YOST FIELDHOUSE, Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 20 (Special)
—Michigan's towering basketball team, averaging six feet three inches in height, staid Iowa's traveling record, already lined with disaster, by nipping the Hawkeyes in a torrid overtime finish here tonight, 31 to 27.

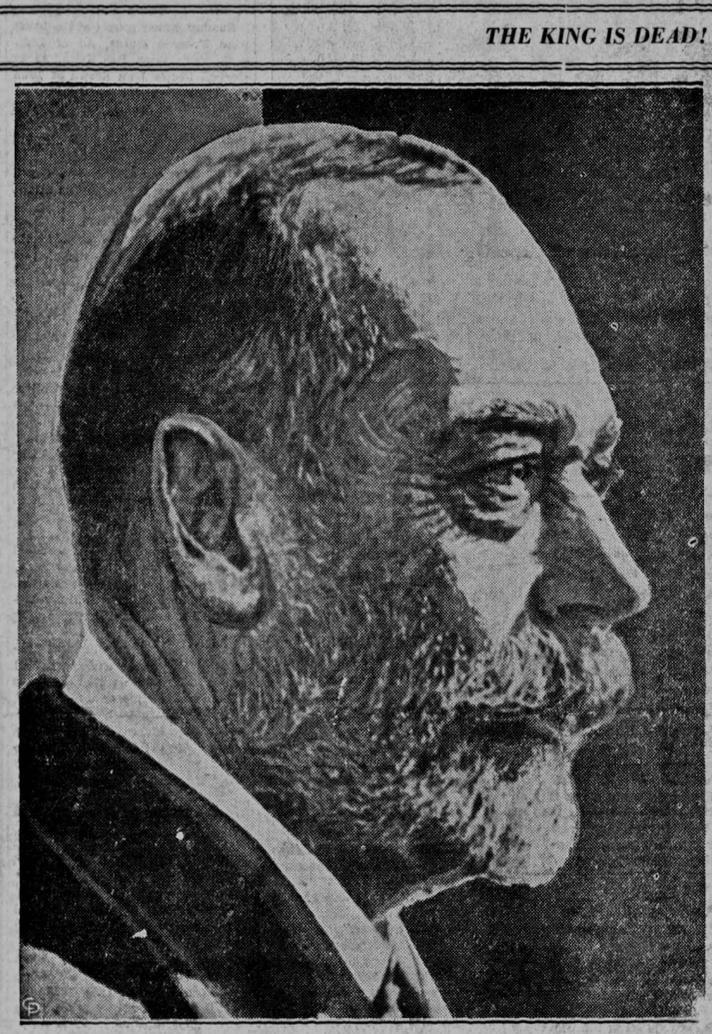

Deadlocked at 27 to 27 when Matt Walsh flipped in a sensational one-handed push shot for Iowa in the closing minute, the Wolverines resorted to a deliberate, high passing game which shook George Rudness and Captain Tamagno loose for successful shots to give Michigan its hardest earned victory of the season.

Close Battle
The Hawkeyes, exploding a wrath which has been intensified by two successive road reversals, furnished the lofty Maize and Blue quintet with a battle all of the way, coming within a hair's breadth of snatching a triumph when both Walsh and Van Ysseldyk missed close in shots in the last 10 seconds.

The Old Gold invaders, after spending the early minutes packing the sky scrapping home team down to their own size, continued in the style they played against Carleton and Illinois and took a 12 to 11 lead in the first half with four minutes left to play. The entrance of little Sid Rosenthal, on the sick bed during the day, fired the Hawkeyes in their first half rally.

Rosenthal Stars
The tiny forward twice intercepted passes and dribbled the length of the floor to sink brilliant set ups. Aiding him all the way was Matt Walsh, a replacement for Floyd DeHeer who started in order to give Iowa more height. Walsh was uncanny in the vicinity of the free throw line, whirling time after time and dropping in baskets with astonishing consistency. Five times he whipped the ball through the net and on five other occasions, he came close enough to draw "ohs" and "ahs" from the crowd of 4,000. Capt. John Barko, playing his last contest for Iowa, was unable to find the range from the field but exhibited a splendid floor game, feeding Walsh and Rosenthal when the openings turned up.

THE KING IS DEAD! LONG LIVE THE KING!

King George V (left), ruler of Great Britain since the death of King Edward VII in 1910, died last night in Sandringham house, Sandringham, Eng., where he became ill several days ago. He was succeeded by King Edward VIII (right), formerly Prince of Wales. King Edward VIII is unmarried and will be succeeded by the Duke of York in case of death or abdication.

Beloved Ruler Dies at Age Of 70 After Only 4 Day Illness

Body Will Lie in State In Westminster Abbey for Last Tribute From His Public

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)
SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Jan. 21 (Tuesday) — Great Britain's beloved King George died peacefully last night just before midnight.

The Prince of Wales, his 41-year-old bachelor son, automatically became king of the world's largest empire.

The kindly, 70-year-old George V was unconscious at the end. Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family and the Archbishop of Canterbury were at the bedside when he died at 11:55 p.m. (5:55 p.m. Central Standard Time).

A sudden, four-day illness caused His Majesty's death. He suffered an attack of bronchial catarrh, accompanied by heart weakness.

Weeping, the queen was led away supported by her eldest son—the new king—and the chamber was darkened. Later today the monarch's body will be taken to Sandringham church and then removed to London to lie in state in Westminster Abbey for final tribute from the public which loved him so well.

Parliament was called into session this afternoon.

The new king will return to London later today. He remained up until the early hours of the morning consulting his brothers about the funeral arrangements.

First Since 1760
Wales became the first bachelor to be king of Britain in 176 years. On his arrival in London he will attend a meeting of the Accession council, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury and the home secretary, Sir John Simon, also will be present.

He indicated he would adopt the title "King Edward VIII" through a message he sent to the Lord Mayor of London announcing his father's death. His grandfather, who died in 1910 and was succeeded by George, was Edward VII.

Friday
It was only Friday afternoon that the public learned the king was confined to his room with a cold. A first bulletin issued on the king's condition that night disclosed he had suffered an attack of bronchial catarrh, accompanied by heart weakness.

Knowing the end was near, the royal family remained up throughout the long evening. Just before midnight the doctors realized death was imminent and hurriedly summoned Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and the other members of the royal family.

At the moment of his death the popular Prince of Wales automatically became king although many formalities must be gone through with. He is the first bachelor to ascend the throne of Britain in 176 years.

His death came as a shock because the formation of a council of state today gave the British people hope that it would be merely a prolonged illness and the recovery was possible.

The king's last official act was the signature of a document transferring most of his authority and duties to a council of state at a privy council held at 12:15 p.m. today.

The queen, whose iron self-control had kept her calm, broke down and wept when her husband died. The king had just passed triumphantly (See No. ONE, Page 3)

Top Heavy Senate Vote Shoves Bonus Bill Within Step Of White House With Plenty to Pass Over F. R.'s Veto

Convict Must Answer Charge For Murder

DES MOINES, Jan. 20 (AP)—Chairman E. H. Felton of the state board of control said today murder charges will be brought against Richard Renicks, Negro convict who killed Charles Strickle, guard, at the Iowa men's reformatory at Anamosa yesterday.

Renicks has been placed in solitary confinement at the reformatory, Felton said he was advised by Warden W. H. Frazer, who reported that County Attorney Martin Levens had indicated he would file the charges against the Negro.

The convict attacked Strickle when the guard sought to remove him from his cell on the fourth tier at the reformatory. Renicks hurled Strickle over the tier railing to the cement floor 30 feet below.

Even a Relief Clerk Wouldn't Believe It

WAUPACA, Wis., Jan. 20 (AP)—County Clerk Jesse Johnson couldn't believe his eyes when he looked at a bill for relief given to a New London family.

"Husband age 19, wife 17, children 13 and 10" read the bill. Investigation disclosed that the relief department failed to mention the fact that the children were adopted.

Upper House Okays Bonus

Bill Calls for Payment Immediately in $50, '45 Maturity Bonds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—A soldiers' bonus bill, calling for payment of full 1945 maturity value in $50 bonds, was shoved to within a step of the White House tonight as the senate passed it along to a receptive house by a top-heavy vote of 74 to 16.

The nearly five to one majority rolled up for the democratic-republican, two billion dollar proposal was easily more than enough to pass it over a veto. The house already has approved immediate payment by an even greater majority—356 to 69—but without specifying the payment method. Some observers predicted a veto, but even democratic leaders said it would be overridden.

Wednesday
Speaker Byrns said the "baby bond" bill will be taken up in the house Wednesday, allowing members a day's notice. Bonus leaders predicted house acceptance of the senate substitute by an overwhelming ballot.

A double defeat in the senate for payment of the World War adjusted service certificates in new currency was expected to influence house supporters of the inflationary Patman bill, vetoed last session, to refrain from pressing this issue.

170 Die as Storms Sweep Over Nation

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (AP)—A shivering nation slowly dug its way out of the most widespread snows of the season tonight.

At least 170 deaths were tabulated. Most of them were attributed to traffic accidents on icy streets and highways. Others were laid to gales on the sea, fire, exposure, over-exertion and other causes attendant upon the weather.

Hoffman Seeks "Whole Story" Of Lindbergh Kidnaping Case

Personal Investigation Aims at Removing Remaining Mystery

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 20 (AP)—The "whole story" of the Lindbergh kidnaping was described tonight as the sole aim of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's personal investigation of the case, whatever effect it may have upon Bruno Richard Hauptmann's fate.

Should this convince him that Hauptmann was the sole perpetrator of the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby, the governor let it be known he would have no further desire to save the condemned man's life.

The 30-day reprieve granted Hauptmann last week and the continued investigation of various phases of the case were said to be based solely on a desire by the governor for a complete solution.

Governor Hoffman made it known he was investigating all angles of the kidnaping in the hope that ultimately the results would be of value in removing any mystery still existing.

The governor has not as yet asked state police to pursue an investigation to determine whether other persons might have been involved but intends to do so.

Another visit would be made by the governor to Hauptmann in his death cell if he felt any good could (See No. TWO, Page 5)

Britons Pray, Sob As Death News Comes

LONDON, Jan. 21 (Tuesday) (AP)—An anxious crowd waiting outside Buckingham palace heard its first word of the death of King George early today when a palace servant whispered almost inaudibly to persons in the front row, "His Majesty is dead."

"He's dead, he's dead," the news was murmured through the entire crowd even before the servant, who had come out to remove the bulletin board and prepare it for posting the sad news from Sandringham, had completed his work.

Posts Notice
A notice identical with that announcing the monarch's passing at Sandringham was posted by the servant, almost overcome with emotion.

Thousands jammed Piccadilly Circus—the heart of London's theater district—when the first newspaper extras arrived at 12:32 a.m., (6:32 p.m., CST).

AAA Ruling Ordered Into Instant Effect

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Riding roughshod over government objections, the supreme court today ordered into immediate effect its decisions invalidating AAA and requiring refund of $200,000,000 in impounding processing taxes.

The high tribunal's action was accompanied by rejection of an administration request for a rehearing of the tax case.

MANAGEMENT INSURANCE

Banks buy many varieties of insurance to give added protection to their customers.

Management insurance, insurance that a bank will continue to be managed soundly and economically, cannot be bought, but it is the most important protection of all.

It exists in the names, the character and experience of the men who serve as directors and officers of this bank. They are guaranties, we feel, that conservative policies, adapted to the needs of the community, will continue to safeguard the interests of depositors, borrowers and public alike.

George Will Be Remembered As The "Democratic King"

By The Associated Press

George V ascended the British throne as "the sailor king;" he left it as "the democratic king."

Unassuming to the point of shyness, devout and faithful in religion, hard-working, devoted to his children and home life, and with a dignity relieved by the twinkle in his eyes, he typified the qualities which his subjects held highest.

He sought a position close to the hearts of his people in a kindly and quiet way; unlike most men, he found proof of his achievement in his own lifetime.

This came strongest in the deep sympathy that was world-wide during his serious illnesses of 1928 and 1929. Then huge crowds stood nightly outside Buckingham palace and messages and prayers came from remote quarters of the globe.

"It was an encouragement beyond description," he said after his first illness, "to feel that my constant and earnest desire has been granted—the desire to gain the confidence and affection of my people."

Trained First as Sailor

Unlike many British kings, George V did not begin training in childhood for occupancy of the throne. He was the second son of Edward VII and was 26 years old when he became heir to the crown on the death of his elder brother, Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence.

Meanwhile, George had embarked upon a naval career which kept him almost constantly at sea from the time he was 12 and which had carried him from cadetship to the rank of commander by the time of his brother's death. Thereafter his duties as heir apparent precluded exclusive devotion to the navy though, within two years after his father became King Edward VII, successive promotions brought him rank of vice admiral.

Son after his father's accession on January 22, 1901, Prince George embarked upon an extensive tour which took him to Australia, South Africa and Canada. It was followed in succeeding years by a number of trips, including one to India.

When he succeeded to the throne May 6, 1910, at the age of 44, the empire had a sovereign unique for his first-hand acquaintance with the world and the dominions he was called to rule.

Stresses Imperial Sovereignty

If England knew less about the new king than perhaps any before, and at first drew vivid contrasts between his general reserve and serious aspect and his father's winning personality and gay removal of the isolation of the throne which had grown up in Queen Victoria's reign, George V nevertheless was popular and had stamped himself as capable of independent thought.

The nation had had a sharp example of that in 1901 when he returned from his colonial tour and made a dramatic "Wake up, England!" exhortation at the Guildhall.

From the beginning, King George contrived by democratic participation in many public events and by other means to strengthen the crown as an unifying influence, divorced from domestic party strife, in the country and empire.

His stress on the principle of imperial sovereignty came to the fore in 1911 when, with Queen Mary, he made a notable visit to India.

Sets Personal Example in War

When the war cast its shadow over Europe, King George made every effort to prevent the outbreak, addressing personal appeals to the emperors of Russia and Germany.

When these failed and his own country was plunged into the conflict, he issued a proclamation mobilizing the British army and announced an unwavering determination to fight until victorious.

The ruler and his family so themselves to lending the royal influence and encouragement to every form of national activity in aid of the fighting forces. Strict economy measures were put in force in the royal household.

The king paid repeated visits to his troops in Belgium and France; in 1917 he stripped German titles and names from the royal family and changed the name of the ruling house from that of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha to Windsor.

Post-war years brought home rule to Ireland, a larger share in self-government to India as well as steps towards her independence, and the significant development of the British commonwealth of nations with the crown as the chief link of the empire.

They also brought difficulties in the domestic situation, culminating in the general strike of 1926 which paralyzed industry and even threatened a social revolution.

Illness Endangers Life

But the country as a whole held firm to the respect it had always shown to the king and the political crisis passed to be succeeded by a greater crisis, his serious illness.

"This started in November, 1928, when a chill believed to have been caught on Armistice Sunday, when he stood bareheaded in the rain during the ceremony at the Cenotaph, developed into fever and some congestion of one lung.

In December counsellors of state were appointed; an operation was performed to drain the right side of the king's chest. Back on his feet again, he suffered two relapses, an abscess having formed under the site of the operation scar.

A second operation was subsequently performed and portions of two ribs were removed to drain the abscess. Recovery was rapid but it was not until January, 1930, that he fulfilled his first public engagement by opening the London naval conference.

Gradually he extended the range of his activities and his health remained satisfactory except for attacks of rheumatism which kept him from attending royal courts in 1930 and 1933.

Marries Brother's Fiancee

King George, whose full name was George Frederick Ernest Albert, second son of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra, then Prince and Princess of Wales, was born June 3, 1865, in Marlborough House, London.

On July 6, 1893, he married Princess Victoria Mary, who had been betrothed to his elder brother. She was the daughter of Frederick, Duke of Teck, and Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck.

They had six children, the youngest of whom, Prince John, died at the age of 14 in 1919. The others are: The Prince of Wales, born June 23, 1894; the Duke of York, born Dec. 14, 1895; the Princess Royal, born April 25, 1897; the Duke of Gloucester, born March 31, 1900; and Prince George, born Dec. 20, 1902.

The Princess Royal was married to Viscount Lascelles, now Earl of Harewood, in 1922 and a year later the Duke of York married Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

Four grandchildren of King George were born to these unions. The princess became the mother of two sons while the Duke and Duchess of York were parents of Princess Elizabeth, born April 21, 1926, and Princess Margaret Rose, born Aug. 21, 1930.

King George Began Studies At Age of 4

The prince who was to become King George V had no "petticoat" education. His father, then Prince of Wales, saw to that.

George was only four when he was placed with his elder brother, Prince Albert, under the tutorage of John Neale Dalton, then curate of Sandringham and a brilliant Cambridge scholar.

Sport and study were intermingled in their early training but, that over, their father had further plans. Winning Queen Victoria to his way of thinking, he had them entered in 1877 as naval cadets on the Britannia at Spithead.

Welcomes Life at Sea

The zest with which George entered into the training is typified by his words to the instructors:

"Don't bother with my brother; he's going to be a king. Teach me; I'm going to be a sailor."

Two years later they joined the "Bacchante" and made a cruise to the West Indies, in which the princes were rated midshipmen. George made many friends. Full of fun, he gained one nickname as "The Right Royal Pickle" and as a midshipman he became known as "Sprats."

He sought no favors and if his work was not distinguished by brilliance it at least was typified by winning ways and a work-with-a-will spirit whether the duty at hand was a sail drill or the dirty job of coaling.

In 1880 the princes started on a second cruise which took them to South America and the ship was at Falkland islands when orders were received to proceed to South Africa under service conditions. Boers of the Transvaal had rebelled, demanding an autonomous government, but the treaty of Majuba quickly ended the trouble and the ship continued on to Australia, Japan, China, Ceylon and home by way of the Suez canal.

The brothers parted and George was appointed to "Canada" on the North American and West Indian station and promoted to sub-lieutenant. On his return home he passed through the Royal Naval college at Greenwich and the gunnery and torpedo schools. He was promoted to lieutenant in 1885.

Grows Beard, Commands Ship

It was about this time, when he had just turned 26, that he began growing the beard which in after years was always to call for remarks of his resemblance to Nicholas II, the last czar of Russia.

Subsequent service was spent on various ships. His first independent command in 1889 was Torpedo Boat No. 79 on which the sailor-prince showed his stripes by towing into port a sistership which had broken down and anchored not far from rocks.

In 1890 he was put in command of the gunboat "Thrush" on the North American and Indian station and in 1891, after his promotion to commander, he commissioned the "Melampus."

Then came two illnesses. He was back home when he was forced to bed with enteric fever from which recovery was slow. He was still recuperating when he heard of the betrothal of his brother and Princess Victoria Mary, of Teck.

Quits Navy When Brother Dies

The second illness was that of his brother, who had caught a cold, while attending a funeral. It developed into influenza.

In January, 1892, the brother died. The whole course of George's life was changed.

His naval career went overboard to bob up only a brief period in 1898 when he had command of the cruiser "Crescent" so as to qualify for advancement to rear admiral. In 1901 he achieved that rank and two years later became a vice admiral.

Examination Schedule

First Semester 1935-1936
Saturday, Jan. 25, 8 a.m., to Saturday, Feb. 1, 12 m., 1936

The regular program of class work will be suspended, and the following semester-examination program substituted for it. Classes will meet for examination in the room in which they have been regularly meeting (except classes in SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, as shown in the form below; and Speech (1), (2), and (3) as shown at N.B. below).

The Program Committee directs the attention of both students, and instructors and professors, to the regulation that there is to be no deviation in the case of any examination, from this schedule,—except as authorized by the Committee on Admission and Classification, on the student's written petition, filed in ample time, supported by the recommendation of the department concerned,—to provide relief from an excessive number of examinations within a single day. Deviation for the purpose of getting through earlier will not be permitted. Students should prepare and deposit such petitions in the offices of the Deans of Men (men) and Women (women).

In the cases of conflicts (within the SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E, F, and G) the schedule itself, as presented below, provides a general method of making adjustments.

All classes whose first weekly meetings have occurred as indicated in the rectangles below, meet for examination during the periods noted at the tops of these three columns, and on the days noted in the rectangles directly opposite at the left of the double, vertical line.

Report to him, or her, not later than the regular class hour Jan. 20 or 21, if possible, Jan 16 or 17.

The first meeting of the class means the first lecture or recitation period in courses having both lectures and recitations, and laboratory periods; or in the case of courses involving only laboratory periods, the first lecture-hour of the first weekly meeting. For example, chemistry 21 meets for lectures T Th S at 8. The first meeting is, consequently, Tuesday at 8—and the class will meet for examination Monday, Jan. 27, 2-4, according to the tabular form above. Again, physics (125) meets twice each week, T, F, for a three-hour laboratory exercise, 1-4. The period for the examination is, therefore, Friday, Jan. 31, 2-4.

N.B. All sections of freshman Speech (1), (2), and (3) will meet during the Examination Week on the days and at the periods designated below. Consult the bulletin board in room 13, Schaeffer Hall, for room assignments.

1. Saturday, Jan. 25, Section D, 8-10; Section I, 8-10
2. Monday, Jan. 27, Section A, 1-3; Section F, 3-5
3. Thursday, Jan. 30, Speech (2), 1-3; Section C, 1-3; Speech (3), 1-3 and 3-5 as announced in class; Section H, 3-5.
4. Friday, Jan. 31, Section E, 8-10; Section J, 8-10; Section B, 1-3; Section G, 3-5.
5. Special section of Speech (1) which meets regularly on Thursday at 4 will meet as announced in class.

"ODD" classes,—namely those whose first or only weekly meetings occur on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, or Saturday, or which meet "as arranged," will be assigned for examination as announced to each such class by the instructor in charge of the class, at one or another of the following periods:

1. From 4 to 6 on any day from January 25 to January 31, inclusive.
2. Any one of the examination periods assigned, as indicated above, for the examinations in SPECIAL GROUPS, A, B, C, D, E, F, and G, since for such "odd" classes, these five examination periods will be found quite available.

In connection with any such announcement it would doubtless be well for the instructor making the announcement to ascertain whether any member of his class is already under appointment for examination in some other class for the proposed period. To be sure, it is possible to have examinations in more than one class at any of these times,—if no student is a member of more than one of these classes.

According to one clause in the formal faculty action providing for a special semester-examination program, "the instructor may use the examination period as he sees fit provided he holds the class for the full period. He may have an oral or a written examination, or both, or neither. He may continue regular work or he may use the time for review, or for any phase of his work which may seem to him desirable at this time."

According to another faculty regulation, which is on record as adopted by the faculty, a student absent from the final examination should be reported "Abs.," unless the instructor recognizes that his work up to this examination has been a failure, in which case the final report should be "Fd."—even though the student may have been absent from the final examination. No examination should be given, subsequently, to such a student until after the absence has been excused by the Committee on Admission and Classification, as shown by a partially filled special report card signed by the Secretary of the Committee, as indicating that the

The King Is Dead

The following editorial was written for The Daily Iowan by Alfred Williams, A2 of Liverpool, England, after the news of the king's death was flashed over the wires last night:

THE KING is dead. The vigil at Sandringham is over. A single sentence tells the world that George is dead. The royal family is showered with notes of sympathy from all Europe, Peoples of the west and east realize England's loss. England is quiet tonight. The beloved squire has gone. Not an eye is dry in that "tight little isle." Girls behind the bar giggle no more; the public "house is empty. London's mighty heart is lying still; music halls are plunged in darkness. Commoner and lord, rich and poor all feel a genuine sorrow. Throughout the length and breadth of the land the message speeds to the humble cottage of the Welsh miner and the squalid slums of the great cities. The most democratic state in the world and she mourns a king.

George V gained the loyalty of his subjects by his unflinching belief in them. He was a quiet man who knew life. A knowledge he gained by understanding the people. During the war he inspired the courage that the Tommy possessed and the nation reflected. In peace, the dignity which thrilled the hearts of the lads from Shropshire about to die still dwelt in the august demeanor of his robed walk, inspiring a wracked England to stoop and build again with outworn tools.

Why Investigate? The congressional investigation committee has long been the butt of practical jokesters. With the coming of the new deal the investigating committee has struck terror to the hearts of Wall street industrialists, and a veritable epidemic of investigating committee has hovered threateningly over Washington.

Whenever a committee investigates, the prosecution always ends in maintaining that its worst fears were confirmed. The defense insists the practically nothing incriminating was proved. The public is properly puzzled and never learns the truth of the matter. After a dishonest act has been committed and public funds extravagantly used, some discretion should be used in appropriating money to ferret out the offenders. What is the good in spending neat sums of money to prove redistribution of funds of an administration out of office from 10 to 20 years.

As for trying to place the war guilt, or determine the reasons why this country entered the war, trained historians have been puzzling over that question for the last 15 years and still don't know the truth. Political scientists know that it will take more than government regulation of munitions to prevent future wars.

Senator Nye is no doubt sincere in the work of his committee, but the whole situation seems rather ridiculous. To question the motives of Woodrow Wilson, idealist, who died of a broken heart because his country rejected his world peace plans, seems rather poor taste if not excusable by even so fiery a senator as Mc Nye.

When the Cambrian marshes were forming, They promised perpetual peace. They swore, if we gave them our weapons, that the wars of the tribes would cease. And when we disarmed They sold us and delivered us bound to our foe, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "Stick to the Devil you know."

On the first Feminist Sandstones we were promised the Fuller Life (Which started by loving our neighbor and ended by loving his wife) Till our women had no more children and the men lost reason and faith, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "The Wages of Sin is Death."

In the Carboniferous Epoch we were promised abundance for all, By robbing the selected Peter to pay for collective Paul; But, though we had plenty of money, there was nothing our money could buy, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "If you Don't work, you die."

Then the Gods of the Market tumbled, and their smooth-tongued wizards withdrew, And the hearts of the meaneast were humbled and began to believe it was true. That All is not Gold that Glitters, and Two and Two make Four—And the Gods of the Copybook Headings limped up to explain it once more.

As it will be in the future, it was at the birth of Man— There are only four things certain since Social Progress began: That the Dog returns to his vomit and the Sow returns to her Mire, And the burnt Fool's bandaged finger goes wobbling back to the Fire; And that after this is accomplished, and the brave new world begins, When all men are paid for existing and no man must pay for his sins, As surely as Water will wet us, as surely as Fire will burn, The Gods of the Copybook Headings with terror and slaughter return!

THE GODS OF THE COPYBOOK HEADINGS: As I pass through my incarnations in every age and race, I make my proper prostrations to the Gods of the Market Place. Peering through reverend fingers, I watch them flourish and fall, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings, I notice, outlast them all.

We were living in trees when they met us. They showed us each in turn That Water would certainly wet us, as Fire would certainly burn: But we found them lacking in Uplift, Vision and Breadth of Mind, So we left them to teach the Gorillas while we followed the March of Mankind.

We moved as the Spirit listed. They never altered their pace, Being neither cloud nor wind borne like the Gods of the Market Place, But they always caught up with our progress, and presently would come That a tribe had been wiped off its icefield, or the lights had gone out in Rome.

They denied that the Moon was Still-ton; they denied that she was even Dutch; They denied that Wishes were Horses; they denied that a Pig had Wings; So we worshipped the Gods of the Market, who promised these beautiful things.

When the Cambrian marshes were forming, They promised perpetual peace. They swore, if we gave them our weapons, that the wars of the tribes would cease. And when we disarmed They sold us and delivered us bound to our foe, And the Gods of the Copybook Headings said: "Stick to the Devil you know."

Twin Objective

WASHINGTON—But for his own certainty that an adverse supreme court ruling on AAA hung over his head as congress assembled, President Roosevelt probably would have reserved his "no retreat" campaign battle cry for the Jackson day dinner. That was a more natural and logical setting for it than his dramatically delivered state-of-the-union message to congress.

Without the advance notice of the message, attuned so closely to the same theme, the Jackson day address would have reverberated more thrillingly not only in party but in popular ears. Having that speech in mind, as he clearly has had it ever since the hostility to his policies in organized business and financial circles became so marked at the late summer and autumn national conventions of various groups, Jackson day and the Old Hickory parallel must have loomed to the president as an appropriate time and vehicle for his answer.

Timing and substance on Jackson day to his message delivery to avoid an anti-climax flavor in his dinner speech. He was also too close to the AAA court crash to tell his Jackson day listeners what they most wanted to know, what specifically he was going to do about it. He could only repeat and elaborate on the message; yet exactly what parts he chose for that repetition invite attention. What he repeated—aside from the "no retreat" slogan he has coined for the 1936 campaign—was the same drive beyond party lines for popular support he launched in his nomination acceptance address in Chicago in 1932; and that "gang-up" phrase to describe the attitude of a "minority" in big business and high finance toward his new deal objectives. And that last, unquestionably, is taken from the Hutton magazine article later lamented by its author. There you have the form and substance of the Roosevelt re-election campaign plan, whatever the specific issues may be.

A New Yorker At Large

By JAMES B. RESTON: NEW YORK—Irving Berlin is back on top. His silent days and sleepless nights are over. Tin Pan alley is rejoicing at his comeback.

At the end of 1928 he was well up in the millionaire class. The radio had not crippled the song-writers then. Phonograph records of songs like his "Remember," "All Alone" and "Always" sold like newspapers. It was nothing to have 2,000,000 of them out within a year. But two blows struck him down. The market devoured almost everything he had; the radio killed the record and sheet music sale of his music. Then he got the jitters. The pressure of having to go back to work made him tense. He tried to work too hard. He was too critical of his work. Days and nights he worked without rest, but nothing clicked. When a first rank novelist doesn't come up with a best seller every few years, no one worries him. Even though his contemporaries are producing successes every year, it's all right. But it is different with a songwriter. He must produce hits faster, and he cannot ignore the hits of his competitors. Novelists are quiet things; songs are not.

So Berlin listened. It was his business to listen. Irving Berlin, Inc., still produced sheet music at Fifty-second and Broadway, and he had to handle the hits of other men. Soon he was obsessed with the fear of failure. During this black period he wrote one of the most successful numbers he has ever put on the market, "How Deep Is The Ocean?" but he was afraid to put it out. The song that broke the spell was "Say It Isn't So," which came out in 1932. The minute this clicked the old Berlin merriest and confidence returned.

Today, though the record and sheet music sales of his music are lower than ever, he is making more money than ever before. Hollywood and Broadway are fighting for his services. His past year on the coast was probably the best of his career. Incidentally, he has returned to the ballad in his latest picture. He has written a slow sentimental bit called "Here Am I, But Where Are You?" which should click.

So here he is with 28 years behind him since he wrote his first song. At 47 he feels he's just at the start of his career.

Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY: HOLLYWOOD—The clouds for the imaginative, fish-frying heaven of "The Green Pastures" are being tested, but Marc Connelly hasn't anything to do with that. He is busy, very busy, on another stage trying to get the Negro Sunday school students to listen to the story of creation.

He is trying to coax a 6-year-old boy to look directly into the camera lens, to simulate rapt attention, without batting an eye. The boy, apparently, is so scared by the unusual proceedings, the lights, the microphone and the many anxious faces that he can't help blinking.

Patently, Connelly (directing the film version of his play), talks to the lad. He pleads, cajoles and almost threatens. Connelly considers himself quite a child behaviorist, but he admitted later that he may be kidding himself.

It used to be his belief that, to handle children, one must make them work for a prize. So he bought a big box of toys before starting the picture and told the Negro children at the outset that those who applied themselves best would be rewarded.

And now, having given some of these prizes away, Connelly finds himself stymied. The case of the lad who blinks and looks away from the camera is one in point: He had been given a mechanical horse for some meritorious work, and he was trying to look at that toy when he was supposed to be acting.

Other children who have been given such prizes won't concentrate on anything but the toys. Connelly may have to play with the balance of the things himself.

The horse, just off scene, was moved out of sight. The young actor stared at the camera, and Connelly got his scene.

Eskimo Beauty Parlor: Lewis Stone can help to curl Eskimo's hair if he wishes. When he was in Alaska, on his cruise this summer, Stone met a fellow who had been a make-up man in Hollywood. He and his wife had a beauty parlor on their yacht and they went from island to island giving Eskimo women permanent waves at $6 a head. He handled about 10 jobs a day.

The make-up man wrote Stone suggesting that the actor become a partner, and help to put out six beauty parlor boats to cover the whole Alaskan coast.

This little rhyme is Barton MacLane's idea of a suitable epitaph for him: Here lies Barton MacLane He worked in pictures and died insane.

Jones Argues For Full Life In Vesper Talk

Most Important Thing In Living Is Beauty, Speaker Asserts

"If we have a breakdown of American civilization, it will be because of broken down homes and cheapened love," Prof. Rufus M. Jones said in a university vesper address on "Fresh Installments of Life" Sunday night in Iowa Union.

"We are so apt to conclude that life is a biological affair and think confining the verb to eat is the main function in living," he maintained. "We get along pretty well on the lower level, but we know little about the environment that makes life rich."

"I think most of us feel there is something in our heads that hasn't come out yet," he declared. Most persons possess extremely restricted reactions to their environments.

To attain a richer life a person must expand as they live and grow richer with new installments of life bringing beauty, which is the most important thing in living."

This depression, Professor Jones asserted, is due fully as much to lack of faith, vision, insight and nerve as it has been due to economic conditions. Our trouble now is a breakdown within our systems.

"It is our major business to find ourselves and enlarge our empire of spiritual estate."

Our opportunities for the fullest kind of life have shrunk, he asserted, and it is remarkable how easy it is for all of us to make our lives only a fraction of what they should be.

Professor Jones' message to students was "to roll up a store of ideas and ideals that with their lifting and creative power will enable them to find out what they want."

Yesterday noon Professor Jones spoke on "Religious Experience" at an Inter-Faith fellowship luncheon. Discussing particularly mystical experience, he declared that the kind of religious experience most worth while is the type that ties people up with service and is not an end in itself.

Subscription to 25 magazines to be placed in the Quadrangle library was announced last night as the general council of the Quadrangle association met in its first session of 1936.

Paul Laube, M. D. of Dubuque, new chairman of the health committee, announced plans for the projected Quadrangle health insurance. Present plans are to add $2.50 to the room deposit and association dues, and to reduce the returnable deposit by $2, thus providing the health guarantee fund with $4.50 for each man in the dormitory.

The entire proposal will be submitted to Quadrangle residents next semester, and if approved will be presented to university authorities, many of whom are already on record as favoring a plan of this nature.

Hospitalization up to maximum of 21 days would be paid for from the fund, except in the case of so-called elective operations, including some cases of tonsil removal, hernia treatment, and appendectomy.

It was decided to appoint a committee to take charge of the weekly Quadrangle WSUI broadcast. Harlan Wilson, M. D. of Woodburn, was appointed by Quadrangle President William Hughey, G. of Dayton, Ohio, to succeed Paul Ahlers, L. S. of Lamotte, on the judicial committee, the appointment to become effective the beginning of the second semester.

The council meeting was followed by a brief meeting of the proctors, and a session of the judicial committee.

Library Course Offered Here This Summer

Six weeks training in librarianship will again be offered at the thirty-second session of the summer library school of the University of Iowa in 1936, Grace Van Wormer, acting director of university libraries, announced yesterday. Temporarily discontinued in 1932, the course will be resumed this year by popular demand.

Emma Felsenthal, director of the library school, will be in charge. The curriculum, which provides training in the fundamentals of library service, includes cataloging, classification, library administration and school library service. Other courses dealing with children's literature, book selection and reference books are of value to teachers as well as librarians.

In addition to Miss Felsenthal, other instructors will be Julia A. Robinson, executive secretary on the Iowa state library commission; Margery Doud, readers' adviser in the St. Louis public library; Mrs. George J. Roe, supervisor of high school libraries in Cedar Rapids; and Letha M. Davidson, librarian of the Ames public library.

Full description of the courses, requirements for admission, and other matters of interest to prospective students will be included in the summer session catalog.

S.U.I. Rifle Team Wins Over Akron, Western Maryland

The University of Iowa varsity rifle team was victorious over Western Maryland college and the University of Akron in a triangular postal match staged last week.

Total score for the victors, led by George Warren Fox, E3 of Iowa City, was 1,364. Western Maryland placed second with 1,340, while Akron scored 1,309.

In addition to Fox, who scored 280 out of a possible 300, Carl B. Cone, A4 of Iowa City, turned in a score of 279. Other scores were: Everett W. Waters, E2 of Iowa City, 269; S. Kenneth Stemmans, A2 of Iowa City, 269; and Howard L. Clark, E3 of Cedar Rapids, 267.

In varsity meets, 10 picked shooters compete, each firing 10 shots in three positions, prone, kneeling and standing. The five best total scores are counted for intercollegiate competition, and these totals are mailed to the competing schools.

MODEL BOY OF S.U.I.

S.U.I. "Model Boy" Designs Coaches to Earn Education

By JESS GORKIN Campus Editor

James R. Farquharson, E1 of Vancouver, B. C., might appropriately be titled the "Model Boy" of the University of Iowa.

For, in addition to his other potentialities, it is his ability to design model coaches that has enabled him to attend the university. He won a four year scholarship in the Fisher body competition in 1934.

The 22-year-old Canadian, who is planning a career either as an automobile or aeronautical engineer, has won numerous trophies and awards in both automobile and airplane model contests since 1930.

His initial efforts gained him the model airplane championship of Canada and as a result he was awarded a trip to England. The following year he was one of several boys who won trips to Dayton, Ohio, for their clever airplane models.

In 1931 Farquharson abandoned airplane models in favor of automobiles. Albeit success came to him in this kind of competition after a few early setbacks, he gained the highest award, the Fisher scholarship, in a comparatively short time.

It seems that the young Canadian must have a mechanical contraption to toy with wherever he might be. At any rate he drove to the university from his home via Toronto, Canada, last fall on a one-cylinder Raleigh motorcycle which, when it isn't running, is being overhauled.

It was purely by chance that the "Model Boy" came to the University of Iowa.

He had planned to attend an eastern institution, but while visiting in the east last summer he happened to read a book on speech pathology by Prof. Lee E. Travis of the psychology department. The result was that Farquharson, who has a slight speech impediment, decided to come here and carry one his engineering studies at the same time that he was having attention given to his speech defect.

be accomplished but Hauptmann has given no indication he has anything further to say.

Governor Hoffman's position on various phases of the case was made known as the New Jersey legislature assembled to hear a personal message from him on "social security."

Before the legislators was a virtual challenge from the 39-year-old republican governor to try to impeach him for his granting of a 30-day reprieve to the convicted kidnap-murderer of the Lindbergh baby.

"If impeachment is the price that must be paid for daring to follow the dictates of my own conscience," he said in a sharp deft to his critics, "I am ready to pay it."

But impeachment talk among his political enemies had subsided to some extent. Democratic leaders said none of their members would publicly criticize the governor's action on the floor of the legislature.

The social security message and other state matters, rather than

Former S.U.I. Students Tell Of Meeting Will Rogers, Post

By DABRELL HUFF

Returned from a two-year Alaskan trip where they spoke with Will Rogers and Wiley Post the day before the fatal airplane crash, two former University of Iowa students are now guests in Iowa City.

Richard Hawley and Kenneth Cooper, both of Ft. Dodge, were students at the university just prior to 1930, when Hawley, member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and geology major conducted a flying school at the Iowa City airport. Cooper, Sigma Chi pledge, was enrolled in the college of dentistry, having taken his preliminary work at Ft. Dodge junior college.

Alaska

In March, 1934, Hawley and Cooper, friends of many years standing, set out for Alaska. Their purpose was dual; Hawley, licensed transport flyer, was interested in Alaskan aerial prospects, and both of them were thinking of hunting and adventure.

From Seattle to Seward, Alaska, was six days by boat; to the end of the Fairbanks railroad was two more days. It was at Fairbanks Cooper and Hawley met Rogers and Post, at a lodge meeting. Soon afterwards Will Rogers, seeing Cooper on the street and remembering him, stopped for an exchange of greetings. Twenty-four hours later, Will Rogers and Wiley Post were dead, victims of an airplane crash.

Cooper recalls how irritated Inkeeper Tibbets, owner of the Pioneer hotel in Fairbanks, when he found a brand-new bed, in the new addition to his establishment, scratched with Rogers' name and the date, after the humorist's stay. Hearing of this, Cooper attempted to purchase the bed, the last in which Will Rogers slept, offering a fair price, then doubling his offer as the hotel man seemed reluctant. Suspicious, Mrs. Tibbets entered the discussion with an emphatic "No!" and the bed will probably be part of the projected Will Rogers memorial at Fairbanks.

Both Hawley and Cooper worked with the U. S. cadastre survey during their first spring, summer and fall in Alaska. Through the winter following, they maintained a trap line 600 miles out of Fairbanks. Over a 50-mile stretch, broken by, and five cabins, they trapped, and a dog team carried the furs.

The Iowans separated for their second northern season, Dawson working to prepare a landing field for airplanes in the Yukon territory of Canada, while Cooper was employed by the survey department of the Fairbanks Exploration company. A licensed transport pilot, Dawson is negotiating for the purchase of an airplane, intending to establish a business in Yukon. Contracts are already signed.

Particularly impressive among Alaskan sights, Cooper said, are the herds of thousands of caribou, which stop all traffic—if there is any traffic—when they travel.

Prices High

Prices in the interior of Alaska amazed the Iowans. In Dawson, gasoline is 75 cents a gallon, and the price jumps to a dollar a short distance away. Cup of coffee and a hamburger is 50 cents, while a meal costs at least a dollar. One dollar is the price of a haircut, too, and other costs are in proportion. A contributing factor to this is the freight cost from Seattle to Fairbanks, six cents a pound.

The known future of Alaska is all in placer gold, Cooper asserted, and if this gives out, as predicted, within the next decade, then it is impossible to predict where the future of this northern land will lie. Surveys for the international highway joining the arctic circle to South America are being completed, and an army flying base is projected for Fairbanks.

As to the prospects of employment in Alaska at the present time, Cooper was discouraging. "It's no place for a young fellow to go, looking for work," he said. "It's tough going, and you're likely to end up flat broke."

Enough There

"There are enough men there already to take care of what work there is," Cooper asserted. "It is no place for the out-of-work youngster to go."

Guests of Stuart E. Wilson at the Edwin Wilson home, 631 E. College street, Cooper and Hawley will leave for their homes in Ft. Dodge tomorrow morning. Kenneth Cooper's brother, Wayne Cooper, is a senior student in the university college of medicine.

After a month with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hawley, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cooper, in Ft. Dodge, the pair will return to Alaska to continue their work.

150 Farmers Hear Speech By H. Strong

Possibilities for electrification of Johnson county farms moved up a step last night as more than 150 Johnson county farmers heard an explanation of the rural electrification administration program by H. J. Strong, manager of Scott county's rural electrification cooperative organization.

Speaking from experience as a former public utilities employe, Mr. Strong explained the advantages an incorporated group of farmers could obtain through the government's rural electrification program. Convenient "Farm homes, schools and churches would enjoy both the convenience and economy of city electrification, if the farmers will cooperate and accept the government's financial support," Mr. Strong stated.

According to Strong's figures, by accepting the government's aid, with three electric customers to the mile, a rate of $4.75 per 100 kilowatt hours would pay the cost of the current used, interest on federal loan, and, over a comparatively short period of years, retire the principal.

At present a board of 21 directors, representing the townships of Johnson county, is gathering technical data and arranging details for the advancement of this county's rural electrification corporation.

The plan for rural electrification depends solely upon the willingness of the farmers to cooperate so that they may obtain electric current at lowest prices, Mr. Strong said.

A meeting of representatives of all counties federated in the cause of obtaining rural electrification, will take place next week at Davenport. Offices of supervisor, manager and engineer will be definitely appointed to serve; these counties in the work of starting their electrification projects and to handle compliances which may arise in the planning, construction and contracting of the project.

Counties included in the newly formed federation are: Johnson, Scott, Clinton, Cedar, Jones, Muscatine, Jackson, Dubuque, Louisa, Linn and Washington.

Gophers Drop Northwestern; Indiana Wins

Minnesota Nips Purple Quintet For First Win In Tight Battle

Roscoe Leads With 13 Points as Wildcats Succumb to Early Rush; Lead Changes

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 20 (AP)—Minnesota upset Northwestern for the Gophers' first western conference basketball victory 30-29 in a wild contest tonight.

For Northwestern Fred Trenkle equalled Roscoe's point total with 13, but it was not enough to give the Purple the edge.

Start With Rush

Minnesota started with a rush after Smith of the Wildcats had scored a free throw. The home team ran the count to 7-1 before Trenkle came in with two beautiful shots to put Northwestern back into the game after four minutes of play.

It was Minnesota's first win in five conference starts, and Northwestern's second loss in four games.

World Champ Boxer Canine Comes to U.S.

MT. WAUKEE, Jan. 20 (AP)—The world champion boxer dog John P. Wagner of Milwaukee imported from Germany three weeks ago has been incorporated at the purchase price, $4,000 with some of the nation's best known celebrities subscribing to stock at $1 a share.

The boxer whose name is Dorian von Marienhof of Mazeland, was imported duty free for the purpose of improving the breed in the United States.

For the benefit of the layman, the boxer is descended from the original European bulldog. From this animal, the British developed the famous heavy bodied, ferocious appearing English bulldog, whose under-shot jaw betrays the affection he bestows.

Ramblers Meet St. Ambrose Team at Davenport Tonight; Marians Boast Better Record

Adrian to Lead Locals In Quest for Victory Against Ambrosians

Skip Adrian, leading cage scorer in the city to date, leads the St. Mary's basketball team to St. Ambrose of Davenport tonight with the hope of getting revenge for the two defeats the Ramblers suffered from that aggregation last year.

Coach Francis Sueppel, who is taking 10 men on the trip for the battle, was optimistic last night as he sent his cagers through a last minute workout.

Another reason the Marians will be favored is because of their excellent record thus far this season. Out of seven games played the Ramblers have emerged victorious in five, and suffered only two defeats.

The Sueppelmen will be hampered by the loss of John Alberhasky, stellar forward, who has been out of two games because of scarlet fever.

Adrian and McCafferty are expected to do most of the scoring and make things hot for each other.

Adrian, the fastest and most unorthodox player in the city, has averaged 11.1 points in the seven contests that the Marians have had this year.

In the attempt to smooth their defensive game, the Marians went through a final floor playing scrimmage last night at the City high gymnasium.

Reserves who are going on the trip who will undoubtedly see action in the game are Fay, Strabley, Gerber, Haloubek, and Hennessy.

BITS ABOUT SPORTS

By HAROLD REED

Iowa's impotent offense became increasingly evident in both the Ohio State and Michigan games. Against the Buckeyes the Hawks missed setup shots time after time and it was the same way against the Wolverines last night.

Big Matt Walsh came through with flying colors. Up to the present he has been rated as the third string center.

"Dutch" Lehning, assistant coach at Purdue, scouted the Iowa quintet in their tilt last night.

Ozzie Simmons went to Chicago Friday to see Joe Louis perform in his abbreviated tilt with Retzlaff.

Ozzie arrived early the day of the fight so he hurried right down to Joe's apartment to meet the great man.

He rang the bell. Joe had just awakened so he came to the door himself.

Oz found the 21-year-old boxer just an unassuming kid who still can't figure out why he should be the subject of so much publicity.

Being a quarterback and thereby supposedly the smartest of the three, Haltom suggested that it would be easier to wash one's feet than to clean one's shoes.

The slim became deeper and deeper and the boys began to wonder if they were on the right path.

Although he failed to get Frank Higgins from the Athletics, McCarthy has not given up hope of strengthening his infield.

The St. Louis indoor relays, booked for Feb. 29, have been added to the University of Iowa's track schedule.

Mudlavia! Some Resort Iowa Gridmen Just Miss Not Playing In Purdue Battle

It happened in a little Indiana town by the name of Mudlavia, a health resort which takes its name from the famous mud used in the treatment of ills.

On this particular night Mudlavia was acting as host to the University of Iowa football squad, which was en route to Lafayette to encounter the Purdue Bollermakers on the following afternoon.

The squad was split up and three or four players assigned to each cabin. The boys passed the evening all together in one of the larger cabins playing bridge and discussing the next day's game.

Wayne Mason, Frank Jakoubek and "Skeets" Haltom, whose cabin was some distance from the others, noticed that, as they got farther from the cabin, the path became muddier.

Shamrock Five Faces Weak Oxford Team Tonight; Begin Busy Week of Three Games

Reserve Five May Face Oxford; Tilts Here Thursday, Friday

Probable Starting Lineups:
St. Pat's Oxford
Healy L.F. James

Oxford will get another taste of how St. Pat's Irish play basketball when the Shamrocks invade the barn-like gym of Oxford tonight in a return game which the rampaging Irish should take with a minimum of effort.

Thursday night the Shamrocks will attempt to take St. Ambrose down the line when they clash on the south-side court.

Coach Harry Ryan has indicated that there is a strong possibility that his second string will start tonight's game with Oxford so as to save his first five for the tough games Thursday and Friday.

After getting off to a late start this season due to lack of gym facilities, Coach Boots of Oxford has had trouble running his green team into a smooth working outfit.

Despite their poor record to date, the Orange and Black clad men may cause trouble for the Shamrocks, for they have a reputation of being tough to beat on their home court.

In yesterday's session, the south-side varsity looked classy as they broke through the stubborn second string defense for numerous shots in the clear.

Father Ryan will take 13 men to Oxford tonight: Coen, Healy, Patterson, Carrigg, Leuz, Floerschinger, Demery, Gutierrez, Pinney, Pugh, Noshby, Byers and Aaron.

That's why both men believe they made a smart deal when they obtained outfielder Jesse Hill and pitcher Jimmy Deshong, both co-eds, in exchange for outfielder Roy Johnson and pitcher Bump Hadley who have been kicking around the majors for quite a few years.

Harris is going to throw the speedy Hill into regular action and will give him the No. 1 spot in the batting order.

Reason for the impending revision of the marks is the fact that the track now measures eight laps to the mile instead of six.

Coach George Bresnahan said that the track was shortened so that it would conform with most of the others in the conference such as those at Chicago, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The new track also allows the runners more space, since it is at least 15 feet wide at all points, whereas the old one never was more than 11 feet wide.

Some of the best indoor performances in the Midwest occurred on the old six-lap track. These included 48.9 for the quarter mile, faster than the American record; 1:56.4 for the half mile; 4:21.9 for the mile, 9:26.4 for the two mile and 3:21.6 for the mile relay.

Hoosier Five Tops Badgers 26-24 in Hot Court Contest

Indiana Leads 15 to 9 At Half; Wisconsin Stages Final Spurt

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 20 (AP)—Indiana nosed out Wisconsin 26 to 24 before a wild capacity crowd of 8,800 tonight to remain undefeated in five western conference basketball starts, but it took everything in the Hoosiers' repertoire to win.

Indiana had things all its own way in the first half, Gunning leading an assault which put the Hoosiers ahead 15 to 9 at the intermission.

The Hoosiers stretched the lead to 10 points early in the second half, but the Badgers closed the gap to four points with two field goals and two free throws in a row and after Fechtman and Huffman went out on fouls, Powell put Wisconsin ahead 23 to 22.

Indiana went in front on Platt's two free throws and added two more when the Badgers fouled frequently in a desperate effort to break up the Hoosiers' stalling game in the last two minutes.

New Records To Appear On Remade Track

Golden Gloves Entry List Deadline Set for January 31

Flood of Fight Entries Exceeds Expectations; Forces Managers To Close Applications Early

Total Fighters May Equal All Other Tournaments Together; Complete List of Fight Men to Be Given Feb. 1 for Public Appraisal

Because the huge number of Golden Gloves entrance blanks received to date have been far exceeding expectations and are taxing tournament facilities to the utmost, Bob Rush, Golden Gloves manager, has set the entrance deadline for midnight, Jan. 31.

This year's tournament will be the largest ever sponsored by The Daily Iowan with the number of fighters competing expected to equal or exceed the total number of entries of all preceding tournaments.

Plans Enlarged
Original plans for the handling of the spectators and facilities for the contestants have had to be enlarged upon as more interest is being shown this year than ever before.

Not only is this interest evident in Iowa City but also in outlying communities, who have contributed more than their share in this year's list of entries.

In the fieldhouse training quarters, Bob Rush, who acts as boxing coach, is being swamped daily by the large number of contestants seeking technical boxing advice. Any afternoon one can amble across the river and watch the men going through their various gyrations in order to get themselves into condition.

Medical Examination
No man will be allowed to fight who has not been duly examined and passed by Dr. Anthony, medical adviser for the Golden Gloves.

Among the announcements made by Rush was that after the entrance list is made public Feb. 1, any person who objects to any contestant on any grounds may make a petition of his grievances which will be acknowledged and investigated by a special A.A.U. committee present for that purpose.

Taking All Precautions
Last year there was some grumbling over a few of the contestants and for that reason the Golden Gloves committee wants to take all precautions against a recurrence of this.

This is only one of the many steps taken to insure the success of this year's contests. Among others are the securing of "Lack" Merritt to do the announcing for the tournament.

Rush also wishes to state that two of the foremost boxing authorities in the vicinity will be secured to act as judges for the contests.

Rush to Referee
Rush will act as referee for all the bouts. Bob has plenty of experience to back him up, as his official record in all contests in the short history of the local Golden Gloves, besides which he has spent many years as a fighter inside the hempen square himself and knows all the tricks.

Remember, all entrances must be in by midnight, Jan. 31, if they are to be accepted by the committee in charge.

Columbia Edges Out Platteville, 30 to 28

DEBUQUE, Ia., Jan. 20 (AP)—Columbia college, playing cautious ball until the final gun was able to down Platteville State Teachers of Platteville, Wis., 30 to 28 here tonight.

The visitors, sporting their best team in years, proved game until the final moment as they were held 28 to 27 with three minutes left to play and almost tied the score.

Cazhah Dierd of Platteville scored eight points all in the last half for Platteville, while Krage tallied eight points and Leary six to lead the Dubuques.

The score at the half was 11 to 9 Columbia's favor.

Mike Howard's Saga Iowa Wrestling Mentor Defeated Eleven Men To Win Amateur Mat Title of World

By JOHN FEULING

Twenty-nine years ago, Mike Howard, varsity wrestling mentor, walked wearily out of a ring, bearing the light-heavyweight amateur wrestling crown of the world. To earn this achievement he had conquered 11 men that day.

Mike is now enjoying his fiftieth anniversary as a successful varsity wrestling mentor at the University of Iowa.

During his career as wrestling coach, Mike Howard has developed more than a score of outstanding conference wrestlers such as Earle Kielhorn, National A.A.U. champion, and Harold "Red" Beers, Olympic wrestler. He was also the trainer for Earl Caddock the summer before he won the world's championship in 1918.

Started Coaching Here
While working the professional wrestling season in 1921, Mike was fulfilling an engagement at Cedar Rapids. One of his close friends informed him that the wrestling coach position at the University of Iowa was unoccupied. Not knowing whether he would like it but being determined to become settled at one job, Mike came to Iowa City and applied for the position. Without delay, he was hired and commenced his long career.

Through 35 years of participation in athletic events in practically all the larger cities of Europe and the United States as an amateur, professional and a coach, Mike has established a name which is familiar to all those who are acquainted with the hall of athletic fame. When he was 16 years old, in 1901, he joined the Dan Athletic club of Copenhagen, Denmark. In his spare time he would receive instructions and wrestle anyone that came along. Many times Mike was unsuccessful in beating his opponent but his diligent training and keen interest in the sport was the forerunner of his wrestling success.

Light-Heavyweight Champ
After fighting for six years against the hard knocks that go with wrestling, he found himself eligible to participate in the world championship tournament at Frankfurt A.M., Germany, in 1907. Howard found himself one of 50 competitors who would wrestle to a finish match for laurels. After defeating 11 men on the day of the finals, he emerged the champion light-heavyweight wrestler of the world. For five consecutive years, (1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911) he held down this undefeated and championship title of the world.

In 1915, Mike came to the United States to enter into professional wrestling. He has wrestled and defeated some of the best grapplers that this country has ever known. Some of these names were among the participants in the 1930 Olympic games. In 1916 he defeated Bernhof Hanson, claimant of the light-heavyweight championship of the United States. Other standouts who have fallen at his feet are Joe Marcovitz, Dr. Roller, Renato Gardini, Nat Pendleton and Jim Browning. Among Mike's undefeated list stands Strangler Lewis and Joe Stoecker who were victorious in bouts with the Iowa coach.

Played Water Polo
Mike was under the age requirement for the 1904 Olympic games at Athens, Greece, and was obliged to relinquish his berth. However, he was victorious in representing Denmark in water polo and wrestling in the London Olympics of 1908 and the Stockholm games of 1912.

The long years that have elapsed since Howard first took up wrestling have not taken their toll as is the case with many athletes. According to his theory on athletics, anyone who wishes to be a success along athletic lines must submit to rigid training and lead a clean life.

Dubuque Team, Exams Worry City High Mentor This Week

Davenport's Conquerors Play Here in Cage Tilt Friday Night

More worries beset Coach Francis Merten at City high over the last week end!

He has known all along that this week of drill would be a bit spotty for his cage team, due to final semester examinations. But out of Dubuque Friday night came the word that the Key City outfit, paced by a lanky center, Miller, had turned back the vaunted Blue Devils of Davenport, 39 to 33, in an extra period.

Dubuque Plays Here
What makes this such a troublesome source of worry to the Hawklet coach is that Dubuque invades the Little Hawks' floor Friday night, and they will be fresh from vanquishing a team that has Iowa City's scalp dangling from its belt by virtue of a 32 to 27 victory just before Christmas.

Merten's chief consolation is the fact that Coach Moon's Davenport aggregation defeated the Little Hawks on their home court, whereas Davenport lost to Dubuque on a foreign field, Iowa City will enjoy that home floor advantage over Dubuque. The Red and White have lost only one home contest this year, and that to Clinton a little more than a week ago.

New Formations
Merten's club had its only open week end of the season last week, and it swings into the final five weeks of its schedule Friday against

Dubuque. Merten is working the boys on new defensive formations. He has shifted Jerry Pooler, erstwhile guard, to a front-court position, Dick Amerine, who has played both forward and center this year, will go back to Pooler's guard job.

Merten loses the service of three of his men, all of whom he has been using as first rank replacements, after Friday night's game. Ed Brees, Kenny Jones and Jimmy Jones all answer the commencement call at the end of the semester.

Ames Cagemen Versatile
If one word were used to describe the 1936 Iowa State college basketball season, this word might well be "versatile." Eight members of the Cyclone 13-man squad are letter or numeral winners in at least one other sport.

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 20 (AP)—Accident insurance for athletes is being considered by the University of California.

W. W. Monahan, graduate manager of athletics, said today a broker had been engaged to investigate the idea. If rates are not prohibitive, it is likely to be adopted, he said.

Monahan expressed the belief such athlete insurance for college athletes would be the first of its kind in this country.

The insurance would protect contestants in the case of per-

Wins in First But Fights In 1824 Took 77

Since Joe Louis first manipulated the gloves as a professional, and since amateur movements such as the Golden Gloves have swung into action, there has been a widespread revival of interest in boxing. So perhaps something of the evolution of the game as entertainment would be appropriate.

The Jack Langan-Tom Spring fight was held on the outskirts of Worcester, Mass., Jan. 7, 1824. Spring knocked out Langan, the Irish champ, in the seventy-seventh round and won the winner-take-all purse of $20,000, a bet of $2,000 and a promoter purse of $5,000. The arena, containing seats for 4,000 and standing room for 20,000, for this fiscal battle, was the first to be especially erected for a pugilistic contest.

First American Champ
Charles Freeman, "The Michigan Giant," was the first American to receive the title of "Champ of the World." Freeman, who died in 1845 at 26 years, stood seven feet, three inches tall and weighed 333 pounds, the hugest fighter that has ever lived. The first American to win distinction in the prize ring was Bill Richmond, Negro, born in New York in 1763, the son of a slave owned by the Rev. Charlton. Promoters took him to England in 1805.

Bare-handed Brawl
An international bare-handed fight was held between Mike McCool, American champ, and Tom Allen, Britisher, on the outskirts of St. Louis in 1869. McCool won on a disputed foul in the ninth round. The first match of national importance was the heavyweight championship fight between John L. Sullivan and James J. Corbett in New Orleans in 1892. The encounter, which was fought with the Marquis of Queensbury rules, was won by Corbett in 21 rounds.

Kaufman Talks At Methodist Church Sunday

Will Kaufman, director of boys' work at Marcy center in Chicago, spoke at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning concerning the needs of more than 500 boys in the Jewish section of Chicago's west side.

Mr. Kaufman became director of boys' work after college training. The work is carried on under the auspices of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church.

It is Mr. Kaufman's belief that a boy "learns best in his own group." Accordingly, 65 groups of boys were invited to join in the center's program. There is now a waiting list of boys' clubs who wish to join Marcy center.

Vacant lots are now used for playgrounds. Individual groups of boys meet weekly with one of the staff leaders, officers are elected, and plans are made for future activities. The boys work together.

However, there are individual activities for members who are interested in model airplane building, the camera club, radio club, and stamp collectors.

The area served by Marcy center, Mr. Kaufman said, is one mile by one and one-half miles. There is a population of 63,000 people, and over half of these are foreign born.

Counties Adopt Hygiene Plan

Four counties have been added to the roster of the University of Iowa's dental hygiene plan for schools, creating a new record of 83 counties participating in the work, Dr. Charles L. Drain, director of the bureau of dental hygiene, in charge of the project, announced yesterday.

The counties recently added to the dental hygiene plan are Union, Clarke, Taylor and Louisa, making the total of cities and towns 357.

O'Brien county, with 31 rural schools, leads in the number of schools of this classification in which all pupils have had the necessary dental corrections. Other counties with 100 per cent rural school averages are Page with 20 rural schools; Calhoun, 18; Jasper, 16; and Howard, 15.

Washington Votes Franchise To Utility Co.

Action of Washington, Iowa, citizens last week in voting 2 to 1 to grant the privately owned utility there 15-year gas and electric franchises shows clearly that another of our neighboring communities has come to realize that its interests are best served by private business.

Three years ago there were many municipal ownership advocates in Washington. But sentiment there—as in Iowa City—has changed. The public has come to realize that good service and fair rates are to be preferred to promises of radical politicians who have never proven any business ability.

City High Home Economics Girls Entertain at Tea

The home economics department of Iowa City junior high school, under the supervision of Helen McCleary, gave a tea yesterday afternoon with the 8B's acting as hostesses.

The class took this opportunity to show their parents the work they have done this year in their classes. Miss McCleary chose a girl from each class to explain to the parents what has been learned and made during the semester.

The following girls were selected: Doris Hughes, 7B; Ruby Ally, 7A; Carolyn Paynter, 8B; and Patricia Trachsel, 8A. These girls were chosen for their ability to present the talk and for their interest in the work.

Average price paid for Residential and Commercial Electricity in Iowa City

Washington Votes Franchise To Utility Co. Action of Washington, Iowa, citizens last week in voting 2 to 1 to grant the privately owned utility there 15-year gas and electric franchises shows clearly that another of our neighboring communities has come to realize that its interests are best served by private business.

Three years ago there were many municipal ownership advocates in Washington. But sentiment there—as in Iowa City—has changed. The public has come to realize that good service and fair rates are to be preferred to promises of radical politicians who have never proven any business ability.
