Hitler's Aide Denies Attempt To Get Power

BERLIN, June 29 (AP)—In the midst of seething rumors as to the future of Nazism in Germany, assurances came today from the conservatives under Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen that they want to reform the government, not to seize it.

Von Papen Says Only Reform of Nazis Is Goal

At the same time one German newspaper, probably influenced by Von Papen's advocacy of a free press, threw away the Nazi muzzle for the first time since Hitler came to power.

Tugwell Warns on Propaganda Asks Understanding Of Program in Talk To Farmers

BROOKINGS, S. Dak., June 29 (AP)—Sounding a warning to farmers against being fooled by clever propaganda in joining a campaign to destroy "this broad program of economic equality for agriculture," Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, in an address in this farming community today asked for a "sympathetic understanding of this program."

Light Company Head Gives in to Pave Way for Truce

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 29 (AP)—A cloud of terrorism passed from Milwaukee tonight as the four-day strike of union workers of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company ended.

Service Resumes

Street car service which has been at a standstill since yesterday afternoon when the first daring violence occurred was to resume at midnight.

Will Make Selection

The national labor board mediators will select company employees for a committee to act in behalf of all employees in collective bargaining with the company.

Withdrawal of bulletin No. 5 of the regulations of the Employees Mutual Benefit association, the company union, which bulletin discharged from membership in the association any employee joining an outside labor union.

The 14 employees discharged for union activities be reinstated.

One of the leading labor spokesmen, William Green, president of the American Federation of labor, was confident that peace was assured, holding that the board apparently had the power to carry out a peace plan which he recently proposed to the steel workers.

Coming here from Des Moines where he spoke before Iowa bankers Wednesday, Professor Tutwell after his address departed for Fargo, N. Dak.

The assistant secretary will attend an informal gathering of business men and members of farmers organizations in the North Dakota city Saturday night before continuing on his tour of agricultural sections. Professor Tutwell charged speculators are opposing the government's agricultural policy through selfish interests.

"They raise their voice against the plan," he said, "not in interest of the consumers, but for any other social motive, but because some of the uncertainties of farming upon which speculators thrive might be eliminated."

Olson Moves to Oust Langer, Sentenced to Federal Prison

Term of 18 Months Given Dakota Head

Expect Supreme Court To Rule Early On Jurisdiction

FARGO, N. D., June 29 (AP)—Sentenced to serve 18 months in a federal penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000 Gov. William Langer tonight became the target of a move to oust him from office, as Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson took steps to bring the matter before the state supreme court.

Expect Early Ruling

Only a few hours after Langer and four co-defendants were sentenced here by Federal Judge Andrew Miller for conspiracy to defraud the United States government, Olson's attorney had arranged to offer a petition for leave to begin the ouster proceedings. The supreme court is expected to rule swiftly on whether it will assume jurisdiction.

Others Sentenced

Others sentenced with Langer because federal relief employees were solicited for money toward maintenance of "The Leader," an administration newspaper, were Oscar Chaput, business manager of The Leader; Frank Vogel, state highway commissioner; R. A. Kinzer, Sr., and Harold McDonald, youthful solicitor for the newspaper. Kinzer is former executive secretary of the federal emergency relief committee for North Dakota.

McDonald Hired Worker

McDonald, because, the court said, he was merely a hired worker, was given only four months in the county jail at Bismarck. The other three each were sentenced to 18 months in the penitentiary and fined $3,000.

Jury Indicts 13 Executives

DETROIT, June 29 (AP)—Racing with the statute of limitations, the federal grand jury which is investigating the circumstances that preceded Michigan's banking crash indicted 13 bank executives today, including former heads of Detroit's huge bank holding companies. The Detroit Bankers company, and the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., the holding companies now are in receivership.

Charges Bankers With False Reports In Investigation

The charges are: Making, causing to be made, or conspiring to make false reports. Some of those allegedly false reports date back to June, 1931. Within two days, those reports would have been outdated by the statute of limitations as the basis of prosecution.

Go Into Seclusion

At the appointed hour the young couple, their six attendants and the minister stepped into a boat and slid around the corner into the "Lost River." Inside the concession, where the sun was not so bright, they shed everything and went through the formal proceedings in a friendly, informal way.

HARBOR GRACE, Nfld., June 29 (AP)—The red, white and blue plane of the Brooklyn "soda pop" makers—Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz—sped over the north Atlantic tonight on its second venturesome flight to Europe.

F.R. Appoints J. Kennedy to Head Stock Exchange Group

Also Names Mathews, Landis, Healey As Members

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Joseph Kennedy, New York financier, it was learned tonight from authoritative sources here, has been named chairman of the federal commission to regulate the stock exchanges.

Three other members of the commission, it was understood, have also been named by President Roosevelt: James M. Landis and George C. Mathews, members of the federal trade commission, and Robert Healey, counsel for the trade commission.

The fifth choice, according to persons in New York close to the administration, lay between Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate committee that inquired into stock exchange practices, and Frank Shaughnessy, president of the San Francisco stock exchange.

In well-informed New York quarters, it was said Pecora was never under consideration by the president for the chairmanship, although he signified his willingness two days ago to head the commission for one year.

Kennedy—a baseball player in college days at Harvard who turned down a big league contract to enter the banking business—was never a candidate for a place on the commission, friends said, but was drafted by the White House.

When he was 30, Kennedy was president of the Columbia Trust company of Boston.

Lamoni Sees Mercury Hit New Record

111 Mark Reached As Rains Bring Only Slight Relief

By The Associated Press

Rains brought scattered relief over Iowa today while the temperature soared to 111 degrees at Lamona at 3:30 p.m. to set a new all time Iowa June high.

Storms and high winds were reported in the eastern portion of the state causing in some places several hundred dollars worth of damage.

Three Day Seize

A three day seige of blistering heat with the mercury well over the scorching and cool temperatures mingled here yesterday, bringing both suffering and relief to Iowa citizens.

Climbing to a high point of 105 degrees shortly after noon, the heat brought a climax to four days of unseasonably hot weather. Clouds drifted over the city, however, and after a slight shower the mercury slid down to a more comfortable level.

Local residents, tired of seeing their thermometers register more than 100 degrees, hoped the "jinx" was at last broken.

A five degree drop from a maximum of 98 to 93 degrees was recorded in Des Moines in the space of one hour this afternoon. The western part of the state received more relief from the intense heat than the eastern part as Sioux City recorded a high reading of only 89 degrees during the day.

Light Showers

Light showers earlier in the day at Waterloo failed to halt the rise of the mercury and a high reading of 104 degrees was recorded. Weather conditions were reported as mostly cloudy there.

Relief which was more or less general over the state failed to reach the southeastern portion as all previous June records in Keosauqua, Ia., were broken when the mercury went to a new high of 107 early in the afternoon. A previous high at that point was 105 degrees set in 1911.

Garden Of Eden--

Wedding in the Raw-- But the Minister Is Modest.

CHICAGO, June 29 (AP)—Fetchingly gowned in plain epidermis, but plenty of it, a nudist bride and a nudist bridegroom said their vows today before a not quite converted clergyman in a world's fair Garden of Eden.

The unblushing bride wore a suit given her on her birthday 23 years ago, but she hid a going-away outfit behind a stuffed brontosaurus in the bushes.

The bridegroom wore a smile. Attendant Frocked in Tan

The bridesmaid had a swell coat of tan.

The minister alone dissented. Being of the cloth, he wrapped himself in a neat little goatskin, but the rest of the wedding party of nine had checked over in the synthetic underbrush of a world's fair concession that purports to look like the world did long ago, before the fast life got the dinosaurs down.

Really Married

The newlyweds are Charles Mueller, 24, of Milwaukee and Jean May, a year younger, from Amarillo, Tex., via nudist camps of Indiana and Wisconsin. It was revealed after the ceremony that they had bought licenses at the county building yesterday as Gertrude May and Samuel Wallace, Jr., and had immediately been pronounced man and wife in civil proceedings at the marriage court. At that time they were dressed even as you and I.

But this second ritual was "the religious one," as the young husband explained.

Best Man Lacks Pockets

The best man, who was as nervous about the ring as if he had a dozen pockets to confuse him, and the other attendants were fans of the nudist colonies of Roselawn, Ind., and Mirror Lake, Wis., where the happy couple spend their unfettered hours. The clergyman described himself as Bishop H. Perry Ward of the Liberal church and introduced the ceremony as the first orthodox nudist marriage in America.

Press Men All Eyes

The bride was given away by—well, by the cameramen and reporters, if you want to put it that way. Thousand-watt lamps bathed the little group while the newsmen ground away yards of film.

The reporters, by the way, were allowed to wear full dress; that is, they were fully dressed in what reporters should wear at 10:30 a.m. They were the only witnesses.

Go Into Seclusion

At the appointed hour the young couple, their six attendants and the minister stepped into a boat and slid around the corner into the "Lost River." Inside the concession, where the sun was not so bright, they shed everything and went through the formal proceedings in a friendly, informal way.

Plane Speeds Over Atlantic

HARBOR GRACE, Nfld., June 29 (AP)—The red, white and blue plane of the Brooklyn "soda pop" makers—Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz—sped over the north Atlantic tonight on its second venturesome flight to Europe.

The big monoplane, which blazed a trail to Copenhagen three summers ago, headed into clear weather as the flying brothers pointed it toward Warsaw, Poland, at 3:58 a.m. eastern standard time.

"That takeoff would do credit to an old timer," commented Holger Hoifris as he watched the ship whiz eastward into the dawn.

Although the day brought no reports from the ship, associates were not worried. The plane has no wireless, and it was not expected the flyers would be heard from until they pass over the British Isles.

Hoifris, who flew here yesterday with the brothers from New York, supervised the loading of 610 gallons of gasoline during the night.

The chubby brothers slept at St. John's. Shortly before dawn they were awakened and brought to the Harbor Grace airport.

"We hope to make it in 30 hours," said Benjamin Adamowicz as he hopped aboard.

Save Indian Sign Language Code

Chief White Horse in a sign language gesture.

General Scott presenting the peace pipe to an old Indian friend.

The recent death of Major General Hugh L. Scott, famed Indian fighter, disturbed scientists in believing that the last white man to understand Indian sign language had passed. The white-haired soldier, long a friend of the redmen, compiled a dictionary of symbols in the sign method of communications employed for centuries between the tribes on the continent. With the sign language, fast falling into disuse, Smithsonian ethnologists are seeking to retain knowledge of it by sending an aged Blackfoot Indian, Richard Sanderville, to Washington, D. C., to complete Scott's labors.

WASHINGTON (I.L.N.)—When Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, doughty Indian fighter died several weeks ago, scientists feared that a great study in American Indian lore never was to be completed.

For Mole-I-Gupp, "the man who talks with his hands," as the white-haired army officer was known among his red friends, was said to have been the only white man to master the Indian sign language, that most obscure system of communication among the tribes on the continent.

Made Language Hobby From 1877, when Scott, who had been adopted by over a score of admiring tribes, embarked on his military career on the great plain borders, he made a special hobby and study of the sign language. He used it afterwards with such success that enemy tribes often refused to fight when the "man who talks with his hands" appeared before their council circles to plead with them to refrain from going on the warpath.

At an early date General Scott decided that the Sioux sign language was the most used, since that tribe was considered the most powerful. Gradually he learned that each tribe had its personal variation, and so he began to tabulate all the systems. In the main, the one sign method was a universal language from coast to coast, handed down from one generation to the next. It consisted of symbols made by moving the hands and fingers, though having no resemblance to the present deaf-and-dumb method of speech.

His compilation of cards, at death numbered more than 2,000, each containing a word and its equivalent sign language symbol. But many of these cards are now scattered in various places.

PARIS (AP)—Feathered capes, silver satin with a cape of royal blue coq feathers.

Jewels in Sets Jewels in sets instead of single pieces added glitter to a number of costumes. At one of the most brilliant balls the Marquise de Paris accented her gown of white matinee crepe with a double necklace and belt buckle of gleaming yellow topazes, while a smart American finished her black tulle frock with a brooch and bracelets of emeralds.

Flowers—brilliant red poppies, mauve wistaria and deep rose peonies—added a colorful touch to the waistline of both light and dark gowns.

"Glitter" in Vogue More than one fashionable Parisian has appeared at the various soirees in costumes lightened by a touch of glitter. The Duchesse de La Rochefoucauld wore at a dinner a gown of blue and silver lame topped by a pale blue tulle cape, and the Princesse May de Faucigny Lucigne attended a soiree wearing a gown of pale green crinkled crepe splashed with gold paillettes.

Slippers have often been chosen in a color contrasting with that of the gown, when the frock's hue is not too brilliant or pronounced.

One smart Parisian has been wearing turquoise blue slippers with a white satin gown. Others have preferred to match their slippers to their frocks.

Bride-to-Be Of Astor Not In Rehearsal

Sees Others Perform; Young Scion Quarrels With Mrs. French

NEWPORT, R. I., June 29 (AP)—A substitute bride tripped to the altar of Trinity Episcopal church with John Jacob Astor, III in an informal rehearsal late today of the ceremony tomorrow at which he will marry Ellen Tuck French but not before young Astor and his future mother-in-law had their first public disagreement.

Clears Yard
Mrs. Livingston French, mother of Tucky French, Astor's 18 year old fiancée, arrived at the historic old church to find the yard crowded with newspapermen and photographers, there by Astor's invitation. She got no time in telling Police Chief P. L. Furey to clear the yard and close the church to the reporters.

"Astor Gave Word"
A spokesman explained it thus: "Astor gave his word at a conference that the press would be admitted. In the face of Mrs. French's disinclination he is keeping his promise."

More delay ensued and then it developed that Miss French would be impersonated at the rehearsal by her friend, Lesley Bogert, who, pinning a length of netting to her sports dress, tripped down the aisle three times with Astor, a detached expression on her face. Astor wore a gray suit and a serious expression.

Watches
From a pew the real bride-to-be, slim figure in a pale green knitted dress and a white linen sports hat, looked on, several times making suggestions but never entering the bridal procession.

Adviser Sees No Basis For Rise in Wages

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—The NRA's economic adviser reported today he saw no basis for a wage rise in the cotton textile scales set by the code.

Leon Henderson, the adviser, said that "under existing conditions there is no factual or statistical basis for any general increase in cotton textile code wage rates."

Henderson's report was the second of five to be made under the recent settlement of the threatened textile strike. His first report ruled a ninety-hour machine week would be necessary to meet normal consumption by an industry now operating under NRA orders at 75 per cent of its code machine-hours.

Today Henderson said that while there was no basis for a wage increase, "it does not follow at all that no wage adjustments would be in order."

Doctors Win Quarrel Over Possession Of Aged Turk's Body

ISTANBUL, June 29 (AP)—Relatives and doctors quarreled today over the aged body of Zaro Agha, and the doctors won after appealing to the premier of Turkey.

The body of the man who claimed to have been born in 1774 will be subject to an autopsy—an expert will look at the brain, the heart and the lungs and try to figure out how old Agha really was.

If he can't, or if he decides that the aged Turk really lived 160 years ago, he will record for medical science the effects of 10 decades of life on the vital parts of the human organism.

The disposal of the body was not decided, however, without a gesture on the part of the ubiquitous American promoter, who wants to get hold of anything the public might pay to see.

French Chamber Of Deputies Revives Inflation Issue

PARIS, June 29 (AP)—The inflation issue, which the Doumergue government had considered dead, was resurrected in the chamber of deputies today and proved to be a lively corpse as attention was called to the high prices Frenchmen pay for all they buy.

"Devaluation is badly spoken of everywhere except where it is practiced," said Paul Reynard, former minister of finance, demanding that the franc's gold content be lowered or a vigorous deletion of prices be undertaken.

French prices, he said, are 50 per cent higher than the world level demanding prompt action on one of the alternatives.

Witnesses Uphold Denial Of Premier in Seduction Trial

Mrs. Brownlee Says No Evidence To Support Charge

EDMONTON, Alta., June 29 (AP)—A procession of witnesses, following each other rapidly on the stand, today supported Premier J. E. Brownlee's denial that he miscondacted himself with Vivian MacMillan, who is suing him on a seduction charge.

Mrs. Florence Brownlee, wife of the defendant, testified she had seen no evidence of misconduct on the part of her husband with the girl and that she had gone to his defense immediately when the charge was filed.

Mrs. Brownlee denied that she endeavored "to rake up some dirt" against Miss MacMillan in order to assist her husband.

The employment of Miss MacMillan as a government stenographer, which she says was at the invitation of the premier, was gone into in the testimony of Fred Smaltes, civil service commissioner for Alberta. Smaltes said that Brownlee had never asked special favors for Miss MacMillan.

"How was it you gave this girl a job when thousands of Edmonton girls were looking for jobs?" asked Neil MacLean, counsel for Miss MacMillan and her co-plaintiff father referring to the fact that the girl came here from Edson.

"Not thousands, about 500 or 600."

"Was there any particular reason?"

"No particular reason."

The premier's secretary, Emily Brown, testified that she never left Brownlee's office on Saturday afternoons until after he had gone and that Miss MacMillan was in the office only once or twice. Saturday afternoons had been described as one of the occasions for the meetings between the premier and the girl.

Cannon Revives Bill Against Transportation Of Objectionable Films

CHICAGO, June 29 (AP)—Calling the movies "the greatest menace" to American youth, Congressman Raymond J. Cannon announced tonight that he would revive his bill making it a crime to transport "objectionable" pictures.

The Milwaukee representative said in a radio speech that Will Hays, the movie czar, was "just a figurehead," with "nothing to say" about picture production, and he declared that the movie industry can not police its own affairs.

"The usual themes of moving pictures today are divorce, free love, marital infidelity and the exploits of gangsters and racketeers," Cannon said. "A vicious attack is being made on the sacrament of marriage, the purity of womanhood, the sanctity of home and the obedience to lawful authority."

Borah Confers With Fletcher

Fail to Bring G. O. P. East, West Wings Together

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—A conference today between Henry P. Fletcher, new chairman of the Republican national committee, and Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the independent faction of the party, apparently failed to close the gap that divides the eastern and western wings of the party.

Though neither would disclose the details of their conference, it was obvious they had talked about the political line-up and the issues of the fall elections and found little in common.

Borah, who was far from enthusiastic at the selection of Fletcher to head the party's national committee, was believed to have expressed his desire in plain language for a new party policy and leadership.

He was understood also to have strongly urged upon Fletcher as he had on other Republican leaders, that the party make an issue of monopoly under the national recovery administration and campaign on the argument that the Democrats have failed to revive the purchasing power of the people.

Fletcher's call on Borah was in effect a bid to the independent wing of the party to swing in line in the drive to recover some of the party's lost strength in congress. This group was openly hostile to the selection of Fletcher as committee chairman, advocating the choice of someone from the west who had not been identified with the previous party leadership.

Borah was the first of the so-called independent Republicans to receive a call from the new party chairman.

Waterloo Woman Held in $10,000 Bond On Murder Charge

WATERLOO, June 29 (AP)—Mary Alice Johnson Randol, 36, was held in $10,000 bond on the charge of murdering her husband, Ora G. Randol, when she waived preliminary hearing in municipal court Friday afternoon before Judge G. J. Sager.

In lieu of bond she was held in the county jail.

She was not permitted to attend Randol's funeral Friday afternoon, but before the service she was allowed to view his body. She stroked his hair, and wept, but said nothing.

A coroner's jury Friday morning had found that Randol died of a bullet fired by her with felonious intent.

Randol was shot and killed early Thursday as he sat in an automobile near his Barbecue Inn. Mrs. Randol had been talking to him, and witnesses say she fired the shot. Her story is that she had found the gun cocked and sought his help in releasing the hammer. She says he kicked the gun, causing it to be fired.

U.S.S. Houston Prepares For Arrival of President Roosevelt

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 29 (AP)—The "admiral's quarters" have been transformed into "the president's quarters," and resplendent with unaccustomed luxury await the arrival of Franklin D. Roosevelt on board the U.S.S. Houston.

All the comforts, large and small, that the navy could think of—and it did some brain-racking—have been installed for the chief executive's voyage to far Hawaii.

"He certainly has done a lot for the navy," one of the ship's officers said as he showed reporters through the suite today, "and we wanted to do all we could for him."

The suite lies on the port side of the vessel, below and a little aft of the bridge. There is a large sitting room, a smaller bedroom, a bath, and an adjoining kitchen where his meals will be prepared.

Deep-cushioned divans and chairs are scattered about the sitting room, jauntily with brightly colored slipcovers. There is a large writing desk, pigeon holes neatly stuffed with paper of all sizes and pens and pencils.

Near it stands a glass-doored book case, filled with volumes especially selected for the chief executive's amusement, detective stories, humor, history books on the places Mr. Roosevelt will visit in the course of the trip and books on the navy and its heroes.

Naval officers thought that in spite of the large portholes which light and ventilate the room, Mr. Roosevelt might find tropical nights a bit stuffy, so a large doorway was cut through a bulkhead separating the president's sitting room from that of the ship's commanding officer.

The latter extends to the other side of the vessel and the door will provide a cross-draft. In addition, the captain's sitting room will be placed at the disposal of the president to give him an apartment, unusually large for shipboard, for receiving distinguished visitors.

The navy heard Mr. Roosevelt liked the bed he occupied on the Sequoia, the commerce department boat he uses for week end river cruises, so that was installed in the president's bedroom on the Houston.

Prof. Zuill To Be Succeeded By Effie Raitt

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Federal aid for the consumer was urged in resolutions passed by the American Home Economics association as it wound up a five day convention today.

Asserting that "for the best national economic development, the consumer should be treated as one of the partners in industry along with capital, management and labor, the association promised to promote the recognition of "consumer rights" in the federal government.

It urged upon President Roosevelt and the NRA the adoption of "quality standards" for the benefit of consumers.

Effie Raitt, director of home economics at the University of Washington, Seattle, was elected president of the association, succeeding Frances Zuill of the University of Iowa.

Other officers elected included councilor at large, Abby L. Marlatt of the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

EASY! Nothing to Spelling For 4 Year Old

PINEVILLE, Ky., (AP)—A 4 year old mountain boy, who can spell such words as "paralelogram," "asafetida," "phthisic" and "hippopotamus" without batting an eye, has become a sensation in southern Kentucky.

Before an audience that included Gov. Ruby Laffoon, the youngster, Vinlevier Simpson, mastered every jawbreaker presented with the exception of "Albuquerque."

Few persons knew of the flaxon-haired, blue-eyed little prodigy until he was invited to give a demonstration recently at the Mountain Laurel festival in Pine Mountain state park. He stopped the show.

The master of ceremonies started things off by inviting the crowd to "stump him" if it could. First, they wanted him to spell the states in the union—and he did it without a bobble.

Then they tried him with such words as "Schenectady," "Milwaukee" and "Chattanooga." The were just play for Vinlevier.

"Son, spell 'rhododendron,'" requested Governor Laffoon. Vinlevier did it without losing his grin.

"Afghanistan," "Andorra," "Baluchistan," "Basutoiland," "Samalliland," "Czechoslovakia," "Nigeria"—all rolled off his tongue.

The child scarcely could spell a word until last Christmas. Then his father, Adron Simpson, began tutoring him just for the fun of it.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1934

Looking Back Two Decades Ago

ON June 28, 1914, a young man fired a shot really "heard round the world." The assassination of Grand Duke Ferdinand and the grand duchess was the match which touched off the bomb of war, the fuses of which had been set over a period of years.

Every war brings with it a social frenzy which blinds men and women and glorifies the horrors of mass butchery. But it is probable that no war ever brought quite so much social insanity as did the Great War.

For years economic nationalism had been the keynote of European and American "progress." Fed to the masses of people in such slogans as "The sun never sets on Britannia's shores," and "Westward the course of empire wends its way," and "Manifest destiny," and "Duetschland uber alles," this economic nationalism took the form of competition for colonies and competitive armaments.

It was taught in schools under such names as "civics," and in common parlance it was called "patriotism."

Small wonder, then, that with a setting of national jealousy the assassination at Sarajevo was enough to set off the most gigantic conflagration the world has ever seen.

All over the world, government leaders made it clear to the masses—who were to be used for cannon fodder—that this war was different from other wars. This was an unselfish war.

In Europe it became a matter of national honor. Men were urged to fight for "the sacred principles of the nation." In the United States it was variously termed "a war to end war" and "a war to make the world safe for democracy."

Now, after 20 years, the world can view the Great War without passion. The world now realizes that the incident at Sarajevo did not start the war—it was merely a starting point. Neither did the German emperor. The war was the logical outcome of a world race for national supremacy in territory and arms.

How much has the world learned—or rather, how much has it forgotten. History repeats itself, and once again armament competition and economic rivalry are dominant. Once again the stage is set for another "incident at Sarajevo."

Thorne Smith— "The American Rabelais"

PREPOSTEROUS, ridiculous, utterly shocking, ribald, and perfectly cockeyed. His publishers advertised him as "the American Rabelais," his one obvious ambition was to be the maddest, frankest, funniest, and most impossible wit in American literature.

When Thorne Smith died in a southern resort last week, a young man still in his early 40's, he left the nation a heritage of sophisticated belly laughs, and something new in humor. He was to America what P. G. Wodehouse is to England, only much more so.

His characters were hilarious madeups, men and women who did ridiculous things and found themselves in the most undignified situations. There was T. Lawrence Lamb, whose career began with the exclamation, "Sapho, wake up! There's a horse in father's bed!"

Then there was the time when the old Greek gods hit Broadway, and Venus was a perfect flop as a party girl, in the very imaginative "Night Life of the Gods." And Jo, who found herself in a closet with a naked man and a thief in "The Bishop's Jaegers."

And that satire of all satires on murder mysteries, "Did She Fall." Remember the suspects?—Aunt Mattie, whose stabings would naturally come in a fit of mad passion; Sam Stoughton who watered the garden at night because he pitied the poor plants; the artist Barney who gave up purple oranges and orange grapes to paint murderers; and the two detectives, both named Timothy Shay.

And "Turnabout," which left a moral that "Sexes, like drinks, should never be mixed." And, finally "Topper Takes a Trip," in which Cosmo Topper meets that madeup Marion Kerby, when he discovered that the foot in the bathtub was not his own. There were the driverless taxicab, Oscar, the almost-dog, the French horse who won a race sitting down, and the bewitching croupier.

Thorne Smith introduced dignified unscrupulous hilarity into American humor. Though he turned to humorous writing just a few years ago, he had already made an important place for himself. His death cut off his career in the midst of its most decorum-disturbing promise.

What Others Think

Is Germany Near a Crisis? (From the Philadelphia Inquirer)

Much that is confused and uncertain comes in the news from Germany in these days—the censorship makes it inevitable—but certain facts of significance have been emerging of late. One is that Hitler's position is no longer as secure as it once seemed to be. We are still told that the sacred person of the Leader is exempt from criticism, and critics are threatened with the executioner's block. Though the Storm Troops are seeking the suppression of the Steel Helmets, who are mostly monarchists, they are themselves to abandon their uniforms and resume civilian clothes for "the vacation period." Is it possible that the German people are beginning to get tired of all this marching and countermarching?

Another fact is the seriousness of the financial crisis. Already a devaluation has gone to London to endeavor to avert a trade war with Great Britain. The six months' moratorium has not helped the situation much. The Reichsbank report shows that the gold coverage is nonexistent, and that imports have been reduced even below the World War level. The domestic market is in danger of collapse. The attempted artificial boom can not be continued save by the continued buying of foreign raw materials, and for this Germany has neither the cash nor the credit. Repudiating the foreign indebtedness will not relieve the situation.

A reform of taxation is to be the next expedient. The destruction of the federal system under the law of last January has made possible the application of a highly centralized system of financial control. In future the central government is to levy and collect all taxes, handing them over to the states and communes according to their needs. In some unexplained fashion political and economic policy is to be combined with social. There will be discrimination in the imposition of taxes, especially against the Jews. Something is said also of new economies.

It would be premature to predict the speedy end of Nazism, in spite of the increasing indications of dissatisfaction with it. But for all these enthusiastic tributes to Hitler everything is not for the best in the best of all possible Germanies.

GOOD MORNING

Zaro Agha, "the old man of Turkey," died yesterday morning at the age of 160 years (so he said) in the children's hospital at Istanbul. The Turks seem to have such a fine sense of the fitness of things.

If the venerable Mr. Agha was right about his age, he must have been just old enough to toddle about pushing chairs across the kitchen floor at the time those three rather funny looking persons with the flag, the drum and the life personified for the first time the spirit of '76.

It is too bad Mr. Agha was a Turk. Had he been an old colonial, he might have solved for us some of the fundamentally silly questions which bother our politicians today.

Though it is something of a sad admission for a people supposedly endowed with intelligence of their own, much of the energy we waste today in argument is wasted because we can't agree on the meaning of our ancestors when they started it all.

Old Zaro, had he been a colonial and perhaps a mutual friend of Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, could have solved all that.

And he probably would have told us before he died that neither of these men, with all his vision and foresight, never imagined in his wildest dreams that the United States of America they founded would resemble what we see about us now.

And that, of course, would shatter our illusions and spoil our arguments. It would force upon us the unpleasant necessity of talking sensibly and facing facts as they are.

We would be forced then to admit that the west is no longer a wilderness filled with Indians to be subdued by enterprising college graduates, as so many self-made-men still fondly insist. Figuratively, of course.

And we would have to realize, as we persistently refuse to do, that the world is no longer clamoring for all cotton the south can produce at whatever price the south wants to ask, and that it is no longer necessary only to sow and reap to make a fortune from the soil.

It would be necessary also for us to revise our opinions of those who are not able to find in America the opportunities which theoretically abound in this land of freedom.

In short, we would be forced to grapple with the problems of today, as Jefferson and Hamilton did in their time, and we would see that this is the real lesson they have to teach us.

All this is not half as silly as it sounds, for this country is surprisingly overrun by men who, being either afraid or too small in stature, prefer to skip around today's perplexities and hide behind the skirts of their great grandmothers. Zaro Agha could have pointed out that, ample as they once were, these skirts are not too reliable any more.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Best chuckle of the day is Roy Del Ruth's description of an encounter with one of those perennially hopeful actors who haunt the studio waiting rooms. Waylaid as he was entering United Artists, Roy told the "fellow he might have something in the future, but there was nothing for him in his current picture, "Bull Dog Drummond Strikes Back."

"Are you sure?" insisted the pest. "You know I used to work with Rin-Tin-Tin."

The visit of Mary Pickford to the set of "You Belong to Me" at Paramount was the signal for a temporary halt in production. Director Al Werker rushed over to the star and greeted her warmly. Fact is, Werker has been a protegee of Mary's since the beginning of his career. Just 12 years ago, he worked as property boy in her company.

Add to caustic criticisms, the Dartmouth Jack O'Lantern's review of the picture "Stingaree." With economy worthy of Eugene Fields, the college critic comments: "They should have spelled it with a K."

Which is a good excuse to revive Fields' famous review of a performance of "King Lear." "Throughout the entire performance," he wrote, "the star played the king as if in constant fear that someone else would play the ace."

I WISH I'D KNOWN THEM WHEN: Jeannette MacDonald, at the age of three, made her stage debut at the Philadelphia Academy of Music dancing the "Merry Widow" waltz. (And now she's the star of the picture.) George Raft, when, as a school boy, he worked as an electrician's helper at $4 a week. Mae West when she originated the "shimmy dance." Jack Oakie when he was a Wall Street runner. Marlene Dietrich when she listed among her accomplishments the ability to play the musical saw.

The aplomb of Herbert Marshall

got it's severest test the other day on the set of "The Green Hat." A scene, supposed to take place in England, called for Marshall to pick up a newspaper and read the headlines. With its usual care for accuracy, the property department had provided several copies of the London Daily Mail. But imagine Marshall's amazement when he took up the paper and read a blazing headline: "Is Herbert Marshall Leaving Edna Best?"

Is there no privacy in Hollywood? The day Laura La Plante and Irving Asher were married in Paris, Bill Saiter, Laura's ex arrived in town from the east. Thinking she wouldn't be noticed, as everybody believed her still in the hospital, Marian Nixon met Bill in Pasadena. After the pair had greeted each other enthusiastically they turned to find a pesky photographer, camera leveled and snapping shots as fast as he could take them.

Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON — Dozens of explanations, interpretations and positions of the new deal were inserted in the congressional record before the seventy-third congress adjourned.

Some were offered by Republican commentators in house and senate as their contributions to the aftermath of the "recovery" congress. They were biting criticisms. The great majority of them, however, came from Democrats in the form of reprisals to constituents. All will figure in the campaign literature during the months ahead.

The Roosevelt administration, however, is not depending on these voluntary congressional offerings to present its new deal case to the public between now and election time. Congress had no more than quit, before a battalion of high ranking administration new dealers mapped out nation-wide speaking tours. While President Roosevelt is off cruising and fishing, a corps of his most important lieutenants will be busy telling the country in writing and by word of mouth all about it.

Farley's Circuit
All of the cabinet members who can get away from their jobs in Washington long enough probably will take a hand in the business under the guise of departmental inspection tours and what-not. They are sure to be invited to speak early and often—and to accept.
Postmaster General Farley is frankly out to barge around the national political circuits talking new deal in public and practical politics in private.

Prof. Rex Tugwell, sporting his new agriculture undersecretaryship honors, has a one-man brain trust parade ahead of him. General Johnson is to be off blue-eagling from coast to coast. Aside from the NRA sales value of that trip, it is a neat answer to the loud whisper that his removal as NRA administrator is imminent.

Helping Candidates
There is no direct information that all this has been planned carefully under Democratic national committee auspices. The Garret interview opening-gun of the campaign at the close of the session of congress, is the only thing that can be traced unquestionably to national committee inspiration.

That congressional Democrats now at grips with their constituents at home over the jobs they failed to get for them will welcome this form of administration campaign assistance is not to be doubted. Messrs. Farley, Tugwell, Johnson et al no doubt are being showered with requests to widen their speaking tours.

It is fairly easy to forecast who of the Roosevelt high command will not play much part, now at any rate, in all this. Secretaries Hull, Morgenthau, Ickes, Perkins and Relief Director Hopkins are not likely to be available for stumping tours this summer.

Summer Session Directory Goes On Sale Today

The university summer session directory will go on sale this morning. It was announced last night by the publications office.
The directories will be available at the summer session office, room 117 university hall, the main desk of Iowa Union, the office of the Quadrangle, men's dormitory, and at all local book stores.
Published by the university, this directory is the only official list of students in the thirty-fifth summer session.

Patton Book Is Published

State Bar Association Compliments Iowa Professor

The "Iowa Annotations to the Restatement of Law of Contracts," a book of 1,000 pages, has recently been published by the Iowa State Bar association. The book was compiled by Prof. Odys K. Patton of the college of law under the direction of a special committee of the bar association.

The book of annotations is "an analysis and classification of about 5,000 cases decided by the Iowa supreme court in the field of contract law. It presents all the material ordinarily presented under the subject of contracts, including contract law in both equity and law courts."

The Iowa State Bar association passed a resolution at its last meeting on Professor Patton's work: "The wonderful and extremely arduous work done by Prof. Odys K. Patton, and by his assistants, under his direction and leadership, in the preparation and publication of the Iowa Annotations to the Restatement of Law of Contracts, we desire to commend and endorse in the highest terms. We congratulate Professor Patton on the successful completion of this task."

The assistants to Professor Patton were: Raymond J. Mischler, Leonard O. Graham, Arthur O. Leff, Charles B. Nutting, George W. Obeare, Melvin L. Baker, Laurence M. Jones, P. Arnold Daum, and Russell B. Day.

Commission on medical education. And on a committee on pre-medical education of this group. He was chosen in 1931 as president of the Iowa College of Presidents association, and last November was named chairman of a committee in connection with federal relief administration funds for education.

Especially active in the National Association of State Universities, he has served in many capacities. In May, 1929, he was named to a committee on cooperation with Porto Rico. Shortly afterwards he was appointed to a conference committee to cooperate with the national advisory committee on education in the study of American education. He served as permanent delegate to the council on education of the American Medical association and on the delegate committee to the American Council on Education. In 1926 he was elected president of the state university group, and served two terms on the executive committee.

Held Many Posts

President Jessup has also held many posts on the National Education association. He is an associate member of the National Society for the Study of Education, and a personal member of the department of superintendence. He was appointed to the national council on education, and served as chairman of the school hygiene section and in the Cleveland conference.

Four positions on the State University association have also occupied his attention. In 1929 he was named to a committee on federal grants for national or state research, and the next year he was on a committee to formulate a special statement to be forwarded to the membership and on a committee to plan future activities. In the decade 1917 to 1927 he served as secretary-treasurer.

Member of State Groups

He is a member of several state organizations, among them the State Historical society, the Iowa library commission, the Iowa State Teachers association, the Iowa Liberty loan advisory committee, and the Iowa state board of educational examiners. He is also on a committee of this board to report on minimum residence work in schools granting diplomas.

The Iowa head is on four national religious groups. These are: the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church, the National Council on Religion in Higher Education, the council on policy and guidance of the Religious Education association, and the directing council of the North American Board for the Study of Religion in Higher Education.

On Surveys

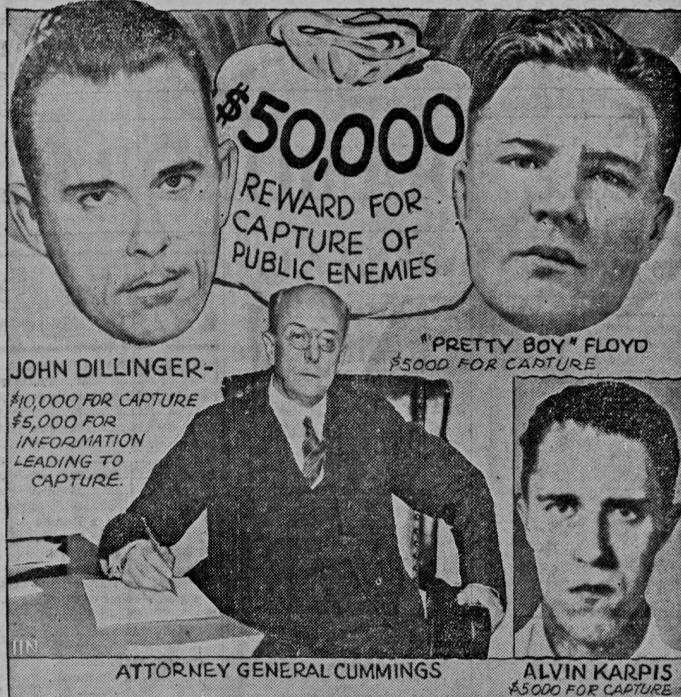

He has been on five state and national surveys, including: the national survey on education, the survey commission of Western Reserve university, survey commission of Cleveland and Los Angeles public schools, the North Carolina consolidated commission, and the survey committee to appraise and evaluate secondary schools for Teachers college, Columbia university.

He was appointed last year on the federal advisory committee on emergency aid in education. Miscellaneous groups of which he is and has been a member include the following:

A few notes on the heat: This department wonders where the young lady "plugged in." She was leaving the education-philosophy-psychology library carrying an electric fan. Consider the case of the man in the bathing suit, standing on Iowa avenue, getting ready to make the dive. We didn't wait to see.

And the three students who decided it was too hot Thursday night to sleep in their rooms. They went out, picked the grassy slope near university hall, and lay down to sleep. Two of them awoke with the feeling that it was great fun, but one of them has a philosophy about such things: He advises that the "bugs" were terrific, the water sprinklers kept him awake, the grass tickled, and a couple who had imbibed somewhat too freely almost stepped on his head. "And anyhow," he said, "we who are accustomed to sleeping in our pajamas will never be great explorers..."

This department has always come to grief through its high code of ethics. Many a time good "stories" have been sacrificed to our spirit of truth.

Yesterday it was reported here that an instructor had scheduled an examination for Wednesday. Everyone came to class prepared for the worst and exceedingly warm. When they arrived, the instructor said:

"I had expected to give you an examination today—one which is necessary for the satisfactory completion of this course. However, it is too warm for such a thing today, so I have decided to cancel the test and enter a grade of A for everyone here."

But truth prevailed. We checked on the story carefully, and found there was nothing to it. So of course, the story couldn't be used. Just consider it taken out.

Now this corner presents one that did happen, strange as it seems. It seems that Mr. Courter and Mr. May are roommates. Both the men were in that state which is said to be universal to a young man's fancy in the spring, but neither of them knew who the female half of the other combination was. One night both of them went out on a "date," and eventually ended the evening on the porch of their respective ladies. Mr. Courter and his friend were just sitting, and another couple arrived. The friend introduced everyone, and the two men must have been surprised—Mr. Cour-

Ashton Speaks Of Poet Elyot

Pictures Sir Thomas As Man of Affairs In Renaissance

Sir Thomas Elyot was pictured as a man of affairs in the world of the English Renaissance and as a great prose writer by Prof. John W. Ashton of the English department in a lecture in the house chamber of Old Capitol last night.

Elyot was characterized as a true statesman, of sound and rich personality, and a man who was responsive to needs of his day and time. He was said to have been instrumental in introducing the vernacular into English literature. His own writing was simple, straightforward, and unadorned, with the idea of clarity uppermost. He compiled a Latin-English dictionary that served as a standard for many decades.

"Elyot wasn't a creative, or original spirit; he looked upon himself rather as a transmitter of ideas, instead, of culture. There seems to have been in Elyot none of the urge for imaginative expression," declared Professor Ashton.

The greatest of his books, "The Boke of the Governour," served as a handbook and source of information to the rulers. At one time he was an ambassador to the king. According to Professor Ashton Elyot was an excellent example in England of a man capable of preparing the way for the later Renaissance. He set men's minds free from the bonds of tradition.

The lecture was the second in a series under the auspices of the school of letters.

PRESIDENT'S SON IN ROMANCE?

Rumors of an impending romance between Ethel DuPont, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene DuPont, of the social register, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., left, son of the president, have blossomed forth from the visit of young Roosevelt to the DuPont home in Wilmington, Del., for the debut party of Miss DuPont. Friends of the DuPonts asserted that they "wouldn't be surprised" if the couple's engagement is revealed before many weeks elapse.

X-Ray Photographs Used To Discover Singing Abilities

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A system of voice analysis, perfected by two vocal teachers after 20 years' study, attempts to show by X-ray photographs exactly what it takes to make a singer sing.

Now, the teachers say, a person who thinks singing is his career can learn without years of study whether he has a voice that can be developed.

A perfect instrument for voice reproduction, says Dr. Stetson Humphries of Hollywood, co-discoverer of the system, consists of a healthy body, good vocal cords, a good set of resonators and sounding boards. Caruso, for example, had a large pharyngeal arch, a broad and high mouth arch and two tiers of high frontal sinuses. The chords which produced the fundamental tones, therefore, had complete amplification by resonance. Caruso was photographed by Dr. Humphries some years ago.

Took 25,000 X-Rays

Dr. Humphries and Dr. Francis Wheeler, of Birmingham, Ala., took 25,000 X-ray pictures of singers' and non-singers' heads to discover what causes the difference between "good" voices and "bad" voices.

The owners of good voices, they learned from studying their X-rays, had certain things in common—perfect arches and sounding boards. Voices that are unusually high or very flat or of poor carrying qualities, they also saw, had pharyngeal arches that were too low, or uneven, or sinus arches that were impacted, or lack of balance between the pharyngeal and mouth arches.

In his Hollywood studio, Dr. Humphries has photographed and made analyses of a number of motion picture players. He showed John Boles why he sings as well as

Barnes Plans Prep Contests

Program for Players To Include Oratory, Reading

Prof. Harry G. Barnes of the speech department has announced a series of contests in which members of the all state high school players will participate this summer session.

Students will take part in contests in interpretative reading, expository speaking, persuasive speaking, and oratory. Winners will be announced at a dinner near the end of the six weeks, and the student having the highest average in all activities will be declared winner over all.

The contest in interpretative reading will go into its second round today. Members of the group who will participate are Georgia Carle of Iowa City, Jane DeSpain of Marengo, Loren Hickerson of Mt. Ayr, Florabel Houston of Nevada, Merle Miller of Marshalltown, John Collison of Marshalltown, and Isabel Greenburg of Algona.

Wendell Halverson of Webster City, Rachel Johnston of Washington, Ida Helen Olin of Iowa City, Robert Bell of Mt. Hamilton, Betty Holt of Iowa City, Irene Mikes of West Bend, Dorothy Rambo of Creston, and Mulford Studebaker of Madrid.

Farmers Spending More

URBANA, Ill., (AP)—The average Illinois farmer and his family spent $10 more on self adornment last year than in 1932. This figure was arrived at by Mrs. Ruth C. Freeman, home economics specialist at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, on the basis of 167 home account records.

he does. All arches and sounding boards in Boles' head are well balanced and he is legitimately a high baritone. Frances Dee learned she could sing if she cared to develop her voice.

No Singing Potentialities

He showed Leslie Howard, whose voice is small and short in range, why it lacks overtone resonance. This is due, Dr. Humphries said, to complete impactions of frontal and sphenoid sinuses, of which Howard was not aware.

Diana Wynyard's analysis showed that her voice has no singing potentialities, since her upper frontal sinus arches are poorly balanced, the septums narrow and the antrums small. Ralph Bellamy has the vocal equipment which would permit him to sing well.

Voice and diction teachers say the system will be helpful to speakers whose voices do not carry and to others who have voice trouble, since analyses will show what is wrong and how it may be corrected. In Leslie Howard's case, a minor operation would immeasurably improve the tone and power of his voice, Dr. Humphries said.

FRY BROS., KELLYS TAKE DIAMONDBALL WINS

ABOUT SPORTS

Another Dean . . . Brother Elmer of Houston . . . Jimmy Foxx Even With Former Marks . . . Tables Turned by West.

COMES word about another Dean boy, brother of the two St. Louis Cardinals ace Jerome (Dizzy) and Paul. The third brother is Elmer. He hurls for Houston in the Texas league and to date has seven victories and one defeat to his credit. Both Dizzy and Paul got their starts with the Houston club, a Cardinal farm. If Elmer is anything like his two brothers he should be burning 'em up with the St. Louis club in another year or two. Then it would be Dean, Dean, Dean, with no apologies to Kipling, either. Paul has won 10 games for the Cards this year, Dizzy 12. The team has won 38 games. Let the National league batters also face Elmer and they will probably get the jitters and mumble in their sleep at times.

JIMMY FOX is one ahead of his last year's home run record for the last of June. To date he has hit 21 homers. His record at the end of June last year was 20. In 1932, however, Foxx had collected 29 circuit blows by this time. His mark for the season fell two short of Babe Ruth's home run record of 60 for a season established in 1927. Last year Foxx missed his own record of 58 homers by 10 but experts still believe the 26 year old Philadelphian capable of beating the mark established by the Bambino. Foxx went to the A's in 1925 from Easton in the Eastern Shore league. He played with Providence the latter part of the season, came back to Philadelphia in 1926, and has been there since. James Emory has played catcher, third base, in the outfield, and at first base.

CALIFORNIA has turned tables on the trek westward by thousands of easterners and middle-westerners. Their athletic teams have, anyway. Baer comes east to win the heavyweight boxing crown, Stanford won the intercollegiate track and field crown at Philadelphia and then topped the field in the National Collegiate A.A. meet at Los Angeles last Saturday, the California Golden Bears swamped eastern and western crews in the National Intercollegiate Regatta at Poukeepsie, and their juicy prunes and fruits are said to top anything offered by other parts of the United States. We agree with the denizens of the Golden state that they are "in the money" in about everything. But one thing they can keep is the famous California earthquake, which just about tops catastrophes offered by other parts of this country.

Ball Playing a Family Affair

SEATTLE (AP)—The three Coscarart brothers of the Pacific Coast league established some kind of a record this season when they all appeared in the same game between Seattle and Portland. "Coffee Joe" played third base for Seattle, Steve was at second for Portland, and Phil went into the contest as a pinch-hitter for Portland. Joe is the old man of the trio, being 23; Steve is 20 and Phil not yet 19. "There's a sister at home to cheer for us, but we're all the ball players," said Joe. Once before the trio appeared in the same game, but that was in a high school tilt, when Joe was about to graduate and Phil was a rookie freshman.

Johnny Goodman Enters Semi-Finals Of Trans-'Sippi

DALLAS, Tex., June 19 (AP)—One under par for the 29 holes he played, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, former national open golf champion, advanced to the semi-finals of the trans-Mississippi tournament today with three comparative unknowns. Goodman will meet Eddie Connor, Dallas, in a 36 hole match tomorrow while Leland Hamman of Waco faces Rosa McDade, Shreveport, La. Results of quarter final matches in the thirty-fourth annual trans-Mississippi golf tournament at Brook Hollow Golf club today: Johnny Goodman, Omaha, beat Wilson Schoellkopf, Dallas, 5 and 4. Eddie Connor, Dallas, beat Reuben Albaugh, Dallas, 3 and 1. Leland Hamman, Waco, beat O'Hara Watts, Dallas, 1 up, 19 holes. Rosa McDade, Shreveport, beat Gibson Payne, Dallas, 1 up, 20 holes.

Kocsis Out of College Links Title Matches

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 29 (AP)—Eddie White of Texas missed his final putt but won a match from Charley Kocsis of Michigan today to go into the finals of the national intercollegiate against Charley Yates of Georgia Tech, who breezed to a 7 to 6 victory over his teammate, Frank Ridley. The story of White's missed putt probably will go down in golf history as one of the most dramatic finishes that ever climaxed a ding-dong golf match.

It happened on the thirty-sixth hole before a gallery of some 500 persons. Both players were on the green with their second. White was one up and needed a half to win. The Texas lad was some 35 feet away from the pin and was five feet short with his approach putt. Kocsis then patted from about eight feet and his ball stopped barely an inch from the cup. White then tapped his ball lightly and the pellet circled the cup and came to rest on the narrow ledge between Kocsis' ball and the cup.

For a full five seconds the ball hung on the lip of the cup while the crowd gasped. Then slowly the grass under White's ball began to rise up and the ball toppled into the cup for the half and the match. It was a completely missed putt but nevertheless it won the match, one of the tightest that has been played in the history of the intercollegiate championship.

Hunt, Mako in Tennis Finals

Meet for Intercollegiate Title; Broiling Heat Big Handicap

PHILADELPHIA, June 29 (AP)—In broiling heat that put one victor on the verge of collapse and slaved the other to a walk, Gilbert Hunt, Massachusetts Tech tennis youngster, and husky Gene Mako, of southern California, reached the finals of the national intercollegiate championships today. On courts which virtually glistered from the sun's intense rays, Hunt, requiring physician's treatment between games, downed Bill Reese, of Georgia Tech, 4-6, 11-9, 6-0, 6-3, while Mako eliminated Wilbur Hess, of Rice Institute, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0, 6-2. The survivors in the week-long play at Merion Cricket club, Haverford, are among the youngest ever to battle for the crown in the 50 years of its existence. Each is 18 years old, a sophomore in his respective university.

St. Paul Golf Meet Draws Stellar Field

ST. PAUL (AP)—An array of stars as formidable as any that has competed in the $5,000 classic is expected for the fifth renewal of the St. Paul open golf tournament over the trying layout of Keller course, July 12 to 15. Young Jim Foulis of Chicago, who stepped from practically nowhere to wrest the championship from more notable figures in the game a year ago, will find himself faced with a task of major proportions when he steps to the first tee to keep his crown. Among the invaders will be Light-horse Harry Cooper, whose dazzling exhibition for 108 holes won for him the Western open title, and Olin Dutra, swarthy Californian, winner of this year's National open. Dutra, winner of the Professional Golfers association match play event at Keller two years ago, will be one of the most feared of the visiting pros, since he has given conclusive demonstration of his liking for the course. St. Paul Junior association officials, sponsors of the event, have been informed by such golfing greats as Walter Hagen, Ed Dudley, George von Elm, Billy Burke, Horton Smith, Tom Creavy, Johnny Golden, Abe and Al Espinosa and Leo Diegel they will be on hand.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

A trick of desert travel that every motorist should know is: a flat tire is sometimes better than a full one. If your car gets stuck in the sand do not spin the wheels in attempting to get out. Instead, let enough air out of the rear tires to make them fairly soft (do not entirely deflate the tires), then take it slow and easy—and the chances are you will be able to pull out.

PWA Loans, Grants $30,000 To Iowa City for Pavement

State Highway Group Gives Additional $15,000

The PWA at Washington, D.C., will loan and grant Iowa City a total of $30,000 to apply on a resurfacing project on Burlington street, according to an announcement made yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

The grant and loan, with a $15,000 appropriation to be made by the state highway commission, will allow the expenditure of $45,000 on the street without extra cost to property owners.

One of 238 Projects The Iowa City loan and grant was for one of the 238 non-federal projects in 28 states and Puerto Rico. The projects will total $25,165,788.

The highway commission, early in the year, notified City Engineer John Sprout that it would make a gift of $15,000 to apply on the Burlington street in the interest of U. S. highway 6 which is routed on that street.

Loan Totals $16,500 The PWA loan for street improvement is $16,500 and the grant is $15,500.

General obligation bonds were offered for security by Iowa City in its application to the PWA.

The project will start as soon as details have been arranged with PWA officials and the state highway commission. Resurfacing is planned between Linn street and Summit street.

AROUND THE TOWN with BILL MERRITT

Keeping Cool With Ice

Iowa City ice dealers report that they are selling twice as much ice this June as they did during June of 1933. More than 90 tons of ice a day are used in Iowa City and surrounding towns during these hot days. Approximately 60 tons of this amount is used right here in Iowa City.

Ice men predict that more ice will be used this summer than in the summer of 1931, which was considered the greatest in the history of ice production.

NEW GERMAN CABINET TO REPLACE NAZI REGIME?

Rumors spreading over the continent of Europe assert that a new cabinet is being formed in Germany to oust the cabinet of Chancellor Adolf Hitler and replace his Nazi government with a military dictatorship. Leaders of the opposition faction assertedly are Baron von Fritsch, commander of the Reichwehr, who would become chancellor in the event of the change, and former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, who would become foreign minister. The revolt reportedly arose over the resignation of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papan, which followed the suppression of a speech in which he made a guarded plea for the return of the monarchy.

Farm Crop Surplus Control Discussed by Bureau Leader

Control of the farm crop surplus "is the first step in the securing of a national policy for American agriculture," according to Mrs. Charles W. Sewell of Otterbein, Ind., home and community chairman of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who spoke at Reichardt's pavilion in the city park yesterday afternoon to a large group of farm men and women.

"Without equal organization and representation with capital, industry and labor," Mrs. Sewell declared, "agriculture cannot and will not hold parity and get its share of normal prosperity."

"No Brain Trustster" "I lay no claim to the title of brain trustster," she admitted, "nor do I pose as an expert on monetary matters, but opponents of the present monetary setup in the nation couldn't call it an honest dollar when it took seven pigs from the farmer's backyard in 1933 to buy a chair, a pair of shoes, a bag of flour and a plow, that could be had in 1914 for three pigs of the same size and weight."

"It's going to be a constant battle for parity, on the part of farmers," Mrs. Sewell warned.

Not New The crop surplus problem is not a new one, she pointed out, as she referred to her grandfather's experience. He had merely to move west in his day, however, and in the new frontier he could start out all over again. The farmer today has no such easy course in solving his problem.

"Much criticism has been directed toward lobbies and lobbyists in Washington," Mrs. Sewell reminded her audience. "We do not believe in lobbies, if they will all go home. But if American agriculture fails to provide a strong organization and virile leadership, the farmers and their problems will be driven to every side of the national capitol with unceremonious rapidity."

County Head Reports Clara Kutz, county chairman, gave a report on home project, Sharpton, Pleasant Valley and Lincoln township 4-H club girls and Union township home project women had parts in the program during the afternoon.

A picnic dinner was held during the noon hour.

Jr. C. of C. Drafts Official Program for July 4 Celebration

20,000 Expected To Attend Annual Affair

With the completion of final plans for the Junior Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July celebration in Iowa City next Wednesday, the official program was drafted at a meeting of the committee in the American Legion Community building last night.

The celebration, which is expected to draw a crowd of more than 20,000 people from Iowa City and surrounding towns, will open in the morning at the city park with a band concert and a diamond ball tournament.

Amusement Company Secured The Parkway Amusement company has been secured to give a carnival spirit to events of the day.

The big feature of the afternoon's celebration will be the bathing beauty contest, the winner of which will receive a loving cup and the official title of Miss Iowa City. Judges to pick the most beautiful girl will be announced later. The contest is open to all girls in this section of the state.

For baseball fans the committee has scheduled a game between the Iowa City Merchants team and a Marshalltown club, to be played on the city park ball diamond.

Band to Play At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a 25 piece band, under the direction of Lloyd Swartley, will give its second concert. The last concert will be in the evening at 7:30.

There will also be a taxi dance in the afternoon with music furnished by Dusty Keaton's orchestra in the park pavilion.

The fire works display in the evening, to climax the celebration, is considered by the committee one of the most stupendous spectacles ever to be presented in Iowa City. Besides the usual line of fireworks the main event in this section of the program will be a reproduction of the naval battle and bombardment of Ft. McHenry by the British fleet during the war of 1812.

Ballroom Dance The fireworks display will be put on by the Thearle-Durfield company.

Otto Schenk Files Petition Asking New Trial on Charge

Otto Schenk, found guilty of falling to report an accident by a district court jury last week, filed a petition asking a new trial yesterday through his attorney, W. F. Murphy.

Schenk, in his petition, states that the jury did not give due consideration to facts in the case before they returned a verdict of guilty after 10 minutes behind closed doors.

He also alleges that John Brennan, the man struck by his car, said that he was not injured. The petition states that the law makes no provision as to the length of time that may pass before an accident has to be reported to proper authorities.

Several other reasons for a new trial were set forth in the four page petition.
