Joe Louis Scores Technical Knockout Over Carnera in Sixth Before 70,000

Detroit Brown Bomber Finds Italian Easy

Fight Stopped After Primo Floored 3 Times; Meets Baer

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 25 (AP)—The brown bombshell from Detroit, Joe Louis, exploded with shocking violence in a prize ring just off second base tonight.

He stunned Primo Carnera, monster man from Italy, into helplessness and possibly oblivion in six rounds, and left an amazing crowd of close to 70,000 dazed and shell-shocked in his wake.

Never once blinking eyes that were oval pools of black murder, never changing his expression, the 27-year-old Negro maimed the massive Carnera with a volley of fists and lefts to the head in the first round, kept him dizzy for the next five, then blew him down three times in the sixth.

The size of the crowd, greatest since Max Schmeling won the heavyweight title from Jack Sharkey before 79,222 persons in this ring on a foul in 1930, was almost as astonishing as the merciless exhibition of the brown boy who fought his first professional fight only a year ago.

Receipts were estimated by Promoter Mike Jacobs at close to $400,000 as the fight business, both financially and artistically, staged a great comeback from Jimmy Braddock's stolid heavyweight title conquest of Max Baer less than two weeks ago before a crowd of 30,000 paying $200,000.

Louis, all that the vest said he was as he knocked out 18 men in the 22 fights he has had as a professional, spotted the giant 6-1-2 pounds and still had little trouble cutting him down as an expert woodman with a two edged axe who fell a monster oak in a forest.

Shuffling forward, his face white in action as boyish and unmoved as when he sat calmly waiting the starting bell, Louis the 196-pounder, lashed out suddenly near the start of the first round with a left hook that nearly tore away the lower half of Carnera's head. The giant, all waving arms and stumbling legs when he is hurt, sought desperately to grab the youngster, lean on him, batter him in the clinches.

Joe just moved away, and then moved back, to fling a long right into Primo's mouth that tore the lips, and started blood flowing, then to nail him again with a right that sent ripples of startled reactions from muscles all over Carnera's monstrous, bulgy-thewed, 260-1-2 pound frame.

Arbitrators Reach Deadlock in Omaha Strike Negotiations

OMAHA, Neb., June 25 (AP)—An apparently hopeless dead lock over the seniority question tonight threatened to bring about a renewal of the Omaha street car strike.

Non-striking employees of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company have declined to arbitrate the question. State Senator George T. Sullivan, attorney for the strikers, late today declared that unless the question is speedily settled the strikers will send a committee to Governor R. L. Cochran at Lincoln, to inform him the strike is on again.

Il Duce Talks Over Situation With A. Eden

ROME, June 25—Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Capt. Anthony Eden of Great Britain talked for an hour "with the greatest frankness" about Ethiopia this afternoon, but British and Italian spokesmen both said afterward they reached no agreement.

An official communique issued after the conference, which wound up the two days' conversations between the statesmen, merely mentioned the fact that the Ethiopian question had been discussed, failing to indicate whether any progress had been made.

Both sides emphasized that the conversation was only an exchange of views, the Italian spokesmen saying Eden made no offers or proposals for settlement of the African issue and the British commenting that the "British and Italian viewpoints were fully set out."

Ethiopia Rejects Italian Protest

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, June 25 (AP)—Ethiopia today curtly rejected an Italian protest that the empire was absorbing the sultanate of Jimma, at the same time that her foreign minister denied reports that Moslem aid had been sought against Italy.

The reply to Italy termed her communication regarding Jimma "non-pertinent" and "objectless," since Jimma had always been an integral part of the empire, administered by the central government like other provinces.

Johnson Will Head Relief In New York

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson tonight stepped into one of the biggest jobs of his public career—the administration of federal work relief in New York city.

The former administrator of NRA was appointed in Washington as the city's works progress administrator, the announcement coming from Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of the $4,000,000,000 federal works fund.

Appointment of the dynamic NRA chief as the result of unremitting effort on the part of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia to obtain him for the job.

Outstanding in Johnson's stipulations for accepting the job is that he works without pay, receiving only per diem expenses of $25. He works only four days a week, with the understanding the job terminates Oct. 1 unless the president and himself consider his continuance necessary.

With more than a million and a half persons on relief in New York city at a monthly expenditure of more than $20,000,000, Johnson will direct a work and relief operation of a magnitude hardly excelled by any single work-relief unit other than the federal government itself.

The appointment climaxes a period of upheaval and dissatisfaction in the civil relief administration here.

Admit Cutting Will to Probate Leaves LaFollette $75,000, Friend Gets $150,000

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—The late Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico today parceled out to relatives and friends—including Wisconsin's progressive Senator LaFollette—his $3,976,260 estate.

His will, admitted to probate today, listed more than a million dollars in cash bequests.

All of the members of his Washington office force, staff members of his newspaper—The Santa Fe New Mexican—and friends in high places and low were remembered in the 133 bequests.

In memory of the battles he had waged for progressive legislation side by side with LaFollette he left the Wisconsin senator $50,000 while his brother, Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin was bequeathed $25,000.

The largest personal bequest went to Jesus M. Baca, a close friend of Cutting's and his associate in matters of veteran's welfare, a subject close to Cutting's heart. Baca was left $150,000 and Cutting's Santa Fe paper.

Tax Bill Will Be Hastened Toward Goal

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Despite sharp threats of organized opposition, President Roosevelt's proposal for high taxes on great fortunes successfully passed its first congressional test tonight with a decision by the senate finance committee to proceed at once with the briefest possible open hearings.

Driving toward the goal of enactment by Saturday night, Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) said the procedure to be followed may bring about the unusual situation of having a portion of the program debated on the senate floor while other provisions are still in his committee.

Loss Faced
The program, estimated by Harrison to yield the treasury $340,000,000 annually through new taxes on incomes of more than $1,000,000, inheritances of more than $300,000 and increased rates on corporation income, is to be attached to the pending $500,000,000 nuisance tax resolution.

Unless that resolution is adopted by Saturday night the nuisance levies will expire automatically. Harrison said that regardless of a consequent loss of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 daily, should final action be delayed beyond that time, the leadership is going ahead with the program.

This decision was reached in the face of open resentment among some house members, rising opposition in the senate and the threat of a filibuster by Senator Clark (D-Mo.).

Brief Hearings
Opponents of haste, including several who like Clark are for the proposed rates, stirred up a battle in the committee meeting late today, which culminated in a vote to proceed. Harrison said this battle was later stricken from the record.

The committee listened to tax experts from the treasury and recessed until tomorrow morning.

"There will be brief public hearings," Harrison told newsmen, adding with a chuckle, "if anybody wants to be heard, but they will not last more than two days. The conclusion was reached that if anyone wants to be heard we will hear them."

Japs Again On Move In China

Blame Attitude On Reports Chinese Fired on Japs
TOKYO, June 26 (Wednesday, AP)—Japanese military leaders decided early today in Hsinking that military operations were necessary to clear up the situation of the Jehol-Chahar border and immediately ordered a Manchukuo detachment to attack "offending" Chinese forces, said a Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatch.

The decision was taken at an emergency staff meeting after Chinese forces were said to have fired on a Manchukuo border patrol commanded by Japanese officers.

A Japanese garrison at Jehol City was already prepared for an immediate advance into China's Chahar province and was awaiting only the word from Hsinking to go, Rengo reported.

Not the Courage
Eicher contended that "if congress has not the courage" to break up the holding companies, the securities commission, to which the house bill would leave that discretionary duty, would not be able "to resist the pressure" against abolition.

A new cash bonus payment plan was shaped with the idea that it might be laid across the path of the new tax bill in the house.

Three Day Service Over Ocean Seen

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25 (AP)—Three days from here to China.

That's the air transport schedule the Pan-American Airways announced today for its projected $500 million trans-Pacific route.

V. E. Chena, general traffic manager of the company, made the announcement during a stopover here on a 25,000-mile inspection tour of the company's lines which has taken him to South America.

"We hope to start service the last part of September or early in October," he exclaimed. "The first Martin—the ships to be used will be 44 passenger Martin Clippers—is ready for final tests. We plan to have one round trip a week, but the exact schedules will depend upon steamship sailings and other connecting dates, with view to giving the best service."

Mitchell, Murphy Discuss Iowa Political Situation at Meeting

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Iowa's democratic political situation was the subject of close discussion here today as John H. Mitchell, speaker of the Iowa house of representatives, conferred with Senator Murphy (D-Ia.).

Neither had much to say about the conference but it was understood the various possibilities of 1936 were discussed in considerable detail. Mitchell acknowledged the political situation in Iowa was considered. He stopped off here en route to New York on legal business but planned to spend most of tomorrow conferring with members of the Iowa delegation. Besides Murphy, he saw only Representative Jacobson (D-Ia.) today.

Mitchell said he got the impression the possibilities of Representative Utterback (D-Ia.) becoming a democratic candidate for governor had been discussed considerably here. He did not care to comment, however, until he could discuss the situation with Utterback personally.

Whether Mitchell was to go into the situation on behalf of Governor Clyde L. Herring, who is reported planning to seek a third term, was a subject of some speculation in Iowa circles here.

Despite the reports Utterback might enter the race for governor, his personal preference is known to be for making the race for the senate seat now held by Senator Dickinson. Removal of Utterback from the senatorial race, say Iowans interested in drafting him for governor, also would clarify the senate situation.

Clerks Collecting Letters Subpenaed by Graft Grand Jury

Want Reports Of Gambling Machine, Liquor Violators
DES MOINES, June 25 (AP)—Filing clerks in three state departments tonight were collecting official correspondence subpoenaed by the Woodbury county graft grand jury.

Horace M. Havner, special Woodbury county prosecutor, demanded the records. The subpoenas went to Mrs. Alma K. Berry, secretary to Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor, Glenn L. Schmidt, acting chief of the state bureau of investigation, and W. H. Millhaem, executive assistant to the Iowa liquor control commission.

The grand jury will reconvene at Sioux City tomorrow after a lengthy recess. The subpoenas served on the state officials today call for their appearance with the records at 9 a.m. Thursday.

The Berry subpoena demanded letters, telegrams and communications received or sent from the attorney general's office during 1933, 1934, and 1935 regarding slot machine or liquor-law violations.

Particularly, the Berry subpoena demanded communications and reports of state investigators and members of the law enforcement division of the state liquor commission.

Schmidt was ordered to produce all records and communications concerning slot machines and liquor law violations received by the bureau of investigation from Governor Herring, O'Connor, or Joe M. Wood.

Schmidt said he was unable to explain who Wood was and Havner declined to clarify the language of the subpoena.

Waters Sweep Newly Planted Fields; Winds Drop Buildings

SIoux CITY RECEIVES BRUNT OF WIND AS RIVERS RISE HIGHER IN SOUTHERN BOTTOMS
DES MOINES, June 25 (AP)—Raging flood waters threatened new crop and property damage to sections of Iowa tonight on the heels of a wind and rain storm which resulted in thousands of dollars loss.

A wind storm accompanied by heavy rain struck Crawford County today. At Schleswig, which suffered the brunt of the storm's attack, the wind demolished buildings, ripped off roofs, wove barns from their foundations and tore shingles off residences.

A barn on the Henry Schroeder farm was demolished. The wind also ripped the roof off his cattle barn. The shingles were stripped from his house.

Highest Water
A corn crib on the farm of Raymond Bielenberg was moved four inches off its foundation. The wind blew down the east end of the Flamore dance pavilion at the edge of Schleswig.

At Deloit City nearly four inches of rain drenched the town, ruining gardens and filling basements with water.

The Des Moines river, already pouring over its bank into the lowlands, rose steadily tonight.

Government meteorologist Charles D. Reed warned river residents to prepare for the highest water in recent years.

The weather bureau, however, predicted a return to normal weather tonight and tomorrow.

The rain storm struck hardest in central and south-central Iowa, but hail and wind left a trail of uprooted trees, broken window panes, and damaged buildings in northwestern Iowa. Sioux City received the brunt of the attack.

Ottumwa Warned
The wind and rain disrupted communications, uprooted trees, and lifted the roofs off barns at Marshalltown.

Small streams flooded lowlands in all sections of central and south-central Iowa.

Reed advised residents along 100 mile trip of the Des Moines river to take emergency flood precautions.

He warned residents at Ottumwa they may expect the river to rise above the 3-foot flood stage tomorrow, and climb to a height of 12 to 13 feet by Friday.

He said "This will be more than a foot higher than the recent flood and the highest in recent years."

A week ago today the river at Ottumwa surged above the flood stage, forcing lowland residents to vacate their homes temporarily.

The river rose fast today at Tracy, southeast of Des Moines. Reed said it would pass the flood stage of 14 feet tonight and reach a top stage of 17 to 18 feet tomorrow.

Fed by more than 3 inches of rain last night, the river at Fort Dodge rose six feet.

Pocahontas in northwest Iowa received 3.46 inches of rain during the last 24 hours. Humboldt had 3.55, Indianola 3.17, Webster City 3.90, Knoxville 2.15, and Des Moines 1.97. The most severe damage resulted (Turn to page 2)

Wed'ng Bells Will Ring Today For Dysart Man, Mail-Order-Bride

There'll be a "hot time" in Dysart tonight. The bands will play, wedding bells will ring, and the town fathers will stage a bovery dance.

"Forget-it-all!"
And all because of a mail-order wedding, a Dysart man, dressed in a lavender suit and hat, told local hotel attendants and bus drivers.

The Dysart man waited two hours for his bride-to-be from New York. She arrived in Iowa City last night following a three day bus trip and wanted to "forget-it-all."

Thrown in
Her son, Jarvis, 11, was thrown in on the bargain, according to the man's conversation.

Everyone in Dysart will turn out for the gala event.

Protestants Attempt To Break Parade Of Roman Catholics

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 25 (AP)—Religious rioting broke out again in Edinburgh tonight when thousands of Protestants attempted to break up an organized procession of the Blessed Sacrament by members of the Roman Catholic community.

The procession was in connection with the Eucharistic congress being held here.

300 Police Called
Main streets adjoining the grounds at St. Andrew's priory were jammed with Protestants and the rioting spread so quickly that 300 police, including mounted officers, were called out to handle the situation.

Cries of "No Popery" and "Down with the Pope" were hurled at the Catholics as they arrived at the priory. The crowd continued shouting during the service.

A similar riot yesterday, in which police charged some 3,000 Protestants who hurled bottles and stones at Catholic women and priests, today resulted in conviction of seven men of creating a breach of the peace. They were fined 10 pounds ($50 each, failing payment of which they were to serve one month in jail.

WATERS
Ruin New Crops Through Iowa

In southern Iowa, burned by drought last year. In this section where wet weather has prevented many farmers from getting in a crop, fields again were soaked, small grains beaten down and the soil badly gullied.

One bright spot in the weather picture is that the heavy rains have virtually eliminated the chinch bug infestation which earlier threatened severe damage.

Suffer Less
Northern Iowa crops suffered less damage since the land is flat and the soil is less subject to erosion. The wind and rain, however, flattened small grain in some sections and checked progress in the hay harvest.

James E. Bennett and company's Ft. Dodge, Iowa, office reported, however, "this deluge was entirely unwelcomed and did not soak in on top of the 4-1-4 inches we had a few days ago. Corn fields are standing in water this morning and cultivating will be impossible for several days. Early oats which are headed were badly lodged by last night's downpour. Warm dry weather is needed to prevent further deterioration."

Hollywood Fashion Parade

By JOHN SELBY
"The Intrusive Tourist," by Mrs. Ballie Reynolds; (Crime Club).

"The Intrusive Tourist" is one of those mysteries with an English setting and a faint flavor of Mrs. Belloc Lowndes over all the doings therein.

It begins when a slightly shabby (but of course gentlemanly) chap speaks to a very attractive girl named Vanora May. Vanora is inside the gates of Mayton, the gentlemanly chap is outside. He wants in, and asks Vanora to admit him.

She does. With quite remarkable courtesy, she not only shows him the exterior of the old Tudor house, but admits him through its fine door into the equally fine great hall, and at last decides to show him the library. She has only just stepped inside the library, having carelessly left the house keys in the lock, when the door is slammed behind her, and the intrusive tourist has her a prisoner.

By the time she has telephoned Sir Rodney, her brother, and Sir Rodney has rounded up a small expeditionary force and released her, the stranger (whose name is Gerard Athred) had had 15 minutes on the second floor, which is what he wanted all the time. As the party starts up to search for him, he walks calmly down into its midst.

He has stolen nothing, although the constable searches him. What is more, even Sir Rodney rather likes the chap. But when Vanora searches the upper hall, she finds some peculiar marks on an old plaster wall. And when she puts the marks together in a certain way, they spell the name "John Otway." And John Otway, it develops, is a name rather intimately connected with the history of all concerned.

There is really very little mystery in the book, so it would not be fair to disclose any of it, not even what Gerard was trying to prove. Nor is the romantic element particularly obscure; one gets a good hint in the first chapter. Mrs. Ballie Reynolds' occasional late-Victorian cliches need not be enlarged upon either.

"The Intrusive Tourist" is a book for a lazy day, when a difficult puzzle would be too much effort.

Leaders at Odds
House and senate banking leaders were definitely and openly at odds tonight over the proposed year extension of the present temporary bank deposit insurance.

Assurances by Senator Glass (D. Va.) that the administration banking bill with its centralized credit control would not be delayed, prompted swift senate approval of the separate extension resolution.

Unless the house takes similar action this week, present provisions of the law raising the 100 per cent guaranty from $5,000 to $10,000 and lifting limits on the liability of insured banks will become effective next Monday.

Court Convicts Barrister Of Aiding Meter

CHICAGO, June 25 (AP)—Louis P. Piquett—target No. 1 in the government's efforts to exterminate "lawyer-criminals"—was speedily convicted today of harboring Homer Van Meter, machine gunner of the Dillinger mob.

A federal court jury deliberated a little more than an hour before reaching a verdict in the case of the gray haired barrister the prosecution had called the "mouthpiece" of the notorious gang.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan deferred passing sentence until arguments on a motion for a new trial are heard Thursday.

Facing a maximum prison term of two years and a fine of $10,000, Piquett received the verdict without a trace of meedon.

He kissed his wife, then asserted: "I'm going to fight this out to the end."

The jury was given the case against John Dillinger's attorney at 1:30 p. m. It found him guilty at 3:40, after spending an hour at lunch. Three ballots were reported to have been taken.

"The President's new tax program is perfect. It is perfect in principle. It remains for him to carry through. The plan is not radical. It is not a share-the-wealth program."

"That is a misnomer. It is a share-the-burden-of-debt program."

Rising Prices Bring Fear Of Possible Strike

AAA Officials
pect Rise of M
Cost to Continue

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Rising meat prices today had agriculture adjustment officials wondering whether they might have a possible consumers' strike.

Protests over the recent increase in beef, pork and lamb prices are being dropped by the agriculture department. Some have reached the point where they have appealed to the department over AAA processing taxes and what are termed the "packers' squeeze." Rumors that efforts would be made by some organizations to have consumers strike have been refuted by AAA officials and Chairman (D. S. C.) of the senate agriculture committee.

Farm administration officials say they were looking toward continued rise in meat prices and there was little they could do about it. As a barometer of meat prices, AAA officials were looking to the spring marketing crop report due Friday.

Senator Smith said "the meat prices are the natural result of two factors; first the artificial government destruction of piglets and second, the extreme drought of last year cut the food supply of many to support cattle, hogs, sheep that survived."

"The prices will continue to rise unless the consumers buck up and resist the resistance to a consumer strike, or their inability to eat."

Stirs Legislators
A short time before, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, stirred the legislators to cheers with the announcement that the reich had given her pledge to adhere to the rules and regulations regarding submarine warfare in part four of the Washington treaty, regardless of the attitude of other powers.

Baldwin said plans for further bilateral discussions similar to those which resulted in the 100-35 naval ratio between Britain and Germany had not been completed.

Sir Bolton told the commons the reich had agreed to observe the Washington treaty's restrictions on submarine warfare "irrespective of whether they are adhered to by other powers."

The company countered the union's move by closing the plant as soon as picketing began, and announcing the plant would be closed indefinitely. Union officials said the plant will be picketed 24 hours a day.

New Weather Reports Will Make History

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—The recorders of the nation's weather today gave mother nature another black mark for the way she has treated the United States during the last six months.

"The country has suffered through a violent half year of localized disturbances—a period of intensified freakish phenomena," said J. B. Kincer, chief of the weather bureau, as his staff finished tabulations from January to mid-June.

Down in History
"The first six months of 1935 weather will go down in natural history for all time as the year of the great dust storms, the widest spread the country has ever known."

Added to this are the widespread floods now harming the corn crop in the middle western valleys, and the blizzards of last winter which whipped through New England and turned the Atlantic into a tempest for nearly two months.

"In southwestern Indiana less than a third of the corn crop has been planted in some sections," Kincer said "and from one-fourth

Scientist Declares Earth Will Someday Become Molten Star

LOS ANGELES, June 25 (AP)—The earth is getting hotter all the time.

Some day it may take its place among the stars.

That was the picture presented tonight by one of the world's famous geologists, Dr. Bailey Willis, 78, president of the Pacific division, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"The Living Globe" was the title of his address before the nineteenth annual convention of the Pacific division, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Tiny atoms, whose energies modern physicists say exceed the greatest force which mankind ever envisioned, are making the earth hotter and hotter, within, he said.

Half the earth, the central core, 4,000 miles in diameter, consists of heavy elements such as iron, nickel, the precious metals and radium, heated to a temperature of many thousand degrees.

Great Heat
"This heat is far beyond that at which any substance can remain solid, unless the enormous pressure of two or three million atmosphere kept it from melting," he said.

Newton Fetes Legion Leader

Parades, Closing Of Stores Honors F. N. Belgrano, Herring
NEWTON, Ia., June 25 (AP)—All Newton joined in celebration of National Commander day here today in honor of Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., American Legion national commander.

A program of parades, band and drum corps competitions and receptions for visiting officials was climaxed tonight with an address in which Belgrano pledged a continued American Legion campaign for immediate payment of the soldier's bonus.

Business firms closed for the day and even the courts suspended business when District Judge Frank Bechly commented that "there is no use trying to compete with those hands" passing outside in sporadic and impromptu demonstrations. Bunting, grotesque balloons and welcome signs gave a carnival air to the town.

Governor Clyde Herring, Adj. Gen. Charles Grahl, William Rathke of Glenwood, state Legion commander, and Col. Clarence Linniger, commander of the 14th cavalry, were among other honor guests who took the platform with Belgrano.

They Just Keep Multiplying

ACCORDING to Charles P. Stewart, a Washington correspondent, the breaking down and disbanding of the old NRA organization is a monumental undertaking and record breaking in another respect.

Since the dawn of American history, he says, no government commission, bureau, board, administration, or similar set-up, except one, ever has been laid away to rest. Plenty of them have been created supposedly to serve only temporarily, but, once created, they are here—and forever from all indications.

However, there are plenty of reasons to show why the National Screw Thread commission that survived nearly a decade and a half. The one commission to finally be disbanded entirely a year and a half ago was the National Screw Thread commission that survived nearly a decade and a half.

Without taking too seriously the deportation bill being promoted by Representative Dies, we wonder whether it shouldn't be possible to consider the whole question from a rational rather than an emotional view. It will bear considering for the very reason, if no other, that so many are always inclined to react to it emotionally.

Iowa's Public Health Situation

THE QUESTION of primary consideration at the recent annual conference of state and territorial health officers with the surgeon general of the United States Public Health service was title IV of the new economic security act, according to Dr. Joseph H. Kinnaman, director of the division of child health and health education in the Iowa department of health.

Several factors act to limit the extent to which the citizens of Iowa can benefit. First, and the most important is the fact that no legislature of our state has appropriated monies to the department of health to enable it to assist financially, counties in establishing whole-time health units. In Michigan, for example, the state offers each county the sum of $3,000 per annum to help finance public health work effected through full-time personnel comprising a medical officer, a public health nurse, a sanitary engineer, and a clerk.

Other factors which adversely influence Iowa's eligibility to receive its share of these federal monies include: the county, not the township and municipality is the governmental unit eligible to a grant (in Iowa, health boards are comprised of township trustees and town councils—there is no county board of health); Iowa is relatively free from special public health problems such as malaria, plague, hookworm, etc., and the mortality rate from these causes is relatively low as compared with the nation as a whole.

For the nation, the public health provisions of this act are likely to advance the health of its people. Until the Iowa legislature makes its citizenry eligible to share in the benefits, our people will fail to profit extensively from federal legislation.

What's What At a Glance

NEW YORK—Now that the evidence in the trial last January of Bruno Richard Hauptmann is sifted by a higher court, an interesting analysis of the case is called to mind. This analysis appeared last Feb. 21, in The Daily Express of London. It was entitled, "Was Hauptmann Innocent?"

Innocent?" And it was signed "by an eminent English barrister." "I have just been weighing up the evidence in the trial of Richard Hauptmann for the murder of the infant Charles Lindbergh," said the writer.

"I have no hesitation in saying that by our standards he was not tried properly, nor even fairly. On three counts at least the proceedings would have been quashed in this country (England)."

"The prosecuting counsel announced, 'I'll show that Hauptmann was the lowest creature on earth.' One newspaper said, 'Eminent lawyers are convinced of Hauptmann's guilt.' He was generally referred to as 'the criminal.'"

"When Colonel Lindbergh scored a point against the defending counsel there was applause in the court. Whenever a state witness gave a smart answer it was renewed. While the jury considered their verdict the crowd outside shouted, 'Hauptmann must burn!'"

"Such an atmosphere could never have been created over here. The first of the extremely improper comments made would have led to a committal for contempt of court in England."

"The writer has still more objections: 'Before the trial ended the prosecution published a strip of pictures to show how they thought the murdered child was carried down the ladder and how the note demanding a ransom was left on the window-ledge. This was an attempt to bias opinion, and through it the jury. In England it would certainly have led to the conviction being quashed on appeal.'"

"The final speech for the state would have been grossly improper in our courts. Mr. Wientz argued that only a criminal like Hauptmann could have committed such a crime. He dwelt on the accused's past convictions and called him 'that animal, that desperate character, burglar and murderer, Hauptmann,' accusations most of which were never proved in the course of evidence."

What Others Think

Without taking too seriously the deportation bill being promoted by Representative Dies, we wonder whether it shouldn't be possible to consider the whole question from a rational rather than an emotional view. It will bear considering for the very reason, if no other, that so many are always inclined to react to it emotionally.

Now Congressman Dies says there are "around 16,500,000" foreign born in this country, more than seven million of whom have not been naturalized. At any rate the federal census in 1930 showed 14 million foreign born. In the meantime, immigration had declined to some 23,000 in 1933, so that patently the influx of foreign born need not worry anyone much at present. It is those who are already here about whom Mr. Dies would like to stir up some excitement.

And he attempts to justify his campaign by saying that "if there were no aliens in this country we would not have an unemployment problem." That, at the start, needs to be spkled. There are just as many arguments with which to prove that he is wrong about that as there are to prove that he is right. If the 4 or 5 million wage-earners among the foreign born seek jobs to earn a living, they also buy food and clothing and so on for 14 million persons. And even in such countries as Italy and Great Britain, where aliens are no tremendous problem, there is still unemployment and depression when the rest of the world is suffering from the same malady.

Of the 14 million foreign born who were here in 1930, only a fifth of them had arrived since 1919. Were we to begin deporting aliens wholesale, therefore, we should need to understand that the bulk of them would have been American residents, and would have been away from their native countries, for 15 or 20 years at least.

Or consider the mere physical task of uprooting a million or two alien families from their homes, and the task of shipping six million human beings off to some foreign shore. Salted down, Representative Dies' dream becomes something of a grotesque nightmare. As for deporting demonstrably undesirable aliens, including those who are shown to have entered the country illegally, that is something else. The Register is by no means opposed to that, so long as the practice is not abused. But to begin planning a wholesale "purge" that would involve routing out several million persons and driving them off to where they would not necessarily be either welcome or at home—that is just too fantastic. If Congressmen Dies really has five million Americans behind his program, as he claims, it is to be hoped they will stop panting and start thinking.

A Washington Bystander

WASHINGTON—To the casual eye, President Roosevelt might find solace after reading the hard things said about him in the "grievances" section of the republican "grass roots" convention declarations by turning to the " creed" which followed. There is a semblance of endorsement of the "new deal" stated objectives, both long and short range, in the grass roots' "we believe," for all the scathing indictments of the grievances.

Party Fighting Elan To some press onlookers on the spot, the spirit that pervaded the Springfield gathering seemed more important than what it actually did or said. Some sensed a revival fervor, a party fighting elan notably lacking in the '32 and '34 political doings. A tentative call for another regional gathering was an immediate result. It will take in southern border states seasoned geographically with a few of the middle Atlantic and first-tier interior northern group. That suggests, coupled with the cheers evoked at Springfield by a musical reference to Al Smith, that '36 anti-Roosevelt fusion possibilities are still running strong in the minds of some G.O.P. planners. What "Friend Al" thought of puts over constitutionality of "new deal" mechanisms, the south is jealous on that state sovereignty question. Yes it is a safe bet that if the hopes inferentially expressed by the "grass roots" that a constitutional light be realized by the "new deal" should be started, it would be of a very narrow proposition shaped to meet southern fears. The ironically-voiced Borah amendment was just a bit of oratorical byplay; a Borah form of humor, no doubt. He's not much of a jokesmith in or out of the senate.

Dubious Business

Counting conservative chickens among the southern democrats in congress, at least, as already hatched in a fusion incubator would be a dubious business. It might be done, conceivably, if an out-and-out anti-states rights amendment to the constitution were to be the battle ground of '36.

Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—Gladys Swarthout never answers the telephone. She takes very hot drinks and very cold baths to keep cool in the summer-time. She never drinks ice water on the theory that it clogs the arteries and stomach.

And among other things, this slender young opera singer will tell you, if you pursue the subject of keeping fit, is that she "thinks thin." She says anybody can do it. It is simply a matter of learning to choose your food correctly. She says she can eat pastries white bread and cream soups, but that they do not tempt her because she has cultivated a taste for simple foods. And anyone who takes the trouble can learn how delicious broths, lamb, chicken and vegetables really are, not to mention salads, stewed fruits and custard.

"The American girl is a modern Borgia in some respects," says Gladys, here to make her movie debut soon. "She poisons her body by eating starchy foods, breathing improperly and suffering fatigue, fear and boredom. There is no necessity for such a condition, and any girl who cares about her figure can keep it with a minimum of care."

Oh, yes, the telephone! Gladys doesn't answer it, ever, because she believes it is an added wear and tear to hectic city life. Musical Miracle An amazing feat accomplished by the studio sound engineers was the re-recording of two songs, from records, sung by the late Enrico Caruso. His voice was separated from the music on the record, amplified, and put on a sound track with a new orchestra recording. The reason for this was that the records were made by the needle-on-the-record process before electrical recording was perfected, and while the singer's voice reproduced well, the music did not. Stubbornness A movie comic whose liking for the bottle causes him to gain an alarming number of pounds, suddenly quit drinking. It was an agreeable surprise to his friends, to whom he is saying: "I can be as stubborn about not drinking as I was about drinking!" And he was awfully stubborn about the latter.

A New Yorker At Large

By JAMES B. RESTON NEW YORK—Irving Berlin finally came back to Broadway the other day. For seven months he was in Hollywood, the longest time away from town without a run back. What the little fellow lost when people stopped buying sheet music and phonograph records, he has made up through his work for the movies.

But the work-habit of the last 27 years is telling on him now. All through his ascension, he never ceased working when the spirit was on him. Night and day he went at it, scribbling, erasing, fingering the keyboard. And this habit brought him great fame and incalculable fortune, but it also did another thing: it robbed him of the habit of sleep. What he would not give now for a good night's sleep! Sometimes a week goes past and he will get only a few hours' rest. The rest of the time, he lies tossing on his bed, the melodies of the past days work running riot through his whirling brain. But even this has become habit now and he finds that he can get along with only a few hours' sleep. So he prowls at night. He goes to Lindy's when he's in town and to the theater, or to the parties which keep the mind at work until weariness overcomes him. He must watch this too, though, for when he's too tired, sleep is an impossibility. He doesn't like to talk about it.

In Hollywood, Berlin spends most of his leisure time with Jerome Kern, whom he idolizes. For hours, he will talk to you of "Jerry's" great talent. Writing music for Fred Astaire's and Ginger Rogers' latest pictures, Berlin has come to know them well too. With them and Mark Sandrich, the director of the Astaire-Rogers picture, "Top Hat," he spends many of those early morning hours. Berlin likes to reminisce about his music. He recalls how he wrote "Alexander's Rag Time Band" as an instrumental number, and left it on the shelf for over a year before it went back to it and wrote the words.

Glenn Frank to Give Third in University Lecture Series

Lecturer To Appear Here Next Friday

Gilmore to Entertain President of Wisconsin School

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will come to the University of Iowa this week end to present the third in the series of university lectures and panel forums.

The holder of six degrees from American universities, he was born at Queen City, Mo., in 1887. He received B.A. and M.A. degrees from Northwestern University, Litt.D. from Lincoln Memorial University, and the same degree from De Pauw University in 1923.

The University of Michigan awarded him the L.H.D. degree in 1924 and he received a third degree from Northwestern University in 1928.

Possible Nominee

Mentioned several times as a possible nominee for the republican presidential candidate in 1936, President Frank has long been active in the fields of politics and public affairs, and holds membership in a number of national political science organizations.

For four years he was assistant to the president of Northwestern University. From 1916 to 1919 he was associated with Edward A. Filne in research organization. The next three years he was associate editor of the Century magazine later advancing to a position as editor in chief of the same periodical. Since 1925 he has been president of the University of Wisconsin.

Writes Books

He is the author of numerous books on national and world affairs. In 1919 he wrote "The Politics of Industry." Other books that he has written include "An American Looks at His World," "Thunder and Dawn," and "America's Hour of Decision." He is co-author of "Stakes of the War" and "The League of Nations."

In his most recent book, "America's Hour of Decision," Frank presents the various problems facing the United States at the present time, criticizes various phases of the new deal and develops his own theories of the ways and means of saving or making effective our American democracy.

Liberal

Rather liberal in his political leanings, Frank has been the leader of the more progressive thought of the republican party.

He will arrive in Iowa City Friday afternoon and will be entertained while he is here at the home of President and Mrs. Eugene A. Gilmore.

Students, Faculty Of Women's Phys. Ed. Plan Picnic Today

Summer session students of the women's physical education department and faculty will enjoy a "mysterious" picnic this afternoon.

Ellen Mosbeck, instructor in physical education, is in charge of the picnic and will be assisted by Esther Cope, G. of Topeka, Kan.; Lois Brauer, G. of Hampton; Frances Richie and Helen Myers.

Grass Roots Panning Conference Roasts College of Education at Annual Dinner

The college of education was put on the gridiron last night for a roasting before some 400 men students and professors attending the "Grass Roots Panning Conference" at Iowa Union.

In eight or more speeches, tinged with satire and interrupted by the "yaps" and "mays" of assembled delegates, Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education and his staff were scored for their repudiation of "promises of romance, professional advancement, more recreation, and social life held out for summer session students."

Called to Order

The conference, in "celebration of 300 long years of secondary education," was called to order by the pouncing of George E. Davis on a dish pan.

No platform was adopted at the close of the convention for the following reasons: 1. The haste of delegates to hear the Louis-Carnera fight; 2. failure of leaders to effect a compromise between opposing factions as represented in the majority and minority reports.

Prep Debaters On Air Over Station WSUI

A group of 10 all-state high school debaters displayed the result of two weeks speech training in summer session at the University of Iowa in a radio program presented over WSUI last night at 8 o'clock.

The program was a series of extemporaneous speeches. Each member of the class was given a question as he stepped to the microphone and asked to speak on it impromptu, as an exercise in quick organization of material.

Take Leadership

Professor Wood has expressed the belief that artists in the middle west must assume the leadership in a native art movement because the east is still colonial in its attitude.

This spring he was elected and accepted membership in the National Academy of Design. He is now working on a book on regionalism to be completed next fall.

He recently finished a lecture tour which took him to Northwestern University, the University of Wisconsin, Duke University in Durham, N. C., and other points in New York and the middle west.

His works were exhibited this spring in a one man show of 67 canvases at the Donnelly galleries in Chicago. In April the same group was shown in the Ferragil gallery in New York and they are now exhibited in San Francisco.

Tickets for the lecture may be secured at the main desk at Iowa Union.

Grant Wood to Present Lecture On "Regional Painting" in Fine Arts Building Tomorrow at 8

Famed Painter Says Midwest Must Head Native Art Changes

Prof. Grant Wood of the graphic and plastic arts department will present a lecture on "Regional Painting" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the exhibition lounge of the fine arts building.

A leader in the regionalist movement Wood went to France and Germany to study art only to come back to his native state to find art that he could understand and present in a new way. He brought fame to Iowa corn not through music but through his brush which he used to depict a stylized detailed farm life of the middle west.

Study in Angles

His most famous painting is "American Gothic," a study in human and architectural angles. "The Daughters of the American Revolution," a satirical presentation of the raised eyebrows, the sour faces, tormented and tea presented a frank treatment of the subject.

In 1933 Wood was named chairman for Iowa of the PWA to serve under Louis LeBeau of St. Louis, regional director of the CWA art work in several midwestern states. In this capacity with a group of co-artists he made a group of eight murals for the entrance to the main library of Iowa State college at Ames. The murals depicted the work of many of the departments of the college engaged in practical pursuits.

Studies Art

Born 42 years ago in Anamosa he first studied art at the Art Institute at Chicago. Later as a student at the Julian academy in Paris he studied the European art traditions. He left America to get away from the narrow conventions but found similar conventions just as restrictive and narrow in Europe.

While studying in Europe he came in contact with the German primitives—legend of the peasantry. Coming back to this country he brought with him the memory of these early artists and he had not been in Iowa long until he found their American equivalent in the simple farm life and rural scenes.

Life begins at 44 for Ira Henderson, 44 year old oil field worker of Waynesburg, Pa., who has just been graduated from Waynesburg college after a long wait of 26 years.

Grass Roots Panning Conference Roasts College of Education at Annual Dinner

The college of education was put on the gridiron last night for a roasting before some 400 men students and professors attending the "Grass Roots Panning Conference" at Iowa Union.

In eight or more speeches, tinged with satire and interrupted by the "yaps" and "mays" of assembled delegates, Dean Paul C. Packer of the college of education and his staff were scored for their repudiation of "promises of romance, professional advancement, more recreation, and social life held out for summer session students."

Called to Order

The conference, in "celebration of 300 long years of secondary education," was called to order by the pouncing of George E. Davis on a dish pan.

No platform was adopted at the close of the convention for the following reasons: 1. The haste of delegates to hear the Louis-Carnera fight; 2. failure of leaders to effect a compromise between opposing factions as represented in the majority and minority reports.

Dark Bomber Kayoes Primo In 6th Round

half a dozen years ago, trudging Italian hills with bags wound around his feet for shoes, was maimed again, just as he was maimed in the first round as another puncher, Max Baer, took his heavyweight title away a year ago.

There was a look of horror in his eyes, as Louis, never winking, never moving so much as a muscle of his

BULLETIN
NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Joe Louis will be matched for a 15-round bout with Max Baer, former world heavyweight champion, this fall, Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting club announced tonight immediately after the Detroit Negro's knockout victory over Primo Carnera. The fight will be held in one of the New York ball parks around world series time, Jacobs said.

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Promoters of the Louis-Carnera fight tonight announced the paid attendance was 57,000. This was considerably below ring-side estimates, based on the appearance of a near-capacity crowd in the Yankee stadium. The net receipts were tentatively fixed at $277,000.

face, effortless, crowded him to the ropes in the second round and slugged his body with both hands. Primo's seconds were screaming for him to "stay in close," to hug the Little Brown Destroyer, to smother him in his great arms, rough him around, batter his body.

Good Advice—But Futile
It was good advice, but for Primo it was like trying to smother an exploding hand grenade with his torso.

Methodically, relentlessly, Louis went about his work. He waited for openings in the third, shaking the pounding giant only now and then with his whipping fists, fists that traveled faster than the eyes could follow sometimes, that landed with the impact of Dum-Dum bullets. Joe slowed so in the fourth, though he had Primo wobbling again, that the round was about even—close as Primo ever came to winning anything, even a round in the fight.

The end was visible in the fifth when Louis, taking his time, shifted his attack at will from the trunk body of the colossus to the head. He stood off as Primo, eyes bewildered but courage undimmed, backed around the ring, hands high to catch punches aimed for his head. He caught these, but Joe rifled rights under the heart. Down came the guard and with thudding smashes that echoed through the starting throng Joe crashed the giant's head with both hands. Carnera wobbled to his corner, blood streaming down a chest as big as a schooner's main-sail, at the bell.

Spurred Him On
They spurred him on, there in his corner, to his last effort. Again they told him to rough up the negro who looked slight as a boy beside his massiveness. They told him to hurt Joe around, belt his body in close. Primo went out to do or to die.

He rushed across the ring at the start of the sixth, drove Louis into the ropes, thumbed a heavy right to the body, threw the youngster into a corner. He didn't know it then but he lit right there the fuse of the bombshell.

Louis twisted away, bent low, and though his thick lips never moved, his eyes merely slanted into narrow slits. He whipped suddenly into Carnera with a new ferocity. A long right crashed high on Carnera's head, and across the monster's huge features came a pained, dazed look. Before Primo could get his hands up, Joe smashed him sideways with a left hook squarely to the jaw.

Like a black panther cat, Louis was on him, flashing brown lightning from his side, punches that ripped the giant's head back, sent him floundering, blood rolling down his chin, to his hands and knees.

Mortally wounded as fighters go, Carnera wouldn't stand any more than he would stay down when Baer dripped him cleanly in the championship battle. He rose at knockdown time-keeper Jimmy Crowley's scream of "four" and swayed to face the inevitable.

Carnera An Awesome Sight
Again Louis, still cold and calculating as a straight brawling life, flashed in a surging line, left hook thudding to one side of the head, long clean right to the other. Drunkenly Carnera floundered, an awesome sight, stumbled across the ring, fell flat again.

His seconds pleaded hysterically that he take nine, the full time allowed, but Primo couldn't hear. He wobbled up once more at "four." Once more Louis, calling his shots, let him have it to the chin with both fists. Once more, the monstrous Primo, like a great chimney dynamite that has crumbled to the canvas, bloody, torn, helpless.

Expressionless Face
He could get up again, but that was all. At the count of three he tottered to his feet, swaying drunkenly. There was no expression on his blood-smeared face. He looked suddenly like a crashing storm that has turned into a wreckage-strewn calm.

'Ding' Darling Sees Game Management, Research, As New Field for Colleges

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new field of opportunity for young men who love the outdoors—game management—will open up during the coming year under the sponsorship of J. N. (Ding) Darling, newspaper cartoonist and chief of the United States biological survey. After a year's intensive work Darling has obtained a gift of $30,000 annually from a group of four manufacturers of sporting arms and ammunition which will be used in establishing courses in game management and wildlife research in nine state colleges and universities throughout the country. The states in which the work will be established will be announced early in July. They will be allocated in various sections of the country to promote research and game management under all conditions and among all species of non-migratory wildlife. "Administer Wildlife" "For years colleges and universities have been training foresters and park-planning engineers and developing specialists in the use and preservation of many of our natural resources," Darling said. Omaha Club to Council Bluffs Franchise Travels Across River; Loop Will Operate Team

OMAHA, Neb., June 25 (AP)—The Omaha Western league baseball club today was moved across the Missouri river to Council Bluffs where the league will operate the club for the remainder of the season. The Council Bluffs Junior Chamber of Commerce has taken an option on the club for $2,500, the option to be good until Nov. 10. President Dale Gear of the league, said the league had paid the players part of their back salaries, and would take care of the remaining amount due. The team, in third place, will play at Des Moines tonight. The first home game in Council Bluffs will be played Tuesday night with Sioux City. The game will mark the first venture of Council Bluffs into organized baseball. Joe McDermott will continue as manager of the club and Al Liska, pitcher, will take over the duties of business manager. The Omaha club started the season as the property of Mrs. E. B. Branconier of St. Louis, who lost the franchise a month ago when she failed to place the club at Rock Island for a scheduled series. Later she completely withdrew financial support. Since then the league has operated the club.

Discuss Plans For Sale Of Boston Braves

BOSTON, June 25 (AP)—Louis J. O'Malley, son of Charles J. O'Malley, president of O'Malley Associates, Boston advertising concern, tonight said members of the firm would meet Thursday with Ford Frick, president of the National League, to discuss the purchase of the Boston Braves. Asked if Babe Ruth would return to the Braves, if O'Malley Associates purchased the National League team, O'Malley was non-committal. He said he didn't know the terms of the Babe's old contract. O'Malley said his father and another brother and himself had been investigating the Braves situation recently but no member of the firm had discussed the purchase with Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves. Financial difficulties have beset the Braves all year. Judge Fuchs at one time considered holding dog racing in Braves field as a means of fattening the till, but the National League squashed that idea. When Babe Ruth was signed, as playing vice-president all concerned thought the opportunity to re-join financially was at hand, but the Babe's association with the Braves was short lived. About a month ago he packed his bags and left, blaming Fuchs for the rift. Purchasers of the Braves have cropped up often, only to disappear as fast as they appeared.

Cotton Repeats In Tourney

MURFIELD, Scotland, June 25 (AP)—Suave Henry Cotton again demonstrated his dominance today in the British open golf championship. He tied a young British compatriot, Richard Burton, for the medal honor in the 36-hole qualifying competition at 141. Shooting a two-under-par 70 over the Gullane course to add to yesterday's 71 scored at Muirfield, where the championship proper starts tomorrow, England's champion justified 4 to 1 odds placed against him by wary bookmakers. The 26 year old Burton's successive rounds of 70-71, permitted him to share the cheers with Cotton temporarily, but few experts considered him a serious contender. The six-man delegation from the United States qualified intact.

The Big Six

Joe Medwick, the St. Louis Cardinals' hard-hitting outfielder, was the only member of baseball's Big Six to show a sign yesterday as the group was reduced to its regulation number. Medwick pounded out two hits in the four times he faced Van Mungo at Brooklyn and hoisted his average to .366, a gain of two points. Buddy Myers failed to keep pace with the others and dropped out, leaving Mule Haas of the White Sox in undisputed possession of third place in the American league trio. The standings: Player G. A. B. Jackson Leads Field in First Round Play Shoots Sub-Par 72 On Soaked Course; 185 Compete WAKONDA CLUB, Des Moines, June 25 (AP)—Little Paul Jackson, of Oklahoma City, 125 pounds of golf perfection, fired a sub-par 72 over Wakonda's rain-soaked slopes today to lead a brilliant field of 185 players in the first 18 holes of qualification play in the Trans-Mississippi tournament. Only the 25 year old Jackson, former Kansas City medalist champion, could crack Wakonda's stubborn par 73. Many of the best contestants turned in scores in the high 70's. Only 10 of the fastest field ever entered in the Trans did 75 or better. Rain Adds Hazards An all-night rain which left pools of water in the fairways and slowed the deceptive greens added to hazards of Wakonda's hills. Jackson, playing in the morning when the course was at its worst, whipped par by two strokes on the outside nine and lost one stroke to perfect figures on the final nine. Three players came within a stroke of tying the curly-haired, 5-foot-5 Oklahoma player. Jim Davis of Des Moines, playing his sixth round of golf this season, came home with a 73 to take an early morning lead. Miller Tied for Second Later Denver Miller, another Des Moines player and Iowa amateur king and Gus Moreland, the lanky Peoria, Ill., player who held the Trans title in 1932 and 1933, tied Davis for second place. Moreland had a quintet of fives on his outside nine and took a 39, two over par. The big fellow recovered remarkably, however, on the inside stretch to smash out a 34, two better than regulation figures. Playing with Moreland were Johnny Goodman of Omaha, the former national open king, and Johnny Dawson, Chicago ace. The sleek Goodman took two 38's for a 76. Dawson, putting badly, required 79 strokes. E. J. Rogers, another Oklahoma City shooter, finished fifth today with a 74 while five players, including three of the tournament favorites, were a stroke behind with 75's. Goldman Among Leaders Dave (Spee) Goldman, of Dallas, Tex., finalist in the national amateur last year; Rodney Bliss of Omaha and Bob McKee of Des Moines, the latter winner of the title 15 years ago, were three of the topnotchers to get 75's. Don Wilcox of Des Moines, and Harry Kaufmann of Lincoln, Neb., also were in the same bracket. Zell Eaton of Oklahoma City, the western amateur champion, finished 10th.

Cubs, Giants Split Doubleheader

Rookie Hurler Pitches League Leaders to Win

Castleman in 3 to 2 Victory; Bruins Annex Second, 10-5

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—The New York Giants and Chicago Cubs divided a long, drawn-out doubleheader today.

The league leaders were carried 10 innings before they won the first game 3 to 2 and Manager Charley Grimm used 18 men in the night-cap to give the Cubs a 10 to 5 triumph.

The first game was an exhibition of fine pitching by Clyde Castleman and Larry French plus some timely hitting in the late innings.

The second was a free-slugging affair, however, with Grimm and Bill Terry attempting to out-manuever each other in the eighth, during which the Giants used five pitchers in an attempt to stop the Cubs' four-run rally.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BY BELLE BURNS GROMER

CHAPTER 14
JAN WOULD be at the Navy Yard and Lia would be at the Navy Yard. Well, Lia was glad of that. She would prefer to be with Lia, and Lia would prefer to be with Lia.

CHAPTER 14
JAN WOULD be at the Navy Yard and Lia would be at the Navy Yard. Well, Lia was glad of that. She would prefer to be with Lia, and Lia would prefer to be with Lia.

Lia gazed back in desolation.

during these tantrums that he learned a hitherto unknown forbearance; and as he paced the deck alone he blamed himself for unwittingly adding to his wife's despair at being forced to exchange seductive Shanghai for a dull navy yard in the States.

There is an ancient superstition of the sea that a black ship against a red sun means a bad omen. And on the spring evening when Lieutenant Valentine Preston bore away his protesting bride on the voyage from the China station toward his first shore duty in the States, he stood at the liner's rail and stared across his wife's rebellious lithe head to where a rib-sailed, black junk stood out stark against a declining crimson sun.

But that was just an old sailor's yarn! Val turned his back abruptly to gaze down at Lia, and sought to exercise the chill of the adverse omen by his remembrance of the happy months since their marriage.

Even though trouble had raged through the winter along the Yangtze, and his ship under immediate orders had swooped up and down the river like a darting swallow, his snatched hours with his bride had been intervals of sheer enchantment. Lively, laughing Lia! She had seemed so carefree he had believed her reconciled to their inevitable return to the States. But now she stood beside him with small body tense in the folds of her leopard coat, heart-shaped mouth drooped at the corners, brown eyes tragic, as she gazed back in complete desolation toward the land of her desire.

"Strange As It Seems"

In the case of Zerah Colburn's childhood mathematical wizardry, scientists were particularly interested, thinking that perhaps some heretofore undiscovered law of numbers was being used by the child in performing his amazing mental feats.

Zerah Colburn was self-taught, and if he did follow some mysterious system in his calculations he was unable as a child to explain it. He quickly multiplied and divided, related numbers to various powers, extracted square and cube roots, and gave factors of numbers almost as quickly as they were stated.

Up In the Air

Iowa City was visited yesterday by an advertising giant. The man was more than 10 feet up in the air and did an excellent job of walking on his wooden stilts. He was dressed in long red and white striped pants and a black, more or less dress, coat.

Council Plans To Grant Beer Permits Soon

If all applicants can be interviewed and all class B beer permit requests considered, the city council will grant not more than 23 class B licenses at the regular meeting tomorrow night, it was indicated yesterday by Alderman Jacob Van der Zee.

Alderman Van der Zee pointed out that the moral character of all applicants must be considered before permits may be granted.

"The new beer ordinance takes all its definitions from the state law. It does not attempt to define any terms," Alderman Van der Zee said. "The state law claims persons convicted of a felony or a violation of the state liquor law are not of good moral character."

"The good moral character of each applicant is being studied by the council.

"The city ordinance provides that all class B permits must be granted within a special section known as district IIA except for places in the business and industrial district which now have permits and qualify for renewal," he concluded.

Twenty-seven applications were filed for class B permits before the deadline, Monday at 5 p. m. Only 23 permits can be granted for class B under the new regulations. Six class C dealers applied for permits Monday.

Iowa City Kiwanians listened to an unusual after dinner discussion, yesterday at Hotel Jefferson when Dr. A. W. Bennett talked on "History and Origin of Playing Cards."

Dr. Bennett's story went back to early Egyptian history as he told of the linking of cards with seasons, and the four suits linking with the earth, water, air and fire. The 13 cards in each suit were compared with the 13 lunar months.

The earliest written record is 900 A.D., the speaker pointed out. In the medieval period, the French dominated in cards. There were few changes until 1860 when the Yankees put numbers on the cards, he said.

Dean Carl E. Seashore of the graduate college of the university was introduced as an honorary member of the club and Graham M. Dean was welcomed as a new member.

Guests included Kiwanians Bert Clark of Des Moines, Howard Williams of Davenport, and E. A. Hungerford of Tama; H. H. Gibbs with Ed Rose, John Moss with L. M. Cubbison, Dr. LeGrand Byington with O. A. Byington, and George Reitz and Tom Taylor with Prof. Henry Reitz.
