Wirt Inquiry Is Likely to Close Without Result

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The six persons who attended a Virginia dinner party last September at which Dr. William A. Wirt said today he heard the "brain trust" planned revolution will tell a house committee about it next Tuesday but all indications tonight were the inquiry would end right there.

Wirt made it plain he felt Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, was the leader in a movement to undermine the constitution. But the three Democratic committee members did not express great concern after the hearing.

Perspiring profusely and standing on tiptoe in his earnestness, Wirt referred to Tugwell time and time again. He also wanted the committee to call Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, and William I. Westervelt, former AAA official, to see if they would substantiate his charges.

Once the committee room that was crowded with celebrities and plain citizens emptied, the five members talked it over and decided the three men and three women at the Virginia dinner would appear next week—and that was all.

Omaha police turned Waits over to the department of justice for prosecution on a charge of violating the Dyer act.

Beh Jury Hears Of Stormy Day At PWA Office

DAVENPORT, April 10 (AP)—The narrative of a stormy scene in the office of Edward H. Foley Jr., assistant general counsel of the national public works administration in Washington, featured the trial of Carleton D. Beh, Des Moines investment broker, today.

"Not Going to Take My Bread"

Foley, called as a government witness, related on the witness stand how Beh threatened to seek an injunction to restrain applicants from getting loans from the PWA.

"Beh told me the government wasn't going to take the bread out of my mouth," Foley testified.

The threat came when Beh, who is being tried on a charge of forgery of a public document, went to Foley's office in Washington with Harold M. Cooper of Marshalltown, chairman of the state advisory board, to discuss loans and grants, Foley said.

Conference Last August

The conference took place the last week in August, Foley testified and centered around a discussion of the use of the grant in PWA projects.

"The people of Iowa would rather be indebted for bonds on public projects to their own people than to those in other states," Foley said Beh told him.

Illinois Vote Follows Party Lines Closely

CHICAGO, April 10 (AP)—In the absence of marked issues, Illinois voters in the first state wide primary since the 1932 Democratic landslide today apparently selected practically all nominees backed by regular Republican and Democratic organizations.

On the basis of incomplete returns, only two of the incumbent 18 Democratic congressmen were likely to be ousted by Democrats. One apparently lost to another candidate who was backed by the party organization and another was running slightly behind.

Democratic leaders, admitting that little of the campaign had been based on controversies over the new deal, said, however, that they regarded the approval of the incumbents as approval for the national and state administrations.

Only in two congressional districts—the twentieth, home of Speaker Henry T. Rainey, and the tenth—were there campaigns that might be construed particularly as involving aspects of the Roosevelt regime.

Rainey, up for renomination, claimed in the campaign that Wall Street poured money in to the district to defeat him. Early returns showed no support for Rainey.

Also Declines Boost In Surtaxes Higher Than Committee Rates

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—By 46 to 44, the senate today refused to levy an additional one-year emergency tax of 10 per cent on all individual income tax returns in 1935.

It also rejected without a roll call a proposal to boost surtaxes beyond the finance committee rates which already are higher than existing levies.

$95,000,000 Total

The 10 per cent emergency tax, proposed by Senator Couzens (R. Mich.), would have raised an estimated $55,000,000. The higher surtaxes, suggested by Senator King (D. Utah), would have yielded another $40,000,000.

There still was conceded to be a chance of adopting higher inheritance levies which would bring in an additional $92,000,000. Senator LaFollette (R. Wis.) will propose such an amendment.

Tie Vote

The vote was so close that a recapitulation was ordered. It disclosed a tie, 45 to 45, which was sufficient to defeat it. But Couzens switched from "aye" to "no" to move reconsideration. He expects to seek another vote later.

Chairman Harrison (D. Miss.) of the finance committee swung the decision against the Couzens amendment. He previously announced he would accept the proposal and let it go to conference with the house, but explained "considerable opposition" had arisen and since he was speaking only for himself and the committee had not recommended the proposition he elected to stand by the committee. House administration leaders also had expressed opposition to the proposal.

"Cowardly," Says Couzens

Couzens argued it was "cowardly" to refuse to adopt higher income taxes to help pay the expenses of the huge recovery program. He contended the 10 per cent would have hit the higher incomes and meant no increase over existing taxes until net incomes of $9,000 were reached.

LaFollette supported the amendment, saying the "actual additional burden is a very reasonable requirement in times like these."

Senator Borah (R. Idaho) thought the added 10 per cent would bear too heavily on the small taxpayer and would discourage investment in small businesses, but voted for it on the ground of emergency needs.

Six Members Of One Family Shot to Death

Police Believe Case Of Five Murders, One Suicide

MINNEAPOLIS, April 10 (AP)—Six persons, all members of one family, were found shot to death at the home of A. J. Freudenfeld, insurance broker here, late today. Police said it was a case of five murders and a suicide.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Freudenfeld, their three children, and Mrs. De Haven, mother of Mrs. Freudenfeld. The children are Janet, 14; Carol, 11, and Richard, 8.

All of the bodies were found in bed, and police found a pistol lying near Freudenfeld's body.

The shooting is believed to have taken place at 4:30 a.m. today, at which hour a neighbor heard shots fired. When the family was not observed about the home during the day, police were called by the neighbors.

Shades Pulled Down

Police found the shades of all windows pulled down and in some instances rugs had been fastened over the shades and stuffed under doors, apparently to muffle the sound of the shooting.

In the basement police found a dead Angora cat shot through the head, which had been carefully placed on a bench near the furnace with a pillow under its head.

Requests Cremation

Pinned near the top of a chiffonier in a bedroom occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Freudenfeld was a note directing that Fred Well, Minneapolis, old friend of the family, administer the estate and asking the bodies be cremated.

Well said the family recently suffered a number of financial reverses.

Exports, Imports With Russia Show Sharp Increase

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—The story of how American trade with Soviet Russia has leaped ahead under the spur of recognition was told today in figures made public by the commerce department.

Exports to Russia in February were valued at $1,486,459 as compared with $21,735 in January; imports in February were $1,195,766 as compared with $604,949 the month previous.

The February total of exports was nearly triple that for the same month last year. February imports also exceeded February, 1933, by more than $300,000.

No official reasons were given for the increases—much larger than in the case of other countries—but government experts said it reflected recognition of Russia by the United States, as well as generally better trade conditions.

Total American exports, in February, although below January's total due to the short month, were maintained at more than the seasonal rate. Imports were at almost exactly the seasonal rate on the basis of figures announced several days ago.

Today's figures, representing a breakdown of the total by countries, showed both American imports and exports running ahead of February last year, with virtually every country. Only the Netherland East Indies bought less from the United States in February than in the same month a year ago.

United States purchases from other nations declined only in the cases of Central America, the Philippine Islands, and British South Africa.

Iowa Citizens To Celebrate 100th Birthday of City

If any of Iowa City's charter citizens who attended the dedication of the first city hall in 1881 could step into St. Mary's auditorium Friday night where members of the Congregational church are sponsoring a centennial pageant, they might well imagine themselves back at that original celebration. For, in a setting closely resembling that of the party, the council chambers, four couples attired in period costumes will be dancing a square dance.

The couples will be Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dey, Mayor Harry D. Breene, and Della Hutchinson; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Schmidt; and Dean and Mrs. C. E. Seashore.

Mrs. Seashore will wear a peacock blue silk dress which was worn for the first time at the dedication of the hall by Mrs. George Hummer. Mrs. Seashore's father, John J. Holmes, was mayor of Iowa City at the time of the dedication.

Mrs. Dey will wear the wedding dress of her grandmother, Mrs. Ezekiel Clark. Mr. Clark was one of Iowa City's foremost citizens, and built the brick home which still stands today across from Currier hall.

Miss Hutchinson will wear an authentic Paris dress of the period. Mrs. Schmidt will wear one of her mother's dresses.

Mr. Schmidt will serve as caller for the dance, and he will use authentic calls furnished by Prof. Edwin Ford Piper of the English department.

Form Plans For Dinner

Yearly Event Honoring William Finkbine Announced

Plans are now being formulated for the tenth annual Good Will dinner given in honor of William O. Finkbine, it was announced yesterday by Adelaide L. Burge, dean of women. It will be held the last week in April.

This traditional dinner is given under the auspices of his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Soers, and her two aunts, Marie and Emilie Stapp.

"The purpose of the dinner is not to add another social event to the university calendar, but to bring together a group of guests chosen on the basis of scholarship, activities, and promise of future service, who, while being honored at the dinner, may be so inspired with the Iowa spirit that they will always be most loyal alumnae and lend their influence for all that is best for their alma mater," Mrs. Burge said.

Women members of Mr. Finkbine's family, under whose auspices the dinner is given, will not be able to attend this year.

The number of women guests is limited to 50, thus making it necessary to confine the guest list almost exclusively to members of the senior class.

Coralville P.T.A. To Meet Tonight. Members of Coralville Parent-Teacher association will meet tonight in the Coralville school building to elect officers for the coming year. The business session will open at 7:30.

University Program To Show "A Trip Through Filmland"

"A trip through filmland"—this is the prospect for those who attend this week's university film program, which is under the auspices of the Camera club. The presentation will be made tomorrow afternoon in chemistry auditorium.

A visit to the Kodak company in this two reel film shows the actual process by which moving picture film is made. Forty minutes are spent in this plant where 147,000 miles of such film is turned out annually.

An advance showing of this picture will be made to Camera club members at 7:30 tonight in chemistry auditorium.

Legal Victory For Simmer Law

Simmer Law Permitting Cities to Finance Municipal Utilities by Pledge of Earnings Upheld by Supreme Court

In three recent decisions of the Iowa Supreme Court, public ownership has won a sweeping victory. The decisions sustained the validity of the so-called Simmer law which permits cities and towns to build electric light plants, water works, gas and heating plants, paying for them out of the earnings of the plants as they come in and without taxation.

The significance and importance of the approval of this law by the Supreme Court lies in the fact that it enables the cities to overcome the most serious obstacle in the way of municipal ownership. It has become practically impossible for cities in Iowa or anywhere else under present statutory or constitutional limitations to finance, improve or extend out of the future earnings from such plant, and may secure such contract by the pledge of the property purchased and the net earnings of the plant. Such control shall not constitute a general obligation or be payable in any manner by taxation.

Under no circumstances shall the city be in any manner liable by reason of the failure of the net earnings being sufficient for the payments provided in the contract.

The Iowa legislature recently passed an amendment to the "Simmer" law by which cities and towns are authorized to issue revenue bonds and sell them direct for cash. Under the old law the town had to deliver pledge orders to the contractor in payment for the full amount of the improvement. This new law permits cities and towns to issue revenue bonds and turn them over to the government as securities for loans made by the Public Works Administration.

In the past few months twenty-two Iowa cities have held municipal elections, losing only in one case to the power trust. Following are a few of the cities advertising for bids: Corning, Iowa; Gowrie, Iowa; Coon Rapids, Iowa; Winfield, Iowa.

Shawn's Dances Interpret Masculinity and Americana

By TOM YOSELOFF

A company of "men without women"—an innovation in the field of American interpretive dancing—proved last night that the dance is a manly art, albeit invested with the grace and charm which are usually considered feminine attributes.

Those of us who recall the memorable performances of Ted Shawn and Ruth St. Denis several years ago were undoubtedly wishing that Shawn had not made such a radical departure from the accepted scheme of things as to organize a company of male dancers. Almost from the first movement which opened a program of 18 numbers in the Iowa field house last night, however, it became apparent that Shawn had chosen well.

"Decidedly Male"

For the dances of the new Shawn troupe are decidedly male dances—they could not have been performed by other than an all male company. Labor and sports, primitive themes, the religion of the American Negro and the native African—these were among the themes derived from purely masculine sources which were included in the repertoire presented by the seven dancers.

To Shawn himself fell the greatest burden of the performance. For not only did he play a prominent part in the ensemble numbers, but he also presented six solo numbers, on themes as varied and ambitious as the dance can conceive.

Four Parts

The program was presented in four parts, based upon a division of subject. Though the dancers covered the widest range of subjects, almost every theme was clear, every execution swift and precise, every tableau brief and effective.

Three numbers visualizing musical classics made up the first section of the presentation. An ensemble of six performed the "Polonaise" of Edward McDowell. Followed a plastic group to the sixth prelude of Bach's "Well Tempered Clavichord," and the "Two Part Invention," in which an ensemble of four performed—two men dancing one part and the other two visualizing with equal precision a second part.

Presents Shawn

The stirring "Rhapsody" of Brahms presented Shawn for the first time, in a sharp execution with an ensemble of four men, and closed the first section of the program. Shawn's attempt to develop the dance as an art of pure American theme found expression in the long and difficult "American epic"—"John Brown Sees the Glory." Interpreting in a vision the life and death and resurrection of the great American leader, Shawn combined in this static dance the most active and most static of dance forms. For 17 minutes Shawn held the stage alone in this ambitious and highly successful attempt.

Costume and Music

While these first two sections had depended largely upon the execution of steps and dance forms to carry the entire theme, the last two sections gave greater reliance to costume, music, and sound effect in a series of short dances on humorous, labor, and religious themes.

The humorous and light themes, including the "Japanese Ricksaw Coolies," "The French Sailor," "Turkey in the Straw, as Danced by a Cowboy," "Flamenco" (a Shawn solo of an impudent Spaniard), and "Cutting the Sugar Cane," proved highly popular with the large audience.

"Moving, Effective"

Three religious numbers made up the last section of the program. Shawn interpreted the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi, in "O Brother Sun and Sister Moon," based upon the old Gregorian melody of Respighi. The dancer was moving and effective in this number, the most dramatic of the group. Primitive superstition of the African native formed the basis of "Fetish," a solo by Barton Maunaw, and the presentation was concluded with a group of American Negro religious interpretations.

All of the 18 numbers were created by Shawn, but much of the success of the repertoire of dance must go to the pianist-composer, Jess Meeker, who accompanied the dancers, and composed the music for "John Brown Sees the Glory" and "Fetish."

"Two Accomplishments"

Two outstanding accomplishments for the dance are Shawn's in this presentation. He has created a type and form of dance which is as masculine as whiskers and a bass voice, and he has created thematic dances which are as American in their origin as the Red Indian and the Iowa prairies.

Letter to the Editor

Editor The Daily Iowan: I am a long-time resident of Iowa City. Please permit me to express some views on the electric light question.

Over two months ago the city council requested an itemized account of that HUGE operating expense for the past year of over $203,000. To date it has not been received. Why?

A showdown is demanded on the operating expenses of the new plant—before it is built. Why not a showdown on the money already collected and spent during the past year, and which we have paid in high rates?

The general public would be more interested in this showdown than in all the photographs and biographies in their "Family Album," and the bed time stories of taxes they pay, and children they educate with money collected by high rates.

They tell us a municipal plant will get into politics. Could it be any worse than now? At the last city election a majority of all candidates were hand-picked utility men. Look the list over. Did this "just happen?"

We could clean house every two years (if necessary) with a municipal plant, but have you a Chinaman's chance with a 25 year franchise hanging about your neck? Of course this is not a franchise election; the idea is to beat the municipal plant, then to get a franchise. One proponent said Iowa City never could make any of its factories pay. He mentioned the packing house, the glass works, and the cutlery works, but he forgot to mention the Boerner-Fry company and what caused it to fold up and go out of business.

He also forgot about the Glucose works, the distillery, the linseed oil works, and the oat meal mill in our neighboring suburb, Coralville. All of these were closed down by the TRUSTS; the stock was bought up by huge bonuses until they had a voting majority, then they "clamped down" and put them out of business. Hundreds of old residents remember these facts.

We are facing the same situation today. The United Utilities are awaiting a fresh grab at the throats of Iowa City citizens. Will we stand for it?

Why look for the insults in foreign lands? You will find their twin brothers—the utilities—lurking in the bushes in our own back yard.

Yours for a municipally owned plant, and NO FRANCHISE.

Mistakes Will Happen!

Advocates of the Municipal Plant are attempting to create prejudice against the Iowa City Light & Power Company by magnifying short-comings of its employees. They would have you believe that these short-comings represent the public policy of the company.

The furnishing of an intangible service 24 hours of each day to customers from every walk of life and with payment made long after the service is used involves many problems, and misunderstandings can easily develop.

The Iowa City Light and Power Company is operated by people who are ordinary men and women and occasionally some employees may have been over-zealous, inattentive or discourteous.

Is there a person in Iowa City who has not sometime made mistakes in the conduct of his employment, his business or profession?

The company does not seek to evade responsibility for any improper actions of its employees but such actions do not meet with the approval of the company.

Is there a business man in Iowa City who has not, at some time, been embarrassed by some thoughtless act of his employees? Is there any employed person in Iowa City who has not done some hasty and inconsiderate thing which has been contrary to the interests of his employer?

These things occur in every business, but we appreciate that when they occur in the utility business they may be more aggravating, for the customer may feel that he has no recourse. Actually, he has, for it is the aim and desire of this company to treat everyone fairly and courteously.

We hope that many years of splendid service—and no one can say that Iowa City has not received good service—will in a measure offset any personal irritation you may have felt toward any employee or the company.

Suggestions for the betterment of our public relations will always be welcome.

Ted Shawn's Dances— American Art

SINCE THE DAYS when the Liberty bell rang out in Philadelphia and a handful of American patriots declared themselves a nation divorced from England, critics and teachers have been seeking that elusive creature, "the American native art."

Because America retained the language of the mother country, the growth of any form of expression distinctly American was of necessity extremely difficult. No matter what was written, or painted, or said, some critic could seem to trace its origins back to England or the continent.

The result was a national inferiority complex in art. Americans looked upon Europe as the Mecca of the intelligentsia and the cultured classes; Europe looked upon America as the home of uncouth barbarians who did not create, but merely copied.

Webster's dictionary says that art is "an occupation having to do with the theory or practice of taste in the expression of beauty in form, color, sound, speech, or movement."

Ted Shawn and his dancers probably approach an embodiment of the factors of a living American art. Form, color, sound, and movement are combined in their presentations to make the dance truly a form of art in its highest sense.

Shawn has sought to make his art American. He has interpreted themes which are distinctively native to this continent—which have no counterpart elsewhere in the world. Such native themes as "John Brown Sees the Glory," Negro spirituals, and interpretations of the Indian's rituals are a part of a native American repertory.

American Education And Big Business

THOUGH it is a commonly accepted fact that education in America has become a "big business," the realization of just how big a business it is becomes clearly apparent when one reads that the proposed budget of Columbia university, New York city, for next year will be more than $14,000,000.

Out of this sum, about $8,000,000, or a little more than half, will go for the actual cost of education—salaries of instructors, grants for graduate study, cost of educational materials, and purchase of research equipment.

The remainder of more than $6,000,000 will go to the "big business" part of a great university. This will cover such items as business administration, clerical work, promotion, interest on corporate indebtedness, upkeep of buildings and grounds, and planned physical expansion.

Education has even adopted the worst tactics of big business—planning expansion beyond its budgetary possibilities—according to the Columbia announcement. The new plans call for expenditures which will be more than half a million dollars in excess of probable receipts.

When education reaches the point in "popularity" in which a city of 30,000-odd "scholars" can be built up each year, as it is at Columbia, a big business set up becomes necessary. But somehow, one wishes that there might be a little less business and a little more education in the newest of America's big businesses—education.

What Others Think

There's Rubbish on the Air

(From The Christian Science Monitor)
Radio-casting in the United States suffers today from the great fault of trying to please everybody and, in the process, achieving a middle-of-the-road mediocrity. As a result radio is getting nowhere artistically and is estranging many intelligent listeners.

As it is, radio listeners subsist largely on a fare of not very comic comedians, dance orchestras grinding out the same banal tunes, mediocre dramatic sketches, sirupy-voiced singers, social advisers of questionable value, readers of awful poetry, and penny-dreadful juvenile drama. Meanwhile, great orchestras starve or consort with strange bedfellows in order to live, noted concert artists perform encore pieces of trivial value, while great plays—and the artists who could play them—languish. Since American radio depends upon sponsors, the need is for sponsors who have the artistic as well as the financial courage to strike out upon new program ventures.

True, there are artistic peaks in the plains of radio entertainment. The Metropolitan Opera, the concerts of the New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Minneapolis orchestras, the Library of Congress chamber music recitals, the schools of the air, a light opera series in preparation, the concert series currently sponsored by a maker of motorcars and the piano recitals of Ernest Hutcheson have been received gratefully by hosts of listeners. In many cases, however, these are network contributions which lapse when no sponsor is found, and some are at inconvenient times for workers. The radiocasters themselves can build and do put excellent programs on the air, and they often recommend better programs than the advertising agencies accept for the sponsors. But the advertising agencies pay most of radio's bills and naturally feel privileged to call the tunes. The low estate of sponsored radiocasting today can be quite definitely charged to them. They tend to measure program popularity by the number of package tops and bottle labels coming through the mails.

What radio needs is a permanent organization acting as reservoir of entertainment. Today, for instance, there is hardly more than one permanent radio "house" orchestra of symphonic stamp. The British Broadcasting Corporation has an excellent one that gives public concerts and makes records as well. There is genuine need for grand opera and operetta groups made up of capable artists. Standing repertory and stock companies, with players of adequate talent, should give classic and modern plays, and there should be permanent chamber music groups. Concert artists should be engaged on long-time contracts and opportunity given them to present serious works. Radiocasters should complement this by presenting these features in the hours when the greater percentage of listeners are at their sets.

Radio must come out from under a sea of popular excerpts and tin-pan trivialities and present good solid chunks of program fare that can stand with any other form of entertainment.

When dishonesty hides its head or wears the mask of a more pleasant name it is doubly dangerous. But when certain of New York's legislators seriously introduce a measure which would set up a lottery in the nation's largest city to obtain $10,000,000 for relief, then dishonesty has become naive to boot.

The legislators who proposed this bill were not children, telling a lie openly (if that is possible) and without hesitation. The bill itself admits the lie, and painfully tries to avoid it.

Instead of a lottery, the scheme proposes organization of a "corporation." Tickets would be sold in the accepted lottery manner, but holders of the lucky numbers would not win prizes; they would win instead "salaried" positions as "officers" in the corporation.

Upon this monstrosity the bill's sponsors wistfully ask the courts to take a "liberal" view, hoping that the judges will take into consideration the high motives that prompted it and the good cause for which the proceeds would be spent.

There is no cause in the world great enough to justify such a patent admission that government is no longer able to solve its problems honorably. If government cannot provide for its citizens, it should be thrown overboard, and a new order put in its place.

The need for relief funds is too obvious to require any further elaboration. Professor Tugwell's assertion that even in "good times" about one third of the American people live on a below-poverty level is enough to cause a national shudder.

But it is not sufficient to point out the dishonesty of this lottery bill. Nor is it enough to recall that France already has succumbed to the attractive ease with which gambling can be made to support a rotten structure.

The need is for an honest searching into the rottenness of the structure and for righting the wrongs that are found.

To do this it is first necessary that one have a genuine concern for his fellow creatures, and that he be willing to face the solution once he has found it even though he may be inconvenienced in the solving.

Not many men are willing to do that. For one thing too many have no conception of the misery and the degradation and the terrible futility of poverty. Too many, smug in their own comfort, attribute their success to their own sterling qualities and look with indifference or contempt upon those who have not done likewise.

If they could only know what bigoted fools they are! If they could realize how fortunate they are that chance—and very little else but chance—threw them among the two thirds rather than the one third! If they could be perfectly honest and admit that among the one third there are many whose native abilities are perhaps of an even higher order than their own!

If they could realize these things, and if they would admit them, it would not be long before the present inequalities that disgrace a so-called civilization would disappear and poverty would be ended.

For there is no excuse for these inequalities. They are not necessary. They are not Christian. They are not logical. They are not honorable. They are not healthy. They are built on the same bigotry, laziness and dishonesty that attempts to correct them with a lottery.

—Don Pryor

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—No more lazy sun-baths for Gloria Stuart—now in her back yard at least.

The blonde Universal star donned her bathing suit Friday afternoon and went out to lie on a blanket on the back lawn of her Whitley Heights home.

She read a magazine for a while, but the light was so bright that she grew drowsy, dropped off to sleep for several minutes. She doesn't know what awakened her. Perhaps it was some sixth sense. At any rate, she opened her eyes and turned on her side.

The scream Gloria gave would have cracked a microphone. It brought her police dog bounding to her side. The animal attacked the snake and, miraculously, killed it without being bitten.

Gloria was so unnerved that she packed and left within a few hours for her summer cottage on Morro bay.

The good-humored wit of Princess Kropotkin left Charles Farrell standing on one foot without a word to say.

Several days ago, the titled writer had a luncheon date with Charlie at the Fox studio. Probably it was a touch of spring fever, but Charlie forgot the engagement and went down to the Riviera polo field to look at some new ponies.

By nine o'clock the next morning, he was calling up with profuse apologies.

The Princess said gently: "Oh, that's all right, Mr. Farrell, but you're the first gentleman who ever missed a date with me to keep one with a horse."

Two magazines already are bidding for the serial rights to Jean Harlow's novel, "Today Is Tonight."

The screen's platinum blonde is now getting the story into shape for publication. She says she first got the idea in the middle of the night, and the inspiration was so strong that she got up and jotted down a full page of notes.

The first draft of the novel was dictated to the star's secretary, then Jean wrote a 75,000 word outline herself. Next, she broke it down into script form to get a better slant on the dialogue. The final job of novelization is well under way.

There will be no sensational revelations about Hollywood in "Today Is Tonight." It is a story of New York. Joan says: "I simply tried to create a girl with an abundance of love, who weakens now and then, but who clings to an ideal."

This business of actresses getting temperamental about scanty costumes is getting to be an epidemic. Virginia Peine Lehman started it when she walked out of a picture at Fox. Then, yesterday, Sidney Fox was mysteriously missing from a test she was supposed to take for "Down to Their Last Yacht." An hour later, the tiny star showed up in tow of Billie Burke. The grass costume for the South Sea story upset her so much that she had her crying to Billie for advice. Being a sensible woman and the wife of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, Billie soon changed Sidney's mind.

The newly arrived Philip Barry is more publicly shy than Garbo. Despite the fact that he is the author of "Holiday," "Animal Kingdom," "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" and "Tomorrow" and various other hits, he pleads with reporters that there is absolutely nothing about him worth printing.

Lampe Describes Religious Activity In Other Schools

Describing the method of religious activity in several California schools, Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion spoke yesterday to the commission on religious activities. In Los Angeles, he said, there is a so-called "University of Religions conference" which directs the religious work in the Los Angeles junior college, the University of California, and the University of Southern California. This common organization is made up of representatives from Catholic, Jewish, and major Protestant bodies. It is housed in a common building which is the center of religious activities for the three colleges. A plan for an organization similar to that of the University of Iowa has been recently approved by the University of California at Berkeley, he said.

Study Announced
WASHINGTON (AP)—The public works administration announced tonight a statistical study made for Secretary Ickes indicated direct employment from funds allotted by the organization might reach a total of 7,276,000 man months in 1934. There are more than 25 million cows in the United States.

Union to Exhibit 4 Displays Of Art During Conference

Three Loaned Because Of University's Unique Work

Four exhibitions of art are on display at Iowa Union in connection with the conference of teachers and supervisors of graphic and plastic arts in Iowa schools to be held here Friday and Saturday.

Three of these exhibits were especially loaned by the American Federation of Arts, a national organization for the cultivation of the arts with headquarters at Washington, D. C., because of the unique work done in Iowa by its conference of high school teachers.

Director Here
Erwin Christensen, educational director of the American Federation of Arts, became interested in the projects last year when he was a guest speaker here on the program of the conference. At that time he told of an experiment in art education that was being tried in Connecticut schools, and it was through his influence that a similar experiment is to be tried in Iowa this year.

Two of the exhibits now at Iowa Union are to be circulated through public schools in Iowa during the coming year at a minimum cost to the schools of express rates.

Color Reproductions

One is a group of color reproductions of fine paintings by old and modern masters. It includes the works of such artists as Holbein, Velasquez, Titian, Rembrandt, Cezanne, and Jonas Lie.

The other is a collection of European travel posters.

The National Scholastic art exhibit is on display in the lobby of Iowa Union. This is a collection of work in various mediums done by high school students in all parts of the country for the annual national competition under the auspices of Scholastic magazine.

5,000 Entries

Approximately 5,000 entries are submitted to this contest each year and are assembled and judged at Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, Pa. There the American Federation of Arts selects the most worthy examples and makes two exhibitions of them which are circulated throughout the United States all year. Two Des Moines students are represented in this show, which includes works in oil, water color and pastel, etchings, lithographs, design, and textiles.

In the river room are now on display approximately 500 pieces representing the fourth annual Iowa high school contest in graphic and plastic arts. These were sent in by 278 contestants from 28 Iowa schools, and were judged last Saturday by Marvin Cone, Iowa artist and teacher at Coe college, Cedar Rapids; Elizabeth Moeller, director of art at Francis Shimer school in Mt. Carroll, Ill.; and Edith Bell of the graphic and plastic arts department.

This exhibit is divided into five classes: monochrome, representation in color, figure drawing, design, and lettering.

Speakers for This Year's Conference

Speakers for this year's conference are Wayma Adams, portrait painter, Lorado Taft, sculptor, and Alfred Howell.

SEEN

from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

Into this office last night poured objections from members of the audience of Ted Shawn and his dancers in their performance last evening. This department gives heed to the fact that there was an excess of whistling, door slamming, running around, and shooting of pop-guns—or whatever else was going on—during the dances.

Somewhere in the dim recesses there seemed to be a continual sawing, as though someone were building a little home in the midst of a field house setting. And a grating sound—which might have been a crew of R.O.T.C. sailors hauling up the mainsail, or whatever sailors do. And then there was the woman who sat behind me, and insisted upon humming the air of the Negro spirituals, to which Shawn's men were dancing.

But the thing which topped off the whole evening was the fact that some promotion manager got the brilliant idea of announcing the coming of "the world's greatest show," the annual Iowa circus, to the field house next week. Granting the fact that the circus is a worthwhile project, and granting the fact that University of Iowa students ought to hear about it, this department feels, with many other objectors, that someone picked a poor place and time for circus promotion!

The stork lost one of his greatest helpers with the death of Dr. C. W. Sanders of Northwood, who died at his home recently. A full record of the activities of this physician, a University of Iowa medical graduate, shows that he had officiated at more than 4,500 births!

Gertrude Stein, the creator of an art which embodies an odd jumble of words, seems to be sweeping the University of Iowa campus, if the conversation of many Iowa coeds can be taken as a symptom of a new disease. One can never tell these days where or when he will be exposed to this sort of thing, so here's a sample warning:

Q. "Why a spinning mouse?"
A. "The more it spins, the much."
Q. "Why a duck?"
A. "It wasn't asked."
Q. "There were three brothers, Ickle, Mickle, and Pickle. How old are they?"
A. "They are all twins, except Pickle, who was sick a year."

This, I protest, is carrying the thing too far. . . .

President Walter A. Jessup has asked Henrietta Prentiss, who received an M.S. degree here in 1907, to represent Iowa when E. A. Colligan is inaugurated as president of Hunter College of the City of New York early in May. Miss Prentiss is a sister of the late Dr. Prentiss, who was a member of the college of medicine staff.

Homer R. Dill, director of the university museum, may have a visitor soon. William F. Coultas, a former University of Iowa student and now associated with the American Museum of Natural History in New York, is coming home this summer

THE "SPIELER"

BRAZEN BALLYHOO AND GOLDEN SILENCE

The municipal ownership promoters have brazenly asked the taxpayers to give them a million dollars to PLAY WITH!

They have not advanced a SINGLE ARGUMENT as to why this money should be spent except to GRATIFY THEIR GROUCHES!

They have talked about the two-faced Simmer law, and have slung mud at every citizen who did not approve of their extravagant gamble.

BUT THEY HAVE BEEN SILENT, TOO !

In all their ballyhoo about the Simmer law they have NEVER YET given the REAL FACTS about a SINGLE ONE of the plants which have been built under the Simmer law.

They ballyhooed about Muscatine for months, but AFTER THE MUSCATINE "MUNICIPAL PLANT GANG" WAS KICKED OUT, they dropped MUSCATINE like a hot potato.

They brought the Mayor of Rochester down to tell about the municipal plant. There was so little to tell that the unfortunate mayor had to eke out his time talking about farmer-labor politics. His only explanation of the LOSSES OFFICIALLY SHOWN in Rochester was that "WE CHANGED OUR BOOK-KEEPING TO SHOW A PROFIT."

But never a word from the Municipal Ownership League about the Simmer law towns. There have been only three of them—ONLY THREE WHICH HAVE BUILT COMPLETE PLANTS UNDER THE SIMMER LAW.

EVERY ONE OF THEM HAS HIGHER RATES THAN THOSE OF IOWA CITY.

EVERY ONE OF THEM IS IN TROUBLE.

Their names—Grand Junction, Lenox and Lake Mills.

You are asked to GAMBLE a MILLION DOLLARS on a scheme that is a PROVEN FAILURE IN EVERY TOWN WHERE IT HAS BEEN TRIED.

Do you see the THREE LITTLE SHELLS in the cartoon above? Do you know what they represent? Do they suggest to you the THREE LITTLE TOWNS which have tried the Simmer law?

THREE LITTLE TOWNS, which listened to the "pay-from-earnings" ballyhoo. THREE LITTLE TOWNS, which didn't know what it was all about until it was too late!

Those same Simmer law promoters are now asking YOU to "come into the show," they are asking YOU to TRY YOUR LUCK with the THREE LITTLE SHELLS.

Don't vote IN THE DARK! Protect your property and your pocketbook!

Home Run In Ninth Brings A's Triumph

Rookies Play Big Role In City Series Victory

PHILADELPHIA, April 10 (AP)—Behind the six-hit pitching of three rookies, Connie Mack's Athletics rallied on a booming ninth-inning homer today to down the National league Phillies, their rivals for the city championship, 8 to 6.

The four-base blow, propelled by the bat of Frank Hayes, Mack's young backstop, sending Pucky Higgins home first, broke a 6-all deadlock.

The victory pulled the A's into a 1 to 1 tie in the scheduled five-game city series.

Joe Cascarella, recently obtained from Jersey City; Bill Dietrich, and Bob Kline, each served three innings and held the Phils to a half-dozen safe blows. The A's touched "Jumbo Jim" Elliott, Phil Collins and a newcomer, Kridler, for 10 safeties.

Score:
Athletics .....010 500 002—8 10 0
Phillies .....103 002 000—6 6 2

Batteries—Cascarella, Dietrich, Kline and Hayes; Elliott, Kridler and Wilson.

Dodgers Turn in 25 to 7 Victory

RICHMOND, Va., April 10 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers went on a scoring spree today, cracking out 25 hits off three pitchers to defeat the Richmond Colts of the Piedmont league 25 to 7.

In mauling the minor leaguers, the Dodgers scored eight runs in the second and 10 more in the fifth and failed to cross the plate in only two innings. Arthur Jones and Ray Benge, dividing the Dodgers' pitching assignment, allowed 11 hits but there was no reason to bear down.

Four home runs rang off the major leaguers' bats, Koenecke, Taylor, Berres and Stripp hitting circuit drives. The latter's blow came in the fifth inning with the bases loaded.

Score:
Brooklyn .....181 0101 103—25 26 3
Richmond .....002 0 01 022—7 11 2

Batteries—Jones and Berres; Holschauer and Galvin.

Iowa In Drill For Coe Meet

Trackmen Record Fast Time Trials; Hold New Event

In preparation for the opening outdoor dual meet of the season with Coe college at Cedar Rapids Saturday the Iowa track and field men were sent through time trials last night by Coach George T. Bresnahan.

All track men saw action. Perhaps the outstanding times turned in were by Francis Cretzmeyer, who turned in a 15.5 high hurdle race, and by Maurice Gordon, who led the millers with a time of 4.31.

A new event has been added to the dual program, a spring relay for weight men. Coach Bresnahan sent his heavies through a stiff drill that tapered off with a 110-yard dash. Mark Fanther won in 12 seconds with the remainder of the group hard on his heels.

Cretzmeyer Plans To Add 5th Event

Now Francis Cretzmeyer, leading scorer of the University of Iowa track team in indoor meets by making 35.7 points in four events, plans to add still another event to his competitive list.

The Emmetsburg sophomore is the most versatile Hawkeye track and field athlete in many years. For in dual meets he can run both hurdle races, high and broad jump, and is ready to throw the javelin during the outdoor season.

Cretzmeyer makes respectable marks in all of them, too. Within a few weeks, he will be running the high hurdles in close to 15, and the lows in the vicinity of 24. He can high jump 6 feet and probably will be close to 24 feet in the broad jump soon, while his javelin marks range between 180 and 190 feet.

In two of Iowa's four indoor meets, he was leading scorer with 17 points against Minnesota and 15 1-2 in the state quadrangular affair. He will appear in his first outdoor meet when the team goes to Cedar Rapids Saturday for the Coe dual, but may not perform in all of his five events because he is regaining strength after an attack of measles.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 10 (AP)—Illinois scored its second straight baseball victory over Illinois Wesleyan today, defeating the Titans, 2 to 1.

Sore Arm Continues to Hold Back Gene Ford

WHAT'S THIS? IT MUST BE SPRING!

Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs and three young men who will make their first appearance of the season are shown here as they arrived in Chicago. In the group, left to right, are Tut Stainback, outfielder; Manager Grimm, Angie Galan, who is expected to start at third base, and "Babe" Phelps, who is looked upon as an able relief for Gabby Hartnett in catching duties.

Braves Whip Senators, 5-2

Linke Victim of Five Run Attack in 7th Frame

WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Ed Linke, the reformed fat boy who looked great to Joe Cronin at training camp, lost more pounds today in the seventh inning of an exhibition game that Washington lost to the Boston Braves, 5 to 2.

Ed went in for a brief workout after Mark Filley, young right-hander borrowed from Albany, had held the visitors scoreless for five innings.

He mowed down Urbanski, first Brave to face him, and breezed through that inning. But Moore landed on him for a single to center in the seventh. Whitney doubled, Jordan, Lee and Worthington walked and Thompson singled before Harris grabbed Urbanski's fly for the first out.

Washington scored in the ninth when Cronin, Harris and Travis walked and Klump, recruit catcher, singled sharply to right.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Boston (N) .....000 000 500—5 7 2
Washington (A) 000 000 002—2 3 1

Brandt, Cantwell, Frankhouse and Hogan, Spohrer, Filley, Linke and Klump.

Schumacher Drops Tilt to Indians

ATLANTA, Ga., April 10 (AP)—Hal Schumacher, pitching nine innings for the first time this year, dropped a close decision to Mel Harder and Thornton Lee today as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Giants 4 to 2. The victory gave the Indians an edge in the series six games to three.

A home run by Earl Averill in the seventh inning broke up the ball game after the Giants had come from behind to equal a three-run lead piled up by the Indians in the fourth inning.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Cleveland .....000 200 100—4 10 0
New York .....000 021 000—3 10 2

Harder, Lee and Pytlak, Spencer; Schumacher and Richards.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 10 (AP)—The New York Yankees poked 19 hits today to defeat Chattanooga of the Southern association, 14 to 3, and break a three game losing streak.

Ben Chapman drove in four runs, collecting a double and a home run. Lazzeri got four hits, and Combs three.

Danny MacFayden went the full nine innings, being the first Yankee pitcher to go the route this spring.

TUCUMCARI, N. M., April 10 (AP)—Aided by eight White Sox errors, Larry French, Pittsburgh Pirate ace, held the Chicago White Sox at bay and won for the Buccaneers 12 to 7 as 3,500 fans jammed a new baseball park today to see the exhibition game.

Lone Veteran Pitcher Lost To Iowa Nine

Vogel Continues Light Drills; Shifts Men In Infield

Iowa hopes for a victory in baseball over Iowa State this coming week end received a jolt when it was definitely learned last night that Eugene Ford, veteran pitcher who has been laid up for the last two weeks with a sore arm will not be able to pitch. Ford has been undergoing a special arm treatment, but it has failed to prove effective enough to enable him to pitch within the next ten days.

With Ford definitely out of the picture, Iowa will pin her hopes on the work of Charlie Man, Britt southpaw who won his first game against Bradley; Ken Blackman, who with Harry Frohwein turned Illinois State Teachers back scoreless; and Pickler and Dale Landrum who gave Bradley its second defeat.

Vogel Shifts Men
Coach Otto Vogel sent his varsity squad through another practice drill last night, in which he stressed infield and hitting practice. During the course of the infield drill, he made several shifts which may prove extremely effective in case of emergency.

He used Weese, a sophomore, who has been playing regular shortstop at second. Bob Mason, another sophomore whose hitting has been above average, was used at third beside his regular short stop position, where he has been the understudy to Weese.

Circus Men Hold Meeting; Sip Tea, Propose Riddles

BY BRUTUS LITTLEFINGER

Three owls hooted as I dog-trotted across the bridge and up to the field house late last night.

Maybe it was one owl hooting three times.

A meeting of an important nature was to be held in the northwest corner of the gym. Promoters of the phiz ed circus and their "yes" men were to confer. My reportorial duties demanded my presence.

While engaged in the flow of verbiage, tea and cakes were served. How I care for tea and cakes. In some way or other I was over-looked.

All The Boys

Of course Larry and George were there. Also gents by the names of Bernie Page, and Pat Henry. A person by the name of Newman was in another corner twirling a rope. Steers were being discussed when I arrived. Steers with long horns. A Texas variety, no doubt.

It seemed that this gent, Newman, who hails from Texas, has been handed the job of promoting a wild west extravaganza and could not get hold of seven wild and bucky horses and two steers. Not only that, but there were riders to be obtained.

To Have Longhorns
After some debate it was suggested that a committee be appointed to take care of this matter. The promoters vetoed my suggestion that they themselves ride the horses and the Longhorns.

Then Pat Henry took the floor and informed the promoters of his attempts at finding wild animals. Mr. Henry, although no "Bring-em-back-alive," had been quite capable for the job. He told of his campaign in snaring a timber wolf and three animals with very pretty black and white fur but which exuded an

AN OPEN LETTER

To Professor Van der Zee:—

May we thank you for your kindness in reprinting the essential paragraphs of the Simmer law in your Bulletin No. 4.

We are glad you published this quotation, for it proves exactly what we have been claiming all the time—that, while bonds and interest are payable from earnings, operating expenses can be paid from taxes.

Search the Simmer law from end to end—you find nothing about payment of operating expenses, nor do you find any definition of operating expenses.

While we do not care to paraphrase your comment on the law, we are with you when you say "THIS IS THE LAW." You cannot change the facts of the law to suit the campaign promises of the Municipal Ownership League.

Here is something we would like to ask you and your friends of the Municipal Ownership League: Why is there no mention of operating expenses on the ballot?

Why is the Simmer law silent as to operating expenses? Why does the ballot refer exclusively to construction costs and not to operating costs?

If that omission was an error it was a costly one, for it looks too much as if the error was made on purpose. Such "errors" can cost the taxpayers untold thousands, as well as costing the Municipal Ownership League any shred of public confidence which it may once have had.

The Simmer law's intent to deceive is clear to anyone. Usually a municipal plant is expected to pay at least its operating expenses, and the taxpayers meet deficits for interest and bond payments.

The Simmer law reverses this natural state of affairs. It has made it appear that interest and bond payments must be paid from "net" earnings, but it has said nothing about any definition of "net" earnings. It has said nothing about how "net earnings" should be created.

The term "net earnings" has been avoided like poison for years in every ordinance and statute—until it bobbed up in the Simmer law. It was recognized by all lawmakers as being a loose and indefinable term, and was therefore dropped.

"Net earnings" may be created, and be within the Simmer law, by the donation of unlimited sums from taxes, just as has been done in Muscatine, where the tax payments were credited to "electric revenue."

"Net earnings" may be created, and be within the Simmer law, through installing an excessive number of street lights and charging an excessive price for them—for which the taxpayer puts up the money. That is the Jacksonville and Colorado Springs method.

"Net earnings" have never been legally defined, and never can be. They are the "joker" in the Simmer law—a joker which can, and will (if a municipal plant is ever built here), cost the taxpayers of Iowa City countless thousands of dollars.

Every owner of utility securities in Iowa City is a taxpayer, either directly or indirectly, and we feel that any proposition which is as dangerous to the solvency of the city as this million dollar debt should have its hidden iniquities exposed.

Major League Experts Pick World Champion Giants To Repeat for N. L. Pennant

Select Cubs to Finish 2nd; List Pirates, Cards Next

By ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor) NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—The world champion New York Giants, with an unparalleled record for defiance of opposition, criticism or prediction, have now had the issue put squarely in their own hands for the 1934 National League baseball season.

They stood out today as the choice of the major league experts to repeat their championship triumph, with the Chicago Cubs as their most serious menace in another typical National League pennant scramble.

The last time the Giants were picked to win, they "showed up" the experts by finishing third, with one exception, the New York club has defied forecast ever since The Associated Press pennant poll was inaugurated in 1927.

Here's the record of the Giants in this poll:

Table with 3 columns: Year, Picked, Finished. Rows for years 1927-1933.

The experts, seemingly fearful they are likely to be located one jump behind the parade again, have not given the world champions an overwhelming vote of confidence in this spring's pre-season consensus.

Of a total of 37 sports writers and editors contributing their opinions, 40 named the Giants to repeat and 34 picked the Chicago Cubs to land on top.

The vote of the experts is striking testimony to their belief that Chuck Klein, the ex-Phillie flogger, will be more help to the Cubs, than Red Lacks, former Cincinnati pitcher, will be to the Pirates.

These were two of the winter's outstanding additions to the rosters of pennant-contending clubs. The Cubs are favored to win the Giants the stiffest argument despite the fact the Pirates finished second last year.

The lack of support for the Braves also is conspicuous. The Boston club was a hot contender up until the first of September last season and finished fourth, a few points above the Cardinals.

Here's the box-score on the National League poll showing the number of selections for each club for each position:

Table with 2 columns: Team, Selections. Rows for various teams.

With this crowded schedule for the few remaining weeks in which to struggle for participation points, the Quad athletes will have a busy time of it. The boys have their eyes on those wrist watches which constitute the final awards and despite the present epidemic of spring fever there will be plenty of competition in all events.

erman who has been battling it out with Johnnie Stephens for third base position had a chance to try his ability as a first baseman. Heran Schultenheirich, captain and star at second base, and "Moon" Blair, who is a veteran of three years on the first bag, were not suited. Johnnie Stephens, sophomore, was given a chance at three positions—third, shortstop, and second.

McLarnin In Title Defense Against Ross

Crack Pugilists Signed To Meet May 28 At New York

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Some of the loudest, if not the longest, arguments of the boxing season were stilled today as the exhausted managers of Barney Ross, lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, king of the welterweights, signed contracts for the first dual of titleholders in these divisions since Benny Leonard and Jack Britton fought in 1922.

Although the date is set for May 28, the distance fifteen rounds, and the poundage officially 147, putting McLarnin's championship at stake, the site for the fight is still lost in what arguments are left.

The free milk fund for babies, promoting the show, has a choice between the Madison Square Garden bowl on Long Island and the Yankee Stadium, the latter controlled by Tim Mara. The fund had been promised 10 per cent of the receipts of the Garden's big effort of the outdoor season, Primo Carnera's heavyweight title defense against Max Baer, and in return would hire the Garden bowl for a rental of 15 per cent.

Terms were not revealed, but it was learned that McLarnin, who has fought only once in the last year, has agreed to weigh no more than 145 pounds, although the contract calls for a limit of 147. Ross is expected to scale about 140. There is considerable doubt among the experts that McLarnin, with a one round conquest of Young Corbett for the welterweight title last May, his only ring work in two years, can train down to 145 pounds and be at his best.

Pat Henry Speaks In his own words, Mr. Henry said, "My track training came into practical use in snaring these species of animal. On approaching their den I was made aware of this pungent odor but, with relentless courage stalked their lair. I held in readiness my net, laid a bit of fish on the ground, and as they emerged to snatch the fish I snatched the pretty animals. Then, as the odor was overpowering, I ran like I was running an 880 with the three animals in the net over my shoulder. It seemed as if the more I sprinted the more obnoxious became the odor. When I finally put the animals in a small cage I was relieved to find that the odor had abated somewhat."

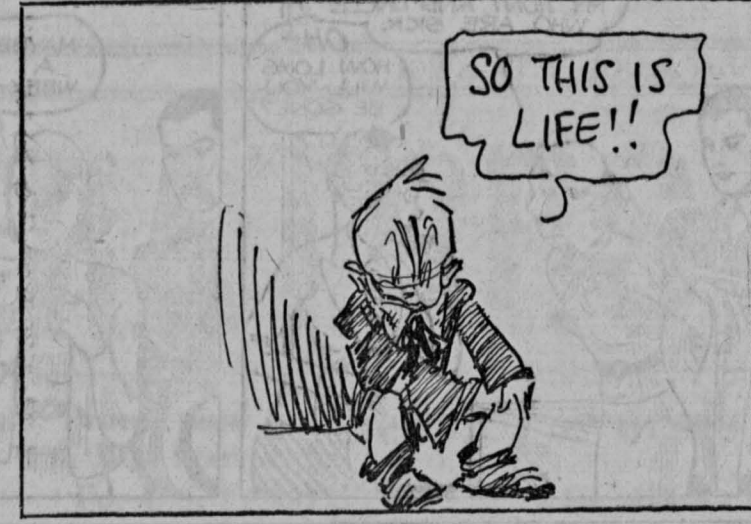

"Well, Brutus," answered he, "something new every so often, you know."

Mr. Page also told of making a detailed study of the great pyramids of Egypt and of a peculiar riddle that the sphinx, a sand blasted stone figure, usually asked of those who visit the pyramids.

It goes something like this. What kind of animal is it that walks on four legs in extreme youth, on two in middle age, and on three in old age? This seemed to me to be holding up progress so I departed into the night. But the riddle persisted and as I hurried up the pike to my sleeping quarters I turned the question in my mind. If you would know the answer call and I will inform the curious.

Also I made up my mind that it was one owl hooting three times and not three owls hooting at intervals, which are to take place during the remainder of the school year. The first of the meets is to be a dual affair with the Little Hawk varsity performing against the Muscatine sophomores this-club at Muscatine on Thursday, April 26. About 12 men will make the trip.

Following this meet the Little Hawks will begin pointing for the district track and field meet which will be held on May 11 and 12 at a site not yet determined.

A tentative dual meet with Tip-ton on April 20 has been cancelled, as Coach Wells has been unable to work with the squad for the last two weeks or more.

And then one afternoon sitting on Stanley's cherry table, because he had come in last and there was nothing else available, Perry decided to have a week-end party. He smiled at them through half-closed, lazy blue eyes and said casually, "I've got to run up to Gray Towers for over the week-end. I'm having some new roses put in and an old tennis court made into a swimming-pool. How about arranging a party? It ought to be rather nice up there now, the tulips are out and the iris ought to be worth looking at. Mother and dad are still in Rome. We would have the place to ourselves. What do you say, Stan, like to go?"

"Love to, I've never been up in April but it must be heavenly."

"How about the rest of you—make it all right—Dennis—Nigel?" "If you'll get me back Sunday night—have to work Monday." Dennis poured herself more tea.

"I think I can arrange it. I'll let you know," Nigel was indefinite. Dennis smiled slightly. Nigel would arrange it—it rather pleased him to be non-committal but he needed to have thought, she thought.

Everything was gloriously right with John Harmon these days. Maynard had read the first half of Gloria and pronounced it good. He had offered to run it as a serial in the Review, publishing it in book form in the fall. The final chapters were coming along steadily and easily and John Harmon was confident that the first of June would see the book finished. He had not told Stanley, he had not told any one, but he was secretly exhilarated over the fact that by early summer he would actually have accomplished something, reached a definite goal. There had been a time when the best he had hoped for was fall publication and he had rebelled at the thought of Stanley's having to spend another summer in the city. Now it would not be necessary.

"That's settled then. We'll motor up Friday afternoon. Think of anyone else who would add anything to the occasion?" Perry inquired hopefully.

"I'd like to ask Valerie Blair if you didn't mind, Perry." Stanley spoke suddenly—the words following the thought swiftly.

"You mean that young person who always takes to her heels the minute I arrive? I'm sure she dislikes me. I've worried about it a lot. Women don't usually run away—"

"That's because legs in repose have become an asset."

"Shut up, Dennis. I was about to say something John Harmon might have found useful. But about this Valerie person—do you think she'd come, Stan?"

"She might. If she did—you'd love her. Why not ask her?"

"Under those circumstances, why not? Will you do it, or shall I?" "I think you'd better leave it to me," Stanley decided.

"Tell her we're all perfectly harmless—even Nigel isn't nearly as subtle as he looks. It's the way his hair grows in a peak on his forehead." Dennis looked at her watch and stood up. "It seems to be six o'clock—the zero hour. The only thing you can possibly do at six o'clock is go home and get ready to go somewhere else. Come on, Nigel."

"I'm toddlin' too—give you a lift." Perry slid off the table, followed them to the door. "Friday afternoon, then. I'll pick you up and John Harmon up, Stanley. You'll drive Dennis up, I suppose, Nigel?"

John Harmon, coming into their room late the next afternoon from a solitary tramp, found Stanley sitting in front of a lovely Chippen-

Explanation Of 'Strange As It Seems'

Anatole France, whose real name was Jacques Anatole Thibault, achieved the greatest literary fame in France since Voltaire. He ranks as one of the most outstanding men of letters in modern literature. He was born in 1844 and died eight years ago. His was one of the best minds in recent centuries, yet, strange as it seems, his brain was 20 per cent smaller than the average laborer's.

I HAD SOME LITTLE SORROW TO NURSE ALONG, BUT I HAVEN'T HAD A TEAR IN MY EYE ALL DAY. I EVEN CAUGHT MYSELF BEIN' FRIVOLOUS—OH, WELL, BY WORRYIN' ALONG, IT'LL COME TO ME AGAIN.

Both the lightest and the heaviest known substances are elements. No gas produced in the laboratory is lighter than the hydrogen that is present in the atmosphere; no alloy of metals is easier than pure osmium, which is itself a metallic element of the platinum family. A given volume of osmium weighs more than 250,000 times as much as the same volume of hydrogen at normal atmospheric pressure.

Hydrogen was first recognized as an element by Cavendish in 1766. It is present in all acids and alcohols, as well as in water. Osmium is found in platinum bearing sands of the Ural mountains and elsewhere. It was discovered in 1803 by Tennant, and is more than twice as precious as gold.

Mixed Choir To Sing Here

Will Present Program At University High School

The 85 voice a capella choir of Central high school, Omaha, Neb., will present a program at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at University high school auditorium.

Pupils and parents wishing to attend the program may do so as guests of the school, Harry Newburn, principal, announced yesterday.

The program of the choir, with Mrs. Carl Marhoff Pitts, director, is as follows:

First group: "In Mirth and Gladness" by Niedt, "Lost in the Night" by Christiansen, and "The Brook" by Arkhangelsky.

Thomas Jones will offer two numbers on the next group: "Hear Ye Ye Winds and Waves" and "Water Boy."

The choir will sing again, "Sunrise" by Taneyef, "Sanctus" by Victor Herbert.

Kermit Hansen will present two selections by Jacques Wolfe, "Gwine to Hebb'n" and "The Hand-Organ Man."

The program of the choir will be concluded by two numbers, "Plume Grass" by Sukhnovsky and "Go Down Moses," a Negro spiritual.

An a capella choir, Mr. Newburn pointed out, is a mixed choir which is capable of singing from two to 12 parts and is unaccompanied. The word means "in church style."

Requests Loan of Spare Plots For Gardening

Stewart E. Wilson, chairman of the subsistence garden project this year for the Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce, asks for the donation of the use of plots of lands in and about Iowa City for subsistence gardens.

Persons owning vacant or unused plots of land and who are willing to donate their use for subsistence gardens are asked to dial 3534 between the hours of 10 a. m. and noon any day this week. Margaret Scanlon will receive calls from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. each day next week.

The demand for garden space is rapidly increasing because the families on poor relief are being required to maintain subsistence gardens, Mr. Wilson stated.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is again supervising the gardens this year. Those of last year have shown a large saving to the relief funds. Attention this year will be placed on individual gardens and not in an unemployment garden.

When government seeds are received and distribution ready to commence, a notice will be given, Mr. Wilson said.

Says World Is Preparing To Lose Freedom

This is not an age of revolt, as many may think, but instead the peoples of the earth are preparing for the loss of their freedom, the Rev. Harold Lancaster of the First Methodist church of Ottumwa told members of the Iowa City Kiwanis club at their luncheon at the Jefferson hotel yesterday.

Italy, Germany, and Russia have systems called by different names, the speaker said, but they all have one thing in common, the complete loss of individual freedom.

In England, the land of parliamentary government, there is propaganda, said the speaker, for the establishment of a fascist government and even in the United States there is an unmistakable trend in that direction.

The movement towards the loss of freedom is helped along by two groups, the Rev. Mr. Lancaster pointed out. First, the group that desires power and believes that it is capable of wielding that power; and second, the larger group that is willing that the first should have the power.

Although the loss of freedom might bring more amusements, more food and shelter, the speaker declared, the price is too high. It would mean the loss of the right to think and what is more important, it is not fitting to the dignity of man to be regimented into a lockstep parade. The individual who thinks is regarded as a menace in a totalitarian state, the speaker added.

The occasion may come when one shall be compelled to recognize that there is such a thing as a citizen feeling, he said, and at that time one will realize that it is one's duty to obey a higher law than that of the state.

In conclusion the speaker stated that freedom costs too much to be given up lightly.

The speaker was introduced by Lieut. Gov. Lester Joy of Ottumwa who was in turn introduced by Clifford L. Palmer. Don R. Mallett, G of Des Moines gave several vocal selections before the speech.
