HUNDREDS DIE IN HITLER'S 'PURGING'

Disarmament Committee Approves Roosevelt Munitions Control Plan

What's In A Name? --

Answer: A Story—In The New University Directory

By BERNICE O. LANGDON
If you can't decide where to go on your vacation, and want a little assistance, read through the University of Iowa summer session directory. The story is in the names!

Vacations are not usually discussed in January or March when Frost is on the window pane, and when Stormes are raging at Noon and at Knight. But now, when the weatherman offers a few showers to fill the Brooks and make the fields of Clover Green, everyone begins to pine for a trip over the Hills in his Otto, whether it be an Austin, a Ford, an Overland, or a Studebaker, so long as it is not a Reck.

Leaves Towne
Well, our hero, Wiley Basemann, felt a genuine urge to throw away the keys to his office and leave Towne for a sample of life in the Woods. The old Berg was plenty dead anyway.

Camp Over Night
He started in his Carr, which was little more than Junk. The Roads were Ruff and he didn't get far that Day. He decided to Camp over night by a Grove of trees where he would keep Kuhl.

Pastoral Scene
As he rattled along a country Lane, he became less Cross for he was Abel to enjoy the pastoral scene of Guernsey and Holstein cattle grazing in a Greenfield with Goats and one lone Lamb. On the roadside a Barry Bush was in Bloom beside a wild Plum tree.

Deal Was Made
A Deal was made and our Wiley went spinning out of town so fast he ran over a Hen. He soon arrived at his destination, where he was King of all he surveyed. He ate a Bunn, Brown Bacon, a Dill pickle and a Frye he bought from the Baker. He felt much Fuller.

He was Down and out, but he still

Provides For Supervision Of Arms Traffic

Proposal Will Go To All Nations For Consideration

GENEVA, July 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt's plan to curb the secret collection of armaments by striking at munitions sources was enthusiastically approved today by a committee of the disarmament conference. Powers represented on the committee investigating manufacture and traffic in arms adopted a plan based on American suggestions which would bring into the glare of publicity all armaments, whether homemade or imported. A draft of the proposal will be sent to all governments with a view to incorporation in the general disarmament treaty. If the project finds eventual universal adoption, as hoped by the committee, every gun and every piece of war material will be registered internationally. The plan provides for the strictest inspection and supervision. Under its provisions, adhering nations would undertake to prohibit the manufacture of forbidden arms and traffic in them in excess of limit laid down by a projected general treaty. Licenses specifically provides in the case of German that rearmament must be carried out by stages. Seven nations represented in the committee support the plan specifically and paid tribute to the United States for its constructive proposal.

Removal Of Eagle Upheld

Action Against Hosiery Mills Legal, Says Cummings

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Attorney General Cummings today formally upheld NRA's withdrawal of the blue eagle from the Harriman (Tenn.) hosiery mills. "It is entirely conceivable," Cummings wrote Hugh S. Johnson, "that proper ground might exist for the withdrawal of the blue eagle even though no ground existed or facts are available for presentation to a court in sufficiently definite form to justify a criminal prosecution." Cummings' ruling was given in a letter to Johnson. After the attorney general's decision that available evidence did not warrant legal prosecution of the shut-down hosiery mills, Johnson wrote Cummings: "This is to ask whether your opinion in this requires me to restore the blue eagle. I will, of course, consider myself bound by your answer to this question."

Man Identifies John Dillinger

Station Attendant Sees Fugitive In Boston

BOSTON, July 3 (Tuesday) (AP)—The Massachusetts state police early today notified all patrols and barracks that the much-sought bandit, John Dillinger, had been seen in Whitinsville and had been "positively identified" by a gas station attendant. The police broadcast said Dillinger was accompanied by a woman and had been "identified" from a police circular. He was headed in the direction of Worcester, state police were told.

Police Check Clues On Dillinger

KEOKUK, July 2 (AP)—Discovery of a quantity of discarded used bandages today led police here to check the possibility that John Dillinger or some of his henchmen had fled to an Iowa hideout. Police communicated with Dr. Leslie A. Laird of North Webster, Ind., who was assaulted early Sunday by two men after he treated their gunshot wounds.

40 Peasants Slain As Revolt Spreads In Southern Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 2 (AP)—Desperate fighting, in which at least 40 peasants were slain, has broken out in the revolt spreading through southern Chile, according to reports reaching here tonight from Mulchen. ### Gilmore Predicts Increase In Enrollment; Asks Continued Support of 'Good Education'

Cites Responsibility Of University To Students

President Eugene A. Gilmore predicted a large increase in University of Iowa enrollment next September and asked continued state support of "good education" as he took the highest executive position in the university yesterday. In a statement to newspapermen yesterday morning, President Gilmore pointed out that the freshman class had shown a 27 per cent increase last year over 1932. "A similar increase is probable next September," he said. On the basis of past experience, he said, about 100,000 students will enter colleges from Iowa high schools in the next five years, in spite of economic depression. "The great responsibility of the university is to take proper care of this ever increasing throng of students and to make sure that they are given an adequate educational opportunity," the new Iowa head asserted. Only with the cooperation of the entire state can this responsibility be met, he declared. Iowa has always shown its faith in education and has been generous in its support of the university, President Gilmore told reporters. "There is no reason to doubt that, regardless of the depression, the people of Iowa will continue to do their part to keep their university good," he predicted. President Gilmore's complete statement is as follows: "Educational responsibilities have this special characteristic: they are continuous and are always expanding. This is true, even in time of business depression when young people, lacking employment, turn to the schools and remain longer in school. Increasing Number "During the last academic year there were approximately 120,000 students in the high schools of Iowa. Over 20,000 graduated and are now ready to move on. In normal times, business and industry would absorb many. Either from choice or from lack of employment an increasing number of these graduates are coming to the university. "Last year there was a 27 per cent increase in the entering class. A similar increase is probable next September. Within the next five years there will be at least 100,000 graduates coming out of Iowa high schools and pressing on for more education. "The great responsibility of the

Jurors Indict Aaron Sapiro

Attorney Faces Trial On Charge Of Bribery

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—Aaron Sapiro, nationally known attorney who once sued Henry Ford for $1,000,000 in a libel action, was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy and attempted bribery of jurymen. The grand jury also indicted Sam Roth, who had been previously charged with jury tampering in connection with the trial of Murry C. Harwood, Sidney Paris and others. This indictment related to the same trial, in which Harwood and Paris were convicted of mail fraud. After being sentenced, Harwood asserted in New York federal court that an attorney had promised to appeal the case, accepted $10,000, and then did not take action. The attorney was not named. Sapiro recently was acquitted in Chicago of having conspired with others in Cook county, Illinois, to commit malicious mischief by causing the explosion of bombs, destroying buildings and inflicting injuries on various persons in the laundry business there.

Man Found Dead

LOS ANGELES, July 2 (AP)—A body identified as that of John Aaron Jordan, 65, who was scheduled to appear in court Thursday to answer to a drunk driving charge, was found today in an east side rooming house. Police said he had swallowed poison.

Financial Scandal Causes Cabinet Of Premier to Resign

TOKYO, July 3 (Tuesday) (AP)—The cabinet of Premier Saito this morning decided to resign because it believed itself compromised by a financial scandal in which Hideo Kuroda, vice minister of finance, is involved. The premier prepared to go to the palace to inform the emperor of the decision of cabinet members. Military and naval groups sprang into action, attempting through their high commands to bring about selection of a new cabinet favorable to expansion of the army. In many quarters, however, it was believed Saito will be directed to form a new cabinet.

Panic Seizes Mill Workers As Two Die

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 2 (AP)—Terror lurks again in the dark recesses of the five-square mile millyard of the Wheeling Steel corporation. A kill-crazy maniac, the slayer of three workmen, is at large, casting his phantom shadow over the plant and its 3,000 employees. "Screached Like Ape" Suddenly and stealthily, like a fox, the killer struck for the third time early today while scores of special guards patrolled the millyard. He fired four times, killing two workers. Then he fled, halting momentarily beneath a light to jump insanely up and down and, said the workers who saw him, to "screach like an ape," in signal of his latest kill.

Wierd Killer Shoots Men, Disappears Without Clue

Leaving panic behind, the man, who dresses like a laborer, dashed toward the Ohio river and vanished. Where he went, none knew. Why he killed, none knew. When he might strike again, none knew. The workers who saw him said he was short and stocky and, possibly past middle age. He left only confusion among company and county officials who for six months have sought to track him down.

Flight Ends At Warsaw

WARSAW, July 2 (AP)—Reaching their goal at last after three European interruptions of their New York-to-Warsaw flight, Joseph and Benjamin Adamowicz, of Brooklyn, received a rousing reception today and promised that next time they will fly straight through from their home town. The brothers landed here at 5:15 p.m. after flying from Torun, Poland, where they were forced down this morning after a flight from a village near Krossen, Germany. Previously they had made a forced landing on the coast of France and had visited Le Bourget field.

Shower May Bring Relief

Expect Break Today In Scorching Weather

By The Associated Press
Sweltering heat held on Monday in the Midwest and east, but some relief was forecast for today. The mercury in New York city touched 90, for the fourth consecutive day. The weather bureau, however, predicted cooling thunder-showers would cause a break today in the scorching weather that has gripped the east for the last 13 days. The heat drove an estimated 2,000, 300 persons to metropolitan beaches Sunday. Somewhat cooler weather also was forecast for most of the Midwest and east, with scattered showers probable in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois. Two week end fatalities at St. Louis increased to 21 the list of deaths there from the heat wave. The temperature soared above 90 for the fourteenth consecutive day. Kansas and Nebraska continued hot and dry with temperatures in the former state zooming to century levels. Lincoln, Neb., reported 99 degrees. Des Moines reported a 90 degree reading at 2 p.m. and generally cooler weather in Iowa.

Von Papen's Status Shakes As Uncounted Numbers Die Before Hitler Firing Squads

60 Executed, Member of Squad Tells

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER (Copyright, 1934, By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, July 2—The story of how 60 rebellious storm troopers were executed with unbandaged eyes in an old cadet school in a Berlin suburb was told today by a man who obviously was a member of Chancellor Hitler's firing squad. The man, a member of the Schutz Staffel, special blackshirted guards, whispered his story of 60 executions after making certain that no eavesdropper could hear. Three Minutes Before the executions, there was a trial for each "traitor" before a court of three men, under the chairmanship of Heinrich Himmler, chief of secret police. Another judge was

Goering May Get Place Of Anti-Nazi In Cabinet

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER (Copyright, 1934, By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, July 3 (Tuesday) (AP)—With the dead in Germany's "blood purge" reaching several hundred, according to a reliable source, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today moved to strengthen his hold on the Reich by replacing the conservative, non-Nazi Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen.

Latest Developments

(By The Associated Press)
Outstanding developments in the Nazi crisis in Germany Monday:
A reliable Berlin source said hundreds—not a score or so—were executed when Chancellor Hitler struck at "traitors." An eye witness, obviously a member of the firing squad, told how 60 storm troop leaders and other "traitors" were shot with unbandaged eyes in Berlin suburbs after each had a three-minute trial. There were signs that the wings of Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, now one of Hitler's apparently close advisers, will be clipped, many of his duties being given to others. Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen, conservative critic of some Nazi policies, was placed under the protection of the Reichswehr (regular army) by his friend, President Paul Von Hindenburg. Hitler, however, is expected, an authoritative source said, to remove Papen from office. A government spokesman said that the vice chancellor has been cleared of complicity in the planned rebellion, although some of his office associates were guilty. The Vatican was greatly perturbed by the news of the killing of Eric Klausener, leader of the Catholic action organization in Germany. Goering was stated authoritatively to be slated for Von Papen's post. In Rome praise for Hitler's bloody purge of his party continued to come from Fascists, with whose leader, Premier Mussolini, Hitler recently conferred. Some sources reported that Hitler himself intends to assume the presidency upon the death of the 86 year old Von Hindenburg, who is believed by many to favor Von Papen for the post.

Police On Duty

Although assuring the public that the "liquidation" is over, the government continued to keep armed police and members of the special Schutz Staffel (blackshirted guards) on duty around public buildings and in the streets. The Black Shirts, members of Goering's special guard, stood around the home of Von Papen, apparently to insure his safety. To the man in the street this was the bluest blue Monday in Berlin in many a day. The fear of secret police was universal, and in cafes there was a dead silence except for the rattling of dishes when orchestras paused.

Darrow Hopes For Death of Hitler

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—Clarence Darrow, internationally noted lawyer, started off an inquiry into conditions in Germany today with the statement he hoped "they" would kill Chancellor Adolf Hitler. "If there are any more murders tomorrow, I hope it will end in the killing of Hitler," Darrow declared, as he and fellow-members of the American inquiry commission visited Mayor F. H. LaGuardia in city hall. "I think Hitler is a very dangerous man and should be destroyed." With Darrow were former United States Attorney George Z. Medalle, Dudley Field Malone, former collector of customs of the port of New York; Arthur Garfield Hays, United States Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado; Stanley high, and Raymond L. Wise. At its opening session, Hays stated the commission was organized under the auspices of the Lord Marley committee to aid victims of the Nazis.

Ernst and Strasser (Karl Ernst, storm troop leader and Gregor Strasser) were shot there. (In the cadet school). "Ernst as he turned toward the squad cried 'I am innocent. Hell Hitler! Hell Germany!'"

"Men with meritorious records were given the privilege as was Roehm (Ernest Roehm, cabinet minister and supreme leader of the storm troopers) to commit suicide, but few accepted."

G.O.P. Hits At Roosevelt

"Accepts Issue," Says Chairman Henry Fletcher

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The Republican party through its national chairman, Henry P. Fletcher, tonight accepted the new deal as the issue in the fall elections. Fletcher, in a nation-wide radio speech, asserted the new deal was a proposition that had been "repudiated and overthrown" by the declaration of independence.

"Accepts Issue" "The Republican party accepts the issue of the new deal," he said in announcing a drive for election of Republican congressmen to combat administration policies. Asserting the broad issue in the approaching elections is the right of the people to govern themselves, Fletcher added:

"In spite of lip service to Democratic ideals, the leaders of the party in power know in their hearts 'the new deal' is not democratic. It does not come from the people."

Replies to F.R. Much of Fletcher's address was in the nature of a reply to President Roosevelt's "fireside talk" to the American people last week. He suggested the following as the reply of the average American to the president's inquiry as to whether he was better off today than a year ago:

"I am perhaps better off than last year, but when I see the vast sums expended and authorized to be expended by the government I ask myself I will be better off when the tax bill comes in and how about my children and my children's children."

Major and Minor were the names of two members of the cadets' brass band at Sewanee military academy in Tennessee.

Earrings on Top of Ears— New Vogue Set by Parisians

By ADELAIDE KERR

PARIS, (AP)—Earrings are the earmark of chic these days. Earrings caught on the tops of the ears, poised on the lobe or encircling the tip, are worn by some of the smartest women here, and the vogue continues to spread.

Crystal, crystal, mirrors, gold, silver, precious and semi-precious stones are welded into the new models. Flowers, leaves, berries, shells and such geometrical designs as pyramid, spheres and triangles are all seen. Designs which cling close to the ear are the most favored. Long dangling earrings are rarely worn by smart women except for the most formal occasions.

'Wings Over Ears' Earrings on the tops of the ears have just made their debut. Tiny gold wings which cupped over the upper part of the ear were worn by a smart Parisian at a recent soiree and caused no small amount of chatter.

Cluded crystal leaves veined with diamonds and smoked crystal daisies centered with yellow brilliants, worn on the lobes, are two striking evening models recently seen. Blue, rose or white crystal flowers with stems and leaves of brilliants are also being worn.

Many Gold Designs Gold designs are legion. There are gold snails which coil around the lobes of the ears, gold arrows pointing half moons and spirals which cling to the tip. Gold hemispheres studded with corals, turquoise or varicolored semi-precious stones are some things worn in the afternoon or evening, and dull burnished gold pinks to match scarf clip and belt buckle are smart for street wear. Hemispheres set with tiny gold mirrors which flash like the facets of a diamond make other striking designs.

Besides these, designers have produced hundreds of colorful models in galalith and other compositions shaped like the pearl button which has long been a favorite. Jade green, periwinkle blue, poppy red and tangerine are ready to add a flash of ear color harmonizing with a bright scarf or hat.

Ear clips which clamp to the lobe are still good, but the design which screws to the tip of the ear is favored by many women.

What Others Think

A Great Vaudeville Act Ended

(From The Philadelphia Inquirer)

Reminiscent of the good old days of the variety stage, when a comedian could win a laugh by so banal a quip as, "That ain't no lady—that's my wife," is the Great National Vaudeville Act of 1934.

Coming on the stage for what is expected to be their final appearance, the two charming conversationalists flash these gems of impassioned rhetoric before a world-weary audience:

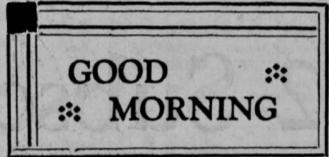

MR. DARROW: "The fact that throughout his homily on bathtubs and the like, General Johnson innocently confuses fixtures with the work of the plumber that sets them up, may be an additional source of entertainment to those disposed to take a blithesome view of a topic so grave as drain pipes."

GENERAL JOHNSON: "Here we have dear old Clarence Darrow at his sweetest—at last! the man who asked Mr. Bryan if the fish all drowned in Noah's flood and how the snake navigated before he was cursed to crawl in the dust on his belly is at last speaking for himself. Here, finally, is a flash of heat-lightning in the sunset sky—scintillatingly brilliant, but illuminating nothing."

All this, dear teachers and pupils, is in the name of national recovery—and the reform of national recovery. Business is advancing slowly, millions are still unemployed; the period of the emergency—take the administration's word for it—is not over; the battle for the New Deal is still in progress on many fronts.

But at least it may be said that the boys in the trenches—you and we—have been given a brief period of relaxation and entertainment. And how we have been entertained! We have had a grand time. We are refreshed. As we go back to the grind we have but one regret:

The curtain has rung down on the Great National Vaudeville Act of 1934.

GOOD MORNING

Former Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York said not long ago that John Dillinger was nothing but a "dumb crook." In view of the extremely poor business judgment displayed by the man, one is inclined to think that is a fair estimation.

Dillinger has acquired enough ready cash since he began his periodic bank raids to set the ordinary clever criminal up in respectable business.

The suggestion made gratuitously in this column some time ago still stands. Why shouldn't Mr. Dillinger and associates incorporate and give their activities the appearance of a first class enterprise?

Of course the thing to do when an outlaw like Dillinger continues to plunder and kill and thumb his nose at the law is to deplore the ineffectiveness of law enforcement. But deploring seems to have little effect.

Probably the only way the country can become sufficiently aroused to the necessity for a police organization worth the name instead of the present haphazard, unorganized, ineffective system of untrained amateurs is to turn loose a swarm of Dillingers as an object lesson.

Dillinger himself has made a fair beginning. The federal government became perturbed enough to push a measure through the seventy-third congress that will give the department of justice a little much needed leeway. But that is only a beginning. Until the United States can boast a coordinated police and detective system unhampered by innumerable conflicts of jurisdiction the problem will never be satisfactorily solved.

Newsmen called the recent wedding of Jacob Astor and Ellen Tuck French at Trinity church "the society drama of the decade." To the ordinary sane American it was more disgusting than dramatic.

The story of Astor's marriage venture has filled society columns of metropolitan papers for months with an unwholesome hashing and rehashing of his previous engagement to Miss Gillespie of the social register and his later betrothal to Miss French, who was to have been only a bridesmaid.

It has been a story of lavish presents in the form of fabulous jewels and elaborate homes, and bickerings over who was to keep them.

The affair has become almost as revolting as the spectacle of Barbara Hutton and Prince Mdivani, who have been doing an excellent job of showing the world just how shallow and worthless cheap riches can be.

The two affairs go far to strengthen one's belief that a quick end should be made to the custom of permitting unlimited wealth.

Three Films To Be Shown

Traces Development Of Transportation In United States

The development of transportation will be the subject of a sound film to be shown this afternoon at 4:30 in room C5, East hall, Leg. W. Cochran of the extension division announced yesterday.

The film traces the development of transportation in the United States during the last 150 years, showing the physical barriers, the spread of railroad network, and the subsequent highway development as well as the stages in the growth of the locomotive and automobile.

Two silent films will also be shown. The first of these will be "The life history of the yellow fever mosquito." The film traces the complete metamorphosis of the mosquito: the egg, the larva, the pupa, and the adult mosquito.

"The Panama canal" will be the subject of the other silent film. Views taken during the construction of the canal, show the importance of the task, and are followed by scenes of the Galliard cut and the Gatun dam, which made Gatun lake a "water bridge" 85 feet above sea level. The units of the film deal with the location and sanitation of the canal, the building, and a trip through the canal.

Homer Dill Will Present Talk Tonight

To secure wild goats for the university museum, Homer R. Dill, director, and a party made an expedition to Billy Goat pass a few years ago. He will give an account of the trip this evening at 8 o'clock in the geology auditorium.

Mr. Dill and his party went over the mountain goats in the Cascade mountains more than 125 miles from a railroad station. Their experiences while on the expedition and their observations while there will form the basis of the lecture. Stories told to them by an old prospector will be included.

Color lantern slides showing the mountains, camp sites, and the animals secured will be used to illustrate the lecture.

The address, fourth in a series of museum lectures, is open to the public and will be broadcast over WBSL.

GILMORE Predicts Increase In Enrollment

university is to take proper care of this ever increasing throng of students and to make sure that they are given an adequate educational opportunity—the very best opportunity that can be provided by intelligent and sympathetic cooperation between the university and the parents.

"From the very beginning, the people of Iowa have shown their faith in education. They have provided good schools for their children; they have always been willing to keep them good. Likewise, they have shown their faith in higher education.

"Generously Supported" The State University of Iowa, as an integral part of the school system, has always been generously supported. This support has enabled it to go forward and to meet its new and expanding responsibilities.

"There is no reason to doubt that, regardless of the depression, the people of Iowa will continue to do their part to keep their university good. The history and traditions of the state bear eloquent witness to this fact. The task that lies immediately ahead for all of us is to see that our educational program goes forward unimpeded."

FITZGERALD BOAT HOUSE

"Down by the Union"

SEEN from Old Capitol By TOM YOSELOFF

Modern America: Out on the west side of Iowa river, the children of several university professors decided that patriotism required a Fourth of July parade—with music. So they got together the "gang" of patriots (ranging in ages from about 6 to 10) and practiced for the event. One of the mothers looked from her window at the serious proceedings out doors, and was rather surprised to hear the words of the song which came floating up to her.

The children were singing in various keys and various tunes: "My country, 'tis of thee, Who's afraid of the big, bad, wolf?"

Socrates comes to Iowa: It was probably far too stuffy in university classrooms yesterday. Which, perhaps, accounts for the fact that a group of six or seven students congregated on the campus near the south entrance of Macbride hall yesterday afternoon, sitting and reclining in various postures around an instructor, who was explaining with the aid of a pencil and a notebook something academic. Culture in comfort, says this corner.

Olin Tells Of U. S. Sulphur Development

The rise of the sulphur industry in the United States was described last night by Prof. Hubert L. Olin of the chemistry department, in the fourth of a series of chemistry lectures.

Addressing a group in chemistry auditorium, Professor Olin paid high tribute to the work of Herman Frasch, chemical engineer who was responsible for much of the development of the Texas and Louisiana sulphur deposits.

This developer, accounted for the growth of the industry in the United States, and enabled America to break the monopoly of the Anglo-Sicilian company, Professor Olin said.

The price on sulphur has been raised through the influence of this monopoly, and the new development brought the price down 50 per cent. Mr. Frasch was awarded the Perkins medal in chemistry for his work.

"He has accomplished great things," the speaker said, "and his name is not so great as it deserves to be."

The lecture was illustrated with slides.

The University of Iowa, this department often reminisces, should turn out better "second story" women than any other institution in the United States. We reminisce every time the hazardous stunt of "boosting a girl up a sorority fire-escape" comes to our attention. It's a difficult proposition, I have been told, in houses which have the lowest rung of the fire-escape at some height off the ground. But, it's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and the rule which is intended to bring women in at 10:30 should give the men experience in "boosting" which will some day be invaluable in "second story" occupations.

And consider the valuable experience obtained by the "spigot tender" of our acquaintance last Saturday night. It was after the working day, and a group of men and women fastened a keg of beer securely to the front of an automobile, and went riding. They didn't have time to stop for beer, so one of the men was named traveling bartender. He climbed out on the running board with three glasses every few miles, reached around in front with an expert motion, and reached back three foaming glasses.

When the car returned, it looked as though it had made a sea voyage through "stormy weather" . . .

Drake Faculty Member Dies

Dean Homes Cowper Succumbs After Illness

DES MOINES, July 2 (AP)—Dean Homes Cowper, head of the college of fine arts and professor of singing at Drake university, died today after a brief illness.

Dean Cowper was stricken Saturday with a stomach disorder while at his farm near Indianola and his condition became critical today.

The musician, who was 64, had been at Drake university since 1909. He had appeared with nearly all the principal choral and oratorio societies of the country and was a nationally known musician.

Before turning to music, he was associated with the Imperial Bank of Canada. He was born in Ontario. He taught singing and interpretation in the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago, from 1897 to 1909 and in the Sherwood School of Music from 1900 to 1902, later teaching privately.

THE NEW BOOKS

As the Presses Roll

Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel, "Within This Present," will soon come to the screen. The rights to produce have recently been bought by Universal.

Gertrude Stein, whose writings have caused no little discussion in America, will visit this country next fall to lecture in the universities. She will talk on many phases of art, with such tentative subjects as: "The gradual making of 'The Making of Americans' and its gradual change to something else."

"Pictures, that is painting, and what they mean to me," and "The conception of personality and its expression in portraits, poetry, and tender buttons!"

V. F. Calverton has received three requests from Japan to translate his new book, "The Passing of the Gods." There is a string attached, however—payment will be in yen, not dollars. Mr. Calverton, who lectured on the Iowa campus last year, is going to accept. He has decided that yen are better than nothing.

H. A. Overstreet, who wrote "A Guide to Civilized Loafing," admits there is something ironic in wasting one's leisure time advising others how to use leisure time. He is a member of an NRA committee on this subject.

Epicures and those whose eyes sparkle at the thought of long drinks and long wine lists will be interested in a book about to make its appearance: "The Anatomy of Dessert, With a Few Notes on Wine," by Edward A. Bunyard.

A Family Of The Old South

Unfinished Cathedral, by T. S. Stripling, The Literary Guild, New York.

T. S. Stripling has finished a great trilogy of the American south—a trilogy which has occupied his attention through the last six years, and which has made for itself a place in contemporary literature.

In "Unfinished Cathedral," the proud Valden family, which rose to the heights of wealth and fame after the Civil war, meets an inglorious end in the post-boom period of today. The history of the Valden family began with old man Jimmie Valden in the Civil war period, which Stripling recounted in "The Forge." In "The Store," chosen as last year's Pulitzer prize novel, the new south slowly arose out of the ashes of the war, and Jimmie Valden's son, Colonel Milt, arose to high power with it.

Alabama Land Boom At 90, Colonel Milt is a power in Florence, Ala. In the midst of a frenzied land boom, when everyone else loses money, he still is a great business man, piling up ever higher the fortune which was founded on theft.

Even religion has succumbed to the boom, and a great cathedral is planned—to house the cathedral's bones some day. The cathedral is a symbol of the whole book—of the whole hypocrisy which makes up the new south. There will be pool rooms, swimming pools, restaurants, libraries, auditoriums—all to attract young folks to "religion."

Southern Panoramas This hypocrisy is exemplified by the Rev. Jerry Catlin, nephew of Colonel Milt, the assistant minister, who is as groping and uncertain in the midst of doubts as is his congregation. In Dr. Blankenship, the minister, who measures religion by financial contribution to his cathedral; by Sydna Valden, who had "formed the habit of censoring, suppressing, and changing whatever she really thought. She was a charming lady."

The panorama of the new south moves through the story: Land booms founded on unfounded optimism, lynching mobs and southern "justice" for Negro seducers of important authors have been quite fully represented, whereas, only a few passages from minor authors may be found. One article, a short story, or several poems, as the case may be, are given as indicative of the ability of those contemporary writers that are included.

The reader will be pleased to find, prefacing each of the texts, a short history of the author as well as notes and a general bibliography. These aids along with maps of the expansion of the frontier, of Boston and vicinity, and of the local color regions, tend to obviate the necessity of several supplementary books. Students are enabled to make their own interpretation of American literary history.

The financial summary of the Iowa city public school system for the fiscal year 1933-34 was presented and the budget for 1934-35 was discussed at a meeting of the school board held last evening in the administration building at Iowa City high school.

A cash balance of $129,218.21 was reported in the general fund for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930. Of this amount, $24,848.90 is in the First National bank which is closed and $104,369.31 is in the First Capital National bank. In the schoolhouse fund there is a cash balance of $45,293.45 of which $2,563.61 is in the closed bank and $42,729.84 in the First Capital National bank.

Iver A. Opstad, superintendent of schools, presented the budget for the coming year to the board. No definite action will be taken on the budget until the next regular board meeting July 11.

Upon the recommendation of the board, Herbert Cormack of Pittsburg, Kan., will be offered a contract to fill the position of assistant athletic coach and instructor in mathematics at the junior high school.

A motion was made and carried that all buildings on the Pepper property, which is owned by the Iowa City public school system, be advertised for sale and sealed bids be submitted to the chairman of the buildings and grounds committee by noon July 20. The board retained the right to reject any or all of the bids and the bids must cover the removal of all the buildings on the property and must provide for cleaning up the property and filling in the basement of the house.

ABOUT SPORTS
Canzoneri... One More Chance at Barney Ross... Mack Might Hurl... Cubs Potential Giant Killers.

TONY CANZONERI is now recognized by the New York state athletic commission as the next opponent Barney Ross must meet when he defends his lightweight title in New York.

THEN ROSS came along, fresh from Golden Gloves conquests in Chicago and the Chicago-New York intercity bouts. Ross rose rapidly in the professional ranks, won the lightweight title from Canzoneri, won the junior welterweight, then defeated Jimmy McLarnin, just after his defeat by Ross, seemed to want a return match as quickly as possible.

ANY DAY now we expect to see Connie Mack himself walk out to the bull pen and warm up. He had a weak pitching staff when the season started and further weakened it by sending Bob Kline, a pretty good hurler, to Washington.

In Klein, Cuyler, and Babe Herman the Cubs have one of the most powerful outfields in the National League. Although the operation on Bill Jurges slightly lowered the power of their infield, this weakness should not be felt to any extent.

AN OUTFIELDER with the Seattle Indians of the Pacific Coast league says sauerkraut fills him with pep and ginger. He batted clean-up position and was in a slump until the German diet.

PITCHING feats turned in by Iowa City diamond ball hurlers remind fans of the way a few of them performed last year. Dean Shannon was playing with Iowa City Wholesale Fruit and it was nothing unusual for him to whiff 10 or 12 batters.

Grant drew a bye for the first round and was all set to battle Caughn Anderson of Chicago, but the latter refused to tackle the tiny Atlanta dynamo and defaulted. Tomorrow, however, Grant must clash with a dangerous foe in Walter Hayes of Chicago.

Final Plans Made for Huge Fourth of July Celebration

Varied Program Will Feature Holiday Observance

Final plans for the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Fourth of July celebration tomorrow were completed at a meeting of the committee last night.

Because of bashfulness or lack of interest—the bathing beauty contest scheduled for tomorrow afternoon has been called off, Perry Oakes, who was in charge, said last night.

Extend Invitation
The Junior Chamber of Commerce has extended an invitation to all persons in eastern Iowa to attend the celebration, W. B. Gipple, president of the chamber, said.

Mr. Gipple's statement in regard to the celebration is as follows: "An elaborate program has been planned, one which the junior chamber feels is outstanding above those presented in other years. We are especially proud of the fireworks spectacle which will climax the evening program and believe that this, alone, is well worth attending."

As an added attraction in the afternoon there will be a girls' diamondball game between teams from Coralville and Hills, either before or just following the baseball game.

Sporting Events
The sporting events in the morning will center around the diamondball tournament to be entered by the local league teams.

There will also be a band concert at 10 o'clock by the 25 piece band under the direction of Lloyd Swartley.

The contest featuring the Marshalltown Indians and the Iowa City merchants baseball teams will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The Parkway amusement company will feature rides, shows, and refreshments for the crowds on the midway all day.

Band concerts in the park band stand will be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Dusty Keaton will furnish music for the taxi dance in the afternoon in the park pavilion and for a ballroom dance in the evening, also in the pavilion.

Fireworks Display
The day's celebration will be climaxed by the fireworks display, which, according to the committee, will be the greatest ever attempted in Iowa City. The display is presented by the Thearle-Duffield company of Chicago.

Because of the increased facilities for picnics, the committee invites celebrators to bring their lunches and stay all day at the park.

Police Chief W. H. Bender has made special arrangements to take care of the traffic problem and also to provide parking places for hundreds of cars expected.

Teams entered in the diamondball tournament are: Auto Supply, Fallstaff Beer, Kelly Bros., Boone Coal, Fry Bros., Swamer's, Iowa Supply, A and P Food Stores, Brady's Grocery, and Elks.

Red Cross Group To Give First Aid To Fourth Victims

To give first aid to victims of Fourth of July accidents, the Red Cross will establish a station at the city park tomorrow, Mrs. Martin Pederson, executive secretary, announced yesterday.

A number of volunteer workers, who will be willing to spend a few hours at the station during the day are needed, Mrs. Pederson said. Interested persons are asked to dial 6972 by tonight.

4-H Club Members To Receive Annual Health Examinations

The annual health examinations of all 4-H club members will be given by Dr. J. D. Boyd of Children's hospital beginning July 16.

Members who have taken the examinations before are eligible to enter the health improvement contest in which more than 200 are expected to participate, Robert F. Hager, county club agent, explained.

The schedule of examinations has not been announced. Health reports will be ready about Aug. 1.

Exams Announced For U. S. Positions

The United States Civil service commission has announced competitive examinations for two positions, Frank J. Mezlik, local secretary, said yesterday. The positions and salaries are junior agricultural statistician, $2,000 a year and associate veterinarian, bureau of biological survey of the department of agriculture, $3,200 a year.

Ask Revocation
WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The Duke Power company, one of the country's largest producers of electrical energy, today asked revocation of a public works allotment of $2,767,000 to Greenwood county, S. C., for construction of a publicly-owned power plant, contending it would be nothing but a "governmental subsidy" to a South Carolina textile manufacturer.

AROUND THE TOWN with BILL MERRITT

Marriageable Month

If an increase in the number of June marriages means the return of prosperity, Johnson county is well on the upward climb.

This June there were 48 licenses issued, five more than in June of 1929, last year of prosperity. In June of 1932, marriages numbered only 16.

Inspection
An inspector from the aeronautics division of the department of commerce is expected in Iowa City soon to view the local airport.

Fight Gas and Fire
Members of the fire department donned gas masks yesterday when they were called to the Pohlner grocery to attack a leaky ammonia pipe.

They were also called to the south end of Malden Lane to put out a grass fire started by sparks from a switch engine.

International Air Service
Iowa Citizens can now go to western Canada by air, leaving the local airport at 5:15 p.m. and arriving in British Columbia shortly after breakfast. United Airlines officials announced yesterday.

Kiwanis
Iowa City Kiwanians will hold their regular weekly luncheon in the Jefferson hotel dining room this noon.

Elks Change Date
The regular meeting of the Elks club tomorrow night will be changed to Thursday night, Delmar Sample, exalted ruler, announced yesterday.

County Will Receive FCA Drouth Aid

Corporation May Make Loans to Feeders in District

Because of the continued shortage of rain, Johnson county has been included in drouth areas established by two independent agencies.

Congressman Edward C. Eicher of the first district said yesterday that Johnson county had been placed in the drouth area marked out by the farm credit administration.

As a result of the decision of the FCA, the Production Credit corporation may make loans up to $400 to feeders in the district. A first lien on stock to be fed, or crops to be raised is the security for the loans.

Maximum Amount
The maximum amount that may be borrowed for feed is $4 a head each month for work stock, $3 for cattle, $1 for hogs and 75 cents for sheep and goats.

The counties in the first congressional district, included in the drouth area by the FCA, are Iowa, Johnson, Cedar, Muscatine, Washington, Louisa, Jefferson, Henry, Des Moines, Van Buren and Lee.

Members of the committee for Johnson county are M. W. Davis, George R. Black and Joe Shalla.

Railroad Drouth Area
On June 21, Johnson county was included in the railroad drouth area, entitling grain importers to ship grain into the county at one half the normal rate.

A certificate signed by County Agent S. Lysle Duncan, when presented to the freight agent, entitles the shipper to this discount.

Johnson county will be in the FCA drouth area indefinitely or until the administration feels that relief is no longer needed.

After July 5, the county will be taken out of the railroad drouth area. It may be reinstated later, if present conditions prevail.

$43, City Fire Loss For Month of June

Iowa City's fire loss for the month of June was $43, according to the report filed yesterday by Fire Chief Herman J. Amish. The department answered 18 fire calls and one first aid request.

The fire loss is small, Chief Amish said, considering that buildings endangered had a total valuation of $52,000.

Rockefeller, Born In a Depression 95 Years Ago, Sees History in Lifetime

(By The Associated Press)

John Davidson Rockefeller has seen wars and panics, booms and depressions slide into history as he moved along to his ninety-fifth birthday.

From a Cleveland clerkship that paid him $50 in three months he rose to the title of America's richest man—one of the wealthiest in modern history. When he retired to his serene life of philanthropy, golf and dime-giving, his fortune was estimated at around one billion dollars.

(By The Associated Press)

Rockefeller birthday observations usually are very quiet. Sometimes statements are issued, sometimes not. Highlights of recent birthday statements follow:
1926—"I am grateful every day for the contentment I enjoy in living a quiet and simple life." All telephones were disconnected.

1927—"I am happy to spend my eighty-eighth birthday in a condition of perfect health, full of hope and cheer and gratitude, and good will to everybody." The cake was extra large that year.

1928—"I am in the best of health." Henry Ford gave him a new automobile.

1929—"With perfect health and full of hope and cheer for the future, I have nothing but kindness and good will for everybody. . . . I have every reason to be grateful on my ninetieth birthday." The usual band concert was not held.

1932—"Prosperity has always returned, and will again," he said, and each servant was given a new dime.

1933—"Use the 1932 statement; it's still good," the newspapers were told.

The Civil war rocked the union. . . . Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. . . . Alaska was purchased from Russia. . . . The Franco-Prussian war was declared, Sherman was marching to the sea when Rockefeller and Laura Spelman were marching to the altar.

By 1870, young Mr. Rockefeller's business was one of the largest in Cleveland, then the chief oil refining city in America. That year the Standard Oil company was organized, destined to set a record for American "trusts."

The oil industry was in a chaotic condition, and Rockefeller envisioned the potentialities of efficiency and unity.

Becomes A "King"
Another panic came in 1873, with New York banks closing their doors and the Stock Exchange stopping operations for 10 days.

Next year, 4 year old Charley Ross was kidnapped, never to be returned. . . . The Indian battle of Little Big Horn was fought in Montana. . . . Russia declared war on Turkey in 1877, and in 1878 Rockefeller's interests controlled 90 per cent of American oil refineries.

In the next 20 years, Rockefeller consolidated his position as oil king, amassing millions in money and billions in control. The depressions of '84 and '93 were mere milestones in his forward march.

The French started their abortive attempt to build the Panama canal. . . . Steve Brodie jumped from Brooklyn bridge. . . . The Statue of Liberty was unveiled. . . . Floods swept Johnston, Pa. . . . Coxe's army marched on Washington. . . . The Battleship Maine was blown up. . . . America and Spain went to war.

Giving It Away
Muck-raking became popular, and John D. Rockefeller's great dollar-power drew bitter protests from the "common people." The Supreme Court ordered his Standard Oil company dissolved in 1911. Those were trust-busting days.

Rockefeller retired, his wealth estimated at one billion dollars. In 1912 he was reported to own $160,000,000 in oil stocks. About 10 years later he was credited with owning less than one per cent of stocks in any of the nine Standard companies. How much he has now, Rockefeller has never revealed.

Having built up a great fortune, Rockefeller began to give millions to causes he considered worthy. In this and in the administration of his business he was aided by his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who was born in 1874.

It is estimated Rockefeller, by 1927, had given $500,000,000 for philanthropic and charitable purposes. The bulk of it went to the Rockefeller foundation "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world"; to the General Education board; to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research; and to the Spelman fund, established in memory of his wife, who died in 1915.

Rockefeller's own words explain his attitude toward life:
"I am grateful every day for the contentment I enjoy in living a quiet and simple life."

The simplicity of his life today is in sharp contrast with his eventful business career. He derives keen enjoyment from his golf, and until his illness last winter, he had played almost daily since 1899.

On his birthday 20 years ago he took a lusty swing at the ball and said "I like to see things moving."

Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" exhibit, and the sky ride, will be free to contest winners.

Four Guides
Guides will show and explain the many scientific wonders and various exhibitions. Children will be chaperoned during the entire trip.

Besides the free fair admissions, winners will have meals—breakfast at the hotel and lunch and dinner on the fair grounds—provided, as well as taxi fares and other incidentals.

Persons wishing to enter this contest, and to win free trips to the exposition should call at The Daily Iowan office immediately to get subscription blanks.

Judge Evans Disposes Of Four Cases

James S. Campbell Given 8 Year Term

Four criminal cases on the district court docket for the May term were disposed of yesterday morning by District Judge Harold D. Evans.

James S. Campbell, Negro, who was sentenced to the state penitentiary at Ft. Madison for life on a charge of manslaughter in 1932, was given an eight year term in the penitentiary when he changed his plea to guilty just before beginning his second trial.

Campbell was convicted of second degree murder in 1932 after Annabelle Gross, Negroess, was shot. Campbell claimed that Miss Gross was killed when she wrestled a gun from him when he was attempting to take his own life.

He appealed the case to the supreme court on the grounds that suicide is not a crime in Iowa. The jury in district court previously had been instructed that suicide is a crime in this state, no case of this kind having been acted upon before.

Yesterday County Attorney F. B. Olsen recommended that Campbell's plea of guilty be accepted by the court on the grounds that he could not be tried for a greater offense than second degree murder and that such a trial would be expensive to the county. He also pointed out that

Hayek Announces Guardsmen May Help Land Balloon

Four Are Charged With Intoxication

Four men appeared before Police Judge Harold D. Vestermark yesterday on charges of intoxication.

B. L. Walton was ordered out of town by the judge. Harry Parker and Joe Man received suspended sentences on promises of good behavior. Don Burke was given a 30 day jail sentence.

Dick See Says:—

HURRAY FOR THE FOURTH!

Well, folks, in just a couple of days we'll be celebratin' the Fourth of July. You know, I always liked that day 'cause it seems one day that recalls the fightin' spirit of this country. Those fellers who signed that Declaration of Independence were battlin' odds which were a lot bigger than we ever knew.

But they felt they could lick the world if they had the proper kind of co-operation. They had that spirit and co-operation and they did a pretty good job. If you're wonderin' what's the matter with the American people just look here: In 1776, July Fourth meant a day when the American people had declared their independence, come what may. Now in 1934 July 4th means a lot of firecrackers, a batch of automobile accidents, and dad gettin' his fingers burned settin' off the skyrockets for the kids that night.

Shucks, we can't get no place takin' life that way. We got to get serious, get right down to believin' and practicin' the things that our revolutionary forefathers did. "If we don't hang together, we'll all hang separately." That's just as true in '34 as it was in '76. DICK SEE.

For the Motorist who is going places there are 3,000 Dixie stations at his service. We're ready to serve you at the start with the best in Gasoline and Oil.
