FOUR DIE IN ILLINOIS PLANE CRASH

Dr. Wynkoop Sentenced to 25 Years for Murder of Daughter in Law

Deliberation Of Jury Only 36 Minutes

Defendant Takes Verdict Quietly After Long Courtroom Delay

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop was convicted tonight of the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta. She was sentenced to 25 years in prison. The jury deliberated only 36 minutes, exclusive of time taken out for dinner.

The defendant received the verdict quietly in the wheel chair in which she was brought into the courtroom.

Jury Gets Case at 6:14

The jury received the case at 6:14 p.m. and were given an hour's intermission for dinner before they began deliberations to finally determine the fate of the 63 year old physician and write a solution to one of the most amazing crimes in Chicago history.

At 7:50 p.m., there was a knock from the jury and the announcement that a verdict had been reached. A call was then sent for the judge, the defendant and the attorneys.

A long delay ensued while bailiffs sought Defense Counsel W. W. and Milton Smith.

They reached the courtroom at 8:25 p.m. and the judge hushed the room while the jury foreman announced the 12 had agreed on a verdict and that they were "guilty" with a quarter of a century imprisonment.

The foreman of the jury, O. Vial, was the oldest man selected on it.

Judge Cautious Crowd

Although Judge Miller cautioned the courtroom, packed to the last seat, to remain quiet, a ripple surged through the room.

Burdine Gardner of Indianapolis, father of the slain Rheta, clasped his hands tightly together as the jury foreman read the verdict.

"Twenty-five years—yes," he said, "justice has been served. Mrs. Gardner was with him.

Son, Daughter Present

Walker, Dr. Wynkoop's oldest son, and her physician daughter, Dr. Catherine, both of whom took the stand in behalf of their mother, rushed back from a nearby restaurant to be met on the court steps with a rumor of bad news to come.

They hastened into the courtroom, the tall 30 year old youth with eyes frankly and unashamedly red-rimmed. The girl was tight-lipped. They found seats near Mrs. Mable Fairbro of Sycamore, Ill., their mother's sister. She strode with damp eyes up to Prosecutor Charles R. Dougherty after the verdict was announced.

"She's innocent and you know it," she exclaimed. Defense Attorney W. W. Smith led her away.

Former Student Gives Blood To Save Deaf Mute

Tom Marnette, Des Moines salesman, who graduated from the college of commerce here in 1931, may again come to the aid of John P. Thorne, 14, a deaf mute of Keosauqua, by submitting to a blood transfusion, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The boy became ill two months ago in a school for the deaf in Council Bluffs, suffering from agranulocytosis, a rare blood disease. Marnette gave blood then and the boy returned to Keosauqua, convalescing.

Thorne suffered a relapse 11 days ago and Marnette was informed Monday that tests in Keosauqua end Ottumwa, where the boy is confined to the hospital, failed to reveal blood suitable for transfusion. Marnette wired an offer to submit to transfusion for a second time.

Marnette's brother, Frank A. Marnette, A3 of Des Moines, is attending the university at present.

WEATHER

IOWA: Mostly cloudy, snow in east and south portions Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy, continued cold.

Eight to Make Initial Bows Tonight In S.U.I. Play, "Death Takes a Holiday"

Eight of the 13 members of the cast of "Death Takes a Holiday," to be produced on a community series by University theater under the direction of Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of the theater, will make their initial bows before University theater audiences tonight at 8 o'clock in natural science auditorium.

Jessie Marshall, A2 of Atlantic, will appear for the first time in University theater as Grazia, the part originally played by Rose Hobart. Bessie Horan, A1 of West Liberty, as Cora, will also make her debut.

Although Margarette Smith, A3 of Council Bluffs, is appearing for the first time here in "Death Takes a Holiday," the experience of taking part in this play is not entirely new to her.

For she appeared in the same play when it was produced at Stephens college in Missouri, where she took her first two years' work. In the Stephens presentation she was cast as Madame Alda, while in the production to be given here she will portray Rhoda Fenton.

House Passes Pension Bill By 100-7 Poll

Measure Goes to Senate For Consideration Of Amendments

DES MOINES, March 6 (AP)—Old age pensions in Iowa became a step closer to realization today when the house of representatives by a vote of 100 to 7 set its stamp of approval on a bill providing for payment of this assistance. The measure now goes to the senate for consideration on house amendments.

The final vote came late in the afternoon and after the house members had battled two days on amendments, numbering more than two score.

Just before the bill was put on final passage, the house adopted an amendment making the bill effective Nov. 1, 1934, by the imposition of a $1 per capita tax on persons over 21 years of age and payable on or before July 1. Representative Zylstra, sponsor of the amendment, said it was for the purpose of affording emergency relief, pointing out that otherwise no payment could be made before July 1, 1935.

Requirements for Pension The bill provides that persons over 65 years of age may apply for pensions, provided they had paid the $2 annual old age pension tax, have resided in the state continuously for at least 10 years before making application and have been a resident of the United States for at least 15 years. An absence from the state of more than 18 months in the 10 year residence period is prohibited.

The bill sets up a state commission of three members named by the governor and creates old age boards of three members in each county. It provides for a state superintendent at a salary of $3,000 annually and for local investigators by the county boards.

County assessors are required to turn into the county auditor for submission to the county treasurer a list of all persons subject to the tax.

NRA Aims Sledge Hammer Blow at Company Unions

Industry Raises Chant Against Raising Pay, Reducing Hours

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—A sledge hammer blow was aimed at company unions by NRA today at one of its code revision sessions, while at other gatherings industry raised a chant against the proposal to further reduce the hours and increase the pay of its workers.

With the authorization of Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, William H. Davis, the organization's compliance director, appeared at the conference on code authorities and said that many of the plans for company unions in the automobile and steel industries gave blood then. Davis specifically mentioned section 7A of the recovery act which gives the workers the right to join unions of their own choosing.

The house labor committee approved the Connery bill which would place industries under NRA on a flat 30 hour basis.

The administration is dubious about the Connery measure and its chances of passage are problematical.

Witness after witness at the NRA open forum for complaints last week charged many industrial concerns were acting as if section 7 was not in existence, and that NRA was doing nothing about it.

Herring Puts Signature On Rum Control

DES MOINES, March 6 (AP)—Iowa's liquor control bill, under which legal sale of hard liquor will get under way probably within the next 60 days, today was signed by Gov. Clyde L. Herring.

Signature by the governor left only official publication to be completed before the liquor act replaces on the statute books practically all of the state's present strict prohibition laws.

Meanwhile, the senate in a brief executive session received the names of the three men designated by the governor for appointment to the state liquor control commission which will direct the operation of the new law.

A majority vote of the senate is required for confirmation of the appointees, H. M. Cooper of Marshalltown, Dick R. Lane of Davenport and Bernard Manley of Mason City. Confirmation probably will be considered tomorrow.

Before setting up the state liquor control system for which the new law provides the commissioners plan to visit several other states and Canada to study the operation of similar plans.

Governor Herring also made known today the terms for which the three men were nominated. Cooper, a Democrat, was designated for the term ending in 1939. Lane, a Republican will serve until 1937, and Manley, a Democrat, until 1935.

Beer Bill Back To House For Final O.K. DES MOINES, March 6 (AP)—Senate approval today was placed on the four per cent beer bill, which earlier had been passed by the house. The senate vote on passage was 30 to 18.

Nineteen Democrats and 11 Republicans joined in voting for the bill, while it was opposed on final passage by three Democrats and 15 Republicans. The bill now goes back to the house for consideration of senate amendments.

Senate approval came without debate after disposal of the few remaining amendments. The principal change made by the upper branch was the adoption of an amendment to permit outdoor advertising of beer.

Intended to take the place of the present beer law which was passed by the last assembly session, the bill will boost the legal alcoholic content of beer which may be sold in Iowa from 3.2 to four per cent by weight, remove restrictions against the sale of ice beer and the minimum number of bottles sold at a time and make various other changes.

Eye Witness To Daiches Death

Police Declare Slaying Was Seen by Driver On Outer Drive

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—Police today disclosed they had discovered an eye witness to the mystery slaying of El D. Daiches, advertising agency head, ambushed by gunmen as he rode with his chauffeur on the south side outer drive Saturday.

The witness, they said, was able and willing to identify the assailants, stating that the man was driving at the scene at the time of the killing and adding that he was being held incommunicado.

To England and Palestine authorities were branched out in their search for a motive for the killing. Police asked Scotland Yard to investigate every detail of Daiches movements on a trip to London in 1926, a trip authorities said was unexplained to Daiches business associates.

A cablegram was sent to Daiches' widow in Palestine asking her to return for the adjourned inquest.

Spring Overpowered By Winter Again As Snow Falls on City

Winter overpowered spring's feeble claim upon Iowa City and vicinity last night by again covering the city in snow. The low temperature for yesterday, however, remained the same as that of Monday, registering 28 degrees. The mercury at 7 a.m. was 29 degrees and climbed throughout the day yesterday to a high of 33, according to Prof. John P. Reilly, official weather observer.

Although the wind died down considerably, in comparison to Monday, it was still blowing quite a gale yesterday with a velocity of 24 miles an hour.

Speculator Suspended CHICAGO (AP)—Jesse L. Livermore, veteran speculator, was suspended today as a member of the Chicago board of trade. The suspension took place under a rule pertaining to failure to meet obligations. Livermore yesterday filed a bankruptcy petition in New York.

Guards Under Fire; Dillinger Still Unlocated

Two Accused of Aiding Desperado to Flee From Jail

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 6 (AP)—Two of the guards who surrendered to John Dillinger's wooden gun were taken into custody today, but an intense man hunt failed to locate the missing outlaw himself.

The guards—Deputy Ernest Blunk and Turney Sam Cahoon—were charged by Prosecutor Robert G. Estill with "aiding and abetting" Dillinger's fantastic escape.

Assistant Attorney General Edward Barce, investigating for the governor of Indiana, said the charge was based on the failure of the two jailers to resist when Dillinger corralled all the guards into his cell and drove off in the sheriff's sedan.

Cahoon was the first of Dillinger's victims, when the toy pistol gunner began his amazing roundup last Saturday morning. The turkey opened the door of Dillinger's cell block without sending Dillinger and the other prisoners back into their cells.

At large in the corridor, Dillinger sprang on Cahoon and with the wooden pistol in Cahoon's ribs, ordered the turkey to call Blunk.

Blunk, according to his statement to the investigators, then performed the roll call of jailers which Dillinger ordered.

"Neither of the two gives any satisfactory explanation," said the assistant attorney general after the two had been taken into custody and lodged in their own jail.

"Blunk, at Dillinger's bidding, called four other guards so that Dillinger—still with his wooden gun—could take them prisoner. He called Warden Baker, then Deputy Marshal Huntley, and then Matt Brown."

"When Cahoon and Blunk surrendered, and Dillinger brought the others into Dillinger's trap, then the front office of the jail was entirely empty," said Barce.

It was then possible for Dillinger—who had locked all these guards securely in the cell—to stroll forward into the jail office and arm himself. He picked up the two machine guns which the county had bought specially to guard the desperado.

Haiti Welcomes Mrs. Roosevelt

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 6 (AP)—Arriving in this island of sunsets after a pleasant 752-mile over-water flight, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt set out this evening to see all she could of Haiti before dashing off at 6:30 a.m. tomorrow for San Juan.

Seeking first-hand knowledge of economic conditions in the West Indies, Mrs. Roosevelt and her party devoted the evening to sight-seeing.

Tonight Mrs. Roosevelt drove up the mountain to a country club to see the tropical sunset. She was taken on a drive through the city's winding, crooked streets lined with brick walls and thatched cottages.

She was told it was the coldest day of the year in Haiti with the thermometer at 85.

Mlle. Resia Vincent, sister of President Stenlo Vincent, headed a welcoming committee and took Mrs. Roosevelt for a drive in the president's limousine manned by presidential aides in snappy white uniforms.

Cherbourg's Sea Monster Was Only Glorified Dogfish

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—Dissection and examination of Cherbourg's original sea monster, the huge beast with a head like a camel, Prof. Petit said, convinced him that it was only a squalid, or glorified kind of huge dogfish. He said its chief claim to fame was floating masses of tissue looking like capes on either side of the head.

Its teeth gave it away, he said, declaring that these clearly identified it.

"This fish must have been sick, for I failed to find anything in its stomach," he said.

Senate Passes 7-Yr. Program For U. S. Navy

Reconsideration of Vote Necessary Before It Returns to House

WASHINGTON, March 6 (AP)—Sinking "little navy" men under a broadside of votes, the senate today passed 65 to 18 the Vinson-Trammell bill authorizing a seven year building program for the navy, including approximately 100 new destroyers and submarines, more than 1,000 airplanes and one aircraft carrier.

The measure passed the house Jan. 30, but a motion by Senator Dill (D. Wash.) to reconsider today's vote kept the bill from being returned to the house for action in senate changes. A controversy prevented action on the motion before adjournment.

Two important amendments were adopted without record votes.

One, by Chairman Trammell (D. Fla.) of the naval committee, would limit profits on all private ship and plane contracts of $10,000 or more to not more than 10 per cent, with the excess going to the government.

Another, by Senator Bone (D. Wash.), would require the government to expand its existing plants so it could build 25 per cent of the new planes itself.

British Admiralty Asks Navy Increase

LONDON, March 6 (AP)—Increases in the number of British cruisers, expenditures for the naval air arm and in the personnel of the fleet were asked today in the admiralty's 1934 estimates.

The construction of four cruisers—three of the 9,000 ton Minotaur class and the other of the 5,000 ton Arethusa patrolling type—were provided for, along with a building program calling for:

One leader and eight destroyers; one aircraft carrier; three submarines; two general service sloops; two mine sweepers; two coastal sloops, and one surveying ship.

Also included in the estimates are expenditures of $56,550,000 (now about $232,750,000)—an increase of $2,980,000 ($14,900,000); a fleet personnel of 92,338 officers and men—an increase of 2,038—and the addition of two new squadrons of aircraft, with an increased appropriation of $249,000 ($1,245,000).

French Naval Plan Speedily Approved

PARIS, March 6 (AP)—The 1934 French naval program calling for expenditures of 913,000,000 francs (currently about $58,892,800) and the construction of four vessels was speedily approved today by the chamber of deputies naval committee.

The expenses will be spread over the budgets of the next five years. It was emphasized that the new craft will replace old ships past the age limit provided for in navy treaties.

American Airways Liner Plunges to Earth, Unable To Survive Heavy Storm

Posses, Planes Scour Country for Bank Thugs

6 Machine Gun Bandits Get $46,000 Loot In South Dakota Haul

SIoux FALLS, S. D., March 6 (AP)—A half dozen hardboiled, cursing machine gun bandits who shot one policeman and slugged another in a spectacular $46,000 daylight bank holdup here today apparently had escaped into Minnesota tonight while posemen scoured the highways and airplanes flew over adjacent territory in the hunt for them.

Retract Dillinger Accusation While law officers of other states were asked to guard highways, officials of the Securities National Bank and Trust company retracted an earlier statement that one of the bandits appeared to resemble John Dillinger, notorious outlaw and killer.

After scanning photographs of Dillinger several hours after the holdup, C. R. Clarke, president of the bank, who had made the earlier identification, said none of the bandits resembled the outlaw.

Minnesota Roads Guarded Latest reports of the whereabouts of the gang placed them somewhere between Worthington, Minn., and the twin cities. All roads leading into St. Paul and Minneapolis were guarded as the result of this information.

South Dakota posemen traced the bandit car as far as a point north of Luverne, Minn., but there lost the trail after the two brushes with the outlaws.

Plane crashed on a farm owned by Orva Altrix. Altrix said he heard the plane roaring overhead and went outside. It was flying extremely low, about 500 feet from the ground, he said, and apparently was being shoved down by the blizzard. Altrix said the huge ship barely missed his house.

Suddenly, he said, the plane banked sharply and nosed into the ground. The wreckage did not burn. Apparently those aboard were killed instantly.

Two Killed In Head-on Crash Passenger Hits Freight in Collision Near Dubuque

DUBUQUE, March 6 (AP)—Two trainmen were killed in a head-on collision of a Milwaukee passenger and freight train near Specht's Ferry today.

The dead are James Crawford, Dubuque, engineer of the westbound Chicago-Omaha passenger, and Ben Burt, Dubuque, fireman on the passenger. The freight was bound for Chicago from Sioux City.

Railroad officials announced that the apparent failure of the passenger train crew to observe orders to halt on a siding caused the collision.

Hanford MacNider of Mason City, former national commander of the American Legion, was a passenger in the private coach of W. F. Ingraham, superintendent of the Mason City division of the Milwaukee road. MacNider was not injured, but Ingraham sustained a twisted neck when the impact threw him against the front of his berth.

Walter Rupprecht of Dubuque, engineer of the freight, and George Messling of McGregor, passenger brakeman, were seriously injured.

Fireworks Plant Explodes SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—One woman was killed and two other women employees were injured in a fire and explosion at the Hitt Fireworks company's plant today. Mrs. Lillian McCrea, 35, was killed.

Amoebic Dysentery Outbreak Results in $600,000 Suit

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—An outbreak of amoebic dysentery that cost more than 40 lives among World's fair visitors last summer today resulted in a suit for $600,000 damages against the Congress hotel of Chicago and Dr. Herman Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner.

The suits were filed by Dr. Clarence Boren and his wife, Gertrude of Marinette, Wis., stated that both plaintiffs contracted the severe intestinal infection while guests at the hotel during the fair, and accused Dr. Bundesen of negligence and conspiracy with the hotel. Dr. Morris Fishbein of the American Medical society said tonight that more than 40 deaths occurred from the outbreak and that 740 cases were traced to Chicago hotels. The death in Vancouver, B. C., of Texas Gulian, night club hostess, was one.

After filing of the suit in Cook county superior court, it was disclosed by scientists who investigated the epidemic that more than 100 similar suits have been filed over the county. The Boren suit was the first to be filed locally.

Although the outbreak reportedly was under investigation early in the summer, it did not become public knowledge until Nov. 9.

Aviation Editor For Chicago Tribune Among Victims

PETERSBURG, Ill., March 6 (AP)—Four persons were killed near here tonight when an American Airways liner crashed in a snow storm.

Killed were Pilot Walter Hallgren, Chicago. W. N. Bell, Columbus, Ohio. G. H. Waetjen, New York city. Hugh Sexton, aviation editor of the Chicago Tribune.

Left St. Louis at 5:42 Airways officials said the plane left St. Louis at 5:42 p.m. When it was approximately 50 miles from the scene of the crash, officials said, the pilot radioed Chicago that the visibility was about an eighth of a mile, the ceiling about 500 feet and that there was a heavy ice condition on the wings and tail.

The Chicago office, officials said, radioed back that he should turn back to St. Louis, but the pilot did not acknowledge that message.

Time of Fall Unknown Officials said they do not know exactly when the plane fell. It was to have arrived in Chicago at 8:40 p.m.

Sexton was widely known in aviation circles and had been with the Tribune about four years. He was a pilot himself and had several hundred hours in the air to his credit.

Sexton, about 33 years old, formerly was employed on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as an aviation editor.

Files Extremely Low The plane crashed on a farm owned by Orva Altrix. Altrix said he heard the plane roaring overhead and went outside. It was flying extremely low, about 500 feet from the ground, he said, and apparently was being shoved down by the blizzard. Altrix said the huge ship barely missed his house.

Suddenly, he said, the plane banked sharply and nosed into the ground. The wreckage did not burn. Apparently those aboard were killed instantly.

Snow Delays Work Another farmer, R. D. Knoles, standing in a nearby field, saw the crash and gave a story similar to that of Altrix.

Dr. L. H. Orr, coroner of Menard county, said the plane fell at 7 p.m. Two of the bodies were extricated immediately from the wreckage, he said, but two of them were inaccessible for some time. A heavy snow delayed the work of clearing the wreckage.

C. A. Knutson Candidate For Governorship

Entry Brings Republican List to Total Of Four

Clarence A. Knutson of Clear Lake, advocate of gross income tax, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor yesterday. Knutson's entry brings the number of Republican candidates to four, Robert W. Colflesh of Des Moines, Dan Turner of Corning, and W. Short of Sioux City, having already announced.

Condemns Tax Bill

Knutson condemns the tax bill enacted by the special session of the forty-fifth general assembly as "a concoction of compromises with only the promise of relief." He believes that at least 50 percent of the tax now on homes, farms and other property must be replaced at once by a tax on the transfer of dollar ownership, with a possibility of eventually relieving all tax on property.

Sales Tax

In condemning the new tax law, which goes into effect April 1, Knutson says, "The worst feature of the bill is the sales tax. It levies a tax on the poor man with a modest income who is required to spend all his income with retail merchants on the same basis as the wealthy man who spends only a small part of his income in this way. While it hopes to raise $2,500,000 from taxes in the higher brackets through a net income, it also proposes to raise $14,000,000 through a retail sales tax." "Knutson has been a hardware merchant at Clear Lake since 1919 and has served six years in the Iowa general assembly from 1921 to 1927. He was formerly mayor of Clear Lake, and president of the Iowa Retail Hardware association. He is a Master Mason, chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias, and a past district governor of Rotary. At present he is the president of the Iowa Hardware Mutual insurance company.

21 Given Help Last Week Through Local Reemployment Office

Last week 21 persons received employment through the national reemployment office at Iowa City, the Rev. E. A. Worthley, chairman of the national reemployment committee for Johnson county, said yesterday.

Hans C. Pfund, state director for the national reemployment service, in a statement yesterday pointed out the misunderstanding of the general public concerning the reemployment service and civil works program.

To the reemployment service, the civil works program is simply one employer, and the service which is rendered the civil works is at command, without charge, of every individual employer in the state, regardless of type of business.

Mr. Pfund stated that the very highest class of skilled, commercial, and semi-professional workers is available to private employers, registered in the national reemployment offices in each Iowa county. The service is free to all who wish to employ help.

Will Honor Memory Of Jane Delano

More than 100 Iowa City and Cedar Rapids nurses will attend the memorial service for Jane A. Delano, noted American Red Cross nurse and head of the American medical and nursing units in France during the war, which will be held for the first time in Iowa City at the Trinity Episcopal church Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

"This service is in recognition of the incalculable value of the nurses to the community and the nation," said the Rev. Richard E. McEvoy who is to deliver the memorial address.

Bernadette Banker and Edith Holstrom, officers of the Red Cross Nursing service in this district, are in charge of the service commemorating the birthday of Miss Delano March 12. It is hoped to make this memorial celebration an annual event in Iowa City.

Miss Delano, who died in 1919, was graduated from the Bellevue Training School for Nurses in 1866 and two years later became head of a hospital near Jacksonville, Fla., during a yellow fever epidemic. She was the first to introduce the idea of screening the patient's bed before it was known that the mosquito carried the fever germ.

In 1913 she was made chairman of the national committee on Red Cross Nursing and in this capacity she directed relief work for those suffering from major disasters throughout the country.

At the time of her death in France she was in charge of more than 20,000 nurses.

French Club Will Read Act of Play

The French club will hold a meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the river room of Iowa Union. The second act of "Le Voyage de M. Perrichon" will be read by the club.

GIRL SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Troop 1 under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Coughlin, will hold its regular meetings for the rest of the spring and summer at the Girl Scout Little House. Plans are to have a supper each time preceding the meeting.

Troop 3 had a bake sale a week ago last Saturday. At the next regular meeting Una Marie Roseland, Elaine Freswick, and Donna Billick will be invested as tenderfoot scouts.

Shirley Briggs and Alice Jean Bates, patrol leaders of troop 4 under the leadership of Ruth M. Frerichs, had a meeting last Saturday morning at which time they planned the activities of the troop for the next three months. E. Isabelle Smith will have charge of the metalcraft work. A series of hikes for first class scouts were also planned.

Margaret Cannon is conducting first aid classes for troop 6 which is under the leadership of Mrs.

Thomas Farrell. The classes will continue for the next six weeks.

Mary Pardon, Helen Fox, and E. Isabelle Smith gave a George Washington party for troop 7. The troop is now working in interest groups. Work is being done on first class, second class, and various other badges.

Troop 3 with Mrs. Houston in charge gave a short afternoon program at the Henry Sabin school on March 21, for the benefit of the milk fund.

Three new members have been enrolled in troop 9 which is directed by Mrs. Raymond Piner: Helen Bye and Ann Waterman from University elementary school, and Margaret Kobes from Lincoln school. Troop members are going to the first aid classes instead of their regular meetings. Dorothy Wallace and Barbara Ricketts, patrol leaders, had a meeting last Saturday to plan the month's activities.

Troop 10 under the leadership of Mrs. Frederick W. Kent is busy dressing dolls for the Girl Scout international window which it is preparing for the birthday week celebration.

Colflesh To Give Talk To Jr. C. of C.

Robert Colflesh, United States district attorney for southern Iowa who will prosecute the Kraschel case, Republican candidate for governor and outstanding Junior Chamber of Commerce member of Des Moines, will speak to the members of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce at their next meeting on March 20, it was announced at the local group's meeting held in Reich's Pine room last night.

Norwood C. Louis of Henry Louis drug store entertained the members with motion pictures of the British West Indies, deep sea fishing off Nova Scotia, Canadian log driving, and the Iowa-Northwestern game.

K. C. Council Will Initiate 20 Members

The initiation of a class of 20 candidates, commemorating the initiation of the charter members of the local council of the Knights of Columbus, will be held at a ceremony Sunday, March 11, at the Knights of Columbus hall.

The 71 charter members were initiated here 30 years ago, Feb. 28, 1904.

To make this occasion an outstanding event of Columbianism in eastern Iowa is the intention of the committee appointed by Grand Knight John P. Kelly. Guests are expected from Wisconsin and Illinois as well as from Iowa. Following the degree work a banquet will be served.

Active charter members of the Marquette council will be present and take part in the program. They are: A. J. Schulte, Dr. D. F. Fitzpatrick, B. J. Hauber, John H. Donohue, J. W. Suoppel, W. F. Hoffelder, L. F. Cerney, Frank Machovec, L. L. Consamus, John A. Eppel, Thomas E. Smith, and George T. Wicks. The initiation was postponed from last Sunday.

It means something—

Perhaps the best type of machine ever built for moistening tobacco. Recently perfected from a model built in our factory and now used in the manufacture of Chesterfield Cigarettes.

This picture shows the machines used to remove the stems from Chesterfield tobaccos.

THIS most modern way of moistening tobacco for stemming—first used in the manufacture of Chesterfields—opens up the pores and puts the tobacco in condition to remove the stems.

The tobacco is put into the wire baskets stems down and enters the long steel ovens where the steam comes up from below, softening the stems without wetting the rest of the leaf.

The stems are removed by stemming machines of the latest type.

Everything that modern science knows about, or money can buy, that can make a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better, is used in making Chesterfield.

Humanism And Modern Religion

"THE other mood which some of the intelligentsia are seeking to exalt into a religion, or rather into a philosophy as a substitute for religion, is humanism . . . a diluted form of ethical culture worshipping at the shrine of science . . . a poor anaesthetic even in a dentist's chair"—the Rev. John A. O'Brien, in a vespers here last Sunday evening.

Humanists who heard the address of Father O'Brien Sunday evening will hardly appreciate his definition or disparaging comment on humanism; broad minded men of the church who heard his address will hardly agree with his stand of religion against humanism.

Many intelligent persons have found in the humanistic doctrine a means of making religion live for them. Through it they have injected a live, modern meaning into a spiritual shell which was often entirely out of tune with modern needs.

Advanced churchmen who have given thought to this matter have recognized that the church as an institution is facing the danger of destruction. Despite figures to show increases in church membership, fair minded members of the clergy admit that church attendance has been a decrease, that millions of persons are not depending upon the institutionalized church for their spiritual life.

Instead, they have sought outlets for their spiritual feeling—call it religion or something else—in new modes of expression more in keeping with their modern needs. In extreme cases, this has led to the growth of Buchmanism, or the so-called Oxford movement, and other similar forms.

Humanism has sought to interpret spiritual needs in terms of individual human experiences and feelings. It is thus in itself a religion, if one is to define religion in its broadest meanings.

It need not be entirely incompatible with institutionalized religion. That it need not be incompatible even with orthodoxy is indicated by the fact that it has numerous orthodox supporters.

Modern religion must seek to be more human, more applicable to individual needs. The church, if it would retain its influence, can not afford to disregard or attack too strongly any movement which seeks to define spiritualism in human terms.

These Bitter Times!

A REPORT of the senate banking committee for the year ending last June shows that bankers, like depositors, felt the depression and the effects of the "bank holiday" of March, 1933.

And while bankers are moaning their enormous debts and increased responsibilities, the average depositor is unable to generate much sympathy—even of the synthetic variety.

Because the report shows that 10 bankers were drawing annual salaries of $100,000 or more, and 370 others were receiving more than $25,000. That represents what bankers term "drastic cuts."

H. C. McDowd, president of the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, Pa., received only $165,000 for his services last year. At the first of the fiscal year he was working for $180,000, but he was later cut to $120,000. In spite of his $60,000 wage-cut, he still held the record for being the highest paid banker in the United States.

The second highest paid banker was W. W. Aldrich, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National bank. He agreed to work for much less than his predecessor, Albert H. Wiggin, had received. So instead of getting $250,000—as Mr. Wiggin had—he received only $151,744. However, his salary has been raised to $175,000 for this year. So he is now the highest paid banker, replacing even Mr. McDowd. Probably the honor of the position helps him struggle along on the reduced wages.

The bulging report also showed that Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former vice president of the United States and now chairman of the board of the City National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, is being paid only $13,300 a year. He received a bonus of $560 last year.

So "bankers' hours" have been so seriously affected that they are now worth only approximately $40 apiece for the highest paid men. But that's more than most depositors get for a whole week!

A Nation in Uniform

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger)
 Five million German children are going into uniform just as fast as the makers can turn the suits out. This redressing of the children will extend uniforming so far that the person not in the garb of some group will be conspicuous. The blue suits of the German Labor Front, including both men and women; the brown clothes of the Storm Troopers, the green denim of the Labor Service Army, the black of the Hitler Guards, the horizon blue of the sport flyers, together with the restrained garb of the professional people, are giving Berlin the appearance of a nation regimented, ready to be reviewed.

The same thing is happening elsewhere except for the clothes. Hitler is a showman as well as a dictator. He knows the psychological effect of uniforms and insignia. It is all a part of the world-phase which is definitely toward letting some central authority say what people shall do and how they shall do it. It is not so much an assumption of authority as it is the willing surrender of rights in exchange for being relieved of a personal responsibility that has become burdensome.

GOOD MORNING

"The decision of the supreme court Monday upholding the New York milk statute, coming as it does on the heels of a similarly liberal opinion supporting the Minnesota mortgage moratorium, is a distinct victory for the New Deal and for humanity.

Though neither of these decisions applies directly to measures embodied in the national recovery machinery itself, both are substantial bulwarks of the philosophy upon which that machinery is built.

The far reaching effect of these decisions upon the future development of government in this country can only be guessed. It is certain, however, that they will give added impetus to the new liberalism which is the only hope of bringing order out of chaos without violence.

It was to be expected that opinion would be almost evenly divided among justices of the supreme court. The vote—5 to 4—is an indication of the battle that lies ahead before there can be any permanent victory.

The heart of both decisions is found in the insistence of the court's slim majority that the rights of private property are and must be subject to modification in the interest of the general welfare and, by implication at least, that the degree of modification lies largely in the discretion of the legislature.

Justice Roberts, who wrote the majority opinion in which Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo concurred, pointed out that "the power to promote the general welfare is inherent in government" and recalled that the supreme court has "repeatedly sustained curtailment of enjoyment of private property in the public interest."

The obvious deduction, therefore, would be that the one and only test of this type of legislation, so far as the supreme court and the constitution are concerned, is whether or not the legislature in passing it rightly judged the demands of public interest.

This reasoning reverts significantly to that found in many of the masterly minority opinions written by the late great Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. This jurist repeatedly held that legislatures were entirely competent to declare an industry within the boundaries of its state affected with a public interest and to regulate its business and limit its profits. More often than not he was outweighed by a preponderance of conservative opinion on the court, but his logic, together with that of the great liberal, Justice Brandeis, is having its effect today.

"The constitution," says Justice Roberts, "does not guarantee the unrestricted privilege to engage in a business or to conduct it as one pleases." Obvious as this might be, it is a view that has been attacked by private industry through all the recent period of jungle trade.

The decision goes on to comment that "certain kinds of business may be prohibited and the right to conduct a business or to pursue a calling may be conditioned. Regulation of a business to prevent waste of the state's resources may be justified. And statutes prescribing the terms upon which those conducting certain businesses may contract, or imposing terms if they do enter into agreements, are within the state's competency."

The fifth amendment to the constitution—"No person shall be . . . deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation"—has been sadly misinterpreted. It has been used as a symbol for the imagined sanctity of private property and as a shield to protect private industry in whatever ruthless maraudings it might be inclined to engage.

This amendment, designed to protect the common citizen from unjust laws, was perverted into a boomerang to the detriment of those it was meant to benefit. But that day, we fervently hope, is over, and the legerdemain by which such perversion was possible apparently has been discredited.

But a long battle still lies ahead before the old philosophy can be entirely supplanted by the new. What the attitude of the court might be when it is called upon to consider federal recovery measures is yet to be determined. But it has at least been demonstrated that the balance lies on the side of today and tomorrow, no longer on that of yesterday.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—In a business where there are no such things as understudies, Hollywood youngsters could teach their footlight elders a thing or two about preserving the old tradition: "The show must go on."

The last few months have seen a dozen instances, and I can name one right now—Bette Davis in "Of Human Bondage."

This slender star has been working for several days with a temperature of more than 100. Her throat is so bad that R-K-O has assigned Dr. Shirley Wimer to stay on the set and to give Bette constant treatments.

Schedules have been switched to give the star only her lesser scenes to do, and rehearsals are held in Bette's dressing room with the actress reclining on a couch. Leslie Howard, the director and the whole troupe are being as considerate as possible.

R-K-O isn't doing any slave-driving. The studio offered to hold up the picture but Bette knows that it would cost them $5,000 to stop cameras for two days and insists "the show must go on."

Now we're mulling over this year's nominations for the Academy Awards and Howard Green pointed out a somber coincidence in the inclusion of "One Way Passage." In this fine story by Robert Lord, Kay Francis and William Powell played two lovers who made a tryst to toast the New Year in at Agua Caliente—both knowing all the while that they were condemned to die before the year was over.

The two men who adapted this story were Joseph Jackson and Wilson Mizner. Both have died within the year.

Few men have come closer to death—and pulled through—than Eddie Sutherland. The director had one blood transfusion after another and lay in an oxygen cage for days during the crisis of his illness with pneumonia.

Down to 87 pounds after weeks of wasting illness, Eddie has regained 20 pounds in the last 12 days. He was taken home yesterday to begin a long period of convalescence and to learn to breathe again through his right lung.

Medical science will aid by showing him how to force his breath in and out of a bottle-like device that strengthens the injured organ.

Mack Gray, George Raft's man Friday, whom Carole Lombard and other Hollywoodites have playfully dubbed "the Killer," doesn't know whether to brag or burn up.

Paramount has just given him a part that runs all through "Little Miss Marker."

But reading through the script, Mack finds that he has to go to a masquerade ball dressed up as an effeminate man.

"Can y'beat it?" cries Mack. "What will de mob think of me now?"

The Arctic gave up Bebrullik Rock and his lost pilot after all. A dog-team, first to get through from Point Hope in 30 days, has brought the news that the Eskimo actor and Pilot Tom Ross crashed on the ice within 15 miles of their destination and, though suffering from shock and minor injuries, managed to make their way to the isolated settlement.

Their plane, however, is a total loss. In the forced landing on the jagged ice, its under-panning was destroyed and its motor badly damaged.

Along with other equipment, Rock's Hollywood wardrobe, with which he hoped to dazzle his Eskimo wife and fellow villagers, was ruined in the accident.

General Notices

To All Students Who Expect to Graduate at the Close of the Second Semester of the Year 1933-34, June 4, 1934
 Every student who expects to receive a degree or certificate at the University Convocation to be held Monday, June 4, 1934, should make formal application on a card provided for the purpose, at the registrar's office on or before Saturday, March 31, 1934. It is of the utmost importance that each student concerned comply with this request immediately, for otherwise it is very likely that a student who may be in other respects qualified will not be recommended for graduation at the close of the present semester. Making application for the degree or certificate involves the payment of the graduation fee ($15.00) at the time the application is made—the payment of this fee being a necessary part of the application. Call at the registrar's office for the card. H. C. DORCAS, registrar

Lewis Announces Awards For 27 R.O.T.C. Members

Winners of Scholastic Medal, Highest Of Honors, Listed

Lieut. Col. Converse R. Lewis, head of the military department, announced yesterday that 27 members of the Reserve Officers' Training corps had either qualified for the military scholastic medal or were entitled to an additional bar. The scholastic medal is the highest honor that is awarded by the military department.

The men qualifying for this award maintained, for the first semester of the present school year, a disciplinary "A" rating in military, a final semester grade of "A" in military, and a three point grade average in their academic work.

The following list contains the names of the men who have earned the award:

Infantry Unit
Basic course, first year—Waldo E. Brooks, A1 of Dubuque; Zedford W. Burris, A1 of Des Moines; Warren H. Carr, A1 of Cedar Rapids; Harold E. Conde, A1 of West Bend; Walter L. Crampton, A1 of Sigourney; Lloyd A. Johnson, A1 of Davenport; John H. Uthoff, A1 of Mt. Vernon, and George W. Willoughby, A1 of Des Moines.

Basic course, second year—Fred W. Kunkel, E3 of Davenport; Ronald A. Shumway, P1 of Arlington; Laurence K. Smith, A2 of Des Moines; and Wilbur J. Wehmeyer, A2 of St. Louis, Mo.

Engineer Unit
Basic course, first year—Forrest G. Baker, E1 of Davenport; and Maxon P. Roller, E1 of Davenport.

Medical Unit
Advanced course, second year—Wortheby C. Boden, M3 of Knoxville.

Dental Unit
Advanced course, second year—Maurice D. Gruber, D3 of Letts; William C. Neaf, D3 of Rome, N. Y.; John H. Paul, D3 of Osceola; and Wayne L. Wishart, D3 of Memphis, Mo.

The men who had previously won the medal and who maintained an equivalent standing for the first semester of the present school year, earning another bar, are:

Infantry Unit
Basic course, second year—Carl B. Cone, A2 of Iowa City; Everett C. Hogan, A2 of Epworth, and Thomas H. Miller, A2 of Burlington.

Advanced course, second year—Donald G. Riedesel, C4 of Wheatland.

Innocent Victim

SEEN from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

My contemporary, John W. Pritchard, drama critic of The Michigan Daily, is evidently a skeptic when it comes to new "fads" in things theatrical. Or so it would seem, for he offers some skeptical opinions in his daily column on "The theatre," in regard to "Hiss! Boom! Blah!" which University theater will present here next month. In an article entitled "Whoooo! Iowa gets a premiere," he says some things about experiments in general, and 50 scene plays in particular.

"Experimental plays ebb and flow like moon mad tides," he writes, "but the latest of these dramatic fluxes (or ebbs, depending on how you want to look at it) is the product of the facile brain of George Middleton, eminent author of such plays as 'The Big Pond,' 'Embers,' 'Possession,' and 'The Prodigal Judge.' Now Mr. Middleton is nothing if not daring; this in all probability is the reason for 'Hiss! Boom! Blah!'"

Mr. Pritchard then tells the story of the play—of the rise and fall of economic fortune during the hectic years of 1917-1932 in a certain unnamed community. "The community cited above," Mr. Pritchard observes, "remains a n o n y m o u s throughout; there is nothing like being noncommittal."

The eminent drama critic of The Michigan Daily then expresses some grave doubts about how Mr. Sellman and Mr. Gillette and their University theater crews are going to sandwich in 50 scenes with a minimum of stoppage. "Of course," he concludes, "there is nothing like experimentation in any field of endeavor; past experience is the foundation of good dramatic art. The peril lies in the fact that Mr. Middleton's brain-child, if successful, is likely to start a fad. Those things have been known to happen in these days of hurried grasping after straws. 'Such men,' Julius Caesar is credited by a great bard with having said, 'are dangerous.'"

Mr. Pritchard is probably justified in some of his fears. On one point this department feels competent to reassure him. As long as scenery costs money, and things are as they are in the theater, there will probably be no fad on 50 scene plays!

A postal card cancelled in a Kansas post office in 1904 recently was delivered to Mrs. C. W. Carpenter of Oroville, Cal.

12 Listed For Mecca Queen

Engineers Vote Today To Select 6 Final Candidates

Twelve women have been nominated as candidates for the position of Mecca queen by officers of the Associated Students of Engineering. It was announced yesterday by Earl Ewald, E4 of Sigourney.

The nominees are: Erna Hansen, A4 of Clear Lake; Virginia Allen; Beulah Sanders, A4 of Creston; Jean Downing, A4 of Anamosa; Louise Olson, A4 of Marshalltown; Mildred Pretzman, A4 of Manson; Evelyn Benda, G of Iowa City; Agnes Louise Hurley, A3 of Mt. Pleasant; Marcia Ruth Lisle, A3 of Clarinda; Martha McKay, J3 of Eldon; Marjorie Danforth, A4 of Winterset; and Karen Norgaard, P4 of Iowa City.

The engineers will vote today to select six out of the 12, who will be the final candidates for the queen. The Mecca queen will be finally determined at a second election next Tuesday, and her name will be announced at the Mecca ball, all-university party, where she will "reign."

Celebration Plans Progress Despite Lack of Helmets

Plans for the Police and Firemen's ball, to be held April 10, in the American Legion Community building, are progressing despite the scarcity of paper cop's hats.

Noise makers of every description, paper hats, and confetti will all contribute to making the ball a real celebration. The only difficulty seems to be in finding a company which manufactures paper policemen's hats. Members of the committee, however, are confident that some will be found. Patrolman George Speaks has been contacting entertainers and says the prospects are promising.

The committee plans to "cover Johnson county like a blanket" with posters and window cards. Posters will also be distributed about the business houses of Iowa City. A general assembly of both firemen and policemen will be held on March 26, at which time final plans for the ball will be formulated and the work of the various committees up to that time reported.

S. U. I. Graduate To Run for Office

Joseph H. Allen of Des Moines, graduate of the University of Iowa, has announced his candidacy for the office of mayor of Des Moines.

He was a member of the board of regents of the University of Iowa. Mr. Allen, 63, was graduated from the college of law in 1895. He served three consecutive terms in the Iowa state senate. Mr. Allen is associated with the law firm of Allen and Whitfield.

Four Films Will Feature National Capital, Roosevelt

Glimpses of the nation's governmental machinery and news reel "shots" of the chief executive will figure in a university film program to be given under the auspices of the political science department tomorrow at 4:10 p.m. in chemistry auditorium.

Three pictures of one reel length will deal with divisions of the cabinet, the state department, the treasury department and the department of commerce. General views of the city of Washington, D. C., its public buildings and monuments will be included in the films.

"The fighting president," a six reel film concerning President Roosevelt, will be previewed upon its arrival today and two reels will be selected for presentation. It is made up entirely of news reel shots.

Dr. Smith Speaks To Medical Society

Dr. Fred Smith of University hospital spoke at a meeting of the Wapello County Medical society at Ottumwa yesterday evening. He spoke on "Diagnosis of arteriosclerotic heart disease."

This evening Dr. Smith will address a post graduate course at Creston. His topic will be "Cardiac therapy." This lecture is being given under the auspices of the speakers bureau.

Engineers to Hear Neumann Lecture

Warren R. Neumann, instructor in the college of engineering, will address members of the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers today.

Before coming to the University of Iowa, Mr. Neumann was connected with the Western Electric company of Chicago and worked in the development laboratories at Chicago. His topic for today's address is, "Development engineering."

Dr. Kerr Speaks At Medical Meet

Dr. H. Dabney Kerr of University hospital addressed a monthly meeting of the Washington County Medical society at Washington, Ia., yesterday evening.

He spoke on "Roentgen treatment of superficial malignancies."

Clark Gable and Helen Hayes in "The White Sister" at the Pastime now.

Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez in a scene from "Mandalay," now playing at the Englert theatre. Lyle Talbot and Warner Oland are in the supporting cast.

PLAY To Feature Initial Bows of Eight

Burlington, has played during her two years here has been under the direction of Professor Morton. She played major parts in "Hay Fever" and "The Late Christopher Bean" last year. In this production she has been cast as Madame Alda.

Margaret Rule, G of Mason City, and Richard Anderson, C3 of Des Moines, have both appeared in Professor Morton's productions in the past. Miss Rule, who will play the Duchess Stephanie in "Death Takes a Holiday," played last year in "The First Mrs. Fraser," which he directed.

Mr. Anderson played in two of his productions last year, "Low Bridge" and "Twelfth Night." He is portraying Duke Lambert in the current presentation.

Pearl Travis, G of Iowa City, who appeared earlier this season in University theater's production of "Both Your Houses," will play the Princess of San Luca.

Prince Sirki, who is also the shadow of Death, will be played by Grant Fairbanks, G of Redlands, Cal. Since entering the university last fall as a major in the dramatic arts department, Mr. Fairbanks has been a member of numerous crews and played the part of Davenport, an art critic, in "The Late Christopher Bean."

Besides the showing to be given tonight, another performance will be given tomorrow at 8 p.m. in natural science auditorium, and a matinee will be held Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

St. Olaf Choir To Sing Here

Lutheran Group to Give Concert April 8 At Iowa Union

The St. Olaf Lutheran choir, directed by F. Melius Christiansen, has been engaged by the music department for a concert April 8 at Iowa Union.

This organization is composed of 60 voices from the student body of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn. The choir has often toured the country, winning praise from music critics of newspapers in Boston, Mass.; New York city, Chicago, Cleveland, Ohio; Washington, D. C.; Denver, Colo.; Seattle, Wash.; and San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.

Concerts are conducted by Mr. Christiansen, who has trained the choir. His education in choral ideals was in a class directed by Cantor Gustav Schreck at the University of Leipzig, who was for many years the leader of the Thomas church choir.

A feature of the performance is the ensemble effects produced. The selections are memorized and sung without any accompaniment or the opening assurance of a tuning fork.

Committee Names John Schell Most Promising Senior

John Schell, E4 of Iowa City, has been designated as the most promising senior in the civil engineering department at the University of Iowa, it was announced yesterday at the meeting of the State Engineering society at Ames.

The announcement was made by Dean C. C. Williams of the college of engineering who is attending the meeting. The selection of Mr. Schell was made by a committee headed by Dean Williams and including other members of the civil engineering faculty.

The nomination depends upon grade average and general ability. One engineer from the University of Iowa and one from Iowa State college are so honored each spring. Robert H. Brown was the Iowa State engineer this year.

Josten Firm Gets Contract to Print Senior Invitations

The Josten company of Owatonna, Minn., was awarded the contract for the printing of senior invitations at a meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon, it was announced by Donald Pryor, J4 of Burlington, chairman of the committee.

The bid of the Josten company was 4 cents. Other bids were: Charles H. Elliott company of Philadelphia, Pa., 4 cents; L. G. Bal-four company of Attleboro, Mass., 5 3/4 cents; and College Crafters corporation of Kansas City, Mo., 5 1/2 cents.

The invitations will be available at the alumni office in Old Capitol. The date when they will go on sale will be announced soon.

Dr. Henry S. Houghton, former dean of the college of medicine here, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of science by Ohio State university at a special convocation held recently in connection with the centennial program of its college of medicine, it was learned here yesterday.

Dr. Houghton is now associate dean of biological sciences and director of the Midway clinic at the University of Chicago.

Conkwright to Talk

"Summability of a certain class of series" will be the subject of an address by Nelson B. Conkwright of the mathematics department before a meeting of the Graduate Mathematics club at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow in room 222, physics building.

Philosophy Stressed By Shambaugh

"Philosophy is important. It is more than important, it is wisdom." This was the opinion expressed by Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department, before an audience of approximately 80 persons who attended the first of a series of "Philosophy of life" conferences at Iowa Union yesterday afternoon.

Philosophy, which Professor Shambaugh believes to be the "peak of human achievement," is reflected not in the words of man, but in the records of his life.

All men have necessarily a philosophy of life, whether good or bad, he said, and illustrated the infinite variety of qualities which could be embodied in philosophies.

"I like to think that I was there," he asserted when he spoke of the evolution of the universe and of life from the beginning up to its present form. "I like to think that I will be there in the future," he added.

Professor Shambaugh concluded his talk by reading the last paragraph of Walter Lippman's "Preface to Morals" and mentioning that his favorite book is "Meditations of Marcus Aurelius."

After the talk, students discussed informally with Professor Shambaugh.

The next conference of this series will be held next Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in Iowa Union. Tickets may be secured in advance at Iowa Union desk or the religious activities office. There is no charge for the tickets.

The Negro students' club of the University of California adopted a resolution protesting against inclusion of Negro youth in Germany's sterilization program.

ABOUT SPORTS

Little Hawks Plan . . . Meet Tough Foes Confidently . . . Vastly Improved . . . Wrestlers Show Real Power.

BY RON TALLMAN

GEORGE WELLS and his Little Hawks are doing some planning this week which they hope will carry them through some mighty tough competition this week end.

That the competition is going to be tough they know. The planning they are doing is to prove to Washington high of Cedar Rapids—and Davenport, perhaps—that they are tougher.

It's going to be a mighty tough job for the Little Hawks to do so. But they are firmly convinced of their own ability to pull some upsets.

That confidence plus the new-found strength of the City high boys is going to carry them a long way. They will receive added help from the fact that they are going into the meet rated as no better than a "good team."

PREDICTION? WELL—

I don't exactly wish to make a prediction about the fate of the Iowa Citizens in the Cedar Rapids district meet, but I would like to say that—

The Little Hawks are going to let Washington high know that they are a stronger team than the one which bowed to the Tigers during the conference season and that the latter will have to be a whole lot stronger to win again.

There is one bit of forecasting, however, I would like to make. Some may say I'm safe in doing so, but I believe that if Coach Wells' boys come through the Washington high game okay, they will knock off the Davenport outfit.

Davenport has been a tough nut for the Red and White to crack in recent years, but despite the loss they were handed down at Davenport two weeks ago they have what is necessary right now to turn the trick.

Whatever the outcome, though, I'm pulling for the Little Hawks to pull off the "upsets" their opponents will call them.

WRESTLERS BOW

Coach Mike Howard's best wrestling team in several seasons took its first defeat of the season last night, but in doing so gave a great exhibition against the powerful Iowa State boys.

Until the final two bouts they had held the upper hand through most of the match, always drawing ahead into the lead with the Cyclones fighting to come up on even terms.

That's wrestling any time that a state team holds those Cyclones on that close a basis.

Several of the boys also further demonstrated that they will be right in there for individual titles at the conference meet at Bloomington, Ind., it's week end.

Bob Larson showed his power in his draw match. Pat Righter and Clarence Johnson demonstrated they were in the best form of the season by their wins.

And Earle Kielhorn, despite his first loss of the year, proved that he will make it plenty tough for any foe in the 155, 165 or 175 pound divisions—classes in each of which he has won easy victories this year.

Clarence (Gus) Holst, greatest distance runner in Montana State college history, is now a member of the San Francisco Olympic club field and track squad.

Carnera, Capone In Long Distance Meeting at Prison

ATLANTA, March 6 (AP)—Primo Carnera and Al Capone waved long distance greetings today within the federal prison here.

Capone, standing by a window in the second story of the shoe shop, was pointed out to the world's heavyweight champion by one of the guards. Da Preem clasped his hands above his head in the fashion boxers follow in the ring and waved lustily.

Both grinned but no words were spoken. Capone, apparently as excited as a school boy, rushed from one window to another, keeping Primo in sight as long as possible. As the champion entered another building he turned about, waved his huge hands and smiled a broad, teeth-revealing grin.

The Italian giant evidenced a boyish interest in everything shown him by the prison guides. The prisoners were taken by surprise at the sight of Primo. There was no demonstration but many of the prisoners remarked with awe at his size, especially his feet.

Carnera's only greeting was "My Fellas."

Cyclone Wrestlers Overcome Iowa Lead to Win

Stiff Sessions Quickly Whip Men in Shape

Solem, Assistants Hold Tri-Weekly Grid Practices

Candidates for next fall's varsity football team are rapidly losing excess poundage as a result of the strenuous workouts through which Coach Ossie Solem and his assistants, Freshman Coach Bill Boelter, Joe Laws, Zud Schammel, and Marc Magnussen, direct them during three nights of the week.

The first part of the sessions are given over to fundamentals on line play for the linemen while the backfields run through plays. The remainder of the sessions are conducted with various backfield combinations running plays through a line placed on defense.

Among the frosh aspirants are several men who look promising in the workouts. They are: Ted Osmalowski, tall, rugged center from Toledo, Ohio; Cain, halfback; "Tuffy" Gordinier, quarterback. Another man who seems to be a promising prospect is "Ozzie" Simmons, a speed merchant from the south who has been getting away for gains repeatedly. He is fast and clever with a knack of spinning away from tacklers for several extra yards.

Several varsity lettermen who are now out for practice are: Captain Fisher, Foster, Radloff, Kouba, Richards, Spel, and Gallagher. Thursday night it is likely that the Golds and Blacks will engage in a game which will probably be played in the armory.

At the present time sessions are being held but three times a week—Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, but after the middle of the month they will take place every day, finally terminating on about the first of April.

Indoor Sports Card Nears Close With Dual Swim Meet

Only one more dual contest, the swimming meet at Minnesota Saturday, remains on the University of Iowa's indoor sports schedule.

Five championship meets, as well as a quadrangular and triangular track contest, complete the Hawkeye card for the winter, with the first spring event the baseball game with Monmouth at Monmouth, Ill. March 28.

Track men and swimmers will be the busiest of the indoor athletes during the remainder of the month, each with three events. The baseball team plays three of its 33 games before April 1.

Favorites Survive In Annual Belleair Women's Golf Meet

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Favorites survived their matches today in the annual Belleair women's golf championship tournament.

Exhibiting little difficulty, Jane Douglas, Beverly Hills, Cal., tournament medalist, turned back Mrs. E. E. Wetherill, Philadelphia, 4 and 3. Marian Milley, Lexington, Ky., girl, had a close call with Mrs. Killball Salsbury, Chicago, winning 3 and 1.

Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., defeated Mrs. F. D. White, Hartford, Conn., 4 and 3. Frances Hadfield, Milwaukee, defeated Mrs. Harvey Myers, Covington, Ky., 3 and 1.

Mrs. Hill Wins Qualifying Medal In Georgia Meet

ALBANY, Ga., March 6 (AP)—Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City shot a 78 to win the medal in the third annual radium springs invitation golf tournament today.

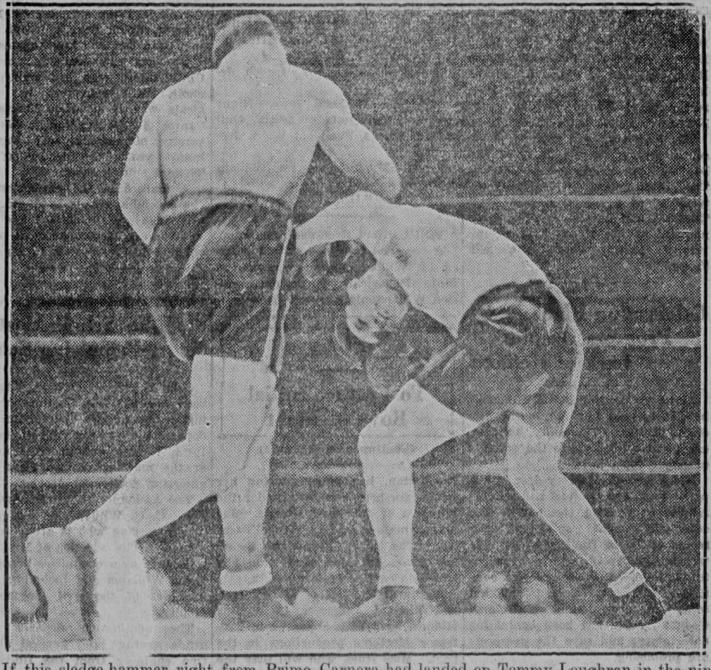

Crowding Mrs. Hill in the 18-hole qualifying round was Mrs. S. B. Lippitt of Albany who took the runner-up honors with an 80.

Among the leading qualifiers were Dorothy Richards of Boston, Mass., with an 87 and Jane Bauer of Providence, R. I., with an 81.

Kansas Gains 23-21 Win From Missouri

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 6 (AP)—Kansas, 1934 basketball champion of the Big Six conference, defeated Missouri 23-21 tonight in a hard fought, rough game that forced the Tigers into a tie for runner-up position with Oklahoma. Missouri missed a chance to knot the count in the last seconds when Thompson's close flip failed to drop in.

CARNERIAN HAYMAKER THAT WENT ASTRAY

If this sledge-hammer right from Primo Carnera had landed on Tommy Loughran in the ninth round of their title bout at Miami, Fla., the Italian champion would undoubtedly have won more than a decision of his Philadelphia challenger. But the lighter and more agile Mr. Loughran managed to duck this mountainous opponent's heavy swings, as he did on this occasion, to last the full distance.

Quad Volley Ball Begins

First Games Tonight; Award Basketball Medals

The quadrangle volley ball tournament goes into action tonight with A1 vs. B1 at 7:15, B2 vs. A2 at 8 o'clock, and C vs. D at 8:45. The games will be played at the field-house. Plans are being made for a schedule whereby each of these six teams will play each other team twice during the meet.

With the close of the basketball season, medals have been presented to players on the first and second place teams in each division of the quad tournament.

First place medals in the heavy-weight class went to section D's team, composed of Lyford, Ebert, Wengert, Christianson, England, and Schenken.

First place medals in the light-weight class went to section A's group, composed of Sherman, Emmer, Slutsky, Magrini, Brody, and Friedman.

Section B took the second place medals in both weight divisions with the following receiving them: Schneidman, Hoffman, Kinkor, Mackley, Hershey, Higgins, Wagner, Smith, Mudre, Fisher, Reynolds, Reeve, Franklin, Moore, and Preston.

Name Group Contestants In Swim Meet

March 15 has been definitely set at the date for the national telegraphic women's swimming meet section being held in Iowa City. Results of all these sectional meets will be tabulated and available by April, since they must all be held some time in the month of March.

The 15, who will participate in the meet here have been practically all decided on, 13 girls having been named.

Those who will take part in the 100 yard free style are: Hazel Vincent, A1 of Des Moines; Dorothy Hartsock, A2 of Des Moines; and Dorothy Manhard, A3 of Rock Island.

In the 40 yard breast stroke will be: Normalee Vanhorn, A2 of Iowa City; Virginia Marsh, A3 of McDonald, Ohio; Edith Musgrove, A4 of Iowa City; and Estella Mahoney, A2 of Iowa City.

Margaret Olsen, A2 of Iowa City, and Louise Philpott, A4 of Boise, Idaho, will participate in the 40 yard back crawl.

Those chosen for the 40 yard front crawl are: Nancy Riegel, A1 of Davenport; Helen Hendricks, A3 of Spirit Lake; Mary Hans, A1 of Moline, Ill.; Mary Keefe, A1 of Creston; and Misses Hartsock and Olsen.

Hawkeye Tanksters To Drill in Pool At Women's Gym

A second freshman-varsity swimming meet will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the pool at the women's gymnasium. Coach David Armbruster will use the same two squads, the Blacks and the Old Golds, that competed last Saturday in the meet at the field house pool.

The purpose of the meet is to give the varsity swimmers some practice in swimming in the rough water of a small pool, for the tank at the women's gym is the same size as the one at the University of Minnesota where the Hawkeye swimmers go Saturday for a dual meet.

An Iowa swimming team has never beaten the Gophers in the pool of the old Minnesota armory. This year the Hawkeye sophomores will have to turn in exceptional performances if they expect to break the record that the Gophers have set, for this season the northern school boasts of another strong combination. Captain Wilbur Andre, runner-up for the 1932 Big Ten breast stroke title and an all-American choice of that season, will lead the Minnesota squad. Thor Anderson, who placed fourth in last year's back stroke event, is another of the Gopher stars.

The other Big Ten athletes who were ranked as all-Americans are: Eighland, Horn, and Wilkie of Northwestern; Christy and Degener of Michigan; Anderson is a steady performer in the sprints and also the longer events. He is a valuable man for the relay teams.

The other Big Ten athletes who were ranked as all-Americans are: Eighland, Horn, and Wilkie of Northwestern; Christy and Degener of Michigan; Fela of Ohio State; Dwyer of Chicago; Flachmann of Illinois; and Andre of Minnesota.

Make Use of Height in City High's Lineup

Only one more day of preparation remained for City high's Little Hawks today before their crucial invasion of Cedar Rapids for the district tournament play Friday and Saturday.

The Wells men are faced with an opportunity of avenging an early season setback at the hands of Washington high of the Parlor City in their first tourney tilt Friday, and in the event that they should come through victorious, they may yet get another crack at Paul Moon's Davenport champions in the finals the following night.

Coach Wells will probably continue to rely on his policy of mustering all the available height he can from the ranks of his dribblers. In their recent performances at Marengo, the great reach of the Red and White cagers proved an important factor in the impressiveness of their victories.

With the rangy Fred Ballard at a guard post, the giant "Bingo" Snyder at center, and lanky Dick Ash at a forward position, the Little Hawk coach has three men of above the average prep team height, and with Marshall, Ayers and Mutchler, who make up in speed what they lack in reach, at the other posts on the quintet, the team is a well-balanced one.

The City high club also is in an ideal psychological position for the

Purdue Stars Get 2 Places On 1st Team

Cotton Unanimously Named to Forward By Coaches

CHICAGO, March 6 (AP)—Two members of Purdue's Western conference championship basketball team were voted places on the Associated Press All-Star Big Ten team selected by coaches.

Norman Cotton, the leading individual scorer, and Emmett Lowery, the former by unanimous vote, were placed at forward and guard respectively. Frank Frochauer of Illinois, won the other forward position with Lyle Fisher of Northwestern at center and Rolf Poser of Wisconsin at the other guard.

The second team selections were Bill Haarlow of Chicago, and Ray Eddy of Purdue, forwards; Gordon Norman of Minnesota, center, and Ben Selzer of Iowa, and Ed Shaver of Purdue, guards. Selzer was a first team selection a year ago but finished third in the voting this season.

All but Poser of the first team pick were among the leading scorers. Cotton led with 120 points, two more than Fisher's total. Frochauer was fourth with 107, a point less than Haarlow. Lowery had 103 points, while Poser dropped in 77.

First Team Last Year Selzer, the only Hawkeye star to be given recognition on the Associated Press Big Ten selections this year, last year was ranked as "the outstanding guard" in the conference in the annual poll of the coaches and became the first Iowa cager to gain all-conference honors since 1928.

The Passaic, N. J., star and his running mate, Johnny Grim, formed the most effective back court combination in the Big Ten a year ago. The pair was still considered the outstanding in the Big Ten through the first half of this campaign, but the slump of the Hawkeyes practically wrecked the chances for high recognition again.

All-Around Man Selzer, who will graduate in June, has been considered one of the best defensive men in Old Gold cage history. He was more prominent, however, for his offensive efforts.

He made the term "hawker" famous with his long, arched shots at the basket and presented some of the classiest passing ever seen here. He scored a total of 60 points in conference games this year and committed only 21 fouls despite the fact that he went out of two games by the personal four rule.

He is planning to enter competition with some independent or professional team upon graduation.

Monticello started late but wound up behind West Branch. Apparently buried in the second division, they upset the Fishermen, 26 to 21, hurled Mt. Vernon in a thriller, 20 to 19, and closed the year's activities last Tuesday night by swamping Anamosa, 34 to 11.

Tipton, Mechanicsville, Mt. Vernon, West Liberty, Anamosa, and U. high followed the leaders in the order named.

West Branch Five Cops Eastern Iowa Crown With 7 Wins

A classy West Branch cage team, captained by Gene Moore, finished the basketball season with a record of seven wins and two losses to lead all Eastern Iowa league rivals and cop the conference crown. The club's only defeats in league play were administered by Tipton and the surprising Monticello five.

Track Team Put Through Time Trials

A contingent of athletes numbering close to 16 will be taken to the Big Ten indoor track and field championships in Chicago this Friday and Saturday according to Coach George T. Bresnahan.

Trials last night were held in the dash events with field events and shorter races scheduled for tonight. The squad will be announced tomorrow.

According to present plans part of the squad will leave early Friday morning and the remainder will leave for Chicago Friday afternoon. Coach Bresnahan and Assistant Coach Ted Swenson will accompany coming play, rating as a dark horse with the proverbial "everything to win, nothing to lose" spirit to carry them through to a successful finish of a season that was steeped in disappointment during its early stages, the team.

Down Hawks By Falls in Final Bouts

AMES, March 6 (AP)—Taking four matches with three falls and a decision and battling to a draw in a fifth, the Iowa State wrestlers downed the University of Iowa matmen here tonight in the last dual meet for both teams by 19-1-2 to 12-1-2.

The Hawkeyes, battling on even terms with the powerful Cyclones, held a three point lead with six of the bouts over, but Thayer and Mathews threw their men in the 175 pound and heavyweight classes, Capt. John O'Leary and Frank O'Leary, respectively, to clinch the meet for Iowa State.

Tom Monroe, Hawkeye sophomore, pulled a big upset in the opening bout when he tossed Yarger, Big Six 118 pound champion, to give the Iowans a short lead. Golden evened the count when he tossed Parmenter in the 125 pound division.

Larson Gets Draw Bob Larson, another Old Gold sophomore, continued undefeated when he held Lillie to an overtime draw in the feature bout of the evening in the 135 pound class. Clarence Johnson gave the visitors another lead when he nosed out Wilson for the 145 pound victory.

Ruggles placed the Cyclones back in a tie when he barely turned back Earle Kielhorn, previously undefeated Iowan, in the 165 pound bout and gave the home team its big chance to drive through for a victory after Pat Righter had given Iowa its last lead with a victory over Buck in the 165 pound division.

Summaries 118-pound—Monroe (I) threw Yarger (IS), leg spread and headlock; time, 6:46.

126-pound—Golden (IS) threw Parmenter (I), arm lock and reverse body lock; time—9:46.

135-pound—Lillie (IS) and Larson (I) drew—overtime.

145-pound—Johnson (I) defeated Wilson (IS).

155-pound—Ruggles (IS) defeated Kielhorn (I).

165-pound—Righter (I) defeated Buck (IS).

175-pound—Thayer (IS) threw J. O'Leary (I), half nelson and body lock; time—8:32.

Heavyweight—Mathews (IS) threw F. O'Leary (I), key-lock; time—5:59.

Referee—Fred Cooper of Ft. Dodge.

Teammates Name Local Senior Star

Succeeds Ben Selzer In Honorary Cage Position

Howard Moffitt, senior forward, yesterday was elected by his teammates to the position of honorary captain of the University of Iowa basketball team for the season just concluded.

The Iowa City star, for the last three years a regular on the Hawkeye quintet, succeeds Ben Selzer, the veteran guard, in the honor position. The post was created by Coach Rollie Williams to take the place of a regular captaincy since he adopted the practice of naming a leader for each game.

Howard Moffitt Moffitt's play during his three seasons of varsity competition has been outstanding throughout, although not always a leading scorer.

As a sophomore he was fighting for the Big Ten scoring honors until the final few games and finished in fourth place with a total of 56 points. He had a wide lead over other Hawkeye scorers and was ranked among the leading players in the conference.

Stages Comeback A year ago, while a junior, Moffitt was somewhat of a "marked man" as a result of his sensational play of the season before, but he performed as a big cog in the Old Gold quintet as he became one of the steadiest men on the team, displaying a coolness under fire that resulted in several important Iowa victories.

This season he again came into prominence as a scorer. He was near the top until the last few games. He led Hawkeye individual scoring until the final game of the season when Johnny Barko passed him to lead for both Big Ten games and for the entire season.

Moffitt's total for the 19 game campaign was 135 to 138 for Barko, and he tallied 87 in conference play while Barko was collecting 96.

Coach Williams frequently used him as captain during the past season. Moffitt also participated in football during his sophomore and junior years, performing as quarterback during both seasons.

He will graduate from the university in June. Before his matriculation at the university, however, Moffitt had been known to Iowa City sports fans for four previous years.

As a member of Iowa City high school athletic squads, the local athlete was prominent in football and basketball, gaining wide recognition in both sports. He performed as a quarterback on the gridiron, and as a guard and forward on the Little Hawk cage quintets. He also participated in track, the dashes and broad jump ranking as his specialties.

Loyola university of Los Angeles has booked a football game with Texas Tech for next fall. It was a home-and-home agreement for two seasons.

Shute, Runyan Will Provide 'Natural' of Winter Campaign In Four Ball Tourney Finals

Pair With Espinosa, Smith for Best Ball Title

MIAMI, Fla., March 6 (AP)—The so-called "natural" of the winter campaign, a duel between two of the greatest short range shotmakers in American professional ranks—diminutive Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and slender Denny Shute of Philadelphia, the British open champion—brings the colorful international four ball tournament to a climax tomorrow.

Twin scoring sensations of the $3,500 battle, Runyan and Shute will match their skill with irons and putters in the 36 hole final match over the 6,327 yard course of the Miami Country club, aided and abetted, respectively, by Horton Smith of Chicago and Al Espinosa of Akron, Ohio.

Runyan and Smith, the defending champions, ruled a slight favorite to repeat, something that has not been done since the tournament was established in 1926.

The "par cracking twins" continued their explosive march through the field today at the expense of the veteran Walter Hagen of Detroit and his young Albany, N. Y., partner, Tom Creavy. With Smith contributing a full share of the shotmaking fireworks, he and Runyan were eight up after a morning round in 63; nine under par for their best ball, and slouched through a thunderstorm to win their semi-final match by 10 and 9.

Unable even to make it interesting for the opposition at any stage, Hagen conceded the match on the 27th green in order to gain the nearby shelter of the clubhouse and despite the fact he and Creavy had putts for a half that would have prolonged the match at least one more hole.

Shute and Espinosa, playing better in the rain than they did in the sticky heat of the morning round, closed with a spurt that eliminated the veteran Bill Mehlhorn and Willy Cox of Brooklyn 5 and 4 in the other semi-final.

Good Named Captain For Coe Quintet

CEDAR RAPIDS, March 6 (AP)—Chet Good, ace forward for three years, was elected honorary captain of the Coe quintet for the past season at a squad meeting tonight after nine men had been awarded varsity letters. Good has been the Hawks' high scorer throughout his career.

Besides Good, players who received letters were Donald Belknap, Elmer Keith, Joe Schneider and Jim Carrithers, all of Cedar Rapids, Harold Wilkinson of Independence, Allen Poole of Swea City, Erwin Hahn of Charles City and Harrison Durlie of Rahway, N. J. Don Larson of Dows gained a letter as senior manager.

Eight freshmen, awarded basketball numerals, are: Ralph Martin and Ralph McLeod of Traer, Ben Kammer of Lost Nation, Robert Everett, Bernard Smith and Stewart Fox of Cedar Rapids, Grover Galvin of Rockford and Paul Schneider of Sigourney. Richard Menden and Carl Zbanek of Cedar Rapids won numerals as senior and junior managers.

Kansas Aces Will Compete In 3 Meets

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 6 (AP)—Glenn Cunningham, Kansas' premier middle distance runner, and a sprinter teammate will run in three major track and field carnivals in New York, Hamilton, Ontario, and Indianapolis the week of March 17-24, the University of Kansas athletic management announced today.

Cunningham and Ed Hall, the Big Six conference champion sprinter, will appear in the Knights of Columbus meet in New York March 17, with Cunningham defending the title he won last year by beating Glen Dawson of the Tulsa A.A. in 4 minutes 12 seconds. Hall is entered in the 60-yard dash.

At the Canadian championships March 21, Cunningham will run a 1,000-yard race and Hall the 40 and 60-yard dashes.

Officials of Western League Gather for Setting of Schedule

DES MOINES, March 6 (AP)—Western league officials were gathered here tonight in preparation for tomorrow's session at which schedules for the coming season are to be decided.

Dale Gear, league president, is to preside. Club representatives said the schedule of games would have to be entirely revamped over that of previous years since the league's reorganization to include Davenport, Rock Island, Cedar Rapids, and Sioux City.

FROM MAJOR LEAGUE CAMPS

(By The Associated Press) NAMES CHISOX LINEUP PASADENA, Cal., March 6 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox had progressed so far in training today that Manager Lew Fonseca named the lineup with the exception of batterymen which he expects to start the championship season.

In the outfield were Evar Swanson, Mule Haas and Al Simmons; Zeke Bonura, first base; Jack Hayes, second base; Luke Appling, shortstop; and Jimmy Dykes at third. He also expects George Earnshaw to pitch the opener.

CHICK OUTEN, second-string catcher, and Pitcher Walter Beck are the latest athletes who have come to terms. Still unsatisfied are Al Lopez, Hack Wilson, Ray Bengo and Jimmy Jordan.

TERRY QUILTS WORRYING MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Manager Bill Terry isn't worrying so much about the illness of Gus Mancuso, slow recovering from an attack of typhoid fever. Terry already has found an acceptable substitute in Paul Richards. The youngster has handled himself well in practice and has been nominated for first string duty until Mancuso returns.

GOMEZ SIGNS ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Vernon Gomez, pitching mainstay of the New York Yankees, signed his contract today and reduced the holdouts among the regulars to four.

Gomez said he had signed a one year contract and "it's a better one than I had last season."

The holdouts now include only Danny MacFadden, Bill Dickey, Frank Crosetti and Lyn Lary among the regulars.

TWO DODGERS WIN ORLANDO, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Two more Brooklyn Dodger holdouts capitulated today leaving only four unsigned.

Chick Outen, second-string catcher, and Pitcher Walter Beck are the latest athletes who have come to terms. Still unsatisfied are Al Lopez, Hack Wilson, Ray Bengo and Jimmy Jordan.

MACKS BEAT SCRUBS FT. MEYERS, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics regulars gave the training camp Yannigans another drubbing today, but it took them eight innings of a regulation nine-inning encounter to pull out a 6 to 3 victory.

A three-run eighth inning rally gave the regulars the victory after Vernon Kennedy and Alton Benton had limited them to six hits in seven innings.

Three of last year's hurling staff—Roy Mahaffey, Sugar Cain, and Bill Dietrich—pitched eight-hit ball collectively against the Yannigans.

RED SOX TO WIN SARASOTA, Fla., March 6 (AP)—After two days of practice, Manager "Bucky" Harris today claimed the American League pennant for his Boston Red Sox.

"I read where some New York betting commissioners have picked up for third place, behind the Senators and Yankees," he said. "If they think we're good enough for third, we'll win the pennant."

O'FARRELLS WIN TAMPA, Fla., March 6 (AP)—A scrub game of seven innings between adherents of Manager Bob O'Farrell and Coach Burt Shotton relieved the monotony of training for the Chicago Reds today. The O'Farrells with an all-catcher infield won, 6 to 1.

Harry Rice, Johnny Moose, Jim Bottomley and Paul Derringer were additions to the camp.

HOLOUT TROUBLE PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 6 (AP)—More "holdout trouble" developed in the Pittsburgh Pirates training camp today, this time in the form of Arky Vaughan, swashbuckling shortstop.

The first squad is working out daily, the second contingent is expected Thursday.

COLLINS ARRIVES BRADENTON, Fla., March 6 (AP)—James Collins, the Cardinals' first baseman, arrived this afternoon, leaving Shortstop Leo Durocher the only infielder missing from the Redbird training camp.

The Cardinals went through two long workouts under a blazing sun. When Manager Frankie Frisch called a halt, the squad had progressed so well a practice game was announced for tomorrow.

BRANDT ARRIVES ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Peters that Ed Brandt was a holdout were dispelled today when the big southpaw motored into the Boston Braves camp, two days late. He said a heavy storm in the north-west delayed his journey from Spokane, Wash., home.

The southpaw is unsigned.

BROWNS DRILL WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 6 (AP)—After a week of rain Florida ranted today and greeted the St. Louis Browns with sunshine as they held their first workout.

Sam West, one of five, unsigned this morning, came to terms and donned a uniform.

Twenty-four players went through practice.

In the Tiger's training camp here Cochrane said he regarded Hamlin as a "good spring pitcher" and would probably count on him in the early season grind.

WILSON PLEASED WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Manager James Wilson of the

SKIPPY—A Lost Attraction

Phillies sent his pitchers and catchers through a strenuous practice session today and when all the hard work was over expressed himself as well pleased.

Two more Brooklyn Dodger holdouts capitulated today leaving only four unsigned.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Joseph Krall, Chicago man who lives without a stomach, is hale, hearty, and hungry most of the time. His case is rare in medical history, and he is so far as records reveal, the only man who leads a normal healthy life without so important an organ.

Strange as it seems, when they removed his stomach they also removed his appetite for liquor and tobacco. Before the operation, according to Krall, he liked both but since then he cares for neither. His appetite for foods, on the other hand, has increased greatly and now in spite of his six small meals a day, he is generally hungry. Not only that, he is now able to eat and digest foods without his stomach which, while he had it, always gave him indigestion. Fritz is a 6 year old, and in three years he has sired 112 puppies, 12 States where complete recovery was made after such an operation.

Fritz, whose real name is Furti 12 times in Pacific Coast dog shows, and five of his puppies have won similar distinction.

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN"

After three years' travel in Europe, where she had gone following her father's death, young and beautiful Stanley Paige became bored and returned to New York to find the "something sort of sweet and important" which she felt she was missing. Stanley finds Perry, a sweet, handsome young lawyer, still as much in love with her as ever, but her own heart is untouched. She longs for someone to love—someone to really belong to. Then she meets the fascinating Drew Armitage. It is love at sight. Drew's most recent heart had been sophisticated Dennis St. John. In breaking with her, he said: "You know, Dennis, you're a lot like me—you know when a thing is ended and you accept it—gracefully." Marcia Wingate invites Stanley and Drew to a dinner party. Ned Wingate informs Stanley that the latter's lawyer, Charles Carleton, has been playing the market heavily and wonders if her funds are intact. Stanley's thoughts are all of Drew and she pays little attention to what Ned is saying.

CHAPTER EIGHT
"It was a nice party, Drew," Stanley let her silver cloak slide into his arms, went on into the drawing room. There was a tray holding a small decanter, glasses and thin crackers waiting for them. "It was a bum party—a whole evening spent eating and playing rotten bridge when I might have been alone with you!" Drew gathered her into his arms—held his lips just apart from hers. It was a little trick he had—it made the ultimate caress sweeter and more satisfying. Stanley pushed him away gently, turned to the tray. "Sherry, Drew?" "What for, darling? I don't need liquor when I have you, Stanley. You get into my blood and intoxicate me—you're more potent than old wine and much more exciting." "Drew—sometimes I wish you wouldn't talk like that," Stanley moved restlessly away from him. "You say things so easily—too easily." Drew did not follow her. He sat down on the davenport and his eyes grew a bit inscrutable. He poured a glass of sherry with steady fingers—held it up and watched the glow of lamplight pick out its deep color and intensify it. At one of the high, chintz hung windows Stanley stared out into frail moonlight. She wanted Drew to follow her, to take her into his arms, to tell her that he had never talked like that to any other girl, that he could talk like that to her because he loved her, because he loved her as she had never loved anyone before. She waited tensely, her fingers twisting about each other, her eyes staring into the empty street seeing nothing. And still Drew sat on the davenport and sipped his sherry a nd seemed quite gently unaware of her. It was the first time she had spoken like that—the first time that the words which had trembled so often in her heart had ever actually spilled over and been given voice by her lips. Perhaps it was because other times Drew's lips had stilled them; had quieted the restless sense of confusion and insecurity which sometimes took possession of her. It was odd that by the very ardor of his love-making he somehow frightened her and endangered the very emotions he aroused. But tonight she had spoken and the words had dispelled the fear and now all she wanted was reassurance—delightful reassurance. And Drew had not given it. Was perhaps not going to give it. At the thought she felt her lips stiffen, felt her heart contract with terror. She wanted more than anything to go to him—she knew, quite suddenly, that he was not going to come to her. "Stanley—come here." His voice was light, unemotional. There was gentle laughter in it—she knew, if she looked at him, she would find gentle laughter in his eyes. She turned swiftly. Went across the room to him. He pulled her down into his arms, ran his fingers through her hair, saw the naked misery in her eyes. Became swiftly compassionate. "Stanley—don't be a little fool. Don't try to judge me—or yourself—or love. It's beyond that sort of thing."

He kissed her then, not on her cheeks but on her eyelids; kissed them shut, closing out gently but firmly the misery in her eyes. "Do you want to get married, Stanley?" he asked her softly. "Is that what you love to do?" Huskily she answered him, above the swift beating of her heart, above the sharp tightening of her breath. "I think I do, Drew—I'm quite sure that is what love has always meant to me."

"When will you marry me, then, darling?" Light, his voice was, and ridiculously casual—as if he were asking her to dine with him or go walking—but his arms about her shoulders were hard and possessive. She shut her eyes swiftly, knew that as long as she lived, somewhere in her heart, she would always carry the exquisite scar of this moment. But she only said: "Sometime—not too long from now."

He laughed softly, brushed his face against the smooth fragrance of her hair. "Then that's quite settled?" "Let's not tell anyone, Drew, let's keep it just for us." "If you like, darling." "Tell me, Drew," she stirred restlessly in his arms, spoke with a sort of reluctant hesitancy, "have you ever been engaged before or am I—the first?" "Funny child, what made you think of that—just now?" "Because—somehow it seems important—just now."

"You want me to tell you 'no,' don't you, Stanley?" "I suppose—I do." Softly she said it, almost she whispered it. "Then listen carefully, darling." He tipped her head back with his hand, let his eyes sink deep into hers, blinding her with their suddenly aroused, passionate reassurance. "I have never been engaged to any girl before—you are the first, darling—it's sort of a gift from me to you—if you will take it."

"I know, Drew," she laughed, sweet it was, and breathless, that hushed laughter of hers, "a gift from you to me—something you have saved for me—always—and never given to anyone else—something that is mine."

"Darling—" He caught her to him fiercely, pressing her face suddenly against his shoulder—there was something in her face just then he didn't want to see; he felt that there must be something in his that she ought not to see—chagrin and even sorrow—that his gift to her must of necessity be so small and so pathetically bereft of company. In that moment Drew knew regret and a sort of fierce remorse; regret that he had been so prodigal with certain very ardent emotions, remorse that he had so few unexplored ones left.

In June Marcia moved to her house in Long Island. She invited Stanley to spend a month with her. Stanley refused. Pleasantly but definitely, Marcia was annoyed. She let Stanley see that she was. "Everyone knows you're staying on here in town just to be near Drew," she told her frankly and a bit crossly one afternoon, having tea with her in an uptown hotel. "Of course, it's none of my business, but why be so obvious about a man? Come on out to Greenbriar for a month. You can have your precious Drew every week-end, more often if he can manage it."

Stanley shook her head. "I'm sorry, Marcia. It's nice of you to want me. But I'm staying in town through this month anyhow."

Marcia stared at her reflectively. Decided she had never seen Stanley looking so well nor so completely lovely. Wondered if she was engaged to Drew. Decided she probably was and that she was doubtfully finding the experience exceedingly absorbing. Deliberated whether to attempt to secure any accurate information on the subject and decided definitely against it.

"No one can blame you, I suppose," she conceded, resuming the conversation a bit testily. "He's a fascinating creature. Of course, you realize that half the women in our crowd have been in love with him—and the other half still are. However, I expect that all that really matters is that just at present he is in love with you."

"I expect it is," Stanley's voice was even but her hands were shaking with anger. She lifted her chin defiantly. Not for the world would she have let Marcia see that she had attacked her at a most vulnerable point.

But Marcia did see it, and not being a really spiteful sort, regretted it immediately. She changed the subject abruptly. "What do you hear from Perry, Stan?" "Oh, the usual thing—he's up in Canada now."

"He's never really recovered from you, you know."

"Don't be silly, Marsh, it was never at all serious."

"Not with you probably. But I've an idea it was about the most serious thing that ever happened to him. He's taken his women very lightly since you, Stan."

"Perhaps he prefers them that way. Some men do."

Marcia shrugged. "Well, I've got to be running along. I hate these days I have to come into town—by five o'clock I always manage to look a wreck. While you—" she sighed enviously—"how do you do it, Stan? Keep so darned beautiful and well-powdered and cool-looking? No wonder I'm only two years older than you but you always managed to make me look ten. Forgive me for being a beast and if you change your mind about leaving town, remember we'll be delighted to have you."

"I'll remember that, and thanks a lot," Stanley smiled at her. She was no longer angry but she was glad Marcia was going. More and more she found herself wanting to withdraw from all contact with Marcia and Marcia's friends. She tried to think that it was because she preferred to have Drew quite to herself but sometimes, like today, she wondered if this was true or if it was something else; something more subtle and much more insidious. A sort of menace that lay in all that had gone before and seemed to be always rising up and threatening her. She didn't like to be reminded, as she had been today, that things had ever been any different; that Drew had ever known other women intimately—been loved by them. She tried to shut her mind resolutely to all this—and most of the time she succeeded and was utterly, completely happy.
