Iowa Cagers Will Close Home Season With Game Tonight

Three Regulars Near Finish As Hawkeyes Meet Minnesota

Local Team Seeking Revenge Against Old Rivals

By RON TALLMAN
Iowa's Hawkeyes, fighting to stay in the first division in the Big Ten basketball race, meet up with their most ancient court rival in the field home tonight as they close the 1934 home season with Minnesota the opponent.

It will be a revenge-seeking Old

PROBABLE LINEUPS

IOWA	MINNESOTA
Moffitt	LF	Roscoe
Barko	RF	Sochacki
Bastian	C	Norman
Grim	LG	Kane
Selzer	RG	Svendsen

OFFICIALS: Referee, George Lewis (Wisconsin); umpire, Fred Young (Illinois Wesleyan).
TIME: 7:35 p.m.; doors open at 4:35.

Gold quintet that steps out to face the Gophers before an expected crowd of 10,000 in a game which will possibly rival the closeness of that at Minneapolis early in the season when the Minnesotans nosed out the Iowans, 39 to 38.

Two Defeats

It was that defeat which started the partial collapse of Coach Rollie Williams' men and which found the Gophers coming from nowhere to climb high in the conference midway in the season.

But since that time, Coach Dave McMullan's team has taken two straight defeats and now has an even break in the 10 games played.

Iowa, loser of three other contests since that disastrous and surprising loss to the Gophers, will be attempting to climb above the fourth place it now is in. A victory over Minnesota would place the Old Gold in position to finish high in the race despite their many losses.

The game will mark the final home appearances of three regulars—men who have played an important part in the basketball renaissance here—and one reserve.

Ben Selzer, the all-conference guard of a year ago and once more an outstanding back court performer in the Big Ten; Howard Moffitt, the steady forward; and Howard Bastian, big center, are the departing seniors, while Harold Swaney, a reserve guard, is the other man who will appear before a home crowd for the last time.

Blackmer May Open

Johnny Barko, forward, and Johnny Grim, guard, will complete the starting lineup, although Ivan Blackmer may open at center in place of Bastian. Blackmer is also slated for duty at forward.

Minnesota's biggest threats will be Gordon Norman and George Roscoe, the center and forward who were the main reasons for the undoing of Iowa in the first meeting. Norman is one of the leading scorers in the conference.

Svendsen, 6 foot 3 inch guard, is the defensive bulwark for the invaders and contributes considerably to the Gopher offense.

The game will be the forty-sixth meeting between Iowa and Minnesota.

Terrorism Checks Efforts To Solve Swindling Case

Prince's Slayers Still Sought; Reward Posted

PARIS, Feb. 23 (AP)—A dread "invisible power" that cast an air of terror over the strang killing of Judge Albert Prince challenged Premier Doumergue's personal efforts today to unravel the deepening mystery of the Stavisky swindling case, of which Prince was said to have "known too much."

Spurred by an unprecedented governmental offer of a 100,000 franc (about $5,500) reward, investigators pushed an inquiry into the magistrate's death, which they frankly admitted was deadlocked in a maze of fantastic theories.

Dead or Alive

The prime minister ordered the capture, dead or alive, of Prince's slayer.

Iowa Team Wins Round Of Tourney

Debaters Score Over Butler University Speakers

A University of Iowa debate team yesterday won the first round of the Manchester college invitation debate tournament held at North Manchester, Ind. Their first victory was against Butler university.

Tom Yoseloff, J4 of Mason City; Roswell Johnson, A3 of Ottumwa; and Arthur Barnes, A2 of Eagle Grove, representing Iowa, argued the negative of the question: "Resolved, that the Japanese policy in the far east is justified."

In announcing the decision, Professor Wood of Michigan State Teachers college said, "I was surprised to find a team that had such a broad knowledge of the question."

The tournament, consisting of five rounds, will end today. There are to be five debates, and no team will be eliminated. The winner will be decided upon the basis of ratings given the competitors in each round.

This tournament is held annually by Manchester college, a small Indiana school located in the southern part of the state near the Illinois and Kentucky boundaries. This is the first year that Iowa has entered the tournament.

Two questions are being used in this tournament: presidential powers and the Japanese policy in the far east. The question upon which the Iowa debaters argued, while stated differently, involves many of the problems and much of the same material as that being used by the Western conference teams, according to Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of university debate.

Alderman Sybil, apparently disgusted with the proceedings, said, "It looks funny we'd spend $1,200 on something and then quit. We filed our application, it looks like we'd at least follow up."

"I'll Vote No"

Mayor Breene explained his negative vote with, "I'm not in a position to verify it (the answer). I assume that it has been carefully gone into, but until it's made more explicit that the reply is correct, I'll vote no."

"I'll stand or fall on that statement," answered Van der Zee. "What does this council propose to do," he asked before the council decided to file the answer unapproved. "Just say that no reply will be made?"

After the meeting Alderman Stronks said there were some statements in the report to which he could not subscribe because he thought they were not exact and were unfair. He said, however, that he was not against filing an answer to the resistance.

When asked what his objections were Alderman Ayers first answered, "I don't know" but then explained, "I can't but not time to study the report and believed that some of the statements did not truly represent the situation. He dubbed the report as "sarcastic."

Some of the "objectionable" parts of the report, which is seven pages long, are:

"The only real assurance the city can have that rates will be fair and not confiscatory of consumers' property is the city's operation of its own electric plant under competent management."

Sir Elgar, Noted Composer, Dies

WORCESTER, England, Feb. 23 (AP)—Sir Edward Elgar, the composer of the world famous "pomp and circumstance" march who died today, left orders that the lack of ostentation in his life be observed in his funeral.

The 77 year old musician died from an illness that followed upon an operation last fall. He held the executive order of merit and since 1924 was the master of the king's music.

Councilmen Split Over Light Issue

The city council lived up to tradition last night and split into private and municipal ownership camps over Alderman Jacob Van der Zee's reply to the light company's resistance to the city's application for a federal loan to build a municipal plant.

Mayor Harry D. Breene cast the deciding vote which killed the resolution authorizing the mayor and city clerk to file the report with P. F. Hopkins, public works administrator for Iowa. Aldermen Edward Sybil and M. J. McGuan supported Van der Zee in his answer with Aldermen Roscoe Ayers, John P. Memler and James E. Stronks objecting. Alderman S. M. Woodward, who is ill, was absent.

Accept Report
Not to be kept from making some kind of answer to the company's resistance, Alderman Van der Zee then asked if the councilmen would object if the report was filed along with the vote of the council. Aldermen Ayers, Memler and Stronks consented to this, voting aye on Van der Zee's motion.

Alderman Sybil, apparently disgusted with the proceedings, said, "It looks funny we'd spend $1,200 on something and then quit. We filed our application, it looks like we'd at least follow up."

G.O.P. Heads Prepare For Fall Elections

National Leaders Split Over Campaign Policies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Failing to agree on a program of action with the national committee, the senate and house Republican campaign committees decided today to combine and proceed alone in the party drive upon the Democratic congressional majorities this fall.

Senator Hastings of Delaware, head of the senatorial committee, and Representative Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the congressional committee, announced in a joint statement the plan to conduct the campaign without the assistance of the national committee headed by Everett Sanders of Indiana.

The statement said the joint committee would have the "full cooperation of the national organization but it added the latter would "take no part in the campaign activities of the combined senatorial and congressional committees."

Hastings would not elaborate on this statement, but other Republican leaders said there had been a failure on the part of the senate and house groups to "get together" with the national committee.

Sanders, about whose continuance as national chairman there has been some factional dispute, was said in authoritative quarters to have advised beginning the campaign this year in June. Senate and house chiefs, however, thought it should start sooner.

Also there were said to be differences over financial aid, the national committee having little to offer in that direction.

Jury Charges Minister With 3 Poisonings

PAMPA, Tex., Feb. 23 (AP)—The Rev. L. H. Shockley, 50 year old itinerant preacher, was charged today with the poison deaths of three persons and a plot to take the lives of four other relatives by marriage in 1930.

The county grand jury indicted him for the fatal poisoning of W. T. Hudgins, his father-in-law; Terry Erwin, son of his wife's sister, and Mrs. Terry Erwin.

An attempt to kill by poison Lloyd and Ernest Erwin, Terry's brothers; their mother, Mrs. Nora Erwin, and her daughter, Mrs. Ruby Bean, was charged.

The indictment alleged the poison was mixed with flour which the family used.

Investigators offered as the asserted motive for the poisonings a desire of the preacher to come into the possession of the $10,000 estate of his father-in-law.

Aim Law At Drake Estate

DES MOINES, Feb. 23 (AP)—The attorney general's office today announced a proposed law to make solicitation of funds for the allegedly fraudulent Drake estate scheme a felony.

Walter Maley, assistant attorney general, said the bill would cause the Drake estate solicitation as sale of a security under the jurisdiction of the state securities commission. The measure will be presented to the special session of the legislature, Maley said.

The commission of course, Maley pointed out, would refuse a permit to solicitors for the estate scheme, which has been declared a fraud by postal authorities and the government of England.

Oscar M. Hartzell, chief promoter of the scheme to collect millions of dollars from the supposed estate of the sixteenth century explorer, is free under appeal bond from conviction of fraud by a federal court jury.

Unemployed Marchers In London, Denied Interview

LONDON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Unemployed marchers from all parts of the country arrived in London tonight only to learn that one of their main purposes—an interview with Prime Minister MacDonald about their condition—had been refused.

The premier said the situation of the unemployed was being handled by house of commons legislation and that, therefore, he would not receive a deputation for marchers.

Call Police
It was understood that one of the reasons for this official policy was the knowledge that Communist organizations sponsored the trek to the capital.

Ten thousand special police were called out today for week end duty to assist thousands of regular officers as the marchers converged upon London for Sunday's protest demonstration in Hyde park.

Marchers Arrive
Several hundred of the 2,000 "hunger marchers" from Scotland and the provinces arrived today, "fit as a fiddle," one of them said "because food given us has been good and our feet have not been very troublesome."

Other groups were converging on the capital. Leaders said 50,000 would participate in the demonstration Sunday. The marchers will be joined by various Socialist trade union branches to hear spell-binders orate from eight platforms.

Bryan Seeks Senate Post

Governor of Nebraska After Democratic Nomination

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 23 (AP)—Gov. Charles W. Bryan, thrice chief executive of Nebraska and brother of the commoner, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. senate to "assist President Roosevelt in restoring prosperity."

Only last fall Bryan said the national administration's recovery program had turned the farm belt into "a seething mass of unrest" and that the farmer's throat was being "cut from both ears." Today he advanced as his platform virtually the same program he espoused last fall.

Like his brother, William Jennings Bryan who campaigned three times for the presidency, the governor has definite ideas on money. He said today "the amount of currency in circulation should be materially increased by issuing more money on the abundant gold reserve the government is holding."

Bryan has been a candidate for public office in Nebraska almost continuously since before this country entered the World War. He served twice on the Lincoln city council, where he was a sponsor of municipal gasoline and coal stations. He ran for governor eight times.

In 1924 he received the Democratic nomination for vice president. He then was serving his first term as chief state executive and had been renominated for governor.

Two Indicted

ST. PAUL (AP)—Two St. Paul men, among 14 arrested here and near Dubuque, Ia., in connection with theft and disposal of merchandise valued at $90,000 from railroad boxcars, were indicted today by a federal grand jury.

To Import Rum

WASHINGTON (AP)—Joseph H. Choate, federal alcohol control administrator, announced today that three companies holding approximately 25,000,000 gallons of rye and bourbon whisky in Canada had agreed to import it into the United States.

Administrator Named

J. E. Bach of Grinnell was appointed administrator of the estate of his father-in-law, George W. Sles of Oxford, by District Judge James P. Gaffney yesterday. Bond was set at $5,000.

Lum Jim Does The Right Thing

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23 (AP)—Lum Jim couldn't pay all his debts on the Chinese New Year's day last week. He paid what he could. No one pressed him for the remainder.

But Lum Jim belonged to the "old school" in Chinatown. A debt was a debt and should be paid by the beginning of the new year.

So Lum Jim hid his broom—to keep the God of the new year from finding it and knowing his house was unclean—lowered the flag of his tong, the Jung Yings, to half staff and then, police say, killed himself with a pistol. He was buried Friday.

Select Cast Members Of Coming Play

Players Will Present "Death Takes a Holiday"

Students who will appear in the cast of the next play, "Death Takes a Holiday," to be produced on the community series by University theater, were announced yesterday by Prof. Edward C. Mable, head of the speech department and director of the theater.

This three act play by Walter Ferris, based on a play by Albert Casella, will be presented in natural science auditorium March 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. and at 2:30 p.m. March 10. It is under the direction of Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of the theater.

Jessie Marshall, A2 of Atlantic, will play Grazia, the part played by Rose Hobart in the original New York production. Prince Sirki will be portrayed by Grant Fairbanks, G of Redlands, Cal. In the first production this part was played by Phillip Merivale.

Bessie Horan, A1 of West Liberty will play Cora. Other parts will be played by Robert E. Nelson, A1 of Sioux City as Felede; Richard Anderson, C3 of Des Moines, as Duke Lambert; Betty Bebout, A4 of Burlington, as Madame Alda.

Margaret Rule, G of Mason City, as Duchess Stephanie; Pearl Travis, G of Iowa City, as Princess of San Luca; Cameron W. Garbutt, G of Iowa City, as Baron Casarea; Margarette Smith, A3 of Council Bluffs, as Rhoda Foster.

Loren Foster Harmon, A4 of Athens, Ohio, as Eric Penton; Robert Graham, A1 of Iowa City, as Corrado; and Winn Zeller, G of Columbus, Ohio, as Major Whitbread.

All three of the acts take place in the great hall of Duke Lambert's castle.

Fear Plane Forced Down

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 23 (AP)—A United Air Lines plane carrying five passengers and a crew of three was more than five hours overdue from Salt Lake City tonight and officials feared it was lost or forced down in a storm.

Residents of Park City, Utah, and Coleville, Wanship and Knight, Wyo., reported to the department of commerce office here that a plane had been circling in the vicinity of the Utah-Wyoming line for hours.

The plane was manned by Pilot Lloyd Anderson, Co-Pilot Danielson and a stewardess, Mary Carter of Salt Lake City. The passengers names were given as:

E. L. Walker, flying from Salt Lake City to Rock Springs, Wyo.; J. J. Sterling, flying from Los Angeles to Chicago; Bert McLaughlin, Perry, Ia.; W. B. Berglund, Boone, Ia.; and M. Zinsmaster, flying from Los Angeles to Des Moines.

Rescue Two Army Pilots; One Missing

Plane Forced Down At Sea; Saved By Destroyer

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Two army aviators were rescued tonight by the naval destroyer Bernadou five hours after their plane was forced down on the ocean off Long Island, but a third flyer was missing.

Leutenants Roehrock and Pooock were taken aboard the Bernadou from the partly submerged craft, which had started from Floyd Bennett field for Langley field, Va.

Lieut. McDermott, however, was not picked up, said a message from the destroyer to the coast guard wireless station at Rockaway point. The rescue was effected in a heavy sea after army and police planes had been unable to approach the crippled ship.

Both men saved, the Bernadou reported, were suffering from exposure. The destroyer sent word it was standing by to make a further search for McDermott. He and his rescued companions had been assigned to the air mail route between Miami and Newark, and were on their way to their new station at Langley field when their plane was forced down.

Mail May Return To Private Lines
(By The Associated Press)
Army pilots went ahead with the air mail today in the wake of a 36 hour period in which five army planes crashed, killing two pilots, injuring two others and leaving a fifth missing on the Atlantic ocean.

As the pilots flew on, there came a hint from Washington of presidential plans for the return of the air mail to private concerns, there was no amplification of President Roosevelt's ideas beyond a statement that he is making plans for a new bidding on air mail contracts.

The president already has indicated that the army's flying is temporary. Mr. Roosevelt deplored the deaths of the army pilots who have fought against serious weather hazards all week and noted at the same time that the army was carrying out the task given to it.

Seek Salary Raise
DES MOINES (AP)—An increase of $1,200 a year in the salary of each of the three members of the state tax board as compensation for extra duties in administering the new $20,000,000 revenue law was proposed in a bill introduced in the Iowa senate today.

Seven sealed bids for Quadrangle improvements were opened at 1 p. m. and six for the law dormitory at 2 p. m. by members of the building committee of the state board of education meeting in Old Capitol yesterday afternoon. Late last night contracts had not been awarded for these two projects.

Improvements on the Quadrangle, which will amount to about $10,000 will include a library and soda grill, new steel stairs, and improvements on the lobby.

The law dormitory, which is approximately a $150,000 project, will be west of the fine arts building, now under construction, and north of Westlawn, nurses' home. It will cover an area 110 by 40 feet and will accommodate 150 students from the college of law.

Popular Enthusiasm Greet Leopold III in Ceremony

Takes Oath of Office Before Parliament, Notables

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23 (AP)—The reign of Leopold III was launched today with a demonstration of popular enthusiasm generally regarded as auguring well for the future.

In an impressive ceremony before parliament and visiting notables this morning, Leopold took the oath as monarch and gave the traditional speech from the throne.

Exchange Authorities Attack Regulation Proposals

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—A million-dollar expenditure for publicity in less than five years by the New York Stock Exchange—including the distribution of a book on short selling to members of congress—was disclosed today by senate investigators as they neared the end of their long study of the ways of Wall street.

George U. Harris, a member of the exchange's committee on publicity, testified this amount had been expended between Jan. 1, 1929, and Sept. 1, 1933, that the book in question was written by J. E. Meeker, economist of the exchange, and that in his opinion the volume represented the views of exchange officials and members.

Harris took the stand after Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, had produced evidence that a group of private corporations during the year 1929 had thrown call loans totalling more than $20,000,000,000 into the speculative securities market. The largest amount of such loans outstanding on one day was given as around a billion dollars.

Pecora contended that lack of facilities for controlling funds from this source had made any effective control of credit flowing into the market impossible.

"Bootleg Loans"
In response to a question from Chairman Fletcher, the attorney said that "not only the parlance of the street, but the books of some technical writers" described such transactions as "bootleg loans."

They would be prohibited under the pending Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange bill, which would require that all such advances come from the banks.

Meanwhile, the house commerce committee, engaged in hearings on the pending measure, heard Richard Whitney, president, and other officials of the stock exchange pepper the measure with objections. They have proposed a substitute which would place control of the speculative securities markets under a semi-governmental body on which the exchange would be represented, instead of giving control to the federal trade commission.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 23 (AP)—The reign of Leopold III was launched today with a demonstration of popular enthusiasm generally regarded as auguring well for the future.

In an impressive ceremony before parliament and visiting notables this morning, Leopold took the oath as monarch and gave the traditional speech from the throne.

He stood on the spot where the late Albert I, his father, 20 years ago made the historic declaration,

"A nation that defends itself never dies."

Leopold echoed his father's words, saying that he, too, was ready to lead an army in any war for the defense of his people and country.

Greeks Plan Hard Times, Formal Parties Tonight

Delta Upsilon, Alpha Tau Omega, Theta Xi, Phi Delta Theta Fraternities Take Social Limelight With Affairs

Still more reports are heard from fraternities who are continuing gala festivities of the week end with chapter parties. Four more Greek houses add their names to the list scheduling dances for tonight. Carrying out a variety in the parties, they range from "hard times" gatherings to winter formal dances.

Delta Upsilon

Fraternity colors of gold and blue will decorate the Delta Upsilon fraternity house where the chapter will give its winter formal tonight. A large replica of the fraternity's pin will be suspended at one end of the dance room. Gold and blue streamers, originating from the pin, will extend across the ceiling. Crested programs will be of black and white. Music will be played by Homer Lucke's orchestra.

Raymond Shaffer, G of Iowa City, heads the committee in charge. Assisting him are: John Bernhardt, A2 of Davenport, and Carleton Schroeder, C3 of Postville, Chaperoning are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Beeson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McManus.

Alpha Tau Omega

Alpha Tau Omega fraternity will entertain at an informal dance from 9 to 12 o'clock tonight at its chapter house. Mickey McGowan and his orchestra will play music for the dancers.

Committeemen in charge are Charles Tye, L1 of Orange City, and Albert Chittenden, A2 of Iowa City. Chaperons are Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Swenson, and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Anway.

Theta Xi

The Theta Xi fraternity house will be transformed into a hobo camp as the chapter gives its hobo party tonight from 9 to 12 o'clock. Even the programs will exemplify the hard times motif. Music will be furnished by the Iowa Cavaliers.

Adolph Novak, A2 of Spillville, is chairman of the committee in charge. Other members are: Walter Crawford, A1 of Cedar Rapids; Duane Lovett, D3 of Laneville; and Stanley Mayer, L2 of Clinton. Chaperoning are: Dr. and Mrs. Donald Slaughter, Prof. and Mrs. C. A. Ruckmick, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Freyder, and Mrs. Annette Bliss.

Phi Delta Phi

Honoring its initiates, Phi Delta Phi law fraternity will give an informal dance at Red Ball inn tonight. Preceding the dance, new members, who will be initiated at 3 o'clock, will be honored at a banquet.

Music for the dance will be played by Wally Lyon and his orchestra from Cedar Rapids. Floyd Ensign, L3 of Hayward, heads the committee in charge of the dance which 50 couples are expected to attend. Other committee members are: John Gleystein, L1 of Sioux City and Frank Davis, L2 of Des Moines.

Chaperons are: Prof. and Mrs. Percy Bordwell, Prof. and Mrs. Philip Mechem, Prof. and Mrs. Paul Sayre, Prof. and Mrs. Mason Ladd, and Prof. and Mrs. C. M. Updegraff.

Past Matrons To Entertain Monday At Annual Affair

Past Matrons association of Order of Eastern Star will entertain at their annual guest night Monday at 6:15 p.m. at the Masonic temple.

Members of the committee are Mrs. Josie Snyder, Mrs. Edna Summerhill, Mrs. Hallie Mezok, and Mrs. Julia Ettlinger.

The dinner will be preceded by a short business meeting at 5 p.m. during which initiation will be held.

Following the dinner there will be a program of music, readings, and specialty numbers.

Triangle Club To Meet Tonight

Triangle club will have a short business session at 10 o'clock tonight in the club rooms following the basketball game.

The annual magazine sale has been postponed until March 3. A short forum is also planned for the same evening with the sale starting at 8 p.m. followed by tournament activities.

Doug and Mary before the break

Lady Ashley

Lord Ashley

With naming of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. in divorce petition, filed at London, by Lord Anthony Ashley, Lady Ashley is apparently revealed as the "titled English noblewoman" in whom the American star was reported interested when he separated from Mary Pickford. However, Miss Pickford mentioned no "other woman" in divorce suit she filed at Los Angeles last December. Lady Ashley, daughter of a London tavern keeper, married the English lord, heir to the conservative Earl of Shaftesbury, in 1927, after she had won stage fame as Sylvia Hawkes.

NEW YORK (I.N.)—The citing of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., in divorce petition of Lord Anthony Ashley, filed in London, caused a sensation in the English capital, where the American film star is a welcome guest in exclusive Mayfair drawing rooms, and in the United States, where it at last brought into the open the secret heartache that climaxed in Doug and Mary Pickford parting and starting divorce proceedings.

If Mary suspected her distinguished husband had transferred his affections to another, she made no mention of the fact when she filed her divorce petition in Los Angeles last December. The grounds cited in the suit are mental cruelty, neglect and indifference. Of course rumors had gone the rounds to the effect that the bounding Doug was floating around Europe with a titled English woman, but it would have been too great a blow to the pride of America's sweetheart to admit publicly that another had usurped her place in her husband's affections.

Close friends of Miss Pickford, even after she had filed suit for divorce, said that she still had hopes of a reconciliation. Somehow Mary could not believe that 16 years of happy married life were to end in court.

The "Third Side" If the break between Doug and Mary was a sensation in this country, the marriage of Lord and Lady Ashley was equally conspicuous in London.

Lady Ashley, formerly Sylvia Hawkes, is the daughter of an English tavern keeper. Her mother was a barmaid.

A tall, slender blonde, now about 29, the beauty of the barmaid's daughter proved her fortune. It took her from the drab slum district in Camden Town and won her a position as mannequin in a fashion establishment, whence she soon was graduated into the chorus at London's Winter Garden theatre.

Sylvia was not long a member of the ensemble. Attracted by her rare beauty, George Grossmith, celebrated actor-manager gave her a leading part in one of his productions. Prophetically, the title of the piece was "The Whole Town Is Talking."

It wasn't talking about Sylvia then, but it did later when she moved into "The Midnight Folies," a favorite gathering place for wild-out-sowing scions of the English aristocracy.

Among her admirers here came Lord Anthony Ashley, heir to the Earl of Shaftesbury, ultra-conservative nobleman who is a close friend of King George. Young Ashley's mother, the Countess of Shaftesbury, was Lady of the Bedchamber to Queen Mary. To have an actress brought into such a family was regarded in London as something in the nature of a major national calamity.

But the young lord turned a deaf ear to all entreaties, and in February, 1927, he led Sylvia Hawkes to the altar at St. Paul's and made her Lady Ashley.

Then the whole world was talking. For several years Lord and Lady Ashley lived an apparently happy life on a farm the young scion had purchased near the ancestral estates of his family, but the monotony of rural life finally pallid upon the lovely Sylvia. An estrangement developed, and, for the last year or more they have lived apart.

It was after the parting with her husband that Lady Ashley's name began to be coupled with that of Fairbanks. They were reported at various fashionable rendezvous together. Doug skated and skied at her Lady Ashley. Then the whole town was talking.

Carnations Go To Bachelors

Women Elect Hogan, Schmidt, Crayne, Most Eligible

An old fashioned old maid dressed in black and gray taffeta and carrying the traditional signs of her spinsterhood, a cat and a canary, presented white carnations to Claude Hogan, A3 of Iowa City; Richard Crayne, A2 of Fairfield, and Christian Schmidt, C4 of Dyars, last night at the Spinster's Spree and pronounced them the most eligible bachelors on Iowa's campus. Ann Janssen, A2 of Eldora, the Iowa co-ed of yesterday, made the presentation.

Preceding the presentation, Cherie McElhinney, A3 of Washington, Ia., told briefly of the method of electing the "bachelors." Election was by popular ballot of members of University Women's association from a list of men nominated by men's organizations.

University Women's association was in charge of the spree, a women's invitation affair for which Joe Chromis and his Chicago Dance Land orchestra played. Theresa Christensen, A4 of Iowa City, was general chairman of the committee in charge.

Mrs. Woods Will Give Talk on War At Club Luncheon

A resume of the recent national conference on the cause and cure of war will be given by Mrs. Andrew H. Woods at the University club business luncheon to be held this noon in the club rooms at Iowa Union. A business meeting will precede the address.

Spring flowers will be used to decorate the rooms. The committee in charge is headed by Mrs. William H. Morgan, group chairman, and Jess Hotz.

Lady Militants To Meet Wednesday

Lady Militants of Carnation Rebekah lodge, 376, will have their next regular meeting Wednesday evening in I.O.O.F. hall. A social hour will follow the business meeting.

Mrs. Greene To Give Luncheon

Mrs. Harry Greene, 253 Lexington avenue, will be hostess at a luncheon today at her home at 1 o'clock. Twenty-four women will be guests. Tables will be decorated with spring flowers.

Mrs. John Sheley Wins High Prize At Bridge Party

Mrs. John Sheley was winner of high prize in bridge at the American Legion auxiliary card party yesterday afternoon in the American Legion Community building. Consolation award went to Mrs. Emma Meyers of Solon.

Six tables of bridge were played. Mrs. Charles Kennett was hostess of the party.

Corbin, A2, both of Des Moines, drove yesterday to Kansas City, Mo., to visit friends over the week end.

Richard Work, A3 of Des Moines, left to attend the Delta Tau Delta western division convention at Boulder, Colo.

Make This Model At Home

Matron's Frock With Bolero Effect Pattern 1773

By ANNE ADAMS

You'll look at least 10 years younger in this modishly styled frock. It is really a lovely, wearable model equally good for street, at-ternoon, evening and business. Note especially the bodice treatment—the bolero effect created with graceful folds knotted just below the bust. The hips are slenderized with skillfully placed panels, and the sleeves are becoming with their flared cuffs. Crepe or silk, in the darker shades such as black, blue, wine red, bottle green, etc., with a lace or a lighter shade for contrast, would be effective.

Pattern 1773 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 3 7/8 yards 39 inch fabric and 1-4 yard 13 inch lace. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK features a charming collection of afternoon, sports, golf, tennis dresses, jumpers, house frocks, special beginners' patterns, styles for Juniors, and lovely clothes for youngsters, and instructions for making a chic sweater. SEND FOR YOUR COPY. PRICE OF CATALOG FIFTEEN CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Address orders to The Daily Iowan Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

Mrs. Higgins Lectures To D.A.R. Group

Stresses Need For Early Life Training in Citizenship

Only through the counteraction of radicalism and the trainings of our citizens when they are young can we be sure of an established national security...

"Must Be Leaders" In our education of youth programs, preparation of boys and girls for citizenship is a most exacting but a cherished privilege of Daughters of the American Revolution...

Mrs. Higgins surveyed the work done by the organization during the Washington bi-centennial year and at a Century of Progress.

Mrs. Sarah Paine Hoffman, regent of Pilgrim chapter, in a gown of the time of Washington, conducted the program which included piano solos by Mrs. Maud Whedon Smith and a series of readings.

Three Readings "George Washington from a Foreign Viewpoint," "The Truth Club," and "The Climber" were readings given by Bertha Heetland.

Patriotic colors furnished the motif for the decorations of the three long luncheon tables. Long baskets of carnations, ivory candles tied with ribbon and colonial silhouettes, and sketches of the American eagle as place cards completed the decorations.

Mrs. Higgins will be presented by the Iowa chapter as a candidate for the office of vice president general, which is to be filled at the forty-third continental congress of the organization in Washington, D. C., in April.

French Influence In American Schools Shown in Address

"The French influence on American education" was the title of a paper read by Alice Roberts, 44 of Iowa City, at a meeting of Phi Sigma Iota, national honorary Romance languages association, at the regular meeting held in liberal arts building last night.

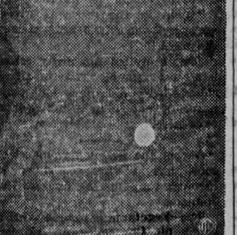

New York university was founded on the French plan, Miss Roberts told members, and Jefferson, in outlining the plans of the University of Virginia, was influenced by French educational traditions. However, the speaker stated, this influence has been negligible since the early part of the nineteenth century.

Mrs. Earle Smith Entertains P. E. O.

Chapter III of the P. E. O. met at the home of Mrs. Earle S. Smith, 613 E. Court street, yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Assistant hostess was Mrs. Edward F. Mason.

"Colonial days," given under the direction of Mrs. George Gay and Beulah Crawford formed the program of the afternoon.

Life in Balance

Pale, but otherwise showing no emotion, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, noted gynecologist, is pictured in court at Greenwood, Miss., as her attorneys and those of the state wrangle over the selection of jury to try her on charge of killing Dr. John P. Kennedy, a former associate, with a poisoned high ball.

Travis Conducts Experiments To Learn Rat's "Handedness"

The way to a rat's heart is through his stomach.

That this is true has proved most convenient in the research project now being conducted under the direction of Prof. Lee E. Travis of the psychology and psychology departments, who is testing rodents in the psychology laboratories here for their "handedness."

There are right and left-handed and ambidextrous rats. Similar to human beings, rats are inclined to favor the use of one hand in preference to the other.

Use Either Hand Unlike a human being, rodents vary more, as individuals, in their choice of either right or left hand. For the human being this is a right-handed world, and the left-hander feels somewhat out of place. But in the rat world, there is an equal chance that the rat may be either left or right-handed.

The method used for testing the handedness of rats is simple, but effective. The little animal is deprived of food for approximately 24 hours and then placed in a round cage. In the middle of this cage the rat has access to a round bottle which contains food, but he can use only one hand at a time in obtaining it.

Which Shall It Be? This is the first time that the tiny fellow has ever been in a situation of this sort. Curious as he is, it takes little effort to convince

Women Should Remain At Home, Noted Scientist Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (AP)—Hitler and Mussolini are quite right when they say that women should come back into the home, asserts Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, world-famous anthropologist and member of the Smithsonian institution staff.

"Furthermore, the sooner American women give up their jobs and return to their traditional duties—home, husband and children—the sooner they will find happiness," he says, "and the sooner they will give back to our national life something of the old stability."

Calls Woman the "Pivot" Dr. Hrdlicka's conclusions are based on his years of research into the rise and fall of races and the slow evolution of human beings. He is white-haired now, gentle and in discussion insistent that life should be happy.

"The longer I live," he says, "the more I am convinced that woman is the pivot of all human relationships, and when she falls in that duty the entire structure falls."

Home Work Put First "I do not insist that women should not, and cannot work, and work well outside their homes. But first they should have their homes, husbands and children. Then there should be room for outside work."

"But it should be work which comes naturally—all those forms that consist of 'grooming' the human race, such as nursing, teaching, working in the arts, making clothes and furnishings for the home."

"I shall not name the work for which I believe them unfitted. That would be 'calling names.' But everyone has seen the woman who 'dries up' on a job, gets old and irritable, driving herself through some false idea about 'doing things.'"

"We seem to ignore that nature created two different beings when it created men and women."

Co-education "Ridiculous" "This should be remembered by educators. Co-education is a ridiculous fad, based on false reasoning. It is a sin against youth."

"Teachers are not the only ones in the wrong. Parents are often just as guilty. They want their children to support them so they place the emphasis on the wrong things. They always unconsciously want their daughters to go out and earn their living."

"Another handicap right now is the terrible modern yearning for comfort. Women want fewer children because they fear the pain of child birth and the hard work of rearing them. Men fear the responsibility of supporting them."

Orchestra to Play Symphony Once "Booed", Now Popular

A feature on the program of the university symphony orchestra, directed by Prof. Frank E. Kendrie of the music department, which will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Iowa Union, will be the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C minor.

At a request program instituted by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra, last fall, the greatest number of requests sent in were for this famous composition.

Difficult Time This is a decided contrast to the way in which the composition was first received. Brahms had an extremely difficult time winning the favor of the public in this country. When his works were being played in Boston some wag said that the word "exit" over the door of symphony hall probably meant "exit in case of Brahms."

After the first performance of the symphony, a great deal of discussion for and against the work as a whole was carried on. Some of the criticism was very adverse. However, a number of the critics hailed it as the tenth symphony, putting Brahms in the place of honor beside Beethoven and his powerful and honored nine symphonies.

Ten Years The composer worked intermittently on this symphony for 10 years. On no other single work did he spend such concentrated energy and time.

When he was writing this symphony he often consulted Clara Schumann, wife of Robert Schumann, who was also a composer. Her helpful criticisms and wise suggestions were without doubt responsible for his final completion of the symphony.

Free tickets for the concert will be obtainable at the main desk at Iowa Union Monday.

C. S. A. Lodge To Give Card Party

A Little Means So Much

TODAY Iowa City Boy Scouts will become "collectors" for the local Social Service league, to turn "white elephants" into useful articles of service for needy Iowa City families.

Dishes, pieces of furniture, household and garden tools, stoves, silverware, pots and pans—in fact hundreds of articles such as are stored away in dark corners in nearly every attic in the city will find some place in this scheme of things.

The household goods collected by the Boy Scouts today will be distributed through the city-wide organization of the Social Service league. Everyone who contributes "white elephants" will be assured that his things will reach a needy person.

Where a little means so much, no one can afford to stint. Iowa City should get behind this project as fully as its citizens are able.

Stephen Swisher—True Pioneer

THE death of Stephen A. Swisher, one of Johnson county's pioneers, marks the passing of a man who truly knew and loved Iowa—the unbroken wilderness and the growing state.

When Stephen Swisher was born in a log cabin in the county where he lived all his life, Iowa had only recently been admitted to statehood. Few white men had penetrated its forest wildernesses, and those few had found the hard life of the pioneer awaiting them.

His lifetime saw the growth of Iowa from this virgin wilderness to a great state. He grew with Iowa, attending the common schools, the Iowa City academy, and the University of Iowa, which at that time consisted of half a dozen small buildings on what is now the main campus.

His interest in the state and its history led him to take an active part in the work of the State Historical society, and he served this organization nearly a quarter of a century—22 years on its board of curators, and two years as its president.

He was active also in civic affairs, taking pride in the growth of Iowa City. His life and work are summed up well in a statement of Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, superintendent of the State Historical society:

"He will be remembered for his loyalties. He was always loyal to the commonwealth of Iowa, of which he was a life-long citizen. He was always loyal to the State University of Iowa, of which he was a distinguished alumnus. He was always loyal to the State Historical society of Iowa of which he was a life member and which for many years he served as a devoted member of the governing board of curators."

A World Exhaustion

STUDENTS of psychology tell us that the ratio of thyroxin and adrenalin contained in the body of a lion is as 5 to 3. The same ratio in the body of a cow is as three to five.

As this is the basis upon which each animal must guide his mode of living, what is the ratio in man?

Strange as it may seem, he has a three to five ratio or the temperament of a cow. What is stranger still, he lives more like a lion.

Man never stops. He is constantly in an endless whirl of economic, political and social struggles.

He seldom pauses long enough to realize that he is mentally and physically exhausted.

Economists tell us that we are in a world depression. It would seem more correct to say that we are in a world exhaustion.

"Keeping up with the Joneses" has not only diminished our purses—it has exhausted our nervous systems.

For example, Mr. Smith has lost his job. His life's savings went when the banks crashed. His mother has disowned him. His wife has deserted him. With pistol in hand, he says "What's the use?"

Mr. Smith, put away your pistol. Go out to the country and make friends with a nice Holstein cow. Spend a week browsing and sleeping.

When you return, nine chances out of ten, you'll never need the revolver.

You lost your job—but then there may be other jobs, sometime. You lost your money—well, you won't have to worry about it now. Your mother disowned you—well, she at least didn't kill you. Your wife deserted you—but there are other pretty girls in the world.

The facts have not changed. It is the outlook that has been altered.

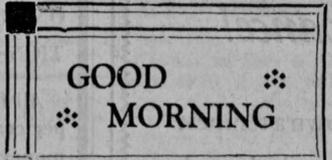

Perhaps the humble cow could teach us a lesson that politicians and economists know nothing about.

Now that the new Illinois liquor law solemnly bans the use of the words "bar" and "saloon," all we have left are the realities.—Chicago Daily News.

Texas Dilutes Its Democracy

In its final adoption of a resolution commending the national administration, the Texas senate has gone pretty far, yet not the whole distance called for by some of its most ardently enthusiastic members. The Texas senate is now on record in favor of making the anniversary of the President's inauguration a day of "thanksgiving, rejoicing and prayer" for the administration. But it has its reservations. There would be no thanksgiving, rejoicing and prayer for repeal, or for any socialistic tendencies the administration may have shown, or for any threats of dictatorship from Washington.

Perhaps it is enough—the Texas senate being a reasonable body—that the administration achievements have been "incomparable" and, therefore and quite obviously, "never before equaled in the history of the United States." Repeal, threats of dictatorship, Professor Tugwell, the brain trust and the rest, notwithstanding, the senate weighs the debits and credits and finds the balance heavily tilting to one side. The Texas senate would have it understood, and it should be understood, that its Democracy is without taint, but only moderated and restrained, as befits a deliberative assembly. Others may cavil, others may be captious, others may serve the selfish god of politics—but not the Texas senate.

Beverly Nichols, in his book "Cry Havoc!" on which I have been harping now for several days, quotes a potent paragraph from G. B. Shaw's Major Barbara. It sounded so inviting that I read the play and found, as one does when he reads Mr. Shaw's plays, a great deal of provocative material.

One passage in particular, which includes the quotation used by Mr. Nichols, should be repeated. Undershaft, the munitions maker, and his wife, Lady Britomart, are discussing with their son, Stephen, his dubious future.

"Lady Britomart (uneasily). What do you think he had better do, Andrew?"

"Undershaft. Oh, just what he wants to do. He knows nothing; and he thinks he knows everything. That points clearly to a political career. Get him a private secretaryship to someone who can get him an Under Secretaryship; and then leave him alone. He will find his natural and proper place in the end on the Treasury bench."

"Stephen (springing up again). I am sorry, sir, that you force me to forget the respect due to you as my father. I am an Englishman; and I will not hear the Government of my country insulted. (He thrusts his hands in his pockets and walks angrily across to the window.)"

"Undershaft (with a touch of brutality). The government of your country! I am the government of your country; I, and Lazarus. Do you suppose that you and half a dozen amateurs like you, sitting in a row in that foolish gable shop, can govern Undershaft and Lazarus? No, my friend; you will do what pays us. You will make war when it suits us, and keep peace when it doesn't. You will find out that trade requires certain measures when we have decided on those measures. When I want anything to keep my dividends up, you will discover that my want is a national need. When other people want something to keep my dividends down, you will call out the police and the military. And in return you shall have the support and applause of my newspapers, and the delight of imagining that you are a great statesman. Government of your country! Be off with you, my boy, and play with your caucuses and leading articles and historic parties and great leaders and burning questions and the rest of your toys. I am going back to my counting house to pay the piper and call the tune."

"Stephen (actually smiling, and putting his hand on his father's shoulder with indulgent patronage). Really, my dear father, it is impossible to be angry with you. You don't know how absurd all this sounds to me. You are very properly proud of having been industrious enough to make money; and it is greatly to your credit that you have made so much of it. But it has kept you in circles where you are valued for your money and deferred to for it, instead of in the doubtless very old-fashioned and behind-the-times public school and university where I formed my habits of mind. It is natural for you to think that money governs England; but you must allow me to think I know better."

"Undershaft. And what does govern England, pray?"

"Stephen. Character, father, character."

"Undershaft. Whose character? Yours or mine?"

"Stephen. Neither yours nor mine, father, but the best elements in the English national character."

"Undershaft. Stephen: I've found your profession for you. You're a born journalist. I'll start you with a high-toned weekly review. There!"

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Hard as it is to reconcile with her attitude out here, Katharine Hepburn recently came closer than you know to abandoning her policy of exclusiveness. The lure, and Kate may be excused for listening, was an offer to do six weeks personal appearances at a salary of $10,000 a week. She didn't take it for the simple reason that R-K-O refused to let her. She countered with an offer for Kate to come back to Hollywood and do an extra picture for the same money. Meaning five films instead of four she is under contract for. And, for added bait, they told her the picture would be "The Last Days of Pompeii."

In her answer, Kate snapped back into character. She said that Europe looks good to her and that she'll report back to the studio June 1 to make "The Tudor Wench."

And, so far as I know, she is packing her trunks.

The European reception of Kate may be more than she bargains on at that. I was talking yesterday with David Manners, who has just returned from making a picture with British International. On his arrival in London, David was introduced to the press at a luncheon at the Savoy hotel. There were 100 newspaper and magazine writers there.

In nearly every case, says the actor, their first question was: "Tell us about Katharine Hepburn."

And that was after only one of her pictures, "Bill of Divorcement," had been shown. "Morning Glory," her finest to date, opened two weeks after David left.

"This young actor vouches several interesting facts about the English film industry. One is that the quota pictures are virtually throw-aways. They are absorbed by the American companies to make way for the entry of Hollywood films. They receive practically no release in this country and they never reach London or any of the big English cities. An actor, working in one of them, says apologetically: "Oh, I'm just in a quota picture." It's considered next to doing nothing at all.

Bob Cobb, manager of the Brown Derby, tells the story but swears it didn't happen in any of his restaurants.

At any rate, a couple were having a bitter argument towards dawn in one of the Hollywood cafes. In the next booth to them a solitary drunk hiccoughed over his coffee.

The fight grew louder and more profane. Both man and woman were exhausting their vocabularies. Finally, the girl began to scream: "You call me a taxi! you call me a taxi!"

As her infuriated companion tried to quiet her, the drunk roused himself and leaned over the wall of the booth.

"Go on, buddy," he said. "You've called her everything else. Call her a taxi and get it over with."

Here's a chuckle. Fox has been trying to get a slogan to describe Alice Fay. They sent around a memo asking for suggestions. One writer submitted: "Lily of the Valley."

The man who launched Mae West upon her theatrical career is playing a part in Paramount's "Murder at the Vanities." He is Charles McAvoy, actor, who taught the star her first number in a Brooklyn theater when Mae was seven years old.

Jack West, father of Mae, was a theater policeman and often brought his daughter backstage where McAvoy was an endman playing with Primrose Minstrels.

General Notices

- To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the Second Semester of the Year 1933-34, June 4, 1934
- Every student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the University Convocation to be held Monday, June 4, 1934, should make formal application on a card provided for the purpose, at the registrar's office on or before Saturday, March 31, 1934. It is of the utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately, for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester. Making application for the degree or certificate involves the payment of the graduation fee ($15.00) at the time the application is made—the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call at the registrar's office for the card. H. C. DORCAS, registrar

'Off the Record'

Unofficial Doings in Washington, D. C.

By SIGRID ARNE

Senator J. Ham Lewis of Illinois received a letter proclaiming that "F.D." is as great a hunter as his famous relative and predecessor, "T.R."

"He skinned the Tammany Tiger, bumped off the G.O.P. elephant, caged the Russian Bear and he's hot on the trail of the big, bad wolf," said the writer.

For answer Lewis scrawled across the bottom of the note: "And how about corraling the Sons of the Wild Jackass?"

Maybe the underworld wonders why its stars are being "knocked off" so consistently. The secret lies in a "silent" public enemy list which the department of justice made out last March.

Secret service men set to work on it quietly, but so effectively that half the names already are checked off.

Secretary of War Dern was to have addressed a meeting of the alumni of the University of Nebraska. At the last minute he was unable to attend.

Major General Fechet, former chief of the army air corps, was toastmaster. He made the announcement: "We were to have heard the secretary of war, but he couldn't come. I congratulate you. I have heard him speak."

Some practical joker has devised a unique way of tormenting pretty Mrs. Emil Hurja, wife of the Farley lieutenant in the department of interior. He tells tall stories to persons the little, blonde lady is likely to meet. So far a grocer has taken her for the daughter of former Mayor Cernak of Chicago; an elevator boy thought she was the daughter of Amundsen, and a policeman wanted her autograph because he had heard she was the women's international rifle champion.

There is one professional grocer, Counsellor Nano of the Rumanian legation is convinced, that should never try to hold a convention. Things were not going so well at a recent dinner he gave.

"What in the world is wrong?" whispered the friend next to him at the table.

"Oh, I invited too many columnists," said Nano. "They're all read each other's old jokes and they're naturally not going to tell their new ones here."

One of the nation's youngest citizens has a unique silver cup through the courtesy of Gen. Hugh Johnson.

The very young man arrived recently at the home of friends of Mrs. Harry Woodring, wife of the assistant secretary of war. His parents sent out announcement cards with a tiny blue Eagle in the corner and the slogan, "We Do Our Part."

Whereupon Mrs. Woodring hurried to a jeweler, bought a silver cup and ordered the Blue Eagle engraved on it.

"But we can't," said the clerk. "That is a government label."

Mrs. Woodring asked for a phony and told the story to the grocer. He chuckled and authorized the

Murder? Not at All—

Professor Stages Fake Killing: Prof. Mott Please Notice.

Editor's note—Every year Prof. Frank L. Mott, director of the school of journalism, stages a "murder" in his introduction to journalism class to test the observing powers of would-be journalists. Here's how they do it at Nebraska—although Iowa probably can claim honors for the idea starting on this campus.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 23 (AP)—A practice murder caused pandemonium at the University of Nebraska law college today.

Almost before the smoke had cleared away and Harry Foster of Lincoln, the "victim," had dropped to the floor with red tomato juice staining his white shirt front, police sprinted to the campus and an ambulance arrived with its siren shrieking.

Rush "Murderer" The "Homicide" was so realistic that Mary K. Quigley of Valentine, a law student, nearly fainted, and a room full of student barristers rushed the wielder of the gun.

Now as part of their classroom work they have to settle the question of just who "shot" Harry Foster. Soon after the blank cartridge went off, students expressed varying opinions that from one to eight shots had been fired.

Precautions were taken, Dean H. H. Foster explained, to bar from the class students with weak hearts. Then Roy B. Hackman and Hugh Wyland of Lincoln, both students in the psychology department, started scuffling in the hall. There was a shot and they flung open the door and crashed into the lecture chamber.

Harry Foster, seated inside, tried to wrest the revolver from the hand of one of the combatants. More shots were fired and Foster fell.

Doctor, Police Up till then things were going according to schedule. But the professors hadn't thought there would be so many brave hearts among the freshmen. They rushed up and Jess Quigley screamed—a very good scream indeed. Someone called Dr. Earl N. Deppen, who ran to the hall, case in hand. The ambulance arrived and so did a policeman from headquarters half a block away.

Then Dean Foster offered explanations. Later he will assign students to root out evidence, file charges and conduct a classroom trial.

Anderson To Attend Cleveland Meeting

Prof. Harold H. Anderson of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station left yesterday for Cleveland, Ohio, where he will attend the forty-seventh annual meeting of the superintendence department of the National Education association, which is in progress there.

He will also attend the All-Iowa dinner to be held tomorrow evening.

Prof. Loehwing To Speak at Meeting

Prof. Walter F. Loehwing of the botany department will speak before a Botany club meeting Monday at 4:10 p.m. His subject will concern sex in plants, a field in which he has conducted research.

A paper on this subject was presented by Professor Loehwing at the annual meeting of the Botanical Society of America in Cambridge, Mass., several weeks ago.

Lacey, according to the police and state's attorney's office, confessed to the kidnaping plot. Lacey's companion in the plot, Charles W. Prof. Ellett Gives Talk

Discusses "Wave End Particles" Before Crowd of 250

"It is evident that there is active in every field today an intellectual ferment such as that which may have stirred the minds of men in the days of the renaissance," Prof. Alexander Ellett of the physics department declared last night in a Baccalaureate lecture before an audience of 250 in chemistry auditorium.

Speaking on the subject, "Wave end particles; dual aspects of matter," and noting his points with the use of diagrams, Professor Ellett said that "in the present period of unrest we see two great new theories evolved in the physical sciences, the theory of relativity and the quantum theory."

"Both of these contemplations," he said, "have arisen from situations which compelled a critical re-examination of basic notions. The theory of relativity resulted from an attempt on the part of Lorentz, Minkowski, and Einstein to resolve a dilemma created by certain experiments on the propagation of light in moving systems." The quantum theory, which has its paradoxical consequences, according to Professor Ellett, originated with the work of Planck in 1901.

Two particular abstractions, which he said have long been useful, but never expected to be united, are those of wave and of particle. He devoted himself to illustrating these concepts by detailing simple experiences pertinent to this matter.

This lecture was broadcast over radio station WSUL.

A milk truck ran away from its driver on the campus of the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, and was captured only after its wheels failed to keep it going on a long stretch of ice.

Ballads ranging from Indians' to lumberjacks', and from lamentation to confession, are included in a ballad collection of Prof. Edwin F. Piper of the English department. Many of the pieces have music, and among the collection are nine examples of old English and Scottish popular ballads. The 1,000 pieces of folklore have come from Arkansas, Tennessee, Nebraska, and other states. Harold D. Peterson, G. of Ft. Dodge, is preparing a syllabus of this ballad collection.

Evelyn Harter, a graduate of the university in 1925, designed two of the books included in the "50 books of the year" now on display in the Ranney library in the liberal arts building, it was discovered yesterday. "Let There Be Beer," by Bob Brown, and "Wild Pilgrimage," a novel in woodcuts, by Lynd Ward, are the books she designed. Mr. Ward collaborated with her in designing the book he wrote.

When best college verse of the year is chosen for 1934, the following bit, "On working in a sweatshop," will probably not be among the selected group. That's what the author, J. K. thinks about it too. But we're publishing it, because undeniably it is "different." And as the Iowa piano-player of a few years ago might say, "Here 'tis":

It is night, the clock moans twice, My heart is scorched and burnt with strife, My bonded soul cries in grasping moans But destiny whispers in leeching tones: "Work, thou art a slave of life."

"Release me now, oh God!" I cry, "Purge my soul, that I may die— But only the dimness drones in my ears Only the darkness to lighten my years, No death to end my agony.

My eyes are tinged with needles of light, The anvil of hell clang through the night, The threshold reels, and bolts of pain Cringe through me. Then outstretched I lie I cress the floor for a moment's respite.

It is night, the clock moans three, Reluctantly my bondsman sets me free For a sixth-hour to writhe in dreams Of lecherous monsters; at dawn I wean My weary soul back to its bondage.

We suggest suicide as a way out.

Paul Risley Speaks At Zoology Seminar

The general form and the number of chromosomes in reptiles was discussed by Paul L. Risley of the zoology department in an illustrated talk at a weekly zoological seminar yesterday at zoological laboratories. He spoke on "Chromosomes and centrioles in reptilian spermatogenesis."

He related his observations concerning this subject as it pertained to the musk turtle. Tests, he noted, demonstrate in the majority of cases that sex chromosomes were not present in the male germ cells of this animal.

Iowa Alumni to See Display of S. U. I. At Cleveland

An exhibit depicting the work of the extension division will be seen by alumni attending the Iowa dinner in Cleveland, Ohio, tomorrow.

Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, left yesterday to supervise the erection of the exhibit. He is to be aided by Prof. H. A. Greene of the college of education and Lee W. Cochran, director of the visual aids department of the extension division.

Included in the work to be shown are University of Iowa bulletins, extension division bulletins, standard tests and aids to teachers, correspondence study materials, educational slides, talking and silent educational films, and summer session announcements.

As a background for the booth containing these materials, there will be a large panorama picture of the University of Iowa in natural colors. This picture, besides showing the present buildings of the campus, depicts the new fine arts unit, the new law dormitory, and the new bridge.

The new buildings were sketched in the panorama by George L. Horner of the college of engineering, and his staff.

BITS ABOUT SPORTS

Track Team Starts Right... Well-Balanced... Stronger Than Last Year... Minor Sports Get Small Crowds.

BY RON TALLMAN

GEORGE BRESNAHAN presented his fourteenth University of Iowa track team at the field house last night, and the Hawkeyes started off on the right foot with an easy victory over Minnesota.

While the fact that Iowa won was not surprising, the manner in which they made the meet a rout was emphatically so. Figured to be a close meet with either team able to win, the Old Gold thinslads upset the dope to take nine firsts and win in a walk.

WELL-BALANCED

Although last night's win was a run-away, that's no proving that the Hawkeyes will be world beaters through the rest of the season.

First places from now on will be hard to acquire. But the Iowans did show that they will be a well-balanced outfit, able to score points in every event.

That in itself is important. More often than not it's the second and third places that win the meets. And further, it can be said that Iowa's team this season will be greatly stronger than that of a year ago.

MINOR SPORTS SUFFER

It was demonstrated again last night that as far as crowds are concerned, the minor sports teams at the university suffer extremely from the absence of I-book holders.

The student athletic tickets this year were only good for the football and basketball games. As a result, swimming, gymnastics, and track have been poorly patronized.

Champions Take Rest

Prepare for Chicago Action; Will Leave Tomorrow

With the local Golden Gloves championships decided Thursday night, the eight winners settled to rest yesterday before the final drive next week in the Chicago Tribune's Tournament of Champions. Bruises were nursed with care and those lucky enough to escape punishment consoled those who took it.

One of the most battered was Shorty Mangel, who lost in the 112 pound finals to Everett Halliday. Mangel turned up yesterday morning with a much betaped nose and little inquiry was needed to discover from Mr. Mangel that the nose was broken. But it is all in the game, take it from Shorty, who, by the way, was impressed by the fine sportsmanship shown by the boxers all through the bouts.

When The Daily Iowan decided to put on the first annual Golden Gloves tournament in Iowa City few suspected to what heights the interest would mount. After the last bout was over and the 1,100 spectators had filed, or rather, jammed, their ways from the American Legion Community building, the management knew that the affair was a success.

Sunday evening the squad of eight with Bob Rush, university boxing coach, will train for Chicago followed by the well-wishes of Iowa City's boxing fans. The champions, with some 50 more boys, cooperated with The Daily Iowan in making the show a success.

Hospital Co. Quintet To Play in State Cage Tourney

The local 186th Hospital company basketball team will compete in the state amateur tournament in Des Moines starting next Monday. The Hospital company quintet drew Phillips 66 of Marshalltown as its first round opponent, according to the pairings announced last night.

DES MOINES, Feb. 23 (AP)—First round pairings for the state amateur basketball tournament starting here Monday under the sponsorship of the Iowa Junior Chamber of Commerce, were announced tonight by tournament officials.

The first and second round games will be played on three floors at the Roosevelt high and East high gymnasiums and the Drake university field house. Officials named were W. M. Johnstone of Boone, and Jack North, Bert McGrane, August Rump, Fred Lingenfelter and Henry Hasbrouck of Des Moines.

Twenty-seven teams are entered in the tournament. The winning team will receive its expenses while competing in the national A.A.U. tourney at Kansas City. Play will continue throughout next week.

The first round pairings: Simpson college reserves vs. Valley Junction Demolays.

Schukel Chevrolet, Waterloo, vs. Hayfield Independents.

Iowans Take Nine Firsts In Easy Win

Cretzmeyer Gets Three Wins, Second For 17 Points

By JACK GURWELL

The University of Iowa's track and field team easily made Minnesota its first victim last night in the field house, 73-13 to 30-23. In this first and only home indoor meet of the schedule the Hawkeyes upset what was doped as a relatively close affair to forge ahead early in the meet and finish in a breeze.

The Iowans put the dopsters in their place by taking nine of the 12 first places, including the mile relay, and coming in strong to win seven second places and three thirds. The meet ran true to form except that the victories of Francis Cretzmeyer, and Babe Moulton in the high and low hurdle races—they split firsts and seconds in both events—put a crimp in the Gopher scoring.

Cretzmeyer High Scorer To Cretzmeyer went high scoring activities for the evening's activities, the Emmetsburg sophomore collecting 17 points with victories in the low hurdles and broad jump, a tie for first with Higgins of Iowa in the high jump, and a second to Moulton in the high sticks. Leo Campisi copped a win in his specialty, the mile run, and then came back to sprint out a win in the 880 yard run for a total of 10 points.

All of this place scoring put the Iowa squad in the light of a well balanced outfit, with time for the winning track events a decided advance over the under-average squad that represented Iowa last year.

Fresh Set Mark

But to a quartet of freshman sprinters must go some glory. Their assault on the university 880 yard relay mark was successful to the extent of knocking more than one second off the old mark of 1:31.8. The new mark is 1:30.1 and was established by Jimmy Owens, Claire Briggs, Skinner, and Carl Nelson, the four running against another freshman team handicapped 50 yards.

It looked as if the Minnesotans were going to be successful against the Iowans when they slammed the 60 yard dash with Burris, Lander, and Weisman finishing in that order over Dean, Becker and Smith. Their lead was jolted severely as Campisi and Gordon locked arms to tie for a victory in the mile run over Rich, Minnesota miler, who forced the

Stengel Gets Dodger Post

Signs Contract For Managerial Job At Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Charles D. (Casey) Stengel, colorful exponent of the type of baseball that appeals to Flatbush fans, was engaged today to succeed the departed Max Carey as manager of the Brooklyn baseball club. He signed a two year contract at a reported salary of $10,000 a year.

The hiring of Capricious Casey was accomplished without the usual ceremony attending such affairs. Stephen W. McKeever, the club's president, was at home suffering from grippe, and the team's general manager, J. A. Robert Quinn, was in bed with an attack of pleurisy. So the good natured veteran of 24 years in the sport, unannounced and all alone, ambled into a roomful of sports writers and smilingly told them he'd signed up.

Thus Brooklyn rooters appear assured of getting back the bizarre brand of baseball that Carey in two seasons failed to deliver and with which Stengel is familiar through his eight years connection with the team—six years as an outfielder and the other two as coach.

"And that's the big job cut out for me—to get the fellows to play entertainingly," Casey said.

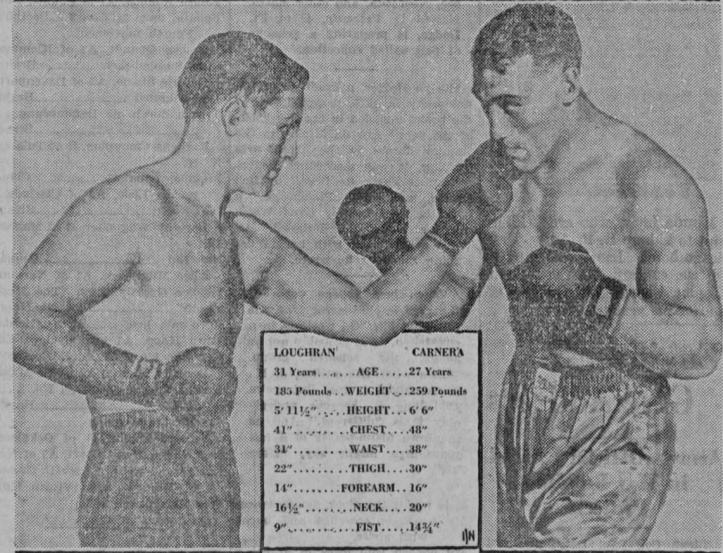

"What about the title, 'the daffiness boys,' that has been given the team?" he was asked.

"I don't give a hoot if they're daffey or screwy so long as they play winning baseball," Stengel replied.

For the nonce he expects to work with the material on hand. He tabled the suggestion of immediate trades. The only immediate change he has in mind is the elevation of Chick Fraser, who scouted for the club last year, to his own former post as coach. Stengel indicated that Otto Miller, former Brooklyn catcher and a coach under Carey, although to date unsigned, would be retained on his staff.

Gymnasts In Home Finale

Engage Minnesota, Nebraska Teams Here Monday

Marking the last 1934 home appearance before Iowa fans of Coach Albert Baumgartner's team of gymnasts, Iowa will strive to outpoint Minnesota and Nebraska in a triangular meet Monday evening at 7:30 in the field house gym.

Although failing to register a win among any of the three previous meets, steadily mounting proficiency indicates that Iowa, which lost last week to Illinois by the scanty margin of nine points out of a total of 600, is rated a better than even chance against the Minnesotans. Strength in the four other events are counted upon by Coach Baumgartner's boys to make up a lack of balance in the tumbling event.

Nebraska Sends Five

Nebraska, a newcomer to the ranks of conference gymnastic competition, will send five men to the meet.

Monday's encounter will bring to a close the athletic competition of Captain Rudolph Bolte of Davenport and of Vernon Peterson of Ellsworth. An outstanding competitor in the parallel bar event during his three years of competition, Captain Bolte has been considered Iowa's best performer in this apparatus since the days of Henderson, Big Ten parallel bar title holder from Iowa in 1928. Peterson contributed sorely needed points in the hide horse competition last year.

Minnesota, the stronger of the two visitors, will enter six men in the meet, with the versatile Joe Olson, entrant in four of the five events, considered their strongest hope.

Jitters Thinks Gophers Will Nip Hawkeyes Again

With the proper breaks Purdue can just about clinch the Big Ten basketball title tonight but Prof. D. T. Jitters isn't so sure they will do it. The Boiler-makers will win, true, but Ohio State doesn't look quite strong enough to stop the Badgers who now boast a streak of five straight conference wins.

Nor does the world's leading prognosticator feel that Iowa will be able to improve on the first Minnesota game. However, he selects the Gophers more to force the Hawks to win than for any other reason.

His forecasts for tonight: Minnesota 40; Iowa 39. Purdue 42; Michigan 26. Wisconsin 34; Ohio State 33. Indiana 33; Illinois 27.

Des Moines Woman Star Loses Match

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—A hard earned 3 and 1 victory over Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., today sent Virginia Van Wile of Chicago, the national champion, into the finals of the South Atlantic women's golf championship tournament against Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City.

It took Mrs. Hill 18 holes to get a stroke advantage over Marian Miley of Lexington, Ky.

In the conference clash at Chicago on March 10, will enter these events: side horse, Peterson, Houser, and Cooper; parallel bars, Captain Bolte, Rockwood, and Houser; high bar, Frasher, Cooper, and Rockwood; flying rings, Bolte, McCloy, and Rockwood.

Leo Shea to Referee Bout

Appointed by Miami Group for Heavy Title Battle

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—The Miami boxing commission today chose Leo Shea, a heavyweight himself, to referee Primo Carnera's 15 round heavyweight title defense against Tommy Loughran next Wednesday night as the warriors coasted close to the end of their serious training routine.

Shea, considered the best qualified of the three referees licensed by the commission, weighs 190 pounds, is six feet tall, and is over 40 years old. He was named unanimously by the commission after the managers of Carnera and Loughran failed to agree upon a choice themselves.

The two judges who will act in conjunction with the referee will be chosen by the commission Monday.

Lineup Changed

Coach Klister started a new combination, Smith and Foesterer substituting for Myers and Jessup. The change was effective momentarily and the river boys played on even terms with the Irish for eight minutes. Fountain got one of the two early goals just before the first canto ended and the score was tied, 4 to 4.

Fruitless shots and erratic passing kept the Shamrocks from opening up in this period, the team possessing the ball a great deal but failing to hit the net. Emanuel and McNamara got going early in the second quarter, and when the clever Boyd pounced on the ball and fired it to the center and guard the Irish moved out ahead never to be threatened.

St. Pat's tight-fitting defense enveloped the U. High five last night and the Irish trimmed the Blue on the river arena, 27 to 13. It was the second time this season the city rivals opposed each other. St. Pat's took a previous decision, 30 to 22.

The same vice-like guarding that held St. Matthias without a field goal Wednesday night bogged U. High and enabled the Shamrocks to grab a 16 to 6 lead at the end of the first half. They coasted then, protected their basket and were content to sally forth only occasionally to score a field goal.

Winners Set New Records In 3 Events

400 Yard Relay, 150 Backstroke, 440 Marks Fall

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 23 (AP)—Capturing all nine of the possible first places, the University of Michigan swimming team tonight defeated the University of Iowa tankmen, 61 to 23.

Michigan's 400 yard relay team bettered the Western conference record by 2.6 seconds, swimming the distance in three minutes, 37.6 seconds.

Drysdale swam the 150 yard backstroke in 1:38.7 which bettered his own Big Ten record of 1:42.3. Captain Cristy swam the 440 in 5:41. The conference record for this distance is 5:56.4.

Fort Dodge, Eagle Grove Place Seven Men in Mat Meet

FT. DODGE, Feb. 23 (AP)—Fort Dodge and Eagle Grove high schools put seven men apiece through the first round of the Iowa high school wrestling tournament here tonight. Cresco was next in line with five men eligible for the semi-finals.

Eldora training school, a pre-tournament favorite, lost four men in the opening round.

The semi-final round will be run off tomorrow afternoon and the finals tomorrow night.

Decides New Ball 1.97 Per Cent Faster Than Old

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23 (AP)—Johns Hopkins university scientist, after long experiments, today announced that the new standard major league baseball was exactly 1.97 per cent "faster" than that used in the National League last year.

In other words, if "Chuck" Klein of the Phillies leans on a 1934 ball with the exact power that got him a 294 foot hit in 1933, he'll get 300 feet—just two yards more.

Berlin Bodie, graduate of the university school of engineering, was the experimenter. He took a new ball, a National "dead" ball, a concrete foundation and some scientific instruments to measure a bounce.

Then he began to drop. Each ball was dropped 30 times from each of several heights. Sheets of paper were covered with thousands of figures. Into this Bodie gazed with his pencil and came up with the answer—1.97 per cent.

Little Hawks Meet Grant High In Season's Finale Tonight

Six Dribblers To Close Play For City High

Wellsmen Given Even Chance to Avenge Early Loss

City high brings an end to its regularly scheduled season tonight at Cedar Rapids, where the Little Hawks encounter Grant high in a return Mississippi Valley league contest.

The Red and White travel to the Parlor City tonight with a purpose other than that of closing their non-tournament play for the year, for in meeting the Grant casers, they have the opportunity of avenging a close early season defeat in the first clash between the teams.

Despite this setback, the Little Hawks are accorded an even chance of returning to Iowa City tonight with a victory. The improvement in their play toward the tag end of the season makes them a formidable outfit for any opponent.

Tonight's tilt will also mark the final appearance in the Red and White uniform except for tournament play, of practically the entire hand of Coach George Wells' first-stringers, for Dale Marshall, Paul Mutchler, and Dale Williams, guards, Ken Ash, who alternated at center and forward, and Roscoe Ayers, forward, will be graduated in June. Fred Ballard, though he will return to school next fall for another semester, will also be playing his last game for City high, since he will not be a candidate for the team at the time.

The Wellsmen will probably take the floor tonight with Ash and Ayers at the forwards, Ballard at center, and Marshall and Mutchler at the guards. Snyder, Miller and Williams will be held in reserve.

Sterba, Fryauf to Meet in Battle of Bowling on Monday

"Doc" Sterba, champion bowler of the old timers, has been challenging anyone of his age to bowl him at any time for money, marbles or chalk.

Now, along comes Frank Fryauf, Sr., and accepts the challenge. The match is expected to be rolled off next week, probably Monday before the league play starts.

The public is invited to attend the match and it is expected that a capacity crowd will be on hand.

The exact nature of the side bet has not been divulged by the participants.

ened. Leuz took a side shot that was good, Emanuel got a "sleeper" and a free toss for three more counters, McNamara hit twice, once on a dribble-in and again with an over-head shot, and Emanuel made a basket with Thomas on his shoulders and St. Pat's had a 16 to 6 margin.

McNamara Leads

McNamara, who led his mates with 14 points, gave a good exhibition of guarding and was powerful on offense. He kept the Blue forwards far out on the court. Smith, diminutive forward, was the only Blue player able to evade the ball-hawk. The front line man scored nine tallies to be U. high's leading point-getter.

Both coaches substituted many times, 21 players entering the fray. Play was fast and aggressive. Two Irish dribblers were ejected from the game, Boyd leaving in the third quarter and Gough following shortly before the end of the fourth stanza.

pace but faded like the rose in autumn along about the fourth lap.

Stam Falls

In fact, Wilcox almost made it a sham for the Old Gold but barely failed. Lehner, the other Gopher starter, had the misfortune to run into the shot as it bounded over the track and went out with a badly bruised knee.

The 70 yard high hurdles made the jolt more pronounced as Babe Moulton and Cretzmeier led from the third hurdle on into the tape. Knoblauch and LaRoque were slightly favored but fell back as the two Iowans raced. Moulton forged ahead on the last hurdle to win with Knoblauch third.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

The whim of a despotic ruler caused construction of a railroad which was unsound economically and almost impossible from an engineering standpoint. The ruler was Czar Nicholas I of Russia, and the railroad was the St. Petersburg-Moscow line.

Plans were made for construction of such a railroad, and several tentative routes had been surveyed for the line. These plans were then laid before the emperor so that he might select the route he favored. Angered because anyone dare tell him to choose one from among several, he answered by sticking his finger in an inkwell and tracing a line between the two terminal points of the proposed railroad. He ignored the territory in between, and commanded that the line be built to follow the ink smudge he had made on the map.

Engineers found themselves powerless to change the ruler's will, and the road was built as ordered. It passed over desert lands, through swamp districts and over mountains, failing to touch upon any of the important towns along the way.

Stocum Takes 2 Mile

Minnesota's crack sophomore two miler, Stocum, turned in about the most sparkling performance of the evening by striding off the distance in 9:48.9. His prowess was so great that he lapped an Iowa man and was driving on when he hit the tape. Dave Flage, who clung to the leader until the final half mile, and Max Wisgerhoff, finished second and third.

Campisi Cops Half

Another surprise was the one-two victory over Dahl in the 880 by Leo Campisi and Pat Henry. After a battle most of the route Campisi grabbed the lead on the last curve and swept on to win with Henry overtaking the faltering Gopher just before hitting the tape; The time of 2:00.1 was exceptional for a first indoor meet.

High Jump—Higgins and Cretzmeier (I) tied for first; Farmer and Friemuth (I) tied for third. Height—5 feet 10 inches.

Score—Iowa 73 1-3; Minnesota 30 2-3.

Intramural ACTIVITIES By LES CAMP

The annual inter-fraternity free throw contest will be held next week. It was announced yesterday by E. G. "Dad" Schroeder who is in charge of intramural sports.

Every fraternity on the campus may enter all members and pledges in this meet excepting those who are members of varsity squads.

Each person entered will have 15 shots at the basket but only the 20 highest scorers will be counted in each group. The fraternity making the highest number of points will receive the handsome trophy that is now on exhibit in the window of Hauser's jewelry store.

Seven fraternities have entered the contest to date but entries will be received in the athletic office at the field house till 6 p.m., Saturday. Entries not in by then will not be acceptable.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon has entered 44 men which is the highest number yet entered. Other fraternities that will compete are: Delta Tau Delta, Delta Sigma Delta, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Kappa Psi, and Delta Tau Delta.

The gymnasium will not be open today after regular morning classes due to the Minnesota basketball game. The next scheduled intramural games will be played Monday evening beginning at 7:15.

Entry blanks for an inter-fraternity indoor basketball contest will be sent to Greek athletic managers Tuesday by "Dad" Schroeder. This is a new intramural sport as no indoor baseball has been played here since 1927. "Dad" expects that approximately 25 fraternities will enter. If so, this will enable the athletic department to give not only a championship trophy but also sectional trophies to each group winner. The more teams that enter the more sectional trophies will be given away.

Crack Milers In Last Race

Cunningham, Bonthron, Venke Clash at New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (AP)—Glenn Cunningham, Gene Venke and Bill Bonthron will have their last chance to see which is the best man tomorrow night in the "Olympic mile" of the national indoor track and field championships in Madison Square Garden.

Their paths will not cross again in competition if Bonthron holds to his intention of competing only in dual track meets and the inter-collegiate, to which Cunningham is not eligible as a Kansas student.

Princeton Bill won the first test last Saturday in the Baxter mile of the N.Y.A.C. games in the Garden, nosing out Cunningham with Venke a step behind in a breathless finish which had the 16,000 spectators in a frenzy of enthusiasm.

The water-polo games between fraternities will also begin next week if a sufficient number of entries are returned. It is expected that these games will be completed next week because of the lack of enthusiasm on the part of the frats.

Knave's Girl

CHAPTER FIFTY-NINE

Lights wheeled in the streets around them as other cars shot past. People hurried along the sidewalks. An elevated train rattled overhead. Clark drove on and on. At last Patricia touched his arm.

"We can't drive forever."

"We won't, my dear. I'm going to take you home with me."

Home with Clark! At those exquisite words the horror ended. Home with Clark! There would be no struggle, no fighting, no desperation. And he had asked to share her burden. A hot, wet tear rolled down Patricia's cheek and fell upon Clark's hand.

It was minutes before the man at the wheel spoke. Then he said: "What happened? Where have you been—?"

Patricia roused. She had been leaning against his shoulder, spent, exhausted. Now she straightened. Someone must trap Bill McGee before slipping through the dark waters of the Sound, he escaped.

"I must go to the police," she said once more.

"Nonsense," he said. "That's nonsense. I know you didn't kill Julian Haverholt. What've you got to find out is—who did?"

The police, the newspapers, the whole world believed her guilty of murder, but Clark knew that she was innocent; his faith had never wavered. One of his hands was on the wheel, the other now held her hand tightly as if he would never let it go. And Patricia told her story and was silent.

The man's face was set and white. Without warning he abruptly swung his car about. The headlights described a glowing arc, glittered on the bare, black branches of the trees that overhung the boulevard, shone upon the street again.

"Where are you going, Clark?"

He spoke simply and with finality. "I'm going after Bill McGee," he said.

The night was bitter cold. The air had a bone piercing chill. Patricia shivered as the last turn came and they swung into a mean street replete with the smell of the wharves. They had arrived at the gloomy cul-de-sac from which she had fled an hour before. All her argument, all her pleading had been in vain. Clark had been determined that he would settle his quarrel with Bill McGee, that he and he only would bring the murderer to justice. This was a new Clark, a strangely grim, unwavering man. He brought the car to a silent halt and sprang to the curb.

"You stay here," he said, and then plunged into the darkness which concealed the pier where the rum-boat lay at anchor.

Patricia waited until he disappeared. Then she, too, was on the street, following swiftly in his wake. The wharf was quite deserted, wrapped in night, but there was the sound of his rapid footsteps to guide her on. Suddenly as she turned a corner she came upon the widening river. Boatlights gleamed in the distance, and in the bitter wind, black water swirled and washed against the dock's supports. No boat rode at anchor.

The Lazy Mary was gone. Clark turned and saw her there. "McGee has skipped," he said. "I'm glad, Clark."

"Don't be glad yet—the man was quiet a moment—The harbor police are next. There's no way out of it. Are you willing to take the chance of recognition? I don't think it's very likely."

"I want to take the chance. You'll need me, I know the boat."

Clark was already telling his story. Bill McGee had murdered Julian Haverholt, the bridge expert.

Winding along the water front, dodging in and out of sleeping streets, their car brought Clark and Patricia five minutes later to the green lights of a police station. A dozen freight docks within a stone's throw were manned by night watchmen walking up and down. Dodging through the wind, Clark and Patricia ducked into the station.

A sleepy-eyed lieutenant raised his eyes as the door of the station was opened and then slammed shut. Several patrolmen, passed from a half-hearted game of pinocchio, slouched in from the squad-room in the rear. Patricia hesitated in half panic; then from their casual, uncurious glances, knew that she was safe.

Clark was already telling his story. Bill McGee—yes, they knew Bill McGee by reputation—had murdered Julian Haverholt, the bridge expert. It could be proved. And Bill McGee was now cruising up the East River, possibly pointed out toward the Sound, possibly lolling in the lee of one of the city islands.

The lieutenant tapped his pencil on his teeth. There had been no alarm sent out for McGee, he ventured. So far as he knew, McGee wasn't wanted. And finding a boat on the river on a night like this was no picnic. He regarded the two at the desk skeptically—a pale and unkempt girl, a young man laboring under patently concealed excitement.

"I'm not questioning your story," he said doubtfully. "It may be true. But I think that you better take the matter up with Headquarters in the morning."

"Tomorrow will be too late."

"I wouldn't want to act without orders from Headquarters."

"Get them on the telephone," said Clark. "Get the Commissioner. I'm Clark Tracy. He knows me. I'll talk to him."

The blue-coated telephone operator got Headquarters on the wire. Commissioner Young was home in bed. It was about the Haverholt case? Just a minute. Would Inspector Ferguson do? No? Just a minute. Eventually Clark heard the Commissioner's voice.

Even as the night visitor talked, the Lieutenant knew what his orders would be. When Clark had finished, half a dozen men in slickers were ready and the police launch

Boy Scouts to Begin Gathering Articles for Needy Here Today

Social Service League To Distribute Materials

Boy Scouts of Iowa City, accepting the challenge for service by President Roosevelt, will begin to gather household furniture and clothing this afternoon. This will be used by the needy of the city. The Social Service league will take charge of distribution of the gathered articles, Scout Executive Glen Fordyce asserted.

A slip of paper, stating that the clothing or household article is for distribution, is to be placed with the articles on the porch. This will aid in the city-wide canvass. The merchants have cooperated with the Scouts by furnishing more than 20 trucks to assist in the collecting.

Proclamation
Mayor Harry D. Breene, in a proclamation early this week, urged all who can to give liberally of both home furnishings and clothing. To this appeal Dr. W. L. Bywater, county CWA head, and Scout Executive Fordyce also add their pleas.

Appealing to Iowa Citizens to respond to the call for aid, Dr. Bywater stresses the following six reasons why the contribution should be made:

1. We are just entering the most critical time since the depression struck us.
2. We have already laid off 56 men and 15 women, and unless the order is changed, the same number will be laid off each week from CWA and CWS until May 1.
3. Most of these families will be on relief again for food, fuel, and clothing.
4. This relief load will tax the resources of the city to the limit.
5. Clothing and household furnishings are needed now more than ever before.
6. All the material gathered by the Boy Scouts will be used by the needy of Iowa City only. All furnishings are to be turned over to the Social Service league for distribution.

In his plea, Scout Executive Fordyce said, "Tomorrow the Boy Scouts of Iowa City will gather such household furniture as you desire to give for the relief of the needy of Iowa City. The Scouts want to do their part. Will you do your part to help them?"

"Kindly place your contribution on the front porch. Attach a slip of paper stating that it is for the Scouts. We will do the rest. Scouts will not molest your porch furniture."

"Time will be a vital factor, and for that reason be sure to get the material on the front porch early. Thanks for your hearty cooperation."

Student Class of Church Will Hear Luella M. Wright

Luella M. Wright of the University English department will talk on "The Quakers and practical mysticism" at the student class at the First Presbyterian church at 9:45 a.m. tomorrow.

The 5 o'clock class led by the Rev. W. P. Lemon is considering "A life of Jesus written in prison." Harold Schmidt will lead a discussion on "What difference does religion make?" at the Westminster Fellowship meeting at 6:45 p.m. Under the auspices of the Inter-church Campus group a meeting of the young people's organizations of all the cooperating university churches will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Presbyterian church. The Rev. W. S. Dysinger of the English Lutheran church will preside.

Checker Players To Contest Tomorrow For Championship

The best of Johnson county's checker enthusiasts will meet at the Redman Hall tomorrow afternoon and evening to fight for the county championship. A large trophy will be awarded to the winner of the tournament by the Octagon Checker club which is sponsoring the event.

Any resident of Johnson county may enter. Play will begin at 1 p.m. The finals will be played at 7 p.m. after lunch which will be served at 6 p.m.

It was announced that next year's state tournament will be held in Iowa City.

"That Nasty Old Man's Here Again"

Students with heads buried in coat collars, taxis doing a "rushing business," heavy mittens, cars hard to start, milk frozen on the doorsteps—all indicated that "old man winter" was back in Iowa City yesterday.

Many students were deceived by the shining sun, and went shivering to classes, unprepared for the chilling wind.

The low temperature early yesterday morning was 6 degrees according to Prof. John F. Reilly, official observer. At 7 a.m. the temperature remained at 6 degrees. During the day the highest temperature was 18 degrees. At 7 p.m. the mercury had fallen to 12 degrees.

AROUND THE TOWN with Dick Fagin

Governors
Clarence Knutson, former mayor of Clear Lake, who was in town yesterday, indicated that he was going to run for the Republican nomination for governor at the June primary. It is rumored that Judge Faville of Des Moines, may enter the race. Robert Colflesh, U. S. district attorney for southern Iowa, who was in town this week, and Dan Turner, former governor, have already announced.

Chow
Members of the American Legion will have chow at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the American Legion Community building. Arrangements have been made to listen to the broadcast of the Iowa-Illinois game after the chow. Attorney Kenneth Dunlop is chairman in charge.

Conference
Two members of the county board of supervisors, Frank Krall and C. W. Lachna, can go into conference in two languages, both speaking Bohemian fluently.

In Court
The largest gathering of legal talent last week in district court was over a case involving the ownership of a $500 truck. Attorneys in the case: Messer and Nolan, C. B. Russell, Popham and Hayek, E. P. Korab and E. A. Baldwin. Mervin Hill was given possession of the truck in a decision by District Judge James P. Gaffney.

largest taxpayer in Iowa City when the plain fact is that it is only the largest tax-collector because by public utility law the company's consumers must pay all the taxes as well as all other legitimate operating expenses of the business."

"Such infinitesimal tax replacements are hardly worthy of serious consideration or alarm—they will be more than offset by low electric rates which will reduce the overhead expense of merchants who can then sell more cheaply to the farmers of Johnson county and to students from all over the state of Iowa."

Answers Charge
"The company alleges with considerable force that if the federal government grants the city's application private capital invested in an electric property appraised at $1,574,740 will be ruthlessly destroyed. The city believes this last objection raised by the company is only superficially valid. The following relevant facts are offered in support of this conclusion and in rebuttal of any presumption of injustice."

Alderman Van der Zee after this statement set out a group of figures, to which the aldermen voting against the report took exception.

Another paragraph, which one of the councilmen said he could not approve, is: "It is believed no exaggeration to say that if all the pertinent facts were known the consumers of electricity in Iowa City in 25 years have more than paid for the electric property and would be justified in asking the United Light and Power company to make a gift of this property to the city of Iowa City."

The officially unapproved answer will be sent to the PWA, signed by Aldermen Van der Zee and Sybil, both members of the light committee.

Asks Aid
The Engineers Club of Iowa City requested in a letter that the city help the CWA topographic survey. The matter was referred to the city engineer who is to report back to the council at the next meeting.

The installation of a fire hydrant at Kirkwood Court was also authorized by the council.

Bills May Decide Local Battle

The local fight over the establishment of a municipal light plant has extended into the state legislature, according to reports, with both sides pushing bills.

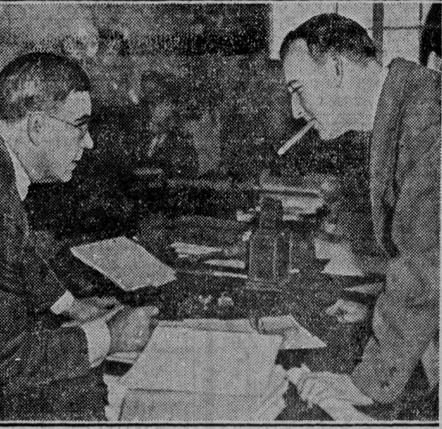

House File 335 has been passed by the house and is now before the senate. It would prohibit Iowa City from getting federal funds as it states that a city will be allowed to set PWA funds to build public improvements only when such improvement would not be in competition with a private service already existing and giving efficient service.

The senate has passed a bill cutting out the above condition and making it possible to borrow federal funds with revenue bonds as security. This bill will probably come before the house next week and is being backed by the municipal ownership forces.

Ethel Rarey Files Petition in Court For Second Divorce

Ethel Rarey asks her second divorce from Benjamin Rarey on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment in a petition filed in district court yesterday.

The couple was married the first time Dec. 3, 1917 in New Boston, Ill., and divorced there Dec. 26, 1929. The second marriage occurred

May 14, 1930, at Rock Island, Ill. They lived together a year.

A writ of injunction was issued yesterday by District Judge James P. Gaffney restraining Mr. Rarey from interfering with or molesting the plaintiff or her two children.

Mrs. Rarey asks the custody of the two children, ages 11 and 15, and $50 per month alimony.

Here's New 'High' in Tall Fish Stories--'Blimping' for Sharks

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Here's a yarn for an evening when the boys are gathered around the camp fire, a trout crackling in the pan, smoking their pipes and telling tall tales.

It's a true fish story but it probably can beat most of the tall stories your companions will tell.

A group of Miami sportsmen, armed with a heavy hook, 2,000 feet of strong line, thick gloves and bait, took off in a blimp to soar over the Gulf Stream and fish for shark.

A school of shark was sighted. The pilot eased the ship down to 1,000 feet, high enough to keep from frightening the fish.

Ahoy, Below!
The line and hook was heaved overboard. Down like a plummet it went to strike the water with a splash. Sharks darted in every direction, but the smell of the bait got the better of their judgment and one by one they drifted back.

One struck at the bait and missed. Right behind him came another big shark. Others swished about, first shyly and then with more courage.

One struck like lightning, grabbed the bait and sounded. The line played out, whining, as the shark dived toward the bottom. Finally the line was made fast. The shark came up and lunged into the air. The blimp, suddenly lightened, also shot upwards.

When the shark hit the end of the slack the little blimp car shook. Far below, the fish shook from side to side, trying frantically to dislodge the hook from his mouth.

Another Victory for the Machine!
The pilot turned the nose of the ship straight up and gave her the full power of two engines. For a few minutes it was a draw. One fisherman stood ready, knife in hand, to cut the line in the event the blimp couldn't take the load.

Slowly the shark gave way to superior power and came to the surface. He dangled in the air. Hoisted up to within a few feet of the ship, fishermen looked down into his mouth, studded with vicious teeth, and into his eyes, fired with the light of a fighter, subdued and bewildered by the sudden turn of events but still ready to battle to his last breath.

Feebly his tail swung from side to side as, in his last minutes, he attempted to shake himself loose from the monster above him.

Local Relief Center Moved

The Social Service clothing center was moved yesterday from the third floor of the Koser building on College street, to the basement of the old glove factory at 225 S. Capitol street.

The clothing center has been located in the Koser building for the last three years.

The center at the new location will be open on Tuesday, Lucille Bruner, secretary of the Social Service league announced.

Any surplus clothing, or clothing which is no longer used would be appreciated at the clothing center, Miss Bruner said.

Rush Fined $100 On Liquor Charge

George Rush of Davenport, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal transportation of unlabeled liquor yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace B. F. Carter and was fined $100 and costs.

Rush was arrested on the night of Feb. 18 with the liquor in his possession.

Plan Burial Rites For John Flannery

John Flannery, 70, 414 S. Duquesne street, died at his home at 3:30 p.m., yesterday. Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's church at 9 a.m., Monday. The service will be followed by burial at St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mr. Flannery was born on a Johnson county farm west of Iowa City on Sept. 15, 1864. He farmed in this county until 1911, when he moved into Iowa City. He suffered a paralytic stroke last June. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. James F. Mead, 323 S. Duquesne street.

Plan Burial Rites For Walker Today

Funeral service for Joseph Walker, 75, will be at 1:30 this afternoon at the First Presbyterian church with the Rev. W. P. Lemon officiating. Burial is to be in Oakland cemetery.

STRAND - TUESDAY

Each year Turkey and Greece ship us thousands of bales of fine tobaccos—

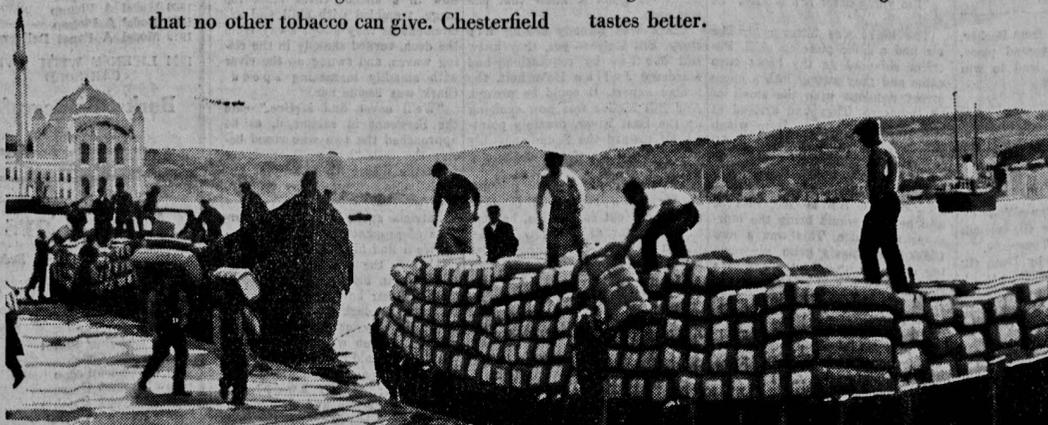

But why send 4,000 miles for tobacco?

... because spicy, aromatic Turkish is the best seasoning there is for a cigarette.

It adds something to flavor and aroma that no other tobacco can give. Chesterfield uses Turkish tobacco—from Samsoun, Smyrna, Cavalla and Xanthi.

Then it blends and cross-blends them with various kinds of choice home-grown tobaccos in the right balance to give you a cigarette that's milder, a cigarette that tastes better.

A leaf of Turkish tobacco—smaller than the palm of your hand—800 or more to the pound. There are many thousands of these leaves in each of these bales below, ready for shipment to America.
