FIVE CENTS IOWA CITY, IOWA FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1934 VOL. XXXIV NUMBER 88

GERTRUDE STEIN TO LECTURE HERE

Plans for Unveiling Mrs. Pelzer's Murals Revealed

Eight Historical Canvases Of Iowa City to Be Unveiled In Hotel Lobby Tomorrow Night

Dinner Will Precede Ceremonies At 7 P.M.

Plans for the unveiling of a set of historical murals by Mrs. Louis Pelzer tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Hotel Jefferson were announced last night by Mrs. C. E. Seashore, who is in charge of arrangements.

MRS. LOUIS PELZER
—Completes Art Project

The murals, depicting epochal events in the rise of Iowa City, will hang in the lobby of the hotel. The lobby will be redecorated to afford a proper setting for the pictures and lights will be arranged to illuminate the eight canvases.

Marked by Dinner
The unveiling will be marked by a dinner in the dining room of the hotel, which will be open to members of pioneer Iowa City families or local persons interested in art or the preservation of local history.

Prof. Benj. F. Shambaugh, superintendent of the State Historical society, will speak on the historical associations represented in the work, and Mrs. William Larabee, Jr., past president of the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs, will discuss the place of the artist in Iowa.

Dutcher to Preside
Charles M. Dutcher, president of the Jefferson hotel company, will preside over the dinner. Following the dinner program the meeting will be adjourned to the hotel lobby, where the sons of Professor and Mrs. Pelzer, Parker and Henry, will unveil the murals. Mrs. Pelzer will then explain the significance of the historical events depicted.

Places at the dinner, which will be either formal or informal, will be marked by booklets containing reproductions of the murals and autographed by the artist.

In Receiving Line
In the receiving line at the dinner will be Professor and Mrs. Pelzer, Mr. and Mrs. Dutcher, and C. C. Warden, manager of the hotel.

Receiving and table hostesses will represent Iowa City's pioneer groups and those interested in art and history. They are Mrs. Arthur Cox, Mrs. Jacob Van der Zee, Mrs. R. A. Kuever, Mrs. Dan Dutcher, Mrs. Willis Mercer, Mrs. LeRoy Mercer, Mrs. Marvin Dey, Mrs. C. E. Cousins, Mrs. George Kay, Mrs. Arthur Steindler, Mrs. W. P. Lemon, Mrs. George Coleman, Mrs. E. D. Plass, Mrs. Seashore, Mrs. Clarence Van Epps, Mrs. Vernon Nall, Mrs. R. E. Manville, Mrs. Ernest Horn, and Jessie Hotz.

Decorations
Floral decorations will be in peach, yellow, and lavender. Reservations for the dinner may be made until this evening at the hotel.

The eight murals represent months of research on the early history of Iowa City. Assisted by Professor Pelzer, a member of the university history department, Mrs. Pelzer secured accurate data on the events which make up the subjects. The idea of the murals began with a plan of Mrs. Pelzer to depict

Rumors II Duce To Discuss Plans For Austrian Aid Heard

VENICE, Italy, Sept. 13 (AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini came to Venice this evening amid enthusiastic ovations and insistent reports that he would talk over with Austrian officials plans whereby France and England would help Austria.

II Duce arrived by automobile and went aboard his palatial yacht surrounded by cheering crowds which broke through the cordons of police guarding him. It is expected Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and other Austrian delegates to the League of Nations assembly will be here tomorrow.

Demo, G.O.P. Chiefs Shape Final Plans

Earlier in the day he had been told by President Roosevelt, in a long distance telephone call from the chief executive's summer home at Hyde Park that the army stood ready, if needed, to take a hand in the situation.

"He told me," said the Democratic governor, "he would support me to the limit."

Despite the urgency of his plea, however, the Democratic caucus which controls the lower house of the assembly tabled his request for permission to call in the federal troops, but did approve of two bills—one to give him power to close the mills in time of emergency and another to appropriate $100,000 for an emergency increase in the state police forces.

Prepare for Campaign On November Election

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—With the end of intra-party contests in the 48 states in sight, Democratic and Republican chiefs today shaped final campaign plans for the November elections.

Democratic leaders here said they were confident a "new deal" congress would be elected Nov. 6. Republican chiefs expressed belief they would capture between 40 and 50 house seats now held by the Democrats and retain the senate seats they now control.

Refusal Seen to Involve Basis of Versailles Treaty

GENEVA, Sept. 13 (AP)—Poland's curt announcement today that she will have nothing further to do with the League of Nation's system for protecting minorities involves the very basis of the Versailles treaty, French and British spokesmen said tonight.

The Warsaw government's action threatens the sanctity of treaties and opens the road to open flouting of international agreements by other nations, these sources said.

Ready to Debate

Both Sir John Simon, Great Britain's foreign minister, and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, plan to tackle the problem from the league rostrum tomorrow and it was reported Baron Pompei Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation, may intervene in the debate.

A German spokesman told the Associated Press that Poland's sensational move means that the status quo set up at Versailles is being modified and treaties no longer are valid.

Spokesman Insists

This spokesman insisted that countries which came into existence or enlarged their territories as a result of the peace treaties did so on the distinct understanding that they would accept minority obligations.

If these obligations are flouted, he said, it indicates that the entire territorial arrangement of Europe is subject to readjustment.

3 Liquor Stores to Open

DES MOINES, (AP)—Liquor stores in Valley Junction, Belle Plaine and Nevada will open Sept. 20, it was announced by the state liquor control commission today.

Rhode Island Seeks Use Of Federal Army

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 13 (AP)—Governor Theodore F. Green today sought the intervention of federal troops to end strike terror in this state but the Democratic house caucus of the extraordinary session of the assembly which he had dramatically convoked, temporarily, at least, balked him.

While United States army troops were being hurriedly recalled to two army posts in Maine and Massachusetts for possible succor of this state's badly battered national guard, the governor in a message to the legislature pleaded for power to call in regular army forces to put down what he described as not a textile strike but a "Communist uprising."

Legislature Balks Head Of State in Attempt To Get Sanction

Earlier in the day he had been told by President Roosevelt, in a long distance telephone call from the chief executive's summer home at Hyde Park that the army stood ready, if needed, to take a hand in the situation.

"He told me," said the Democratic governor, "he would support me to the limit."

Despite the urgency of his plea, however, the Democratic caucus which controls the lower house of the assembly tabled his request for permission to call in the federal troops, but did approve of two bills—one to give him power to close the mills in time of emergency and another to appropriate $100,000 for an emergency increase in the state police forces.

Follows Lawlessness

The governor's decision to lay his hands before the assembly was reached early today after lawlessness had gripped Woonsocket, populous textile center a few miles north of here.

A shouting, jeering mob of hoodlums had swept everything before it until the hard-pressed national guardsmen and badly pummeled police, having exhausted their supply of tear gas, fired upon it, killed one youth and wounded six others. Scores of others were roughly handled. Store windows were smashed, automobiles overturned and street lights extinguished.

Field Museum Curator Killed

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology of the field museum, leaped or fell to his death from the eighth floor of a south side hotel today.

His body, found on the roof of the hotel porch, was taken to a hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Dr. Laufer, who was born in Germany in 1874, was widely known as an explorer, author and anthropologist, and was a member of numerous American and European scientific organizations.

Leaps or Falls From Eighth Story Of Chicago Hotel

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—The dramatic career of William Lorimer, immigrant boy who rose from the city streets to leadership of Illinois Republicans, was ended suddenly today by death.

The former United States senator collapsed and died in the Chicago & Northwestern railroad station. He was 73 and had suffered for some time from a heart ailment.

Illinois Republican Boss Succumbs In Rail Station

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—The dramatic career of William Lorimer, immigrant boy who rose from the city streets to leadership of Illinois Republicans, was ended suddenly today by death.

The former United States senator collapsed and died in the Chicago & Northwestern railroad station. He was 73 and had suffered for some time from a heart ailment.

The former United States senator collapsed and died in the Chicago & Northwestern railroad station. He was 73 and had suffered for some time from a heart ailment.

Processing Tax Extension Proposed

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 13 (AP)—A proposal that other commodities which stand to benefit from the Agricultural Adjustment administration's livestock feed program be included under the processing tax was adopted by representatives of corn-hog associations and state agricultural colleges who ended a two-day regional meeting here today.

All members of the regional committee at the meeting were in agreement that the adjustment program should be continued during 1935 and beyond.

Local Temperatures

(As recorded each hour at the Iowa City airport, from 12:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. yesterday.)

Wednesday: high, 85; low, 50.
Tuesday: high, 85; low, 61. Monday: high, 76; low, 59.
The lowest temperature recorded yesterday was 61 at 4:30 a.m.

U. S. Representative From Pennsylvania Plans Retirement

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13 (AP)—Rep. James M. Beck, Republican, of this city, tonight announced he would retire from congress at the end of his present term. He said he was retiring because congress has "largely ceased to be a deliberative body," and that being "one-fourth hundredth part of a rubber stamp" no longer appeals to him.

Yellow River In China Overflows

KAIFENG, Honan Province, China, Sept. 13 (AP)—The Yellow river—"Source of the Sons of Han"—was roaring its turbulent way down to the sea tonight, at flood stage for the second time this month—spreading death, destruction and suffering over its great flat bed.

Bound to Grand Jury

COUNCIL BLUFFS, (AP)—Andrew Donaldson, 25, of Council Bluffs, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of William Patton, Jr., of Council Bluffs, was bound to the grand jury today by Municipal Judge Sheehan.

Captain Of Rescue Ship Is Criticized

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—A rescue ship's four ranking officers, who had sharply criticized their master for delay in sending lifeboats to the aid of Morro Castle victims, were called tonight before a federal grand jury investigating the disaster.

They testified earlier, before a department of commerce inquiry, that the Dollar liner President Cleveland might have saved additional lives if Captain E. Carey had not waited 48 minutes after arriving at the scene before ordering out rescue boats.

Ranking Officers Score "Indecision" Of Master

They testified earlier, before a department of commerce inquiry, that the Dollar liner President Cleveland might have saved additional lives if Captain E. Carey had not waited 48 minutes after arriving at the scene before ordering out rescue boats.

"They tried to make a goat out of me," the master declared, "but their own testimony shows what they did."

Charge Made at Hearing

The charge was made at a hearing by Judge Cox on a motion by Roscoe C. Hupper of the law firm of Burlingham, Veesder, Clark and Hupper, attorneys for the Ward line, to set aside or quash a subpoena served upon the line.

Judge Cox reserved decision. The subpoena would require the production before the federal grand jury of all written or typewritten statements made to the firm or its officers or any other persons in connection with the disaster.

Continuation Of Corn-Hog Program Sure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Continuation for another year of an AAA combined corn-hog control program appeared tonight to be definitely in prospect.

This was based upon a strong sentiment developed at regional meetings of farm leaders held at Indianapolis and Kansas City, Mo.

Regional Meetings Of Farmers Indicate Attitude

Farm administration officials have been suggesting that hog numbers could be controlled in 1935 through a single grain reduction plan. Farmers apparently are taking a different view.

In any event, it appeared definite tonight that the question of including hogs in the 1935 control program would be submitted to the forthcoming referendum vote to be taken among farmers. Heretofore, the expectation had been that the referendum would concern corn alone.

A Club for a Rose

One Will Greet Mademoiselle Gertrude When She Lectures Here in December

"A rose," wrote Gertrude Stein, "is a rose is a rose is a rose." And, Miss Stein, a club is a club is a club is a club. So, when the famous "sphinx of Paris" arrives in Iowa City early in December to present a lecture before members of the Times club, she will be greeted by a Gertrude Stein club, the first organization of its kind in the United States in all likelihood.

It all happened when the governing board of the Times club, in an organization meeting last night, sought for some means of adequately preparing for the arrival of the woman whose literary work has been the subject of international controversy.

Met With Favor
The plan of organizing a club was suggested and met with instant favor. The board thereupon immediately resolved itself into the nucleus of a "Gertrude Stein club."

Mrs. Marguerite Werner was selected unanimously to head the unique organization. Prof. Clyde Hart of the sociology department was elected vice president.

Graham Dean will serve as secretary of the club, and Donald J. Pryor, J4 of Burlington, was elected treasurer, an office perforce of leisure because the Gertrude Stein club is fundless.

Wood Invited
Grant Wood of the graphic and plastic arts department, who has been described by "Mademoiselle Gertrude" as "the first great American artist," has been invited to become a member of the organization. Membership in the "greters" organization will also be open to everyone who believes with Miss Stein that "a rose is a rose is a rose." There will be no dues, no initiation ceremonies, no oaths. All that is necessary is to notify the president or secretary.

Voorhies to Speak
The Gertrude Stein club will open its official greeting season sometime in November, when a meeting will be opened to the public. Rousseau Voorhies of the Macmillan Publishing company, a friend of Miss Stein, will be the principal speaker and it is expected that Forest Spalding, librarian of the Des Moines public library, will also be on the program.

Other "charter" members of the Gertrude Stein club are Prof. Frank L. Mott, director of the school of journalism; Mrs. Ernest Horn, Jeanne Doran, and Tom Yoseloff, G of Mason City.

Kantor, Stong, LaFollette On Club Schedule

Tom Yoseloff Named Chairman of New Organization

Gertrude Stein of Paris, whose "modernism" in literature has been the subject of recent wide discussion, will head the list of speakers who will appear on the Times club program for the coming season.

This was announced last night, following an organization meeting of the governing board of the club at the Jefferson hotel.

Date Not Selected
Miss Stein will give one lecture in Iowa City early in December. The exact date has not yet been selected. The authors will come to the United States in November for a series of lectures at Columbia university, New York city, and at the University of Chicago. Her Iowa City lecture may be her only one west of Chicago.

Other speakers who have been scheduled to lecture on the club's program include MacKinlay Kantor, author of the recent Literary Guild book, "Long Remember," and Sterling North, literary editor of the Chicago Daily News, publisher and novelist.

Seek Handy
Negotiations are also underway to secure W. C. Handy, composer of the "St. Louis Blues," and an authority on the "blues" type of modern music; Philip LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin and a leader in the Progressive political movement in that state; and Phil Stong, Iowa author whose novel "State Fair" was a best seller several years ago.

Ticket sales for the club's season will get underway within the next few days, and membership in the club will be limited to about 300. A $2 membership ticket will cover the entire season of six or seven meetings and several "fireside" discussion meetings.

Club Organized
The board of the Times club was organized with Tom Yoseloff, G of Mason City, as chairman. Jeanne Doran of Iowa City will serve as vice chairman, and Prof. Frank L. Mott, director of the school of journalism, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Two committees were appointed to take charge of arrangements for the lecture season. Graham Dean, Mrs. Ernest Horn, and Professor Mott will serve as a committee to arrange for a meeting place, and a committee in charge of ticket sales is composed of Professor Mott and Mr. Yoseloff.

A Reorganization
The new Times club is a reorganization of a club which brought prominent speakers to Iowa City several years ago. Organized as an independent lecture club, it arranged for the appearance here of Carl Van Doren, publisher and literary critic, Langston Hughes, Countee Cullen, Negro poet, and

Du Pont Says Company Kept Germany From Gaining U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—A member of the Du Pont munitions family—Irenee, face flushed and eyes sparkling—declared before senate investigators today that explosives manufactured by that company "had much to do" with preventing the United States from becoming a German province.

His statement was the high point of a rousing argument that sizzled with passages between committee members and members of the famous family which owns E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and company.

Evidence Introduced
A few minutes before, evidence had been introduced that Du Pont agents were vitally concerned over legislation for arms embargoes and even with the passage of the resolution which authorized the present munitions investigation.

The revelations aroused Irenee and his brothers, Pierre and Lamot, who sat beside him in a semicircle before the committee table.

"The nationalization of munitions industries would be a mistake," he asserted. "They cannot be as efficient as private industry."

"How Do You Know?"
"How do you know the war department wouldn't be as efficient as private industry?" sharply queried Senator Bone (D-Wash.) "How do you know they couldn't function and manufacture munitions as well as you have done?"

"Experience has shown they can't," Irenee replied.

"Then we have this sombre picture," Bone said heatedly. "A government so stupid, so inept that it could not organize its own technical force; could not prepare this country for war. Evidently you think the Du Ponts kept the United States from being a German province."

"Had Much to Do"
"I think we had much to do with it," snipped Irenee.

At previous sessions he had quietly puffed a pipe, but this was laid aside now.

"But," he protested, as Bone pursued his questioning, "I'm not trying to run the war department. You seem to be trying to make me out a concealed axis. I'm simply giving you my views from our experience."

"And a sombre situation it is," commented Bone.

"A hell of a situation," agreed Irenee. The spectators roared.

Plans for Unveiling of Mrs. Pelzer's Murals Are Announced

8 Historical Canvases Will Be Exhibited

Dinner Will Precede Ceremonies At 7 P.M.

Humorous events in the growth of Iowa City. As she studied the local history, however, she decided to work out the events with the simplicity of historical accuracy.

Began in April The actual work of making the plan a reality began last April, when Mrs. Pelzer started to work on the first sketches. As further historical detail was studied, her plans were often revised—a process which continued until the last touch was added to the final mural.

The murals were previewed at a meeting of the Rotary club last week, but tomorrow's presentation will be the first public showing of the new art works.

Trace Iowa City's Rise Beginning with the coming of Chief Poweshieck up the Iowa river July 4, 1838, the pictures trace the new contacts which Iowa City established with the outside world through the steamboat, the stagecoach, the railroad, and the automobile. The coming of pioneer families, the selection of a site for the new capital, and the building of Old Capitol form subjects for three of the murals.

The eight murals are described in detail in the following sketches, based on data prepared by Professor Pelzer:

Roweshieck on the Iowa

Even to the straggling pioneers who had migrated to Iowa in 1838, July 4 meant a great celebration to commemorate the nation's birthday.

From the Sac Indian village near Iowa City Chief Poweshieck came with two of his braves to see the great pow wow of the White man. In the impressive setting of the unbroken Iowa country, the stern faced chief came to Gilbert's station south of Iowa City, where the pioneer farmers and traders had gathered for the great occasion.

Across the river in the distance can be seen the wigwams of the Indian village. On the east bank of the river stands a White fur trader and several Indians stand ready to greet their chief.

"Soon I shall go to a new home," announced Poweshieck to the white pioneers July 4, 1838, "and you will plant corn where my dead sleep. Our towns, the paths we have made, and the flowers we love will soon be yours. I have moved many times and have seen the white man put his feet in the tracks of the Indian and make the earth into fields and flowers. I know that I must go away and you will be so glad when I am gone that you will soon forget that the meat and the lodgings of the Indian have been forever free to the stranger and at all times he asked for what he has fought for, the right to be free."

First Families

The spirit that brought men and women from the security of their homes in the settled east to the wilderness of Iowa nearly 100 years ago is epitomized in the second of the murals.

The covered wagon, drawn by two oxen, carried the first families of Iowa City to their new homes. The wagons moved slowly over the prairie and through the wild country. The roughness of the country where no roads existed tested the strength of the pioneers and of the wagons which carried them.

Ahead of the wagon two scouts walk to clear the way and to keep watch for signs of the Indians who disputed the way with the White man. Between the two scouts and the lumbering wagon rides a man on horseback, ready to give the alarm if the redskins are sighted along the path.

Children trudge along, carrying their treasured objects to their new homes, and men and women look forward with new hope and courage toward their entrance into the promised land of America—Iowa of the fertile plains and rolling prairie land. So the pioneers came to the banks of Iowa river.

We Select the Capital Site

With the coming of the settlers into the newly opened country, the demand for a government came almost immediately. The first territorial capital of Iowa was located at Burlington, but rival claimants for the honor of having the capital disputed the site of the future city. After weeks of debate, the legislature created a commission of three men who were to meet and select a site for the capital city. They were to meet May 1, 1839 at Napoleon, Johnson county.

The men studied the information available, and prepared to meet at Napoleon to make their recommendation. The first man to arrive was Chauncey Swan, and he waited impatiently for the arrival of the other

N. J., and the captain was on the bridge.

The captain's chief subordinates said they no longer had "respect for" or "confidence in" their chief. The Dollar line, operators of the vessel, announced that the charges against the master would be investigated by the home office at San Francisco and that the line would then "take whatever action is necessary after they have all the facts."

Captain Carey's employers said he had spent 30 years in their service, 17 as a captain, and that he had an excellent record.

Meanwhile the fire-ridden hulk of the Morro Castle, stranded on the Asbury Park, N. J., beach yielded charred remains of four more victims when officials were able for the first time to enter it for a methodical search.

They penetrated only the two upper cabin decks and a portion of the third, the lower parts of the ship being flooded. Ashes lay ankle-deep on all decks, metal fittings had been melted off and most of the glass had been fused into contorted shapes.

er two commissioners. After Swan had waited all day for the quorum necessary, Philip Clark, a pioneer resident, offered to ride 35 miles to bring back Commissioner John Ronalds of Louisa county. Late that night Clark returned with Ronalds and the work of selecting Iowa City as the capital site proceeded.

It is the meeting at Napoleon that Mrs. Pelzer has selected for her mural. The two commissioners, standing on a summit overlooking the Iowa river valley, with Robert Walker, justice of the peace who had administered to them the oath of office, viewed the rolling hills and the amphitheater which was some day to become the seat of government and culture in Iowa.

The past and the future are represented in the mural. In the distance the Indians, once lords of the new country, stand beside their wigwams. On the horizon are the covered wagons, bringing new settlers to Iowa.

We Build the Capitol

About 15 years of work was required to erect the stately building which was to house the new government of Iowa. In the second year of the work, when every effort was being made to rush the edifice to completion, construction was at its height. It is this period which Mrs. Pelzer's fourth mural depicts.

In the 1840's the work of building a huge stone building was a tremendous project. No machinery was available, and all the work of lifting and fitting the huge blocks into place had to be done by hand or by the rough devices fashioned by the workmen.

Dozens of men are engaged in fitting and lifting the stones, carrying lumber into the half finished structure, modeling the slabs, and carving the stately pillars.

In the foreground stand Swan, one of the commissioners who had selected the capital site and who had been named to supervise the work, and Father Samuel C. Mazuchelli, Dominican priest who had prepared the plans for the building. The two men are examining a drawing of the building plans, showing the structure as it would look when completed.

Native limestone was used in the construction of the new building, which was to stand as the first monumental public building in Iowa. The stones were floated down the river on barges and hauled overland by ox team.

"Stage Ready"

The stopping of the stage-coach to change the horses and to "brandy the gentlemen" was a familiar sight to Iowa Citizens in the 1850's. Miserable roads, in which the wheels sank axle deep in mud or rattled and bumped the passengers made this procedure one of necessity as well as convenience.

As early as 1842 a Troy coach had come to the village of Iowa City in the new territory. In the period in which the fifth mural finds its subject, stage travel was well established, with coaches running on a more or less regular schedule.

The fare from Iowa City to Des Moines was $10 and from Iowa City to Council Bluffs the fare was $11. The four horse Concord stages cost $1,000 and carried 10 passengers.

Charles Dickens, who traveled by stage through this territory at about this time noted that the roads were intolerable, but he admired the skill of the drivers as they urged their horses around sharp curves or through narrow passes.

The scene in Mrs. Pelzer's painting shows the coach as it has driven up near Dubuque street. In the background can be seen shops the names of which are familiar to Iowa City's oldest residents. There are R. S. Tucker's Park house, Sanxay's hardware, and Cochran's harness shop.

Olds' automobile, It's fine as silk." The car attracted much attention as it chugged and rattled through the streets.

PERSONALS

When, at 11 p.m., the locomotive "Gekawosa" of the Mississippi and Missouri railroad still stood 200 feet from the depot at the end of the rails, the workmen, under the heroic direction of Henry Farnum, president of the railroad, enlisted the aid of the townspeople and laid the 200 feet of rail in less than an hour so that the frozen locomotive could be pushed up to the depot to claim the prize.

In the large crowd which had gathered at the depot to witness the great event were many pioneers whose names are associated with the growth of the city. Peter A. Dey, Ebenezer Cook, and Mr. Byington are among them. Engineer Charles Stickle looks triumphantly from the cab window.

Thus, in a room in which the thermometer stood at 115 degrees, Mrs. Pelzer recreated the scene which was enacted years ago in weather paradoxically contrasting.

"Hold Your Horse"

—the First Automobile

Within the memory of the present generation the first automobile came to Iowa City in 1902. In the 1890's the horseless carriage had become known in the east, but when the first automobile came to Iowa City it was a queer novelty, rather than an established means of transportation.

The eighth mural in the series, the smallest of the group, depicts the coming of the first motor carriage. Heralded in the advertisements with the slogan, "See our many other lecturers of literary and political note. It is planned to inaugurate a novel feature this year of scheduling "fireside" meetings in addition to the regular lecture meetings. These meetings, which will be open to members only, will feature lectures and demonstrations by prominent Iowa artists and literary figures.

The appearance of Miss Stein here will probably be the third lecture on the club's program. It is expected that the schedule will open in October, with either Mr. Kantor or Mr. Handy as the first speaker.

Miss Stein, whose recent book, "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," was a Literary Guild selection, has become known for her "modern" literary style, which involves repetition of phrases to form rhythmic patterns.

Others of her works include: "Three Lives," "Useful Knowledge," "The Making of Americans," "Let Lucy Amiable," and the opera which brought much critical dispute last year, "Four Saints in Three Acts." With Miss Stein on her Iowa City visit may be Alice Toklas, her secretary and nominal subject of Miss Stein's autobiography. Miss Stein has lectured at Oxford university and is the author of several scholarly studies.

Departure Delayed

The President Cleveland was delayed several hours to permit the captain and the officers to appear before the grand jury. When Captain Carey and the officers arrived at the federal building, however, they were informed the jury was no longer in session and that their subpoenas were returnable tomorrow.

Law and Violence Won't Mix

THURSDAY night's deplorable demonstration in Rhode Island makes evident the fact that the textile strike, like the not yet forgotten longshoremen's strike in San Francisco, has been carried by mob insanity outside the realm of controversy between capital and labor alone. It has reached the point where its continuance constitutes a threat against orderly government itself, a threat of mob rule which must be suppressed.

For this the immediate blame is to be placed squarely upon the shoulders of Francis J. Gorman, strike chairman, whose actions and public pronouncements in the last few days have done much to incite the violence which is now a constant threat along the eastern seaboard.

His position was clearly drawn the other day when, deploring the killing of strikers by national guardsmen and police, he made this preposterous proposition:

"If the president will bring about agreement among the governors that our members shall be deputized to enforce law, there will be law enforcement. There will not be another single episode of violence, because we will see to it that those officials who have been guilty of killings are kept in bounds and under control."

Mr. Gorman proposes, in other words, that the strikers themselves be constituted a law above the law and empowered with authority to enforce their own law.

The problems involved in the textile strike are so deep seated that it is almost impossible to say which side in the controversy is right and which is wrong. An NRA investigation not long ago disclosed that there was no economic justification for the strikers' demands for a raise in code wage rates. On the other hand, conditions of workers in the textile industries are undeniably miserable.

For much of the present unrest the NRA itself and its vacillating and inadequate labor policy is to blame. It held out bright promises to labor and made no attempt to fulfill them, but left the field clear for whatever racketeers wanted to take advantage of a golden opportunity. One result was Thursday night's bloody riot.

The problem must be solved, and the responsibility lies squarely in the lap of the government. By the government's own findings, the textile industry cannot, and if that is true, and labor's demands cannot be met by the industry itself, the problem is the government's. But in no event should violence be allowed to increase and to take the place of reason and law.

Professor Scott vs. William Shakespeare

IT IS with some misgivings that we wish Prof. J. Hubert Scott the best of luck in his researches during the coming year in England. Professor Scott, as readers of THE DAILY IOWAN are aware, has been granted a year's leave of absence by the University of Iowa and will leave in a few days for England, where he will apply his theory of phrasal rhythms to the detection of literary forgeries of which Shakespeare's works are to him especially suspect.

Frequenters of the British museum and of leading libraries in Great Britain probably will become accustomed before the year is out to Professor Scott's familiar practice of tracing phrasal patterns in the air with his forefinger. And they will learn, as have the curious here, that by these tracings Professor Scott intends to identify the author of whatever bit of writing he is examining.

His researches on the trail of this theory, in which he has worked out curves for the phrasal patterns of authors "as distinctive as fingerprints," have led him to the conclusion that many of Shakespeare's works were written by somebody else. It is to test these findings that he is going to the sources in England.

Naturally we wish for Professor Scott all the success in the world in the proof of his theory. But, in spite of a slight debunking sympathy, we admit some concern on behalf of Mr. Shakespeare. After all, it has taken 370 years to build his reputation,

A Kingfish Without Mercy

THE SPIRIT of Abraham Lincoln has tough going in a world of hard fists and little mercy, and Senator Huey Long is no exception as he plans to exterminate those he has only flattened with his political steamroller. "In promising vengeance against the city which had hitherto bucked his political reins," said the Associated Press yesterday, "the senator vowed he would remove the whole New Orleans administration from office."

Hardly more could be expected from the Kingfish. The victors in a worthier cause back in 1865 were just as ruthless, and paid little heed to the advice of a kindly man. Their heedlessness cost not only their victims and themselves needless pain, but the price is not yet paid in full. There will be a day of payment in Louisiana, and one only hopes Dictator Long is on hand to enjoy it.

Debts of The Parties

PUBLICATION of the quarterly reports of political parties—showing, incidentally, that brewers and munitions makers are important backers of the Democratic and Republican parties, respectively—brings to mind again a question raised in these columns some time ago.

Why must political parties remain the tools of the wealthy, obligated to repay the favors of those who pay their bills? Why should not this obligation be to the public itself, for whom government ostensibly operates? Why should not party expenses be paid out of the public treasury, honestly and openly, instead of through special favors to brewers and munitions makers? If there is a good reason it has not yet been made clear.

GOOD MORNING

Tomorrow University of Iowa alumni in 52 cities and towns will raise the curtain on the 1934 Hawkeye football season by sitting down to luncheon tables, listening to radio speeches from four stations, and cheering lustily.

Coach Ossie Solem will put his men through their paces in the season's only public practice session, just to show you and me how they go about it.

Thus begins the yearly session of pigskin mania in which you and I get all worked up in the bleachers over the antics of funny looking young men dressed in strange costumes running into each other, away from each other and over each other.

John Langdon-Davies in one of his condescending talks last year told a University of Iowa audience how utterly ridiculous a college football game seemed to him, and supposedly to the average foreigner unaccustomed to such things.

When you look at it that way it does seem rather hopeless and wild. One wonders how grown men can knit their brows seriously over the fine points of strategy involved in getting a piece of inflated pigskin across a goal line.

One wonders, too, how hundreds, and hundreds of thousands, of grown men and women derive so much evident enjoyment from an hour or so of sitting in freezing bleachers watching that strategy unfold interminably.

But we don't look at it that way. If John Langdon-Davies were to look at his own big toe objectively probably it would appear even funnier than a football game. Mine does when I look at it that way. But when I accept it as one of the necessary appendages with which I am forced to live, it becomes quite a serious thing and something to be considered with respect.

And that's the way we look at football. It's been with us now a good many years. We expect it. Like a big toe, it causes us pain sometimes; and like a big toe, it gives us endless amusement. On winter evenings we can wiggle our toes and make queer shadows on the wall in the light of the fireplace.

But football is even more enjoyable than that. It isn't limited to the autumn afternoons while we sit excitedly under blankets on cold boards and hold our tongues tightly to keep from swallowing them. It keeps us anxious, talkative, speculative, proud and excited all week, for weeks on end.

And it provides—and this is not to be lightly overlooked in making up the credit side of the ledger—the most colorful spectacle in all popular American life. Last year I watched the crowd at the Wisconsin game from the top of the east stands.

Remember? It was a gorgeous autumn day, tinted with all the colors known to Iowa autumns. The crowd, dressed like nothing in the world but a football crowd, surged across the green grass from all directions. It was like . . . Well, never mind. Probably there is a simile that would fit, but you can think of one.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Did you hear the latest? Franchot Tone wants to become an opera star. The Cornell university graduate who conquered Broadway with his performance in "Green Grow the Lilacs," stepped in quick movie fame and even into the heart of Joan Crawford, is seriously studying in the hopes of an eventual chance on the operatic stage. You'll probably be surprised to hear it but Franchot has an excellent basso voice. He had never taken it seriously until Joan began to study singing under Senor Oliver Morando. Franchot met the teacher who has developed the voices of Bebe Daniels and several other movie celebrities. Soon Franchot was as interested in singing as Joan. He now takes lessons whenever he can get away from the studio, and, oddly enough, is said to have a very good chance of developing a real voice.

The word goes around again that Charlie Chaplin is ready to start his picture at last. They say his set is almost finished and that he probably will shoot the first scene next week. You also are asked to believe that the script will be photographed exactly as is, with any changes coming at the end under the head of added scenes. Even stranger still, Charlie is said to have arranged for a company manager to see that the picture stays in the budget.

Sometime ago, Stepin Fetchit went east to appear in a big Harlem benefit. The Afro-American, colored weekly, reports the performance this way: "Stepin did his number, then asked Bill Robinson, the ace tap dancer, to bring him a chair. Stepin sat down. "The audience thought it was a gag. A vocalist came on and tried to lead Stepin off the stage but he would not go. Finally, Lucky Millinder, leader of the Mills Blue rhythm band, tried to introduce an act. "Stepin then lay down on the stage and asked who wanted to hear him say something about Greta Garbo. Some drunks in a box said they would. The rest of the audience hissed. "Stepin went to the front of the stage and said: "This is something you have never seen before; you have never seen an international actor go to sleep." "Wheel! "For every 10 ribbers who pick on Eddie Cantor, at least nine go away smarting. The latest sucker was a United Artists writer who brought up the old subject of the comedian's five daughters. "What are you going to do, Eddie," he asked, "when you have five sons-in-law to support?" The comedian shrugged. "That is easy," he snapped. "We'll form an act, Eddie Cantor and his five happy sons-in-law! And then, if their wives come to see them, we'll have a good matinee."

U. S. to Restore Skilled Labor

Secretary Perkins

Uncle Sam selects new apprentices.

The federal government has decided to aid private industry to overcome the alarming shortage of skilled labor. One of the disastrous tolls of the depression has been the virtual disappearance of highly skilled artisans in many crafts. Learning this, President Roosevelt has requested Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to help set up a program for apprentice schools in which the youth of America can learn trades. Under the supervision of Frank Cushman, of the federal education bureau, co-operation is being pushed between state and national agencies to speed up the establishment of the apprentice schools.

NEW YORK CITY (I.N.)—Uncle Sam has decided to do something about the shortage of skilled labor which, ironically enough, has slowly but steadily increased while millions of jobless men walked the streets. Back in 1929 when the depression swept down on American industry, plants and shops, paralyzed by the relentless drop in commerce, abandoned their various enterprises for training apprentices and skilled labor. Company schools and laboratories were swept aside to effect economies. For the last five years only a thin trickle of workers have been given training.

Skilled Labor Missed

When the factory whistles signaled that industry again was firing the boilers for the return trip to prosperity, company and plant managers began to count the toll of the depression. Tool designers, expert machinists and die makers were at a premium. Several big automobile concerns are said to have been forced to postpone announcement of their latest models because of the shortage of skilled workers in their engineering departments.

"We must have skilled labor," industry has been clamoring. It has been an insistent chorus throughout the hundreds of NRA code meetings in Washington drafting regulations for the nation's economic arteries.

President Roosevelt recently instructed Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to arrange a national system for training apprentices. The latter must be at least 16 years old and entered into a written contract with an employer for at least 2,000 hours of reasonably continuous employment and in an approved program of training.

Frank Cushman of the federal office of education, has been appointed to speed the plan. Regional conferences throughout the nation for the setting up of separate state bureaus are now in progress. According to Cushman, industry may continue to wobble until its supply of skilled labor reaches the high point of the pre-1929 years. In a good many trades, the average age of the worker is over 40 years, and in many crafts, there are more skilled artisans over 60 than there are under 21.

Turned to Professions

With the restriction of immigration a decade ago, the great stream of skilled labor—carpenters, stone decorators, ornamental plasterers and building mechanics from Europe virtually dried up. Thereafter, candidates have had to be selected from the youths of the nation. And until the depression, many of the sons of the earlier immigrants, who normally would have been skilled workers in Europe, turned instead to the professions here.

Authorities also have commented on the gradual decline in skill of the so-called trained workers through the recent years of inactivity. A good many in distress sold their tools for funds to live.

The federal apprentice schools smack of their plan to solve the problem of the unemployed youth. Even so, Washington seeks something more tangible in results than chopping trees.

At Puget Sound navy yard, more than 5,000 young men recently sought to fill 50 available apprenticeships. The Boston navy yard announced 1,125 willing candidates were ready to grab a single opening it had offered.

Private industry also is reopening its training schools, and scores of technical institutes are flourishing again to provide instruction at various tuition rates to meet the new demand for skill.

College Radio Group to Stand Against Definite Assignments

Adopts Resolution To Oppose Suggestion At Hearing

The Association of College and University Broadcasting Stations will take a stand against the assignment of a definite percentage of frequencies to educational broadcasts, Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the extension division, announced yesterday.

Delegates representing members of the association, of which the University of Iowa is one, adopted a resolution to that effect at a recent meeting in Kansas City, Mo.

Suggest Power Assignment

The resolution asks for the solution of problems associated with educational broadcasts on "broad general" principles, rather than through the assignment of a definite percentage of frequencies to commercial and school stations.

The resolution also asks that the power assigned to educational stations be sufficient to cover the area normally served by the institution supporting the station. This would mean, in effect, that sufficient power be given to state university stations to enable broadcasts to be received throughout the state.

Hearing Oct. 10

The proposal to assign a definite percentage to education was made recently by a religious and educational group. A hearing will be held Oct. 10 in Washington, D. C., by the federal communications division, at which the association will be represented by W. T. Griffith of Iowa State college, its new president, and Joe Wright, its past president.

A request of station WSUI of the University of Iowa for more broadcasting time and power has been withdrawn pending this hearing. Whether the university will again seek the additional time and power is now uncertain.

Menzer, Harshbarger Attend

In addition to Professor Mahan, the University of Iowa was represented at the Kansas City meeting by Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department and Carl Menzer, technical director of station WSUI. The men returned to Iowa City yesterday.

Relief Projects For Iowa Women Getting Special Consideration

DES MOINES, Sept. 13 (AP)—Special consideration is being given work relief projects for women in Iowa, it was announced today by Ina T. Tyler, state relief director.

Jessie L. Hanthorn, director of women's work, is in charge of the program giving work to women in occupations in which they are particularly adapted.

At present there are 179 such projects in operation in the state, employing 1,281 women. Sewing room projects have been established in 75 counties, employing 539 women.

At Dubuque, Sioux City, Webster City, Atlantic, Ottumwa, Council Bluffs, Davenport and Burlington uniforms are being made for use in the relief beef slaughtering and canning factories, the director explained.

Theodore Roosevelt To Make 3 Speeches At G.O.P. Functions

DES MOINES, Sept. 13 (AP)—Theodore Roosevelt, who is to be principal speaker at the Iowa Republican constitution day meeting here, will arrive at 7:30 a. m. Monday, it was announced by Republican officials today.

Early in the day he will make three speeches in the city prior to his address in the evening at the Shrine auditorium.

He is expected to sound a challenge to the New Deal in his talks here, Republican headquarters indicated today.

The principal address Monday evening is open to the public and no seats are to be reserved, the headquarters announced.

TRAILS into the UNKNOWN

Secret of Earth Core Probed By Magnetism

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of five daily articles.)

By F. B. COLTON
(Associated Press Science Writer)

WASHINGTON (AP)—The mysterious magnetic force that caused a mutiny among Columbus' sailors by shifting the compass needle away from true north is now blazing a trail for science into the unknown interior of the earth.

Although man has been riding the earth through space for half a million years or more, he knows little more about its interior today than when he first descended from his tree-living ancestors. His deepest mines and drill-holes reveal not much more about the earth's interior than a fly could learn about an apple's insides by merely biting into its skin.

Now, however, without digging so much as a foot, scientists are using the earth's own magnetism—which is as unseen but as real as gravity—to investigate what one of them calls "silent but titanic forces ceaselessly at work deep within the earth."

Re-Making Earth's Interior

These forces apparently manifest themselves at the surface through slow changes in the earth's magnetism year by year. Studying behavior of these centers, which are constantly moving about, scientists expect to learn more about the internal forces. Countless ages after the earth first took shape as a planet, these forces still are at work re-making its interior, even though the surface seems "finished" enough to live on.

The magnetism that the scientists are using as a probing tool is the same as that in a horseshoe magnet. In fact, the earth actually is a magnet, 8,000 miles in diameter. Its magnetism is what makes the compass point in general to the north, although the needle's direction varies at different times and places due to changes in the magnetism.

To chart the movements and locations of the centers of magnetic disturbance that reveal internal activity, scientists of many nations are making a magnetic survey of the whole earth.

Probe Long Buried Secrets

Traveling laboriously through remote regions to watch and record the wiggles of delicate instrument needles, flashing radio signals into the sky to measure magnetism, there, and making careful experiments in laboratories around the world, they are on the way to uncovering secrets buried within the earth for 2,000,000,000 years.

The magnetism trail is leading now through China's bandit-ridden interior, through the heat of East Africa and the blizzards of Byrd's camp at Little America. In all these regions, explorers of Carnegie Institution of Washington are making magnetic records.

Already they have made magnetic measurements at 10,000 places on the earth's surface, which show the distribution of the magnetic force, and each one is marked.

What's Inside Earth?

If the scientists could dig a hole through the earth, what would they find? A solid rock shell around a fiery furnace of molten lava? A 2-150-mile solid core of nickel-iron alloy? Vast masses of material moving about far underground? A rigid rock shell 700 miles thick slipping around a more viscous interior mass like a tire around an inner tube? Heat and pressure so great that they burn and crush atoms into new materials unknown to us?

Sometimes the magnetic studies may help answer these questions.

Former Student of S.U.I. Will Instruct At Cornell College

MT. VERNON, Sept. 13 (Special to The Daily Iowan)—Alberta Munkres of Chadron, Neb., a former University of Iowa student, has been appointed instructor in elementary education at Cornell college, it was announced here today.

Miss Munkres studied character education at Iowa during the 1932 summer session. She has also studied at Nebraska State Normal college, Drake university, Boston university, Columbia university, the University of Colorado, and Union Theological seminary.

The new appointee holds Ph.D., M.A., and M. E. degrees. She has taught at Crawford, Neb., and Chadron, Neb., in Nebraska State Normal, Drake, Boston, and Columbia. Miss Munkres is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Pi Lambda Theta, and Kappa Delta Pi.

Indians On War Path? Well, This Car Was 'Scalped'

GARY, Ind., Sept. 13 (AP)—Crime in Gary took a new twist today with the first reported auto-scalping.

A. A. Martin left his sedan parked by a hotel and returned a few hours later to find the car, not built as a convertible, completely de-roofed.

Marauders had sheared off the top, leaving the rest of the machine intact. Martin drove the remains home, and was on the market for that rarest of spare parts, a complete roof.

Meanwhile, police searched for suspicious characters with traces of war-paint and a tomahawk or two.

Book Circulation At S.U.I. Libraries Reported Increased

Circulation of books from university libraries showed an increase of more than 3,000 volumes in August over August, 1933, a monthly report by Grace Van Wormer, acting director of libraries, revealed yesterday.

The total number of books circulated last month was 35,114, as compared with 31,787 the year before. This indicates an increase of 3,327 volumes.

A report on the number of persons who used the library facilities this summer showed that 3,374 persons had borrowed books during the summer session.

Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON — Hitch-hikers have little on the "new deal" nowadays. That old upraised thumb and the "going our way?" look is turned toward Mr. Business.

Difficulties seem to be, however, that business isn't steaming along and would be disinclined to give the "new deal" a lift if it were. As one critic expressed it, "we're afraid of getting knocked on the head."

Which fear, rejoins the administration, is tommyrot.

Thereupon may hang a tale of what is to come. Alternatives faced by the "new deal" unless industrial activity increases to provide the tax wherewithal for footing federal bills, eventually may range between resumption of deflation and extreme inflation.

the day of the profiteering buccaner is over.

It is stated more gently, yet the intent is plain; wages of capital to be secondary to wages of men, thereby strengthening consuming power, which in turn will steady if decrease the capital return.

President Roosevelt expressed it when he said more was involved than subtraction and addition of wealth; what's sought is "multiplication."

In other words, he admonished capital to rely on greater sales at less profit on each for income, rather than on big profits from fewer sales.

There are signs that this philosophy is becoming more widely accepted. The extent and speed of its spread may alone spell the future of the "new deal."

Theory Faces Test

Today's situation: The treasury deficit grows much faster than its tax income. A theory has been that spending would "prime the pump" spur private initiative until it could take up the unemployment slack—and federal disbursements then could be tapered off.

The soundness of that must be tested by the way it works. Should it finally take hold and business pick up decidedly, skeptics would re-bushing. If it fails miserably, the present hue and cry against "experimentation" will seem like a gentle breeze by comparison with the storm of criticism.

This explains the hitch-hike motif, recently illustrated by secretaries Roper and Perkins in giving reassuring speeches. It isn't new although plainer than when—a year ago—bankers were told "be smart for once" and increase lending. The bankers, he it said, bemoaned the lack of borrowers.

Present strategy is against subtly circulated contentions that the "profit motive" stands endangered. The chief Rooseveltians assure that private profit has an incontrovertible place. It obviously must have, if the bills rolling up are to be paid by taxes, because the greater the profits, the greater the tax payments.

Profiteer's Day Over

"Come," they beckon to business from the "new deal" roadside, "Get going after profits."

"Honest business," they say "need fear nothing," but a man should be content with "reasonable" profits,

ABOUT SPORTS

Tickets Sell... A Gopher's Point of View... Little Hawks Swing Into Action... Time for Football to Take Spotlight.

TICKETS for the Iowa-Minnesota game are going at a very fast pace these days, faster, in fact, than at any other time during the last 10 years.

A former University of Minnesota student told us that if he only saw one football game this season, that game would be the Iowa-Gopher clash here Oct. 27.

IOWA CITY high school is the first local school to swing into action on the gridiron this year, the Little Hawks meeting Columbus Junction tonight at Shrader field.

FOUND A small, shaggy-white haired Airedale dog, lost: Same small shaggy-white Airedale dog. Had great sport tossing sticks for the dog to retrieve, but the last stick thrown saw the little fellow keep right on going.

The Giants apparently have tied up the National league flag, but the Detroit Tigers still hold the fans' interest. The Bengals have won 89 games to date, needing only a few more to clinch the flag that New York is fighting for.

TRACK, TENNIS, baseball, swimming, golf and other summer sports will soon be taking a back seat to look on while football, the game of huge crowds, color-frenzied interest, high spirits and deep gloom takes the spotlight.

Little Hawks Play Columbus Junction Here

Shrader Field Site Of Game; Starts At 8 o'Clock

Iowa City high griders meet Columbus Junction tonight to open the Little Hawk football season. The game, held on Shrader field, starts at 8 o'clock.

Coach Wells' starting lineup includes five of last year's regulars and six athletes making bids for first team regular starting positions.

Fast Backs Andy Duros and Jerry Pooler, two light but fast backs, are slated to take over the halfback positions.

Reserve strength is more in evidence this year than last, with about a dozen boys on hand to take over team posts. Included in the reserve list of those who will probably see service tonight are: Alvin Williams, Bill Meardon and Don Bush, ends; Dwight Hunter, "Ham" Snyder, who suffered a charley horse Tuesday, Roscoe Ayres and Kenneth Jones, backs; Charley Snyder, guard, and Richard Soucek, tackle.

For color, the griders have all that could be desired in the new equipment they will wear. Dark red pants and jerseys, with white numerals and white stockings, sat in suits with white stripes for the backs and ends, and red and white headgear leave nothing to be desired in the color department.

Officials for tonight's game will be John Lane of Pittsburg State Teachers, referee; Coach E. L. Fisher of West Branch, umpire; and Edwin Shain, equipment manager at the fieldhouse, head linesman.

Mentors Find Loop-Hole In College Rules

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—After several hours of delving into the 1934 college football code, the eagle eyes of Big Ten coaches discovered one loop-hole which needed plugging, at their annual pre-season meeting today.

This year the rules say that the illegal recovery of a punt, that is, by the kicking team, is a foul. Previously, the ball simply became the possession of the receiving team, regardless of which side downed it.

Cards Trip Giants in Desperate Effort to Cut Loop Lead; Paul Dean Gives 6 Hits to Win, 2-0

Dean Hurls Brilliant 12 Inning Fray For 16th Victory

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—The desperate St. Louis Cardinals, battling to close the season that separates them from the world champion New York Giants, hurled Master Paul Dean into the breach today at the start of a four game series, and he shut out the national league leaders 2 to 0 in 12 brilliant innings to shave the distance to 4 1/2 games.

(By the Associated Press) Kiki Cuyler dropped out of the Big Six again yesterday, reducing it to normal size as he hit only once in five attempts and dropped a point behind John Moore of the Phillies, who was idle. Of the four surviving members who saw action, only Charley Gehring did any serious hitting. He smacked three blows in four times at bat to raise his average three points and tie Heinie Manush for third place. Heinie lost a point with one hit in four times up. Bill Terry also got one hit and dropped one point while Lou Gehring's mark went down two when he failed to connect in two official times up.

Dean allowed only six hits and earned seven as he ran his string of victories to five for the season over the champions, equalling the mark of Big Brother Dizzy. Of the 11 games the Cards have won from Bill Terry's gang this season, the Deans have pitched all but one. It was also Paul's sixteenth for the year on all fronts.

Bottom Dropped Out Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, the knuckle ball veteran, sailed along evenly with the lanky Card yearling until the bottom dropped out of the situation in the St. Louis half of the seventh. Up to that point the Cards had nicked him for six scattered singles when Ducky Medwick started the uprising with a single to left with one out.

Jim Collins promptly slashed a single single to right chasing Medwick to third. On Bill DeLancey's fly to Mel Ott, Medwick broke for the plate and Ott promptly heaved away the ball game.

His throw to the plate passed Ocher Gus Mancuso, letting Collins tear to third. He scored on Leo Durocher's single to left after Ernie Ottati had been purposely passed. Dean ended the inning by grounding out.

Fitting Climax As a fitting climax to one of the best ball games of the season, though a crowd of only 3,100 braved a chilly, blustery day, the Giants all but won it back in their half of the twelfth. Young Dean passed Pinch Hitter Leroy O'Doul with two out and slung the first ball straight down the middle to George Watkins, another pinch hitter. Watkins blasted it right into the upper stands in right field, but in his anxiety to crash it plenty, pulled it foul by about three feet. Watkins then popped up to end the ball game.

Washington University Pins Football Hopes On 2 Sophomore Backs.

(Note: This is another of a series dealing with major college football prospects.)

By DILLON GRAHAM (Associated Press Sports Writer) WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Heading into an almost solid string of stiff intercollegiate gridiron melees this fall, George Washington university pins its chief hopes on a pair of sophomore backs.

Deficiencies in other spots may hamper the "Colonials," but Coach James Pixlee is primarily concerned about these young ball carriers—Herb Reeves and Ray Hanken.

Iowan at Fullback Pixlee believes Hanken, a hard running 190 pound fullback from Getwell, Ia., and Reeves, a 187-pound runner from Pine Bluff, Ark., have the goods offensively to fit in with Ben Pionick, the quarterback, and Alphonse "Tough" Leonard, at halfback, but he is somewhat worried over their abilities on the defense.

"We will have a good line, faster and probably better than that of last season," Pixlee says, "with Captain Ed Clark, a 200 pound star, at one tackle."

The George Washington mentor uses an unbalanced line, runs his plays from a half-punt formation, and favors an open passing game.

The "G. W." squad is just finishing a two weeks early training period at Camp Letts, Maryland, and will return to Griffith stadium, the major league baseball park, to begin its regular routine drills next week.

The Schedule Sept. 29—Shepherd. Oct. 5—Denver at Denver (night). Oct. 12—The Citadel (night). Oct. 19—Tulsa (night). Oct. 26—Wake Forest (night). Nov. 3—Vanderbilt. Nov. 10—Louisiana State. Nov. 17—West Virginia at Morgantown, West Virginia. Nov. 23—North Dakota U. (night). Nov. 20—Oklahoma U.

Husker Grid Players Sent Through Drill

LINCOLN, Sept. 13 (AP)—After only three days of workouts, the University of Nebraska football squad went through its first scrimmage today, and was informed that a heavy scrimmage will be held Saturday. On the basis of these workouts, the varsity squad will be selected Tuesday.

The forward pass was given particular attention today, and fundamentals continued to play an important part in the half a day workouts. Half an hour of each morning session is given to discussing rules, in Coach D. X. Bible's effort to have his men fully schooled.

Ross Faces McLarnin Again the Old Razz And Tazz; Both Boys Ready.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin wound up hard training today for the first renewal of their welterweight championship feud at the Madison Square Garden bowl Saturday night.

Pop Foster, the benign Irishman who pilots McLarnin, may send his protegee to the gymnasium tomorrow for a round or so of shadow boxing, but that will be all.

Much the same program is planned for the champion. Barney went through a snappy drill today. He boxed a round each with Al Cassimmi and Jimmy Murphy, a pair of rugged lightweight, and topped off with two speedy rounds against Phil Rafferty.

He did not extend himself until he faced Rafferty. Then he cut loose for a round and a half and what he showed caused his followers to howl with glee.

Bob Levi, trainer of Tommy Loughran, predicted that a knockout victory for the Chicagoan is probable.

Officials were instructed to be watchful on plays which might be interpreted as deliberate attempts to draw the defensive team offside, and to see that a forward passer gets proper protection, after he throws the ball. It was pointed out that the officials have been alert for roughness by the defensive team before or while the passer was getting rid of the ball, but that fouls sometimes occurred after the ball was in the air.

Alvin (Bo) McMillin, Indiana's new coach, and Francis Schmidt, successor to Sam Willaman at Ohio State, attended their first meeting with Big Ten coaches. Fielding H. Yost, Michigan's athletic director, presided as middle western states representative on the rules committee.

Ticket prices will be the same as usual with $6.00, including federal tax, for box seats. Other prices: grand stand reserved, $5.50; general admission, $3.30 and bleachers seats would be available at $3.30 in addition to general admission tickets.

THE SINGING by JOAN CLAYTON and MALCOLM LOGAN

CHAPTER XXXIV "Sit down, Miss Montague," Finn said. "Make yourself at home. I want to look around."

He pulled open a bureau drawer. Miss Montague took a cigarette case from her bag and lit a cigarette. Her hands shook slightly. I watched her closely as the sheriff conferred with the opened bureau drawers, bursting with clothing. He began to look methodically through the top one. It seemed to me that when he pushed it shut, some of the tension left the woman's face.

"The sheriff found a few old letters addressed to Elaine Montague, bills and photographs. He looked disappointed. Turning, he surveyed the room, but there was no other article of furniture that promised to reveal anything of interest.

"I'd advise you to look more thoroughly in that top drawer, Mr. Finn," I said.

"Miss Montague turned on me furiously. 'What right have you to interfere?' she cried shrilly. 'Sheriff, I won't stand for this! Put this man out of my room!' With an effort she controlled herself and added with attempted indifference, 'Look through anything you want. Turn the whole place upside down. You won't find anything I wouldn't show you.'

The sheriff looked at her narrowly. Then he opened the top drawer without a word and began taking out clothes from it, carefully laying them on a chair. When they were all out, he pulled out the brown paper that covered the wood.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. He picked up a letter and began to read it. "So," he said, "you got a letter addressed to Miss Francine Martin, General Delivery." He nodded his head slowly. "Postmarked a week before you were killed—after you said you were dead."

He took the letter from the envelope, reading it laboriously: "My own beloved wife: 'Of course I shall be charmed to see you again, after this separation which I know has grieved you so. I am overwhelmed with sorrow to hear that you are in need of money and delighted that you had no absurd scruples about requesting help of the man you deserted.'

"Anything I have is yours, of course—on only one minor condition which I know you will be delighted to fulfill. I will pay you very well for the name of the man whom you preferred to me. I am sure you won't hesitate to betray him. If the price is large enough. Have you ever heard of the lady who interfered with your pleasure?"

He broke off and looked triumphantly at Miss Montague. "I guess you still deny you're Mrs. Vail?" he said.

"I certainly do," she said. "I wrote to him in his wife's name because I had to see him."

The sheriff laughed. He turned again to the letter, reading the rest to himself, his lips moving. Finally he folded it, returned it to the envelope and put it in his pocket. "Tells you just how to get into his room through that private door, I see," he said. "All right, Mrs. Vail, I'll give you time to put some clothes in a suitcase and then you're going back to Sherwood Forest with me."

The sheriff, the woman who called herself Elaine Montague and I arrived at Cold Valley on the afternoon train and went directly to the sanatorium. During the journey the woman had maintained a frightened, sullen silence. Mark was expecting us, for I had telephoned him from the station, and he took the woman to his room.

"Well," he cried when we came in. "Visitors! Sit down, everybody." To the woman he bowed slightly and said, with an impish smile, "Mrs. Vail, I presume."

"When you entered Vail's room, you turned on the phonograph, didn't you?"

"Yes, I guess Vail put it on. I decided to wake him up with it. 'And then when he didn't wake, you saw that he was dead?'"

Her face was pale. "Yes, I was frightened, and I got away as soon as I could."

"What was Rivers' real name?" Mark asked suddenly.

"That's the only name I knew him by," the woman answered promptly. Then she bit her lip.

"But he," she said, "I understand that in his letter to you Vail offered to pay you for the man's name, which obviously wasn't Rivers. Why did you come here to see him if you couldn't tell him that?"

The woman refused to answer, even when Finn roared the question at her. Mark sank back on his pillows.

"If you'll excuse me," he said in a faint voice, "I'd like to be alone for a while. I'm very tired."

As soon as Finn had gone out with Miss Montague, all Mark's weariness vanished. He sat up and said to Sue, "Tell Finn to keep her away from Vail's room."

"Well work, Bob. You're promoted to lieutenant."

"It seems more confused than ever to me," I said. "Why did she come here, anyway, if she didn't know what Vail wanted?"

"She came to get a cut of the money John was paying him, of course," Mark said. "She thought she could blackmail Vail's sister, too. That's the only reason we found her here."

"Working out. I'm beginning to see the light. Now run and bring John Calvert here."

He began to hum one of his own songs as I went out of the room. I found John Calvert in his office, slumped in a chair, listlessly staring at some medical records on his desk. The defiant gaiety he had exhibited when Felipa's story had involved him in Seibert Vail's murder had gone from him. His eyes were tired and his face haggard as he looked at me and nodded.

Van der Zee Tells of Local PWA Projects

Gives Description Of Three at Rotary Club Meeting

Three Iowa City-PWA projects, actually started or under consideration, were described yesterday by Alderman Jacob Van der Zee in a talk before Rotary club members at the Jefferson hotel.

The city council, he stated, is asking the state board of education to pay 40 per cent of the building and maintenance costs on the proposed sewage disposal plant. Application for aid will come before the board at its Cedar Falls meeting today, he said.

Means Rental Levy
Although the sewage disposal plant will mean a rental levy on water users, Alderman Van der Zee stated, he is personally in favor of the project because of the employment it will give.

He pointed out that the Burlington street paving, a contract for which was granted at the last council meeting, will mean no higher taxes to Iowa Citizens. It will be financed by the PWA and the state highway commission.

Describe Light Plans
Alderman Van der Zee, champion of municipal ownership, described plans for the construction of a city owned light and power plant in Iowa City. Construction of such a plant would not mean any change in taxes, and "Iowa City could take this project right in its stride," he asserted.

Funeral Rites For Omer Griffin Today

Funeral services for Omer E. Griffin, 513 N. Van Buren street, will be at 9 o'clock this morning at the Harmon funeral home. The Rev. Willard Lampe will officiate. Burial will be at Lehighville.

AROUND THE TOWN with

John Pryor

A-Visiting
Members of the city council investigating committee, accompanied by representatives of The Daily Iowan, surveyed the natural gas situation in Cedar Rapids yesterday. The general impression gained was that natural gas is a fine thing—there have been no complaints to the mayor in two months, he said.

Donation
Luckily, the group visited the laboratory of the city dairy inspector—and bottles of milk of all varieties were passed around. One delegate got a bottle of special baby's milk, and hardly knew whether to be pleased or irritated.

Fond Dreams
The city council delegates were vastly impressed by the Cedar Rapids city hall, which is large, airy, attractive, and which has an elevator. One could almost see, in their eyes, the start of a future bond issue to build such a municipal center in Iowa City. In the very far future, of course.

Popular
Luella Reckmeyer, director of the recreational center, says that ping-pong is the favorite sport there. Many boys and girls are now using facilities of the center, which was opened Monday, she reports. Activities are scheduled for Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays this month.

No Sale
Proprietors of several establishments here have promised not to sell contraceptives, it was announced yesterday by county officials. Sellers were recently caught by a state agent and warned by local officers.

36,000 Apply For Old Age Pensions, Urlick Estimates

DES MOINES, Sept. 13 (AP)—Approximately 36,000 persons in Iowa have applied for old-age pensions, according to an estimate made today by A. L. Urlick, member of the Iowa old age assistance commission.

PWA Revokes Allotments
WASHINGTON, (AP)—The public works administration today revoked 26 allotments for non-federal projects. This action released $4,457,900 for reallocation to other projects on the waiting list.

Radio Club Plans For Election Of Officers Thursday

Members of the Iowa City Amateur Radio club will elect officers at next Thursday's meeting, it was decided at a club session in the American Legion Community building last night.

Present officers are Paul Griffith, president; Marcus Sutton, vice president; Edwin O'Brien, secretary; and Max Otto, publicity manager.

After a general discussion and a meeting of the code class, refreshments were served to the 15 members and guests present.

Demo Office Opens Today

Headquarters Will Be In Savings Bank Building

Johnson county Democrats will open campaign headquarters on the second floor of the Iowa City Savings bank building today, it was announced last night by County Chairman William Hart.

The office will be open daily until the November election, and will serve as an information bureau on campaign issues, he said.

Patrick E. Kehoe of Farley, Democratic candidate for superintendent of public instruction, will attend the party rally here Sept. 23, Mr. Hart also stated yesterday.

Many state officials and candidates are expected for the affair, at which James Roosevelt will speak.

WHY is SIDWELL'S called Hy-Score milk?

Why We Say Sidwell's Is Hy-Score Milk

SIDWELL'S MILK IS obtained from carefully selected dairy farms that are subject to frequent, rigid inspection.

But Sidwell's go farther than that to insure milk of the finest quality obtainable for Iowa City.

As an added inducement each of the farmer-producers supplying us milk that scores 90 or better (see score card) receives a bonus of 10 cents for each hundred pounds of milk. These scorings are made twice each week and give a constant check on the quality and cleanliness of the milk coming to our plant. All milk distributed by us is bonus quality milk. That's why we say Sidwell's is HY-SCORE Milk.

Pasteurized in our modern dairy—it is pure, rich, safe milk—purchased by us at a premium—sold to you at no more than you would pay for ordinary milk.
