NATIONAL GUARD INVADES OMAHA

Fourteen Killed in British Train Crash; 13 Die, Scores Missing in Texas Flood

Paper Train Hits Standing Express Cars

Total May Reach 30; Explosion Follows Smash-Up

LONDON, June 16 (Sunday) (AP)—The bodies of 14 victims, six of them women and two children, were taken at dawn today from the wreckage of Britain's worst rail smash in years.

Wartime France

White-faced dancers in evening dress who rushed to the scene from nearby pleasure spots worked in the gray light of dawn with weary nerves, their clothing spattered with mud.

With the coming of daylight, they hoped to complete their task in a few hours.

One rescue worker, surveying the mass of twisted wreckage, said it recalled "wartime France."

The official report telephoned from Welwyn said 17 were killed, but two London newspapers placed the death toll at "30 so far." This could be confirmed but it was believed many victims still were in the wreckage.

Two score persons, all aboard the express which had stopped at Welwyn, were seriously injured.

Coal Strike Snuffed Out

Lewis Says Present Wage Scale to Hold Good Until June 30

The darkest cloud disappeared from the labor horizon yesterday when the projected strike of bituminous coal miners was called off.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, cancelled the call for a strike beginning Sunday midnight after a joint conference of union officials and Appalachian soft coal operators agreed to President Roosevelt's suggestion that current wages, hours and working conditions be continued through June 30. The conference at Washington also decided to meet there again June 24 to renew negotiations for contracts to replace those expiring at the end of the month. Efforts toward the enactment of the Guffey coal stabilization bill—setting up a miniature NRA for the soft coal industry—went forward.

Hard to Believe—Crashed 10 Ton Truck, Not Hurt

It happens only once in a life time.

Elmer Nelson smashed into the back end of a 10-ton truck on E. Burlington street last night, completely demolishing the front end of the car, and escaped unhurt.

Five youths were brought into the police station last night charged with driving "nearly 50 with three on the sides" of their auto. The boys will appear in police court Tuesday morning.

NRA Decision Finds "State's Rights," "Strict Construction" Cropping Out

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles concerning the situation in connection with the supreme court's recent ruling of the NRA, and more recent political trends therewith. The second article will appear Tuesday morning.

By ETHAN P. ALLEN
Political Science Department

During the last two weeks, the front pages of our newspapers have been carrying news items concerning a "Skeleton N.R.A.," a "Fact Finding Agency," the "Grass Roots Convention," "States Rights," the "Supreme Court Finds N.R.A. Unconstitutional" and similar instances of political activity. Much of this

Strange Phenomena

Historically, the republican party is supposed to stand for a vigorous national government, for the union as against the states, for the principles set forth by Hamilton and preserved, through a Civil war, by Lincoln. Yet today we find a "grass roots" convention proclaiming, on behalf of the republican party, the doctrine of states rights, a weaker national government, and a return to a strict construction of our constitution. What occasioned this strange phenomena of our major parties shifting their positions? Why this "spontaneous outburst"? What caused these political maneuvers so long in advance of the presidential election?

National Industrial Recovery

Nearly two years ago, the congress of the United States enacted the much talked-of National Industrial Recovery act. The bill was rushed through a panic-stricken house of representatives and but momentarily delayed by the senate. It bore the official approval of the president of the United States. Its purpose was to rehabilitate industry and to plant our industrial life upon a firmer basis. Gen. Hugh Johnson was selected to organize and administer the fate of the Blue Eagle. Amid much enthusiasm and supported by popular approval, the Blue Eagle rose, screaming its defiance of an "old" order. Today, that lordly bird flutters weakly in a strong and secure cage—there seems to be little danger that the Blue Eagle will devour our industrial order.

Pan-American Airplane Safe in Mid-Pacific

Clipper Flies 1,323 Miles to Midway Isle From Hawaii

MIDWAY ISLAND (Via Pan American Airways Radio), June 15 (AP)—Successfully completing its pioneering 1,323-mile cruise westward from Hawaii, the big Pan American Airways Clipper plane glided to a perfect landing at its mid-Pacific base here today at 1:40 p.m. (7:40 p.m. central standard time).

The flight, the first non-stop hop made over this lonely sector of the Pacific and the second ever accomplished west from Honolulu, was made in nine hours and 13 minutes.

"Beautiful dash and without incident," Capt. E. C. Musick, the Clipper's skipper, commented after his arrival.

Captain Musick announced the 13-ton seaplane would remain here over Sunday to permit the flight to make a study of approaches to the lagoon and coral reefs which surround this unique port.

The return flight to Honolulu, thence to California, is expected to be started Monday morning, he said.

Water, Wind Causes Huge Crop Losses

Three Special Trains Of Rotarians Miss Raging Waters

AUSTIN, Tex., June 15 (AP)—Roaring winds joined flood waters tonight in a devastating attack on central and southwest Texas which left at least 13 persons dead and scores missing.

Losses to crops and property forged into the millions of dollars.

As cloudbursts fed the floods, a twisting wind dipped into a small community near Kaufman, splintered a farmhouse and killed Elmer Burns, 48. Three other occupants reached a storm cellar before the wind struck. Four inches of rain fell in 24 hours.

Houses and bridges were washed away in the racing streams. Five persons were dead at Del Rio. A. J. Mitchell, farmer near Italy, was drowned with his wife and their two children. Two were drowned at Kenedy and one at Victoria.

Finland Makes War Payment

Others Default, U. S. Renews Maturing Notes as Usual

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—While all but one European nation defaulted on war debt payments, as usual, the treasury—like most any debt-burdened individual—renewed its maturing notes today and took a look at the financial future.

It cut down interest charges through an exchange offer of notes yielding only 1 1/2 per cent for a block of $770,467,800 on which it had been paying higher interest: $418,602,800 in 3 per cent notes maturing today and $353,865,000 in 1 5/8 per cent notes maturing August 1.

The annual saving in interest charges was estimated at more than $2,000,000.

At the same time, the treasury watched June income tax installment payments rise toward an estimated total of $272,000,000. This was less, of course, than March collections which ran to $330,000,000, because many pay the full year's tax in a lump, but still well above the total for June 1934.

Of the European nations which owed war debt payments today, all defaulted except Finland, which as usual paid on the dot.

Forty-Six Bodies

WITTENBERG, Germany (AP)—Forty-six bodies, only 16 identified, lay in state yesterday while the munitions-making village of Reinsdorf, laid waste by Thursday's devastating explosion, began returning to some semblance of normalcy.

Italy to Take Silver Money From Country

ROME, June 15 (AP)—The Italian government tonight ordered the recall of silver money circulating in the country.

Official and financial circles said the reason for the drastic monetary step was the ever greater necessity for supplies of this metal in connection with Italy's preparations for possible hostilities with Ethiopia.

Silver coins are the sole medium of exchange in both of Italy's African colonies, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, and in Ethiopia.

Williams Dies

CHICAGO (AP)—Gaar Williams, 54, creator of several cartoon characters, died suddenly yesterday, the victim of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Newton Baker Will Defend S. U. I. Case

Will Assist In Fight Against Federal Suit

U. S. Will Demand Payment of $5,000 Amusement Tax

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war during the Wilson administration, will assist in a defense of the University of Iowa when the federal government brings suit for $5,000 in amusement taxes collected by the athletic department during the 1932 football season, according to the Associated Press.

Assistant Attorney General Lehan Ryan will head the university's legal staff which will include Prof. C. M. Updegraff and Attorney Baker.

To Represent N.C.A.A.

Because the case is the first of its kind and colleges and universities throughout the country may be affected by the Des Moines federal court decision, Attorney Baker will be on the defense as a representative of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Baker was appointed to represent the N.C.A.A. by the tax committee of the association last Tuesday in Philadelphia. Professor Updegraff is a member of the committee which is headed by Prof. Ralph W. Algier of Michigan.

The $5,000 tax money in question was deposited in the First Capital National bank here. At Homecoming in 1933, the federal government served a distraint on the bank and demanded the funds. Upon advice of the university legal department, the bank refused to comply and the government brought suit.

Japan Awaits China's Move

Nippon Will Not Relax Until Demands Accepted by China

TIENSIN, June 15 (AP)—Japan's North China garrisons reinforced, waited calmly today for China's next move in the current Sino-Japanese crisis.

Despite continued non-settlement of the "Changpei incident" and the national government's delay in replying to demands presented May 25, apprehension in this area visibly subsided and an exodus of frightened Chinese residents southward lessened.

The Nipponese military men, who said the detention of four Japanese at Changpei, Chahar province, Wednesday was "engaging our most serious attention," awaited Governor Sung Chel-Yuan's reply to demands for cessation of anti-Japanese activities there, punishment of those responsible, apologies and assurances against repetition.

As to Hopei province, Lt. Col. Gennosuke Matsui, of Japan's Kwangtung army, said military preparedness would not be relaxed until China accepted in writing the May 29 demands for removal of all anti-Japanese elements and influences. National government officials Thursday decided to refuse written acceptance.

Waleys Escape Death Penalty

TACOMA, Wash., June 15 (AP)—Possibility of a death penalty for Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley, accused kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser, faded today when authorities decided to prosecute them under federal instead of state law.

The maximum penalty possible in event of conviction under the "Lindbergh law" is life imprisonment in view of the fact the 9-year old lumber heir was returned unharmed.

The death penalty is provided under Washington state law.

Doctor Faces Murder Charges In Death of 14 Year Old Girl

MAY INVOLVE ILLEGAL OPERATION, Hired Hand Shoots Self

WATERLOO, June 15 (AP)—Dr. Anna J. Longshore, 60, was arrested tonight at her office on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Lilla Belle Davies, 14 year old McGregor girl, early today at Presbyterian hospital.

A few hours after the girl's death, which had been reported in McGregor as due to an automobile accident, Arthur Noeding, 28, hired man on the farm of Lilla Belle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davies, shot and killed himself in a woodland on the farm.

1,800 Troops March in To Quell Rioting Strike Mobs

All Attempts Fail To Bring Strikers, Street Car Concern To Any Agreement

OMAHA, Neb., June 15 (AP)—The might of the army ruled this city tonight, replacing the might of the mob in riot-torn south Omaha where one man was shot to death and more than 75 others were injured in bloody riots on each of the last three nights.

The national guard of 1,800 combat troops took over the city on orders of Lt. Gov. Walter H. Jurgensen, who declared the city under martial law as a result of the bitter fight last night between police and rioters in which one man was shot to death and more than 50 others wounded by police riot guns.

Third Battle

The battle was the third to be staged in riot-torn south Omaha between police and maddened mobs in the last three nights. As a result of casualties suffered by the weary police force, the city and county authorities joined today in appealing to Jurgensen for aid from the guardsmen.

First of the guard companies to be mobilized were Omaha units.

Jurgensen's decision was made after Governor R. L. Cochran, at Gulfport, Miss., had recommended three companies be sent here. The lieutenant governor ordered out the entire guard and declared martial law.

Court Martial

Offenders of the rules of martial law will be tried by court martial. Adjutant General Paul, commanding the guardsmen, said at Lincoln. The guardsmen, he added, will in no way act as strike breakers and will not permit the operation of street cars in the riot zone.

Meanwhile all attempts to bring the strikers and the company into an agreement for arbitration have failed.

The entire combat forces of the guard, totaling 1,800 men, were expected to be in the city by daybreak. The entire guard was ordered mobilized but several hospital companies, headquarters detachments and transport companies were held at their bases pending further orders.

No Recurrence

The good natured spirit of the crowd in south Omaha indicated no recurrence of the rioting of the last three nights in which one man was shot to death and more than 75 others wounded.

Where large forces of police had traveled the streets of south Omaha, populated largely by stockyard workers, the last three nights, only a few officers were in sight tonight and they confined their activities to traffic duty around the police station.

Beyond patches of broken glass in the street there was no evidence of the bloody fighting between police and the rioters that had so shattered the grip of the police on the situation that the presence of the national guard was deemed necessary.

Mr., Mrs. Hugh Buck Receive Lacerations In Head-On Collision

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Buck of near Winham received severe face and arm lacerations last night in a head-on automobile collision at Court and Clinton streets.

C. J. Nelson of Iowa City, driver of one car, struck the Buck car after attempting to clear an automobile driven by Edith Stover. Miss Stover appeared to be completing a U-turn, according to Sheriff Don McComas. Nelson was driving south on Clinton street.

The three drivers will be summoned to appear in police court today or tomorrow, it was indicated last night.

Wiley Post Fails In 4th Stratosphere Cross-Country Attempt

WICHITA, Kan., June 15 (AP)—Wiley Post's aging monoplane "Winie Mae," which has carried him on two record-breaking flights around the world, failed him today, in his fourth attempt to span the nation through the stratosphere.

Forced down by a broken piston, Post announced immediately that he will try again—but not in the plane for which sentiment has long attached him.

New York Fashion Parade

By MARGARET GARRAHAN (INS Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 15 (INS)—Taking a peek into the future with shoes we find, among other things, that the bulky look for sports and tailored wear (an item fatted here long ago) is to be ushered in in grand style this fall. To date the heavy things have been confined mainly and merely to the experimental realm . . . to see how the ladies would react. Big point is the contrast via proportion—making your ankles look ever so dainty and slim.

As far as this closhopper stuff goes, you'll be seeing much, too, of such vamp patterns as the moccasin, the gypsy seam and the open throat with color or surface contrasts or side-fastening details. Much to-do about tongues, too, with all kinds from those that run in a point up your ankle to the sewn-down business. In color they're saying the browns are in for another reign, giving the perennial black somewhat of an edge, while others expected to zoom off with honors are oxblood, Araby green (for a bit of life), gray, auburn in country types and navy—this last, however, principally for early fall. Navy also will combine with oxblood to make up the newest novelty.

Above all else, however, it would seem the bootery manufacturers would make us comfortable. And why not? Anyway . . . last is going to mean something more than just a word to you from now on, with a generally straighter inside line (how my gym teacher loved 'em), mode width through the ball and stress on the new lower heel heights. Spooling and novelty straight or squared laces are the newest ideas—but you'll find box, Cuban, Continental, Indo-China, Dubarry and spring and wedge as well. And as to toes, the square is to be big, big news.

Other items to watch are oxfords and ties, expected to beat out all else . . . high throats and open throats with high fastenings . . . wide straps for daytime . . . buckles on all kinds of sports shoes . . . and, as the only decorations slated to date, stitching and contrasts via materials.

Day Camp For Girl Scouts To Open Tuesday

Outings May Be Continued 4 Weeks Tuesdays, Thursdays

Living easily and comfortably in the open is the ideal chosen for Girl Scout day camp this summer. Day camp, which will take place every Tuesday and Thursday for four weeks, it attendance and enthusiasm warrants, it will open Tuesday, when the Girl Scouts will meet at 8:45 a.m. at the city park pavilion.

No fees will be charged a Girl Scout attending day camp except a small amount for the handwork materials which she uses. No special camp suit will be required, but instead, any play outfit will do, camp leaders announced yesterday.

Featured on the day camp program for this summer will be an original song contest, the songs pertaining to camping. Other announcements for the contest, which closes July 4, will be published later.

Another innovation in this year's day camp program is a variation in the length of sessions. An all-day session will be alternated with a half-day camp. Further developments for the day camp, open to all Girl Scouts, will be announced at later dates. Each Girl Scout attending day camp sessions must bring a signed consent from her parents. Consent slips may be obtained from camp leaders.

11:30 a.m.—Preparation for the noon meal. The first meal has been planned by the camp leaders, but at all sessions except the opening one, the Girl Scouts will plan their own meals and methods of preparation. All meals will be cooked outdoors by the girls. For Tuesday, each girl will bring two vegetables, and her own bread and butter. The menu will include vegetable-meat stew on toast with bananas and milk for dessert. The milk will be furnished by the Iowa City Girl Scout council.

The Constitution

Battleground Again

3. Two Clauses, One Amendment Stand Behind Decision on NRA

(Editor's note: The constitution has been thrust to the fore again by the supreme court's NRA decision. The debate over its provisions and whether or not they need changing indicates that the 148 year old document may be a major campaign issue next year. This is the third and last article in a series discussing the history of the constitution.)

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Standing back of the supreme court's decision, which wrecked NRA and precipitated perhaps one of the greatest political crises in the nation's history, are two short clauses in the original constitution and one brief but potent constitutional amendment.

The first is in Section 1 of Article I which says: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States which shall consist of a senate and a house of representatives."

The second is the famous interstate commerce clause of Section 8, Article I, which says congress shall have power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states and with the Indian tribes."

Reservation of Powers
The third is the tenth amendment to the constitution adopted in 1791 which expressly provides that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

The supreme court held that NRA was illegal because the codes rested upon the unconstitutional delegation of legislative power to the president and because the attempt to fix the hours and wages of employees in interstate business was not a valid exercise of federal power.

While the power to control interstate commerce has been expanded steadily by congress and construed broadly by the supreme court at times, it is a well-accepted legal principle that congress has no power to regulate the purely internal commerce of a state. It has been wisely axiomatic that the supreme court of the United States is the ultimate judicial authority on all questions of interstate commerce as well as other phases of conflicting national and state power.

Commercial Complexities
In the days of the "frontier fathers" when transportation and communications were primitive, the regulation of interstate commerce was a relatively small problem. But the coming of the steamboat, the railroad, the automobile, the airplane, the telegraph, telephone and radio tended to eliminate physical barriers or boundaries in the flow of commerce.

The question of what is interstate, or intrastate, commerce has bobbed up continuously to perplex legislatures and courts. In the NRA case,

"Off the Record"

By SIGRID ARNE
This year the illness of Louis Howe, presidential secretary, broke a time-honored custom of the president.

The usual birthday night stag party given by the president for a small group of friends was called off because Howe couldn't be there.

But the usual memento of the day arrived for the friends anyway. They received small, wooden boxes made from wood taken from the White House when it was being repaired.

When he gets a scorching letter from back home which seems unjust, he sits down and writes a scorching reply.

The next day he "malls" it in the waste basket, and writes the usual mild answer which goes into the mail box.

China's Public Enemy No. 1 Dies Cursing Executioners

KAIFENG, Honan, China (AP)—North China is breathing more easily, for its public enemy No. 1—the man who dared despoil an empress' tomb—is dead.

When a firing squad shot the still defiant Tsui-Pang-chieh, after a three-year manhunt, it ended a career of crime scarcely less spectacular than that of America's John L. Dillinger.

Tsui reached the peak of his life-long career of banditry when he conspired with others to rob the magnificent tomb of the Empress Dowager at the Manchu imperial burial place near Peiping.

Murdered His Guest
Three years ago he gained fresh notoriety by murdering General Peng Chi-piao, chief-of-staff of the Honan provincial armies, after enticing the general to his home on the pretext of a banquet.

Confronted with Peng's portrait just before his execution here, Tsui remained unrepentant and refused to bow. Instead, he knelt toward the west, the direction of his native village of Tengfeng, where his mother lives. With head upright, he commanded the firing squad to shoot. When the first shots failed to kill him, Tsui cursed his executioners for their clumsiness. After a second volley, the bandit leader fell forward.

Served With Warlords
Early in life, Tsui became the terror of the countryside for the daring and recklessness of his crimes. Gathering a band of young cutthroats about him, he joined forces with General Sun Tien-ying, who made him a general in charge of a division.

Later, Tsui was an army commander under the notorious Shantung warlord, Chang Tsung-chang, until Chang demoted him to an unimportant post on his staff. Tsui vowed then to his followers that he would take vengeance on General Peng, whom he held responsible for his downfall.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. They are further proof of the care and quality that go into the Ford V-8.

Formerly only the most expensive cars could be driven at normal speeds from the beginning. That still holds true today — except in the case of the Ford V-8. It gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

The Aim Of Child Research

IT WILL BE a far cry from the days of the hairbrush and the woodshed conference methods of child training this week when the ninth annual conference of Child Development and Parent Education opens at the university.

As one of the major parts of a child's education lies in the proper instruction of those persons responsible for his upbringing, the conference will deal in no small part with correct education of parents, teachers, and social workers along the lines of child psychology and behavior.

Need for competent child workers is steadily growing as modern civilization tends to shift the burden of child education from the home to the state.

Will Durant A Missionary

IN HIS LECTURE Friday evening, Will Durant answered his own question, "Are we facing a revolution?" with the prophecy: "If the concentration of wealth goes on, revolution will be inevitable, and will be justified."

Philosopher-commentator Durant is a missionary. Little of his discussion Friday night was new.

But Mr. Durant is a missionary, and calmly and clearly he outlined the picture of a society, a chaotic society in form and idea that may not put its hands and minds to the serious work of maintaining a civilization and culture.

like Mr. Durant determinedly awakening the passively dissatisfied middle classes, perhaps we are. Perhaps society is being drawn into the broad channel that demands an economy less radical than absolute communism, less conservative than the inherent greed of capitalism; a morality less rigid than our Puritanical heritage, less promiscuous than ethical nihilism; and a literature and an art "modern" enough to shock our classicists, classic enough to bore our cynics.

A Life Of Service

ADDING ANOTHER year to a life dedicated to the service of her fellow man and at the same time knowing the depths of despair and the glittering heights of success, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink observed her seventy-fourth birthday yesterday in California by attending the wedding of her granddaughter.

Filled with that same overflowing love for humanity that so characterized the lives of Jane Addams, Florence Nightingale, and other immortal women of history, Schumann-Heink has gained her own special place in the hearts of the American people.

During the dark days of the war she acquired the everlasting affection of the boys in the trenches with her songs and deeds of mercy. Parents loved her for what she did for their sons over there.

Helping those in misfortune is only natural for the diva, because, she too knows the helplessness and despair that may come to one when life seems to hit a blank wall.

To this grand old woman, America and the world offers birthday congratulations and greetings.

Another Step Toward Peace

ANOTHER STEP in the direction of a universal peace was made yesterday with the signing of the Chaco pact by Paraguay and Bolivia.

It seems peculiar that two civilized nations should, in the last three years alone, send 100,000 men to slaughter and spend millions of dollars to support European and American munitions plants just to gain possession of a stretch of jungle that is practically uninhabitable.

Like an old Kentucky feud this jungle madness has been going on now for generations. While the two countries have been civilizing and developing in other respects they still perpetuated this jungle fight.

It was the growing bloodiness of the ancient feud combined with adverse world opinion on war, recent exposures of the munitions racket, and publicity given the war by the press that finally caused the stacking of arms in El Gran Chaco yesterday.

A New Yorker At Large

By JAMES B. RESTON NEW YORK—One of the really rare sights in New York today is that of a store that is not being picketed. I have no desire to deny a man the right to parade on the sidewalk with an ill-drawn sign on his back if he feels he must.

Screen Life

HOLLYWOOD—Little theaters go and little theaters come and the newest comer is the "workshop of the theater," sponsored by the movie blonde, Jean Muir.

Her interest in the enterprise, she says, is to learn more about the theater and she feels that the best way to accomplish that end is to tell others how.

And so Jean and three young men with equal enthusiasm are preparing to invite a class of young boys and girls who want to learn about the theater to join them in their workshop. Those who are accepted must be amateurs and, among other things, the boys will be required to take fencing and the girls lessons in dancing.

"Why pick amateurs?" echoes Jean. "Because they are so much more responsive. Professionals are too busy to be concerned with a little theater like ours and the semi-professionals (the Hollywoods are full of them) always think too much of themselves. You can't tell them anything. I know, because I just got through working with some of them."

"I'm not going into this thing because I want to act. I couldn't, even if I wanted to, because my movie contract forbids it. I believe I can learn more about acting and the theater by working in the theater during my spare time, telling and instructing others."

Jean and her young men think they will stage a sort of panorama of the American theater, beginning with the first play written in America, "Prince of Parthia," (1765) and leading up to Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon." No new plays will be presented, unless they are written by members of the workshop "and appear to be exceptionally good."

Small Fee For Rent

"Hollywood is just chock-full of young people who want to get on the stage so a movie casting director will see them," Jean explains. "But we'll have none of these. The movies are fine, of course, and I intend no slight when I say that we will not do business with movie-struck youngsters. We'll weed them out if they accidentally get in, and refund their tuition."

'Torch Murder' Trial

Rufus Edwards

After the state had introduced an alleged confession of Rufus Edwards, Thayer, Mo., real estate man, which said he conspired to have his 27 year old stepson, Oscar Bushart, slain last July, the prosecution rested its case in the "torch murder" trial at West Plains, Mo. Edwards, shown in the courtroom, was beneficiary of a $4,000 insurance policy on his stepson's life, according to authorities.

Will Durant Gives Forum Lecture to Capacity Crowd

Philosopher Tells Of Plan for Cure Of Depression

"Liberalism has failed to achieve its goal in the past because it has appealed to the weak," Will Durant, philosopher and lecturer, told a capacity crowd of faculty members and students attending the first panel forum lecture in the house chamber of Old Capitol yesterday.

"Liberalism has made the wrong approach because it has appealed to the failures to rise in their weakness and control the strong," he declared.

Hope Lies In Students
"The hope for America lies not in the professors who are necessarily specialists' expert in analysis rather than in statesmanlike synthesis, but in university and college students who will be sufficiently seasoned in radicalism and grounded in intelligence to make changes."

"If I had been president in 1932, I would have asked business men to come to Washington and work out their own rules of fair competition and discipline and to solve their own problems," Mr. Durant responded in answer to a question from the panel.

"I would have socialized the natural resources, nationalized transportation, given the government the control of the credit structure, and then proceeded to build a society to my liking," he continued with a rueful smile.

Defines Civilization
Defining civilization as a social order promoting cultural creation in which economic provision, political organization, moral order, and cultural creation are important elements, the famous philosopher in 60 minutes reviewed the significant aspects in the rise of civilization, the growth of culture, and the present status of the western world.

"When we consider that greed has operated in the blood of men for countless ages, and that a sense of conscience is a deposit left in the memory after accepting prohibitions, when we remember the long ages and unconscious, blind groping that has gone into the making of a civilization, we are impressed with the impossibility of attempting to reconstruct a social order in one administration or even one generation," he said.

Freedom A Luxury
"Freedom is a luxury arising out of order," he asserted. "It is made possible only by the fact that we limit ourselves in certain ways. When a state is threatened freedom disappears."

Discussing social institutions, Mr. Durant said that marriage was economic as well as sexual in its basis. Polygamy is a luxury with only 10 per cent of the men in any nation can afford to practice.

Reviewing the whole history of economics, politics, morals, education, art, and literature, Mr. Durant discussed everything from birth control and racial mixtures to beauty, or lack of it, in modern art. He stood his ground undismayed when confronted with a series of questions, any one of which would have confounded the ordinary individual.

Discusses Church
"The essential function of religion in society is to give the belief of people to provide supernatural encouragement and a foundation for social belief. The individual has been socialized through the church," he said.

"The Protestant church in America should forget its cathedrals and fine altar cloths and go out into the crossroads and preach Christ's gospel, not dogma, if it would preserve itself," the speaker declared. "Protestantism has attempted to substitute the sermon for the drama of the mass."

"Civilization rises out of rich soil, favorable trade locations, physiological vigor, and social discipline and order," he explained. "Essentially, civilization is built on soil and character." It dies through exhaustion of the soil, changed trade routes, human and physiological decay; or it may die from an excess or lack of racial mixture, concentration of wealth, birth control, death of religion, or a series of revolutions.

Warns Of Race Mixture
"If we are to preserve and develop civilization, we should develop medicine on a national scale so that motherhood for the physi-

pression have all aided in sealing the fate of this portion of the new deal. The final authoritative blow was delivered by the supreme court when, on May 27, Chief Justice Hughes calmly said "On both the grounds we have discussed, the attempted delegation of legislative power, and the attempted regulation of interstate transaction which affect interstate commerce only indirectly, we hold the code provisions here in question to be invalid and that the judgment of conviction must be reversed."

Just why is such a calm and judicious statement said to be the most momentous decision rendered by the supreme court since the Dred Scott decision preceding the Civil war? The significance of the decision, of course, may be best judged by history. But there are, nevertheless, some highly significant problems presented.

Nation Changed

group of straggling colonies to a vast and mighty nation. We have changed from a rural to an urban nation; from an agricultural to an industrial nation; from the days of oxen to the days of flashing streamlined trains and roaring power; from a direct and personal economy to an intricate and impersonal economy; and from a debtor to a creditor nation. All of this time we have altered but little the written document known as the constitution of the United States. Yet, every school-boy knows how we have expanded that document and how the constitution is a flexible instrument suited to meet the great stresses of a growing and expanding nation.

We fought a Civil war, constitutionally speaking, to preserve a "union" and to settle once and for all the doctrine that this is an "indissoluble union" made up of "indestructible states." Ever since the Civil war the main trend of our political life has been upon the side of an "indissoluble union" rather than that of "indestructible states." The peak of this trend, if we are to believe the "grass root" convention, is now reached and a return to state authority and control is at hand.

One Of Many Forces
One of the many forces causing this move seems to be the recent decision of the supreme court. Since the early days of John Marshall, the court has expanded and enlarged the meaning of the clause giving to congress the authority to regulate interstate commerce. It was thought by some students that the court would again expand that term so as to meet the demands of a complex and national economic system. But the court, speaking as a unanimous body, left no doubt as to their position. In clear-cut language, Mr. Chief Justice Hughes said:

"It is not the province of the court to consider the economic advantages or disadvantages of such a centralized system. It is sufficient to say that the federal constitution does not provide for it. Our growth and development have called for wide use of the commercial power of the federal government in its control over the expanded activities of interstate commerce, and in protecting that commerce from burdens, interferences, and conspiracies to restrain or monopolize it.

"But the authority of the federal government may not be pushed to such an extent as to destroy the distinction, which the commerce clause itself establishes, between commerce among the several states and the internal concerns of a state."

Two Possible Paths
This statement assures us that we live under a federal system and that the constitution of the United States can not be so interpreted as to destroy the geographical distribution of authority set up by the framers of our fundamental law. Perhaps the decision means that we are entering again into one of those periods of reaction which have marked each strong movement toward greater centralization of power in the hands of the national government. Perhaps, too, it means that we are entering an era of stronger state authority. These are questions upon which it is foolhardy for one to predict. Only history can give us the answers.

There are those who object strenuously to the deeper implications of the decision. Some would have us believe that the decision makes governmental control of our economic life an impossibility. It is argued that our economic life is so complex and so wide-spread as to render state regulation both impossible and impracticable. These same people believe that the national government, and it alone, is capable of effective regulation. It was their hope that the court would again enlarge the meaning of the commerce clause and thus allow national regulation of our industrial structure. The defeat of their hopes leaves them fearful lest we enter into another period of unregulated competition and be faced once more with dreaded spectacle of "economic suicide" through price-cutting and wage-cutting practices.

Those people who believe in a strong, highly centralized government find no comfort in the recent decision of the supreme court.

Places Question
On the other hand, there are those who rejoice in the deeper implications of the decision. They feel the fundamentals of our constitutional system have been carefully analyzed and that the court has found no way for the government of the United States to "regiment industry and agriculture." At least, these people claim, it can not be done without altering our fundamental law. This point of view postulates that it is highly desirable for governmental powers to be decentralized and that in this way we avoid the possibilities of placing our liberties at the mercy of a highly developed and self-satisfied bureaucracy.

It seems quite apparent that the recent decision of the supreme court places this question before the people of the United States: Do we want to amend the constitution of the United States so as to allow national regulation of our industrial life? Or, shall we leave the regulation of productive industries in the hands of the states? To put it differently, shall we call a halt to the trend towards greater centralization of power and authority in the national government, or shall we continue along the line of a stronger central government?

NEW YORK (AP)—Francis Albertant, well-known New York newspaperman, announced yesterday he had resigned as publicity director for Madison Square Garden and would manage a tour of the United States by James J. Braddock, newly crowned heavyweight champion.

NEW YORK (AP)—Six University of Southern California stars furnished the fireworks here today as the great Trojan track and field team defeated Ohio State's crew, led by Jesse Owens, 9 to 6 before 40,000 persons.

Two slender high hurdlers, Phil Cope and Roy Staley, running a dead heat, flashed over the tall timbers in 14.2 seconds to tie a four year old world mark, while the Trojan mile relay combination shaved two-tenths of a second off the accepted world's record in the baton passing event, rushing through their paces in 3 minutes, 12.4 seconds.

It was highly improbable, however, that this mark would receive sanction, since the Buckeye team failed to pass the baton instead, raced Troy home in remarkable fast time.

Lovelock's time was 4 minutes, 11.2 seconds, far short of the mark which it had expected would be produced by a gathering of the world's fastest milers.

The Kelly Bros. Oilers, I.S.A. leaders with five triumphs against one defeat, travel to Charles City this morning where they will cross clubs with the Hawks at 8:30 in the evening.

In spite of the opposition's pitcher, Bob Johns, who is regarded as one of the outstanding performers in Iowa, the Oilers are favored to continue their victory march. The locals annexed a 3 to 0 decision in their first meeting here June 7.

Manager Ted Watkins will probably start the same lineup which defeated Marshalltown Friday night, with the possible exception of Casey Doney, who was out with a bad arm in the Shrift clash, back at first and Kerr shifting over to second.

The locals will be counting upon Ebert, Otto, Dvorsky, Maher, "Chip" Fay and Pooler to supply most of the stickwork tonight. Dvorsky, although not a full regular, tops the hitters with a .400 average. Otto has a mark of .300 and is followed by Maher with .288. Ebert, with .272, Fay, with .250, and Pooler with .230 are other ranking hitters.

Explanation Of "Strange As It Seems"

Tom Cribb first came into fistic prominence when in 1807 he stepped forward to claim the heavyweight title after Henry Pearce Cribb fought One-eye Belcher, former champion, to a finish in 41 rounds—and fought battle after battle for the next four years, stopping all contenders—and in 1811 he suddenly ran out of opponents. In spite of the fact that he had a standing challenge to fight any man in the world, he went without a fight for 11 years and retired undefeated in 1822 when he was 41 years old.

Deadline Coming June 30 Last Day To Pay Old Age Tax, Smith Says

The last day of grace for payment of the old age assistance tax without penalty is June 30, it was announced yesterday by W. E. Smith, county treasurer.

Mr. Smith also emphasized the fact that June 30 is the last day for persons required to pay the old age tax to get credit for the amount of their per capita tax of $2 on their local poll tax.

At the recent session of the legislature, Mr. Smith pointed out, the delinquency date for all property taxes was extended from April 1 to July 1. The legislators included the old age assistance tax. A penalty of one per cent a month will be attached to the old age tax after July 1.

The general assembly struck from the old age assistance law the clause providing for an offset of the amount of the old age tax against poll taxes for street, road and other purposes, effective July 1.

Corner Turned Farmers in County Report 43 Per Cent Income Increases

"Around the corner" has been shaved off the prosperity legend! Farmers in Johnson county and throughout the state of Iowa closed their books at the end of the first quarter of 1935 showing a 43 per cent increase in income from livestock, crops, and benefit payments over the same period of 1934, Emmett C. Gardner, county agent, said yesterday.

Basing conclusions upon figures and facts released by extension economists at Iowa State college, Mr. Gardner showed the cash income of farmers in March to total about $38,500,000 as compared with $26,600,000 received in March, 1934. These figures include benefit payments.

The March, 1935, cash income to Iowa farmers was only slightly over $16,000,000.

Only Illinois and Indiana showed greater increases in income for the first quarter of the year than Iowa farmers. Iowa farmers had a greater cash income than farmers of any other state for the first three months of the year, Mr. Gardner pointed out.

More than $21,250,000 came to Iowa farmers during the first three months from benefit payments. Sale of crops netted from Iowa livestock and livestock products alone was greater than that from any other state.

"There is every reason to believe that the next quarter of 1935 will also show big gains in income for the Iowa and especially Johnson county farmers as compared with the corresponding months of 1934," Mr. Gardner said.

"Livestock prices are likely to continue high and benefit payments will be even larger this year," he concluded.
