FIVE CENTS IOWA CITY, IOWA, FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1934 NUMBER 310

SENATE RATIFIES CUBAN TREATY

Gate Crashers Children of Chicago Storm Fair, Create New Record.

CHICAGO, May 31 (AP)—An army of nearly half a million school children conducted a gigantic offensive against the world's fair today, and under a broiling sun which sent the huge thermometer on the grounds to 100 degrees, took possession of the exposition in the name of the first 1934 "children's day."

450,000 Present

The influx of youngsters made all previous fair attendance records hang their heads in shame. Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the fair, estimated the crowd at mid-afternoon at between 450,000 and 500,000.

About 100,000 of them crashed the gates, not pausing to pay the nickel a head admission which fair officials had intended to charge. These and twice as many others came in with a rush in which some two dozen were pushed, squeezed and slightly injured and they went about the grounds with the same surging enthusiasm.

Police Called

Fair officials were unable to stem the invasion, and called 200 city police. Before they arrived Major Lenox Lohr, fearing that a serious stampede might develop as the army of impatient visitors grew larger and larger, ordered all the gates thrown open. With the bars down, the kids poured in, taking fair police and guides with them.

For 9 hours the guests—ranging from tiny girls in sunbonnets to rascally high school lads—held complete control of the fair grounds, with police, concession proprietors and fair guides making bewildered gestures.

Decides Not To Kill Self

After Waiting 24 Hours, Abandons Plan to Take Life

ALAMEDA, Cal., May 31 (AP)—After waiting 24 hours for sleep to cause his fingers to slip from a switch and cause an explosion that would blow him to bits, Frank Bennett, unemployed mechanic, suddenly abandoned his suicide scheme this afternoon.

Apparently highly nervous after a day and night in his dynamite-laden automobile, he unexpectedly signaled police he was preparing to surrender. Then he laid aside the detonation switch with which he had constantly threatened to set off the blast, and stepped wearily from his car.

Police, approaching cautiously, asked him whether he had abandoned his plot. He nodded. The officers immediately seized him and rushed him to jail.

Other policemen were ordered to prevent a surging mob from approaching Bennett's automobile, which contained 104 sticks of dynamite and five quarts of nitroglycerine.

Bennett, proclaiming he was sane, blamed his intended act on a series of dire misfortunes.

Fire Wrecks Old Church

UNION CITY, N. J. (AP)—Fire wrecked the old church at St. Michael's monastery today with an estimated loss of $500,000 but many of the church's most valued possessions were saved.

Workers in Iron, Tin Steel Likely to Call Strike June 16

By The Associated Press

The differences between capital and labor were laid on conference tables yesterday as arbiters struggled to stave off and settle strikes that threatened to brake the wheels of industry.

Major developments in the efforts to maintain the present pace of production included:

WASHINGTON—Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, held parleys with representatives of steel and textile workers in an attempt to prevent walkouts. M. F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, announced that he was standing on an edict to strike June 16 unless the members voted otherwise at a new convention he proposed to call. E. J. Forbeck, leader of the so-called "rank and file" faction of the union, asserted his favor of going through with the walkout in spite of President Roosevelt's declaration that there would

Wheat Tops Dollar Mark As Sun Parches Midwest Fields

Prices Vault To Highest In Ten Months

CHICAGO, May 31 (AP)—Dollar wheat became an actuality today as arid fields in the grain producing midwest parched under a burning sun.

The last day of the driest May in weather records witnessed the recording of the highest prices paid for wheat in the nation's grain markets since last August, reflecting the attitude in which traders and speculators received news of the plight of farmers' crops.

Scattered Showers Predicted

Vast areas of winter wheat lay withered under the scorching sun, that brought 100 degree temperatures. More than a month had passed since the roots have been drenched by sufficient rainfall, and the weather bureau could promise only scattered showers for the next 24 hours.

The widespread drought, described in the west by the weather bureau as "unprecedented," condemned more than a million cattle to premature slaughter and caused recent daily abandonment, according to one government estimator, of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Temperature Again Climbs To High Mark

Heat Claims Lives Of Two Iowa Residents

DES MOINES, May 31 (AP)—Record shattering temperatures, topping the 100 degree mark in much of the state, again blistered drought parched Iowa today.

The heat wave, which yesterday was responsible for the eclipsing of

What was believed to be the hottest May day in the history of Iowa City was recorded yesterday when the mercury sizzled its way to a new high of 105.

According to Prof. John F. Reilly, official observer, 105 is the highest the mercury ever climbed during the month of May in Iowa City, though he could not make sure until he had the opportunity to check his records.

Early, yesterday morning the thermometer registered 68 and by 7 a.m. it recorded 74. At 7 p.m., after its record breaking climb, the mercury had only dropped to 94.

Gettle Kidnapers Convicted

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Three men and two women charged with using the mails in sending extortion notes, and of conspiracy in connection with the William F. Gettle kidnaping case, were convicted tonight by a federal jury.

Record breaking heat throughout the midwest today supplied an anticlimax to a month of intense aridity and grashing dust storms. Hordes of grasshoppers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Wisconsin and Michigan and chinch bug invasions in other wheat and corn areas added to the attack on crops. Forest fire flames were sweeping over farm property near Onamia, Minn.

Some of the mid-afternoon marks in the state today included 105 at Cedar Rapids, Mason City, Iowa City, Ft. Dodge; 104 at Marshall- town, Keokuk and Charles City.

Capital, Labor Struggle To End Unrest by Conferences

be elections at the steel mills under government supervision. It was expected that a board similar to the automobile arbitration body would be formed to handle the situation. The principal complaint centers about the operator's refusal to deal with the workers organization, T. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, went to Johnson's office to discuss a walkout ordered for next Monday in a demonstration against a projected 25 per cent cut in production advanced by NRA.

The union spokesmen reported little progress had been made by the conferees. Tighe said he was leaving for Pittsburgh but would return to Washington next week. E. W. Miller, vice president of Amalgamated, added that "we have hopes." Textile workers' chieftains foresaw little possibility of a compromise.

BELTON, S. C.—About 500 employees of the Belton Textile mills, left their machines, asserting they had been overtaxed with work and that union men had been discharged. The plant, employing approximately 1,000 persons, shut down.

Gov. Rolph Shows 'No Improvement' After Early Gain

SAN JOSE, Cal., May 31 (AP)—Gov. James Rolph, Jr., ill at a Santa Clara county ranch, "shows no improvement," a bulletin tonight said.

Drs. Harold E. Fraser, W. W. Wymore, J. M. Scanland and M. A. Danicich, reported: "temperature 102.6; pulse 110; respiration irregular. The restlessness and weakness continues. The pulmonary congestion is more marked. The prognosis is unfavorable."

The governor earlier in the day was reported to have gained strength.

President Walter A. Jessup became "a member of the graduating class" of the University of Iowa last night.

He conferred the title upon himself, in accepting a watch presented to him by the graduating class at the annual Commencement supper in the main lounge of Iowa Union last evening.

Chicago Promoters Will Show Dionne Quintuplets at Fair

ORILLIA, Ont., May 31 (AP)—The Dionne quintuplets, barring unforeseen circumstances, are going to the Chicago World's fair.

Their father reached an agreement tonight with two Chicago promoters under which Mrs. Ovila Dionne will take her five baby daughters for exhibition under terms which were not divulged.

An all day conference was held between Dionne, Father Daniel Routhier, E. Greene and the two promoters, whose names were not given.

Father Routhier and Green represented Dionne. The former acted as translator, since Dionne, who speaks French, is not very proficient at English.

Three Punished for Part In Theft, Sale of Questions

Students Suspended; One Prohibited To Re-Enter

Two University of Iowa students were indefinitely suspended, and one former student was prohibited from re-entering, following action of the senate board on discipline on theft and sale of questions to be used in final examinations last week.

President Walter A. Jessup yesterday confirmed the recommendations of the board, contained in a report made by Prof. Forest C. Ensign, chairman, yesterday morning.

Jessup's statement to the press is as follows:

"On the recommendation of the senate board on discipline three students were indefinitely suspended from the university today for irregularities in connection with securing and disposing of certain examination questions.

"In accordance with the usual academic custom, the names of the students were not made public."

To Continue Investigation

One of the students was involved in the actual theft of the examinations from offices in university hall, and the other is reported to have confessed his part in the sale. The former student had dropped his graduate studies last semester, and hoped to re-enter next fall. He had had a part in the sale of the questions.

Professor Ensign was out of the city yesterday, but it was indicated Tuesday evening that the investigation will be continued. A sub-committee of the discipline board was appointed with authorization to investigate further.

Sub-Committee Still Working

Though the suspension of the three men clears up the theft of some of the examinations, the sub-committee is still working on the theft and sale of several others.

Several students, including one woman, are under suspicion, it was learned from an authoritative source. Questioning of these three students will be continued.

It was indicated yesterday that the university would not press criminal charges against the guilty persons in any instance. The only punishment will be suspension or expulsion from the university.

Instructors to Have Say

Students who were not involved in the theft or sale, but who used the stolen examinations in preparing for their final tests, will be punished according to the discretion of individual instructors. Full authority was given them to grade the students as they see fit. They will receive no punishment other than lowered grades.

Examinations were stolen last week from offices of instructors in university hall. The college of commerce, the English department, and the sociology department were involved. The questions were sold to fraternities and sororities for amounts ranging from $3 to $10.

Evidence against the guilty students was obtained by a committee of three appointed last Saturday.

Small Victory on Deposit Bill

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—The supporters of a bill to return about $1,800,000,000 to depositors in closed banks won a victory today, but administration leaders contended it was an empty one.

Low Cody, Veteran of Film, Found Dead in California Home

Actor Was Apparently Victim of Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD, May 31 (AP)—Low Cody, a veteran of American film, died in his home here today.

Cody entered the movies in 1915, and had played hero as well as villain roles. He also was a veteran vaudeville and stock player.

After he and Dorothy Dalton, actress, were divorced, Cody married Mabel Normand, movie comedienne, who died a few years ago.

One of Cody's first well known pictures was "Mating" in which he played opposite Bessie Barriscale in 1917. He was being starred at that time and he was her leading man in several pictures.

His first talking picture was with Gloria Swanson in "What a Widow."

The actor was born in Waterville, Me., Feb. 22, 1887, and was christened Low Cote, the French-Canadian name of his father. His boyhood was spent in Berlin, N. H., where his father owned a drug store, one of a chain of similar Cote stores in New Hampshire and Maine.

Fleet Puts On Huge Review in Honor of F. R.

Majestic Parade Enters New York Harbor For Homecoming

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—With the seas for miles echoing to the boom of saluting cannon, the grand fleet of the United States passed in stately review before President Roosevelt this afternoon and then entered the New York bay in a triumphant homecoming.

Fog Delays Pageant

A heavy fog delayed the majestic pageant for two hours. Early in the afternoon, however, the mist lifted and the flagship Pennsylvania plowed past the president, who stood at attention on the cruiser Indianapolis.

Airplanes rose in squadrons from the long, clipper bow carriers, Saratoga and Lexington, as the 87 warships paraded past the heavy cruiser.

20 Miles Long

Then the 700,000 tons of the nation's sea power moved slowly behind the president's vessel into the harbor in a line 20 miles long.

At sundown the ships anchored from the Statue of Liberty to Yorkers, and the president and his party came ashore.

Soon afterward, most of the 35,000 bluejackets, their "six weeks war" of maneuvers ended, were permitted to go ashore.

"Twenty-One" For President

As Mr. Roosevelt, with Secretary Swanson and former Secretary Joseph Daniels stood on the forward gun turret of the Indianapolis, the sun beat down on great American flags flying from mainmast gaffs.

Twenty-one guns boomed a salute when the 35,000 ton Pennsylvania, flagship of Admiral David A. Sellers, passed.

Immediately after came the Saratoga and Lexington, escorted by the swiftest destroyers in the navy.

Then loomed the 19,000 ton treaty cruisers, among them being the S.S. Houston, home again from a long tour in China as flagship of the American Asiatic squadron.

President, Ordinarily Cheerful, Has Only Words of Gloom

GENEVA, May 31 (AP)—Heavy clouds of pessimism hung over the disarmament conference today as delegates scurried about seeking some means of saving the situation during the three day recess.

Arthur Henderson, the ordinarily cheerful president of the conference, had only words of gloom after he talked with representatives of the principal powers.

"The clouds have never hung so low," he said.

He had talked separately with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and the French foreign minister, Louis Barthou, whose clash yesterday all but ended hope for an agreement.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, spent the day working on a plan for turning the conference into a permanent security conference, a plan which Sir John had ridiculed as not accomplishing disarmament.

Three to Aid in Laying Cornerstone

Three persons will take part in ceremonies accompanying the laying of the cornerstone of the new fine arts building now under construction on west campus at a dedicatory service tomorrow at 2 p.m., it was announced yesterday by Rufus H. Fitzgerald, director of the school of fine arts.

President Walter A. Jessup, who is participating in Commencement week activities of the University of Iowa for the last time this year, will present an address.

George T. Baker of Davenport, president of the state board of education, will offer remarks, and Edwin P. Schoentgen of Council Bluffs, who until this year was chairman of the building committee and architect for the state board of education, will also appear on the program.

This ceremony is one of the nine features planned for Alumni day observance. Mr. Fitzgerald is in charge of all arrangements for the program.

International Law Will Be Used Hereafter In Controversies

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—The United States fully relinquished its rights to interfere in the affairs of Cuba today by senate ratification of the new treaty of political relations with the island republic.

The act, abrogating the much denounced Platt amendment, slid through the senate without opposition and a minimum of debate.

Use International Law

"This treaty simply surrenders our contractual relations with Cuba and lets us resort to international law," said Chairman Pittman of the foreign relations committee.

"If I had my way," said Senator Fess (R. Ohio) "I would not interrupt our present relations." But he interposed no objection to ratification.

Cuban Ambassador Present

The Cuban ambassador, Marques Sterling, sat in the diplomatic gallery through the brief formalities, and as soon as ratification had become a fact, he hurried to the press gallery and, through an interpreter dictated the following statement:

"Cuba is highly gratified with the prompt ratification by the senate without opposition. The treaty represents a new bond that will more closely unite the two countries. This is a real permanent treaty because it brings the countries together in closer association."

Cuban Ratification Likely

Ratification by Cuba apparently awaits the calling of a constitutional convention there. For years the island republic, and for that matter, all of Latin America, has agitated for the abolishment of the Platt amendment.

Pessimism In Arms Parley

President, Ordinarily Cheerful, Has Only Words of Gloom

GENEVA, May 31 (AP)—Heavy clouds of pessimism hung over the disarmament conference today as delegates scurried about seeking some means of saving the situation during the three day recess.

Arthur Henderson, the ordinarily cheerful president of the conference, had only words of gloom after he talked with representatives of the principal powers.

"The clouds have never hung so low," he said.

He had talked separately with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and the French foreign minister, Louis Barthou, whose clash yesterday all but ended hope for an agreement.

900 Attend Commencement Supper for Class of 1934

Jessup, as Final Speaker on Program, Stresses Value of Personality; Senior Class Gives Fund for Artistic Lighting at Union

In the spacious lounge of Iowa Union, with a setting of spring flowers and gay conversation, graduates of the class of 1934 met with faculty and friends at the annual Commencement supper last night.

Nearly 900 persons were seated at long tables decorated with bowls of peonies. The supper marked the first of 20 events of the five day program which will conclude the academic year.

President Walter A. Jessup, as the last speaker on a toast program introduced as "a sentiment or two," told the graduates that success in any profession will depend upon their own personalities.

"Ask Yourself" the president said. "Ask yourself: 'What kind of a person am I?'"

"I venture to say that this factor will count more than any other to determine where you will be in 10, 20, 40, or 50 years."

Asserting that the graduates of 1934 have met a challenge in continuing their education through the last several years, President Jessup commended them upon their ability to continue in the face of economic difficulties.

Fifth Since 1929
"This is the fifth year since 1929," he said. "Something happened in 1929. In 1930, in 1931, and since then, we in the university have questioned whether you would be able to keep up the work that you had started. That you are the graduates of 1934 is the answer."

Speaking for the alumni, Charles Dutcher, president-elect of the Alumni association, pointed out that the value of a state educational system depends upon the contributions of its graduates to society. The University of Iowa, Mr. Dutcher asserted, as a state tax supported institution, must answer to the taxpayers of the entire state.

Value Questioned
"There are many who have begun to question the value of this. They are doubting the whole system of education supported by taxation. They ask why all the people should be taxed for the benefit of the few."

"The answer lies with you and the other graduates of tax supported institutions, in the contributions which you make to the welfare of this commonwealth and of the nation," Mr. Dutcher concluded.

Tom Moore Speaks
Tom Moore of Waterloo, president of the senior class in liberal arts, spoke for the men of the graduation class. Marcella Rathmann of Goselake, president of Mortar

Board, represented the graduating women.

A fund was presented by the graduating class to Iowa Union, for the purpose of purchasing and installing an artistic electric lighting system in the main lounge.

The presentation was made by Fred Lewis, chairman of the committee on senior memorial. The gift of the graduating class has become an annual tradition, and is presented to the university each year at the Commencement supper.

Fitzgerald Presides
The senior class also presented a watch to President Jessup, who is leaving the university as head of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching next month. Mr. Lewis made this presentation also.

Rufus H. Fitzgerald, director of Iowa Union, presided over the supper program, and presented Prof. Frederic G. Higbee, director of convocations. Mr. Fitzgerald announced the theme of the program "continued relations," and urged the graduates to maintain their contacts with the university through the Alumni association.

At the speakers' table were President and Mrs. Jessup, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Dutcher, Professor and Mrs. Higbee, the presidents of all the senior classes, and Miss Rathmann.

The program was carried over a public address system, and was broadcast over station WSUL. By Golly and His Iowa Blues orchestra played during the supper.

"Marrying Mdivanis" and Trail of Princesses

The rift in the marital lute of Prince Alexis Mdivani and his Princess, the former Barbara Hutton, $20,000,000 Woolworth heiress, recalls the chain of events that led to the three Georgian brothers being dubbed the "Marrying Mdivanis." Prince David, first of the trio to invade the U. S., married Mae Murray, then at the peak of film fame. Inspired by Dave's success, brother Serge wed Pola Negri, another film luminary. But when depression dawned, the Princes were returned to circulation, via divorce as too luxurious for hard times. However, Prince Serge had a brief marital fling with Mary McCormic, opera diva, before she, too, decided a prince was not essential to life. Prince Alexis formerly was husband of Louise Astor Van Alen, of New York and Newport. When she divorced him he chased Barbara Hutton around the world until she married him in Paris last year.

NEW YORK (U.N.)—S. O. S. calls for the ship of matrimony on which Barbara Hutton, beautiful heiress to the $20,000,000 Woolworth fortune, and Prince Alexis Mdivani so blithely embarked at Paris last year seem to indicate another crisis in the colorful history of the Georgian brothers who have earned the picturesque title of the "Marrying Mdivanis."

Romance and Finance
The Mdivani brothers, Princes Alexis, David and Serge, are products of the exodus from Russia in the days of the revolution. Their father, General Zakhari Mdivani, as Mohammedan chief in the little state of Georgia in the Caucasus, had been entitled to wear the honorary title "Rey" or Prince. But establishment of the new order in Russia relegated titles to the discard, so in 1923 the General appeared in Paris to join the colony of Russian emigres with his three sons and a daughter, Princess Roussadana.

The latter, seeing in America the golden land of promise, didn't waste much time in getting to Hollywood, where she set up shop as a sculptress. Her brothers joined her and she soon discovered that there was a much better market for titles than statuary in the U. S.

The first to arrive was Prince David, who was no sooner settled in Hollywood than he married Mae Murray, then at the height of her screen fame and well "up in the money."

The echoes of the wedding bells had not died away when Prince Serge unpacked his bags in the film capital, and, before anyone could begin to speculate on his course of action, he had married Pola Negri, another film beauty in the big salary brackets.

That was back in the boom days of 1927. Came the depression. Screen stars, like everyone else, had to economize, and Miss Negri dropped Prince Serge as one expensive luxury she could do without.

Prince David, too, was all set for the discard until he struck oil behind Miss Murray's house in Venice, Cal. The brothers then organized the Pacific Shore Oil company, backed by Miss Murray's cash, and money rolled in as every available member of the film colony bought blocks of stock.

Tries Grand Opera
The next chapter of the Mdivani saga was the marriage of Prince Serge to Mary McCormic, operatic

Miss Shaw, a graduate of Cornell college, has been principal of schools at Onslow for the last two years. Before entering the college of medicine here, Mr. Todd attended Cornell college.

Immediately following the wedding, a luncheon for 55, mainly out of town guests, will be served in the fountain room at Iowa Union.

Frank W. Schlueter, Henrietta Krob Wed In Solon Tuesday Eve

Two former University of Iowa students, Henrietta Krob and Frank W. Schlueter, both of Solon, were married at a 5 o'clock ceremony Tuesday afternoon in St. Mary's church in Solon. The Rev. John Michalek officiated.

Attendants of the bridal couple were Emma Krob, sister of the bride, and James B. Butler of Kansas City, Mo.

Following the service, the bridal party drove to Cedar Rapids for a wedding supper, served at the Hotel Montrose.

While a student here, Mr. Schlueter, a graduate of the college of liberal arts, was affiliated with Chi Delta Psi fraternity. He is now a science teacher in the Solon high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlueter have left for a trip to northern Minnesota.

Shakespeare's tragedy of "Timon of Athens" was a distinct contribution to the study of syphilis, Dr. Andrew H. Woods, director of psychopathic hospital told physicians attending a meeting of the American Psychiatric association in New York city yesterday.

Addressing an afternoon session at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, the Iowa doctor termed this play one "in the series of tragedies in which Shakespeare reveals his remarkable knowledge of and interest in mental diseases."

"Timon of Athens" deals with an Athenian of the fifth century B. C., who degenerates mentally and physically, throws his money away recklessly, and dies a sudden death. Dr. Woods interpreted Shakespeare's character to represent the model of a sixteenth century profligate nobleman who developed general paresis.

Another staff member of the psychopathic hospital, Dr. Erich Lindemann, also spoke at the meeting in New York. He addressed yesterday morning's session on "The psychopathological changes produced by drugs affecting the vegetative system. (Adrenalin)."

He reported on studies undertaken here to determine the results of the administration of certain drugs.

Ping! Pea Shooter Wakens Dock Workers In London

LONDON (AP)—Accuracy with a pea-shooter, while not one of life's major accomplishments, has helped Mrs. Tom Smith of Limehouse earn a living for 20 years.

Mrs. Smith, now 70, is a professional "waker-up." She gets out in the small hours before dawn and goes around waking people with a start and reminding them it's time to fall out. She inherited the job from her son, who went off to war in '14 and didn't come back.

Most of her clients are easy to get at. She merely raps on their door, sharply, or reaches up to second-story windows with her long staff. It's the third or fourth story customer who brings her pea-shooter into play.

A sharp breath, and "ping," she nearly shatters the window pane. It brings the soundest sleeper up with a start. Most of her clients—fish porters and dockers—are the sort you couldn't wake with four alarm clocks, Mrs. Smith declares.

Business, however, isn't what it used to be. There used to be nearly 100 on her list. Now there are only a score.

Lake Macbride Honors A Man of Nature

THOMAS HUSTON MACBRIDE, once president of the University of Iowa, who recently died at his home in Seattle, Wash., was a true lover of nature.

Trained in the academic work of mathematics, the Iowa head began his teaching career as a professor in this subject. It was through his work at the University of Iowa and his contacts with such men as Professor Calvin that he became interested in nature, and especially in botany.

Working with Professor Calvin, and later with his student, Prof. Bohumil Shimek, Professor Macbride made a life work of his newly found avocation. Whenever time would permit, he would go out into the country on a hunt for botanical specimens.

Those who recall the friendship of the three men remember that on Sunday afternoons they would drive a horse drawn carriage, to go looking for the plants which abound in Iowa.

Professor Macbride approached his new work with the attitude and abilities of a true student. He worked with the plants he found, and left to the world a permanent record of his studies, which has since become a standard treatise on a particular field of botany, as well as general botany texts.

Through his efforts, partially, the university summer botany laboratory at Lake Okoboji was established. For several years he devoted his efforts to seeing his dream become a reality on the shore of the northern Iowa lake.

Though President-Emeritus Macbride came to his work in botany late in life, he was still able to give his best efforts to it, and leave a worthwhile contribution.

All of which explains why the choice of the title "Lake Macbride state park" for the new Johnson county project is especially appropriate. Dr. Anthony's committee has made an excellent selection.

Lake Macbride will keep alive the memory of a man who loved nature, who would have, in his time, been instrumental in the realization of just such an endeavor as now bears his name.

The "White Legion" Of Stupidity

"BIRMINGHAM, Ala., (AP)—A campaign for laws to prevent out-of-state attorneys from 'embarrassing our courts' and to prohibit teaching of Communist doctrines was under way today with the support of the 'white legion'."—Excerpt from a recent Associated Press report.

In one little paragraph is here expressed the causes of the world's ills—far better than whole volumes of reasoning and logic could ever express them.

The "white legion" conducting such a campaign in the south is reminiscent of the years following the Civil war, when the Negro was made the butt of planning and counter-planning, and finally became the subject of the terrorism of the Ku Klux Klan.

The "white legion" is typical of the narrowness and stupidity which engender wars and strikes, which get nations and states and localities one against the other, which try to crush by suppression that which they cannot combat by reasoning and fair means.

The dangers of too narrow a nationalism in a world which is essentially international have been well demonstrated within recent years. When this goes to such an extreme that one state in the United States is pitted against another, it is surely time to call a halt on pride in locality.

What Others Think

Overcoming Limitations

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

Lieut. Paul Codos and Capt. Maurice Rossi, making a brilliant crossing of the Atlantic in the difficult east-to-west direction, completed their flight a few hours after the streamline train of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, the Zephyr, had broken all records for an extended trip by train, covering the 1,017 miles from Denver to Chicago in 13 hours and 5 minutes.

Speed has been served once again, speed that increases unbelievably with each passing year. The Frenchmen have made a notable attempt at a long distance record against the worst conditions. The train had shown that the railroad is now keeping step with the airplane, that while the airplane can still go almost twice as fast, it is not going to maintain the four-to-one advantage over the railroad that it has had in the United States.

The airplane has shown its speed and ability. Today engineering skill is directed toward making pay loads possible, but without sacrificing increased speeds. The train has long had load-carrying ability. But it has lacked speed, and has found aviation competition a serious problem. The best regular train of the Burlington line travels from Denver to Chicago in 25 hours and 46 minutes. Cutting 12 hours and 41 minutes from that schedule is sufficient comment on what the streamline train will mean to railroading.

Airplanes became possible when resistance to something that seemed as vague as air was overcome by light weight and elimination of unnecessary projections. The railroads have found that as they also turn to light weight and the elimination of resistance, they too are speeding up.

Thus as men apply power intelligently, resistance is reduced and faster, smoother, more certain progress is assured.

"... the infliction of cruelty for pleasure is no longer widely prized," remarks Henry W. Nevinson in his new book of adventure, "In the Dark Backward." (Or so the reviewer said; I haven't read the book.) And "... that is the greatest change which has come about in man's immemorial history, for physical evolution and mechanical inventions are trivial in comparison."

It requires only a moment's reflection through one's memories of history lessons to know the truth of that. Until comparatively recent times the infliction of pain has been a major delight of almost every civilization, so much so that Author Nevinson can call it a "peculiar characteristic of mankind."

It is hard to realize the immense stride of progress represented in the mere fact that not a single popular sport in this country today is based upon cruelty. But it must be admitted that many sports owe their popularity largely to public anticipation of injury and suffering. Perhaps the degree to which this is true is the measure of our future path of progress.

A sarcastic, thoughtless speech by Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, at the disarmament conference Wednesday, effectively nullified much of the good that had been accomplished in previous addresses by Maxim Litvinoff of Russia and Norman Davis of the United States.

The prospects of Germany's reentrance into the conference and the adoption of a practicable basis for disarmament discussions had been unusually bright until the French delegate, as French delegates seem to have a habit of doing, punctured the balloon.

Said the Associated Press: "A plea by Great Britain's foreign secretary at today's session of the disarmament conference that France and Germany bridge the gap separating them drew from a French spokesman the rejoinder that 'France is willing to bridge the gap but will take care not to fall through hidden traps into the water.'"

Barthou reiterated the French refrain that Germany is violating the Versailles treaty by rearming and insisted that he refuses "to adopt an attitude of complacency."

Unless someone makes it very clear to the French that the Versailles treaty had better be scrapped peacefully and that France had better come out from her arsenal and talk in the open, it is not inconceivable that she will have carried the whole of Europe into the water with her.

Not long ago it was reported in one of the national magazines that President Roosevelt has held private showings of "Gabriel Over the White House" more often than any other picture.

Yesterday he sailed by the entire United States fleet in review off New York harbor while the world watched what was probably the greatest concentration of naval power ever seen. It included 700,000 tons of fighting ships gathered together from every corner of the globe—battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers.

Remember, in "Gabriel Over the White House," when the president staged such a demonstration for the benefit of visiting potentates? Remember Walter Huston's impressive speech, in which he used the fearful threat of battleships arrayed and bombing planes roaring in deadly maneuvers as a background for his demand for immediate disarmament and peace?

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Here's one of those things that happen only to Hollywood folk—and other people. Pert Kelton, who has taken up riding, went out to a stable in the country the other day to buy a nag. The man sold her a horse which had been left over a year by a man who disappeared without paying the board bill. Pert got it for $30.

On her first ride to one of the local riding academies, a polo player took one look at her horse and said it was his. He had been trying to find it ever since he got back from Europe after leaving it in charge of his man who decamped with the keep money and a few other things. Pert gasped when the owner told her it was worth $3,500 but promptly sold it back to him for $150, which leaves her an hour's ride and $120 to boot.

Should Hollywood ever be threatened, in the event of war, by hostile aviators, the industry could well take care of its own. Many of the studio car drivers who daily ferry the stars out to location are experienced aviators grounded by economic pressure or for other reasons. Many of them are trained in combat flying. Warner Brothers-First National studios have the biggest concentration of these flyers.

The head of the transportation department is Captain Richard Klein, who is a pal of Captain Eddie Rickbacher, and who served overseas as a flyer during the war. Captain Klein still has his own plane, which he uses.

Around him has gravitated a unique organization of ex-war flyers, skilled transportation pilots, men who have flown on one side or the other of revolutions in Mexico, China and other countries. They drive the cars of the studios. Dare devils in the skies, they are careful, skillful drivers on the road.

When the studios are busy Captain has as many as 20 of these aviators driving his cars, enough to man a squadron of volunteers in case Hollywood is attacked by air.

Another piquant missive from the postman came to Edna May Oliver. It was from a Paris plastic surgeon and he quoted a price of $10,000 to make over her face, sending plans and specifications in the letter.

"I wouldn't give up this old horse face for $50,000," was her sniffer. "It's my fortune."

University Offers Courses To High School Speakers

Speech, Dramatic Arts Department Will Instruct Work

Special courses for all state high school players, debaters, and declamatory students who have not completed requirements for admission to the university will be continued this year during the first term of summer session by the speech and dramatic arts department.

Registration for this course is selective. Students who have completed three years of high school work and are ready for their fourth year will be given preference. The enrollment usually includes those who have proved outstanding in contests and competitions.

Prof. Harry G. Barnes of the speech department, who is in charge of registration, said yesterday that the number of students enrolled will be about the same as in former years, and that acceptances have already been received from all corners of the state.

Students in the course will be those who attracted attention in declamatory contests throughout the state, who did good work in debate or extemporaneous speaking competitions, who were outstanding in Iowa play production festival presentations, or who have been highly recommended by instructors or school officials.

Each of the students will be required to take a "first course" in speech training, which is under the direction of Professor Barnes.

One elective course—either in debating or dramatic art—will occupy the remainder of the all-state high school players' time. Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of university theater, will be in charge of the dramatic course, and Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of university debate, will have charge of the other elective.

Before the end of the term, July 15, students in the dramatic course will present a public play. Services of the speech clinic will be at the disposal of the students.

Eastlawn, women's dormitory, will be open to the high school girls, and the boys will be housed at the Quadrangle, men's dormitory, during their six weeks in residence here.

Besides Professor Morton, Professor Baird, and Professor Barnes, an instructional staff will be on hand to help train the high school students. Special supervisors will be stationed in each of the two dormitories.

One elective course—either in debating or dramatic art—will occupy the remainder of the all-state high school players' time. Prof. Vance M. Morton, associate director of university theater, will be in charge of the dramatic course, and Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of university debate, will have charge of the other elective.

Before the end of the term, July 15, students in the dramatic course will present a public play. Services of the speech clinic will be at the disposal of the students.

Eastlawn, women's dormitory, will be open to the high school girls, and the boys will be housed at the Quadrangle, men's dormitory, during their six weeks in residence here.

Besides Professor Morton, Professor Baird, and Professor Barnes, an instructional staff will be on hand to help train the high school students. Special supervisors will be stationed in each of the two dormitories.

Each of the students will be required to take a "first course" in speech training, which is under the direction of Professor Barnes.

Theater To Use Three Sets In Play

Three sets will be used in this year's commencement play, George M. Cohan's farce, "The Baby Cyclone," which will be given its only presentation by a cast of Iowa City Community theater and University theater players tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. in natural science auditorium.

Act one, which takes place in Meadows' apartment, will be played on a set designed by Arnold Gillette of the speech and dramatic arts department. The living room is set with comfortable furniture of a warm maroon color.

Besides the furniture, the drapes, lamps, and a painting are done in harmonizing tones. A luxurious fireplace occupies the center of the stage. Above the mantle is a painting.

Arches and built-in book cases complete the "homey" atmosphere of this set. It was built and painted by students under the direction of Mr. Gillette.

The second set, Hurley's apartment, was designed earlier this season by Grant Fairbanks, G of Redlands, Cal. It is an ultra-modern apartment, with indirect lighting and modernistic furniture.

Mr. Gillette also designed the set used in act three, which shows Webster's living room. It is basically the same set as the interchangeable one used in act one. With certain changes and rearrangements, it becomes a completely separate unit.

Lee Savage, G of Elgin, Ill., will serve as stage manager for this production, and Elwood Ramay, G of Iowa City, is directing the cast.

The "university family" gathered at Iowa Union last night for the graduates' supper. At least Ted Rehder, who takes care of matters of food at the Union, always calls it the "university family." Which makes this department wonder whether the "family" spirit is infectious, or whether Mr. Rehder spoke to "By" Golly before the supper began. However that may be, Mr. Golly's musicians started the supper by playing "Love Thy Neighbor."

Here and there, some man disregarded convention in favor of solid combed, removed his coat, and dined in his "shirt sleeves." But 't seems that engineers are used to working. So the engineering students went at the thing seriously—which perhaps accounts for the fact that nearly half the men at the engineers' table sat coatless through the meal.

Can it be that President Jessup is becoming cynical? Or just jovial? In his address he spoke of what the graduates had gained from their four or five or six or seven years at Iowa. He recited a list, and concluded: "—and some of you may even have an education." Later he spoke of meeting problems and making adjustments, and said: "The little ills of life we can trust to doctors; even lawyers can handle some cases."

When Marcella Rathmann made her address in behalf of the graduating women, she recited some of the episodes from the early history of the University of Iowa. It seems that in the early days, things were in a state of natural happiness on the Iowa campus. In 1859, however, the powers that be met and issued an order expressly demanding that all horses, cattle, and other animals be kept off the university campus. To which this department says that anyone visiting the Iowa campus in the first months of 1934 would undoubtedly have concluded that the order in regard to horses, at least, had been rescinded.

As for Tom Moore's speech—well, we somehow seemed to detect a faint odor of sand in his reference to college of commerce students. Tom spoke about the new order facing graduates, of the fact that we must soon exchange our things academic for things practical. The gist of his remarks about the commerce students was that they would soon become accountants to do real accounting for a real business, instead of preparing books for an imaginary firm, "with the aid of their fellow students." In view of the recent examination expose in the college of commerce, one might wonder just what that remark had reference to.

A columnist's thoughts while sitting (at a supper): Here comes the food — with green peppers; I don't like green peppers. . . Oh, it's all right; they're stuffed. . . Charles Dutcher seems to be making an unflattering distinction; he started his address: "—members of the graduating class, ladies and gentlemen" . . . Tom Moore promised to talk exactly three and one-half minutes, but by stop-watch timing, it took nearly four and one-half. . . Oh, well, it can easily be forgiven. . . They're serving coffee—hot coffee on a day like this! One might know they ought to serve iced tea. . . I'll make a note of that. . .

Mary Maxwell Of University Hospital Leaves for Tour

Mary Maxwell, director of the social service division of University hospital, left yesterday for Cleveland, Ohio, where she will begin a two months' tour of the various hospitals throughout the country.

The purpose of this trip, which is under the direction of the committee on minimum standards of the American Association of Medical Hospital Workers, is to study social service in its relation to hospitals.

During her absence, Elizabeth Mills will be in charge of the social service division.

Professor Anderson To Take Leave Of Absence

Prof. Fowler D. Brooks of the psychology department at De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind., will teach a course in "psychology of adolescence" during the leave of absence this summer of Prof. Harold H. Anderson of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station. Professor Anderson will be on leave of absence during the first term of the summer session.

Besides his association with the psychology department at De Pauw university, Professor Brooks is also a member of the college of education staff at that university.

Professor Brooks was formerly employed at State Teachers college at Mankato, Minn., and at Johns Hopkins university, and is at present associate editor of the Journal of Educational Research.

He will arrive in Iowa City in time to begin the first summer session term June 11.

Two Women To Join Faculty

Two new instructors, Betty Lynd Thompson and Mildred Shoullice, will teach in the women's physical education department during the summer session.

Miss Thompson was assistant professor of physical education at Oregon State Agricultural college this year, and will teach clogging and fundamentals here. Miss Thompson is the author of a book, "Fundamentals of Rhythm and Dance."

Miss Shoullice was formerly instructor of physical education at Iowa State college in Ames. She will teach basketball, tennis, and self-testing activities this summer.

One of the little stories going the rounds these days concerns a man in one of the university French classes. It seems that this man, a senior, had hardly deigned to visit his class during the entire semester. However, "just before Christmas, I'm as good as I can be" and all that, so during the last two weeks of school he attended with fair regularity. The instructor, a woman, found it difficult to become accustomed to seeing the chair, so long vacant, filled. One day she confided to a friend: "I can't get used to seeing Mr. K. in class. As a matter of fact, I feel highly flattered."

Letter to the Editor

Editor, The Daily Iowan:
In last Saturday's letter, Mr. Shimke is very positive and convincing but not often accurate in his statements. I say this not to question his honesty but to try to warn his readers and save them from confusion.

When Mr. Shimke fights for the conservation of fish in Iowa streams, I take off my hat to him; but when he muddies the water in order to conserve the power trust octopus in Iowa City, I shall fight him to the limit—the more so when he helps this fish to clamp its sucker tentacles more tightly on the city council after the city itself has voted to cut loose.

I marvel at the man's cold-blooded defiance of the first principle of American popular government. He vigorously endorses and propagates the novel idea that the city council is not the servant but the master of Iowa City. Having taken that unpatriotic position, he runs for refuge to what he calls "the law."

The spectacle is an amusing one, the more so because Mr. Shimke is so deadly serious. For instance, he declares that "elections granting franchises are not on a par with elections imposing burdens of indebtedness, and that the laws safeguarding the latter much more closely."

What laws? Does this statement refer to our Iowa City situation?

Mr. Shimke's lawyer son-in-law can tell him that he is 100 per cent wrong on that so far as the Iowa City election under the Simmer law is concerned. To be sure, the law on the voting of general obligation or tax bonds (to be paid off by taxation) requires not less than a 60 per cent majority of those voting thereon; but a franchise for a utility corporation or the revenue bonds for a new Iowa City light plant (to be paid out of net earnings under the Simmer law) can be voted by a simple majority of the legal electors voting thereon.

Mr. Shimke can end his confusion on this simple matter by learning sections 6131 and 6134-d3 of the Code of Iowa. Until he does that, he will no doubt continue to do irreparable harm to public opinion in Iowa City.

Mr. Shimke then goes on to refer with the utmost cocksureness to "the law and court decisions" giving the Iowa City council the "admitted power" to refuse to carry out the mandate of the voters at the special election of April 17. I defy him to cite the law or the court decisions which permit a mere city council to veto any policy which the city as a whole adopts. He can't do it and nobody else can.

The "law" in this matter, though only a phantom eel, is nevertheless very real to Mr. Shimke. But the Iowa supreme court has never had to face a situation such as the one now presented in Iowa City; and until it does, Mr. Shimke's guess is of very little value.

Although the Iowa legislature did not make the city council's responsibility clear, when it passed the statute of 1888 authorizing a city or town to establish a light and power plant if a majority of the voters so decide, there can be little doubt that the legislative intent behind the statute was to make the decision of the majority binding upon the city council.

The statute (section 6132 of the Code of Iowa) declares that if the city council does not let the voters decide, 25 property-owners in each ward can compel the mayor to put the question to a vote. What was the purpose of the $600 special election in Iowa City except to tell the city council: "Go ahead—we want you to use your best judgment to establish a city-owned light plant."

The statute of 1888 was obviously intended to enable the voters of Iowa City by the initiative and referendum to obtain action which their councilmen had neglected or refused, namely: action leading toward the establishment of a city-owned plant within the limits set by the ballot. Any other interpretation leads to a travesty on democracy and makes a mockery of responsive and responsible government.

Mr. Shimke is so woefully bewildered by the law under which Iowa City has decided to establish a light plant that I despair of his ever learning its true contents.

This Simmer law, so poisonous to the Power Boys was passed by the Iowa General Assembly and approved by Governor Turner in 1931. The power trust octopus savagely fought the law but the supreme court upheld it in three notable decisions in September, 1933. It allows cities and towns to establish their own light plants by paying the contractor nonnegotiable pledge warrants to be retired not out of taxes but out of the net earnings of the plant.

Mr. Shimke does not seem to understand what those words mean. "Net earnings" are the earnings left over after the cost of operating and maintaining the plant have been paid. The Simmer law expressly prohibits taxes being levied for any purpose.

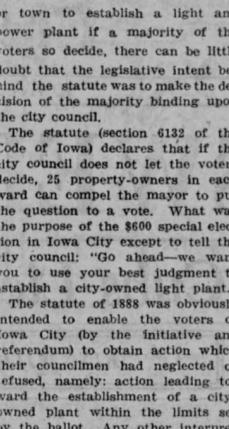

So difficult is it for Mr. Shimke to grasp and hold the eel of legal science by the tail that in his confusion he drags the Muscatine light plant in by the ears and reminds us that "Muscatine has been able to pay less than half of its bond issue of only $320,000 in 10 years, though during that period it received close to $200,000 in special taxes for the light plant." (The figures are his).

There was no Simmer law in 1924 when the people of Muscatine overwhelmingly voted to tax themselves to build a plant. The general obligation or tax bonds issued there have been retired as fast as they fell due, the last ones maturing in 1944. The city has, in the last 10 years, after competing half that time with the Power Trust, extended its original $350,000 property by an additional investment of close to $800,000 out of the earnings of the plant, besides saving consumers about $1,000,000 on electric rates. Mayor Herman Lord or any other Muscatine enthusiast can give Mr. Shimke the facts if he really wants them.

Muscatine's plant started out as a plain tax proposition but Iowa City's plant can neither start or end that way. Why, then, does Mr. Shimke confuse his readers by comparing the two cities? It seems to me that he has fallen into a habit very characteristic of champions of the Power Trust.

The Simmer law of 1931 was

ABOUT SPORTS

Dugout Interference... Why Squeeze Plays Fail... Iowa Frosh Champs... Track Mind-ed Milwaukee.

ALTHOUGH holding up the game for about 15 minutes, the little argument in the fourth inning of the baseball game between Iowa and Minnesota yesterday afternoon added to spectators' enjoyment. Most of them did not know what it all was about. Schmidt, the Iowa catcher, attempted to score from third on a squeeze play, but Drager, the batter, missed the bunt. In his slide, Schmidt missed the home plate. At the same time, Bruhn, Minnesota catcher, failed to tag Schmidt. The Gopher players evidently thought that Mike Schreck, the umpire, had called Schmidt safe.

WHEN THE Minnesota players raised a big argument the Iowa players joined in, with Umpire Schreck vainly trying to quiet the boys. Then it was discovered that Schmidt had failed to touch home and Bruhn went over to the Iowa dugout to complete his part of the action. Schmidt made a dash for the plate and a Hawkeye player blocked Bruhn's way. It was ruled that this action was the block and Schmidt was declared out. The boys went back onto the field and the game got under way. If Schmidt had been safe a triple steal would have resulted as Mau was on second and Stephens on first. All three started at once, the latter two advancing a base when Schmidt made his try for home.

IT WAS little surprise to Iowa fans that the freshman track and field team copped the Big Ten championship. Such an outstanding array of athletes as makes up the Iowa freshman squad is no easy mark for any team to take. And the times made by some of the frosh runners, and winning efforts made by field event men, are outstanding. Chierly so were the victories of Ohio State's colored ace, Jess Owens. He paced the 100 yard dash in .39.6, the 220 yard dash in .21, and broad jumped over 24 feet. Michigan has its Ward, but if this Ohio State sensation gets into action next winter and springs it like a champion for the Crimson last year at the National Intercollegiate meet in Chicago Owens headed the field. A week later, however, he met Ralph Metcalf in the National A.A.U. track and field meet and was defeated by the Marquette speedster quite handsly.

METCALF will see about the hottest action in his long and victorious career with the bringing of two outstanding track and field meets to Marquette university stadium in Milwaukee during this month of June. On June 8 and 9 annual Central intercollegiate track and field championships will be held. Three weeks later the National A.A.U. championships will be held in the same stadium. Many of the American stars in the Berlin Olympics of 1936 are expected to come to light in the junior and senior championship tests. From Uncle Sam's 1935 Olympic team will be Ralph Metcalf, who made Milwaukee track minded, Tom Otty of Michigan State, national cross country champion, and Ivan Fuqua and Charles Hornbostel of Indiana, two of the greatest middle distance runners in the world.

Track Talent For N.A.A.U. Championships

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Outstanding American track and field talent will reach the halfway post between the colorful Los Angeles game of 1932 and the Berlin Olympiad of 1936 as the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States conducts its national outdoor championships in the Marquette university stadium here on Friday and Saturday, June 29 and 30.

Local, state, sectional, collegiate and national champions will gather for the distance and walking events, Friday afternoon; the junior finals, that night, and the national senior championships, Saturday afternoon. Entry blanks have been mailed. Spectators, as well as athletes who are attracted to Milwaukee for the A.A.U. meet will have the opportunity of visiting the 1934 Century of Progress exposition in Chicago, 85 miles away, on the same trip. Steam and electric lines plan special rates for the occasion.

A.A.U. officials at this time are not able to announce entries for the meet, but it is expected that the Marquette stadium will be the scene of the resumption of such warm track rivalries as the Cunningham-Hontrhon-Venzke, the Hardin-Lu-Valle-Fuqua, the Torrance-Lyman-Sexton, the Metcalfe-Owens-Kiesel, the Morris-Bead and the McCuskey-Follows feuds. Efforts also are being made to secure outstanding foreign stars of the 1932 Olympics.

Hawk Nine Off For Michigan

If Michigan Defeated Iowa Rests Safe in 3rd Place

The Hawkeye baseball team will take to the road for the last time today when they leave for a 10 day trip through Michigan, during which seven games will be played. The first stop will be at Ann Arbor, Mich., tomorrow where the Old Gold team is scheduled to wind up its Big Ten conference schedule with the University of Michigan nine. Coach Vogel named a squad of 16 players to make the trip.

Following the game at Ann Arbor, the Hawkeyes will travel to Ypsilanti to meet the Michigan Normal team in a two game series Monday and Tuesday. After Ypsilanti, the Iowans will meet the Western State Teachers in two games at Kalamazoo, Wednesday and Thursday. Friday and Saturday will see the Hawkeyes closing their season with two games at East Lansing with Michigan State university.

By its double win over Minnesota, the Hawkeye nine took undisputed possession of third place in the conference standings with an even break in 10 games. The University of Michigan is right behind the Old Gold team with a record of 6 losses and 5 defeats. A win for the Hawkeyes, tomorrow would settle them permanently on the third rung well out of reach of any other club. The Wolverines however, are gunning for the victory which will give them an even break and place them in a possible tie for third.

The following Hawkeyes made the trip: infielders, Captain Schulteherich, Baker, Mason, Weese, Stephens, Bazzant; pitchers, Ford, Frohwein, Mau, Pjkerill; catcher, Schmidt; outfielders, Blackman, Drager, Clausen, McEwan, Underwood.

Young Lads Making Good as Trackster

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Mike Layden, sophomore brother of Notre Dame's athletic chief, Elmer Layden, is beginning to encroach on the glory of one of his brother's old teammates.

Mike did a fairish amount of varsity footballing last fall and has shown to better advantage in track this spring. One of his first efforts was to tie the Notre Dame high hurdles record of 15 seconds, set in 1921 by Chet Wynne, who was the immediate precursor of Elmer as Notre Dame fullback.

Teams With Schmidt To Lead Iowa Offense In Home Finale

By RON TALLMAN

Old Iowa field yesterday afternoon saw what probably will be its last ball game and one of the most spirited ever played here as the Hawkeyes turned in a 4 to 3 victory over Minnesota in a battle which at one time was delayed 15 minutes as players and coaches of both teams engaged in hot debate.

The triumph, which gave the Iowa outfit an even break in 10 conference games, brought both games of the two game series to the home team and sent the Gophers back to Minneapolis trailing by 3 to 1 in the season's series between the two rivals.

Mau Collected

Charley Mau, Iowa's big sophomore left hander, managed to keep collected in the midst of the many arguments and as a result turned in his seventh win of the campaign. But it was not only his pitching which helped turn the tide of victory, but some effective work at the plate in which he smashed out a double and a single in three times at the plate to drive in two of the Iowa runs. It was Mau's second win over the Gophers.

His battery mate, "Dutch" Schmidt, center of the fourth inning argument, was another big cog in the Hawkeye offensive power by collecting a double and two singles in four times at bat. But even the hitting of "Dutch" and Charley would have gone for naught had the Gophers been able to play good ball after they had gained the lead in the first of the fourth on some loose Iowa play.

Iowa Scores First

Minnesota filled the bases with two scratch infield hits and one solid blow with two out in the first frame, but Mau safely got out of danger. The Hawkeyes themselves put two men on in their half of the frame, but Grossman, Gopher starting hurler, extricated himself as well.

A double play brought Charley out of another tight situation in the second and then the Hawkeyes showed across their first run. With two out, Schmidt lined a double down the left field line and crossed the plate as Mau slammed the second pitch into left field for a single.

Klonoski Triples

Mau retired the first two visitors in the first of the third, but then he hit Gallivan with a pitched ball and Klonoski, heavy hitting Minnesota first baseman, crashed a long triple to the bank in right center to tie the score.

Stanton singled to right to open the fourth. Grossman hit a roller to Baker and both men were safe when the Iowa first baseman hit the runner going to second in an attempt to make a force play. A pass ball allowed the runners to advance and they both scored on two infield outs.

Battle Is On!

Then came the big uprising. Mason inauspiciously grounded to third to open the frame. Clausen lined a hit into right field and went to second as Schmidt survived on Wolczynski's error. Mau then doubled to left field to send Clausen home with Schmidt stopping at the third when the throw came in, in a hurry. Stephens got to first to fill the bases as a play was made at third to hold Schmidt on the base on "Stevie's" ground ball.

In an attempted squeeze play Drager missed the ball and Schmidt fell into the catcher at the plate, failing to touch the base and at the same time Bruhn, Gopher receiver, failed to tag the runner. Evidently thinking Umpire Mike Schreck had ruled the runner safe, the Minnesota put up a big argument which also brought the Iowans from the bench.

Interference

The Gophers walked off the field and then it was finally decided by the visitors that Schmidt hadn't been tagged. When Bruhn went over to put the ball on the Iowa catcher, a Hawkeye player came out and blocked his way. It was ruled that this was intentional interference and Schmidt was declared out. The game was resumed and then Drager fanned to end the hectic inning.

In the midst of this uprising, Grossman, Gopher hurler, was ordered out of the game by the umpire, Hendrickson coming in to finish the inning and the game.

Blackman Counts

Blackman singled to center to open the last of the fifth. He was sacrificed to second by Capt. Her-

Gloom Descends as Star Prison First Baseman Injured

WAUPUN, Wis., May 31 (AP)—Gloom today hovered over the Waupun state prison as inmates wondered where they could find another first baseman to replace Kajuwa, who broke his leg sliding home Memorial day in a do or die attempt to save the game with the Rockford, Ill., Eagles, for good old W. S. P.

Kajuwa, who played on the first team his alma mater put on the field 20 years ago, is out for the season, as is his understudy, who underwent an operation last week.

"Frankly, we went against it," admitted Deputy Warden Guy Taft, who manages the club, "we've got 14 more games on our schedule."

Rockford took the Memorial day game, 4 to 3, and there was no pie on the table that night for the 40 men on the prison squad, which is their usual reward for a baseball victory. This "banquet" at which the players are permitted to talk among themselves, is the reason, incidentally, for a coterie of turcoats among the 1,200 convicts which roots against the "varsity."

U. S. Doubles Team Scores Easy Victory

BALTIMORE, May 31 (AP)—A straight set victory by the United States national champion doubles tennis team, George Lott and Lester Stoenen, today ended whatever faint hope the Mexican Davis cup team had to win the North American zone series.

With yesterday's two singles victories, the United States triumph today gave the team a three to nothing lead which not even the improbable sweep of the two remaining singles matches Saturday by the Mexicans can overcome.

The score of today's win for Lott and Stoenen over Dr. Ricardo Tapia and Eduardo Mestre, Jr., was 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Earlier in the day, news had been received that the plan of the United States to use Lott and John Van Ryn as the doubles combination against European Davis cup competitors might have to be revised.

R. Norris Williams 2nd, non playing captain of the American team, revealed that Van Ryn felt he could not abandon his brokerage business in Philadelphia for the protracted European stay and was considering remaining at home.

Fine Pitching By Guy Bush For 3rd Win

Herman Drives in Three Runs; Klein Hits 14th Homer

CHICAGO, May 31 (AP)—Chuck Klein's fourteenth home run with two on base, two doubles and two singles by Babe Herman and fine pitching by Guy Bush after the first inning combined to give the Cubs an 11 to 5 victory over Pittsburgh today and a clean sweep of the three game series.

The victory promoted the Cubs to a second place tie with New York and demoted the Pirates, for whom it was the fifth straight defeat, into a fourth place tie with Boston.

Klein Hits Home Run

Klein's homer, his second in two days, came off Bill Swift in the first inning after Stan Hack singled and Woody English walked and made up the three runs scored on Bush in the Pirate first when P. Waner and Traynor singled and Vaughan and Suhr doubled. Pittsburgh got 10 more hits off Bush for a total of 14, but he minimized them to two runs for his season's eighth victory.

Babe Herman drove in three runs and scored two himself with his assortment of hits, while Catcher Gabby Hartnett doubled with the bases filled in the fifth to score three more.

The Cubs got 12 hits off three Pittsburgh pitchers. Score by innings: R.H.E. Pittsburgh.....301 000 001—5 14 1 Chicago.....302 030 12—11 12 2 Batteries: Swift, Smith, Harris and Grace; Bush and Hartnett.

Cards Win, 3-2

CINCINNATI, May 31 (AP)—Granted a reprieve as the Reds muffed a golden opportunity in the seventh, the St. Louis Cardinals went on to defeat the home team 3 to 2, in 10 innings today.

A double by Frankie Frisch provided the winning run, driving in Mills, a substitute batter, who reached the paths after being hit by a pitched ball, and advanced as Whitehead sacrificed.

With the game tied in the seventh, the Reds filled the bases as Lombardi and Derringer singled and Adams walked, but missed out as Piet forced Adams for the third out. Trade talk filled the air today. Trading of Chick Hafey back to St. Louis was rumored as Branch Rickey conferred with Larry MacPhail of the Reds. Only 603 persons saw the game.

Score by innings: R.H.E. St. Louis.....100 000 100—3 7 1 Cincinnati.....010 001 000 0—2 7 1 Batteries: Haines, Rehm and Delaney; Derringer and Lombardi.

French Resin Rings Beckon Billy B. Hoke

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—Billy B. Hoke is en route to France to look over the big grant and groan meep of Paris.

Always alert for new faces to maintain interest in "rasslin" shows the stages here, the promoter, referee and former boxer is hopeful, but not overly optimistic of turning up some new timber in Paris.

However, Hoke won't be able to forget one of his first losses—boxing. Tucked away in a corner of his trunk are his referee tools. He will use them to oblige Jeff Dickson, the American called the Tex Rickard of England and France, where he promotes all the important fights.

Dickson has asked the Minneapolis promoter to be the third man in the ring in some of his fights in Paris.

As a referee and promoter, Hoke has been closely associated with virtually every first-string heavyweight wrestler, including Jim Londos, George Hackenschmidt, the Russian lion; Henry Ordeman, Frank Gotch, Stanislaus Zbyszko, Strangler Lewis, Joe Stecher, and John Pesek.

Reterebing has taken Billy all over the Northwest and once into Canada in addition to Paris. He played baseball in London against a Paris team fought prize fights on a floating barge in the Mississippi river and has promoted many notable bouts.

Six Runs in Seventh Good For 6-2 Win

Giants Drop Into 2nd Place Tie With Chicago

BROOKLYN, May 31 (AP)—The Dodgers unleashed all their pent-up desire for a victory over the Giants in one big inning today and won a 6 to 2 triumph, their first of the season over New York.

All six Dodger runs were scored in the seventh as Hal Schumacher blew up after giving only one hit in the first six frames. The defeat dropped the Giants into a tie for second place with the Chicago Cubs, who beat Pittsburgh.

Schumacher's wildness as much as the hitting of the makeshift Brooklyn team cost him the game. Brooklyn.....000 000 60—6 10 1 Batteries: Bengie and Sukerforf; Schumacher, Castleman and Manoso.

Schulteherich Most Valuable

Iowa Baseball Captain Chosen by Mates, Coach

Herman Schulteherich, St. Charles, Mo., senior and captain of the Hawkeye baseball team, was chosen the most valuable player on the University of Iowa baseball squad for this season.

The choice was made last night through a majority vote of members of the baseball squad, Coach Otto Vogel, and sports editors of The Daily Iowan and Press-Citizen.

An outstanding fielder and hitter, the Iowa second baseman is clean-up man in the Hawkeye batting order. Until the final two home contests with Minnesota his batting average was .263. He experienced a slump in the two games, however, bringing his average down to .213.

Schulteherich has been a regular on the team since his sophomore days and was chosen to lead his mates during his final year of competition.

Today he will lead the Iowans on their final road trip of the season, through Michigan, on a five game tour.

Armour Picks Paul Runyan For Nat. Open

CHICAGO, May 31 (AP)—Tommy Armour, an exceptional handicapper of golf tournaments except on those occasions when he overlooked himself, picked Paul Runyan as his stand-out special to win the national open championship today as he packed his own clubs and set out for the big 72 hole battle at Merion.

His selections in order of his preference were Runyan, Walter Hagen, Denny Shute, Horton Smith, and Harry Cooper.

"But in my opinion, Runyan is the stand-out in this open," the silver Scot said. "He's the best home bred pro since Walter Hagen came along. He's got what it takes—and a little more than that—to win a show like the open."

With that, he took another pot shot at his old pal, Gene Sarazen. "I read where Sarazen said Runyan was too tight to win the open," Tommy chortled. "That makes me laugh. Does Gene forget that he was the midget of all open champions when he copped at Skokie in 1922? At that time, Sarazen was three inches shorter and 20 pounds lighter than Runyan is today. And how about Cyril Walker. He wasn't a very big fellow either when he came along and beat us all in '24."

Reterebing has taken Billy all over the Northwest and once into Canada in addition to Paris. He played baseball in London against a Paris team fought prize fights on a floating barge in the Mississippi river and has promoted many notable bouts.

Washington Slugs Yankees For 14 Blows to Take 9-3 Win From Van Atta, Uhle

Senators Score 5 Runs in 9th as Yanks Err 3 Times

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—Washington battered the Yankees around in an old-fashioned slugfest match, combining 14 blows off Russell Van Atta and George Uhle with four New York errors for a 9 to 3 victory. The Senators took the series 2-1.

Monte Weaver, Senator pitcher, was hit in every inning but spaced the blows well enough to go the route although Tony Lazzari's sixth homer left him with only a one run lead in the seventh. Van Atta was batted out in the sixth after giving three runs in the fifth. The Senators rushed over five more tallies in the last inning when the Yanks made three of their misplays.

Seven of the contests are baseball games in Michigan. After closing the conference season Saturday against the University of Michigan, the Iowans are booked to play six straight games from Monday through Saturday with Michigan Normal, Western State Teachers, and Michigan State.

Baer's Battle With Carnera Gets Interest

Discuss Ross Defending His Various Titles; Won Separately

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—Out of the shadows thrown by the glare of the Ross-McLarnin battle and the controversial aftermath today crept Primo Carnera's fifteen round heavyweight title defense against Max Baer in the Garden bowl on Long Island just two weeks from tonight.

It staggered out into the spotlight chiefly through denial of rumors that Madison Square Garden was contemplating a postponement to give the faithful time to recover from the excitement of crowning Ross a double champion, time to mull over the second great match on the open air schedule.

Fight on 14th

"They'll fight on the 14th, absolutely, unless something beyond the Garden's control, such as injury or illness to either Baer or Carnera, interferes," said Col. John R. Kilpatrick as forcefully as a retired officer on General Pershing's staff, a two time all America end at Yale, can speak.

"There's been something positively sinister in the way these rumors have been traveling around that this match will be put over. I can't deny them too strongly."

Even with a heavyweight championship duel, as colorful as any since the Dempsey-Tunney battles, only 14 days away, the arguments over Ross' acquisition of the welterweight throne, something no lightweight champion ever before accomplished, still filled the air.

Chief among these is the question whether Ross will also defend his welterweight championship every time he fights in defense of the lightweight title. The experts are about evenly divided. The New York athletic commission will decide formally tomorrow.

No Risk

The commission's attitude was indicated today when Bill Brown, one of the ring members and the best informed on ring matters, said in his opinion Ross could defend the 135 pound title without risking the welterweight championship.

"He won them in two separate fights," Brown said. "It doesn't seem fair to force him to make the lightweight limit of 135 pounds for one match and have the welterweight crown riding on the result. No, when he fights on an entirely different fighter if he were allowed to train and weigh in closer to the 147 pound limit."

Rematched

While there was nothing definite to announce, it seemed certain that McLarnin and Ross would be rematched here for a return bout late in the summer.

Baer and Carnera are training almost in obscurity, the challenger at Asbury Park, the champion at Pompton Lakes, both in New Jersey. So far Carnera has made the best impression. Baer's sparring partners have been cutting him about freely in his workouts.

Helen Jacobs Advances to Tennis Final

PARIS, May 31 (AP)—Only Margaret (Peggy) Scriven, English holder of the title, today remained behind Helen Hull Jacobs and her ambition to win the French hard court tennis championship.

The United States champion today brushed aside her long time nemesis, Mme. Rene Mathieu, ranking French player, in the semi-finals, 6-2, 6-2, and qualified to meet the English girl in the final.

Twice before Mme. Mathieu had halted Miss Jacobs bid for the title, just in the semi-final round, but she was no match for the American today.

Miss Scriven won her final brackets with a 7-5, 6-3 victory over Cilli Aussem, third ranking German player returning to competition after two years of ill health.

Golfers Compete in Annual University Commencement Play

Championships of two varieties await alumni golfers who will compete in the annual University of Iowa commencement tournament here Saturday.

With play starting at 8 a.m. as one of the events of alumni day, veterans of 55 years and over as well as alumni of any age will shoot for trophies donated by Fred Sargent and Dr. John Voss.

The tournament is the only sports event of the university's seventy-fourth commencement program. More than 50 golfers are likely to compete.

"THE LONE WOLF SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

CHAPTER XXXIV

"I have to thank the Boyce!" said Maurice.

"Who—Tess? All she done was let out what you promised her last night. Don't go packin' no grouse against that dame—it was Fowler told us first how old Fay Crozier was fixin' to put a fast one over. He phoned the minute the message come."

"Fowler—Mr. Crozier's own secretary?"

"What's the matter with that? Way you take on, a person'd think this was the first case of a trusted employee not bein' on the up and up. Why, that fish's been feedin' out of our hands ever since he fell for a night-club moll and started playin' the ponies with Crozier's dough so he could slip her presents."

"But he couldn't afford it."

"But Fennel will think it was I—"

"What she does is she goes to think any worse of you than she would if he'd held back and trusted you to take the emeralds your own way?"

"I would have managed so that she would never be suspected."

"Uh-huh, I got you. The Lone Wolf's your father, and Papa's boy simply couldn't pull a boner. That's good here, fella; but the rest of this push ain't had my advantages, like you. You know you so intimate and all. It's one hard-boiled mob, if anyone should ask you, and don't never take no chances."

The man took time to light another cigarette, and Maurice in the while was conscious of the rattle of his own labored breathing and the muted rumble of his heart. The face that he strove to read through its set leer swam in the smoke like a devil-mask in a mist. And with an abrupt gesture that confessed helplessness, he began to range the room like a creature in a cage.

"Where is Fennel—Miss Crozier?" he presently demanded, halting. "What have you done with her?"

"Not a hundred miles from here, and bein' treated like a lady. How many times I got to tell you?"

"I must see her."

"Maybe you can after a while. Wait till you quit boozin' over, and then, if you still think you got to see the H'l lady, and ask right pretty—well, maybe we'll let you. And again, maybe we won't."

"But why are you holding her? You've got what you were after, the Habsburg jewels, what leads you to imagine you have more to gain by kidnaping her?"

"Think it over, fella. Didn't you ever hear of anybody bein' held as a hostage?"

"I know a 'bout."

"For the good behavior of all concerned. For her folks, to begin with, so they won't start nothin' to grab this deal with the Rajah of Ladore. For yours, because you've got this case on the skirt, you're liable to be back on us and no noble and all. If it gets worse before it gets better, the same, the gunman slyly added, "as you're a hostage."

"For your old man's good behavior—case he gets bothered and restless, account of not knowin' what's happened to his little one and pulls a fast one—manages, I mean, to break the jam he's in on board that steamer, which is the last thing likely."

"You think so?" Mauris demanded with a lift of lip that cried pride in his paternity. "You don't know him. Suppose he does?"

"He won't get a long way before some kind friend tips him off that his H'l son's standin' right on the spot and due to get bumped off it any minute—it's only two things for him to do, calm down and be nice or make arrangements with a reliable mortician to sweep up the remains."

"You would murder me?"

"In a nice way." Reptilian fumes glinted in the eyes that held

Canal street, principal street of New Orleans, and one of the most famous of all thoroughfares, is also one of the most distinctly paved streets in the world. worked a double steal on Hendrickson at this point with Blackman coming in with the tieing run.

One hit was sufficient to win the game in the last of the sixth. Schmidt drove a clean single to left and Mau was hit by a pitched ball. The Iowa hurler was caught off the bag on a snap throw from Bruhn to Klonoski, but Schmidt advanced to third. Stephens walked and a balk by Hendrickson advanced both runners, Schmidt scoring.

Schulte Makes Great Play

The Gophers came near upsetting the Iowa plans in the first of the ninth when, with two out, Krause crashed a hit to the right center field bank good for three bases. Wagner came in as a pinch hitter for Gentry and with the count at three balls and two strikes, he slammed one back of second which seemed a sure base hit. A miraculous stop and throw by Schultehenrich, however, nipped him at first to end the game.

With the exception of the fourth inning, the Hawkeyes played heads up ball behind Mau, with Stephens in particular sparkling with his frequent beautiful plays at third base

I. C. L. & P. Charges Municipal Plant Leaders With Fraud, False Statements

Company Files Resistance With PWA at Des Moines

Character of Campaign 'Sour Grapes,' Laughs Van der Zee as He Reads Report

The local light issue faced the mercury up to a new heat record yesterday as charges of fraud and false statements were flung at the municipal ownership leaders, Alderman Jacob Van der Zee, Dr. W. F. Bolter, and Prof. E. B. Reuter.

The charges were contained in a supplementary resistance filed by the Iowa City Light and Power company with the PWA at Des Moines recently, a copy of which was received by City Clerk George J. Dohrer yesterday.

"Vitilates Legal Effect"
Signed by Attorneys Dutcher, Walker and Ries, light company attorneys, the resistance alleged that "the character of the campaign not only destroyed the verdict given at the polls as moral support for the establishment of a municipal light plant but vitiated the legal effect of the election."

They also claimed that "the value of the verdict of the people, both legal and moral, depended upon the character of the campaign conducted by those officially and semi-officially promoting the cause of municipal ownership."

"Demonstration Easy"
"Jacob Van der Zee was the leader of the proponents and a member of the city council of Iowa City as an alderman-at-large and in law and in equity and good conscience was under the duty of presenting the subject matter fairly and with proper regard to all the facts and circumstances bearing thereupon; that many representations made by him and by those associated with him in the campaign were wholly false, may be easily demonstrated."

"We propose to briefly review a few of the false and fraudulent misrepresentations of facts made during this campaign by Van der Zee and others associated with him in order that the advisory board may fairly judge of how much weight should be given to the results of this election."

List of Charges
The company's attorneys then list 14 allegedly "false misrepresentations." Summaries of the charges are as follows:

1. In a handbill by E. B. Reuter, an alleged false statement was made concerning the Iowa City Light and Power company's compliance with the spirit of the NRA code; the "import of the statement is to charge the company with a crime and a breach of its agreement with the U. S. government," which charge, it is contended, is neither true nor supported. "Nothing could be better calculated to arouse the passions and prejudices of the people of Iowa City than this charge that the company was cheating its government," says the resistance.

2. In the same handbill it was falsely stated, it is set out, that the company had padded its capital investment and that the company's net income is about 20 per cent.

3. In a handbill entitled "Let There Be Light," contributed by J. Van der Zee, a false and fraudulent statement, says the resistance, was made that the company padded its operating expense.

4. In the same handbill as in 3, the false statement is made as to the ownership of the poles of the company, stating that the telephone company owns half of them. The resistance states that the telephone company uses some 700 or 800 poles of the light company out of some 4,000 owned by it and the company uses some 400 or 500 poles owned by the telephone company.

5. In the same handbill, it is claimed the following false and fraudulent and inflammatory statement is made: "Watch out for more false threats and intimidations. Soon the power company will tell you that it intends to shut off the power unless you vote against a home-owned plant." The company claims that in its original resistance it stated it could remove its poles and wires and dismantle its plant but that the exercise of that right would receive and merit the commendation of all right thinking people.

6. In an advertisement published in the Iowa City Press-Citizen April 7, it is claimed in the resistance the municipal ownership forces appealed to the prejudice of the people in accusing the power trust of spreading the doctrine of fear during the bank crisis in 1931. This was calculated to distract the attention of the voters from the real issue and tempt them to vote their resentments rather than their convictions, it is pointed out in the resistance.

Van der Zee Handbill
7. In the same advertisement, it is claimed that the false statement was made that the money taken by the power trust out of Iowa City was to "swell the hoarded treasures of the Chase National bank."

8. Also in the same advertisement claims the resistance, the false statement was made with reference to the cost of electricity produced by the University of Iowa electric plant.

9. In an advertisement in the Daily Iowan of April 8, the "reckless and false" statement was made by the municipal ownership league that "the company would not lose a cent if it now donated its entire

'Sour Grapes,' Laughs Van der Zee as He Reads Report

"Sour grapes," chuckled Alderman Jacob Van der Zee as he read the light company's supplemental report yesterday.

"I hope that this will hurry a federal trade commission investigation of the whole campaign, and of the expenditures of the power trust. I do not intend to waste my time reading the entire report—the document appears to be more ludicrous than luminous, but even so I hope the federal commission will investigate the conduct of the Iowa City Light and Power company in connection with the recent election campaign in Iowa City," he said.

Purpose of Probe
"It is to be hoped that the investigation will bring out the following facts: 1. The huge sums of money spent by the company and its organized protectors. 2. The tax lies told by them to mislead and terrorize the already heavily burdened tax paying voter. 3. The well-paid organization perfected to defeat municipal ownership and to thwart the purpose of the federal public works administration.

"Federal investigators have paid repeated visits to Iowa City," said the crusading alderman, "and have secured all pre-election material published by both sides so that it was quite unnecessary for the power trust attorneys to send photostatic copies of the releases of the Iowa City Municipal Ownership league."

"Have No Fear"
"The power company need have no fear that the PWA has overlooked any of the details of the operation of itself and its allies leading up to the election that resulted in Iowa City's declaration of independence."

"Since this is true it is unnecessary for Iowa City to file any official reply to the power trust's latest outburst."

In discussing the future of electricity and the control of rates, Alderman Van der Zee pointed out that the company was attempting to smooth things over now by making concessions before the city election next March.

plant to Iowa City and charged it to its "conscience fund," declares the resistance.

10. In a handbill contributed by J. Van der Zee, it is alleged the false statement was made regarding the Chase National bank. The resistance states that the Chase National bank never owned a cent of interest in the local company except through the ownership of 13 per cent of the non-dividend paying common stock of the United Light and Power company, acquired in 1933, which United Light and Power Co. owned all of the stock of the local company. No dividends were ever paid to the Chase National bank on the stock which it thus acquired, it is stated.

11. In an advertisement in the Iowa City Press-Citizen on April 12, it is claimed by the local company that Dr. W. F. Bolter made a false statement regarding rate reductions.

Claim Threats Made
12. In the same advertisement, it is claimed that the false statement was made that "the company's protective association threatens to shut off the lights if the people don't vote for it in this election."

13. In the same advertisement it is claimed that the following statement was made, which the company states is false: "In order to perfect his technique in the propaganda business, this man took personal instructions under Samuel Insull, from whom he learned how to corrupt the schools," the statement referring to a man brought here to aid in publicity for the light company. The resistance states that the gentleman referred to was never in Mr. Insull's employ, never received instructions from him, and so far as is known, did not possess the knowledge of the art of corrupting the schools.

14. The same advertisement makes the false statement, it is claimed, insinuating that the rou-

Burger Funeral To Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral service for Mrs. Charles Burger, 76, who died Wednesday, will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at St. Mary's church.

A sister, Mrs. Fred Burger of Boulder, Colo., will arrive in Iowa City tonight.

The McGovern funeral home is in charge.

The practice of the company is supplying the holding company with cash at the expense of the public.

Conclusion
The conclusion of the supplemental resistance is as follows: "This company asserts that it is still 'adequately and excellently' serving the city of Iowa City and its inhabitants with electrical service, and hopes that it may continue to do so, confident that fair approaches by the city and the company will lead to mutually fair and satisfactory relations and that the confiscation of the property of the company, in which large numbers of people have invested their money, may be thus avoided."

No indication was made Thursday whether or not the city would reply to the supplemental resistance to its claimed, insinuating that the rou-
