BRUNO TO DIE IN CHAIR

Sheriff's Shouts Arouse Crowd as Jury Enters

Hauptmann Remains Calm As Trembling Jury Gives Verdict of Death in Electric Chair

Wilentz Nervously Paces Floor; Reilly Subdued in Manner

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—The appearance of Sheriff John H. Curtiss, his voice suddenly shouting out from the opening library door of the Hunterdon county courtroom was the first hint tonight that the jury had reached a verdict in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Crowd Waiting
Newspaper men and women, lawyers, spectators sat in the room talking, laughing, reading newspapers, eating sandwiches, drinking coffee. The floor was littered with piles of newspaper and torn pieces of paper. The air was full of smoke. The place was hot, stuffy, growing unbearable.

Sheriff Appears
The apathy was suddenly disrupted by the sheriff, "Barry!" he shouted. Spectators jumped to their feet, their eyes followed the chubby little man as he pushed his way excitedly through the jam in the aisle. He called out again, "Barry!"

Court Crier Elmer Hann, tall, aged and bald as an egg, suddenly appeared in the courtroom, mounted behind the bench, straightened the law books, turned the chair, looked out over the dirty courtroom, eyed the yellow lights suspended from the ceiling.

Jerry the janitor got busy with the jury chairs, turned them, put them back in their proper places.

Lawyers Arrive
The lawyers drifted in, those who hadn't already been there. Attorney General David T. Wilentz was pale, his voice constricted by emotion, his shoulders stiffened.

He asked Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, to close the doors. Schwarzkopf moved down the aisle, repeated the order to his men at the door.

Captain John Lamb of the state police moved over after his superior officer.

Reilly Subdued
Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly, subdued in manner, quiet for a moment, stood upright in the space before the bench. Troopers were scattered around the room, bright figures in powder blue uniforms.

Reilly and Wilentz lost their stiffness. Hann came out. Then Hovey Low, the spectacled deputy sheriff who has guarded Hauptmann in the courtroom since the start of the trial, came into the courtroom.

Crowd Tense
Tenseness pervaded the whole room. Wilentz paced back and forth, seeking ineffectively to disguise his nervousness. Reilly, the imperturbable, looked calm but abnormally serious.

Suddenly above the silence of the courtroom the bell above the roof tolled its message.

Hauptmann Calm
There was a stir at the library door. Six state troopers came in, unmoved by the whole business. Hauptmann was between Hovey Low and a state trooper, handcuffed to each, his face pale, his manner calm. He walked with the same light step that marked his tread throughout the trial.

He seemed unmindful of the bracelets on his wrists. They shone brightly but did little to hamper him. C. Lloyd Fisher of defense counsel, pulled Hauptmann toward him, his hand around his neck and whispered to him.

Mrs. Hauptmann
Hauptmann had hardly settled back in his chair when his wife hurried up the side aisle, her face drained of color. She came around the crowd of people near the library door, latched her hair over her ears, seated herself quickly and smiled at her husband, murmuring something to him.

A constable shouted: "Quiet please."
The door of the library opened and

Milestones In Kidnap Case

By The Associated Press
1932
March 1—The Lindbergh baby is stolen from Hopewell.

April 2—Dr. John F. Condon pays the $50,000 ransom to "John" in St. Raymond's cemetery, the Bronx.

May 12—The baby is found, slain, in a thicket grave five miles from the Lindbergh estate.

July 2—John Hughes Curtiss, boat-builder, convicted of obstructing justice in the case, jury recommended mercy; later pays $1,000 fine.

1933
The search for the kidnapers goes on, without apparent success.

1934
Sept. 19—Bruno Richard Hauptmann is arrested in New York's Bronx; within the week $14,600 in ransom bills are found hidden in his garage.

Sept. 26—Hauptmann is indicted for extortion by Bronx county grand jury.

Oct. 19—Hauptmann loses his extradition fight and is taken to Flemington.

1935
Jan. 2—Hauptmann goes on trial for the baby's murder.

Feb. 13—The verdict: guilty with the death sentence.

The jury filed in. They carried their hats and coats and looked like men and women changing from one train to another.

Judge Enters
Finally Justice Thomas W. Trenchard entered, black-robed, impassive, moving with slow dignity to the bench. He put his fingers to his lips and gazed benignly over the courtroom.

His fingers suddenly moved down in a quick gesture. He spoke and Hauptmann in obedience to the order rose to his feet.

He stood erect, facing the judge, his face immobile, the perfect German infantryman facing his commanding officer.

Judge Dispassionate
The big "13" on the calendar stood out as an omen for the superstitious, but there was nothing but judicial dignity and dispassion in the voice and manner of the justice as he turned to the jury.

Charles S. Walton, Sr., the foreman, sounded a little repressed as he replied that the jury had reached a verdict.

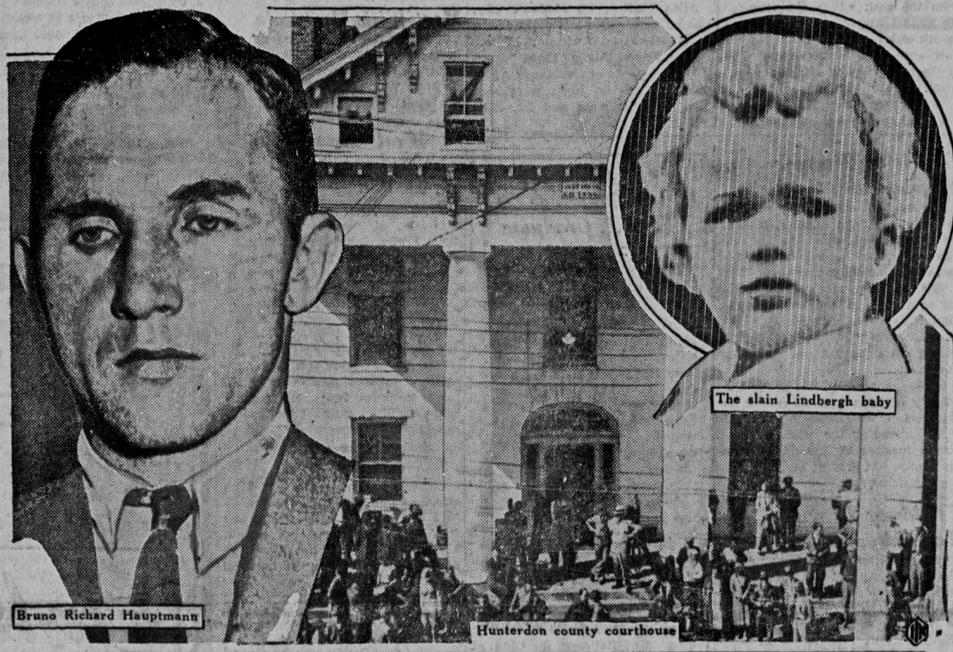

He took a slip of paper from his pocket. It seemed an eternity before he unfolded it and read:

"Guilty!"
"We find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree."

The paper was shaking, the man's voice tremulous. A gasp arose in the courtroom. Paper rustled. It was over.

"There is Nothing Left for Me"—Mrs. Hauptmann

Samuel J. Foley, Bronx District Attorney, Says Jury's Decision 'Proper'

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx, whose investigation of the ransom angles helped build up the case against Bruno Hauptmann, tonight said the jury had returned a "perfectly proper verdict."

"I believe any honest American jury could arrive at no other decision," he said.

Deputy Chief Inspector Henry E. Bruckman, one of the principal figures in the case, said: "The verdict speaks for itself."

Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon said through his wife that he would have "no statement to make."

"We really have suffered through being in the public's eye so much," Mrs. Condon added, "and we don't wish to discuss the verdict at this time."

New Jersey To Guard Bruno

Gov. Hoffman Says Every Precaution to be Taken in Transfer

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman and William J. Ellis, commissioner of institutions and agencies, announced tonight "every precaution will be taken" to guard Bruno Richard Hauptmann when he is transferred to the death house at the New Jersey state prison to die for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Hauptmann will occupy a cell on the first tier of the two-tier brick building where five other prisoners wait death. The present guard of three officers, who work in eight hour shifts, will be doubled, and the lights in Hauptmann's cell and in the corridor will burn night and day as they did at Flemington, Ellis said.

Hauptmann will occupy a cell away from the other prisoners—all of whom were convicted of slayings committed during robberies or hold-ups. His cell mates will be Michael Mule, George De Stefano and Connie Scarpone, all of Trenton; Kurth Barth, a Clifton youth, and James Williams, Newark Negro.

The cells in the death house are 8 by 12, slightly larger than those in other parts of the prison. Each cell is equipped with a bed instead of a cot, a chair, table, and toilet facilities.

Cries for First Time Since Trial Opened After Hearing Verdict

Bruno's Wife Fails To Falter Until Verdict; 'Still Has Hope'
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann tonight heard her husband sentenced to death in the electric chair, and said, "there is nothing left for me."

Lloyd Fisher, of Bruno Hauptmann's defense counsel, put an arm around her shoulders as tears rolled down her cheeks for the first time since his trial began.

Be Brave
"See here," said Fisher gently, "You be brave. Don't show any emotion here. Don't show anything."

Mrs. Hauptmann fought to regain her composure, but her chin still quivered. Then Fisher said, "Mrs. Hauptmann, we'll see this thing through."

She had dried her tears when she made her way through the crowd and left through the courthouse

Jury Report Garbled; Gave Hauptmann Life, Not Death Sentence

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—When word that a verdict had been reached in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial for murder of the Lindbergh baby flashed through the courtroom confusion reigned briefly.

In transmitting the verdict from one part of the courthouse to another the Associated Press' report of the decision was garbled and the first word to reach waiting newspapers was that the jury had found Hauptmann guilty but with a recommendation for life sentence instead of the death penalty.

Dull, Dazed Expression
She had looked at her husband after the jury poll, but now her eyes returned to the justice, with a dull, dazed expression. She seemed unable to believe it.

Hauptmann was more alert than she. After each of the 12 jurors repeated, "guilty of murder in the first degree," he looked at his wife, closed his eyes and shook his head.

"Quiet, quiet, quiet please!" the

Jurors Vote Five Times

Verdict Comes After Fifth Ballot, Reports Say; Jury Guarded

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—The Hauptmann trial jury, it was reported tonight, reached the verdict of death on the fifth ballot.

All communication with the jurors who had been sitting in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for nearly six weeks was denied tonight as they returned, under guard of state troopers, to their third-floor quarters in the hotel across the street from the court house.

The members of the jury filed slowly out of the court house and passed through the lane made in the packed crowd on the street and sidewalk. State troopers followed them and stood guard on the stairs and in the entrance of the hotel.

Arrangements were made with the state authorities for the jury to remain under guard tonight and to return to their homes tomorrow. Previous orders to Sheriff John H. Curtiss, who provided for the hotel quarters during the trial, were that when the jurors left for the court house today they would not return except to pick up their belongings and depart for home.

Attorney Reilly Says He May Carry Case To U.S. High Courts

Hauptmann, to Die in March Unless Appeal Succeeds, Weeps in Cell After Verdict; Jurors Reach Decision After 11 Hours

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—A solemn mandate—death in the electric chair for the kidnap-murder of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.—was read to Bruno Richard Hauptmann by his Jersey jury and his judge tonight.

Doomed Man Weeps
Pale and erect, he heard the sentence of the jury that "We find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree" and he swayed almost imperceptibly as Justice Thomas W. Trenchard sentenced him to die in the electric chair at Trenton penitentiary "the week beginning Monday, the 18th day of March 1935."

But he crouched at midnight on the edge of the cot in his guarded cell and wept.

He had not a word for the men who watched him.

Reilly Will Appeal
Shortly after the jury climaxed 32 days of tragic, dramatic testimony and frenzied pleading with its verdict, Edward J. Reilly, big chief of the defense counsel, announced an appeal would be carried "to the highest court of the country, the United States supreme court, if necessary."

"We believe that we shall be able to secure an ultimate reversal of the judgment," Reilly said.

Lindy Leaves Court
The first higher court to pass on the appeal is expected to be the court of errors and appeals of the state of New Jersey, and the case probably will not reach that tribunal before the latter part of May.

The father whose baby died at a kidnap's hands three years next March 1—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh—did not see Hauptmann as he stood, white and unshaven, to hear his doom.

"Not at Home"—Lindy
Colonel Lindbergh had left the courtroom early in the afternoon and when New Jersey authorities telephoned the home of his mother-in-law at Englewood, they were informed that the household had learned of the verdict from broadcasts.

Although Colonel Lindbergh and the baby's young mother have been staying at the Morrow home, the officers who telephoned were informed the famous flyer was "not at home."

His close friend and legal adviser, Col. Henry Breckinridge, declined in New York to comment on the verdict as did Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon, the aged Bronx schoolmaster who paid $50,000 ransom to a man he identified as Hauptmann.

The eight men and four women of the jury spent 11 hours and six minutes in the bleak back room of the old Hunterdon county court house and reputedly balloted five times before they reached their verdict.

Tonight they were under guard in their hotel quarters across the street from the court house-jail, and talked to no one.

They will return to their homes tomorrow.

Two Sought Mercy
From apparently authoritative sources it was reported that two of the women jurors had opposed the death penalty until the last, seeking a mercy recommendation that would have carried a mandatory life sentence.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was condemned to the electric chair tonight by the jury that tried him for the kidnap-murder of Baby Lindbergh.

White and unshaven, he tottered slightly as he stood between his guards and heard himself ordered to "die in the electric chair."

To Die March 18
He was sentenced to die in the week of March 18, but an almost certain appeal to the New Jersey court of appeals and errors would stay the execution.

The high court is not likely to pass upon the appeal until late in May.

The jury of eight men and four women spent 11 hours and 6 minutes in a bare room of the old court-house where Hauptmann had been on trial since Jan. 2 before they reached their verdict.

"We find the defendant, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, guilty of murder in the first degree," intoned Foreman Charles Walton, Sr., in the deathly quiet of the littered, smoke-filled courtroom.

Mrs. Hauptmann Cries
Anna Hauptmann, tears rolling down her cheeks as her husband went silently back to his cell, cried "There is nothing left for me."

But she dried her eyes as she pushed through the thronged courtroom and left by a rear door.

"I am not afraid," she said, "I still hope."

Polled individually at the insistence of Edward J. Reilly, chief of the defense counsel, the jurors affirmed the verdict to quavering voices.

Sheriff John H. Curtiss heralded the return of the jury, shouting from the library door of the century-old courtroom.

Under the five garish lights, newspapermen and lawyers had waited for hours in the littered little room, almost unbearably hot and stuffy.

Court Crier Elmer Hann, tall and bald, suddenly appeared, rising behind the bench, and adjusted the jurist's chair.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, pale, his voice tense with emotion, stiffened his shoulders.

Troopers Close Doors
He spoke to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, and Schwarzkopf moved down the aisle, ordering his troopers to close the doors.

The florid Reilly, subdued in manner, stood upright in the space before the bench.

Troopers stood at the alert about the little room, bright-figured in their sky-blue uniforms.

Trooper Lewis J. Bornmann, one of the men who found and handled the kidnap ladder down which Baby Lindbergh was carried to his death on the night of March 1, 1932, stood near the jury box.

The minutes dragged.

Dolefully, the bell high above began to toll. There was a stir at the library door. The time was 10:31.

Six state troopers entered. Then came Hauptmann, between Deputy Sheriff Hovey Low and a state trooper, handcuffed to each, his face pale, his manner calm.

Throng Awaits Verdict
A tenseness gripped the courtroom.

A constable shouted, "Quiet, please."

Out in the street, where a massed throng waited, someone set up a shout. It swelled into a prolonged yell.

The jury filed in, took the seats occupied for 32 days, after placing coats in the customary places.

Mrs. Verna Snyder, juror No. 3, appeared to have been crying.

Hauptmann seemed unmindful of the bracelets on his wrists, gleaming brightly under the yellow lights.

C. Lloyd Fisher, one of his counsel, put his arm around the prisoner's neck and whispered to him.

Mrs. Hauptmann had come hurriedly up a side aisle as Hauptmann settled into his chair. Her face was drained of color and she moved quickly.

She smiled and murmured to her husband. She sat motionless.

The jurors' faces were grave as

Ethiopian Reports Indicate Tentative Agreement With Italy on Approach to Peace

Mussolini Gives Deep Study To Ethiopian Note on Aggression

New Basis of Accord Eases Tension Over Threatened Warfare

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Italian and Ethiopian governments, it was reported here today, have arrived on common ground for approach to the borderland disputes and have agreed to the establishment of a neutral zone pending frontier delimitation.

Reliable quarters revealed representatives of Rome and Addis Ababa agreed that a boundary commission, to be appointed, would investigate and the situation which has caused great friction between the two countries.

ROME, Feb. 13 (AP)—Benito Mussolini gave deep study tonight to an Ethiopian note calling Italians the aggressors in recent border conflicts which officials said earlier today made the situation "very serious."

Nevertheless, there appeared this evening to be less concern in government circles over the prospect of hostilities in Africa, this though an authoritative source said Italy was prepared to spend $850,000,000 in an African campaign if war breaks out.

While the widespread mobilization ordered after the latest Italo-Ethiopian clash proceeded amid officially imposed secrecy, Mussolini presided at another session of the supreme council of defense, the second in two days. The Ethiopian situation was believed to have been thoroughly discussed.

A two-year campaign in Ethiopia, with expenditures up to 10,000,000,000 lire (about $850,000,000), is the basis of Italy's plan in the event that hostilities break out, it was authoritatively reported today.

HAUPTMANN Found Guilty of Murder, Will Get Death

they answered "present." The court clerk called on them to rise.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, benign, white-haired, said "Let the defendant stand."

Hauptmann arose between his guards, straight as a ramrod.

"Members of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?" asked Court Clerk Fell.

The jurors: "We have."

Foreman Speaks

The court clerk: "Who shall speak for you?"

The jurors chorused: "The foreman."

Court Clerk Fell: "Mr. Foreman, what say you, do you find the defendant guilty or not guilty?"

The foreman: "Guilty. We find the defendant, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, guilty of murder in the first degree."

The court: "One moment. No person will leave the courtroom until the court is finished. Stay right where you are."

Court Clerk Fell: "Members of the jury, you have heard the verdict, that you find the defendant, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, guilty of murder in the first degree and so say you all."

Voice Shakes

The jurors: "We do."

Foreman Walton's voice was shaking, and the folded paper in his hand trembled as he spoke the verdict.

A gasp arose in the courtroom. The jurors were polled; each repeated "guilty of murder in the first degree."

Wilentz moved "for sentence of the defendant at this time" after Hauptmann had been seated.

"Let me have the indictment," said Justice Trenchard.

He discussed the law requiring sentence to be fixed within "a certain week" not less than four weeks nor more than eight weeks after the issuance of the warrant.

Then he told Hauptmann to stand again.

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann, you have been convicted of murder in the first degree."

Judge Speaks

"The sentence of the court is that you, the said Bruno Richard Hauptmann, suffer death at the time and place and in the manner provided by law and the court will hand to the sheriff a warrant appointing the week beginning Monday, the 18th day of March, 1935, as the week within which such sentence must be executed in the manner provided by law."

"You are now remanded to the custody of the sheriff."

"You may retire."

Later Justice Trenchard returned to the bench to deliver the warrant for Hauptmann's execution to the sheriff.

He must be removed to state's Penitentiary at Trenton within 10 days but Sheriff Curtis said he would not take him from the jail for at least 48 hours.

However, he ordered the rule of silence that has been imposed in the prisoner's quarters lifted tonight and conversation between the prisoner and his guard will be permitted.

The verdict came nearly five months after Hauptmann's arrest.

Local Scouts Get Awards; 400 Attend

Richard McCreery Speaks at Annual Parents' Dinner

More than 400 awards were made to Iowa City Scouts and Cubs at the annual Parent-Boy Scout dinner last night in the ball room of the American Legion building. Nearly 400 persons heard Richard McCreery of Washington, Ia., give the principal address of the evening on "The Why of Scouting."

Scouts take the oath and become Scouts to be prepared he said. "More than 6,410,000 boys have learned to be prepared. Why? To be a hero," he declared.

MRS. HAUPTMANN Still Has Hopes For Convicted Bruno

balliffs shouted. The justice had given permission for those who wished to leave, and spectators were scrambling out.

As they left, Mrs. Hauptmann seemed to realize for the first time that the trial was over. Tears came to her eyes then, but did not fall.

She heard the first part of the proceedings with the same unbelievable stillness she has shown since the trial began.

Persons sitting near her realized with a start that she wasn't moving and showed no reaction whatever. Hauptmann's right eyelid twitched. But hers did not blink.

Her figure, in her brown checked wool dress and black seal-skin coat, kept the same position, and her head, in her new brown hat with an orange feather, did not move.

Minutes later, she realized what had happened. As the jury left, her eyes followed the bulky figure of Mrs. Rosie Pill, who had stumbled over the phrase, "guilty of murder in the first degree," and the huge form of Mrs. Verna Snyder, who had wept in the jury-box.

If Mrs. Hauptmann ever doubted her husband, who told on the witness stand how he had morning coffee with blonde Gerta Henkel, her doubt must have faded when he first turned to her.

She had settled herself in her chair by the defense table when he turned, and gave a long look, full of affection. It was the kindest look he has had since the trial began.

At first he said nothing, but she nodded as if she understood; and then he said, "It's all right, Annie."

Johnson County Home 1934 Financial Report Shows $741 Profit

The financial report for 1934 of Johnson county's home for the poor was filed yesterday with County Auditor Ed Sulek. Receipts for the year exceeded disbursements by $741.87, the report showed.

Of the total receipts of $16,692.26, the largest sum was $12,663.62, transferred from the county loan fund. The second largest item on the list was $2,882 received from the sale of livestock, potatoes, produce and hogs.

The federal corn-hog program netted the county $443.05 for the county home, and the state fund was $696.19. Miscellaneous receipts were given at $6.40.

Total disbursements of $15,950.39 were included in the report filed by C. W. Lacin, chairman of the county poor relief committee, and by the county board of supervisors.

The featured artist is Louisiana Lou, Victor recording artist. Miss Lou is noted for her yodeling numbers and individual presentations of the familiar old-time popular tunes.

Appearing with Miss Lou on the stage will be the famous comedy team, Lem and Martha; Windy Brown, the one-man harmonica band; Jo and Jean, the Arizona Cowgirls; the fast hill-billy band, Perkie's Huskers; the Elm City quartette, and the famous comedy dancer, Grampa Jitters.

The Barn Dance Frolic is part of the entertainment offered at the Johnson County Farm Bureau party.

Rev. McEvoy Leaves To Attend Funeral

The Rev. and Mrs. Richard E. McEvoy and Jean McEvoy will leave this noon for Niles, Ohio, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Marcus McEvoy, who died there last night.

The morning service at Trinity Episcopal church Sunday will be in charge of Prof. Bartholow Crawford, the Rev. McEvoy announced. Church school will be at the usual hour. There will be no communion at the 8 a.m. service because of the rector's absence.

Mrs. Marcus McEvoy is the sister-in-law of the Rev. Mr. McEvoy and his sister, Jean.

Survivors of Macon Crash Tell Stories

U. S. Begins Probe Of Tragedy; Two Men Still Missing

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13 (AP)—How the mighty Macon, the American navy's queen of the air, reared and plunged crazily for 35 minutes before falling and sinking to the bottom of the Pacific was revealed today in the stories of its survivors.

The underlying cause of the mid-air collapse remained undetermined, Commander H. V. Wiley and others who came through safely, revealed there had been a sudden lurch at the outset, after which the great sky cruiser soared upward, out of control, then settled haphazardly to a grave in the deep.

Outwardly lighthearted, the 81 surviving officers and men who stuck with the ship until she hit the water and then got away in rubber lifeboats, sang as they came ashore here.

Search was continued for the two missing members of the crew at the spot where the big ship went down late yesterday 13 miles off Pt. Sur, Cal., 110 miles south of here.

The loss of the $2,450,000 Macon left the American navy without a fighting dirigible. Germany's Graf Zeppelin, slightly smaller than the Macon, thus became sovereign of the skies.

President Roosevelt praised the work of naval surface craft for the swift rescue of the dirigible's crew but said funds would not be asked for her replacement at present.

Hints that the Macon's end, similar to that of the dirigibles Akron and Shenandoah, might mean the discontinuance, or at least a curtailment, of naval development along this line were seen in Washington developments.

Board Makes Election Plans

Preparations for the annual school board election March 11 were begun last night at the monthly meeting of J. A. Swisher and J. M. Kadlec as a committee to select a polling place, three judges, two clerks, and five registrars.

Other business transacted by the board included an order to change lighting apparatus at the Henry Sabin, Horace Mann, and Longfellow schools to indirect lighting. The action was taken as a result of a survey conducted by the Iowa City Light and Power company and an experiment in two rooms at the Henry Sabin school.

There will be no special expense and the change will merely involve changing light bulbs and inverting the present fixtures. According to the resolution passed last night, the change will be made immediately.

Directors Plan To Provide Electricity For Park Cottages

Members of the board of directors of Lake Macbride State park met last night to consider means of providing electric current for cottages and other buildings at the park.

Dr. E. J. Anthony of Iowa City, president of the board, said last night that work on the park had been delayed because of changes in construction plans.

Members of the board of directors from Iowa City are Dr. Anthony, A. A. Welt, and L. C. W. Clearman.

University health department handled 4,800 cases during the month of January, according to a report issued yesterday by Dr. Milford E. Barnes, director of the department.

Forty-three communicable disease cases received attention, student health and out-patient cases totaled 2,919, and 1,888 inspections were made.

CHICAGO (AP)—The highest prices since July, 1931, for hogs and since November, 1930, for cattle were established in the livestock markets yesterday.

UTILITY TAXES helped to build THIS BEAUTIFUL UNIVERSITY

Every person in Iowa City is a true "Hawkeye," deeply interested in the welfare and growth of the great University within our city.

As a citizen of Iowa City, you naturally support the University in its requests for substantial appropriations from the state legislature. Do you give any thought to the source of the money that supplies the funds for the maintenance and extension of the University? This money comes from the TAXPAYERS of Iowa . . . and the privately-owned utilities are among the largest taxpayers. They provide a large share of the tax money that supports this University and this community.

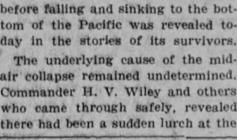

Municipally-owned plants do not contribute anything to Iowa City. They do not pay taxes. In fact, they take taxable property off the tax roll. They are tax-exempt, AND TAX-EXEMPT PROPERTY IS A MENACE TO EDUCATIONAL APPROPRIATIONS.

One of the important reasons why you should oppose the construction of a municipal electric plant in Iowa City, or anywhere in Iowa, is that the University of Iowa is located here.

PLEASE NOTE THESE FACTS—There is not one example of a municipally-owned electric plant having entirely paid for itself out-of-earnings, without benefit of taxation, at electric rates as low as they are in Iowa City. Our rates are BELOW the average of municipally-owned plants and BELOW THE PUBLISHED RATES FOR THE PROPOSED MUNICIPAL PLANT.

A Dangerous Assumption

Mr. Clark believes that two theaters should exist, the professional and non-professional, the latter to be a laboratory for experimenting with more extensive and varied play productions...

DRAMATICS AS a part of the university curriculum represents something comparatively new. This fact may be the only excuse for tolerating such assumptions...

Fields of work which have an older academic standing have graduated from this dangerous assumption. In fact, men in other subjects have been loud in protest...

The fact remains that there is no such thing as a "non-professional" theater, regardless of how great the plea for it.

To say that two separate theaters should exist is as logical as to say that two types of medicine should exist—one for college students and one for physicians...

The fact remains that there is no such thing as a "non-professional" theater, regardless of how great the plea for it.

PHILOSOPHERS WHO spend their time looking for signs of progress or decadence should examine carefully the case of E. E. Wenner.

Mr. Wenner came to Ponca, Neb., a few days ago to organize an undersea hunt for $100,000 worth of bourbon whiskey...

However, the Macon, the Akron and the Shenandoah should provide a sufficient lesson to insure against any further experiments in dirigible construction until a design is perfected which at least will approximate the safety factor of airplanes.

It was comforting to hear from Phillips Lord, as reported by the Associated Press, that the SOS message by which he kept the world in suspense over the plight of his ship, the "Seth Parker," was not a publicity stunt.

There are those who suggest that the "Seth Parker's" skipper might be slightly biased in favor of his own veracity, but in view of the fact that the story was printed in every newspaper, anyway, one might as well accept his denial at face value.

In spite of President Roosevelt's announced determination that Section 7-A of the Industrial Recovery act be retained untouched, one cannot help agreeing with the National Labor Relations board that it should be clarified.

Certainly some definite administrative procedure should be established so that both labor and industry might know how the section is to be interpreted from one day to the next.

What Others Think

Heart Balm Cases

(From The Des Moines Tribune) DRASTIC RESTRICTIONS against breach of promise and alienation of affections litigation are proposed by the committee on law reform of the New York state bar association.

The usual "heart balm" suit is so unsavory that people of such delicacy as to be really susceptible to a "broken" heart would do almost anything to avoid dragging their injured feelings into court.

Good Morning

In view of the German Graf Zeppelin's long and successful service in regularly scheduled flights between Berlin and South America, one finds it difficult to suppress certain disturbing questions at the failure of American lighter-than-air craft.

It would seem, at least, that more than fate is involved in the tragic story of the navy's painful experiments with this type of fighting equipment.

Quickly squelched reports of poor construction, which gained limited circulation at the time the Macon was accepted by the government, will persist in gaining new currency.

The value of lighter-than-air craft in long range transport, assuming reliable construction, has been adequately demonstrated by the Graf Zeppelin.

From the military point of view, evidence seems to indicate that dirigibles are little more than expensive toys with little real worth.

But neither their apparent uselessness in war nor the tragedy of past disasters should be allowed to halt their development as commercial carriers.

There are those who suggest that the "Seth Parker's" skipper might be slightly biased in favor of his own veracity, but in view of the fact that the story was printed in every newspaper, anyway, one might as well accept his denial at face value.

In spite of President Roosevelt's announced determination that Section 7-A of the Industrial Recovery act be retained untouched, one cannot help agreeing with the National Labor Relations board that it should be clarified.

Certainly some definite administrative procedure should be established so that both labor and industry might know how the section is to be interpreted from one day to the next.

Lack of such clarification has had much to do with increasing labor unrest, and continued uncertainty will not contribute to industrial peace.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL HOLLYWOOD — Little Luise Rainer, Germany's newest gift to the cinema, should rate a few cheers from distracted women shoppers.

Year in, and year out, she refuses to wear more than two kinds of hats. The petite M.G.M. actress observes: "Hats, in my opinion are meant to bring out the features of the face. There should be nothing to detract. They should form a quiet and inconspicuous frame for a picture."

"I have discovered two types of hats that coincide with my ideas. One is a large picture hat, the other a small one of the beret type. I wear only these two—and when they look shabby, I have them copied."

Fraulent Rainer also flaunts the whims of fashion by shunning jewelry, wearing evening gowns cut like simple Grecian robes and restricting herself to the colors of nature.

All up to now, of course, Adrian has a flair for unusual hats. The gossips would have the Marquis de la Falaise leaving soon for another film expedition.

Herbert Mundin has another drunk story to add to your collection. The one about the two inebriates who were sitting in a crowded cafe.

It was a tough day on Hollywood parents the other day. Due to the rain, Arline Judd had to call off her baby son's kid party, which was to have brought together most of the young hopefuls of the film colony.

What well-known character actor thinks he is being so discreet, making trysts at that sea-coast town about, 100 miles south of Hollywood?

LATE FLASHES—The R-K-O studio had the shivers for 30 minutes the other morning. Ginger Rogers failed to arrive and her home reported she had left an hour before.

The awards banquet is to be at the Biltmore this year. Mae West and her company will give the Asua Caliente visitors an extra thrill by attending in a party.

SEEN from OLD CAPITOL

by TOM YOSELOFF

We promised ourselves yesterday that no matter how the Hauptmann case was decided, we would be different and keep all mention of it out of this department. Last night, however, The Daily Iowan issued an extra edition to announce the decision. We were walking about the streets at a late hour when we heard an excellent example of speedy justice.

One of the newsboys was running up and down the streets shouting "Extra, extra, Hauptmann gets the chair—extra, Hauptmann gets chair." He waited a moment, then decided the results were not great enough. He tried again: "Extra, extra, Hauptmann electrocuted."

Today is St. Valentine's day. This department, with its flinty heart, was reminded of that fact by a touching little message and poem received in yesterday's mail. It is long, but it is interesting so it is printed here in full:

"I thought you might find space for this in your column tomorrow. Since tomorrow is Valentine's day, I have written a Valentine to the lady of my dreams. Believe me, fellow, this comes straight from the heart, if you don't mind my saying so.

"The tenor of this ballad is not modern. It sounds a note of sincerity, a simple protestation of honest affection. It will doubtless remind you of Sir Philip Sidney, Ben Johnson, and Shakespeare. (It is probably much better than anything these boys ever turned out.) This symbolizes to me the fact that my love is timeless and undying—in this day of falling blimps and kidnap trials it goes back 300 years to catch just the right note from which my lyre is tuned. (How do you like that?)
A Sad Lover."

And here is the verse, entitled "To the Blonde Who Holds My Heart":
"Lady sweet, fair beauty queen,
Goddess—must you be so mean?
Will you always treat me so?"

You give other fellows dates,
(All things come to him who rates)
But you always tell me no.

I have called you, begged and pleaded;
You have smiled, yet not conceded!
Me the faintest ray of hope.

So I've feigned to be aloof;
You're unimpressed and furnish proof.
That either way it's just no soap.

I'm not handsome—God, I know it.

Lions Outline Exhibit Plans

Two Style Shows, Dancing, Contests to Feature Show

Entertainment features of the Lions club automobile and home appliance show, which will include two style shows on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in addition to orchestra, dancing, contests and other events, were outlined by Earl Kurtz at the club luncheon yesterday at Reich's pine room.

The show, to open at the American Legion building Monday night, will include 20 auto models shown by 10 dealers, on the main floor and home appliance exhibits in other parts of the building. More than 60 displays were scheduled yesterday.

Dr. W. B. Keil reported on exhibits and displays which will include farm implements, auto accessories, all types of home appliances and other general displays featuring new models and styles in a pre-showing of spring offerings.

Irving Weber reported for the publicity committee. M. B. Guthrie told of finances and tickets and George Ball described the general layout of the exhibits as planned by the house committee.

Committee chairmen will report again today at an informal luncheon meeting at Reich's pine room.

George H. Greenwood and L. C. W. Clearman were guests at yesterday's meeting.

Prof., Mrs. Jung To Entertain Students

Prof. Moses Jung of the school of religion and Mrs. Jung will entertain 20 students at dinner in the private dining room of Iowa Union tonight.

Professor and Mrs. Jung entertained Dr. L. J. Harris of the college of medicine at dinner in their home last night. Several students were also guests at the dinner.

Neither have I got much dough—
It seems to be a hopeless case.

Hell, it isn't even funny;
No car, no frat pin, and no money.
And—worse luck—a homely face.

Yet I dare to hope you'll turn,
Dear,
From indifference and return,
Dear,
My affection, which still grows.

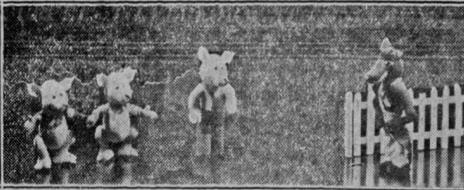

Sweet, I offer you sincerely
All my heart—this isn't merely
The old line. (Though goodness
Knows

I have played that game too often,
Let my love your hard heart soften.

Lady sweet, fair beauty queen,
Goddess—must you be so mean?
Will you always treat me so?"

Although we've never been driven to such depths, we can appreciate the situation. She'd have to have a heart of iron not to melt under this heat, Mr. Sad Lover. And—if it means anything—we do seem to detect a slightly Elizabethan odor about the thing. . . .

PUPPETS TO PERFORM AT CONFERENCE

Ethel Salisbury Hanley's Happy-Go-Lucky marionettes will perform before visiting English teachers at their conference tomorrow and Saturday. Above are three photos of the wooden Thespians in action.

Happy-Go-Lucky Puppet Show To Illustrate English Lecture

Mrs. Ethel Salisbury Hanley and her Happy-Go-Lucky marionettes will present a puppet show before the English conference in Macbride auditorium tomorrow at 3:15 p.m. This will be open to the public.

The puppet show will serve to illustrate Prof. W. Leigh Sowers' conference subject, "The Use of Puppets in Classroom Instruction."

William Bunn, graduate student in the speech department, made several of the puppets Mrs. Hanley is using. She has a complete new outfit for this year. While teaching dramatic art in the Muscatine high school Mrs. Hanley first became interested in puppets. Bunn, then one of her students, began making puppets and they produced several plays for school audiences.

Mrs. Hanley had a company on the Chautauqua and Lyceum circuits. As an experiment she added a marionette number to the program. She attended the Wayne Barlow Puppet school in Los Angeles, Cal. Gradually she dropped plays and turned entirely to puppets.

"Some puppets are quite simple and others are very complicated," Mrs. Hanley said. "The average puppet is operated by about nine strings though some have many more. Good 'puppeteering' usually requires experience and skill though one can learn all of the essential technicalities in five minutes time. Much depends on native sense of rhythm and balance but 'practice makes perfect.'"

Associated Engineers To Convene Tonight

Members of the Associated Students of Engineering will meet in room 206 of the engineering building tonight, Paul Bolton, E4 of Carson, president, announced yesterday. The meeting, primarily for Mecca week committees, will be open to all engineering students.

Economics Club To Hear Talk by Bush

Prof. Stephen H. Bush, head of the Romance languages department, will speak this afternoon at 4 o'clock before the Home Economics club. His subject will be "Home Life in France." The meeting will be in the club dining rooms.

Junto Club Will Meet At Hawk's Nest Cafe

Junto club, political science discussion group, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hawk's Nest. There will be a dinner with a discussion following.

Local Business Men Plan For Loan Association Establishment

Dr. MacEwen Placed At Head of Group At Meeting Here

Possibility of a Federal Savings and Loan association in Iowa City was revealed yesterday after a temporary organization of a group of 15 local businessmen, headed by Dr. E. M. MacEwen, took steps to secure a charter from the U. S. government.

George W. Greenwood, field organizer for the federal loan bank board in Washington, D.C., made a detailed explanation of the government's new plan for establishment of these institutions and then issued a permit to the local group.

Other temporary officers elected at yesterday's meeting were Frank L. Thompson, vice chairman, and A. A. Welt, secretary.

The officers immediately began formulating plans for obtaining subscriptions for the required 500 shares needed to secure a charter.

The Federal Savings and Loan association is similar to a building and loan association. Its purpose is to encourage persons to invest their money in a local institution where the funds, along with government money, will be available for loans on homes in this territory, Mr. Greenwood said.

Loans can be made by the institutions for purchasing, building, repairing and refinancing homes within 50 miles of Iowa City, he said. No loans can exceed 75 per cent of the appraised value. All loans are repayable in monthly payments extending over a period of five to 20 years.

All investments in the association are insured up to $5,000 by a corporation capital of the federal government which amounts to $100,000,000. The government also offers to furnish three dollars for every dollar of local money invested. Additional funds would be available in loans from the Federal Home Loan bank in Des Moines.

"The need for such an organization in Iowa City has been long felt by both investors and prospective borrowers," Mr. Greenwood said. "Such an institution will serve the best interests of all concerned in Iowa City and surrounding territory."

The charter will be obtained when 500 shares of $100 each are sold to at least 40 persons. A cash total of $50,000 must be paid.

Malamud States Five Factors for Study Of Behavior Problems

"Five factors are important approaching the study of a behavior problem," Dr. William Malamud, assistant director of the psychopathic hospital, believes.

In an address before the Social Workers' club at a dinner last night at Iowa Union, Dr. Malamud listed the factors as: "Mental efficiency, physical inadequacies, intelligence in school placement, home situation, and emotional causes."

The regular monthly meeting of the club preceded the dinner, at which time Moe S. Reiss, graduate student, of Brooklyn, N. Y., presented a book review of "Windows on Henry Street," by Lillian Wald. The book depicts aspects of settlement life and activities.

Fellowship Candidates Receive Interviews

Harry F. Lewis, of the Paper Trade laboratory, Appleton, Wis., visited the chemistry department yesterday to interview candidates for fellowships in the laboratory.

The Paper Trade laboratory is supported by the National Association of Paper Manufacturers. The fellowships offered include the training of men to take positions in paper mills throughout the country, and to conduct research of general interest to the association.

Sigma Xi Soiree To Hear Three Talks

Three members of the zoology department will present talks at a Sigma Xi soiree next Wednesday. The meeting will be in the zoology building.

The speakers are Graham P. DuShane, Theodore L. Jahn, and Prof. Alfred M. Lucas. The talks will be followed by a business meeting.

Lee Cochran Shows Two Sound Films

Two sound films were presented by Lee Cochran of the extension division before a luncheon meeting of the college of engineering faculty at Iowa Union yesterday noon.

Following the two films on "Transportation" and "Yellowstone Park," Mr. Cochran explained the pictures.

Annual State Checker Tourney to Open In Iowa City Feb. 20

Plans have been completed for the thirty-second annual tournament of the Iowa State Checker association here Feb. 20, 21, and 22 in the Jefferson hotel club room. The tournament is made possible through the cooperation of the local Octagon Checker club, the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, and 60 Iowa City firms.

Prizes for the three day session include the Octagon club travelling trophy and $15 to the winner, and cash awards to the next 19 highest scorers. Robert Martin of Ottumwa is the defending champion.

In conjunction with the tournament, the association will conduct several other activities, a tour of the interest points of Iowa City, and a banquet with special entertainment features.

In a business meeting at 10:30 in the morning of the opening day, officers will be elected for the coming year, and location of the 1936 tournament be determined.

Play will start in the afternoon of the first day and continue until the 1935 king has been crowned in the evening of the third day.

Crowder Discusses Gold Clause Cases

"The Gold Clause Cases Before the Supreme Court" was the subject of a talk by Walter F. Crowder of the college of commerce at a dinner meeting of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, at Youde's inn last night.

A short business session followed the dinner at which 25 members were present. Pictures were taken for the Hawkeye.

BITS ABOUT SPORTS

by Jack Gurwell

A FOUR-MINUTE mile is not only possible but probable in the opinion of Glenn Cunningham. He holds little hopes for the existence of his world's mark of 4:06.7. Incidentally, Cunningham becomes irked when track fans expect him to smash a record every time he runs.

Marcellus McMichael, former pivot man on Roosevelt's state champs is the pride and joy of Northwestern cage followers. "Mac" is No. 1 man on the strong Wildcat's frosh quintet and the basis of next year's cage hopes. Another Joe Reiff, they say.

DISCUSSION of the benefits and ills of the center pivot style continues. Dr. Walter E. Meanwell predicts a destruction of the game unless radical changes are effected against the monotonous use of this mode. Coming from a personage who is regarded to basketball what Rookne was to football, the opinion should merit consideration when the moguls convene at their annual grab-fest.

Lynn Waldorf plans to take moving pictures of all Northwestern games next season. Believes it will aid by pointing out faulty and good qualities of play.

BILL HAARLOW will not in all probability, surpass the 167 point record of Joe Reiff made in 1933. The slender Maroon has a total of 112 points with three contests remaining. This means an average of 19 points per game is necessary—a Herculean job, indeed.

3,500 Reserved Seats Sold For Wolverine Game

The toboggan tactics of the University of Iowa basketball team in the conference race apparently have not deeded all interest in the Hawkeyes. For 3,500 reserved seats already have been sold for the Michigan game here Saturday.

Charles Gallher, business manager of athletics, yesterday reported that about 2,100 still were on sale, in addition to the 6,500 general admission tickets.

Although the team slid from first to seventh and now has an even break in eight games after winning the first four, interest centers in the attempt of the Iowans to start a comeback drive against the Wolverines.

Reserved seats will be on sale up to game time, with a crowd of between 7,000 and 9,000 likely to be in the fieldhouse stands.

FINALS FOR GOLDEN GLOVES TONIGHT

Title Battles in Eight Classes Start Tonight at 8:15; American Legion Building Scene of Fights

Amateur Boxers Clash for Right to Make Chicago Trip as Member of Daily Iowan's Boxing Team; Winners Get Boxing Robes

Sixteen Golden Gloves boxers, all remaining of the group of more than 60 who took up the leather pushing trail in the preliminary matches last week, will fight it out for eight class championships tonight in the American Legion building. Fights will get under way at 8:15, with doors opening at 7 p.m.

The eight champions who emerge winners tonight will have earned the right to fight on The Daily Iowan's team in the Chicago Tribune's Tournament of Champions, Feb. 25, 26 and 27. This year's team will be the second sent to Chicago carrying the banner of The Daily Iowan. Last year, for the first time, local fighters went to Chicago.

Fans who packed the American Legion building ringside seats and bleachers last Wednesday and Thursday nights saw in elimination fights some real leather pushing, in which pre-tourney favorites were ousted from the finals by unsung dark horses who, after exhibition of their wares, gave fans promises of a hot night this evening.

Every championship go hardy has a favorite, although fans have picked a few they like to carry through to local titles. One of the feature bouts will be between Chet Acher of Ft. Dodge and John Hayes of

All finalists are urged to be at the American Legion building tonight at 7:30. The first bout will start promptly at 8:15, with the fights to be run off as quickly as possible.

Shenandoah CCC camp for the 175 pound championship. Both boys advanced through the preliminaries in knockout style, Acher turning in the impressive feat of defeating Leo Cain of Iowa City to get into the finals.

Lamb-Smith Fight
Fans who like 'em big will have satisfaction in watching the Floyd DeHeer—M. A. Polish fight for the heavyweight title. DeHeer, 240 pounds of man, clouted out a decision over Shipley Farroh to advance into the finals. Another battle royal is expected in the 160 pound class when Bush Lamb of Newton meets Wendell Smith of Osceola.

Lamb, quick and sure fighter who caught fans' attention by his two knockout wins to enter the finals, will be up against a hard hitting battler who has, so far, refused to accept defeat. Smith made a great comeback last Wednesday night over Dick Wellman of Bloomfield when, out on his feet in the first round, he came back in the third to win a technical knockout victory, and to later win over popular Les Glick of Iowa City, defending 160 pound champion.

Only two of last year's champions will enter the ring in defense of their title tonight, both from Muscatine, and both experienced boxers. In the 112 pound class, Everett Halliday will tangle with Cecil Root of Mt. Vernon CCC camp. Halliday, blonde and smiling little fellow, asks no odds from anybody, and had little trouble winning his way into the finals with a technical knockout over Ted Downs of Mt. Vernon CCC. Root, teammate of Downs, outgouted Shorty Mansel, one of the favorites, to advance. The other defending champion, Carl Brade in the 135 pound class, took two decisions to get into the finals to oppose husky Don Howard of Ames.

Benny Floyd in Action
Joe Magrini of New York city, one of the 147 pound finalists, advanced on a technical knockout over LeRoy Walters of Iowa City, and a decision over Bill Marsh of Iowa City. Magrini will meet Kennedy Rann, husky and slugging Muscatine fighter.

In the 126 pound division, Benny Floyd of Clarinda, will tackle Howard Lippincott of Malcolm, the first man to enter the Golden Gloves this year and who has yet to fight. Floyd scored a first round knockout over Al Vedepo of Mt. Vernon CCC, and looked good in the short time he was in action.

Sam Stinton of Mt. Vernon, and Henry Hamilton of Oak Park, Ill., will meet in the 118 pound finals. Stinton dethroned Leon Lind of Iowa City, defending champion, in a decision, and Hamilton took the measure of Wayne Wren of Iowa City, in a decision.

When the Irish played the Maroons in Iowa City, the game was loaded with action from the start, although the Ottumwans were too strong for the locals.

Father Ryan is preparing his aggregation for a hard game Friday night. A long scrimmage was meted out to them last night, with emphasis on defense.

Irish Engage Ottumwa Five

Continuing their schedule of games abroad, the Shamrocks travel to Ottumwa tomorrow night to meet St. Mary's there.

Geiger Meets Griswold For Leather Mit

Golden Gloves fans will be treated to a ding-dong fistcuffs contest tonight when two local battlers, long noted for their ferocity, meet in a feature of the show tonight at the American Legion building.

Waldo Geiger, pride of Racine's No. 1, will tangle with Larry Griswold, another local pride.

Whether or not both will be gunning for a triumph and a chance to represent The Daily Iowan in next year's preliminaries cannot be said at present, as both were silent last night. As for their respective ring abilities, it only is known that the pair of fighters do not like to meet each other on the street, or any other place for that matter.

Tickets for tonight's Golden Gloves finals are on sale at The Daily Iowan, Racine's and the Academy. General admission seats are 40 cents plus tax, and ringside seats 75 cents plus tax. Doors at the American Legion building open at 7 p.m., with the final bouts scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

In addition to the Geiger-Griswold fracas, which should be a humdinger, there will be a bout between the Ware brothers, Tom and John. Reports have it that one of the two has been rendered unavailable because of sickness. If so, there is another Ware brother to take up the battle.

The Chicago Tribune Golden Gloves tournament is the greatest amateur-charity affair of its kind in the United States.

It is sponsored entirely by local newspapers throughout the middle west in conjunction with the Chicago Tribune, whose sports editor, Arch Ward, originated the idea and made it a success.

It is traditional that all income from Golden Gloves meets, in excess of the cost of the tournaments, goes to charity. Thus the purpose of the contests is two fold—to further the interests of amateur sports and to contribute to local civic needs.

Following tonight's matches, the eight man team will have two weeks in which to train for the bouts in Chicago. Following the matches in the Winery City, The Daily Iowan will announce the amount of profit from its second annual Golden Gloves tournament, and will present that amount to Iowa City charity.

Varsity, Frosh Golfers Meet

Solem Speaks To 35 Aspirants; Three Lettermen in Fold

Ossie Solem, Iowa's director of athletics, was the principal speaker last night, as 35 candidates for the freshman and varsity golf squads met for the first time this year at Iowa Union.

Coch Solem pointed out the fine golfing facilities that Iowa men have and urged that each of them realize that training in golf is just as essential as in any other sport. "The nineteenth hole has nothing to do with the intercollegiate sport, golf," Solem said, "and we don't want Iowa men in any sport breaking training rules."

Coch Charles Kennett, after giving a short talk, introduced the track coach, George Bressnahan, and he strongly supported Solem's talk and also urged self-discipline among the players this year. Dr. A. S. Fourn, Iowa athletic team physician, Ted Swenson, assistant track coach, and Flave Hamburg, university treasurer, were also introduced. John Stromsten, Iowa City, this year's captain, explained the season's schedule and spoke briefly on sportsmanship. Herbert Dill, Iowa City, a former member of the golf team, also talked for a few minutes. Patrick McRoberts, Columbus Junction, freshman captain, was introduced, and he urged the freshmen to work hard and make a good attempt to win the all-university tournament.

Entertainment was offered by several members of the school of fine arts and later refreshments were served. Letter men back from last year's squad are: Edwin Shellely, Milford; James Gardner, Vinton; and Captain John Stromsten, Iowa City.

Hawks Drill for Michigan Tilt

Williams Drills Revised Lineup For Final Lap

University of Iowa's cagers, with title aspirations diminished to a mere mathematical possibility, drilled listlessly yesterday as the final lap of the 1934-35 campaign loomed before them. To restore morale and spur them on in the four remaining games in an effort to attain a first division berth were the aims of Coach Rollie Williams yesterday.

Hopes Not Dead
A first division berth is not a distant thought. With Chicago, Michigan and Northwestern, the league's weaker sisters, coming up in that order, the Hawk cagers entertain high hopes for a second or third place, hopes which will be even more quickly realized if the leaders slash each other about in their remaining contests.

Sid Rosenthal's absence because of a cold effected a radical change in the lineup which opposed the frosh in yesterday's drill. Al Bobby was shifted to a forward post where he teamed with Barko, and Louis Shine, a Spencer sophomore who has improved rapidly in recent weeks, was moved up to a first string guard post. Blackmer and Grim rounded out the quintet.

Should Defeat Michigan
Defensive measures to combat the speedy attack Michigan will employ at the field house Saturday night occupied a considerable portion of the practice period. The Wolverines employ long shots for the most part, and if they are "on," can make trouble for any team.

On the basis of this season's record, however, the Wolverines are not expected to overthrow the Old Gold quintet which will be anxious to vindicate itself in the eyes of some 3,000 fans Saturday night. Michigan has averaged only 23 1-2 points per game as compared to 29 for their opponents.

City Hi Preps For Marengo
Seek Victory To Bolster Season's Triumph Standing
With the knowledge that this is to be the last season Coach George Wells will handle their destinies, City high's basketball squad yesterday redoubled their efforts in preparing for the Marengo game tomorrow.

The men are now doubly determined to wind up the season with more wins than losses on the record column. Thus far they have won six games and dropped eight. All but one of their wins was against non-conference opponents. Vinton is the only team outside the Hoop Loop fold to take their measure.

They have an excellent chance during their next three games to get out of the red. Marengo doesn't figure to beat them, though it should be a close game. Next week they play at Dubuque in a conference engagement. This will be a close one, but the Little Hawks should win.

Mason City comes to Iowa City March 1. Little is known of their potentialities but in the past they have always furnished better than average court fines. However, the Hawklets are notoriously an end-of-the-season team.

Yesterday's session was taken up with a regular scrimmage, no new plays being introduced. Inability to make their shots stick in the hoop continues to be their chief difficulty, but they hope to snap out of it by tomorrow night.

Horton Smith Wins
PALM SPRINGS, Cal., (AP)—Horton Smith, of Chicago, won the $2,000 invitational golf tournament here today with a 260, bringing to a close California's winter golf season.

Sharon, Cosgrove and Shueyville shooting forward, and Burns, elongated center, went on a rampage to pull their team out of the fire. Mann was the mainstay in the losers' attack, garnering a trio of buckets and a brace of gift shots, besides playing a clever floor game.

In the nightcap, a somewhat shaky Sharon quintet managed to stave off a rally instituted by the Lone Tree quint late in the final quarter to successfully annex a 31 to 26 victory.

With the score standing 29-15 the Lone Tree five put on a rally that ran the count to 29 to 24 before Campbell pulled the game out of the fire with a long shot. Snider and Madden looked good for the defending champs, while Yakich and Idle gave a good account of themselves.

In the initial encounter of the tourney between Shueyville and Tiffin, the latter held an 18 to 14 lead at the end of the third period. However, Bowman, spearhead in the losers' attack, knotted the count at 20 all with three minutes to play. Bowman then counted again but the score was tied by Kopecky just as the final gun sounded. Neither quintet scored in the first overtime but in the final three minutes Kopecky saved the game for his five with a neat doubledecker. Herdliksa dropped in a charity toss for Tiffin, in the same period.

Cosgrove Triumphs
Paced by O'Brien and Burns, the touted Cosgrove cagers romped to a 24 to 14 win over a battling Oxford five in the second tilt of the tourney.

The winners held a 12 to 7 lead at haltime and were ahead by 14 to 11 at the end of the third period. In the final canto, O'Brien, sharp

Mermen Prep For Chicago Dual Contest

Time trials to select reserve mermen for the Chicago meet Saturday night were conducted by Coach David Armbruster yesterday. Bradshaw, Nolan, Healy and Turner vied in the sprints with the former's time proving the best.

A squad of 12 men will leave Saturday morning if weather conditions are favorable. Otherwise, the trip will be made Friday afternoon.

Just how strong Chicago will be Saturday night and where the strength lies is unknown. The Maroons are undefeated, however, thus far this season.

A water polo contest will probably follow the swimming meet. Acknowledged conference champions last year, the Maroons should be able to bowl over the Hawkeyes who have not played the game since last fall.

Workouts this week have been hampered by the construction of a new field house roof. Debris, falling into the water at the shallow end, has caused an uncomfortable smarting of the eyes. The pool will probably be drained and refilled Saturday, Coach Armbruster said.

Since the work is being done above the shallow end, the Michigan dual, one week from Saturday night, will probably be run over the short course.

Cindermen End Practices For Notre Dame

The Hawkeye indoor track team has practically concluded its preparation for the meet with Notre Dame Saturday at South Bend.

Final touches were added to all the events last night, with the workout slated for tonight to be no more than a limbering up before leaving tomorrow for the second meet of the season.

The Ramblers are almost certain to give the inexperienced Old Gold thineclads plenty of stiff opposition. The Hawkeye aggregation is principally composed of sophomores who tasted their first intercollegiate competition against Grinnell last week.

The dash, hurdles, and 440 yard run, events in which the Iowans have established a reputation in the last 14 years, are again strong this year. Despite the fact that the majority of candidates for the team are untitled men, their prospects for turning in reputable performances is favorable.

Six men on the squad have marks bettering 10 seconds for the 100 (Turn to Page 7)

Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, refused to reveal the salary offered Gehrig this year and except to express his doubt that the big fellow has any idea of insisting on $35,000 would not discuss the situation.

Gehrig Back For Battle

With Yanks Over '35 Wage; Wants Salary Raise

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—Lou Gehrig, who cracked out 49 home runs to lead the two big leagues last season, came home from abroad today ready for a two-fisted battle with the Yankees. If necessary, over the size of his 1935 salary check.

Bronzed from a barnstorming tour through the Orient, Gehrig hustled home to look at his new contract, the first since 1933 when he signed a two-year agreement for around $23,000 a season after much holding out and haggling.

"Of course I'm not a holdout," he said with a knowing grin. "I couldn't be—yet—for I don't know what the club is offering. But I'm going to want a lot more money than I got last year. I'm worth it. I led the league in batting and both leagues in homers and there isn't a reason why I shouldn't do as well this time."

Reports that the big slugger would demand the Yanks pay $35,000 on the line caused no end of uneasiness in the club's offices and gave rise to the belief that the contract now awaiting Lou calls for considerably less than that figure, possibly between $25,000 and $30,000.

Gehrig's friends say the iron fist sacker, who hasn't missed an appearance in the Yankee lineup since 1925, intends to step right into the Yankees' premier batting role just vacated by the ailing Babe Ruth and that he feels that if Ruth goes through with his threat to retire as a player the club can well afford to pay him some of the $35,000 the Babe drew down last year.

Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, refused to reveal the salary offered Gehrig this year and except to express his doubt that the big fellow has any idea of insisting on $35,000 would not discuss the situation.

ST. MARY'S CAGERS DEFEAT DAVENPORT QUINTET

By PERCY CROSBY

Triumph Over St. Joseph's Five, 32 to 20

Joe Maher Scores 13 Points; Marians Take Early Lead

By DON ANDERSON
Getting off to a slow start, the St. Mary's Ramblers grabbed the lead near the end of the first period and piled up a 32 to 20 score, to ring up a decisive victory over the highly touted St. Joseph aggregation from Davenport at the City high gym last night.

The invaders held a height advantage over the locals that gained them little, as the Ramblers presented a fast breaking offense that proved too much for the opponents. Football tactics served to vary the entertainment during spurts of the game with the locals usually in possession of the ball.

Maher a Standout

Joe Maher's deadly eye for the hoop made him the standout of the game. He swished the net six times from afield and made good one charity toss to capture high scoring honors for the evening with 13 points. Consamus, too, hit consistently, donating eight points to the Rambler cause. The teamwork of the locals was commendable all the way.

Lavell opened the scoring when he took the ball from the tip and hit the hoop in less than five seconds. The tilt was a give-and-take affair with no more scoring until almost the end of the quarter when Adrian, Maher and Consamus tallied to give the Ramblers seven points and Lavell and Moran added three points to make the score 7 to 5 at the end of the first stanza.

Lead at Half

In the second quarter Adrian and Consamus netted five more points before the invaders connected for three field goals by Lavell and Voss. Consamus hit the hoop for the locals to offset an invader rally and the gun ended the half with St. Mary's leading 14 to 11.

St. Joseph's introduced the scoring in the third period with a field goal by Voss and two gift shots by Moran. Then Maher opened his basket eye wide and scored three goals for St. Mary's, varied only with a bucket by Consamus. The quarter ended with some seven men laying on the floor after a driving line plunge, St. Mary's holding a 22 to 16 lead.

Lavell a Threat

Maher tallied on a sleeper play as the last period began only to see the same thing reversed later when Enright scored. Moran made good two charity shots before Maher, Stork, Adrian and Belger pushed the Rambler total up seven more points and O'Brien added the finishing color to the contest with a charity toss to put the game on ice, 32 to 20 in favor of the locals.

Lavell proved the St. Joseph's threat, scoring nine points for the invaders. His aggressiveness throughout the game served to keep the Ramblers on the alert.

In a curtain raiser between two St. Mary's grade school teams, the Whites outpointed the Blues, turning in a 22 to 7 win. Pewee Colbert furnished most of the excitement, ever crashing into the open to grab possession of the ball for baskets. He scored six field goals.

Republicans Seek Hurler

Then May Hold Off Demo Baseballers in Annual Tilt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Defeated in politics lately by the democrats but still baseball champions of congress, the republicans face a setback in this session unless a "nine-man" pitcher can be salvaged from the G.O.P. ranks.

"We lucked 'em in 1932 and 1933 and they were scared to play us last session," boasted Representative Charles Millard of New York, manager of the grand old party's diamonders, today.

May Be Different

"But this year, it may be different," he added, "when we lost Vince Carter of Wyoming, our pitcher, our club was just about wrecked. Vince was in good condition and had enough on the ball to last the whole game."

For many years the baseball game between the democrats and republicans has furnished a refreshing interlude from politics. The republicans came from behind in the eighth inning to win the last game 18 to 16.

yards, Nelson and Owen having 39.8 records as freshmen. Dooley, Garrison and Briggs belong in the list of fast sophomores in the dash and 40 yard run.

Francis Cretzmeyer, the leading scorer for the Hawkeyes, will be called upon to do the hurdling along with Moulton and Latham. Cretzmeyer will also be the Iowans' chief representative in the high and broad jumps.

Long distance runs and the other field events are apt to be frail in spots against the Irish, although some of the sophomores may turn in some good times in the runs.

Hawk Wrestlers Face Hard Tilt In Gopher Meet There Saturday

Verne Derrer Lost To Squad; Dedicate Mausoleums Trip Upper A In Quad Game

Potentiality of the Hawks' wrestling team will be thoroughly tested Saturday by the Gophers when the Iowans' open their conference schedule at Minneapolis. They will help dedicate the University of Minnesota's new athletic building.

The loss of Verne Derrer for the meet will be a blow to the Hawk-eyes' possibilities. Derrer, 165 pound regular, is ineligible because of a condition which he will not be able to make up before the trip to Carlton and Minnesota this week end. However, it is hoped he will be back in the lineup for the Ames meet Feb. 27.

Chism Replacement

Replacing him will probably be Earl Chism. Chism is a 155 pounder who threw his opponent in the meet against Iowa State Teachers college in the season's opener. Dewayne Guernsey, a new-comer to the varsity, will command the 155 pound duties.

Carlton should offer little resistance to the Hawks when they stop at Northfield tomorrow night on the way to Minneapolis. But from all indications, the two Big Ten rivals will be evenly matched when they meet Saturday.

Gophers Strong

The Gophers displayed their strength last week by decisively beating Iowa State Teachers. The Minnesotans had victories in every class but the 145 pound and the 175 pound. Johnson, heavyweight, and Brown, 135 pounder, scored falls against the Tutors.

On the other hand, the Hawkeyes won five matches from the Teachers, registering falls in the heavyweight, 165 and 155 pound classes.

The Old Gold octette can rely on the heavier weights to offset the seemingly weaker lightweightweights. Earle Kiehlhorn, National A. A. U. champion last year in the 155 pound class, is quite capable of handling the 175 pound berth. The loss of Derrer in the 165 pound class will be keenly felt, but Frank O'Leary, heavyweight, and Bob Larson, 145 pounder, will be tough customers to handle in their classes.

Uncertain Weights

The lighter positions are the most uncertain. State Teachers were winners over all three light weight divisions against Iowa, while Minnesota's 118, 126 and 135 pounders beat the Tutors.

Workouts last night were light, and those this afternoon will be no more than limbering-up exercises.

City High Ranks Last In Senior League; Sophs Hold Second

Although idle last week, Davenport's cagers, both varsity and sophomores, remained at the top of the Mississippi Valley ladder, the varsity having yet to lose a game.

Iowa City, trailing since the start of the season, came through with its first victory, over Clinton 27 to 19, but Saturday were sent back to the cellar by Washington of Cedar Rapids, 32 to 29.

West Waterloo remained in the running with a 27 to 19 decision over Dubuque, but the West sophs were less fortunate, dropping their seventh straight game, 35 to 30.

Washington's sophs showed Iowa City back into a tie for second with a 34 to 25 win, running up a 15 to 2 halftime lead, and then staying off the little Hawk's late rally.

Ries Succeeds Hart as County Bar President

Attorney Herbert J. Ries was elected president of the Johnson County Bar association last night to succeed Attorney William R. Hart.

Other officers selected were: Attorneys F. B. Olsen, vice president; Arthur Lefz, secretary; and H. W. Vestermark, treasurer. Following the election, the new officers were installed by District Judges Harold W. Evans and James P. Garfney.

During the meeting, reports were read by former President Hart, Attorney Stewart Wilson, retiring secretary; and Attorney Vestermark, who was also treasurer for 1934.

The evening's entertainment consisted of a dance by Kitty Grim and an exhibition of magic by Le Roy the Mystic.

Mrs. Tauber Dies Tuesday

P. A. Korab will be in charge of the funeral service for Mrs. Rose Tauber in the Hohenschuh mortuary at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Tauber, 92, died at her home, 812 E. Fairchild street, early Tuesday morning.

She is survived by a son, Frank, at home, and three daughters, Mrs. Michael Jirava, Mrs. George Horning, and Mrs. Anne Zera, all of Iowa City, as well as six grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

C. of C. Completes Nomination of 12 For Board of Directors

Members of the Chamber of Commerce completed the nomination of 12 men for the election of six new members of the board of directors. It was announced yesterday.

The 12 highest in the primary nomination balloting, which closed Tuesday evening are as follows: Fred Boerner, Harry S. Bunker, W. L. Davis, Joe Gartner, W. R. Horabin, Earl Kurtz, J. J. McNamara, Thomas E. Martin, V. W. Nall, John Nash, Fred Racine, and C. C. Warden.

The six high men will serve as directors for two-year terms. Ballots will be sent out this week for the election which closes next Tuesday evening.

Michael Goss, 80, Dies Here Tuesday

Funeral service for Michael Goss will be at 9 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's church. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mr. Goss died Tuesday morning at his home, 828 N. Dodge street, after a short illness. He was 80 years old. Five children survive him: Carl Goss and Mrs. Lulu Miller, both at home; William Goss, Coralville; Mrs. C. E. Rivers, Dubuque; and Mrs. Harry Bagner, Worthington, Minn. A brother, Ferdinand Goss, lives in Iowa City.

Democrats Will Hold Caucuses To Select Convention Delegates

Republican caucuses to select delegates to the city convention will be tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, Mrs. Regina C. Hogan, secretary of the city central committee, announced yesterday.

The caucuses will be held instead of substituting the plan of appointment of delegates by ward committees, as had been planned formerly.

One committeeman and one committeewoman from each ward will also be chosen at the caucuses. The

Hauptmann

"Is Hauptmann guilty or not guilty?"

This was the question put before Iowa Citizens who entered Whetstone's Drug store No. 1, during the last four days. Each person interested was asked to cast his vote in a small ballot box.

Hauptmann was acquitted by a vote of 118 to 86, according to the count made yesterday at the close of the balloting. Mr. Whetstone expressed the belief that no ballot-box stuffing occurred in the trial vote.

Smaller Jury

An 11 man jury served on a damage action in district court here yesterday for the first time in years. In the suit of Nellie Jackman against Anthony H. Jiras for damages in an auto accident, Mrs. Mollie Linkman of Oxford, a juror, was ill. By consent of counsel, the trial proceeded before Judge James P. Garfney.

Iowa City Boys to Launch Sea Scouting Program on Feb. 21

Iowa City Boy Scouts will launch their Sea Scout program, with Dr. I. W. Leighton as skipper of the local ship, at a demonstration of maritime scouting at the American Legion building Feb. 21.

Skipper Leighton expects to effect actual organization of the local seamen within the coming month. Sea Scout activities in Iowa City will be sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Plan Dinner

The Cedar Rapids Sea Scout training ship, under the supervision of Harold Weis, their skipper, will demonstrate phases of seamanship next Thursday evening. Crew and ship instruction will be discussed. The Cedar Rapids ship is the "Kiwanian."

The Sea Scout demonstration will open with a 6:30 dinner. After a short program, the visiting seamen will rig a "dry land" ship with flags, wheel, bell, and other maritime equipment.

Marengo is the only city in the Iowa City Area council to have a Sea Scout patrol at the present time. But Skipper Leighton expects to have a ship of 10 or 12 older Scouts organized soon. All Scouts and Scouters of the area have been delegates and committeemen chosen will be formally elected at the city primary Feb. 25.

Republican caucuses are scheduled in all five wards tonight. The democratic schedule tomorrow night follows:

First ward, court house, 11 delegates.

Second ward, city hall, eight delegates.

Third ward, city hall, nine delegates.

Fourth ward, American Legion building, 11 delegates.

Fifth ward, Iowa City Bottling works, 11 delegates.

invited to attend next Thursday evening's demonstration.

The primary unit of a Sea Scout organization is the ship which corresponds to the troop for land Scouting. This group is composed of from nine to 36 boys of 15 years of age or older. All boys must have attained first class rank before applying for membership in the Sea Scout ship.

The ship organization is effected with a skipper, corresponding to the Scoutmaster of land troops, and two mates as assistants. The skipper is backed up by the ship committee of three to five representative citizens.

The boy entering the Sea Scout ship must first attain the rank of cabin boy. To earn this rating the Scout must take the sea promise, demonstrate the proper method of using the lifebelt and life buoy, and write a 200 word paper on the sea history of the United States.

Higher Ranks

The boy then achieves the following ranks as he shows his ability as a seaman: apprentice, ordinary, able Sea Scout, and quartermaster. The Scouts learn the ways of the sea, learn the privileges of rank, and then build their own ship which is launched on a nearby body of water and used for practical training cruises.

Survivors Of Macon Crash Tell Stories

U. S. Begins Probe Of Tragedy; Two Men Still Missing

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13 (AP)—How the mighty Macon, the American navy's queen of the air, reared and plunged crazily for 35 minutes before falling and sinking to the bottom of the Pacific was revealed today in the stories of its survivors.

The underlying cause of the mid-air collapse remained undetermined. Commander H. V. Wiley and others who came through safely, revealed there had been a sudden lurch at the outset, after which the great sky cruiser soared upward, out of control, then settled haphazardly to a grave in the deep.

Outwardly lighthearted, the 81 surviving officers and men who stuck with the ship until she hit the water and then got away in rubber lifeboats, sang as they came ashore here.

Search was continued for the two missing members of the crew at the spot where the big ship went down late yesterday 13 miles off Pt. Sur, Cal., 110 miles south of here.

The loss of the $2,450,000 Macon left the American navy without a fighting dirigible. Germany's Graf Zeppelin, slightly smaller than the Macon, thus became sovereign of the skies.

President Roosevelt praised the work of naval surface craft for the swift rescue of the dirigible's crew but said funds would not be asked for her replacement at present.

Hints that the Macon's end, similar to that of the dirigibles Akron and Shenandoah, might mean the discontinuance, or at least a curtailment, of naval development along this line were seen in Washington developments.

Supreme Court Steals Capital Show Again With Stubborn Quiet

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (AP)—The supreme court solemnly stole the show on Capitol Hill today by merely withholding its gold decision and furnishing Washington with another exhausting anti-climax.

It met, admitted a dozen attorneys to its bar, heard arguments and adjourned until tomorrow without a mention of gold or even an intimation that it was aware of the unusual tension which surrounded it.

A more positive action on the monetary front, however, came when the administration's bill to tighten Washington control over the banking system was referred to a sub-committee headed by Senator Glass (D-Va.), to whom conservative opponents of the measure are looking for leadership.

The slain Lindbergh baby

Jury Finds Bronx Carpenter Guilty; Out Only 11 Hours

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today was convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby and will get the electric chair as the penalty.

The jury of eight men and four women deliberated 11 hours and 6 minutes before it returned its verdict of death.

The jury was polled separately and all answered "guilty of murder in first degree."

The jury rose and Hauptmann rose to face them. "Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached your verdict," the clerk asked. "We have," they chorused tremulously.

"Who shall speak for you?" "The foreman."

"What is your verdict?" Hauptmann stood up as the jurors rendered their verdict. "Guilty," they answered. "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

Hauptmann stood while the verdict was delivered and the jury polled at Reilly's request.

The jurors answered the poll in quivering voices, most with an obvious great effort.

"The defendant may stand," Justice Trenchard said. Hauptmann, straight as a soldier, stood between his guards.

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann," he pronounced, "you have been convicted of murder in the first degree and according to law you must suffer the penalty of death at the time fixed by the court."

Hauptmann was still standing between his two guards as Justice Trenchard said, "all those who wish to leave the courtroom may do so at once."

Anna Hauptmann, who has stood by her husband through the months of his incarceration, took the verdict and its automatic sentence with barely a quiver.

As each of the jurors responded to the poll with the dull fearful words, "guilty of murder in the first degree," Mrs. Hauptmann steered herself.

Those sitting next her tried to comfort her with reassuring whispers and pressure on her arm.

She seemed to hear and see nothing.

Hauptmann, unshaven since morning, tottered slightly as he heard himself sentenced to "die in the electric chair."

He had been grim of visage as were his lawyers, since the moment he entered the court.

"You are now remanded to the custody of the sheriff and a warrant for your removal for the carrying out of the sentence will be signed," Justice Trenchard concluded.

Hauptmann stood a moment as though he wanted to speak. Then he was walked slowly out of the room to his cell.

Attorney General David Wilentz addressed the court, mentioned the great crowds outside, and suggested the state police provide escorts for the jurors to their homes.

Justice Trenchard approved the suggestion.

Mrs. Hauptmann sat biting her lips, her eyes accusingly fixed on the jurors as they filed out. Her expressions were one of incredulity.

As the jurors filed out they looked weary.

They were led by constables and state troopers across the street to the Union hotel where they will spend the night.

Mrs. Hauptmann began to cry. She reached for her bag and dabbed her eyes with a handkerchief.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Justice weighed its mandate to Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the world waited tonight.

Eight men, four women of Hunterdon county worked toward a verdict, locked in a bare, bleak room in the back of a century-old courthouse, trying to decide if Baby Lindbergh died at Hauptmann's hands, if Hauptmann must die, spend his life in prison or be freed of the crime that shocked millions.

At 5 p.m., today, five hours and 37 minutes after they had entered the room, the first word came from the jurors—a request for a magnifying glass. It was taken into the guarded chamber.

Presumably they sought to inspect the ransom notes that eight experts laid to Hauptmann; the marking on the ladder that a government wood expert said was made by Hauptmann's plane; the "Jafsie" phone number and address gerawol on Hauptmann's closet panel or some other of the scores of exhibits they had with them.

Hauptmann, seemingly nerveless under the hours of tension, lay listlessly on his bunk on the floor below the jury room throughout the afternoon.

One of his attorneys said the prisoner apparently had not dared guess what the verdict will be. But, he added, Hauptmann seemed unafraid.

The slain baby's father, boyish yet grave, watched the jury file out at 11:23 a.m., then went from the court room to be with his wife, the soft-eyed Anne Morrow Lindbergh, at Englewood.

His friend and adviser, Col. Henry Breckinridge, accompanied him. Prosecutors said Colonel Lindbergh would be informed of the verdict by telephone.

The jury heard the grave, clearcut instructions of white-haired Thomas W. Trenchard, justice of the supreme court of New Jersey, and took their memories of two million words of testimony and argument into the room where they must stay—either to reach one of the three verdicts or to emerge in a hopeless deadlock.

There they will eat—and sleep, if they can.

Should the jurors say "guilty of first degree murder"—that alone—it means the electric chair for the alien carpenter; unless his appeal wins in a higher court. Should they return such a verdict with a recommendation of mercy, the answer is life imprisonment.

If they say, "not guilty," Hauptmann is not through with the law. First he must answer a charge of extortion in New York's Bronx, based on the lying letters that won $50,000 of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's money—ransom for a baby already dead.

But he will be free of the murder charge—the charge that he stole Baby Lindbergh from his crib in the big white house in the Sourland, that he killed Baby Lindbergh as he climbed down a clumsy ladder from the nursery window.

When the old bell atop the courthouse tolls the tocsin that means a verdict is ready, only the interested parties—Hauptmann, his wife, Colonel Lindbergh, attorneys, officers and the press will be admitted to the tiny courtroom.

That was Justice Trenchard's order, and the spectators, on request of Attorney General David T. Wilentz, were ushered from the room after the jury had retired.

The eight men and four women listened with unflinching attention as the fatherly justice read the charge in distinct, unhurried tones.

Hauptmann, who had come into the room with a twisted, half smile, heard the words with painful attention, his face set and pale. Occasionally his eyes moved swiftly down the rows of jurors, scanning their faces.

A few feet away, his wife's face was ashen, her eyes blank. But they welled up with tears when the court said: "If there is reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty, he is to be declared not guilty," and again, when Justice Trenchard intoned a repetition of the ransom man's words to "Jafsie": "Would I burn if the baby is dead?"

Colonel Lindbergh, his arms folded, kept his blue eyes on the judge. His face was stern, intent.

U.S.S. Macon Number 19---

(By the Associated Press)

There have been 18 major dirigible disasters in the last 23 years—two of the most recent involving the United States dirigibles Akron and Shenandoah.

The disaster list:

April 4, 1933—U. S. navy dirigible Akron crashed in electrical storm off New Jersey coast, 73 dead, 39 survivors.

Oct. 4, 1930—British dirigible R-101 exploded over France while en route from England to India, 46 dead.

May 25, 1928—Italian dirigible Italia crashed in Arctic in flight to north pole; 8 dead.

Sept. 3, 1925—U. S. dirigible Shenandoah, formerly ZR-1, wrecked in storm in Ohio; 14 killed.

Dec. 21, 1923—French dirigible Dixmude, presumably struck by lightning over Mediterranean; 52 killed.

Feb. 21, 1922—U. S. dirigible Roma, bought by United States from Italy, crashed in flames near Hampton Roads army base; 34 killed.

Aug. 24, 1921—Dirigible ZR-2, bought in England for United States, frame buckled over Humber river, 42 killed.

Jan. 29, 1921—British dirigible R-34, wrecked in gale in Howden, Eng., no lives lost.

July 21, 1919—Dirigible burned over Chicago, 10 killed.

July 15, 1919—British airship N-8-11 struck by lightning over North sea, 12 killed.

June 20, 1914—Airship and air plane collided at Vienna, 9 killed.

Sept. 9, 1913—Zeppelin L-1 destroyed off Heligoland, 15 killed.

Oct. 17, 1913—Zeppelin L-2 exploded over Johannisthal airdrome, 28 killed.

July 2, 1912—Balloon Akron exploded at Atlantic City, 5 killed.

(Besides the Zeppelins L-1 and L-2, Count Zeppelin lost four other great peace-time dirigibles in accidents, the Zeppelins 3 and 6 and the Deutschlands 1 and 2.)

Three Guards to Watch Bruno In Death House; 8 Hour Shifts

Precautions Taken To Prevent Escape Or Suicide

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Five men—three scheduled to die within the next few days—are in the death house where Bruno Richard Hauptmann will be locked up on his arrival at Trenton State prison.

A cell has already been set aside in the gloomy, double-barred portion of the jail where the German carpenter will be taken from Flemington where he was found guilty of first degree murder today by a jury which did not recommend clemency.

Three special guards have been assigned to keep a 24-hour watch over Hauptmann in 8-hour shifts, when he is brought here after Justice Thomas W. Trenchard pronounced the mandatory sentence of death in the electric chair for the slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Elaborate precautions against a possible suicide or jail break attempt by Hauptmann were completed long before the end of the Flemington trial by Col. George R. Selby, acting principal keeper of the prison.

Like Hauptmann, the five now awaiting their fate in the death house were convicted of murder during the commission of a felony.

Michael Mule, George De Stefano and Connie Scarpone will die, Colonel Stone said, "within a few days" for the fatal shooting of John Szczykowski during an attempt to rob his home.

One death house inmate, Kurt Barth, 22, is German-born like Hauptmann and speaks a little of the language. Barth, a stolid, heavy-set youth, was unmoved when a jury last summer convicted him of the slaying of Julius Fredman during a holdup in a Bloomfield haberdashery.

Barth will not be executed, Colonel Selby said, until Mule, De Stefano and Scarpone have gone to the chair. Then it will be a question whether he will die before William Jackson, Negro, who allegedly killed John Magin, Newark night watchman, during an attempt to rob a safe.

Hauptmann, if his attorneys appeal his conviction, will await in the death house while the court of errors and appeals, highest in the state, reveals the validity of the trial. By then he will probably hear the death house doors cling five times as his fellow prisoners start the march down "the last mile" to the death room itself.

See Showdown On Relief Bill

Look for Close Vote On McCarran Bill For Work Relief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. (AP)—Followers of President Roosevelt and friends of organized labor in the senate appropriations committee today squared off for a showdown tomorrow on the McCarran prevailing wage amendment in the $4,880,000 relief bill.

Indications were—after William Green, president, and the 17 members of the American Federation of Labor's executive council, insisted today upon retention of the amendment—that the vote would be extremely close. Administration leaders, however, hoped for a slight edge in view of direct White House pressure.

Sheriff's Shouts Give First Indication That Jury Had Ended Work

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—The appearance of Sheriff John H. Curtiss, his voice suddenly shouting out from the opening library door of the Hunterdon county courtroom was the first hint tonight that the jury had reached a verdict in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Newspaper men and women, lawyers, spectators sat in the room talking, laughing, reading newspapers, eating sandwiches, drinking coffee. The floor was littered with piles of newspaper and torn pieces of paper. The air was full of smoke. The place was hot, stuffy, growing unbearable.

Only Appeal Can Save Bruno's Life

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann must die in the electric chair unless an appeal to higher courts is successful.

The jury's verdict of guilty with no recommendation for mercy means that Justice Thomas W. Trenchard must pronounce the death sentence on Hauptmann. Had the jury recommended mercy a sentence of life imprisonment would have been mandatory.

When the justice does pronounce the death penalty he must, under the law, set the time of death not sooner than four weeks, nor later than eight weeks from that time. He sets the week, not the day, when the sentence is to be carried out.

No matter what steps are taken by the defense in seeking a stay of sentence or filing an appeal, Hauptmann will be taken to the state prison at Trenton within a week or 10 days. There he will remain while his defense endeavors to save him.

If his defense fails, he will be put to death in the electric chair at the prison.

per of Ottumwa, president.

Compulsory Military Training

JUST to keep the record clear and up to date, The Daily Iowan takes this opportunity to express its complete agreement with Lieut. Col. George F. N. Dailey in the opinion that—as he expressed it at a church club meeting Sunday night:

"The state has a right to compel university men in state schools to undergo military training, just as it may require instruction in English."

We also admit that students whose religious views will not permit such training can choose other schools to attend. But that is as far as we can go, except to commend Lieutenant Colonel Dailey's obvious sincerity and fairness.

For the sake of clarity, The Daily Iowan's position in regard to military training may be stated in a few paragraphs:

1. The university is not the place for compulsory military training, although voluntary instruction in military science may be justifiable.

2. The state does have the right to compel military training, but if such compulsion is necessary for the training of an adequate reserve, let it be universal and thorough as in European countries.

3. The state has the right to compel students who, through necessity or choice, attend the university rather than some other school, to study anything it pleases. But that right hardly justifies the state in taking advantage of students who attend the university for one reason or another by forcing them to submit to military training.

4. There can be no sympathy with the argument that the university would lose a sizeable income from the federal government if compulsory military training were dropped.

In short, The Daily Iowan can see no justification whatever for the continuance of military training as a compulsory course.

"The Glory" Of Italy Advances

THE POSSIBILITIES of long and bitter warfare along the borders of Italian Somaliland if Mussolini carries out his harsh intention of imposing the limit of humiliation upon Ethiopia sicken the world with foreboding and disgust. The so-called "punitive" expedition which got underway yesterday with determined vigor following Ethiopia's refusal to accede to extravagant demands seems in view of the incident's history to be entirely unjustifiable.

If Italy has a just complaint against her colonial neighbor, there are peaceful ways of settling such disputes. And Mussolini, who with his characteristic braggadocio refused pointblank to submit the matter to amicable settlement, must be held to account for the resulting violence.

Cost of Production Please Explain

REPORTS FROM Washington tell us that another bill designed primarily to garner votes for its sponsors and ostensibly to guarantee "cost of production" to the farmer has been introduced. Which raises again certain pertinent questions.

How do the sponsors of such measures determine the "cost of production" of farm crops? Is it the same for good farmers and good farms as for bad farmers and bad farms, for industrious farmers and lazy farmers, lucky farmers and unlucky farmers? Perhaps those who champion these bills are uncommon geniuses, but persons endowed with merely ordinary intelligence must admit being completely baffled in the face of such problems.

Another thing: Why all the hullabaloo about "cost of production" for the farmer when the AAA, according to latest advices from the capital, already has done so well by the farmer as to lift the price level of farm products above parity? In the face of this performance, one cannot miss a rather strong scent of demagoguery in the resurrection of these magic-measures.

Good Morning

Not long ago Walter Lippmann—who without doubt is the best contemporary journalistic commentator on political and economic subjects—engaged in some queer mental gymnastics which seemed to me a strange departure from his usual high standard of objective reasoning.

The burden of his argument lay in the contention that the use of democratic methods for the overthrow of a democracy cannot be tolerated. Or, to put it more precisely, it is the duty of a democracy to preserve itself, even though to do so it must resort to undemocratic methods.

He was referring, no doubt, to the threat of fascist dictatorship contained in the gradual assumption of power by Huey Long, Father Coughlin, et al. These two men and their organization fit the case snugly.

Both of them are using methods entirely within the bounds of democratic procedure, protected by the constitutional guarantees of free speech, free assembly and free press. Lacking the psychological cure of prosperity, the gathering avalanche of their power can be stopped only through a suspension of these fundamental rights.

Granting the danger, it seems to me impossible that anyone who professes to believe in the democratic method of government—"The Method of Freedom," to use Lippmann's phrase—would under any circumstance advocate such suspension.

Not that everything in one's power should not be done to preserve democracy; that is not the point. The fact is that to suspend the rights of free speech, free assembly and free press is to attempt to save the patient by cutting out his heart.

For without these rights there can be no democracy, whatever else remains of forms and skeletons. They are the substance of democracy, without which any government becomes, ipso facto, a dictatorship.

And a government cannot play with these rights, denying them here and granting them there. There can be no halfway course. Either they must be absolute or they must be denied completely.

Once a democratic government undertakes to limit them, it will find itself forced by the vicious circle of circumstance it has set in motion to limit them more and more until they no longer exist. And with their disappearance, democracy will vanish rather than be preserved.

These truths apply with equal force to the suspension of the rights of free speech, free press and free assembly for whatever purpose—whether to stifle fascism, communism, nudism or republicanism. These are not relative rights; politically they are absolute, and are limited only by the laws of libel and the dictates of decency.

To be specific, the petition being circulated in Iowa City by the American Legion, the Elks and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, asking congress to deny all three of these rights to persons or organizations which advocate the overthrow of government by force or violence, asks in effect that the democratic method of government be abandoned.

Its sponsors are not vicious enemies of the government; they look upon themselves rather as patriotic defenders of democracy. But no amount of good intentions or fervent hymns of patriotism can alter the fact that the effect of their proposal would be vicious to the extent of killing the very institution of democracy they profess to worship.

It would be well, perhaps, to point out here certain simple fundamental facts about the constitution of the United States, facts which these patriots and others in their great zeal apparently have overlooked.

First of all, none of the rights guaranteed in the first amendment sanctions force or violence; but they do emphatically and rightly guarantee any citizen the right to advocate force. By the denial of that right any government may become a tyranny.

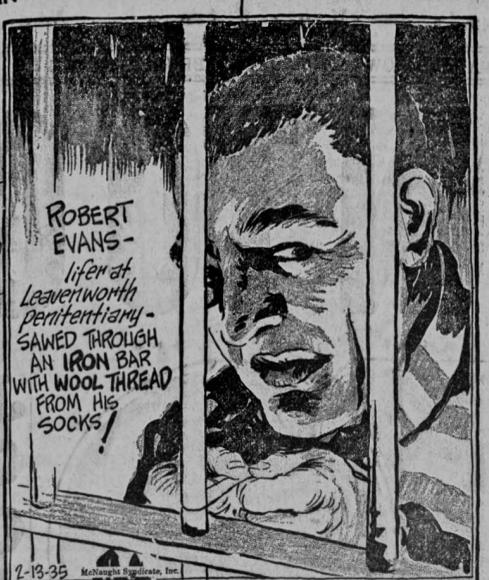

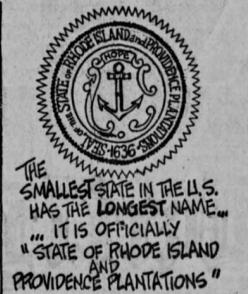

But this does not mean that the American government is impotent against insurrection. The constitution has amply provided for that, by giving congress the power "To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions."

By inference, the constitution here clearly recognizes the right to advocate force, for if no one advocated insurrection there could be no insurrection to suppress.

Thus, if one is willing to cast aside his emotions and to reason as clearly as he can, the conclusion cannot be escaped that democracy can be preserved only by democracy itself. Any other notion, however expedient it may seem, is a snare and a delusion.

The Washington Parade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—

There are all sorts of experts scattered throughout the new deal. But the most expert of all the experts are those who figure out the timing of the administration's moves on the congressional checkboard.

The latest example of this expertness was in the government's starting suit to prevent a new steel merger under the anti-trust laws at this particular time.

With considerable fanfare, Attorney General Cummings announced the suits were instituted to prevent monopoly—notwithstanding the merger of the companies affected would comprise a unit relatively small in comparison to gigantic U. S. Steel and big Bethlehem Steel.

The suits were so timed because the far-sighted new dealers know that in the soon-coming debate over NRA extension there is going to be considerable ruckus raised over the monopolistic features of the recovery act.

Senator Borah, among others, has been quietly preparing for some time to make the rafters ring with denunciation of the NRA as a monopoly promoter when the issue is brought to the floor. He is prepared to assert that under the new deal the department of justice has vir-

By KARL M. KAHN International News Service Staff Correspondent Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

ually abandoned the Clayton and Sherman antitrust laws.

The department's suit to prevent Republic's merger with several smaller companies is timed to offset that criticism in congress.

On the inside, the federal trade commission has been quietly shooting at the department of justice for months because of its tardiness or unwillingness to act under the anti-trust laws.

On numerous occasions, the commissioners have carried their complaints directly to the White House. They informed F.D.R. that the laws were being flagrantly violated.

For a long time Mr. Roosevelt was reluctant to act. He agreed that things should be tightened up, but first he wanted to get NRA off to a swinging start. His idea was to get things moving, then correct abuses.

Apparently, that time has now arrived. In any event, the D.J. has emerged from its moribund state and is again recognizing the existence of the Clayton and Sherman laws.

Some members of congress, harassed every waking hour with appeals from constituents for jobs, are becoming haggard and short-tempered about it. But not the beetle-browed speaker, Joe Byrnes.

"If I think I am being pestered too much," he said, mildly, "I think of how much I have bothered the folks back home."

Which may be one reason for "Uncle Joe's" 23 consecutive years representing his Tennessee constituency.

Mr. Roosevelt likes to paraphrase Will Rogers' remark "All I know is what I read in the papers," when asked about pending administration legislation.

As a matter of fact, the White House keeps a close tab on every move on Capitol Hill, in committee and on the floors. That is especially true about the big $4,880,000,000 works-relief bill. The telephone wires have been kept hot on this in the last few days, with dapper Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, representing "the master's voice" at the senate end.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Another of the list selected by the Russians for official notice in their World Cinema Festival in Moscow is King Vidor. Besides his invitation from the Arnkino Picture corporation, Vidor has in mind a visit to England to make several films over there.

His decision one way or another depends on progress with "The Wedding Night, Sam Goldwyn's new Anna Sten picture, now in the cutting stage. The Soviet picture makers want him to bring "Our Daily Bread," which recently won recognition from the League of Nations, to enter it for an international award to be made by Eisenstein, Dovzhenko and Pudovkin.

Carl Brisson will be best man for the marriage of his valet-chauffeur, "Cherry," to Ruth Roberts, coming out from England for the wedding. The bride was born in Hollywood and taken to England as a child by her parents. This is her first trip back.

Perhaps in an experimental spirit, the Chamber of Commerce of Winona, Minn., invited Mae West, known for her sultry moods on the screen, to be queen of their ice carnival. Much as they would have liked to have tested her affect on the temperature, Mae has had to decline the offer.

The location troupe on "The Call of the Wild," showed in at Mount Baker, Wash., had the novel experience of having their food brought in by dog teams. With a week of fair weather, the company made up lost time.

Another screen pair who will encourage their progeny in a Hollywood career, should they want it, are the Hill Gargans.

Their six-year-old son, Barry, was tested by Director D. Ross Lederman, as a possibility for a featured role with Jackie Cooper in Warner Brothers' "Dinky." Bill thinks it would be swell if both his boys go into the profession.

By BOB HOGAN (Daily Iowan Sports Writer)

MT. VERNON, Feb. 12.—University high cagers threw a mighty scare into the hearts of the league leading Mt. Vernon quintet here tonight, but succumbed 31 to 21 in the last quarter before a barrage of baskets aimed at the hoop by the local five.

Minus the services of Horn, Forster, and Fountain, the Kistlermen took an early lead which they clung to with a tenacity born of desperation. Never before in a conference tilt had the O'Connor men been forced to overcome a lead to annex a victory. But in tonight's win they were forced to use their entire repertoire of tricks to successfully maintain their unblemished record.

Blue Takes Lead
Wyack opened the scoring with a setup near the foul line. Thomas and Barron cashed in from the free throw line before Travis countered for the locals. Thomas, Wyack, and Thomas again, retaliated from afield but Schrader and Kohl tossed in buckets to give the visitors a 10 to 6 advantage at the quarter.

Battling desperately in the second canto, Jessup, Smith, and Thomas, connecting from the floor more than offset the two long shots garnered by Ryerson of the Vernonites. The Blue men left the court holding a 16 to 10 lead at the intermission.

Take Lead
Coming back with a rush the Mt. Vernon snipers scored from the floor four times while Wyack was dropping in a brace of charity tosses to knot the count at 18 all. Smith speared a neat one from the side but Travis retaliated from a similar angle, then scored a setup which, followed by Swift's double-decker, gave the locals the lead for the first time in the battle and a 25 to 20 margin at the end of the third canto.

Rienow opened the final frame with a gift shot to run the count 23-21. From here on the locals completely dominated the play with their clever stalling attack, interspersed with some classy shooting, to pull away from the university quintet and annex the hard fought victory.

Paced by Thomas and Johnny Wyack, diminutive forward, the Rivermen played a sterling brand of ball. The defensive play of Jim Barron and Rienow cannot go without commendation while Smith and Jessup played no little part in carrying the burden.

Ryerson, sharp shooting guard, was the spearhead in the attack of the O'Connor team, scoring 13 points to take the scoring honors for the evening. Travis and Kohl were also important cogs in the winning machine.

Paced by Schnoebelen and Hinman, who garnered 11 counters between them, a University sophomore-junior high combination successfully staved off a belated rally and emerged from their tussle on the long end of a 29 to 14 score.

DOG MEAT ROASTS
CANTON, (INS)—Five restaurants here were raided by the Chinese police as part of the campaign to close down all establishments selling dog meat. Baskets of meat and many dogs awaiting slaughter were taken as evidence.

Cunningham Favored In Baxter Mile

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—The score is overwhelmingly in favor of Glenn Cunningham, the middle west's mile running powerhouse, for the three-year period of his indoor footracing rivalry with Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke which will be renewed Saturday in the classic Baxter mile, feature of the annual New York Athletic club meet at Madison Square Garden.

The threat of a come-back by Bonthron as well as the fresh challenge of Venzke, who chased the Kansan to a new record of 4:11 a fortnight ago in the Wanamaker mile, has aroused sufficient interest to make this week's meet another sellout prospect.

Fourth Meeting
This week will make the fourth indoor meeting of the greatest trio of mile runners ever produced at one time. Bonthron did not enter the picture indoors until a year ago in the New York A. C. meet when he came from behind to beat Cunningham by inches in the Baxter mile. They met again in the National A.A.U. 1,500 meter championship and Cunningham turned the tables, but again the margin was no more than the width of a hand. Venzke was third both times but at this year's Millrose meet the slim Pennsylvania stylist rallied to outrun Bonthron for the first time and finish barely six yards behind Cunningham.

Their Records
Here's the record of their rivalry on the boards:
1932—Cunningham won three out of four races with Venzke, hanging up 4:12 for his fastest mile in the Knights of Columbus meet in New York.

1934—Cunningham defeated Venzke four times and split two races with Bonthron, setting a new world indoor record of 4:08.4 for the mile in the Knights of Columbus meet, New York. Bonthron defeated Venzke three times, including the intercollegiate 1,500 meters.

1935—Cunningham has defeated Venzke twice, Bonthron once, in mile races, in addition to beating Venzke once at 800 meters.

Rendezvous keglers strengthened their lead in the Ladies' bowling league by annexing a pair of titles from Ben Whitebook last night. The latter still holds second place. Although they lost a couple of games to H. I. Jennings, City Club still claims the other first division place.

Don's Fox Head Beer continued its improvement by taking two games from Bagwell Inc. E. Hall and H. Kovac carried off individual honors. The former had a 169 game and the latter had a three game total of 434.

Likewise Ben Whitebook with a 670 game and Rendezvous with an 1809 series shared team honors. The scores without:

Grapplers Working Toward Carleton-Minnesota Matches

With two meets in succession looming ahead of them, one Friday against Carleton and the other Saturday against Minnesota, the Hawk wrestling team took a stiff workout last night in the form of tryouts. By means of the tryouts, Coach Mike Howard was able to select most of the outfit he will take on the northern jaunt to open the Iowans' Big Ten schedule against the Gophers. Five berths on the team were contested.

Corney Walker opposed Frank O'Leary for the heavyweight job, but lost by a decision. The 115 pound class, which forfeited its match to State Teachers because of the illness of the only two candidates, will be represented by Bill Sedlack, a veteran of two years ago. He drew a decision from Richard Millen.

Four men were vying for the 135 pound position. Burton Maricle opposed Maurice Herrick, while Les Sanger had it out with Waldo Brooks. Sanger and Maricle will meet tonight to decide the representative for that weight.

Delta Chi beat Delta Upsilon 29 to 10 and Phi Kappa Psi took the long end of a 25 to 11 count from Phi Kappa Alpha in two fraternity class A cage tilts at the fieldhouse last night.

Delta Chi attributes last night's win over the usually flashy Delta Upsilon quintet to the fact that they have been working on an air tight, man to man defense which consistently broke up the slow drives of the D. U's.

Lannan went out of the game with an injury in the first period after scoring four field goals for Delta Chi to equal the total points made by any other player throughout the game. Team work of the Delta Chi players is shown by the even distribution of the scoring. Zoller and Lannan each made eight points, and Overton and Schulz six each.

The usually speedy Delta Upsilon team couldn't seem to hit its pace last night and as a result of an ineffective defense and a ragged offense suffered its first defeat of the season.

Both Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Kappa Alpha played a close defensive game with little scoring being done until the last period when the winners went through for 10 points to their opponents' two.

Three of last fall's varsity football men appear to be including fraternity class A basketball on their winter training schedule as Hilt played guard for Delta Chi, Gallagher played guard for Delta Upsilon and Hoover jumped center for Phi Kappa Alpha.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Robert Evans, military prisoner serving life at Leavenworth, performed one of the most amazing feats in prison history when he sawed through a steel bar with no tool except threads from his wool socks and a little sand. Patiently sawing back and forth on the steel with the sand-covered threads he almost made his escape. A guard became suspicious of his actions, searched the cell and found the almost severed bar. No tools of any kind were found in the cell, and the prisoner admitted using wool threads in attempting escape.

The history of America's iron warships goes back to the little known U.S.S. Michigan, first ship of its kind and grandfather of all modern warships. Although it remained for the Civil war naval battle between the Monitor and Merrimack to establish the value of ironclad fighting ships, and thereby make all the navies of the world obsolete, the Michigan was built 18 years before this battle.

The Michigan was launched Dec. 5, 1842 and was used on the Great Lakes. She has a displacement of 685 tons, is 163 feet long and 27 feet wide, and could make 8 1-2 knots on an average.

At the close of the Civil war she was placed out of commission at Erie, Pa., and in 1912 she was turned over to the Pennsylvania naval militia and renamed the U.S.S. Wolverine. She was loaned to the city of Erie in 1927, and officially stricken from the navy list on March 2 of that year.

BRUNO HAUPTMANN TO DIE

F. R. Keeps In Contact With Sea Crash Investigation to Follow Report of Macon Commander

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—With President Roosevelt keeping a vigil on reports from the Macon crash, the calling of a naval board of inquiry into the disaster tonight awaited only preliminary reports from the fleet commander.

Hour to Hour Messages Onto President Roosevelt's desk during the night were dropped from hour to hour a file of all messages relating the story of the crash.

Jury Finds Bronx Carpenter Guilty; to Get Electric Chair

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today was convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby and will get the electric chair as the penalty.

The jury of eight men and four women deliberated 11 hours and 6 minutes before it returned its verdict of death.

The jury was polled separately and all answered "guilty of murder in first degree."

The jury rose and Hauptmann rose to face them.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached your verdict," the clerk asked.

"We have," they chorused tremulously.

"Who shall speak for you?"

"The foreman."

"What is your verdict?"

Hauptmann stood up as the jurors rendered their verdict.

"Guilty," they answered. "Guilty of murder in the first degree."

Hauptmann stood while the verdict was delivered and the jury polled at Reilly's request.

The jurors answered the poll in quivering voices, most with an obvious great effort.

"The defendant may stand," Justice Trenchard said.

Hauptmann, straight as a soldier, stood between his guards.

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann," he pronounced, "you have been convicted of murder in the first degree and according to law you must suffer the penalty of death at the time fixed by the court."

Hauptmann was still standing between his two guards as Justice Trenchard said, "all those who wish to leave the courtroom may do so at once."

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Jersey justice weighed its mandate to Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the world waited tonight.

Eight men, four women of Hunterdon county worked toward a verdict, locked in a bare, bleak room in the back of a century-old courthouse, trying to decide if Baby Lindbergh died at Hauptmann's hands, if Hauptmann must die, spend his life in prison or be freed of the crime that shocked millions.

At 5 p. m., today, five hours and 37 minutes after they had entered the room, the first word came from the jurors—a request for a magnifying glass. It was taken into the guarded chamber.

Presumably they sought to inspect the ransom notes that eight experts laid to Hauptmann; the marking on the ladder that a government wood expert said were made by Hauptmann's plane; the "Jafsie" phone number and address scrawl on Hauptmann's closet paney or some other of the scores of exhibits they had with them.

Hauptmann, seemingly nerveless under the hours of tension, lay listlessly on his bunk on the floor below the jury room throughout the afternoon.

One of his attorneys said the prisoner apparently had not dared to guess what the verdict will be. But, he added, Hauptmann seemed unafraid.

The slain baby's father, boyish yet grave, watched the jury file out at 11:23 a. m., then went from the courtroom to be with his wife, the soft-eyed Anne Morrow Lindbergh, at Englewood.

His friend and adviser, Col. Henry Breckinridge, accompanied him. Prosecutors said Colonel Lindbergh would be informed of the verdict by telephone.

The jury heard the grave, clearcut instructions of white-haired Thomas W. Trenchard, justice of the supreme court of New Jersey, and took their memories of two million words of testimony and argument into the room where they must stay—either to reach one of the three verdict or to emerge in a hopeless deadlock.

There they will eat—and sleep, if they can.

Should the jurors say "guilty of first degree murder"—that alone—it means the electric chair for the alien carpenter, unless his appeal wins in a higher court. Should they return such a verdict with a recommendation of mercy, the answer is life imprisonment.

If they say, "not guilty," Hauptmann is not through with the law.

First he must answer a charge of extortion in New York's Bronx, based on the lying letters that won $50,000 of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's money—ransom for a baby already dead.

But he will be free of the murder charge—the charge that he stole Baby Lindbergh from his crib in the big white house in the Sourland, that he killed Baby Lindbergh as he climbed down a clumsy ladder from the nursery window.

The eight men and four women listened with unflinching attention as the fatherly justice read the charge in distinct, unhurried tones.

Hauptmann, who had come into the room with a twisted, half smile, heard the words with painful attention, his face set and pale. Occasionally his eyes moved swiftly down the rows of jurors, scanning their faces.

A few feet away, his wife's face was ashen, her eyes blank. But they welled up with tears when the court said: "If there is reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty, he is to be declared not guilty," and again, when Justice Trenchard intoned a repetition of the ransom man's words to "Jafsie": "Would I burn if the baby is dead?"

There was a conference with counsel as to whether exceptions to the charge would be heard before or after the jury retired. Justice Trenchard decided on the latter course.

Communists Strike Back

Quote Lincoln in Resolution; Call Lodges "Un-American"

Iowa City communists last night trucked back at the American Legion and the Elks with their own language, and called "un-American" the attempt by these organizations to deny constitutional rights to those who advocate overthrow of the government by force.

The action was taken in answer to the demands of the American Legion and the Elks for enactment of legislation by congress to deny the right of free speech, assembly and citizenship to "persons advocating the overthrow of the government by force."

The exhaustive resolution approved unanimously last night by the "Communist Party of Iowa City," signed by Nathan B. Whiting, unit organizer, approximately 50 local "Reds" charged that the Elks and legion are being used by "Wall Street" for suppression of the workers.

The resolution quoted Abraham Lincoln as saying: "Whenever the people shall grow weary of the existing government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it, or their revolutionary right to dismember it or overthrow it."

Navy Vessels Rescue 81 of 83 Men Aboard Stricken Pride Of Air Fleet 10 Miles Out at Sea

Cause of Disaster Remains Unknown As F.D.R., Congress Await Details; Explosion Or Disabled Gear Given as Possible Reason

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—(Wednesday)—Lieutenant Commander Wiley reported tonight that the Macon had crashed after its stern had crumbled and after all members of the crew had been given time to don life jackets and take to the rubber lifeboats.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12 (AP)—The $4,000,000 Macon lurched out of control tonight, plunged 2,500 feet and sank in the Pacific, but 81 of the 83 navy men aboard her were saved.

The fate of two men who had remained aboard the ship—a radio operator, Ernest Edwin Dailey and a mess attendant, Edward Quinday—had not been determined more than four hours after the crash.

Plunges Into Sea A sudden unknown disaster—possibly an explosion or disabled gear—sent the pride of the navy's air forces into a sickening plunge into the fog-cloaked waters.

Lieut. Comm. Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the giant airship and only officer who survived the Akron disaster, was picked up by rescue ships which were on maneuvers with the dirigible.

The scene of the disaster was 13 miles southeast of Point Sur, rocky promontory 110 miles south of here.

Ships Pick Up Men Sixty-four survivors were picked up by the cruiser Richmond, the Concord took 11 aboard and the Cincinnati saved six in thrilling rescues.

Admiral J. M. Reeves, commander in chief of the United States fleet, wireless naval radio headquarters here late tonight:

"The Macon, due to an accident the details of which are at present not available sank about 5:55 p. m., 13 miles southeast of Point Sur.

The commander in chief then confirmed that 81 of the 83 men aboard the airship had been picked up by nearby naval vessels. He added there were no serious injuries.

"The Macon's crew, apparently calm in the face of disaster, aided the rescuers by giving their position in quick SOS calls and then shooting a red rocket into the darkness.

The airship was observed cruising through the skies, its giant bulk outlined above lowering fog, by the lighthouse keeper at Pt. Sur.

(By the Associated Press)

There have been 18 major dirigible disasters in the last 23 years—two of the most recent involving the United States dirigibles Akron and Shenandoah.

The disaster list: April 4, 1933—U. S. navy dirigible Akron crashed in electrical storm off New Jersey coast, 73 dead, three survivors.

Oct. 4, 1930—British dirigible R-101 exploded over France while en route from England to India, 46 dead.

May 25, 1928—Italian dirigible Italia crashed in Arctic in flight to north pole; 8 dead.

Sept. 3, 1925—U. S. dirigible Shenandoah, formerly ZR-1, wrecked in storm in Ohio; 14 killed.

Dec. 21, 1923—French dirigible Dixmude, presumably struck by lightning over Mediterranean; 52 killed.

Feb. 21, 1922—U. S. dirigible Roma, bought by United States from Italy, crashed in flames near Hampton Roads army base; 34 killed.

Aug. 24, 1921—Dirigible ZR2, bought in England for United States, frame buckled over Humber river, 42 killed.

Jan. 29, 1921—British dirigible R-24, wrecked in gale in Howden, Eng.; no lives lost.

July 21, 1919—Dirigible burned over Chicago, 10 killed.

July 15, 1919—British airship NS-11 struck by lightning over North sea, 12 killed.

June 20, 1914—Airship and airplane collided at Vienna, 9 killed.

Sept. 9, 1913—Zeppelin L-1 destroyed off Heligoland, 15 killed.

Oct. 17, 1913—Zeppelin L-2 exploded over Johannisthal airdrome, 28 killed.

July 2, 1912—Balloons Akron exploded at Atlantic City, 5 killed.

(Besides the Zeppelins L-1 and L-2, Count Zeppelin lost four other great peace-time dirigibles in accidents, the Zeppelins 3 and 6 and the Deutschlands 1 and 2.)

Supreme Court Steals Capital Show Again With Stubborn Quiet

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The supreme court solemnly stole the show on Capitol Hill today by merely withholding its gold decision and furnishing Washington with another exhausting anti-climax.

It met, admitted a dozen attorneys to its bar, heard arguments and adjourned until tomorrow without a mention of gold or even an intimation that it was aware of the unusual tension which surrounded it.

A more positive action on the monetary front, however, came when the administration's bill to lighten Washington control over the banking system was referred to a sub-committee headed by Senator Glass (D-Va.), to whom conservative opponents of the measure are looking for leadership.

President, Congress Boost Program for More Guns, Men for Navy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The administration approved and congress spurred up today a program to put more guns, armor and men into the navy, with particular attention to Hawaii and the western defense.

Congressional leaders said the administration—and presumably President Roosevelt himself—had given a blessing to a plan which embraced a $38,000,000 expenditure on key shore stations.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 13, 1935

Good Morning

Not long ago Walter Lippmann—who without doubt is the best contemporary journalistic commentator on political and economic subjects—engaged in some queer mental gymnastics which seemed to me a strange departure from his usual high standard of objective reasoning.

The burden of his argument lay in the contention that the use of democratic methods for the overthrow of a democracy cannot be tolerated. Or, to put it more precisely, it is the duty of a democracy to preserve itself, even though to do so it must resort to undemocratic methods.

He was referring, no doubt, to the threat of fascist dictatorship contained in the gradual assumption of power by Huey Long, Father Coughlin, et al. These two men and their organization fit the case snugly.

Both of them are using methods entirely within the bounds of democratic procedure, protected by the constitutional guarantees of free speech, free assembly and free press. Lacking the psychological cure of prosperity, the gathering avalanche of their power can be stopped only through a suspension of these fundamental rights.

Granting the danger, it seems to me impossible that anyone who professes to believe in the democratic method of government—the Method of Freedom—to use Lippmann's phrase—would under any circumstance advocate such suspension.

Not that everything in one's power should not be done to preserve democracy; that is not the point. The fact is that to suspend the rights of free speech, free assembly and free press is to attempt to save the patient by cutting out his heart.

For without these rights there can be no democracy, whatever else remains of forms and skeletons. They are the substance of democracy, without which any government becomes, ipso facto, a dictatorship.

And a government cannot play with these rights, denying them here and granting them there. There can be no halfway course. Either they must be absolute or they must be denied completely.

Once a democratic government undertakes to limit them, it will find itself forced by the vicious circle of circumstance it has set in motion to limit them more and more until they no longer exist. And with their disappearance, democracy will vanish rather than be preserved.

These truths apply with equal force to the suspension of the rights of free speech, free press and free assembly for whatever purpose—whether to stifle fascism, communism, nudism or republicanism. These are not relative rights; politically they are absolute, and are limited only by the laws of libel and the dictates of decency.

To be specific, the petition being circulated in Iowa City by the American Legion, the Elks and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, asking congress to deny all three of these rights to persons or organizations which advocate the overthrow of government by force or violence, asks in effect that the democratic method of government be abandoned.

Its sponsors are not vicious enemies of the government; they look upon themselves rather as patriotic defenders of democracy. But no amount of good intentions or fervent hymns of patriotism can alter the fact that the effect of their proposal would be vicious to the extent of killing the very institution of democracy they profess to worship.

It would be well, perhaps, to point out here certain simple fundamental facts about the constitution of the United States, facts which these patriots and others in their great zeal apparently have overlooked.

First of all, none of the rights guaranteed in the first amendment sanctions force or violence; but they do emphatically and rightly guarantee any citizen the right to advocate force. By the denial of that right any government may become a tyranny.

But this does not mean that the American government is impotent against insurrection. The constitution has amply provided for that, by giving congress the power "to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions."

By inference, the constitution here clearly recognizes the right to advocate force, for if no one advocated insurrection there could be no insurrection to suppress.

Thus, if one is willing to cast aside his emotions and to reason as clearly as he can, the conclusion cannot be escaped that democracy can be preserved only by democracy itself. Any other notion, however expedient it may seem, is a snare and a delusion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—There are all sorts of experts scattered throughout the new deal. But the most expert of all the experts are those who figure out the timing of the administration's moves on the congressional checkboard.

ence of the Clayton and Sherman laws. Some members of congress, harassed every waking hour with appeals from constituents for jobs, are becoming haggard and short-tempered about it. But not the beetle-browed speaker, Joe Byrnes.

Senator Borah, among others, has been quietly preparing for some time to make the rafters ring with denunciation of the NRA as a monopoly promoter when the issue is brought to the floor. He is prepared to assert that under the new deal the department of justice has virually abandoned the Clayton and Sherman antitrust laws. The department's suit to prevent Republic's merger with several smaller companies is timed to off-set that criticism in congress.

Mr. Roosevelt likes to paraphrase Will Rogers' remark "All I know is what I read in the papers," when asked about pending administration legislation.

As a matter of fact, the White House keeps a close tab on every move on Capitol Hill, in committee and on the floors. That is especially true about the big $4,880,000,000 works-relief bill. The telephone wires have been kept hot on this in the last few days, with dapper Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, representing "the master's voice" at the senate end.

Apparently, that time has now arrived. In any event, the D.J. has emerged from its moribund state and is again recognizing the existence of the Clayton and Sherman laws. Some members of congress, harassed every waking hour with appeals from constituents for jobs, are becoming haggard and short-tempered about it. But not the beetle-browed speaker, Joe Byrnes.

HOLLYWOOD—Another of the list selected by the Russians for official notice in their World Cinema Festival in Moscow is King Vidor. Besides his invitation from the Amkino Picture corporation, Vidor has in mind a visit to England to make several films over there.

His decision one way or another depends on progress with "The Wedding Night," Sam Goldwyn's new Anna Sten picture, now in the cutting stage. The Soviet picture makers want him to bring "Our Daily Bread," which recently won recognition from the League of Nations, to enter it for an international award to be made by Eisenstein, Dovzhenko and Pudovkin.

Compulsory Military Training

JUST TO keep the record clear and up to date, The Daily Iowan takes this opportunity to express its complete agreement with Lieut. Col. George F. N. Dalley in the opinion that—as he expressed it at a church club meeting Sunday night:

"The state has a right to compel university men in state schools to undergo military training, just as it may require instruction in English."

We also admit that students whose religious views will not permit such training can choose other schools to attend. But that is as far as we can go, except to commend Lieutenant Colonel Dalley's obvious sincerity and fairness.

For the sake of clarity, The Daily Iowan's position in regard to military training may be stated in a few paragraphs:

1) The university is not the place for compulsory military training, although voluntary instruction in military science may be justifiable.

2) The state does have the right to compel military training, but if such compulsion is necessary for the training of an adequate reserve, let it be universal and thorough as in European countries.

3) The state has the right to compel students who, through necessity or choice, attend the university rather than some other school, to study anything it pleases. But that right hardly justifies the state in taking advantages of students who attend the university for one reason or another by forcing them to submit to military training.

4) There can be no sympathy with the argument that the university would lose a sizeable income from the federal government if compulsory military training were dropped.

In short, The Daily Iowan can see no justification whatever for the continuance of military training as a compulsory course.

"The Glory" Of Italy Advances

THE POSSIBILITIES of long and bitter warfare along the borders of Italian Somaliland if Mussolini carries out his harsh intention of imposing the limit of humiliation upon Ethiopia sicken the world with foreboding and disgust. The so-called "punitive" expedition which got underway yesterday with determined vigor following Ethiopia's refusal to accede to extravagant demands seems in view of the incident's history to be entirely unjustifiable.

If Italy has a just complaint against her colonial neighbor, there are peaceful ways of settling such disputes. And Mussolini, who with his characteristic braggadocio refused pointblank to submit the matter to amicable settlement, must be held to account for the resulting violence.

Cost of Production Please Explain

REPORTS FROM Washington tell us that another bill designed primarily to garner votes for its sponsors and ostensibly to guarantee "cost of production" to the farmer has been introduced. Which raises again certain pertinent questions.

How do the sponsors of such measures determine the "cost of production" of farm crops? Is it the same for good farmers and good farms as for bad farmers and bad farms, for industrious farmers and lazy farmers, lucky farmers and unlucky farmers? Perhaps those who champion these bills are uncommon geniuses, but persons endowed with merely ordinary intelligence must admit being completely baffled in the face of such problems.

Another thing: Why all the hullabaloo about "cost of production" for the farmer when the AAA, according to latest advices from the capital, already has done so well by the farmer as to lift the price level of farm products above parity? In the face of this performance, one cannot miss a rather strong scent of demagoguery in the resurrection of these magic-measures.

Thus, if one is willing to cast aside his emotions and to reason as clearly as he can, the conclusion cannot be escaped that democracy can be preserved only by democracy itself. Any other notion, however expedient it may seem, is a snare and a delusion.

MT. VERNON, Feb. 12.—University high cagers threw a mighty scare into the hearts of the league leading Mt. Vernon quintet here tonight, but succumbed 31 to 21 in the last quarter before a barrage of baskets aimed at the hoop by the local five.

Miss the services of Horn, Foerster and Fountain, the Kistlermen took an early lead which they clung to with a tenacity born of desperation. Never before in a conference tilt had the O'Connormen been forced to overcome a lead to annex a victory. But in tonight's win they were forced to use their entire repertoire of tricks to successfully maintain their unblemished record.

Blue Teak Lead

Wyjack opened the scoring with a setup near the foul line. Thomas and Barron cashed in from the free throw line before Travis countered for the locals. Thomas, Wyjack, and Thomas again, retaliated from arfield but Schrader and Kohl tossed in buckets to give the visitors a 10 to 4 advantage at the quarter.

Battling desperately in the second canto, Jessup, Smith, and Thomas, connecting from the floor more than offset the two long shots garnered by Ryerson of the Vernonites. The Blueners left the court holding a 16 to 10 lead at the intermission.

Take Lead

Coming back with a rush the Mt. Vernon snipers scored from the floor four times while Wyjack was drooping in a brace of charity tosses to knot the count at 18 all.

Smith speared a neat one from the side but Travis retaliated from a similar angle, then scored a setup which, followed by Swift's double-decker, gave the locals the lead for the first time in the battle and a 21 to 20 margin at the end of the third canto.

Renow opened the final frame with a gift shot to run the count 23-21. From here on the locals completely dominated the play with their clever stalling attack, interspersed with some classy shooting, to pull away from the university quintet an 11 annex the hard fought victory.

Paced by Thomas and Johnny Wyjack, diminutive forward, the Rivermen played a sterling brand of ball. The defensive play of Jim Barron and Blenow cannot go without commendation while Smith and Jessup played no little part in carrying the burden.

Ryerson, sharp shooting guard, was the spearhead in the attack of the O'Connor team, scoring 13 points to take the scoring honors for the evening. Travis and Kohl were also important cogs in the winning machine.

Paced by Schnoebelen and Hinman, who garnered 11 counters between them, a University sophomore-junior high combination successfully staved off a belated rally and emerged from their tussle on the long end of a 30 to 14 score.

Cunningham Favored In Baxter Mile

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—The score is overwhelmingly in favor of Glenn Cunningham, the middle west's mile running powerhouse, for the three-year period of his indoor footracing rivalry with Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke which will be renewed Saturday in the classic Baxter mile, feature of the annual New York Athletic club meet at Madison Square Garden.

The threat of a come-back by Bonthron as well as the fresh challenge of Venzke, who chased the Kansan to a new record of 4:11 a fortnight ago in the Wanamaker mile, has aroused sufficient interest to make this week's meet another sellout prospect.

Fourth Meeting

This week will make the fourth indoor meeting of the greatest trio of milers America has ever produced at one time. Bonthron did not enter the picture indoors until a year ago in the New York A. C. meet when he came from behind to beat Cunningham by inches in the Baxter mile. They met again in the National A.A.U. 1,500 meter championship and Cunningham turned the tables, but again the margin was no more than the width of a hand. Venzke was third both times but at this year's Millrose meet the slim Pennsylvania stylist rallied to outrun Bonthron for the first time and finish barely six yards behind Cunningham.

Their Records

Here is the record of their rivalry on the boards:

1933—Cunningham won three out of four races with Venzke, hanging up 4:32 for his fastest mile in the Knights of Columbus meet in New York.

1934—Cunningham defeated Venzke four times and split two races with Bonthron, setting a new world indoor record of 4:08.4 for the mile in the Knights of Columbus meet, New York. Bonthron defeated Venzke three times, including the intercollegiate 1,500 meters.

1935—Cunningham has defeated Venzke twice, Bonthron once, in mile races, in addition to beating Venzke once at 800 meters.

Rendezvous Keglers Win Strengthen Lead In Loop; Hall, Kovac Take High Honors

Rendezvous keggers strengthened their lead in the Ladies' bowling league by annexing a pair of tilts from Ben Whitebook last night. The latter still holds second place. Although they lost a couple of games to H. I. Jennings, City Club still claims the other first division place.

Don's Fox Head Beer continued its improvement by taking two games from Bagwell Inc.

E. Hall and H. Kovac carried off individual honors. The former had a 169 game and the latter had a three game total of 434.

SKIPPY—He Likes His Fowl Fresh

Grapplers Working Toward Carleton-Minnesota Matches

With two meets in succession looming ahead of them, one Friday against Carleton and the other Saturday against Minnesota, the Hawk-eye wrestling team took a stiff workout last night in the form of tryouts. By means of the tryouts, Coach Mike Howard was able to select most of the outfit he will take on the northern jaunt to open the Iowans' Big Ten schedule against the Gophers. Five berths on the team were contested.

Corney Walker opposed Frank O'Leary for the heavyweight job, but lost by a decision. The 118 pound class, which forfeited its match to State Teachers because of the illness of the only two candidates, will be represented by Bill Sedlacek, a veteran of two years ago. He drew a decision from Richard Millen.

Four men were vying for the 135 pound position. Burton Maricle opposed Maurice Herrick, while Les Sanger had it out with Waldo Brooks. Sanger and Maricle will meet tonight to decide the representative for that weight.

Delta Chi beat Delta Upsilon 29 to 10 and Phi Kappa Psi took the long end of a 25 to 11 count from Pi Kappa Alpha in two fraternity class A cage tilts at the fieldhouse last night.

Delta Chi attributes last night's win over the usually flashy Delta Upsilon quintet to the fact that they have been working on an air tight, man to man defense which consistently broke up the slow drives of the D. U.'s. Lannan went out of the game with an injury in the first period after scoring four field goals for Delta Chi to equal the total points made by any other player throughout the game. Team work of the Delta Chi players is shown by the even distribution of the scoring. Zoller and Lannan each made eight points, and Overton and Schulz six each.

The usually speedy Delta Upsilon team couldn't seem to hit its pace last night and as a result of an ineffective defense and a ragged offense suffered its first defeat of the season.

Both Phi Kappa Psi and Pi Kappa Alpha played a close defensive game with little scoring being done until the last period when the winners went through for 10 points to their opponents' two.

Three of last fall's varsity football men appear to be including fraternity class A basketball on their winter training schedule as Hiltz played guard for Delta Chi, Gallagher played guard for Delta Upsilon and Hoover jumped center for Pi Kappa Alpha.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Robert Evans, military prisoner serving life at Leavenworth, performed one of the most amazing feats in prison history when he sawed through a steel bar with no tool except threads from his wool socks and a little sand. Patiently sawing back and forth on the steel with the sand-covered threads he almost made his escape. A guard became suspicious of his actions, searched the cell and found the almost severed bar. No tools of any kind were found in the cell, and the prisoner admitted using wool threads in attempting escape.

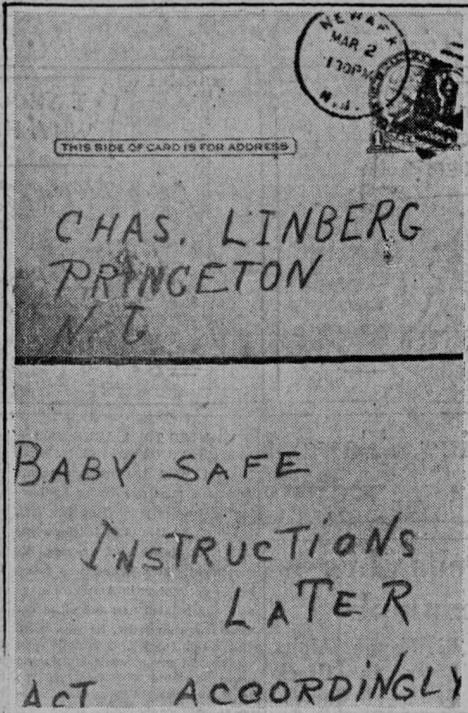

PAINTED TOES, ARRESTED PEIPING (INS)—When Mrs. Wang Hui-wei went the modern young American miss one better by having landscapes painted on her feet, her husband landed in jail for abetting such violation of the new life movement.

Mrs. Wang was taken by the description in American magazines of painted toes and since her spouse was an artist, he was called upon to do the job. The nails were made a sea green, while cupid and doves appeared elsewhere on the small feet revealed by sandals. Public appearance brought down the town, as well as the ire of the police.
