Eighteen Staff Members To Attend State Medical Meeting

Faculty to Participate in Program at Des Moines

Eighteen members of the college of medicine staff will participate in the program of the eighty-third annual meeting of the Iowa State Medical Society at Des Moines May 9, 10, and 11.

Dr. Horace M. Kornis will speak before the cardiovascular and chest section on "The evaluation of cardiac symptoms," and Dr. Julia Cole will address this group on "The diagnosis and treatment of bronchial asthma."

"The surgical treatment of pulmonary infection," a talk by Dr. Howard L. Beye, head of the surgery department, will open the program of the abdominal surgery section. Dr. Frank R. Peterson of the surgery department will have as his topic "Tuberculosis lesions of the intestinal tract."

Inspection Of R.O.T.C. Units Begins Today

Federal inspection of infantry and engineer units of the Iowa R.O.T.C. will begin this morning with the examination of classroom work and methods for both basic and advanced course cadets, and will continue for three days, covering all the subjects offered by the military department.

The inspection will be concluded Friday afternoon with a formal review of the cadet regiment, after which a demonstration of practical work will be given, ending with a combat problem in attack for war strength by the infantry company.

In conjunction with a combat exercise to protect a bridging crew, the engineers will bridge the Iowa river near the university power plant. Medical and dental units in the military department were inspected yesterday.

Col. R. H. McMaster, corps area officer for the R.O.T.C., will conduct the general inspection. Lieut. Col. G. F. N. Daily, former head of the military department at the University of Illinois, will inspect the infantry unit. The engineer inspector will be Lieut. Col. John S. Butler, C.E., who inspected this unit last year.

Lieut. Col. Thomas E. Harwood, M.C., who inspected the medical and dental units, is a graduate of Vanderbilt university and has served as a flight surgeon in the air service.

Dr. Nathaniel G. Alcock, head of the genito-urinary department, will lecture to the urology and gynecology section on "Transurethral prostatic resection." Before this same section, Dr. Ewen MacEwen will consider "Anatomy of the undescended testicle," and Dr. Everett D. Pass will discuss "The proper treatment of uterine malignancies."

Two doctors of the college of medicine will address the gastro-intestinal and diabetes section. Dr. William H. Gibson will speak on "Roentgenological findings in chronic gall bladder diseases," and Dr. Clarence W. Baldrige will have as his subject "The diagnosis and treatment of spastic constipation."

Dr. Gregory Barer will lecture to the neurology and psychiatry section on "Clinical manifestations of encephalitis." A talk by Dr. Adolph Sals will concern "X-ray in the diagnosis of diseases of the nervous system," and Dr. William Malamud will conclude the program of this division with a talk on "Borderland psychosis."

The pediatrics and obstetrics section will open their meeting with a symposium, which will be led by Dr. John H. Randall. "Neonatal deaths and their prominent etiologic factors: Statistical data on neonatal deaths at the University hospitals," will be the subject discussed. Dr. Cyrus W. Rutherford will speak before the group on "Encephalitis and meningitis in the newborn."

The roentgenology division will be addressed by Dr. Edwin L. Rypins on "Roentgen ray diagnosis of non-specific foreign bodies in the bronchus." Dr. H. Dabney Kerr will terminate the program of the section with an address on "Irradiation treatment of superficial malignancies."

Three doctors of the college of medicine will speak before the eye, ear, nose, and throat section. Dr. MacEwen will present the initial talk on "Landmarks and surgical anatomy of the neck." Dr. Cecil S. O'Brien will address the group on "Orbital tumors," and Dr. Dean M. Lierle will give "The infants' temporal bone."

Several other members of the college of medicine and the University hospital will attend the meeting.

Dr. Charles B. Taylor, president of the organization, will call the meeting to order.

A formal reception will be held in honor of Dr. Walter Biering, health commissioner of Iowa and president-elect of the American Medical association, May 9.

In connection with this gathering, the woman's auxiliary of the Iowa State Medical society will convene May 9 for their fifth annual meeting.

The State Society of Iowa Medical Women will meet for their annual session Tuesday.

Three Made Members Of Honor Group

Philip T. Paul of the chemistry department and Kenneth P. Moore, G of Thornburg, new active members of Phi Lambda Upsilon, national honorary chemical fraternity, and Prof. Jaek J. Hinman, Jr., of the college of medicine, an associate member, were initiated into the society at the club rooms yesterday at 5 p.m.

Ralph I. Claassen and Ralph E. Silker of the chemistry department and Gerald A. Lillis, G of Davenport, conducted the initiation.

A banquet followed at 6 p.m. on the sun porch of Iowa Union. The program included welcoming remarks on behalf of the actives by James W. Newsome of the chemistry department; response for the initiates by Mr. Moore; and speech of the evening by Prof. L. Charles Raiford of the chemistry department. Mr. Lillis served as toastmaster.

After the banquet, Prof. Hubert L. Olin and Clifton L. Lovell of the chemistry department discussed current research being done in the chemical engineering laboratories. These talks, which were given in chemistry auditorium, constituted the May research program, one in a group under the direction of Phi Lambda Upsilon.

Reports on curious shaped holes found in creek beds of wooded territory and thought to be meteoric craters have been sent to Prof. C. C. Wylie, University of Iowa astronomer, by persons living near Tiffin.

It was found, upon investigation by Professor Wylie, Bemrose Boyd of the astronomy department, and James H. Lees, assistant state geologist, that cavities 10 feet deep and 60 feet in diameter had been made. Erosion of soil, glaciation, or impaction of falling meteors is thought to have caused the holes, but, according to Professor Wylie, no definite decision has been made to the most probable cause.

Veterans have suggested that the holes were made by buffalo in search of water, but this is thought unlikely as the buffalo were not in sufficient numbers in Iowa to have needed such a watering place. However, such buffalo "wallows" are commonly found in the west.

UCHIRO YOKOYAMA, KOKI HIROTA, HIROSHI SAITO, and SIR JOHN SIMON.

GENEVA (L.L.N.)—A new crisis in far eastern affairs is seen here as the result of the bold declaration of the Japanese government through its official spokesman, Consul General Uchiro Yokoyama, who served formal notice on the world proclaiming "Asia for the Asiatics," under Japan's leadership.

Britain, during which the Chinese statesman vigorously denied his country was collaborating with Japan in the program for Asiatic domination. On the contrary, Minister Quo bluntly accused Nippon of seeking entire mastery, not only of China but of the entire Pacific area.

Desire for Peace

While Consul General Yokoyama was making his sensational declaration in Geneva, Japanese Ambassador to the United States Hiroshi Saito was pouring oil on the troubled waters of Washington with a statement that Japan's only desire is for peace in the far east.

To this end, Japan opposes action by any power which might tend to disturb peace and order in Eastern Asia. But Japan alone must be the judge of what constitutes such action. Apparently the sale of American airplanes to China has been construed as tending to disturb the peace, for that is believed to be the main reason for Japan's sudden "hands off" dictum.

Treaty in Jeopardy

Further, Ambassador Saito denied that it was Japan's intention to establish a protectorate over China, reaffirming the recent announcement of Foreign Minister Koki Hirota that it is the desire of the Japanese government to "assist in stabilizing Chinese conditions." Saito also was emphatic in declaring that his country will honor all pacts.

However, Japan's intentions with regard to China have little to do with those she has as regards India. Mention of that country by Consul Yokoyama raised something of a storm in London. Observers here believe that Japan has gone a step too far in calmly proposing that she relieve John Bull of the responsibility of looking after India. It took Great Britain a long time to build her Indian empire and the very idea that she would let go of it at the request of Japan, say observers, is unthinkable.

Nor has the Chinese angle of the imbroglio anything to do with Japan's mention of the Philippines. Apparently when the United States moves out of the islands in a few years, Japan expects to move in, or, at least, to establish some kind of protectorate over them. That is something about which Washington is expected to be heard. Neither will the Dutch calmly submit to Japanese domination of her East Indies, say the political forecasters. A showdown between the western powers and Japan thus seems inevitable.

One thing on which all observers agree is that the United States and Great Britain will stand shoulder-to-shoulder in any such showdown.

Iowa Doctors Use Surgery In Their Attack on Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis of the lungs—a long a problem of medical science—is now being treated with the aid of surgery.

Many bed-ridden sufferers of this disease are being returned to normalcy with the aid of operation as part of a project of the surgery department of University hospital, in conjunction with the medical staff at Oakdale.

Recent Advance

Each Thursday three doctors of the surgery department, Dr. Clark N. Cooper, Dr. Arthur C. Pattison, and Dr. Frederick E. Hambrecht, conduct this surgical work with patients at Oakdale sanatorium. The arrest of tuberculosis of the lungs by operation is a development of the last few years.

Before this medical advancement became a reality, those stricken with this illness were often doomed to their beds for life. At present, notwithstanding the tremendous strain of this procedure on the patient, the majority of them are able to accept the opportunity to be chosen for surgical therapy.

Four Steps

There are four definite steps in arresting tuberculosis of the lungs, three being surgical, according to these doctors. The initial process in all cases consists of providing the stricken person with ample bed rest, sufficient sunshine, and proper diet, preferably in a sanatorium. For many, proper conduct of this first regime will be sufficient to arrest the disease; for others it is not enough.

The objective of the surgical work is to more nearly establish a complete rest for the infected lung than can otherwise be acquired. This approach is significant, especially when one realizes, for example, that a broken bone can be placed in a splint and provided complete rest, but not an infected lung.

Air Introduced

This course of action is begun with the attempt to compress the lung, which should also collapse the cavities, by introducing air into the surrounding pleural space. This step, if it proves to be necessary aid, for the arrest of the disease, will provide the necessary chance to build up the proper resistance.

If this arrangement is inadequate or unsuccessful, the diaphragm is then paralyzed by dividing the phrenic nerve, a nerve on each side of the neck. This procedure, in the event that it is successful, will allow the lung to partially collapse.

16th Segment

The final hope, perhaps the most tedious approach, consists of removing segments of the ribs on either side of the chest affected. This is done in order to remove the struts or supports from the chest cage, permitting the chest wall to compress the lung and collapse the cavities.

Aged Books Received By Pharmacists

Four old books in the German language have been received by the college of pharmacy from August F. Koch of Amana. The books are to be installed in the Iowa veteran druggists' museum in the main hallway of the pharmacy-botany building.

Two of the books are pharmacopoeias bearing the publishing dates, 1847 and 1848. The older one contains a supplement written by Frederick William, king of Prussia. The supplement deals with the use of the book as a guide to physicians, surgeons, apothecaries, and the medicinal board.

An historical introduction to the two books tells of a history of pharmacy dating from the flood to Moses.

The other two books are Latin textbooks in the German language. Mr. Koch explains in a letter accompanying the books that he used the books himself to learn Latin. These books are dated 1814 and 1825.

Mr. Koch graduated from the University of Iowa college of pharmacy in 1897.

Members of Ames Faculty Visit Here

Two members of the Ames faculty were in Iowa City yesterday. Joanna Hanson, head of the art department at Iowa State college, came to examine the murals in Prof. Grant Wood's public works of art project.

Dean Genevieve Fisher visited the home economics department and conferred with Prof. Frances Zull, its head.

Groups Will Plan For Memorial Day

Plans for Memorial day will be made tonight by the Memorial association at the American Legion Community building. All patriotic organizations are asked to attend the meeting, which will begin at 7:30.

WHEN you purchase a new General Electric Monitor Top refrigerator, you get unusual silence, freedom from repairs, years of carefree refrigeration.

The reason? Simply this. The Monitor Top mechanism is sealed in steel and runs in a bath of oil. No dirt or air can get in. There is nothing to adjust... nothing to interrupt uniform dependable service.

Frankly, you can't afford to be without a new General Electric refrigerator. You can't afford to continue putting up with food spoilage, overlooking quantity food purchases at bargain prices. You can't afford to trust the health of your family to mere luck.

Investigate both the Deluxe and standard Monitor Top models at your very first opportunity. Ask about the Flat Top General Electrics, also. You'll be just as delighted with General Electric styling as you are with its many unusual features.

The new Deluxe General Electrics combine superlative styling with unmatched performance.

Roosevelt Signs His "On Our Way" For University Library

President Franklin D. Roosevelt has autographed a first edition copy of his latest book, "On Our Way," for the University of Iowa law library. The book and autograph are to be placed in a collection of presidents' signatures recently started by Helen Moylan, law librarian.

"For the law library of the State University of Iowa," is the salutation in the president's handwriting accompanying the signature.

The signature of James Monroe, former president of the United States is in the collection.

"It is hoped that the autograph collection will be increased from time to time by students and alumni who are willing to contribute any autograph of a former president that they may have," Miss Moylan said.

Liberal Views in Popular Education

ONE OF THE first statements given to the press by President-Elect Eugene A. Gilmore was an assurance that he would do all in his power to further the development on the University of Iowa campus of the program begun under the administration of President Walter A. Jessup.

Two factors are combined in the theory of education which the retiring head of the university has attempted to further on this campus. The first, and one which deserves attention because President Jessup often fought for it against odds, is the aid which has been given students, in order that Iowa's education might be truly "popular."

The other, which on many campuses has been the very antithesis of the first, but which has grown up at Iowa by its side, is the trend toward the encouragement of individual effort.

Cooperative dormitories, employment aid, and scholarship fee exemptions have been created to make the way of poor students easier, and thus to open education to every man and woman in Iowa, no matter what his financial circumstances.

At the same time that Iowa's enrollment has been growing, attention has been given to the individual needs of students exceptionally brilliant or below the average.

should the portrayed career of the negroid bravo, Villa, herald a "cycle" exploiting the wealth of grisly material for melodrama which the histories of successful homicidal maniacs invariably contain.

The standard bandit chieftain story is surprisingly orthodox. There are glimpses of manly tenderness in the murderous heart; a pale, aristocratic girl; an avenging brother; a humorously drunken newspaper correspondent; a handsome hacienda; seizures of women; a series of multiple executions; a torture novelty or two, and a redeemingly courageous death.

Just as soon as I finish my present picture, if I feel that musicals are slipping, I am going to quit the screen.

In the history of pictures, no other successful star has cared as little about film work as Bing. He doesn't think he is an actor and has no desire to become one.

He thinks the utilities investigation's effect will be as great, if not greater, than those that have gone before.

It must have been encouraging to President Roosevelt and to Secretary of State Cordell Hull when the chief cabinet officer of the Hoover administration gave his unqualified support to the reciprocal tariff bill in a radio address this week.

Former Secretary Stimson insisted that it was only by means of legislation such as this that America would be able to escape the growth of extreme nationalism with its attendant restrictions and regimentation.

And it is significant that Mr. Stimson can see in the present tariff bill no danger of the usurpation of dictatorial control by the executive, as so many purely partisan attacks have suggested.

"Ho-Ho!", Cries Primo "I Lick Heem Poof!" Says Champion Of 'Gigolo Max' Baer

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 1—Hiding coyly behind a four week's growth of beard, Primo Carnera slipped into town from the Maine woods today and marveled largely at the wind storms his heavyweight title challenger, Max Baer, has been blowing up and down Manhattan's canyons.

"Ho, ho," he bellowed as he stretched himself across two barber chairs and called for a scythe and harrow, "So he call me a beeg boom, eh? I show heem who's the beeg boom June 14."

Trailled Easily Though he sought to hide his huge bulk behind two inches of bristling black whiskers, making him a more fearsome sight than ever, the Italian mastodon was trailed easily to the barber shop after he had failed to keep a date with newspapermen in Madison Square Garden.

"I no fight by talking," Primo puffed belligerently through a cloud of lather. "Who sees thees Baer he can do so much? He knock out worn out Schmeling, Paulino Lick heem. Loughran lick heem. I lick heem poof!"

Denuded Once denuded of the trailing arbutus, Carnera seemed in great shape after four weeks of roughing at a camp on Moosehead Lake, in Maine.

Joe Bowman made his first start for the Giants and held a 10-3 lead when he went out for a pinch hitter in the sixth, due largely to a hit and error outburst that drove Emil Leonard to cover in the third and netted the Giants six runs.

Terry's homer started the big Giant outburst in the third and Bowman finished it with a three bagger with the bases loaded after Tony Cuccinello and Danny Taylor had committed a pair of errors on one grounder.

IOWA A NINE LEAVES ON FOUR GAME TRIP

Giants Stave Off Late Rally To Win; Indians Trounce Sox

Watkins Busts Two; Hubbell Halts Uprising

Terry's Homer in Third Leads 6-Run Rally Off Leonard

NEW YORK, May 1 (AP)—The Giants today won their second game in a row from their neighbors across the East river, the Brooklyn Dodgers, 10 to 9, and reduced Chicago's National league lead to a half game.

George Watkins came out of a prolonged batting slump, to crack out two home runs and Manager Bill Terry clouted one to boost the Giants into an early lead. After the game appeared to be all sewed up, they almost tossed it away. Five Brooklyn errors played a large part in the New York scoring but the Giants made four themselves to hand the Dodgers a few runs.

Joe Bowman made his first start for the Giants and held a 10-3 lead when he went out for a pinch hitter in the sixth, due largely to a hit and error outburst that drove Emil Leonard to cover in the third and netted the Giants six runs.

Coach Kennett wishes to announce to all Finkbine golfers that the first nine holes of the University golf course will be closed to play on Friday between the hours of 3 and 4:30 p.m.

first big team competition this season. Coach Kennett and Coach Mike Howard will accompany the team.

It will be a busy week end for the Hawkeyes and Coach Kennett has decided to take six men on the trip in an effort to relieve the strain on the players. Leroy Vanderweken and Ed Sheldley will form the backbone of the team, with strong support coming from Jim Gardner.

Coach Kennett will depend upon Jim Parker, Herb Dill, and John Stromsten for the rest of his men.

The Hawkeyes will be anxious to redeem themselves for their loss to De Paul university last Saturday.

Little Hawks Prepare For District Meet

The next encounter for Coach George Wells' Little Hawks will be the district track and field meet, May 12, which will very likely be held at Davenport as in previous years.

Although decisively beaten by Muscatine last Thursday the Little Hawks turned in some fine performances, as is evident from the five first places which they garnered, in addition to a similar amount of seconds and thirds.

It is necessary to place in the district meet to be allowed to attend the state track and field classic. While the Wellsmen can't be expected to score a great number of points they may qualify a few individual performers, particularly in the person of Dale Marshall, whose specialty is hurdling the javelin.

Marshall won first place in this event at the district meet last year and gives fair indication of repeating.

Hudlin Tames Sox As Mates Batter Gaston

Cleveland Wallops Four Homers to Win Easily, 12-1

CHICAGO, May 1 (AP)—Cleveland's Indians backed up Willis Hudlin's fine pitching today with a home run assault to wallopp the Chicago White Sox 12 to 1, and even the series.

Hudlin, making his 1934 debut, held the Sox, who laced Cleveland hurlers for 18 hits yesterday, to five singles and scoreless until the eighth inning. His mates clouted Mill Gaston, Jim Pomorski, Lee Stine and Ted Lyons for 15 blows, including home runs by Joe Vosmik, Earl Averill, Odel Hale and Bill Knickerbocker.

Knickerbocker's came with the bases loaded in the sixth, topping a five run rally.

Vosmik was mixed up in all the Indiana scoring. His homer in the first inning scored Frank Pytlak ahead of him. Gaston steadied after that, but Vosmik opened the sixth with a single. Hal Trosky followed with a double and an intentional pass to Hale filled the bases and another walk forced in a run. Knickerbocker finished the blast with his homer.

Averill socked Stine for his homer in the seventh, and another single by Vosmik, Trosky's second double and two infield outs, scored another pair in the inning. Vosmik doubled in the ninth and came home on Hale's homer.

Al Simmons scored the lone Sox run in the seventh, singling and going to third on Luke Appling's single. He scored as Jimmy Dykes hit into a double play.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Cleveland.....200 005 302-12 15 0 Chicago.....000 000 100-1 5 1 Batteries—Hudlin and Pytlak; Gaston, Pomorski, Stine, Lyons and Shea.

Detroit Wins DETROIT, May 1 (AP)—Manager Mickey Cochrane benched Leon Goslin and moved Hank Greenberg into the cleanup position today and the result was a 5 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The Tigers trailed until the eighth inning when with two out Greenberg and Walker singled and then scored to third on Luke Appling's single. He scored as Jimmy Dykes hit into a double play.

Score by innings: R. H. E. St. Louis.....000 301 000-4 8 1 Detroit.....000 102 02-5 10 3 Batteries—Hadley, Knott, Wells and Hemsley; Fischer, Marberry and Cochrane.

Boston Trims A's BOSTON, May 1 (AP)—Henry Johnson, Boston Red Sox right handed ace, was in sparkling form for eight innings today as his mates slugged a trio of Philadelphia pitchers for 12 hits and a 7-2 victory.

Johnson had eight strikeouts and held the Athletics scoreless until the ninth when doubles by IM Coleman, Jimmy Fox and Eric McNair provided a pair of runs.

The Sox belted Merritt "Sugar" Cain for 10 hits before driving him from the mound in the seventh.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Philadelphia.....000 000 002-2 6 3 Boston.....003 002 11-7 13 0 Batteries—Cain, Marcum, Matuzak and Berry; Hayes, H. Johnson and Hinkle.

Yanks Blast Nats WASHINGTON, May 1 (AP)—The Yankees opened up with their big guns in the ninth inning today after Washington had tied the score at 5-5 in the eighth and blasted out their second victory over the Senators, 10 to 5.

The first three men to face Al Crowder and Bob Burke, who hurriedly relieved him, clouted triples. The trio was Don Heffner, Relief Pflinger George Uhle and Earle Combs. Then Frank Crosetti singled and Babe Ruth doubled before Ray Prim retired the side.

Score by innings: R. H. E. New York.....300 100 105-10 14 1 Washington.....003 000 110-5 13 1 Batteries—Macfayden, Smythe, Uhle and Dickey; Stewart, Crowder, Burke, Prim and Berg; Klump.

Hawks to Engage Illini Netmen Here

The same University of Iowa tennis quartet which held Chicago, with its conference champions, to a tie will appear here Friday against Illinois.

John Fletcher of Des Moines, winner of two of three singles matches this year, has the best record of the Iowans, while two doubles teams, Fletcher and Capt. Al Sleh, and John Van der Zee and Frank Nye, each have won twice in three starts.

Iowans Slam Dash, Hurdle Events in Win

Nelson, Lindstrom Lead Victory; Hoosier Ace In 3 Triumphs

Staging a scoring spree that topped slams in four track events and a sparkling victory in the one mile relay, the University of Iowa freshman track and field team opened the outdoor telegraphic season last week with an overwhelming victory over Indiana, 92 to 35.

Sprinters, led by Carl Nelson who stepped the 100 yard dash in .09.9 and the 220 yard dash in 21.9, won the three places in the two events.

Jack Lindstrom's .15.2 for the 120 yard hurdles and .24.5 for the 220 yard low hurdles, led the Iowans in slugging these two events. Both were victories of merit, Indiana had no entrants in the shorter race.

To Lash of Indiana goes the major scoring honors garnered from three smashing victories in the distance races. Lash won the 880 yard run in 2:03.5, fairly good time. His 4:30.5 mile victory was exceptional. The two mile run in 9:34.2 marks the athlete as outstanding in conference freshman circles.

Iowa frosh broke even in firsts in the field events, Buss winning the broad jump with a leap of 21 feet 10 inches, Carlson taking the pole vault at 11 feet 7 inches, and Nelson winning the javelin throw with a heave of 171 feet 4.3 inches.

Hawks Take Relay A quartet of Iowa freshman quartermilers raced the one mile relay in the fast time of 3:26.8 to win this event. The four, Briggs, Doolley, Skinner, and Phillips, averaged 51.6 for the performance.

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP)—The mighty Twenty Grand's track record for a mile was broken today by Joseph E. Widener's Peace Chance in winning the preparation course for 3 year olds, offered as a conditioner for nominees for the Kentucky derby to be raced at Churchill Downs Saturday.

Second choice in the wagering, Peace Chance, with jockey W. D. Wright aboard, ran the mile in 1:35.4-5, one-fifth faster than Twenty Grand's time in the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes in 1930. The Widener colt finished four lengths in front of Col. E. R. Bradley's Blue Again, an outsider which ran a surprising race.

Hawks Meet Fast Luther Team Today

Coach Otto Vogel and 16 Iowa baseball men leave at 8:30 this morning for a five day trip on which they will take on four first-class opponents.

The Hawkeyes will face Luther at Decorah this afternoon, Carleton at Northfield tomorrow, and Minnesota at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday.

Iowa will try to raise its standing in the Big Ten from third place when the team meets last year's champions on their home field, Minnesota's record of four defeats in five starts, however, puts the Gophers at the bottom of the list this season.

One Loss So Far Chicago's defeat of Iowa last Saturday is the only setback the Hawks have received in 10 games. The Hawkeyes have a record of 9 wins, 58 more than their opponents, on 98 hits. Rival teams have 39 less hits. At bat, Iowa's average is .311 and opponents' is .211.

Kenneth Blackman's average is less than any of the leaders in the double-header with Chicago, and a result he is leading Iowa hits with an average of .400. Capt. Herman Schuttehrieh, second baseman, ranks second with .349, while Glen Baker, big first baseman who held the lead for some time, is in third place.

Christian Schmidt, catcher, with .333, is in fourth place, while Frank Drager, centerfielder, and John Stephens, third baseman, each have hit .305.

Bresnahan Holds Time Trials; Iowa In Meet Saturday

Time trials were held last night on Iowa field for the Iowa-Wisconsin-Northwestern triangular meet here this Saturday.

Coach George T. Bresnahan hopes to have his squad in top form for the only outdoor meet scheduled on the home field and to try for revenge over Wisconsin, the team that won the indoor triangular meet between the three teams at Madison.

More trials are scheduled for tonight but the work, for the most part, will be to smooth off for the meet Saturday.

Gymnastics More Than Just A Sport, Says Baumgartner

By DON CAHALAN

"Ready! One. Two. Three!" The director barks his commands. Twelve men march in unison to many sets of parallel bars and glide into action. Following given commands, all move through the same difficult exercise with clocklike precision; a camera snapshot would catch them at any time during the exercise in absolute teamwork. And, beyond them are assembled the rest of their team, 48 to 64 in number, awaiting their turn.

Scenes like this were described recently by Albert Baumgartner, Iowa gymnastic coach, in drawing comparisons between the sport as known in Switzerland and other European countries and as known in the United States.

National Sport

"Gymnastics is the Swiss national sport, and has no real competition from others," said Coach Baumgartner. "All other sports are minor. A great proportion of able-bodied men participate in it from boyhood on. Every city in every canton has a number of teams, with about 24 to 30 members in each. A city like Iowa City would have five teams of 24 to 30 active members."

Swiss gymnastics are conducted entirely in the open air, according to Mr. Baumgartner, and the sport is not hampered by the confines of a gymnasium, made necessary here by limitations of space and climate.

The sport, begun in Germany by Gutsmuth and Jahn during the turn of the eighteenth century, at first was merely a crude plan for the development of physique and coordination. The first apparatus used was laughably clumsy and misshapen, and the exercises were not very systematic, says the Hawk coach.

Great Development

From this humble beginning was developed in 150 years the sport that has become an integral part of the lives of an imposing number of Swiss citizens. Beginning training in the secondary schools, they rarely drop out before middle age.

As soon as they qualify, youths enter the "active" group, which constitutes the backbone of real performance. Men of 20 to 35 belong in this class. After age makes strenuous exercise difficult, the individual passes on to the men's class. "All keep active and in good trim," says the Hawk coach.

Besides these classes there is a "junior" group, usually the youngest men of the town, who support the organization in a material way.

High Standards

All Swiss teams must belong to the Swiss Federal Gymnastic union; no "free-lancers" are allowed. The union sets high standards, both physical and moral, for membership. A member expelled for misconduct never can be reinstated.

"Gymnastics is a social affair in Switzerland; a big brotherhood of men," asserted Coach Baumgartner explaining that American gymnastics are more individualistic, in the main.

While college gymnasts can specialize on one apparatus, those abroad must compete in every phase of the sport. Besides required exercises of the side horse, parallel bars, and high bar, the program includes long horse competition, pole vault, broad jump, and college tennis.

The high jump and dash events, also part of the program, must be executed with form. Judging of events is on the same basis as in the narrowed field of American gymnastics: form, difficulty, and continuity.

Calisthenics, too, according to Coach Baumgartner, come into play as one of the most colorful aspects of the sport.

Massed Drills

Picture 20,000 men in one massed drill on one field! Seen from a distance during a certain phase of the movement, they appear like a vast but orderly horde of graceful water-fowl poised in readiness for flight. In an open field, with a background of snowy peaks in the distance, the sight is impressive. And, in Germany, where Coach Baumgartner has seen 80,000 perform in such a drill, the array appears like a landing field when seen from an airplane, with its orderly lines and its dashes of color lent by various shades of uniforms from different sections of the country.

American college gymnastics, according to the Iowa coach, tends to develop individual stars, many of them very able; no individual championships are awarded in Switzerland. All-around performance is compulsory, and a star must compete with his team in everything offered.

There are no rafters in the open air to suspend rings from, and tumbling mats are expensive. So, tumbling and the flying rings, considered two of the most important events in American gymnastics, have to be omitted from Swiss workouts.

In America

This sport was introduced into America by Balkan and Swiss immigrants in their settlements. The Austrian and Bohemian Sokols and the "Toulotte" ("Turpie") organizations follow the European plan of the sport in America, according to the Hawk coach. Y.M.C.A. teams in the eastern states have also done good work in development of the sport, he says.

Lack of time and facilities as g rule keep American followers of the sport from continuing such training over an extended period of time, asserts Mr. Baumgartner. The Swiss manage to continue. Moreover, the period of training in preparation for big meets is longer there than here; at least three months are spent in training for a federal meet.

Contrary to what might be expected, the city boys make better gymnasts than the sturdy lads from outlying Alpine districts, the yodelling cowherds and mountain climbers of story books.

Quick To Learn

"They are quicker in learning, and more alert," says Coach Baumgartner, who, as a native of St. Gallen, still holds a membership in one of the seven teams in this city of 100,000.

Gymnastics are considered a matter of health and national protection over there. The muscular development and greater coordination it gives makes better citizens," said the coach of the Iowans, who agreed that the spectacle of 100,000 onlookers watching 22 men struggle on the field for a ball is one utterly foreign to the Swiss.

Participation is the keynote of the sport in Switzerland, indicated Coach Baumgartner; although an audience of 45,000 may be present at a tournament, the chances are that the participants will be almost as many in number.

The Alpha Sigs overpowered the Phi Gamma Delta team by a score of 26 to 10. The tremendous hitting power of the Alpha Sigs proved too much for their opponents. Lawson and Brachtel pitched for the winners and Anderson for the losers.

'THE LONE WOLF'S SON'

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

SYNOPSIS

Sailing from France to America aboard the S.S. "Navarre," the reformed "Lone Wolf" erstwhile master crook, meets wealthy Fay Crozier, one of his antique shop patrons, and her lovely daughter Fenno. Mrs. Crozier shows Lanyard the famous Habsburg emeralds which she bought secretly to avoid payment of duty. Lanyard's experienced eye discovers that counterfeiters have been substituted for the gems. He promises to try and retrieve the emeralds. Lanyard suspects Maurice Parry, a youthful fellow-passenger, who appears deeply interested in Fenno. The resemblance between Lanyard and Maurice causes the former to wonder if they are related. In a bridge game with two card sharks, Maurice loses heavily. Lanyard joins the players as Parry's partner, catches their opponents cheating and threatens to expose them unless Maurice's loss is called off. Later, Lanyard tells the appreciative Maurice that he can repay him by returning Mrs. Crozier's jewels. The youth removes the top of his cane only to find that Lanyard had been there before him and had replaced the stolen emeralds with the zircons (false gems). Lanyard chafes Maurice for his lack of cleverness. The boy retorts—"If you think I'm ashamed of being no match for my own father..." Lanyard believed his son had been killed with the rest of his family during the war.

CHAPTER VIII

"I must say you don't act as if you found the prospect welcome!" "Reflect that you offer me as my unknown son—if any—a thief."

"And if so? What were you?" "At your age, as I have already pointed out, also a bumptious young jackass. But come, monsieur! It would appear that we do not get anywhere."

"But it seems to me you hardly care to." The young man gave his own version of a baffled shrug. "Frankly, you discourage me."

"Because I decline to play the hypocrite?"

"How, play the hypocrite?" "Affect what I do not feel—pretend to approve, in one who may or may not turn out to be my own flesh, courses which I actually deplore."

"I see, monsieur. You do not wish to believe."

"You are mistaken—a slow witted protestation sincerity indisputable—so far so that you find me already, with little more to go on than a certain likeness, half-permeated. But my reason wants proofs that my heart would dispense with. You might, for example, begin by telling me what your name was before it was Maurice Parry."

"Ah, monsieur! I have had so many."

"No doubt. But the first you can recall, your name as a boy."

"With dark eyes fast to Lanyard's the young man deliberately pronounced: "Choin, monsieur—Maurice Choin."

"And all at once Lanyard knew he would have been inconceivable, given his own answer; and hearing his own murmur in the hush—"Impossible!"—in immediate denial of it opened his arms. "My dear boy!"

"And his son went to him. Akin as both were by lifelong habit to the Latin temper, those two grown men embraced and were not ashamed."

"How did you know?" "I didn't," Maurice protested as they disengaged. "It was only tonight that I guessed. . . . But I never forgot the last words my mother breathed as she lay dying, with my sister dead in her arms—"

"How—"

"The youth shook his head. "I hardly know. Think how it must have been with a child caught in that terror which broke, like hell out of a clear sky, on the peaceful home you can't have forgotten. Everything was suddenly blood and

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Billy the Kid, famous boy bandit of the old west, is credited, or charged, with the killing of 21 men by the killing of 21 men by the first birthday. Some authorities have expressed doubt of this number, but those who knew him best and those who knew the old west best say that the number might well be set beyond 21 if Mexican and Indians are to be included in it.

Billy was still a youth when he was killed by his one-time friend, Sheriff Pat Garrett.

Most airplane pilots find plenty to keep both hands and feet busy when taking off in a ship, or when going through such maneuvers as the loop, barrel roll, and spin. One hand they keep on the stick, the other on the throttle, and both feet on the rudder. But Johnny Crowell gets along remarkably well with his feet alone.

Flying a two-place open ship, with both of his hands tied above his head, he took off, climbed to 2,000 feet where he did a series of loops, ten landed the plane again without touching any of the controls with his hands. He had held the stick between his knees. The first flight was so successful that he went up again with both hands tied, and this time did a barrel roll and spin, setting his ship down on a predetermined spot.

Officials To Inspect New State Park

The regular monthly meeting of the state game and fish commission will be held in Iowa City tomorrow, according to word received here yesterday.

The members will inspect the new state park about 13 miles north of Iowa City. When their tour of the park is completed they will hold a business meeting at the Jefferson hotel.

According to the latest information the artificial lake in the new park will be finished by the first of October. At this time the commission will have the water tested and approved so they can immediately stock the lake with approximately 150,000 fish of legal size. They will be of four varieties: blue gills, bass, crappies, and sunfish.

Junior Group Hears Speech On Campaign

Highway safety week was explained to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at their meeting in Reich's Pine room last evening by H. I. Jennings, first district chairman in charge of safety. This campaign from May 6 to 13 which is backed by the American Legion of Iowa City will be the beginning of a check on every car in Johnson county.

A safety lane located at Burlington and Clinton streets will be provided in which cars will be checked. All safety appliances such as brakes, lights, wheel alignment, horn and windshield wipers will be checked by three unemployed mechanics. If a car passes the tests satisfactorily it will receive an OK sticker.

If any defects are found, Mr. Jennings explained, the driver will be required to have the necessary repairs made at any local garage he may choose.

The necessity for the safety campaign was pointed out by Mr. Jennings who declared that there are 80 deaths a day on American highways and that the rate is on the increase.

Prof. Charles C. Wylie of the astronomy department gave a talk following the dinner on meteors and meteorites.

It was decided to hold a Junior Chamber golf tournament at the Country club, the date for which will be announced later.

Captain Yanausch To Lecture Tonight

Capt. A. J. Yanausch will talk on "Cavalry—its organization, functions and the trend toward motorization" at 7:30 tonight in room 24, S.U.I. armory. Motion pictures will be shown after the talk.

This is the next to last session of the conference school established for Johnson county reserve officers. The last meeting will be a dinner at Iowa Union on May 16.

Kiwanians Hear of Recent Soviet Union Experiments

Speaker Tells About New Criminal Treatment

Criminals taking vacations on pay, eight minute marriages and seven minute divorces were among the impressions of Russia, described by Prof. Vance Russell of Coe college, who spent a summer in Russia recently, before 65 members of the Iowa City and Cedar Rapids Kiwanis clubs at a meeting in the Jefferson hotel last night.

The radical change in Russian morals during the last few years, especially experiments in prison reform and marriage, have been due, Professor Russell said, to the fact that the Russian people have only one loyalty and that is to the state. Cooperation is the keynote of the Russian revolution, he pointed out.

Prison Experiment
The most interesting experiment in the world today is the treatment of the Russian criminal, said the speaker. Their prisons have no walls, no fences, no guns and no guards, and the prisoners are treated as if they were in school, because the Russian government feels that crimes are due entirely to the fact that the criminal did not have the right kind of an environment, he said.

On these prison farms the inmates are taught how to work by learning trades and how to play by taking up tennis and baseball. The prisoners are paid a regular salary for their work and are allowed to visit the nearby village at any time, Professor Russell said.

Vacations
Once a year they are allowed a three weeks vacation on full pay. Less than one per cent of the prisoners have failed to come back and have had to be hunted. No prison sentence is longer than 10 years, no matter what the nature of the crime is, and upon the prisoner's discharge he may immediately procure a job.

AROUND THE TOWN with DICK FAGAN

Council
An ordinance calling for the establishment of a municipal light plant will probably be introduced by Alderman Jacob Van der Zee Friday night at the council meeting. He gave notice at the last meeting.

Cars
Mayor Harry D. Breene and Police Chief W. H. Bender ask all Iowa Citizens to leave their cars at home during the music festival this week end if at all possible, since there are some 5,000 high school students entering the city, making many possibilities for accidents.

Dried Up
It has been reported that Swan lake, covering several acres in Madison township, has almost dried up during the dry spring. There are thousands of dead fish in the lake bed. It is the only natural lake in the county, being fed by a spring.

Mother's Day
Sale of the special Mother's day three cent postage stamp will begin at the post office tomorrow. The stamp, which is about the size of a special delivery stamp, bears a portrait of Whistler's "Portrait of my mother." The post office has secured 30,000 stamps.

Local Man Will Enter Priesthood

The Rev. Herman Strub, son of Mrs. Anna and the late Herman A. Strub of Iowa City, will be ordained to the priesthood of the Catholic church next Thursday morning, May 10, Ascension Thursday, at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in Davenport.

The ceremony, which will begin at 10 o'clock, will be performed by the Most Rev. Henry P. Rohlfmann, bishop of Davenport. A number of other priests will be ordained at the same time.

Father Strub will sing his first solemn high mass in St. Mary's church in Iowa City on Sunday, May 13, at 10 a.m. Father Strub is a member of one of Iowa City's oldest and most prominent families, his father being the founder of Strub's department store here. He was born here on July 21, 1903 and lived here all his life with the exception of the time away at school.

He attended St. Mary's grade and high school, graduating in 1922. In 1925 he entered St. Ambrose college at Davenport, receiving his A. B. degree in 1930. He then entered St. Paul seminary, St. Paul, Minn., from which he now returns to be ordained.

as there is no stigma attached to ex-convicts, the speaker added.

Puritainical
The Russian people are becoming almost Puritainical, said Professor Russell, in their desire to make themselves worthwhile citizens of the state.

Marriage
In order to marry, a couple must go before a state official and show their labor union cards, tell their ages, show their divorce certificates, and prove that they have no venereal diseases, he said.

State Nurseries
Among the other changes made in Russia is the building of state nurseries for the children which, though the speaker believed, they would eventually break up family life, are good in that they give the child much better care than it would otherwise get.

Ed Rose of the Iowa City club was in charge of the meeting. Donald Gaffney, president of the Cedar Rapids club and Albert Sidwell, president of the local club, gave short talks and also introduced fellow club members. Musical numbers were presented by the Rainbow Girls trio of station KWCR at Cedar Rapids.

Bowling Club Ends Season With Banquet

Twenty-four members of the Ladies Playmore Bowling league held a banquet last night at the Jefferson hotel to mark the close of the bowling season.

The table was decorated with spring flowers and the colors were those of the six teams in the league.

Helen Putnam was awarded a prize for the highest single game score recorded during the season. She bowled a 214. She also won the highest individual three game honors by bowling a 562.

The Butterfly Cafe team won the three game team honors by bowling a 1662 in the final tournament Friday night. Members of the winning team were Edna Martin, Helen Neumann, Maurine Fetig, and Helen Putnam.

The six teams finished the season in the following order: Bob and Henry, Jess and Peg, Butterfly Cafe, Iowa City Iron works, Kelly Cleaners, and Putnam Orchestra.

Agnes Nemendorf is president of the league.

Iowa Citizens See Summer Weather

Iowa Citizens enjoyed typical summer weather yesterday with the high temperature being 82 degrees.

'Ding' Darling Aided Movement Toward State Conservation

(Note: This is the first of a series of articles on the new state park and game refuge located about 13 miles north of Iowa City. Another will appear tomorrow.)

J. N. Darling, commonly known as "Ding," noted cartoonist, and member of both state and national committees on conservation, probably deserves more credit for present day state conservation work than any one person.

He has contributed thousands of dollars of his own money to state conservation and is now chairman of the federal wild life committee.

"Father of Plan"
He is called by his associates "the father of the 25 year plan for the development of conservation in Iowa."

In April of 1933 his dream of artificial lakes in southern Iowa began to materialize when the National Emergency Conservation act was passed at Washington.

Immediately leaving for that city, he interested President Roosevelt in his plan. With the aid of a book, "Report on the Iowa Twenty-five Year Conservation Plan," by Jacob L. Crane, Jr., consultant landscape architect for the Iowa Department of Conservation, and his collection of briefs he convinced the chief executive, who put his stamp of approval on it the next day.

First State
Iowa was the first state in the country to present a definite plan of this sort; consequently, the Civilian Conservation corps soon were at work on the project in this county. On receiving approval of Iowa's plan, Mr. Darling at once notified the state Fish and Game commission. The local Chamber of Commerce soon took up the work and a committee of Iowa Citizens began to secure options on the land. The securing of the state park must be credited to the untiring work of a few public spirited citizens of Iowa City.

Next, the state commission approved the project and plans were laid for the construction work.

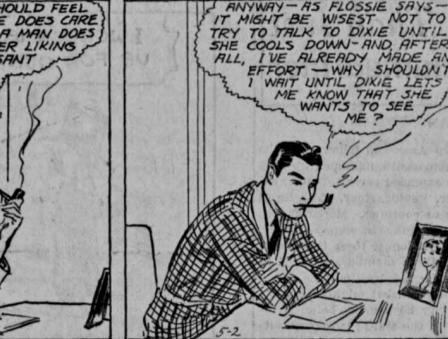

Committeemen
The following persons are members of the committee: Dr. E. J. Anthony, A. A. Welt, Roy Ewers, Prof. F. B. Knight, Dr. H. R. Jenkinson, Prof. Fred J. Lazell, Chris Yetter, Will J. Hayek, and Fred Seeman. Many others also gave valuable assistance to the committee in formulating plans for the park.

The state would have nothing to do with the project unless the land was state-owned, so Mr. Welt was given power to buy up the land and deed it over to the state. CCC workers would then be able to do a good part of the labor as they must be employed on land that is owned by the state.

In order to purchase the land, money was to be raised by selling cottage sites on a centrally located plot of ground which would be a peninsula when a dam was completed.

From a low of 53 Monday the thermometer continued to climb until at 7 a.m. it read 56 yesterday. At 7 p.m. the mercury registered 63 degrees, according to Prof. John P. Reilly, official observer.

Plan Service For Howard L. Rowland

Funeral service for Howard L. Rowland, 74, who died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Welsh church six miles southwest of Iowa City. Harold Schmidt will officiate, and burial will be in the Welsh cemetery. The body will be at the Beckman funeral home until 11 a.m. Thursday.

Mr. Rowland was born in Ebenburg, Pa., April 23, 1860. He lived in Johnson county 65 years, coming here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rowland. For the last 10 years, Mr. Rowland lived at the Will H. Griffith home in Union township.

Mr. Rowland is survived by two sisters, Mrs. T. D. Davis and Mrs. Emily Hughes, both of Iowa City, and a brother-in-law, I. N. Rowland of Iowa City. He was preceded in death by a sister, Mrs. Hattie Rowland, who died in 1925.

"I call that a good day's shopping"

ALL the things I wanted—in ONE refrigerator

She didn't have to "skimp" on shelfroom to get a beautiful cabinet. Or sacrifice style for convenience. Or accept less than the best, to meet a price. Leonard, the complete refrigerator, is designed to save steps, time, work, spoilage and waste. Beautiful to look at—with planned interior, and a score of great convenience features. Eleven beautiful models (all porcelain).
