for Pipe Smokers

the pipe tobacco that's MILD

the pipe tobacco that's COOL

The method of preparing Granger Tobacco for pipe smoking is not like any other method now in use.

So far as we know, it is the best way ever found of taking out of tobaccos the oils that don't smoke right or taste right in a pipe. Granger owes its extra fragrance and mildness to Wellman's Method. The way Granger Tobacco is cut—in big flakes—helps it to smoke cool and last longer. Try it.

Fire at City Dump Almost Extinguished

The six months fire at the city dump has at last practically extinguished itself. The blaze, which according to Fire Chief Herman J. Amish has probably been burning subterraneously since last fall, is not entirely extinguished, but with a large portion of the inflammable debris burned away and the spring rains coming on there seems to be no further danger of spreading.

Firemen have spent six days out of the last three weeks attempting to quell the fire, the fighting of which has been greatly inhibited because of its hidden nature. Attempts were made to blast down to the fire, but were unsuccessful because of the dampness of the material.

Water pressure was the only means of moving the dirt which yielded results. Chief Amish said yesterday that approximately 900,000 gallons of water had been used to move 4,000 yards of cinders and tin cans.

Lubricating oils, smoldering upholstery on abandoned car seats, and rotten stumps were the sources of most of the fire. Some of these were about 40 feet below the surface and black crevices marked the progress made upward.

In certain aspects the fire presented danger to those fighting it. At times when water struck a buried ammonia or alcohol container which was red hot, an explosion occurred, sending cans, cinders, and other rubbish in all directions.

National Retail Code

The local NRA compliance board has asked the Iowa City papers to publish information relative to the various codes and regulations under the NRA. This article, the second to appear, deals with the retail code.

The retail code was formulated by nine national associations of retailers. It excludes retailers of milk and its products, tobacco and its products, foods, and foodstuffs.

Unless store hours were less than 52 weekly prior to June 1, 1933, no reduction is allowed under the code. Stores which had been open 52 to 56 hours per week were given a maximum of 40 hours weekly, and may not work employees more than eight hours a day, nor more than six days a week.

Stores which had been open 56 to 63 hours, were given a maximum of 44 hours weekly, with not more than nine hours a day, nor more than six days a week. Stores which had been open more than 63 hours were given a maximum of 48 hours a week, and may not work employees more than 10 hours a day, nor more than six days a week.

Minimum Wages
Minimum wages under the code for cities of more than 500,000 population is set at $14 for a 40 hour week, $14.50 for 44 hours, and $15 for 48 hours.

For cities of 100,000 to 500,000 the minimum is $13, $13.50, and $14 respectively. For cities of 25,000 to 100,000 the minimum is $12, $12.50, and $13 respectively. For communities of 2,500 to 25,000 the minimum is set at $10 a week. Towns under 2,500 were required to increase the June 1, 1933 rate by 20 per cent but there was no compulsory increase to above $10 a week.

The minima for the south average $1 a week less. The code specified that weekly wages higher than the minima on July 15, 1933 shall not be reduced because of shorter hours.

No "Loss Leaders"
The code also provided that price increases must be confined to those caused by actual increases in cost, as specified. The use of "loss leaders" is condemned. The selling price "should include an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the Trade Authority hereinafter established." Storekeepers doing business only in towns of 2,500 or less are exempted from this provision.

The code contains rulings against unfair or improper advertising, and attempts at substitution. It provides for elaborate administrative organization including (1) Retail Trade authority, (2) National Retail Trade council, (3) Regional Advisory committee, and (4) National Retail Trade Economics board.

Retail Drugs
The schedule for the retail drug trade lists 56 hours a week and 10 hours a day, as the maximum number of hours, and not more than 13 days' work in any consecutive two weeks. The minimum wages were set at $10 to $16, according to the size of the community. The schedule also provides for the Retail Drug Trade authority and a National Retail Drug Trade council. (Note: A copy of the code for the Retail Trade can be inspected at every post office.)

Mrs. Day Reports
On Conference To Legion Auxiliary
At a business meeting of the American Legion Community building, Mrs. Rex Day, president, gave a report of the recent conference at Des Moines.

Plans were made for a special program to follow the next regular business meeting of the group, the evening of March 19. A board meeting preceded the business meeting.

Accidental Deaths
Increase in Cities
The U. S. bureau of census announces that during the four weeks ending Feb. 17, 1934, 86 large cities in the United States reported 664 deaths from automobile accidents. This is an increase of 116 over a four weeks period ending Feb. 18, 1933. Most of these deaths were the result of accidents which occurred within the city limits.

Unusual Light Effects Planned For "Death Takes a Holiday"

Although all three acts of Walter Ferris' play, "Death Takes a Holiday," which opens tomorrow at 8 p. m. in University theater, take place at night on a stage that is comparatively dark, the play offers the most "elaborate and interesting" problems in lighting of any play given yet this year, according to Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of University theater, who is directing this production.

For the first time this year, a light projection on the cyclorama will be used to give the effect of a garden. "The garden effects are being stylized through the usage of light because it is suited to the supernatural phenomena that happen at the opening," Professor Morton explained.

Ultra-Violet
Death as a shadow will be flooded in ultra-violet light. He will wear fluorescent makeup to add to the fantastic effect. In the final scene his transformation from a human into the shadow is accomplished with the lighting arrangement.

Moonlight projected through foliage, a flame in the fireplace, and small, warm lamps furnish the only lighting used in most of the play. Another lighting feature is the lamp of illusion, which burns when Death as a mortal is a guest in the castle and which goes out as he leaves.

Not Customary
These effects differ from those that have been used by most producers, Professor Morton pointed out. The lighting will be used instead of realistic plants and a mask on the shadow of death.

Hunted D. Sellman of the speech and dramatic arts department is in charge of the technical production of "Death Takes a Holiday."

The one set which is used was designed by Arnold Gillette of the speech and dramatic art department. It is a copy of an old Italian castle. Instead of being a box set, it is triangular.

At the right is an open staircase which leads to a carved alcove at the top of the stairs. On this side of the room is a gray fireplace, copied from an authentic Italian structure. An oil painting and torch-like lamps have been placed above the mantle.

Stage Setting
The left wall has two large French doors which lead to the garden. In most productions the garden has been upstage in the center part of the room. Roman arches are used throughout in the solid architecture.

Gray, blue, and maroon have been used to give a set to the set. The woodwork is dark and the drapes are deep maroon.

Besides the performance tomorrow night, other presentations will be given Thursday at 8 p. m. and Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

Student crews appointed by Mr. Sellman and Mr. Gillette are assisting in producing "Death Takes a Holiday."

University Club To Have Dinner-Bridge Party at Iowa Union

Dinner reservations may be made at the central desk of Iowa Union.

BITS ABOUT SPORTS

Important Week . . . Tracksters Stronger . . . Individual Mat Stars . . . Gymnasts Seek First Division . . . Swimmers Prepare for Title Affair.

By Ron Tallman

THIS is a busy week for University of Iowa athletes. And an important one, as well. Four teams will see action. Three of that number will be engaging in the all-important Big Ten championship meets—meets which decide the conference standings in those sports. The track men, gymnasts, and wrestlers will engage in title affairs, with the wrestlers and swimmers having dual meets coming up. . . .

Having appeared in only one indoor dual meet this winter, not much is known of the exact caliber of Coach George Bresnahan's track outfit. As a result a good deal of interest is attached to their appearance in the conference meet. . . .

Except in a few events, the Hawkeyes will present no individual stars, but they will have a much better balanced team in the competition this year than they did a year ago, with the possibility of finishing in the first division good. . . .

WRESTLERS STRONGER
Coach Mike Howard will take only four or five men to the conference meet at Bloomington, Ind., but those he does take will rank well up in the conference. . . .

Particularly is the Hawkeye mentor counting on Bob Larson and Earle Kiehorn, a pair of sophomores, for standout performances in the Big Ten meet. . . .

Meanwhile, however, the Iowans face the prospect of defending their undefeated record against the powerful Iowa State Cyclones tonight. . . .

The gymnasts, who have failed to turn in a single dual victory this season, have shown strength enough, though, to rank them well up in the conference. . . .

Coach Baumgartner expects that his men will be able to garner enough points to place them in the first division. That would be a big improvement over the last several years, and give the Hawkeyes a running start for next season—a campaign which looms as the best Baumgartner teams have ever known. . . .

FINAL TUNEUP
Following a week of rest, Coach Dave Armbruster takes his strong swimming team to Minnesota for the last dual competition of the season as a final preparation for the Big Ten championship meet here the following week end. . . .

Having lost only to the great Michigan team this year, the Hawkeye tanksters seem certain winners over Minnesota, with Armbruster hoping to find his men showing even greater form than before against the Gophers. . . .

Unless Iowa, or Illinois, can find the necessary strength before a week from Saturday—March 17—Michigan appears as easy winner of conference title again. . . .

The Wolverines should have a tougher time of it in the meet scheduled for the big Old Gold pool, however, than they have had in dual competition. But whether the Hawkeyes or the Illini, a team which bowed to Iowa and then later held the Michigan outfit down, can show enough power to upset the Maize and Blue remains to be seen. . . .

Conference records should take a big drubbing when the Wolverines start defending their honors. . . .

R. O. T. C. Riflers Place 3rd in Match; Represent 7th Corps

Col. Converse R. Lewis, head of the military department. . . .

Thompson Gives Talk On Municipal Ownership

The question of municipal ownership of public utilities is one of the most controversial problems ever to face a community, Prof. C. Woody Thompson of the college of commerce asserted at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon in the American Legion Community building yesterday noon.

Professor Thompson discussed the relative merits and disadvantages of municipal ownership in comparison with private ownership. Quoting arguments advanced by both sides he said that flaws could be picked in all of the arguments on both sides.

Obligations

"A public utility," he said, "has certain obligations attached to it that are not attached to any other business in the country." The bulk of the functions performed by these utilities are done by private companies. In many cases, he said, public utilities are monopolies or are necessities. This does not mean that such is the case in every instance. All monopolies are not utilities, nor are all necessities utilities. Groceries, he said, are a necessity, but grocery stores are not public utilities. There is a vital difference between public utilities and businesses.

The great cry of socialism, communism and bolshevism that arises from those who oppose municipal ownership has no basis at all, Professor Thompson said. The municipal ownership movement is as old as the utilities themselves.

Of all the public utilities the one which is most widely municipally owned is the water utility. The telephone systems are entirely privately owned, he said. The street railways also are almost entirely privately owned and only a few of the gas utilities are municipally owned. Almost the entire movement for municipal ownership revolves around the electricity utility.

In the United States about 1,800 electric plants are municipally owned. This is less than half of the plants in existence. The 1,800 plants control about 5 per cent of the output in the United States and the other 95 per cent is controlled by privately owned plants. Eight systems control about four-fifth of this 95 per cent, he said.

Gives Warning

Professor Thompson gave some of the arguments brought up on the question of municipal ownership and warned his listeners to beware of rate comparison arguments for either side. Such arguments, he said, can be found for both sides of the question, and so many different elements enter into the setting of rates that it is difficult to draw any accurate conclusions from such arguments. He does not favor, he said, building a new plant to compete with the other, and as their franchise is at end there is no danger of setting up two systems if the municipal ownership plan is adopted.

Funeral Directors Plan Meeting Here

A district meeting of the state funeral directors will be held here on March 20, at the American Legion Community building.

Approximately 20 eastern Iowa counties represented by practically 250 funeral directors are expected to attend the all day and evening program. Cooperation in the plans for the meeting is being given by the Chamber of Commerce.
