Iowa City's Bargain Days have begun! Today, tomorrow and Saturday more than 50 merchants are featuring special bargains and offering regular stock at reduced prices.

Working under the plan of the Retail Merchants bureau, all stores are slashing the cost of many and varied articles, merchants said.

Every convenience will be provided for customers attending the sales. Selection of goods from the stocks of the various stores will be simplified, since Thanksgiving and Christmas gifts are included in most of the bargain leaders at the stores.

This is the second time this year that local merchants have cooperated in offering special bargain days for shoppers.

Surgeon Restores Life By Squeezing Woman's Heart With Fingers

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21 (INS)—Grasping her heart between his fingers and compressing it rhythmically against the chest wall, a prominent heart surgeon today returned life to the body of a woman who had succumbed to a heart attack while on the operating table at University hospital.

The names of the patient and the surgeon were withheld for the present by hospital authorities who disclosed the information.

The operation was carried to a successful conclusion and the patient now is resting comfortably, according to the announcement.

Exhaustive Survey Made by Iowa State College Economists

(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

AMES, Nov. 21 (INS)—A period of comparative prosperity for Iowa agriculture was predicted today in a detailed report of an exhaustive survey by Iowa State college economists.

Rising prices and expanding farm credit—part of a gradual development which brought prices to 94 per cent of the 1910-1914 level this year—were cited as definite indications of a trend to "pre-war prosperity" for corn belt farmers.

Bliss Sends Group The survey was the work of a group of agriculture extension economists headed by Prof. R. K. Bliss. The report was compiled after a study of the Iowa farm situation and conferences with Washington experts on trends in the nation as a whole.

Despite predictions of a weak foreign market and an "uncertain domestic demand" the economists forecast definite price advances because of the production situation in the nation as a whole.

The rise of Iowa agriculture, now labeled as a trend which started this year and shows definite signs of continuing, is expected to lend impetus also to Iowa industry and retail trade.

With the gradual advance of Iowa's key industry, the economic doldrums of the depression will be left far behind, it was believed.

The economists cited the fact that the price of commodities farmers sell has risen much faster than the price of things they buy as the best indication of "expanding net income."

"During the past year the general level of farm prices has risen nearly 50 per cent," the report said. "Between October, 1933 and the same month this year, prices of Iowa's farm products rose from 63 to 94 per cent of the 1910-1914 level."

"United States department of agriculture figures indicate that the prices of things farmers buy advanced from 116 per cent of pre-war prices to only 126 per cent during the same period."

"Long-Time Cycles" Economists called attention to "long-time cycles" in agricultural trends, citing the downward curve from 1920 to 1932 as an example, and said there is good basis to believe the present upswing will also continue for an extended period.

It was frankly admitted that farm costs will be higher in 1935 mainly because of an advance of from 34 to 35 per cent in the price of seed and feed since last spring. This increase will be more than offset, however, by rising prices, it was predicted.

Short supplies of many commodities were given as the main reason for rising price trends.

Predict Small Hog Market "Hog marketing during the year which began Oct. 1 will probably be the smallest in 20 years, mainly as the result of a very small pig crop in 1934," the report said.

Dengler Will Begin Series

Prof. Paul L. Dengler, visiting Carnegie professor of history, will begin a second series of public lectures this afternoon at 4:10 in chemistry auditorium. His subject in this first one of the series of three will be "Austria's Neighbors."

Professor Dengler, who is head of the Austro-American Institute of Education, was brought here by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, of which Nicholas Murray Butler is president. He is a staff member of the University of Vienna, and the author of a book, "New Education in Austria."

At present he is teaching two history courses in the university, and has been speaking extensively in many mid-western cities during the week ends.

House Committee Questions Salesman, CCC Head

Butler Charge Brings Quick House Action

Plan for 500,000 Men To March on Capital Told; Charges Denied

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Behind closed doors, the house committee on un-American activities questioned last night today Gerald C. MacGuire, Wall street bond salesman, regarding the report he was seeking to establish a fascist corps in the United States to impose a dictatorship.

Amidst the reverberations of the charges laid before the committee yesterday by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, the retired marine corps commander who said he was asked to head the fascist, congressional investigators delved into reports of a CCC camp at Elkridge, Md., near the national capital, planned as the fascist headquarters.

Investigated Camp At this camp, the committee heard, 500,000 men were to be concentrated for a march to Washington.

The committee recently investigated this camp. Its commander, Captain Samuel Glazier, was summoned yesterday to testify again.

At Baltimore, Glazier said his testimony did not concern the Butler charges.

"I know nothing," he said, "about this reported dictatorship scheme."

Although MacGuire, who is associated with the Grayson M. P. Murphy firm of brokers, has steadily denied any participation in a fascist plot, Rep. Samuel Dickstein, vice chairman of the committee, said last night the broker "is hanging himself by his testimony."

Abroad On Vacation Dickstein said MacGuire virtually had identified himself in his testimony as the "cashier" of the movement.

The vice chairman said MacGuire had toured Italy, Germany "and other countries in Europe where fascism flourishes" to make a study.

Norman L. Marks, MacGuire's counsel, said he went abroad solely for a vacation.

"Needed A Rest" "He had a leave of absence and needed a rest," the counsel said. "And he sold bonds, while abroad."

Marks was asked directly: "Was MacGuire ever connected with any fascist order?"

"No," Grayson Murphy, by whom MacGuire is represented, said. (Turn to Page 2)

Huey Starts 'Honeymoon'

NEW ORLEANS, (AP)—Huey Long left New Orleans yesterday by motor car on his "delayed honeymoon trip" for an unannounced destination.

J.P. Morgan Returns to U.S.; Is Optimistic About Recovery

the progress of recovery in England as he did on his return last year. He was sitting in a wicker chair in the green sitting room of his suite. His knees were crossed, the powerful arms rested on the sides and the beetling brows were relaxed in the greatest friendliness.

"What about the S.E.C. (securities exchange commission)?" the man who holds the number one seat on the New York stock exchange was asked. Morgan smiled and said: "I haven't heard. It's working out all right, isn't it?"

Not even mention of the administration's course in severing the once remunerative securities business from the house of Morgan creased his brow.

"Oh, yes," he said, "we chose to continue as bankers only, before I went to England in July, and I see no reason to change our minds."

After This He Will Be More Careful In Asking for 'Boloney'

When he asked for "boloney" everybody laughed. This lack of respect for his favorite tidbit infuriated Arthur M. Duffey, traveling salesman, who said things.

The waitress said that it was not only a lot of "boloney" but insulting as well. She called Night Captain Joe Dolezal and Officer Frank Burns of the local police force who agreed, so they lodged him in jail.

Yesterday morning Police Judge Harold W. Vestermark learned how "boloney" caused Mr. Duffey to disturb the peace. The judge dismissed him with the warning to be more careful in the future when ordering "boloney."

Japan Makes Naval Policy Explanation

Claims Not Trying To Outstrip America Nor Great Britain

(Copyright By International News Service)

TOKYO, Nov. 21 (INS)—In one of the clearest expostions of Japanese foreign policy ever made, the Japanese government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service, today outlined its reasons for denunciation of the Washington naval treaty.

An official spokesman declared emphatically Japan has no intention of attempting to outstrip Great Britain or the United States in a naval building race, but at the same time sought to dispose of America's claims to a larger navy than that of Japan on the grounds of coastal defense.

"To say that the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument," the spokesman declared. "Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies."

"The trade routes of America and Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw products for manufacturing and huge amounts of foodstuffs for consumption."

"To balance these purchases, we must ship manufactured goods for foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular worldwide services."

Castor Oil Starts Strike

HAVANA, (AP)—A dose of castor oil, forcibly administered to a song and dance artist, resulted in a strike of theatrical performers throughout the capitol last night.

Decomposed Bodies Of Three Infants Found; Woman Is Arraigned

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Discovery of the decomposed bodies of three infants in a trunk today led to arraignment of attractive, well-groomed Ruby Clarke, 36, of Upper Nyack, N. Y., on a charge of homicide—a charge she denied.

The dust-covered trunk, its lock broke, was opened by two workmen, who were startled at their unexpected find. It had lain in the Brooklyn warehouse since it was checked by Miss Clarke in July, 1932.

Pi Beta Phi Leads In Hawkeye Campaign

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic Explorer, Speaks Here Tonight

Iowa Graduate Will Discuss "Northward Course of Empire"

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, explorer and author, will present the first address on the annual university lecture series tonight at 8 o'clock in Iowa Union. His lecture, on "The Northward Course of Empire," will be illustrated with slides and moving pictures taken on the explorer's Arctic ventures.

Mr. Stefansson will discuss the changing attitude toward the far north, and the part that explorations in recent years have played in clarifying general impressions of the Arctic. He believes that civilization is moving northward, and he will point out tonight the possible future trends of that movement, with special reference to the part that airplanes will play in it.

Holds Two Degrees The holder of two degrees from the University of Iowa, Mr. Stefansson has spoken on the Iowa campus many times. He has also been active in Iowa alumni affairs in New York city, where he now lives.

Twenty years of scientific explorations in the Arctic have given the former Iowan a position among the foremost explorers of the century. He undertook his first trip, a privately financed expedition to Iceland, the year after his graduation at the University of Iowa, in 1904.

Important Contributions Among the important contributions to scientific knowledge resulting from Mr. Stefansson's explorations are the proof of life in the Arctic, discovery of Brook and Borden islands, first study of certain Eskimo tribes, and new information concerning the Arctic ocean.

The best known of his books are "My Life With the Eskimo," "The Friendly Arctic," "The Northward Course of Empire," "The Adventure of Wrangel Island," "The Standardization of Error," and "Hunters of the Great North."

The lecturer will arrive in Iowa City this afternoon, and is expected to remain here until tomorrow evening. In addition to his public lecture tonight, he will lead a round-table discussion tomorrow at 4:10 p.m., in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Sowers To Speak Today

Will Present First Address of Series To Times Club at Union

Prof. W. Leigh Sowers of the English department will present the first of a series of special Thursday afternoon addresses before the Times club in the river room of Iowa Union at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

"The Soviet Theater" will be the subject of Professor Sowers' address. He has recently returned from Europe, where he studied the theater in various countries, and attended the Russian theater festival in Moscow in September.

Experienced Professor Sowers has had many years of experience in the drama, both in active production and in dramatic criticism. Before coming to the University of Iowa, where he teaches courses in American, continental and British drama, dramatic criticism, and playwriting, he was associated with the University of Texas.

At that institution he was an associate of Stark Young, dramatic critic of The New Republic and author of the recent novel, "So Red the Rose."

Two Groups The Times club lectures consist of two groups—addresses by visiting lecturers and special Thursday afternoon addresses by members of the University of Iowa faculty. Professor Sowers' address is the first of the latter group.

Admission to this afternoon's address will be to members only, by membership ticket. Single admission tickets will not be available, it was announced.

'Purple Woman' Turns Red; Physicians Seek Diagnosis of Case

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Edith Perry, the general hospital's "purple woman," turned red tonight and physicians renewed efforts to diagnose her case.

Physicians said the transformation of the 32 year old housewife's body from purple to claret red was accompanied by an extensive scaling of the skin.

Her fluctuating temperature reached a high of 102 degrees. She was reported "very ill."

Temperatures Drop; Snow Expected Here

1.9 Inches Of Rain Falls Here In 4 Days Month's Total 3.9

Statewide predictions of below-freezing temperatures and scattered snow early this morning threatened to bring to an end Iowa City's brief interval of warm autumn showers.

Associated Press and International News Service reports indicated that a general cold wave would strike the entire middle west today, bringing the first blast of a promised severe winter.

Thoroughly drenched Iowa City scurried about town yesterday, literally "walking between the raindrops," as the clouds continued to pour down rain for the fourth consecutive day.

Plane schedules were disrupted and uncertain as flying was rendered too hazardous to attempt regular service through middle western states. Two eastbound planes due at Iowa City Municipal airport yesterday were forced down at Omaha and passengers transferred to trains.

Rainfall for yesterday totaled .65 inches at 7 o'clock last night, bringing the total for the four day period to 1.9 inches. Prof. John F. Reilly announced. The month's total of 3.9 inches is considerably above the average for November, he said.

Brahms Selection Stands Out; Small's Solo Work Features

By MALCOLM J. CARR

If orchestras can have souls, that is what the university symphony orchestra didn't have last night at Iowa Union in its first program of the season.

Otherwise, the evening of old-masters' music was as much as could be expected in an organization of this kind and size (97 pieces), this early in the year.

On the whole, intonation was lively and technique was good, under the able, efficient baton of the unruffled Prof. Frank Estes Kendrick. But there was the unmistakable stamp of the unpolished group which appeared throughout the evening.

Interpretation of Weber's overture to "Der Freischutz" could have been much more expressive, and the orchestra, unfortunately failed to take advantage of the enchanting central theme—something was lost of depth and understanding which marks the difference between playing notes and playing music.

"Pastoral," Beethoven's Symphony No. 6 in F major, op. 68, dedicated to the memory of the late Henri Verbrughen, one time conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra, was evidently too great an undertaking for the players. It was said of Bohumir Kryl's symphony band last week that "clarinets can't replace violins"—nor can violins make a symphony orchestra, and it was this preponderance of strings

To Live In A Flop House!

He Gave Away Million Dollars and Likes His "Sifter of Humans"

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS)—So he took the million dollars, gave it away and, according to a copy-righted Evening Journal story today, went to live in a flop house!

Furthermore, he likes it. A. E. O. Munsell, 39, sat in his fourth floor room of a government transient shelter, the Journal said, and told why he did it. Incidentally, it's not a flop-house to him—it's "a sifter of humans." He added:

"A Great Place" "I have been here since last August. It has been the most interesting experience in my life.

"I've found a great peace. I'm not sorry I gave the money away and never will be."

When Munsell decided he was miscast as a financier, the Journal said, he took $500,000 and turned it over to his wife, the former Margaret Jean Dood, a Wellesley graduate. Then he cast about for means of disposing of the remainder. It was, he recalled with a smile, quite easy.

"Didn't Take Long" "People started coming to my office," he said. "I investigated the worth and need of the causes they represented and gave accordingly. It didn't take long to wind up my affairs."

Now he goes around in a battered, old seersucker suit and unseasonable white sneakers.

"By the first of the year," he said, "I'll be out of here and have a job. I don't want to go into business again—not in the usual sense of the word. When I'm trying to make myself is the 'conscience of business.'"

Was Observed Just so there'd be no doubt about it, he said, he went to the Phipps clinic at Johns Hopkins and spent two months under observation there. The verdict was that he was mentally and emotionally stable—he smiled again and he repeated what the doctors said, that is, that the only trouble was that he wanted to give his money away.

from HOUSE to HOUSE

Despite the "London-like" weather, a few sorority and fraternity houses entertained last night at dinner, but most of the Greek letter houses are waiting until tonight to have guests.

Life on the campus is very quiet this week, probably because of the students' need for a little "cramming" for pre-Thanksgiving exams.

Socially, there is a pleasant and well filled week end to which men and women on the Iowa campus may look forward.

Gamma Phi Beta

COMMITTEE

Quizzes MacGuire On Fascist Move

Guire is employed, was recalled for a brief time by the committee today. As he entered the committee rooms, he said "I never suspected MacGuire of any such activities."

"The whole thing," Murphy added, "is just as though somebody walked in and accused me of stealing the moon. It looked to me like an absurd joke. Even if MacGuire had been foolish enough and stupid enough to fuss around with such a thing, it would be obvious that it would be ineffective."

Emphasize Knowledge

The committee has emphasized that it had knowledge of the whole thing before General Butler laid down his evidence yesterday.

At his Pennsylvania farm today, the fiery former marine corps commander reiterated the "seriousness" of his charges.

"My name," he said, "has been linked with so many rackets before that I considered them as a joke

Gets Death Threat

Daniel Willard

Receipt of death threat by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, resulted in arrest of former employe in Baltimore. The letter stated Willard and three others would be killed unless 15,000 men were returned to work.

"These items supplement the regular relief allotments and are proportioned by the number of persons in each family. Much of the surplus food stuffs have been canned in factories using relief labor.

"More than 2,700 pounds of surplus meat is distributed each week in the county. Every Wednesday families receiving the food must call at one of the stores cooperating with relief officials and sign a card to obtain their share," she said.

Seven groceries assisting the league in distributing the commodities are: Gumps Good Grocery, Means Bros., Wicks', Glassman's, and Parizek's of Iowa City, Shouquist of Lone Tree, and Nunn of Oxford. The grocers furnish storage space for the food and distribute it as apportioned by the Social Service league.

DIVORCE XMAS

Santa Claus Judges Hand Out Releases

RENO, Nev., Nov. 21 (INS)—It looks like this is going to be a "divorce decree" Christmas.

A rush of arrivals of prominent easterners in the last two weeks will cast Reno's judges in the role of Santa Claus in handing out pink and blue ribboned divorce papers just before Yuletide.

Their six weeks period of residence will expire just before the holidays, giving them an opportunity to return to their homes, and to their children in many instances, just before Christmas.

Clifford Warren Smith, wealthy husband of Claire Luce, has filed his case in Minden, about 45 miles south of here, and if no contest develops, he may have his decree before Christmas. Smith is a stepson of Newcomb Carlton, chairman of the Western Union.

Another prominent divorce seeker here is Mrs. Edith Gibb Pratt McLane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt of New York. Mrs. McLane, prominent socially, is occupying a big Reno home here with her children and several servants. Her father is chairman of the Standard Oil company of New York, and her mother is a member of the board of regents of the University of New York.

Mrs. Millicent Hanley Jaekel, former actress, has filed her case at Minden against Richard Jaekel, wealthy New York furrier, but so far the trial date has not been set.

Mrs. Ellen duPont Meeds, member of the famous duPont family, is making residence at a nearby guest ranch preparatory to filing for divorce against Holiday Meeds of Wilmington and Philadelphia.

University, City, State Board Will Discuss Disposal Plant

Location of Plant, Ralston Creek Project Present Difficulties

In an attempt to remove obstructions blocking further progress toward a sewage disposal plant in Iowa City, the entire city council will meet with a special committee of the state board of education and the university sewage committee at 2:30 this afternoon in the council chamber.

For the first time since last May Prof. S. M. Woodward, consulting engineer for the TVA, is expected to take his seat at the council table. Members for the state board committee to be present at the session are George E. Baker of Davenport, S. J. Galvin of Sheffield, and Harry

M. Noas of Sigourney. The meeting was originally scheduled for tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.

While the PWA loan and grant for the project has been approved and bids received, no further progress can be made until four or five major problems confronting the university and city can be cleared up, officials indicated.

Among the questions to be decided at the meeting are the location of the plant, the university's objection to the Ralston creek section of the sewage improvement, the university's fair share of the cost of the entire project, the controversy over the number of filters in the treatment plant, and the extension of the trunk line sewer on the east side of the river north to Red Ball inn.

While the Currie Engineering company recommended the construction of the plant on the east side of the river, Mayor Harry Beene at a recent council meeting asked that the sewer committee investigate possible locations on the west side. No action has been taken on the question by the council.

According to Prof. C. M. Undergraff at a meeting of the council Friday night, the university's interest in the Ralston creek improvement is too remote and has no direct connection with the sewage treatment works for which the university will attempt to pay its fair share, estimated at 40 per cent.

The university sewage committee, made up almost entirely of engineers, objects to the using of three filters in the treatment of sewage. They argued that primary treatment was enough and that two instead of three filters would be sufficient.

MASON CITY (INE)—The beer permit of Frank M. Konsella had been revoked by the Mason City council yesterday on claims that alcohol was in Konsella's restaurant.

PROSPERITY

For Farmers Seen In Report

for much higher hog prices on the average during the next year. The greatest rise in prices should come next summer when the effect of the small pig crop will be felt. A considerable rise in prices is also to be expected, however, in late winter and early spring.

High Cattle Prices Seen

"Because of the larger reduction in cows and heifers than in other cattle, it is likely that cattle numbers will not increase during the coming year. Cattle prices will probably be higher during the coming year than they have been during 1934 and it is likely that prices of good and choice cattle will be much the highest they have been in several years.

"Next summer the supply of well-finished cattle is expected to be very short and prices accordingly high. These prices to continue through the fall months.

Higher for Eggs Forecast

"The coming winter will probably be a period of light production and rising prices, due to feed shortage, where dairy cattle are concerned. After the next crop season, assuming average yields, dairymen should be placed in a relatively favorable position by the high price of dairy products compared with the price of feeds."

The report predicts higher than average prices for eggs next spring, and says "the price of eggs may rise high enough to justify the feeding of hens liberally."

Adjustments Indicated

Contrary to popular belief, the report, expresses a conviction that despite the extreme shortage of hay supplies, a complete utilization of corn fodder, corn stover, silage, straw and other roughage will probably carry practically all the livestock during the coming winter.

Many adjustments are indicated, however, if livestock are to be kept during the next few months, the report says. In drought sections sowing of small grains for pasture is recommended.

J. P. MORGAN

Optimistic on Return From England

appeared through the port hole. Had he cared to, he could have seen the incredible towers of Manhattan shrouded in mist, directly ahead. America seemed to hold no fears for him. He was told that Mayor La Guardia was determined to tax the Morgan library. It did not bother him a bit.

He was eager to discuss the grouse shooting, but a little discouraged by his hearers' ignorance of the technical details of the sport. He spoke of his trip over in the Corsair in July.

"Then Mr. Julius (his son) wanted it for the international yacht races over here so it came back," he said, speaking of the 350 foot steam yacht with its complement of scores of able-bodied seamen like the average father mentioning that he had allowed his son to use the family car.

The interview was over but the photographers hearing of the banker's affluence sent in a committee of one to ask permission to take pictures in the stateroom.

"You know, Mr. Morgan," the photographer said, "we're all got to make a living. We can't all be bankers. Some of us have to be photographers. Some of us used to want to be bankers but perhaps today it's the other way around."

Morgan laughed and said, "Yes, I suppose some of the bankers today would rather be cameramen," and invited them in.

Mrs. Bates Becomes Tenderfoot Scout At Ceremony Yesterday

The investiture of Mrs. W. H. Bates, chairman of the training and personnel committee of the local Girl Scout council, as a tenderfoot scout took place yesterday morning during the second meetings of the Girl Scout leaders' training course conducted by Eunice Prien, member of the field training staff, in conjunction with the recreational leadership class.

Program planning in the troop in working on tenderfoot and second class tests was stressed by Miss Prien in the meetings yesterday. Games were demonstrated as one means of presentation of requirements to the girls.

The final meetings of the course of instruction will take place tomorrow at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

Miss Prien will meet again with local leaders tonight from 7 to 8:30 in the American Legion building.

Looking in at the Grid Camps

PURDUE LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 21. (AP)—Purdue's varsity football players sloshed about in the mud today, preparing for the possibility of wet conditions during the Indiana game here Saturday.

INDIANA BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Indiana's football squad, appearing in the worst physical condition of the season, went through an extended drill in new plays today, and Coach Bo McMillin got up from a sick bed to direct the preparations for the Purdue game.

NORTHWESTERN EVANSTON, Ill.—Northwestern's Wildcats went through a quick offensive dummy scrimmage today, but again curtailed preparations for the Michigan game.

WISCONSIN MADISON, Wis.—A heavy rain all day drove Wisconsin's football squad into the fieldhouse for its workout today but the comparatively hard indoor dirt floor failed to halt the scrimmage which was on schedule.

CHICAGO CHICAGO—Coach Clark Shaughnessy drove the University of Chicago squad through one of its longest and toughest drills of the season today, scrimmaging the first three events in the rain and mud against Illinois formations.

MINNESOTA MINNEAPOLIS—Minnesota dispatched its bombers away on the campaign's last errand tomorrow.

NEWMAN RATES Minnesota As Nation's Best NEW YORK, Nov. 31 (AP)—It was raining outside and he had no place in particular to go because he is nursing a couple of broken vertebrae, so Harry Newman, star quarterback of the New York York Giants, today surveyed the game of football from a hospital bed.

SKIPPY—Very Much to the Point

More Upsets Expected For Saturday Tilts

Army-Notre Dame Battle Heads List Of Tough Ones to Pick

By MICHAEL J. FOSTER (INS Sports Writer) NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Once again the nation's football fans are girding themselves for their weekly tilt with the bookies whose number has grown so amazingly this fall.

TRIPPED BY YALE For the vast majority of the fans, however, all this work is expected to go for naught, as usual. They were tripped by Yale, Wisconsin, Carnegie and Cornell last week, shooting at "10 out of 10" at odds of 100 to 1, and next Saturday a veritable schedule full of upsets awaits them.

IRISH PICKED In others, Elmer Layden's Irish are picked because the Ramblers clicked in the second half of last week's Northwestern game, and showed a lot of scoring power.

YALE-HARVARD IN THE NEW HAVEN BOWL has a definitely blue tinge, after the Ellis' uprising in Princeton, but don't forget Harvard will be just as strongly keyed up for the Bulldog as Yale was for the Tiger.

PENN STATE-BUCKLENT, at Lewisburg, looks like a tough one to pick, too. The Nittany Lions are plenty strong; they proved their defensive power at least against Columbia and Pennsylvania. But it took a fumbled pass from center for unbeaten Western Maryland to humble the Bisons.

COLUMBIA THE EDGE Syracuse's finale against Columbia at Baker field may run more than one card this week end. The Orange has more man-power than Columbia, but it wasted that power against one clever team, Colgate, and it can do the same against another, our own Lions. If Barabas starts for Columbia we'd be inclined to give the Light Blue the edge.

TEMPLE IS UNBEATEN, but that doesn't mean the Owls are any cinch to whip Villanova. Of course, Minnesota is a heavy favorite over Wisconsin, and Stanford is an odds-on choice over California. But don't overlook the fact that the Badgers upset hitherto unbeaten Illinois in their last start, and California was beaten by only 7-3 in its 1933 clash with Tiny Thornhill's team.

VERILY, it looks like another clean-up this Saturday for the bookies. Lay off, Mr. Fan, is our advice.

Frosh Close Season With Varsity Tiff

Freshman football players wound up the season's drill yesterday afternoon as Coach Schammel sent a rookie 11 using Ohio State formations against Hawkeye regulars.

THE LINEUP WHICH SCHAMMEL USED in the last scrimmage follows: Mason and Sheldon, ends; Van Meter and Hull, tackles; Goldberg and Fontinakes, guards; Stong, center; Klumpner, Brady, Krouch, Matteson, and Ver Dught, backs.

PLANS CALLING for an all-freshman game this afternoon on old Iowa field as a concluding feature have been discarded. Following last night's workout many of the frosh turned in their equipment.

THE SUITS OF THE REMAINDER of the squad will be checked in today.

Laffoon Loses In Melbourne

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 21 (AP)—With one exception, the $5,000 Melbourne centenary professional golf championship became an all-America affair today, with invaders from the United States winning seven of the eight opening round matches.

KY LAFFOON, the young Denver pro, missed a three-foot putt on the 37th green and was eliminated from the match-play tournament by Martin Smith of Victoria, the sole surviving homebred contender for the first prize of $2,500.

Pye Announces Distribution of Hogs to Poor

350 Hogs Will Be Given Out at Miller Farm This Week

Three hundred and forty surplus hogs are being allotted to Johnson county poor, Hubert E. Pye, case worker of the Social Service League in charge of surplus hog distribution said last night. Hogs are given out at the Ted Miller farm three miles west of Coraville Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Surplus hogs weighing more than 125 pounds were sent to Davenport where they were butchered and the meat distributed.

Hogs weighing less than 125 pounds are given to families on county relief. The hogs must be fed and sheltered until they weigh at least 160 pounds; then the families having them may slaughter the animals for their own use.

"The hogs are proportioned to families according to the number of persons in the home. A family of four will get one animal while a family of eight would get two," Mr. Pye said.

May Provide Feed

Families must provide a pen or shelter and a means of obtaining food for the hogs. It is possible that tankage will be available later.

"The hogs, vaccinated and thoroughly inspected for disease, were obtained from farmers in the county who raised more than their hog contractors called for.

"All of the hogs have been marked by punching a hole in each ear. The hogs are not to be sold. Surplus foods bulletin 55 of the State Emergency Relief office at Des Moines forbids selling and requests anyone seeing stray hogs so marked to report to the local office. If any so marked are offered for sale by anyone, it should be reported to the county sheriff's office," he said.

To Check Feeding

William Fuhrmeister, who collected the hogs under the hog contract agreement, will check each week to see that families having the animals are feeding and housing them properly. Mr. Fuhrmeister will instruct those who know little about raising hogs.

Sixty hogs were placed last week and 40 more will be given out at the concentration farm this afternoon.

John Fader Denies Any Connection In Missouri Valley Case

LOGAN, Nov. 21 (AP)—Testimony was concluded here today in the district court trial of John Fader, 21, of Council Bluffs, charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with a recent police battle in Missouri Valley in which four persons were seriously wounded.

Charged specifically with wounding Night Policeman James Kirlin, one of two officers who exchanged shots with two fugitives suspected of box car thefts, Fader took the stand today to deny any connection with the case. He said he was attending a dance in Council Bluffs on the night of the battle.

The Washington Parade

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (INS)—The senate used to be a "rich man's club," but it is becoming a poor man's problem.

The depression and the voters have made it almost as hard to find a million dollars in the senate as it is to find a banker who will lend money.

At least half the members of the senate in the next congress will be men who must live on their salaries of $10,000 a year.

The election two weeks ago depleted the ranks of the rich group and added to the list of poor men who will sit in the senate.

The names of several new members of the senate are not in the social register or in any financial guide book.

In fact West Virginia's 29 year old Rush Holt, Indiana's Sherman Minton, Connecticut's Maloney, Missouri's Truman and Washington's Schwellenbach are not even in Who's Who.

Most of these senators-elect will succeed wealthier men who, even though not millionaires, had more than their salaries.

Ten thousand dollars a year does not leave much financial leeway for a senator.

Holt was a store clerk before he went to the state legislature. Senator Hatfield, who was defeated by the youthful liberal, is a well-to-do physician.

Senator Arthur Robinson will go back to his law practice, and Sherman Minton, who defeated him, will leave a law practice for the senate.

Wealthy Senator Walcott will yield his seat to a man of modest means in Maloney. Schwellenbach, a poor man, will take the seat of Senator Dill, who doesn't have to worry about next month's rent. The wealthy Radcliffe of Maryland will succeed the wealthy Goldsborough of Maryland.

Pennsylvania's Senator Reed is

American Business Men Take 'Keen Interest' in '35 Plans

Unemployment Reserve Likely to Receive Congressional Action

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS)—With 1935 looming as a year in which congressional action may be taken on unemployment insurance, business men of America are manifesting a "keen and growing interest" in the subject.

So declared Samuel W. Reyburn, of New York, president of the American Dry Goods association, in an interview with International News Service today.

Reyburn is chairman of a committee of industrial leaders who have taken up this matter of unemployment reserves—or, as it is more commonly characterized, "unemployment insurance." The committee is known as the "retail merchants committee for the study of proposed social and unemployment legislation."

On the committee are such men as Frederic M. Ayres, of L. S. Ayres and company, Indianapolis; Richard W. Costello, of O'Connor Moffatt and company, San Francisco; Bernard F. Gimbel, Gimbel Brothers, New York; D. F. Kelly, the fair, Chicago; Louis E. Kirateln, Willia Filene's Sons Co., Boston; Fred Lazarus, Jr., the F. and R. Lazarus company, Columbus; Morton J. May, Famous-Barr company, St. Louis; John McKinlay, Marshall Field and company, Chicago; John T. Pirie, Carson Pirie Scott and company, Chicago; J. E. Priddy, of Lard and Taylor, New York; Oscar Webber, J. L. Hudson company, Detroit and P. G. Winnett, Bullock's Los Angeles.

Reyburn and his committee sent out a pamphlet to business men all over the country which contained a study and outline of pertinent problems involved under the heading of "unemployment reserves." And, according to Reyburn, the business men are showing the utmost interest in the subject. Business men have been urged to investigate the subject of "unemployment reserves," think through it, try to reach some decision as to what is sound and practical, and then express that conclusion to the associates, customers, newspapers and political representatives.

French, Soviets Draw Together; Hope For Eastern Pact Brightens

GENEVA, Nov. 21 (INS)—Hope for the late Foreign Minister Louis Barthou's dream of an "eastern Locarno" pact took a brighter turn today with the French and Soviets drawing still closer together, International News service was told in an exclusive interview with Pierre Laval, the new French foreign minister.

France and the U.S.S.R., Laval said, "may be considered as perfectly in accord with the aim of Barthou's dream of an 'eastern Locarno' pact took a brighter turn today with the French and Soviets drawing still closer together, International News service was told in an exclusive interview with Pierre Laval, the new French foreign minister.

His statement followed a two-hour conversation with Maxim Litvinoff, astute foreign commissar for the Soviets.

"We still have not given up hope of bringing Germany and Poland into such a multi-lateral pact," Laval continued.

He added that he had also talked with the Turkish foreign minister, Dr. Tewfik Rustu Bey, on the same general subject and also in connection with Mediterranean problems.

Self-Governing Units of India Are Proposed

LONDON, Nov. 21 (INS)—An all-India federation of self-governing units to supplant the present centralized government of India was proposed in the report of the parliamentary committee on constitutional reform, made public today after seven years of investigation.

Described as one of the most important state documents in the history of the British empire, the report outlines a complete scheme for a new Indian constitution, but one hedged with elaborate safeguards to protect British interests in India.

The report recommends establishment of a responsible government at some central point, and also in each of the provinces. These would be responsible to legislatures.

The powers of the various governments would be subject to certain specified safeguards, including the defense of external ecclesiastical affairs, which would come under the direct responsibility of the governor-general and the provincial governors.

These governors would be empowered to take over-riding action, including the safeguards of minorities, of the independence of judiciary and financial systems, and of the stability of credit.

These governors also could prevent India from taking fiscal measures to check British trade in India, and they would have effective means at their disposal to combat terrorism.

Plan Session

SIoux FALLS, S. D. (AP)—Approaching the end of its scheduling two day meeting, the Farmers Union national convention prepared for an executive session late yesterday to consider resolutions and elect officers for the coming year after a day devoted mostly to entertainment features.

Gov. Herring Advises Police Radio System

DES MOINES, Nov. 21 (INS)—Recommendation for a powerful police broadcasting system "reaching every hamlet in Iowa" was made here today by Gov. Clyde L. Herring.

Governor Herring declared he would not be satisfied until "every peace officer in the state and every car driven by a peace officer is in constant communication with a central broadcasting system headquarters at Des Moines."

The governor indicated legislative measures providing for a more powerful radio setup than now exists would not be necessary if the next general assembly passes interim committee bills setting up a state department of public safety.

Radio facilities now existing were described by the governor as the "dominant factor in the apprehension and killing in Iowa, within the last year, of members of the Barrow and Dillinger gangs."

It was understood that if a state police is established by legislative approval of the department of safety proposals, further authorization for enlarging radio facilities would not be necessary.

The program, it was believed, could be inaugurated at the discretion of the director of public safety, who would be responsible to the governor.

In addition to announcing a general endorsement of the proposed state police system, Governor Herring declared it was necessary because "crime has changed from the horse and buggy days to an organized, well-equipped, and highly specialized business."

Young Tory Is Rising Diplomat

Parliament. Captain Anthony Eden

In the midst of chancelleries crowded with silver-haired veterans of European diplomacy walks a comparatively young diplomat of whom great things are expected in England. He is Captain Anthony Eden, 36-year-old aristocrat, who is parliamentary secretary to the British foreign office.

During the absence of his chief, the young captain represents the foreign office in parliament, and frequently is deputized to push disarmament and peace measures at meetings of the League of Nations in Geneva.

Political observers believe him a possible Tory candidate for the premiership some day.

LONDON (INS)—In the midst of the intricate coils of post-war European diplomacy walks a young English gentleman who seems strangely out of place in the chancelleries crowded with silver-haired veterans.

He is Capt. Anthony Eden, 36 year old British parliamentary undersecretary to the foreign office, Oxford graduate and a devout believer in world peace.

Most of Europe's ruling circles still are filled with men who were already old when the World War began. In England and in France ministers hand down decrees who never smelled rifle smoke even back in 1914. And the generation that saw millions of its choicest candidates slain on the battlefield has lacked the power, critics say, to move into the ruling class itself.

Assistant to Simon

There are exceptions, and in England Captain Eden, tall, handsome, mustached and stylishly dressed aristocrat, is one. Now, as assistant to Sir John Simon, England's foreign minister, Captain Eden stands up on the government benches in parliament, and defends some special bit of diplomatic procedure his chief is concocting.

Eden belongs to that war-ridden generation. Perhaps that is why he is so strong for the cause of peace. As Sir John's liaison officer and emissary, Eden has been traveling round and round Europe, preaching Britannia's creed of peace, or cementing the dragnet about England's ancient enemies.

Born of an aristocratic family which liked its fox hunting and genteel existence, Captain Anthony received the education of a perfect English gentleman. His speech, his education, his breeding, all were in-the Rhine border between France and Germany.

When the second labor government collapsed in 1931, giving way to the Tory-dominated national cabinet, Eden was promoted to his present post.

His future, friends declare, is clear. As the first representative of the war generation in the Tory party ranks, Eden is destined for eventual leadership and No. 10 Downing street, where the prime ministers of England reside.

Report Shows Expense Of Creston Supply

DES MOINES, Nov. 21 (INS)—Figures compiled at the Federal emergency relief headquarters today indicated that a total of 41,700,000 gallons of water were shipped into Creston, during the four months preceding the recent election.

The tabulation of serious results of Creston's water shortage was prepared to present some idea of what would happen if water shortages became general over the state or nation.

It cost the FERA an estimated $70,000 to provide these millions of gallons of water for parched throats—it would cost $210,000 annually to continue the process the year around—yet Creston's population is just over 8,000 and at no time has the city's supply been completely exhausted.

Forty-one million gallons of water is enough to fill 3,740 railroad tank cars. If a city like Des Moines were to suffer a similar water shortage, it would require more than 800 tank cars a day to provide the inhabitants with water on the same limited scale—5 gallons per day per person.

If a city like New York city were to run short of water, somewhere between 6,000 and 10,000 tank cars would need to wind their way daily into the metropolis with precious water for "washing and drinking purposes only."

With these figures as his background, E. H. Mulock, state director of emergency relief, explained why it was impossible for the FERA to continue the water shipments to Creston on an indefinite basis.

"An expenditure of $210,000 a year for water, with nothing to show for it at the end of the year, and with everyone suffering for want of more water even during the

Large Spectograph Used By S.U.I. Chemistry Department

Probably the largest spectograph machine, with quartz lens, in the world is being used in the physical-chemistry laboratories of the chemistry department. This spectograph is valued at $4,000.

The machine was constructed by Prof. Thomas C. Poulter, head of the physics department at Iowa Wesleyan college, Mt. Pleasant, and lent to the University of Iowa during his two years' leave of absence from Wesleyan. Professor Poulter is now at the South Pole as head scientist and second in command of the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

Quartz Lens
In measuring the absorption spectra of colored solutions, a strong ray of light is projected through the quartz lens and refracted to permit photographs of the effect produced to be taken. Quartz is used so that the ultra violet and infra red rays may be transmitted through the solution.

A small amount of colored solution is put into a quartz cell and period of shipments, is ridiculous," he said.

"Engineers have told us that by spending $15,000 to drill a well and approximately $200,000 to buy and improve a water plant, Creston's problem can be solved permanently," he added.

Creston voters refused to finance such a project by a margin of 42 votes at the last election.

placed before the lens. The ray of light is focused on the cell and passed through, showing the effect of the solution on light.

Highly Sensitive
The machine is of such a highly sensitive nature that although it has been used since June, L. R. Dawson of the chemistry department, who is conducting the experiment, has only in the last few weeks been able to obtain the correct focus for satisfactory results.

The Eastman Kodak company provides special negatives on which the machine photographs. These negatives show the effect of colored solution light by absorption bands where the solution cuts out part of the light.

Relief Project For Students May Collapse

Severe Regulations Hamper Progress Of Guidance Work

DES MOINES, Nov. 21 (INS)—The combined federal-state program recently launched for educational guidance of thousands of jobless Iowa high school graduates may collapse because of stringent regulations for teachers, it appeared today.

Designed to give high school graduates an opportunity to earn college credit through study in local groups, the program was expected to be well under way by Nov. 1. Officials revealed today, however, that only "several" local classes are in the final stages of organization.

Program Launched

The program was launched Oct. 15 after the Iowa College Presidents' association had given it wholehearted endorsement. Originally it was planned to have each college sponsor community classes in various areas.

Agnes Samuelson, state superintendent of public instruction, declared there has been widespread interest in the program among high school graduates of the state, but that progress has been "severely hampered" by regulations.

Obstacles

Miss Samuelson said, however, that because of interest in the program it was her hope present difficulties could be surmounted.

The principal obstacle encountered has been the rule requiring that teachers for local classes be "qualified to receive relief and to give instruction in subjects on the college level."

Those in charge of setting up proposed local groups have found it virtually impossible in many cases to secure teachers with proper academic requirements who are on the relief rolls.

Teachers Unavailable

It was stated by officials that extremely few teachers qualified for college subjects are available under relief requirements.

Under original plans, local study groups were to be under the supervision of the county school superintendent and one of the Iowa colleges listed as sponsors. Students were to take examinations prepared by the college faculty before receiving credit.

Federal emergency relief funds were budgeted for supporting the projects.

Faculty Cooperation

It was required that "the college will place the emergency relief teacher on the regular or extension faculty for the duration of the project, or that "some other arrangement be made by the college to supply the cooperation needed by the

LIBERTY LEAGUERS ON COAST

Three leading lights of the American Liberty League, whose purpose avowedly is to "maintain, defend and perpetuate the constitution of the United States," are snapped in San Francisco as they prepared to found a branch of the league in northern California. They are John J. Raskob, former democratic national chairman, left, and E. F. Hutton, right, with Irene du Pont, of the Delaware du Ponts, seated. One of the league's aims, its leaders say, is to combat "radicalism" on the west coast.

teacher for securing course of study materials, faculty, library, guidance and other assistance needed to carry on the work on the college level."

Courses which were to be offered were: English, mathematics, languages, history, home economics, and speech.

Local Superintendents

Local school superintendents charged with setting up study classes have been requested to confer with presidents of colleges or universities to see if qualified instructors acceptable to the college are available under the program.

When first launched, sponsors of the program envisioned establishment of a system which would bring higher education to thousands of high school graduates. Recent surveys have shown, however, that large scale development of the program is seriously endangered by regulations.

SEEN from OLD CAPITOL

by TOM YOSELOFF

Extra! Cornerstone for Law Commons mislaid.

There was much pomp and ceremony last spring when the cornerstone for the law boys' domicile was laid. University official talked, the cement was carefully mixed, and everybody had a perfectly grand time. But it seems that something went amiss, and the stone was laid in the wrong place. So, when the ceremony was all over, and the captains and the kings had departed, the workmen, minus pomp and ceremony, were forced to uproot the stone and lay it in its proper place. Which proves that anyone can make a speech, but it takes some knowing how to lay a cornerstone.

So he does: Ernest Park is a student who often comes late to his military drill course. The other day that unfortunate situation arose. The officer in charge was reading a list of the men not present, when Mr. Park slipped in. Just at that moment, the officer reached his name and called out "Park."

F. R. Considers Paralysis Aid

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt's thoughts and sympathies were devoted today to the enormous problem of infantile paralysis and an effort to raise funds to provide aid for victims and research to conquer the disease.

In this community which he helped to found for treatment of infantile paralysis sufferers, the president announced willingness to permit his fifty-third birthday next January to be observed nationally again by birthday balls throughout the country.

He and fellow trustees of the Warm Springs foundation stipulated to Col. Henry L. Doherty, sponsor of the plan, that 70 per cent of funds be restricted to care for victims in the geographical units where the money is contributed; the other 30 per cent for research.

Regarding public problems, Mr. Roosevelt said simply he was making a careful study of many reports brought here and indicated plainly there would be some rather interesting things in the next few weeks.

should go "back to the home." The good professor asked the opinion of the class on the matter. Gale Wallin, an Oklahoma graduate student and a menace to serious minded instructor, was quick on the draw.

"I don't think that's so—woman's place isn't in the home," she argued.

"Well," Professor Reuter came back, "I don't think so, either—I have too much respect for the home."

Those who claim that dogs have almost human intelligence have good, substantial proof in an occurrence in Prof. Homer Cherrington's business administration class yesterday. A dog walked into the room, wide awake. He took his place among the rest of the students, and it didn't take him long to get into the spirit of the occasion. The lecture had not proceeded far, when he lay down on the floor and went to sleep.

That's gratitude: William Bartley had great respect for his pal in Larchwood. In fact, he even went to the trouble and expense of calling him the other night—a distance of more than 400 miles. After a lot of trouble in making connections, he finally reached the man's home and was informed that his friend was out.

"Well, where is he?" Bill asked.

"Oh," came the answer, "he's at a dance."

"What kind of a dance?" Bill was persistent.

"A wedding dance," the voice replied.

This was gasping, but Mr. Bartley stuck it out. "Whose wedding?"

"Oh," the voice was nonchalant, "it's his wedding."

"That was a blow. "Whom—whom did he marry?"

And then came the denouement. His best pal had married Bill's late girl!

Morgenthau to Analyze Report

Secretary to Give Radio Address On Repeal Anniversary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau was reported today to be gathering data for a formal report to the nation on the government's efforts to control the liquor traffic in the now-ending first year of repeal.

He will outline his findings in a radio address timed to catch the country's attention on the first anniversary of the passing of prohibition, Dec. 5, 1933.

In official circles it was indicated that he will appeal to the drinking public—as did President Roosevelt in his repeal proclamation last Dec. 5—for support of legitimate liquor dealers.

Members of the new congress are looking to his address, also, for an official pronouncement of the treasury's attitude toward proposed reduction of liquor taxes.

Some representatives who led the repeal campaign now advocate a tax slash to eliminate the price advantage which they contend bootleggers hold over the legalized industry.

Such tax reduction to hit the bootlegger in his pocketbook has been urged publicly on several occasions by Joseph H. Coate, Jr., director of the alcohol control administration.

Secretary Morgenthau has reserved a final decision on the tax reduction proposal. The tax on distilled spirits is now $2 a gallon. Whether it is to be cut to the old rate of $1.10 will be up for settlement in the next session of congress.

Information which the treasury chief is gathering for his radio address pertains largely to the government's present $10,000,000-a-year drive to enforce its liquor tax laws.

Revenues from the industry since repeal have fallen far below official estimates made prior to the return of legal liquor. Experts figure consumption of legal liquor this year will amount to only one-third to one-half of an average pre-prohibition year.

Federal tax collections from this source totaled $294,311,102 in the 10 months ending Sept. 30, while customs duties on liquor imports in the same period amounted to $31,144,417. Some improvement was reported in October, liquor taxes for that month totaling $3,000,000 more than in September.

Secretary Morgenthau's report on the situation is scheduled tentatively to be delivered on Dec. 7 or the following day.

Higher Grade Average Proves Success of Individual Proctor

Secretary to Give Radio Address On Repeal Anniversary

"How can each man in a large student body be given the individual attention that he requires?" Such has always been the question before the deans of men in large universities.

This problem has been met at the University of Iowa, by the establishing of a unique proctor system. In this system a proctor has charge of a definite number of students, to whom he acts as a "local dean of men."

Such an organization did not spring up over night. In 1919, when the Quadrangle was converted into a men's dormitory, a limited form of proctor control was established. Until this time, the only check the dean's office had on a student was through delinquency reports, and by calling him in on the "carpet." Obviously, the dean could not see every man personally.

Proctor control in the Quadrangle was so satisfactory that in 1930 the fraternities decided to place a study proctor in their houses.

This gave the dean's office a close check on two groups: the dormitories and the fraternities. They too, needed individualized attention.

In October, 1932, an experiment directed by Donald R. Mallett, concerning the individual needs of "town" students, was introduced. Two groups of students, chosen from their records in the freshman qualifying examination as being of equal ability, were picked. Mr. Mallett acted as a proctor to one of the groups. At the end of the year, the controlled group's grade point average was 2.13. That of the other, 1.83.

Last year, Mr. Mallett served as proctor over all of the "town" men students. The grade point average climbed to 2.16. This fall, the town was divided into six proctor districts.

Each student is encouraged to attain or surpass his level of ability, as computed from his freshman qualifying examination. If he should fail to get the grade point average predicted by the examination, it is evident that he needs some individual help from his "local dean."

"National Honor" And The League of Nations

THE maintenance of world peace does not cease to give my government most anxious concern. They will continue to make the support and extension of the authority of the League of Nations the cardinal point of their policy. They earnestly trust that the general work of the disarmament conference may be actively resumed in a political atmosphere more favorable to the attainment of definite results.—The ministers of England in the king's "speech from the throne" Monday at the reopening of Parliament.

This portion of King George's recital is quoted here to demonstrate once again the complete acceptance of the League of Nations by most enlightened peoples as the one source of hope in the political world today. If the "cardinal point" in this country's foreign policy were the same, the prospect of continued peace and greater world harmony would be immeasurably increased.

Patriots in this country have rid themselves of a great many words in fervent discussions of "national honor," but it is because of many of these same speech makers that America finds it necessary to sit on the back door step of the League of Nations. It is ridiculous for us to pretend that we are important enough to remain aloof from the league and its activities; our very actions belie our attitude.

Despite the trumpeting of the nationalistic press, the League of Nations is today the nerve center of international diplomacy and it would be folly for us to ignore it. The very fact that we do maintain constant relations with Geneva and that our diplomats play an important part in league discussions is evidence that our government is at least unofficially alive to realities.

But this is not enough. Not only "national honor," but common sense as well, demands that the United States accept the league's responsibilities as well as its advantages and assume its proper role as a powerful and enlightened leader in international cooperation.

Another Answer To Commercialism

SUNDAY hydrogen chloride gas burned out the lungs of Dr. Erick von Gabauner-Fuelnegg, proclaimed a chemical genius by his associates. He was completing experiments on a process whereby sheet rubber could be made transparent, durable, impervious to weather and usable wherever sheet glass is now used.

We are not given to hero worship or martyr making, but it is stimulating sometimes to stop and think of the men who have died while engaged in research which would, if successful, mean only fame—often not that, to them—but which would open new worlds, provide new conveniences and protections for all of us.

Noguchi, the intrepid Japanese doctor and scientist, carried on the war against yellow fever, obtaining invaluable data, only to succumb to the dread disease himself. Soldiers volunteered for yellow fever experiments in Cuba, knowing that death was more than possible, only rewarded by the thought that they were helping mankind in its struggle against adamant nature.

Slighting use of epithets such as "scientific! commercial!" and the like do not stand up in the face of unselfish sacrifice. We call names so easily, but offering our lives for someone else, mankind in general and no one in particular, is a step that few of us would even consider.

"Corn" Makers Meet The Bootlegger

PRECEDENT was broken Monday when more than 100 "moonshiners" of Franklin county, Virginia, testified before the federal grand jury about operations of a powerful and widespread bootleg ring.

For generations the mountaineers have considered the making of corn whiskey a private right, granted to them by the Almighty. Taking "pot-shots" at "revenooers" was therefore one of their favorite pastimes, summer and winter. Their activities were reported by the Wickersham committee as the worst in the country, but that did not impair the quality of their home made "corn," famous for more than 100 years.

The mountaineers conducted their own family feuds and knocked off an occasional federal man with their old squirrel rifles, but when gangster methods were introduced, raising the death rate and enslaving still operators for the interests of the bootleggers, these freedom loving people turned en masse to the government.

For once they have admitted that federal men may be able to solve their problem for them. But they probably still believe they have the right to make whiskey for themselves. Right or wrong, their courage and defiance is an heroic gesture in the face of odds which they cannot possibly hope to overcome in the end.

What Others Think

Stirrings of The Noise Demon

(From The New York Herald-Tribune)

A few cheers (rousing, but carefully modulated, of course, and in no case within 250 feet of a hospital or similar institution) should greet our Mayor's sudden assault upon the loud-speaker evil. It is a matter which has been needing attention of late. The campaign loud-speaker or trucks may have called it back into the Mayor's mind, and they are but a transient menace—a minor trial among the multitudinous tribulations of election time. But here and there other of these fiendish devices, unconnected with the democratic process and the inalienable right of candidates to make nuisances of themselves, have crept back upon the streets; while, worse than this, one has noticed the radio-shop loud-speaker, successfully muted in the great crusade four years ago, again emitting tentative blares on lesser streets, as if trying it out again with the law and the police. It was time that the noise question should be looked into once more.

The New York City Noise Abatement Commission, appointed in the fall of 1929 by Commissioner Wynne of the Health Department, was one of the better achievements of the Tammany years. With courage, conviction and a decided measuring machine it advanced against the Demon Noise; and, what is more, it got results. It naturally recognized that the demon himself is ineradicable from New York City, but it aroused public sentiment, it focused attention and it did manage to trim his claws and restrain his worst deviltries. At one time it even had the radio stations advising their listeners at 10:30 every evening that other people might enjoy a chance to sleep. It restrained police traffic whistles. It was instrumental in deadening the once nerve-racking I. R. T. turnstiles; it probably diminished automobile horn-toting; its agitation helped to defend us from such new and terrible inventions as the airplane "sant voice," and it secured the passage of the ordinance against the street loud-speakers which the Mayor is now citing. Its work was great; but the Noise Demon, though he may be momentarily restrained, can never be exorcised; and with him, as with other invasions of our freedom, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

GOOD MORNING

Once in a while the overwhelming importance of each man's little problems becomes stiffly evident as the world's vast events fade into comparative insignificance.

One can read then reports of seething happenings in all corners of the world, and see nothing but a vapid earth overflowing with trivialities.

One can read a speech by Senator Dickinson reciting his trite and banal denunciations of everything unreplicable, and not even laugh.

At such times talk of plans by mottled power for saddling the American people with a fascist dictatorship seems vague and unimportant. One is remotely conscious that this is something about which to become excited and extremely indignant, and makes a mental note of things which should be said.

And Father Coughlin's uneasiness about the imminence of such a dictatorship heightens one's lagging sense of awareness. But it would require the actual rattle of sabers in the street and the thunder of revolutionary gunfire to impress the significance of such murmurs upon one's mind.

And tales of impending revolution in Mexico concern one not at all. It is then of no consequence whatever that what seemed to be one of the world's most promising young governments—in which one vaguely remembers having entertained a lively interest—is threatened with a bloody end. And one can only remark with a bitterness he knows to be false that all good things everywhere end that way.

But of course that is foolish; they don't at all. One remembers having read innumerable stories in which good things did not end that way, and that is proof, surely, of almost anything.

Psychologists can explain this phenomenon, perhaps. If one remembers correctly, there is supposed to be a certain cycle, or something, in which one's emotions trace pretty patterns on a piece of graph paper. This week one is up; next week one is down. This week the world looks bright even in the rain; next week all is desolate in the brilliant sunlight.

But that is not as important as the fact that one is able to see more clearly at some points in the cycle than at others; and has a better perception of relative values.

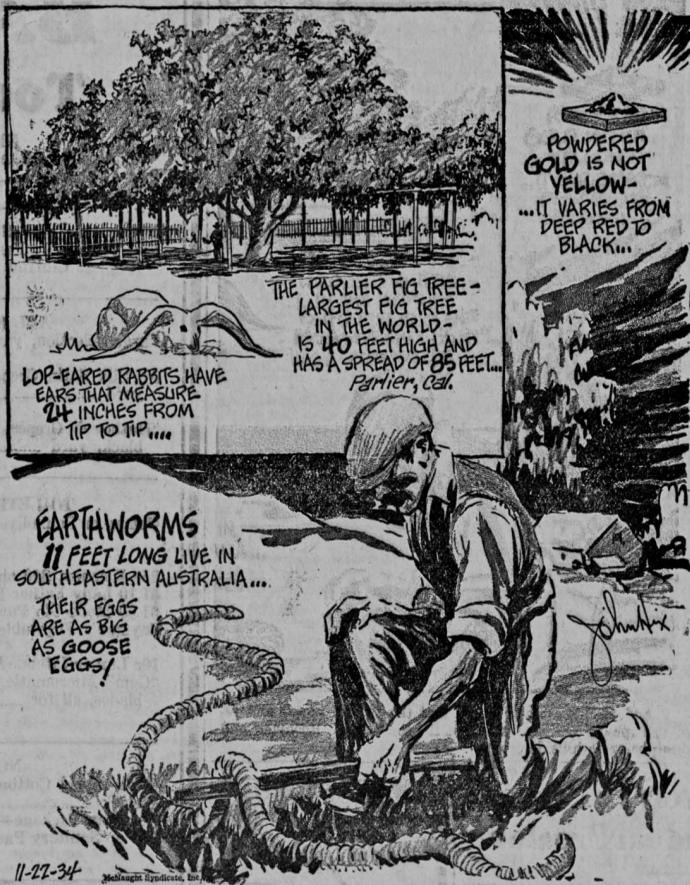

And it becomes clear then that our frantic interests in a host of more or less remote problems are only secondary and that it is virtually impossible to treat them objectively by rooting them out of the soil of our personal ambitions and desires where they find their growth.

It is only then that we perceive the importance of the soil itself. We are something like farmers in this respect. It is only after the topsoil is washed away by long erosion that we become acutely aware that without it the corn cannot grow, or grows only listlessly.

Behind The Scenes in HOLLYWOOD By Harrison Carroll

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22—Station loiterers gasped the other day when they saw Maurice Chevalier get off the train, wearing a suit with black and white checks one inch square. But they didn't see anything. In his trunk the French star has an overcoat with similar checks only they are two inches square. The combined outfit, supposed to be the latest thing from Paris, makes Sam Hardy's famous checkered overcoat look like a shroud.

If the movie stars think they have to live up to strict morality clauses, they ought to see a contract drawn up on March 31, 1886, between Pawnee Bill, the wild west showman, and his grandfather, known as Buckskin Joe.

Before undertaking to hire Buckskin Joe and his band to play in the circus, Pawnee Bill made his grandfather sign an agreement for himself and his musicians, which bore this clause:

"The party of the second part shall be instantly discharged whenever they may be guilty of drunkenness, fighting, stealing, gambling, card playing, or any other unlawful or improper conduct; or whenever they shall consort or associate with any improper person."

It's a fact. The actual contract is in the possession of Vance Hoist, author of "Squads," and now working as a writer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

In the heat of argument, Director Marion Gering talks so fast and with such a Russian accent that his fellow workers are lucky if they make out a word.

The other day, in a story conference, scenarist Harry Ruskin lost the thread of the conversation completely.

"Wait a minute, Marion," he pleaded, "you'll have to talk slower. I can't understand a thing you say."

Gering was obviously harassed by the interruption. He wheeled on Ruskin.

"You have to understand me now!" he cried. "I have my citizenship papers!"

Which revives the famous story of Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg when the star was making "Morocco."

It was in the early days of the talkies, when the producers were frightened of foreign accents. Marlene was just perfecting her English and Von Sternberg was watching her like a hawk.

The troupe was Marlene Dietrich on the desert one day, photographing the scene where the star walked out into the sandy waste against a driving wind.

Time and again Marlene went through the scene. Finally she sank to the sands in exhaustion.

"All right," said Von Sternberg, "get up now and we'll take the close-ups."

The weary star looked up piteously. "Do we have to take the close-ups now?" she pleaded.

Von Sternberg glared. "Close-ups!" he snapped.

University Schools Fit Work to Students' Ability

Simple Program Heeds Needs Of Low, Medium, Bright Ones; Fewer Flunk With New System

Individual Needs Vary, Say Educators; Adapt Teaching Accordingly

The idea that education professors are full of theories, and can't actually teach children vanishes with a visit to the laboratory conducted by the University of Iowa college of education.

Remember the schools where every pupil in the class was given the same thing to do? Almost as ridiculous as taking a whole freshman high school class to a store and asking for the same size shoes for everyone. In the university schools, every pupil gets a personal mental fitting.

Prof. Harry Newburn, principal of the high school explains: "We adjust our work to every pupil. While schools of this type often use expensive materials and try to develop methods only for the superior student, we use only simple equipment that can be adjusted to the average ordinary pupil so that it can actually be applied in any school."

Fewer Flunks

This doesn't mean the superior student is ignored. Prof. Howard R. Anderson, head of the social science department, particularly stresses the fact that this program takes care of low, medium, and bright pupils.

"I have a class in world history where no one has flunked for four years, and I am proud of it. Why should a student fail if he is working to the limit of his capacity?" Anderson asks, and in his classes they learn because the work is adjusted to them.

In one class, for example, a test was given which had previously been taken by 7,500 pupils in the state. Grades here ranged from one to 99.

Brilliant Bored

"Now there you are with a class where the best pupil is so good he could only improve one per cent anyway and the poorest is far down at the bottom. Imagine the impossibility of adjusting the same lesson to both pupils, and to those intermediate. If you got the lesson easy enough for the poor one the bright pupil would be bored, stop studying and get into slovenly mental habits. While if you gave work with only the brilliant pupil in mind the poor one would sink in despondency," Professor Anderson continued.

After a year of such individually adjusted work, pupils showed as high as 72 per cent gain by the standardized tests, and some of these were pupils who, if given work beyond their capacities, might easily have failed. Yet, given exactly the same tests at the end of the year as the superior student, they were able to make a satisfactory showing.

Cross Letters

Did you learn how to read? There are many college students who don't know how, as shown by a paper in a college class recently. The student made the statement that "the American revolution wrote cross letters to the French revolution." When asked to explain, the student pointed to a sentence in the text that read: "The American revolution corresponds roughly to the French revolution." It is just such faults that teachers in University high school are seeking to overcome.

By diagnostic testing, reasons why pupils are failing are shown and remedial work is done immediately. It has been found that many times the pupil is failing because he doesn't know how to read. It is true he can read the whole page but he doesn't know what it says when he is through. Prof. M. F. Carpenter, and Agnella Gunn are conducting an experiment in their English classes which shows the need of reading for understanding and also teaches reading with this aim.

Emphasis Swings

"If our experiments work out they will probably be one of the most significant contributions made in this field. We are swinging away from reading matter for itself, and the emphasis is placed wholly on development of basic skills in speech, writing and reading," Professor Carpenter says.

At the beginning of the year, Miss Gunn's pupils had three to 224 errors in comprehension in reading and, at the end, one to 114. The individual median gain was 69.5 per cent.

How many people do you know who have had two or three years of French, but who couldn't look at a French menu and order a meal if they were starving to death? Their sole vocabulary generally consists of "Oul, Oul."

Attempt Too Much

"The trouble with teaching a foreign language such as French is that many systems heretofore sought to teach grammar, writing, and reading at the same time, producing a smatter of everything which amounted to nothing," Prof. Helen Eddy, head of the foreign language department, says.

Professor Eddy took the view that students should learn at least one thing well. They should learn to read fluently if they studied French only a year. When she started her

A. T. & T. Gives Dividend; Power Stiffens

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP)—Trade winds were too light to stir the stock market out of a rut today and most groups continued to drift.

Utility shares recovered a little but rails were a drag on the list. Power issues stiffened in sympathy with a further rally of a point in American Telephone and Telegraph after the telephone board had declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the common.

While the regular payment had been expected in most quarters, the usual disbursement of about $42,000,000 to the army of telephone shareholders dispelled remaining uncertainty and cleared the market atmosphere somewhat.

House Discussion

All the hurry, the flurry and the excitement in connection with the royal wedding will be aired in the house of commons tomorrow if J. McGovern, Glasgow member, has his way.

McGovern was the fellow who rose up in his place and started last year's opening session of parliament by yelling "parasites" at the king and the rest of the royal assemblage.

Now he has given notice that he is asking the premier tomorrow if he can say when the commons will have an opportunity to discuss the increased allowance to be given Kent on his marriage.

Under the civil list, the king's sons receive 10,000 pounds (approximately $50,000), with an additional 15,000 pounds when they marry.

Mystery Of Double Death In Galapagos Still Unsolved

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 (AP)—A flicker of light was thrown today upon the double death mystery of the Galapagos Islands, but in some respects the tragic riddle became even more baffling.

Radio reports to the Associated Press giving descriptions of the two persons who died of hunger and thirst on the little island of Marchena indicated one of them was Alfred Rudolph Lorenz of Paris, a companion of the missing "empress" of Charles Island, 160 miles away.

The identity of the second person, a large man, became even a deeper puzzle. The description radioed by Capt. Manuel Rodriguez of the tuna clipper Santa Amaro did not tally with any of the few persons known to have been on the little group of equatorial islands.

Study Vocal Problems

Prof. Anne Pierce, who was music specialist of the national survey of secondary education carried on by the United States bureau of education, is one of the leaders in the new tendency to teach voice work in small groups.

"We teach each student just as if he were taking individual voice lessons, and study his vocal problems so that improvement can be made. We also teach our pupils appreciation and history of music. Our materials are adapted to voices of adolescent age," Professor Pierce explained.

At Chicago a group was organized to observe but was stopped by cloudy skies. The group at New York has not yet reported to Professor Wylie the results obtained there.

Professor Funke Addresses Lions Club on Germany

Funke Says Germany Backs Hitler; Gives Praise to Press

"How I Found Germany in 1934," was discussed by Prof. Erich Funke, acting head of the German department, before the regular meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon.

Professor Funke first gave a summary of the conditions in Germany which led up to the overthrow of the democracy by Hitler and his party. He commended the American press and the various foreign writers in Germany for presenting conditions and events in Germany as nearly accurately as possible. He said he believed that all of the writers were sincere and tried to be fair, but only a German who had lived in the country and experienced all the horrors attendant upon widespread unemployment and a downfall of the economic system could present a true picture of interpretation of the years since the World war.

Germany Today

"In Germany today," he said, "the people are generally satisfied with Hitler and his government. They admit that many injustices have been done, especially in the case of the persecution of the Jews, but I do believe after making as thorough investigation as I could that the treatment of the Jews was over-emphasized in our newspapers."

"One thing to be lauded in the governmental program is the taking of thousands of young men off street corners where they were plotting crimes and insurrection. These boys have been enlisted in labor camps, which, while they are undoubtedly militaristic, make no open display of arms. Germany has a lot of man power but it will be years before they can accumulate enough weapons to even dream of another war," he said.

Explains Military Units

Professor Funke explained the general organization of the SA and SS military elements. The SA was a large group of ordinary citizen members of the party, dressed in brown, not especially notable or outstanding. The SS is the pride of the party, composed of selected young men of good breeding and education, all clean cut and polite, he said. It is this group that is dressed in black shirts and forms Hitler's personal bodyguard.

A concentration camp was visited by Professor Funke but he was not allowed to enter it he said. However he talked to the commandant and some of the officers and expressed the opinion that stories about the horrors, ill treatment, and cruelty in these camps was greatly exaggerated.

Government Criticism

"Criticism of the government is only voiced in secret and where there is no danger of being overheard by official members of Hitler's party," he continued. "The more intellectual middle class, and Germany is a nation of middle class people, think of the country as still in a process of revolution. When conditions have become more stabilized ruthless measures in use now and heretofore will be abolished."

"I was present at an election and saw no violence, everything was as peaceful as it is at a polling station in America. In the evening I called to see whether the votes would be actually counted and they were."

"Hitler is a powerful man, he is an orator with power to sway the people, but it is also true that the great majority of the people turned to him and accepted him because he offered or took the only steps that seemed likely to accomplish anything or get anywhere."

"The treaty of Versailles disarmed Germany, left her open to attack on all sides, chaos followed, the young men lost hope, despair was on all faces, economically the situation became unstable and unemployment rose. Hitler organized his troops, knew what he wanted and was ruthless enough to go after it at any cost."

"For that reason all of the youth followed him, not because his policies were all right, but because he offered the only hope of salvation."

The Lions club district governor, George W. Robb was present at the luncheon. He announced a meeting in Cedar Rapids for Thursday evening, Dec. 6 at which Melvin Jones, founder of the Lions organization, would speak. Richard Sidwell was a guest at the meeting.

CHICKASHA, Okla., Nov. 21 (AP)—Southern Oklahoma officers hunted tonight for the driver of "a big blue truck and trailer" which they said sped away after wrecking a school-bound bus and injuring more than a score of children.

Three children and the driver of the bus, Esco Roberts, 20, were hurt dangerously. Fifteen other children were in hospitals here and several others were released after being given first aid treatment.

More than 30 children, all of the Agawam community, were on the bus, which skidded into a concrete bridge over the Little Washita river, half a mile south of Ninnekah, after being forced from the highway into mud by the truck.

Corn Jumps; Liveliest In Six Months

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP)—A jump of nearly two cents a bushel in the corn market today accompanied the liveliest shipping demand witnessed here in the last six months.

Predictions of much colder weather were taken as pointing to enlarged feeding demand for corn, and it was intimated that within a week 1,000,000 bushels of corn would be shipped out of Chicago to eastern distributing ports. The volume of trading today in corn futures was decidedly larger than has recently been the rule.

Corn closed strong at some reaction from the day's top but 5-8-1-8 above yesterday's finish, May 85 1-8-1-4, wheat unchanged to 1-4 lower, May 97 3-4-7-8, oats 1-4 off to 5-8 up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20 cents.

Corn Advances

Advances of the corn market were in the face of heavy selling to realize profits for holders. Highest prices of the day were reached shortly before trading ended. Helping corn prices up was attention given to persistent smallness of receipts at terminals. Omaha had arrivals of only 3 cars today, Kansas City 24 and Minneapolis 7. The bulk of Chicago receipts came from other terminals, not from rural sources.

Messages from Iowa points said truck movement of corn in that state continued to be of unprecedented proportions. It was asserted Iowa country grain dealers were getting apprehensive as to whether there would be any important amount of corn left to move out later in the season. Soant notice was taken of word that Argentina has a fair supply of old corn for export between now and the end of the current crop year, with December delivery in the Buenos Aires market quoted around 50 cents a bushel.

Wheat Rallies

Wheat rallied with corn in the late dealings, but earlier had a heavy tone as a result of beneficial domestic rains and because of purchases of low grade Canadian wheat to come to this country. Oats averaged higher, responsive to corn strength.

Provisions reflected a sharp upturn of the hog market.

O'Donnell Hits Money Sharks

"Members of the local order who do the public a service by exposing unscrupulous schemes devised to collect money from trusting persons, who want an old age pension," Thomas E. O'Donnell of Kansas City, representative of the national officers of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, told 140 members of the lodge at a meeting Tuesday night.

Mr. O'Donnell condemned the nation wide communistic movement when he said, "The Eagle order, a leader for liberal reform, took the firm stand at its national meeting that the honest employers and honest capital must receive the same just treatment that the fraternal demands for the worker."

Fowler Pleads Guilty
