The 73rd Congress Roosevelt Relies On Leaders to Carry Out Vast Program

This is the fourth in a series of five daily articles.
By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt called frequently and relied strongly on the leaders of the seventy-third congress in working out his vast legislative program.

A roll call of the men in both senate and house charged with seeing that the administration's program cleared the congressional hurdles is not confined to those delegated to provide leadership.

In the house there was a greater division of responsibility than in the senate. To Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrnes, Democratic floor leader, went the distinction of piloting through the house the most important peace-time legislation in the nation's history.

Bankhead Speeds Passage
Representative Bankhead of Alabama is one. Chairman of the powerful rules committee, it was he who "greased" the way for passage of much of the president's program.

Rayburn of Texas fell heir to the job of guiding through the house two of the most important measures enacted—the stock market control act and the bill setting up the new communications commission.

Wagner of New York, a vice chairman of the NRA labor board and professor at the institute of law at Johns Hopkins university, was mentioned as the most likely member to be assigned to the new agency.

Summers of Texas, against his will but out of loyalty to the administration, reported out of the judiciary committee the crime bills which gave the federal government new authority in the war on gangsters.

Byrnes of South Carolina, serving his first term in the senate but with a record of long and varied experience in the house, was credited generally with being President Roosevelt's spokesman in the senate.

Fletcher of Florida, whose senate career dates from 1909, had general supervision over banking legislation enacted during the session.

Roosevelt May Name New Labor Board Today

Set Up Will Have Power In Disputes

Action Taken Under Authority Of New Bill

(Copyright 1934: By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—A new federal board with emergency powers to take the initial steps in bringing capital and labor together for settling disputes probably will be announced by President Roosevelt tomorrow along with an executive order defining its authority.

Labor advisers to the president went over the new set up today but declined to disclose the details pending their submission to the executive tomorrow after his return from New England.

Act Under New Bill
The action will be taken under the one year labor bill passed in the last days of congress as a substitute for the permanent measure proposed by Senator Wagner (D. N.Y.), chairman of the national labor board now operating within NRA.

Wagner and others believe the new government agency will go far toward solving the labor troubles within the steel industry, the Longshoremen's strike on the Pacific coast and threatened sympathy suspensions in the Great Lakes, the copper miners' dispute at Butte, Mont., and other employer-workers controversies.

Size Not Definite
It was not definite tonight whether the new board under NRA, would be a three or a five-man agency.

At least one member of the NRA labor group was expected to be named on the new board.

Leon C. Marshall, a vice chairman of the NRA labor board and professor at the institute of law at Johns Hopkins university, was mentioned as the most likely member to be assigned to the new agency.

While from Vienna came word that Leopold Bestermann, attorney for Marguerite Susanne Ferrand, believed Miss Tuferson still alive, police combed records of the cleaning shop to verify the customer's identity.

Two years later, in the summer of 1930, she said, he attended a picnic and a dance with the MacMillan family at Edson, told her she had grown to be a "very beautiful woman," and suggested that she come to Edmonton where there was more opportunity than in her native village.

In response to his promise of a government job she came here and

South Dakota Voters Will Decide Fate of Langer in Primary

BISMARCK, N. D., June 25 (AP)—A jury—this one of 240,000 voters—will determine the future of Gov. William Langer for the second time in 10 days Wednesday when the electorate pencils its desires at the state primary.

This verdict of the polls will either ring the death knell of Langer's political life, or will result in an expression of new confidence—his nomination as Republican gubernatorial candidate, despite his conviction about a week ago by a federal district court jury on charges of defrauding the United States government.

Cuban Cabinet Resigns, But Some Return

HAVANA, June 25 (AP)—The entire Cuban cabinet resigned today, but after a few hours of intensive negotiations all but four members were reappointed by President Carlos Mendieta.

The four who stepped out of the president's official family and refused to come back are Joaquin Saenz, who was secretary of the treasury; Carlos Saladrigas, secretary of justice; Emerico Santovenia, secretary of the presidency and Jorge Manach, secretary of public instruction.

Three of the officials have not been replaced and their duties for a time will be performed by other cabinet members. Augustin Acosta was appointed secretary of the presidency.

Cosme De La Torre, secretary of state, said all members of the cabinet handed in their resignations to give President Mendieta a free hand in dealing with critical political and social problems.

DETROIT, June 25 (AP)—With world peace and recovery from the depression already established as major themes, Rotarians from 70 countries this afternoon heard their pledged declaration that Rotary International, "a realm without frontiers," cannot countenance "discrimination within its borders because of race or creed."

Those of the 10,000 delegates who could find place in convention auditorium had heard Mark Sullivan, Washington newspaper man, describe the present conception of government as one of the "clinging vine and the sturdy oak" when President John Nelson, of Montreal, delivered the annual presidential message.

John Langdon-Davies, Author, To Appear Here Twice Today

Will Lead Discussion, Give Lecture On Campus
John Langdon-Davies, British author and traveler, will give a university lecture and lead a round table discussion at the University of Iowa today.

He will lead a discussion in the house chamber of Old Capitol at 4 o'clock this afternoon. His university lecture will be in Macbride auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

The English writer is expected to arrive here at 8 o'clock this morning. He will remain in Iowa City only today. This will be his second appearance here within a year; he gave a university lecture in Macbride auditorium last November.

Langdon-Davies, a young man of 31, has already written and published six books and several dozen articles. He has written on scientific subjects from the layman's point of view.

Born of a line of ancestors which included a grandfather who was an electrical inventor and a father who is a clergyman, the young author has had a varied experience. At St. John's college, Oxford, he gained recognition as a student of modern history.

After his graduation, he was for two years a feature writer on The Christian Science Monitor in the London office, and a contributor to such publications as the New Statesman and the Westminster Gazette. In 1923 he went to Spain to "cover" the military revolution for the Daily News of London.

Has Traveled Widely
He has traveled widely, having made his home in England, Spain, and the United States, and has been known as a lecturer both in Europe and America.

In 1923, he had a "fling" at politics, as a candidate for parliament. In the last five years he has spent most of his time in the United States lecturing.

His books include: "The New Age of Faith," "A Short History of Women," which was a Literary Guild selection, "Man and His Universe," selected by The Scientific Book of the Month club, "Dancing Catalans," and "Man Comes of Age."

He will be in Iowa City only today. This will be his second appearance here within a year; he gave a university lecture in Macbride auditorium last November.

New Orleans Mourns Famous Flyer as Crash Victim Returns

NEW ORLEANS, June 25 (AP)—James R. (Jimmy) Wedell, noted speed flyer, came back in a hearse today to a sorrowing New Orleans, the city to which he so often sped at nearly five miles per minute.

The little town of Patterson, where he was killed yesterday when his plane crashed while he was instructing a student flyer, closed up tight and its citizens silently lined the streets as the flyer's body started on its trip to New Orleans, 100 miles away.

The funeral cortege was headed by Harry P. Williams, service corporation millionaire who backed Wedell in his speed flights and plane manufacture.

Thirty-five motorcycle policemen accompanied the funeral party on the trip through Louisiana's famous Evangeline country where Wedell was known so well. An honor guard met the party at the New Orleans ferry and escorted it into the city.

The casket will lie in state until the body is placed aboard a train for West Columbia, Tex., where Wedell will be interred beside his mother.

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—The end of the fiscal year, a week away, will find the government's expenses exceeding its income by nearly four billion dollars.

Treasury officials made this estimate today on the basis of latest revenue and disbursement figures, which they expect will not be altered materially by the developments of the week.

Today's regular statement of the government's accounts showed a deficit of $2,836,017,319 and the public debt standing at $26,987,966,177, or $4,449,294,717 more than when the fiscal year began.

The new figures were at wide variance with the estimates made by President Roosevelt in transmitting the annual budget message to congress in January.

At that time, wishing to cover all possible contingencies, he forecast a deficit of $7,309,068,211 and a total public debt of $29,847,000,000 for the close of the fiscal year. Emergency outlays have proved much less than he then estimated.

At Iowa City the top temperature today was 97, while Sioux City reported a top of 98.

Recent Victim Gets 2 Notes Asking $6,000

Threaten to Dynamite Home Unless He "Atones"

LOS ANGELES, June 25 (AP)—Two extortion notes threatening to destroy his Beverly Hills home by dynamite unless he paid $6,000 have been received by William F. Gettle, millionaire oil promoter who recently was kidnaped and held for $60,000 ransom, authorities disclosed tonight.

The notes warned Gettle unless the sum was paid "at once" his home would be destroyed and his wife, Fleta, and their four children seriously harmed.

Ask "Atonement"
The $6,000 demanded in the notes was to be paid by Gettle to "atone" for the millionaire's appearance in federal court where he testified against two women of the kidnap gang, both of whom were convicted in the conspiracy to misuse the mails and were sent to a government reformatory.

The notes directed that the money, in small denominations, be left under a designated object in Westlake park. Both notes severely criticized Gettle for testifying against the women and stated the payment of $6,000 "would help make it right."

Three Get Life
The women were Loretta Woody and Mona Galligan, arrested in a roundup of the kidnaping gang that took Gettle from his Arcadia ranch home last May 9 and held him captive five days. Three men, Jimmie Kirk, Ray Williams and Larry Kerrigan, were sent to San Quentin for life as a result of the plot to hold Gettle for $60,000 ransom which never was paid.

Temperatures soared past the 100 degree mark in Iowa again yesterday with widely scattered thunder showers bringing only slight respite from the scorching heat.

The death of one Iowan was directly attributed to the torrid heat wave and several heat prostrations were reported.

Joe Wiley, 58, Newton foundry employe, collapsed and died two hours later in Skiff hospital at Newton. Doctors said his death was caused by a heart attack, induced by heat exhaustion.

The severe heat made itself felt early in Des Moines, with the mercury reaching 99 degrees at 10 a.m., and 95 at noon.

High for the day was 97.2 at 3 p.m., less than one degree below the all-time June 25 heat record of 98 degrees established last year. At 7 p.m., the mercury had receded only two degrees.

Somewhat cooler and partly cloudy weather is forecast for the state tomorrow. However, hope for a sudden end to the heat wave was seen by weather bureau officials. Temperatures are expected to be in the nineties again Wednesday.

653 Jobless As Harriman Mills Close

HOSIERY CONCERN SENDS PROTEST LETTER TO HUGH JOHNSON
HARRIMAN, Tenn., June 25 (AP)—The Harriman Hosiery Mills, whose blue eagle was taken away by the NRA last April for alleged violation of the hosiery code, today closed its plant and threw 653 employes out of work.

At the same time T. Asbury Wright, Jr., attorney for the mills, released a letter written to Administrator Hugh S. Johnson which charged that "we are convinced that through boycotting and every other means at your disposal you have set out to wreck this concern."

"Would Like To Know"
"We would like to know," Wright wrote, "if the blue eagle is the property of the law abiding citizen of the United States, or if it is a plaything to be held over the heads of honorable and decent employers as a cudgel to browbeat and bulldoze them into surrendering their constitutional rights for the benefit of outside agitators whose only purpose is to exploit labor for their own personal gain."

Blue Eagle Taken Away
The blue eagle was taken from the mills on recommendation of the national labor board which charged mill officials with refusing to bargain collectively with its employes. The controversy started last October when about 300 employes went on a strike, claiming the mill refused to re-instate 23 workers for joining the United Textile Workers Union. The case was heard by the national labor board last January.

Young Astor Gets License
NEWPORT, R. I., June 25 (AP)—John Jacob Astor 3rd and Ellen Tuck French slipped quietly into city hall today and obtained their license to marry.

Broadcasts to Carry 10,000 Miles
RAPID CITY, S. D., June 25 (AP)—Radio broadcasts from the gondola of the stratosphere balloon in the National Geographic society-army air corps flight probably can be heard 10,000 miles away, if instruments operate as expected.

Urges Credit Increased
The dean urged that installment credit be increased in times of depression and checked in times of prosperity. Installment credit artificially stimulated prosperity and was an effective factor in the opposite direction when the slump came, he said.

Dean Phillips also pointed out that bank surpluses are a great safeguard in times of emergency.

Heat Causes Iowa Death

Many Prostrations As Mercury Climbs In State

Bankers Hear S.U.I. Dean in Talk At Des Moines

DES MOINES, June 25 (AP)—Dean Chester A. Phillips of the State University of Iowa college of commerce, speaking at the fourteenth annual conference of the officers of the County Bankers association here today, declared that inflation is historically certain.

"We have been witnessing the progress of inflation since March 4, 1933," the dean said, "and it is only history repeating itself. Inflation has been going on for 25 centuries. Business men want it. Debtors want it. We can expect it."

Can Control Inflation
In the main address of the afternoon's program Dean Phillips said that government through the federal reserve system can control inflation if it will.

He declared that many lessons have been learned during the last four or five years and that economists and statisticians were misled into believing the period of the 1920's was one of long growth instead of cyclical expansion. "Prosperity," he said, "is a time of debt accumulation and depression one of debt liquidation."

Urges Credit Increased
The dean urged that installment credit be increased in times of depression and checked in times of prosperity. Installment credit artificially stimulated prosperity and was an effective factor in the opposite direction when the slump came, he said.

British Will Outline Plan Ready to Confer With U.S. on Naval Strength

LONDON, June 25 (AP)—Having stated her claim for a big increase in naval strength, Great Britain is now ready, it was said authoritatively today, to tell representatives of the United States how far she will go in reducing that claim through an international agreement.

Further details of the British position, as well as her heretofore unrevealed stand on limitation, are expected to be outlined when the bilateral discussions of the 1935 naval conference are resumed tomorrow or Wednesday.

The Americans have not deviated from their position as "good listeners," a spokesman said today, and have made no request for amplification of any kind.

Helen Osborn Will Marry Logan Reif This Morning

Graduate, Student To Wed at Baptist Church

In the fern decorated chapel of the Baptist church, Helen Osborn, daughter of Mrs. Mae Osborn of Coralville and student at the university for the last two years, and Logan E. Reif, graduate of the college of commerce this June, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Reif of Kalona, will be wed this morning.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hills of Osborn will officiate together, the Rev. Mr. Hills reading the ceremony, and the Rev. Mrs. Hills saying benediction.

white accessories and carry an arm bouquet of Joanna Hill roses. Miss Anthony will wear green organza, and Miss Miller, peach. White accessories will complete both costumes. Their arm bouquets will be Tallman and Joanna Hill roses, respectively.

Harry Dean, Jr., the bride's cousin, will be dressed in a white Panama suit as he carries in the ring on a small satin pillow.

Mrs. Osborn, Mrs. Reif
Mrs. Osborn and Mrs. Reif, mothers of the bride and bridegroom, will wear long pink lace frocks and shoulder corsages of roses.

The bridegroom and his attendants will all be attired in white flannels and dark coats.

While the wedding guests gather in the chapel, decorated with baskets of ferns and gladioli, and tall candelabra, Mrs. Arthur Smith will present a 15 minute organ recital. She will play the Lohengrin wedding march. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Reif, mother of the bridegroom, will sing "At Dawning."

Wedding Breakfast
Immediately following the ceremony, wedding breakfast will be served to 45 guests on the sunporch at Iowa Union. Centerpieces of blue and pink flowers will decorate two of the three long tables, and the bride's table will have as its center decoration a large, tiered wedding cake topped with figures of a miniature bride and bridegroom. Tall baskets of spring flowers will decorate the sunporch.

After a three weeks' trip to Colorado, the couple will be at home in Kalona, where Mr. Reif will be affiliated with his father in a department store. The bride's going away costume will be of brown and white crepe, with which she will wear a white hat, with gloves and shoes of the same color.

Maid of Honor

Dorothy Osborn will be her sister's maid of honor, and Ruth Anthony and Celia Miller, both of Iowa City, will attend as bridesmaids. William Knoke of Iowa City will be Mr. Reif's best man. John Francis O'Loughlin and Ferdinand Skola, both of Kalona, will be ushers.

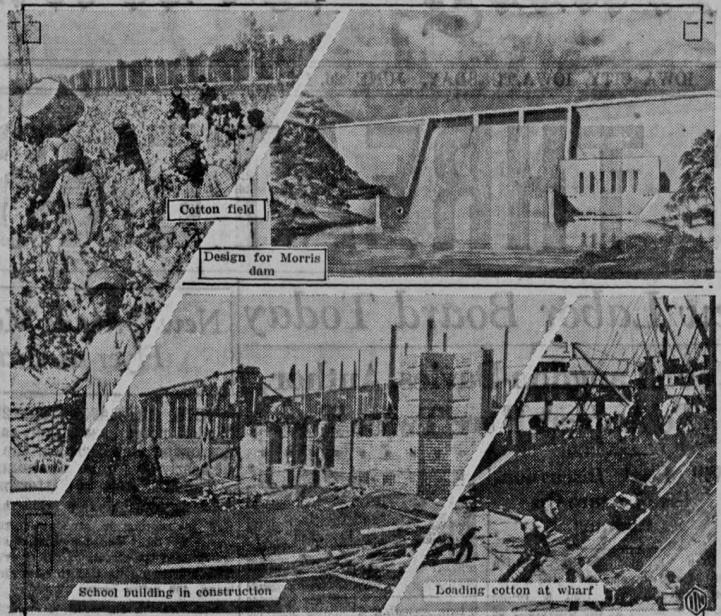

The bride will be given away by her father, Dr. Dean Osborn of Klamath Falls, Ore.

White pear de faille taffeta will fashion the bride's floor length gown with a short train. The high neckline will be trimmed with a rolled-back collar of chiffon organza which will also form small cuffs on the long full sleeves, fitted from the elbow to wrists. From a Dutch style cap of chiffon organza, her net veil will extend to floor length. White openwork sandals will complete her costume. She will carry a bride's bouquet of Briarcliff roses and Bristol fairy babybreath, tied with French lily of the valley ribbon.

Frock of Blue Organza

The maid of honor will be dressed in a floor length frock of blue organza, with which she will wear

South Finds New Hope in Acts of Administration

Due to acts of the federal government—the Bankhead cotton control law, the Tennessee Valley project, the AAA, NRA and federal loans—the south is taking a revived interest in business and industry, and its people are finding their bank savings have increased and working conditions improved. The above layout depicts some of the outstanding results of the New Deal in the south.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (I.N.)—The traditional champions and defenders of states' rights have surrendered, and the stout shades of John Calhoun and Andrew Jackson, who defended the citadel of individualism of the Mason-Dixon line, have departed forever, apparently.

Gone are the days when northern prices rose from six to 10 cents a pound. Congress appropriated millions for road building and thousands of unemployed were able to maintain virtually a higher standard of living than they had before 1929. Federal relief funds bought bacon, butter and other staples, which for some of the poorer folks, were actually delicacies.

Under NRA, after some hesitation by manufacturers, code wages were accepted, though even the federal government realized the difference in living costs between the north and south, and therefore permitted differentials.

Child labor, long a thorn in the side of southern mills, was duly banned by the textile code, and quickly larger school aid appropriations were passed by congress.

Bank savings have increased tremendously over recent years, and generally workers are beginning to profit from code regulated working hours. In many cases the 10-hour day has been shortened to eight, with wages under the codes the highest in years. Article 7a of NRA for collective bargaining has given labor organizations in the south new blood and vigor.

New Life

From the Bankhead cotton control act, recently passed, to the tremendous Tennessee Valley project with its vast, almost utopian planning, stretch a vista of the new deal that has virtually breathed life again into the distressed cotton belt.

For in a trade shocked world, with Japan sweeping all cotton manufacturing before it, to stagger the southland's industries, the solid Democratic belt began to find itself far in the rear. Until the advent of FWA and CWA, with its stimulating salvation, many of the southern states began to approach financial

The TVA Plan

President Roosevelt's greatest aim for the south, of course, is the Tennessee Valley plan, and here $150,000,000 is being spent to bring to hitherto poverty stricken natives, the latest electrical mechanical contrivance. Government-built homes with model gardens and factories nearby where heads of families will be able to earn a decent wage are arising. Here in this gigantic laboratory of the south, Roosevelt, and his brain trusters hope the first experiment in planned living will be successful so that other projects may be pushed in various portions of the country.

For even though Carter Glass, peppy senator from Virginia, denounces the New Deal as socialism and subversive, and "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina bombards Professor Tugwell in a senate committee inquiry, federal concentration of power has won out over southern tradition with quite a lot to spare.

Church Groups Will Abandon Business Meetings This Week

Picnic Luncheons To Replace Routine Of Business

Local church groups will abandon business meetings this week in favor of cooler spots, where they will gather for picnic luncheons. However, several groups will continue their business sessions and sewing, in spite of the heat wave.

Baptist
Group one of the Baptist women's organization will meet at the home of Mrs. L. R. Morford, 129 E. Market street, at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Group two will also meet for a business session tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Nina Brown's home, 439 Clark street.

Methodist
Six divisions of the Methodist Ladies Aid society and the Seger circle will meet for picnics, pot luck luncheons, or special afternoon gatherings tomorrow.

First division will meet at city park at 5:30 p.m. for a business session, followed by a pot luck picnic supper at 6 p.m.

Mrs. E. H. Griffin, 427 avenue, will be hostess to the second division at a pot luck luncheon at 1 p.m., served on the lawn surrounding her home. A short business meeting will follow, after which the afternoon will be spent socially.

Picnic supper will be served members of the third division at 6 p.m. at the city park. Mrs. Ernest Bright heads the committee in charge. Her assistants are Mrs. C. G. Sample, Mrs. L. L. Armstrong, Mrs. R. J. Kidder, Mrs. E. G. Fladek, Mrs. C. A. Beckman, Mrs. W. C. Buckley, Mrs. J. A. Lemons, and Mrs. C. M. Fountain.

Each member will bring her own table service, sandwiches, and a covered dish. In case of rain, the picnic will be in the church parlors.

The fourth division will spend a social afternoon at the Mary O. Coldren home, 602 S. Clark street. Mrs. Clara Rarick and Mrs. Cora Smith will assist in taking charge of the afternoon's diversion.

Mrs. Antoinette Bohach will take charge of the fifth division's pot luck picnic at 1 p.m. at the city park. Each member will furnish her table service, sandwiches, and a covered dish. In case of bad weather, the group will meet for a picnic luncheon in the church parlors.

Division seven will be hostesses at a family picnic at the H. J. Dane farm at 6 p.m. Each group member will bring the table service and sandwiches for her family, and a covered dish. The picnic will be held at the church if it rains.

English Lutheran
Quilts, both modern and old, curries, and Chinese handwork will be displayed at the Martha circle exhibit at 2:30 this afternoon and again at 8:30 tonight. Some of the quilts to be shown are more than 100 years old. New styles in piece and applique quilts will be demonstrated by the modern exhibit. Included in the Chinese display will be articles of handwork brought back from China by Ortha Lane, local missionary to that country for 11 years. Costume dolls will picture the Chinese mode of dress, and paintings will show the life and scenery.

The program, which is being arranged by Mrs. Charles Messner, includes: a piano solo by Luella Meier, "The Little Dutch Mill," a tap dance by Kathleen Smith, Eloise Anclaux, Marjorie Novy, and Amelia Gaten; "Mrs. Olson Entertains," a gossiping school skit by Mrs. Anna Sievers, Mrs. John Moller, Mrs. W. H. Taylor, Mrs. Charles Kriel, Mrs. John Zeller, Mrs. William Groh, and Mrs. Mildred Emerine.

A reading by Wayne Martin; a piano solo by Mildred Tompkins; a solo by Joan Smith; a piano selection by Doris Zimmerli; a reading by Flossie Meier; and a skit enacted by Joan and Kathleen Smith.

Ether circle will meet at 2:30 tomorrow with Mrs. A. H. Hemsted, 615 S. Governor street.

Laura Wheeler will lead the Union prayer meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Walter Goodman home, 1912 H street.

Former Iowa Students Will Wed in South

Mae Whittington Will Marry Dr. Damerow On Saturday

The marriage of Mae Whittington, former University of Iowa student, and Dr. Carl E. Damerow, a 1932 graduate of the University of Iowa college of dentistry, will be in Jacksonville, Fla., Saturday at 4 p.m.

The Rev. Marvin A. Franklin of the Riverside Methodist church will officiate. Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Cleveland of Jacksonville will attend the bridal couple.

Miss Whittington will be attired in a white silk crepe suit, with which she will wear a white crepe picture hat and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage will be orange blossoms. She attended Penn college at Okaloosa, before enrolling at the University of Iowa. She has been employed in the administrative office of the university libraries.

Dr. Damerow, after his graduation in 1932, was associated with the oral surgery department of University hospital. In November, 1933, he opened an office for the general practice of dentistry and oral surgery at Vero Beach, Fla.

Miss Whittington left last night for Chicago, where she will visit a day before going on to Florida. She was honored with a miscellaneous shower last Friday evening by Helen Connor, 609 E. Court. Two tables of bridge were played.

Mrs. William Jencks, 224 N. Johnson street, gave a party in her honor Saturday evening. Guests were Miss Whittington, Alta Tolliver, Arlet Olson, Elizabeth Thomas, Margaret Wardell, Delvena Anderson, and Clara Hinton.

Miss Anderson and her sisters, Louise and Vera, entertained Miss Whittington at tea last evening at their home, 521 S. Lucas street.

After a short trip, the couple will be at home in Vero Beach.

CCC Group Aids Farmers

Will Help in Battle With Chinch Bugs In County

Forty-five CCC workers from the Solon camp have been enlisted in the anti-chinch bug army, and almost 40,000 gallons of coal tar emulsion have been given to Johnson county farmers to aid them in the fight against this invader.

The CCC boys are helping farmers in the construction and repair of chinch bug barriers. Working three to a farm, the CCC will concentrate its efforts in Scott, Lincoln and Fremont townships, which are believed to be hardest hit by the bugs.

When the battle began several weeks ago there were about 20,000 gallons of oil available to farmers of the county. The oil is a creosote-like refuse from gas plants.

New sources were found, after this oil was used, and, according to records in the farm bureau office, almost 40,000 gallons of the oil have been donated to Johnson county farmers.

On land where the existing crop has been destroyed by the chinch bugs, farmers have planted soybeans as a forage crop. An original allotment of 250 bushels was sold before the supply had actually arrived.

A second order of 125 bushels was secured and has been sold almost as rapidly as was the first supply.

George F. Kay—
Adopted Son

DEAN GEORGE F. KAY'S resignation of the positions of state geologist and head of the geology department Saturday ends an imposing record of 23 years in both the administrative posts.

For years Dean Kay has been handling the jobs of three men—as a teacher of geology actively engaged and as head of the department; as state geologist engaged in active field work; and as dean of one of the largest liberal arts colleges in the United States.

That he has achieved such a record of success becomes doubly imposing when one examines the lifetime ambition and effort which lies behind all this.

From a humble beginning as one of seven children on a Canadian farm, the Iowa dean went out to earn an education. The way was difficult—the route included three years of teaching in an obscure country school at a salary of about $400 a year.

He was 26 years old before he reached the first milestone—his bachelor's degree. But recognition was not long in coming to him. Within seven years after he was awarded his first degree, he was a full professor in the University of Iowa.

He adopted Iowa, even as Iowa adopted him. He found here "the richest spot in the world" to make a study of geologic history, through the mute evidences of glaciation.

In recent years he has amazed his friends at the amount and depth of the works which he published. His detailed interpretations of the glacial epochs in America have earned the admiration of scientists throughout the world, and the national geologists group saw fit to place his name in the "starred" list—the names which have made geologic history in the nation.

And with all this, he has yet managed to build up the college of liberal arts, most complex administrative unit on the campus, with its 26 schools and departments. In spite of his many duties, those students who have come in contact with him know that the problems of each young man or woman are important to him.

Retirement will not mean that Dean Kay will give up his science. His researches, which have already proved so abundantly valuable, will go on.

Langdon-Davies— And His Varied Moods

JOHN LANGDON-DAVIES, young British author who will speak here today, comes to the campus well fortified with recommendations from audiences and lecture bureaus, from his own varied record, and from his aphoristic writings.

Writer, newspaper reporter, historian, scientist, lecturer—Langdon-Davies draws upon all of these to present a lecture program as varied as his many vocations.

With that background it is only to be expected that the young Britisher should have something of value to say—and he has. At least, he has when he forgets conventions.

Ever since Charles Dickens came to the United States for his first profitable lecture tour, it has become the accepted convention for British authors to attack every American institution.

Unfortunately the superstition that Americans find delight in such attacks seems to have turned out nothing more than a superstition. It seems that somewhere Americans have gotten the idea that everything is not perfect even in the overseas haven of English authors and lecturers.

Those who have heard Langdon-Davies in several of his lectures can attest to the fact that when he deviates from convention he makes a very palatable address.

So he may well be forgiven if he becomes "unconventional" on the lecture platform. The old myth about America's delight in being kicked seems to have been exploded somewhere between Charles Dickens and G. K. Chesterton.

What Others Think

What—No Split Infinitives?

(From The Christian Science Monitor)
Trends in college students' political views have consumed a great deal of newspaper space during the last year or two. Letters, articles and "view-with-alarm" editorials have appeared from time to time quoting statistics to prove that too many undergraduates are displaying more or less "pinkish" tendencies if not actually "reddish" revolutionary leanings. But apparently all these apprehensions have been needless.

At Princeton the other day a member of the faculty made an announcement of so startling a character that if there had existed among the students the slightest revolutionary tendencies they certainly would have burst forth. Nothing less than a compulsory course in English for freshmen was decreed and reasons were given which many regard as striking at the heart of freshmen liberties. From now on, reads the drastic ukase, dangling participles, split infinitives and other evidences of rugged individualism common to undergraduates are to be abolished!

But in spite of the unprecedented character of this mandate there was no uprising, no midnight riding across the campus, no pealing of bells and no singing of the Internationale. The boys took it without a murmur. And yet how is a college student under stress of emotion going to really express . . . Oh, oh, there we go!

Under the new ruling all freshmen will be required to undergo the special English examination on entering the college. Those who flunk must settle down to an eight-week course before they may be admitted to the junior year. And, as a sort of five-year penalty, no academic credit will be given for this new English course. Rumors are already going the rounds that several newly-hatched graduates from "prep" schools are asking if all this is in keeping with the New Deal and it is understood that many of them who have had their eyes on Princeton have decided to cut out outdoor life this summer and get busy on infinitives.

The Daily Iowan took occasion the other day to add its applause to a general commendation of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for his order designed to clear his department of politics.

It was urged further that this order should not be considered an end in itself, but should be emulated by the president in a general executive order to apply to all sections of the executive branch of government.

Special emphasis was given to the situation in the post office department, where the postmaster-general himself is the most conspicuous and most flagrant violator of the principle upon which Secretary Morgenthau's order was based.

Those who profess to have hard, "practical" notions about such things, and who pride themselves audibly for their practicality, object that such reforms are too visionary and insist that discreet corruption is essential to the operation of political parties.

These columns have consistently contended that there can be no substitute, in politics or anywhere else, for honesty and integrity. It has been said over and over again that a politician with the courage to be strictly honest and to act, speak and vote at all times in accordance with his own honest convictions would go further than any so-called "practical politics" could take him.

The public appreciates honesty in its officials, and will invariably reward it. This is a fact that has been consistently overlooked by the "practical" politicians.

It was suggested the other day that an administration which would make Secretary Morgenthau's order apply to the rest of the government would win the gratitude of the American people, and would not lose in the transaction.

Going one step further, there is another possibility for reform in the American party system which deserves consideration and which, if accomplished, would bring everlasting credit to its sponsors.

It is the custom for political parties to depend for financial support upon individual contributions from persons who expect to benefit from victory. Though this system is accepted as a matter of course, it stands at the bottom of many of the ills of which we complain.

In the practical operation of party politics, the large contributors to campaign funds have a virtual mortgage against the party and are in a position to dictate to a certain extent the party's policies in office. This is the great evil of the American party system.

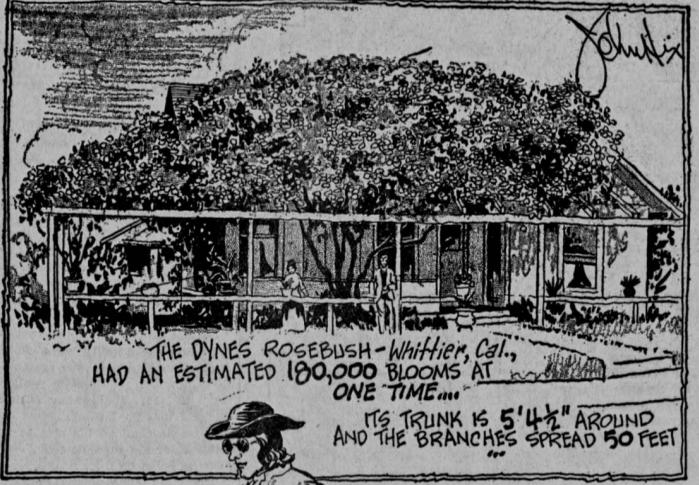

It would be far better for campaign expenses to be paid out of taxes and for the parties to be answerable, in fact as well as in principle, only to the voters who put them in power.

Certain difficulties stand in the way of the honest operation of such a system, but safeguards could be built around it to insure against scoundgery on the part of congressional majorities appropriating the money.

Certainly there should be no excuse for the present system of individual contributions. The public pays anyway. It would prefer to know how much it is paying, and for whom.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD—Always a nimble wit, Jim McGuinness pulled a classic during the luncheon table. A group of M.G.M. writers were discussing their most difficult assignments. McGuinness listened thoughtfully but said nothing. Finally, they turned to him. Crushing out his cigar, Jim replied:

"My toughest piece of work was in 'Tarzan and His Mate,' writing in Johnny Weissmuller's grunts. I didn't know how to spell them."

Friends of the Sultan of Johore have been in a stew over his mysterious instructions to wire him the address of a film actress whom he knew only as Del Monte. After canvassing practically the whole colony, they discovered she is none other than Gail Patrick. Gail met the Indian potentate and his wife in Del Monte and spent a pleasant day with them.

They wanted to send her a present, but had forgotten her name.

The sultan was lavish in his gifts during his stay here. To Harry Woods, film heavy whom he once entertained in the Orient, he gave a pearl stickpin surrounded by 20 diamonds and followed it up with his own wrist watch, bearing the potentate's royal crest.

The Irvin Cobbs are going about this business of making pictures with great seriousness. Mrs. Cobb spends the day at the Fox Westwood studio watching them film her daughter's novel, "She Was a Lady." Irvin flies away to the company's Western avenue plant to follow the progress of his Judge Priest stories, now being made into a Will Rogers vehicle.

It's supposed to be a secret, but Fox already has secured another Cobb story for the cowboy comedian. What with Cobb's acting career at Roach and with his writings now eagerly sought after, don't be surprised if the rotund author changes his present residence to Hollywood. One more indication is that Elisabeth Cobb, known to her intimates as Buff, is shortly leaving New York to join her parents in the film colony.

Gary Cooper will be kidded no more about the flaming red tie which he indignantly denied was bought for him by Sandra Shaw. The lanky star has been entertaining his youthful niece and nephew, children of his brother Arthur, of Montana. Gary bought the youngsters a show puppy "Charlie Chan."

The other day the red tie was left in Gary's dressing room over the arm of a chair. Charlie Chan also was left there. When the star returned, only the dog and a few raveled red shreds remained.

What big box office star was ready to pay $10,000 for the contract of a colored fighter the other evening and went down to get a final glimpse of how good he was? And was everybody's face red when a Mexican boxer gave the batter the hiding of his life?

Films to Be Shown Today

Oxidation, Reduction To Feature Sound Film

"Oxidation and reduction" will be the subject of a sound film to be shown this afternoon at 4:10 in room E 105, East hall. Lee Cochran of the visual instruction department of the extension division, announced yesterday.

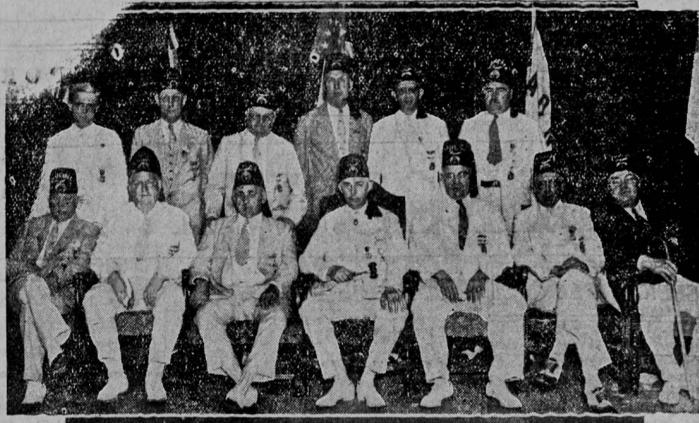

In the film are shown not only everyday examples of oxidation but also the burning of phosphorus and the rusting of iron under experimental conditions, and the decomposition of mercury rust to discover the component of air responsible for oxidation.

Reduction will be presented in the operation of the blast furnace, magnesium burning in dry ice, and thermite welding.

A silent film on "Abraham Lincoln" will also be shown during the demonstration, which is one of a series of demonstrations of visual instruction materials throughout the session.

The first reel of the film on Lincoln deals with his early life, his education, and his political rise, while the second reel is concerned with Lincoln's career as a statesman. The film is a cutting from the silent film of a few years ago in which George Billings played the title role.

Even Hollywood, Reno Would Gasp At Roman Nuptials

Hollywood or even Reno would gasp with envy and amazement if competing against the orgy of marriages and divorces found recorded in Roman history, an account of which is given in a paper written by Prof. Franklin H. Potter of the classical languages department. The article, "Political alliance by marriage," appeared in the June issue of the Classical Journal. The marriages were manifestations of the scramble for power among the leaders at that time, according to Professor Potter.

Lillian E. Spalla To Teach Foreigners

Lillian E. Spalla, a graduate of the university in 1926, will have charge of English classes for foreigners in the College of the City of New York this summer. Under the direction of Miss Spalla, beginning, intermediate, and advanced courses in English will be given. Miss Spalla has been a teacher of English at the college for several years.

Don Lewis to Give Second of Lecture Series This Evening

Don Lewis, Eastman fellow in the psychology of music, will give the second of the series of lectures in the psychology of music at 7 o'clock this evening in chemistry auditorium. Mr. Lewis will give "A demonstration of tone quality with the cathode ray oscillograph." By means of the oscillograph it is possible to give a visual picture of certain sound phenomena and thus to show the relationship between the sound wave physically and what is heard.

Mr. Lewis will demonstrate Lisajous figures resulting from two frequencies in perpendicular planes, consonance and beating tones, difference tones, and a great number of complex sounds. He will also indicate the process of synthesis of sound by artificial means and analysis of ordinary sounds, both sung vowels and instrumental tones of various types.

Arnold Pyle, Local Artist, Sells Painting To Alexander Brook

"Train Moving," an oil painting by Arnold Pyle, one of the artists working with Prof. Grant Wood on mural projects at the university, has been purchased by Alexander Brook, one of America's foremost figure painters.

The painting which depicts a freight train in motion hung in the Fall exhibition of Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia, while Mr. Brook was on the jury.

Mr. Pyle lives in Cedar Rapids and has painted train subjects many years. His father is a railroad man and Mr. Pyle has gained a knowledge of railroading which makes his subjects more convincing.

Prof. Pearce Talks On Acids in Third Chemistry Lecture

Prof. James N. Pearce of the chemistry department gave the third of a series of lectures in chemistry auditorium last night.

His address, "Acids and bases," dealt with recent definitions of the terms in contrast with definitions used and taught only a few years ago.

"It is necessary that students be taught, from beginning high school to college chemistry courses, the acid, bases, and salts followed by the ion theory," said Professor Pearce.

Professor Pearce illustrated his lecture by the use of tables, blackboard, and by mixing various solutions.

Rites for Mrs. Sarah Cooley At Elgin Tomorrow

Funeral service for Sarah N. Cooley, 83, who died Sunday morning at the home of her son, William J. Cooley, 319 Iowa avenue, will be at the Methodist church at Elgin tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Cooley was born at Elgin June 3, 1851. She had been living with her son in Iowa City.

She is survived by two sons, William J. Cooley of Iowa City, and Dr. C. C. Cooley of Chicago, Ill.

WSUI Feature Now Presented by KSO

The Walker family, a dramatic skit which was written and presented by students of the University of Iowa over WSUI every Monday evening at 7:15 during the second semester of the last school year, is now a regular feature of station KSO in Des Moines.

SEEN from Old Capitol By TOM YOSELLOFF

Prof. John E. Briggs of the political science department has taken this economy business seriously—or so it would seem. Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, wanted Professor Briggs to broadcast his course in American political ideas on the radio during the second term of the summer session. However, it seems that Professor Briggs was in Washington, D. C., and Professor Mahan needed his approval immediately.

So the obvious solution was the telegraph, and Professor Mahan wired the question. Yesterday he received Professor Briggs' answer, giving his approval in no uncertain terms: "Bruce E. Mahan, Extension division, Iowa City, Iowa. Alright sure OK go ahead yes Briggs"

For which this department has only one suggestion. It seems a pity that Professor Briggs could not have thought of three more words meaning "yes." Then he could have shown that he is really interested in the economy business of getting his money's worth...

Echoes of Edgar Allen Poe: One sweet young thing who boasts of a college education obtained right here in this cornfield university has been spending her days trying to figure out the connection between Edgar Allen Poe and the Foucault pendulum in physics building. It seems somebody told her the physics set-up is called "The pit and the pendulum." It really happened...

It would appear that well-doers have a thankless task. Now take the case of the university staff member, for example, who gave a bit of advice to some youngsters yesterday. The children were having a merry time dashing about in the water from a hose on East hall campus. The professor, passing by, decided that such conduct was unseemly, and stopped to speak to the children.

He undoubtedly made it clear that their action was offensive to him, for they hesitated in their play, looking at him with frightened awe. However, as I pointed out, the way of the reformer is difficult. No sooner had the professor turned away and moved out of hearing than the children poured fourth upon the pure Iowa City air a string of oaths and imprecations surprising in persons of their tender age.

Dr. W. B. Runyon, Iowa Alumnus, Dies Saturday Morning

Dr. William B. Runyon, 47, a graduate of the University of Iowa college of medicine, died at his home in Sioux City Saturday morning, according to word received here yesterday.

Dr. Runyon, who had been living at Tucson, Ariz., until quite recently, was ill only a short time. A native of Corning, Dr. Runyon graduated from the college of medicine in the class of 1909. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity and Phi Beta Pi medical fraternity.

For several years he was a member of the staff at Oakdale sanitarium near Iowa City.

Mrs. Louis Waldbauer, Children Go to Canada

Mrs. Louis Waldbauer and her children, Hugh, Jocelyn and Isabelle have left for Montreal and Metis Beach, Quebec, Can., where they will spend the summer. Professor Waldbauer will join them at the end of the first term of the summer session.

Visitor Recalls University Campus Thirty Years Ago

The days when the press room of The Daily Iowan was the university women's gymnasium were recalled yesterday by Wayne Hemphill, chemistry teacher in Asbury Park high school, Asbury Park, N. J., as he stopped in Iowa City after an absence of nearly 30 years.

Mr. Hemphill, a graduate of the College of Worcester, Ohio, came to Iowa City in 1904 as secretary of the Y.M.C.A. The present journalism building was then called the Close Hall because it had been built with funds provided primarily by Helen S. Close. The building was owned by the Christian association.

"At that time," said Mr. Hemphill, "the University had no gymnasium and what is now your pressroom was used as the Y.M.C.A. gym, but, in 1904, the university rented it to use as a gym for girls." During Mr. Hemphill's three years at the University, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. conducted the university employment and room service bureaus. It was thus that Mr. Hemphill was placed on the university payroll.

As he looked out the window of the journalism building across the main campus, Mr. Hemphill spoke of the changes which have been made. "There were only 2,300 students here then and no buildings at all across the river. It was during my time that the old geology building was moved from the site now occupied by Macbride hall to where it now stands.

ABOUT SPORTS

Capable Coaches . . . Olympic Sport Figures . . . Babe Ruth Gets No. 11 . . . Movie Camera and Stop-Watches.

BY JACK GURWELL

ON LOOKING over the line-up of coaches on the faculty of the Drake university coaching school, scheduled for the latter part of August, we find 16 men, all leaders in Iowa college athletic circles. All are capable instructors and some are national sports figures. One of the commendable objects of the school is that the entire faculty will be composed of Iowa coaches.

OUTSTANDING figures include "Pitch" Johnson, Drake track coach, Coach George T. Bresnahan, University of Iowa track mentor, Dick Barker, Cornell wrestling instructor, Evan O. "Bill" Williams, Drake basketball coach, and Dr. M. D. Cramer, recognized as one of the most capable trainers in America, manager of the Health Farm in Des Moines, and trainer of Drake athletes.

OTHERS ARE outstanding but these coaches are men whose athletes have soared to national and international fame. Dick Barker, Cornell's wrestling coach, is recognized as one of the best in the country. He has produced some of the nation's finest grapplers at the Iowa school and was coach of the Swedish Olympic wrestling team in 1932.

"PITCH" Johnson, Drake track coach, was an Olympic star and won several national titles. Robert Simpson, Iowa State coach, still holds Missouri Valley conference marks in both hurdle races. Bresnahan has turned out several internationally known track and field stars at Iowa, including the late George Saling, Charley Brookins, and others.

IOWA'S colleges are manned by a competent group of athletic instructors. Their athletic products have shone all over the country. In the case of Bresnahan, his record as coach of quartermilers and relay teams gave him the job of assisting in recent years with the selection and training of United States Olympic track teams.

BABE RUTH finally smacked another home run, his eleventh of the season, Sunday. The bases were loaded and the blow helped to end the Yankee cause in defeating the White Sox 5 to 0. We can remember when the saying "Babe Ruth got another homer" was spoken with awe and wonderment as to when he would ever cease. Now when he clouts one for the circuit fans say, "well, the old Babe still has the knack in his system."

ALL OF WHICH means nothing when it comes to choosing players for the National-American All-Star game scheduled for July 6. In the poll for team positions, the Babe sports such an overwhelming margin for the right field position that one wonders just what Babe Ruth has on the ball to be so popular. Ruth's homer Sunday came after 21 successive hitless trips to the plate. He's rejuvenating, maybe.

TRUST California to have the movie camera on hand to record the National Intercollegiate track and field meet. The movies, shown after the meet was over, revealed that George Fisher of Louisiana State was third in the 120 yard high hurdles, not first, with the victory going to Sam Klopstock of Stanford. Other place winners in five events were changed about.

WITHIN recent years the movie camera has come into considerable use, sometimes to the consternation of judges and officials in everything from whipper to horse racing. "The pictures can't lie" is the claim made, and this is true enough. If at every big track meet a movie camera was on hand to record the events, especially the short dash and hurdle races, the constant inflexion as to who finished in what position would be eliminated.

AS TO THE timing device, that cannot be much more correct than stop-watches in the hands of experienced timers. It is no more necessary than a separate stop-watch held on the runners and the mechanism is subject to the same disorders as the hand watches. If the camera breaks or the speed slow a bit the whole thing can be thrown off. The camera timing device at Los Angeles, however, found only the 220 yard low hurdle time of :27.7 wrong. This race was run out of a chute and the timers were said to be unable to see the flash of the gun. The camera caught the winner, Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State, in :23.16, not in :22.7 seconds and the record.

Others May Run Faster But Brookins' Low Hurdle Record Still Stands

Three men have run faster than Charles Brookins' 10 year old world's record for the 220-yard low hurdles, yet the former University of Iowa star still holds the official mark.

That peculiar situation was recalled when Glen Hardin of Louisiana State last Saturday was first credited with :22.7 in the National Collegiate meet only to have his time revised to :23.1 by the photographic timing device.

Brookins' record of :23 still stands because of various combinations of circumstances. For instance, Dick Rockaway of Ohio State ran :22.8 in 1929, but used the starting blocks which are not approved by the International Athletic federation.

Collegiate Net Action Starts

Stars Gather in Title Assaults; Tiddall Paces Field

PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP)—Led by a seeded contingent of eight American and two Canadian stars, the field in the national intercollegiate tennis championships whittled itself down to 32 players from its original 100 in an all-day session of net action today.

The ranking list, headed by Champion Jack Tiddall, of the University of California at Los Angeles, had little difficulty in pacing the field into the third round of the 50th anniversary tournament at Merion Cricket club, in suburban Haverford.

Little Opposition
Of those at the head of the draw, only Bill Reese, of Georgia Tech, ranked fifth in the American list, and the Canadian Davis cup player, Laird Watt, of McGill, second in the foreign ratings, encountered any stubborn opposition, each dropping a set to second-round opponents.

Reese, after a first-round bye, conquered Edward Mansfield, of Yale, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. Watt, also drawing a first-round bye, had to show plenty of net ability to down Leo Brady, Texas star, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

Tiddall, in defeating two opponents, was somewhat erratic, but took things easy to eliminate C. A. Hembolt, of Harvard, 7-5, 6-4, and Stanley Weitz, Michigan State, 6-3, 6-3.

Second-ranked Gene Mako, of Southern California, chief threat to Tiddall's continued supremacy at the head of the collegiate net heap, was at the top of his game in his second round match—he drew a first round bye—and crushed Ellwood Snyder, of F. and M., in straight love sets.

By KERMIT BUNTROCK
Falstaff Beer turned on the power in one inning last night and kept pace with the leaders in the local diamond league by trimming Swaner's 7 to 2. In the other tilt under the lights, Fry Bros. advanced to a .500 standing with a 7 to 5 decision over the Elks, in a game that saw all of the scores by both outfits chalked up in one inning.

For four innings it was a pitcher's battle, with Wagner for Fry Bros. allowing one hit and H. Ahliff for the Elks allowing three. But in the fifth frame things broke loose. Elks, coming up first, scored five runs by way of an error, a walk, and hits by Beals, Chelf, Sullivan, and Fischer. Sullivan's hit was a lusty two-base smash that scored three runs.

Seven Run Rally
With the game apparently on the panty shelf, Ahliff weakened in his half of the fifth and before the Fry Bros. flurry could be subdued, a total of seven runs clattered across the plate. Boyles started the attack with a single, Moffitt, who was the fielding star of the game with six put outs and four assists, advanced Boyles with another single. Jones went down, Chelf to Metzger, but Cerny hit safely, scoring Boyles and Moffitt.

Fry walked and he and Cerny came in on successive singles by Harris and V. Shimon. This set the stage for J. Shimon's long home-run into left center that scored Harris and V. Shimon ahead of him. Wagner was out, Fink to Metzger and Boyles grounded out to Sullivan at third to end the inning.

Although the fifth was the only inning that saw any scoring, Ahliff pitched himself out of a bad hole in the fourth, when with the bases loaded and only one down he forced J. Shimon to pop out and then fanned Wagner.

Bunched Hits Win
Six hits bunched in the fourth inning that scored five runs by the margin of victory for the Falstaff Beer team over Swaner's. Swaner's scored first when H. Soucek walked to T. Fay for a walk, advanced to third on brother Jaro's double and came in while Ebert was throwing out Ed. Sulek at first. Falstaff's knotted the count in their half of the first when Ebert survived on an error, advanced on a fielder's choice, and came in on Blackman's hit.

The winners counted again in the last of the third when Ebert singled, advanced to third on two errors, and came in after the catch of R. Fay's long fly. The five runs in the fourth were manufactured on hits by I. Belger, Ebert, Drizhal, R. Fay and Blackman.

Uprising
Leading 7 to 1, the Falstaffs were threatened with a Swaner's uprising in the seventh, but put it down after one run had scored. White walked to start the rally after Moore had been thrown out at first by Pitcher Fay. H. Soucek singled, and White scored as Jaro Soucek was out as he attempted to steal second on the third strike.

T. Fay, on the mound for the Falstaffs turned in a fine hurling performance as he limited the slugger Swaner's to five hits. White for the losers, allowed 10. The fielding part of the game was performed by H. Soucek in the first inning when he made a one-handed catch of Drizhal's long drive as he topped over backwards.

White Leads Intercollegiate Golfers After National Title

Solem, Williams To Boys' Camps In North Woods
North woods summer camps for boys will be headquarters during the next two months of Ossie Solem and Rollie Williams, University of Iowa coaches.

Coach Solem, who next fall begins his third year as head coach of Iowa football, will leave Friday for Camp Owanka near Annamdale, Minn. He will return to Iowa City about Sept. 1 to prepare for the opening of football practice Sept. 15.

As in past years, Coach Williams will retreat to his boys' camp near Woodruff, Wis. In the fall he will serve as one of Solem's assistants and between December and March will coach his sixth Hawkeye basketball team.

American Net Players Face English Foes

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 25 (AP)—Six Americans, including all five members of the Davis cup squad, remained in the men's singles after the first day's competitions for the all-England tennis championships but the list may be cut in half tomorrow because of increasingly severe competition.

The United States contingent survived by far the stiffest portion of today's battle, featuring the triumph of Sidney B. Wood, Jr., blond New York stylist, over the exponent of the two-fisted backhand, Vivian McGrath of Australia, by scores of 10-8, 6-4, 6-4. Wood trailed 1-4 in the first set on games and 1-3 in the third but displayed the stroking resources to meet each emergency, outmaneuvering the Australian.

Frank Shields of New York, No. 1 in the American ranking, overpowered Dr. Daniel Penn, the former German Davis cup star, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, while George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago and Lester Stofen of Los Angeles, the U. S. doubles titleholders, each withered unexpectedly strong opposition.

Athletics Fall On Detroit For 13-11 Victory

Foxx Hits 19th, 20th Home Runs; Tiger Rally Fails
PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP)—Knocking Tom Bridges out of the box and continuing the attack of three other pitchers, the Athletics battered Detroit into submission 13 to 11 today.

The Mackmen belted out 19 hits, including a home run by Eric McNair and two from the bat of Jimmy Foxx.

Homer Number 20
The latter's second swat for the circuit, coming with two on base in the eighth inning, wound up a four-run rally that decided the game. The two blows put Foxx's string of homers for the season at 20.

The Tigers piled up a 6 to 2 lead in the first four innings only to lose it in the fifth on a five run rally by the A's. Luke Hamlin had succeeded Bridges by this time and in turn was lifted for a pinch hitter, Vic Frasier next took the mound and was clubbed for singles by Cramer and Johnson.

Rally Fails
Detroit came back in the ninth with a run, tallied when Cascarella, third Mack pitcher, walked two with one out and was slapped for a single by Pete Fox. This gave Mickey Cochrane and Goose Goslin an opportunity to salvage the game, but both popped to the outfield.

Foxx's first homer came in the last of the seventh with none on base. Altogether it was a rough afternoon the Athletics gave their old Mackman and pal, Cochrane. Not only did they give his pennant strikers a beating after the Tigers had already counted the game as won, but doing it as the Yanks were winning dropped them back into second place.

Whitehill Coasts
WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Three St. Louis pitchers were sent to the showers today as Washington scored a 6-4 triumph over the Browns at Griffith stadium.

Earl Whitehill went the full distance for the Senators and was lapped for 10 hits. A home run by Cliff, St. Louis third baseman, was a feature of the contest.

Ralph Kress played first for Washington in place of Joe Kuhel who is in the hospital with a broken ankle. Kress went hitless.

Manager Hornsby appeared today for the first time in the Browns' outfield. The Rajah went to the rightfield post in an effort to strengthen the team's batting. He successfully handled one fielding chance and got one hit.

Earlier in the season Hornsby spoke of playing third base, but with Cliff going strong he has remained on the bench except to appear infrequently as a pinchhitter.

Boston Wins 6-3 Decision

Collins Clan Stages Five Run Rally In Fifth
BOSTON, June 25 (AP)—The Red Sox took a 6 to 3 decision from the Cleveland Indians today to displace them once again from third place.

Taking kindly to the offerings of Tom "Lefty" Welland, their former teammate, the Collins clan put over a five-run rally in the fifth although four of these runs were unearned due to one of Hale's two errors at second base.

Cleveland drew first blood in the third on Willie Kamm's walk, an infield out and Rice's single to left center. The Sox tied the count in the next frame on Cissell's single, passes to Werber and Morgan and Roy Johnson's long fly.

The Indians made their second run in the sixth when Rice walked and Knickerbocker and Trosky singled. They counted their last run in the eighth on singles by Rice and Averil and Trosky's long fly.

Yanks Beat Sox
NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Johnny Broaca, former Yale hurler, struck out five times today against the Chicago White Sox but it didn't matter for the Yankees loosened an 18-hit assault behind him and he coasted home with his second victory of the season 13 to 2.

His five whiffings, however, got him a place in the record book alongside Lefty Grove for the most strikeouts in a nine inning American league game.

With Babe Ruth resting his aging legs on the bench, Lou Gehrig, Myril Hoag, the Babe's substitute, and Earl Coombs swung into action with home runs to aid the mounting Yankee total. It was Lou's 19th of the season.

Hubbell Snaps Cardinal Jinx With 10-7 Win

Defeat Drops St. Louis Into Third Place Behind Cubs
ST. LOUIS, June 25 (AP)—Carl Hubbell finally conquered the Cardinal jinx which has been pursuing him this year and registered his first pitching victory against two defeats over the Red Birds today, staggering through to a 10-7 victory after a seven run outburst by his mates in the second inning. It was his 11th victory of the year against four setbacks.

The Giants, led by Mel Ott with two singles, fell on Wild Bill Hallahan and in Lindsey for seven runs in the second frame and Hubbell needed all of them as Jack Rothrock hit a home run to score two ahead of him in the seventh and some inept fielding by Ott, Hughie Critz and George Watkins gave the Cardinals two more in the eighth.

Home Run for Jackson
Travis Jackson bounced a homer into the left field bleachers in the ninth to give Carl a three run lead and he then dismissed the Cardinals in order. In two previous starts against them Hubbell lost 3 to 2 and 9 to 5.

A dust and rain storm almost stopped the game in the last half of the fifth and brought the odd circumstance of Hubbell pitching a ball with no one at the plate. The Cardinals, trailing by eight runs, were trying to delay the game until the rain could stop it short of a contest. When Pepper Martin failed to come up for his turn at bat Umpire Barr ordered Carl to start throwing them in. He did but the delivery was low and wide. Martin then came up and bounded out.

Big Giant Second
Ott opened the big Giant second by singling to center and it was followed by Jackson's triple, which got away from Fullis, singles by Gus Mancuso and Hubbell, a double by Joe Moore, an error, Manager Terry's double and another single by Ott. Jackson ended the rally by forcing Ott, Leo Durocher to Frankie Frisch.

The defeat dropped the Cardinals into third place, four percentage points behind the idle Chicago Cubs.

Pirates Rise
PITTSBURGH, June 25 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, again bidding for a place in the National league sun, continued their heavy hitting behind Bill Swift's seven hit hurling today to defeat Philadelphia for the second time 7 to 1.

George Davis got a single, Ethán Allen followed with a double and J. Moore then lifted a high fly in the first inning to score Davis but Swift was invincible after that with men on bases, giving no more than one hit in any succeeding inning. It was his fifth victory of the season against four defeats.

Gus Suhr and Manager Pie Traynor led the Pirate attack, each driving in two runs, and Paul Waner contributed his fifth homer of the year in the 8th to end the scoring.

Pittsburgh . . . 022 20 0 1—7 14 0

Native Pro Leads Field For British Open Crown; Smith, Sarazen, Kirkwood in Van

Cotton, Former Ryder Cup Player, Cards Record 66

By GAYLE TALBOT (Associated Press Sports Writer) SANDWICH, Eng., June 25 (AP)—The four invaders from the United States today yielded the shot-making honors in the first 18 holes to the 36-hole qualifying round for the British open golf championship to tell Henry Cotton, a native pro, who burned up the royal St. George's course with a record-breaking 66 to run up a four stroke lead on the huge field of 300. The 72-hole championship proper begins Wednesday over St. George's.

Nine shots behind, Gene Sarazen, winner in 1932 and the bookmakers' favorite, Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist, and MacDonald Smith, the transplanted Scot now living in Nashville, Tenn., turned in 76s which observers calculated would put them safely under the wire for the championship rounds.

76 for Denny Shute Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, who won the title last year after a play-off with Craig Wood, and Robert Sweney, a New Yorker attending Oxford, posted 76s, which also figures to set them by the first objective.

The first day's scores carded over the royal Cinque Ports course in nearby Deal and at St. George's indicated that a pair of 77s would suffice. No less than 108 players out of the record qualifying field of more than 300 shot 77 or better.

Cotton, the tall former Ryder cup player, was out in 31 and home in 35 to shatter the previous record of 69 held jointly by a pair of amateurs, Douglas Grant, a former Californian, now living in London, and Eric Smith of Great Britain.

Cotton's great record gave the Briton a four stroke bulge on his closest pursuers—D. H. R. Martin, a native amateur, and C. W. Thomas, a British pro, who posted 70s—and stamped him as England's chief hope to recapture the open crown which has been won by Americans for the last decade.

Six were tied together with 71s, Angel La Torre of Madrid, five times former Spanish open ruler, S. B. Roberts, a British amateur, Cecil Denny, Aubrey Boomer, John Bruce, former North of England titleholder, and Bert Gadd.

Syd Easterbrook, Bristol, and Harry Padgham of Bromley, who with Cotton are looked upon by British experts as having the best chance of breaking up America's monopoly on the title, and Percy Allis had 74s.

Sarazen, Kirkwood and Smith, who are generally regarded as an even bet against the field, made no particular efforts to knock the spots off the two qualifying courses.

Londos Takes Wrestling Title In Hard Match

Tosses Browning After Grunt and Groan Exhibition

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer) RINGSIDE, Madison Square Garden Bowl, New York, June 25 (AP)—Jimmy Londos, idol of the Greeks, came back to the heavyweight wrestling throne amid some of the finest growling, gurgling and cackling in years as he downed brawny Jim Browning, generally recognized as world champion, in one hour, 10 minutes and 10 seconds tonight before a crowd of 20,000.

The world series of wrestling, a match that has been in the making four years, wasn't the financial success expected as it lured but $40,000 into Jack Curley's treasury, but it was an artistic success from start to finish.

Virtue It opened with the usual grimaces and strutting, pulling of faces, and cuffs, and it ended as all blood tingling matches should end—in the old reliable triumph of virtue against all but insurmountable odds.

Just before the finish Browning, 233 1-2 pounds of brawny farmer boy from Verona, Mo., was submitting the handsome Greek veteran to all the mayhem that even the wrestling ring will stand. He caught Londos, weighing only 195 1-2 pounds and standing five feet eight inches, a little fellow by comparison, in a torturous leg split, then a body scissors and finally trapped him in the hold that won the title here from Strangler Ed Lewis two years ago—the celebrated airplane whipl.

A painful beat rolled steadily from Londos' lips and he mixed this with a cackle that was like the proud squawking of a hen who has just accomplished something of importance. For no apparent reason, Browning, sweat pouring down his features, groaned in unison with Londos.

By noon the rain had ceased, although the clouds were still low and threatening. Diane suddenly decided she simply must go out. She managed to draw her hostess aside long enough to explain that she was going for a ride.

"You're crazy, as usual," this friend of her girlhood assured her, but she would probably be the Ridge Road not impassable if you can manage to get that "Go ahead. It's all right with me."

Donning waterproof and fishing tights, the artist stole away to the age and, before any of the more tiresome spirits could offer to take her, was safely away in the duster which was hers to use whenever she needed a car. Well on the way she was with a feeling of adventure. The dank mists ed in about her. She was isolated from living things in a world of mist. The ghostly woods were haunted by weird gray shapes that appeared and changed and faded as she passed. More than she felt that strange things were hidden in the vast, silent thicket of that forest, and in the places of those hills.

The Haskel house loomed dark and forbidding, with no sign of life. She stopped and called on Ann Haskel. The mountain woman's face would certainly be refreshing. But Ann had not invited to call, and to assume an invitation from such a woman was so easy. Probably, too, the inevitable Nance Jordan would be at the door to tell her that Ann was not at home. She had even been received by Jeff.

At the store, where Wilderness crossed the Ridge Highway, she decided, in a spirit of perverseness, to disregard the advice of her hostess. Instead of turning into the comparatively dry graded way and following along the top of the ridge, she continued over the ridge and down the rattletrap coach.

There was no mark of the backwoods upon this traveler who seemed to be wondering if he had pretended not to hear. The sky grew lighter, the gray mists thinned, the clouds broke. Once, for a brief moment, a spot of sunshine appeared. Diane exulted. This was better, immeasurably better, than being cooped up indoors with jazz and all that went with it. She smiled and her head high and breathed deeply the pungent wet-woods air.

The tiny rivulet at the foot of the ridge hill was today a fair-sized creek of brown muddy water. While she was still some distance away on the hill above, Diane heard it tumbling and roaring boisterously down the hollow as if feeling itself of unusual importance. But the fording place was wide, with a hard bottom, and the swift-running water was scarcely huddled.

Between the Pine Knob store and Wilderness Station there are five or six such streams. Ordinarily they are shallow trickles of bright water, with scarcely volume enough to wet more than the tires of a car. It came to Diane's mind, as she crossed the first one, that today they would all be swollen by rain and that some of her feet might even be impassable. But the uncertainty of how far she could go merely added to the interest of the adventure. At each creek she told herself that the next would surely force her to turn back, while each successful crossing enticed her to go on.

She had crossed four of the creeks and was more than halfway to the station when she decided that as she would be leaving home in a few more days, she might as well go on now to the station and telegraph her butler, Wilson, when to expect her. Also she could ask about trains and make Pullman reservations.

The very thought of making definite arrangements for her departure pleased her. She would stop in her native city only long enough to see her fellow-artists. She had, on the whole, enjoyed her visit to the Ozarks. She did not feel that the time had been wasted. But she promised herself that when next she went anywhere to paint, it would not be with a party of vacationists.

The last of the creeks to be crossed before reaching Wilderness Station was the largest of them all and it gave Diane a moment's doubt. The water was well up to the running-board. If it should rain all that water coming, the creeks between here and the Lodge ain't going down, they're going up.

Diane rushed the station man into his tiny office, where she quickly wrote her telegram and made the necessary reservations for her return to civilization. She was hurrying toward her car when she nearly ran down the stranger who was gazing with the air of a lost soul at the forest-clad mountains and the sky. He had listened to the conversation between the artist and the railroad man without offering a word. Nor had it occurred to the two who were discussing Diane's situation that this traveler was in the same predicament.

"Oh, I forgot all about you," the artist exclaimed as the young man apologized for being in her way. "I'm going right past Pine Knob store. Be glad to give you a lift if you care to risk it. You heard what the man said."

"I would be everlastingly grateful to you," he returned, his face lighting up with relief. "I was wondering how the deuce I was to manage."

"Better not chance it, miss," advised the station man, who had followed Diane out for another look at the sky. "You can both of you camp here with me for the night. I'm hitch-hiking and can't offer you such comforts as you are used to, but you are welcome to what I have."

He looked at Diane. "You'd be perfectly safe, miss. Better take a fool's advice."

For a moment Diane hesitated while the stranger stood silently waiting.

The girl spoke with quiet decision. "Thank you," she said to the agent, "but I'm going back."

They turned inquiringly toward the stranger. He smiled and without a word proceeded to stow his bags in the back of the roadster.

frantically, he picked Browning up for the last time and hurled him down again with a crotch hold and body slam and flattened his numb shoulders with a double arm hold. Referee George Bothner, the veteran, peered in there for a sign of light, found none, and reverently lifted Londos' arm, living symbol once more of virtue triumphant.

Tonight's thrilling climax brought to a close the wrestling war that has been going on here for five years and finally cut the number of the title claimers to one—Londos.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems" The famous rose bush in the above drawing was set out 30 years ago by Mrs. King, the present owner's mother. The property now belongs to Mrs. Catherine Dynes of Whittier, Cal. In the 30 years of its life it has grown into a huge tree of roses, and has yielded over a million rosebuds.

At one time on the bush there were an estimated 130,000 blooms, this number being based on counting a part of the blooms and arriving at the total by comparative measurement. The bush virtually covers the Dynes residence.

Its trunk is 64 1-2 inches around at the base, or about 20 inches in diameter; and one large branch is 22 inches in circumference. The branches spread out approximately 50 feet.

The power of the human mind to son-go beyond actual experience is strikingly demonstrated in the life of Thomas Blacklock, Scottish poet of the eighteenth century. Although Blacklock was stricken blind when he was six months old, and never in his life was able to see landscapes and flowers, he became a poet of note—and his works include many descriptive passages which rank high in the field of verse.

He was able to put into his own words the description of scenes which he never saw, and do it better than most people with normal sight. Blacklock also mastered several languages, including Greek, Latin, Italian, and French.

C. of C. Begins Campaign To Acquaint Iowa City With Advantages of Housing Bill

Local Group Names 9 To Committee Of Directors

To modernize and repair homes, to increase employment, and to loosen credit is the threefold object of a campaign started yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce to awaken home owners in Iowa City to the benefits of the newly passed national housing law.

A committee of nine Iowa City men to direct the campaign was announced by Charles A. Beckman, president, and D. W. Crum, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

The committee will meet in the office of the Chamber of Commerce soon to discuss different aspects of the housing bill and lay plans for the campaign.

The committee feels that there are many home owners in Iowa City who are desiring to paint, repair, or modernize their homes but who lack the ready cash. It is hoped that under the housing law these persons can go to banks or building and loan corporations and borrow at a reasonable rate of interest, with the federal government offering security.

600 Work Here Normally
It has been estimated that there are normally 600 men employed in the building trades in Iowa City, and it is hoped that a large percentage of these men may again be employed by Iowa City home owners.

According to the bill, a single home owner may borrow as much as $16,000 and the committee expects several hundred thousand dollars to come to Iowa City for the projects.

At present the committee of nine will be in complete charge of the campaign, but in the future several committees will be added to aid in the distribution of literature explaining the campaign and to help persons seeking loans.

The Chamber of Commerce will also work out easy payment plans whereby the loans may be repaid in small installments.

The campaign being started by the chamber has been under consideration for several months, but was postponed until the housing bill became a law.

Members of the committee are William L. Davis, chairman, Prof. C. M. Updegraff, Jay J. McNamara, Albert Sidwell, L. G. Frutig, Robert E. Neff, V. W. Nall, the Rev. L. A. Owen, and W. H. Cobb.

Junior High Children To Present Play

Production to Feature Friday 'Open House' At Playground

Children of the junior high school age group will present a play, directed by the university speech department, when the supervised playground at Longfellow school has "open house" Friday.

According to Luella Reckmeyer, supervisor, parents of children using the playground have been invited to the community night affair.

Work on the play and horseshoe practice started yesterday. After horseshoe tossers have become more skillful, several tournaments will start, Miss Reckmeyer said. Tetherball is the most popular of the unorganized activities, she also reported.

Routine Activities

Routine activities for this week will take place at the following hours, daily:
1:30-2 p.m.—Free play.

U. S. Post Office Department Issues Wisconsin Stamp

Because a canoe was landed on the banks of Green Bay, Wis., in 1634, the post office department will issue a new stamp.

The new stamp is issued in commemoration of the arrival of Jean Nicolet, a French explorer, the first white man in the territory which is now the state of Wisconsin.

The stamp, which will be purple, will carry a reproduction of a painting of the landing of the explorer. A banner at the top will read, "1634—Wisconsin Tercentenary—1934." The first stamps go on sale at Green Bay on July 7 and will be available at other post offices after July 9.

Postmaster C. A. Bowman indicated. Collectors may secure cancellations of the first day if their covers, not over 10 in number, are in the Green Bay post office by July 5.

Fordyce Named Head Of Sea Scouts Regatta

Scout Executive Glen G. Fordyce has been selected as the chief yeoman for the Sea Scouts regatta July 2 to 6 at Burlington. The other officers of the regatta will be: Raymond F. Low of Omaha, Neb., commanding officer; Fred G. Davis of Lincoln, Neb., general administrative officer; and Earl Moore of Lincoln, chief engineer.

Farm Office Starts Check Distribution

Distribution of 995 checks amounting to $190,878.25 as first payment on the early pay or rider corn-hog contracts to Johnson county farmers will begin this morning at 8 o'clock at the farm bureau office in the post office building, County Agent S. Lysie Duncan said yesterday.

995 Checks Amounting To $190,878.25 Go To Farmers

According to the schedule drawn up by members of the local corn-hog committee, farmers from Monroe, Jefferson, Big Grove, and Cedar townships will get checks today.

Because some of the checks in the early payment of $209,000 have been held up for further clarification of signatures, the committee will notify all farmers who are to call at the office.

Today's schedule of payment is as follows: 8 a.m., Monroe; 11 a.m., Jefferson; 1 p.m., Big Grove; and 2 p.m., Cedar.

Unique Finland That Paid U. S.

Finland that astounded Americans by paying promptly its share when most of the world defaulted, has been doing startling things for decades. It maintained its national life for centuries while a subject nation. After it declared its independence from Russia in 1917 and set up a republic, Finland relatively a poor land, has built up a flourishing national wealth through export of vast quantities of paper pulp and lumber. Like the United States, Finland experienced a disastrous time with national prohibition until wiser counsel terminated the experiment two years ago.

By VICTOR BLOMBERG
HELSINGFORS, (I.N.)—People scratched their heads in bewilderment when little Finland stepped up to Uncle Sam's treasury in June and counted $166,538 over the receiving counter, the only debtor nation to "come across" out of $477,843,644 in payments due the United States.

What is so unique about Finland, "The Land of a Thousand Lakes," with its meager three and a half million people, its bleakness and ruggedness that causes its sturdy citizens to carry out financial obligations, which more powerful nations deem impossible?

It is because Suomi (Finland's official name) has had for centuries a tradition of vigorous individualism and national pride, so intense and lasting that the Finnish people survived centuries of Swedish and czarist Russian rule.

Pioneer in Loboralism
The land before the Swedish conquest in 1157, was inhabited solely by pure Finnish stock who migrated from the Volga river basin in Russia. After 1809, Finland was ceded to czarist Russia, but retained its semi-independence, with a separate constitution and laws. With the Bolshevik revolution in 1917, Finland declared its freedom and after a bloody war between White and Red armies, established a republic.

In a world where mass education is praised to the skies, lake-dotted Finland with its vast reaches of forest lands and isolated villages, leads the list of literate peoples throughout the world. Pioneer in social legislation and liberalism, Finland while it was still a duchy of autocratic Russia gave women voting rights in 1863. Long before the idea of co-educational study was even dreamed of in most of the great nations, progressive Finland was permitting its women to attend all schools, enter professions, and in 1926, to become government cabinet ministers.

One of the few sources of resentment however arose over the language question. During Swedish control, its language and Finnish were the legal tongues, but under the short period of "Russification," Finland was compelled to subordinate everything to the Russian language. Thus when Finland achieved its independence, a vigorous movement for virtual "Finnification" was set up, which created much unrest among the Finnish Swedes who hitherto had formed most of the ruling and wealthier classes.

Wealth From Forests
Most of the land's wealth comes from its gigantic forests that cover over half its 149,100 square miles. Paper pulp, and lumber are shipped world-wide. In the south, the smaller sections produce grainstuffs, but Finland subsists on its manufacturing and its natural resources.

Like most of the Scandinavian countries, the cooperative movement is quite important, dominating most commercial enterprises, for almost 60 per cent of Finns live on farms. There are virtually no slums in the larger cities for cooperative housing, as in Sweden, sees to workers' comfort.

During the last years of the depression, Finland has experienced a veritable boom, with products and exports increasing in great bounds. The rest of the world quickly passes over Sibelius, its great national composer and Eilii Saarinen, brilliant architect, to recall Finland's dramatic battle against alcohol that began with national prohibition in 1919, and paralleled America's bootlegging, rum running, and crime increase. Two years ago, the people

County Political Conventions Scheduled for Here Saturday

G.O.P., Demo Groups Meet to Select Delegates

Saturday will be a gala day for politicians in Iowa City, when the delegates of the major parties convene for county conventions.

Republican delegates numbering 174 will meet in the American Legion Community building and 204 Democrats will gather in the Johnson county court house.

Delegates to the two conventions were elected at the primary convention June 4 and have been certified by County Auditor Ed Sulek.

To Name Delegates
The Republican convention, with Kenneth M. Dunlop, chairman of the Johnson county central committee, presiding, will select 23 delegates to the Republican state convention at Des Moines July 18, 29 delegates to the state judicial convention at Marshalltown July 25, and 12 delegates to the district judicial convention in Iowa City, July 12.

Other business to come before the convention will be the selection of members for judicial and congressional central committees.

W. R. Hart, county chairman of the Democratic central committee will preside at the convention in the court house.

The county Democratic delegates will select 23 delegates to the state convention at Des Moines July 26, 23 delegates to the state judicial convention at Des Moines Aug. 2, and 15 delegates to the district judicial convention in Iowa City July 19.

To Choose Nominees
The district judicial conventions of the two parties are for the purpose of selecting nominees for the office of judge of the eighth district. The term of District Judge Harold D. Evans, Republican, expires this year. The eighth judicial district includes Johnson and Iowa counties.

G.O.P. Delegates
