Prof. Sidney L. Miller of the College of Commerce was Elected First President of the Mid-West Economic Association at its Initial Meeting at Northwestern University last week end.

Approximately 60 men representing larger schools of the midwestern area attended the conference and by a unanimous vote established the group as a permanent organization of economists of this section of the country.

Although there is no official connection at present, it is expected that the group will become affiliated with the American Economic Society at some date in the near future.

The conference was arranged through the efforts of members of the staff of the University of Iowa's college of commerce.

Although no definite plans have been made it is expected that the association will meet at St. Louis or some place west of Chicago next year. After next year meetings will probably be held in Chicago every other year and at some place west of Chicago on the alternate years.

Representatives of the college of commerce of the University of Iowa attending the conference included Professor Miller, Prof. Dale Yoder, Prof. Richard W. Nelson, Prof. C. Woody Thompson, Prof. Harold McCarty, Prof. William F. Bristol, Prof. George R. Davies, Prof. John E. Partington, Prof. Edward B. Reuter, Paul R. Olson, Walter F. Crowder, Edward L. Lloyd, and Dean Chester A. Phillips.

Installation of Pipe Line to Start in Two Weeks

Coralville voted three to one yesterday to grant the Iowa City Light and Power company two 25 year franchises, one for natural gas and one for electricity.

The official vote was gas franchise for, 104; against, 36. Electric lights: for, 101; against, 38.

There were 140 votes cast. Installation Soon

Work on the installation of the natural gas lines will begin in approximately two weeks. Manager C. H. Myers said last night, and will take about a month for complete installation. All the labor will be hired in Iowa City and Coralville. The rates to Coralville on gas are considerably lower than the manufactured gas of Iowa City.

The election was called after a number of Coralville residents petitioned for a vote on the franchises. Coralville at present has no gas service.

Mayor Ed Koser, who is beginning his thirty-fourth year as head of the city administration, said, in regard to the election:

"The granting of the natural gas franchise and the extension of the electric franchise by the citizens of Coralville means much to the future growth and prosperity of our community.

"The attractive rate at which natural gas is to be served will undoubtedly bring this modern convenience into most of our homes in the very near future.

"As mayor of the town, and as a citizen interested in its future, I wish to thank all the good folks of Coralville, my friends and neighbors, who have had any part in making possible this important civic accomplishment."

Manager Myers said, "I am pleased, of course, with the results of the election on the Coralville franchises. This will enable the company to compete a purchase contract with the pipe line company and order the main and service materials necessary for the distribution of natural gas.

"Such orders will be placed in a few days and we hope construction work can be begun in two or three weeks. Every effort will be made to use local labor throughout.

"The new electric franchise extends our license to sell electricity to present and prospective customers, and to make extensions and betterments from time to time as are required to give good service.

People Thanked

"We pledge our best efforts under the new franchises to render dependable and satisfactory gas and electric service, and we hope that our business relations with the people and city officials of Coralville will be as pleasant in the future as they have been in the past.

"The company and all of its employees sincerely thank the voters of Coralville for their expression of confidence, and the granting of the right to serve them."

Dohrer to send absent voter ballots to him and his wife in Paris.

The ballots are being printed this week.

Auto Strike Avoided, But Others Loom

Railway Labor Heads Ask Conference Today

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Pending acceptance by one of the three proposed members, announcement of the personnel of the automobile labor board was withheld tonight until tomorrow.

(By the Associated Press)

The automobile production line moved along serenely yesterday with the menace of an imminent strike removed, but there were other industrial plants where schisms between capital and labor threatened to toss a wrench into the works.

Having averted an automobile strike, President Roosevelt was approached by railway labor leaders with a request for a conference before he leaves Tuesday night for a fishing trip.

Anxious to settle the rail wage question, the union men had engaged in four conferences with Joseph B. Eastman, federal arbitrator, and reference to a board of mediation seemed likely.

Taxicab Strike

Leaders of the New York taxicab strike were called in by Mayor La Guardia to explain the renewal of violence, and a grand jury investigation of the disorders began simultaneously.

Police used tear gas bombs to break up a demonstration by pickets at the Cleveland worsted mills plant, and two men and a woman were arrested.

Eaton Manufacturing company employees accepted a wage increase and called off a threatened strike. The strike of 500 Addressograph-Multigraph company workers went on, however, as they refused to "lack of confidence in the management" to accept a tentative agreement.

While most elements of labor and employers rejoiced at the settlement of the automobile situation, Matthew Smith, general manager of the Mechanics Educational Society of America, said the federation of labor was "outsmarted" and the agreement held "more germs of future industrial strife than the pre-dispute set-up."

Student Volunteers Hear C. Bernheisel Tell of Work Abroad

"Intelligence accompanied by broad-mindedness, ability to get along with people, faith in his work, and unselfishness" are the four most important qualities of a foreign worker, Charles Bernheisel, G of Pyengyang, Korea, told members of the Student Volunteers Sunday morning at a regular meeting.

Because natives are starting to think for themselves and ask questions a foreign worker must try to answer intelligently, intelligence is needed more than ever, he said.

Because of spring vacation, there will be no meeting of the club next Sunday.

Prof. Pollock Talks To Intercollegiate Civic League on Light Plant

Roosevelt Vetoes Independent Offices Supply Bill; Asserts Vet Clause Jeopardizes Budget

Attitude on Restoring Federal Pay Cut Not Known

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt tonight wrote a veto message for the independent offices supply bill, carrying the disputed veterans benefit amendment. It will be transmitted to congress tomorrow.

The president was known to believe that the veterans benefit liberalization, amounting to approximately $38,000,000, would jeopardize the budget.

His position on the restoration of the federal paycut, costing considerably more than $100,000,000, was not immediately known. The bill with these two amendments was given final congressional approval today.

Mr. Roosevelt tonight was believed ready also to tell the limit to which he will go in liberalization of the veterans' economy bill past a year ago.

Because he is leaving the capital tomorrow night on a long-planned fishing trip, it is expected Mr. Roosevelt will seek action on his veto message tomorrow.

Committee Meets Today

Mr. Sidwell was appointed by Mayor Harry D. Breen, Dr. Bywater by the Chamber of Commerce board of directors and Professor Leib, who teaches industrial management, by President Walter A. Jessup. All three have accepted the appointments.

The committee will meet this morning at the American Legion Community building. They will attempt to sift out the facts of the local utility situation and present an unprejudiced account designed to be an aid upon which an intelligent vote may be made.

Report Expected

Both the Iowa City Light and Power company and the Iowa City Municipal Ownership league have been invited to participate in the plan, with the light company accepting and the municipal league refusing. The municipal ownership league, in its refusal, stated that the information should go directly to the public rather than second-hand through a committee, also that intervention at this time might do more harm than good to all concerned.

It is expected that the committee report will be completed at least a week before the election date, April 17.

Tornado Hits New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 26 (AP)—A densely-populated area of modest homes in lower New Orleans was conveyed into a mass of twisted wreckage within the twinkling of an eye today when a tornado wind dipped down and scattered houses, automobiles and furniture over a two-mile sector.

Within the same hour less severe disturbances struck in Lafayette parish, southwest Louisiana and at Tallulah, northeast Louisiana. The New Orleans weather bureau said a 75-mile wind had been located high in the air, moving eastward over Mississippi.

Twelve persons were hurt here, including eight women and an infant, and hospital attendants said said some of them might die.

Scores of others were injured less critically.

Approximately 400, their lives spared, were left homeless in the New Orleans disturbance, which demolished 50 homes and damaged 100 others.

The storm struck here at 8 a.m., but late today many of those who lived in the section were still wandering through the littered streets, resisting police efforts to get them under shelter from an all-day cloud-burst of rain which accompanied the wind. So suddenly had their homes been demolished, they were still unable to realize what had happened.

The Red Cross took charge of the homeless and destitute and police patrolled the area to prevent looting.

A Negro was injured in Lafayette parish as the wind uprooted trees and felled rural buildings.

S.U.I. Expects Construction of Theater to Start in Month

Architects Begin Plans Yesterday

PWA Project Located Across River From Iowa Union

Drafting of plans for a new theater for the University of Iowa were begun yesterday, university officials announced last night. It is expected that the construction on the new building, which will be built as a PWA project, will begin in four or five weeks.

Tentative plans call for the erection of the new building, which will be part of the fine arts unit now under construction across the river from Iowa Union, to be directly north of the main building of the fine arts college.

Plans Changed

Unlike the first plans which were outlined last summer, the auditorium of the new structure will be somewhat smaller. The stage, however, will be the same size as was planned at that time except it will not be so high.

The seating capacity of the new building will probably be about 500. It will have no balcony and will be built with amphitheater style seating arrangement. The floor will be inclined to allow complete visibility from any part of the auditorium.

The PWA contribution to this new building will be 30 per cent of the total cost. The remaining 70 per cent will be furnished by the university. The university will also pay for all equipment in the new building, university officials announced.

Newest Project

University theater is the latest part of the university's building program to be begun. It will be the first time in the history of the university that a theater has been housed alone.

At present University theater presentations are given in natural science auditorium and in a studio theater, recently equipped in old dentistry building. The new theater will unify the work of the department, providing for laboratories in which stagecraft, lighting, costumes, and other classes will be conducted.

It is expected that the new theater will be ready for use at the opening of the regular school year next September.

Mable Drops New Middleton Play

"Hiss! Boom!! Blah!!!" a new play by George Middleton, which was scheduled for 12 presentations during April on a regular community series by University theater, has been dropped from production schedule, Prof. Edward C. Mable, head of the speech and dramatic arts department, announced last night. The reason given is the beginning of work on the new University theater building.

Substituted for this play will be a comedy by Rose Franken, "Another Language," which will be given in natural science auditorium April 18, 19, and 21; under the direction of Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of University theater.

Tryouts for "Another Language" and the May play, "Kick-In," by Willard Mack, which will be presented May 8, 9, and 10 under the direction of Edmund Evans, G of Dayson, Utah, began last night.

"Work on construction of the new University theater building began this morning," Professor Mable announced yesterday. "From now on, it will demand all of my attention."

To members of the cast of "Hiss! Boom!! Blah!!!" Professor Mable issued the following statement: "I regret that we have to discontinue the work on 'Hiss! Boom!! Blah!!!' and I want to thank you all for everything that has been done on it. 'I hope someday we may make a production of it with stage equipment such as the new theater will provide.'"

It was alleged that she robbed Oscar Olson, farmer living near Tipton, of $15 on March 19. The criminal charge was dismissed on payment of $15 to Mr. Olson and court costs. The entire family of gypsies, about 10, was ordered out of town.

Greek-Letter Service Group Will Meet Today

Student members of the board of a new university corporation, the Fraternity and Sorority Business Service, Inc., will be elected at a meeting of social group representatives in the board room of Old Capitol at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Roosevelt tonight was believed ready also to tell the limit to which he will go in liberalization of the veterans' economy bill past a year ago.

Because he is leaving the capital tomorrow night on a long-planned fishing trip, it is expected Mr. Roosevelt will seek action on his veto message tomorrow.

Macbride, 'Very Low,' Fights On

Only Hard Battle Is Preventing Death Of S. U. I. Man

Physicians late last night abandoned hope for the life of Thomas Huston Macbride, president emeritus of the University of Iowa, who underwent an operation in Swedish hospital, Seattle, Wash., Friday.

Death was a matter of hours, his physician, Dr. H. G. King, told the Associated Press.

President Emeritus Macbride, 55, failed to rally after an operation for acute stenosis of the bladder. Hospital officials reported last night that he was "near death, and growing weaker."

A late bulletin issued by his personal physician said that he was "holding his own." The bulletin said that his condition probably would not change through the night.

Physicians said last night that only his "strong vitality" was keeping the former president alive.

Gold Rush! Scientists Discover Chemical Argosy On Seacoast

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26 (AP)—A chemical argosy which outdoes the dreams of Jason and promises to tap profitably some of the three-quadrillion dollars worth of gold in the sea was announced to the American Chemical society today.

This promise not only of gold, but silver, radium, tin, iron, nickel, lead, vanadium, mercury and nearly a score of other minerals, was made in the first report of a dazzling commercial success for a new kind of chemical plant that opened two months ago near Wilmington, N.C.

The plant takes bromine from Atlantic ocean tide water. To the chemists it was described as the "wildest and boldest" American commercial venture in a decade. Already, from a flow of 25,000 gallons of sea water a minute, it is taking $1,000,000 worth of bromine a year.

Chemists describe it as the beginning of a new industrial era. Ten years was set as the probable time needed to perfect extraction of the metal which will follow bromine.

In the Wilmington plant they discovered that the bromine process was "ionizing" the gold in the Atlantic seawater. It was giving the almost infinitely minute dissolved gold particles an electrical charge by which they may be attracted to stick to filters.

Nila Cook Weds in N. Y. Shipboard Romance Preceded Marriage To Mess Boy

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Nila Cram Cook, the plump, brown-eyed Iowa girl who became a disciple of Mahatma Gandhi in India, was married today to Albert N. Hutchins, who described himself as a writer.

"Hutchins was signed as a mess boy on the liner City of Elmwood on which Miss Cook returned to New York Saturday," said Frederick Fender, assistant marine superintendent of the International mercantile marine.

Under Tropical Skies

From this statement it was believed that this new romance in the life of the spectacular Miss Cook, who said upon her return, "I want to play on the banks of the Mississippi," had its origin on shipboard, under tropical skies, after she was deported from India.

Hutchins, rather shy and ill at ease, pleaded with city officials at the municipal building that there be "no publicity." Miss Cook, daughter of the late poet, George Cram Cook, gave her age as 25. Hutchins said he was 28, the son of William Hutchins of Chicago.

Witnesses

They arrived at 4 o'clock just as the marriage license bureau was closing, with Leslie Pulenwider and George S. O'Neal, who witnessed the marriage. Deputy City Clerk Barry performed the ceremony.

Then, shielding Miss Cook from everyone who sought to talk with her, the men hurried her toward the elevators. But this route proved too slow for their purposes and, breaking into a run, they dashed downstairs, scurried out of the building and disappeared.

Susan Glaspell, author and step-mother of Miss Cook, said at her home: "I didn't know a thing about it. Indeed, it is surprising news to me. Truly."

Married Before

Miss Cook and her father left Davport some years ago to live on the slopes of Mount Parnassus in Greece and there capture anew the classic spirit of life.

While in Greece she married Tokyo Proestotes. That marriage ended in divorce in Athens, March 28, 1922, on grounds of incompatibility.

Deadline Set For Seniors

Must File Applications For Diplomas By Saturday

All students who expect to receive degrees or certificates at the university convocation in June should make formal application for them at the registrar's office on or before next Saturday, it has been announced by H. C. Dorcas, registrar.

Making application for the degree certificate also involves the payment of the graduation fee at the time the application is made. It will be necessary for those expecting to graduate to comply with this request to assure recommendation for graduation and to receive literature sent out to them.

The annual reception given to senior students by President and Mrs. Walter A. Jessup will be given April 25 this year. The reception is being held earlier this year because President Jessup and Mrs. Jessup will leave the university May 1.

CWA Artists Design 2 Sculptural Panels For Sioux City Park

Two sculptural relief panels for a musical pavilion and outdoor theater being built for Grandview park in Sioux City by CWA workers are being designed by CWA artists working in Iowa City. This new project is under the direction of Herschel Elarth.

Mr. Elarth has chosen Pan to represent pastoral music in one of the panels and a muse or nymph to represent lyrical music in the other. The subjects are being given a formalized treatment to harmonize with the modern classic design of the entire building.

The brick shell is to be of cast concrete and the panels are to be placed on either side of the stake. The architect of the building is Henry L. Kamphefner.

In addition to the 40 actives and pledges, Mrs. Fout, alumnae president, and Mrs. Liechty, alumnae adviser, and Mrs. Boyles will be present. Ruth Lewis, A3 of Osage, is in charge of the dinner.

Spring Styles for Evening, Street and Beach

With American designers more to the fore than ever, the new Spring styles show a remarkable reversion to femininity. Gone is the mannish note that predominated in the styles of the past few years. Here are a few of the creations seen at a recent preview. At left, Sylvia Sidney, film star, wears an evening gown of crinkly crepe, embroidered with a flower design in red and yellow. With it she wears a shirred jacket in red velvet. Top center, Norma Shearer displays another velvet evening jacket in cadet blue with high petal collar. Lower, an orange-blossom design in a Springy dress of gay print, and at right, the last word in bathing attire. The two-piece suit consists of a brassiere and wrap-around trunks, brilliantly colored in two shades of blue and white.

NEW YORK (I.N.)—In the spring milady's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of clothes. Furs are packed away in mothballs and the big question of the moment is: "Will Dame Fashion's dicta differ much from her 1933 course?"

Femininity Keynote

According to the style moguls, the mannish fad that created a mild sensation this time last year is definitely gone the way of Aunt Matilda's vegetable garden hat. Femininity is the keynote of the new spring fashions. The hard mannish note, prominent in milady's clothes for the last several seasons will be conspicuous by its absence, although a trimly tailored effect of simplicity is still the rule for some occasions.

Another gratifying fact, for Americans, is that Paris does not dominate Dame Fashion this year. The influence of Hollywood never was more apparent than it is in this year's vernal offerings. And the American designers have demonstrated that Hollywood constitutes a real threat to the fashion supremacy of the French capital.

There is no radical change in material this year. Satin for evenings still holds the spot light, with crepes running a close second. Velvet does not get such a big play in the new offerings, but gay prints are in great favor.

The passing of prohibition provided a new field for designers. For the cocktail hour is rapidly becoming the really fashionable time of the day, when milady displays the pride of her wardrobe. Hollywood designers have surpassed themselves in creating beautiful ensembles for beautiful wearers who like to bend an elbow. While lacking the formality of the traditional after-sunset creation, the cocktail gown has won a niche of its own and, in time, bids fair to surpass in grandeur the formal gown.

For street wear, the swagger suit still holds the limelight. A preview of the season's offerings revealed that tweed is the favored material for this type of suit. The coat, too, has changed a little, going a little more than the former three-quarter length. Some swagger ensembles boast the hat to match, but others are topped off with felts, the "Confederate" type chapeau, with a new jauntiness, being considered the ideal adjunct.

Sport to the Fro

Apparently the designers have recognized that Miss America is determined to be fashionable in her sporting activities as she is on her social round. Never have sports clothes been so well taken care of as this year.

From spectator ensembles for polo to beach attire, there is a new and glamorous range of creations that combine smartness and jauntiness in a manner never before achieved.

The beach enthusiast of 1934 will be a riot of color. Lounging pajamas and bathing suits feature every color in the spectrum. The swim suit, in particular, is designed not only for decorative value but also to permit the wearer freedom of movement unobtainable in the former "don't-go-near-the-water" creation.

Liners are back in favor this year, and with them a new note of sophistication. The sailor suit of former years is copied and brought up to the minute with charming effect for seaside wear. Too, it is used extensively in tennis clothes and for spectator sports.

Velvet, while somewhat out of the picture in formal evening gowns, finds favor for the short evening jackets that accompany the creations. These little jackets are turned out in some charming designs in reds, blues and the darker shades of green.

Most important of all, from the couturiers' viewpoint, the new clothes are in demand. The tidal wave of returning prosperity has stimulated buying and many of the foremost houses already are inundated with orders.

Publicity Policy Of Company Criticized By League

The publicity policy of the Iowa City Light and Power company was criticized by the Iowa City League of Women Voters in a discussion of the municipal ownership of the light company at its meeting yesterday in the public library.

It was brought out in the discussion that the company's contention that President Roosevelt looks with disfavor on most municipally-owned utilities is in direct opposition to his sponsorship of the government ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals, which would supply light and power to the Tennessee valley district.

The skilled employees of the light company, the league pointed out, would be the first to be employed by the municipal plant should such a plant be established.

Delegates elected to represent the local league at the state convention in Estherville this week were: Mrs. Dorrance S. White, president; Mrs. E. B. Klingaman, Ruth Gallaher, and Mrs. Philip C. Jeans.

Prof. I. L. Pollock of the political science department continued his discussion of "The manufacture and sale of arms," begun at a previous meeting.

SEEN

from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

This department can't quite be sure of the sincerity of the two women who appeared at Phi Beta Delta fraternity Sunday, shortly after noon. They had apparently lost their way, looking for a certain campus sorority house. When they knocked on the door of the Phi B. D. house, three men answered, but the women were not to be thwarted. "Is this the ——— sorority," they inquired.

Iowa Union's main lounge was cast in a new role Sunday afternoon, during the reading of "Flush," by Prof. Gertrude Johnson of the University of Wisconsin. By actual count, there were at least eight members of the audience who slept soundly during a large part of the reading.

It seems that a certain sorority on the campus requires of its pledges that they write letters to members of a given fraternity—or at least that is the way the story is told. At any rate, one of these letters is in the possession of this department, and I quote: "My dearest angel Lee:

"Ah! It is spring! There is romance in the air! Just a mention of your name leaves me bewildered and spellbound. I am so stunned when I gaze into your beautiful big blue passionate eyes that I am unable to utter a word. Your dark black curly hair, my darling, is the most gorgeous I have ever laid eyes on. And, my dearest, when I look at your dainty feet, they remind me of steamboats plugging down the Mississippi. Do you love your sugar plum, darling?"

There is much more of the same in the letter, which is signed, "Marie," that even I hesitate to publish. And, horror of horrors, the letter is soaked in Ben-Hur perfume to such an extent that it is almost impossible to approach it very closely. And we are said to be a class of intelligent humans . . .

Students in Prof. A. Craig Baird's argumentation and debate class evidently take their academic work seriously. When Professor Baird failed to appear at the classroom recently, the students took it upon themselves to run things. They elected a chairman, selected a topic to discuss, and started. Some of them became so interested that they missed luncheon, arguing from 11 a.m. until 12:30!

It is reported that university students are always looking for "pipe" courses. Two couples returning from the Currier formal party Saturday night evidently found one. They were walking the iron pipe railing which bounds Old Capitol campus on the east . . .

F. I. Z. reports her sorrows in these lines, which she has titled "Lament":

"I, too, have sung love songs Into the empty arches of the night; Watched them go down the wind, Echoing out of sight.

But never did any man, hearing, Come back down the highway, Though I sat on a stone Waiting, till break of day."

PLANE AND PILOT FOUND

The disappearance of the great liner had been one of the mysteries of aviation.

Miss Todd Talks To Botany Club On Medical Mycology

"The field of medical mycology is really not a 'field,'" said Ramona Todd, G of Norman, Okla., in talking on the subject to members of the Botany club yesterday afternoon. "It is more of a vacant lot."

Medical mycology, a comparatively new field, was defined by Miss Todd as "that branch of medicine which deals with fungi as related to animal disease." Its history was traced by the speaker with some discussion of its workers.

Little is known about fungus diseases, much less than is known about bacterial diseases, she indicated. Ringworms were cited as a type of such diseases, a common example of which is "athlete's foot."

Museum Displays Moths, Butterflies Of North America

Prof. Johnson Reads 'Flush' At Iowa Union

The "eternal triangle" idea — an entirely new phase of it — was uncovered Sunday afternoon in the main lounge of Iowa Union by Prof. Gertrude Johnson of the University of Wisconsin, who presented portions of Virginia Woolf's biography, "Flush," to a record audience.

Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, the human parts of the triangle, were not aware of the third element in their romance. But Flush, who was "not an ordinary dog," was jealous of his mistress' love for the poet and used all his powers—including his teeth—to stop it.

Pure biography of a dog would have been a deadly stroke for an inexperienced reader to attempt. Professor Johnson, with her professional knowledge and her personal ability, succeeded in turning from biography to psychological drama of love, hate, jealousy, and admiration seen through the eyes of a philosophical creature, more human than even an "extraordinary" dog could dream of being.

Clear imagery, striking changes of rhythm, clever gestures, and a projected sincerity were largely responsible for the success of the presentation. Ripples of pleasant amusement indicated that the audience was enjoying the sophisticated presentation of "a dog's life."

Prof. Martin Leads Last Conference Of Philosophy Series

The series of "Philosophies of Living" conferences will end this afternoon with a meeting conducted by Prof. Herbert Martin, acting head of the philosophy department, to be held at 4:10 in the river room of Iowa Union.

Tickets to this afternoon's conference may be secured, free of charge, at Iowa Union desk or at the religious activities office.

Professor Martin is the fourth leader of this series of conferences. Preceding him were Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department; Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the Romance languages department; and Prof. George R. Davies of the college of commerce.

The aim of this series of conferences has been to promote more intimate student-faculty relationships. At each conference, the faculty leader has spoken on phases of his own philosophy of life.

Rock Formations Discussed. Prairie du Chien rock formations were discussed by Elliot Powers of the geology department in a talk at a bi-monthly meeting of the Geology club in geology building yesterday.

Bordwell to Lead Law Discussion

Plans are being discussed at Marshall college, Huntington, W. Va., for the establishment of a college R.O.T.C. unit.

Reds Face National League Season With Greater Hustle, Confidence Under O'Farrell

Recent Trades Should Increase All-Around Strength

TAMPA, Fla., March 26 (AP)—If their performances in the grapefruit circuit are a criterion, the Cincinnati Reds will no longer be the push-over of the National League this season.

Under new ownership and management, the Reds have an entirely different outlook on baseball life, as a consequence of which they are showing more hustle and spirit than at any time in recent years.

Confident "It is remarkable what a little more confidence in the future will do for a ball club," says Manager Bob O'Farrell, who has now been halfway around the National League and spent most of his baseball life in the company of pennant contenders.

Senators Rest Biloxi, Miss., March 26 (AP)—It will be a long time before Clark Griffith sends his Senators against another team of sandlotters.

Browns Win Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., March 26 (AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby, going in at first base in the fifth inning, conducted his St. Louis Browns to victory over the Buffalo Bisons today, 5 to 7, in an 11-inning contest.

Benton Goes Route Bradenton, Fla., March 26 (AP)—Alton Benton, County Mack's recruit from Oklahoma City, pitched nine innings for the Athletics today, scattered six Cardinal hits over a 2 to 2 defeat of the Red Birds.

Look for Cornelack "I look for a real come-back by Paul Derringer, still young and possessed with as much ability as any right-hander in the league.

Trishmann Wins Day's High With 288 Peoria, Ill., March 26 (AP)—A couple of post office employees from Chicago stamped themselves into the American bowling congress record books today when they walked off with honors which should earn them a good chunk of the cash awards.

Trishmann rolled a 288 game in the singles. It was the highest game that has been rolled so far in the individual event and the second highest of this congress.

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN"

By Allene Corliss

Stanley Paige, beautiful, young society girl, is left penniless when her lawyer speculates with her money and loses. Stanley, however, cares little for the money, feeling that she has everything in the love of fascinating Drew Armitage. But when Drew breaks their engagement, saying it would be impossible to marry on his income, she is heartbroken. Rather than accept aid from her wealthy friends, Stanley rents a cheap furnished room and disappears from her exclusive circle to try and make her own way. Her friends agree that a better way would have been to marry handsome Perry Deverest, but Stanley cannot forget Drew. One day, she meets John Harmon Northrup, struggling young author. A strong friendship ensues and they become very necessary to one another. John Harmon is in love with Stanley but refrains from telling her because of Drew. At the beach, he catches her in his arms as she is about to fall. Her nervous intoxication him. He tells himself he must never let it happen again but, try as he might, he cannot forget the ecstasy of that moment.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

He passed Stanley and reached the beach first. She came out of the ocean, shaking the water from her eyes, pulling off her tight scarlet cap. "Let's build us a fire, John Harmon. I'm simply freezing cold!" They found driftwood and piled it up on the sand. The slow gray smoke hung heavily in the air, burst suddenly into blue flames, sprang into a leaping red blaze. Stanley investigated the lunch basket and found some sandwiches. They ate them hungrily, sweaters tied about their shoulders, bodies relaxed and tingling in the warmth of the fire.

"I mustn't look at her," John Harmon thought desperately. "We must keep on talking," he thought. And there was nothing to say. "I've known this for a long time, but I've never admitted it. I never intended to—I don't intend to now." And he kept his eyes fixed on the ocean.

"It's been a day to remember," Stanley said softly, poking the fire with a sunbleached twig. "It's been lovely and gentle and sort of wistful. Haven't you felt like that about it, John Harmon?"

He nodded, still refusing her his eyes. "October is like that—beautiful and breathtaking and sort of poignant." He hesitated a bit over the last word. He was still a little shy about words like that. It was still easier to write them than to speak them.

"It's like an enchanting interlude," he went on slowly, "giving lavishly, promising nothing. That's what makes it so unbearably lovely. Stanley, the sense of elusiveness one feels about a day like this, the sense of flight, sustained for a moment, then gone forever." His voice stopped abruptly on a rough, tight note. It was not the day he was describing, but this other thing—this tremulous, fragile relationship between himself and this slim girl beside him. . . an enchanting interlude promising nothing, the sense of flight—sustained for a moment, then gone forever.

Stanley was not looking at him. Her eyes were on the fire. She answered him softly, slowly. "That's all life is—don't you think?"—beautiful moments held for a space, then gone forever." A searing little pain flicked John Harmon's heart. He knew that note in Stanley's voice, he'd heard it often enough, heaven knows! He knew what he would find in her eyes, if he had the courage to look, knew the twisted, galling little smile that would be lying on her lips. She hadn't forgotten. She might never

SINCE THEY THREW THAT PARTY, NO ONE SHOWS UP FOR TEAM PRACTICE

Even today the ancient path of the buffalo is used, for the Overland Trail is roughly paralleled by rail and highway systems, even by commercial air lines. Judge Joseph Sabath who has presided over 40,000 divorce cases in the Chicago court of domestic relations, not only grants divorces—he also prevents them. Fully 2,000 couples who came before him to be divorced have gone away reconciled after a little advice from America's foremost divorce jurist.

THEY'RE ALL STUDYIN' TO BE PRESIDENTS.

"Strange As It Seems"

The Overland Trail, over which thousands of settlers traveled into Western United States, is perhaps the most historic thoroughfare in this country. It stretched 2,000 miles into the west from Missouri, and proved to be the easiest possible and most direct route for cross-country wagon trains. Yet, strange as it seems, it was laid out, marked and traveled not by engineers or roadbuilders, not
