black and scarlet. Even Patricia was startled now.

"But who could have sent it?" Lillian Warren was demanding, when she spied the card. She hurriedly read the message and then surrendered it to the rightful owner. The note was brief, to the point.

"In case you haven't anything to wear for the New Year's dance tonight, I'll come at ten o'clock. Bill."

Patricia let the card flutter to the floor. She looked at her stepmother.

"Now you'll simply have to go," Lillian Warren insisted vehemently. She expected rebellious objection. She got none.

Farm Bureau Meets Tonight

Club Recognition Of Honors to Feature Group's Session

The Johnson County Farm bureau and club recognition meeting will be held this evening at 6:30 in the American Legion Community building. Farm bureau officers will be elected during the evening and recognition will be made of the honors won by Johnson County 4-H club members during the last year.

Each family is urged to bring a well-filled basket for the basket lunch which will begin at 6:30. The people will be seated at the tables according to township residence.

Music

Music during the dinner hour will be furnished by 15 players directed by Clifford R. Berkey, and the North Liberty quartet will furnish the music for the evening's program.

The business meeting will include the reading and approval of reports, election of county officers, and election of the township directors.

County Agent S. Lysle Duncan will introduce the new club agent and will give a report on the progress of the corn-hog program in Johnson county.

Livestock Awards

Special livestock club awards will be made by Emil Meyer, and Rose C. Reeve will present the special girls' club awards.

After the program, the rest of the evening will be spent in a social hour.

Presbyterian Church Plans Yuletide Play

A play entitled "The Perfect Gift" will be given at the Presbyterian Christmas celebration to be held in the main auditorium of the church tomorrow at 7 p.m. A pageant of the Nativity, a procession of "Dream children," and a chorus of children from the beginners, primary, and junior departments singing Christmas carols and special music will complete the program.

Gifts, which include baskets for the Social Service league, will be contributed by the various classes and an offering will be taken for the work of James C. Manry of Allahabad, India, formerly a professor of philosophy at the University of Iowa.

The cast for "The Perfect Gift" is as follows: John Sproatt, the rich guest; Ida Helen Olin, the keeper's wife; Marion Whinnery, the keeper's daughter; David Lemon, keeper of the inn; and Marion McEwen and Phyllis Blackman, children.

Those in the pageant of the Nativity are Mildred Fitzgerald, Mary; Edwin Albright, Joseph; Gwenyth Lemon, angel of the manger; Robert Neff, Edward Mason, Edward Shannon, Albert Schussler, shepherds; Elmer Hughes, Levitt Lambert, Paul White, wise men. Mrs. A. T. Sarver, Mrs. L. G. Frutig, Mrs. L. B. Higley, Mrs. James Bettle, angels.

The parts and the players in the procession of "Dream children" are Allen Crain, Aladdin; Dorothy Shank, Pippa; Shirley Long, Piccola; Mack Ross, Hansel; Mary Sayre, Grettel; Robert Shank, Tiny Tim; Allen Sterling, Bob Cratchet; Helen White, Mrs. Cratchet; Jane Bettle, Eugene Larew, and Mary Ann Kurtz, the Blue Bird children.

The program is under the direction of Lola Hughes. Betty Lampe has charge of the costumes, Helen Fitzgerald, of the makeup, and Prof. E. B. Kurtz, of the lighting. Mrs. P. C. Coast will be organist. Prof. E. F. Mason, general superintendent, Joan Louise Smith, and Lola Hughes are members of the committee which planned the program.

Episcopal Church Plans Xmas Events

Parishioners of Trinity Episcopal church are preparing a varied and extensive program for the Christmas season.

On Saturday at 10 a.m. the young people who are going to sing with the choir at University hospital Sunday will meet with Stephen Williams, choir director, for practice and fitting of vestments.

The children's Christmas party will start promptly at 3 p.m. Saturday at the church. A short Christmas play will be presented here by the class of girls taught by Esther Brown. After the play, the group will go to the parish house to finish the party around a Christmas tree.

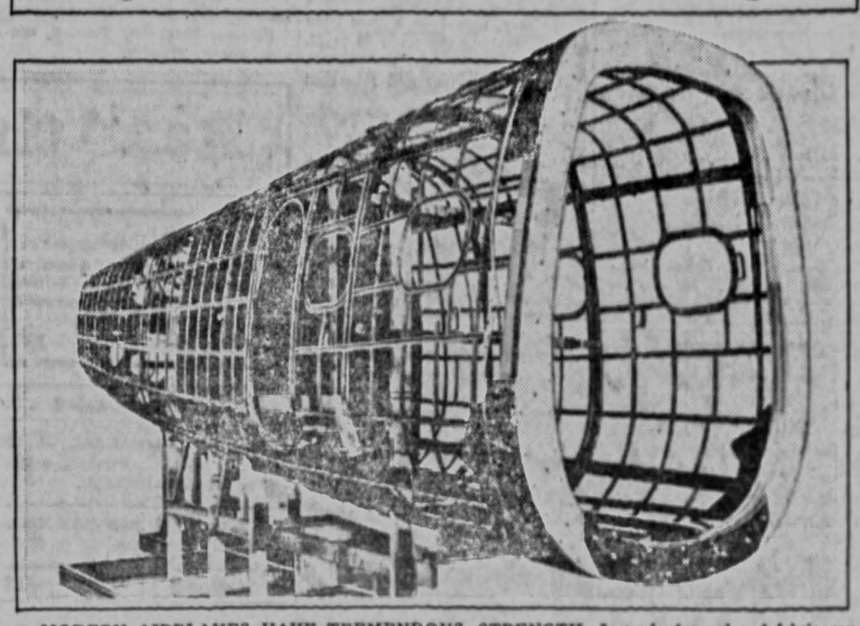
The regular morning services will be held Sunday. Holy communion will be observed at 8 a.m. and children's church will be held at 9:30 a.m. Instead of the regular church school classes there will be carol singing and a Christmas play entitled "Bethlehem" presented by Betty Martin and her class of girls. The regular order of morning prayer with a sermon by the rector will be observed at 10:45 a.m. The sermon subject will be "The word became flesh."

Sunday from 4 until 6 p.m. the combined junior and senior choir will sing Christmas carols in the wards at University hospital. Members of the choirs have been asked to be at the parish house by 3:15 p.m.

The midnight Christmas service will begin at 11 p.m. Sunday and an invitation has been extended by the Rev. Richard McEvoy to all those in the community who desire to come to the service.

On Christmas day there will be two services of the Holy communion, at 8 a.m. and at 10:45 a.m. The choir will not sing for the Christmas day services.

Super-Metal Ribs of a Man-Made Eagle



MODERN AIRPLANES HAVE TREMENDOUS STRENGTH—Instead of wood and fabric construction of yesteryear, all-metal planes today are designed and built with strength factors predominant. This is a view of a portion of the uncovered fuselage of one of United Air Lines new three-mile-a-minute Boeing coast to coast multi-motored monoplanes, showing the sturdy type of construction. The metal used is duraluminum, strong as steel yet light as aluminum, it has a tensile strength of thirty tons a square inch. The use of this metal, coupled with its engineering design, results in the wing being able to stand loads as great as 36½ tons. A fleet of sixty of these planes are operated on United's routes.

Saint Nick Attends Lions' Christmas Party Yesterday
