Build Now!

Today 75 men will begin a systematic canvass of Iowa City to obtain pledges from property owners that they will make some improvement in their homes and other property this summer and fall.

It is necessary that all of Iowa City face the facts squarely. Unless something is done in the meantime to take up the slack after jobs created by the federal government have been completed, two or three thousand men and women in Johnson county are going to be without work this winter.

It is not a pleasant prospect. Unless the energies and resources of the community itself can be stimulated to increase business activity and supply jobs for the jobless, the coming winter promises to be no less bleak than those of the last two years...

The burden, therefore, and the responsibility, falls squarely upon the people of each community. If this responsibility is met in the right spirit and with Iowa City's characteristic enthusiasm, there need be little fear for the winter...

Money spent in this way stays in Iowa City. Turning over and over like a snowball, each dollar multiplies itself in beneficial trade and increased employment. In this campaign, Iowa City has nothing to lose and everything to gain. The time to act is now, and the way to act is to build!

Rumors Say 2,000 Killed In Germany

Many Conclude Nazis Not Wholly Frank In Explanation

BERLIN, July 20 (Friday) (AP)—Allegations from abroad that 2,000 Germans have been massacred since the upheaval of June 30 and that prisoners and guards at Dachau concentration camp had been killed off spread rapidly through Germany today...

So far as could be determined they had their basis in mere rumor. Stories of lesser import circulated too, and most of them were promptly denied, but the conclusion remained in many quarters that the government had not dealt sufficiently frankly with the S. A. revolt.

It was felt that internal changes were under way which for want of anything like an explanation created apprehension in such circles as the storm troops. The government has recently taken cognizance of the spread of rumors with officials public announcements...

Impeachment Threats Hang Over Olson

Langer's Friends Seek Reinstatement By Legislature

BISMARCK, N. D., July 19 (AP)—Behind William Langer, ousted governor, powerful political forces concentrated tonight and sparred for time in attempts to reinstate him to office through legislative action.

Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson, acting governor, was in the saddle as head of the state government, but threats of his impeachment by a Langer-controlled legislature faced him. Assemblies Meet The assemblies met at noon today, with a quorum present in the house, but with a quorum lacking in the senate.

Adjourned until Friday afternoon, the two houses will reconvene with the question of their right to assemble hanging over them. Another hectic day of political activity brought out that: Consider Impeachments Langer faction heads are considering impeachment of state officials unfriendly to the ousted chief executive.

National guardsmen, originally used by Langer to maintain him in office by force, will stand behind Olson as long as the state supreme court order declaring him chief executive is in effect.

Scott Drowns In Rescue Try

Iowa River Claims Life Of Local Man Last Evening

Attempting to save his 12 year old son, Wilton Scott, Negro, drowned in Iowa river near picnic point, south of Iowa City, at 6 p.m. yesterday.

The boy, Wilton, Jr., got to shore safely. Efforts by the local fire department to resuscitate Scott met with failure.

Son Calls for Help

Scott, with his wife and son, had finished a picnic on the shore when the boy went wading. Drowning in a deep hole made by sand dredging operations, the boy called for help and Scott, who was able to swim, dived in.

When Scott failed to come up, his wife and son called members of the 186th hospital company, picnicking nearby, and Herman Zimmerer of Corville and Joe Kanak of Iowa City recovered the body after 30 minutes.

45 Years Old Scott, who was about 45 years old, lived in Iowa City for 22 years. His home was at Court and Linn streets, where he operated a shoe repair shop.

He was engaged in this business at various locations here for many years, and also did wallpaper cleaning. The body is at the McGovern funeral home. Funeral arrangements will be made today.

AS MISSING CHILD WAS FOUND

Climaxing a state wide search by thousands, tiny Bobby Connor, 21 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connor, missing four days from his home near Hartsdale, N. Y., was discovered half starved in a thicket by two policemen, a little more than a mile from his home. Here is Bobby bundled up in the arms of a neighbor being rushed to a hospital for treatment; inset, a recent photo of Bobby.

Martin Foresees Leisure As Increasingly Important In Life in Convocation Address

176 Receive Awards As First Term Concludes

A "coming ideal order," in which leisure will play an increasingly important part in men's lives, was foreseen by Prof. Herbert Martin, head of the philosophy department, in an address to graduating students last night. Speaking before an audience of more than 2,000 and a graduating class of nearly 200, the Iowa philosopher discussed the values of solitude.

173 Degrees Three students received certificates and 173 were awarded degrees, as the impressive ceremonies of the annual mid-summer Convocation were concluded.

The degree-seekers and faculty officials in caps and gowns, and the audience gathered under a cloudless sky on the west approach to Old Capitol. A comfortable coolness supplanted yesterday's record heat to make the weather almost ideal.

Termining present day vacations a "by-product of our industrial life," Professor Martin declared the rush of successive periods of work and vacation, which leave little time for solitude and reflection.

"Vacation should mean an opportunity to survey; to view in perspective, to reflect," he said. Solitude, he pointed out, is as necessary and leisure as important to life as work. Great figures in history have been prepared for the future deeds in the world by their solitary reflections, the speaker told his audience.

Jesus, Mohammed, Moses, Fra Giovanni—these were a few of the great men whose life work came to them in their thoughts alone. "Believe the details or not, but..."

Trusty Guard Indicted LITTLE ROCK, Ark., (AP)—A trusty guard was indicted today for first degree murder and the prison official who accompanied him was indicted as an accessory before the fact in the killing of Helen Spence Eaton, escaped convict, July 11.

Reconciled LOS ANGELES, July 19 (AP)—The latest bulletin on the Lupe Velez marital situation tonight was that she and Johnny Weissmuller were reconciled. Neil McCarthy, attorney for the actress, said he would ask Superior Judge Robert W. Kenny tomorrow to strike her divorce complaint from the calendar.

Connor 'Satisfied' HARTSDALE, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—With his son Bobby recovering rapidly from near-starvation, Charles H. Connor said tonight he was "completely satisfied" the baby had been lost in the woods for the entire five days he was missing.

Opposition Voiced WASHINGTON, July 19—Creation of a unified air force—one of the most hotly contested questions in American aeronautical policy—is opposed in the report just made to Secretary Dorn by the special aviation committee headed by Newton D. Baker.

Heat Record For Iowa Set At Knoxville

Mercury Climbs to 113 Degrees as Sun Bakes Midwest

(By the Associated Press) The cry for rain went up again from the parched American grain belt yesterday as 100 degree heat streaked across a score of states and resulted in more than a dozen deaths.

From the southwest, where century or better degree readings have been common for more than a week, came reports that at least a half dozen lives had been lost in the last few days. In Nebraska where crop destruction from July drought following the record breaking spring aridity has surpassed all previous marks, nine have died within the last week.

Two died in New York city which sweltered in 88 degree heat, two more in the sunbaked south, and three fatalities were reported in Minnesota.

Iowa Citizens "just existed" yesterday as the sun turned its hottest blasts of the year on both late and community. After an uncomfortable night, residents yawned and slouched lazily through the afternoon, when the mercury reached a high of 106 degrees.

There was slight relief last night. In spite of a rather refreshing breeze, warm blankets of moist air persisted in lingering indoors. The only two days yet this year comparable to yesterday were the first and the last of June, when temperatures of 105 were recorded at the municipal airport.

With a weather bureau forecast for continued warmth, new highs continued to be recorded over a wide area. Hottest spot was Mexico, Mo., with a reading of 114 degrees but in Iowa a 33-year record was equalled when the mercury touched 113 at Knoxville. A score of cities and towns in the state of Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Illinois also reported 100 degree temperatures.

In Chicago it was 96 without a relieving lake breeze and with an excess humidity which intensified suffering. Many unofficial readings of 100 were reported. At Quincy, Ill., unofficial sun readings gave a maximum of 120 degrees with one prostration reported.

Forest fires assumed a menacing status in Massachusetts and other New England communities where no prospect of rain was offered. Water supplies, already depleted by an unprecedented lack of moisture throughout the middle west became an acute problem in Nebraska. Falls City, a town of 5000 population, saw its source the Nemaha river, virtually shrivel up in the intense heat.

Truce Government' Of Premier Is Split Wide Open

Paris, July 19 (AP)—A knock-down political fight between right and left members today brought the "truce government" of Premier Gaston Doumergue near a crisis.

The dead hand of Serge Stavisky stirred up a storm which threatened to split the ranks of the cabinet wide open. Former Premier Andre Tardieu, who charged that the party of his fellow-minister, Edouard Herriot, knew about the Stavisky syndicate, was represented as insisting that he will stay in the cabinet as long as Herriot does.

BRITISH OUTLINE PLANS

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Outlining the plans for British air defense expansion, made necessary, the government believes, by failure of the powers to agree on disarmament, Stanley Baldwin told the house of commons today that 41 new squadrons will be created.

PLANES START HOP

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 (AP)—In precise formation, six grey hulled seaplanes arose from Paradise Cove in the bay here today and departed for Dutch Harbor, Alaska, on a massed flight of 7,000 miles from San Diego and return.

$31,000,000 in Allotments WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—In a last minute effort to clear his desk before starting a vacation tomorrow, Secretary Ickes today approved allotments of $31,286,405 to 256 non-federal public works projects.

Oakland General Strike Ends; Minneapolis Seeks End

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 (AP)—The general strike of 100,000 labor union members in the Metropolitan San Francisco area was called off today, and the Pacific coast waterfront crisis shifted with lightning-like rapidity to Portland, Ore.

The San Francisco labor steering committee which engineered the mass walkout of some 60,000 union men here, voted 191 to 174 for immediate return to work of all unions that won, on strike in sympathy with Longshoremen and maritime workers.

Oakland Strike Ends A few hours later union labor in Oakland voted to return to work tomorrow, thus ending the strike of 47,000 workers in Alameda county.

Meanwhile, Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon ordered out 1,100 national guardsmen to "prevent loss of life and bloodshed" in event of disorders when efforts are made by shippers to open the strikebound port of Portland.

Threaten Walkout The Portland strike strategy committee followed the mobilization order by voting to call a general strike if the troops are moved from Camp Withycombe, about 10 miles from Portland into the city.

Governor Meier previously had said the militiamen would be sent into Portland only in event regular police were unable to cope with the situation. The rush of union and non-union men returning to work after the action of the San Francisco labor committee almost assumed the proportions of a stampede.

Rush Back to Work Even before the strike was called off thousands of workers had started back to their jobs, and public officials professed to see in this the collapse of the strike under the weight of public opinion.

The strike of 7,000 truck drivers at Minneapolis entered its third day. Reports that employers were planning an early movement of trucks stirred the pickets to new activity. Federal mediators under the Rev. Francis J. Hass continued to seek a settlement.

Settlement of Marine Strike Sought

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Pleased at the trend of affairs, the administration tonight turned its attention to the settlement of the original cause of San Francisco's general strike—the longshoremen's and maritime union walkout. Secretary Perkins withheld comment on the vote of the general strike committee in the California city to call off sympathy walkouts but apparently she had anticipated that development. It was said that plans to concentrate on the longshoremen's and maritime dispute had already been made.

State Agents Arrest Six

DES MOINES (AP)—Six persons were arrested by state agents today in connection with the theft July 7 of a truck containing $6,400 worth of cigars near Council Bluffs. No charges had been filed late tonight.

The Solution Of The Ostrich

FROM San Francisco has come a cry that the strike there is not of American making—it is the work of "alien radicals"; from Washington comes word that the American Federation of Labor has disclaimed responsibility for the strike and has laid it at the door of communist agitators; William Green, president of the federation, said the same thing in effect; former Governor Kohler of Wisconsin blamed the strike of his workers on "outside influences"; and, to top the thing off, Secretary of Labor Perkins has promised that alien agitators will be deported.

It is easier to shift the blame to communism or Fascism than to look the facts squarely in the face. But, admitting for the sake of argument, that things are as they have been pictured in the last few days—that the strikes are, indeed, the work of communists and whatnot—the solution is surely not an attempt at deportation.

Attempting to keep out labor dissatisfaction without a firm capital-labor relationship is like attempting to push back the waters of the ocean with the hands. Like the ostrich, America is planning to bury her head in the sand, in order not to see the dangers that face her in world relationships.

That is rather the vice of Fascism and Communism. In Italy and Russia the masses are not allowed to hear or see anything which might be considered "radical." It is very likely that, should an American attempt to spread republican propaganda in those countries, he would be seized and deported.

But it is surely not the solution in a nation which boasts of its freedom of speech and of the press. The United States would be in a sorry plight if the freedom to propagandize were cut off. It is better that undesirable propaganda be circulated than that the press and the right of speech be gagged.

The solution of the labor situation must go much deeper than that. It must find the roots of the difficulties and establish a mode of solution which will make recurrence to strikes unnecessary. It must find the equitable point for both classes and create working conditions which will tend to make labor immune to the too wild promises of radicalism.

Langer—America's Revolutionist

IF THE events of the last few weeks in North Dakota have been of any significance at all, it has been to indicate that not even the United States is safe from the competitive scramble for power which seems to characterize inevitably all republican governments.

The claims of rival executives in the countries of South and Central America have long been the source of amusement to complacent America. We laughed off the so-called football game revolutions and the president-for-a-day attitude, and blamed it to "Latin temperament." Such a thing could never happen in the United States, we said, for we are a nation of solid stolid Anglo-Saxons and Tentons.

That was B. L.—before Langer. For the North Dakota governor is putting on a show which puts to shame the football revolutions of Nicaragua and Mexico. And complacent America can now wonder about the matter of Latin temperaments and our own solid stolidity.

Governor Langer has what can be termed nothing except audacity. The audacity to be a candidate in the primaries—and be renominated; the audacity to continue to hold his office at any cost; the audacity to order out troops for his own use; and all this after a federal court had found him guilty on a conspiracy charge and passed sentence on him.

Today the nation has the picture of two men fighting for control of a state—for all the world like a South American revolution. Lieutenant Governor Olson—or is it governor?—seems to have the federal authority on his side; Governor Langer—or isn't it governor?—has the undeniable support of a large percentage of North Dakotans.

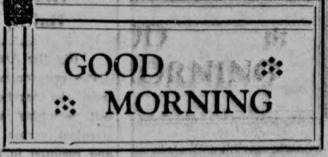

It's a great show. And one to make even the most ardent supporter of Anglo-Saxon republicanism begin to wonder.

End of a Saga

(From the New York Herald-Tribune)
Somewhere in Bermuda the carriages, hansom and traps, victorias and landaus of old John Gottlieb Wendel are reported to roll dustily over the white coral highways, and in their exiled anonymity they will soon be nearly the last tangible reminders of a New York saga of the decades just ended. Miss Ella Wendel is gone; Toby, her white woolly dog, came to the end of his pampered days a few months ago, and now the Wendel house, New York's mansion of reticence, will soon be only a Fifth avenue memory of happy and departed times. Not that the Wendel house had especially happy associations, but the nostalgic past, and it can be achieved in New York over night, is invariably enchanting in retrospect.

Probably the ghosts of those that once, in top hats and satin-faced frock coats, sat in the windows of the Union League across the street will mourn the passing of the plain red-brick structure, with its familiar fanlight over the door, even as they must mourn the transplanted grandeur of their own club; still, however, a Murray Hill institution. Romance was associated with the Wendels if only because they minded their own affairs to a point that seemed secretive, and what went on behind those shutters over the avenue must have been the subject of speculative consideration by the observers in the Union League windows. Whatever the details of that cloistered and shadowy existence in the midst of the business of a great city, they were neither as fantastic nor as sinister as the author of "Double Door" would have us believe. But the household certainly was, in its way, eccentric. In any event, the Wendel saga is ended, and the house is now to be replaced by a modern structure of granite and chromium and glass plate. Doubtless it will in its own time come down to the distress of the sentimental, who will see vanishing with it a last symbol of the romantic New York of the '30s.

Carefully read, the state Republican platform adopted at Des Moines Wednesday is the most flattering endorsement of the Democratic administration yet formulated.

It would be folly, of course, for a Republican convention to approve in so many words the record of a Democratic administration, and it is only natural that the resolutions should bristle with "deep concerns," "deep regrets," "amazements," "alarmings," and "deplorings."

But the noteworthy fact remains that in the entire statement of policy there is but one instance in which the convention specifically disapproved a Democratic measure, and offered a substitute to take its place.

In this instance the Republicans rightly denounce the state-wide sales tax, and offer instead the state income tax which has been a part of their platform since 1932.

The sales tax "is wrong in principle," they point out, "for the reason that it presumes that a man's tax ability is measured by the money he must spend to live, rather than upon the money he earns. . . . The fairest tax is a tax based upon ability to pay."

The Democrats are going to find it difficult in the campaign to justify the sales tax, because it is unquestionably wrong in principle and in practice. Attempts have been made and will be made to justify it on the basis of expediency, as the only effective way in which to raise enough money quickly to offset increased expenditures for relief. But in this case expediency is at best a poor excuse.

But aside from this single measure, practically every statement in the platform is an endorsement, in negative terms, of the Democratic record. From the old age pension to the NRA, the Republicans register approval.

"Where our federal and state governments have wisely employed funds to relieve want and distress, and promote sound recovery measures, we approve." But they deplore the "stifling of individual initiative" and disapprove of the government going into private business "to the detriment of our own people."

Thus, while endorsing the acts and measures themselves, they throw up a political smoke screen of generalizations about private initiative and government in business. What is meant by these accusations the reader is left free to guess. And, approving the expenditure of huge sums for relief and recovery, they deplore the resulting public debt, for which the Democrats are to blame.

In the statement that "We can see no justice in cutting veterans' allowances and adding millions to other channels of expenditure," one detects a sad baiting for votes in a direction that holds extreme danger to the country.

Though one looks with most hope toward Republican pronouncements concerning the rehabilitation of agriculture, the long statement in Wednesday's platform is barren. In phrases which carefully refrain from making commitments, it is little more than a rehearsal of agriculture's importance, and of the necessity for parity between farm and industrial prices. No new method is suggested for attaining this result.

Evidently the Republicans will center their opposition in the campaign upon the sales tax issue. Certainly it is here that their greatest strength will lie.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—The marital status of Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller is still Hollywood's most exciting topic of the day. With Lupe's divorce complaint only days old, the Mexican star showed up for rehearsals at the Columbia studio with Johnny in tow. Members of "The Girl Friend" troupe report affectionate scenes between the two with Lupe calling for her "darleeng" every few breaths.

Another episode in the diverting comedy was staged when the "estranged" couple attended the prize fights together at the Hollywood stadium, with Director W. S. Van Dyke along as extra man. "I don't know whether I am supposed to be chaperon or referee," was the director's dry comment.

Very dramatic, the scene that took place on a Warner Brothers set. Since her family fortunes were affected by the market crash, Mar-corita Hellman, Los Angeles society girl and daughter of Banker Marco Hellman, has been working in motion pictures under contract to Warners. The other day, she was doing a small part in the film, "I Sell Anything," featuring Pat O'Brien. The action called for the hero to step out of a swank automobile and the director instructed the property department to provide one. Presently, a luxurious machine rolled upon the set. Most of the company scarcely noticed its arrival. But Marcorita did. For she recognized the car as one that formerly belonged to her father.

The old story of the star who had her number changed and then forgot it pops up again—and with Alice Brady as the victim. The first result was that Alice had to telephone a neighborhood grocery and have them send a message to her chauffeur. Later that evening, she realized she had failed to give the new number to her director. Fearing that the studio had been unable to reach her to give the time of her daily call, she got up at 6:30 in the morning (her favorite rising time between pictures is 3:30 p.m.) and dashed to the R-K-O studio to report at 8 o'clock on the set with make-up on—and only to be told that her call was 7 p.m.

It's hard to remember what a kid Jean Parker is. But this incident will give you an idea. M. G. M.'s newest star entertains a lot of young people at her home. One of them is Aubrey Austin, a student at a Hollywood military school. The other day, after he left, Jean found a note and a class pin. Her bashful admirer didn't have the nerve to offer it any other way. Jean was equally embarrassed about the way to return the pin. She finally did it this way. When the boy called, she left the pin and a note on the hall table at her home. Then she went upstairs and stayed in her room until he found it.

SEEN from Old Capitol

By TOM YOSELOFF

A few solitary reflections on Convocation last night:

Yesterday afternoon's heat was so terrific—it was so terrific, in fact, that it almost played havoc with plans for Convocation. The workmen arranging the chairs on Old Capitol campus. The sun beat down on the chairs intended for use of faculty officials until it raised "blisters" on the varnish. Came the solution: The workmen turned the chairs upside-down until evening, and saved the day.

But that wasn't all. It seems that the microphones intended for use in amplifying the speakers' voices are sealed in wax. The heat was so great that Carl Menzer, guardian of those things, spent a day of worrying for fear it would melt the wax.

But when evening came, the weather gods evidently conspired with Prof. Frederic Higbee, director of convocations. For the sky had no wispy thought of rain, the air was reasonably cool, the gathering reasonably impressive, and this department was reasonably pleased.

And some Convocation thoughts while sitting:

The band is getting some noisy competition from a motorcycle—or is it a squadron of motorcycles? . . . And it is something of a coincidence. Professor Martin has just said: "Only those who have eyes and ears will see and hear," and the sound of an airplane is coming to the audience. Ears having heard, eyes are turning upward. . . . Attention Professor Wylie: Approximately four minutes after Professor Martin had concluded his words on the cleansing power of nature, a meteor about the size of a baseball flashed through the eastern sky.

Consider the difficulties of that professor who saved his dog from an untimely death a few days ago. It seems he had been accustomed to feeding strychnine on raisins—so I have heard—to moles whenever possible. But the dog got ahead of a mole on one mouthful, and was on the brink of death.

After various home remedies had been tried, the animal was rushed desperately to a veterinarian, where the poison was removed. However, Fido—or Bozo, or Reginald—was not a bit relieved. In fact, he seemed to resent the whole thing and continued being sick. The professor passed a worried night, and if every grammatical error in the stories turned in by his class the next day were overlooked, it is easily understandable. For the next morning Fido—or B. or R.—was again his frolicsome self.

Rumor has it that Prof. Mason Ladd of the college of law has solved a legal question in a manner with which his colleagues in the building can not agree. It seems that flies were gaining illegal entrance and were persona non grata. So the wise professor bought screens for his windows—the only ones used on the law building.

But everyone else is in favor of sending the case to a court of higher appeals. For Professor Ladd used the screens only at night, allowing the insects free entrance during the day. Having spread through the building, they have made themselves something of a nuisance. And that's where the matter stands now . . .

Body Discovered In Field Identified As Californian

SIoux CENTER, July 19 (AP)—Authorities here late Thursday afternoon identified the body of a man who was found in an oats field, evidently a victim of the heat, as Walker Sanborn, 45, of California.

President Gilmore Addresses Class at Convocation Dinner

Educational Factors Explained To Graduates

Addressed by the new university president, President Gilmore was introduced by Dean Paul G. Packer, director of summer sessions, from a long curved speakers' table against a leaf-tinted white tulle. Entrance to the river room at Iowa Union, where the dinner was given, was achieved by passing beneath a graceful white arbor whose pillars and lattice roof were twined with greenery. Soft, multi-colored spot lights illuminated the dining room where more than 300 candidates for degrees, their guests, and faculty members were served. Ferns decorated the long tables and bouquets of pale gladioli, the speakers' table.

At Speakers' Table
Seated at the speakers' table were the following guests: President and Mrs. Gilmore, Dean and Mrs. Packer, Prof. and Mrs. Herbert Martin, Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, Dean George F. Kay, Dean Wilber J. Tresters, Dean and Mrs. Chester A. Phillips, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Rose, Prof. and Mrs. Rollin M. Perkins and Mrs. Carl Seashore, Jr., of Grand Island, Neb., Prof. and Mrs. F. G. Higbee, Prof. and Mrs. Fred E. Holmes, Prof. and Mrs. Vance Morton and Mrs. Virgie Claxton, aunt of Mrs. Morton, Prof. Harry G. Barnes, Prof. M. Willard Lampe, and Dean Carl E. Seashore.

Text of President Gilmore's Address

The following is the text of an address by President Eugene A. Gilmore delivered to graduates in the July Convocation at the traditional graduates' dinner in Iowa Union last night:

On the eve of a Convocation which marks the completion of a period of formal education, three thoughts are worth pondering: (1) the tendency to rely too much upon the men processes of education; (2) the failure to understand that education is an individual achievement; (3) the failure to recognize that education is continuous and extends beyond the period of school attendance.

"Education should be distinguished from the instrumentality through which it may be attained. There are forms or systems of education with method, content and specific aims. Education may be described as an organized process for the introduction of the individual to the accumulated knowledge and experience of the race; a system or process of inculcating ideas and developing skills and facilities by the use of selected materials and following certain techniques. This may be called formal as distinguished from informal education. For formal education as thus defined the American people have an enthusiasm and zeal that is amazing. We have profound faith in the energizing, vitalizing and transforming power. We believe in its potency to solve the problems of the individual; to give him the key to self-satisfaction, position, and wealth. This formal education, operating through systems and institutions with organized curricula and carefully selected material, begins with the preschool and extends through primary, intermediate and high school grades on through college and through the university, with its graduate, professional and technical schools. Thus, the individual spends his days in this great educational organization from his earliest years through and well beyond the traditional age of majority and maturity.

"We must be careful, however, not to mistake form for substance and lure ourselves into the belief that there is magical power in the mere process of education. Mankind has always been prone to ascribe certain powers to the performance of incantations, rites and ceremonies, fondly believing that with the performance of these comes the realization of the desired end. A period of sojourn in the classroom, passing through academic halls, receiving certificates and diplomas, are fondly assumed to work some wonderful transformation in the individual and to release him from his limitations, to reveal his powers, to endow him with the potentialities of happiness and success. In education as in religion, there are certain intangible qualities—indispensable and potent—which no amount of observance of formalities can supply. 'Being' educated is too often confused with 'getting' educated. Acquiring credits is confused with acquiring culture. If one may be allowed to parody: 'Good teacher, what may I do to be educated?' 'Thou knowest the requirements for a degree: Take English I and II, mathematics, a foreign language, a science, complete your major and minor, and acquire 120 credits.' To which the young student replied: 'All these I have done from my freshman year up.' 'Yet lackest thou one thing.' 'Think not on credits and degrees.

Seek culture and understanding, and strive earnestly for wisdom.

"The second thought worth pondering is that education is a personal achievement, and requires a continuous and definite concentration on one's self. Education is not an altruistic undertaking. It is not a collective activity. Real education always has its center in the individual. There are two words it is well to distinguish, but which are often used interchangeably: "egotism" and "egotism." They are not entirely synonymous. Egotism means mere conceit, braggadocio, vanity, and empty self worship. No one would commend this. Egoism, however, connotes a wise and genuine self-interest; a just appreciation of one's own worth; a firm belief in one's self; a conviction that the best development of self is the highest form of altruism. This development can never come from a mere process or system of education, however good the system and however faithfully its methods are observed. If it comes at all, it will come as the result of systematic and intelligent effort toward self-cultivation.

"In thus emphasizing the personal character of education, it necessarily follows that education is not to be thought of as confined to any particular period of life. Certainly it should not be confined to school days. We are so well organized educationally and are given so much to following our system, to doing the routine tasks of the curriculum, that upon graduation we are apt to have a reaction and to give up all systematic self-culture. There is always a risk when one leaves academic halls and passes beyond the systematic regime of the school that there may be a relapse. Even for the best of us there must be a conscious effort if we would escape fossilization. Reading the daily newspapers, perusing the current periodicals, covering even a respectable number of current books, may not preserve us from becoming merely contemporaneous.

"The only justification for the university is that it has provided for the student opportunities for self-cultivation and has inspired him to utilize these opportunities to the full measure of his capacity. If these opportunities have been of the right sort and have been utilized, the student should leave the university with a rich and sufficient cultural philosophical background of life. This is vastly more significant than the acquisition of information or of vocational skill. There is too much feverish anxiety about what one is going to do when he leaves college rather than about how one is going to live. Education, if it has been worth while, should have shown a way of living; not merely a way of making a living. If one is really to live after leaving college, to have the enduring satisfactions which come from appreciation and interest in cultural values, he must do more than be merely contemporaneous and vocational in his outlook and interest; he must, through systematic reading and study, keep his cultural background fresh and productive and seek to enrich and extend it. If the university has helped him in acquiring his background, it can likewise help him in the never-ending, informal post-graduate education. The extension courses and the summer sessions should be thought of as something more than realize that insight and inspiration came to those sons of the desert as they lived close to nature's heart," Professor Martin asserted.

Vacations today do not mean an opportunity for leisure reflection, he said. They are made up of a mad rush to cover as much distance as possible.

"The vacation is ruined for pater familias if his automobile does not register 500 miles a day on his vacation, and the tourist goes out to cover Europe in 30 days. Then they come back to work to recuperate."

Solitude, he suggested, does not necessarily imply living apart from the world.

"Solitude is the right to claim and order selfhood. It is the sign on one's door: 'Do not disturb.'"

In place of this order which "places men on the defensive," Professor Martin predicted the coming of a time when "work, vacation, and leisure will ultimately meet and merge."

"The invasion of the machine will decrease our work and increase the hours of leisure," he said.

"Training for the use of this leisure is becoming an increasing obligation of education. It may even supplant vocational training," the speaker concluded.

The exercises started with the traditional procession of graduates and faculty in academic costume. Beginning from Iowa Union following the graduates' dinner, the procession marched to Old Capitol campus while a band under the direction of Prof. Charles Boardman Richter played the processional. The band also played an overture, "The Barber of Seville," and the recessional.

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, head of the political science department, served as master of ceremonies. Candidates for degrees and certificates were presented by the deans of the various colleges and scrolls were conferred by President Eugene A. Gilmore for the first time. Invocation and benediction was by Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion. Last night's ceremonies concluded the first term of the thirty-fifth summer session.

Officials See Increase Over Last Summer

Classes for Five Weeks Session to Start Monday

With the awarding of 176 degrees and certificates to University of Iowa graduates last night, the first term of the thirty-fifth summer session came to a close, and attention will be turned today to registration for the second term.

Though registration materials have been available to prospective students all week, formal registration and payment of fees will begin at 1 o'clock this afternoon. It is expected that enrollment will be practically completed by tomorrow afternoon.

Obtain Materials
Several hundred students have already obtained registration materials, and although university officials would not estimate the probable enrollment for the second term, they indicated that expectations are that it will be far above that of last summer's second term.

As usual, registration will continue through next week for those students who are unable to complete their enrollment by tomorrow afternoon.

Rooms Available
Rooming quarters will be available for students at the university dormitories, several fraternity and sorority houses, and in private homes. Lists of approved rooms and apartments are now ready at the university housing service in Iowa Union, Prof. Fred Holmes, director, announced.

Though the number of courses offered will be somewhat reduced in the second term, classes will be taught in nearly all departments of liberal arts and several professional colleges.

Classes Begin Monday
Classes will begin Monday at 8 a.m., and will continue until Aug. 23, when the annual Convocation will conclude the summer session.

There will then be a vacation period of about four weeks before the beginning of the registration term for the academic year.

Physical Education Students May Carry on Activities At Playground Throughout Year

Dean Rienow Reveals Temporary Plans For Work

Students from men's and women's physical education departments of the University of Iowa may carry on supervised play activities for Iowa City children throughout the fall and winter if present plans materialize, Robert E. Rienow, dean of men, announced yesterday.

According to Dean Rienow, who is directing the use of student emergency relief administration funds here, students will be given employment in fields related to their academic interests wherever possible.

"Would Benefit"

"We have a recreational center here," he said, "and I think that physical education students, recommended by their department heads, would benefit themselves by supervising various activities connected with the center.

According to Luella Reckmeyer, director of the supervised playground and the recreational center, this plan would enable the center to greatly extend its work. The center, she explained, must close the Longfellow playground in three weeks because of limited funds.

May Work Out Program

If students aid the work however, a program of supervised sports and handicraft activities may be worked out for the fall and winter. Principals of local schools are willing to permit supervised play on school grounds after the schools close in the afternoon, she said.

Outdoor activities will stop during the winter, and children will start a program of indoor games at the center on S. Linn street. "Student help would permit us to do much more than we can ever hope for on our present budget," Miss Reckmeyer said last night.

Miss Reckmeyer will meet with Dean Rienow in the near future to discuss further plans.

Iowa Citizens unanimously agreed yesterday that the heat (or was it the humidity?) was the worst since too many years back to remember. Most persons just gave up trying and loafed all afternoon.

No Blanks

The county old age pension board ran out of application blanks yesterday and applicants were turned away from the city hall, where petitions for aid are being filed out. New blanks are expected this morning, so that the work may continue this afternoon. Filing of applications will be, after this week, on every Wednesday, from 4 to 5 p. m. until all are in, according to Dr. D. F. Fitzgerald, commission chairman.

Al Smith Makes Peace With Tammany; Confers With Head

(Copyright, 1934 by The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 19—Al Smith, the "happy warrior" of other days, made his peace today at the Tammany wigwam.

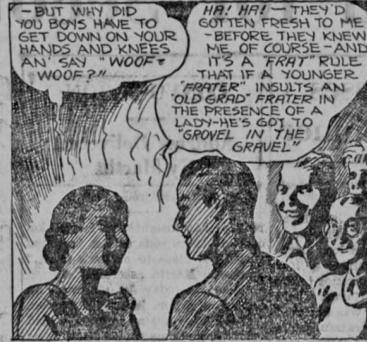

The former governor, estranged from Tammany hall in the turbulent reign of John F. Curry, returned to give his advice and counsel to the new leader, youthful but cautious James J. Dooling.

This action presaged speedy accomplishments of a new charter for New York city, consolidating the out-moded, over-lapping municipal and county governments.

"I had a talk with the new leader," Smith said at his office in the Empire State building. "We discussed the constitutional amendments for a new form of city government. I found his views were very sound. He expressed the desire to be helpful and I think he'll come along in fine shape. He's coming to see me next week for a longer discussion."

Evans Named Candidate For Bench by Demo Convention

Republican Incumbent Endorsed for Eighth District Post

Judge Harold D. Evans, Republican incumbent, was nominated candidate to the eighth district bench by Democrats meeting in the court house yesterday morning.

Judge Evans will have no opposition in the fall election, having been nominated by both parties. The name of a candidate for district judgeship has never before appeared on both Republican and Democratic tickets in this district.

Resolutions Approved

A resolution, pointing out that both major parties are now represented in the district bench and that it is to the best interests of good government to keep politics out of judicial elections, was approved by delegates from Johnson and Iowa counties.

Praise of Judge Evans and his record was expressed by several delegates to the convention.

The Democratic nomination of Judge Evans, party members indicated, is an attempt to call a truce to constant political fights for the judgeship. Republicans will probably endorse Judge James P. Gaffney of Williamsburg, Democrat, if he seeks nomination in two years.

"Competent Judges"

J. M. Otto, head of the resolutions committee, stated: "We have two highly competent judges in this district, one representing each party, and it appears wise to continue this plan. We want to keep the judiciary as far removed from politics as possible."

E. B. Volkmer opened the convention and William R. Hart took the presiding chair.

Diselose High Movie Wages

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The motion picture industry, even while suffering a loss of $19,539,393 last year, was shown today to have given 110 people larger salaries in 1933 than that received by President Roosevelt.

Three others equalled Mr. Roosevelt in the salary he would have received without his government pay cut—$75,000.

The peak yearly pay check for the industry, $215,000, was paid to an unnamed actor. The second highest, a salary of $206,250, went to an "artist" who received $10,000 a week when he or she was working.

These figures were contained today in a report on NRA's six months study of the producing, distributing and exhibiting branches of the film industry.

The inquiry into the salaries paid film stars was ordered by the president when he suspended provisions of the motion picture code making payment of "unreasonable excessive inducements to talent" an unfair trade practice. He suspended also the adjourned proviso setting up a clearing house to prevent "star raiding" by producers.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, NRA division administrator, who directed the investigation, recommended in his report to Hugh S. Johnson the continued indefinite suspension of the code provision dealing with salaries. He suggested the creation of a committee to report on whether film artists' talent should not work for a minimum salary base and a percentage of receipts on their pictures.

Hosiery Mills May Get Eagle

NRA Comes to Terms With Tennessee Mills

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—NRA has reached an understanding with the Harriman hosiery mills which is expected to result in restoration of the blue eagle to the Tennessee firm and a resumption of operations returning more than 600 workers to the payroll.

A formal announcement was forecast within 24 hours.

The mills, located at Harriman, Tenn., were shut down in June after the owners through T. Asbury Wright, vice president and counsel, served notice the plant could not operate longer without the blue eagle.

The firm's NRA insignia was ordered removed in early April by Hugh S. Johnson.

Debt Moratorium Setup For Iowa Completed At Meeting Yesterday

DES MOINES, July 19 (AP)—A program to place the Frazier-Lemke debt moratorium law in effect in Iowa was completed today in a conference attended by farm debt coordinators from the nine Iowa districts and several members of county farm debt advisory committees.

H. L. Bowman, chairman of the Iowa farm debt advisory council, called the conference, the state coordinators will work in districts of 11 counties each, with the county advisory boards. According to Bowman, every effort will be made to settle debts without resort to the Frazier-Lemke act, before debtors are placed under its provisions.

Coordinators present were: First district, W. W. White, Spirit Lake; second district, A. W. Wolf, Hampton; third district, Reed Carl, Tipton; fourth district, C. W. Moore, Urbana; fifth district, H. E. Cornish, Perry; sixth district, Adman Bowers, LeMars; seventh district, Quinton Wood, Logan; eighth district, C. E. Malone, Atlantic; ninth district, William Griffin, Riverside.

Poland Flood Waters Recede

WARSAW, July 19 (AP)—Receding flood waters in southern Poland today left behind a scene of devastation over a wide area in which 120 bodies have been recovered, while 180 persons were reported missing and were feared to have perished.

The rain ceased after three weeks and the sun shone upon the section stricken with the most destructive flood in the history of the nation. Traffic was resumed on some railroad lines to points which have been entirely cut off.

A huge wave of water was sweeping down the Vistula basin today, but in the lower shores of the river are well-banked, no great difficulties were expected. The crest was expected to reach Warsaw Saturday.

Prosecution Decided Upon Davenport, July 19 (AP)

Prosecution of violators of the Iowa liquor law in lower courts, with injunctions in flagrant cases and where initial fines failed to discourage offenders, has been determined upon by state and county law enforcement agencies, it was announced today by Leon A. Grapes, Scott county attorney, after a conference with Leslie E. Francis, counsel for the Iowa liquor control commission.

CITY-WIDE Renovizing Campaign Starts Today

women to the unemployed list, and an increase of unemployed from rural districts, the need for some stimulus to employment was painted as imperative.

Dr. Bywater, recounting his experience in directing relief work through government agencies in this county, said it is "absolutely necessary that something be done" to take care of stranded families this winter. "The people of the United States are going to take care of everyone in this country," he said. "If it is not done one way, it will be done another."

He endorsed the renovizing campaign as an effective means of providing work and at the same time improving the community.

Mr. Porter, who directed a similar campaign in Kansas City last year, explained how the work was done and recounted the progress of campaigns in eastern cities.

The second purpose of the campaign, the speakers explained, is to stimulate business and improve the community generally. Each dollar spent in building improvements creates, it was estimated, at least $10 worth of new business in the city.

Mayor Harry D. Breene said that it was a "source of great satisfaction" to him that citizens of Iowa City always were ready to cooperate for the relief of distress and to better conditions in the city.

Prof. C. M. Updegraff of the college of law of the University of Iowa acted as toastmaster at the banquet.

Tree "Shelter Belt" 1,300 Miles Long Urged to Aid Crops in Drought Regions

Believe Plan Would Increase Rainfall, Prevent Erosion

By F. B. COLTON (Associated Press Science Writer)

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strip of the United States 100 miles wide and 1,300 miles long will undergo an artificial "change of climate" if President Roosevelt approves a plan to plant "shelter belts" of trees on the prairies of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Should the plan be adopted, the forest service believes it will increase rainfall in the area, help prevent severe dust storms and wind erosion such as was recently experienced there and aid the soil in retaining moisture for the benefit of crops. An executive order from the president would be required to put the project, sponsored by the American Tree association, into effect.

While trees cannot prevent the cycles of dry and wet years that have been occurring and will continue to occur in this region, extending from the Canadian border to the Texas panhandle, the forest service believes "shelter belts" can materially reduce the evil effects of drought. It has reported favorably on the plan to the White House.

Shelter Belt Area The area where trees would be planted, according to a preliminary outline by the backers of the plan, would be starting at the Canadian line, the strip would have as its boundaries in North Dakota Bismarck on the west and Valley City on the east; in South Dakota Pierre on the west, Huron, east; Nebraska, McPherson, west, Kearney, east; Kansas, Garden City, west, and Pratt, east; Oklahoma, Beaver county, west, Harper county, east. The southern end goes as far west as Pampa, Tex., and east to Arapaho, Okla., with the southern limit at the town of Childress, Tex.

Rain Increase Seen

The forest service says tests have shown that forests increase rainfall from one to 25 per cent, depending on local conditions. The trees send moisture into the air, which then may condense and fall back as rain. On the steppes of Russia in the last century 5,000 acres of forest were planted, and tests made after the trees had grown to good size showed that from 16 to 23 per cent more rain fell over the new forest than over the open steppes.

"Forests increase both the abundance and frequency of local precipitation (rain) over the areas they occupy, the excess of precipitation as compared with that over adjoining unforested areas amounting in some cases to more than 25 per cent," says the service.

Air Currents Moistened

"Forests in broad continental valleys enrich with moisture the prevailing air currents that pass over them, and thus enable larger quantities of moisture to penetrate into the interior of the continent. "Observations on the influence of wind breaks upon crops have shown that the percentage of moisture saved within an area 12 times as wide as the height of the trees may amount at different wind velocities to from 11 to over 40 per cent."

For many years the forest service has urged planting of shelter belts in the prairie regions and since 1924 has distributed young trees to farmers who wished to plant them. Scattered shelter belts already exist in the region where the large-scale plantings are advocated.

to Chicago. No one even so much as gave us a second glance."

The elder Dillinger, who was threshing, with the aid of a couple of neighbors on the day he was interviewed, said it hardly was necessary for the family to read the newspapers to keep in touch with the latest news about the boy.

"Hardly anything happens like that bank robbery at South Bend the other day (July 2) but what people begin coming here again, from federal agents on down, the elder Dillinger said. "They tell us everything Johnny is supposed to have done. It's always news to us, for we haven't heard from him."

Mrs. Hancock said federal authorities and others were wasting their time watching the mails. "Johnny knows they are watching the mails," she said. "He is too smart to try to communicate with us that way."

Visitors to both the elder Dillinger's home and that of Mrs. Hancock say they have been treated courteously. Each, however, comes away with the feeling that every member of the family has been impressed by the notorious outlaw of the necessity of skillfully answering questions and telling nothing which might lead to his capture.

In attempting to take the gasoline from the other boat into his Kahle fell into the river. The body had not been recovered late Thursday night.

"Strange As It Seems"

The famous Molly Pitcher of the Battle of Monmouth in the Revolutionary war, was in real life Mary Ludwig Hays, wife of an American gunner. During the battle at which she won fame she was carrying water to the troops when her husband fell unconscious at his gun, overcome by heat. As there was no one to take his place, the wife worked in his stead. For this she became an American heroine, known variously as "Molly Pitcher" and "Sergeant Mary"—the latter name being accorded her when she was made an honorary sergeant in the company.

The story, often repeated, that her husband was killed at his gun, and that she took his place to avenge his death, is error. Hays did not die until about 10 years later, after which his widow married a George McCauley.

Forty-four years after her famous heroism on the battlefield she was earning her living as a scrub-woman—a fact which was brought to the attention of the Pennsylvania general assembly. Thereafter Molly Pitcher was given a pension of $40 a year—about 11 cents a day.

Thirty years ago in Ridgway, Pa., when Otisco Tribe, No. 193, of the Red Men was instituted, John M. Fleming was installed as Keeper of Wampum. Every year since then Mr. Fleming has been reelected to the same office and every year Silas M. Weaver, who is District Deputy Grand Sachem, has been the officer in charge of installation ceremonies.

Lose 15,000,000 Days of Work WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—By conservative estimates, American workers already have lost 15,000,000 days this year because of strikes or lockouts—and all the re turns aren't in.

Curiosity Seekers Bother Family Of Dillinger; Upset Father's Plans

By C. H. WOLFF

MOORESVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Expecting anything from a death notice to a sudden visit from John Dillinger himself, the family of the notorious outlaw lives as quietly in this sleepy countryside of central Indiana as unwanted visitors and curiosity seekers will permit.

John W. Dillinger, the father, wants to be let alone so he may attend to his 60 acres of farmland. Mrs. Audrey Hancock, the sister, finds the heavy mail which comes her way and the men and women who visit her home in Maywood, a nearby village, keep her from her duties as mother of six children.

Hibert, a 21 year old half-brother, would like to pump gasoline into automobiles at an Indianapolis filling station without being pointed out and questioned because of his relationship to the slippery outlaw. "Johnny," they call him.

And Doris, 16, and Frances, 12, half-sisters of Dillinger, are tired of answering the door at the farm house while their father is in the fields. But all of them, including Mrs. Hancock's husband, who drives a hawking truck in Indianapolis and says he is asked about Dillinger a hundred times a day, are loyal to the gunman they lovingly call "Johnny."

As a family, the Dillingers are a quiet church-going lot. Each, from the father who will be 70 years old July 27, down to the youngest child able to understand the law, is firm in the belief that Dillinger is a victim of circumstances.

None will deny he made the first mistake, but they bitterly assail the law which kept Johnny in prison nearly nine years for assault and battery with intent to rob. He was released a little more than a year ago. It was the long term, they believe, which made him a confirmed criminal. They speak bitterly of Edward Singleton, partner of Dillinger in the slugging of a grocerman in Mooresville in 1924. Singleton, an older man, got a 2 to 14-year sentence while Dillinger was sent up for from 10 to 21 years. Dillinger pleaded guilty, while Singleton stood trial by a jury.

"Johnny Not Killer" "Johnny is not a bad boy at heart," the father said. "Of course every killing, and every bank robbery of outstanding importance is blamed on him. "And Johnny is not a killer," interrupted Hancock. "He is a fine fellow and given half a chance would have made a good citizen."

To all outward appearances and by declaration, not one member of the family is worrying about the bank bandit's future. "None of us knows where he is," Hancock said, "but we have every confidence he is all right."

The father substantiated Hancock's statement that Dillinger's hiding place was unknown to the family. He said he received a brief note some time back in which Dillinger said he was all right. "There is nothing unusual in the manner in which Johnny moves about the country," Hancock said. "He just drives around like everybody else. I do not believe he even hides behind sun glasses. It's his natural acting that fools the police."

Girls Taken for Ride "Why, when he visited his father's home here suddenly last April 8, he just put in a natural appearance. I rode with him in his automobile and we took the main highway. Two of my girls also took a ride with him, and one of the boys accompanied him all the way

"MA CINDERELLA" by Harold Bell Wright

CHAPTER XXIX.

"I sure am interested, Mr. Belden. Leastways, I be if your place is the sort of place I'm a-wantin'. I may's well tell you right now, though, we-uns ain't a-wantin' nothin' less'n the best what's to be had."

"Good!" ejaculated the lawyer. "I can assure you that this home is complete in every detail. It is distinctly a home of culture and refinement—a home of the best traditions. And, fortunately, it stands exactly as it was when the late occupant left it—the furnishings, the paintings and works of art, the library, the automobiles—even to the butler who has had the management of the establishment for years. The butler, you understand, has been held to look after things pending some disposition of the property. Everything is in readiness for immediate occupancy. The grounds, I should add, are ample and very beautiful. It is all a bit old-fashioned, perhaps, and the city has grown up around it, but, as I say, it is distinctly a home of culture, of good taste, fine traditions, and beauty. But why not drive out with me right now and inspect the property—see it for yourself? My car is waiting. It will require only a little time. Really"—he smiled—"now that I know you as Judge Shannon's friend, I am anxious for more than business reasons, to see you settled in this ideal home."

"Hit all sounds fine, Mr. Belden," Ann returned. "But—wal, sir, I war figgerin' on gittin' Nance an' me some clothes first thing."

"These war air a-wantin' air right for whar we come from, but—" She finished with a laugh. "Oh, you ladies!" cried the bachelor, gaily. "But think how much easier you'll do your shopping with your own automobile and chauffeur, Mrs. Haskel." He looked at John Herbert. "I am sure your son will agree with me that you will be infinitely more comfortable in the privacy of your own home than in a hotel."

"I have my own servants, then you can possibly hope to be in this public place—particularly as the city, I understand, is new to you."

"I'm sure Mr. Belden is right, mother," said John Herbert. "It will take only an hour or two, and it seems to be exactly what we want."

"Really," added the lawyer, with his ready smile, "it would be an ideal place for you to entertain your friend, Judge Shannon, the first time he comes to the city."

"An Haskel agrees abruptly. "I reckon we may's well settle his first as last. Git your bonnet, Nance."

To Belden and her son she added: "Nance'd be scared plum' to death if I war to leave her hear alone."

All during that ride in Mr. Belden's car from the hotel to the home in which he was trying to interest her, Ann Haskel was absorbed with thoughts which, apparently, she could not share with her companions. For the first time since leaving Wilderness Station the mountain woman took no interest in her surroundings. She was as indifferent to the roaring city which surged about them as if she had been born and reared in a crowded tenement district. Her son noticed his mother's mood and wondered uneasily. Could he have known the memories which had been aroused—the dead hopes which had been awakened—the banished dreams which had come again at the lawyer's smiling suggestion that she might entertain her friend, Judge Shannon—the last of the Haskels would have been astounded.

But when the automobile turned from the busy traffic of the street and stopped before tall, proudly designed iron gates in a high stone wall, the mountain woman awoke to her surroundings.

The gates were opened for them to enter, and closed behind them to shut out the city which on every side besieged the walls with noisy turmoil. As the automobile moved slowly up the long tree-shaded drive between wide lawns of velvet smoothness, and shrubs and flowers of many varieties, toward the house which stood with all the proud dignity of other years to receive them, the young man caught his mother's arm with quick delight.

Ann, thrilling to the touch of her boy's hand, whispered, with full understanding, "Hit's jest like that our fairy place I done read about once, whar the princess and everything war asleep, waitin' for the prince to come along an' wake 'em all up with a kiss." Which, we must allow, was a remarkable observation to come from a woman of Ann Haskel's general reputation.

Nance Jordan drew a long breath. "Smell the trees an' grass an' everything! Hit's jest like 'tis at home, ain't hit? Only prettier up a mite more. I'd sure like to walk on that grass an' feel hit under my feet—if a body das'."

They were met at the door by a grave-faced elderly man who bore himself with a fine air of mingled authority and deference, and who greeted Mr. Belden with restrained friendliness.

With a quiet little laugh Ann turned to the lawyer: "I'll buy hit, Mr. Belden, jest as hit stands. How much?"

Mr. Belden was slightly disconcerted. "I fear you misunderstood me, Mrs. Haskel. The place is not for sale—that is, not at present; later, perhaps—well—it all depends upon certain developments. I am to lease it because, as you can better understand, it would be much better for the place to have it occupied by good, reliable, appreciative people. "When can we move in?"

Mr. Belden turned to the butler. "How about servants, Wilson?" "If madam desires, I can have a full staff here within two hours. I have them all in readiness as you ordered, sir. If madam wishes, she need not return to the hotel at all. I will arrange for the luggage to be brought immediately. If I may venture the suggestion, madam, I think you and your family would be much happier dining at home this evening."

Ann looked at her son and her dark eyes were fairly dancing with delight. "I reckon we an' Herb could stand hit," she drawled. "But maybe Nance'd rather go back to the hotel."

"Now," Ann Haskel, whined Nance, "you know good an' well what 'on a-wantin'! You ain't got no call to make fun of me jest 'cause we-uns air in the city. You didn't never used to do hit back home."

When Mr. Belden was leaving he said: "I'm sure you will find Wilson invaluable, Mrs. Haskel. He has been in charge here for years. You can trust him to manage everything for you perfectly. I suggest that you advise with him freely. I imagine he can even tell you about the proper dressmakers. He is wise, experienced in all the ways of his former employers, and he never betrayed a confidence in all his life. As for myself, please feel free to call upon me at any time. I shall be most happy to serve you."

As the mountain woman and her son stood on the veranda, watching the lawyer's automobile down the drive, Ann said, in an awed half-whisper: "Hit's all jest like the story, ain't hit, Herb?" "What story, mother? What do you mean?"

"You know," she answered—"the fairy godmother, the chariot, the palace—hit's jest like that war somebody a-managin' hit all fer poor old Ma Cinderella." She laughed with a little catch in her voice. "I'm sure hopin' hit don't all vanish clean away come midnight. I'd hate to wake up a-sittin' in the cinders back home an' find all this war jest nothin' but another dream."

JOHN McGee of Drake, mile and two miler, trained while in high school by running to school in the mornings and running home at night. He lived five miles out in the country and in winter jogged along while wearing a huge pair of overshoes. Joe Pfeiffer of Grinnell, who stepped into the boots of "Iron Mike" Pibrow as the Pioneer's leading distance ace, earned a numeral at Iowa, and with ease, in cross country.

IF THE college-professional football game to be staged Aug. 31 at Soldiers' is as successful as the East-West game of last August, the management will be well pleased. Last summer the crowd stormed the gates for duets until they were sold out before game time and it was necessary to issue bits of paper and let the spectators find their own places.

Seems like a sign from the baseball Gods, this accident to Babe Ruth just after he had reached his goal of 700 homer. He once mentioned something about retiring after attaining his mark. He will retire for only a week he says. Believe it or not, the Yanks need the Babe. Detroit, hot after that old American league lead, finally passed the Yanks and now sport a lead of two games. A year ago today the Tigers were in fifth place, two games behind the White Sox. And still the Babe can stand up there occasionally and bat the ball away out over the score board to help his mates win. And the fans still pay good American money to see him in action.

BARNEY ROSS is scheduled for a four round exhibition fight in Chicago at Mills Stadium July 30. He will not fight again until he climbs into the ring with Jimmy McLarnin to defend his welterweight crown in New York on Sept. 6. The professional crew to call the Endeavor, T. O. M. Soppwith's challenger of an American entry for the America's cup, went on a strike a few days ago. Soppwith interviewed amateur yachtsmen for two days and hand-picked a crew.

THE ENDEAVOR is still on the slips for alterations in preparation for her crossing of the Atlantic. She will point her nose for Newport Sunday or Monday. Purdue will have to holdover All-Americans who will be performing in football and basketball during the 1934-35 season. Duane Purvis will be striving for Old Purdue at his halfback post and Norm Cotton will bolster no end the basketball quintet.

Jobs as coaches and physical education teachers have been secured for 1934-35 by three former University of Iowa athletes, it was announced at the field house Monday. BIG SIX

(By the Associated Press)
Joe Vosmik of Cleveland blasted his way into the Big Six yesterday while Paul Waner climbed up into a tie with Bill Terry for the National league lead and fourth in the sextet. Vosmik smacked four hits in five times at bat, hoisting his average 10 points to .370 and ousting Lou Gehrig, who lost a couple of points.
The elder of the Waners hit four for four to add eight points to his average, remaining behind Terry only when the percentages were carried out to an extra decimal place. The Giants' manager failed to connect in three attempts, losing three points.

VAVRA, MILLER WIN IN STATE GOLF MEET

Art Bartlett Defeated by Steingraber

McCrary Advances by Beating Schwartz 12 and 11

How Iowa Citizens fared in the state amateur golf meet at Hyperion, Des Moines:
Charles Van Epps lost to John Peters (Ottumwa), 5 and 4, in directors flight.
Bob Miller won from Bunny Harper (Ottumwa), by default.

By LEYLAND SKELLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)
HYPERION CLUB, Des Moines, July 19—Playing in blistering heat, three veteran campaigners of Iowa links and a comparative newcomer today survived the rigors of the 35 hole quarterfinals of the state amateur golf tournament.

Art Steingraber, steady shooting Sioux City youth making his first impressive showing in the annual meet, provided the thrills today by eliminating the veteran Art Bartlett of Ottumwa, 1 up.

Advancing to the semifinals with Steingraber were Denmar Miller of Des Moines, Iowa open champion, Johnny Vavra, Cedar Rapids star, and Bob McCrary, of Des Moines, former Trans-Mississippi titleholder.

Miller won his match 7 and 6 from Heinie Jensen of Cedar Rapids, who yesterday put out the defending champion, Hal Chase. The Des Moines shooter got a three up advantage on the first 18 holes, increased the lead to six at the twenty-seventh and went on to win in easy style.

Vavra had an even easier time with Bill Hagen of Sioux City, winning 9 and 8 as he fairly burned up the course with par figures. The one time Cedar Rapids caddy master, who has been the most consistent shooter of the tournament, was one under par for 23 holes as he staggered Hagen's morale with sensational shots.

McCrary Wins
Harold Schwartz of Des Moines, was simply outclassed by McCrary who won by the overwhelming margin of 12 and 11. The deliberate playing Scot stuck close to par all the way and had a 73, one over par, for the first 18 holes when he secured a 10 up margin.

In the semifinals tomorrow Vavra will take on Steingraber in what should be a hard battle with the Cedar Rapids boy favored because of his consistent adherence to par figures, and Miller will play McCrary in a strictly Des Moines match. The second contest appeared a tossup.

Kenefick Wins Over Southern In Des Moines

DES MOINES, July 19 (AP)—Favorites in the men's singles of the Iowa state tennis tournament advanced to the quarterfinal round today, with no upsets recorded.

Bell Raymond, sturdy Cedar Rapids Filipino star, defeated George Struble of Toledo, 6-2, 8-6. He will meet Harris Coggeshall, seeded No. 1, who was idle today. Frank Brody of Des Moines, defending champion, downed Bill Fuller of Des Moines, 6-4, 6-1, to meet Bob Weinstein, top ranking St. Louis, Mo., player, who won from Max Everett of Des Moines, 6-0, 6-4.

Billy Kiley of Kansas City was given an edge over Dick Rugg, Waterloo star, for their scheduled match. The former beat Tom Bailey of Des Moines, 6-1, 6-1, while Rugg took a 6-2, 6-4 match from Howard Stephens of St. Louis, Mo. Ben Beckerman, Des Moines star, defeated his fellow townsman, Tom Brown, 6-3, 6-4, and will play Al Sieh of Spencer, who was idle.

Thelma Kenefick of Eagle Grove, defending women's champion, arrived late, but rushed through a match with Diane Southern of Des Moines, 6-0, 6-3, to advance to the second round. The match formerly had been defaulted, but the default was erased. Dorothy Day, Betty Butler and Naomi Meek, Des Moines stars, advanced into the third round.

Fred Perry

Cotton "chaired" after golf victory

Cheered by recent victories in international sports John Bull is looking forward to the America's Cup races in September when the British entry Endeavour will attempt to lift the trophy that has remained here since 1851. Fred Perry's victory at Wimbledon marked the first world tennis championship for England in twenty-five years. Dorothy Round's defeat of Helen Jacobs gave Britain its first women's tennis crown in seven years, and Henry Cotton's victory in the British open golf kept the title at home for the first time since 1923. Is it John Bull's year to lift the "Old Mug"?

Introducing Joe E. Richards; Denison Boy Who Won Major "I" as 170 Pound Hawk Back

This is the 10th of a series of short articles concerning University of Iowa athletes who will help carry Hawkeye football hopes through the 1934 Big Ten gridiron season.

By JACK GURWELL (Daily Iowan Sports Editor)

Introducing Joe E. Richards, a Hawkeye football player from Denison who won a major "I" last fall on Ossie Solem's surprising outfit.

Coach Solem rates Richards as one of his three best punters on the team, a fine defensive player, and an effective ball carrier.

The Denison boy came to Iowa in the fall of 1932, ready to take up a collegiate career as a Hawkeye gridder. His performances on the frosh outfit, for which he won a numeral, were good enough to draw the special attention of Bill Boelter, freshman mentor, who saw possibilities of Joe becoming a pretty good Iowa player.

In the league battles—freshman squads are divided into teams, such as Michigan, Indiana, Purdue, and Minnesota—Richards scintillated exceedingly, being proficient with forward passes, a good broken field runner, and showing all-around good football sense. His quarterback job was dispatched with ease.

In Every Game
Last fall, his first season with the varsity, Joe took his turn with the other backs, but managed to get in every game. Although down in the programs as a halfback, the Denison boy played at times as fullback. In the Michigan game Joe took over Dick Crayne's fullback post when Crayne was carried from the field with a badly injured ankle and turned in an outstanding performance. He and George Teyro were the only substitutions in the Purdue contest, Joe again at Crayne's post. Richards' high school athletic career at Denison high culminated in an impressive record. He was named on the all-Coon Valley league team for three years running as quarterback, and made the second all-state football team in 1931.

Musician
Besides being a footballer, Joe is quite a musician, playing the piano and saxophone with equal skill. Coach Solem says Joe has a good singing voice, which, no doubt, he acquired from singing out signals

YANKS A VANCE HALF GAME WHILE DETROIT IS IDLE

Break Road "Jinx" With 4-3 Triumph

White Sox Tally in 4th; Again in 6th; Ben Chapman Hero

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP)—The Yankees broke the "jinx" that has beset them on their current western tour to beat the cellar dwelling White Sox 4 to 3 today. The victory, while Detroit was idle, clipped a half game off New York's deficit in the American league pennant race, leaving the Yanks an even two games behind.

With Babe Ruth still in Cleveland, recovering from yesterday's leg injury, Ben Chapman took over the job of getting the Yankee runs for young Johnny Murphy. He drove in three of them, including the winning tally in the eighth, and scored the fourth. And he did all this in spite of a charley horse.

Tripled, Doubles, Singles
Chapman tripled in the first inning and scored on Lou Gehrig's single. In the third he smacked a single to bring home Jack Saltzgarer, who had reached second on the first of two doubles. Then, when the Sox had forged ahead in the sixth, Ben slashed a double after Earl Combs had beaten out a base hit and Saltzgarer had made his second two-bagger to bring home the winning tallies.

Murphy, winning his ninth victory against five defeats, pitched steadily except in the fourth, when he lost control and handed out four of his five passes to give the Sox two runs.

Sox Rally
Chicago tied the score in that inning when Luke Appling walked and was forced by Hopkins. Eddie Madjeski followed with a single and Pitcher Milt Gaston drew a pass, filling the bases. Jocko Conlan's fly let Hopkins score. Murphy then walked Evar Swanson and Jimmy Dykes, forcing in the second tally.

In the sixth the Sox went ahead when Madjeski singled and stole second, then completed the circuit on Conlan's single and Swanson's fly.

Dodgers Rally For 4-2 Win Over Pirates
BROOKLYN, July 19 (AP)—Linus Frey, who is known as "Junior" to his teammates, pulled a ball game out of the fire for the Dodgers today when he rapped a last-minute home run to give Brooklyn a 4 to 2 victory over the Pirates.

With two out in the ninth and Ralph Boyle on first following a walk, Frey hoisted one of Bill Swift's pitches over the right field screen for the winning tallies. Frey also knocked in the tying run with a long fly in the fifth after the Pirates had scored both their runs off Tom Zachary in the same inning.

Giants Blank Cincinnati by 4 to 0 Tally

White Sox Tally in 4th; Again in 6th; Ben Chapman Hero

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—Hal Schumacher stretched his string of consecutive mound victories to nine and his list of successes over Cincinnati to 11 straight today as the Giants blanked the Reds 4 to 0 to maintain their three-game lead. Schumacher never has lost to the Reds in his three-year major league career.

Prince Hal was touched for 12 hits in recording his fourteenth triumph of the season against four defeats but seldom was in serious trouble. Snappy fielding, featuring four double plays, helped him out of the tight spots. The Giants nicked Paul Derringer for three hits and two runs in the first and stayed out in front easily. Neither pitcher gave a pass.

Indians Tame Boston 6 to 5
CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 18 (AP)—Five runs in the ninth inning gave the Indians a 6 to 5 victory over the Boston Red Sox today in the first of a five-game series for possession of third place.

Fred Ostermueller, rookie southpaw, who had been given a four-run lead by the Sox, was chased from the mound in the ninth when Earl Averill, Cleveland center fielder, hit a single with the bases full, scoring Pyltak and Seeds, Joe Vosmik singled, scoring Knickerbocker, and then Trosky tripled, scoring Averill and Vosmik.

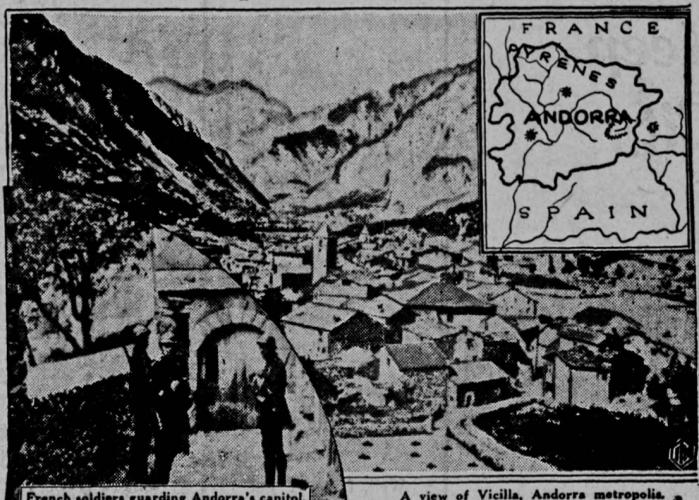

Werber's home run started the Boston scoring in the sixth inning, and in the eighth Willis Hudlin was chased from the box as the Sox started an attack that gave them three more runs.

Tiny Andorra Split Over Loyalty to Guardians

French soldiers guarding Andorra's capital. A view of Vicells, Andorra metropolis.

Tiny Andorra is having trouble again and the republic, situated in the Pyrenees between Spain and France, isn't quite certain what to do about it. Most of its 6,000 inhabitants, theoretically "guided" by the Spanish bishop of Urgel and the president of France, have been troubled over conflicting loyalties and now Andorra has two factions, each favoring one of the "rulers".

But the "headaches" for the council general, which meets in the "House of the Valley," as the republic's capital is called, were just beginning. More than 4,000 sturdy Andorran youths who had left the tiny land to seek fortunes and employment across the border in Spain grew restless with homesickness and great political aims. They threatened to return and outvote the "conservative" stay-at-homes and moderate the ancient republic. Promptly the legislators in Andorra boosted the voting age so that the would-be rebels were stalemated.

Soon after, when peace had been restored and the flocks could pasture again, Andorra hit the front page with a report that an Italian "millionaire" had offered to pay the inhabitants a princely sum, and abolish taxes provided he could become king.

Offer Tempting
To the thrifty mountaineers, who find making a living an endless struggle amidst the wind and snow-wrapped peaks, the offer was tempting. But national dignity reasserted it-and Freddy Lindstrom in the outer gardens. Bob O'Farrell, Gabby Harnett and Jim Wilson qualify as catchers, and for pitchers there'd be Guy Bush, Adolfo Luque, Red Lucas and Waite Hoyt.

All of these are among the league's 20 players of more than 10 years' big league seasoning each. Substitutes might include, of men in the same classification: Jim Bottomley and Charley Grimm, first base; Hughey Critz, Marty McManus and Sparky Adams for other infield spots, and Hack Wilson as reserve outfielder.

Cards Open Boston Stand With 4-3 Win

"Dizzy" Dean Hurls 9th Straight, Season's 17th Victory

BOSTON, July 19 (AP)—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, the St. Louis Cardinal's eccentric but effective hurler, today led his team to a 4 to 2 win in the first game of their series with the Boston Braves.

The tall right-hander, in winning his ninth straight victory, his seventeenth of the season, registered his first triumph in more than two seasons against a team in Boston. Jordan doubled in the first inning and opened the scoring for the Braves on singles by Berger and Lee.

The Cards equalled this count in the fourth when Collins scored on Orsatti's single after he had doubled. Moore singled in the fifth and a triple by Berger sent the Braves ahead once more.

Successive singles by Davis, Orsatti and Durocher and a long fly by Dean gave the Cards a 3 to 2 margin in the fifth. Pepper Martin's long homer into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning provided the visitors with their fourth run.
