UNION CHIEFS CALL TEXTILE STRIKE

President Roosevelt Hails "New Understanding;" Says People Share Government Partnership

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 30 (AP)—In the bright sunshine of this little field of the "brothers war," President Roosevelt today hailed a "new understanding" in the United States.

"We know that we all have a stake—a partnership in the government of our country," he told the vast throng of faces covering the decorated fields. "All of us share in whatever good comes to the average man. We are all brothers now in a new understanding."

Reaching this historic town late in the afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt halted in the national cemetery opposite the grave circled monument where Abraham Lincoln consecrated the ground to government by the people, to watch children drop flowers on the tiers of graves of men who fought here.

Speaking from a platform nearly a few minutes later, he asserted "it is in our power to attain the great goal—a consolidated nation."

Three elements were listed by the president as hindering progress:

"These groups are those who seek to stir up political animosity or to build political advantage by the distortion of facts; those who, by declining to follow the rules of the game, seek to gain an unfair advantage over those who live up to the rules; and those few who still, because they have never been willing to take an interest in their fellow Americans, dwell inside of their narrow spheres and still represent the selfishness of sectionalism which has no place in our national life."

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania was cheered as he introduced President Roosevelt as "the leader who has taken the helm of a newly united nation." He presented the president as a "maker of decisions."

Throughs lined the route of the presidential party from the station to the cemetery. Governor and Mrs. Pinchot rode in the open car with Mr. Roosevelt.

The president returned after his brief and simple exercise to his special train to hasten on to New York where tomorrow he will review the United States fleet.

Principals in "Tiger Woman's" Escapades

Alberta Meadows

Armour Phillips

Jesse Carson

Clara Phillips

Recent announcement that Clara Phillips will be paroled in June, 1935, recalls the furor she created here in 1923, when she was convicted of slaying Alberta Meadows, rival for the affections of her husband, Armour Phillips, California oil operator. The "Tiger Woman," as she was then called, was convicted on evidence of Peggy Chaffee, her bosom friend, who claimed to be an eyewitness to the killing. After conviction, while awaiting removal to San Quentin, Mrs. Phillips was released from Los Angeles jail in a sensational manner by Jesse Carson, pine-needle-wearing ex-cowboy, who fled with her newspaper pictures. She fled with him to Honduras, South America, where she was released. In many appeals to California governors, Mrs. Phillips protested her innocence. She intended to live with her husband on her release.

TEHACHAPI, Cal., (IIN)—When the sun peeps over the California hills on June 17, 1935, it will herald the advent of a new dawn for Clara Phillips, who monopolized the nation's headlines back in 1923, when as the "Tiger Woman" she was sentenced to from 10 years to life in prison for hammering to death Alberta Meadows, her rival for the affections of her husband, Armour Phillips.

Selected Music Students To Get Special Training Here

University Will Again Offer Summer Courses

All-state high school musicians will again perform and study on the Iowa campus this summer, under the university music department. Courses in the theory and practice of music will be given for the selected groups of high school students during both terms of the summer session. A regular series of public concerts will be presented by the organizations.

Selected From Groups
Students will be selected for these special courses from the following groups: contestants in the 1934 state music festival, "superior" or "excellent" rated contestants in the Iowa district music contests, and students who have done outstanding work in regular high school music courses. Selection will be based upon recommendations made by the high school teaching staffs.

During the first term, June 11 to July 19, courses in orchestra, chorus, and chamber music will be offered. The chorus will rehearse daily in the morning, and boys and girls glee clubs will meet in the afternoon. The full orchestra will practice in the morning, and instruction for various sections will be given in the afternoon.

Second Term
A similar procedure will be followed out during the second term, July 23 to Aug. 23. Courses will be offered in band and chamber music. In addition to the work in one major group—either band or orchestra—students will receive instruction in music theory, appreciation, and private lesson weekly in some instrument or voice.

All-state high school musicians who have completed their high school work may apply the credit earned toward graduation from the University of Iowa in the college of liberal arts.

Started in 1929
The all-state high school music organizations were established in 1929, and have attracted widespread interest among musicians and educators. Nearly 100 high school students are among the group which studies here annually.

Five visiting lecturers in music will augment the regular music department staff in instructing the high school musicians. In addition to the public concerts, a series of weekly student recitals is being planned.

Off The Record

Unofficial Incidents In Washington, D. C., Nation's Capital

By SIGRID ARNE
Secretary and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace have had to face the fact that one bathroom in their home is closed to family use.

Robert, the young son, has appropriated it for raising tropical fish.

"But things have been much worse," says Mrs. Wallace philosophically. "Robert has just graduated from a passion for snakes. But there came a time when we grew weary of seeing them crawl out of wastebaskets and clothes closets. The snakes weren't satisfied with the bathroom, but the fish seem to be."

One of Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite pieces of jewelry is an old-fashioned chateleine watch which she wears pinned to her daytime frocks. It was an engagement gift from the president.

Chief Justice Fletcher Riley of the supreme court of Oklahoma has been indulging in some sight-seeing here with his 8 year old daughter.

Little Miss Riley has an aptitude for condensed description which she gives free rein in her diary.

One day they heard a speech by Chief Justice Hughes. Returning to the hotel little Miss Riley made a dash for her diary. Later her father took a "peek," she had written:

"Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes—has nice white whiskers—but too long a speech."

The Cloak Room club, a group of representatives headed by Martin Dies and O. H. Cross, both of Texas, has followed the administration's lead and is granting new prerogatives to women—or, at least, to one woman.

Members have invited Representative Isabella Greenway of Arizona to join them in their talk fests.

"Love to," said Mrs. Greenway, "one one condition—that no one gets up when I come in."

The minister from the Union of South Africa, Ralph W. Close, K. C., received a lesson in the differences between the English and "American" languages very early after his recent arrival here.

Established in a hotel, he phoned to order "a bit of soda" for drink-making purposes.

After some time a smiling bell boy rapped, and entered with a neat little package.

Curious, Mr. Close unwrapped it.

Tragic Mistake

Guy M. Croft, ward supervisor at the Boston State hospital, Mattapan, Mass., shown after his arrest on a charge of manslaughter arising from the deaths of two patients who were given deadly doses of a drug by mistake. Ordered to give salts, Croft administered lethal doses of luminal.

It was a little yellow box labeled "bicarbonate of soda."

The gavel which Vice President Garner used to keep order in the senate called together the first meeting of the United States senate in 1789.

It proclaimed the passage of the war bills of 1812, and those of the Mexican, Spanish and World wars. It kept the body quiet for the speeches of Clay, Calhoun and Webster, just as it does today when Senators Carter Glass and Huey Long lock horns.

Three government scrub-women never will know how close they came to receiving invitations to a White House tea.

Lists were being checked for the tea for women in executive government positions. One confused department official, checking the list in his division, stared at three names: "Mrs. McGillicuddy, Mrs. Garity and Mrs. Marco."

"Say," he demanded, "Do these women work in my department?"

"Yes," said his secretary, "they scrub here at night."

Whereupon three gold-embossed invitations slid hastily into a wastebasket.

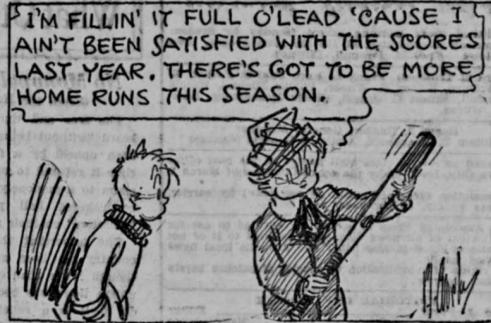

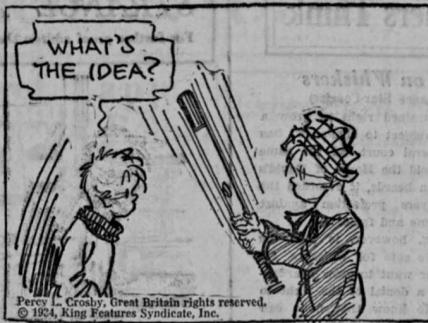

The woman guest didn't quite permit the minister to Mexico, Josephus Daniels, to "get away" with his "diplomacy" at a tea in his honor.

She stepped to greet him, but before she could pronounce her name for him he said:

"How nice to see you again."

"My dear Mr. Ambassador," said the woman, "how sweet of you. But truth compels me to say that it must be the diplomatic speaking, and not the memory."

Cornerstone Laying for New Arts Building Will Feature Ceremonies on Alumni Day

Alumni day activities this year will include one individual feature that is not an annual event.

For one of the events of the 1934 Commencement week program is the laying of the cornerstone of the new fine arts building, one of three buildings now in process of construction on west campus, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The fine arts colony has been planned for several years. It was made possible through a grant of the federal works administration at Washington, D. C. This grant, which totaled $92,000, represented approximately 30 per cent of the cost of the colony.

Central Building
Now under construction is a central fine arts building. It is expected that a small studio building will be added.

In the central building will be studios, offices, exhibition rooms, and a central lobby.

Construction began early in December last year. It is expected the building will be ready for occupancy early in the next academic year.

To Coordinate Work
This building will coordinate work in the school of fine arts. The work is now conducted in many buildings on the campus.

William Horrabin Contracting company of Iowa City held the excavation contract, while actual building is in charge of the Paulson Construction company of Cedar Rapids.

Commons, Theater
Other new buildings in the neighborhood of the fine arts colony which are now under construction include law commons and a University theater.

The law commons will be a meeting place for all law students. It will include not only dormitory features but also a club-like atmosphere. The cornerstone for this building was laid Supreme Court day, in April.

Millinery in Ring

University theater, the latest building approved, will coordinate the work of the speech and dramatic arts department.

These three new buildings will be connected to the east campus by a service bridge over the Iowa river between Iowa Union and the fine arts building. The bridge will also transport utilities to the three new units.

They Taste Better!

WE like to tell about the finer tobaccos in Luckies—the choicest Turkish and domestic, and only the mild, clean center leaves—they cost more—they taste better. Then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. But we're just as proud of the way Luckies are made. They're so round and firm, so free from loose ends. That's why Luckies "keep in condition"—do not dry out. Luckies are always—in all-ways!—kind to your throat.

What Others Think

No Monopoly on Whiskers

(From the Kewanee Star-Courier)

The free and unrestrained right to grow a beard "without being subject to challenge" has been upheld by a federal court. At the same time it refused to uphold the House of David's claim to a monopoly on beards, it accorded the bewhiskered ball players protection against "chislers" on their name and fame.

The important thing, however, is that the country has been made safe for whiskers. Although fewer than ever want to grow beards—unless there has been a denial of the right to do it—it is a relief to know that none can monopolize the practice. Listen to the outright way in which Judge John M. Woolsey of New York, sets forth the rights of free Americans: "From time immemorial beards have been in the public domain. In respect to matters within that domain all men have rights in common. Any man, therefore, if so minded, may—without being subject to any challenge, legal or equitable—not only grow such beard as he can but may purposely imitate another's facial shrubbery—even to the extent of following such topiary modification thereof as may have caught his fancy."

So if any particular group was contemplating asking a code which would limit beards or the right to grow them, when, as and if desired this decision should check such a move. The decision is broad enough to protect about every kind of hirsute facial adornment anyone could contrive to sprout.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
Second Semester, 1933-1934

Wednesday, May 23, 8 a.m. to Thursday, May 31, 4 p.m.

The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the rooms in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E and F, as shown in the form below; and Speech (2), (2), and (4) as shown at "N.B." below.

The Program Committee directs the attention of both students and instructors and professors, to the regulation that there is to be no deviation, in the case of any examination, from this schedule, except as authorized by the Committee on Admission and Classification, on the student's written petition, filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned,—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted.

In the case of conflicts (within the SPECIAL GROUPS A, B, C, D, E and F) the schedule itself, as presented below, provides a general method of making adjustments.

All classes whose first weekly meetings have occurred as indicated in the rectangles below meet for examination during the periods noted at the tops of these three columns, and on the days noted in the rectangles directly opposite at the left of the double, vertical line.

Memorial Day—Or Merely Decoration?

"To you from dying hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
On Flanders field."

YESTERDAY throughout the United States millions of men and women paused in the midst of their work to remember the men who have died in America's wars. In thousands of communities, elaborate programs and parades were the order of the day.

Thousands of speeches, thousands of bands, thousands of marching ex-soldiers—the G. A. R., the Veterans of the Spanish war, the American Legion—and millions of flowers. These were the manifestations of America's memories of her wars.

The men who lie beneath those grave markers went to war, and were killed. They didn't ask for war—it was forced upon them. Theirs was not to question why; they had nothing to gain from war and their whole world to lose. They died to leave America a heritage of peace. Have they died in vain?

Did brother kill brother in the Civil war only to prepare a future generation to fight Spain? Did the men who died in the Spanish war die that America might send their sons to be slaughtered in France? Did the men who fell in France fight a "war to end war" or merely a war to prepare for more horrible wars in the future?

Shall America spend one day each year placing flowers on the graves of her war dead and the other 364 days devising munitions to kill more men in shorter time, in preparation for a future orgy of human butchery?

Concluding a convincing discussion of Mr. Sullivan's slogan habits, he says: "The habit of trying to classify everything done in Washington as 'Fascist' or as 'Communist' is like trying to pack all one's belongings in two suitcases. There are lots of things, chairs, for example, that will not fit into any suitcase. There are some things that cannot be kept in a suitcase, the cat, for example. There are things which ought not to be put in the same suitcase, a white hat and the coal scuttle. Yet in a discussion we are just as careless when we put under a word like Fascism things as diverse as the Bulgarian revolution, NRA and the Italian corporative state.

"It might help us to think more clearly if we decided to call it a day on the practice of trying to describe what is going on in Washington by giving it the name of something that is going on in Moscow or Rome. When we do this, the chances are that we know precious little about what is really going on in Moscow or Rome, and we are not likely to know more about Washington by saying that it is like something which we know very little about."

The Auto Races Of Ancient Rome

THE PHILOSOPHER often asks if civilization has indeed advanced since the days of, say, ancient Rome. If he is a serious philosopher he lines up the facts and compares human advances and human failings.

The psychologist often questions whether the human mind has advanced since the days of ancient Rome. Is the race now endowed with superior discernment, or do we still struggle in the throes of the same primitive urges which dominated ancient man?

It is not the purpose of this editorial to settle either of these profound questions. It is a wise journalist who leaves such problems for the philosopher and the psychologist.

But one can ponder the workings of human nature, as exposed by the annual Indianapolis automobile races. One can even indulge in a bit of musing upon evolution.

"It ought to be a great race; two men have already been killed in crashes"—this was the train of thought of thousands at the race yesterday. For that's "what the public wants." Interest and excitement run at fever heat merely upon the chance of seeing a driver killed in a crash.

In the days of ancient Rome, the emperor and his court went to the auto races in the Circus Maximus. There were no automobiles, of course. But the Romans got along well. Sometimes they used Christians well interspersed with lions. Sometimes they were satisfied with a few mere gladiators.

The only requirement then, as now, was blood—a crash with a killing. Of course it's a problem for the philosopher, but perhaps we haven't advanced so far.

GOOD MORNING

This column has been devoted several times to the task of pointing out the mischievous fallacies in the Mark Sullivan type of sloganeering reasoning, in which the attempt is made to frighten the American voter by calling the present American experiment in planning either Fascism or Communism.

Mark Sullivan and David Lawrence, on the assumption that the American voter still trembles at the mention of Communism, Fascism or Socialism, have spent most of their waking hours for the last six months driving these words into the public ear.

They have contributed pitifully little to a truthful and sincere understanding of what is now being done, or what is being attempted, in Washington. Rather, they have, one hopes not deliberately, seriously beclouded the issue.

But it was left for Walter Lippman, who is probably the most astute political observer in America today, to do the job with real effectiveness in his column last Friday.

Concluding a convincing discussion of Mr. Sullivan's slogan habits, he says: "The habit of trying to classify everything done in Washington as 'Fascist' or as 'Communist' is like trying to pack all one's belongings in two suitcases. There are lots of things, chairs, for example, that will not fit into any suitcase. There are some things that cannot be kept in a suitcase, the cat, for example. There are things which ought not to be put in the same suitcase, a white hat and the coal scuttle. Yet in a discussion we are just as careless when we put under a word like Fascism things as diverse as the Bulgarian revolution, NRA and the Italian corporative state.

And that, it seems to me, takes care of the situation rather well. What is being done in Washington certainly is open to criticism, and is subject to it. But it should be honest criticism, and thoughtful criticism.

The following of young Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire grows almost visibly weak by week. And it does not grow, apparently, through the ballyhoo of politicians, but through the devotion of his friends who know him and through little sections of the public who see in him a striking resemblance to Abraham Lincoln.

He has a reputation in New Hampshire, they say, for honesty and for good government. And he has a government hobby that is bound to increase his popularity as time goes on.

This hobby is interstate cooperation in the administration of certain governmental functions, and greater centralization of government without the evils of too much regimentation.

The general idea, of course, is pretty much in line with the program of the Roosevelt administration, but he has the advantage of being just now in the background and not subject to public criticism.

It is my opinion that the idea of increased centralization, and the tendency toward interstate compacts is going to increase more and more rapidly until the administration of government catches up in efficiency with the conduct of modern business.

The idea itself is distasteful to the average American nurtured on traditional political principles. But progress will not stand still for the sake of old principles. And some day, John G. Winant is apt to find himself on top, with the excellent combination of honesty and modernity.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—One of the funny mishaps of the week was the stocking hunt that the Hal Roach importation from Denmark, little Lillian Ellis, made Sunday afternoon on Wilshire Boulevard.

She arrived in Hollywood with runs in her stockings and spares locked in trunks that were left behind. So she made the rounds of the exclusive shopping district, rattling and knocking at the doors of the closed shops until a patrolman investigated.

It took a long time and much broken English for the officer to discover that the girl from Copenhagen wasn't breaking in, merely thought that American shopkeepers slept on the floor above the store as they do in Denmark.

Lillian is now going to English school for dear old Hal Roach studios.

One of the surprising things about the examination given prospects for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen training school is that beauty is not at the head of the requirements, is not even listed in the dozen tests applied by the studio before it decides whether the applicant is potential star material.

Oliver Hinsdell, the dramatic coach of the school, has a list of questions he puts before the candidate is taken on. Sitting down with this list before you, you may take your own examination to decide if you have a chance in Hollywood.

Here is the Hinsdell quiz:

Have you had experience? This to test the acquired poise which comes from meeting people whether behind footlights or a shop counter.

Do you like people? This is a necessity to give an inside into all types of character.

Have you a photographic mind? Meaning can you remember what strangers look like, what a group of people are wearing, how a room looked?

Can you imitate?

How far did you go with your schooling? Wide reading, biography preferred, and acquaintance with the cultural arts helps a lot.

Have you any physical disability? They want only normal, healthy folk for pictures.

Do you have talent or are you after easy money?

How is your voice? While you answer that one, Director Hinsdell tests it for timbre and Hepburn qualities.

Are you alert to what goes on around you? You have to know the latest dope to stay in the parade.

Can you stand hard work? This is very important.

Can you concentrate? You'll need it to learn lines on the set while they change set-ups.

Do you possess an imaginative mind?

Some of the girls who gave the right answers to these questions are Mary Carlisle, Irene Hervey, Martha Sleeper, Shirley Ross, Ruth Channing, Muriel Evans and Jean Howard.

The D. A.'s office here is checking on a man who has been making inquiries as to whether Mae West can raise enough cash to pay a $50,000 premium on an annuity policy, figuring there might be some connection between this and the 'phone and letter threats Mae has been receiving.

Any one curious about it may learn here that Mae couldn't raise more than purse money should her life depend on it. She never cashes her check. Her investment advisers, Murray Ellman, Murray Feil and James Timmony, turn her salary into non-negotiable insurance policies and bonds, keeping out any amount for current bills and Mae's "mad money."

CONFLICTS: In case of conflicting examinations the student should report to the instructor in charge of the first of the two conflicting subjects as listed within the particular SPECIAL GROUP rectangle above which is involved. (Read downward first in left column and then in right column.) The instructor will arrange for you a special examination. Report to him, or her, not later than the regular class hour May 18 or 17; if possible, May 9 or 10.

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or in the case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first class-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 21 meets for lectures T Th S at 8. The first regular meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 8,—and the class will meet for examination Thursday, May 24, 2 p.m., according to the tabular form above. Again, physics (126) meets twice each week, T, F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Tuesday, May 29, 2 p.m.

N.B. All sections of Principles of Speech (2), (2), and (4) will meet on the days and at the periods designated below. Consult the bulletin board in room 13, Hall of Liberal Arts, for room assignments.

1. Wednesday, May 23, 8-10: Section F
2. Thursday, May 24, 8-10: Section C; 2-4: Sections A and D
3. Monday, May 28, 2-4: Sections H, I; Speech (2), Speech (4)
4. Tuesday, May 29, 8-10: Section G; 10-12: Section E; 2-4: Section B

"ODD" classes,—namely those whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays, or which meet "as arranged," will be assigned for examination, as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class, at one or another of the following periods:

1. From 4 to 6 on any day from May 23 to May 31, inclusive.
2. Any one of an examination periods assigned as indicated above, for the examinations in the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, and F, since fast such "odd" classes these five examination periods will be found quite available.

In connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times,—if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to another clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester-examination program, "the instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

According to another faculty regulation, which is on record as adopted by the faculty, a student absent from the final examination should be reported "Abs"; unless the instructor recognizes that his work up to this examination has been a failure, in which case the final report should be "F"—even though the student may have been absent from the final examination. No examination should be given, subsequently, to such a student until after the absence has been excused by the Committee on Admission and Classification, as shown by a partially filled special report card, signed by the Secretary of the Committee, as indicating that the absence has been excused and that the student is authorized, subject to the consent and at the convenience of the instructor concerned, to take the final examination.

17 Visiting Lecturers Will Teach S. U. I. Summer Courses

Visitors to Direct Classes In Many University Fields

Teachers Come From All Sections of Country

Seventeen visiting lecturers, an increase over last summer, will teach courses at the University of Iowa during the two terms of the 1934 summer session, it was announced by the summer session office.

The lecturers will come to the Iowa campus from all parts of the United States, to augment the regular university faculty.

Eight departments and colleges will offer courses under the visiting teachers. Music and education lead, with five lecturers in music and four in education; English and speech and dramatic arts have two each; classical languages, Romance languages, physical education, and law will have one each.

Music Department
Those who will teach in the music department are: Louise Hood, graduate student in the Juilliard School of Music, in New York city; Helen M. Stowell, teacher of music in the Lincoln, Neb., high school; Henry Charles Stump, assistant in public school music at the University of West Virginia; Lloyd Swartley, supervisor of instrumental music in the Iowa City high school; and Asher Treat, instructor in music in the College of the City of New York.

Prof. James Glass of Rollins college will be among the visitors in the field of education. Others will be: Frances Ross Dearborn, associate in education in Johns Hopkins university; Elaine Dickinson, supervising teacher in industrial arts, Grand Rapids, Mich.; and Dean T. Raymond McConnell, head of the education department of Cornell college.

English Lectures
Prof. Harry Hayden Clark of the English department of the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. J. Raymond Derby, head of the English department of Iowa State college, will be associated with the English department.

Prof. Rene Taupin, formerly of the Sorbonne, Paris, and now professor of French at Harvard college, will lecture in the Romance languages department during the summer.

Play Director
Two persons will be visiting members of the speech and dramatic arts staff. B. Iden Payne, well known Shakespearean actor and director, will be guest director of a series of Elizabethan plays. Marie Park, who received her master's degree here, will also return for the summer.

Ruth Martin Brown, instructor in Latin and Greek in Illinois college, will be the visiting lecturer in the classical languages department. The college of law will add one member to its staff. The visitor will be Arthur Albert Zimmerman, a graduate of the University of Iowa and a member of the Waterloo bar.

Three "Newcomers"
All except three of the 17 teachers named for the summer session staff have appeared on the University of Iowa campus in previous years. Many have been visiting lecturers on the summer staffs of past years, and several have lectured here at teachers' conferences and upon other occasions.

The 1934 summer session, under the direction of Dean Paul C. Packard of the college of education, will begin June 11. It has been the policy of the university to retain the regular teaching staff throughout the year, in order to give continuity of academic work.

Illinois college claims that Boecher hall, built 105 years ago on its campus at Jacksonville, Ill., is the oldest college building in the state still in use.

The recent appointment of Prof. Leon Kozlowski as premier of Poland climaxed a life of devotion to his country. The professor has held many important posts in the Polish government. His most recent assignment was vice minister of finance.

Hints for prospective speech students: To those who hope to acquire future "A's" in speech courses, this little story may hold something of a moral. At least, it should point the direction up the steep road of success.

It seems that an instructor in the speech department called a young lady, one of his students, and asked her to consult him in his office. When the young instructor looked up, reddened perceptibly, and said: "I'm sorry, Miss —, but I have been forced to give you a grade of —, I'd like to explain why you didn't receive a higher grade."

Whereupon he launched into a discussion of moral conduct. From which it soon appeared that the woman in question had come to class too much berouged — both as to lips and cheeks; she had painted her fingernails, had some places with the "wrong kind of people," devoted too much time to outside interest and not enough to classes, and was a bit risqué in the matter of dress.

He then explained that, of course, it was not his duty to make suggestions, but the fact remained, etc. As I pointed out just above, there ought to be a moral in this for prospective students of speech!

A professor of journalism almost gave the Iowa City fire department an extra job recently. It happened in the Town and Gown tea room during the noon hour. A group of faculty men are of the habit of dining there together, and the attendants usually place two tables end to end, to make a long festive board. The men had just gathered around and the conversation and food were in full flight. The aforementioned J. P. lighted a cigarette, took a few puffs, and laid it on his trouser leg — of all places.

Shortly thereafter there was heard a puff and was seen a blaze. Other patrons of the cafe looked around, saw the difficulty, but continued to eat and talk in low tones, pretending not to notice. The other men at the table arose in a hurry, and attempted to stamp out the flame without attracting attention. It was a member of the English department who finally picked up a glass of water, and spilled it over the offending coat. In the fire the table cloth had been burned, and the journalism professor proved he had ethics of journalism by offering to pay for it. Incidentally, the whole thing had been handled with such quiet dignity that that was the only way in which the management learned of the fire.

It seems that this department owes the Alpha Xi Delta sorority another apology this morning—they're gathering there by the many. The young burlesque dancer who has gained fame via this route in the last three days is not a member of that sorority, but merely lives at the house. Especially to Gertrude Mowry, president of the group, and Ada Culver, chaperon.

In the words of Billy Minsky, there are worse things than having a burlesque dancer about the house.

Archers Compete In Tournament Here Yesterday

Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department won the Columbia round of an archery tournament on women's field yesterday afternoon with a score of 462. Professor Lapp shot a perfect "end" consisting of six bull's eyes, but two arrows went through the target, so counted only five points each.

In the wand shoot, in which 18 arrows are shot at a wand, Professor Lapp made five hits, Mr. Reilly and Roger Lapp, four hits, and Lorraine Frost and Miriam Taylor, instructors in women's physical education department, made three hits.

The Hawkeye hunt, three arrows shot at each of 10 "animals" at various distances from the shooting line, was won by Miss Frost, with 14 points. Second was Mr. Reilly with 12 points.

In the William Tell shoot Mr. Reilly shot the "apple."

BITS

ABOUT SPORTS
No Lives Lost . . . Hard Grind
. . . Iowa's Own Middleweight
. . . Frosh Champions.

By JACK GURWELL

LAST YEAR five persons were killed in the 500 mile Indianapolis grind, causing the guiding heads of the affair to promise some sort of precautionary measures to insure less loss of life. Yesterday, for five hours, drivers forced their cars at terrific speeds around the two and one half mile track and nobody was killed. Maybe the track was in better condition or maybe the drivers used more caution. At any rate a new track record for the 500 mile grind was established. Wild Bill Cummings won in 4:46.05.21 and his average for the distance was 104.865 miles per hour.

BEFORE 135,000 racing fans Wild Bill raged bitter battle with Maurie Rose, Dayton, Ohio, Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, a few others. Louis Meyer, Los Angeles, who established the former record in 1933, was forced to quit during the final half of the race due to engine trouble. As for the oil burners, their ability to keep up the pace set by gasoline burning cars is questionable. There were two entered in the race.

EVERY team that won in the National league yesterday won both games of the double headers. . . Minnesota collected only one run out of four hits in the sixth game yesterday afternoon while Iowa came back in its half to hang up three runs on two hits. . . Russell Johnson, Minnesota third baseman, fractured his jaw in the game. . . It seems as if even the bomb and brick tossing is not confined to getting into factories to work or to keeping workers away. . . Yesterday, before the gates to the Indianapolis track were opened, 500 persons stormed the gates at the north turn, smashed it down, and drove back the national guardsmen in a successful drive to crash the show.

IOWA seems to have a fighter with some ability in Johnny Miller of Albia, Miller, an Olympic boxer and former sparring partner of Primo Carnera, has been advertised as a tough boy. Tuesday night Miller tossed a few questions as to his ability back at the critics by cutting down Johnny Saxton in the third of a scheduled 10 round bout in Des Moines between the two lightweight. Some think Miller is the logical heir to Maxie Rosenbloom's crown.

THE IOWA freshman track and field team went through without a defeat. Five telegraphic duals were won, usually by top heavy scores. To climax the season the Iowans won the Big Ten freshman telegraphic meet with 54 1-2 points. Ohio State finished second with 53 points, with the great Negro athlete, Jess Owens, taking first in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broad jump. Michigan was third with 26 3-4 points.

Racing Honors For Schrader

Wins Special, Thirty Lap Starts; Field Of 9 Drivers

CEDAR RAPIDS, May 30 (AP)—Gus Schrader, Cedar Rapids dirt track race driver, won major honors at a racing program on the Frontier park track today, setting the fastest mark in the time trials, winning his preliminary race with ease, trimming Bob Wilson of Kansas City in a special match race and lapping the field twice in winning the 30-lap final grind.

About 1,500 persons attended the meeting which attracted only nine entries of a field of 21 drivers who had returned signed entries. Several breakdowns, eliminating Pat Cunningham of St. Joseph, Mo.; Charles Boye of Omaha, Gus Schmidt of Milwaukee, Earl Mansell of San Diego, Cal., and Red Campbell of St. Louis out of the field still smaller.

Cunningham suffered injuries to his left knee when his little racer went over the side of the track and crashed into a telephone pole. Claire Cotter of Albert Lea, Minn., also careened off the track in a preliminary, but came back and finished the race.

The summaries:
Ten lap preliminary—Schrader first; Bob Wilson, Kansas City, Mo., second; Campbell, third.
Ten lap preliminary—Cy Spindler, Carrollville, Wis., first; Claire Cotter, Albert Lea, Minn., second.
Special five lap match race—Schrader first; Wilson, second.
Thirty lap final—Schrader, first; Wilson, second; Spindler, third; Cotter, fourth.

Yanks Divide With Senators

Whitehill Holds Yankees In Opener; Lazzeri Wins 2nd

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP)—The New York Yankees and the Washington Senators divided a twin bill today before 70,000 holiday fans in games featured by the pitching of the Senators' southpaw ace, Earl Whitehill, who held the Yanks hitless for eight and one-third innings of the first encounter until he was knocked for a single by Ben Chapman.

After passing Lou Gehrig and being hit for a sharp single to left field by Chapman, Whitehill was yanked by Manager Joe Cronin amid a tremendous roar of protest from the fans, who gave the crestfallen pitcher a great ovation as he walked from the mound to the dugout.

Whitehill, however, received credit for the 1 to 0 victory as his successor, Jack Russell, retired Tony Lazzeri and got the last man on a force out with Bill Dickey batting. Vernon Gomez consequently suffered his first defeat of the season after winning seven straight games.

Whitehill's performance was the nearest thing to a no hit game pitched so far in the American division this year and marked the Yankees first shutout since Bob Grove, then with the Athletics, blanked them last Aug. 3. The Yankees have been white washed only twice since 1931 and the last time they were victims of a no hit game was in 1919 when Ray Caldwell did the job.

The only run of the game came in the eighth inning, produced from Bluege's walk, Myers sacrifice bunt, on which Saltzgraver threw too late to get the runner, Manush's sacrifice, a pass to Cronin and Schulte's single to left.

Lazzeri broke up the second game in the eleventh inning to give the Yanks a 5 to 4 victory. With the score tied, Tony barked out a single with the bases loaded and one out to end the ball game.

The veteran spitballer Burlleigh Grimes was credited with the win. Making his first appearance in the American league, the grizzly Grimes took the slab in the eighth, allowing three hits and striking out three batters.

Hal Trosky Hits Three Home Runs in 2nd Game to Help

Fractures Jaw

CLEVELAND, May 30 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians worked for 21 innings in a double header today to increase their lead at the head of the American league, but the best they could do was to split two games with the Chicago White Sox, losing the first 8 to 7 and winning the second 5 to 4.

It was the towering Hal Trosky, Indian first baseman, who put on the big show of the day. In three times at bat in the second game, Trosky lifted the ball over the right field wall for three home runs, almost winning the game single handed.

Trosky's home runs came in the fourth, sixth and eighth innings. He scored one man ahead of him in the fourth, but the bases were empty on the two succeeding blows.

In the first game, Hale, Indian second sacker, connected for two home runs, one in the fourth and one in the sixth, but they didn't come when they were needed.

By splitting the double header today the Indians lost an opportunity to tighten their half game hold on first place as the Yankees also won and lost.

Gophers Fall Before Tight Play, Hurling

Frohwein Scatters Hits; Mason, Clausen Drive In Iowa Runs

By JACK GURWELL
Effective hurling by Harry Frohwein plus sparkling support with men on bases gave Iowa a 3 to 1 victory over Minnesota's baseball team on Iowa field yesterday afternoon. The teams met for the second of the two game series this afternoon at 3:15.

Frohwein gave 10 hits to Tom Gallivan's five, but spaced them for little damage as teammates came through in the tight spots to hold nine Gopher players on bases.

All the scoring came in the sixth inning when both teams enjoyed a slight hitting bee, the Gophers scoring their one run on four hits while the Iowans collected their total on two safe blows.

Gophers Score
Krause, Gopher center fielder, hit to right and came in on Klonoski's single after two outs had been chalked up against the Gophers. Streich and Bruhn connected for safe blows, as did Stanton, but Streich was caught at home on the throw in for the third out.

Fractures Jaw
Russell Johnson, Minnesota third baseman, suffered a fractured jaw in yesterday's Iowa-Minnesota game. He was taken to University hospital for the night.

van and then Schulteheirich sacrificed to advance the runners. Mason took advantage of the spot to crash out a double scoring Drager and Blackman. Clausen then tripled scoring Mason for the third run.

Today's win gave Iowa a conference standing of four won and five lost, while Minnesota went to the cellar position with four won and seven lost.

Giants Take Double Win

Trim Dodgers Behind Clark in First, 5-2; Win 2nd, 8-6

BROOKLYN, May 30 (AP)—Before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game in Ebbets field, the New York Giants today won both ends of a holiday doubleheader from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Forty two thousand fans watched Southpaw Watson Clark go the full route for the first time this season to give the Giants a 5 to 2 victory in the first game against Van Lingle Mungo, the Dodgers mound ace, whose four game winning streak was abruptly terminated. The Giants hit four Brooklyn pitchers hard to take the night cap 8 to 6.

Jimmy Bucher, the Dodgers young second sacker, sprained his ankle in the first game and Al Lopez was drafted from behind the plate to play in Bucher's place. In the second game, when the use of pinch hitters left Manager Casey Stengel without a catcher, Lopez returned to his regular post and Joe Stripp, who fractured his ankle a month ago, hobbled around the infield for an inning.

Herman Bell took the mound for the Giants in the seventh after Joe Bowman and Lefty Al Smith were removed in that order. Haek Wilson provided the Dodgers fans with their big thrill with a homer in the second game.

Chicago Club Wins Second In Eleventh

Homers by Hartnett, Klein Aid Warneke In Opener

CHICAGO, May 30 (AP)—The Cubs returned from their disastrous road trip to treat an overflow crowd of 40,000 fans to a double header victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today, taking the second game 5 to 4, in 11 innings after capturing the opener 7 to 2, in regulation time.

A pass to pinch hitter Billy Herman by Larry French with the bases filled and two out in the eleventh decided the night cap. Chuck Klein's thirteenth home run and Gabby Hartnett's ninth aided Lon Warneke in turning in his season's sixth victory in the opener.

Four Tense Innings
French, fourth Pittsburgh pitcher, and Charley Root, third Cub hurler, battled through four tense innings in which each repeatedly worked himself out of jams before the former yielded in the second game. After Gus Suhr, who scored the first two Buc runs with a double in the sixth, singled to tie the score in the eighth and drive Roy Joiner from the mound, Root stopped the rally, fanned Harry Lavagetto with the bases loaded in the ninth and shut out the Cubs in the next two frames.

French took up the Pittsburgh pitching in the eighth after Leon Chagnon, who had succeeded Smith and Hoyt, retired for a pinch hitter.

Stan Hack opened the eleventh by singling off Vaughan's glove. English popped out in trying to sacrifice, but Riggs Stephenson, who had replaced Klein after the latter had pulled up with a charley horse in the third inning, drove Hack to third with a single to right. Tucker Staiback was intentionally passed. Manager Charlie Grimm beckoned Billy Herman to bat for him. Herman, making his first appearance since injuring a foot in sliding into the plate May 12, walked out a three and two count, fouled off two good ones and then fouled.

The Cubs played with a revamped infield, English, playing second base for the first time in his career.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 30 (AP)—A home run by Frank Church, Badger first baseman, in the first inning with two mates on base, was the big blow that gave Wisconsin's baseball team a 5 to 2 triumph over Northwestern today. Both teams got seven hits.

Cards Trim Reds Twice

Take Doubleheader By Scores of 9 to 6, 9 to 2

CINCINNATI, May 30 (AP)—Battering Red pitchers unfeelingly, and taking every advantage of bad fielding by the opposition, the St. Louis Cardinals took a holiday doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds 9 to 6, and 9 to 2.

Two Red newcomers missed golden chances in the contests. Fanning in the fourth inning of the first game with the bases loaded, Harlin Pool in his debut let slip a chance that might have meant victory. Likewise making his debut in the second game, Tony Freitas yielded 14 hits to the Cards, five of them to Medwick, and two of those for three bases.

Delancy provided the fireworks of the first contest, banging two singles, a triple and a home run.

Accounts For New Record In Close Race

Noses Out Mauri Rose In Tightest Finish In History

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, May 30 (AP)—A home town boy who runs a small night club and rides a motorcycle because he likes its noise, rode to glorious victory in the 500 mile automobile race over the Indianapolis motor speedway today with record breaking speed.

One hundred and thirty-five thousand spectators sat under a scorching sun to give a thunderous salute to Wild Bill Cummings, 31 year old Indianapolis driver, as he triumphed over Mauri Rose of Dayton, O., in a dramatic, thrilling finish, with only 27 seconds separating them.

Never worse than fourth, and coming from behind in the last 75 miles, Cummings conquered Rose by about a mile, with Lou Moore of Los Angeles, finishing third, 1 1/2 miles behind the winner. Driving every inch of the way without relief, Cummings piloted his 4 cylinder little racer, painted a light cream color with a big yellow No. 1 on the rear and engine hood, over the perilsous 500 miles in 4:46:55.1, to average 104.865 miles an hour, breaking the record of 104.162 mph an hour hung up by Louis Meyer of South Gate, Cal., in winning the 1933 race.

By his victory Cummings, who has been driving cars for eight years, earned about $40,000, $29,000 of which here he will receive as first prize for today's triumph. He won $1,525 in lap prizes—sums of $50 or $100 for each lap he led the field.

No Deaths
Perhaps the most gratifying record breaking to speedway officials was the fact that today's race resulted in no deaths or serious injuries, although there were three smashups, all of them of a minor character. The most serious injury was sustained by George Bailey of Detroit, who received a broken wrist when his car went over the wall after travelling 30 miles. The car hit the retaining wall on the north end of the track, bounced to the top and then dropped to the ground, but Bailey and his mechanic miraculously escaped death or serious injury.

When Cummings, his face wreathed in smiles, hammered his car across the finish line to the salute of cheers breaking in his ears, he proclaimed himself the happiest man in the world.

"Always Wanted to Win"
"I always wanted to win this Indianapolis race and today my ambition has been achieved," he said. The first person to greet him was his mother, who kissed him tenderly and told him how happy she was.

Between the crush of reporters and photographers, Cummings was finally pushed into the garage area and a shout went up: "Here's your wife." The pushing stopped and the wife, Mrs. Cummings, kissed her victorious husband and helped him push his car into the garage. So heavy was the crush at the garage that national guardsmen were called to keep the crowd out.

Protest Made
Leon Durey, Los Angeles, owner of the car Rose drove, lodged official protest with race officials tonight, claiming that Cummings, in violation of the rules, (Turn to Page 7)

INSURANCE News

One of the real interesting highlights of the Depression is the way the strong old stock insurance companies have weathered the storm. Insurance is highly competitive, and insurance rates naturally reflect this condition. Before you buy a limited cheap insurance policy from some one loafing on a street corner, try getting a price from some reputable agency with an office. The chances are the cost will be the same, and most important of all, "When trouble comes, you will then be able to get good quick service." Think it over. During this Depression a number of new, strange Companies have started up.

United States Davis Team In Victory March

BALTIMORE, May 30 (AP)—Two blonde youngsters on Uncle Sam's Davis cup tennis team chalked up straight set victories over Mexico in the opening matches of the North American zone final round today to give the United States a 2-0 lead and practically clinch the series.

A victory in the doubles match tomorrow or one win in either of the Saturday singles matches will give the United States the right to compete against the European zone victors.

In the opening match today, Sidney B. Wood, the New Yorker, vanquished sturdy Esteban M. Reyes by scores of 6-3, 6-2 and 6-2, and in the following match the Mexican captain, the midget Dr. Ricardo Tapia, fell before the lightning like stroking of the giant Californian, Lester Stofen, by 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 scores.

The American pair, U. S. titleholders in 1932, defeated Colette Rosambert and Mme. Metaxa of France, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4. Tomorrow they meet Susan Noel, the English squash raquets champion, and J. Jedrzewska, Polish champion.

Elizabeth Ryan, the former Callifornian, and Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, the defending titleholders, also won their way to the semifinals defeating the English team of Nancy Lyle and Miss E. M. Dearman 8-10, 6-3, 6-3.

CHAPTER XXXIII Left alone with the guard, Maurice had a look round the sitting-room that confirmed him in his poor opinion of the Bellamy. He was hard to understand what the family physician could have been thinking of, to have lodged Fenno's father in such a hole. If his hurts had been so slight that he could be moved in from the street, to these grubby accommodations, one would think, he might as readily have been conveyed to his own home. If serious, surely he should have been taken straightway to some hospital of the first class.

Battled understanding could only fall back on the reflection that every country has its peculiar customs—ways often at first sight quite illogical in alien eyes. Maurice shifted moved round the table and idly spoke of the chair, so that he might sit down without squaring himself at his companion. Something thumped on the floor; and the guard, with profanity, plumped to his knees and retrieved a corkless bottle which had been left standing beneath the chair, as if stowed there in haste for want of a handier hiding-place.

"Good grief!" he lamented, getting up. "Almost that was a tragedy, fella. However, I guess there wasn't any spilled speak of. I got to hand it to me—I'm one spry l'il guy when liquor's in peril."

He grinned at Maurice over the bottle as he had a ravished sniff at its neck. "Right stuff! Suppose I and you treat ourselves to a shot; how about it?"

"Many thanks," Maurice replied. "I haven't any taste for whisky. But don't let me prevent you. 'Hot chancet.' The humorist sipped a stiff dram into one of the used glasses, took it raw, and smacked lips of gusto. "Maybe you know best about your drinkin, but that's one thing you don't know, and that's what you're missin'."

"In sure," "I know." A singular penalty had already extinguished his earlier insolence; it was strangely as if the creature had made up his mind to forgive Maurice the misfortune of being a foreigner, and by treating him as an equal, make full amends. "You're scared, account of all you've heard tell about rot-gut passin' for hooch over here. Well, believe it or not, you got no call to be in this hotel; anything a person gets here is right—genuine wine import' goods that ain't even been uncorked, let alone cut, before they buy it."

"One is to understand you are well acquainted here?" "With this dump? Only like I am with the palms of my hand." The man slouched down in his chair, offered cigarettes, and when Maurice politely declined, lighted one for himself. "Why wouldn't I be? Don't I live here?"

"You live here?" "I bet me your life. Anything funny about that?" "Only, I darsay, to one accustomed as I am to look at such matters from a European viewpoint. To me, I confess, it seems curious that a wage-earner should be able to afford American hotel tariffs. I can only infer that the difference between your wage-scale and ours accounts for it, monsieur."

The guard, sitting with his head jerked at a quizzical angle, and giving his ironical grin full play again, permitted a surprising volume of smoke to drain off through his nostrils before replying: "Ain't tryin' to kid me or nothin, are you, fella?"

"But I do not know you well enough to jest with you on personal matters." "To this, after another instant of silent speculation, the guard returned with a wag of a defeated head: "All I can say is, one of us is all wet."

A good-natured shrug conveyed that Maurice was content to let that pass. If his course in the American vernacular under Tess Boyce was incomplete, if it had yet to put him on speaking terms with hold of the knob and threw the door wide. The guard at the same time sat forward to grind out the coal of his tobacco on the tray. A burst of French expletives behind him had no effect on this display of phlegm; only when the boy flung back to catch him by a shoulder and stand over him with hot eyes in a face bleached by passion, did he consent to put on a look of innocent astonishment.

"Where are they? There's nobody in that room! What does this mean? Where have they taken Fenno?" "The Crozier kid? She's all right." A shake dislodged Maurice's head. Don't sweat yourself so, fella, and don't be so gay with your mitts, or somebody's liable to crown you. Sit down and pant it off and have a drink. Nobody's goin' to do you dirt. The l'il dame's bein' took good care of, and so are the emeralds. All you got to do is sit tight and say nothin', and you'll get your cut when the time comes.

Maurice survived a moment when he felt he must strangle for inability either to contain or to give tongue to his rage. Unconsciously he put up a hand to ease the hind of his collar. "Damn you!" he stutered. I should have suspected! I might have known—" You ought to've." The man in uniform gave a sympathetic nod. "I said it was a shame not to tip you off, but the crowd was afraid of how you'd handle, afraid you'd r'ar back on us, maybe, and paw the air and spoil the show before we got you gentled. They claimed the bunch that crossed with you knew their business, and if they hadn't seen fit to put you hep, it was better we should put the job through first and let you work your mad off when it was too late."

2,000 See Dedication of New Park as Lake MacBride Park

Late President Emeritus Of University Honored by Name; McGuire, Herring Laud Park

Mrs. Onie Strub Wins Prize for Naming New Park

Eastern Iowa's most beautiful park was dedicated yesterday as Lake MacBride Park, in honor of the late President Emeritus Thomas H. MacBride of the university, prominent botanist and educational leader.

More than 2,000 persons attended the ceremony at the cottage area, which overlooks the lake bed. The $50 prize was won by Mrs. Onie Strub of East Lucas township.

Herring Endorses Project
Governor Clyde L. Herring said he wanted to come to the site and add the endorsement of the state government to the project "which was made possible through the foresight of a few enthusiastic conservationists."

He complimented the local committee, Dr. Boone, chairman of the state fish and game commission, and J. N. "Ding" Darling for their work in the conservation of natural Iowa.

Gilmore Speaks
Acting President-elect Eugene A. Gilmore pointed out that the conservation movement was merely to conserve the wonderful things we share in common.

"Memorial day is an appropriate time to celebrate the conservation of our national union," he said. "The park contributes much to present and future community life. It is a shelter for all of us—a place to get away from the world into a quiet retreat where it is possible to live with nature, the greatest teacher of all."

"More Than Playground"
"The park is more than a playground," he said. "It is a place where we conserve the spiritual values which make civilization."

"The people however will have to realize that this is their property and keep it as clean and wholesome as it was originally—there is much to be learned in the use of parks."

President Harry M. Gage of Coe college was introduced along with Mayor Harry D. Breene of Iowa City, Mayor Neal of Cedar Rapids and Dr. Boone of Ottumwa.

The band, which will be accompanied by a number of parents and patrons, will play this afternoon at 3:30 in the class B round at the Shrine auditorium. Results of the competition will not be announced until the mass concert Saturday afternoon in the Drake university auditorium, according to the expectation of Lloyd Swartley, Iowa City high school band director.

Three Soloists
In order to arrive in time for this morning's solo competition, Thomas Ayres, clarinet, Paul Lyness, trombone, and Velma Roberts, bass clarinet, all local soloists at the contest, left on the 4:48 train this morning.

The Iowa City delegation will have headquarters in the Elliott hotel until Saturday night, when the musicians return to Iowa City. Their trip is being financed by an $800 fund, raised through the efforts of parents and patrons who conducted a drive to make the trip possible.

Patrons desiring to accompany the band may take advantage of the special low rates granted by the railroad company, the band director pointed out.

"Landmark in History" Says McGuire Of Project

"You have here today set a landmark in the history of recreation-building in America," said Harry McGuire, editor of "Outdoor Life," yesterday at the dedication service for Lake MacBride.

"I predict that the 25 year plan, of which this project is a part, will go down in history as the most important plan of its kind ever formulated in America. You people have faced the facts and given back an answer. Your leader saw the past. They saw the wild life paradise that my own grandparents knew in Iowa, decimated—timber depleted year after year, cover for birds burnt off, wild fowl marshes drained, streams and lakes polluted and rendered death-dealing alike to fish and human life. In short, they saw that we had squandered nature to the danger point."

Difference in Bird Life
He said that a traveller knew when he was in Iowa by the difference in the bird and animal life. "A few weeks ago I visited President Jessup in Iowa City and counted 15 pheasants on the way back to my home in Mt. Morris, Ill., which is just 15 more than I have seen in the last two and one-half years in Illinois," he said.

Pointing out that the future of wild life in America depends more on a public sense of sportsmanship than anything else, Editor McGuire said, "You and I must be missionaries to the American public, helping the thoughtless and the ignorant to respond to nature in spirit; and by respecting and not desecrating her, to give back to nature something of the spiritual beauty and the peace she is so willing to lend to us weary humans."

Danger of Politics
He said that there was the danger of the politician gaining control of the game and fish departments in the states and warned against it, showing that it would lead to the sacrifice of much of nature's beauty.

He urged everyone to get behind the ideas advanced by J. N. Darling and back him in his fight to make the country one of natural beauty and productiveness, instead of one of insane waste and extravagance.

Charles Maruth, assistant university registrar, served as master of ceremonies.

"CHEVROLET IS RIGHT!"

After driving the New Chevrolet five miles, I'd never buy any other low-priced car!

In the low-price motor car field there's nothing that even compares with Chevrolet's famous 5-mile ride. The reason is: No other car at Chevrolet's price has any of the vital features pictured below. And without these features, it's impossible to equal Chevrolet's ride! You can't get Knee-Action results with anything less than a genuine Knee-Action car. You can't get six-cylinder economy with more than six—nor can you get valve-in-head performance with anything inferior to valve-in-head design. And the same thing applies to the Fisher body, the brakes, the steering. Chevrolet offers one feature after another that makes a tremendous difference—in the way the car feels, performs and saves. One feature after another that puts Chevrolet far ahead in value . . . farther ahead every day in sales!
