Howard T. Custer, Burlington Newspaper Man, Commits Suicide

Shoots Self With Pistol In His Room

Victim Was Son of O. Custer, Once Illinois State Treasurer

BURLINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Howard T. Custer, 34, general manager of the Burlington Hawkeye-Gazette and son of Omer Custer of Galesburg, former Illinois state treasurer, shot and killed himself today.

His body was found fully clothed on a bed in his hotel room by C. W. McLaury, city editor of the newspaper. Custer had shot himself once in the right temple with a second hand pistol he recently purchased.

Note for Parents: A note on the dresser, marked for his parents, said: "All I can say is I'm sorry. Your loving son." Custer had appeared at his office as usual earlier in the day, and left at 2:30 p.m. after telling employees he was not feeling well. He had been in ill health for several months and had recently undergone an operation.

Shortly after 5 p.m. McLaury went to the hotel to see if Custer was better. The door to the general manager's room was closed but unlocked. McLaury found the body and notified the hotel management and authorities.

Father Summoned: Omer Custer was summoned immediately from Galesburg, took charge of the body and returned to his home shortly afterwards.

Authorities said there would be no inquest.

Custer was born in Galesburg April 5, 1896, and was educated at Morgan Park Academy, Chicago, and Knox college.

His father, prominent Illinois Republican, and he were associated in the publication of the Hawkeye-Gazette and the Register-Mail at Galesburg.

Custer and his father recently took over publication of the merged Hawkeye and Gazette at Burlington. The son came from Galesburg to assume charge of the Iowa paper.

Roosevelt Exercises First Veto Power In Deserter's Case

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Exercising his veto power for the first time, President Roosevelt today returned to congress without his approval a bill which would have given Beryl H. McHam, an army deserter of Sapulpa, Okla., all the benefits of an honorably discharged soldier.

The president transmitted with his brief message a report from Secretary Dern recommending disapproval on the grounds that McHam, who was cited for bravery in action in France, had deserted in 1922 after he had been allowed to re-enlist to wipe out a dishonorable discharge.

F. R. Requests Continuance of Money Policies

Would Retain Control For at Least Year, Morgenthau Says

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt, through his secretary of the treasury, asked congress today to let him retain a free hand over monetary policies for at least another year.

"Need More Experience": Frankly "speaking for the administration," Secretary Morgenthau told a house banking subcommittee that he was not ready to accept the pending bill for establishment of a federal monetary authority with sole control over currency and gold and silver reserves. Then he added:

"I believe we need more experience and time to tell us what is the best way to handle monetary problems before we get into anything as specific or definite as is contemplated, perhaps, in this bill.

"An Experiment": "We hope congress will give us at least the balance of this year to work on our present plan. Then we will know a little more about it."

Just as frankly, Morgenthau agreed in answer to a question by Representative Hancock (D., N. C.) that the administration's "position is more or less an experiment and it is not our recommendation that congress take any action now to change the present system."

Debaters Argue Merits Of Chicago Plan For Education

Minnesota Against Plan Speaking for Minnesota, Lucie Lawson, Olgamarie Novak, and Genevieve Arnold countered with five drawbacks to this plan which would preclude its adoption by the suggested schools.

In Giving the Basis for his Decision, Prof. F. L. Whan of Iowa State college pointed out that there had been no very definite clash in the debate and that his vote became a choice between the need pointed out by the affirmative for a plan, and the evils which the negative showed to exist in the Chicago plan. According to Professor Whan, the disadvantages outweighed the necessity and the vote went to Minnesota.

Austria Adds Recruits For Army Corps

Socialist Group Urges Preparedness For Hinted Fight

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

VIENNA, March 1—Recruiting for the Austrian army and its allied Heimwehr corps spurred today as a socialist official newspaper urged party members to be ready "for a resumption of our fight" against the government.

Chancellor Dollfuss has conquered, but "opportunities for a resumption of our fight and for our victory will come," asserted the organ, published in Czechoslovakia and distributed here by government mail men.

110,000 Under Arms: At least 110,000 were under arms today, ready for any contingency, and their numbers increased continuously in response to government appeals at the height of the recent socialist uprising and because of fearsome rumors of many hues.

These reports, all of which were denied, included one that mob violence was brewing against Americans here, that an attempt was made on the life of the chancellor, and that Nazis were considering some sort of coup.

Troopers on Guard: There were other rumors, too, and even though they were branded as gossip, and Vienna continued quiet on the surface, the presence of Heimwehr troopers on the streets, with bayonets unsheathed once more, was taken as a significant straw in the wind.

Those members of the Vienna American colony who heard the rumor of anti-American sentiment did not take it very seriously.

Roosevelt To Tell Future Of NRA Monday

Code Authorities Will Meet Then; Action Asked by Labor

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt let it be known that he will have something to say about NRA's future on Monday just about the time today that the national labor board asked the department of justice to do something about the Weirton Steel company.

Complaints Continue: The president's views about the recovery unit headed by Hugh S. Johnson will be given at the meeting of code authorities called to discuss proposed changes and the complaints that continued to rain down today.

By and large, the protests were a repetition of those already heard this week but the labor board's action was interpreted as a general move toward the solution of a major problem in connection with the recovery act and its codes—enforcement.

Charges Against Steel Co.: Specifically, the charge against the steel concern at Weirton, Pa., is that it has refused to abide by section 7A of the recovery law which gives workers the right to collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing.

Adler Assailant Broke From New Mexico Penitentiary

CHICAGO, March 1 (AP)—Fred Mayo, who hanged himself in a police cell after confessing his part in the attempted kidnaping of E. P. Adler, Davenport, Ia., publisher, today was found to have been an escaped New Mexico convict.

Kelly said he would not investigate the death of Mayo unless requested to do so by the family. Thomas P. Mayo, brother of Fred, gave out a statement at Gadsden, Ala., today in which he expressed doubt that his brother had committed suicide.

Joseph Poindexter Takes Oath as New Hawaiian Governor

HONOLULU, March 1 (AP)—In the red-carpeted room where only a few years ago Hawaiian monarchs reigned, Joseph B. Poindexter, one time cowboy of the Montana range, took the oath today as the eighth governor of Hawaii.

The inauguration, brief and simple, took place in the white walled Iolani palace, the territory's capitol building. Set in a grove of royal plums, it faces busy King street and modern buildings of the United States government.

The oath was administered by Chief Justice James J. Banks of the supreme court 34 years after Sanford B. Dole took his oath as the first governor.

Wants List Of Short Sellers Of Air Stocks

Whitney to Place Such Information Before Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—A list of those who sold aviation stocks short just before the air-mail contracts were annulled will be placed before the senate stock market investigating committee on Monday in answer to the demand of a Republican member.

Subpoena Served: With Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, testifying on the bill to regulate the securities markets, Senator Keane of New Jersey said he understood the information already had been compiled and asked that it be produced. Subpoena for the documents involved was served upon Whitney before he left the stand.

This, however, was a matter of routine, for Whitney and his associates assured their complete willingness to give the committee the information, and in fact revealed they already had it in Washington.

Officials' Names on List? Whether the list includes any government officials, none would say, and Keane himself asserted he had no knowledge or suspicion in that regard.

Individual Net Incomes, Corporations, Retail Sales Faces Levies After April 1

Solons Take Final Action On Rum Bill

Iowa May Witness Sale Of Hard Liquor In 30 to 60 Days

Provisions of Liquor Bill

DES MOINES, March 1 (AP)—The Iowa liquor control measure as finally enacted today by the Iowa legislature:

Sets up a liquor control commission of three members to be paid $4,500 each annually. Permits sale of liquors and wines only by state owned stores to persons holding state permits to cost $1 each annually. All sales cash.

Appropriates $500,000 for equipping and stocking the state owned stores. Allows druggists to sell liquors only on prescription. Authorizes vineyardists to retail wines for consumption off the premises.

Fixes a $1,000 penalty, one year imprisonment, or both for bootlegging. Suspends prohibition laws, but continues enforcement provisions including right of "search and seizure" by qualified officers.

Forbids sales or consumption of wine or liquors in hotels, restaurants, clubs, or any public place.

DES MOINES, March 1 (AP)—The way was cleared for state sale of hard liquor in Iowa within the next 30 to 60 days when the general assembly today placed final legislative approval on the liquor control bill.

State Monopoly: Both branches of the assembly acted promptly to adopt a conference committee report settling their differences on the measure under which the state, with a complete monopoly on retail sales, will set up a system of liquor stores.

The bill next will go to the governor, who has indicated that he will sign it promptly, and then will become effective upon publication in two daily newspapers. About a week will be required to complete these steps and the formality of enrolling, it is estimated.

It is considered probable that at least a month will be required to place the machinery of the new law in operation and to give Iowans legal liquor for the first time since 1916, when the old Muley law was repealed.

Coincident with final approval of the bill, Gov. Clyde L. Herring announced his choice of the three members of the state liquor control commission which will administer the law and direct the operation of the state stores.

The governor's appointees, who require confirmation by a majority vote of the state senate, were announced as Dick R. Lane of Davenport, Bernard Manley of Mason City, and Harold M. Cooper of Marshalltown. Lane is a Republican and Manley and Cooper are Democrats.

Airliner's Motors Worked Properly

The engines were brought to the company's hangar at the Salt Lake airport.

New Ruler Begins Era Of Construction for Empire

HSINKING (CHANGCHUN, MANCHUKUO, March 1 (AP)—Under the aegis of 50,000 soldiers, the "radiance of the sun, moon, and stars," and the boyish Emperor Kang Teh, the new "Great Manchukuo Empire" began today an era of construction.

"I proclaim this the first year of Kante, the era of construction," announced the 23 year old Henry Pu-Yi as he ceremoniously ascended Manchukuo's orchid throne.

"In cooperation with our great neighbor, Japan, our course will remain as unaltered as the sun in heaven.

"Today the country is bathed in the radiance of the sun, moon, and stars. Heaven favors only those who are virtuous. The establishment of the monarchy affected the salvation of our peoples from the agencies and sufferings of water and fire.

Ceremonies this morning elevating the former boy emperor of China had the stiffness of Japanese military precision, the safety of soldiers and detectives, the color of ancient robes and flags, the austerity of 3,000 year old traditions.

And, in keeping with the rites, Kang Teh declared his rule would be simple, safe, tranquil and virtuous.

His words were echoed—for the benefit of foreign countries—by the foreign minister: "By paying reverence to heavenly commands we eased the hearts of the people; let all rejoice in universal peace; strife has given way to tranquility; let us sing hymns of concord with all mankind."

Signing Ends Action On Important Phase Of Session's Work

DES MOINES, March 1 (AP)—Governor Herring tonight signed the $20,000,000 tax bill, which writes into the Iowa statutes an individual net income tax, a 2 per cent net corporations tax and a 2 per cent retail sales tax.

The bill recently had been passed by the legislature after weeks of debate and its approval by the governor marks the final action on one of the subjects for which he called the legislators into extra session.

Studied Many Months: The measure represents the study of many months by an interim legislative committee and embodies the fundamental thought of the committee.

The rates on the individual net income tax range from one per cent on the first $1,000 of net income to 5 per cent on the fifth $1,000 and all above that sum.

Retail Tax: The 2 per cent retail tax is to be passed on to the consumer insofar as practical. The tax becomes effective April 1 and is effective until April 1, 1937.

The individual and corporation net income taxes will be effective on incomes for the calendar year of 1934 and will be payable April 1, 1935.

Division of Income: Of the income from the bill 3 per cent is set aside for administration, $3,000,000 for emergency poor relief will be taken from the sales tax, $6,000,000 will be used to replace the state levy and the balance will be distributed to the counties and to taxpayers on the basis of the assessed valuation of property.

The measure represents the first major tax revision in Iowa in 75 years and is designed primarily to afford relief to property owners.

Two Other Bills Ready for Governor

DES MOINES, March 1 (AP)—Final action was written today by the Iowa legislature on the state liquor control bill, a measure simplifying and clarifying the national guard laws and a bill revising the state securities law.

In addition the house took up and passed 73 and 30 an administration measure requiring the court to automatically extend the redemption period in realty mortgage foreclosure actions until March 1, 1935, when the redemption period has not expired. The bill now goes to the senate.

The upper branch continued its discussion of the bill to regulate the direct buying of livestock, spending most of its time in debate on a motion by Senator Patterson of Kosuth, for indefinite postponement. The motion was defeated 17 to 32.

To Seek Gold in Lion Country

Taking time out from his never-ending quest for new automobile speed records, Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, turns to a hunt for gold. With Sir Alan Cobham, aviator pioneer, he plans to fly from London to Bechuanaland, Africa, where, in the lion-infested Kalahari Desert, they hope to find new deposits of the precious metal. However, the explorers have two other strings to their bow. Sir Alan will conduct an aerial survey with the object of charting new air routes across the forbidding land, and Campbell will seek a tract of flat land, suitable for auto speed tests. Sir Malcolm did better than 270 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., but he thinks he can do much better than that.

LONDON, March 1 (HN)—One might imagine that after a man had driven an automobile at the terrific speed of more than 270 miles an hour there would be nothing left in the world to give him a thrill. But that performance by Sir Malcolm Campbell at Daytona Beach, Fla., was just an episode in a life that demands a diet of thrills.

Bitten by Gold Bug Leaving his world's speed records for ambitious young race drivers to shoot at, Sir Malcolm is now planning to seek fresh thrills in new pastures.

With his close friend, Sir Alan Cobham, pioneer of British aviation, Campbell will shortly fly from Britain to Bechuanaland, in the midst of the desolate, lion-infested Kalahari Desert, between the Zambesi and Orange Rivers in darkest Africa, where, using their airplane as a base, they will conduct explorations on foot.

Although the purpose of the expedition is three-fold, the main objective will be gold. It is the belief of many experts that vast undiscovered lodes of the precious metal are in that wild tract. The intrepid Britishers plan to find them if they exist.

But the business of getting to Bechuanaland is not so simple as it looks on paper. From London, Campbell and Cobham will fly to Marseilles, thence across the Mediterranean by way of Corsica to Africa.

The explorers hope to find a suitable landing spot in the desert, where, incidentally, there isn't a drop of water for hundreds of miles. So the adventurers will have to depend on the water they carry in the plane.

Regardless of how their gold prospecting turns out, Campbell and Cobham will not come back with the knowledge that their trip has been wasted.

Cobham, who already has blazed many Empire air trails, has been commissioned to carry out an aerial survey with the object of charting new air routes across the forbidding land. The ultimate goal of British aviation enthusiasts, backed by the government, is to link the far-flung outposts of the empire with an aerial chain and in time to inaugurate regular air passenger service between the mother country and her colonies. Already, thanks to the pioneer work of private individuals, notably Capt. James Mollison and his wife, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith and other noted flyers, the groundwork for such a link has been laid. Sir Alan Cobham's work is expected to be another long step in the desired direction.

Seek New Speedway Although Campbell is interested in aviation, the automobile is his real, true love. Asked about the forthcoming trip, Sir Malcolm made it clear that it is not just of gain which is taking him to Africa. He is looking forward to the venture for the thrill that is in it. If he finds gold, well and good it will come in mighty useful. But if he doesn't, he isn't going to take down his hair and weep.

The few white men who hitherto have explored Bechuanaland brought back tales of great tracts of land in the desert which, they averred, are as level as a billiard table. It is in hope of finding one of these tracts that Sir Malcolm cherishes above the lure of gold.

Wheat Prices Jarred by '34 Crop Estimate

CHICAGO, March 1 (AP)—Jolted by unofficial estimates that 1934 production of domestic winter wheat would total 450,000,000 to 475,000,000 bushels, wheat prices went lower today.

March private crop reports issued today pointed to likelihood of such totals based on present conditions, and indicated an output more than 100,000,000 bushels in excess of the amount harvested last year. The reports also gave considerable ground for belief that abandonment of winter wheat acreage in the United States this season would be only about normal.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-8 to 54 under yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 1-4 higher, oats 1-4 to 1-4 down.

A maximum fall of a cent a bushel took place in the wheat market. This tumble came in quick order following the issuance of unofficial monthly crop summaries, and was also simultaneous with sudden stock market downturns. One leading crop authority reported the condition of winter wheat as 77.3 per cent, an improvement of 8.5 over Dec. 1 figures, against a decline of 5.4 in the corresponding period a year ago and in sharp contrast with the all time low record of around 51 last year.

Officials Believe Bootlegger Just as Prevalent Since Repeal

Federal Agents Declare More Stills Are In Operation

DETROIT, March 1 (AP)—Nearly three months after the repeal of prohibition, the administrator of the alcoholic beverage unit of the department of justice here believes the majority of the drinking public still is patronizing bootleggers.

Capacity Doubled

Major W. L. Ray, who was head of the special investigation division of prohibition enforcement before repeal, said today he was convinced that "there are more stills in operation here since repeal, and their capacity is double of what it used to be."

"If this liquor they distill wasn't sold and consumed, these racketeers wouldn't be manufacturing it," he said. "The fact that the alley distillers continue to operate—and on a larger scale—is evidence of a market for their products."

Bootlegger Still Called

"The drinking public still calls up the bootlegger from whom it can get fair quality liquor at one third the liquor store prices."

The illicit distillers, he said, having no tax to pay, are putting out a grade of alcohol comparable to the best grade of legitimate alcohol, at $3 for a five gallon can. The tax alone on five gallons of legitimate alcohol, he pointed out, is $19.

Charred Kegs

Furthermore, he said, the alley distillers have improved their products to compete in quality with licensed distillers, "even going to the extent of putting their liquor in charred kegs and aging it."

The result, he explained, is that the bootleggers are purveying "a better grade of cheaply priced liquor, some of it at 75 cents a quart, than the lower priced liquor in the state stores."

History Department Releases Bulletin

The annual bulletin of the history department containing various items concerning the work of both faculty and graduate students was released recently.

The bulletin gives news of the activities of faculty members and graduate students, progress of doctoral theses, research work recently contributed to publications, material secured for the library, and a few paragraphs concerning the work to be offered by this department for the summer session of 1934.

Pharmacy College Gathers Statistics About Graduates

The corner drug store is not always the destination in the minds of students taking pharmacy. In fact, statistics, gathered by the University of Iowa college of pharmacy, show that only 69 per cent of its graduates have gone into retail pharmacy, and the remaining 31 per cent have entered into other phases of the drug business.

Manufacturing or research laboratories, teaching, medicine, and hospital practice are some of the branches of the pharmacy profession in which graduates are found.

At the end of 1933 the college of pharmacy had graduated 758 students, 68 of whom were women. However, of the women who have started the course, 42 per cent have finished, but only 42 per cent of the men who have started have received diplomas.

Going back 49 years to the first pharmacy class, it is found that there were 13 men and one woman enrolled. At that time pharmacy was a department of the university and not a college. It was housed in the old medical building, which at that time stood at the south end of Old Capitol campus.

Adjournment Of Congress in May Seems Unlikely

WASHINGTON—Congress is moving toward the May date tentatively considered for adjournment with little to show that its decks can be cleared by that time. So many major legislative projects have been added to its slate either by White House wish or on motion of congress itself that it would seem hopeless to expect completion of a satisfactory program to permit May adjournment except for one thing—the urgent need of all house members and a third of the senate to get home for pre-primary campaigning.

That, coupled with the fact that the president, despite a flurry of party revolt now and then, is still firmly in control, is highly important. He could virtually proscribe congress at any time if he so desired. He still has the votes to do it.

Resurgence a Factor

Whether there has been any change in the president's feeling in January, when the session started, that it ought to wind up by mid-May, never has been definitely indicated at the White House. For a time, on the heels of the rousing majorities which swept through some major Roosevelt legislative moves of the session, including the gold bill, it looked as if the administration might take advantage of the opportunity to force some of its permanent economic planning projects instead of delaying until the new congress comes in next year.

Faced by the resurgence of congressional currency inflation sentiment both in the matter of the bonus payment bill and the impending, long-distance, farm mortgage-lifting Frazier plan, the situation as the president views it may have swung back to the original conception of the present congress as purely a depression emergency affair.

Vacation Plans Secret

In that connection it may be significant that Mr. Roosevelt is known to have given some thought recently to his personal plans for a post-session vacation. How and when he will take it are a closely guarded secret at the White House.

Looking back over what he has done since his election to obtain brief periods of complete escape, it can be assumed that Mr. Roosevelt will take his post-session holiday afloat and out of touch except by radio.

The president, if his hopes are realized, may get in a lot of sea-scooping before the year is over through his projected trip west via the Panama canal. That is not the same thing. It is bound to have too much official character and company about it to suit his mood when he takes the notion to play hooky from everything connected with his official life.

Films Demonstrate Work of Pavloff On Mechanics of Brain

The experimental work of Dr. Ivan P. Pavloff, Russian psychologist, on dogs, monkeys, and persons was pictured in a university film program yesterday afternoon in the chemistry auditorium.

"Mechanics of the brain" the presentation that was presented under the auspices of the psychology department, showed that man's behavior is the result of an intricate super structure of conditioned reflexes.

Illustrations of localization of the various nerve centers in the brain, established by removing the different centers and then noting the corresponding lack of reaction in parts of the body, were included in the program.

"Off the Record" Unofficial Doings in Washington, D. C.

Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury found that his new duties have placed him in the position of making even his mother "behave."

The day after he issued a peremptory order to turn in all gold he received a letter from his mother, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Sr., of New York. When he opened it three gold coins tumbled out on his desk.

One of the minor difficulties of the new deal has been to pronounce the name of Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, who dropped his post as assistant postmaster general to become a senator.

O'Mahoney has given the key to the problem himself. He quotes a rhyme his father used to recite when asked the pronunciation of the family name: The beat of the lamb and the fruit of the bee Spell the name of the man who is talking to thee, O'Mahoney.

Secretary Ickes of the interior arrived at the White House executive offices to see the president.

"Anyone with the chief?" he asked.

"Yes, Mr. Secretary," he was told; "he's talking to Vice President Garner and Postmaster General Farley."

Ickes sat down.

"Well," he said, "with all those statesmen in there I guess I'll wait outside."

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., enjoyed a little "list making" on a stop here.

The three most charming women in America, he said, are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, a representative from Arizona, and Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, the director of the mint.

He should know. He has crossed the continent 61 times by motor and 26 times by airplane.

Helen Robbins, daughter of the United States minister to Canada, was offered the White House as background for her wedding—and chose to have it in Ottawa.

Even the rush of work on the floor of the house cannot quite kill its members' sense of humor.

Two representatives were standing in the back of the house watching Speaker Rainey play referee between two irate orators. One of the watchers summoned a page and said: "Youngster, tell Mr. Speaker the gentleman from Mississippi and the gentleman from Missouri will demand a reading of the rules applicable unless the speaker shuts off the combatants."

The page bustled off. They saw Speaker Rainey give a reply in a serious and dignified manner.

Stock Issues Stumble, But Prices Hold

Average Shows Small Net Loss; Turnover Only 1,244,010

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—Stocks stumbled occasionally today but caught themselves before going much lower and final prices for most favorites were little changed. The averages showed a small fractional loss.

Brisk Selling Flurries

With turnover down to 1,244,010 shares, notwithstanding a couple of brisk selling flurries, the absence of speculative enthusiasm was evident. Group movements were almost entirely lacking, though some of the metals backed up. Amusement shares had a little following and a few specialties improved. The bond market drifted, nor did commodities exhibit much inclination to go anywhere in particular.

Secretary Morgenthau's remarks to the house banking sub-committee conveyed to congress word that the administration did not desire any immediate change in the present monetary experiment. There have recently been rumors, chiefly abroad, that further dollar devaluation might be coming, but such reports have received little credence here.

The Pro and Con

WITH about 100 men and women intercollegiate debaters gathered on the Iowa campus today, Iowa will hear some profound considerations of questions of national importance. And Iowans will perhaps give a moment to consider the value of intercollegiate debating.

It has been charged that formal college debating fosters only a spirit of insincerity. Opponents of forensics have pointed to the fact that debaters are often called upon to argue both sides of the question. Surely, they point out, a person can not be sincere on both sides of the thing. Even when they argue only one side, they do it because they are told to, not because they believe in it, this line of thought holds.

It is in that very thing that the value of intercollegiate debating lies. It is highly probable that not one in a dozen of the men and women who will argue today and tomorrow about the powers of the president have a well defined opinion on that subject. Debating, if it does nothing else, at least fosters a toleration of various views, an ability to "see both sides of a question."

A second value which should not be overlooked is the fact that it furnishes what is often the only opportunity for college students to participate in important national and international problems, to leave the field of books and classes and lectures, and see the events of the broader world without.

University debaters may travel half the way across the continent to attend the Iowa tournament. Not for the glory of winning, for that is a secondary consideration in such events, but because their universities are not overlooking the value of an exchange of ideas. It is worth coming half way across the continent to foster a tolerant intellectual spirit.

Manchukuo Celebrates While the Orient Glares

ON ONE side of the front page of yesterday's DAILY IOWAN was the story of the coronation of Henry Pu Yi, new ruler of the empire of Manchukuo. Half way across the page was a story telling of a fresh controversy brewing between Japan and Russia.

Nothing could be more significant than the coincidence which dictated the position of these two stories. For in just that manner is the Orient lined up—Japan triumphant for the moment, Manchukuo in a mood of celebration, and Russia suspiciously waiting.

The world and the League of Nations have recognized that Manchukuo is to all practical purposes not a sovereign nation, but a "puppet state" set up by Japan as the most convenient way of keeping control over the Manchurian territory.

China, refusing to recognize the new state, yet powerless to prevent its creation by Japan, is too busy with internal strife and dissension to be a very important figure in the far eastern conflict. Between Japan and Russia, however, the crisis is real and serious.

Siberia, the eastern border of the Soviet Union, touches on the southeast upon the Manchurian country. Russia has important financial interests in Manchuria. So it is only to be expected that she should be greatly interested in the Japanese domination of Manchukuo.

It is true that Russia has indicated with regularity that she does not want a war. It is true that her internal program—the second five year plan—is taking all her attention and effort. But Russia will not risk the danger of leaving her Siberian border unprotected while Japanese troops have a free hand in Manchuria.

Henry Pu Yi and Manchukuo are in their heyday—what with the young emperor on a salary of $1,750,000 annually. But the Orient is as truly a tinder box today as was Europe before the World War. If the tinder box is lighted, there seems to be every indication that Manchukuo will be the Belgium of Asia.

"Great Oaks From Little Acorns"

THERE'S a great oak growing now for Prof. Jerome C. Kerwin, and all because the professor inadvertently tossed out a little acorn four years ago!

Consider the sad plight of the unwary. Four years ago, Professor Kerwin was lecturing before his class in political science—a very ordinary and very indifferent class. His subject was the administration of cities, and the professor struck upon an idea which he thought might bring home to the sea of blank faces before him the thought he was trying to convey.

So he established six more or less arbitrary criteria on which to judge city administrations, and proceeded to judge them on this basis. Cincinnati stood in the 90 per cent, and Chicago was about 50 per cent—still more or less arbitrary.

The next morning, when Professor Kerwin arose, he was greeted by the morning paper, with the information that he, an expert in municipal administration, condemned Chicago's government!

So it has gone. For four years the good professor has tried to live down the odium—tried in vain to prove that he is not an expert on municipal government. But always his sin has caught up with him.

And now has come the biggest blow. Just when he thought he had laid the ghost of his mistake, Cincinnati swelled up with pride in her new municipal administration, hauled out the old files, found a picture and the old story of Professor Kerwin, and the other day when Professor Kerwin arose, he was again a great municipal expert.

Truly great oaks from little acorns grow. And there is no rest for the unwary!

"To Be or Not to Be"

THE vagaries of human nature are overwhelming.

The utter inconsistency of the American people is a by-word among foreigners. This is partly because of the fact that an American seldom thinks what he says and seldom says what he thinks.

He is somewhat of a paradox in that he makes two conflicting statements, believes neither, and attempts to practice both.

"Time is money" he says as he gulps a hasty breakfast and rushes to his office or to class. "Everything comes to him who waits" he quotes as he puts away his books and goes out for a leisurely afternoon of golf.

"Perseverance is the secret of success" he confides to a friend as he plunges time after time into the stock market. He consoles himself with the maxim "A watched pot never boils" after he has tried in vain to balance his budget.

"Beauty is a joy forever" he thinks as he gazes fondly at the latest picture of Garbo. "Beauty costs too much" he decides when he scrutinizes his wife's cosmetic bill.

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" is the golden rule he takes with him to Sunday vespers. Monday morning a competitor may expect him to use this philosophy "Every man for himself, God for everyone, and the devil take the hind-most."

In other words an American makes up his mind and then creates the facts to fit the situation.

His philosophy is very adaptable if rather inconsistent. It allows him, without a twinge of conscience, to sing with the angels or play poker with Satan.

Such elasticity is amazing.

What Others Think

Another Maldistribution

Resolved, That the snowfall in these parts has increased, is increasing and ought to be diminished. Snow is all right in its place. It raises the devil in cities. It is an expensive and dangerous nuisance and curse. It is distinctly rural. It is good for the crops, but it sticks in the crop of town-dweller and commuter. Nobody grudges it to the poets. Mr. Whittier, snuggling by the fire, the mug of cider simmering slow between the andirons, could afford not to care how the north wind raved. He had no train to catch, no taxi to scramble for or away from. Other people can have all the snow they are entitled to or more, if they like it and are used to it.

Thus one reads with sympathy of twenty, thirty, fifty foot drifts in the Province of Quebec. Those hardy citizens would be unhappy if they didn't have their full quota of snow from November till April, and those fifty-foot drifts will stimulate still further the ever-increasing number of imaginative survivors of the blizzard of '88. It wasn't a real blizzard, of course. We cheerfully take the word of a chap who has lived in the Barrens that there are no blizzards below Fifty-three; only common, ordinary snowstorms. Let the Barrens be happy in their seven-day blizzards. Who gets anything but discomfort, at the least, from our big snowstorms, which more than qualify as blizzards in these latitudes?

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that Twenty above here is equivalent to Twenty below anywhere else. Congress can regulate snowfall and snow-distribution as well as it regulates a great many other things. Why doesn't it set to work? If it had begun early enough, the editor of The Hartford Courant, who distinctly remembers the snowstorm of 1717, wouldn't have had a piece on "The Approach of Spring" last Tuesday, distinguished by our last blizzard but one. The day before he had been looking tenderly at his chickweed blossoms and budding hyacinths. On the morrow there wasn't milk enough in the house for a punch.

The only good that can be attributed to this tumultuous lunacy of storm is Prophet Scarr's exact reading of the entrails of the Storm Bird. He has made two straight hits. His halo illuminates these dark days. But if the bully of the air is to keep on the rampage at his recent rate, almost anybody can predict the next raid, and the glory of the seer may suffer. Enough—and a darned sight too much—of dire snow. Whom of the gods shall the folk call to the needs of the sprawling city? Who is there to call, except congress in its wisdom and the choir of young sages that specializes in redistribution?

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Ask Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller about narrow escapes from kidnappers and holdup men and they may tell you about that mysterious incident coming home from the fights the other evening.

The pair were gliding along armed to the teeth as usual, in Lupe's slim foreign car which goes faster than five dollars in a night club. The chauffeur, also packing a gun, was bent over the wheel, his eyes on the road ahead but also alert for any suspicious circumstances.

An important intersection loomed ahead and the car slowed up. Just as it did so another car drew abreast of it. Dimly visible in the tonneau of the other machine were four roughly dressed men with caps pulled down over their eyes.

One of them plainly was heard to exclaim: "There's Lupe Velez now!"

A split second later, the star's chauffeur gave the car the gun and it roared away to safety.

What Lupe and Johnny didn't know until now is that the four desperadoes really were a Hal Roach camera crew who had been shooting atmosphere shots in the stadium, and who were just exhibiting a little human curiosity.

Right across from the Paramount studio was enacted the other day a bit of drama more poignant than the scenes being photographed in nearby stages. Like so many real life dramas, it also had a touch of the ludicrous.

For unknown reasons, a little tailor, who runs a shop largely patronized by cinema folk, got into an argument with his 22 year old son. Father-like, he grabbed the boy and tried to turn him over his knee.

Angry, humiliated, the boy struck out. The father then doubled his fists. There was a quick exchange and the boy was knocked to the sidewalk.

To the curious crowd, the incident was merely amusing. But the father and boy? What scars did they carry away from this unnatural conflict?

Earl Carroll, who is a mid-appearing man, tells of getting his biggest thrill, when he went into the barber-shop of a Chicago hotel and was asked whether he wished to be shaved sitting up or lying down.

A quick look revealed several men bolt upright, with lather-covered faces. They were gangsters and didn't dare to offer an unprotected mark to rival gun-men.

Which brings to mind one of the most macabre scenes ever photographed in an underworld film. That shot—I forgot the name of the picture—where the police break in just after a man has been killed in a barber-shop and where one of the murderers plumps him into a chair, quickly lathers his face and is shaving the corpse while the cops make their inspection.

You'd know that it would happen to Gracie Allen.

After their broadcast the other night, Gracie and her husband, George Burns, went to one of the swankier late-spots to have a de-luxed supper. They stayed for a couple of hours and got up to go home early because George was working at Paramount the next day in "We're Not Dressing."

Just before you go out of the place, there is an almost invisible door in the pantling of the side wall. Gracie didn't notice it and leaned back.

She went flying across a room and struck her head a crack on a piece of furniture. At an emergency hospital, they had to take five stitches in her scalp.

Runner Will Talk Tonight

Geologist to Speak On Gold in Baconian Lecture

Prof. Joseph J. Runner of the geology department will present a Baconian lecture, "Prospecting for gold," at the chemistry auditorium tonight. The lecture, which will begin at 7 o'clock, is under the auspices of the graduate college.

Before coming to Iowa in 1919, Professor Runner received his B.A. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1907 and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1923.

The gold veins in Colorado, California, and Alaska were formed by vast upheavals deep in the earth which dissolved valuable metals in lava. Metals were set free when the lava solidified, Professor Runner points out.

He will discuss gold from the standpoints of mining, geological, and, to some extent, economic interests. Although he will not attempt to show that more gold is needed at this time, he will show how it could be attained.

Professor Runner's address will be open to the public and will be broadcast over station WSUI.

Following his address, an open forum will be conducted if any time remains in the hour devoted to Baconian lectures.

Five Day Recess Begins March 28

It will be the final holiday period of 1933-34, except for the usual suspension of classes Memorial day, May 30.

Chief Blackhawk Loses Head For Second Time in History

History does repeat itself. When Black Hawk, the Sac Indian chieftain, whose statue is being erected at the University of Iowa, died Oct. 3, 1838 he was buried in the customary way of his tribe. This consisted of placing his body full length on a tilted slab of wood beneath an inverted V shaped covering of slabs.

His medals and tokens which he had received from President Jackson and other government dignitaries were placed with him. No steed was immolated at his tomb as was customary with the neighboring tribe, the Keokuks. The Sacs believed the dead must fare their way to the spirit realm on foot.

Head Fell Off

During the winter of 1838 the head of Black Hawk, semi-erect in his sepulchre, dropped off and fell into his lap. It was stolen by a Dr. James Turner, who thought if he could steal Black Hawk's head he could make a fortune out of it by taking it east and putting it on exhibition.

After two weeks of waiting he succeeded in getting it. He took it at 4 o'clock one morning and hid it. The Indians, however, discovered the theft and demanded the return of their dead ruler's head. For three weeks there was dread of an outbreak.

Found Bones

But the headless warrior was not doomed to haunt forever the Iowa prairies. On Oct. 10, 1840, the Burlington Hawk-eye announced that the bones of Black Hawk had been recovered and were in the governor's office. They had been taken to St. Louis and there cleaned, polished, and varnished. Then they had been sent to Quincy to a dentist to be put up and wired previous to being sent to the east.

When George Keller and Holland Foster, sculptors who are engaged in making an 11 foot statue of Black Hawk as a CWA project, came to work one morning they made a startling discovery. The clay head of the chieftain had fallen and lay at the base of the statue. Not believing in spirits, however, the sculptors investigated and found that the damage was caused by the wire armatures being too weak to hold the head in place.

Reproduction

The statue now under construction is to be a reproduction of a smaller model made by Harry E. Stinson of the graphic and plastic arts department. It will be cast in cement, and is being made for the town of Lake View, in Sac county, and will overlook Black Hawk lake and vicinity where the famous warrior once roamed and hunted.

SEEN from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

Bag, baggage, brief cases, and briefs—intercollegiate debaters from various parts of the middle west and south came here yesterday to argue in a two day tournament beginning this morning. The weighty problem of whether the powers of the president should be increased will come in for consideration.

There could be no doubt that a debate tournament was on the way yesterday. In the office of Prof. A. Craig Baird, timing cards were being sorted and prepared. Timing cards are a form of "audience insurance." They guarantee that a debater, once started, will not continue to talk forever.

Item: Bravery—This department hands the weekly medal for bravery to Earla Blaine Hampton, one of the three women who debated against University of Minnesota speakers last night in Old Capitol. She had been confined to her home by illness for several days, and went to University hospital for treatment yesterday afternoon. Three hours after she left the hospital she entered the contest to uphold the educational system of the University of Chicago.

A local restaurant keeper realizes there is a depression! Yesterday a family of four came into his inn, sat down, and put a large box on the table. They then proceeded to order a loaf of bread, coffee for the "mister an' missus," and milk "fer the kiddies." They very leisurely took the beverage and bread, and proceeded to make a meal. From the large box came butter, meat, and other articles of food. When the meal was over, the group chatted, made use of the various conveniences offered by the cafe, and departed.

Six More Alumni Groups to Observe Founding of Iowa

Six additional units of the Iowa Alumni association have expressed their intentions of holding reunions next Wednesday night in observance of Iowa's eighty-eighth anniversary. Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, director of the association, announced yesterday.

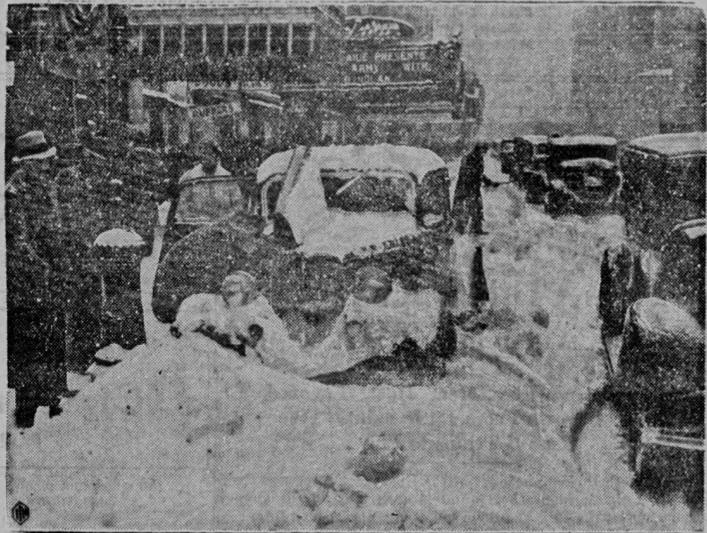

Monroe county club will meet at Albia; Crawford county alumni will meet at Denison; Lee county at Keokuk; Benton county at Vinton; and Appanoose county at Centerville. The Denver, Colo., club will also meet that night.

Prof. Herbert Martin, acting head of the philosophy department, has been invited to speak at the Centerville reunion.

Two Injured in Fall

OTTUMWA (AP)—Harold L. Minner, 38, of Ottumwa, and Louis Paris, 26, of Belknap, were seriously injured this afternoon when they fell from a broken scaffolding on a bridge 11 miles south of here on highway 63.

OLD MAN BLIZZARD BIGGEST STAR ON BROADWAY

This picture, made at a spot that is regarded as "the hub of the world," Broadway and 42nd street, New York, gives a rough idea of what the blizzard that swept the eastern seaboard from Maine to Virginia did to traffic. Drifts piled up in the metropolis faster than snow plows and an army of workers could clear the falling snow. Rail and automobile traffic was snarled up and suburban districts isolated.

AT O'CONNELL KIDNAP TRIAL

Mannie Strewl (left), former beer runner, pictured with his attorney, Daniel Prior, as his trial opened at Albany, N. Y. Strewl is charged with the abduction of John J. O'Connell, Jr., member of the powerful Albany political clan. Eleven persons are suspected in the kidnaping, but Strewl is the only one named.

Capt. Hinman Talks On Chemical Warfare

Acting as instructor for the Johnson county reserve officer's school last night, Capt. J. J. Hinman told of the organization and operation of the chemical warfare service. Three reels of motion pictures, secured from seventh corps area headquarters at Omaha, Neb., showing the use of chemicals in actual warfare were presented.

The medical regiment is the subject to be presented by Col. F. L. Love at the next class meeting, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Because of increasing enrollment, the place of meeting is changed to room 16, armory.

Flower-Lovers To Get Surplus Seeds

Because he has more flower seeds than he will need this year for use in the pharmaceutical garden, David Boot of the college of pharmacy, who is in charge of the garden, has offered to distribute the surplus supply to flower lovers who are unable to purchase seeds.

The varieties of flowers which can be secured from him at his office, room 322B, pharmacy-botany building, or by sending him a self-addressed, stamped envelope, include red perennial poppies, castor beans, purple foxglove, and pyrethrum.

Rockefeller Center Representative Will Speak Here Today

William E. Delehante, representative of Rockefeller Center, will give an illustrated lecture before classes in dramatic arts and graphic and plastic arts in the physics auditorium at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Connected with one of the three firms of architects which are associated with the Rockefeller Center development, Mr. Delehante is particularly interested in theater architecture.

He has been in Davenport with the Rockefeller Center exhibit, part of which he will bring to Iowa City, lecturing and showing his slides at the Davenport Municipal art gallery.

John Miller Joins With Albia Firm

John E. Miller of Albia, graduate of the University of Iowa, has become a partner in the law firm of Miller and Everett at Albia.

He has been associated with the firm since last June. His father, Charles E. Miller, is a member of the firm.

Professor Porter Writes Article For Government Journal

Prof. Kirk Harold Porter of the political science department is the author of an article, "Remote control," which appears in the February issue of State Government, a magazine published in Chicago by the American Legislators' association.

To say that the state "audits" local accounts, or "supervises" them, or "checks" them is to be vague and ambiguous, Professor Porter points out in his article. He explains that no precise meaning is attached to such terms as these.

He also shows the great variety of actual practices that occur in different states under laws that may be identical. The degree of state control may be almost negligible, or it may be carried so far as virtually to destroy local self-government.

The Catholic tournament which is being held under the auspices of St. Mary's this year should produce some first rate battles.

While the Ramblers are ranked as favorites, St. Ambrose of Davenport, the defending champion, St. Mary's of Ottumwa, St. Joe's of DeWitt, Central high of Ft. Madison and the local Irish are all strong teams.

Iowa Leaves For Madison

Iowa's basketball team will leave for Madison, Wis., at noon today for their Big Ten finale with the Badgers. Under the direction of Coach Rollie Williams the Hawkeyes were put through the final home workout of the year in the fieldhouse yesterday afternoon.

District Parochial Tourney Opens This Morning

Eleven Quintets to Seek Class A Title Defended by St. Ambrose of Davenport

Local St. Mary's Five, Meet Host, Favored To Wrest Crown From Little Saints; Five Class B Teams to Play

The basketball championships of the Davenport diocese as their goal, 16 Catholic high school quintets open play in the annual tournament at the City high gym today in a meet which promises one of the closest struggles for the class A and B titles in the five years of its existence.

The competition, scheduled to start at 10 o'clock this morning when St. Mary's of Muscatine and St. Elizabeth's of Harper meet in a class B game, will find some of the strongest parochial teams in the state in action before the finals tomorrow night.

Held St. Mary's The tournament, held by the local St. Mary's school this year under the direction of the Rev. Walter Boeckman and Francis Suelpell, Rambler coach, has attracted 11 class A outfits and five class B teams. The latter aggregations will be playing only for the championship in the division, but to the winner and runner-up in the class A tournament will be awarded the right to compete in the state meet at St. Ambrose of Davenport next week end.

A total of 13 games will be played during the two days of the meet, with games scheduled for this morning, afternoon and evening and for tomorrow morning and evening.

Favorites The favorites for the class A crown—St. Mary's of Iowa City and St. Ambrose of Davenport—are in the opposite brackets of the meet, but before they can gain the finals they are faced with the task of wading through the biggest field of tough opponents seen in the southeastern Iowa district for several seasons. St. Ambrose has resigned as district champion for the last two years.

St. Mary's of Ottumwa, St. Joseph's of DeWitt, Central of Ft. Madison and the local St. Pat's outfit are rated as the leading opponents of the Ramblers and Little Saints, but St. Mary's of Clinton, St. Paul's of Burlington and St. Mary's of West Point all have stronger teams than usual.

Intramural ACTIVITIES

By LES CAMP

In the first game of the interfraternity volleyball series played last evening in the field house gym Pi Kappa Alpha won from Delta Upsilon 2 to 0 and Phi Kappa Psi defeated Delta Tau Delta 2 to 1.

Phi Gamma Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon were also scheduled to play last night but the proper teams did not show up.

The next scheduled games in this series will be played in the gymnasium March 6, contestants being Gamma Alpha vs. Delta Sigma Delta, Beta Theta Pi vs. Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Psi vs. Delta Tau Delta, Phi Gamma Delta vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Phi Epsilon Kappa vs. Sigma Nu.

These games, which began yesterday, will be played off before March 20 to make way for interfraternity baseball.

Standings Same

No changes in the standings of the freshman physical education class league were made last evening. The Alley Rats defeated the No Names 17 to 7 but the former team retained its average having won all games and the latter team remained defeated in all games.

In a few cases interest has been shown in these contests but in most cases the teams have consistently defaulted.

The Side Hill Skunks, Long Horns, and Dish Rags still are the leading teams in the loop, each team having a clear slate, with the Pole Cats the runners up having a percentage of .333.

Double Default

In the class B interfraternity basketball series Sigma Alpha Epsilon was scheduled to meet Phi Kappa Alpha but it was a double default, neither team appearing. The game, therefore, will be postponed until a later date.

Varsity Scrimmage Ends Season's Play For Frosh Cagers

Freshman basketball men ended their regular season last night with a final scrimmage against the varsity.

Little Hawks Get Bye For First Round

By KERMIT BUNTROCK

Confident after a regular season of 11 victories and seven defeats in fast competition, City high's Little Hawks travel to Marengo tonight in quest of their third sectional championship since George Wells took over the coaching reins five years ago.

The Red and White drew the only bye in class A to get by the first round and tonight at 8 o'clock will meet Marengo, conqueror of North English last night. Should the Wellmen come through this battle they will be in the finals to be played at 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

West Branch strong The finalist in the other bracket will be one of four teams: University high of Iowa City, Wellmen, West Branch, and Williamsburg. Of this group, West Branch, champion of the Little Eight conference, appears to possess the best chances. It has a small team but makes up for this deficiency in speed.

There was no regularly scheduled game between City high and West Branch this year but in practice contest before the season opened the smaller school presented an attack that troubled the Little Hawks considerably.

Dangerous Always a dangerous tournament team, the Wellmen are strong favorites to cop the sectional championship, but upsets, a prevalent factor in tournament play, may defeat them. In workouts this week, Coach Wells has been fighting over-confidence, fearing that an easy victory over Marengo here several weeks ago has caused his men to consider their opponents too lightly.

The Red and White were in great form against Grant high of Cedar Rapids last Saturday and have maintained a fast pace during practices this week.

Undecided The starting line-up was undecided yet last night, but Coach Wells indicated he probably would give preference to speed over height in the first encounter. This would mean Ayers and Ballard at the forwards, Ash at center, Marshall at one guard and either Mutchler or Williams at the other.

In case Coach Wells wishes to play a delayed offense he will insert "Bing" Snyder, City high's man mountain, at center and bring Ballard and Ash back to guards. This was the strategy that upset the high-scoring Grant team last week.

A full squad of 10 men will be taken to Marengo tonight. The players who will make the trip are: Richard Ash, Fred Ballard, Paul Mutchler, Roscoe Ayers, Dale Williams, Alvin Miller, Jake Snider, Allan Snyder, Emil Sulek, and Dale Marshall.

Kistlermen in Morning Game Coach Joy Kistler and 10 U. high dribblers embark this morning for the Marengo gym, meeting Wellman in a sectional tourney game to be played at 9 a.m.

The contest is a lower-bracket affair. The winner engages West Branch, winner over Williamsburg, tonight at 9 o'clock.

A battle of under-dogs, the game should be close for that reason. Neither team possesses an impressive record. U. high landed in the Eastern Iowa league cellar and Wellman was outclassed in its conference.

Joe Laws had charge of the Golds and Russ Schammel of the Blacks. Zud Fisher refereed.

Coach Solem intends to have more such games as the practice continues.

Huge Champ Overpowers Smaller Foe

By DICK NORRIS

There was little of an artistic success to the performance, and now whatsoever from a financial standpoint. Ring records go all the way back to the dark ages of pugilism for gate receipts as small as those tonight for a match twice postponed, handicapped for the last three days by steady rain, and soured by showers that had the small gathering turning up its coat collars at an average of three times an hour.

Back in 1903, when Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett fought for the title in San Francisco, receipts were only $50,000, about the same as when Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Corbett battled in Carson City, Nev., in 1917.

It was in marked contrast, likewise, to the first heavyweight venture Madison Square Garden staged in Florida in 1929, when following the death of Tex Rickard, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling drew a gate of $400,000 in the first battle of the palms in Miami Beach.

For half a dozen rounds tonight it seemed that Loughran, the frail, 31 year old veteran who dominated the light heavyweight division for years, might stage the greatest upset of all.

Outweighed 85 pounds by the huge Italian, dwarfed in size by comparison, Loughran went as far as his strength, speed and fast craft would carry him, gallantly and full of fight. But it just so happened that 10 rounds at the end, was his distance as far as the chance of winning was concerned. From then on he took a brutal beating.

Gledhill Becomes Pro NEW YORK (AP)—Professional tennis made further inroads on the amateur ranks today as Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., present ninth ranking player of the United States, and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr. of Springfield, Mass., seventh ranking player in 1926, agreed to join Bill Tilden's touring troupe.

Marshall, Little Hawk Guard, Leads Prep Scorers for Year

By PERCY L. CROSBY

Emanuel 2nd; Team Honors To City High

Ramblers Display Best Defense; Hold Foes To 289 Points

Dale Marshall, stellar City high guard, topped the scoring among the city high schools for the last season with 147 points, from 62 field goals and 23 free throws. Dennis Emanuel, giant St. Pat's center, moved up into second place over Ballard of City high, with 120 points from 36 field goals and 48 free throws.

Ballard is tied for third with McNamara, Irish guard, with 118 points each. Joe Maher, St. Mary's forward, in fifth place is the only other man who made over a hundred points, Maher having 105.

City High Tops

City high topped the team scoring with 530 points in 18 games. St. Pat's stand second with 441 in 19 games, then St. Mary's 423 in 17 games, and University high trails with 258 points in 13 games. City high also stands highest in personal fouls, having 202.

St. Mary's has the best record in the city, winning 16 out of 17 games, losing strangely only to Irish, St. Pat's of Cedar Rapids and St. Pat's of Iowa City. City high won 11 of 18, St. Pat's won 11 of 19, while U. high stands lowest with only one win out of 13 games.

Unbeaten in Intra-City

City high alone stands undefeated in intra-city games, having beaten U. high twice. However, they did not play either of the parochial schools, each of whom downed U. high twice, and then split with each other. U. high played every team in the city two games, and lost all of them.

Marshall has the most field goals in the individual race, 62, while Emanuel makes the most free throws, taking good 48 times. Ballard, with 44 errors, has the somewhat doubtful honor of the most personal fouls.

Fresh-Varsity Tank Meet Tomorrow at Field House Pool

A freshman-varsity swimming meet will be held tomorrow afternoon at the field house pool. Coach David Armbruster is staging this meet so that the varsity may have the benefit of competition before the dual meet with Minnesota at Minneapolis next Saturday. It will also give him an opportunity to see what the freshmen can do under meet conditions.

The freshmen and varsity squads have been divided into two teams with Adolf Jacobsmeyer and Jack Steg as the captains. There are varsity men on both teams so that the two teams will be more evenly matched in scoring ability.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"
The Witwatersrand of Africa is the most famous and richest gold mining district in the world. Its myriads of shafts and tunnels form an inverted city deep in the earth. The elevators, instead of taking you up flight after flight, drop you down 200 stories or more into the ground.

It was discovered by accident in 1886 and since then estimates of the gold value in the mines have been placed at $10,000,000,000. The Witwatersrand is about 70 miles across. Underneath it has been honeycombed by thousands of miles of shafts, even streets and avenues have been dug into the workings.

Dr. Cole of Montreal, made his freak birdie on the ninth hole of the Monterey Country club course in Mexico City. His tee shot fell into a water trap, but a crow came along and picked the ball out of the water, then flew to the green where it dropped it. Dr. Cole sank his putt, scoring a birdie 2.

The goat in the above drawing was born with forelegs, but they were useless so she learned to walk in an upright position like a man. She is now 10 months old, and gets around with amazing ability.

Tomorrow: The six-way tie.

By Allene Corliss

After three years in Europe, lovely Stanley Paige, young society girl, returns to New York. She phones Perry Devereux, who had been madly in love with her before she was rushed abroad following her father's death. Stanley, however, was not so sure of her heart at the time. Perry realizes, after seeing Stanley again, that he is still in love with her but feels himself against committing himself until his love is reciprocated. Stanley, on her own as long as she could remember, was never sure of what she wanted in life. Perry takes her to Nigel Stern's studio party where she meets handsome Drew Armitage, "who has a way with women." Stanley is attracted to him immediately. He suggests that they get away from the crowd and go on the roof.

CHAPTER FOUR

She ran up the stairs and together they stepped out into the night. The sky was black and quite without stars. There was a little breeze and occasionally a brief spatter of raindrops. Drew, with an expansive gesture, made her a present of the sky and the wandering little breeze and the rooftops of Washington Square. "Not as nice as a penthouse bungalow but the best I can on such short notice. Would you care to smoke?"

Stanley nodded, glad of the cool air against her uplifted, flushed face. The sky seemed to swing very low. She felt suddenly that this was the most important moment she had ever known. That all sorts of things might happen—all sorts of things over which she had no control. She was no longer frightened. She was just terribly aware of the night and of herself and of this tall young man beside her.

He lighted two cigarettes at the same time and handed her one. They walked together to where the wall of the house rose a few feet above the roof, making a low parapet.

"Tell me about—you," he said, letting his arm brush her shoulder, not looking at her at all. "All I know about you is that I have never seen you before, that you have a boy's name and very, very disturbing eyes."

Stanley laughed. She was surprised to find she did it quite easily. She had thought perhaps she couldn't manage to be so casual, as though this was just like any time, anywhere.

"You've never seen me because I've been in Europe for three years and my father gave me his name and my mother was entirely to blame for my eyes. You see it's all very easily explained."

"You're so good at it," he told her evenly, "perhaps you can explain why we suddenly see each other for the first time and are—as we are. Feel as we do."

"I don't know what you mean," Stanley stared straight ahead, her chin once more lifted defiantly, her voice steady with a fierce steadiness.

"Oh, yes, you do. You know exactly what I mean. It's what made your hand shake so when I touched it—it's what made you leave the party and come up here with me—why, you're trembling right now—your poor little devil!"

He flung his cigarette away, put his arms about her, tipped her head back against his shoulder.

"Like to be kissed?" he asked her softly, bringing his mouth close to her parted lips.

"Not—promiscuously." She wanted to close her eyes. She forced herself not to. She must keep them open. Laugh at him with them—now that her lips refused to do so.

"Meaning what?"

"Meaning that I don't know you."

"Then—you don't want me to kiss you?"

"No." It was a mere whisper of words.

He let her go immediately. Reached for another cigarette. "Very well. You do, you know, but if you'd rather we'll pretend you don't—though why you should want to pretend that—"

She turned back to him, clenching a angry hands. She was trembling with desire and choked with frustration. "I suppose you can't understand a girl not allowing you to kiss her—"

"You're quite wrong," he contradicted her quietly. "What I can't understand is a girl not allowing me to kiss her when she wants to be kissed as badly as you want to be."

"I'd like to go back to the party."

She walked rapidly away from him, toward the hatchway. The sky seemed to come down very close. A spatter of rain struck her hair and lay like tears on her face. She had quite reached the opening before she realized that he was not following her. That he was standing where she had left him, the tip of his cigarette glowing brightly in the thick darkness.

"Come back here," he said slowly. She did not turn. Neither did she go on.

"Come back here," he repeated gently.

"No."

"Yes."

She turned and stared at him. On her shoulder, Perry's gardenias trembled in the little breeze. But Perry no longer existed. She went toward him slowly. Inevitably. As if she had known all the time that in the end she would go like this.

Stanley was very quiet as Perry drove her home through deserted streets. She sat slumped beside him, her chin buried in the deep fur of her coat.

"Tired, Stanley?"

"Yes—no, that is, I don't know, Perry."

Perry stared straight ahead, his hands quiet on the wheel. He had been drinking quite a bit and when he spoke again his voice was rough.

"What happened between you and Armitage tonight?"

Stanley did not turn her head to look at him. "Why?"

Perry shrugged. "You know what I mean—did he make love to you and did you like it?"

Stanley answered him at once, and a bit defiantly. "I don't have to answer that question, Perry, but I will. He did make love to me and I did like it."

"I'm sorry, darlin', I was rude as the devil." Perry's voice was suddenly contrite. A minute later he said, "Are you in love with him, Stanley?"

Stanley considered a moment. Not his question but her answer.

'U. S. Climbing Out of the Rut'

Davies Expresses Hope For Nation's Future In Rotary Speech

Prof. George R. Davies of the college of commerce expressed hope for the future of America in a talk at the meeting of the Iowa City Rotary club at the Jefferson hotel yesterday noon.

"Our country was started right and was headed in the right direction until a rut was struck," he said. "We are getting out of it and will continue in the right direction."

Proof that America is going forward is that there is a new age of social control, Professor Davies pointed out, and in the last few years the economic sciences in America have developed. Never before has the country been as scientific in respect to business, but now there is a creative element developing, he explained.

Guests at the luncheon included: A. F. Dice and A. H. Dittmars of West Liberty, Les Welch and Bert Hill of Des Moines, and Merritt C. Speidel, Jr.

Names

A glance through the new city directory reveals that Iowa City has a Rose and Poppy family along side of families with names that range from Snow, Flake, Winter, Frost, and Berg to Hell.

It's not strange that Iowa City should claim a Corn family, but in addition to the Corns, there are many Beers, Bocks, Brewers, Cases, Lights, Glasses, Steins, Porters, Stouts, Ricketys, Ryes, Moons, Shines and Stills.

Registration

All residents of Iowa City wishing to vote in the school election on March 12 and not having been registered in the permanent registration system, must register at the office of City Clerk Geo. J. Dohrer not later than today.

Removal notices must also be signed not later than today.

No License

An unknown man didn't get a marriage license yesterday because the clerk of district court decided that a man who was going to take such a momentous step in his life should be in the right condition to weigh the facts carefully. The clerk told him to go home and sober up.

S.U.I. Graduate Writes Article

The March issue of Field and Stream contains a story entitled "Struck by a Python" written by Eugene Marten.

Eugene Marten is the pen name of Mrs. Marten E. Griffin of Denver, Colo. Mrs. Marten was formerly Lucille Hoffman of Iowa City and an S. U. I. graduate of 1923.

The story is a recounting of experiences in the Philippines where Mrs. Griffin lived for two years while her husband, Capt. Marten E. Griffin, was stationed there as a member of the army medical corp.

Dr. Griffin is also an S. U. I. graduate, having completed his work in the college of medicine in 1925. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Griffin, 518 N. Van Buren street.

O'Brien Given 60 Day Term

Jack O'Brien, 19, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail by District Judge James P. Gaffney yesterday when he appeared before the court on a charge of "displaying on a motor vehicle a license plate other than the license plate licensing such a vehicle."

O'Brien, Judge Gaffney said, was guilty of violating provision 6080 of the 1931 code of Iowa by such an act. He was arrested Feb. 17 by local police.

The state was represented by County Attorney F. B. Olsen, and O'Brien by Attorney G. J. Fillenworth.

Appeal bond was fixed at $2,000.

Broken Hip? "It's Nothing"

ELDORA, March 1 (AP)—Hard Luck Hank Shafer reached for a "chaw o' tobacco" today and considered his latest mishap with something akin to chagrin.

Not that his broken hip is particularly painful—it's nothing at all, he insists.

It's just that Hank is piqued after 83 years of major accidents to be stopped by an inconsequential hip fracture.

To a man who has been thrown into the air by an exploding cannon, buried in a coal mine and kicked, bucked and run over by horses, a mere hip fracture is nothing.

To prove it, he's going to get out of the hospital in record time. Doctors are confident he'll do it, too.

"They can't keep me here long," Hank warns.

Hank says he's never deliberately sought an accident. His only explanation of the major mishaps accredited to him is that "I just happened to be there when it happened."

Hank recalled today the start of his accident career began at the age of eight when his dad pulled him out of the river in the nick of time.

He says his experiences have made him afraid of only one thing—lightning. Twice the cloud bolts only knocked him down. But the third one tore the sole from one shoe, had him unconscious for 11 hours and kept him from work for three months.

A storm worries him quite a lot now.

"It makes the chills run up my back," he said, "and I generally hit for shelter."

WAXING AIRPLANE GIVES EXTRA SPEED

Tests show that United Air Lines' three-mile-a-minute coast-to-coast and Chicago-Southwest planes picked up three miles an hour more speed by waxing the wings and fuselage. The polishing is done with an electric motor. This is the first time that a large transport plane has been waxed.

Judge Okays Bank Report Of Receiver

Receiver's fifth report on the condition of the Tiffin Savings bank as of Dec. 31, 1933, filed by Ben S. Summerwill, examiner in charge, was approved yesterday by District Judge James P. Gaffney.

The report shows that the cash on hand at the time the fourth report was made, Sept. 30, 1933, was $19,879.34. Since that time $2,743.04 has been received, bringing the total up to $22,622.38.

Since the filing of the fourth report, the following disbursements have been made: expenses of receivership $503.79; first dividend, $15,951.55; second dividend, $7,975.78 making total disbursements of $24,431.12.

Disbursements exceed the cash on hand by $1,808.74. Of this amount, $1,860.85 is overdrawn from the Des Moines National Bank and Trust and the rest, $52.11 less cash on hand of examiner.

The Dawn of Tomorrow

As the morning sun casts its first rays over the Eastern horizon and brings the hope of a brighter day, so are our hopes and aspirations today.

Words fail us when we try to express the gratitude that we feel at this time and all that we can say is;

Iowa City We Thank You!

Truly our friends have been good to us, the response that we have had to our appeal for ready cash has been far greater than we had dared to hope. We have sold many thousands of dollars worth of fine merchandise . . . and many have come in and paid on their past due accounts, NOW;

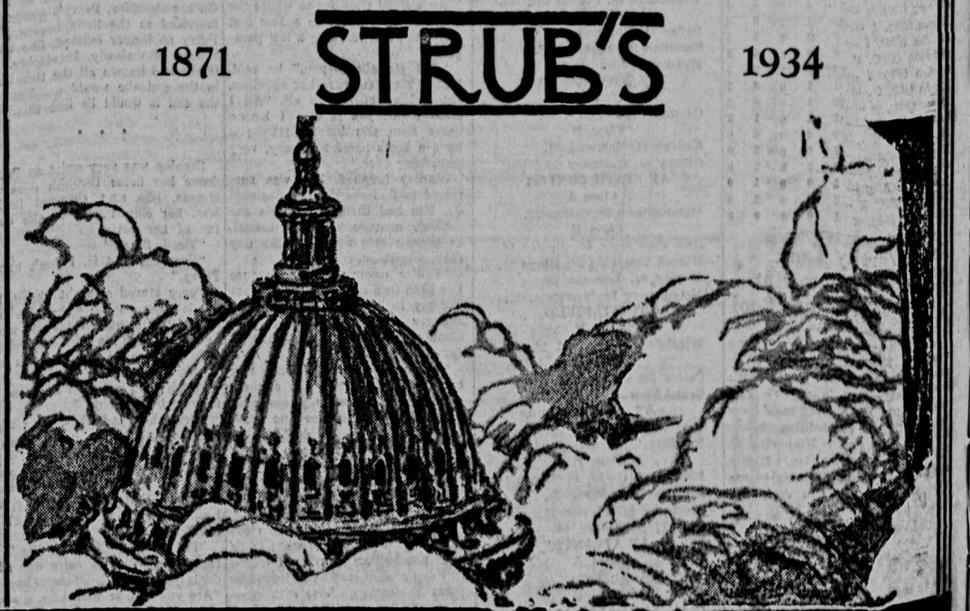

The Future Looks Brighter

Our Goal has been attained; we have liquidated thousands of dollars worth of past due accounts . . . we have gone out into the world markets and bought thousands of dollars worth of fine new high quality merchandise for every department. So now we are ending this Sale.

Saturday Will Be The Last Day of This Sale

It is needless to say that we must close this sale at once as we cannot afford to sell merchandise at these prices any longer . . . so all sale prices end Saturday night. Monday we will open for your inspection the very latest spring merchandise in every department.

As for our future policy . . . it will be the same that has guided the destinies of this store for 63 years . . . Quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices . . . Cash or Credit . . . Credit to those who will pay promptly in thirty days or make satisfactory arrangements.
