NUMBER 226

TOUHY CONVICTED; GETS 99 YEARS

Dirty Flying Weather Causes Four Army Mail Pilots to Crash; 2 Killed

Death List Mounts to 5 In Six Days

Other Pilots Carry On, Undaunted by Bad Conditions

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 22 (AP)—Custodian of the mails in the skies for less than 72 hours, the army air service early tonight had lost two pilots by death, another by serious injury, and had witnessed the crash of a fourth.

The casualties brought to five the number of army airmen who have died in the last six days. A sixth flier was on an operating table at Crisfield, Md., with severe head injuries.

Fog, Snow Dirty flying weather—belts of fog and snow—apparently caused one of two accidents today, that near Deshler, Ohio, in which Lieut. Durward O. Lowry rocketed to his death in a wood.

Near Denison, Tex., Lieut. Fred I. Patrick lost his life when his plane plummeted to earth. He was not carrying mail.

Lieut. Harold Deitz catapulted to a farm field near Marion Station, Md., and was hurried to the McCready Memorial hospital at Crisfield. He was piloting a mail plane from Newark, N. J., to Richmond, Virginia.

Loses Way

Apparently he had lost his way and was trying to get his bearings. Less serious was the forced landing early in the afternoon at Woodland, Pa., of Lieutenant McCoy, another air mail pilot, with a burned out engine, but Lieut. G. P. Hollstein, flying a load of mail from Cleveland to Washington, lost his ship when he encountered sticky fog near Uniontown, Pa. He washed it out in a clump of trees, but luck saved his life among the jagged rocks of the Alleghenies.

Cut, Bruised He was cut about the face and bruised. Lieutenant Patrick had been expected to return to Shreveport, La., tomorrow to complete organization of the air mail field there.

Despite the accidents, the air mail went out tonight with army men in the cockpits as if nothing had happened. But in Washington an echo of the crashes rumbled across the floor of the house when Representative Fish (R., N. Y.) rose to say that sending the army men out with the mail without necessary training was "legalized murder."

The casualties today followed crashes last Friday in which three army pilots, flying to their air mail posts, were killed—Lieutenants Jean D. Grenier and Edwin D. White in a Utah snow storm and Lieut. James Y. Eastman in Idaho.

Report 'Illegal' Contract Letting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Testimony that the war department granted at least two airplane contracts after its official legal adviser the judge advocate general, held them unlawful, is being studied by a house military affairs sub-committee.

To determine the truth the committee has asked for all records involving airplane purchases since 1926.

This became known today as another committee—a house naval sub-committee—decided to speed up its investigation of airplane company profits and hear a former secretary of the navy and two assistant secretaries immediately.

Herring Gets Tax Bill For Final Action

DES MOINES, Feb. 22 (AP)—Final legislative action was completed today on the $20,000,000 tax bill when the state senate, by a vote of 29 to 21, adopted the report of a conference committee.

The house already had accepted the conference committee recommendations so the senate action put the bill over its final hurdle and on its way to the governor.

Airlines May Return Under New Contract

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—From the house postoffice committee today came a clear indication that the carriers who flew the air mail up until Monday may be given an opportunity to carry it once more.

Chairman Mead said so at the hearing on proposed permanent air mail legislation to supplant present law.

New Amendment "This committee," Mead said, "is willing to give consideration to an amendment that would let these carriers come back and bid on new contracts."

Thomas B. Doe, official of the Eastern Air Transport, which had a contract until the government took it away, was testifying at the time and he smiled in agreement.

Brown Concludes Testimony At the same time, the senate air mail committee which made the disclosures that were the basis for the air mail contract cancellations was listening to Walter F. Brown, former postmaster general, conclude his four days on the stand.

Chairman Black finished his long cross-examination of Brown and turned him over to Senator Austin (R., Vt.) who asked Brown a succession of friendly questions.

Denies Wrong Doing This gave the former cabinet officer an opportunity to deny categorically any wrong doing in connection with air mail contracts and to assert stoutly that every contract or extension he made conformed with the law.

Austin read portions of Postmaster General Farley's order cancelling the domestic mail contracts and asked Brown whether the charge of conspiracy it made was true.

"No Absolute Proof" "Absolutely not," Brown replied, "and furthermore, I wouldn't make a charge of conspiracy unless I had absolute proof."

Mead told reporters after the house committee hearing that he felt the administration would be willing to let some of the concerns that had held mail contracts bid on those to be awarded.

Committee To Open Bids

Board Members Will Grant Building Contracts

Bids will be opened at 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon in Old Capitol for two PWA projects, the law dormitory and improvements on the quadrangle, by members of the building committee of the state board of education.

At 1 o'clock sealed bids for the quadrangle improvements, which will amount to about $10,000, will be opened. Present plans include a library and soda grill, new steel stairs, and improvements on the lobby.

At 2 o'clock bids will be opened for the law dormitory, which is approximately a $150,000 project. This dormitory will be west of the fine arts building, now under construction, and north of Westlawn, nurses' home.

Covering an area 110 by 40 feet, this building will accommodate 150 students from the college of law. It will include a commons and dining room. Pine panelling will be used throughout.

These two improvements are part of the university's present building plan. The fine arts building and the service bridge are the latest parts of this plan to be begun.

Winter Gales Drop Temperature to 13

Winter, with the help of blustering March gales, dropped the temperature in Iowa City to 13 degrees early yesterday morning.

At 7 a.m. the temperature moved up a point and during the day it reached a high of 25. At 7 p.m. it had dropped to 17, according to Prof. John P. Reilly, official observer.

Senate Rejects Restoring Vets Economy Cuts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—An effort to restore to World War veterans all the benefits that were taken from them by the economy law was voted down late today in the senate.

It rejected by 60 to 14 an amendment by Senator Hatfield (R-W. Va.) which would have repealed all sections of the economy law that affected veterans. It was estimated that the amendment would have cost $220,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Hatfield Offers Proposal Hatfield offered the proposal as a rider to an administration compromise that Senator Byrnes (D-S. C.) had proposed to attach to the independent offices appropriation bill. The Byrnes amendment would restore to the rolls thousands of veterans whose disabilities were presumed to have been of service origin before the economy act and who were taken off compensation by review boards since that act passed last March.

After rejection of the Hatfield amendment, the senate recessed until Monday under a debate-limiting agreement to speed passage of the bill.

Byrnes Amendment The Byrnes amendment would grant veterans restored to the rolls 75 per cent of the compensation they had been getting until their cases are passed upon by the Washington veterans board appeals. In event the board restored them permanently to the rolls they would be given the full pre-economy law benefits.

It also would enact into law the recent presidential regulation providing free hospitalization for needy veterans of all wars, provided veterans hospital facilities are available, and free domiciliary care for permanently disabled.

Whitney vigorously denied that the exchange was sending money to Washington to influence the legislation as charged in a telegram received by members of the committee. Meanwhile, the senate banking committee issued a subpoena for G. V. Harriss, chairman of the publicity committee of the exchange.

King Buried in Church Crypt

8 Hours of Ceremony Preceded Actual Interment

BRUSSELS, Feb. 22 (AP)—The body of the knightly King Albert lay in peace tonight in the crypt of a little gray church near the Laeken royal castle and plans went forward for the entombment of his son, Prince Leopold.

Leopold Next King Albert was buried with the pomp of courtly custom; Leopold will be made king with similar circumstances, but without the tears that marked the cortege of princes, diplomats, clergymen, and commoners honoring the dead monarch.

Eight hours of military processions, religious rites, and cannons' solemn salutes ended this afternoon with the lowering of the body into its last resting place beside the coffins of Leopold I and II.

Spectator Killed One man was killed in a fall from a tree in the royal park and two women were seriously injured as they fell from a balustrade while watching the funeral processions.

Several score others were injured in various accidents along the route. Members of the Belgian cabinet failed to reach Laeken in time for a final military display and the burial because of a traffic mixup.

U. S. Observes 202d Birthday of Washington

By The Associated Press Several million children home from school, patriotic programs by the score and cherry pies on countless dinner tables yesterday testified that the nation observed the 202nd birthday of George Washington, first president of the United States.

At the nation's capital, named in honor of the commander of the victorious American forces in the revolutionary war, present day statesmen paused to pay homage to the great Virginian.

Washington's farewell address was read in both houses of congress. Except for the two legislative branches, official Washington enjoyed a holiday.

BRUNSWICK, Md., (AP)—W. T. Henley, Washington aviator, was burned to death when his airplane turned over in a forced landing near here today. Two men were painfully burned in an attempt to rescue him.

Inside Story On Stavisky Scandal Dies With Slaying

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP)—The "inside story" of the Stavisky scandal it was feared today, died with the ruthless slaying of Judge Albert Prince, "the man who knew all." Revelations involving "high personalities," said Judge Prince's son Raymond, were stolen from a brief case found beside his father when his mutilated body was discovered on a railway track yesterday.

N. Y. Exchange Asks Congress For New Law

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The New York stock exchange tonight asked congress to scrap its bill for proposed governmental regulation of the speculative securities exchanges and substitute a measure of its own origination giving control to a commission on which it would have representation.

Whitney Presents Plan The plan was presented to the house commerce committee through Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, who had spent the day detailing objection after objection to the pending Fletcher-Rayburn bill, principally opposing its minimum margin requirements on the ground they would tend to eliminate speculation and remove a stabilizing factor from the market.

While the measure under consideration, drawn by Ferdinand Pecora and his assistants after their long investigation of stock market practices as counsel for the senate banking committee, would vest control over the markets in the federal trade commission, Whitney proposed that it be done by a semi-governmental body of seven members.

Purposes "The purposes to be accomplished by such legislation," he said, "are: first, the prevention of fraudulent practices affecting stock exchange transactions second, the prevention of the use of an excessive amount of credit for security speculation; and third, the elimination of practices, which, though not fraudulent, permit the manipulation of security prices."

In contrast with the pending bill's outright ban on such activities as pools, creation of an appearance of activity in any issue, wash sales and the like, the Whitney proposal would give the authority it contemplates power "to require stock exchanges to adopt rules and regulations preventing not only dishonest practices but also all practices which unfairly influence the price of securities or unduly stimulate speculation."

"No Money Sent" Whitney vigorously denied that the exchange was sending money to Washington to influence the legislation as charged in a telegram received by members of the committee. Meanwhile, the senate banking committee issued a subpoena for G. V. Harriss, chairman of the publicity committee of the exchange.

ELUDES KIDNAPERS

E. P. Adler (right), 61 year old Davenport, Iowa, publisher and head of the Lee Syndicate of newspapers, as he appeared after he was attacked in a Chicago hotel Wednesday, in an apparent attempt to kidnap him. Mr. Adler was severely beaten by the would-be kidnapers.

Foils Justice

Charles Mayo, alias Charles Phillips, identified as the man who attacked E. P. Adler, Iowa publisher, in a Chicago hotel Wednesday, was yesterday found dead in his cell at a Marquette police station. He had hanged himself with a scarf, 12 hours after confessing to an abortive attempt at kidnaping.

Congressman Dies Suddenly

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Rep. Joseph L. Hooper, 56, of Battle Creek, Mich., died unexpectedly tonight, only a few days after he had announced informally he would not seek reelection from the third Michigan district.

Hooper collapsed in his office shortly after he had delivered an address to the house on the emergency air mail service. He was pronounced dead a few moments later by Dr. G. W. Calver, the capitol physician.

The Michigan Republican was chatting with Rep. Mapes, also of Michigan, when he collapsed. He had sent to the official house reporter for a transcript of his speech and was preparing to revise it for the record.

Chicago Jurors Find Leader, Two Others Guilty of Factor Kidnaping During Last July

Assailant Of Adler Hangs Self in Cell

CHICAGO, Feb. 23 (AP)—Roger Touhy and two of his henchmen were convicted early today and sentenced to 99 years in prison for the kidnaping of John Factor—a verdict state officials said marked the smashing of one of the most formidable criminal organizations in the country.

Touhy, Schaefer, Kator The men convicted are Touhy, head of a gang which fought Al Capone's syndicate for years, Gus Schaefer and Albert Kator.

The conviction came after Touhy and Schaefer had twice defeated attempts to convict them for kidnaping—once previously in the Factor case and also for the $100,000 abduction of William Hamm, Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer.

They were acquitted in the Hamm case, and won respite in the first Factor case when the jury was unable to agree after more than 24 hours of deliberation.

Second Strongest Penalty The penalty was the second strongest possible under the Illinois law. The kidnapers must serve 33 years in prison before they will be eligible for parole. Death would have been the maximum penalty.

The Touhy gang had operated in the northwest suburbs of Chicago since 1920.

They graduated immediately into big time crime by flaunting the Capone forces and forcing their base on the keepers of inns and roadhouses. They became so affluent they could pay their beer truck drivers $100 a week.

Capone Mentioned Defense Attorney William Scott Stewart charged during the trial that the Factor kidnaping case was brought against them "by Capone men with influence in high places after Capone men had been unable to force the Touhys out of the rich territory they had seized."

Stewart also alleged during the trial that Factor never had been kidnaped; that the purported victim told the story in an attempt to make friends among federal officials and to create sympathy in England, to where he has sought extradition on a $7,000,000 stock swindle charge.

Touhy, Kator and Schaefer, who had been held in the "bullpen" of the criminal courts building while the jury debated their fate, were brought into court at 12:31 a.m. to hear the verdict. For the first time each was handcuffed to a bailiff.

Crowd Hears Verdict A crowd was on hand to hear the jury bring in its verdict. Shortly before 10 p.m. the jury sent a request for information about "the next strongest penalty to the death penalty," and the spectators sensed that a verdict was near.

Factor, the stocky international speculator who was seized on last July 1 and held until July 12, was elated over the verdict.

"It shows what can be done to kidnapers if the victims will cooperate with the authorities," he said.

Company Selects Former Student To Study Insurance

Clarence H. Redman of Iowa City, has been selected by the Aetna Life Insurance company as one of the 50 men in the United States to attend the advanced training school for agents at Hartford, Conn. He is leaving this morning to attend the school, which will continue for from six to eight weeks.

He will then return to Iowa City as a special agent for the Aetna company to establish an agency to be known as the C. H. Redman agency. Mr. Redman has been associated with Stewart's and Donahoe's Shoe stores and since has been connected with the New York Life Insurance company for the last year and a half. He attended the University of Iowa three years before entering the insurance business.

Rebel Leader Thought Killed in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 22 (AP)—General Augusto Sandino, rebel and patriot and always a first class fighting man, was reported in a government communique today to have been killed by national guardsmen after they had refused to obey guardsmen's orders to appear before them.

For more than five years he rallied his men against "an imperialistic United States foreign policy," guardsmen, and American marines, and when he lay down arms last fall to become a planter he had in some quarters, the description, "The George Washington of Nicaragua."

Make This Model At Home

Plenty of Neck Interest for Spring

Pattern 1778

By ANNE ADAMS

The new spring silhouette is charmingly expressed in the model sketched today—and a most becoming one it is! The neckline is high with clever interest, the shoulder line is dropped in the new manner, a center seam in the skirt. We must concentrate on the neckline because it closes so smartly to one side and the ruffings may be omitted—or the yoke and sleeves fashioned of contrasting color or fabric as shown on the smaller view. As for fabrics—first choice should go to printed silks or sheers—and then to cottons for a sleeveless frock.

Pattern 1778 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK features a charming collection of afternoon, sports, golf, tennis dresses, jumpers, house frocks, special beginners' patterns, styles for Juniors, and lovely clothes for youngsters, and instructions for making a chic sweater. ### Bachelors To Be Guests At Spree Tonight

And THE Bachelors Of Them All Will Be Presented

Spinsters, spinsters everywhere—but the bachelors will be there, too, when Iowa coeds escort university collegians to the Spinsters' Spree, the dance Women's association will give in the main lounge at Iowa Union, from 9 to 12 o'clock tonight. Joe Chromis and his orchestra from Chicago will play melodies for the dancing couples.

The three most eligible bachelors on campus will be announced at the dance. These men were elected by popular ballot by the association. Their silhouettes, enlarged, will form the orchestra background, and as their identity is revealed, their names will appear on the silhouettes. An Iowa coed will announce the winners.

Programs of Nile green with modernistic lettering will be tied with dark green cord.

Chaperoning the spree will be: Rufus H. Fitzgerald, Prof. and Mrs. Clyde W. Hart, Prof. and Mrs. Otto H. Vogel, and Prof. and Mrs. Dale Yoder.

Theresa Christensen, A4 of Iowa City, is general chairman of the committees. Committee members are: Ann Crow, A2 of Burlington, publicity; June Rogers, A2 of Burlington, tickets; Helen Perkins, A1 of Iowa City, chaperons; Audrey Lea Ivins, A3 of Cedar Rapids, decorations and program; and Marcia Lisie, A3 of Clarinda, budget.

Virginia Lindeman, A4 of Ft. Madison, is secretary of the general committee.

League Will Hear Speech

Mrs. Hunt to Address Women Voters Tuesday

A tea honoring Mrs. E. A. Hunt of Des Moines, chairman of the state committee for the study of the legal status of women, will be given Tuesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the University clubrooms at Iowa Union.

The tea is being given under the auspices of the local committee on legal status of the Iowa City League of Women Voters, of which Ethyl Martin is chairman.

Mrs. Hunt will speak on "The heritage we leave our daughters."

All women who are interested have been invited, regardless of whether they are members of the league.

Mrs. Hunt has for several years been actively engaged in legislation to improve the laws in regard to marriage. She was president of the city League of Women Voters in Oshkosh, Wis., for eight years.

Mrs. Emil Witschi is the social chairman in charge of the tea.

Alumnae Club To Elect Officers

Phi Mu sorority's alumnae club will elect officers at their meeting at 7:30 tonight at the chapter house. Ruth Ferlich, G of Danville, will act as hostess.

Members of the committee in charge are: Mrs. A. C. Trumbidge, Mrs. Earl Custer, Mrs. Zina Griffin, and Mrs. F. C. Young.

The club will furnish scrap books, but requests the members to bring pictures which will be pasted in the books for children.

COIFFURE FROM DIM PAST

Mrs. Kennett Will Entertain at Bridge

Mrs. Charles Kennett, 517 Brooklyn Park drive, will be hostess at the bridge party which the American Legion auxiliary will give at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the auxiliary rooms in the American Legion Community building. The party is open to the public.

Town and Gown Hotel Entertains

Town and Gown residence hotel entertained informally Wednesday night at a bridge, dancing, and ping pong party. Guests were: Cathleen Thomas, Marianne Witschi, Frances Bacon, Luella Reckmeyer, Lola Lampe, Blanche McCrow, John Donnelly, Vernon Taylor, Roger Newton, John Claire, and Arthur Meyer.

Growing needs of Iowa City people for electric and gas service have always found the Iowa City Light and Power Company ready to serve them.

Soon after the foundation of a new residence was finished the company's service wires were strung, making available electricity so essential to comfort, convenience and safety in the modern home.

Whenever street paving was begun the company in most cases had already laid its gas mains, thus making available to the home a clean, dependable fuel—eliminating dirt and drudgery.

The Iowa City Light and Power Company has through the years shown itself as always willing and ready to serve the ever increasing needs of home, store, office and factory with satisfactory gas and electric service.

This service has done much to increase the pleasure and comfort of the home and the efficiency and profit of the store, office and shop.

The never failing readiness to serve has been possible because the company by additional investment and skill kept the capacity of its facilities a step ahead of the community's requirements.

This, of course, required a faith—a faith in the city's future and in the company's future in Iowa City. In this faith the company has within the last few years added substantially to its large investment here so that today it stands ready to serve the community's needs for many years to come.

Refer Transients to Federal Reference Center, Says Sunley

Field Worker Tells Of Government Plans For Needy

All transients, men, women, or families without homes, should be referred to the federal reference center at the Social Service office, Emil M. Sunley, field worker in social work said last night.

Fund Appropriated
The federal government has appropriated a fund which under the direction of Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, has been used to establish transient treatment centers in all sections of the United States to aid transients. In Iowa such centers are located at Charles City, Davenport, Des Moines, and Sioux City.

Food, clothing, medical aid, and clean quarters will be furnished the transients at the camp. At Charles City transients will be given the opportunity to receive education, and to learn vocations.

Individual Care
The plans of the camps are to study each individual's or each individual family's case so that it will be possible for a readjustment. The camp first tries the following methods to deal with the transient's problem: to return the person to the place of former residence if such is possible and practical, to send him to a community where he has friends or relatives, or to send him to some place where he may receive aid from a public or private agency.

10 Day Periods
If none of these methods are workable an attempt is made to adjust the transient in the locality of the treatment center. The average time necessary for the aiding of the transients will probably not be more than 10 days, it is believed.

During the stay at the treatment center, whether it is five days or a month, the transients will work enough to pay for their board and room, and enough more to pay for their transportation to the locality to which they will be sent.

The camps will therefore have a constantly changing personnel, through the transferring of transients to locations where it will be possible for them to live.

The government is attempting to have knowledge of the cases of all transients so that it will be possible for them to aid them, instead of having them wander aimlessly from place to place.

Eligibility
Whether the transients have been traveling for several years or a few days, they are eligible for government aid at the treatment centers. Lucille Bruner, secretary of the local Social Service league, said that 14 persons have been sent to the Davenport treatment center for aid, from the reference center here. More than $150 of federal funds has been spent from the local office this month for service to transients.

Two men have been given medical care by the reference center here. One of the cases was an emergency operation.

In thousands of cities of the United States, similar reference centers, established to furnish federal aid for transients, are located.

D. A. R. Observes Washington Birthday

High points in the life and career of George Washington, first president of our nation, were reviewed by Mrs. Bessie Carroll Higgins, state regent of the Iowa society of Daughters of the American Revolution, at the local Pilgrim chapter's luncheon, commemorating Washington's birthday, given yesterday at 1 p. m. on the sunporch of Iowa Union.

Following luncheon, Mrs. Maud Wheldon Smith entertained the group with piano selections and

COURT MARTIAL

Robert Van der Zee Is 'Sentenced' as Result Of Slight Mishap

Something really should be done about it, thought members of the council, especially with the defendant pleading guilty to the charges of five witnesses—and so, with the advice and consent of the teacher they meted out a terrible sentence.

But first—the case itself. Monday, while he was walking home for lunch with Susan Sayre, Ramona Heusinkveld, Mary Sayre, and Edwin Heusinkveld, all students in the first and second grades of elementary school, Robert Van der Zee made a discovery.

He discovered that it would be shorter to walk across the ice on Iowa river than to cross the inter-urban trestle. And of course, having made the suggestion, there was only one thing to do. Robert did it.

A yard from shore, he fell in, but pulled himself out, shivering. A man, walking nearby, rushed the lad home, and Robert thought himself safe.

But the student council of the elementary school decided that Robert should be curbed, and punished, so after due deliberation, they passed sentence on him yesterday. He must not, they decided, play on the playground during recess, but must stay on the porch. And, unless he goes by way of Iowa avenue bridge, one of his parents must escort him to and from school.

"I think that should settle Robert," one of his school mates said last night.

McLaughlin Lectures On Presidency

Washington, Jackson, and Lincoln were prominent in the making of the presidency of the United States, according to Prof. Andrew C. McLaughlin of the University of Chicago in his talk last night at Iowa Union. His speech was entitled "The makers of the presidency."

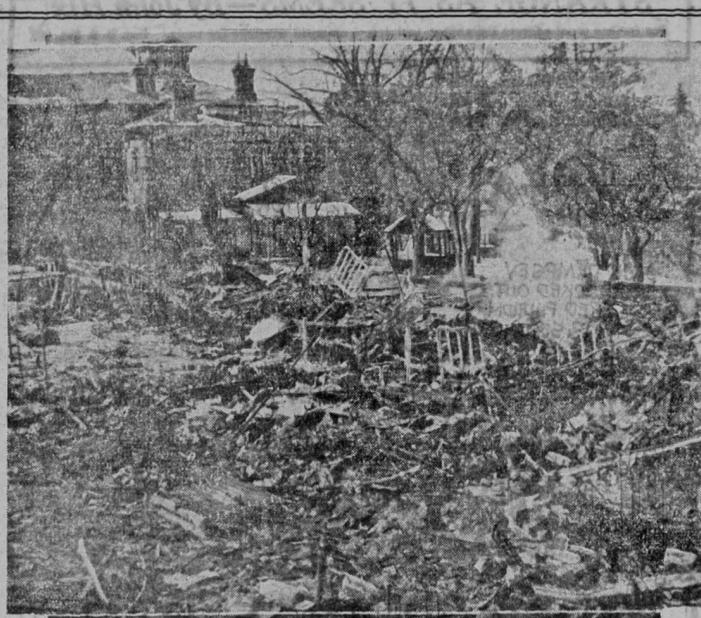

"Washington's term in office was a marvelous work of statesmanship," he said. He noted that during his eight years as president, every step that Washington took aided in the making of the presidency. Professor McLaughlin declared that the president's cabinet came into existence under Washington. The creation of that body of advisers was a great factor in establishing the presidency, he cited.

"Andrew Jackson was the first president of the American people," he declared. He noted that the first time American citizens chose the electors of the president was in 1828. Professor McLaughlin said that Jackson disclosed the possibilities of the president when he used the veto power. In that respect the speaker believes Jackson was the first of modern presidents.

Professor McLaughlin observed that Lincoln carried democracy through the Civil war and saved it while it was still an experiment. Lincoln commanded the northern army and still held his place in the hearts of Americans, he said. "It is not for what he did, that Lincoln is remembered, but for what he didn't do," declared Professor McLaughlin.

Bertha Heetland, 44 of Sibley, gave readings. Baskets of red, white, and blue flowers and ivory tapers in crystal holders decorated the tables for the luncheon which 52 women attended.

Iowa Alumnae To Observe Founders' Day of University

Arrangements have been completed in nine Iowa counties and eight states for dinner in observance of the University of Iowa's foundation anniversary.

The dinners occur between Feb. 25 and March 7, most of them being scheduled for the latter date. March 7 is National Iowa night, when the eighty-seventh anniversary of the university's founding will be observed.

Mary Spencer Wins Prize Of $100 for Pie

Mary Lenore Spencer, 17, Iowa City high school senior, celebrated Washington's birthday by baking the prize winning cherry pie which brought her $100 from the National Cherry Week committee in Chicago yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The dispatch also said that she intends to bake another pie like the prize winner and send it to President Roosevelt. Miss Spencer was sent to Chicago Wednesday by the 4-H club of which she has been a member for five years. Her ability as a pie baker was gained in 4-H club work, in the study of nutrition for two years in high school, and in her home on lower Muscatine road where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer, farm.

In Line of Duty

IN CONJUNCTION with earnest youth all over the nation, Iowa City's Boy Scouts will scour the town tomorrow for everything from bed-clothes to dishpans.

They will be doing their part for the president and their national commander in an attempt to relieve the suffering of the nation's needy citizens to the extent of their ability.

In a nationally broadcast radio address not long ago President Roosevelt charged the Boy Scouts with this task, as their share of the common burden. They had asked what they might do, how they might be of the greatest aid.

He told them, and they are doing it. Tomorrow morning they will be mobilized, and will canvas the entire city. Householders have been asked to leave old furniture, dishes, beds, bedding, stoves, rugs, clothes—anything and everything for which they have no need and which might conceivably be of use to some needy family—on their front porches.

The Scouts will collect all of it and turn it over to the Social Service league, to be distributed where it will do the greatest amount of good.

Obviously, the responsibility rests now upon the citizens of Iowa City. There is a vital need, and a need which possibly will increase temporarily as men are discharged from government supported projects. The Boy Scouts are doing their part. The Social Service league will do its share. Will you do yours?

Another Forgotten Man

ONCE more the birth anniversary of a famous American has come and gone without leaving the general public much better acquainted with him. What a university campus hears is far from typical, and even that is not as a rule calculated to aid materially a critical understanding of the man who has been made into a demigod.

O. O. McIntyre put it well in a magazine article last year when he expressed his resentment against George Washington as a boy. So proper, so much a model, so perfect. Never lied, always did noble things. Gosh! After growing up, however, and learning that Washington had some human frailties such as his love for drink and gambling, McIntyre was able to think of him as a likable creature of brother clay. The other picture had been such a prissified animated Sunday school creation.

But "Odd" McIntyre is hardly a normal individual. To many a school child in Iowa yesterday the first president's birthday meant, "Aw, shucks! Ain't we gonna get a holiday?" To many an adult who would mechanically nod and think "Yeah, great man, that Washington," he meant nothing very specific that ever really happened.

At least half of what citizens who have a high school education know about Washington is apt to be half-true legend. This in spite of the fact that Historian James Truslow Adams ascribes to him as much as to any single factor the success of the English colonies in their revolution of 1776.

Why was he great? Military genius? It is doubtful, for although Washington was a man of ingenuity he never really had formidable opposition and in military strategy he probably can be considered the inferior of such men as Benedict Arnold.

Was it as president? No, for Washington was a figure-head, an aged man who had the confidence of the people which was necessary for Thomas Jefferson to be an effective secretary of state and for Alexander Hamilton to be the greatest secretary of the treasury since Lord North. Hamilton even wrote the bulk of his famous farewell address.

The quality of Mr. Washington was not related directly to the greatness of the American revolution, either. The great figure of that was a man little considered now in the northwest, Thomas Jefferson.

Washington did not even believe in democracy, and was prominent in the Constitutional convention which did its best to put barriers in the paths of the rabble which Hamilton called "a great beast."

Yet to all these things where he was not the greatest, Washington contributed something which led a contemporary to call him "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

That something was character. Character like that of the men he led as general, who were not particularly skilled soldiers but ingenious and inspired fighters for their homes. Character to rise in breadth above the partisan bickerings of Luther

Martin and Alexander Hamilton in the Constitutional convention, of Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton in his cabinet. Character enough, although an aristocrat, to be kindly toward those beneath him in economic society rather than haughtily class-narrow.

Greater than his class, than his section, Washington had something which ought to justify truer knowledge of him by those who look back to him as an American tradition. Historians, however, say with a pained expression that there is no "adequate" biography. Perhaps it is not by accident that the best known likeness of this legendary figure is an unfinished portrait that can be seen on any 2 cent postage stamp, vague nobility rising from a foggy background.

The impossible has happened. A press association report in telling of Senator Long's departure from New Orleans for Washington says: "Long had nothing to say."—Kewance Star-Courier.

Senator Borah—When he is on your side he's a courageous statesman; when on the other side he's a politician.—Warwick in the Toledo Blade.

Well, well. Here's a good old-fashioned traffic accident: Locomotive hits street car. Yes, it happened in dear, sleepy Philadelphia.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

They laughed when I sat down to play the modernistic piano. How the mischief was I to know it was only a book case?—Chelsea (Mass.) Record.

GOOD MORNING

I gave fair warning yesterday that I was going to be bothersomely insistent for a time about this book by Beverly Nichols called "Cry Havoc!" I insist upon it, because I am convinced that it is time men and women of intelligence made up their minds to "Cry havoc, and let slip the dogs of war" against war.

And there is only one way to do this. We all detest war, and fear it. We are in favor of nothing it represents. We know that it has no benefits for victor or vanquished. We know that it settles no disputes. We know that it is founded upon hypocrisy. We know that the emotions of patriotism and courage and heroism which is nurtured and upon which it feeds are hideously false deceptions.

We know all that, but few of us know what to do about it. The whole struggle against war appears at times utterly futile, as we watch the caudron steam and hear the drums begin to roll again.

We know within us that the oath of a thousand or so students at Columbia university not long ago that they would never, in any case, take up arms in a war of any kind, was a feeble and futile, though terribly sincere, gesture.

We have to get deeper than that. We have to learn that war begins in the nursery. We have to learn that the khaki uniform with its brass buttons and leather boots is a cause of war as potent as any other.

We have to learn the real meaning of war, and we have to see to it that the children in the schools learn it also. That is the important thing. How many of them do? The answer is none.

Yet in their history books they read of hardly anything but war. A long series of lovely little wars full of glamor, tales of gallant armies led by admirable heroes, battles without blood.

And gas? Something to cook waffles for breakfast. They do not know that "The pain in the head is described as like that caused when fresh water gets into the nose when bathing, but infinitely more severe. These symptoms are accompanied by the most appalling mental distress. Some soldiers poisoned by these substances had to be prevented from committing suicide; others temporarily went raving mad, and tried to burrow into the ground to escape imaginary pursuers."

Neither do they know that "The actual effect of some of these arsenical smokes is to dissolve the lung tissues, so that the victim, at last, literally drowns in his own blood."

They do not know these things, because they are not told about them. They do not know that recent English air maneuvers proved, as Mr. Nichols reports, "beyond a shadow of a doubt, that no great city can be defended against air attack," nor that gas in the next war will be the chief method of air attack.

It is not children alone who are ignorant. We have all been vaguely aware, and have predicted with solemn gravity, that the next war will be "a real one." What have we known about it, except what we read in the newspapers, or remember from the last war? We know nothing, and uniforms still have their effect and we thrill to the sound of a military band.

I suggested that there is only one way to beat war. That is to mobilize public intelligence against it, to wipe out with vigor and thoroughness the cesspools of hypocrisy and nationalistic patriotism, and to dig up without mercy all the roots of war.

But to do that is not as easy as it sounds. It is harder almost than war itself. It involves first a sound understanding of the problems involved, of the depths to which war and the spirit of war has worked its devious and filthy way into the fundamental fabric of our society. Beverly Nichols will give you a better idea than anyone I know of how it can be done, in "Cry Havoc!"

—Don Pryor

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

At Paramount, Vic recently rose with the dawn to work two hours a day with the crew of men and tractors repairing the ravage of the storm.

The star was returning home from a survey of the $30,000 damage done to his estate by the recent flood. About 300 yards from the house, his eye was caught by a fleck of color in a bed of silt left by a back-water.

Another famous youngster of filmdom, John Blythe Barrymore, Jr., got his first hair-cut yesterday. Dolores Costello is carefully treating the shorn dark curls and John means that his child now inherits the woe of man.

At tender ages, both the Barrymore youngsters are seasoned sailors. They have just returned from a cruise in Mexican waters in the family yacht, the Infanta. Interesting, the arrangements made for the care of the youngsters on the boat.

This star, who is rough and hard-boiled on the screen, spends much time with a rake and hoe on the grounds of his estate. While making port, enough bottled water is taken on to last the entire cruise. Largo quantities of milk also are stored. Perishable vegetables such as spinach are used first and Mac, the chef, who is devoted to the children sees that every necessary article on their diet is ready at hand.

John, Jr., learned to walk on the boat and, if you can believe his father, returned home with quite a roll in his gait.

The Hollywood actor who complains of getting home late from the studio should work in the London film plants. One afternoon, David Manners got caught in a pea-soup fog. The company started him home in a car with two chauffeurs. One drove and the other walked three feet ahead of the car with a white towel tied to his back. Becoming impatient, Manners got out to walk with the man in front. He couldn't see his own feet. They were three hours and a half going 15 miles.

Franchot Tone is God's gift to the flower shops.

On St. Valentine's Day, he literally filled Joan Crawford's portable dressing-room with blossoms. There were dozens of her favorite, the heady gardenia, more dozens of red roses and countless bunches of sweet-peas.

General Notices

To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the Second Semester of the Year 1933-34, June 4, 1934

Every student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the University Convocation to be held Monday, June 4, 1934, should make formal application on a card provided for the purpose, at the registrar's office on or before Saturday, March 31, 1934. It is of the utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately, for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester. Making application for the degree or certificate involves the payment of the graduation fee ($15.00) at the time the application is made—the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call at the registrar's office for the card. H. C. DORCAS, registrar

'Off the Record'

Unofficial Doings in Washington, D. C.

By SIGRID ARNE
Ferdinand Pecora, the fiery little prosecutor of the senate banking investigation, has a new claim to fame.

He turned down a date with Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the much-married. She 'phoned his secretary to say that she had some financial information she wished to turn in. "Ask her if she will please write me all about it in a letter," instructed Pecora.

The White House staff is accustomed to surprises. But it was more than the usual shock when the well-known Washington "grande dame" steamed down the reception line to greet the president, threw wide her arms and exclaimed: "My hero!"

"Bobbie" Reilly, one of the small capitol pages, was assigned to his desk in the school room where the boys study between sessions. They sit at desks once used on the floor of the house.

Bobbie found on his desk the brass name-plate of the late Thomas L. Reilly, representative from Connecticut—Bobbie's grandfather.

The traditional jealousy of the fairer sex gets very little encouragement among the women in congress.

Even the arrival of the stunning Isabella Greenway, congresswoman from Arizona, draws nothing but cordiality from the other women on capitol hill.

When Mrs. Greenway was making her first speech on the floor of the house she stopped midway to ask, "Have I time to say anything more?"

From the Republican side of the house came the cheery voice of Representative Kahn of California: "I will gladly yield you all of my time."

"The men laughed and applauded, and Mrs. Greenway finished her talk.

Appropriately enough, the most unusual NRA blue eagle in the capital is worn by the dynamic, little Frances (Robbie) Robinson, secretary to Recovery Administrator Johnson.

The bird is a pin, fashioned in the shape of the NRA eagle and made of sapphires and stripes of tiny diamonds. The pin is the gift of Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey of the consumers' advisory board, whose office is down the hall from "Robbie's."

The fresh oyster industry had a unique complaint to make at the hearings on its NRA code.

Some of the companies, workmen from Louisiana testified, have been paying in metal checks good at the company store.

The men became so incensed at the checks one pay day that they dumped their pay into the Gulf of Mexico.

"And the next pay day," said the witness, "we still get checks, but they were wooden so they'd float."

Capitolisms: Tom Lynch, one of the president's "old gang," has to smoke cigarettes in public gatherings instead of his favorite cigar. He looks so much like Al Smith that the cigar would just emphasize the resemblance. Visitors may not enter the financial section of PWA without a satisfactory explanation of their errand in advance. The men of the house have almost locked horns in an unofficial beauty contest. The New Englander claim the laurels for Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, but many others incline to Mrs. Isabella Greenway of Arizona.

Prof. Ellett To Lecture

Physicist to Describe Dual Aspects Of Matter

Prof. Alexander Ellett of the physics department will present a Baconian lecture, "Wave and particle: dual aspects of matter," at 7 o'clock tonight in the chemistry auditorium.

A member of the physics department staff here since 1925, Professor Ellett was born in Chillicothe, Mo., received his B.A. degree from the University of Colorado in 1922 and his Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins university in 1923.

Two years after receiving his last degree, he was a fellow in the national research council. He came to Iowa in 1924 and was given a professorship in 1929.

Professor Ellett is a member of the American Physics society; Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity; and Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic organization.

He is the author of a dissertation, "Effect of weak magnetic fields on the polarization of resonance radiation."

Tonight's lecture, which is under the auspices of the college of education, will be open to the public and will be broadcast over WSUI.

Scientist Goes East To Study Meteors; One Falls at Home

It is hard luck for a scientist to travel 3,000 miles to investigate a phenomenon, only to learn later that he could have seen a similar phenomenon if he had stayed at home.

H. H. Nininger, who is associated with the Colorado Museum of Natural History at Denver, Colo., and who investigates meteoric falls that occur in western states, was a guest in the home of Prof. and Mrs. Charles C. Wylie, 1506 Muscatine avenue, on the evening of Feb. 12, when a brilliant meteor was observed at Denver.

Mr. Nininger, who possesses the third largest collection of meteorites in the United States, was traveling eastward to investigate a meteoric fall and had stopped in Iowa City to visit Professor Wylie, with whom he cooperates in tracing the earthward movements of celestial visitors, when the meteor was seen by many persons in his home town.

Besides playing the part of a watchful investigator of such phenomena off guard, the meteor even deceived some Nebraskans into believing that the flaming projectile was a new type of rocket ship on an unheralded flight.

The meteor, which was described by observers at Rapid City as being "the largest ever seen here," was seen from points in several states, including Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado. Professor Wylie personally received a report from an observer at Milestone, Sask., Can. He will forward it to Mr. Nininger for use in plotting the path of the projectile.

The George Washington story told by one university student, Jesse Gorkin, J3 of Rochester, N. Y., is considerably more original than the yarn about cherry trees and dollar throwing that most students know. Upon a visit to the first president's home in Alexandria, Va., Mr. Gorkin noticed a rather prominent scar on Washington's cheek on a painting in the city hall at Alexandria. Upon questioning a guide, he found that the portrait is supposed to be authentic, but that mention of the scar, as far as the guide knows, can be found nowhere in history.

A series of experiments attempting to make an economical automobile fuel by mixing gasoline and commercial ethyl alcohol is being conducted in the mechanical engineering laboratories by Don Voss, E4 of Daventry, and Ted S. Kiesling, E3 of Creston. When poorer grades of alcohol, which contain water, are used, the results are not successful. A third substance is being added now to make the two fuels mix uniformly. The experiments are being carried out under the direction of Prof. Theodore R. Thoren of the college of engineering.

A wood-wind ensemble from Harold Bachman's band will present a concert at Sinclair memorial chapel in Cedar Rapids Tuesday at 8:15 p.m., under the auspices of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Coe college chapter of a national musical fraternity. ### Pre-Revolutionary Scenes Recreated At Film Program

Recreating scenes incident to the stamp act and the stand against "taxation without representation," the film, "The Eve of the Revolution," shown on a university film program yesterday afternoon in the chemistry auditorium, depicted for the large audience the most notable events preceding the actual outbreak of the "war of independence."

The "Boston massacre," the "Boston tea party," the "Salem assembly," the rides of Paul Revere and William Dawes, Jr., the sharp military clashes at Lexington green and Concord bridge, and the retreat of the British were all recreated.

Through these incidents was interpreted the state of mind of the country as the movement for independence gained impetus from 1765 to 1775.

Discipline cases almost reached the vanishing point among students at Ohio State university last year, Dean of Men Joseph A. Park reports.

Approximately one-fourth the total cost of probation cases arising from misdemeanors in Indianapolis is spent on one-tenth the population, a survey has disclosed.

Break Between Austria and Germany Near

Having little faith in the ability of the League of Nations to protect his country against German aggression, Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starbemberg, supreme leader of Austria's Heimwehr, heads a steadily-growing army in the Tyrol, where he declares he will make a last fight for Austrian independence. Although an admirer and ardent supporter of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, Prince Starbemberg believes that Dollfuss appeal to the League of Nations is so much wasted effort. He thinks nothing can avert a fight with Germany despite the fact that Chancellor Hitler recently promised Nazi activities in Austria would cease. Shown above is the Austro-German Customs House at Kufersfelden, Austria. The Nazi flag flies on the German side of the border.

VIENNA, Feb. 22 (IIN)—While Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's five-foot chancellor, pins his faith in the League of Nations to save his country from domination of Nazi-controlled Germany, natives of the Tyrol, Austria's natural barrier against German invasion, do not share his optimism that Geneva will act the role of fairy godmother, and have mobilized to make a last stand of their own for Austrian independence.

Geneva a "Flop"
The attitude of the Tyroleans is understandable when one recalls a very similar impasse that occurred during the Japanese invasion of Manchuria. On that occasion the League, backed by the United States because a specific American treaty, the Nine-Power Pact, was being violated, made a feeble gesture of protest. A commission was sent meandering through Manchuria, presumably to find out where the blame ought to go. After many weeks the commission decided that Japan was at fault and a report denouncing her invasion of China was made to Geneva.

But the censure didn't knock any skin off Japan's nose. She merely withdrew from the League, kept her grip on Manchuria, took over a big slice of Jehol, and, if present indications mean anything, is going right ahead with her program of expansion in defiance of the League and the entire world.

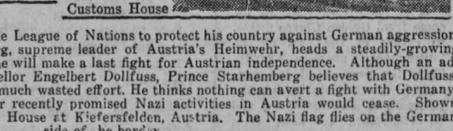

Germany Follows
Encouraged by the meekness with which the League accepted Japan's defiance, Germany was next to quit Geneva, when Chancellor Hitler's demand for arms equality was denied. The fact that France, Great Britain and others metaphorically "pulled their horns in" when Hitler demonstrated he meant business proved, if any further proof were needed, that the League of Nations is merely an idealistic body dealing in verbose "shalts" and shalts notes."

walk and the chauffeur takes a ride, members of our metropolian concert bands and symphony orchestras drift into congenial little groups and play chamber music for their own delectation and edification."

From all external appearances it might be a special course for training meat market proprietors, that is being conducted in a certain room of the chemistry building. At the front of the room is a man wearing a starched white jacket, slapping a piece of flesh on to a computing scales. It happens to be a professor weighing a rat as a part of the work in biochemical research.

Risley to Address Zoological Seminar

Paul L. Risley of the zoology department will address a weekly zoological seminar, to be held in room 307 of the zoological laboratories at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He will speak on "Chromosomes and centrioles in reptilian spermatogenesis."

but lacking what it takes to enforce its dicta.

Small wonder then that the Tyroleans refuse to pin their faith in Geneva. Under the leadership of Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starbemberg, supreme leader of the Heimwehr, the embattled farmers of the Tyrol demand action.

The Nazi element is stronger in the Tyrol than in any other part of Austria. The region depends largely upon tourists for support and the German boycott on Austrian resorts. Since the Nazis first began their campaign of propaganda with the ultimate object of making Austria a German state, the district has been a hot-bed of plot and counter-plot.

Attitude Towards Dollfuss
While the Tyroleans under Prince von Starbemberg are opposed to the Dollfuss policy of protests to the great powers, their leader declares that their aim is to support him by forcing him to travel in the right direction. "This is no revolution against our own government," said the Prince at a recent interview, "but a popular uprising against the sabotage of Austria. We Austrians will not be a province of Prussia and Berlin." If necessary, however, the Prince declared, his party will support to force him to declare a dictatorship.

The present situation in the Tyrol indicates that the long-awaited break is imminent. Following the speech by Chancellor Hitler on the recent anniversary celebration of the Nazi regime's first year, it was hoped the crisis was past, as Hitler promised Nazi activities against Austria would cease. But in the background, Hitler's right-hand man, Herman Goering, is believed to be the irreconcilable who is keeping the trouble aflame. There are many close observers in Germany who maintain that Goering has more power in the Nazi party than Hitler, himself, and that if he takes

Get Inventory of Vitamin A Now, Warns Children's Hospital Doctor

This is the time of year to take inventory on one's vitamins, especially vitamin A, advises Dr. Philip C. Jeans of children's hospital.

Deficiency of vitamin A makes a person more easily susceptible to colds and other infections of the nose and throat. Moreover, this vitamin is necessary for growth, and lack of it causes a condition known as night blindness. A proper diet figures materially in aiding the system in withstanding the weather inclements of the winter season, Dr. Jeans declared.

In order to determine the extent to which vitamin A is of importance in one's health, Dr. Jeans has conducted a research with this as the objective. "It is my opinion that a good diet will supply an adequate amount of vitamin A, and that use of concentrates, advertised products, as a method of obtaining the vitamin."

Night Blindness
Functional night blindness is one of the established symptoms of Vitamin A deprivation. However, it is one which is not recognized by an ordinary routine examination and usually is considered only when complaint is made by the patient. This symptom is of an alternating rather than organic nature.

A routine test for night blindness probably would reveal many more cases than are now suspected. In his experiment relative to this vitamin, Dr. Jeans strove to demonstrate that visual tests constitute a satisfactory means of determining degrees of its deficiency.

The subjects used for the study were children who had been accepted as patients at Children's hospital. The tests were made immediately after the subjects came under hospital care, so the findings were the result of home regime rather than that of the hospital. Twenty per cent of the children who enter this institution suffer from the lack of vitamin A, Dr. Jeans noted.

Dark Vision
Of the children having abnormal dark vision, in no case was any indication discovered that the abnormality was other than functional; that is, pertaining to the proper or natural action of this affliction. These patients were given three teaspoons of cod liver oil daily in addition to their regular hospital diet, and without exception all of them showed subsequent normal condition. The average period required for recovery was about 12 days.

"Because of the accepted relationship of functional night blindness to nutrition, the occurrence of recovery while the children were ingesting a good diet with an abundance of vitamin A, is believed to constitute evidence that the children of the abnormal group had been suffering from its deficiency."

By means of a test of this sort more accurate knowledge of the prevalence of this deficiency can be ascertained and nutritional recommendations can be governed accordingly, Dr. Jeans asserted. The experiment also offers a means of determining the human requirement for vitamin A, an understanding of which up to the present time has been considerably lacking.

Dr. Jeans stressed the significance of products advertising vitamin A. "Current periodicals constantly advertise the need of this vitamin, in connection with certain preparations. While there is no question concerning its need and the fact that the diet of many people lacks the basic elements of vitamin A, there is question for the necessity of this substance in the form of special concentrates for routine use. Unquestionably a proper diet will supply an abundance of the vitamin, and the use of this means is better than the use of concentrates."

ABOUT SPORTS

First Tournament Ends . . .
Boys Put on Show . . . Hard
Punchers on Card . . .

BY RON TALLMAN

IT'S all over now—The Daily Iowan's first annual Golden Gloves tournament, the show that is the talk of the town.

When 1,100 local fight fans crowded their way into the American Legion building last night, they made the biggest crowd that had ever witnessed a fight program in Iowa City, amateur or pro.

Enthusiasm throughout the evening was expressed by the big throng for the willingness to mix of the boys and the slugging matches that were presented.

When next year's tournament rolls around—for this is to be an annual event—perhaps a larger auditorium will have to be sought.

SLUG IT OUT

From the opening bout on the card until the conclusion, the fans sat tight as they watched battle after battle that wasn't decided until the final round or a sudden knockout had been registered.

The boys stood up slugging it out toe-to-toe, some employing science and others simply charging in. But it all went to make for action and more action.

Every fighter out of the 22 who appeared during the evening at least proved to the big crowd that he could take it even though he might not be able to give as much as some. No quitters among the lot. And they were the big reason for the success of the show.

HEAVY HITTERS

Some extra heavy sluggers displayed their wares last night and the ring virtually shook as they clipped opponents on the chin.

Roy Walters scored a one round knockout in the semi-finals and then came back to practically have Don Thredkeld out in the first round. Even though he ultimately lost, Walters displayed plenty of punch.

Corney Walker met a tough customer in Dwight Hoover and took some heavy clouts himself before he could bore in in the third round and hang up his second knockout of the meet. Leon Lind, who also registered a knockout, Leo Cain, Les Glick and Everett Haliday—big and little alike—demonstrated some heavy hitting as well.

Whether the boys go far in Chicago or not, it can be said right now that they will make their opponents know they have been in the ring before being eliminated. That's not saying, however, that they will be early victims.

ACTIVITIES

By LES CAMP

Phi Epsilon Pi won from Sigma Phi Epsilon last evening by the slight margin of two points in the roughest game of the inter-fraternity class B basketball contests to date.

A total of 18 personal fouls were called in the game but the greater part of the free throws were missed. The final score of the game was 14 to 12.

Two other games that were scheduled were postponed by mutual agreement of the contestants due to The Daily Iowan's Golden Gloves tournament.

Sigma Nu and Pi Kappa Alpha, the only remaining undefeated teams in the league, will probably meet each other next week in the decisive game of the series.

Sigma Nu, however, has won two games and Pi Kappa Alpha has won but one. Of the other teams, Phi Epsilon Pi has won one and lost one, Sigma Phi Epsilon has lost one, and Sigma Phi Epsilon has been defeated twice.

The field house gym last evening was also the scene of a game between the Long Horns and the No Names with the former team winning 16 to 12.

Freshmen in the various physical education sections have shown as much interest in these inter-class games as the fraternities have evidenced in theirs. "Dad" Schroeder will probably continue this practice in future years.

Iowa Cage Team Performs Before 107,000 Persons

The University of Iowa basketball team in its 16 games has played before a total of 107,000 persons, an average of 6,743 per game.

Official attendance figures from the department of athletics show that some 77,400 persons have seen the team play in the field house, and 52,400 of these attended the five Big Ten games. The average for the 10 home games is 7,740; for the conference contests, 10,480.

Only three games remain on the schedule, including the final home affair Saturday with Minnesota. It appears now that the 19 games will approximate 130,000. Illinois and Wisconsin are to be met in the two remaining road games.

City, U. Jr. High Outfits End Seasons

Both City and U. Junior high schools wound up their cage campaigns for the season Monday night, the former defeating Kalona, 16 to 11, in a hotly contested game after three overtime periods; and the latter bowing to Wellman, 15 to 9.

The Little Hawkelets' defeat of Kalona, coupled with Wellman's win over U. Juniors, enabled the Wellmanites to draw up into a tie with Kalona for first place in the Little Hawke league standings.

The scene of the play-off for the championship, the date of which has not yet been determined, very likely will be either at City high or U. high gym.

In the event that Kalona wins, it will acquire permanent possession of the traveling trophy. A team is required to win three championships before the trophy may be removed from competition. As Kalona has already won two, it needs only one more.

The Little Hawke league standings to date:

Three Knockouts Feature Card As Eight Gain Titles; Champs To Compete in Chicago Fights

Leon Lind, Corney Walker, Roy Walters Register Knockouts During Evening; Thredkeld Upsets Latter in Finals

By JACK GURWELL

Blazing their way through the final bouts last night, eight fighters proved by might of sheer fighting ability before more than 1,100 spectators in the American Legion building their right to the first Daily Iowan Golden Gloves championships. They will make up the Iowa City contingent of battlers to compete in the Chicago Tribune's Tournament of Champions next week.

Blue Outfit Given Chance For Revenge

Encounter Last U. High Game of Regular Season

St. Patrick's cagers travel over to the University high gymnasium tonight to engage the river school boys in a return game. The Irish took a 30 to 22 decision over an inexperienced Blue five in December, but the latter is given a chance to reverse the count on its own floor. The game will conclude U. high's regular season.

Coach Connor worked his charges lightly last night on handling the ball and following up shots. The Green have not been at form in the last four games, showing too much of a tendency to wait for the ball, rather than coming in to meet their passes.

Boyd Improves
Frank Boyd seems to be gaining impetus with every game. The clever forward, always the star in floor play, has scored seven goals and two free throws in the last two games, for a total of 16 points, which about doubles his total for the season. He has a good eye for the basket, and has been taking more shots in the later games, his shifty ball handling shaking him loose several times in the last two games, both at Muscatine.

Capt. Denny Emanuel, giant Irish center, may have another busy night if Thomas, Blue center, continues to perform as credibly as he has recently. Garrett, the St. Matthias center, had scored 17 points in his last game, but could not do anything against Emanuel Wednesday night, being tied up practically every time.

Tight Defense
The U. high boys may have trouble tonight penetrating the Irish defense, which Wednesday for the second time this season, held St. Matthias of Muscatine scoreless from the field.

The Irish starting lineup will be: Boyd and Hanlon, forwards; Capt. Emanuel, center; McNamara and Gough, guards; Coach Kistler's five will probably consist of: Myers and Jessup, forwards; Thomas, center; Barron and Fountain, guards.

Gophers to Furnish Old Gold Heavy Opposition in Season's Only Indoor Big 10 Meet Here

Fourth Meeting of Two Foes During Bresnahan Regime; Iowans Favored in Short Races, Gophers in Long Runs, Field

University of Iowa's track and field team opens its 1934 indoor season tonight in the fieldhouse, meeting Minnesota in the only home Big Ten indoor affair of the season. The dual, in which will be seen in action 40 Hawkeyes and 23 Gophers, gets under way at 7:30 o'clock with the final event coming before 9 o'clock.

This will be the fourth Iowa-Minnesota indoor meet since Coach George T. Bresnahan came to Iowa in 1921. Iowa won the first two but lost to Minnesota in 1923 when the Gopher indoor squad last appeared in the fieldhouse.

Gophers Strong
Yet having to test first class competition, the Hawkeye squad will find no easy foe in this Gopher outfit that last Saturday won the Minnesota state intercollegiate championship from a field of seven rivals. Coach Clarence Munn, former Gopher all-American football guard and Big Ten champion shot putter, will have charge of the visiting team during the illness of Coach Sherman Finger.

Perhaps the Iowans should hold the edge as far as shorter dash events and the hurdle races are concerned, but the Gophers are conceded the advantage in the longer track events and in the high jump and shot put.

Crayne Injured
In the 60 yard dash Capt. Sidney Dean, Siegel, and Becker should have an even chance against Weisman and Singer, both capable of .064 in this event. Dick Crayne, counted upon by Coach Bresnahan for points, was severely spiked in time trials Tuesday and might not be able to start.

Both the high and low hurdles rate as toss-ups with the two crack Minnesota hurdlers, Knoblauch and LaRoque, able to force Frances Cretzmeier and Babe Moulton, although the latter reign as slight favorites. The two Gophers were members of the Minnesota quartet that won the shuttle hurdle relay events at the Kansas and Drake relays last spring.

If past performances mean anything, the Gophers should be a match for the Iowans in the 220 yard race. The Gophers' Ernie Jacobsen, who won the 220 yard race at the Big Ten meet in Ames, Iowa, last year, is expected to be a contender. The Gophers' Ernie Jacobsen, who won the 220 yard race at the Big Ten meet in Ames, Iowa, last year, is expected to be a contender.

Lucille Robinson Wins

Kizer Decides Against Move

Closes Negotiations With Ohio; Criticism "Unjustified"

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 22 (AP)—Noble E. Kizer, Purdue university athletic director and head football coach, today ended reports that he might accept a coaching position at Ohio State with a statement that "I have definitely decided against making any move."

At the same time he termed "unjustified" criticism directed at the Buckeye school for its action in approaching him with an offer.

Purdue alumni at Indianapolis had engaged in an exchange with President Rightmire of Ohio State over the negotiations.

Kizer said, "The criticism of Ohio State, while undoubtedly well meant, was unjustified. Ohio State's actions were entirely legitimate, and the approaches to me were made through the regular official university channels."

Cyclone's Win Again

PROVIDENCE, R. I., (AP)—Iowa State's wrestling team climaxed a successful eastern invasion by overwhelming the Brown university grapplers 33 to 3, in a dual meet here tonight.

Iowa Meets Michigan Swimmers At Ann Arbor Tonight

Wolves Rated Slim Favorite Over Hawks

Both Teams Unbeaten; Busby to Captain Mermen

Two undefeated swimming teams will enter the pool tonight at 7 o'clock in Ann Arbor and 80 minutes later either Iowa or Michigan will have suffered its first Big Ten defeat.

Michigan, with its flashy array of stars and champions, is confident of victory, but Iowa's sophomores, led by Bill Busby, are determined to show that a balanced team is better than a few individual stars.

Wolves Have Edge

Comparing the two squads man for man, Michigan has a slight edge over the Hawkeyes in the 400 yard free style relay, the 150 yard back stroke, the 440 yard free style, fancy diving, and the 220 yard free style. Coach David Armbruster is counting on his men to place high in the 200 yard breast stroke, the 50 yard free style, the 100 yard free style, and the 300 yard medley relay.

In the 400 yard free style relay Michigan has entered Dalrymple, Robertson, Rennert, Kamienski, Blake, and Lawrence while Iowa will depend upon Wehmeyer, Sieg, Ernst, Jacobsmeyer, and Close. Wehmeyer and McClintock will carry the Old Gold colors in the 200 yard breast stroke against Lawrence, Gare, and Dennison.

Drysdale and Boice of Michigan are given the edge over Ernst and McClintock in the 150 yard breast stroke. With Jack Sieg as his best sprint swimmer, Coach Armbruster will also enter Wehmeyer, Ernst, Jacobsmeyer, and Close in the 50 yard free style event against Dalrymple, Blake, and Kamienski.

Grove vs. Christy

Capt. Jim Christy of Michigan is the favorite in the 440 yard free style, but Bruce Grove will push him to the limit. Again in the 100 yard free style the Iowans will count upon Sieg, Ernst, Jacobsmeyer, and Close to outdistance Robertson, Blake, and Kamienski.

Capt. Bill Busby will meet the great Dick Gesener, Big Ten and national champion, in the fancy diving event. Zukas of Iowa and Johnston of Michigan are the other two entries.

In the 220 yard free style Christy, supported by Robertson and Osgood will race against Hurley, Grove, and Jacobsmeyer of the Iowans. The 300 yard medley relay will find Ernst, Sieg, Wehmeyer, McClintock, and Jacobsmeyer on the line against Drysdale, Lawrence, and Dalrymple.

ent on the floor twice in the first round for the nine count and wasted no time in the second frame. He was out of his corner slowly but came to life with a right that floored Wren where he stayed as Referee Bob Rush tolled off the count.

But this was only a teaser to that smashing right by Corney Walker that won for him the heavyweight title over Dwight Hoover in the third round. Both men came out of their corners cautiously and the first round was a sort of feeler. Walker's loss left him at bay the slashing close in attack of Hoover.

Again in the second frame the reach advantage offset the powerful body attack of the loser.

Takes Count

With the bell for the final round Walker's hammering rights and shooting lefts were doing their damage with Hoover trying desperately. In ducking under a left jab Hoover met squarely the knockout punch and took the count.

In the heavy division Lloyd Hoffman sprung a surprise by winning a three round decision over Jerry Foster in a rough house affair that almost tore up the ring, breaking one of the corner posts and necessitating a time out period of 15 minutes while reconstruction was in progress. Hoffmann, however, was injured in this match and could not go on, this bringing Hoover and Walker together in the finals.

Weaving Style

Again Leo Cain's weaving style and dynamite sledge hammer rights proved the undoing of his opponent, this time Jim Howard. With the first round even, both getting in for fairly effective punches, Cain varied his procedure to hammer away to the body as Howard failed to make an impression on Cain's crouching and weaving method of fighting. His ineffectiveness proved his undoing in the final round as blows to the body and head gave Cain the title by judges' decision.

In one of the cleanest, fastest bouts of the show, Don Threlkeld spiked a last round comeback by Roy Walters in the final bout of the evening. Threlkeld proves about as easy to hit as a feather and Walters blows had about as much effect until he final stanza. The winner had piled up too much of a

Swanson, Froning Join Movie Studio Basketball Outfit

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22 (AP)—Duane Swanson and "Bud" Froning, the two University of Iowa basketball players who caused a proselyting investigation when they hitch hiked their way to Los Angeles to enter the University of Southern California, now are playing movie basketball.

The youths obtained jobs as property men at the Columbia studio and joined the studio basketball team, Froning playing forward and Swanson guard.

They declared they came west without any influence or inducement from the Trojan institution and still are awaiting arrival of their credits so they can enroll at U. S. C.

FOUR MEN

Make Last Appearance on Home Court

the mien of the howling thousands in the stands will not be one of unbounded joy, even in the event of a glorious victory, for as they watch the shiny glint of the gold uniforms disappearing in the entrance to the players' quarters, they will have witnessed the last performance of four members of the little band in Iowa colors.

Four Leave

For like the inevitable sweep of Father Time's scythe, graduation will have called a halt to the collegiate athletic careers of Howard Moffitt, Ben Selzer, Howard Bastian, and Harold Swaney. But even Father Time will be unable to completely dim the brilliance of their sincere and untiring efforts in behalf of Iowa standards and traditions.

And though Iowans who succeed them in the future may outshine and outdo them in athletic skill and performance, they will always be remembered by those who take a vital interest in the welfare of Hawkeye athletics for the great significance which their play carried during the most crucial years in that phase of Iowa history.

Moffitt Versatile

Howard Moffitt, a product of Iowa City high, is the most versatile of the departing quartet. For two years a backfield man in football, and three years a regular forward on the basketball team, he is remembered on the gridiron for his brilliant 55-yard runback of a kickoff in the Northwestern game of 1931, and on the court for his high-scoring consistency in all of the three years he has played. As a sophomore, Moffitt finished fourth in Big Ten scoring, playing for a second-division team, and threatens to outdo this performance in the present season.

Ben Selzer, a former member of the Passaic, N. J., cage team which made high school history a few years ago in winning 159 consecutive games, is the first Hawkeye player to be named on an all-conference team since 1927. Adapting himself readily to the mid-western style of play, Selzer became a star at a guard position by virtue of his clever passing, excellent defensive work, and his uncanny, but effective shooting. It was Selzer who introduced the "hawker," a low, arching shot from far out on the court, to local fans.

Bastian Big

Howard Bastian, an Eldora boy, margin, however, and took the 147 pound championship. Walters' first round knockout in the semi-finals over Gene Platt, which came after one minute and 30 seconds of bruising offensives, was really the opening K.O.

Glick Wins

Les Glick overcame a reach advantage of Gene Fife in the 160 pound division to gain the decision. Despite the constant left flicking in his face, Glick bored in with a body attack that was damaging and although weakening in the final minute, his margin of victory was too great. His short, powerful body punches won him the title.

The southpaw tactics of Billy Coppin took the 126 pound division from Wilbur Wyjack but only after a fight all the way. This brilliant clouting dual found the little tow head taking time and coming back for more to force the issue in the final round. Wyjack tired as the fight drew to a close but the decision was a close one.

Hammond Loses

Norval Hammond, colored 133 pound boy, had not the strength to withstand the pressing, slashing battle of Carl Brade, another Muscatine fighter, and the Iowa Clifan lost the title after defeating Young Tortrance in the semi-final round. With a right cocked for action and always on the aggressive, the Muscatine fighter piled up a big advantage. Brade defeated Jimmy Tate, another colored boy, in the semi-finals earlier in the evening to get into the finals.

Judges for the fights were Doug Fairbanks, Jake Kelly, and Dr. Duncan. Referee was Bob Rush, University of Iowa boxing coach, thing Iowa's hopes in the mile and two mile runs are destined to ride jolting man, the crack Gopher distance man, Slocum, gets to work. Last week Slocum won the two mile in a walk in 10:13.4 and has a mark of 9:56 in this event. Dave Flage, Maurice Gordon, and Trumm will have to out-do themselves to catch the flying visitor. In the mile, however, Leo Campbell and Gordon should rate as slight favorites as the longer race is Slocum's best distance. Lehner and Gustafson will also compete in the mile for Minnesota.

In the 40 yard dash Dean ranks a decided favorite although Liard is capable of running the quarter under 52 seconds. Ed Becker and Sol Mandelblatt have also been turning in some nice performances in workouts and should edge out other Gopher quarter milers. Bernie Page might run in this race but Coach Bresnahan has shifted him to the 880 yard run.

Iowa has a host of half milers, including Campbell, Pat Henry, and William Morrissey. With the addition of Page the Hawkeye 880 strength should about equal that of Dahl and Galloway for Minnesota. Dahl's mark of 2:06.4 in winning the event last week over his team mate, Galloway, makes the Iowa chances problematical, however.

Again the Iowa chances are problematical in the field events, with Minnesota favored in the high jump and shot put. Weisman looks good with a mark of six feet in the high jump while Higgins, Morrissey, and Henry are in position to push him all the way. Friemuth, with a mark of 45 feet 6.12 inches made last week to his credit, reigns an easy favorite over Tom Moore, Rudy Leytze, and Kouba. Again Dick Crayne's participating is problematical due to his leg injury.

Dutch Schmidt is capable of pole vaulting over 11 feet 6 inches and ranks favorite along with Frasier and Kewley. Parks and Kochevar for Minnesota have yet to better that height in competition this year. Again, in the broad jump, Iowa should be favored with Moulton and Cretzmeier both having better distances than the 21 feet 1.34 inch jump that brought Weisman a win last week at Minnesota. Galloway left the room—she fled down the stairway and up a flight of narrow stairs. Above her was the blessed sky. She was on the deck, muffled in the darkness of the night, moving swiftly, surely, pressing against the rail.

The wharf was just ahead. Where were the others? Gray then he glimpsed a member of the crew, his back to her, his face turned toward the Sound. Could she pass him? No, she could not.

She retreated aft. The lapping of the waves quite concealed the noise she made as she slipped beneath the rail, held on a panicky second and dropped.

She missed the water by inches. The wharf was secure beneath her feet. She reached the street. It was an evil neighborhood, dimly lit, mean and dark. But she was free. And Bill McGee was not. He was locked in a stateroom on the Lazy Mary. Would he still be lying inert in his chair when the police arrived?

She ran on and on. A woman running was no novelty in such a neighborhood. There were few to see her. A more brightly lighted street and at last she saw a cab. She hailed it. The driver glanced at her incuriously. To him this haggard, unkempt girl was just another casual of the night. He saw so many. When she gave Julian Haverholt's address he laughed.

"Are you going there to solve the murder?"

"Perhaps," she said it oddly. "The police won't let you in."

"They'll let me in."

He gave her a questioning look. She was a queer one. Well, he had hauled queer ones before. He slammed the door.

It was a long drive to Murray Hill. The length was nothing to the girl just as time itself was nothing. She was only vaguely conscious of its passage.

At length they stopped before the mansion that had housed her for so many months. Julian Haverholt's home! She saw now what the taxi driver had meant. People lined the sidewalks, stood with noses pressed against the fence, chattering and babbling of the murder, restraining from pushing into the garden only by the policemen at the gate. They would let her pass!

Patricia fumbled for her purse. Just then the iron gate swung outward and a man emerged from the garden, pressing his way toward the crowds that impeded his progress as he struggled toward the street.

Clark Tracy! Patricia saw him and she saw her!

Patricia's knees shook beneath her. This was more than she could bear. She stood very still in the shadow of the cab, her body braced against the door, a street light shining on her spent, white face. As Clark approached, she tried to pass him, started toward the gate that would lead her to the only home she knew. Julian Haverholt lay dead inside.

Police were there who sought her for his murder.

Before she realized what was happening, Clark had grasped her by the wrist, had pulled her from the sidewalk to the street. Bodily he lifted her into his own car, the low-slung roadster where she had sat so many times in happier days. He was beneath the wheel, he had pressed the starter and those two, so strangely met, roared around the corner. Once or twice she tried to speak.

"Don't," he said. "Not now. You've gone through enough." Presently he spoke again, "I've been nearly crazy. When I saw you safe I was so happy."

"I must go to the police," she told him dully. "You should have let me go."

"My heavens, Patricia, I couldn't let you go."

CHAPTER FIFTY-EIGHT

Springing to her feet, she faced him, her eyes glittered in an ashen face, both hands held out as if to ward him off.

"Hello, sweetheart," he said easily. "I hope you've had a pleasant day."

"She fought a flood of rising hysteria. "Let me off this boat," she said. "Let me off."

He smiled his odd, triumphant smile. He said very softly, "Hold your horses, sweetheart. You'll find you don't really want to leave. You'll be glad that old Bill is good enough to let you stay."

There was a newspaper beneath his arm. Deliberately he spread it flat. Patricia saw her own pictured face, saw a flaming headline:

"Patricia Warren Sought for the Murder of Julian Haverholt."

The newspaper slipped from Patricia's nerveless fingers and fell rustling to the floor. She had read the story of Julian's murder. The final lines she thought would be forever printed on her brain.

"District Attorney Evans late to this afternoon swore out a warrant for the arrest of Patricia Warren, who had posed as the murdered bridegroom's niece. According to sworn testimony of the servants, the two were quarreling when they returned to the house after playing in the so-called Bridge Battle of the Century."

"Turn notes found in the missing girl's wastebasket indicate that she planned to break the engagement with Haverholt, which was announced last night at the conclusion of the first round of the sensational bridge match. It is believed that a quarrel ensued which led to the tragedy. Police have learned that Miss Haverholt packed her bag before she fled in the early hours of the morning."

Patricia looked at the fallen newspaper, looked at Bill. He lounged against the door, a cigarette between his lips. His thin, mouthed, sinister smile expressed his utter satisfaction.

"Well," he said triumphantly, "aren't you willing now to hang around a while?"

"You murdered Julian," she told him quite emotionlessly.

In all its dreadful clarity the picture rose before her eyes. The pouring rain, the furious howling of the wind, a man, this man standing outside a lighted window and firing through the glass.

"You shot him like the coward that you are."

"What of it?" inquired Bill, stretching lazily. "The police have greased the skids for you."

"You were in the house."

"Try and prove it, sweetheart," said Bill, grinning. "I come clean on this job. You're in the jam. Read your paper, read your paper."

"I've read it," said Patricia faintly.

Bill tossed his cigarette to the floor, stared out through the open porthole a moment, and turned to her, smiling again.

"This is the set-up," he said. "You can hide out with me until the storm blows over. With me, you're safe. Away from me, the police will nail you in a minute. Do you get it? Old Bill is your friend. He's doing you a service."

As Bill talked on, intoxicated with his success, Patricia's panic lessened and was replaced by cold and bitter anger. Her own position no longer seemed important. This boasting coward had murdered Julian Haverholt. Only she knew the secret of the tragedy. Only she could bring the murderer to justice. Somehow she must beat Bill at his own game. There must be some way. She spread her hands.

"You win, Bill," she said. "I'll stay aboard the boat."

"That's sense," the man replied. He approached her, patted her, half sneeringly on the cheek. His arm dropped about her shoulder. Patricia did not move.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Strange as it seems, the epic poem that was so bitterly criticized that it contributed to the author's insanity, was also the one that was so popular that for 200 years in Venice the gondoliers sang nothing else. The poem was Torquato Tasso's "Jerusalem Delivered"—a story of the delivery of Jerusalem from the Saracens. The hero was Godfrey de Bouillon, first Christian king of the holy city.

The author sent it to scholars for comment after he wrote it, and their criticism was so bitter that it was partly responsible for Tasso's insanity, a condition from which he subsequently recovered. Fame came too late for him, however, and the day he was to have appeared before the pope in Rome to receive honors, he was buried.

S. A. Swisher Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral service for Stephen A. Swisher, 78, former president of the State Historical Society of Iowa and Johnson county pioneer, who died Wednesday afternoon, will be held at 2:30 this afternoon at the Methodist church with the Rev. Harry D. Henry officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery here.

Funeral service for Stephen A. Swisher, 78, former president of the State Historical Society of Iowa and Johnson county pioneer, who died Wednesday afternoon, will be held at 2:30 this afternoon at the Methodist church with the Rev. Harry D. Henry officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery here.

Mr. Swisher was born in Johnson county and lived his entire life here. He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. L. A. Royal of West Liberty, and two sons, Stephen A., Jr. and John C., both of Des Moines. Four grandchildren and 19 nieces and nephews also survive.

Boy Scouts Plan Drive Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon the Boy Scouts will collect donations of household furniture and household equipment which will be turned over to the Social Service league.

There is a need for baby beds, mattresses, carpets, linoleum, wringers, tables, axes with which the men can chop wood, pillows, window screens and door screens (even if only good frames), go-carts, rocking chairs, and bedding, says Lucille Bruner, secretary of the Social Service league.

"We would also be greatly pleased to have a sewing machine and a washing machine if they are in working condition," she said.

"There are many Iowa City homes which need equipment and need it badly, and we trust that the Boy Scouts will be given an opportunity to fulfill their pledge to President Roosevelt and help these homes," she continued.

To help the collectors and prevent any great annoyance, donors have been asked to put the materials on their front porches.

Walker Rites Are Arranged

Funeral service for Joseph Walker, 75, pioneer Johnson county banker who died at his home Monday afternoon, will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian church with the Rev. W. P. Lemon officiating. The Oathout funeral home is in charge and burial will be made in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Walker, the son of Joseph and Jane Powelson Walker, was born on a farm in Pleasant Valley township June 29, 1858. He attended the University of Iowa for two years. In 1903 he moved to Hills where he helped to organize the Hills Savings bank and became its cashier.

He moved to Iowa City in 1911 and became vice president of the Citizens Savings and Trust company, and at the time of his death was president of the Lone Tree Savings bank at Lone Tree.

Mr. Walker married Cora Adams, a teacher in Lone Tree high school, in 1883. She preceded him in death in May, 1931. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Walker. Three of them Fred M., Bernice, and Ralph A., preceded their father in death. One son survives, Lieut. Comm. Myron J. Walker, U. S. Navy, stationed at the naval air station at Sunnyvale, Cal.

He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. I. R. Thompson of Des Moines, and 14 nieces and nephews.

Garrigues Elected President of State Ministerial Group

The Rev. Caspar C. Garrigues, of the Christian church of Iowa City was elected president of the Iowa Ministerial association of the Christian church which met at University place Christian church at Drake university, Feb. 19 to 21.

The Rev. George Hamilton Combs, pastor of the Country Club Christian church, Kansas City, Mo., was guest speaker at the meeting which was attended by more than 100 Iowa ministers.

Other officers chosen for the new year were the Rev. Dwight Walker of Moorhead, vice president, and the Rev. R. W. Fillmore of Kalona, secretary-treasurer.

Lichty Funeral To Take Place Today At McGovern Home

Funeral service for Mrs. Jemima Lichty, 77, who died at her home, 1131 E. Washington street, Wednesday at 10:30 a.m., will be held at the McGovern funeral home at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. W. S. Dyingier will officiate, and burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Lichty was preceded in death by her husband, William D. Lichty, who was a pioneer hardware merchant here. She is survived by one son, Thomas Lichty of Montreal, Canada.
